

April showers may spawn Panhandle tornadoes

By MARILYN POWERS

April showers may bring May flowers, but in the Texas Panhandle those showers may also bring devastating storms and tornadoes.

Tornado season begins this month and lasts through mid-September, so area residents should plan now how they would react if a tornado is spotted, said Pampa - Gray County Civil Defense Coordinator Steve Vaughn.

Conditions favoring tornadoes

Prime conditions for the formation of tornadoes usually occur on hot, humid, cloudy days. A rapid rise or drop in barometric pressure, along with sudden changes in temperature and other conditions, are signals that severe weather is on the way. Thunderstorms are likely to move into the area and may be accompanied by hail.

Characteristics of tornadoes

When the clouds begin spinning, a tornado may be forming. Tornadoes usually form from the wall cloud of a thunderstorm, the area directly in front of heavy rainfall that hangs down under building columns of upper clouds. This wall cloud is always connected to the rest of the storm cloud. Heavy sheets of rain and violent thunderstorms may accompany tornado formation.

As the cloud spins, the tornado begins to form and drop down to the ground. When first formed, it is invisible until it picks up debris.

The counterclockwise rotating winds that make up a tornado reach speeds of from 100 to 300 miles per hour. Average forward speed of a tornado is 35 mph, though it can travel much faster. The life of a tornado may be anywhere from a few seconds to three hours, and it may travel from a few yards up to 200 miles. Many move from southwest to northeast, although they may travel in any direction, and they may change direction. Movement is usually a side-to-side weaving, rather than in a straight line.

Tornadoes may occur singly or in clusters originating from the same cloud. A cluster of 20 tornadoes recently ripped through Arkansas at the time of the Paris, Texas tornado.

Rain, hail and clouds can hamper accurate identification of a tornado. Some tornadoes occur at night and are even harder to detect. Lightning may provide enough illumination to see the tornado, along with a visible line of destruction such as popping electrical lines. Tornadoes may also be detected by their noise, which resembles the roar of a freight train.

Pampa's warning system

The Gray County Civil Defense office coordinates a group of volunteers and law enforcement officers trained to spot tornadoes. A base of operation known as the Emergency Operations Center (EOC) is set up in the City Hall basement, in the police station, during threatening weather.

A group of citizens' band radioers known as the Gray County REACT

Team, along with area ham radio operators, comprise the majority of the volunteer group. The REACT team conducts a spotter's class each spring to train volunteers in identifying tornadoes.

Each REACT member has an assigned position either outside or inside city limits, where they watch threatening storm clouds. If a tornado is spotted, the REACT member notifies the CB base station at the EOC, which then alerts the police officer assigned to the area where the spotting occurred. If the officer verifies the sighting, the tornado warning is sounded.

Pampa's tornado warning system includes both outdoor and indoor alerts. The outdoor system is a group of sirens controlled at the EOC in the police station. The sirens sound a continuous blast when a tornado has been spotted on the ground.

Those indoors are also warned through TV and radio channels. During severe weather, the EOC maintains open telephone lines to Pampa radio stations to alert the public. Staffers at the EOC can also break in on the audio portion of all channels carried by Pampa cable television service.

Taking cover

Average advance warning before a tornado strikes is three to five minutes, Vaughn said, which is why residents need to plan ahead and know what they will do before a tornado appears. Vaughn offered these guidelines to follow in case of severe weather:

At home: Go to a basement or storm cellar. If neither of these is available, go to the center of the house. An inside closet or hallway is preferable. Lying in a bathtub also provides some protection, but be sure to cover up with a mattress to avoid injury from flying glass.

In a store or other public building: Go to the back of the store and get inside a stockroom or bathroom. Do not stay in the big open area of the building, and do not go out into the street.

At school: Schools conduct disaster drills on a regular basis and can react to warning in less than two minutes. Students are instructed to leave classrooms and assume a protective kneeling posture in hallways. Parents should not try to go to the school and get their children.

While driving: If the tornado is imminent, leave the vehicle and move at right angles away from the storm. Look for a ditch, depression, culvert or drain pipe and get into it. Lie down with arms protecting the head and wait for the storm to pass.

In mobile homes: Do not stay in a mobile home if a tornado is approaching. Go to a friend's house or seek sturdier shelter elsewhere, if possible.

Anyone wishing to join the Gray County REACT Team may attend one of the group's meetings, at 7 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at the National Guard Armory.

Guymon man dies in accident

A 27-year-old Guymon, Okla. man was killed in a two-car crash just south of Pampa Saturday.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge was Larry Earl Johnson.

DPS troopers said Johnson was southbound in the northbound lane of U.S. Highway 70, about 3/4 mile south of Pampa.

Officers said Johnson swerved his small sports car, but not in time to avoid a collision with a car driven by Marlene Gross, 1510 Williston.

While traveling in the wrong lane, the victim's car hit the left-front side of the Gross car.

Gross was uninjured in the crash. The accident occurred about 4:26 p.m. Saturday.

Ambulance service phone still off the hook

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

The ambulance service in Pampa and Gray County still has no phone due to non-payment of its bill, and if they call the emergency ambulance number listed inside the cover of the phone book, a person in the throes of death or a hysterical relative calling an ambulance for a loved one will reach the robot recording. "We are sorry, the number you have reached has been disconnected, or is no longer in service. If you feel you have reached this recording in error..."

While the scenario may sound more like a script for a television comedy show than the present day reality in Pampa, citizens and city officials are not laughing about the latest breakdown in service at Metropolitan Ambulance.

The ambulance company, which has a contract for ambulance runs with the city and county, had its phone jerked

Thursday evening because of "repeated non-payment of its bill," according to phone company officials.

And instead of picking up critically injured or ill patients, one of the company's units sits idly in hock at a local car dealership for "non-payment of a repair bill," according to the dealer.

The number at the ambulance company, 665-3716, delivers a repeated ring and finally a dial tone and dead signal, and if a victim waited for an answer at that number late Saturday night, they too might also go dead.

Earlier when the number was dialed, the robot recording would give its ironic answer to any frantic, emergency call.

The Pampa Police Department has direct radio contact with Metropolitan Ambulance Service and will dispatch calls for an ambulance at 669-7407, according to City Manager Mack Wofford.

Nations trade threats, but peace talks continue

LONDON (AP) — Britain has warned Argentina to stay clear of its naval task force approaching the Falkland Islands or risk "appropriate response" from the fleet, the Defense Ministry announced early Sunday.

Argentina replied by asserting it would use its "legitimate right of self-defense."

The Defense Ministry said Britain sent a statement Friday to the Argentine military junta warning that any approach by Argentine warships or military aircraft "which could amount to a threat to interfere with the mission of British forces in the South Atlantic will encounter the appropriate response."

It also said any Argentine ships or aircraft, including submarines, naval auxiliaries and civil aircraft "engaged in surveillance of the British forces," will be regarded as hostile "and are liable to be dealt with accordingly."

A ministry spokesman said the U.N.

Security Council had been informed of the statement. He declined further comment.

In Buenos Aires, the Argentine Foreign Ministry reported Ambassador Eduardo Roca presented a note Saturday to the 15-nation Security Council in response to the British warning. It said the Argentine note declared, "The repressive intention of the United Kingdom is thus patently proved... authorizing the republic of Argentina to make immediate use of the legitimate right of self-defense."

With the British armada reported battling killer seas and hurricane-force winds, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher held an emergency meeting of senior ministers Saturday to discuss a new peace plan for the Argentine-occupied archipelago.

Foreign Secretary Francis Pym reported on his talks with U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. during the three-hour meeting with Mrs. Thatcher and five senior ministers. Afterward, Mrs. Thatcher said a diplomatic solution was still being sought.

Pride of Pampa takes top ratings in St. Louis

The Pampa High School Concert and Symphonic Bands received straight No. 1 ratings in a contest of bands from all over the country Saturday in St. Louis, Mo.

The bands were both awarded first place finishes in the Six Flags Over Mid-America band contest.

About 125 Pampa band students rode four chartered buses to the weekend competition.

About 35 different bands were entered in the contest, Pampa elementary school band director Sam Watson said.

The Symphonic Band is directed by Jim Duggan.

The Concert Band is directed by Charles Johnson.

The students should arrive back in Pampa with first place trophies around 12 p.m. Tuesday.

Set clocks forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrival of daylight-saving time Sunday is resulting in the loss of an hour for Americans in most states.

Officially, the annual rite of spring took place at 2 a.m. Sunday, except in Arizona, Hawaii and the Eastern-time areas of Indiana — jurisdictions that do not participate in daylight-savings time.

People losing an hour's sleep Saturday night will be able to reclaim it the last Sunday in October, when clocks are set back an hour to return to standard time.

First United Methodist Church celebrates 75th anniversary

BY ELAINE LEDBETTER

The First United Methodist Church of Pampa is celebrating its 75th anniversary today. Dr. Woodrow W. Adcock, pastor from 1954 to 1961, will preach at the 10:30 a.m. service.

Immediately following the service, a church-wide luncheon will be served in Lively Hall. At 1 p.m., an open house will be held in the educational building. Many historical documents, artifacts and pictures will be on display in the patio area.

Former pastors, staff personnel, teachers and members have been invited to be present for this historic occasion.

Organized on September 29, 1906, the First Methodist Church became Pampa's first denominational church. Charter members were: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cousins, Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Harrah and son, Lee. Lee Harrah is the only surviving member of the charter group. He and his wife continue to be active members of the church.

In 1906 the southeast corner of Foster and Starkweather was obtained and a one-room church was built with a bell in the steeple. Mrs. H.F. Barnhart was one of the first Sunday School teachers in the new church.

Up until 1916 the Pampa church was on a circuit with Miami, but at that time it became a separate station with J.S. Huckabee serving as the first full-time pastor.

In 1919 a parsonage was purchased at the corner of Warren and Foster and Mrs. W. Mullinax joined the volunteer teaching staff in the children's department.

With the influx of the population caused by the oil boom the site of the present church was purchased in 1925. Mr. W. Mullinax drew up the plans for the original building and did much of the construction work himself. Joe Shelton and Lee Harrah helped dig the basement and this part of the project was completed by Thanksgiving Day at which time a dinner was held to celebrate. Lack of funds halted the project and for three years all church activities were conducted in the basement.

Under the leadership of the late Rev. Tom W. Brabham the sanctuary was built in 1928.

In June, 1934, during the pastorate of the Rev. Gaston Foote, two missions were organized: McCullough and Harrah. Both were first pastored by Lance Webb who later became a bishop. With expansion and relocation in 1952, McCullough was changed to St. Paul Methodist.

When the Rev. W.M. Pearce was pastor in 1938, a two-story brick parsonage was built on the site just east of the present church. This served as the parsonage until December 1957 at which time the property at 1201 Williston was purchased. The former parsonage was converted into the Senior Youth Building and has been used by the youth since then.

A superannuate home was built in 1947, and the Rev. and Mrs. W.M. Pearce lived in it until his death in 1952. Through a gift of the First Methodist Church in 1956 the home became the property of the Northwest Texas Conference.

The property east of the parsonage was purchased during the pastorate of H. Clyde Smith and under the leadership of Orion W. Carter and the Wells Organization, the educational building and chapel were built. This structure was dedicated in August, 1950.

Pampa was in the Clarendon District until 1952 when redistricting placed it in the newly formed Pampa District.

In 1954, Dr. Woodrow W. Adcock started the practice of two worship services on Sunday. That same year marked the beginning of the

Hinckley trial starts Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the shooting of President Reagan nearly 13 months ago, his young attacker has been under a psychiatric microscope awaiting the day a jury weighs his sanity and his future.

And now, as the trial for John W. Hinckley Jr., begins on Tuesday, the insights will be shared with a public that has learned little about Hinckley since the first nervous days after the wounding of Reagan, press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a city police officer.

Hinckley, 26, sees himself as "The Lovesick Assassin." To his parents, "John is a sick boy." Federal prosecutors look on him simply as a gunman who "attempted to deprive four people of their lives by shooting them with Devastator bullets."

His lawyers have conceded in court there is no question that he did the shooting, but they hope to convince the jury in the coming weeks that he was insane and not responsible for his action.

Hinckley's justification for the assassination attempt on March 30 a year ago is uncontested. Hinckley, who thinks Reagan "is the best president we've had in this century," shot that president to prove his love for a teen-age film star who spurned his advances.

Occasional pre-trial court appearances have yielded no more from him than polite responses of "Yes, sir," "No, sir." He has revealed a little of himself, in letters to news publications and, as in the above quotation, by answering written questions he had solicited from a magazine. It is known he twice attempted suicide in prison — once with an overdose of tranquilizer and an aspirin substitute and once by hanging — but not why.

The attempt to understand Hinckley continued almost up to the last moment. On Friday night, he was taken by helicopter from his cell at Fort Meade, Md., to Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore for a CAT scan, a form of computer-enhanced X-ray. No one would say what part of Hinckley's body was examined, but CAT scanner are widely used in neurological studies.

Hinckley spent two hours at the hospital.

One only has to go back a year, to that rainy last Monday of March, when Hinckley sat in his room at the downtown Park Central Hotel and penned a letter to actress Jodie Foster.

"There is a definite possibility that I will be killed in my attempt to get Reagan," he said. "It is for this very reason that I am writing you this letter now. As you well know, I love you very much."

The letter was timed at 12:45 p.m. Shortly after 2, Hinckley was bunched with reporters and onlookers, waiting for the president to emerge after a speech to a labor group.

At 2:27 p.m., as Reagan walked out of the VIP entrance of the Washington Hilton Hotel, six shots rang out in 1.2 seconds. Reagan was hit under the left arm by a bullet that apparently ricocheted off the side of his limousine.

Sherman brings campaign for Attorney General to Pampa

Panhandle native and prodigal son Max Sherman brings his campaign for the Texas Attorney General's office to Pampa Monday.

The former state senator from this district and former President of West Texas State University will meet the public at the Pampa Senior Citizen Center from 9:30 to 10 a.m.

The Democrat served nearly three terms in the Texas Senate and was named to the top ten legislator's list each term by Texas Monthly Magazine.

He resigned the senate to take over the president's job at WT. He served in that position from 1977 until announcing for the attorney general's office this year.

Sherman received his law degree with honors at the University of Texas. He received a bachelor's degree at Baylor University.

The politician and education administrator also has had a distinguished private law practice. He has received support from most of the state's legal organizations.

The 47-year-old candidate is the first Panhandle candidate for statewide office.

Sherman and his wife Gene Alice have two children.

The winning party primary candidates and all others will be included on the ballot for the November general election.

The church sanctuary was remodeled just prior to the 50th anniversary celebration in May 1957. The Rev. Wayne Coffin, one of the products of First Methodist's early christian education, spoke at both morning services. The Rev. Gaston Foote spoke at the evening service.

During the month of August 1962, First Methodist Church participated in an exchange of pastors with the Kenton church in England. The Rev. Hubert Bratcher of Pampa and the Rev. Ronald Pearce exchanged pulpits for what proved to be a most enriching experience for both churches.

In 1965, under the leadership of Dr. Harry Vanderpool, the Adams Hotel and all property north of the church on Ballard Street to Kingsmill Street was purchased. The buildings were razed, the lot was cleared for parking and was black-topped in 1975.

In 1968 the Methodist church united with the United Brethren church. This resulted in the local name being changed to the "First United Methodist Church." At that time the Board of Stewards became known as the Administrative Board along with other organizational changes.

A major reconstruction project was begun in 1973 and completed in 1974 under the leadership of Loyd V. Hamilton. This resulted in rearrangement of the north entrance with a ramp, a remodeled sanctuary, offices, library, choir room, basement rooms and classrooms on the second floor. Also, the outside appearance of the church was updated.

Late in the spring of Loyd Hamilton's tenure here the church purchased the property at 1923 Holly Lane for the parsonage. The Rev. Jim T. Pickens was the first pastor to occupy it.

The Rev. J.B. Fowler became pastor in June 1979. The first project initiated by him was an extensive remodeling of the church kitchen. It was enlarged and modernized with new commercial equipment. This project was closely monitored by W.M. Ledbetter, Chairman of the House and Grounds Committee.

The church has just completed another improvement project under the leadership of Rev. Fowler. This included construction of a raised choir loft and the installation of new sound equipment in the sanctuary and the revocation of the first floor of the educational building including the building of an entrance foyer at the north door.

Jenkie Campbell recently gave a new grand piano to the church and Joe Gordon gave a new organ in memory of his late wife, Anne Lee. These musical instruments will be dedicated at a service open to the public on Sunday afternoon, May 2, at 3 p.m. in the sanctuary.

Dr. Richard Webb, Chairman of the Music Department at San Francisco State University will present concerts on both instruments at that time.

First United Methodist Church continues to contribute to the life of this community. It not only ministers to the spiritual needs of its members, but serves as headquarters for Meals-on-Wheels and Lively Hall is used by the noon Lion's Club and the Kiwanis Club for their weekly luncheon meetings. Various other community groups utilize the dining facilities at frequent intervals for luncheons and banquets.

This church supports numerous Methodist institutions and missionaries in many different parts of the world as its means permit. We can all be proud of the continuous record of growth exemplified by this church which began 75 years ago with only five dedicated and far-sighted members.

Clean-up campaign set for May

The city government, in cooperation with the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Civic Improvements Committee, is sponsoring "Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up Month" throughout May.

Trash from homes, yards and alleys may be disposed of at no cost, and the City Landfill will be open to all city residents at no charge during the campaign.

City Sanitation Department pick-ups will be divided over the four wards, one week per ward. Scheduled pick-ups are Ward 1: May 3-7; Ward 2: May 10-14; Ward 3: May 17-21; Ward 4: May 24-28.

Large items are to be placed in alleys, not beside trash containers, and only during assigned weeks. Only materials such as household refuse, grass clippings and hedge trimmings should be placed in joint-use refuse containers. Dirt, grass sod, concrete or building materials should be placed away from the containers in alleys.

Customer revolt feared in rate increase request

DALLAS (AP) — A high-ranking federal official predicts "an immediate revolt" among customers of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant if the facility costs the $5 billion the government estimates.

Jack Van Mark, deputy administrator of the U.S. Rural Electrification Administration, made the statement in an affidavit filed with the Texas Public Utilities Commission, which is considering a rate increase request by one of the plant's owners.

The statement was filed by an Irving resident, Peter Martin, who said the PUC recognizes him as the representative of ratepayers in the case. A hearing on the request was scheduled to begin Monday.

Texas Power and Light Co., a major shareholder in the nuclear plant, is applying for an annual $188 million rate increase that, if granted, would raise residential electrical rates by 20 percent.

In the affidavit, Van Mark said ratepayers should not have to pay a sudden, large rate increase such as the one requested by the utility. Contacted later, Van Mark said that ratepayers will pay significantly more for their electricity even if they begin using less to offset the higher rates.

"What happens (is that) people need electricity and then when the price doubles or triples, then they decide that they don't need it much. And so the rate has to go up some more, because somebody has to pay for all that juice that that plant has produced. And, you know, this thing can get to be pretty nasty," he said.

"I would think that a gradual increase in rates might be a more practical approach than to double rates right off the bat or something."

Comanche Peak is under construction near Glen Rose 80 miles southwest of Dallas. The plant was originally budgeted at $779 million but its owners — which include Dallas Power and Light Co. and Texas Electric Co., sister utilities to TP&L — now estimate it will cost $3.44 billion to finish.

Van Mark's agency thinks it will cost $1.56 billion more. The REA is guaranteeing loans to two rural electric cooperatives with small shares in the plant.

Spokesmen for the utilities stand by their $3.44 billion estimate but say that the price could rise before the plant is finished in 1985.

Van Mark said he did not remember — but did not deny — making the statement in the affidavit that the REA's $5-billion estimate "would only cause the (PUC) to raise rates higher than presently asked for and cause an immediate revolt among ratepayers."

"I could have said that," he said, "but I don't recall saying that. And I wouldn't call (Martin) a liar or anything of that sort. I would be very careful not to say that again."

Van Mark said he didn't know if REA officials would honor a subpoena by Martin to appear before the PUC.

Bus carrying garden club crashes, 1 killed

ELGIN, Texas (AP) — A charter bus carrying members of a Houston garden club to a luncheon in Austin overturned near here Saturday, killing one woman and injuring the other 20 aboard, authorities said.

Twelve people were being held overnight at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin, and four of those were listed in serious condition, according to nursing supervisor Barbara Van Ness. The rest were treated and released, she said.

Most of the people aboard the bus were 65 years of age or older, according to Department of Public Safety spokeswoman Linda Moore.

The dead woman was identified as Lucille Villenger Slack, 80, of Houston.

Injuries included "broken bones, cardiac complications, chest and back injuries and head lacerations. They range from minor to serious but not life-threatening," said Larry Todd of the Texas DPS.

Todd said 21 people were aboard the bus when it skidded on U.S. Highway 290 about 3 miles east of here and landed on its side in a ditch.

Miriam Doby, owner of Astro City Tours in Houston, said bus driver Pat Hyett, 54, told her "she had been driving between 40 and 50 miles an hour when she hit a mud puddle" and the bus skidded.

"She said she stayed with it and tried to steer with the swerve. I'm not sure where they landed. She said they were all muddy," Mrs. Doby said.

The bus driver, who was not seriously hurt, said it was raining when the accident occurred about 11 a.m.

Mrs. Otto Bluetman of Dallas said the members of the Southern Oak Garden Club were en route to Austin for a luncheon with Mrs. William Dillard, a former club member.

"It was a special treat for the garden club members and their mates," said Mrs. Bluetman, who answered the telephone at Mrs. Dillard's home.

She said the bus was taking a scenic tour through Brenham and Giddings before going to Austin.

LULAC condemns crackdown on aliens

DENVER (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service's reported plan for a national crackdown on illegal aliens is an example of poor timing, according to the president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Tony Bonilla, an attorney from Corpus Christi, Texas, noted on Friday that an immigration package pending before Congress proposes to give legal status to "undocumented" aliens in the United States.

"These raids will prove to be another act of discrimination against Hispanics, because the concentration of these raids will be in those areas where Hispanics are concentrated," he said.

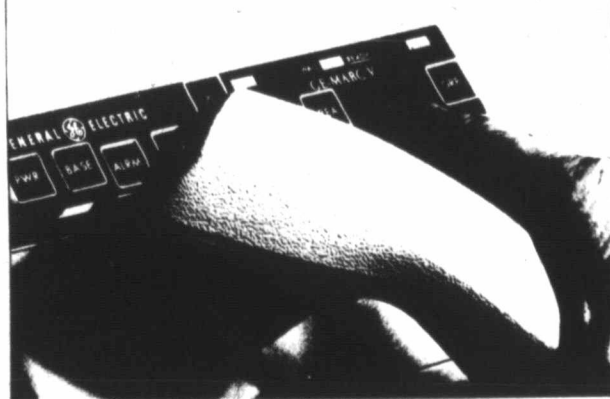

"It will have the effect of uprooting families, and both U.S. citizens and resident aliens will be victimized," he said. "In addition, the raids will have a negative impact on the economy of this country, because many businesses will have to shut down if their work force is taken from them."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Financial aid facts

The Reagan administration has proposed some cutbacks in federal aid to college students and graduate students. A number of such programs are now available, including guaranteed student loans at below-market interest rates, GI benefits and Social Security survivor and dependent stipends.

The reactive outcry to proposals to cut even the rate of growth of such programs has been predictable. However, the fact that a number of students were willing to trek to Washington to participate in demonstrations against cutbacks and that a number of people in the education establishment have become so apologetic might cause a certain amount of reflection. Have colleges and universities grown so dependent on federal subsidies (to institutions and individual students) that reductions in such government spending pose a serious threat to the survival of "higher" education? Has college become so expensive that only the wealthy can afford it without help from Uncle Sam?

Time was when those who wanted to go to college took part-time jobs, got help from parents, competed for scholarships public and private, or worked a while to finance the next year in academe. Is that all in the past? Are most of today's college students on the dole now?

The Chronicle of Higher Education provides some statistics that may clarify the situation. In a recent profile of current college freshmen it notes:

- 74.0 percent of the students receive no support from Pell Grants.
- 94.3 percent get no support from Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants.
- 99.3 percent got no support from personal GI benefits.

— 99.0 percent got no support from parents' GI benefits.

— 73.7 percent got no support from Guaranteed Student Loans.

— 92.4 percent got no support from National Direct Student Loans.

— 94.2 percent got no support from Social Security benefits.

— 88.0 percent got no support from College Work-Study.

The picture that emerges helps us to put the issue in better perspective. Apparently the vast majority of college students today still finance their schooling without direct help from Uncle Sam, through whatever means are available — parents, jobs, scholarships, summer jobs or the old work-a-semester, attend school-a-semester method.

It's difficult to tell whether those who've been willing to demonstrate against reductions in federal spending for higher education represent a cross-section of students, a small minority of politically active students or simply people protecting their own personal interests.

Perhaps those who are inclined to see federal cutbacks as a form of hostility to education or learning would consider this fact. The majority of taxpayers earn less than $30,000 per year. The majority of graduate students (a minority of whom are receiving special privileges from the federal government) are seeking degrees that will put them in the running for jobs paying more than $30,000 a year as soon as they leave school with degree in hand. Are these the "truly needy"? Is it a sacrosanct principle to require the lower middle class to subsidize the upper middle class? Is that the issue on which collegians are again ready to man the barricades?

U.S. still needs bases in Pacific

The vital importance of U.S. bases in the Philippine Islands was marked recently by a visit to them by Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger.

The defense secretary toured Subic Bay Naval Station, across the Bataan Peninsula from Manila, and Clark Air Base, at Angeles in nearby Pampanga province. Both bases are vital links at this time to the American presence in the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea. They serve as major supply and maintenance points for ships and aircraft, cutting the distance in half from the Persian Gulf to the West Coast of the United States.

The bases, used by the 7th Fleet and the 13th Air Force, also stand guard against the growing Soviet influence in Southeast Asia and the buildup of Soviet strength in Cam Ranh Bay — a former American stronghold in Vietnam.

The United States has maintained operations at Subic and Clark Field since the turn of the century. Clark Field, once a U.S. cavalry post called Fort Stotsenberg, was acquired in 1902, at the end of the Filipino resistance to American colonization. Subic Bay was acquired by the U.S. Navy after it defeated the Spanish Fleet in Manila Bay in 1898.

Both Clark Field and Subic Bay were retained by this country after the Philippines obtained independence in 1946 and when the bases came under Filipino jurisdiction in 1979. The United States will have use of the bases until 1984, when the use agreement will be reopened for review.

A comic opera, a mistake and a waste.

All that and more is being said about the escalation of the Falkland Islands dispute to world-scale crisis that has taken everyone by surprise. Including especially the British and probably the Argentines.

It is all certainly true enough. The spectacle in an age of missiles and nuclear overkill of one fleet steaming two weeks to confront another half a world away over a few islands largely populated by sheep requires a suspension of disbelief that few scriptwriters would have the skill to bring off.

It is certainly the wrong crisis between the wrong parties over the wrong issue in the wrong place at the wrong time. And even should it be resolved tomorrow through diplomacy rather than bloodshed, it already has cost both parties — in cash and, in the case of Britain, the loss of a world-class foreign secretary — far more than either can afford.

But it would be a greater mistake to think that there is nothing more to the Falklands fiasco.

There is, as is most apparent in Buenos Aires. The Argentine move has, as correspondents and commentators point out, transformed a dicey political situation at home to the advantage of the military regime. Labor and political opponents that were clashing with government troops in the streets are not stumbling over each other in the rush to pledge patriotic support, a development that surely was the regime's immediate goal.

But there has been no change in the conditions that produced the increasingly threatening opposition to military misrule. The generals still cannot make what should be a thriving economy work. They refuse to satisfy demands for broader participation in the political process and an accounting for the state terrorism they have inflicted upon the country for six years.

Theirs is a bankrupt Argentina, literally and figuratively. They have bought time for themselves, but at the cost of transforming unsolved domestic problems into an unpredictable international crisis.

It is a transformation in which the United States is deeply involved for reasons that go beyond its interests as a world power.

The Reagan administration is correct in approaching the confrontation as a declared friend of both parties, despite criticism that it is short-changing a traditional and staunchly democratic ally to the undeserved advantage of an opportunistic and unreliable military dictatorship. The United States is the sole third party in a position to be an effective intermediary. To be credible in the role, it must maintain the appearance of impartiality.

If Argentines as well as British are assured that the American offices are indeed good, there is a chance of negotiating a settlement along the lines of the formula already worked out on their own that envisages sharing and gradually transferring sovereignty over a 25-year period.

That would let both adversaries off the hook and the intermediary might even gain something. Namely, a lesson as to the reality as opposed to the theory of distinguishing between totalitarian and authoritarian regimes in the belief that the United States can in good conscience deal profitably with the latter.

The Argentines have been the prime example of acceptable authoritarians and the most enthusiastically courted, which is now seen as having encouraged the generals in Buenos Aires to think that they could make the Falklands move without serious opposition from their new friends in Washington.

To American discomfort, they have been proved at least half right.

There's a lesson in the fiasco that, if learned, might prevent future American mistakes in this line.

Then again, given the determined ideological tilt of this administration, probably not.

Income tax, Congress's worst

By OSCAR COOLEY

The worst law ever enacted by the U.S. Congress — and there have been some lulus — was the act of 1913 which created the federal income tax.

There was an income tax during the Civil War, but it was so unpopular it was repealed a few years after the war. About 20 years later another income tax was enacted but it was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. To get around this, the 16th amendment to the U.S. Constitution was adopted in 1913 and our present income tax was created immediately afterward.

It was very useful during World War I. In fact, without it we probably could not have played the decisive role we did in that war. The same was true of World War II. The way to fight a great war successfully is first to arouse the patriotic fervor of the people, and then to tax them unmercifully to pay for the holocaust. Every big war of modern times was made possible by income taxation.

During the 1920's and 30's, the U.S. income tax impinged mainly on the rich, so it was not greatly resented by the hot polloi. Taxing the rich always is popular with the poor.

Up to the 1940's, the taxes taken by all our local governments, lumped together, exceeded the amount taken by Washington, but in recent years the federal take has vastly exceeded the total levy by the localities. This is because Congress has repeatedly raised the income tax rate, and the Internal Revenue Service has expanded to be a major agency of the government. It spends millions to collect billions. Yet, many escape payment, and there is a multitude of errors, both for and against the taxpayer.

Upwards of 100 million Americans, rich and not so rich, now pay income tax. Most wage-earners endure having it deducted from their wages by the employer. That is to make sure the earner doesn't get rash and spend the money so he is unable to make that payment to the IRS April 15.

One of the essentials of a sound tax, say theorists in public finance, is that it be inescapable. The income tax is anything but. Of the millions of returns, only a small fraction are ever checked; and of the errors only a fraction are detected. People have many, many ways of getting income. Some of these are recorded but many are not. Unreported money - making has been a common practice and becomes more so.

A piece of real estate cannot be hidden. There it lies, plain for the assessor to see and evaluate. Not so with income. Much of it is hidden, some even to its recipient. This is a basic reason why income taxation is unsound and unfair. The IRS admits $87 billion was lost in 1981 due to non-compliance.

Eight out of ten doctors

By ART BUCHWALD

The good news for hypochondriacs today is that the Food and Drug Administration has given permission to companies to advertise prescription drugs directly to the public.

There is no law on the books preventing pharmaceutical people from advertising prescription-type drugs to patients, but they refrained from doing it in the past, figuring the doctor might be a better judge of what a patient needed.

But business is business, and the companies now feel if a patient is educated in the efficacy of a certain prescription drug, sales will soar, and it will give doctors less work to do.

I have not made up the above item. It is a fact, and according to The New York Times it has been encouraged by Dr. Arthur Hull Hayes Jr., the commissioner of Food and Drugs.

The only ones who are not thrilled by the pharmaceutical companies drumbeating their prescription drugs are doctors. The fear is that most people bombarded by commercials may believe the actors on TV, rather than their physicians.

There is no reason NOT to believe that this scene may soon be playing in your local doctor's office:

The M.D., after examining the patient: "You seem to have a chest infection. I'm going to give you a prescription. Take four a day, six hours apart."

"What are you giving me?"

"Dundemycin. I've had very good luck with it for chest infections."

"But eight out of ten doctors are prescribing Carraflex for people with chest problems."

"Where did you hear that?"

"Orson Welles said it on television during a commercial last night. I think it was Orson Welles — but it could have been Robert Young or Ricardo Montalban."

"With all due respect to those fine actors, I don't believe they know much about chest infections."

"Maybe so, but whoever it was held up a test tube of bronchial bacteria and then showed how Carraflex killed them twice as fast as Dundemycin."

"The reason I don't prescribe Carraflex is that it tends to have side effects such as nausea, palpitations of the heart, and can even cause severe kidney damage."

"They didn't say anything about that in the commercial."

"They wouldn't. If they had to read all the side effects of Carraflex, they couldn't afford the TV time. Please take the Dundemycin. I'm sure it will clear it up."

"I don't know, Doc. I respect you, but Orson Welles knows a lot about medicine. And Robert Young has played a doctor on TV for years. And as far as Ricardo Montalban goes, I'm not one of those people who think a guy is a lousy M.D. just because he speaks with an accent. Besides, Carraflex sponsors the L.A. Dodgers baseball team and I want to show my gratitude."

"You're going to have to get another doctor if you want a different prescription."

"That's what they said in the TV commercial. 'If your M.D. is not clued in on the miraculous medical benefits of Carraflex, find yourself a doctor who is.' Then they gave a toll-free number for people to call to find the name of the doctor nearest you who is willing to prescribe Carraflex."

"No hard feelings, Doc?"

"Of course not. Miss Denna, send in the next patient."

"Mr. Rubin, what seems to be wrong?"

"You gave me a sleeping pill prescription for Lahdeedah."

"I remember. You said it was satisfactory."

"Yes, but that's before I heard about Blissnatabs. Apparently they're the only pills on the market that make you dream of Brooke Shields."

"Who told you that?"

"Brooke Shields. She did a commercial on it last night."

"Frankly, with your blood pressure I don't think you're up to dreaming about Brooke Shields. Besides, Blissnatabs are twice as expensive as Lahdeedah, because of this particular advertising campaign."

"You doctors are all alike. You resent your patients knowing as much about medicine as you do."

Loeffler wins Dreyfus scholarship

Louis M. "Mark" Loeffler was honored recently at the Celanese Chemical Company Pampa Plant as one of two 1982 Dreyfus Merit Scholarship Winners selected from throughout the Celanese Corporation.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Loeffler.

The sons and daughters of employees of Celanese Corporation may make application in their junior year of high school for the Scholarship Program. The Dreyfus Foundation provides the funds for up to a total of six scholarships each year, limited to Celanese employees' children whose field of study in college will be in chemistry, chemical engineering or biochemistry. This year only two Dreyfus scholarships were awarded.

All phases of the competition, including the selection of winners, the determination of the amount of the scholarship stipends, and the administration of the scholarships are handled for Celanese by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). An impartial NMSC committee considers factors such as test scores, high school grades and class rank, qualities of leadership and significant accomplishments in its selection procedures.

Mark Loeffler has been named valedictorian of the 1982 Pampa High School Senior Class. Loeffler has ranked number one in his class of 250 students since his junior year. His activities include president of the National Honor Society, membership in the Key Club, the French Club and church activities. Loeffler also plays the clarinet and has been a member of the All - State Band and the All - Area Orchestra, while a member of the Pampa High School band.

During a recent presentation at the Celanese Pampa Plant, plant manager Marion John said he "knows Mark personally as a fine young man." Loeffler was presented with a congratulatory letter from John D. Macomber, chairman of the board of Celanese Corporation, a Certificate of Scholarship and a Cross pen and pencil set bearing the Celanese logo.

Loeffler plans to attend Texas A & M as a full - time student this fall.

"I am very grateful to Celanese for making this scholarship available. It will help me out a lot," Loeffler said.

Dallas company found innocent

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A Dallas aircraft engine rebuilding company has been found innocent of negligence by a federal jury in the 1977 crash of a military jet into the Manzano Mountains east of here.

The jury returned its verdict Friday after about three hours of deliberation at the conclusion of the three-week long trial of a lawsuit brought by the heirs of 12 servicemen killed in the crash.

The suit charged that Cooper Aeromotive Corp. of Dallas was negligent in rebuilding the J-57 Pratt and Whitney engine on the plane and that the engine failed.

The plane crashed Sept. 14, 1977, killing 20 Air Force and Army officers and enlisted men.

The KC-135, from the 8th Tactical Deployment Control Squadron at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in North Carolina, was participating in a U.S. Readiness Command exercise and had stopped at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque to refuel on its way to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Attorneys for the company, Wallace Maloney and Charles

Pharris, contended the engine did not fail. They attributed the crash to misjudgments by the crew, which they said had been on duty for 18 hours.

Salvadoran rebel says election will lead to intensified war

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador's election dashed hopes for a quick settlement of the civil war and will lead to an intensified effort by leftist guerrillas to overthrow the government, a spokesman for the Salvadoran insurgents says.

Ruben Zamora, a diplomatic representative of El Salvador's leftist opposition, said the March 28 election could even work to the guerrillas' advantage if the dominant right-wing parties heighten repression and drive more Salvadorans to take up arms.

"It's going to be a government that increases the repression against the people," Zamora said in an interview with The Associated Press in the past week. "The war has to be deepened and a bigger effort has to be made to unsettle that government."

The election gave control of the constituent assembly to four right-wing parties, even though the centrist Christian Democrats received the largest single bloc of votes.

Because of the right-wing victory,

Zamora said, the new government will be "weaker, more unstable" than the previous one headed by President Jose Napoleon Duarte, a Christian Democrat.

Zamora said the far-right ARENA party's central role in the government will alienate the influential Roman Catholic Church and peasant unions benefiting from land reform that ARENA has opposed.

Zamora noted that former army Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson, the head of ARENA, is widely suspected of playing a role in the assassination of Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, who was gunned down while saying Mass on March 24, 1980.

The insurgent spokesman said the peasant unions recognize that D'Aubuisson received strong financial backing from former landowners, many of whom are trying to recover lands distributed to the peasants through reforms initiated by the Christian Democrats.

U.S. officials have urged the right-wing parties to grant the Christian Democrats a share of power in the new government and warned that attempts to dismantle recent social and economic reforms would likely lead to a cutoff of U.S. aid.

Zamora said, however, the right-wing parties believe the United States must either back them or face a leftist victory.

"The United States is so involved in the internal situation of El Salvador that it is liable to be blackmailed by the extreme right wing," Zamora said.

The Reagan administration has charged that the Salvadoran guerrillas are directed and controlled by Cuba and leftist Nicaragua.

Zamora rejected U.S. suggestions that guerrillas lay down their arms and join in the next round of elections expected in about one year.

The guerrillas boycotted the March 28 election, saying their candidates would be killed if they ran openly in a country where government security forces are accused of responsibility for thousands of political murders each year.

Reagan optimistic about interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday that "the dice are beginning to go" and interest rates for home mortgages are coming down.

"They're really out there competing," Reagan said of mortgage lenders after reading through the real estate section of The Washington Post.

The president made the observation during an informal chat in his office as he prepared to deliver his weekly five-minute radio address. In the live radio message, Reagan said current interest rates "shouldn't be higher than 10 percent" given the present inflation rate and a fair return on the lender's investment.

He blamed the higher prevailing rates on lenders' fears that inflation "will take off again."

The president cited three instances of sharp reductions in interest rates on new car loans and said, "This could be the start of something big."

But Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who delivered the Democratic response to Reagan's radio talk, blamed the high interest rates on the Federal Reserve Board's tight money policy, which Reagan supports.

A spokesman for the National Association of Realtors said the president's remark was "very premature."

"As long as deficits remain high, interest rates are going to remain high," said the spokesman, Lou Dombrowski. "Unless the administration and the Congress can get together and reduce the deficit, there can be no significant reductions."

St. Vincent's notes Catholic Schools Week

This year's Catholic Schools Week theme, "The Good News in Education: Catholic Schools" was celebrated this week at St. Vincent's School.

Catholic schools are "Good News" to students attending them, to their parents, their church and the communities and nations of which they are a part.

The "Good News" of Catholic schools was demonstrated through a variety of activities that took place this week.

The children started the celebration on Sunday morning by participating in 9 a.m. Mass. Kristen Largin and Matthew Toten read the scriptural readings. Amanda Dubiel, Michelle Sy and Cory Coronis presented the gifts at the altar. The rest of the children made up the choir of St. Vincent's.

Every morning the "Good News" for the student body, families, teachers and staff, church, and community was recognized at an assembly where the Bible was read and hymns were sung. The children made butterflies representing the beginning of new life. Teachers were given giant cards of appreciation made by the children. Easter lilies were presented to the church at Mass and a "Clean Up St. Vincent's" concluded the community project for the week.

Use of the parachute, scooters, balance beam, scoop balls and tinkling sticks were demonstrated in physical education each day. Students danced to "Mousercise" a new aerobics exercise record.

Science, art, social studies and language art exhibits were put on display. Parents were invited to tour the exhibits and see the academic excellence the children have achieved this year.

On Wednesday, the children advertised the "Good News" of St. Vincent's by launching one hundred brightly colored balloons.

Coors sold for $5 million

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nearly three months of negotiations have ended with the $5 million dollar purchase of Coors of the Cumberland Inc.

The purchase by Nashville businessman Norman M. Wetzel, 44, and Dallas investor Robert E. Clements, 41, was announced Friday.

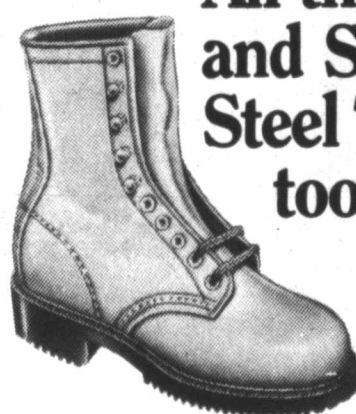

The beer-distributing company has been riddled with financial problems recently and was forced to file a petition in federal bankruptcy court in December. The Chapter 11 petition allows a company to continue operating while reorganizing its business so creditors can be paid.

Company officials said the purchase by Wetzel and Clements should end the bankruptcy procedures.

The acquisition, completed Thursday, involves the assumption of the company's $3.05 million in debts as well as introduction of new capital in the company. Also, Mid-State Distributing Co. of Columbia will begin handling Coors' distribution in 12 southern Middle Tennessee counties.

Negotiations between Coors of the Cumberland's major creditors, Adolph Coors Company of Golden, Colo., and former owners, John H. Nichols Jr. and Keith Cox, had been going on for nearly three months.

Kremlin warns of shortcomings as industrial growth falls

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin today warned of "serious shortcomings" in the economy following a quarterly report on what may be the slowest Soviet industrial growth since World War II.

Soviet factory production from January to March grew by 2.1 percent over the same period last year, marginally faster than some Western economies but far short of the 4.7 percent yearly target set by Moscow planners.

The figures showed "one of the worst Soviet quarterly economic performances since World War II — perhaps the worst," said one Western diplomat who declined to be identified.

Pravda, newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party, published a detailed report today from the Central Statistics Board which had been carried in abbreviated form by the official media Friday.

No explanation was offered for the results, but Soviet planners have said increased labor efficiency would account for better than 90 percent of industrial and agricultural growth during a five-year plan started in 1981.

Most discouraging for the Kremlin, Western analysts said, was the continuing slowdown in the Soviet growth rate, coupled with a slight 1.5 percent rise in labor productivity.

The gloomy first-quarter report follows a poor 1981 performance, with a reported 3.4 percent increase in industrial growth compared to a targeted 4.1 percent. Soviet industry, booming in the first postwar decades, has steadily slowed in recent years.

Compared with last year, production in the oil, steel and coal sectors fell or remained the same. Oil unchanged at 12 million barrels a day, coal stagnated at 186 million tons and steel declined 3 percent to 36.8 million tons.

Automobile production dropped by 8 percent, cement output by 9 percent, paper manufacture by 5 percent, rail freight cars by 8 percent, and the production of electrical turbines by 14 percent.

Pravda also reported a session of the council of ministers, the large Soviet Cabinet, which met Friday to consider "serious shortcomings in the fulfillment of planned targets."

Earlier this month, the government said meat production during the first three months of 1982 had fallen by 1 percent and milk output by 4 percent from last year.

Overall agricultural production slowed by 2 percent last year, although the Kremlin has yet to disclose the level of the grain harvest, reportedly the third consecutive poor yield.

THE NEED IS LEADERSHIP! THE TIME IS NOW!

Texans have had so many increases in their utility bills it's become a bad habit.

But we can break that habit if we elect a governor strong enough to say enough!

We need a governor who will lead, not follow where the utility companies lead him.

Who will fight to see that staying warm in the winter and comfortable in the summer doesn't cost a family of four so much they can't afford their house payment...or cause an older person on a fixed income to risk health and life to be able to pay his electric bill.

If you think paying more and more is a bad habit, Break It! Elect Mark White Governor.

Kelton adds magic to his bag of tricks

Gary Kelton, an employment counselor for Snelling and Snelling, has another card up his sleeve.

At nights and on weekends, he plies his art with the skill of a craftsman as "Magician Extraordinaire" at the local Pizza Inn, entertaining adults as well as children with his tricks.

Children's eyes grow big as saucers as he twists long, skinny balloons into the shape of animals. He can make sponge balls and coins appear from behind his ear, multiply when you aren't looking and disappear all together.

But when he brings out his cards, look out. Despite one's suspicions that he was once a "card shark," Kelton says he began learning magic as a "card cheat" — using his sleight of hand only when losing.

He says he expanded his bag of tricks when he met a magician in church. This magician specialized in coin and sponge ball tricks, so Kelton traded his card secrets for the magician's help.

"He told me, 'Gary, you're so good with kids, you ought to do a magic act,'" Kelton said, and he's been entertaining and amazing children ever since.

That was seven years ago.

Since he moved to Pampa in August, he saw the number of birthday parties for children and a new opportunity to delight and amaze.

"It's the smiles of the kids and the laughter of the people that I like," Kelton said. "I'm not afraid to make a fool of myself."

"I've already had people come back to see me — that's the most gratifying," Kelton said.

AMAZED BY MAGIC. Harold and Kathy Cota show amazement on their faces, as "Magician Extraordinaire" Gary Kelton, right, correctly guesses Cota's card.

'Shoot-to-kill' law aimed at wild dogs

GRANBY, Mass. (AP) — The town board is considering implementing a 19th century "shoot-to-kill" law aimed at a wild pack of dogs that has killed 60 sheep and ducks here since January.

The town's dog officer probably will be authorized, at a board meeting Monday, to shoot dogs on sight, Selectman Chairman Robert Farr said Friday.

None of the dead animals were killed for food, Farr said. "It appears to be for fun, and sheep is just a step away from a child. That's what I'm afraid of."

The cost of livestock lost to predators in this western Massachusetts town of 5,700 soared to more than $1,700 in four months, compared with $200 for all of last year, he said.

Farr said a statute dating to at least 1877 gives the town the authority to kill dogs.

Town farmers who have lost animals to the dogs want the law implemented, but not everyone agrees.

"If a stray dog chases a police car, are they going to stop and shoot it?" said Roger Johnson, an English teacher at a South Hadley high school. He said he owns a mongrel that children brought home as a stray at Christmas 11 years ago.

"It's a fairly archaic law enacted to cope with dogs with rabies," said Charles Contos, assistant director of law enforcement for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Send Your Opinion To Austin

AUSTIN — While many products can be sold only to a specialized market or in a certain area, agricultural products are needed by everyone, everywhere.

Of course, a need does not equal a sale. All of us have had the experience of needing something, but not buying it, because we didn't know it was available, or we didn't like to do business with whoever was selling it.

Agriculture is not much different. While we have a product to sell here in Texas, that product must be promoted to make sure Texas can compete with other states and other countries that sell food and fiber.

The Texas Department of Agriculture is trying to start a program to sell Texas products overseas. Already, they have an office in Mexico City, which they administer with the Texas Industrial Commission. Commissioner Reagan Brown tells us he will try to start other offices in Europe and the Far East.

We plan to support, if not sponsor, legislation that will help the Department of Agriculture man these overseas posts. The results of an aggressive sales policy could be dramatic.

For example, the average man in China owns two shirts. If we could convince him to buy a third shirt, the demand for cotton would take care of the entire Texas surplus. We probably could receive similar results from other countries and other crops.

In 1970, the value of the U.S. agricultural exports was about $10 billion. In 1980, that figure was about $40 billion. We still have a surplus, and there are people in the world who need our products. There is room for that figure to increase more and more.

Texas is very fortunate in that we have a Gulf port. This makes trade overseas much more practical and economical. Also, we are centrally located between the two oceans, so trade with both Europe and the Far East is feasible.

No business these days can survive without a sales policy that beats the bushes to find new customers. While this may be a new idea, to some extent, in agriculture, it's an idea whose time has come.

If we don't take advantage of these foreign markets, other states will. Already, Illinois has offices in Hong Kong and Brussels, Belgium. While these offices cost about $150,000 a year, they should be well worth the money. We will do whatever we can in the next session of the Legislature to get more of these offices, and we know the Department of Agriculture will do it's part.

We hope all of you will realize the importance these foreign trade offices could have and will support them, also. We would like to know how you feel about them. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Porthole may have caused huge rig's sinking, 84 crew deaths

BOSTON (AP) — It was the biggest and best — a 15-ton monument to technology. Now Coast Guard hearings have raised the possibility that a single porthole may have led to sinking of the drilling rig Ocean Ranger and the deaths of 84 crew members.

Taller than a football field, with a deck measuring 398 by 262 feet, the Ocean Ranger was the largest of the semi-submersible drilling rigs. It was designed to handle 115 mph winds and 110-foot waves; for six years it operated in the rough weather off the coast of Alaska and in the North Sea.

But in the early morning darkness of Feb. 15, the rig capsized and sank in a blizzard off the Newfoundland coast while two lesser rigs a few miles away rode out the storm. All of the crew members who had been aboard died, some of them in a lifeboat that overturned within sight of a rescue vessel.

Four days of Coast Guard hearings last week on the sinking have provided investigators some clues about what happened that night, including radio reports that a wave smashed a porthole and flooded the important ballast control room hours before the rig sank.

Investigators from the Coast Guard and the National Transportation Safety Board are trying to see if there is a connection between the porthole and later radio reports that critical valves controlling the rig's flotation system were "opening and closing by themselves."

The hearings also included:

—Reports that a public address system and a gas detection system, both located in the ballast control room, were knocked out.

—Testimony that a computer in the control room used to monitor weather conditions and the pitch and roll of the rig had been out of order for several months.

—Indications the Ocean Ranger never went to "survival draft," a procedure to raise the rig's deck off the ocean surface by pumping air into vessel's giant pontoons. Two other rigs in the area, which suffered damage in the storm, took this precaution.

—Details of an incident nine days before the sinking in which the rig's captain, Clarence E. Hauss, apparently opened the wrong valves in the control room, sending the rig into a lurch that drove crewmen to the deck in lifejackets.

Investigators have focused on radio reports about the porthole and subsequent problems aboard the rig.

Recession hits nation's corporate board rooms

NEW YORK (AP) — In boardrooms across the country, corporate chins were dropping this past week as the tally on first-quarter earnings told a grim tale: profits had plunged. And for many companies the quarter was a loss.

From the initial batch of reports it was clear the carnage was widespread.

Chemical companies, paper producers, steelmakers, metals producers, airlines and oil companies were among the hardest hit. And in nearly every case recession and its effects on sales were cited.

Many chiefs spoke in pointed warnings of worse things to come.

Said George Monroe, chairman of the metals maker Phelps Dodge Corp.: "Our industry is experiencing the worst depression since the 1930s and I don't expect it to emerge until the key industries we supply — such as housing and construction and automobiles — begin their own recoveries."

For some companies the first-quarter results hurt prestige as much as profits.

Delta Air Lines, for example, had been a profit star in the battered airline industry. But this time it suffered with its competitors, reporting an operating loss of $45.7 million — its first quarterly loss in 25 years.

Trans World Airlines, traditionally weakest in the first quarter, had a pretax loss of $110 million. That was the biggest quarterly loss in its history.

As with the airlines, some industries could not blame just the recession. The airlines have been losing money for the past two years, and meager profits for steel producers are nothing new. Both industries have been hurt by foreign competition.

"The recovery that the consensus had been predicting for spring has been a non-event," said Ralph Fletcher, an economist at Industrial National Bank of Rhode Island in Providence. "The big (problem) now is that if interest rates don't come down, I don't think we'll get a recovery by mid-year, and (corporate) profits will get even worse."

Wall Street marks six weekly gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market has quietly put together a run of six consecutive weekly gains since mid-March.

The rally has produced few fireworks. In only two of the 30 sessions since it began has the Dow Jones industrial average recorded gains of 10 points or better.

But what it has lacked in drama it has made up for in durability. By the reckoning of William LeFevre, analyst at Purcell, Graham & Co., the last time the Dow Jones industrials rose for six weeks in a row was in the fall of 1972.

About the only current plus for the market in the news is evidence of the continuing unwinding of inflation. On Friday the government reported that the consumer price index fell 0.3 percent in March for its first monthly decline since 1965.

USDA attacks chemical residues in nation's meat supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is planning to introduce a new program to tackle the old problem of chemical residues showing up in the nation's meat supply.

According to informed sources in the department and in the meat industry, the program will involve an effort by USDA and producer groups to reduce or eliminate residues of drugs before cattle, hogs and other livestock are sent to market.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the program probably will be announced next week.

According to one of the sources, the program will be called TRAP — an acronym which stands for "total residue avoidance program." The department, through the Food Safety and Inspection Service and the Extension Service, would work with state and local agencies, producer groups and others to educate farmers on the residue problem and how to solve it through better management.

Further, according to the sources, industry and government researchers are working to develop simple new tests which farmers could use to check meat animals and poultry for chemicals before they are sent to slaughter plants.

Actually, the idea of a "total residue avoidance program" has been in the development stage for nearly a year. The task now is to put it to practical use at the farm level.

The Food and Drug Administration sets tolerances or allowable levels for various drugs found in carcasses of slaughtered animals. Sometimes, however, the chemical residues exceed the allowable levels.

Currently, the USDA has under review a proposal announced last month to extend another testing procedure to detect excessive antibiotics in animal and poultry carcasses at the slaughter plant.

The procedure is called STOP — swab test on the premises — and has been used successfully since 1979 to detect the presence of antibiotics in slaughtered dairy cows.

CATTLE MANAGEMENT
Many times cattlemen forget or put off small things that can cost them a lot of money in the long run.

Blackleg can cause deaths to calves and yearlings when we thought they were protected through vaccination. When young calves, less than 3 months of age are vaccinated, their immunity will probably not last. Therefore, calves need to be re-vaccinated when 4 to 6 months of age. A lot of people use a 3-way vaccine (CCSN) to protect their calves and yearlings grazing grass pastures. Some believe that the 7-way shots give some added benefit when grazing wheat, alfalfa and other improved pastures. You may want to visit with your veterinarian on your vaccination program to fit your situation. Vaccines are cheap insurance and preventing one death will pay for a lot of vaccine with today's cattle prices.

Implant growth stimulants are another way to increase net cattle profits. Research has shown that implants improve daily gain 8 to 12 percent in stockers and feedlot cattle.

There is considerable interest in implanting suckling calves with growth stimulants where improvement in weaning weights of from 20 to 25 pounds have resulted from the use of Ralgro.

It is also time for cattle grub control, another proven money making management practice. Heel fly attacks and grub infestations cause indirect losses such as reduced rate of gains on both calves and yearlings.

Heel flies and resulting grubs may reduce cow beef production by enough to produce 40 pounds of additional calf weight at weaning time. Grubby animals may require up to 15 percent more feed for the same amount of gain than grub-free animals.

Systemic insecticides for cattle grub control may be administered as dips, sprays, or pour-ons. Administer treatments between May 1 and September 1, preferably soon after May 1 for best results. Treatments after September 1 are more likely to result in adverse side effects. Do not treat animals for grub control and drench on the same day.

Choose the insecticide and treatment that best fits your operation. The smart operator will spend a few dollars on these management practices and in return more pounds of beef will pass across the scales on pay day.

ALFALFA WEEVILS
Alfalfa growers need to keep a check on the progress and development of alfalfa weevils. The larvae of the alfalfa weevil cause the most damage to alfalfa. The larvae start feeding on new leaves. Their feeding skeletonize the leaves. Damaged leaves dry fast and the field takes on a grayish or whitish cast.

The young larvae are yellow with a shiny black head. Full-grown larvae are about 1/2 inches long. Their heads are black, bodies are green and they have a white stripe running down the middle of their backs.

The adult weevils spread their egg laying over several weeks and the larvae feed for 3 to 4 weeks so damage occurs generally during the first and second cuttings.

Chemical control is recommended when 25 - 30 percent of the terminals are damaged or when 25 or more larvae per square foot are found.

When larvae become abundant a week to 10 days before the crop would normally be cut, it may be advantageous to cut early instead of spraying.

Always cut plants clean and close. Remove all hay from fields as soon as possible. Alfalfa left standing and hay left on the ground offer the weevils food and shelter. Sunlight kills many of the larvae and new adults will leave clean-cut fields. If larvae are still abundant in new re-growth after cutting, then chemical control should be initiated. See MP - 1014, Texas Guide for Controlling Insects on Legumes and Grasses for insecticides and rates of application. Insecticides which are recommended are Guthion, Supracide, Sevin, Furadan, Diazinon, Malathion, Methoxychlor, Methyl Parathion and Parathion.

TRACTOR SAFETY
Tractors are for work, not play. And they each have only one seat — for the operator. Unfortunately, many people — most often children — are seriously injured and even killed in fall from tractors on which they were allowed to ride.

Such mishaps can be prevented by following a few precautions. These include the following:

— Keep children and non-workers off of and away from farm machinery. Do not offer rides or give — in to a child's plea to ride along. Make "No Riders" your policy.

— Make sure no one has climbed aboard the tractor or trailing equipment without your knowledge. See that everyone is out of the way before moving.

A tractor is not a suitable place to baby-sit. Arrange for child care if necessary.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

Call us to see what your savings could be.

Freedom -- not regulation -- works best

AMARILLO — Freedom, not regulation or taxation, is proving to be the best policy adopted to solve the nation's energy problems, says the chairman of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

J. Avery Rush Jr.,

president of Diamond Shamrock Corporation's Oil and Gas Unit, headquartered in Amarillo, told members attending the annual meeting of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association convention conducted earlier this month that nine years of government price and allocation controls on crude oil and petroleum products were not able to do what one year of free market competition has done to petroleum supplies and prices.

WINNING TOSS. Pampa's Randy Slaybaugh will go to the regionals for the second year in a row after winning both the shot put (above) and the discus during the District 3-5A track meet Saturday at Harvester Stadium.

(Staff Photo)

Slaybaugh wins both shot and discus at district

Pampa's Randy Slaybaugh negotiated the shot put and discus circle with relative ease Saturday at the District 3-5A track meet in Harvester Stadium.

Slaybaugh won the shot and was runner-up in the discus last year. This time around, the 180-pound senior won both events. Slaybaugh had his best toss ever (54-0) in the shot.

Slaybaugh also finished fourth in the 220 with a 22.4 clocking and was a member of the 440-relay team (along with Wes Stevens, Gary Dabbs and Brad Voyles) that placed fourth. Slaybaugh was the only Harvester that qualified for the regionals.

Pampa gymnasts place in meet

Krista West and Tracy Medley of the Pampa Dust Devils finished second and third respectively in a Class 4 sectional gymnastics championship Saturday at Gymnastics of Pampa.

Lubbock Hamilton's Angela Anderson, who was favored to win the 9-11 age division, compiled an all-around score of 36 to take first place. However, Anderson had to come from behind to win after trailing West going into the balance beam competition. West finished with an all-around score of 35.9 while Medley had 35.15.

"I knew it was going to be a tough meet," Pampa coach Fred Hughes said. "Everyone hung in there with some tight scores."

"We'll be looking for a regional qualifier's meet to enter Randy in this week," Pampa coach Wendall Palmer said. "Now, he can concentrate on the weights and not worry about running the 200 or the relays."

Palmer was pleased with the performance of freshman Chieto Ontiveros, who placed sixth in the two-mile.

"That's very good for a freshman," Palmer added.

Slaybaugh makes a bid for his second consecutive trip to the state meet May 14-15 in Austin. Slaybaugh placed second in the discus at the regionals last year to qualify for the state meet.

"Anderson was expected to win, but Christa had her beat going into the beam."

Other placings went to Leah Rummel, Lubbock Hamilton, 35.05; Ginger Swann, OJs of Amarillo, 34.6; Amy Laughan, OJs of Amarillo, 34.5; Cissy Zortman, Sunbeams of El Paso, 34.4; Leslie Finn, Lubbock Hamilton, 34.4; Amy Martin, Abilene, 34.15, and Kristin Northington, 34.05.

There were 59 gymnasts youngsters entered in the 9-11 division.

Other Pampa gymnasts entered in the meet are Dori Kidwell, Christina Rogers, Jodi Denman, Kim Young, Andrea Adcock, Jennifer Graves, Kristal Mills, Serena Clinkingbeard, Daphne Cates and Shaile McCauley.

Hughes places sixth at girls' track regionals

LUBBOCK—Freshman high jumper Kristi Hughes and senior discus thrower Jessica Marcum didn't have their usual winning form this weekend at the Class 5A regional track meet, but Pampa coach Frank Belcher was still proud of his two charges.

"Of course they were disappointed, but I felt happy just to have them here," Belcher said. "It sure doesn't take away from what they've accomplished this year."

Miss Hughes cleared 5-0 to place sixth while Miss Marcum failed to place with her 101-foot toss.

"Kristi was probably the youngest one there," Belcher added. "There's not too many freshman that are part of the campus at 5A schools."

Miss Hughes shares the District 3-5A high jump record of 5-6 with Amarillo High's Lori Bolk, who won the regional meet by jumping 5-5.

Miss Marcum was the points leader for the Lady Harvesters this season.

"Jessica contributed in a big way for us this year," Belcher added. "She didn't have a good day at Lubbock, but nobody else did either. None of the throws were good."

Miss Marcum, who had the Panhandle area's fourth best throw in the discus at 118-3, also qualified for the regionals last season.

Cincinnati slips by Houston, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Dave Concepcion and Johnny Bench drove home first-inning runs with a double and single to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday night.

The Reds jumped on Astros starter Bob Knepper, 1-2, for all three runs while Frank Pastore, 2-1, was shutting out the Astros through the first five innings.

Ed Milner led off Cincinnati's first inning with a strikeout and Ron Oester singled prior to the consecutive RBI hits by Concepcion and Bench. Former Astros center fielder Cesar Cedeño then hit into a double play to end the inning.

Johnson takes command at Orlando Lady Golf Classic

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tour veteran Janet Coles fired five birdies to take the lead in the rain-interrupted second round of the $150,000 Orlando Lady Classic Saturday, but the leader in the clubhouse after the full 36 holes was second-year pro Chris Johnson.

Coles was 7 under par after 14 holes and was to complete her round early today along with 20 others unable to finish because of rain and darkness.

First-round leader Kathy Postlewait remained at 6 under par after 14 holes.

Johnson, still looking for her first victory, shot a 4-under-par 68 to go with her opening 73 for a 141 total over the rain-swept 6,106-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course. This put Johnson at 1-under with one round to go in the 54-hole event.

Postlewait and Coles were in the same final threesome and had to call it a day after completing only 14 holes. It took them five hours to get that far after two rain delays earlier in the day.

Coles, a one-time winner in her six years on the women's tour, started the day at 2-under.

4 shots behind Postlewait. But while they matched birdies for awhile, Postlewait had a double-bogey on the par-3 fourth hole and a bogey on the 12th to slip one behind Coles.

The two leaders and 19 others who teed off late Saturday will have to take up where they left off early Sunday before beginning the final 18 later in the day.

Dot Germain and Nancy Lopez-Melton were at 3-under par in the incomplete second-round. Germain had three holes to go before finishing her round and Lopez-Melton two.

"I definitely had the momentum on my side," Coles said about the interrupted round. But she said, "I was prepared to stop due to the problems and I wasn't too bothered by it."

Postlewait, whose opening 66 tied the low round this year on the LPGA, said it was "kind of hard to get some momentum going today. It was hard to concentrate. It was slow all day."

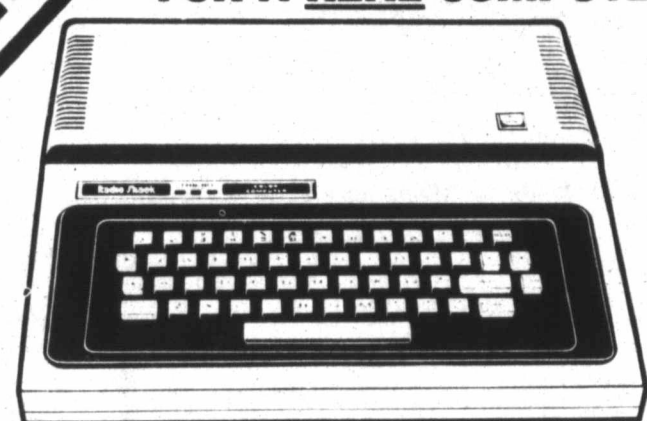

She added that having to play five hours for 14 holes was "kind of grinding."

Snead, January lead Legends of Golf tourney

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sam Snead and Don January charged through the cold and mist with a 10-under-par 60 Saturday to take a commanding eight-shot lead in the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf Tournament.

The 69-year-old Snead and the 52-year-old January posted a 36-hole best-ball total of 122 which was 18-under-par over soggy Onion Creek Golf Club.

The tournament was shortened to 54-holes after Thursday's round was canceled by heavy rain.

Bob Toski and Japan's Chin-Sei-Ha maneuvered into second place tie with Julius Boros and Miller Barber with an 8-under-par 62 for a 10-under-par 130 thanks to six birdies by the red-hot Toski, regarded at the premier teaching pro in the game.

Boros and Barber birdied the last four holes for a 5-under-par 65 and 130.

Total prize money is $450,000 with the winners splitting a hefty $100,000. Toski's career earnings were only $101,253.

With heavy overnight rains turning portions of the course into a quagmire, the players were allowed to lift and clean the ball even in the rough.

The slow greens allowed them to bang their putts hard at the hole.

Snead, who won this tournament five years ago with Gardner Dickinson, had six birdies, including a 35-footer from off the green on No. 12.

January-Snead went out in 31 and came home in 29.

Defending champions Gene Littler and Bob Rosburg, just a shot back when play started on the damp, 55-degree day struggled to a 2-under-par 68 and were nine shots back.

Snead and January finished second in this tournament two years ago, blowing a big lead on the final day. They were eighth in 1981.

January said "Sam just played great. I'm just trying to get out of his way."

Snead returned the compliment: "He's the best partner in the world. We just teamed great. When he was out of a hole I came through and he returned the favor."

Toski said, "We got as much out of our round as we could. All my putts were short ones — the longest being 15 feet."

Asked what they would have to do to catch Snead and January, Toski said "They'll have to die, first."

Hoch takes one-stroke lead in New Orleans Golf Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Scott Hoch birdied three of four holes immediately after the rains came and slogged into a one-stroke lead Saturday in the uncompleted second round of the weather-disrupted $400,000 USF&G New Orleans Open Golf Tournament that now is set for a Monday finish.

Hoch, 26, a runner-up at Doral this year and seeking his first PGA Tour title, finished two rounds over the rain-soaked Lakewood Country Club course at 136, 8 under par.

It appeared his score would stand up as the lead even though 30 players were stranded by the afternoon rains that flooded the course and extended the tournament's schedule an extra day.

Of those still on the course when play was held up, Steve Melnyk was in the best position. He was 4 under par for the tournament with three holes to play. He and the other 29 who were stopped by the flooded conditions were scheduled to come back Sunday morning to complete their rounds — weather permitting.

And it seemed unlikely the weather would permit. The forecast called for an 80 percent chance of rain continuing Sunday on the course that was saturated by earlier showers that washed out Thursday's play and threw the tournament schedule into disarray.

The completion of the second round now is set to start at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. When all players have completed their rounds, the field will be cut to the low 60 scorers and the third round will begin about 9:30 a.m. The final round now is set for Monday.

While officials were juggling the tournament format, Jack Nicklaus made preparations to return home to Florida.

Nicklaus, who missed the cut in two of his last three starts, again seemed unlikely to have qualified for the final two rounds.

Nicklaus bogeyed his final hole in a driving rain, finishing off a 4-over-par 76 that left him at 147. The cut figure will not be determined until all rounds have been completed, but it appeared highly unlikely Nicklaus

Palo Duro trips Pampa twice in loop twinbill

Pampa dropped a baseball twinbill to Palo Duro by identical 5-2 scores Saturday in District 3-5A baseball action at Optimist Park.

"We played well except in key situations where we couldn't get the base hit when the bases were loaded or there were men on second and third," Pampa coach Gary Haynes said.

Devin Cross staked Pampa to a 2-0 lead in the second inning with a home run over the right field fence, but Dons' hurler Ken Oze allowed only more hit in going the distance for the win.

Palo Duro scored runs in the fourth and fifth innings to knot the score and then went ahead in the sixth by scoring three runs on three hits and two errors.

Brian Bowen, who was Pampa's losing pitcher, had a single while Ricky Baird had a triple.

Bowen went five and two-thirds innings, allowing seven hits while striking out four and walking three. Coyle Winborn finished up, yielding one hit while striking out one and not walking a batter.

Palo Duro did all its damage early in the second game, scoring two runs in the first, one in the second and two more in the third.

Pampa scored runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Pampa did out-hit Palo Duro, 5-3, with David Owens collecting a single and a double for the Harvesters. Cross, Steve Flaherty and Charles Wuest had one base hit apiece.

Wade Barker pitched a three-hitter in going the distance for Pampa. He walked five and didn't strike out a batter. Pampa (now 1-14 overall and 0-5 in district) hosts Tascosa at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Villanova captures Penn Relays championship

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two strong anchor legs triggered Villanova to victories in the 6,000-meter and sprint-medley relays, while Tennessee took the shuttle hurdles Saturday at the 88th annual Penn Relays.

Villanova's John Hunter shook off the challenge of Auburn's Roger Jones with 200 meters to go as Villanova, the defending champ, won the 6,000 by 20 yards in a time of 15 minutes, 2.8 seconds.

Auburn's time in the 6,000 was 15:06.9; North Carolina finished in 15:10.1.

The two triumphs on the final day of the week-long meet boosted Villanova's record to 79 victories in the history of the track-and-field carnival.

In the sprint medley, Villanova freshman John Marshall outdueled Tennessee's Dave Patrick to win by a stride. Villanova was clocked at 3:16.84 and Tennessee at 3:16.94. Michigan took third with a 3:17.84.

Tennessee won the shuttle hurdles for the second straight year, outrunning Rutgers, Virginia and St. Augustine.

Willie Gault carried the anchor leg for Tennessee, which won in 55.4, breaking the old Penn Relay record for the event of 56.1 set in 1977, also by Tennessee. Second-place Rutgers ran the event in 57.1.

Arkansas won two other early events. Scott Lofquist won the shot put with a heave of 61 feet, 8 1/4 inches, and freshman Mike Conley, who won the long jump Friday, captured the triple jump with a mark of 53-7 1/2.

Philip Nielson of Tennessee won the javelin with a throw of 247-11.

In winning the two relays Saturday, Villanova shook off a loss Friday in the distance medley relay — their first loss in the event at this meet in 16 years.

Mike England ran the first leg in the 6,000 and handed the baton to Marcus O'Sullivan, who raced to a 40-yard lead over Auburn before turning the job over to Ross Donoghue, who had lost a 30-yard lead on the anchor leg of Friday's distance medley.

Donoghue still was 20 yards in front Saturday when he turned the baton over to anchorman Hunter. Auburn's Jones slashed the lead to a couple of strides on the first leg of the gun lap, but tired as Hunter pulled away in the final 200 meters.

It was the fifth straight victory in the 6,000 for Villanova. "You can't make up 16 years," Donoghue said, referring to Friday's distance-medley. "It's very hard to put something like that behind you. That's title the last two years, managed a 70 that left him at 141, five strokes back. "I'm getting too far behind," said Watson, already a two-time winner this season.

Hoch was even par for the day when the rains came as he was playing his 11th hole.

He promptly made a birdie, dropping a 12-foot putt. He scored from 15 feet on the next hole and made it from eight feet on his 15th.

"Nobody likes to play in rain, but it doesn't bother me too much when I'm playing well," Hoch said.

history. These races don't mean that much."

Hunter commented, "We were just mad."

Auburn's Jones said he wanted to make up all the distance on the first lap, which he did, but admitted the effort sapped his strength.

In the sprint medley, Patrick took the baton leading the pack after Mike Miller had run a 19.8 third leg.

Arkansas slips by Red Raiders to earn berth in SWC T tourney

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A seven-run, come-from-behind rally Friday gave the Arkansas Razorbacks a 7-6 victory over Texas Tech and a berth in the Southwest Conference post-season tournament.

Arkansas trailed 4-0 in the sixth inning when Red Raider pitcher David Carroll re-injured a shoulder muscle and left the game. Arkansas' seven runs came in that inning as the Red Raiders used four pitchers, including Carroll.

Razorback center fielder Gary Jones scored one run and tripled in two others. He scored on a single by Billy Dees.

Tech, 19-21, rallied for two runs in the seventh inning on a two-RBI home run by Jeff Harp.

Charlie Corbell, 5-1, got the victory for Arkansas. Doug Galloway, who was the third pitcher for the Red Raiders, suffered the loss. He dropped to 2-4.

Arkansas is 34-7-2 overall and 13-6 in the conference.

The teams play in a noon double-header Saturday.

Pirates 8, Cubs 5
CHICAGO (AP) — Dave Parker's run-scoring double keyed a two-run seventh inning that helped Pittsburgh overcome a five-run deficit, and Don Robinson pitched the Pirates to a 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Saturday.

The Pirates broke through for three runs in the fifth, added another in the sixth on Dale Berra's first homer and finally went ahead in the seventh.

Robinson worked 6 2-3 innings in relief of Ross Baumgarten, giving up three hits for his first victory this year. He also went 3-for-4 at the plate and drove in a pair of insurance runs in the ninth with a single.

Robinson gave up Keith Moreland's homer in the third and did not allow another hit until Larry Bowa doubled with one out in the seventh. Cubs reliever Randy Martz, 0-2, was tagged with the loss.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 4
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former Phillie Phanatic knicker in three runs with a pair of singles to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to their 12th straight victory, a 7-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The Cardinals snapped a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning with three runs off reliever Ed Farmer, 0-1. With one out, Dane Iorg, who had four singles for the day, reached first on an infield hit. Pinch-runner David Green stole second and, after Ken Oberkell was intentionally walked, Ozzie Smith singled to lead the bases.

Orlando Sanchez, pinch-hitting for reliever Doug Bair, 1-0, drove in one run with a ground out. Lonnie Smith, traded to St. Louis in the off-season, then singled in Oberkell and Ozzie Smith.

The St. Louis rally spoiled a fine hitting effort by Philadelphia catcher Bo Diaz, who knocked in all four Philadelphia runs with two homers and two doubles. He had staked Philadelphia to a 2-0 lead in the second. He followed a single by Garry Maddox with his third homer of the year, off St. Louis starter Joaquin Andujar.

St. Louis reliever Bruce Sutter pitched the final two innings and earned his sixth save.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 7
TORONTO (AP) — Boston's elder statesman, Carl Yastrzemski, capped a five-run fifth inning with a three-run homer, and the Red Sox withstood a late Toronto rally to defeat the Blue Jays 8-7 Saturday.

Glenn Hoffman ignited the big inning with a single to center against Toronto starter Dave Stieb, 0-2, and moved to third on Rick Miller's single. Gary Allenson chased Hoffman home with a double that scored Hoffman and sent Miller to third.

Jerry Remy's double to left scored Miller, and Allenson went to third. After Dwight Evans grounded out, Allenson was tagged out at the plate when Jim Rice hit into a fielder's choice.

The Blue Jays, who lost their fourth consecutive game, rallied for three runs in the sixth off Boston starter Mike Torrez, 1-1.

Mets 1, Expos 0
MONTREAL (AP) — John Stearns drove in a run with a seventh-inning double, and Charlie Puleo combined with two relievers on a four-hit shutout as the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 1-0 Saturday.

Mets right-hander Neil Allen earned his fifth save by working out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the eighth inning.

Stearns' drive down the left-field line off loser Ray Burris, 0-3, drove in Gary Rajsch, who had doubled off the right-field wall. The hits were the third and fourth off Burris, who previously had not allowed a baserunner to reach second.

Puleo, 2-1, overcame early control problems — he walked six — and surrendered only three hits until he was replaced by Falcone in the seventh.

But after striking out Andre Dawson to start the eighth, Falcone issued consecutive walks to Al Oliver, Gary Carter, and Warren Cromartie to load the bases. Allen came in and got pinch-hitter Jerry White to ground back to the mound, forcing Oliver at the plate, and he retired pinch-hitter Brad Mills on a liner to center.

Tigers 7, Yankees 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Herndon blasted a three-run homer, and Kirk Gibson and Jerry Turner added solo shots as Detroit downed the New York Yankees 7-2 Saturday, giving the Tigers their eighth straight victory and rookie Larry Pashnick his first major-league win.

Herndon's homer gave Detroit its 5-2 margin in the sixth after Gibson had walked and Richie Hebner rapped a broken-bat single off starter and loser Doyle Alexander.

Alexander was making his first appearance after returning to New York from San Francisco in a spring-training trade. Left-hander Shane Rawley relieved him to start the seventh, and George Frazier pitched the ninth, yielding an RBI double to John Wockenfuss and a run-scoring single by Chet Lemon.

Turner's homer, which opened the scoring in the second inning, was a drive to right-center that glanced off the glove of leaping center fielder Jerry Mumphrey and went over the wall.

The Yankees lost their third straight.

Celtics confident of repeating as world basketball champions

BOSTON (AP) — "Last year," says veteran M.L. Carr of the Boston Celtics, "we were the hunter. Now we're the hunt."

Whatever the role, the mighty Celtics are confident they can become the first team in 12 years to win two National Basketball Association championships in a row.

The current Celtics hope to become a throwback to another era in Boston NBA history. The last team to repeat as NBA champ was the Celtics, led by Bill Russell as player-coach in 1967-68 and '68-69.

Well rested after a first-round bye, the Celtics begin their drive for another title — an unprecedented 15th since 1957 — in the opener of a best-of-seven series with the Washington Bullets 1 p.m. EDT today at Boston Garden.

"There's a lot more pressure on the hunter than the rabbit," says Carr, who sat out the first few weeks of the season and came back to gain a starting job in the backcourt. "We can just run and play our games. It's up to the other teams to try and catch us."

Winning 26 of their last 30 games, the Celtics finished with a 63-19 record, the best in the league.

Fitness First!

Normal Weight

Normal weight from insurance-produced height and weight charts would be correct only if the tables were calculated from a crosssection of people whose weights were normal. One famous comedian said that he wasn't too fat, just too short! The problem is that measurements of over or under weight do not truly reflect what an individual's fat content is, and this is the crucial factor to health. Obesity (in young males 20 percent or more body fat, in young females 25 percent or more) should be what we look for and not a "normal weight."

In an Air Force study, comparisons were made according to the height and weight chart and body composition. It was found that 30 percent of the men who fell into the "normal weight" range were more than 20 percent body fat (obese). Twelve percent of the men who were considered overweight by the charts were found to have less than 20 percent body fat, so almost half of the men would have been incorrectly classified according to the height and weight charts.

Overweight does not mean overfat! Underweight does not mean thin! To be able to really see what percentage of body fat you have, take a real look at yourself in the mirror while naked. If you look fat, with bulges where they shouldn't be, chances are that you are indeed fat. For a program that helps promote a negative weight gain, come to the Fitness Center and see what condition you can be in.

Swimming Lessons

Swimming lessons will be available starting June 1. Registration begins May 6 at 1 p.m. in the Youth Center Recreation Hall. If you cannot be present, you may register your child later with the Youth Center receptionist anytime after 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The first session taken is free to members with additional sessions costing $2. Non-members can take the lessons for $7 per session.

3 on 3 Basketball

Entry blanks for 3 on 3 basketball are available at the Youth Center or by calling 665-0748, you can have an entry blank sent to you. May 31 is the deadline for entries. Scheduling is available so that play will not conflict with summer activities. The games will be 30 minutes in length. Four leagues will be offered for men, women and men over 30.

Pool Closed

The pool will be closed for several weeks while it is drained for repairs. The work will be done sometime at the end of April and continue until the beginning of May. The pool will reopen in time for summer and swim lessons.

Summer Camps

This Friday, April 30, registration blanks will be available for the summer camps. Day camp, basketball camp, tennis camp and volleyball camp will be offered for $35 per camp. There will be eight sessions with a minimum of eight campers for each camp. Tennis will have a limit of 12 campers per session. This is a new and exciting program that offers a distinct and productive alternative to other summer activities.

Youth Center Available

The Youth Center is available for private parties and the schedule is filling rapidly. For groups that are interested, call Tim at 665-0748. The Pampa Youth and Community Center is located at 1005 W. Harvester, and is open 7 days a week.

Pampa Fine Arts to host China painting workshop

The Pampa Fine Arts Association will sponsor a china painting workshop for 2 days, Thursday, April 29 and Thursday, May 6 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Energas Flame room. Students should bring a sack lunch, palette knife for mixing paints, a sharp pencil and fine line ball point pen.

The class will be taught by Mrs. Velva Hopkins of Miami. Mrs. Hopkins has worked in all types of china painting, including raised paste, enamels, golds and lustres. She has studied many types of design work, including flowers as forget-me-nots, roses, violets, pansies, scrolls, shells, scenery and even animals.

"I enjoy doing portraits the most," Hopkins said. However, she is most often asked to paint roses, violets and forget-me-nots. A local store handles her jewelry.

Mrs. Hopkins will teach scene painting at the Fine Arts workshop. She will use techniques that can be applied in other types of art work. She will also do a floral demonstration.

"The best thing about this hobby is the wonderful people you meet," said Mrs. Hopkins. "They are interested in beautifying their homes and improving home life in general. Everyone always seems to be very happy and eager to receive a little hand-painted gift of china." Her painted china is on display in many homes in the Panhandle area.

The artist has exhibited in several shows, including the International Porcelain Art Teachers Convention at Dallas. One of her portraits was selected and published in their 1978 book. She will exhibit again in the State Federation of Porcelain Arts Club state show this year and the International show in Kansas City.

Mrs. Hopkins has studied with Lou Griffin of Pampa, Jane Marcks, Amarillo; Sharon Steen, Missouri; Pat Carter, Illinois; Helen Humes, Marcella Fagan and Marjean Williams of California; Kattie Smucker, Houston; and Reba Phillips, Dallas.

The china painter is a member of the International Porcelain Arts Teachers, World Organization of China Painters, China Painting Teachers of Texas and is the president elect of the Golden Spread Porcelain Arts Club of the Panhandle area. She and her husband Troy have three daughters.

VELVA HOPKINS

Fee for the course is $15 and this may be mailed to Pampa Fine Arts, P. O. Box 818, Pampa, Texas, 79065. The fee will cover the instruction, paint, brushes, medium and patterns. The only additional costs will be $1.50 for a drawing pen, a total of 50 cents for the two firings and purchase of a small, inexpensive piece of china for the art work. Additional information may be obtained by calling Darlene Birkes at 665-2913.

Helen Dimmler says that she asks God and Another door opens

BY CINDA ROBINSON
Lifestyles Editor

Helen Dimmler hadn't planned on being the Woman of the Year, it just happened.

A relatively new Pampan, she and her husband, Charles, moved to the Panhandle from New York after a one-time visit to see her brother Fred Brook.

The Dimmlers moved out of their three-story house in New York, packed up their personal belongings and gave away a houseful of furniture.

She explains that their modest home at 2212 N. Dwight is like a newly-wed cottage with articles of furniture obtained from friends and relatives.

The walls of the Dimmlers home are decorated with some of the most outstanding art work in the state. Richard Dimmler, their son, is an accomplished artist recognized internationally for his work. Their walls, like a private gallery, reflect the changes in style Richard Dimmler has made in his art work over the years.

The guest bedroom is full of memories in the form of photographs of friends and family. Parties, weddings, camping trips and children are all there crammed together in frames like buckets overflowing.

The Dimmlers are happy. It's reflected in their speech and actions. They're proud, too. Proud of their lives, friends, community and especially their children.

"I told my daughter, Carolyn, that I didn't care what she wanted to be, just as long as she was good at it," Helen said.

Carolyn Eifgen is a registered nurse who chose to give up the practice to become a professional singer. And she's good at both.

Helen has devoted her life to helping people who can not hear. Her special talent lies in sign language which has been a part of her life since birth. Her parents were both deaf-mutes.

"My brother and I were in Junior High School studying phonetics when we got the idea to teach our parents to speak. We used the phonetic approach to words and worked slowly with each sound," Helen said.

"Helen and Fred have always used sign language. I remember them talking with their hands in the church choir when they were supposed to be listening to the sermon," Charles said jokingly.

Helen has applied her talent to anyone who needs it, wants it or requests it. And she does it for free.

"I don't charge for teaching people sign language because I am so thankful that someone took the time and effort to teach my parents when they were children."

"I just ask God to let me help others and another door opens," Helen said.

Helen related a story about a Girl Scout Troop in New York that had 32 girls. Two of those girls were deaf-mutes. Instead of leaving the two girls out of the Troop activities, Helen was recruited to teach the entire troop sign language.

She said that in one year's time the entire Troop earned a sign language merit badge and incorporated it into their Troop's emblem.

She has taught doctors and nurses in New York and more recently has been working with the Pampa Police Department.

She has gone to court as an interpreter for a deaf couple over a rent dispute and helped them win the case.

Helen will be teaching a class at Clarendon College starting June 3 in the afternoons from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

She is presently working with Jessica Carpenter, a local child which is described as being multi-handicapped, autistic and hyperactive.

Sandra Carpenter, Jessica's mother, said that she called Helen in desperation when she heard about her teaching abilities.

Jessica is presently learning the symbols for simple words such as yes, no, stop, sleep, potty, sit down, by-bye, hello, light and kiss.

When Helen and Charles aren't entertaining, traveling or working in church, they like to stay busy. Helen expressed a desire to work with senior citizens who have trouble communicating because of hearing problems.

Since she accepts no money for her work, are there any rewards?

Her work with the police department has been rewarded by a letter from Officer Rod Bishop who explained that he applied his new skill when dealing with a couple who were deaf-mutes. The couple were experiencing harassment and Officer Bishop was able to handle the situation with his newly acquired sign language.

Jessica is not able to write thank-you letters, so she rewards Helen with a kiss.

Students will face changes in Social Security benefits

By LARRY MAYO
Branch Manager
Pampa Social Security Office

Students 18 to 22 getting Social Security checks are reminded about important changes that will reduce or eliminate future benefits. How students are affected will depend primarily on the type of school they are in and when benefits started:

1. If you attend college (or other post-secondary school) — Payments can continue until you finish school, reach age 22, marry, or through April 1985, whichever comes first, provided you meet both of these conditions: You are entitled to a Social Security check for August 1981 when the law was changed; and you were attending (not just enrolled in) a post-secondary school full time before May 1982. However, be aware of these changes:

You will receive no checks for May, June, July, and August even if in school full-time.

You aren't eligible for cost-of-living increases that are given most Social Security Beneficiaries each summer.

Your benefit will be reduced 25 percent each year, starting with the September 1982 check due October 3.

If you attend post-secondary school and first became entitled to a Social Security check for a month after August 1981, benefits can be paid only for months of full-time attendance through July 1982 including May, June, and July if you are in school or intend to return to school. You are not eligible after that.

2. If you attend high school — starting August 1982, payments generally can continue only up to the month you are 19 or until the end of the semester or quarter in which you reach 19, if later. If your school is not on a semester or quarter basis, checks will be paid until you complete the course for 2 months after the month you are 19, whichever is first.

By now, you should have received and end-of-the-school-year report from the Social Security Administration. If you have not already completed the top of the form, do so right away. Then ask your school registrar or other official to complete the bottom and return the form. If the form is not promptly returned, benefits will stop.

If you have any questions about changes in student benefits or about completing the form, contact any Social Security Office. The people there will be glad to help you. Call TOLL-FREE 1-800-392-1603.

The home video revolution

The past five years have seen an "electronic explosion" in product that can turn the family television into a home video system. Foremost are videocassette recorders (VCRs) and a dizzying array of accessories and options. Research the available products and services carefully before joining the video revolution, suggests the Better Business Bureau, to get better buys for years of enjoyment.

A VCR can tape programs on the air now and play them back at a later time. The machine will tape a TV program while its owner is away, asleep or watching a different channel.

Like any evolving electronics product, there are undoubtedly new refinements and features ahead for VCRs. Experts agree, however, that the basic equipment will not be changing radically.

SHOPPING THE OPTIONS
Even though new VCRs with added features keep coming onto the market, there may still be some excellent buys in older models. Visit the showroom of a reputable dealer and get a demonstration of the various options. Machines without variable speeds, slow motion, freeze-frame or fast-forward tape display are less expensive.

Prices also vary based on playing time of cassettes, number of shows that can be preprogrammed to tape and the number of days in advance it can be programmed. Consumers should decide which features fit their viewing interest and their checkbooks.

There are two basic formats of videocassette recorders — Beta and VHS (video home systems). Regardless of the name brand of a machine, it works on one of these two incompatible systems. Beta cassettes will not work in a VHS machine and vice versa. If a potential buyer is planning to swap tapes with friends who own VCRs, it's necessary to purchase the same system format.

A VCR is sophisticated electronic equipment, but it's designed for easy hook-up to a television and antenna. To protect the investment, read the instruction book carefully and follow its directions for maintenance. As with an audio recorder, the recording heads of a VCR are vulnerable to dirt and wear. Products to keep the heads clean are available commercially.

Most VCRs come with a 12-month warranty on parts and three months' coverage on labor. Get all the details of the warranty coverage before buying. Many dealers also offer service contracts to deal with difficulties after the warranty runs out.

VCRs are too complex for most consumers to repair and attempting to do so may void the warranty. Even most television repair firms do not service VCRs, though this may change in the future. A repair contract with an authorized dealer may be good insurance against problems. Make sure it is clear which services are covered and excluded.

BUYING AND RENTING CASSETTES
Because of the popularity of VCRs, there are now stores and mail-order clubs to rent and sell prerecorded videotapes of movies and other programs. The clubs offer VCR owners a way to rent or build a home library of tapes inexpensively.

Club members sign a contract when they join. Read it carefully, understand the fine print and ask about the member's obligations. Most of these clubs are reputable, but shady businesses tend to crop up in any new field.

An extra measure of caution is suggested when dealing with mail-order firms. Before giving them a credit card number to charge a transaction, write for their literature or catalogue. If you are in doubt about a company, contact the Better Business Bureau for a reliability report on the firm.

If a deal sounds too good to be legal, it may not be. Some videocassettes are "pirated," unauthorized tapes that violate the copyright laws. If the legitimacy of an offer is questionable, don't become involved.

With a little advance research, the smart consumer can purchase quality equipment and tapes as well as reliable service for expanded video entertainment.

The consumer casts the votes in this race

By DONNA BRAUCHI

"If I don't vote, it won't matter — it's just one vote."
"So what if I didn't turn out the lights?"

These two comments have three things in common — both are resoundingly negative, both assume that the effect of individual consumer actions are minimal, and both are wrong.

Consumers can have a voice only if they will exercise their right to be heard. A consumer's voice can be heard in four important ways:

— in the "dollar votes" consumers cast, — in the "political votes" consumers cast, — through their participation in government and corporate decisionmaking, and — in influencing community improvements.

CONSUMER DOLLAR VOTES
Every time we buy something, from a refrigerator to dental services, we are casting a "dollar vote." Our dollar votes determine what goods and services will continue to be available in a free market economy.

Here are some important questions to ask ourselves about "dollar votes": (1) How well do we cast our "dollar votes"? (2) Are our purchasing decisions based on factual information, or are we vulnerable to impulse buying, sales pressure, and the emotional impact of advertising? (3) And how do we cast our "dollar votes" when we do not have enough time to search for factual information before deciding?

"Every time we buy something, from a refrigerator to dental services, we are casting a 'dollar vote' "

CONSUMER - CITIZEN POLITICAL VOTES

Although every American citizen of legal age has the right to vote, all voters do not cast their votes! Apathy of the electorate may be the result of the erroneous belief that "one vote won't matter." Or failure to vote may stem from a lack of understanding the issues and candidates. Consumers who fail to vote certainly cannot hope to have their views represented.

CONSUMER - CITIZEN PARTICIPATION

Consumer views, as well as government and industry views, need representation at governmental regulatory hearings and in the corporate boardroom. An important way for consumers to exercise their right to be heard is knowing and using established procedures for stating problems and solving them.

INFLUENCING COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENTS

Motivated, well-informed consumers can successfully make improvements. Voluntary action often is the key to success at the local level.

CONSUMER SKILLS ARE VITAL

Because we live in a rapidly changing society, we need to continuously update our consumer knowledge and skills. Consumer education is a vital lifetime subject.

For nearly 70 years, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has been engaged in providing Texas consumers with information useful to their daily lives. The County Extension Office also provides free pamphlets and information on many consumer topics. The Gray County Extension Office is located in the Courthouse Annex.

BE A WISE HEALTH CARE CONSUMER

The 1982 Gray County Health Fair set for Thursday, April 29, in the M. K. Brow

Heritage Room, offers consumers a chance to become better informed about health resources and to participate in free health screenings. The fair will be from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. and is free of charge. Become an active, informed consumer. Start this week by attending the 1982 Gray County Health Fair!

Peeking at Pampa

Seems one of the funtimes of the season was the old-fashioned barn party sponsored by the Grandview - Hopkins School P. T. A. a week ago Thursday night. The event was held to provide an educational tour for the fifth and sixth grades.

Heard a host of folks saying it was a marvelous evening, providing programs, eating, dancing and happy visiting. Jolyn Davis, one of our area's outstanding dancers, presented her class of youngsters, whose performance was a true delight. They did folk dances of all kinds and showed real ability.

Two bands provided music for adult dancing. One was country - western group that played for country and round dancing. Callers included "Cowboy" Jones, Jolyn Davis' father - who, by the way, taught her to dance when she was a little girl. You should see the two of them dance together now. They're terrific!

The second orchestra was Dick Morton's, which always includes Tom Adkins, superintendent of Grandview - Hopkins School, as guitarist. His smile and outgoing personality have made him a general favorite in the community. He and his wife are good dancers too. And heard older people saying they remembered when Tom's folks, B. T. and Gladys, used to keep up with the best dancing around.

The P. T. A. ladies had an assortment of cakes and pies that should have been pictured in House Beautiful. The big crowd - and the gym was literally overflowing - loved the ever-replenished cartons of popcorn.

Couldn't possibly name all the people who attended the barn party but want to mention a few. Cliff and Joyce Scott were there, proud of the dancing ability of Joyce's grandchildren - a boy or two and several darling little girls. Bill and Iris Ragsdale were also beaming on grandchildren. Other enthusiastic visitors included Sheriff Rufe Jordan and wife, Viola; Jimmie and Virginia Wilkerson; the Dale Ladds; Fred and Jessie Lee Vanderburg (A young grandchild of theirs drew big applause by being whirled about the dance floor by many people, without a whimper); Bill and Martha McComas, Leon and Pauline Daugherty, Rue and Hesta Hestand; and ever so many dozens more.

More about the Castro County - wide Community sing, mentioned a couple of weeks ago in this column. Heard a friend of a resident of Dimmitt saying that Nolan Froehner would like a better description of the event. So here is his correction:

"It was not a concert or programmed performance in any way - it was strictly an impromptu happening... a bunch of people getting together just to sing some of the good oldies. There were no 'encores' as such, but there were one or two requests to sing songs we had skipped. There was no admission charged - was free and open to the public."

Heard a couple of Varietas Club members rejoicing over their member, Nina Spoonemore, being honored as one of the ten recipients of the Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards at WTSU. One lady said this is the second year in a row that a Varietas member has won this award. Georgia Mack of the club was honored last year.

So glad the flu season seems to be subsiding, Mary Irvin (such a peppy, happy young woman) was confined to her home with sniffles and coughs for a whole week. Lots of people have been under the weather recently.

Took in the antique show last week at the M. K. Brown Heritage Room, a lovely array of booths. Such beautiful cut glass and other valuables. Koella McKay (Isn't her blonde hair pretty? And her sunny disposition matches it) welcomed visitors on Friday and sold tickets. Saw dozens of local antique lovers enjoying the exhibits. Milo and Pauline Carlson were there as well as June Ivory, Johnnie Thompson, Helen Hall, Nancy Whitten and a good many more, dozens of them.

Such inspirational songs, flowers and favors were presented during Easter week. Just heard that Jerry Lane made small wooden crosses, finished them just right, etched the name of a member of his Sunday School class on each one - and gave them as gifts on Easter morning. Wonder if his sweet wife, Mary Lou, might have helped him in the project.

So many guest have been in Pampa lately, from very young to older ones. Travis Lively Sr. had the company of his son and family from Amarillo. Especially pretty and loved was Travis' little great-granddaughter.

Pot pourri: Tina Greenway of the Pampa girls' track team, placing second in the Liberal Relays, breaking her own excellent record... New head football coach, John Kendall.

readying for the fall season... Kids on bicycles all over town, welcoming the warm weather... Friends of Roy and Mildred Sullivan so happy to greet them on their recent visit here. Heard Roy said he was having a hard time learning to be an "Okie".

Nintey bridge players from the area including Amarillo, Borger, White Deer and Canadian gathered at Pamcel Hall Sunday, April 18 to honor Dorothy McMurtry at her Life Master party. The group was divided into three sections, two played duplicate bridge, one, Chicago Home Style bridge.

Former Pampans who attended were Nita Luna DeGrasse and Lillian Jordan Baker. Dorothy is the non-playing director of the Chicago Home Style bridge group which is a part of the American Contract Bridge League created to stimulate interest in the game for beginning and intermediate players. Love that sunshine! PAM.

Dear Abby

Millionaire plans on keeping his money

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: There's a man in our club who has so much money, I'm sure he doesn't even know how much he has. He's considered high society and nobody would dare say anything to him about this bad habit he has, but I think it's time somebody did.

He never has any money. When he needs cash for a tip or a caddy or whatever, he'll turn to whoever is standing near him and say, "Anybody got $10 — or $20?" This happens all the time.

The funny part of it is the way everybody fights to accommodate him. You'd think it was an honor to give this millionaire money.

Far as I know, he's never made any attempt to pay anybody back. I gave him $20 once, and that was the end of it.

My question: Should I remind him that he owes me $20?

P.O.D IN PALM SPRINGS

DEAR P.O.D: Go ahead. And when you do, he'll probably turn to somebody else and say, "Anybody got $20?"

DEAR ABBY: My husband died suddenly of a massive heart attack three weeks ago. He was only 49 and was never sick a day in his life. It was a terrible blow to me and our four children.

Last week my daughter, who just turned 18, came to me and said she wanted to get married to the boy she has been going with for nearly two years.

I never knew marriage was on her mind and thought maybe she missed her dad and wanted to get married so she would have someone to lean on. Then she told me she had to get married! (The baby is due in six months.) I am in shock over this. I like the boy, but he's only 19 and going to college. They have to get married as soon as possible, but I wonder what kind of wedding I should put on in view of the circumstances. She wants a church wedding.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

DEAR DOUBLE: Talk to your clergyman and let him guide you. Your daughter can have a lovely church wedding, but since you are in mourning and she is pregnant, hold it down to a quiet, dignified family affair with only very close friends.

Mending Mature Marriage

Who makes the decisions?

By LOUISE PIERCE

DEAR LOUISE: Your column about either the husband or wife being too bossy gave me some serious thought about my husband and me. We're in our early 70's, both hold part-time jobs. He's a bookkeeper at a feed store and I work three days a week in a supermarket.

We make good money, even save a little. He gets a good pension, so we live pretty good. But that doesn't solve my problem.

When we were raising our family of five, I stayed home with the kids and K supported us in the business (auto supplies) that we owned. I didn't mix into his business decisions, and he let me run the house without interference unless I asked him to help with the discipline of the kids or their homework, school sports, etc.

But now that we're alone, we argue a lot about who gets to make our decisions. He says I should still run the home, which doesn't amount to much any more because we don't spend much time there, we don't eat like we used to, and we mostly rest and watch TV evenings.

But he wants to make all the decisions about what we do away from home. I want to have a say in the things we buy, like clothes, a new car every five years or so, contributions to church and charity, etc. He says that's his field, as it always was. Do I have to go along with his bossiness? M.S.

DEAR M. S.: Not

completely only half way. My personal opinion is probably prejudiced in favor of sharing, because Otis and I confer on every decision, have done so for the 45 years we've been married.

But I'll quote you some statistics that should offer usable suggestions. Author Bob Downing wrote an article in the Arizona Republic of March 28, 1982, called "Study Uncovers Couples' Code of Conversation".

He says Cleveland State University researchers, named Edna Rogers, Frank Millar and John Courtright, studied several hundred couples' marital happiness as related to dominance and "domineeringness".

He tells us that marriages in which the husband is slightly more dominant seem to be the happiest. But he emphasized that partner should be domineering.

He states, "According to Ms. Rogers, a relationship with a domineering spouse has a problem. Little support is provided and little is accomplished. It is disruptive and not satisfying to either husband or wife."

That seems logical to me. A couple should confer about who will decide what, as you did in your earlier years. Now that you are both retired and similarly situated, you need to share all major decisions. Ask K to discuss it with you before he lays down rules regarding your mutual actions.

A healthy discussion gets the chip off one mate's shoulder and often solves the problem. Be firm about the need for discussion. But give him the "slight edge" that husbands seem to need. It won't hurt you and it will preserve his ego.

The next letter gives an opposite view of your worry.

DEAR LOUISE: My husband won't help me one bit since he retired. He says he worried about everything in his job and he needs a rest. He's not too well and is real jumpy. I guess because he used to stew a lot and can't get over it right away.

Should I try to make him help me decide on things like food, money, vacations, people to invite over, and other such? S.S.

DEAR S.S.: Definitely not. He obviously needs time to rest from his job problems over the years. Give him whatever time he needs, weeks or months or even longer, to adjust.

Carefully choose those with whom you become involved in seeking another source of income. The possibilities are especially good this coming year if you work with the right people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't let others make decisions for you today that could affect your material security. They may not have as complete a grasp of the picture as you do. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to do everything in moderation today, whether it be working, eating, drinking or playing. Tendencies to overindulge could cause problems.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will find you difficult to contend with today if you permit yourself to become withdrawn or moody. Come out of your shell. Have some fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Go along with the will of the majority today, rather than yield to desires to run the show. Coming on too strong will hurt your image.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take nothing for granted today concerning important goals. Accomplishments normally achieved with ease could have some unexpected complications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If possible today, forgo involving yourself in commercial or financial matters. Your judgment in these areas may not be up to its usual standards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best that you don't make any major decisions today involving a cash outlay. You could be too easily swayed by the sizzle in someone's sales pitch.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even if you are discontented with today's plans, don't make sudden changes without discussing them with all involved. You may mess things up to its usual standards.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't attempt something today if your heart isn't in it. It's best to shelve these projects until you can fully concentrate on what you're doing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Avoid situations today that could put you into competition with friends. Don't make winning or being right more important than a relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Beware of making promises today that you might be unable to fulfill. Once you've made a commitment, follow through regardless of the inconvenience it may cause you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Impulsive financial decisions could backfire today, so take plenty of time to think your moves through where dollars are concerned. You'll be glad you did.

fumbling private eye whose commission from a mysterious lady takes him through the plots of 20 films of the 1940s.

(AP Laserphoto)

They don't remember whose idea was 'Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — None of the three men remembers who first proposed the winning idea over lunch that day.

Comedian Steve Martin, writer George Gipe and comedian-writer-director Carl Reiner had met over lunch to discuss repairs of a script Martin had written about the Depression. One of them suggested a movie in which Martin would interact with famed stars of the past by means of film clips.

Two years later, Universal Pictures is releasing "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," starring Steve Martin, Humphrey Bogart, Alan Ladd, Barbara Stanwyck, Ava Gardner, Burt Lancaster, Bette Davis, James Cagney, Joan Crawford, etc., etc.

Steve Martin plays Rigby Reardon, a fumbling private eye whose commission from a mysterious woman (Rachel Ward) takes him through the plots of 20 films of the 1940s.

"Whoever came up with the idea at lunch, we all said, 'Let's do it,'" Reiner recalled. "Then George Gipe and I started watching the old movies. We saw a hundred of them, sometimes five a day. We were looking for over-the-shoulder shots, single closeups, but especially loaded lines that required an answer or could be built upon."

"We realized that we needed a plot that would integrate all of these elements, otherwise it would be just a collection of clips. So we came up with the mystery of 'Who is Carlotta?' As you see in the picture, that is a surprise."

While Martin was filming "Pennies from Heaven," Reiner and Gipe methodically went about their preparation. They worked with a storyboard on which were pinned lines from the vintage movies.

"We moved the lines around like a jigsaw puzzle," said Reiner. "We had many more lines than we could use. We even had a scene of Ronald Reagan as a captured flier. He does a great piece of doubletalk as he is interrogated. But we couldn't fit the scene into the script, so we couldn't use it."

After four or five drafts of "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," Martin joined the writing. He continued making contributions during filming, including some coin-rolling on his fingers that demonstrates his dexterity.

"The hardest part of the movie was reproducing the costumes, sets, wallpaper, grillwork and other elements of those old movies so everything would match," Reiner said. "Fortunately we had John DeCuir as production designer; he had designed many of the old movies. And Edith Head created the clothes; she had done costumes for 'Notorious' and other films we used."

Miss Head died after "Plaid" was completed, and the film carries a dedication to her and other creative workers of Hollywood.

Show may end networks' hold over television's prime time

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Silverman makes his debut as a producer Sunday with a show he believes could signal the end of the networks' hold over prime time.

Silverman, who left his mark at all three major television networks, will preview the pilot of a live weekly variety show from around the world over an ad hoc network linked by satellite.

"What this proves is that if you have a good commercial idea you no longer have to go to one of the three networks to get it on television," says Silverman, who headed programming at CBS and ABC and was president of NBC until he was replaced nearly a year ago.

"If this goes on and works it will just completely break open prime time. Because you're going to have people like Norman Lear and Lee Rich, all the producers in town, saying, hey, wait a minute, there's another way to get shows on the air on a national basis."

Silverman has numerous irons in the fire. He formed his own production company, Intermedia Entertainment, in partnership with MGM-USA, and has development deals not only with the networks but with what he calls the "fourth network" through satellite syndication. He hopes by 1984 to have his own 24-hour entertainment cable network, Magicable.

For the first time in his career, he is not working for a station or a network. As he climbed higher in the network hierarchy and he became the programmer with the "golden gut," Silverman could have a notion and see it become a series. Now, for the first time in 18 years, he is on the other end.

"You're still buying," he says. "You're buying ideas. You're buying talent, writers, producers. I've never been on the producing end before. But again, no matter what you do you're always selling. When I was at NBC I had to sell the chairman of the board and the RCA board of directors. You were always selling something to somebody."

"World of Entertainment," created and produced by Bob Finkel, will make its debut in the 8 o'clock time slot occupied for many years by "The Ed Sullivan Show." Gene Kelly is the studio host.

Clive Davis moves from recording singers to producing stage shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Clive Davis sits in his ninth-floor midtown office, tape recorders behind him, a desk littered with memos, lyric sheets, contracts and cassettes in front of him.

Once head of Columbia Records and now Arista Records, the man has played a major role in the careers of such pop and rock biggies as Janis Joplin, Simon & Garfunkel, The Kinks, Melissa Manchester and Barry Manilow.

He plucks a cassette from the pile, pops it on, on the tape deck. "Listen," he says. A piano plays, a male voice sings a ballad about "the kid inside, walkin' down old high school hallways."

But the cassette is no new-star-in-progress recording. It's from a very different arena, Broadway, from a new show that asks the musical question, "Is There Life After High School?"

Davis co-produced the show. It's his first Broadway effort after 20-plus years of life in the fast lane of pop and rock. It's a modest first step as today's megabuck musicals on Broadway go.

The show, dealing with the often-bittersweet memories today's young adults have of their formative years in high school, has only nine players, a nine-man band and a budget of $1.6 million.

The score is by Craig Carnelia, quite unknown even though

Davis submits he's "the most exciting, really brilliant, composer to come along for the Broadway stage since Stephen Sondheim."

The players, while all of good theater stock, mostly are in the "who?" category — the best-known being Harry Groener, a Tony-nominated trouper from the "Oklahoma" revival of two seasons ago.

The rookie producer showed no worries about the lack of major names in his first Broadway project. It isn't that kind of show, he says.

Declaring it exciting to discover new young talent, he says this musical isn't a "star vehicle." It's a work that emphasizes the ensemble.

"To have any star cast in it would dislocate the balance of the evening, place an undue focus of attention on that person."

Besides, he adds, major stars "may give you a good (box-office) advance. But they don't guarantee success."

This seems borne out by this season's star-crossed crop of Broadway flops: "Curse of an Aching Heart" (Faye Dunaway), "Einstein and the Polar Bear" (Peter Strauss), "Duet for One" (Anne Bancroft) and "Little Johnny Jones" (Donny Osmond).

S.I. HAYAKAWA

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., who decided not to run for re-election when polls showed him running fourth for the party nomination, blames entertainer Johnny Carson for spreading an image that the elderly senator frequently slept on the job.

In a telephone interview from Washington, Hayakawa said Carson, the host of NBC's "Tonight" show caused him "real damage" by repeating jokes about "Sleeping Sam," the Riverside Press-Enterprise reported Friday.

"The people who get their basic political information from Johnny Carson remember nothing else about my career," Hayakawa said. "That was really harmful."

Carson was out of town on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Hayakawa, 75, once fell asleep during a seminar at Harvard University.

"I was not used to control hearing," he explained. "I was dead tired. And they were spending hours answering questions I hadn't asked."

After the media reported his dozing, "they started looking for it. You can't fight that sleeping image when newspaper people who had never seen me asleep copy each other and make a stereotype out of it," he said.

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Actor Henry Winkler has offered a television contract to a family whose financial struggles were featured in the public TV feature "Middletown."

"He wants to make a series about our lives," Judy Snider said Friday. "He called Thursday and spoke with us and a contract offer is being checked by our lawyer."

But Mrs. Snider says her family is already having enough trouble coping with the attention that followed the Public Broadcasting Service show and won't rush into an agreement with Henry Winkler Productions.

The PBS program, televised April 14, told the story of the Snyder family's financial struggle to keep their Shakey's Pizza Parlor in Muncie operating. Howard Snider, a retired Marine Corps pilot, and his wife have eight children, five of whom still live at home. Business boomed after the show was broadcast.

HENRY WINKLER

"Lloyd, our youngest son (age 19) specifically said he wanted to keep his life private and that's a big concern for all of us," said Mrs. Snider. "At this point, I'm for backing off and studying just what will happen to our lives if we go ahead," she said.

Winkler played "The Fonz" in the "Happy Days" series.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Entertainer Johnny Carson will head a campaign to help rebuild a collection of rare movie memorabilia destroyed in a fire that gutted the Hollywood Library.

Carson has pledged $10,000 and will head a committee that will try to raise $500,000 to piece together a new "entertainment and performing fine arts collection" for the library. Melissa Higgins, assistant director of the Los Angeles Library Association, said Friday.

A blaze set by arsonists swept through the library April 13, burning three-fourths of its 90,000 books and destroying its collection of movieland memorabilia. Officials estimate damage at between $3.3 million and $3.8 million.

Kuhlman Foundation runs out of money

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Evangelist Kathryn Kuhlman, whose husky voice has been regularly rebroadcast to the faithful since her death in 1976, will be heard for the last time on the airwaves this week.

The Kathryn Kuhlman Foundation, founded in 1948 after the tall, slender redhead began preaching from Pittsburgh, will close Friday for lack of funds.

"I always promised her I'd play her tapes as long as I could. And that's what I did," Marguerite Hartner, the foundation's executive director, said Saturday. "When our money was gone, we had to close. I wouldn't beg for money. Miss Kuhlman didn't believe in it," added Miss Hartner, who was the evangelist's secretary for about 30 years.

The foundation had paid 51 radio stations in the United States and Canada to play tapes of Miss Kuhlman's original sermons, interspersed with gospel music. Last month, the rebroadcasts were canceled on 13 stations to save money. Now, the rest will follow.

Miss Kuhlman, originally from Concordia, Mo., established the non-profit foundation in Pittsburgh after visiting the city. She began preaching in a library auditorium on the city's north side, then moved to the First Presbyterian Church downtown.

Her sermons and faith-healing attracted hundreds, sometimes thousands and were parodied by comedian Ruth Buzzi on the old "Laugh-In" TV show. Tapes sent weekly to radio and TV stations across the country were turned into cassettes, record albums and books.

"She prayed for the people, the sick, and she preached to them," Miss Hartner said of the evangelist's ministry. "But she believed that God did the healing. She said she could heal no one."

Miss Kuhlman, a Baptist, died of pulmonary hypertension in her 60s and left an undisclosed sum to foundation workers though none to the foundation. The foundation continued with her followers and that money has run out, according to Miss Hartner.

"Since she's been gone, a lot of people (financial supporters) thought 'that's it,'" she said. "It cost us $66,000 a month to keep going."

With the close of the foundation, which distributed the tapes and books and also held services every month or two, 10 full-time and two part-time employees in Pittsburgh and the employees of an Brookville, Ontario, office will lose their jobs.
