President Warns Iran Against Harming Even One American

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter met with his top military and foreign policy advisers for more than two hours today and warned Iran's leader that harming a single American hostage would produce "extremely grave" retaliation.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters after the meeting the president had asked him to relay the message that in Carter's view, "the last American hostage is just as important to the United States as the first.

"The consequences of harm to any single hostage will be extremely grave."

The press secretary said he had no new developments to report but that the United States is keeping diplomatic channels open and "there may be some encouragement from the fact that they are still active."

In response to reporters' questions, Powell said the administration remains firm in its refusal to turn over the former shah, who is undergoing cancer treatment in New York. "He was allowed to come here for humanitarian reasons to receive medical treatment. That treatment will not be interrupted," he said.

Powell also said he saw little new in the threat issued Thursday by Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who said militants occupying the U.S. embassy in Iran would kill their hostages and blow up the building if the United States attacks Iran.

Powell noted that the militants themselves had said the same thing earlier. "It really makes no difference who says it or how many times it is said," he said, adding that U.S. policy is unchanged.

Carter met for about two hours and 20 minutes with his advisers, including Vice President Walter Mondale, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Central Intelligence Agency Chief Stansfield Turner and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

They arrived at Carter's mountaintop retreat by helicopter and after the meeting returned to Washington.

Also present at Camp David were White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan and Press Secretary Powell. Powell would not give a list of all those who took part in the meeting.

Powell said Carter plans to meet Saturday with the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, which includes the uniformed leaders of the Army, Air Force and Navy. Powell said the "primary topic" of the meeting would be to discuss the Defense Depart-

Embassies In India Attacked

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—A mob of more than 1,000 Moslems burned vehicles, looted shops and stoned and tried to set fire to the American and Soviet consulates today in a violent reaction to the raid on the Grand Mosque in Mecca this week.

No casualties were reported among foreigners but at least eight policemen were injured in the rock-throwing demonstration that was finally broken up with tear gas.

Police kept the mobs from entering the consulates, which are in the same district of the city, but some damage from rocks and thrown bottles was reported at both the Soviet and American missions.

Crew Overpowers Hijacker

TOKYO (AP)-A man armed with a bottle opener and a small plastic knife hijacked a Japan Air Lines DC-10 jetliner today and diverted it to Narita Airport near Tokyo. He was overpowered by the crew after ordering that the plane be fueled for a flight to the Soviet Union.

The crew handed Kazumi Nomura, 25, over to Narita Airport police after a scuffle in the cockpit in which the pilot, Toshiyuki Nishihiro, 39, suffered minor injuries on his wrist, a JAL official said. None of the plane's 345 passengers, the other 10 crew members or the hijacker were injured.

Americans Leave Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP)-More than 300 Americans left this Pakistani capital today in an airlift ordered by the State Department after a Moslem mob sacked the U.S. Embassy here in a riot that killed six persons, including two American soldiers.

The bodies of Marine Cpl. Steven Crowley, of Long Island, N.Y., and Army Chief Warrant Officer Bryan Ellis, of Spring Lake, N.C., were put aboard the chartered Pan Am jumbo jet before the 310 evacuees boarded.

Winds Keep Oil From Beach

GALVESTON (AP)-Northerly winds kept oil spilled from the bowels of a battered tanker at sea and away from where 70 workmen spent Thanksgiving cleaning the crude-soaked beaches on this tourist island.

Coast Guard spokesman Larry Clark said Thursday that the tanker Burmah Agate was still aflame and leaking oil, but the northerly winds prevented any more crude oil from washing ashore on Galveston Island.

Snowstorm Strands Motorists

By The Associated Press

Dozens of stranded travelers had their Thanksgiving dinner in a Nebraska National Guard armory as a blizzard that paralyzed much of the Midwest moved east, dumping up to a foot of snow in southwestern Minnesota.

The storm, which killed 10 persons earlier in the week as it roared out of the Rockies, also dropped 4 inches of snow in northern Iowa and sent temperatures plummeting to the teens in parts of Minnesota.

Dozens of motorists were forced to abandon their cars as Interstate 90 in Minnesota was nearly closed. Travelers advisories were posted Thursday night for southern Minnesota and southeastern South Dakota.

HONOREES–Members of RSVP who give volunteer time in the Scurry County Museum at WTC were honored at a coffee Wednesday. Among those attending were (left to right) Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, Dr. Ben Frock, WTC vice president, Marsha Krenek, RSVP Director, Tollie Faver and Owen Miller. Also attending were Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president, Evelyn Boone, Margie Key, Geneva Williamson, Zoe Horton, Roy Lashaway and Clemey Andress.

Carter May Propose Rationing Measures In 1980, Says Miller

LONDON (AP)—U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said today that President Carter may propose mandatory measures to reduce American oil consumption next year.

Miller, en route to the Middle East on a six-day trip, said the mandatory measures could include ones aimed at curtailing the use of cars by rationing gasoline, increasing gasoline taxes or other steps he did not specify.

Other mandatory measures to reduce oil consumption could include lighting and temperature controls, he told reporters during an airborne news conference.

"All the options of mandatory curtailment, price curtailment, have to be looked at," Miller said. "We need to make a tremendous effort next year to restrain demand."

Reducing energy consumption to help restrain oil price increases is the key to controlling inflation, he said.

"The battle now revolves around energy," he said. "If oil prices continue rising, then all other efforts to control inflation, including efforts to support the dollar, will be frustrated."

The Associated Press learned a week ago that an inter-agency task force was working on options for conserving oil for the president to look at, but Miller's statement was the strongest yet by a high official that mandatory measures are being seriously considered.

Miller said presidential advisers hope to have a set of specific proposals ready for Carter to consider by the middle of next month, in time to work out a final proposal for Congress in January.

Miller said the decision has not yet been made whether to actually propose mandatory controls or stick to voluntary guidelines to reduce oil consumption.

"Whether we will go one way or the other, I simply don't know."

Any mandatory actions would have to be approved by Congress to go into effect, said an official who asked not to be named.

Miller plans to spend three days in Saudi Arabia, his first stop, and then continue to Abu Dhabi and Kuwait. All three nations are considered moderates in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. His plane stopped here to refuel.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Tom E. Roy of the Ballinger Ledger reports that constituents of Rep. Norman Dicks (D-Wash.) are getting a 1.4-mile shortcut between downtown and an interstate highway on the outskirts of Tacoma, thanks to some skillful maneuvering on the part of their handy highwayman congressman, who is a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Dicks slipped a rider onto a bill that ordered the Federal Highway Administration to build the alternate route, which will cost $71.3 million because it is elevated. By comparison, most urban construction of federal highways costs about $8 million per mile.

We are into a new season of "cookoffs" with everything from chili to pinto beans on the menus. We thought they had a cookoff for everything edible, but James Roberts of the Andrews County News points out one conspicuous gap in the cookoff parade.

"We have an infinite variety of chili cookoffs--most of which leave the impression that they are sponsored by imbeciles, prepared by idiots and served up to the dimwitted," said Roberts.

"In Athens, they have an annual black-eyed pea cookoff, on the coast a shrimp cookoff, and in another spot in East Texas a yambolade which is a sweet potato cookoff.

"We keep waiting and waiting and waiting for the supreme cookoff--one that would test the mettle of cooks everywhere--the cornbread cookoff.

"But thus far--nothing."

Reporting on a poll taken by State Rep. Walter Grubbs in which 610 questionnaires were completed, of which 94 percent classified themselves as "conservative," the Colorado City Record said the six leading problems identified were inflation, fuels supplies, federal taxes, drug law enforcement and interest rates. Ranking near the bottom in concern were the 55 mph speed limit, initiative and referendum and auto and fire insurance, three issues for which Gov. Bill Clements had indicated he will call a special session of the legislature to consider.

IRA Guerrilla Gets Life Term

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Irish Republican Army guerrilla Thomas McMahon, 31, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the assassination of Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, in the Irish Republic three months ago.

Another defendant, 24-year-old Francis McGirl, was found innocent of the slaying. But the three judges at the Special Criminal Court ordered him to stand trial Jan. 21 on charges of belonging to the outlawed IRA's Provisional wing. He was freed on bail of 1,000 pounds, or $2,160.

Presiding Judge Ian Hamilton refused to allow McMahon, a longtime Provisional IRA explosives specialist, to appeal the life sentence.

Both men had denied they killed 79-year-old soldier-statesman Earl Mountbatten of Burma, the most prominent Briton to be slain by Irish terrorists in this century.

Saudis Control Mosque Again

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP)—Saudi troops regained full control of the Grand Mosque of Mecca today and were in hot pursuit of the last of the Moslem extremists who besieged the building for three days, the Saudi information minister announced.

Mohammad Abdo Yamani said in a statement broadcast by Riyadh state radio that "security at the Grand Mosque has been re-established ... and security forces now are in complete control of the entire mosque and are pursuing the remaining criminal elements to arrest them."

There was no immediate word on the fate of some 50 hostages.

Earlier, officials vowed harsh punishment for the gunmen who seized Islam's holiest shrine.

Saudi Arabia "will not tolerate any seditious act, and will not be lenient with any group provoking such acts, whatever its color or the color of those hiding behind it," Saudi Information Minister Mohammad Abdo Yamani said Thursday after the government announced it had regained "complete control" of the situation.

The 200 gunmen who stormed the mosque Tuesday, when it was filled with pilgrims celebrating the eve of the 15th Islamic century, "will face Islamic justice, which is against corruption on earth," said Foreign Minister Prince Saud AlFaisal. Saudi Arabia

Egyptian newspapers, meanwhile, quoted a report by Radio Monte Carlo, attributed to Western diplomats in Jidda, as saying gunmen unsuccessfully tried to occupy the Prophet's Mosque in Medina at the same time as the occupation of the Mecca mosque at dawn Tuesday.

Pilot Training For Iranians Halts At LAFB

"We have been directed by Air Training Command Headquarters that as of now, today or perhaps Monday, Iranian students have been grounded," she said.

Lt. Foster said she did not know if the move by the ATC headquarters in San Antonio was temporary or permanent.

Holiday Shooting Hospitalizes One

A 26-year-old Snyder man is in serious condition at Cogdell Memorial Hospital following a shooting Thanksgiving Day.

A police official said he was shot once in the stomach with a .22-caliber pistol. Officers said Johnston was by himself when the shooting occurred and that no suspects are being sought.

He was picked up by ambulance at 411 Ave. T about 4:45 p.m. and taken to Cogdell.

The only other matter investigated yesterday was a minor traffic accident in the 500 block of 28th St.

The mishap occurred at 8:30 a.m. and involved a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Cynthia Merritt and a fence owned by C.W. Carlan. The accident was worked by officer Kerry Fritz.

Americans March In Iran In Favor Of Shah's Return

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—About 20 foreigners, most of them Americans, surprised Iranians today by parading through the streets of Tehran to demand the extradition of the shah, "because, having lived here through the revolution, we know him to be a murderer."

The marchers, accompanied by about 20 revolutionary guards, were cheered by scores of Iranians shouting "Long Live Americans" as they walked from Ferdowsi Square to Tehran University and back. One American said the group was divided over the taking of American hostages at the U.S. Embassy but that they were unanimous about the shah.

Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr announced Iran will not pay its foreign debts, which he put at $15 billion, CBS News reported. CBS quoted the minister as saying Iran was planning to totally change its banking system.

Iranian strongman Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini fired a new salvo at the United States, calling on all Moslems and American blacks to rise and "join us in this struggle between the infidel and Islam."

Meanwhile, a secret document obtained by The Associated Press suggested that the United States planned to grant permanent residence to deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now receiving cancer treatment in New York, as early as last summer, while admitting Iranian officials "may not like" the idea.

The commander of Iran's navy has ordered his forces on full alert to counter the approach of American warships, dispatched to the Indian Ocean, south of Iran, by President Carter.

painful progress

A troubling paradox of our age is that many nations of the world enjoying the freest economies suffer from civil tyranny comparable to that found in those with state-run, and not open-market, economies.

Thus, we find, for example, in South Korea, South Africa or Chile some valuable lessons about how relative prosperity can be enjoyed in the "Third World", but also some rather terrifying incidents of what are popularly called human rights abuses. Secret police tend to be big in these countries.

Because of those latter tendencies, some of our liberal friends cringe at reports such as the one out of Chile recently, that despite the U.S. government's increasingly antagonistic posture toward that nation's ruling junta in the wake of Chilean refusals to cooperate in the Letelier murder probe, American corporations are flocking to Santiago's shores.

Business is attracted by the freedom that enterprises have increasingly enjoyed since Chile's Marxist government was overthrown in 1973, and particularly by the reduction in trade barriers that the military men adopted on Milton Friedman's advice in 1977. (This lack of centralized direction of the economy belies the label "fascist" that has been applied to the South American nation.)

The movement of banks and manufacturers back to Chile is not simply for the purpose of extracting labor and materials from that nation. Many of the corporate arrivals plan to sell consumer goods to Chileans, particularly to the recovering middle class that pressured - probably with the CIA's help - for Salvador Allende's removal in 1973.

From business after business, one reads the comment that Chile's is now a good investment climate, in a world in which so many nations seem intent on driving out the producers with regulation, expropriation or worse.

Our conservative friends might suggest that Chile is an example of how authoritarian social orders are a prerequisite to establishment of market economies in countries where the concept of a society based on voluntary exchange may be foreign. Certainly Chile could be cited to make such a case. We would prefer to think of it and other recent instances as exceptions to a general rule, however, and to consider Chile's future.

The historical pattern has been for civil liberties to be most refined in those areas enjoying economic liberties. Economic well-being generally allows for more reasoned respect of individual freedoms; stifling poverty can be fodder for tyrants.

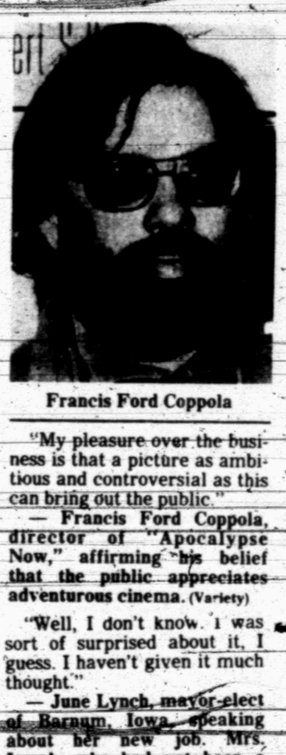

Gradually, progress is being made toward civil as well as economic liberty in Chile. The introduction of more corporate investments should further imbue its society with the spirit of voluntary agreement on which business depends, and help inculcate its people and government with values more traditional to North America.

Though this process is painfully slow, it is infinitely preferable to the intergovernmental swashbuckling going on between Chile and the United States in Washington. We doubt that our rulers, who can't find much room for their own subjects' liberty, will accomplish much in that regard for the citizens of Chile.

sellers vs buyers

NEW YORK (AP)—This could be the trickiest holiday selling season in many years, one to test the marketing skills and courage of sellers and the financial inventiveness and determination of buyers.

ETTA HULME FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM—N.E.A. '79

Both groups have sharpened those skills throughout these volatile years of the 1970s, but the past might no longer be a guide: More than the calendar is changing; the economic world is too.

If you were a merchant; dependent on a good show during the holidays, how would you adjust to higher interest rates, tighter money, rising prices, declining buying power and gnawing fears of the future?

Would you keep inventories lean, and risk being unable to fill orders? Offer your own brand of credit financing and then be unable to collect? Sink dollars into promotion, and then not get the orders? Lower prices?

As a customer, will you decide that less buying power means you must reduce purchases? Are you willing to buy on credit and leave to next year the worries about paying? Can you get credit? Do you want it?

The fact is that the consumer's ability to buy has been curtailed by reason of inflation growing faster than incomes. So far this year, that lost income exceeds 1 percent, or more than $150 on a $15,000 income.

There has been an expedient route around this hard fact, of course, by means of credit buying. Families also reduced their rate of savings, to just above 4 percent a year, and spent the money instead.

These practices helped maintain sales at near last year's levels. In fact, sales actually rose in August and September, even when adjusted for inflation, although much of the gain was from the new car market.

But consumer attitudes may be changing. People already are loaded with credit and they are worried about it. They are now delaying purchases of new cars. Apparel and home durable sales have been off sharply.

Moreover, the holiday season coincides with one of the harshest programs of monetary restraint ever attempted by the Federal Reserve, a program whose impact can be measured financially and psychologically.

All this may mean a change of buying habits that could extend through the holidays, but if so, it will be countered by aggressive selling by merchants. And aggressive selling often means discounts.

To what extent retailers will have to rely on discounting won't be clear for another two weeks. By then they will understand the mood of the buyer, and the buyer's willingness and ability to spend.

It might be the retail battle of the decade, a classic between buyer and seller.

my turn

by john dunnam

Did you ever get the feeling that the only reason we have elections is to find out if the polls were right? That is an astute observation and I wish I had made it but the credit goes to Robert Orben.

Browsing through a book of quotations, one finds all sorts of outrageous wit, and wisdom pertaining to politics conveniently packaged in little bits of brevity.

Such as: "Any party which takes credit for the rain must not be surprised if its opponents blame it for the drought."

Or try this gem from Winston Churchill.

"Political ability is the ability to foretell what is going to happen tomorrow, next week, next month and next year. And to have the ability afterward to explain why it didn't happen."

Some ring too true to be humorous.

"There is a myth that government can do the job cheaply because it doesn't have to make a profit."--E.S. Savas

Taking pot shots at politicians has always been a popular pastime among quipsters.

"There are some politicians who, if their constituents were cannibals, would promise them missionaries for dinner."--H.L. Mencken

"Have you ever seen a candidate talking to a rich person on television?"--Art Buchwald

"An honest politician is one who, when he is bought, will stay bought."--Simon Cameron

If such an attitude prevails on the part of the people, do you wonder how they keep their jobs? Will Rogers had the answer.

"The short memories of American voters is what keeps our politicians in office."

But how do they get there in the first place, and why would one want to follow such an unpopular profession?

"He knows nothing; he thinks he knows everything--that clearly points to a political career."--George Bernard Shaw

"Politics is perhaps the only profession for which no preparation is thought necessary." -- Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Public office is the last refuge of the incompetent."--Boies Penrose

Come on fellows. There must be a few good men on the public payroll.

There are and they are known as statesmen. Definition: "I know what a statesman is; he's a dead politician. We need more statesmen."--Bob Edwards

"A statesmen is any politician it's considered safe to name a school after."--Bill Vaughn

I tend to agree with Laurence J. Peter on the general subject of politics.

"It is every citizen's duty to support his government, but not necessarily in the style to which it has become accustomed."

Berry's World

growing older

Lou Cottin

Cold winter winds follow the broiling summer heat and the early autumn nip in the air. So, we should begin thinking about how we will keep warm as the thermometer drops.

Contrary to earlier fears, there probably will be enough heating fuel to go around this winter. But it will not be cheap.

For example, last winter heating oil cost about 50 cents a gallon. It's predicted that this winter that gallon of heating oil will cost 85 cents and might even go as high as $1.

Because they patriotically want to help the nation conserve fuel or maybe because they cannot afford its higher price, many of the elderly may not keep their homes warm enough to keep themselves healthy.

President Carter has announced a multi-billion-dollar program to help low-income households pay for heating oil. But the spring crocuses may bloom before this much-needed help is available to the older people who must keep warm.

Long before that they may suffer hypothermia, which can cause them serious illness -- or death.

Hypothermia isn't an illness only of the elderly. It may strike people of any age when they are exposed to bitterly cold temperatures. However, older citizens are most vulnerable.

It doesn't have to be bitterly cold for hypothermia to occur. Even in the Sun Belt with its almost constant warm and sunny days, hypothermia can strike the elderly -- especially those with medical problems such as diabetes, chronic heart trouble, kidney failure or innutrition -- when the outside temperature drops below 60 or even 65 degrees.

No one know why resistance to cold and ability to recover from prolonged exposure to it diminish with age. The reason could be a defect of the nervous system, which transmits signals for control of body temperature.

When the body is chilled, the normal response is for blood vessels near the skin surface to constrict to reduce heat loss. That is evidenced by shivering and pale skin.

Most victims of accidental hypothermia neither shiver nor turn pale, but their body temperatures drop as low as 95 degrees. (Exposure to cold can frequently drop your skin temperature, but that doesn't necessarily mean your body temperature also drops).

Unfortunately, hypothermia symptoms aren't felt or detected early enough. Many doctors don't know too much about this ailment and they may not recognize its symptoms when treating their patients.

Probably the best advice for people susceptible to hypothermia is to stay indoors when it's cold and windy.

The older person who runs out of heating fuel should move in with family or neighbors or go to a warm local institution. If you can't keep the home fires burning to keep warm, leave home until you have a constant supply of heating fuel.

And dress warmly -- even indoors -- to lessen the chill.

Anyone, young or old, who must go out into cold weather should wear layers of light, loose clothing instead of one heavy, thick garment. And wear a hat or other warm head covering because it's estimated that 60 percent of body heat is lost from an unprotected head.

You may not know of anyone who has been stricken by hypothermia. But that doesn't mean you should be unaware and unprepared.

About 2.3 million older Americans -- one-tenth of the aging population -- could be vulnerable to hypothermia this winter. And in Great Britain, hypothermia is estimated to cause thousands of deaths each year.

It's wise to keep warm or you, too, could become a cold-weather statistic.

Balance Decor With Tables

When you decorate, keep this law of relativity in mind: large rooms call for larger furnishings and bolder colors; small rooms for smaller pieces, calmer color.

Tables are important in maintaining scale and balance. A table must be compatible or in proportion to the chair or sofa it's next to. It should reach to the level of the chair's arm and have sufficient space for a lamp, books, ash tray or other accessories.

Correct proportions are mandatory to make the unexpected "work." The lovely commode illustrated, for instance, can work well in a traditional or a contemporary environment — and provide handy storage space. Designed by American Drew, to take its place in today's — and tomorrow's — home, the commode interprets the timeless beauty of traditional lines.

Keep table lamps in proportion, too, and high enough to provide light for reading material and the surrounding area. Good balance tips the decorating scales in your favor!

Home Economist Presents Program On Northern Europe

Miss Ruby Butts was guest speaker at the recent Business and Professional Women's Club dinner meeting held at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Miss Butts showed slides and mementos and shared experiences of her summer trip abroad with the group.

Miss Butts was chosen with nine other home economists for the People To People tour to Norway, Finland, Soviet Union, Poland and Sweden. She commented on palaces in Russia, and told how the universities select students by giving tests that last 17 days.

"In Sweden," she said, "the income of the average family is about one-third of that in the United States." Sweden was the friendliest of all the people she encountered on her trip, she said.

Miss Butts concluded her program by telling the group about the displayed items which she had brought home from her trip through northern Europe.

An unfatherly Father-in-Law

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great husband. Not perfect, but close enough. My problem is his father.

About four years ago he told me he wanted to go to bed with me, and had felt that way for a long time. I was insulted and sickened by the suggestion, and told him so. He has a lovely wife, he's not senile, and I did nothing to provoke it.

At first I hated him, then my hate turned to feeling absolutely nothing toward him.

I bitterly resent the love and respect this vile man receives from his family. I am constantly hearing what a "wonderful" person he is, and it galls me to keep silent. But I must, of course. I also resent the adoration my husband has for his father when, in fact, his father has betrayed him in the worst of all betrayals.

A few months ago my father-in-law underwent emergency surgery, and the family was informed that he has six months at the most to live. When I heard the news, I am ashamed to admit that I secretly rejoiced. His death will be the end of my play-acting, and I look forward to it with no reservations.

Abby, do you think I am going to be in big trouble with God for feeling this way? I have come to terms with the insult to myself, but the betrayal of a good son by his father is something I cannot forgive.

Will God punish me for my feelings? Or might He find this sinful man as repugnant as I, and understand my feelings?

NO CITY OR STATE, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: Since you are obviously a God-fearing woman who feels guilt and fear of punishment for your thoughts, ask God's forgiveness through prayer.

I can't tell you how God will judge you but, in the future, leave the business of judging your fellowman to the Lord. That's HIS work.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a hostess wait for a late dinner guest? My husband and I were invited to a dinner party for 7 p.m. We arrived promptly at 7, and by 7:15 all the other guests were there except one couple. The cocktail hour continued until the tardy couple came steaming in, full of apologies, at 8:45!

By that time I had a hunger headache and my husband had exceeded his quota of cocktails. Need I tell you what kind of an evening we had?

What is the limit on holding up a dinner for latecomers? Thanks for printing this.

HAD IT IN HOUGHTON, MICH.

DEAR HAD IT: Fifteen minutes is long enough to hold up a scheduled meal for tardy guests.

George Washington is said to have set an intelligent precedent. He instructed his cook to inquire not, "Have the GUESTS arrived?" But, "Has the HOUR arrived?"

DEAR ABBY: With every sorrow or setback there is a bit of humor. Such was the case when I was recently hospitalized.

One of my nurses was a little Chinese doll who couldn't have weighed more than 80 pounds. She was 22, married and had two children.

After she had given me my bath and massage with her usual care and kindness, I winked at her to show my appreciation. I then asked her, "Can you wink with one eye?"

She answered, "No can wink with one eye. Can wink with TWO eyes." Then I asked her if she knew what a wink meant. She bent down and whispered into my ear, "Yes. That means, 'nobody home; c'mon in.'"

She knew, of course, that I was 81.

Today's hand is from a collection of 100 amusing problems in an old book written by the late Donald Parson entitled, "Fall of the Cards."

Many of the hands are old chestnuts that have been around since the days of whist. Donald probably made this one up from one of them.

Seven notrump is just the slightest overbid. There are 12 top tricks and a simple finesse for the 13th so a conservative six would have been advisable.

As for West's double, the less we can say for it the more appropriate. He did have a sure diamond stopper and the well protected king of clubs, but there might still be 13 top tricks out against him.

Anyway, West did double and led the queen of diamonds. South won. You just don't duck in a seven contract. Then he counted to 12 and looked for 13. Thh club finesse was obviously wrong. How about a Vienna coup?

South found what must be the Vienna coup to end all Vienna coups.

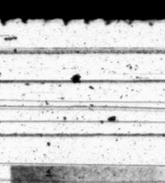

At trick two he cashed his ace of clubs!

Then he ran off all the spades and hearts while discarding the queen, jack, 8-7-6-5 of clubs from his own hand to leave dummy's three of clubs as the squeeze card. West had to keep a club. He discarded a diamond in desperation, and the nine of diamonds became the grand slam trick.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

The motherhood mystique

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I read your column about people who cannot leave the house. I have the opposite problem.

I am a 24-year-old married woman with two small children. After my first child was born, I was quite depressed and avoided staying home as much as possible.

I went to other people's houses where I felt more relaxed and content. That feeling went away when my son got older.

Now I am feeling the same way with my second child, who is 6 months old.

I've tried to talk to my husband about this, but he doesn't understand. I feel so guilty about not being a good mother. I know it is putting a strain on my marriage.

DEAR READER — You sound worried about your marriage. I am more concerned about you and the pressure you feel to live up to the "good mother" mystique.

The new mother's frequent problem is that she hates herself because she cannot be quietly strong, selflessly giving, undemanding, unambitious, receptive and intelligent in a moderate and concrete way, even-tempered and always in control of her emotions while loving her children completely and unambivalently.

In short, she feels she is not a good mother. She certainly loves her children — but some times more than others.

Although women are as different from one another as men are, although we are born with every type of human temperament, although we have developed into many different kinds of people through varied experiences, there is still only one image in this culture of the "good mother."

Most of us who have had children have gone through the same horror. One woman may develop migraine headaches and another may start drinking too much.

You may crave the companionship of other adults. But that need not make you suffer from feeling you are a bad mother.

Recently I asked a friend of mine if she would like to work for me in my office one day a week. She has a 1-year-old daughter and has been at home since she quit her job in her ninth month of pregnancy.

I knew she was itching for some intellectual challenge. At first she was excited, but then she said, "What would my mother say? After all, we don't really need the money."

Even though she knew she could be more loving with her daughter if she met some of her own needs, she was worried about how her taking the job might look to others.

If you are depressed when your children are very young and find yourself constantly wanting to flee the house, ask yourself which of your needs are not being met.

After all, you are you — not just someone's mother and someone's wife. Women with small children are constantly in danger of losing their identities as people.

Talk to another woman about your feelings. She would be more likely to understand than your husband. Many men are sensitive and understanding, but motherhood is an experience you must have had to be truly empathic.

Depressed? Write for Dr. Blaker's "Fighting Depression" newsletter. Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Write to Dr. Blaker at the above address. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Car Theft Major Area For Organized Crime

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Car theft, once the province of teenagers looking for joy rides, has become a major area for organized crime, a 15-month investigation by a Senate panel reveals.

The Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations will open five days of hearings on the subject beginning Tuesday. Witnesses will include convicted criminals, subcommittee investigators and law enforcement officials, including FBI Director William H. Webster.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who will conduct the hearings, called car theft "the fastest growing crime in America. It is a $4 billion-a-year industry, if you can call it that. In the first half of 1979, motor vehicle theft increased 13 percent over the same period last year."

Car theft rings often work with a "chop shop," a secret garage that breaks expensive late-model cars into major parts within hours of when they are stolen. These parts then are sold to repair shops, subcommittee investigators have found.

Replacement parts are expensive when bought from legitimate sources, costing as much as 400 percent above their assembly line value. But criminals can sell stolen parts for less and still make huge profits.

"In large part, it is a steal-to-order racket," Percy said. "If a repair shop is looking for front-end parts for a white 1979 Cadillac Seville, then that kind of car will be stolen.

"Once the target car is located, a thief with the proper tools can be driving it away in a very few minutes. It probably will be at the 'chop shop' before the owner even knows it is missing."

Subcommittee investigator Howard Marks said the scheme attracts organized crime in Boston, New York, Chicago and some other areas because "it has the two things that organized crime wants: high profits and low risk. It's the ideal crime and we are all paying for it in higher insurance costs."

Marks said one of the favorite spots for theft is in large parking lots where the criminals can "shop" for the kind of car they want.

"Outside of a movie theater is a good place for them to operate," he said. "They know when the movie ends so they know how long they have to work. The same goes in a parking lot outside a sports stadium. They know when the game will end and they can work undisturbed until then."

Deputies Find Stripped Van

Deputy sheriffs reported finding a stripped and abandoned van Wednesday.

The van, a 1973 Chevrolet, was stolen from Abilene Nov. 15. It was found three miles northeast of Fluvanna in a gully.

The incident is still being investigated.

Percy has introduced a bill to increase the number of car parts carrying identification numbers. "Law enforcement officials tell us the single greatest deterrent to car theft is those numbers. The thieves want nothing to do with parts that can be traced," he said.

Engines and transmissions, which now must be numbered, are disposed of first by the "chop shops," to avoid this risk, the subcommittee investigators found.

Percy also is proposing strict criminal sanctions for removing a vehicle identifying number.

Anticipating a possible objection to the bill, Percy said, "The extra cost of more numbers on parts may be $5. But that will be made up many times over by reduced insurance rates if we can scale down car theft."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Nails need good diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife can't grow fingernails. She has tried everything. She eats only salads and occasionally meat. Can you help her with her fingernail problem?

DEAR READER — If your description of your wife's diet is really accurate, the first place to start is to provide proper nutrition for her. Salads with occasional meat isn't a balanced diet. Fingernails are specialized skin and consist of a large amount of protein. Proper fingernail growth depends upon the state of good health plus a good balanced diet that includes an adequate amount of protein, calcium and iron.

Your wife should be getting at least 50 grams of good quality protein a day. She would need about a half a pound of raw edible weight of the flesh only of meat, fish or chicken to provide this amount of protein. Or she could get part of this protein by using a quart of fortified skim milk a day. I would suggest that she use the milk plus some meat which could be either fish or chicken if she doesn't like red meat.

The milk will provide the calcium which she absolutely must have. A calcium deficient diet will also contribute to softening of the bones at an early age. Neither meat nor salads are satisfactory sources of calcium.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). It will provide you a brief review of the requirements for a balanced diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a handicapped person and have to sit all the time. My stomach and hips are expanding. Is there any help for me so that I can lose this girth? I weigh 147 pounds and am 5 feet 5.

DEAR READER — If you have to sit all the time and can't walk and do exercises, it certainly does increase your problem. Part of the reason that people develop heavy hips and a large middle is the accumulation of fat. Fat deposits mean that you're taking in more calories than you use. If your exercise is limited, that's understandable.

I do not know the extent of your handicap and it's possible that there are forms of physical exercise that you can use that will help you use calories and help control your weight. If so, you should try it. This might be swimming or other water exercises.

Other than those exercises and a diet to put you in the proper calorie balance, you might need to tighten up your muscles. You may not be able to do sit ups and leg lifts, depending on the nature of your handicap, but you can voluntarily contract and relax your abdominal muscles simply by sucking them in, letting them relax and then sucking them in and holding them tight again. Don't overdo this when you start.

You can learn to contract all of your trunk muscles as much as you can. Hold the contraction a few seconds and then relax for a few seconds. By doing this repeatedly for all the muscles you can move, you can help to develop and maintain your muscles even if you have to do it sitting or lying down.

Shah Plans Return To Mexico In Two Weeks

NEW YORK (AP)—Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the deposed shah of Iran, says he has completed radiation treatments for cancer and hopes to leave here for Mexico within two weeks, according to ABC News.

In an interview Thursday with the network's Barbara Walters, the former Iranian leader said he was "very anxious to leave" the United States and, in fact, never wanted to make the trip in the first place.

Miss Walters quoted the shah as saying he needs "semi-surgery" to remove another gallstone, a procedure which will involve insertion of a small basket-like device into a bladder tube to trap the stone and pull it out.

"The shah doesn't know exactly when the surgery will begin," Miss Walters said. "It depends how he reacts to the radiation. But he's very anxious to go, and hopes it will be within two weeks."

The shah's surgeon, Dr. Bjorn Thorbjarnarson, reached at his home Thursday night, said he could not comment on the report. Other doctors attending the shah have said privately they would not oppose his leaving once the radiation treatments were finished and the gallstone was out.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., meanwhile, said he had information from a "good source" that Pahlavi would undergo surgery today for the gallstone.

"Up to this time the shah has needed treatment that could be done only in this country, but after tomorrow that will no longer be the case," Schweiker said Thursday.

The shah came to New York from his exile in Mexico on Oct. 22, and gallbladder surgery confirmed the presence of cancer in his lymph system. Miss Walters said he told her that his wife, Empress Farah, his doctors and other advisors insisted that he come.

Miss Walters quoted the shah as saying, "I did not want to come here" and as saying he had to come for a sophisticated diagnosing instrument called the body scanner.

Although he has remained current by watching television, Pahlavi did not discuss the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran where militants continue to hold Americans hostage. The Iranians have demanded that the United States return the shah to Iran so he can be tried and punished for his alleged crimes.

"He is very aware of what the media and people around the world feel about him and he is aware of the tremendous anger towards him," she said.

Miss Walters said Pahlavi told her he had not expected the revolution in Iran and did not know what had sparked it.

Asked during the interview whether he planned to return to his homeland, the shah answered, "Going back to Iran? I may be many things, but I am not stupid."

KKK Sending Team To Probe Seadrift Killing

PASADENA, Texas (AP)—Ku Klux Klan leaders say they don't intend to escalate a local crab war when they ignore the wishes of Seadrift, Texas, officials and send a "fact finding team" to the coastal fishing village Saturday.

The Klan's grand dragon of Texas said in Pasadena Thursday that 10 or 15 Klansmen would conduct a "small fact finding mission" into the Aug. 3 shooting death of a Seadrift fisherman by a Vietnamese refugee.

"They are going to interview and talk to people involved in this. There will be no parade. We do plan to go to City Hall and make ourselves known," said Louis Bean, the Klan official.

Klansmen will return in force next month, the grand dragon warned, if they find evidence of an official coverup in the death of Billy Joe Aplin.

"We have received calls at our state office that there were irregularities in the investigation, that weapons used in the killing were lost or misplaced and that testimony that should have been given at the trial was not.

"We are going to try to ascertain if this is true. If it is, and authorities are not willing to act on it, we may have to go down there in force," said Bean.

"We're going to come back next month, with 200 to 300 klansmen, and march through Seadrift and hold a demonstration if necessary," said Bean.

Seadrift City Councilmen, afraid a Klan rally could bring simmering tensions back to the boiling point, unanimously passed a resolution Tuesday night urging Klansmen to "stay away."

More than half of the community's 1,000 population packed the auditorium and cheered when the council promised prosecution "to the full extent of the law" to any group attempting "to incite a riot, provoke violence or create any unlawful assembly."

A feud between refugees and local fishermen over the Vietnamese alleged disregard of local fishing traditions erupted in a crab war after the shooting. Four Vietnamese boats and a Vietnamese residence were firebombed.

Many of the Seadrift's 200 Vietnamese, who fled the turmoil in their own country, packed their bags and left again in the face of mounting violence in the town on the mid-Texas coast.

McMurry Men To Sing At Trinity

The Singing Men of McMurry will be performing at Trinity Methodist Church at 7 p.m. Nov. 25. There are 14 men in the collegiate gospel group including Van Hayes, Snyder freshman and son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hayes.

"This very talented group of young men is in much demand for engagements and we feel fortunate to have them," said a spokesperson for the Church.

Everyone is invited, she added.

Some 11 million Americans now regularly jog or run, more than twice as many as five years ago, according to National Geographic.

Mesquite Dress Code Challenged

MESQUITE (AP)—Jimmy Ray Lewis just had his ears pinned back by the administrators at Mesquite High School. Of course, you can't tell it, because Lewis' hair still covers his ears -- even after the district-ordered haircut that got him back into school.

It seems that the school's dress code, a controversy not heard of by most of this generation's high school students, has sprouted again in this Dallas suburb. And when Lewis' mother appealed to the federal government to intervene, she said she was told there was nothing the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare could do.

On Nov. 7, the 17-year-old high school senior was sent home from school and told not to return with his collar-length locks. Lewis said his hairstyle was reviewed by assistant principal Bob Hurst on Nov. 1 and given the seal of approval.

But six days later, he was called out of class by Bud Maines, dean of students, and told to pay a visit to his neighborhood barber.

"They told me not to sign out and when I got a haircut, I could come back," he said. "Personally, I think it's a bunch of bull. I don't see what a haircut has to do with education."

After talking it over with his parents and an attorney, Lewis submitted to scissors. His mother, meanwhile, filed a civil rights complaint with HEW.

But HEW officials said the complaint -- filed under a provision of the Title IX educational amendments of 1972, which prohibit schools from applying different rules to the appearance of boys and girls -- hasn't been investigated and probably never will.

"They are not investigated because of a lack of policy covering such things," said a supervisor at the Dallas HEW office who asked not to be identified.

Dr. John Bell, director of the civil rights complaint division of HEW's elementary and secondary school branch, said the "lack of policy" is caused by continual wavering on the part of the U.S. Department of Justice.

Gang Violence Disrupts Game

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The Thanksgiving rivalry between two high schools was overshadowed by the rivalry of two motorcycle gangs when gunfire erupted on the football field, sending 5,000 fans screaming for cover and leaving 19 persons injured.

Eight persons were hit, including a 2-year-old boy, when shots rang out at the Woodrow Wilson High School field during the third quarter of the game Thursday against Camden. Police said at least 20 shots were fired.

Eleven persons suffered other injuries, including some hurt when they were trampled by fleeing spectators.

The fighting erupted between the Wheels of Soul gang of Atco and the Ghetto Riders of Camden just behind the south end zone shortly before 1 p.m., police said.

RRC Won't Enforce Ban On Gas Lights

AUSTIN (AP) - The Railroad Commission says it won't enforce a federal ban against the use of natural gas for outdoor lighting.

In a letter to the U.S. Department of Energy, the three commissioners said their budget does not include an appropriation to regulate gas lights.

The commission has authority in rural areas, while cities are the regulators within their boundaries.

"I do not feel that the impact of the gas light prohibition is significant enough to reallocate personnel and money from ... activities which are more vital to Texas residents," Thomas H. Hill, assistant Gas Utilities Division director, told the commission.

He said the commission's refusal would allow the DOE's Economic Regulatory Administration "to administer the program of gas light prohibition if they choose to do so."

RRC Announces Divisions Chiefs

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Railroad Commission announced the appointments Wednesday of two division chiefs - Owen Kinney, 35, in transportation and J. Randel Hill, also 35, in surface mining and reclamation.

Both men are lawyers. Their appointments are effective Dec. 1.

The White House went out of its way to call attention to today's meeting by allowing photographers and television camera crews into the compound to record the arrival of the advisers. Ordinarily, news photographs are not allowed inside Camp David. The last time such arrangements were made was during the Mideast Summit more than a year ago.

Distribute Aid To Stranded

NEW DELHI, India (AP)-Air force helicopters and army troops are distributing aid to the far southeastern areas of Madurai and Ramanathapuram where floods have marooned more than 60,000 persons in 70 villages, the United News of India reported.

Found Dying On Operating Table

EDNID, Okla. (AP)-A security guard reported missing at Enid Memorial Hospital was found dying on an operating table with a mask over his face and a machine pumping nitrous oxide into his body, officials said.

He was identified as Malcomb Jackson, 20, of Amarillo, Texas, a junior at Phillips University.

His body was taken to the medical examiner's office in Oklahoma City for an autopsy.

"He was lying face down with a plastic mask over his nose and mouth and the anesthesia machine was going full blast," said security officer Bill Arnold.

Thanksgiving '79 Bag Of Emotions

By DON HARRISON
Associated Press Writer

Some senior citizens in Atlantic City, N.J., had turkey on some high rollers, while New York kids screeched approval of 63-foot Underdog. In Dallas, the Cowboys may have wished they were in New York, and somewhere in the Pacific, Jack Marbut ate in a ship's mess.

It was Thanksgiving 1979, a mixed emotional bag spiked by dressing and deviled eggs, bearded tyrants, blizzards and captured Americans far from home.

Thirteen Americans released from the U.S. Embassy in Iran enjoyed Thanksgiving with their families, but President Carter's holiday message reminded the nation of the 49 still held.

The mood was upbeat in the Big Apple, where millions turned out to be cheered by clowns, stirred by bands and wooed by the larger-than-life floats and balloons as the 53rd Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade moved down Broadway.

"This is a very greasy parade," said John "Boozer" Bauman of the '50s-style rock group Sha Na Na. "That's the highest compliment I can give."

Many of the estimated 80 million who watched the parade on TV also kicked off a long weekend of football games as they saw Dallas lose to Houston and Chicago drubbed by Detroit.

HOLD IT, CHERYL, that's not spaghetti! It's the latest in-zippers. The new fastener requires no tape on either side of its teeth; instead, the teeth are attached directly to the fabric of the garment. Clothing manufacturers may be able to cut costs by no longer having to stock many colors of zippers once they switch to the new fastener from Scovill.

But Petty Officer 2nd Class Jack Marut was not in any of the crowds Thursday. He was aboard the USS Midway as it steamed for the Persian Gulf, part of a show of strength prompted by the crisis in Iran.

The prospect of Marut missing yet another Thanksgiving at home in Orange, N.J., was upsetting to his twin sister, Jill, but not as much as the near-certainty that he would miss the birth of his second child in Yokusuka, Japan, probably next month.

In Sterling, Kan., cloudy, rainy skies and chilling temperatures threatened to put a damper on Darlene Walsh's annual spread for folks in this central Kansas community -- but sometimes even the weather cooperates.

"It was just fantastic. The weather had really been bad," said Mrs. Walsh. "Then about 10 minutes before we began serving, the sun came out. It's been just great all day."

About 2,000 persons had been expected but Mrs. Walsh said far more actually showed up. "We ran out of some things and they had to open a little store downtown to get some more food."

The Thanksgiving spirit even got to the high rollers in Atlantic City, where more than 1,000 senior citizens feasted.

Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel provided and prepared a complete turkey dinner while county volunteers delivered and served the meals at seven of Atlantic County's 10 nutrition sites.

Caesars got busy when it learned the nutrition centers were to be closed for Thanksgiving.

Seldom Seen Senior Has Been Seen

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—BULLETIN: Seldom Seen Sr. has been seen.

The elusive Japanese snow monkey, missing since June from the Columbus Zoo, may have escaped capture in the Cleveland suburb of Strongsville, police say. Police said the 7-year-old monkey was believed to have been spotted Sunday before it disappeared into woods.

Seldom Seen and his three-year-old offspring, Seldom Seen Jr., escaped from an unlocked cage at the zoo. The younger monkey was captured Thursday in a barn in Upper Sandusky. The older monkey was believed to have been spotted Wednesday at LaGrange.

The monkeys have been foraging for fruit, vegetables and bread.

Zoo officials said they hope once leaves fall from the trees it will be easier to find Seldom Seen -- at least until it snows.

60 Day Wait For Pistol In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP)-A prospective handgun buyer must wait 60 days and undergo a police check before purchasing a pistol in Atlanta, according to a new city ordinance.

The city council passed the measure during a special session Wednesday, and Mayor Maynard Jackson quickly signed it into law.

The ordinance reguires gun dealers to wait 60 days after the would-be buyer applies to get a pistol while police check whether he has a criminal record or history of mental illness.

Mother Holds Two Children As Hostages

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police maintained a vigil today outside an apartment in a north Philadelphia housing project where an armed woman was holding two of her six children at gunpoint.

Sandra Spicer, 35, had taken the children hostage shortly after 2:30 p.m. Thursday during a dispute with her father, police said. The hostages were identified as Renette Johnson, 19, and Donald Johnson, 12, children by a previous marriage.

Police, who were negotiating with the woman by telephone, said she was armed with a .32-caliber revolver and was demanding to see President Carter or Mayor Frank Rizzo.

The standoff began when Mrs. Spicer barricaded herself and the two children in her father's third-floor apartment at Harrison Plaza, a 15-story high-rise public housing project, police said.

Police Capt. Malcolm Kachigian said the woman moved into the apartment Wednesday with her six children.

When her father tried to explain on Thursday that there was not enough room for the family to continue living there, Mrs. Spicer pulled the gun and he ran out to summon police, Kachigian said.

The captain said she made hostages of the only children who happened to be present at the time.

Kachigian said Mrs. Spicer was assured that housing would be provided, but when that demand was met she began to ask for other things.

"Each time we satisfy one demand, she comes up with another," he said.

Priscilla Davis Sustains Flesh Injury To Hand

FORT WORTH (AP)-Priscilla Davis' Thanksgiving trip to San Antonio ended at a Fort Worth hospital after the blonde millionaires accidentally shot herself in the hand.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Davis, 39, suffered only a flesh wound. Police said the shooting was accidental.

Assistant District Attorney Jack Strickland and Strickland's girl friend, Barbara Burke, were in the back seat of Mrs. Davis' Lincoln Continental limousine with her at the time of the incident, which occurred between 9:30 and 10 a.m.

Strickland said Mrs. Davis was accompanying them to visit Strickland's parents in San Antonio for Thanksgiving.

While lying on a stretcher in John Peter Smith Hospital, where Mrs. Davis was first taken, she said:

"I was unloading my gun, and it went off accidentally."

Mrs. Davis, the ex-wife of millionaire trial figure Cullen Davis, was known to carry a .357 magnum in her purse since a 1976 shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion in Fort Worth. Her daughter and lover were killed, and she and one other person were wounded.

Davis, 46, from whom she was estranged at the time, was tried and acquitted of one of the killings. The related charges were dismissed two weeks ago after Davis was acquitted in Fort Worth on a murder solicitation charge.

Strickland was the chief prosecutor in the recent case.

Neither Strickland nor Ms. Burke was injured.

Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Cullen Davis' defense attorney, said by telephone from Houston, "When I heard about it, my first reaction was to be thankful that the injury was not any more severe - and to be thankful that Cullen was out of the state when it happened.

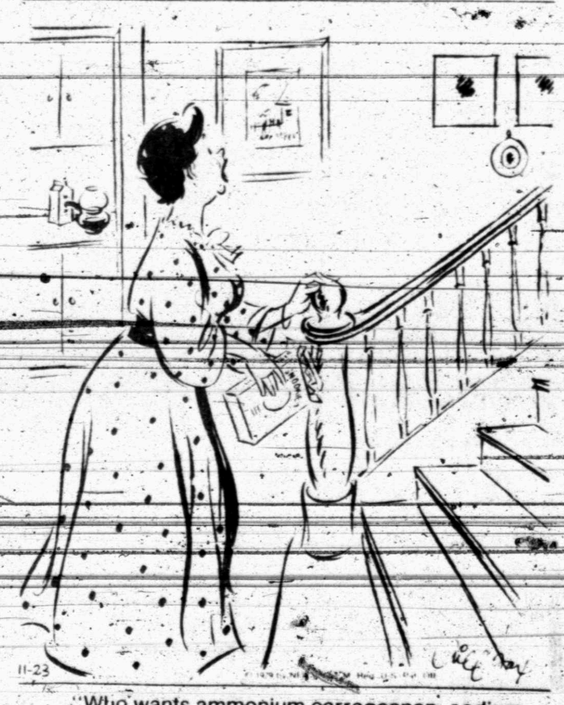

"And that it was a blessing that she was with someone from the district attorney's office, because that precluded anything in the way of theories that might be advanced."

Paraguay Extends Somoza's Visa

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)-Paraguay has renewed former Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza's residence visa for another 90 days, according to newspaper reports.

Somoza has lived in a rented mansion here since Aug. 19, the month after Sandinist guerrillas overthrew his regime in Nicaragua. He traveled to and from Miami last week to arrange the transfer of some business interest to Paraguay, where he intends to sell small airplanes, the newspapers said Wednesday.

Late Penalty May Have Been Key...

Houston Wins 'Texas Title'

IRVING (AP)-The famed Dallas Cowboys computer blew a fuse Thursday when it couldn't count to 11.

The monumental mistake, courtesy of Dallas' specialty teams, gave the Houston Oilers a second chance, and they cashed the boner for the game-winning touchdown and a wild, 30-24 National Football League victory.

It all happened like this: On fourth-and-four from the Dallas 37, Cliff Parsley punted. However, Dallas, thinking Houston was going to try a field goal, was confused.

The referees counted 12 Cowboys on the field and David Stalls was the odd man out.

The 5-yard penalty moved the ball to the Cowboys 32, and on the next down, quarterback Dan Pastorini rifled a touchdown pass to Ken Burrough.

While Pastorini was applying the coup de gras with 7:54 to play, Cowboys specialty team coach Mike Ditka was spiking his clipboard on the sidelines and shouting at Stalls.

Then he shouted at Coach Tom Landry in an exchange along the troubled Cowboy bench.

"It was a critical error," Landry said later. "You'll have to ask Mike, Ditka just what happened." However, Ditka was a no-show in the Cowboys dressing room after the game and couldn't be questioned about the matter.

"It would have been a tough go without that," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "It was the critical play of the game."

The victory put Houston a half-game ahead of Pittsburgh in the American Conference Central Division with a 10-3 record, while the Cowboys dropped a half-game behind Philadelphia and Washington, with an 8-5 ledger.

"They (the Cowboys) may be America's team, but we're Texas' team," said Phillips. "I wouldn't have it any other way. This was probably the most emotional game I've ever been involved in."

It was a game of Roger Staubach versus Earl Campbell.

Campbell dashed for touchdowns on runs of 61 and 27 yards and finished the day with 195 yards on 33 carries.

Staubach completed touchdown passes of 56 yards to Drew Pearson and 21 yards to Robert Newhouse and had statistics of 21 of 30 for 287 yards.

Dallas built a 21-17 halftime lead before young Mike Renfro, who was a Cowboy waterboy when his father served as an assistant coach in the 1960s, shagged a 47-yard touchdown pass from Pastorini.

Rafael Septien's 44-yard field goal set the stage for the fourth quarter faux pass by the Cowboys and the game-winning touchdown pass by Pastorini.

It was the first time Houston had beaten Dallas in the regular season in three tries, and gave them five victories in a row for the first time since 1962.

Campbell said, "To me, this game is like Oklahoma and Texas. But I'll never forget this stadium because it is where I made my debut as a rookie."

Defensive end Elvin Bethea said. "The biggest thing that happened was them having 12 men on the field. Our defense sputtered some the last three quarters, but we proved again, though I hate to keep saying it, we're a pressure team."

The loss meant the Cowboys must win their last three games to claim the NFC East title.

"If we play this good the rest of the way, we'll do all right," said Landry. "We played very well offensively, and we had a chance to win at the last."

Pastorini said of the Oiler effort, "I won't jump for joy because we beat Dallas. It's just another win on the way to the Super Bowl."

WTC Plows Panola 91-74

CORSICANA—Western Texas College chalked its seventh victory of the season here last night, zipping past last year's Region 14 conference champion Panola Junior College 91-74.

The Westerners, undefeated on the year, were to play San Jacinto Junior College at 4:30 today, and complete action in the Kiwanis Classic here Saturday at 8:30 p.m. against host Navarro Junior College.

"We played real, real good basketball the first half," said WTC Coach Nolan Richardson of last night's game. "I think that was the diffference in the ball game, the very tenacious first-half defense that we played. We had 39 steals for the game, and about 19 of those were in the first half."

Paul Pressey had another fine night for the Westerners, picking off nine steals, scoring 18 points, pulling down 10 rebounds and earning nine assists.

Richardson also had praise for Greg Stewart, who slammed in 27 points, and for Phil Spradling, 11 points.

Every player, save one, got into the game for Western Texas, which blew out to a 51-31 lead at halftime. The Westerners found their lead cut to 12 points with several minutes to play in the game, but more help from Pressey, Spradling, Stewart and others made short work of the attemped comeback by Panola.

Today's game with San Jac was expected to be a tough one, according to Richardson, who commented that the SJC team "probably has the best talent we'll face out here."

San Jac lost in double overtime to a familiar WTC foe last night, Odessa College. In another outcome, Navarro defeated Southwestern Oklahoma. Exact scores were unavailable.

WTC-David 2-2-6, Pattersoh 2-2-6, Stewart 11-5-27, Portee 2-0-4, Spradling 5-1-11, Vantress 3-0-6, Brown 3-0-6, Pressey 8-2-18, Warren 1-0-2, Denis 1-3-5. Totals 38-15-19-91.
Panola-Boykin 3-0-6, Carter 2-3-7, Core 7-5-19, Hill 6-0-12, Larkins 1-0-2, Parker 1-0-2, Wallace 4-6-16, Webb 4-1-9, McMahon 0-1-1. Totals 29-16-17-74.

Huskers Get Toughest Test Against Sooners

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma and Nebraska are clearly the Big Two in the Big Eight.

Since the World War II, those two college football superpowers have won or shared the conference championship 32 times.

And Saturday, one of them will make it 33.

"The game will be a great one, probably a classic," says Oklahoma halfback Dave Overstreet as the Sooners prepare to meet the Cornhuskers in Oklahoma once more for the Big Eight championship. "The teams are pretty evenly matched, and at the end the one that makes the fewest mistakes will be victorious. I am very confident that we will be that team."

The winner will get a trip to the Orange Bowl to meet No. 5 Florida State. The loser won't do too badly, either, gaining a spot in the Cotton Bowl against the Southwest Conference champion.

The Sooners, who have lost only to Texas in 10 games thus far and are ranked No. 8 nationally, have won 17 Big Eight titles outright and shared six others. Nebraska, 10-0 heading into this big showdown and ranked No. 3, has been undisputed conference champions six times and shared it on three other occasions.

"If the defense plays to its potential, I don't think we will have any problems," says Oklahoma tackle Keith Gary.

"But the offense will have to move the ball well to insure a victory for us. It all comes down to a defensive struggle in the end, though, because both teams have excellent offensive units and it will be up to the defense to contain their opponents."

Halfback Billy Sims, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, is the big gun for Oklahoma, while Jarvis Redwine is Nebraska's star in two of the nation's most awesome running attacks.

Bi-District Clash Pits Bulldogs, Tigers Here

By The SDN Sports Staff

The Slaton Tigers have gotten into a rut these past couple of years, sweeping through their 5AA district in fine fashion only to lose the final conference game and throw the loop into a two or three-way tie.

Never mind, the rut goes deeper than that. Both of the past two years the Tigers have won a coin toss to secure district representation rights.

Coach Ed Cook wouldn't mind deeping that rut just a little bit further either - this year anyway. You see, his Tigers also won bi-district in Snyder last year after sweeping through most of the district, after losing their final game 20-0 to Tahoka, and after winning the coin toss.

So who's to gripe about repetition?

Well, Stamford's Bulldogs will attempt to break Slaton's strange but successful way of doing things here tonight as the two teams meet at 7:30 in Tiger Stadium.

Tickets for bi-district battle are $4 for adults and $2 for students. Fans can pick up tickets at the northeast and northwest gates. Those who already have tickets may be able to pass more quickly through the west gate.

Slaton has been designated as the home team, and will occupy the west stands.

Prognosticators have given Stamford a one-point edge, but most will tell anyone who will listen that it's as even a matchup as can be found this Friday night. Both come into the game with similar records. Stamford, outright District 6AA championion, is 9-1 on the season, having lost only to highly-ranked Haskell of class A.

Slaton, 5AA, tied Littlefield and finished with that loss to Tahoka to complete a 8-1-1 regular season. Neither are state-ranked.

Stamford relies on speed and guts to bring down opponent after opponent. The blue and white Bulldogs applaud the running of 153-pound back Edward Gardner, a junior, and 144-pound senior Victor Davis.

It's clear from the start that size isn't Stamford's strong suit, but then again, the Bulldogs don't plan on running through people - around them will be fine.

Junior quarterback Mike Cox is a good one, and he doesn't mind putting the ball in the air. Look for favorite target Marty Gomez, flanker, to be under Cox's tosses a good deal of the time. Cox also does the punting. Bart Rosenquist handles extra points and field goals, while Rocky Lewis will kick off.

In addition to the talent, Stamford carries a proud tradition of winning. Like Slaton, the Bulldogs have been this route before. Coaching the 'Dogs is Jerry Taylor.

Lance Bownds gets a lot of the ink down Slaton way. Bownds has carried the ball 174 times for 901 yards. He'll be paired off with Jesse Titus most likely. Titus has 104 carries for 728 yards. Look for fullback Michael Whaley also. In fact, the Tigers have a stream of running backs they can interject into the game.

Running is Slaton's ace for 1979. In fact, the Tigers have completed 20 passes for 268 yards all season. An average of 26.8 a game.

But it is not beyond the capabilities of quarterback Kevin Johnston to put the ball up. In fact, one can almost expect him to hurl a few towards ends Darryl Heinrich, Troy Moses or Whaley (in the slot position), if only to keep Stamford guessing.

Winner of tonight's contest will take on a Kermit-Fabens victory. That game is being played at 8 tonight in Pecos.

Bucs Could Liberate Division Title Sunday

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)-The Detroit Lions' 20-0 Thanksgiving-Day upset of the Chicago Bears has set the stage for a festive Sunday in Tampa.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers can wrap up a playoff appearance and their first NFC Central Division title by defeating the Minnesota Vikings here Sunday.

The 9-3 Bucs are now 2½ games ahead of second-place Chicago, which dropped to 7-6 with the Detroit loss. The Bears' loss to a fellow Central Division team immediately reduced from three games to one the Bucs' "magic number" for clinching the title, because of the importance of intradivisional records in the National Football League's tiebreaking formula.

The first tie-breaker is head-to-head competition. The Bucs beat the Bears earlier, so all the Bears can do is tie the series 1-1 with a win Dec. 2 at Tampa.

The second tie breaker is records within the division.

Right now, the Bucs are 6-0 in the Central Division, with two division games left: against Minnesota and Chicago. So the worst they could finish in the division is 6-2.

The Bears are 3-3 in the division and the best they could do is 5-3. So the Bucs would win a tie between the two teams.

By beating Minnesota in Tampa Sunday the Bucs would clinch the title, because a victory would mean the worst they can finish is 10-6, which is the best Chicago can finish.

The Bears' divisional loss Thursday made their hopes only academic. They can only win the division if they finish with a better overall record than the Bucs.

Agreement Worked Out At Keystone

HEIGHTS, Pa. (AP)—Management and horsemen at Keystone Race Track reached a tentative agreement, averting a threatened shutdown.

Mike Mercer, a Keystone spokesman, said a tentative four-year pact was reached and that racing would be held as usual at the Bucks County track.

Scientists Study Athletic Efforts

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—Scientists remain puzzled by a record-breaking leap at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City -- and want to guard against similar mysteries at the upcoming Moscow Games.

Bob Beamon's long jump of more than 29 feet broke the old world mark by nearly two feet in a sport where gains are usually measured in fractions of inches.

The achievement startled spectators and Beamon himself, whose longest jump since was a little short of 27 feet. And no competitor has come close to duplicating his Olympic feat.

"It was just one of those rare moments in sports, but we'll never know exactly what he did right because there were no scientific films made at the Olympics," said Dr. Richard C. Nelson, director of the Biomechanics Laboratory at Pennsylvania State University.

Nelson, a professor, heads the team of scientists planning to photograph movements of athletes in the Moscow Olympic Games in 1980.

"We'll be looking at selected biomedical components for each of the sport movements, Nelson said.

"Every sport has a specific biomedical profile. What we're trying to do is find out what it is that sets apart top contenders in each sport."
