TEXAS SESQUICENTANNIAL WAGON TRAIN--When the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train pulled into Springlake for a two-day stay, it was noted that several states, other than Texas, are represented in the Wagon Train that started a 3200 mile journey on January 2. They will be in the Panhandle, including Amarillo, for the next several days. "Crowds much larger than we could have ever expected showed up here," said one member of the Wagon Train at Springlake, and several area wagons joined the Train for a part of the trip.

Muleshoe Offering Summer School

H. John Fuller, superintendent of Muleshoe I.S.D., announces that there will be a six weeks summer school for students in grades K-8 beginning July 7 and ending August 15. This summer program is designed to help students who did not meet State minimum requirements, or who need some more time on certain concepts or for students who would like enrichment or extension activities in math, language arts or science.

Math and language arts will be offered in grades K-5; math, language arts and science will be offered in grades 6-8, if enough students enroll for the courses.

Enrollment will be based on three priorities namely, (1) students who did not meet State minimum requirements (2) students who are recommended by their teachers to attend (3) students whose parents request they attend for enrichment or extension of concepts.

K-5 classes will be held in the Muleshoe High School because of the construction that is underway at Dillman and De-Shazo Schools. Grades 6-8 will be held in Watson Junior High. Classes will begin at 8:00 a.m. and continue until 12: NOON. There will be no tuition fee, but transportation will not be provided.

If a student attends the required six weeks and passes a mastery test, it is possible for him to make up one course (math, language arts or science).

Applications are available in the three principals' offices for parents to complete if they want their child to attend summer school. The deadline for returning the application to the principals is May 29.

"This is a great opportunity for students to catch up or extend their basic skills in math, language arts or science," concluded Fuller.

It was a fairly small, yet enthusiastic group of local business people who met at the Muleshoe City Hall Tuesday night to discuss the Muleshoe Area Industrial Foundation.

Following a discussion and video, the group concluded, unanimously, that the MAIF needs to be revitalized and re-organized.

Charles Moraw, president of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, acted as moderator for the meeting, and introduced Jeff Smith, who is currently president of the non-functioning MAIF organization.

Smith gave the background of the MAIF, explaining that it was formed in 1966, "to help new businesses locate in Muleshoe. Each member, numbering some 57, agreed to pay "X" dollars into MAIF on a yearly basis, which would allow them the right to vote on any issue before MAIF. Originally, the fee was $50 to be a member of MAIF, with this amount later being raised to $100.

Smith became active with MAIF in 1972, and became president of the organization when Bill Loyd resigned. At the time Smith took over the reins of MAIF, there were industrial teams functioning which included utility, housing, transportation and site location teams.

Smith cited figures, and said some $7,500 was spent "bailing out" a small sewing factory which was located in Muleshoe in 1972. The sewing factory later declared bankruptcy, and later recuperated some $1,200-$1,500 of the funds spent by MAIF. At this time, there are some funds in CD's which are owned by the MAIF.

He told the group of many prospects who have checked for possible site locations in or around Muleshoe, including the SPS Tolk Station. Originally planned to be located north of Muleshoe, the site locations fell through when land prices more than doubled in the targeted area.

He told of the many types of industry that have looked at the Muleshoe area as possible locations, only to be thwarted by problems that kept a particular business or industry from locating here.

One particular item of pride for Smith and the MAIF is Valley Grain Products, with a home base in California. Since locating here in 1977, Valley Grain has become Bailey County's largest taxpayer.

Smith did caution future MAIF members, if the organization is re-organized, to take a good look at people coming in, or proposing to come in to the area. "Most of them are looking for a lot of free things," he warned. "You will have to consider what Muleshoe has to offer, and realize that with a lot of the companies who are seeking free things are not in the communities where they located."

Smith also talked about the other two industrial boards in this county, and explained the functions of each.

He explained that three members comprise one industrial board-Corky Green, Bill Liles and Jeff Smith. This particular board was set up through Bailey County Commissioners Court, to deal with obtaining non-taxable bonds for construction of new businesses.

The Bailey-Parmer Industrial Foundation, consisting of Jeff Smith, Charles Moraw, Mike Carthel, Dale Gober and Bill Liles, operates in both Bailey and Parmer Counties, to obtain bonds for agricultural construction. "These boards were set up to be the means by which you get the status of tax-free bonds," added Smith.

All bond funding must be approved by the commissioners courts of the counties involved, although the counties are not legally obligated in the event of default of payment by the business who obtained approval for the bonds.

It was discussed by the group the possible use of the old airport for an industrial site once the new airport is constructed, as well as other possible sites for industry in or around Muleshoe.

It was also discussed using the reactivated MAIF to promote local businesses rebuilding or enlarging current businesses in and around the city. "Try to help business within our own community to expand," said

Celebrity Auction Drawing Much Local, Area Interest

There's something special about Muleshoe! Or, at least that is what the celebrities seem to think when they learn of the efforts of build a Heritage Center in Muleshoe, says Nelda Merriott. "Their response has been overwhelming and the many and varied items received from them has been very gratifying," she commented.

At the Muleshoe Heritage meeting last Monday night, further plans were made for the big celebrity auction ot be held very soon. Only a few days remain until May 24 when everyone will have a chance to bid for what may be one-in-a-livetime items from a favorite star or football team, like the Southwest Conference Champion Football autographed by all of the players and coaching staff at Texas A&M University; a monogrammed handkerchief from Roy Clark; an autographed golf glove from Ben Crenshaw; a blue and silver monogramed pen from George Bush, Vice President of the United States and a letter wishing Muleshoe "well."

Or, what about a gavel used in the House of Representatives, contributed by Pete Laney; or Linda Carter, who sent a personally autohgraphed 8x10 photo; and Don Ho, who sent three-8x10's. And, a picture, record and autobiographical sketch of her life was contributed by Jeannie C. Riley. Bette Davis has donated an autographed picture. And, for the younger fans, Big Bird sent an autographed picture, too !

Football teams responded in a big way, too! The Buffalo Bills sent an autographed pennant. The Pittsburg Steelers and Cleveland Browns sent posters. The Washington Redskins sent a large packet of decals, bumper stickers, programs, and other items. The L. A. Rams sent a 40th Annual Yearbook. The San Francisco 49'ers sent two practice T-shirts, which are never sold, and only worn by their

Bicycle Trio On Trek Across Nation

On April 1, 60-year-old Doris Mager, "Florida's Eagle Lady," began a 2,700 mile bicycle ride to help educate and bring attention to the plight of the American Bald Eagle. Accompanied by a live Bald Eagle, and other birds of prey, Mager is spear-heading BICEAGLE U.S.A. 1986, a raptor preservation campaign rolling from Ventura, Calif. to Jacksonville Beach, Florida.

Mager, along with two women bicyclists and a support van accompanying them, arrived in Muleshoe late Monday evening, with sunburn, bicycle trouble and van trouble, for an overnight stay.

On arrival in Muleshoe, Mager said this completed 1,254 of the proposed 2,700 miles they would be traveling.

Mrs. Mager's traveling companions include Charlotte Napolean, 28, a Chicago, Ill. native now living in Florida and 25 year old Teresa Mulliken, who lives near Washington, D. C.

They are also accompanied by a bald eagle, a crested caracara, a golden eagle and other birds of prey. Mrs. Mager is one of only a few licensed eagle handlers in the United States.

Along with their travels, Mrs. Mager is lecturing to schools, community centers, events with groups of people, native American reservations and other locations.

She reports that the Bald Eagle population has dropped from 75,000 to less than 7,000 since being declared the national symbol in 1782. "Our national symbol is on the endangered species lists of 43 states," said Mager in a recent interview. "We have a responsibility to ensure that eagles and other raptors remain a living part of America's heritage."

The 85-day BICEAGLE U.S.A. 1986 tour will bring a unique educational program, using live birds of prey, to over 100 schools, along with other speaking engagements. She said she hopes to raise $60,000 for S.O.A.R. INC. (Save Our American Raptors) a non-profit organization she founded in 1983. These funds will be used to expand S.O.A.R.'s educational programs and support development of an immature bald eagle banding program and other research.

Through education, she hopes to slow the loss of the eagle feeding and nesting areas due to development. "Bald eagles are a symbol of liberty that cannot be rebuilt. By bringing them to the American people today, we will help ensure their survival for tomorrow."

Mrs. Mager said, "It is

Texas Hospital Week Boosted By Hospital Here

West Plains Medical Center in Muleshoe has joined with hospitals across the state in celebrating Texas Hospital Week, May 11-17. This observance is centered around the theme, "Texas Hospitals Make Healthy Neighbors."

"We think that the 1986 Texas Hospital Week reflects the role of our hospitals in providing the community with health education activities which help improve the standard of living for the entire community," said a WPMC spokesman. "A part of the hospital's mission is promoting good health and well-being for all people."

During Texas Hospital Week, WPMC is encouraging people to adopt healthy behaviors and learn to use the hospital wisely to stay well.

At a future date, WPMC plans a major celebration, with a lot of activities in order to become better acquainted with the community.

Friday Last Day For Conservation Reserve Program

Texas farmers will have another opportunity to put their erodible cropland into the government's Conservation Reserve Program with bidding that ends tomorrow, May 16.

Because the number of acres accepted into the program during the first sign-up period in March was less than expected, farmers can submit or resubmit bids on land that was not accepted into Round One. At the same time, they can submit bids for 1987.

"The process is the same as during the first signup period," points out Dr. Bill Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System. "A farmer or landowner must determine the eligibility of his land through the local Soil Conservation Service office. Then he must file the necessary paperwork at the Agricultural Stabilization office, and submit a bid on the land. This bid should reflect an acceptable income from the land plus costs of establishing and maintaining a permanent cover for the 10-year contract period."

Extension Service economists have developed a special worksheet that farmers can use to help them determine a responsible bid price. These worksheets are available at any county Extension office, Harris says.

The specialist reminds landowners and farmers that the CRP is a longterm soil conserving effort. Individuals whose bids are accepted enter into a 10-year contract and must establish permanent cover (grass or trees) on the land to protect it from wind and water erosion. Cost of establishing this cover will be shared 50-50 with the government.

Annual rental payments on the land will be limited to $50,000 per farmer and will be in addition to annual commodity program payments.

The signup earlier this year fell far short of the acreage expected to be accelpted into the program, Harris point sout. Nationally, about 838,000 acres of highly erodible cropland were entered into the CRP, with only 29, 052 of those acres being in Texas.

AVOID HIGH- CALORIE TREATS -- After the "good behavior" of exercise, diet and hard work, people may reward themselves with rich, calorie-laden foods, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt. While this system may work for some people, it can lead to a continual cycle of dieting and spurging for others who have trouble controlling their weight. A healthy diet includes a variety of foods from the basic food groups, including meat, poultry and fish, dairy products, bread, cereals and pasta, and fruits and vegetables, Hunt says. To cut calories, she points out that you don't necessarily have to buy special prepared low-calorie foods. Instead, just make sure you are eating low-fat dairy products, lean red meats, and poultry with the skin removed. Avoid extra fats from gravies and sauces or fried foods. If you're one of those people who rewards yourself for dieting with high-calorie foods, the nutritionist also suggests finding some other way to give youself a treat.

Oldest, Youngest Mothers Honored For Mother's Day

Friday afternoon the Lazbuddie Church of Christ hosted a Mother's Day party for the mothers at the Muleshoe Nursing Home. They presented each mother with a corsage and gifts went to the "Oldest " and the "Youngest" mothers.

Dora Chaney, 97, was named the "Oldest Mother". She was born on March 4, 1889, at Lipan, Tx. Her parents were Charles and Frances Baker, who resided on a farm near Lipan where Dora was born, raised and married at the same farm home. She married William Quincy Chaney in 1904, at the age of 15. He died in January, 1951.

They were the parents of four children, two sons and two daughters. The sons, Odus and Edgar, are both deceased. Mae Chambers resides in Denton and Ruth Clements is a resident of Muleshoe. Mrs. Chaney also has 13 grandchildren; 32 great grandchildren; and 12 great great grandchildren.

Soon after they were married, she and her husband moved to Oklahoma and lived there until World War I began, at that time they moved back to Texas.

She and the children helped with the farm work, chopping cotton, picking cotton and gathering corn and maize.

They always had milk cows, chickens, turkeys, hogs, mules and horses on the farm. They butchered the hogs and made sausage, cured the hams and bacon, rendered lard, then took the cracklins and made lye soap to wash clothes. When the corn was harvested, they shelled corn to make meal and hominy.

In 1931, the Chaneys moved to Bailey County and lived near Baileyboro in a half-dugout and farmed. In the fall of 1934, they moved to Plainview and resided there for the next 49 years.

During the years Polio was so bad, Mrs. Chaney worked in the Polio Ward in Plainview Hospital and ended up working there for several years. She always had a beautiful yard with a little garden in the back yard and grapevines and fruit trees.

She drove her car until she was 89 years of age and with failing eyesight, was requested to take a driving test. She failed.

Three and a half years ago, she became disabled and was no longer able to stay by herself, so for two years, she stayed with her daughters, Ruth Clements and Mae Chambers. This was until Oct. 5, 1985, at which time she became a resident of the Muleshoe Nursing Home.

Clara Mae Weaver was named the "Youngest Mother" at the nursing home. She was born on March 24, 1919, and married Quinn Weaver in Arkansas on April 11, 1936. Clara and Quinn celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last month. Their children hosted the celebration at K-Bob's in Clovis, N.M.

They are the parents of four children and seven grandchildren. A daughter, Patsy Henson and her husband, Bill, live in Ft. Worth. They have two children, Jeff and Amy. A son, Jimmie Weaver of Lazbuddie is married to the former Johnnie Miller. They have two sons, Shannon and Bobby. Another daughter, Linda Harness, is married to Randy Harness also of Ft. Worth. They have a son, Chris.

Most of her life, Clara has lived on a farm. She raised a garden just about every year. Mrs. Weaver said "really they were more like a truck patch, they were so large". She enjoyed putting up food for her family. She sewed, washed and ironed, and cleaned house. Clara said that if she had a hobby it must have been washing and ironing. She made one trip a week to Muleshoe to get groceries and get her hair fixed. She and her friend Eula Dale of Lazbuddie usually came together.

Clara and Quinn moved from Arkansas to the Lazbuddie community in 1955. Clara was told that it never did snow in West Texas, but she found out that that was wrong, because their first winter here it came a good snow storm. The drifts were up to the clothes line.

She has been a resident of the Muleshoe Nursing Home for about 10 years.

Cub Scout Dens two and three made Mother's Day cards for each of the mothers at the nursing home.

He that laboreth, laboreth for himself. -Proverbs 16:26.

OLDEST AND YOUNGEST MOTHER---Mrs. Clara Mae Weaver (left) was the youngest mother honored at the Mother's Day party held in the Muleshoe Nursing Home. Mrs. Dora Chaney was the oldest mother. The party was hosted by the Lazbuddie Church of Christ.

Two United States flags were sent by Phil Gramm, U. S. Senator, who said one of the flags flew over the Capitol in honor of the Muleshoe Heritage Center. An autographed book from Heloise has been received, along with a copy of the "Dream Lover" script, autographed by Marilyn Beck, and an autographed picture of Carol Burnett.

Local residents have begun to respond and add to the growing list. Local supporters to date include Hazel Nowell, who has contributed crocheted lap robe and an original oil painting. Leon Watson of West Texas Printing donated a large box of Muleshoe stationery; and the third grade decorated a 'can bank' and filled it with money for the Heritage Center.

Of special interest to many will be the two books by Mary Martin, which she said she is donating in memory of her dear friend, the late Polly Birdsong. Mary is the mother of Larry Hagman, of J. R. Ewing fame on the TV drama, "Dallas." The books are personally inscribed by Ms. Martin. One is entitled "Mary Martin's Needlepoint," and the other is "My Heart Belongs."

Plans have been made to find a large public building which would be made available to everyone who would like to come watch the TV auction and to make bids.

J. O. Parker has joined the ranks of announcers for the upcoming events and Kathryn Sanders is chairman of the telephone committee.

The auction is scheduled for Saturday, May 31.

ON GALLSTONES

BOSTON -- Shock wave therapy, which has revolutionized the treatment of kidney stones, can also smash gallstones inside the body, potentially eliminating the need for some of the 500,000 gallbladder operations performed in this country each year, researchers report.

MUMPS DECLINE

ATLANTA -- The painful neck swelling that accompanies mumps, once a common sight among America's children, has become a rarity, with cases of the disease dropping 98 percent since a new vaccine was introduced 19 years ago, federal health officials said recently.

BICEAGLE '86 STOPS IN MULESHOE--Late Monday afternoon, "The EAGLE LADY," Doris Mager of Apoka, Fla. and her two fellow-bicycle riders, along with a support van, stopped with their paraphernalia at the Heritage House Inn to spend the night on their trek from California to Florida. Included with their gear are several birds of prey, including an American Bald Eagle. Pictured here with three of the birds are from left, Teresa Mulliken, Clinton Peat, motel manager; Charlotte Napolean, Sharon Paul and Doris Mager.

through the raptors that we know when something is going wrong in our environment. The raptors are environmental indicators. In the instance of DDT, we knew something was wrong when the eagle population began to decline. It went down so drastically that the eagle almost became extinct."

She gained international recognition in 1979 when she lived in an abandoned eagles' nest for seven days and six nights to draw attention to this endangered species' plight and to raise money for the Florida Audubon Society's birds of prey center.

Mrs. Mager's enthusiasm and sparkling and witty approach certainly belies her age, which she assures is 60 years by the calendar.

Each day, she climbs on her bicycle, defying weather conditions, cold, heat, and in one instance, being pounded by hailstones.

About 10 miles east of Albuquerque, Mrs. Mager and her two rider-companions were literally pounded by hail stones, forcing them to find what shelter they could in a canyon area. They were partially sheltered from the fierce storm by taking refuge behind a disabled 18-wheeler truck. "We even sold the truck driver a pin for a $1 donation," said Mrs. Mager, with a bright smile.

Another area that created a riding problem was the Painted Desert in Arizona, said Mrs. Mager, as they were sand-blasted on their journey across the desert.

After repairing the bicycle and van in Muleshoe Monday night, they retired somewhere around midnight and left on their eastward journey around 4 a.m.

They were seen just after 11 a.m. Tuesday about 10 miles east of Littlefield, riding toward Lubbock, which was their next stop.

In Muleshoe, their night's lodging had been donated by the Heritage House Inn, as well as dinner for the four women. Arrangements had been made through the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture manager, Toni Eagle, who had received a telephone call from Church Longo, director of the Clovis Hillcrest Zoo, who had met them at dinner in Clovis.

Longo had made arrangements for their lodging in Clovis before calling Mrs. Eagle at the Muleshoe CofC.

The four expressed their appreciation to the friendliness and welcome they received in both the Muleshoe area, and their previous stop, Clovis.

He suggested that if people are really interested in reactivating the current MAIF that they need to be prepared to work, and work hard.

"MAIF teams are something that you work hard on - and receive less thanks for than anything you will ever do," added Smith.

To conclude the meeting, it was decided to reactivate the existing MAIF. Smith will be checking into the legalities of turning the formerly defunct operation over to a new board, along with all the records from the MAIF that has not function actively since 1978.

Special recognition was given several adults for their participation and assistance with the athletic programs of the school.

Several gifts were presented members of the coaching staff and to cheerleader sponsors.

In opening remarks, Coach C.W. Williams expressed his appreciation to the administration, school board, and 'especially the parents' as well as the community for the continuing support for the athletes and athletic programs at the school.

He briefly discussed both the football and basketball programs for the just completed year, and said the very successful football year, where the Three Way Eagles won bi-district was a 'real surprise.' Football only had two returning starters and the Eagles were not predicted to do so well for the 1986 season.

American designers are accenting femininity in their creations for fall and winter.

Buyers saw a return to body-conscious fashions.

Cashmere and cardigan sweaters are big on the fall scene. The turtleneck sweater continues to be a strong style as is the short, fitted jacket.

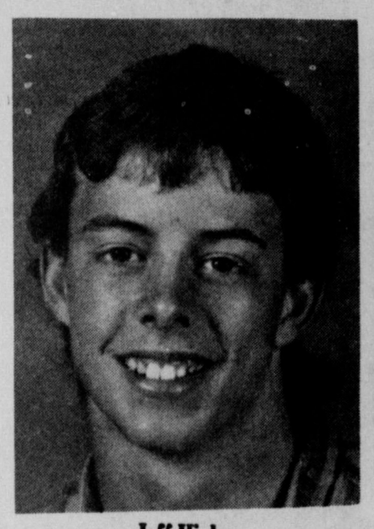

SCAC Members Speak To De Shazo Students

The Student Community Action Club members were invited to speak in each social studies class at Mary DeShazo School to help celebrate Texas Patriotism Week in the schools. The SCAC members were asked to speak on Muleshoe and Bailey County heritage and to explain to the students the role that the Student Community Action Club has played in helping to preserve some of this heritage.

Actually SCAC is an outgrowth of a group of students at Muleshoe High School who wanted to "save the depot" over three years ago. This group of senior students enlisted one of the teachers, Mrs. Jean Allison, to help them and they began working with other interested citizens to save the Muleshoe depot. When this group graduated, they enlisted other junior and senior students at MHS to "carry on the fight."

This group of students organized SCAC and also were a part of organizing the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation. They have, throughout this time, been contributors not only in money but in time to preserve Bailey County historical buildings.

Senior class members of SCAC enjoyed the task on Thursday, April 24, of explaining the colorful past of this area to the Mary DeShazo students and how they, as members of SCAC are helping preserve some of this exciting past. Those participating and the classes they spoke in were: Adena Lindt and Diana Martinez in Mrs. Stewart's fourth grade class; Loy Triana and Stacy Smith in Mrs. Gray's and Mrs. Foster's fourth grade class; Leslie Langfitt and Ronnie Logsdon in Mrs. Angeley's and Mrs. Smitker's fourth and fifth grade classes; Brett King and Micheal Precure in Mrs. Burnetts' third and Mrs. Costen's fourth grade classes; Susan Lunsford and Karen Wooten in Mrs. Skipworth's fifth grade class; Jarrod Embry and Wade King in Mrs. Lile's third grade and Mrs. Patterson's fourth grade class; Kristy Landers' and Sherri Stovall in Mrs. Gibson's third grade and Mrs. Neal's fifth grade classes; Juanita Garcia and Caice Hendrix in Mrs. Foster's third grade and Mrs. Fuller's fifth grade classes; Mike Holt and Sergio Leal in Mrs. Allison's and Mrs. Bruns' third grade classes and Noemi Acosta and Zanna Huckaby and Deborah Nieman in Mrs. Smith's fifth grade class.

SCAC Busy With Many Activities

With the old Janes Ranch House as a background, the Student Community Action Club honored Mrs. Nelda Merriott as Citizen-of-the-Month for April. Club members had gone to the Muleshoe Heritage Center to inspect the old ranch house which was recently moved to the Muleshoe Heritage Center behind the Ben Franklin store. Mrs. Merriott had been asked to come to the center and was informed that she had been chosen as citizen of the month for her many civic activities. Mrs. Merriott will take almost any responsibility in her quest to make Muleshoe a better place to live. Throughout her life in Muleshoe she has worked actively in many different areas. She works today in the Jenny-slippers and had been instrumental in getting "Meals-on-wheels" for the elderly, worked very hard to get improvements for the Girl Scout Hut and various other community organizations.

Following the tour of the Janes House, the group went to Kirsty Landers' house and preceeded with their meeting. Mike Holt gave the prayer and Loy Triana read the minutes. New members for next year were chosen. These members will be notified at a later date. The group "munched" refreshments during the discussion about the celebrity auction to be held May 24.

HOLE-IN-ONE [TWICE]--Dorothy St. Clair recently accomplished a feat which should be some sort of record according to Gearold Phipps, golf pro. After 35 years of golfing, without a hole-in-one, she holed out her tee shot on the 130-yard Number Nine Wednesday afternoon. Just to prove that it was no fluke she duplicated the shot the very next day--using the same five-iron.

There is a continuity in American agriculture. A continuity of people and land. . .and purpose. One generation working hand-in-hand with the next generation, passing along love for the land and a respect for living things. For more than 67 years, through several generations, the Federal Land Bank has provided long-term financing to help make that continuity possible.

Johnsongrass Control In Cotton Aids Growth

Warm April weather which brought early emergence of rhizome johnson-grass gives area cotton producers an opportunity to apply control measures for this weed before planting, says a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Preplant herbicide treatments could greatly reduce grass competition with seedling cotton plants and help provide permanent control of this weed," said Dr. James R. Supak, Extension cotton agronomist.

In all fields heavily infested with johnsongrass, he recommended thorough incorporation of Treflan or Prowl into the soil before planting cotton. "Good control of the weed seedlings is an effective rhizome johnsongrass control program," Supak said.

Several herbicides are now available for use in controlling rhizome johnsongrass, the Extension agronomist noted. Fusilade and Poast are materials that can be applied to actively growing johnsongrass during its vegetative growth states (10-12 inches tall) and provide good rhizome control," he said.

Roundup is also an effective johnsongrass herbicide that can be sprayed on the grass or applied through a ropewick applicator. Treatments prior to the boot stage, however, tend to provide good "top-kill" but little permanent rhizome control, Supak cautioned. "Roundup applications made between the boot stage and flowering to actively growing johnsongrass are the most effective in providing permanent control of the grass," he added.

Two arsenical compounds, MSMA and DSMA, are effective in providing "top-kill" and suppression of early emerging johnsongrass. MSMA tends to be more effective on the High Plains in the spring of the year because it is less sensitive to cooler temperature conditions.

"Research studies conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and demonstrations conducted by county Extension agents have shown that elimination of grass competition even during the seedling stages of growth results in improved cotton yields," Supak said. Consequently, the use of herbicides such as Fusilade and Poast which are capable of providing permanent rhizome johnsongrass control will be the most effective in treating emerged johnsongrass prior to planting, he said.

Preplant applications of Roundup and MSMA are not likely to provide much permanent control of rhizome johnsongrass but will help reduce soil moisture losses and early season competition with the crop.

"Treatments with these herbicides usually inhibit regrowth for longer periods than tillage methods such as cultivation, without the moisture loss and disruption of seed beds incurred with tillage," he said.

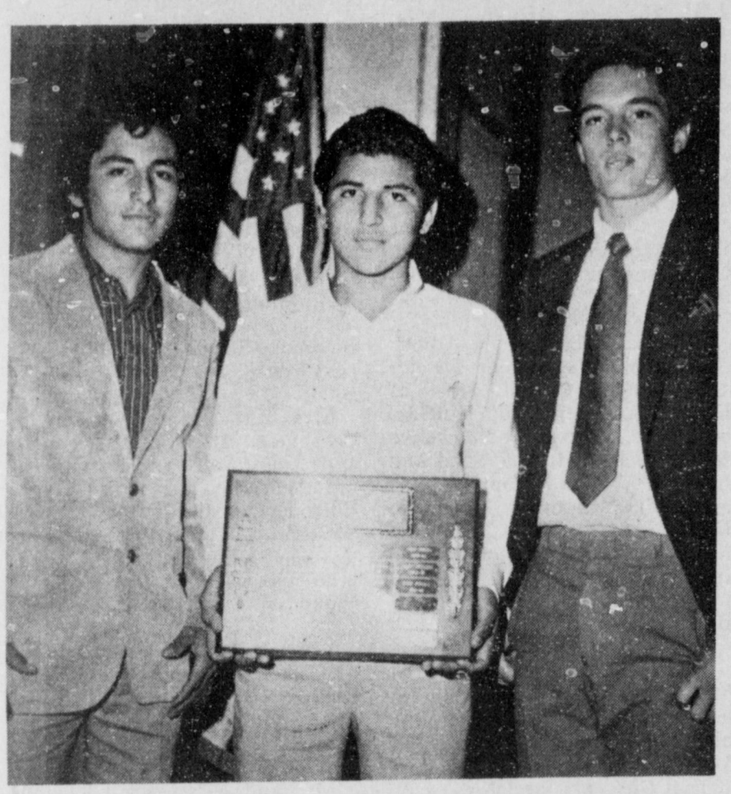

To be effective, Fusilade and Poast must be applied at the rates recommended for rhizome johnsongrass control, Supak cautioned. The herbicides can be applied as broadcast spray applications in heavily infested fields or as spot spray applications in fields with scattered infestations.

Surfactants or crop oil concentrates are essential for efficacy with these herbicides. Also, experience has shown that these chemicals are most effective if applied during periods when relative humidities are high and temperatures are mild. In contrast, control tends to be poor when the materials are applied under hot, low humidity conditions when the grass is under some moisture stress, the Extension agronomist advised.

Tillage seven to ten days following the applications of Fusilade or Poast greatly enhances permanent rhizome johnsongrass control. Mechanical tillage operations are recommended when evidence of herbicide activity, such as blackened tissue around nodes, is visible in the rhizomes. Rodweeding, knifing or other operations typically performed prior to or at planting should provide sufficient disruption of treated johnsongrass plants to aid control.

"In all likelihood, a sequential treatment of these herbicides will be required to control johnsongrass escapes after cotton emerges," according to Supak. Both Fusilade and Poast can be applied over-the-top on emerged cotton. Treatments should be delayed until the grass is 10-12 inches tall to insure essential complete emergence of all overwintering rhizomes.

"Applications should be made when the grass is actively growing during periods of warm, humid weather conditions," the Extension agronomist stressed.
