Bank Banks To Stay Open Longer

Bank Agrees To Stay Open Later Days-Fridays

First National Bank has agreed to stay open on Thursdays and Fridays of each week during the construction of Sheppard Field to allow the workers to cash their checks. An agreement was reached between the bank and the county health unit. The business men agreed to stand the overtime of two tellers and the bank stand the other expenses of the skilled workmen. The amount to a large sum would inconvenience the business places to carry that cash on hand, hence the banking hours. Several road signs which will be posted near the field notifying the workers added courtesy extended.

Garland Tests Rotarians With Brain Teasers

PROGRAM CHAIRMAN HAS INTERESTING QUIZ CONTEST

Assisted by Paul Browning, newly elected program chairman, Truman Garland, had one of the most interesting and instructive programs at a Rotary meeting that it has been the privilege of Rotarians to hear.

He presented a quiz game on "How Well Do You Know Your America." The quiz sheet contained important facts and information about our country—its history, progress and the way of life. Answering the questions proved quite a task for the Rotarians and convinced them that they had better read up on the history and progress of their country.

Below we print several of the questions. Test your skill and see how many you can answer. After you have checked them off turn to the back page and check with the correct answers.

1. What is the Bill of Rights?
 - a. Part of the Declaration of Independence?
 - b. World War bill of indebtedness?
 - c. First 10 Amendments to the Constitution?
2. What is the source of the following phrase—"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal?"
 - a. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address?
 - b. Declaration of Independence?
 - c. Law of Diminishing Returns?
3. Whom do historians credit with designing the first flag of the United States?
 - a. Betsy Ross?
 - b. Paul Revere?
 - c. Francis Hopkinson?

Killer Of Mother Is Declared Insane

COURT TO MAKE FINAL DECISION

Clarence Rauch, 30, former Wichita Falls cafe cook, now under indictment on a charge of murdering his mother last Saturday morning, was declared Wednesday afternoon to be of unsound mind after a two-and-a-half hour examination by Dr. B. W. Dorbandt, superintendent, and Dr. A. T. Hanratta, assistant superintendent of Wichita Falls State Hospital, and Dr. T. C. Lynch, Wichita County Health Officer.

Verdict of the three doctors was unanimous that Rauch is now insane, and has been so for some time.

District Attorney Z. D. Allen indicated that steps will be taken at once to have a hearing for Rauch on a lunacy charge before a jury in County Judge Guy McNeely's court. The murder charge will be dismissed, Allen indicated, if Rauch is adjudged insane. The defendant probably would be committed to the state hospital here, it was indicated.

The three examiners expressed the opinion also that Rauch never will recover mental balance.

Commissioners Think Two Extra Deputies Can Take Care Of 10,000 Population Increase

When it was proposed that authority be given to fill the deputy sheriff vacancy at Burk Burnett at the county commissioners court in Wichita Falls Monday, Commissioner W. T. Holman of precinct 2 stated that, "the people of Burk Burnett don't want a deputy appointed there, because they don't need one." Transfer of Deputy Earl McGregor of Electra to Wichita Falls at any time the sheriff needs him was suggested by Commissioner Henry Haynes and was approved by Holman.

Action was deferred on the employment of a fleet of 8 motorcycle officers to handle traffic problems until a later date.

Commissioner Holman, Haynes, and Judge McNeely voted against a proposal for a county-wide public health unit which would cost $30,580 annually, with the state contributing $3,400 each year.

Sheriff Pat Allen was allotted two extra deputies for a period of four months. The state highway department was asked to place a 40 mile speed limit on the highway between Wichita Falls and Sheppard Field, and to ban parking on the road or anywhere between the parallel fences bordering the road. Additional state patrolmen were asked for to enforce these laws. The parking of sight-seers on the road has already presented a serious traffic problem.

It was suggested by Commissioner Cooper that highway signs be erected on the highway directing area traffic away from Sheppard Field.

WHO SAID PRESIDENTS DON'T WORK!

The above picture shows President Jack Brumley of the Golf Association, mowing the rough on the local course. However, he never completed the job. He gave out before the horses. "The Little Giant," as he calls Mrs. Brumley, stated she was going to serve his meals and take a bed out to the course as Jack is never at home.

Several members of the Merchant's Committee of the chamber of commerce contacted local business men in regards to paying time and a half to two tellers of the bank to keep the bank open until 8 o'clock each Thursday and Friday during the construction of the Sheppard Field air school. Needless to say the committee met with success and the banks will stay open as stated above thus allowing workers of Sheppard Field who reside here to get their checks cashed after regular banking hours. This shows the progressive spirit of the bank and the merchants. Anything that Burk Burnett undertakes to do you can bet that it will be done. They were the first to raise their U.S.O. quota and now they come forward as the first town in this district to take care of the men of Sheppard Field in regards to having their checks cashed.

SELF-EXPLANATORY

Whatever you could say about the above picture could not do it justice — that is if you know Frank Clement.

Burkburnett golfers will journey to Nocona Sunday for a game with the golfers of that city. This is a part of the schedule of the Oil Belt Golf League and every golfer is urged to attend. President Brumley stated that to be eligible for the Master tourney to be played here Labor Day, you must participate in at least three out-of-town games. However, he asked that Soda Beldon and others not leave for Nocona until Sunday morning. Several of the golfers left last year for Nocona the night before the game and were not at their best for the tournament.

Grand Jury To Have Two Felony Cases

District Attorney Z. D. Allen Tuesday laid out for himself and his two assistants, Elmer Parrish and Arthur Tipps, a heavy docket for the week of July 7 when two capital cases were set down for trial while a new Wichita county grand jury also is in session.

Defendants in the two felony cases are A. E. Guyton, charged with robbery with firearms in connection with the Jan. 30 hold-up of the Zazarc Liquor Store in Wichita Falls, when $151 in cash was taken; and Thailous Williams, negro, charged with criminal assault. Both entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned Tuesday. Special venires of 150 and 75 men, respectively, were drawn.

Holman Opposes Unit

ONLY $13,000 REQUIRED TO RECEIVE $30,000 ANNUALLY

A number of Burk Burnett citizens will meet with a number of citizens from Electra, Iowa Park and Wichita Falls next Monday in Wichita Falls and go before the commissioners court to seek reconsideration of the adverse action taken at the last meeting of the court on an appropriation to aid in establishing a full-time health unit in Wichita county.

W. T. Holman, local commissioner, and Miles Haynes of Electra voted against the proposition and Judge McNeely voted with them to untie the deadlock. Iowa Park and Wichita Falls voted "Yes."

It is expected that a representative of the state department of health and a number of Wichita county citizens who are acquainted with details of the proposal will be on hand to answer any questions regarding the county health unit, in the belief that the commissioners court had not been thoroughly informed on the matter in turning down a requested appropriation of $13,000.

Forty-four of the most populous counties in Texas, including Tarrant county, nearest county where the plan has been operated for a sufficient length of time to measure its success, have adopted the set up.

Palo Pinto county Wednesday put its county health unit into operation for the first day. Its establishment had been urged by residents of Mineral Wells, location of Camp Wolters, and other Texas cities having military encampments are taking steps to institute the health program if units are not already operated in their counties.

Adverse action by the Wichita county commissioners marked the first reversal in four years in getting the county ready for a full-

Kincaid, who has been in the Decatur school system for 8 years, serving 3 years as principal, graduated from the Decatur high school in 1930, and the Decatur Baptist college in 1932. He received his B. A. degree at Harding college, Searcy, Arkansas, and did post graduate work and got his M. A. degree at the University of Texas in 1940.

He will be accompanied to Burk Burnett by his wife who graduated from the Decatur high school and Decatur Baptist college. She received her B. S. degree at NTSTC.

Regulations Are Announced For Wheat Marketing

Wheat producers who have white marketing cards may sell their 1941 wheat entirely without restraint, but wheat buyers who purchase excess wheat (grown on acreage in excess of AAA allotment) will be required to assume the penalty on such wheat, according to L. A. Gilliland, AAA administrator for Wichita county.

Forms may be obtained from the AAA office in the Federal Building for use of buyers in purchasing "penalty wheat," in order that the penalty may be exacted from the producer. Otherwise, the buyer of wheat grown this year on excess acreage is responsible to the AAA for the penalty, which amounts to about 40 cents a bushel.

Gas-Less Sundays

It looks as though gas-less Sundays are coming.

To the people in our town who like to go motoring on Sunday or who use Sunday as a day to drive out to see relatives and friends, it would be a definite sacrifice at first to leave the car in the garage all day.

But many of us would welcome the opportunity to make such a sacrifice, if it was evident that by so doing we were strengthening our nation's defense.

As far as the people of this town go, gas-less Sundays would be taken in stride and there wouldn't be any complaining. But the small group in our town who happen to be in the gasoline business, running local stations, would suffer real hardship if their most prosperous business day was taken away from them.

The purpose of gas-less Sundays would be to reduce our consumption of gasoline and oil and that means taking dollars out of the pockets of the gasoline dealers. They, too, will be willing to make this sacrifice if the government finds that it is vital to do so, but we hope, if there are any other practical solutions to the oil problem, such as pipelines to the eastern coast, they will be adopted.

Any action which penalizes one group without affecting others is always distasteful to Americans. We know that one group after another, during the present emergency, will be called up to sacrifice, but we hope that none will be asked to do so unnecessarily.

Still Analyzing The U. S. of 1940

The U. S. Bureau of Census is still compiling those facts which everyone here in town, as well as in every home throughout the nation, gave to the census-taker months, and months ago.

For some time we have known what they found the population of our town to be. We have also seen a lot of other information on incomes, population by age groups, foreign population and so on. But that's really just the beginning.

The Census Bureau first releases preliminary figures on one subject, then another and gradually issues complete studies on all phases of the make-up of our country, not only of population but of business as well.

It must be rather a thankless job, handling the census. For after completing the tremendous task of tabulating all sorts of figures on the whole country, when it is all done our first reaction is apt to be, "That's old stuff. Things have changed since then."

That is particularly true in relation to the 1940 census. Because of defense there have been great shifts in population and great changes in the unemployment situation.

The men in the Census Bureau realize that, but they pay no attention. Their sole job is to give an accurate detailed picture of the United States of 1940, and the many changes which have taken place since then must be entirely ignored.

Farmer Failures

One of the leading bankers of the Northwest attributes many farm failures in his section to lack of experience, lack of working capital, or both on the part of those who have failed.

A check-up of those who had been unsuccessful as farmers in one agricultural community illustrates his contention. Among them were the following:

Two circus musicians, a paper hanger, a sailor, a seagoing engineer, a cigarmaker, two professional wrestlers, two barbers, a race horse man, a bricklayer, an undertaker, a deep sea diver, a professional gambler, a miliner, and six old maids.

All of these failed as farmers, as might have been foretold, and their unfavorable experiences illustrate the futility of much of this "back to the farm" propaganda that has been going about.

Even under the stress of unfavorable conditions such as are now being experienced, farmers may be found who have made material progress. But they are not the fly by night kind who turn to farming after failing in other pursuits.

Inexperienced Pedestrians

Studies in five states by national safety organizations show that nine out of ten pedestrians killed in traffic accidents have never been licensed to drive a car. The suggestion is that despite the wide distribution of the automobile, a great many people still do not appreciate its limitations.

Even the average automobile driver, it is often revealed, does not realize that a car traveling at considerable speed can not be swerved aside any great distance. Many automobile drivers turn over trying it when suddenly confronted by a pedestrian or other object in their path.

Thus it appears a great deal yet to be done in the field of public education for traffic safety, and not all of it confined to drivers and driving. Very old people are usually not drivers, as are very young people. In these age brackets fall the larger number of pedestrian deaths.

The pedestrian needs to learn the limitations of automobiles and drivers. Drivers need to learn the limitations of pedestrians. Eventually we may arrive at a solution of the traffic safety problem through mutual education.

Why can't the United States live at peace with Hitler? The Danes, Norwegians, Belgians, and Greeks know.

Burkburnett History

As revealed by the files of The Star, 10 Years Ago.

The local lodge of Elks held their annual Flag Day exercises at their lodge rooms Monday night. A large crowd attended the services and enjoyed a splendid program.

Ten Burkburnett firemen, loaded in two cars, made a run to a wheat field on Buster Morgan's farm north of Clara last Monday afternoon. They took a number of sacks with them to fight the fire, but it had been extinguished when they arrived.

Last Friday night when Mrs. J. H. Thomas was returning from Wichita Falls where she had gone with her Sunday school class on an outing, the left rear tire blew out and the car turned over on its side before it could be stopped. No one was hurt, however.

Mrs. H. D. Smith and daughter, Miss Valeta, and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. West left Tuesday for a visit with relatives in Oklahoma and Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brumley and daughter, Miss Gwinn; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Peevey and son, Evans, and his friend, Sid Clarkson; Miss Lila Majors and Mrs. C. H. Clisbee of Wichita Falls, composed a fishing party for last week-end at Lake Kemp. They report fair luck, but, as usual, the "big un" got away.

Jasper Holland, age 12, fell out of a tree Sunday a week ago and broke his arm.

A letter from Ben L. McDonald at Lott, Texas, states that he and Mrs. McDonald are feeling fine and that he has accumulated a nice coat of tan from being outside.

On account of the rain last Friday it was impossible to hold the tournament at the White-A-While golf course as advertised, but weather permitting, it will be held tonight. Nobody is barred. A prize will be given the winner.

Honoring Miss Jeanne Draper, who will leave soon for her new home in Breckenridge, Mrs. Sam

MAKING THE MOST OF AN IDEA

In November, 1914, a woman in Washington, D. C., placed her five-weeks-old baby in a market basket and started for Battle Harbor, Labrador. She arrived at Battle Harbor by the last boat of the season and was snow and ice-bound for the winter. Her trip that day may have an effect on the food you are served.

Her name was Mrs. Clarence Birdseye. Her husband was a fur-buyer. He went up and down Labrador on snowshoes, and by dog-sled, buying furs from the natives. But now a new problem had entered into his life. His wife was with him, and there was the baby. His wife wished to keep in the best condition on account of the child, so food was an important matter. He took the choice cuts of caribou, fish and ptarmigan and carried them home to her. But how could they keep these from spoiling? They hit on this idea: they would place water in a tub and set it outdoors where it would quickly freeze. They would place the meats and fish on this layer of ice and then pour water on top of this, in no time at all it would freeze. Thus they built up this icy layer-cake. The food was excellent.

One day as they were eating, Mrs. Birdseye said, "Clarence, isn't there some way by which this could be put in use in the United States?"

These words touched off his imagination. He found that scientists had known for a long time that foods frozen quickly keep their flavor better than slowly-frozen foods, but no one had ever thought of putting this scientific principle to work. But Clarence Birdseye did.

He and Mrs. Birdseye began to make experiments. Another important discovery was that meats frozen during the coldest weather have a better flavor than meats that were frozen during mild (Labrador) weather.

He was now fired with the idea. When they returned to the United States he continued his experiments. His wife's kitchen was his laboratory. He had to study refrigeration, engineering, chemistry, or physics. But he had an idea and enthusiasm. Side by side he and his wife worked. After a time the kitchen was too small; then he opened a little laboratory in Gloucester, Mass., where there was plenty of fish.

He worked out a method of quick-freezing. He improved on it. Called in experts to help him.

In 1929 he and his stockholders sold their interest for $33,000,000. The business is now owned by General Foods Corporation, and the quick frozen products it packs are called Birdseye Frosted Foods in honor of himself and Mrs. Birdseye.

The secret of Mr. and Mrs. Birdseye's amazing success is that they stumbled onto an idea—and then did something about it! Other people knew that foods could be frozen and kept indefinitely but Mr. and Mrs. Birdseye are the only ones who turned it into a twenty-two million dollar idea.

Mrs. Goodwin Back From Gossard School

Mrs. Horace Goodwin of the Manhattan has just returned from an intensive course at the Gossard School of Corsetry in Dallas. She has received the Gossard diploma of a graduate Corsettiere.

This diploma is awarded only after passing a rigid examination in all branches of fitting, stock-keeping and selling.

Mrs. Goodwin in telling of her experience, spoke particularly of the recent developments in various types of garments which now are known under the general name, corsets. The old idea of subjecting the figure to unnatural pressure has been abandoned and instead, the garments made today are designed to mold and support the figure in a manner that is both comfortable to the wearer and pleasing in appearance. Regardless of whether the garment is a corset, clasp-around, combination, or step-in, it is intended to conform to the current fashions and there is a proper selection for all types of figures from those that require the simplest of girdles to the woman whose health demands a substantial support.

Mrs. Goodwin is now well qualified to advise those who are interested in securing the most pleasing effects as to style, as well as those who require fittings which are hygienically correct.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

First Jerusalem Conference on World Missions.

Lesson for June 22: Acts 15:6-21 Golden Text: Acts 15: 11.

The church, ancient and modern, in all its branches, has had many great councils. The lesson tells of a momentous conference—the first Jerusalem Conference on World Missions.

The immediate cause of this conference was the growing controversy and possible division in the infant church over the matter of what should be required of gentile converts. One party was insisting that the ceremonial law of the Jews should be required of the converts; others were opposing this extreme view.

Peter referred to his experience with Cornelius, Paul and Barnabas told of the results which had attended their ministry unto the gentiles, James cited prophecy, and the decision of the conference that the ceremonial customs of the Jews should not be required of the gentiles was indeed a wise one.

If the so-called "Judaizers" had prevailed the church would have become a Jewish institution—with little zeal to go unto the gentiles and with little appeal unto them. Fortunate then it was that the more liberal in the conference were able to adopt a policy that greatly strengthened the appeal of the church unto all men whatsoever.

In matters of custom which do not involve principle we should be ready to concede much unto others for the sake of Christianity, both within a denomination and between denominations. While retaining for ourselves the customs we prefer, we need to present a united front unto the forces of evil. And certainly a spirit of tolerance toward the opinions of others is always in place.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
PICTURING PETS

ALMOST everyone has a pet, and nearly every pet makes an excellent camera subject—if properly handled. Picturing pets does offer a few problems—for most amateur photographers find it difficult to get the pet to pose, or to get sharp focus of a subject that's always on the move.

To pursue our pet with the camera would be a great mistake. The dog or cat naturally becomes excited and runs away, making it impossible to get any pictures. There are several simple remedies—either gently restrict the pet's freedom of movement, pick your spot and tempt him there with a bait of some sort, or select a moment when he is quiet, then avoid any action that may disturb or excite him.

Restriction of movement doesn't mean tying the pet to the nearest tree. And it's true that excellent pictures can be taken when someone is holding a cat, in his or her lap, or shaking hands with a dog—these things providing enough restraint to make the subject "stay put." But there are other methods. For example, wait until your dog is in his kennel; post yourself outside with the camera ready for action. Then whistle or make some other sound that will bring him to the door. When he glances inquisitively from the doorway—snap the shutter.

Today's illustration was made in such this same manner. Skipper—being the usual dog's life—was resting comfortably on the front seat of the car. The camera was carefully focused on the dog, and at the call of "Here Skipper," he jumped up to the window sill, and this appealing picture was snapped.

When you use bait—a saucer of milk for the cat or a bone for the dog—the same pre-focusing technique can be used. Or an assistant can be of help, tempting the pet to the desired spot with some choice tidbit. When the dog or cat gets in a good position, the assistant quickly steps aside while the photographer makes the picture.

If your pet has learned some tricks, why not make a series of snaps depicting each of these stunts. Perhaps he has been taught to sit up, roll over, or "speak" before receiving a morsel of candy. Snapshots of these tricks, mounted in your album across the page, will add interest and variety to your collection.

By setting the camera in advance—then calling the dog—this interesting snapshot was made. Pet pictures are easily taken, and they add their full share of interest and variety to your album.

You can take pet pictures with any camera. If you follow the hints mentioned, the subject will assume a natural pose and there will be no movement to stop. Of course, if your dog displays considerable liveliness when rolling over, you will have to use a shutter speed of 1/100 second or faster.

Don't overlook the canary, the parrot, love birds, rabbits, and many other pets found in homes. They all make interesting and appealing pictures and will be excellent additions to your album.

I Give You Texas

"Names make news":

When praised for his generosity in accepting an invitation to speak, District Judge Bascom Gist of Tyler replied: "There are two classes of people—those that make speeches and those that listen to them. I would rather make a speech than have to listen to one."

One of the most faithful readers of this column each week is former District Judge Ralph Yarbrough of Austin. Recently he told me, "Your column two weeks ago was the best you've ever written." To which your columnist replied, "Thanks, very much; by the way, all the things in that particular column were clipped from other papers and credited to them; I didn't write a line of it." And then you should have seen the judge turn a delicate shade of pink and try to explain away his remark.

A young man (according to a story I heard) stepped out of a taxicab in front of a hotel in Lubbock and remarked to the driver, "I'll have to get a check cashed; I'll be right back; my name is Marvin Brown and I'm the district attorney from Fort Worth." The taxi-driver drawled, "Yeah, and my name is Thomas E. Dewey and I'm the district attorney from New York and I'll just go along with you." The "fare" grinned and they went in together and the hotel cashier cashed the check because the chap really was District Attorney Marvin Brown!

Few years back, your columnist wrote a book, "Were You in Ranger?" and because Amon Carter had made it possible for me to eat regularly during the depression by providing me with a job on the news staff, the first copy off the press was presented to him. Recently when my newest "Oil Boom" came out, the publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram received a book with this inscription, "The No. 1 Copy off the press is presented to the No. 1 Texan."

An Oklahoma editor published two pictures, one of a dilapidated house and the other of an eroded field, and invited his readers to take part in a "You Write The Story" contest. Here is the prize-winning letter, written by an Indian:

Both pictures show white man crazy. Make big teepee. Plow hill. Water wash; wind blow soil. Grass gone, land gone, door gone, window gone; whole place gone to — Buck gone. Squaw, too. Papoose gone. No pig, no corn, no sow, no hay, no pony.

Indian no plow land. Keep grass. Buffalo eat Indian eat buffalo. Hide make teepee, make moccasins. Indian no make terrace, no build dam, no give d—. All time eat. No hunt job, no hitchhike, no ask relief. No shoot pig. Great Spirit make grass. Indian no waste anything. Indian no work. White man keep loco.

Ain't civilization wonderful? —(Quoted from L. F. Wade's Jayton Chronicle).

Amazing has been the rapid rise in sentiment for Lyndon Johnson in the United States Senate race as shown by every straw vote and poll. The trend is strongly toward Johnson, observers declare, and they account for it as due to his familiarity with national problems from actual experience and service in Washington; a wide feeling that the Governor and Attorney General cannot be spared from the state duties (which they agreed to fill for the next 18 months) to take up new and unfamiliar duties, whereas if Johnson is elected, it would constitute simply a promotion and—biggest factor, perhaps—the close political and personal friendship between Johnson and President Roosevelt at a time of national and world crisis when teamwork and co-operation with our leader are necessary if America is to survive.

More Civil Service Jobs Are Available

Announcement was made Monday by the United States Civil Service Commission of pending examination for the filling of four additional positions in this area.

The first position cited is that of a plant protection inspector, experienced as a fire marshal or inspector, investigator for fire insurance companies, safety director, or plant engineer. The job will pay from $2,900 to $4,600 annually.

Inspectors of naval ordnance materials also are wanted in the navy, with a salary range of $1,620 to $2,600 annually.

The commission also will give examinations for deputy game management agents for the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior, a position which pays $2,000 per year.

Positions as multilith camera-man and platemaker, $1,620 a year, and multilith press operator, $1,440 a year, are open in Washington, D. C.

Complete information concerning such positions, and forms for use in filing application for examination, may be obtained at the special civil service information window at the Post Office.

This Week IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., (NWNS)—

The rebellion of vital groups in the labor army against their own union leaders, against government mediation, against law enforcement agencies, has overshadowed everything else in Washington as it becomes increasingly evident that Communist and anti-American groups have a strong grip on defense industries.

Since the President's speech to the nation, in which he said that industrial disputes must be settled "without stoppage of work," there have been more strikes started than before his speech, serving as a challenge to him to do something about it. With many labor groups getting out of hand, and new strikes developing in our most necessary defense industries, plant seizures and the use of the army to force men to work can be expected until the situation is in hand.

The public began demanding immediate government intervention in the strike situation when C.I.O. strikers at the North American Aviation company's California plant defied their national leaders by refusing to work while negotiations were carried on and wired President Roosevelt saying, "The armed forces will not break our strike. Bombers can't be made with bayonets."

This defiance of the President by a union in a company which has $200,000,000 in defense orders, was considered by most congressmen to be "a last straw" and an invitation for the government to use every power at its command to curb such unruliness.

The danger of the situation was made glaringly apparent when the strikers booted their union's national director, Richard Frankenstein, and refused to listen to his pleas to continue working. Mr. Frankenstein then admitted that "the vicious underhand maneuvering of the Communist party was apparent in the strike." Declaring the strike to be a "wildcat strike," opposed by C. I. O. leaders, Mr. Frankenstein expressed the feeling of most officials here when he told the strikers, "Your action today has made one man the happiest in the world—that is Hitler."

While strikes are seriously disrupting defense production, capital experts are insisting that our production must be speeded up to a point far above previous goals if we hope to compete with the present $3,000,000,000 a month production schedule now in force in Nazi Germany. Following testimony to this effect before the senate defense committee, Senator Connally of that committee commented: "All we are doing is advertising to Germany and the world that we are in a mess on this program. What we need is fewer statistics and more action."

There has been considerable heated debate over the administration's bill which would give the President the right to seize all kinds of property, personal or industrial plants, and pay for them what he considered a fair price. Even the President himself expressed surprise over the drastic terms of the bill, saying that he had not read the measure as prepared by the war department.

He seemed to agree that some limitation should be put on the seizure of necessary property, saying that he had had no thought of the government taking permanent possession of property, as provided in the bill. Indications are that the bill, with some toning down will be passed by congress, as are practically all administration-sponsored bills having to do with defense. Passage will give the President more dictatorial powers than have ever been held by any other President, it is generally agreed.

The threat of gas-less Sundays, as made by Secretary of Interior Ickes, who has been made czar of the oil industry, has stirred up a good deal of opposition both in Washington and in the state governments. The first reaction of the populace was that it would be glad to use less gas if that would aid defense, but study of the facts showed the supply of gas and oil is plentiful—that the whole problem is one of lack of ships for getting gas and oil to the East coast. State and federal tax experts pointed out that taxes on gasoline have been a leading source of revenue, and a cutting down of gasoline sales would necessitate passage of new revenue-producing measures.

The solution, most Congressmen believe, is to build pipelines for carrying oil to the East coast. Two pipelines from Texas, which it is believed could be built in a year, would carry 475,000 barrels a day to the East coast, whereas the reduction in tankers has caused a daily decline of only 200,000 barrels. Thus, even with increased shipping problems, it is believed the pipelines would keep a plentiful supply flowing to the East.

"National Defense is Part of Our Job, too"

"Fellows, we may not be in the army, but our job of supplying plenty of dependable electric service to industries engaged in defense production is mighty important to our peace and security. We've got a big job to do and a reputation to live up to. Good electric service doesn't 'just happen'."

● The entire Texas Electric Service Company system was designed and built with an eye to the needs of a rapidly growing West Texas. Experience gained during the World War period and the period of phenomenal growth in many areas of West Texas is proving to be of great value in meeting the demands for electric service growing out of the National Defense Program.

Today, our organization is far better prepared to cope with the demands for electricity than during the World War. Larger power plants and hundreds of miles of high voltage power lines have been constructed since that time, providing this section of Texas with an integrated electric power system.

Texas Electric Service Company employees realize the importance of dependable electric service in peace time and also in time of national emergency. They are working hard and planning ahead to provide electric power for every need—for use in your home or in turning out national defense equipment.

Gerald Mann, while apol-

proves the statement made by O'Daniel's long fight against when he said: "My son, Pat, will soon be drafted into the army.

Like millions of other young Americans, he will get $21 a has to call out our fine young strikes in defense industry and leave our sons with no guns with which to fight?"

Much credit for the most success-

goes to out-going President Chas.

the state group enrolls more of the editors among its membership

been engaged in the telephone
business in the State of Texas, and in furtherance thereof, has erected and maintained poles, wires, conduits, equipment and other telephone construction in the streets, alleys, highways and public grounds of the City of Burkburnett, Texas, hereinafter referred to as the "City," for many years pursuant to such rights as have been granted it by and under the laws of the State of Texas, and subject to the exercise of such reasonable rights of regulation under the police power
as have been lawfully granted
by and under said laws to said City; and

WHEREAS, in exercising its said rights of regulation under the police power it is desirable that the City regulate and inspect the construction of the Telephone Company's poles, wires, conduits,

lines and equipment in the streets,
alleys and highways of the City;
and

WHEREAS, the City incurs ex-

connection with said regulations and inspection, which expense
should be borne and compensated
for by the Telephone Company,
THEREFORE

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
OF THE CITY OF BURKBUR-
NETT, TEXAS:

Section 1. That from and after the effective date of this ordinance the Telephone Company shall pay to the City of Burk-burnett an annual inspection fee and service charge in an amount equal to two per cent (2%) of the gross receipts for the preceding year received by the Telephone Company from the Telephone Company from the ren-ditiion of local exchange telephone transmission service within the corporate limits of the City. Said amount of two per cent (2%) of the gross receipts shall constitute compensation to the City for the expense incurred and services rendered by the City in exercising its police power of regulation and supervision over the construction and location of the Telephone
Company's poles, wires, conduits,
equipment and other facilities in
the streets, alleys, highways and

15th day of March of each year for the preceding calendar year.
The first payment hereunder shall be made on March 15, 1942, and shall equal in amount two per cent (2%) of the gross receipts aforesaid received for the year 1941; and thereafter payments
shall be made annually on March 15th, as hereinafter provided.

Section 2. During the continuance of this agreement and so long as the Telephone Company shall pay to the City the percentage of its gross receipts afore-

payment shall be received by it
in lieu of any tax, license, charge, fee, street or alley rental, or other character of charge for use and occupancy of streets, alleys and public places of the City; in lieu of any poll tax or charge, in lieu of any easement or franchise tax,
special, or other character of tax;
and in lieu of any imposition other than the usual general or special ad valorem taxes now or hereafter levied. Should the City not have the legal power to agree that the payment of the percentage of gross receipts herein provided for shall be in lieu of the taxes, licenses, charges,
fees, rentals, and easement or franchise taxes aforesaid, then the City agrees that it will apply
as may be necessary to the satisfaction of the Telephone Com-

any such taxes, licenses, charges,
fees, rentals, and easement or
franchise taxes.

Section 3. All ordinances and agreements and parts of ordi-hereby repealed.

Section 4. The Telephone Com-

HOUSE and HOME

by Mary E. Daque

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

When you dig the weeds from your lawn carry a small bag of lawn seed with you and drop a pinch of seed in every hole left by the weed. This will keep your sward even and the grass will crowd out new weeds which might come from a fragment of root left in the ground.

Here's a secret for you who love wild flower gardens tucked into your evergreen borders. Use peat-moss in the soil about the roots of the wild plants. This produces a loose, moist soil much like that of the woods so of course the wild things feel at home and thrive
happily in their transplanted
state. Evergreens, too, like peat-moss dug around their roots.

One of the most attractive ways
to take care of windows opening onto the living porch is to do away with porch boxes and tuck a pair of shelves back against the house on either side of the window. The shelves should be large enough to hold one good sized flower pot and in the form of a bracket resembling an old-fashioned kitchen salt box. A hole is bored in the top and the bracket suspended from an iron hook.
Since these little shelves are only a few inches wider than the window ledge they are never in the way and take up no valuable porch space.

Another interesting arrangement for potted flowers is a bracket shelf with a scalloped apron. Holes are cut in the shelf large enough to let a flower pot slip through and rest on its collar. The apron is made deep enough to hide the suspended flowerpots. This simple flower box is suitable for farm-house

and Cape cod types of houses.

The arrangement of small utensils and supplies in the kitchen has direct bearing on the ease
and efficiency with which you do your work. Route your working centers and storage places and you will save many steps and minutes. When such staples as salt and sugar are needed often at both the range and the pastry table provide duplicate sets. Keep cooking utensils near the range and baking pans and baking dishes near the refrigerator and pastry table. When you gather the materials for baking a cake put them on a tray as you pick them up and carry them all to your working center. As each is used return it to the tray and one trip will replace them on their accustomed shelves.

JAVELINA INVADERS TOWN

A large javelina boar caused considerable commotion, but paid with his life for daring to invade Sonora, Texas, recently, according to word received by the game department office. The javelina stroled into a yard in Sonora and cornered the dogs and just about everything else in sight. The lady of the house, threatened by the big boar when she attempted to go into her yard, called a neighbor, who shot the javelina.

Invasion of "civilization" by javelinas is very rare, but one was found on the streets of Houston about a year ago. However, it was eventually discovered that that peccary had been a pet which had escaped from its pen.

time health unit.

First Step in 1936

The first step came in 1936 when, through activities of the nursing activities committee of the county chapter of the American Red Cross, a public health nurse was employed by the Red Cross for three months. A full-time public health nurse has been employed in the county for the second year as the work expanded.

One public health nurse, a second part-time nurse who is employed by the Wichita county Tuberculosis Association, a county health physician, and a venereal disease clinic in Wichita Falls constitute the present county "health" staff, based on state standards, performing work comparable to that of the proposed county-wide unit.

The unit, by comparison, calls for the employment of a full-time medical director, who would be a licensed physician; a sanitary engineer, four public health nurses and two clerks.

Each would be answerable to a nonpartisan board of seven to nine members whose selection would be made by the various agencies sharing the expenses.

The state health board is ready to spend $9,000 a year more in the county; the Red Cross, $300 more than its present expenditure of $1,800; the tuberculosis association would put in the $1,000 it is now spending for such work, and the Wichita Falls Independent School District has authorized $2,100.

In addition to the $1,300 asked from the county, the city would be asked to put up approximately $1,500 a year more than its present expenditures for such work.

Endorsing Organizations

The program has been endorsed by the Wichita County Medical Society, the dental society here, tuberculosis association, American Association of University Women, Wichita county council of the Parent-Teacher Association, and a number of individual schools, are among the list of groups which have studied the plan and are seeking its adoption. The present effort, motivated by the health problems presented by the establishment of Sheppard Field between Wichita Falls and Burk Burnett, is being led by the health and sanitation committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. Dr. O. B. Kiel is chairman of the committee.

Among the health facilities that would be available in Wichita county immediately, should the unit be established, would be a traveling dental unit, completely equipped for dental care of indigents, and a traveling tuberculosis clinic, also fully equipped.

The venereal disease clinic would, in addition, be expanded to a county-wide basis. Duties of the staff employed under the program have been charted for various public health duties to present a complete health service. Units such as the one contemplated for Wichita county have been operated in the United States since 1911.

Rural schools and other groups may enter the unit as its activities expand from the nucleus organization.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By DON ROBINSON

FIGURES . . . dizziness

The figures on defense production are getting me dizzy.

It all depends on what you read, or to whom you listen, whether you get the impression that we are accomplishing miracles or are just leaning on our shovels between pay days.

If production could be measured in terms of dollars appropriated, it would seem as though we ought soon to have a bomber, a tank, a battleship and perhaps a matched set of machine guns for every man, woman and child in America. Or at least we should have enough of such equipment to protect all Americans against any attacks by any enemy.

So far, unless my adding machine got jammed over handling such big numbers, congress has appropriated $41,000,000,000 for our defense and for aid to Britain, most of which is earmarked to be spent before the end of 1942.

That's equal to an expenditure of over $1,200 for every family in America, which is a lot of dollars even to a nation which is putting its currency on the powder standard.

If we could buy an "arsenal of Democracy" by just drawing a check for $41,000,000,000 to the order of a reliable arsenal maker we'd be doing all right, but now that the appropriating season is over our main interest is not in dollars to be spent but in how long it's going to be before we have more planes, ships, guns and parachutes that the Axis powers can muster up.

PERVENTAGES misleading

The Office for Emergency Management has just made its "report to stockholders" (which means you and me) on how much was produced during the first year of our defense program, which ended in May.

On first reading it all sounds like a rosy picture, but more careful analysis indicates that some figures are emphasized and others avoided in order to paint a good story. I don't question their use. I became suspicious of them when I found so many were based on percentage comparisons.

PRODUCTION . . . small

Actual dollar figures in the government's report state that during the first year of the defense program, $5,100,000,000 was spent and contracts were awarded totaling $18,900,000,000.

Of that five billion in cash which was handed out for finished products, 621 million was spent on ships, 605 million on aircraft and 501 million on ordnance (powder, guns, etc.)—a total of $1,727,000,000 for armaments. The other $3,373,000,000 was spent for fortifications, industrial facilities, construction and pay rolls.

These latter expenditures are all a necessary part of defense, a large part of them to make increased production possible, but the big interest to most of us is the actual size of the war machine which we have been able to produce.

As closely as I can figure it, in the 12 months ending May 30, we produced 10,000 planes, two battleships, one aircraft carrier, 3 cruisers, 22 submarines, 27 destroyers (but gave 50 to England) and perhaps 1,000 light tanks plus an increase in rifles, ammunition and other smaller armaments.

I realize the task of getting all-out production under way is enormous, and that there may be reasons to consider this a creditable record, but anyone who thinks all of the recent commotion about production and appropriating billions, means that we are now ready to go out and whip the world, has another guess coming.

first year of defense has been "largely preliminary to the real production which must come" and that production next year must be at least five times what it was in the last year, or must amount to at least $25,000,000,000.

But even that doesn't mean that we can catch up to Germany for some time. Germany is now spending three billion a month, or 36 billion a year for armaments, which is three times the rate of production credited to Germany when Nazi armies marched into Poland a year and a half ago. Germany is also getting booty from the countries she has conquered.

I'm not taking those figures out of thin air. They too are figures reported by the Office of Emergency Management and in this case there is no reason for that office to magnify them. Those figures show that Germany probably added seven times as much equipment to her forces as we did.

I don't think there is anyone in this country who doubts that we can out-produce Germany or any other country in the world when we set our minds to it, but we can't do it over night and we haven't done it yet. So it would seem a good idea for us to buckle down to work and not go out looking for trouble until we get further away from the bow and arrow class.

Different

Among the jurors summoned was a woman who wished to be excused.

"Well, madam, why don't you want to serve on this jury?" asked the Judge.

"I'm opposed to capital punishment."

"But this is merely a case in which a wife is suing her husband for an account. It seems she gave him $400 to pay for a fur coat, and he is alleged to have lost the money at poker."

The woman juror spoke up promptly.

"I'll serve. Maybe I'm wrong about capital punishment."

Employer: "Sure, I advertised for a good strong boy. So what?"

Boy: "Well, I'm him. I just finished licking the other seventeen kids outside."
