Council runoff expected Oct. 4

The runoff election for the newly created District 2 in the city will be conducted Oct. 4.

City council members were to canvass ballots from the vote at a called meeting at 1 p.m. Thursday. The council is expected to officially call for the election at that time.

In District 2, the runoff was required in the three-man race after none of the candidates received more than 50 percent of the vote.

The runoff will involve Ralph Williamson, customer service supervisor for Southwestern Bell Telephone here; and John Johnson, pharmacist for Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

In Saturday's election, Williamson received 70 votes and Johnson 65. Candidate Tommy Davis received 57.

The district is comprised primarily of southwest Snyder and the residential developments which adjoin Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the Western Texas College golf course.

The time schedule for the runoff includes a drawing for place on the ballot Monday.

Absentee voting will be from Sept. 15-30.

Texas Legislature...

New session starts Monday

AUSTIN (AP) — State legislators, unable to balance the budget during the 30-day special session that ends today, will get another chance beginning Monday, says House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Following a meeting with Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Wednesday, Lewis said White had chosen a date for the next session.

"We discussed when we will be coming back and that will be Monday," Lewis said.

The speaker's press secretary, Tim Conger, said White also told the leaders he would like to address a joint House-Senate meeting on Monday, as he did to open the first special session.

In his first speech, White urged lawmakers to approve a one-year, 1⅛-cent sales tax increase to help wipe out the $3.5 billion state deficit.

A majority of House members said they opposed new taxes. Since tax bills must start in the House, White's plan went nowhere.

The Senate approved $418 million in spending cuts, while the House cuts totaled $740 million. The conference committee trying to resolve that difference continued meeting into the final day.

Lewis, who led tax opponents during the first special session, said he will support a tax hike only if all other key budget-balancing steps are taken first and still prove inadequate.

"I haven't changed in any way. Our first priority is to try to make cuts in state spending. And try to bring that (deficit) figure down as low as we possibly can," Lewis said.

"If we get the opportunity to do what we want to do in the House — the follow-through on various budget cuts, transferability of (state) funds, to run state government in a businesslike way — if that doesn't bridge the gap (then) sure, I'll vote for a tax bill. I'm not about to allow the state to get in bad financial straits."

However, he emphasized, "We haven't gotten there yet."

Throughout the day, Lewis' budget aides briefed representatives on the financial picture under a variety of possible actions — including tax increases next year.

Possible actions being analyzed include delaying payments to state employee retirement funds, some type of sales tax increase and a boost in the motor fuel tax, said House research director Daryl Dorcy.

Asked if a tax increase in 1987 appears likely, House Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga said, "It sure looks that way."

Cyanide soup

RUNNEMEDE, N.J. (AP) — The cyanide death of a man who ate Cup-A-Soup was almost certainly a case of product tampering, a spokesman for the manufacturer said today.

Larry Hicks, a spokesman for Thomas J. Lipton Inc., said authorities found the mix's envelope was slit and the box was punctured.

"It all points to a product tampering," Hicks said. "The evidence would appear to point exactly to that and only to that."

Plant-in slated

Bluebonnet and other seeds will be planted Friday from 3:30-5 p.m. south of the Scurry County Museum on the Western Texas College campus.

Participants will be given seeds to plant and some to take home to plant. Some other wildflower seeds will also be available for those who would like to plant them.

Everyone is welcome to participate in the project.

WTC welcome

Thursday night, the annual faculty-student ice cream supper at Western Texas College is slated at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center. It will be followed by a "howdy dance" in the cafeteria at 8:30 p.m.

Model club

The Snyder Area Model Airplane Club will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. at the TESCO office located across from the water treatment plant in the 3100 Block of Ave. M.

The public is invited.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Wednesday, 75 degrees; low, 67 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Thursday, 68 degrees; 1.64 inches precipitation; total precipitation for 1986 to date, 19.46 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Friday, mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high in the mid 80s. Southeast wind 5 to 15 mph.

U.S. 84 closed 2nd time

A portion of U.S. Hwy. 84 near Inadale was closed Wednesday night due to high water, but traffic was being allowed through Thursday morning.

The same area was closed briefly Aug. 26 as an 8 inch rain fell in the Inadale area.

A sheriff's office spokesman said law enforcement personnel were re-routing traffic on site Thursday morning. Only one lane of the four-lane highway was said closed.

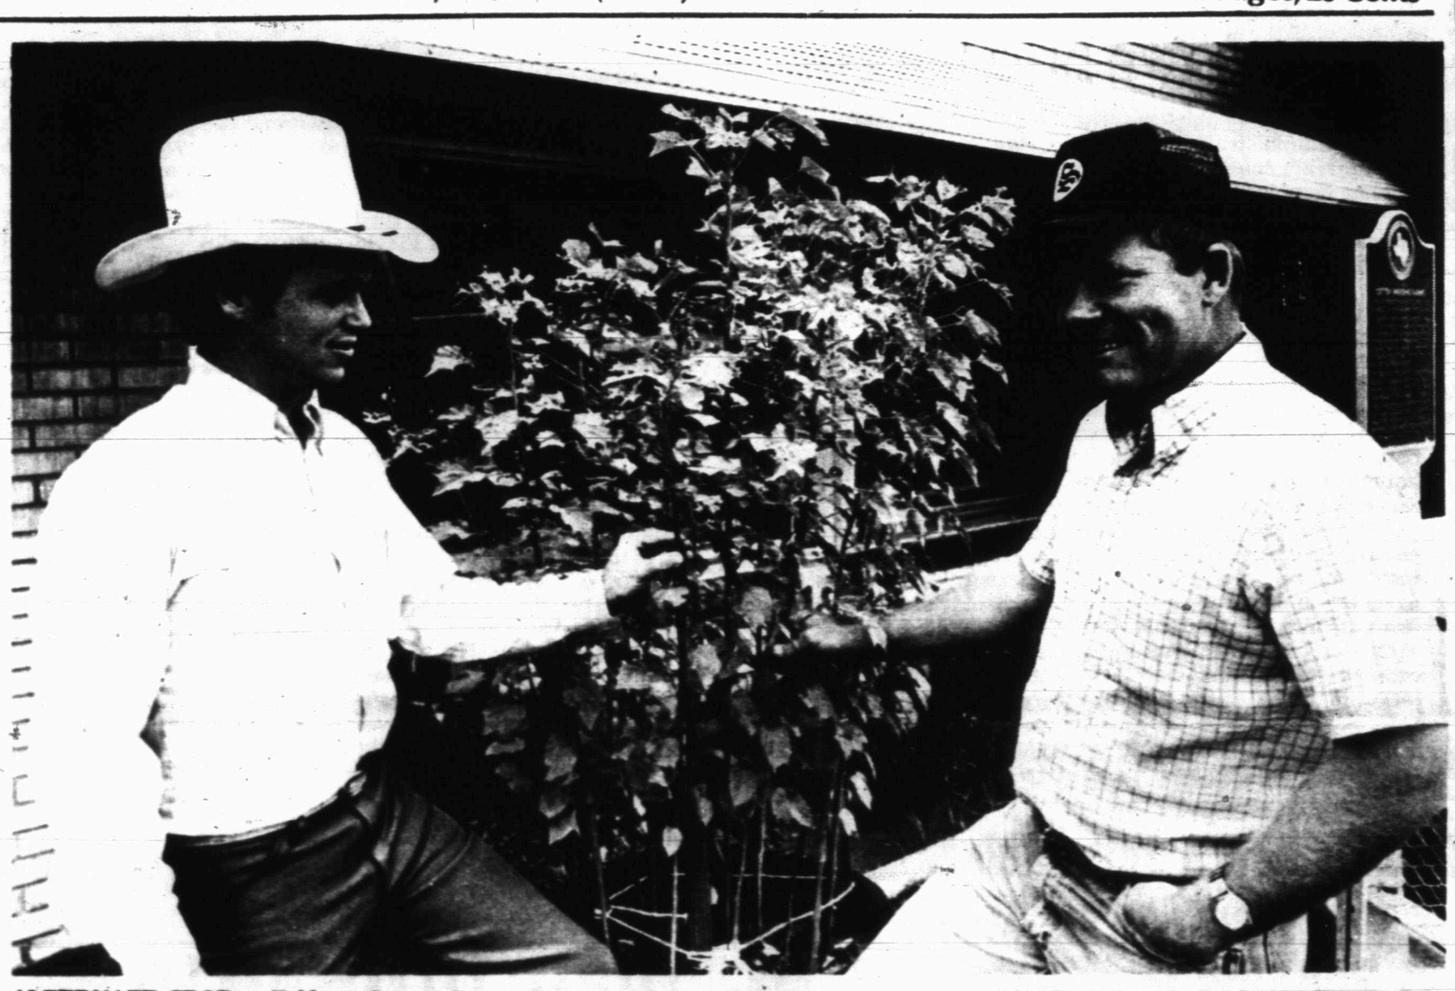

The low spot filled up again after the Hermleigh and Inadale area received up to 4 inches of rainfall from showers Wednesday.

Lake J.B. Thomas also gained another one-half foot of water from rainfall Wednesday, a water district spokesman said. Heavy showers were being reported in the watershed area also Thursday, leading to speculation as much as 2 more feet might be received.

The lake level Thursday morning was 2,223 ft. above sea level.

In Snyder, another 1.64 inches

ALTERNATE CROP — Friday's Scurry County Farm and Ranch tour will include a look at this Kenaf plant, grown at the Von Roeder Seed Farm by staffer David Kattes (right). Also shown is County Agent Marvin Ensor, who has helped plan Friday's tour. Kenaf has been suggested as a possible alternate crop for Scurry County. Rain won't stop farm tour

Despite rainy conditions in Scurry County this week, officials planning the annual Scurry County Farm and Ranch Tour say it will continue as scheduled Friday morning.

"Most of the stops are on pavement," noted County Agent Marvin Ensor. "We may not get to go into the fields as much as we wanted, but other than that we don't plan any changes."

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the coliseum and the tour will begin at 9 a.m. A noon barbecue will conclude the tour.

A registration fee of $5 will be asked and this will include the meal and educational material available.

In addition to guest speakers, this year's tour will feature a program on Kenaf, a prospective alternate crop for the Scurry County area.

Other demonstrations planned include work on cotton varieties, cotton plant populations, cotton fertilizer use, cotton bollworm and budworm monitoring, hay varieties and mesquite control.

Guest speaker will be Al Alexander, extension agronomist, from Vernon. He will talk about wheat research in the Abilene and Vernon area.

In addition, he will offer information on forage and grain production on proven varieties.

Dr. James Supak, extension agronomist, and Dr. Michael Hickey, extension soil chemist, will assist with the tour. Both are stationed at the Lubbock Extension and Research Center.

The tour is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the local county extension office, which works with the Scurry County Field Crops

Fall term count said 'promising'

As classes begin Friday at Western Texas College, officials say enrollment for the new fall term looks promising.

At the end of the first full day of registration Wednesday, 765 students were counted. In addition, both the WTC dormitory and the apartments on campus are now expected to be full.

Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services, said 182 students of the 192 signed up have now moved into the dorm.

"It looks like we'll be fine for fulltime students," Hood said, "but we haven't had time to analyze the part-time yet."

Sophomores registered Wednesday with freshmen due to signup Thursday morning.

Hood said he expected Thursday registration to be quite a bit slower since most freshmen have pre-registered.

Beginning at 1 p.m. Thursday, the registration was to be opened to anyone not as yet signed up. In addition, the registrar's office will be open from 6:30 until 8 p.m. Thursday for late registration.

Prospective students may also signup all next week until 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

A final count for students this fall won't be known until the final day for registration Sept. 15, a week from Monday.

Gas leak closes two roads

An LPG gas leak in southwestern Scurry County prompted the closing of two county roads Thursday morning.

According to sheriff's deputies, a leak was discovered in a pipeline operated by Mid-Continent Pipeline less than a mile southeast of the American Magnesium Plant.

County roads 3101 and 3102 — south and east of the mag plant — were closed to traffic around 11 a.m.

Repair crews were said at the site just before noon.

Midwest plans annual barbecue

The 48th annual Midwest Electric Cooperative annual meeting and barbecue will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

U. S. Representative Charles Stenholm will be the guest speaker.

Three director positions are also expiring and an election to seek replacements will be held.

The only contested election will be for Place 7 currently held by Jerry Upshaw of Roby who is seeking re-election. He will be opposed by Andy Moore.

Joe Falls of Ira, Place 5, is also seeking re-election. He is unopposed.

Also unopposed for another term is Bobby Gruben of Rotan, Place 6.

Members of the 1986 nominating committee include Jeronimo Gaona of Roby; Mrs. Don Jones of Fluvanna, secretary; Alvin Smith of Roby; Glenn Copeland of Rotan, chairman; and Leroy Key of Snyder.

Richard Long of Ira is the featured entertainer.

The traditional barbecue meal will precede the business meeting.

School is underway and all the elementary principals in Snyder have been shifted and are learning their way around the new campuses.

Jim Erwin is the new principal at East. We ran into Jim at the reception for teachers and he reminded us that kids are getting smarter each year.

A third grader turned in an essay on the subject of useful animals. He wrote, "Chickens are the most useful animal because you can eat them both before and after they are born."

Especially in the lower grades, the first week of school is spent in trying to develop a routine. One teacher was informing her students that anyone who needed to go to the restroom should raise two fingers.

One puzzled youngster asked, "How's that going to help?"

The opening week of school is hard on both teachers and pupils. We were reminded of an old story about the youngster who came home from school very dejected.

"Bad day?" his mother asked.

"Awful," the boy replied. "I couldn't remember an answer, and it was so embarassing."

"Forgetting one answer all day is nothing to be embarrassed about," his mother soothed.

"But, during roll call?"

Special rates boost car sales

DALLAS (AP) — Special low-interest car loan offers are filling Texas auto showrooms with customers eager to drive a bargain, dealers say.

The special financing, ranging from 0 percent to 5.9 percent, souped up sales statewide, with record-breaking volumes.

Customers at Shamaley Ford in El Paso had to take a number because salesmen were swamped last weekend, said general manager Wayne Blunt.

In Irving, Labor Day weekend sales were 50 percent better than any one three-day period, said Robert Moore, general manager of Burton-Curry Buick.

In Houston, which has been plagued by the oil industry downturn, the interest rates brought back a glimpse of the good days, said Bill Joseph, sales manager for Charlie Thomas Chrysler-Plymouth Inc.

"You can't even tell there's a bad economy," Joseph said.

In San Antonio, Al Madera, general sales manager of Benson Ingram Park Chrysler Plymouth Mazda, said he sold about 60 cars in a two-day period.

And in the Rio Grande Valley, car dealers were dipping deep into their inventories because of the buying boom. Bill Mowbray, owner of Bill Mowbray Motors in Brownsville, said that many car dealers already were low on some models and are quickly selling out of others.

General Motors Corp. led off the low financing last week with the announcement of 2.9 annual-percentage-rate on 36-month loans for 1986 cars. Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. followed with similar plans. American Motors Corp. got in on the financing war Wednesday, offering interest-free financing on most of its 1986 cars and Jeeps.

Car shoppers Becky and Daryl Embry said they had not bought a new car for six years. Tuesday, as they waited in the showroom of Vandergriff Buick in Arlington, they were adding up the potential savings.

"We figured it up and we'd save $5,000," Mrs. Embry said. "That's one of the things that brought us out."

Simon and Concepcion Garcia of Brownsville said they were going to trade in their 1983 Lincoln Mark VI for a Cadillac Fleetwood from Mowbray's dealership.

"I wanted to trade it in for a smaller car," Mrs. Garcia said. "They gave me a special deal and the interest rate also is very good. We are getting older and the prices have gone up, but we believe this car will last us a long time."

Last week, GM and Ford began offering 2.9 percent financing on three-year loans, and Chrysler offered car buyers 2.4 percent financing on two-year notes. The GM, Ford and AMC plans run through Oct. 8. Chrysler will offer the low interest through Oct. 12.

Hunt bankruptcy questions considered

DALLAS (AP) — A long, hard fight between 23 banks and the billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas is about to begin, but the two sides can't even agree on a place to wage the war.

On Wednesday, lawyers for three Hunt companies argued that the Hunts have a right to choose where to file bankruptcy petitions for their companies, and their choice is New Orleans, not Dallas.

They also argued that most of the assets involved are in Louisiana, not Texas, and that seeking a favorable judge had nothing to do with the site of the bankruptcy.

"I have never appeared before either sitting judge in Dallas or Louisiana," said Stephen Gordon, a Boston lawyer representing the Hunts. "This is not a case of forum shopping for a favorable judge that I know and who knows my name."

Twenty-three major banks have been sued by the Hunt companies for not refinancing $1.5 billion worth of loans in face of a decline in oil prices that has left the Hunts' petroleum-based empire reeling.

Those same banks want to foreclose on millions of dollars worth of property owned by the Hunt companies. If the companies file for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, foreclosure is blocked.

The banks argue the bankruptcies should be filed in Dallas where the companies are headquartered.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders postponed until today a decision on whether bankruptcy cases filed by the Hunts' Placid Oil Co., one of Placid's subsidiaries and a personal trust should be moved from New Orleans to Dallas.

The judge said he would address at a later date whether the companies are in contempt of a court order for filing the petitions in New Orleans in the first place.

Chapter 11 petitions were filed Friday in New Orleans for Placid — one of the world's largest privately owned oil companies — Placid Building and Service Co. and a personal trust of William Herbert Hunt, one of the brothers who owns the companies along with Nelson Bunker Hunt and Lamar Hunt.

The Hunts are seeking $14 billion from 23 banks, claiming they were conspiring to destroy Placid and Penrod Drilling Co., one of the world's largest drilling companies, by refusing to renegotiate the billion-dollar debt.

Wednesday's arguments centered on a July 28 order from Sanders stating that suits involving the Hunts' debts should be filed in Dallas. Lawyers for the Hunts contend the order did not cover bankruptcy petitions.

U.S. bars farm tools bound for Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is blocking a private relief agency from sending farm tools and other supplies to leftist-ruled Nicaragua, a decision denounced by one critic as "the politics of hunger."

The administration refused an application from Oxfam America, a Boston-based relief agency, to ship to Nicaragua $41,000 worth of donated and purchased supplies, including rakes, seeds, shovels, agricultural books, wrenches, chain saws, hammers and water pipes, Oxfam officials said.

John Hammock, Oxfam executive director, said the shipment to two non-government agencies in Nicaragua was intended to alleviate food shortages in the war-torn Central American country which has been the target of a U.S. trade embargo for more than a year.

"We are dealing with the politics of hunger," Hammock said in an interview Wednesday. "This is a clear example of the government playing politics with the poor overseas."

Hammock added that in recent trips to Nicaragua, he had seen "the beginning of severe malnutrition among children. ... The administration seems to be taking the position that anything that helps Nicaraguans, helps the Sandinistas," Nicaragua's leftist rulers.

Although the U.S. trade embargo does permit shipments to Nicaragua "to relieve human suffering," the administration's denial, dated Aug. 26, said Oxfam's supplies were rejected because "such transactions are inconsistent with current U.S. foreign policy."

One Too Many Maids to Honor Is a Dilemma for Bride-to-Be

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged and am now in the process of planning my wedding. After my official engagement, I hinted very strongly to my best friend that she would be my maid of honor. My mother heard about it and said that my sister, who is close to me in age, would be very hurt if she were not asked to be my maid of honor. I am very close to both girls; however, I did not consider asking my sister because I thought it was customary for the bride's unrelated best friend to be the maid of honor. I think both of them are expecting to be asked.

I want to avoid hurting any feelings. What should I do?

UNDECIDED BRIDE

DEAR UNDECIDED: Choose your sister. Friends come and go, but sisters are forever.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Unexpressive Mother," who offered to pay you well to compose a beautiful two-page letter for her to send to her 17-year-old daughter, telling her how much she loved her and how proud she was of her:

You were correct when you told her, "A single sentence straight from the heart will be far more meaningful than two pages filled with fancy phrases from a stranger."

My father was never one to write letters. In fact, I had never seen a letter that he had written until I was in college and received an award for some special achievement. Much to my surprise, I received the following letter from my father:

Dear Son,

I am proud of you. Keep up the good work. — Dad

Abby, I still have that letter. It wasn't two pages long, and it wasn't written by Shakespeare, but it meant the world to me. I still keep it in my desk drawer, and if I ever become discouraged, I take it out and read it.

So, as the old saying goes, it's not the quantity but the quality that counts.

KEVIN M. PADILLA, ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the letter from "Unexpressive Mother": One recent holiday season I was feeling very depressed and had that "nobody loves me" feeling. I live 2,800 miles from my family and was not looking forward to another Christmas alone. While opening Christmas greetings, I found a note from my mother. Simply written were these words:

I love you — Mom

I tell you, this brought tears to my eyes. You see, my mother never learned to read or write English, except to sign her name. So, "Unexpressive Mother," write your own letter. It will be something your daughter will always treasure.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know the title of the booklet my son sent away for when he was 19, but he is 27 now, and I remember that he and his friends wore it out passing it around. It had some very good tips for people of all ages on how to make interesting conversation and be popular. My teen-age daughter wants one as she has heard how useful it was. Please list the titles of your booklets and how to get them. The one I saw was not only great, but it was priced so that almost anyone could afford it. Thank you.

PAT MILLER, FORT WORTH

DEAR PAT: I have four: "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know," "How to Have a Lovely Wedding" and "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Each one is $2.50 (check or money order) and can be obtained by sending a long, self-addressed, stamped (39 cents) envelope with your check to: Dear Abby (Booklet Title), P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

School paperwork, license plate bills go to governor

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature today faced its final ceremonies of a special month-long session that failed to solve its No. 1 problem — deciding what to do about a projected $3.5 billion budget deficit.

As midnight adjournment approached, there was no movement on a tax bill, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said a conference committee would not finish work on reducing the state budget.

Gov. Mark White called the Legislature into session Aug. 6 to deal with the budget deficit, and he has indicated he will call yet another session to begin next week.

"On the major issues, it's going very slowly," said Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, and a conference committee member. "The more we look and research, we wonder if we've cut too deeply."

Perhaps symbolic of the Senate's frustration over the stalemate on taxing and spending, Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, pulled a bath towel out of a paper bag Wednesday and said, "Let's throw the damn thing in and start over."

On Wednesday, however, the Senate by a 28-0 vote did pass a House-approved measure to limit paperwork by teachers and school administrators. The House on voice vote accepted a Senate amendment to a bill that would reduce the cost of personalized license plates from $75 to $40.

Both measures go to the governor.

On the paperwork proposal, Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said, "Most paperwork that has been generated has been generated mainly from people trying to adequately document that if something goes wrong, it's not their fault.

He said the bill "would clearly once and for all put into law what paperwork is authorized and what isn't."

In other action Wednesday, the Senate:

— Approved, 28-0, and returned to the House with amendments a bill to impose tougher regulations on companies that sell money orders.

— Accepted a House amendment, and sent to the governor, a bill that would make it easier to collect child support payments.

— Approved, 28-0, and returned to the House a measure that would allow the state highway department to issue overweight truck permits over the telephone from its central office. Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, said the bill would save the state $7 million over two years.

ABWA holds meeting

The Scurry Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association met August 28 at Martha Ann Woman's Club with Irene Brooks as hostess. Judy Bynum led 25 members and four guests in the invocation. Guests were Joyce McCoy, Joann Jameson, Lili Raschke and Dr. Gil Fleer.

Dr. Fleer presented a special program on stress and stress management. Both positive and negative things cause stress; life is like a pressure cooker. He pointed out that people need to relax one or two times a day. People need friends with which to share problems and joys. "Blow your stack, not your brain," Dr. Fleer advised. People should make the most of the good things which come their way and not feel guilty about them.

Dr. Fleer serves as a counselor at WTC and is also an ordained Methodist minister. He came to WTC in July of 1975; his doctorate degree was earned at East Texas University. His wife Ruth is a teacher at West Elementary.

Debbie Lang gave the vocational talk. She and her husband manage McWhorter's Tire Co. Debbie has been with the firm two years as bookkeeper, but also does ad layout, pricing, sales and displays

Maxie McNew, member of MAWC, informed the group of a garage and bake sale on Sept. 20 at Towle Park Barn and also that MAWC fees are due.

American Business Women's Association has new colors, gray and red. There will be a workshop in Austin on Sept. 13. The Fall Tea is Oct. 7, White Buffalo Days are Oct. 11-12 and the National Convention is set for Oct. 23 in Kansas City, Kans.

Judy Bynum closed the meeting with a benediction.

Routine fetal monitoring disputed

BOSTON (AP) — Continuous electronic monitoring of fetal heartbeats, used by most U.S. hospitals during childbirth, is unnecessary for routine deliveries and could lead to unnecessary Caesarean sections, a new study concludes.

The unneeded Caesarean sections could result from the monitoring slightly increasing the chances that doctors will mistakenly suspect fetal distress, according to the study in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The conclusions are based on a three-year study of nearly 35,000 deliveries at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas. The doctors did not question use of the monitors in high-risk pregnancies, but wanted to see whether the monitors would affect the outcome in ordinary deliveries.

"There are no infant benefits that we could detect in low-risk deliveries," said Dr. Kenneth J. Leveno of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School. "The prudent person would interpret that to mean that low-risk women should not be monitored routinely."

But Dr. Henry Klapholz of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital said routine monitoring may still be a good idea because in rare cases it can prevent tragedies.

"If one is interested in getting the maximum possible protection for their baby, then one should use this. But when you do that, you run the risk of getting something done to yourself, like a Caesarean section," he said.

"The likelihood of benefitting from the monitor is very small, and it wouldn't be unreasonable not to have it. On the other hand, if one really wishes to take every precaution, then it has an advantage."

Such benefits did not turn up in Leveno's research. During the study, doctors alternated each month between continuous electronic monitoring of all the women's labor and just those considered to have high-risk pregnancies.

The difference in Caesarean rates between the two approaches was small but statistically significant. When doctors monitored just high-risk pregnancies, they performed Caesarean sections in 10.2 percent of the cases. When they monitored routinely, they performed Caesareans in 11 percent of the cases.

However, there was no difference between the children of mothers in the two groups when doctors looked at stillbirths, breathing difficulties, admissions to the intensive care nursery and other indications of newborn problems.

Leveno said fear of malpractice suits is probably one factor in doctors' decisions to use the monitors.

"If you have any damaged child, the first thing that will be scrutinized is whether or not the child was monitored," he said. "The absence of monitoring, whether it is low risk or high risk, could be used as an argument that care was inadequate."

4-H Dog Show snaps up local accolades

The 1986 Texas 4-H Dog Show was held recently at the Scurry County Coliseum with entrants from 14 counties. The show consisted of 288 entries with 87 4-H youth participating.

Scurry County 4-H results include:

—Adam Bond: sporting breeds, 2nd place; herding breeds, 4th place; novice junior showmanship, 2nd place.

—Chris Cunnington: hound breeds, 1st place; terrier breeds, 4th place; non-pure-bred dog 25 pounds and over, 4th place; 4th place in costume class.

—Audra Bond: terrier breeds, 1st place; open junior showmanship, 3rd place.

—Wendy Bond: herding breeds, 1st place.

—Debbie Jones: herding breeds, 2nd place; costume class, 3rd place.

—Hollie Jones: herding breeds, 3rd place.

The state 4-H dog show is a part of the 4-H dog care and training project. Sharyon Bond serves as 4-H adult leader for this project. The dog care and training project objectives include: study the responsibility of dog ownership; demonstrate dog care and management in feeding, care, handling, grooming and fitting; learn and follow dog health regulations; train a dog to follow simple commands; develop sportsmanship, cooperation, decision making ability; and learn about major dog breeds and be able to identify their characteristics.

Kevin Tate, county 4-H council president, served as master of ceremonies for the opening assembly and Jayson Limmer, president of Scurry County 4-H K-9 Kadet Dog Club, presented the welcome. Mande Henry and Janna Tate served as hostess for the judges and ring stewards.

BROCCOLI EGG PUFF

1 pound broccoli
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
5 beaten eggs
1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
4 slices bacon, crisp-cooked, drained and crumbled
½ cup shredded cheddar or Swiss cheese (2 ounces)

Cut off broccoli buds; set aside. Chop remaining stalks; cook, covered, in a small amount of boiling salted water for 5 minutes. Add reserved buds; cook 5 minutes; drain. Set aside.

In a small mixing bowl stir together flour and baking powder; set aside. In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs. With a wire whisk or rotary beater, beat in flour mixture. Stir in cottage cheese and bacon. Evenly spread broccoli in the bottom of a greased 10-by 6-by 2-inch baking dish. Pour egg mixture evenly over broccoli. Bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with cheddar or Swiss cheese. Bake 3 minutes more or until center is almost set and cheese is melted. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Count winners as well as losers

By James Jacoby

South played low from dummy on the spade lead and East won the queen. With strength in diamonds, East decided that his best chance of preventing declarer from taking 10 tricks was to find South with three losing clubs. If that were the case, a trump return might stop declarer from taking a club ruff. So back came a trump.

Declarer played a club. West won and returned a second trump. Now declarer realized his risk. He played K-J of diamonds and ruffed a diamond, hoping the queen might come down. Then he led the spade jack from his hand and passed it. East won the king and declarer was set a trick. At the finish, declarer gave himself his best chance, that of either the diamond queen falling or West holding the spade king. But early on he flunked the test. If he counts his tricks at the start, then before carelessly playing low on the spade lead he will see that his contract is guaranteed by the simple play of taking the spade ace and leading clubs. Now the defenders cannot stop the eventual ruff of the third club in dummy.

Lesson: Don't be mesmerized by a wealth of high cards and the appearance of only three possible losers. Count your winners. If you can see a sure way of taking enough tricks for your contract, do it.

See neurologist for diagnosis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a lot of neck and facial pain, ringing ears, gaunt-looking face, my hair has not grown in two years and my neck structure is slipping forward. Doctors have told me there's a possibility that I have a ruptured or slipped disc around C-6 or C-7. What is causing my symptoms and where do I go for diagnostic work?

DEAR READER — A ruptured disc could cause some of your symptoms, such as pain and an alteration in the shape of your neck. The ringing ears, gauntness and lack of hair growth are more difficult to explain, however. I think that your problems should be investigated by a neurologist, who can coordinate an evaluation that may include X-rays and examinations by a dermatologist and otolaryngologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I know that salpingitis is an infection of the female organs, but how does one get it? Can it be cured? What are its lasting effects?

DEAR READER — Salpingitis means inflammation of one or both Fallopian tubes — the structures through which ova pass each month on the way to the uterus. Salpingitis usually is due to ascending infection — that is, an infection that works its way into the Fallopian tubes from the lower reproductive tract. Many sexually transmitted diseases cause Fallopian-tube blockage (and infertility) in this way. This type of infection also can be an unfortunate consequence of intrauterine devices (IUDs) for contraception.

Acute salpingitis usually can be cured by antibiotics. However, many women may not know they have such an infection until chronic inflammation and scarring have affected the tubes and the women discover that they are infertile. Microsurgery may be necessary to open a Fallopian tube that has been blocked by chronic salpingitis.

DEAR DR. GOTT — After a difficult delivery, my newborn son was thought to have Erb's palsy. What is this? Also: What causes birthmarks?

DEAR READER — Erb's palsy, a complication of childbirth, is a traumatic paralysis of the infant's shoulder and arm nerves (brachial plexus). Physical therapy and splinting may be necessary to improve the function of damaged muscles and to prevent contractures (frozen elbow).

A birthmark is a colored area on the skin that is present at birth. Other than the cosmetic problems it produces, it usually is harmless. Birthmarks are not the result of the birthing process, and they are not related to Erb's palsy.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE discusses symptoms, management and new studies of this tragic and irreversible disease. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

New testimony gives hope

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death row inmate Clarence Brandley says new evidence shows what he has always maintained — he did not rape and kill a 16-year-old girl at Conroe High School in 1980 although he was convicted of the crime.

A state district judge is considering the evidence, which involves a Conroe woman testifying in a special hearing that her former boyfriend told her he killed a girl at Conroe High.

The new evidence from attorneys for Brandley and the district attorney's office in Montgomery County will be submitted later this month to the state Court of Criminal Appeals.

The appeals court could order a retrial or could uphold the conviction against the former janitor at the high school. Brandley's attorney is expecting a decision within six months.

In an interview Wednesday, Brandley said he hopes the new testimony will lead to his freedom.

"I feel a whole lot better now," he said. "I don't know what my chances are. I want to see how the court will rule. I'm just going to sit and wait."

Brandley, 34, was sentenced to death after he was convicted of killing Cheryl Dee Fergeson on Aug. 23, 1980. The girl, manager of the Bellville High School volleyball team, died shortly after arriving with her school team for a scrimmage against Conroe.

However, Brenda Medina, of Conroe, said at a hearing last month that her former boyfriend, James Dexter Robinson, told her he had killed a girl at Conroe High School. Robinson acknowledged making the statement, but insisted he made up the story to frighten Ms. Medina.

"I knew him," Brandley said of Robinson, a former co-worker. "He was real quiet. He stayed to himself. I didn't even know he was at the school that Saturday."

Robinson also testified he had left Texas for South Carolina about three weeks before the slaying. Another janitor, however, testified he saw Robinson three days before the slaying.

Brandley said he was surprised by the Medina testimony.

"It was hard to believe," he said. "All of a sudden, just coming up."

Brandley said he believes the fact he is black had much to do with his arrest and conviction.

"I don't know who did it," he said of the slaying. "But it's kind of hard to believe that out of all the people out there that day — somebody didn't see anything. I was the only black there.

"In my conviction, it (race) played a big part. No doubt about that."

Brandley said "certain officials" knew he was innocent, but refused to identify them.

He also said because the 1980 school year was about to start at the time of the slaying, it was important for investigators to ease the fears of parents and arrest someone for the killing.

"I was at the wrong place at the wrong time," he said. "I was more convenient for them to convict."

Brandley said he did not think he would be retried, although his attorney, Mike DeGuerin, said another trial — which would be Brandley's third — was likely. The first trial ended with a hung jury as one juror held out for Brandley's innocence. The second trial ended with a conviction.

AG's department could pay its way Jim Mattox says

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general's department is a money-making agency and could pay its own way if the Legislature would let it operate like a private law firm, says Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"If the Legislature would let me work on a straight contingency fee as I did when I was in private practice, I'd be glad to do that and make a lot of money for the state," Mattox told a news conference Wednesday.

"But I don't much think they will do that," he added.

Mattox said he called the news conference to announce that his office won and saved $1.7 billion for Texas taxpayers and the state treasury during the 1986 fiscal year.

"Despite our state's current economic difficulties in both the private and public sectors, the attorney general's office had a record year of success," he said.

Mattox said that when he took office four years ago, succeeding now Gov. Mark White, "it was an office that had seen crisis after crisis after crisis.

"That is not the case now in this office," Mattox said . "It is running smoothly, doing a good job for the state of Texas."

If the Legislature would approve the necessary measure, he said, "Next year I would anticipate paying for the entire attorney general's office totally and completely through the collections division without costing the state of Texas any money at all."

He estimated the collections division would bring in about $20 million next year.

Mattox said $59.9 million had gone straight to citizens through successful prosecution of antitrust, consumer protection, housing, crime victims compensation and child support cases.

Outside investigation sought in shooting

MEMPHIS, Texas (AP) — A Hall County grand jury has decided to consider whether to bring in outside authorities to investigate the shooting of a man fatally wounded last week after entering a Memphis police officer's home with a loaded shotgun.

The request for outside help came from Eddie D. Wright's relatives, who expressed concern that local law enforcement officials conducted the investigation although it involves a Memphis police officer, said Hall County District Attorney David McCoy.

"If there are any questions that I'm tainting or trying to cover up this investigation, I'll step out," McCoy said. "I want to make sure this thing is handled as fairly as possible."

Larry Easter, 43, a police officer in this Panhandle city, fired six shots from a .357-caliber Magnum service revolver into Wright's upper body before the fatally wounded victim's shotgun discharged as he fell to the floor of the officer's home last week, according to Hall County Sheriff Thomas W. Tippett.

Tippett said the officer fired after Wright, 38, broke through the backdoor of the officer's home with a loaded .12-gauge shotgun about 7:45 a.m. Aug. 27, after failing to gain entry by smashing the front glass door.

No charges have been filed in the death.

Tippett confirmed that Wright had broken into the home of his estranged wife, Vivian Wright, 39, of Memphis, earlier in the morning before going to Easter's home. She was at Easter's home at the time of the shooting, he said.

Wright had driven from Childress to Memphis earlier in the morning looking for his estranged wife, Tippett said.

The grand jury recessed Tuesday after McCoy presented more than an hour's worth of evidence and testimony from law enforcement officials, and after Wright's sister questioned the jury about investigation procedures for 45 minutes.

McCoy, who left while Wright's sister questioned the jury, said he honored her request to talk to the jury because "the family wants their questions answered, but not by (local investigators)."

McCoy said he did not know what Wright's sister asked the grand jury. Before she spoke with the grand jury, McCoy said, Wright's sister asked him if investigators had checked the .12-gauge shotgun for fingerprints.

"I feel the fact they didn't check for fingerprints is irrelevant since we've got neighbors' testimony saying they saw Wright carrying the shotgun when he entered the house," McCoy said.

Easter was suspended with pay until the grand jury makes a decision, Tippett said. Memphis Police Chief Mike Allen is the only other member of the city's police department.

Tippett was assisted in the investigation by Texas Ranger Leo Hickman of Memphis.

Dallas zoo planning embyro transplant

DALLAS (AP) — No one is expecting a giraffe with stripes, but zoo officials say the implantation of a zebra-like animal into the womb of a giraffe will be a historic experiment.

Dallas Zoo officials plan to implant the embryo of an okapi, an animal which has disappeared from some of its native jungles in Zaire, Africa, although it is less threatened than some species.

Dr. Bonnie Rafael, zoo veterinarian and coordinator of the project, said the zoo hopes to transfer the embryo within two to six months.

If the implantation is successful, it will produce a newborn okapi delivered from a giraffe within 15 months. Officials say that the Dallas experiment, combined with research that other zoos have done in similar efforts, could lead to a nationwide embryo implantation program for endangered species.

"It can be very significant," said Ron Kagan, the zoo's director of mammals.

"That's if everything works, which is a big if," Kagan said.

Embryo transfers have ignited protest from religious groups in at least one U.S. city with complaints that the procedure is unnatural, said zoo spokeswoman Victoria Furber.

But some conservation groups say the procedure is a promising way to increase the number of births of endangered animals.

In the case of the okapi, possibly only a few hundred or few thousand of the mammals remain in Zaire. The okapi is chestnut-colored with partially striped legs and hind quarters.

Wildlife experts say there are only about 60 okapis in captivity, with about 21 in the United States. There are seven apiece in the Dallas Zoo and Chicago's Brookfield Zoo. The rest are in zoos in San Diego, Oklahoma City and Colorado Springs.

In recent years, embryo transfers have been accomplished several times with endangered species and domestic animals at U.S. zoos, but it's only been done on a very few animals, Kagan said.

About five years ago, a Holstein cow implanted with the embryo of a Gaur cow, a species of Indian wild cattle, successfully gave birth at the Bronx Zoo in New York, officials said.

Tigers open season Friday against highly-touted Tulia

Coach Dennis Tomlin pointed towards the usual first-game horrors - turnovers and miscues with the kicking game - as being the key when the Ragin' Tigers take on Tulia in the season opener Friday night.

The third-year Tiger coach also expressed a healthy respect for Tulia's highly-regarded skills people.

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. in Tulia. Tickets, available only at the gate, are $3 for adults and $2 for students.

"To stop them, we can't afford to give up the big play. They are a big play team. They may go two or three downs or even two or three series without doing anything, then all of a sudden they are standing in the end zone," said Tomlin.

The Hornets return an offensive backfield which averaged 349 yards a ballgame last season. Top performers include quarterback Todd Lacey, who passed for 1,446 yards and nine touchdowns and running back Steven Powell, who rushed for 1,269 yards and 18 touchdowns.

"Offensively, we improved quite a bit from the Vernon scrimmage to (the one against) Colorado City. Obviously, if we can maintain possession of the ball we can keep their offense off the field. The kicking game and not turning the ball over play hand in hand with that," the coach said.

"I think the kicking game will play an important part," he noted. "We've worked hard on it. We'll find out Friday night who has the best kicking game."

Brad Gartman will perform the punting duties while Troy Burton is expected to do all of the kicking. Returning punts will be fleet-footed Michael Riggins, a sophomore. Back to receive kickoffs will be Jeff Rose and Scott Lanier.

Defensively for the Tigers, Jerry McNew and Henry Treat will post 210-plus size to the 3-technique position. The ends will be Cotton Merritt and Trey Tippens.

Pluggers, or inside linebackers, are Michael Long and Toby Ubando. The outside linebackers will be Chris Garrett and Mark Helms.

The backfield consists of veteran Earl Ware at the left halfback spot and Rose at the right, with Burton at safety.

Five players will start two ways for the Ragin' Tigers. They are Rose at tailback, Ubando at fullback, Garrett at tight end, Tippens at quick tackle and Helms at strong guard.

Quarterbacking the Tigers will be Gartman, a 5-8, 150 junior. He'll be joined in the backfield by Rose, Ubando and halfback Scott Lanier. The rest of the group is made up of Brad Gambrell at quick guard, David Martinez at center, Dewayne Murdock at strong tackle and Steven Mack at swingman.

Murdock, a returning all-loop choice, boasts 6-3, 250 size while Martinez is 5-11, 215.

Tomlin said the Tigers will use a number of running backs, including Long at halfback, Burton at fullback and Riggins at tailback.

"We plan to spell all of our running backs quite a bit. They are all defensive starters and we want to have them still strong in the fourth quarter," he said.

Nebraska may forfeit tilt with Florida State

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne said his team may forfeit its opener against Florida State because the NCAA suspended 53 Cornhusker players for one game and seven other players for two games.

The suspensions stem mostly from the misuse of complimentary tickets and involve about 30 of Nebraska's top 40 players, Osborne said.

The eighth-ranked Cornhuskers are scheduled to play No. 11 Florida State Saturday night in a game to be shown on ABC-TV.

"It wouldn't be a game. It'd be a joke and an embarassment to college football," Osborne said. "We have no quarterback, no I-back. ...

"In order to field a team Saturday, we'd have to un-redshirt about 10 guys and play freshmen that are in no way prepared to play Florida State and face humiliation on national TV. So what do we do? I don't know."

Osborne revealed the penalties after practice Wednesday. He said most of the suspended players gave tickets to people not authorized to use them.

Family members and students are the only people allowed to use players' passes, according to National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Fiancees, girlfriends and friends were identified on pass lists as being family members and students, said Tom Simons, NU associate sports information director.

Each player receives four complimentary tickets per game. About 20 percent of the passes weren't used last year, Osborne said.

"Everybody likes to have somebody up there in the stands who cares about them. In a lot of cases the players said these people (receiving passes) were closer to them than blood relatives."

Osborne said he was dumbfounded by the penalties because Nebraska coaches and players had been "totally open and honest" with the NCAA. Players confessed to violations that investigators otherwise wouldn't have known about, the coach said.

"We cooperated fully. We could've destroyed our pass gate lists. We left them as they were."

The university will appeal the penalties to the NCAA Council Sub-Committee on Eligibility Appeals, Chancellor Martin Massengale said.

He said the infractions were minor and the penalties "excessive and unreasonable." The rule on complimentary tickets has been changed four times in the last five years, most recently on Aug. 1, 1985, Massengale said in a statement.

Osborne said the NCAA offered Nebraska two alternatives. All 60 players could sit out Saturday's game, or 10 players could sit out each of the next six or seven games. He said the school would make a decision today, adding that he didn't think the Cornhuskers would choose the second option.

NFL roundup...

Riggs ends holdout; still unhappy though

by The Associated Press

Running back Gerald Riggs doesn't think he has been compensated fairly by the Atlanta Falcons for his accomplishments. But he's back in camp anyway, because he couldn't stay away from football.

"I am a competitor, I want to play football," Riggs said Wednesday after ending a costly 43-day holdout. "I feel I really need to get in there and get the ball rolling."

Riggs had hoped to force the NFL team to renegoiate his contract, but talks broke down last month and the Falcons said they would withdraw a $2.41 million contract until Riggs showed up and paid a $1,000-a-day fine.

The Falcons' offer included a $450,000 signing bonus that would raise Riggs' income to $700,000 this year and average salaries of $579,000 on a three-year extension through 1989.

Riggs wanted closer to $3 million.

"I know it's a lot of money, but fair is fair and business is business," Riggs said. "The backs who have achieved what I have and some who haven't achieved what I have are making considerably more money than the Falcons are offering me."

Riggs was the NFL's second-leading rusher last year.

"I'm ticked off at management," Riggs said. "I've got a sour taste in my mouth and that probably won't change. I love the game a whole lot but they've taken some of that away from me. I've got to put it behind me, though, because I've got a responsibility to my teammates and coaches and nobody else."

Meanwhile, the Falcons announced that first-round draft choice Tim Green has a ruptured calf muscle that will sideline him for three to six weeks. The injury occurred as Green was working on a pass rush drill Tuesday.

Green, a linebacker out of Syracuse, was the No. 17 draft pick overall.

Among other NFL developments, the Cleveland Browns claimed veteran outside linebacker Brad Van Pelt on waivers from the Los Angeles Raiders.

Van Pelt spent 11 seasons with the New York Giants and two with the Raiders. He started in 16 games for Los Angeles last season, but lost his linebacker job in spirited competition with younger players.

To make room for Van Pelt on their roster, the Browns waived free-agent linebacker Joe Costello, who played two years in the USFL.

Linebacker Tom Cousineau, who was earlier cut by the Browns, will join the San Francisco 49ers, Coach Bill Walsh said Wednesday.

"We're excited to have him," Walsh said. "We inherited his contract, but there may be some further negotiations."

The Browns waived Cousineau on Tuesday after trying unsuccessfully to trade him and his $500,000-a-year contract.

Williams having to learn Oiler system quickly

HOUSTON (AP) - Doug Williams' introduction to professional football has been one unnerving turn after another.

After helping the Texas A&M Aggies win the Southwest Conference championship and Cotton Bowl last season, Williams, 6-6, 290, was projected as a first round NFL draft pick.

He was taken in the second round by the New York Jets and after a turbulent training camp was was waived and acquired by the Houston Oilers last week.

Before Williams could even digest his play book, he was thrust into the Oilers preseason finale against the Dallas Cowboys Saturday when guard Mike Munchak suffered an ankle injury.

"I guess it was a little bit panicville at first," Williams said. "You go up to the line and the first thing you see is (Cowboys defensive tackle) Randy White. But (center Jim) Romano and I were talking the whole time.

"We were talking from the huddle to the line of scrimmage and almost until the ball was snap-

Making those picks again

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Here it is again friends, just what the city of Snyder needed - another excuse to keep its working class in the coffee shop just a little longer every morning. Or afternoon. Or both.

Yep, it's our annual coffee shop predictions, which begin right here on this page today. Each week, stop by your favorite coffee shop (or one of the above) and help the proprietor choose which team will overcome.

There will be 20 games each week, featuring teams from the area high school, college and NFL ranks.

At the end of the season, we'll announce a winner, based on percentage points, who will received a handsome, if somewhat skimpy plaque, purchased by SDN publisher Roy McQueen. (That explains it all.)

As for me, well, being a professional, and one of the few who keep the community running by working while the coffee shop crowd is doing its thing (Don't forget that mid-morning break.), I'll have a much tougher task.

No longer a small-time prognosticator, I'll be taking on all the big games: the college top 20 each week, along with the Southwest Conference, the National Football League, Ira, Hermleigh, Borden County, and, of course, District 2-4A.

Naturally, that gives me the opportunity to pick such class games as Temple at sixth-ranked Penn State and Vanderbilt at fifth-rated Alabama.

Well, there are some privileges.

Since there are a sizeable number of games (37), I'll get right to it.

Snyder at Tulia: You've got to go with the Ragin' Tigers their first time out, even against a team that is playoff caliber this early in the season. This should be the Tigers' toughest outing for several weeks, though next week's opponent, Levelland, is no pushover either. Call it...SNYDER 21, TULIA 14.

Ira at Southland: Ira has a tendency to start slowly, if I recall, but what the heck...IRA 45, SOUTHLAND 27.

Paint Creek at Hermleigh: It will take the Cardinals awhile to get rolling...PAINT CREEK 50, HERMLEIGH 34.

Borden at McCaulley: McCaulley is supposed to be tough this season, but I like what I've seen from Borden, too...COYOTES 35, EAGLES 31.

As for Snyder's future opponents in the good ol' 2-4A: Sweetwater with mash Merkel, 34-6; Andrews will edge a good Hereford club, 17-14; Lake View will dump Del Rio, 28-13; and Big Spring will nip El Paso Riverside, 31-28. On the losing side, Lamesa will lay down for Levelland, 21-7; Pecos will cringe to Kermit (oh, yeah?), 14-8; and Fort Stockton will crumble to Crane, 20-18.

And in the Southwest Conference: Pick Rice to nip Lamar, 27-24; 13th ranked Baylor to punt Wyoming, 28-14; Texas Tech to club Kansas State, 17-7; and Houston to surprise Arizona, 19-17.

As for the top 20 (national ranking in parenthesis), I see it this way: (1) Oklahoma to pop (4) UCLA, 24-18; (3) Miami, Fla. to feather (13) Florida, 23-21; (11) Florida State to foil a (8) Nebraska team suddenly beset by NCAA penalty, 34-14; (5) Alabama to axe Vanderbilt, 34-10; (6) Penn State to pounce on Temple, 35-6; (10) Tennessee to neutralize New Mexico, 34-10; (14) Auburn to trip Tennessee-Chattanooga, 31-14; and (18) Brigham Young to berate Utah State, 37-13.

Now the pros:

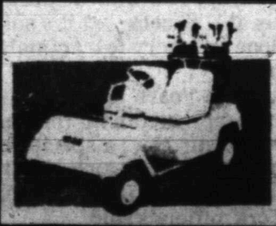

Go this route: Chicago 21, Cleveland 14; Houston 19, Green Bay 14; Denver 23, LA Raiders 21; Miami 31, San Diego 27; Philadelphia 17, Washington 7; Seattle 28, Pittsburgh 24; Minnesota 34, Detroit 9; Atlanta 14, New Orleans 13; Cincinnati 26, Kansas City 14; New England 27, Indianapolis 6; LA Rams 10, St. Louis 9; NY Jets 20, Buffalo 13; SF 49ers 23, Tampa Bay 3; and Dallas 17, NY Giants 14, believe it or not.

Texas Rangers tumble again; Angels' magic number is 22

by The Associated Press

In the American League East, Dave Stieb and Bob Stanley are at the 100 mark and still counting. In the American League West, the California Angels' magic number is 22 and dropping.

"It feels very good, but you try not to get caught up in it," Kirk McCaskill said Wednesday night after pitching a five-hitter that led California past Baltimore 5-2.

The victory gave the Angels a 7½-game lead over second-place Texas. California now holds its biggest margin of the season and its magic number for clinching the division is down to 22.

Stieb and Stanley both won their 100th career games Wednesday night. Stieb pitched seven-hit ball for 7 2-3 innings as Toronto beat Cleveland 3-1, while Stanley won in relief as Boston took its fifth straight by defeating Texas 4-3.

The win enabled the Red Sox to maintain their 4½-game lead over second-place Toronto.

Both Stanley and Stieb have been having their problems this season. Stanley, 6-5, won for the first time since June 30.

Stieb, who led the AL in earned run average last year, raised his record to only 5-10.

In other AL games, Oakland beat New York 5-3, Kansas City got past Chicago 2-1 in 10 innings, Minnesota ripped Milwaukee 11-5 and Seattle edged Detroit 3-2.

Baltimore lost Storm Davis, most likely for the rest of the season, with an ankle injury suffered in the third inning when he tripped over first base while making a play. X-rays taken at Anaheim Stadium showed that Davis severely tore a ligament in his left ankle.

Red Sox 4, Rangers 3

Wade Boggs, the leading hitter in the major leagues, went 3-for-5, including a solo home run and a game-winning, RBI double in the ninth inning at Fenway Park.

Blue Jays 3, Indians 1

Stieb allowed seven singles in 7 2-3 innings, his longest outing in nine starts since July 9, as Toronto beat visiting Cleveland.

Tom Henke finished for his 20th save.

A's 5, Yankees 3

Mike Davis' second triple of the game, a two-run shot during a four-run rally in the sixth inning, led Oakland over visiting New York.

Dave Stewart, 9-1, gave up nine hits in his third complete game of the season.

Rickey Henderson had two hits and two stolen bases and scored two runs for the visiting Yankees before leaving the game in the sixth. He jammed his right wrist in the fifth attempting to make a diving catch on Davis' first triple, and X-rays on Henderson's wrist were negative.

Mariners 3, Tigers 2

Pinch-hitter Ken Phelps hit a solo homer with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning, lifting Seattle over Detroit.

Royals 2, White Sox 1

Willie Wilson sped home from third base on rookie Kevin Seitzer's infield singles with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning, leading Kansas City over Chicago.

The Royals, shut out the previous two days by Chicago, tied the score 1-1 in the ninth on an RBI double by Steve Balboni. That marked Kansas City's first run in 31 innings against the White Sox, the longest the Royals had ever gone without scoring against an opponent.

Twins 11, Brewers 5

Kirby Puckett and Tom Brunansky hit two-run homers off Ted Higuera and Al Woods later added a three-run shot as Minnesota pounded Milwaukee.

Astros lead West by eight; snub Chicago in two games

by The Associated Press

The Houston Astros may have turned the final corner in their division race, while the New York Mets have moved into the homestretch of a runaway.

With a pair of victories over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, including the 18-inning conclusion of a suspended game from the day before, the Astros took an eight-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League West.

"It doesn't matter how long the day is if you win two," said Billy Hatcher, whose homer won the suspended game 8-7. The Astros got homers from Dickie Thon and Denny Walling to win the regularly scheduled game 8-2.

The Reds came into the day's play trailing Houston by 6½ games, hoping for two Astros losses and a victory of their own. That could have cut the margin to five. Instead, while the Astros won two, the Reds lost 5-3 to Pittsburgh in 10 innings.

The Mets, meanwhile, reduced their magic number to 10 over Philadelphia with a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants while the Phillies were losing 7-5 to the San Diego Padres. Bob Ojeda's three-hitter, matching a career best, helped the Mets take a 20-game lead over the Phillies in the NL East.

"Right now it's really anticlimactic," Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez said, "because it's a foregone conclusion that we're going to win it."

In the rest of the league, Los Angeles beat Montreal 5-3, and St. Louis defeated Atlanta 5-3.

Astros 8, Cubs 7
Astros 8, Cubs 2

Mike Scott won his 15th game of the season, striking out 12 and allowing three hits in seven innings as the Astros won the regularly scheduled game. Scott leads the majors with 253 strikeouts.

The first game was resumed in the top of the 15th inning. The two teams played 14 innings before the game was suspended Tuesday because of darkness with the score tied 4-4.

The Astros went ahead 7-4 in top of the 17th on RBI singles by Dan Dreissen and Kevin Bass and a run-scoring groundout by Jose Cruz. Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer in the bottom half of the inning to retie the score, but Hatcher, an ex-Cub, homered in the 18th for the victory.

Pirates 5, Reds 3

Sid Bream hit a two-out, two-run double in the 10th inning to boost the Pirates over the Reds.

Said Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose: "They outhit us, outscored us, and in scome cases outpitched us, but we'll be back on Friday."

Mets 4, Giants 2

Ojeda struck out seven and walked just one in his seventh complete game. He had thrown four previous three-hitters, all as a member of the Boston Red Sox. Ray Knight had two singles and drove in a run for the Mets.

Padres 7, Phillies 5

San Diego scored six unearned runs with two out in the top of the ninth inning to beat Philadelphia. Terry Kennedy's double drove in the final three runs of the inning.

Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer in the first inning, his 30th and the 488th of his career.

Dodgers 5, Expos 3

Bill Madlock drove in three runs with a pair of hits, and Ralph Bryant hit his second major league homer, a two-run shot, helping Los Angeles beat the Expos for the first time in six games in Montreal this season.

Cardinals 5, Braves 3

Terry Pendelton had four hits, including an RBI single in St. Louis' three-run first inning, and Todd Worrell earned a league-leading 31st save with 2 1-3 innings of relief work, leading the Cardinals over Atlanta.

Straley joins Duster court squad for 1986

Barbara Straley comes from Adamsville and Evant High School to play basketball for the Western Texas College Dusters this season.

Straley, 5-8, was a two-time all-district choice for Evant, averaging 15 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists.

An all-around athlete, she was a regional qualifier in the long jump in 1982 and 1984 and in the 400 meter relay in 1985 and 1986.

She was on the honor roll, a member of the Beta Club, the FHA and the pep squad. She aspires to be a CPA and wants to major in accounting.

"Barbara played post in high school and we'll probably move her to the second guard position," said Coach Kelly Chadwick. "She's a very physical player and a really good shooter. Her ball handling skills have got to improve, but we think she can make a good college ballplayer."

Edberg zips past Wilkison; American won't win Open

NEW YORK (AP) - Tim Wilkison's dream is over, and with it went America's chances for keeping its men's tennis championship at home.

Either a Swede, a Czechoslovak or a German will wear the U.S. Open singles crown on Sunday. The unseeded Wilkison, the last American remaining in the tournament, was routed by No. 4 Stefan Edberg of Sweden 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 Wednesday night.

"I know how much fun it is to do well and what is available for you," Wilkison said. "And I don't want to be the kind of guy who did well and then is never heard of again.

"I'm afraid of that and I will push myself to do well."

Edberg plays top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in a semifinal match on Saturday. Lendl beat No. 8 Henri Leconte of France 7-6, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 Wednesday.

In women's play, Chris Evert Lloyd, seeking her seventh Open title, moved into the semifinals for a record 16th straight year by romping past No. 9 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria. She'll play No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, who downed Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-4, 6-0, in one of Friday's semifinals while top-seeded Martina Navratilova will meet No. 3 Steffi Graf in the other.

Today's men's quarterfinals had No. 7 Joakim Nystrom of Sweden against No. 16 Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, and Boris Becker, the two-time Wimbledon champion from West Germany who is seeded third, against unseeded Milan Srejber, also of Czechoslovakia.

Wilkison took the tournament spotlight with his attacking style, celebratory manner and unorthodox baseball cap planted atop his head. The 27-year-old lefthander from Asheville, N.C., upset No. 5 Yannick Noah in a sensational five-setter earlier in the tournament, then swept Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union in the fourth round.

With American stars John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors eliminated early, Wilkison became the fans' hero, their hope against the powerful Europeans.

But Edberg, seeking his second Grand Slam championship - he won the 1985 Australian Open - took care of that in devastating fashion. He simply never let Wilkison get going, keeping the crowd out of the match as well.

"I felt I sort of let the people down," Wilkison said. "They came to see me win. At the end, when they left, it was quiet and cold and wet."

Writers pick Aggies as top team in SWC

DALLAS (AP) - Texas A&M is the pick of Texas sports writers and commentators to repeat as Southwest Conference Football champions.

The Aggies edged out Baylor with 183 1-2 points to 175 points among those on the 37th SWC Media Tour, which wound up Wednesday with a stop at SMU. Balloting was based on nine points for a first-place vote, eight for second place, seven for third, etc.

Texas A&M captured the SWC title with a 7-1 league mark and went on to defeat Auburn 36-16 in the Cotton Bowl for a final record of 10-2.

A&M received 11 5-6 first-place votes out of a possible 22 while Baylor captured 6 1-3 first-place votes. Fractions ensued from one ballot that predicted a two-way tie for first between Texas and Texas A&M and from another forecasting a three-way deadlock for first among Arkansas, Baylor and Texas A&M. Arkansas edged Texas for third place with 151 1-2 points to 148.

Texas was actually third in number of first-place votes, receiving 2 1-2 votes for the top position while Arkansas was given 1 1-3 first-place votes.

Balloting was as follows with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Texas A&M (11 5-6) 183 1-2; 2. Baylor (6 1-3) 175; 3. Arkansas (1 1-3) 151 1-2; 4. Texas (2 1-2) 148; 5. Texas Tech 100; 6. SMU 85 1-2; 7. TCU 73 1-2; 8. Rice 48; 9. Houston 25.

Individual balloting by the media also included the following: Texas A&M's Kevin Murray was chosen the Offensive Player of the Year, Texas Tech linebacker Brad Hastings was a narrow choice for Defensive Player of the Year, and TCU runningback Tommy Palmer was voted Newcomer of the Year.

Murray received 11 votes for offensive player honors while Baylor quarterback Cody Carlson was runner-up with five. Others receiving votes were Texas runningback Eric Metcalf (2), Arkansas runningback James Rouse (1), SMU runningback Jeff Atkins (1) and Texas quarterback Bret Stafford (1).

Hastings topped the defensive category with six votes while Arkansas noseguard Tony Cherico was second with five. Rounding out the voting was Texas A&M linebacker Johnny Holland with three, Baylor safety Thomas Everett and cornerback Ron Francis with two, SMU noseguard Jerry Ball with two and Baylor linebacker Ray Berry with one.

Newcomer honors went to Palmer with six votes, followed by: Texas' Ken Hackemack (3), SMU's Lynn James (2), Baylor's David Davis, Greg Anderson and James Francis (1), TCU's John Booty (1), Arkansas' Aaron Jackson (1) and Houston's Ed Thomas (1).

WILLIAMS LEARNING

ped. You don't just walk in and play the offensive line on talent alone."

The Jets had hoped Williams would be a cog in the rebuilding of their offensive line, although Williams had already made it known he didn't want to play in New York.

"I didn't want to go there in the first place and I said so before they drafted me," Williams said. "Even if they had hadn't cut me, I would have asked to be traded after the season was over."

Williams missed the Jets' minicamp and the first five days of training camp in a contract dispute. He ended his holdout July 25, signing a four-year, $925,000 contract.

The Oilers were quick to grab up Williams when his name appeared on the waiver wire.

Now he may figure in Houston's offensive line, also in turmoil with the holdout of starting tackle Harvey Salem, which forced a preseason shuffle of assignments.

Line coach Bill Walsh sees potential in Williams if he can learn the Oilers system quickly.

"He's got a lot of catching up to do but he was almost a first round draft pick," Walsh said. "He's very willing and has good strength, especially arm strength for pass blocking. He's just got to learn the system."

Williams, who finished his A&M career in the first year of Aggie offensive coordinator Lynn Amedee's tenure, is trying to learn his third offensive scheme in one year.

Hermleigh elects officers for 1986-87 booster club

HERMLEIGH – Hermleigh Booster Club elected officers for the upcoming school year this week.

Officers elected included Rex Reynolds, president; Dorothy Price, vice president; Liz Blair, secretary; Cathy Gannaway, treasurer; and Cathy Reynolds, membership chairman.

Club members discussed fund raising projects and selected a scholarship committee to set up guidelines for scholarships.

The group will hold its next meeting Tuesday, Sept. 9. Anyone interested in Hermleigh High School activities is urged to attend.

W. Texas eatery expands one nail at a time

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Ronnie Lewis, 30-year-old proprietor of Dos Amigos restaurant, beer garden and bull ring, admits he's sometimes compulsive about expanding his business.

One afternoon, while contemplating an empty house on his property, he decided it would make a good extra bar.

"I went and got my crow bar and a sledgehammer, and I said, 'Yeah, we can do it — we got three days,'" Lewis said, referring to preparations for the second annual C.C. Hutton Invitational Bull Ride in June, headlined by Eddy Raven. Hutton is Lewis's silent partner.

"We were through three hours before curtain time, weren't we?" said contractor Mike Pool. "Eddie Raven was here on Saturday night, and we were still pounding nails Saturday afternoon. We squeezed it all in."

Due to the time limit, though, Lewis was forced to use some new materials. That was a first for Dos Amigos, which has been built from the ground up with discarded windows, doors, stones and bricks.

"The things in this place came from all over town, all over the country," Pool said. A few of those places included a residence on Tanglewood, the Noll Mansion, and Crockett Junior High School. "It's a real challenge to come up with old stuff."

A customer once recognized a window that had hung in his home. Pool had remodeled the house and brought the window to Dos Amigos.

The patchwork extends to repairs.

During this year's late spring rainy season, "someone came in and said, 'Ronnie, fix the roof.' I said, 'You should have seen it before I fixed it.'"

Dos Amigos got started with the 1982 purchase of property that had served as a horse barn for 20 years. Lewis had been in construction business for 10 years prior to the purchase.

"In March, we started shoveling out the manure," he said. "I lived in the bar while we were building this place. This is where we dropped."

The place had a magic even then, Lewis contends.

"Everybody had ideas when they saw this place," he said. "The place looked like — well, it was wild," he said, suddenly at a loss for words. "The guys that sat around here and fed horses for 20 years were big community people."

Quite a bit of the "antique junk" found on the property was incorporated into the West Texas decor, but the empty Jack Daniels pints were discarded before Dos Amigos opened June 17, 1982.

Also decorating the interior is a vast assortment of business cards tacked to the walls and ceiling.

"Some of these have been here since day one," Lewis said. "Some people have three or four different cards up there."

One card is from Singapore.

"You look around, and you can find cards from anywhere," he said. "Midland, Kermit, England, France."

Five months ago, Lewis moved into yet another house next door to Dos Amigos. He lives there and shares the yard with his pets — two pigs, Inky and Binky; a dog, Cool Rockin' Loretta; and a baby bull, some chickens, goats and gold fish. Lewis now owns 17 lots in the neighborhood.

"Those pigs are cute though, aren't they?" asked Lewis, gliding swiftly between phone, grill, bar and kitchen as he prepares for the lunch crowd.

The restaurant did begin as a restaurant, featuring the first fajitas ever served in Ector or Midland counties, Lewis claims. Since then, the menu has expanded, most recently to include soft chicken tacos. Also expanding is the range of entertainment offered at the establishment.

Bull riding draws about 400 people every other Sunday. Austin bands such as Joe Ely, Omar and the Howlers and the Tail Gators draw even more.

The first bull ride was held in 1983 by Bad Company Rodeo.

"We had people camped outside the door, cowboys from all over the country," Lewis said. "It was phenomenal. What really got excitement going was people were saying, 'My God, they're fixin' to have a bull ride at a bar down the street.' At that time, everything was dirt outside. But it was western. That's the only way to describe it. It was solid western."

Since then, five other rodeos have opened within 100 miles of his establishment, Lewis said.

Charles Billingsley brought the first band to Dos Amigos. The venture was a success, and now the former Dos Amigos manager spends much of his time as a promoter. Billingsley also developed the fajita recipe, which is still a secret.

The last major physical expansion took place at the same time that the old house was converted to a bar. A larger stage was built to accommodate bands, and the Cowboy Club grew.

"That was the biggest move we ever made in one time," Pool said. "It took two solid weeks and 600 beers. That's how many beers we had on the tab. Some of it was trade out for beer and fajitas, just whatever. Some of it's been real money even. He usually feeds us."

But Pool and his crew have been getting tired of fajitas lately. "We'll be working here and go somewhere else for lunch," he said.

Lewis has decided catfish is the next great West Texas culinary fad, and has broken ground for a seafood wharf on the other corner of West 47th Street and Golder Avenue. It will simply be called Catfish.

Even now, "We're scheming what we can drag in and weld together," Pool said.

How is Dos Amigos able to expand when other businesses are going under?

"The food, entertainment and beer, it's been affected, but you can still come in here and drink two beers and have a fajita and spend less than $5. Some people come just to see it," said Lewis, who employes five full-time people and hires two or three part-time bartenders during special events.

"Dos Amigos could be in trouble," Lewis said. "It's a day to day deal. Success is getting to work in the morning.

"I feel it's a success to be here from where I was, but I'm not a wealthy person. I haven't had a vacation in I don't know how long. And I don't jump up and go to the horse races or go to the lake."

The saga of Dos Amigos isn't over yet.

"We're going to have two stories all the way around," Pool said, "one board and one nail at a time. It's all going to take 100 years."

Iranian personnel have released Soviet freighter

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iran today released the Soviet freighter which it had stopped in the Persian Gulf and forced to port in a search for material aiding Iraq's war effort, shipping executives said.

A second Soviet freighter, the Tutov, on Wednesday was allowed to continue its trip to an undisclosed Arab port in the gulf after it was detained briefly by Iranian warships, the executives said.

The Pyotr Yemtsov was intercepted Tuesday and taken at gunpoint to Bandar Abbas, 120 miles east of the United Arab Emirates, where it was unloaded, said the executives, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The vessel was seized during a voyage from the Black Sea port of Nikolayev to Kuwait, the sources said.

The Iranians examined the cargo and found it did not include material of military value, the executives said. The ship was reloaded, and the Iranians attributed their action to an unspecified "technical failure" in the Soviet ship, they said.

The Soviet Union is the main arms supplier for Iraq, which has been locked in war with Iran for six years.

It was the first time the Iranian navy had stopped Soviet vessels since Iran began intercepting freighters early in 1985.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov on Wednesday confirmed that the 11,750-ton Pyotr Yemtsov was "detained" off the coast of the United Arab Emirates but did not mention the Tutov.

Violence erupts in Soweto; mass funeral said blocked

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of black youths today burned barricades, stoned buses and marched in protest in Soweto as security forces fired warning shots and tear gas to block a mass funeral for at least 20 blacks killed by police.

Witnesses said one woman was killed when militant youths trying to enforce a protest strike chased her with whips in a train station and she fell in front of a train. They said a man was injured when he jumped from a train to escape the youths.

Tens of thousands of blacks in Soweto, the huge black township outside Johannesburg, joined the strike.

The Bureau for Information said eight people were arrested in a gasoline bomb incident, but gave no details. No casualties were reported.

"All Soweto has been declared an unrest area," said Brig. Gideon Loubscher, divisional police commander.

Police using tear gas and firing guns in the air blocked a mass funeral for blacks killed by police in the Aug. 26-27 riots in Soweto. Black clergy said they interposed themselves between mourners and security forces to prevent violence as mourners left the stadium with their hands raised.

"The funerals are off indefinitely," said Simeon Nkoane, Anglican bishop in townships east of Johannesburg, after he and other clergy met at St. Paul's Anglican church in Soweto to decide what to do.

The clergy had planned to defy a police ban on the mass funeral but yielded after police and soldiers surrounded St. Paul's. Witnesses said security forces fired tear gas near the church and two helicopters hovered overhead.

Nkoane said Sowetans would not accept police orders to bury the riot victims four at a time, and only on weekdays.

"People are angry. I've never seen them so angry," he said.

However, the Rev. David Nkwe, rector of St. Paul's, said police seized the bodies of 10 riot victims and buried them. It was not immediately clear whether the families of the dead agreed to the burials.

The South African Press Association said four riot victims were buried in separate services attended by 8,000 people.

Witnesses said police broke up a service for some riot victims at Regina Mundi Roman Catholic Church, and lobbed two tear gas canisters into a bus carrying people to a cemetery.

At the cemetery, witnesses said police fired more tear gas and moved in a dozen armored cars to disperse several thousand mourners.

More than 2,000 people had gathered for the planned mass funeral at Jabavu Stadium in Soweto's White City neighborhood. But witnesses said police entered the stadium and fired tear gas to disperse the crowd.

Some in the crowd said police removed two bodies that had been brought to the stadium.

Nkoane said clergy placed themselves between security forces and mourners who were leaving the stadium with their hands "raised high."

"At the height of this very sensitive situation, two black policemen fired guns in the air," he said. "What saved the situation was that there was a lieutenant there who was much calmer than the people under him."

Obituaries

Glocy White

Services for Glocy Lucy White, 81, of Andrews, former Snyder resident, will be at 10 a.m. Friday at Singleton Funeral Home Chapel of the Chimes. Graveside rites will be held at 3 p.m. at Snyder Cemetery with the Rev. Bob Harper, associate pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating.

She died Wednesday morning at Odessa Medical Center Hospital. She was born Oct. 26, 1904 in Tennessee. She was a housewife and was married to James Harvey White who died Nov. 16, 1960.

She is survived by a daughter, LaVerne Campbell of Eastland; four grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; two sisters, Zora McPherson of Sweetwater and Gladys Peters of Cassville, Mo.; two half-sisters, Nelta Macy of California and Hily Savage of Louisiana; two brothers, A. L. Kite of Farmersville and L. D. Kite of Abilene; two half-brothers, Bill Kite of Odessa and J. G. Kite of Gail.

Victor Tillison

Graveside services for Victor Warren Tillison, 72, of Park View Apartments, #1 14A, were to be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Loraine Cemetery with the Rev. Reta Richards, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Loraine officiating. Burial was to be under the direction of Kiker-Seale Funeral Home in Colorado City.

He died Tuesday at his home. He was born Sept. 12, 1913 in Loraine. He was a retired oilfield and ranch employee. He was married to Lela Bell Sanders. She died April 18, 1942.

He lived in and around Snyder for the past eight years, moving from Loraine.

He is survived by a daughter, Lanette Smallwood of Alice; two sisters, Opal Chamners of Snyder and Leona Linam of Loraine; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Air controller never saw Piper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The air traffic controller handling Aeromexico Flight 498 doesn't remember seeing the plane that collided with the DC-9 although the small aircraft was visible on radar screens for several minutes, officials said.

The controller was working at another position while directing the landing of the Aeromexico DC-9, said John Lauber, chief investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board.

An estimated 91 people died in Sunday's crash over suburban Cerritos after the Piper Archer collided with the DC-9.

The controller told investigators he did not recall seeing the Piper, Lauber told a news conference Wednesday night.

The controller also was working a hand-off position in the coastal control radar facility. In the hand-off position, the radar controller transfers incoming flights to controllers in the airport tower.

It is not unusual for one controller to be working both positions, and the controller considered air traffic to be light at the time, Lauber said.

Lauber also said the Piper had been tracked for about two minutes after entering restricted airspace surrounding Los Angeles International Aiport, and that if the pilot had seen the jetliner, "two minutes would have been plenty of time" to avoid a collision.

Safety board officials Wednesday used another Piper to repeat the final flight path of the single-engine Archer that collided with the jetliner at 6,500 feet in the Los Angeles Terminal Control Area, killing 67 people in both planes and an estimated 24 on the ground.

The wreckage plunged into a Cerritos neighborhood about 15 miles southeast of the airport, destroying 11 homes.

In Wednesday's flight, the plane showed up on radar screens with and without its electronic equipment operating, Lauber said. This appeared to confirm earlier digital readouts of the computer tapes from the air controller's radar, he said.

Asked how the controller could fail to see the small plane, Lauber said the controller had many other things to do at the time.

Earlier, Lauber said the radar signal emitted by the Piper's transponder showed its location, but did not indicate an altitude. Transponders broadcast a signal that produces an aircraft identification on radar screens and those operating in a certain mode show a controller the altitude.

Store incident prompts charge

Police jailed one man for driving while intoxicated and reckless conduct shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday following an incident on the parking lot of the Skinny's store on 37th St.

Store employees called police at 11:06 p.m. reporting two men in a pickup truck — possibly with guns — attempting to run over a black man on the parking lot.

No injuries were reported to any of the parties involved in the incident.

City officers also jailed a shoplifting suspect and investigated two other misdemeanor theft complaints Wednesday.

Officers arrested a 19-year-old male suspect on misdemeanor theft charges just after 1 p.m. when employees of Hasting's Books and Records reported having a shoplifter in custody.

Jason Warner of 3901 Ave. O filed a bicycle theft report at 5:55 p.m.

He told officers that his BMX-type bicycle had apparently been taken from outside his residence earlier in the day.

Diana Ballard of Rt. 3, Snyder filed the day's last misdemeanor theft report at 10:06 p.m.

She told officers that her purse had been taken from her pickup while the vehicle was parked at the Snyder Recreation Center in the 2400 Block of Ave. R earlier in the evening.

Day includes five accidents

Five traffic accidents — one called major on police reports — were recorded in Snyder Wednesday.

The major mishap was reported at 2:56 p.m. at the intersection of 35th St. and Ave. V.

Involved in it were a 1974 Mercury driven by Floyd Logan of 3601 Ave. U and a 1986 Oldsmobile driven by Lanette Crowder Patterson of Fluvanna.

Patterson noted possible rib injuries following the mishap but did not require medical treatment at the scene.

The same location was the scene for a second accident Wednesday, reported at 8:22 a.m.

Involved in it were a 1976 Ford driven by Howard Lee Limmer of 4504 El Paso Ave. and a 1982 Mercury driven by David Sisson of 3766 Dalton Dr.

The day's first accident occurred at 8:01 a.m. in the 2200 Block of 40th St.

Involved in it were a 1982 Oldsmobile driven by Nelma Bills of Rt. 2, Snyder and a 1977 Lincoln driven by Juan Perez Gutierrez of 2803 Ave. J.

Involved in the third mishap of the day were a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Vicente Gonzales Ramirez of 112 Ave. T and a 1970 Buick driven by Napoleon Gaither Bell of Rt. 2, Snyder.

That mishap was reported at 12:57 p.m. at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. M.

The fifth and final accident of the day — a hit-and-run incident — was reported at 4:58 p.m.

Dotty Hart of 3706 Ave. T told police her 1985 Nissan had apparently been struck by a vehicle which fled the scene while parked in front of her residence.

Mama's recipes whip up success

BENBROOK, Texas (AP) — Pedro Pulido was barefoot and had only four silver dollars in his pocket when he first arrived in the United States more than 40 years ago.

But he worked hard, never gave up his dreams, and today the 78-year-old man and his wife, Dionicia, have built a $7 million business.

The couple, who speak little English but understand the language, founded a chain of Mexican restaurants. The 13 restaurants across North Texas, employ some 300 people.

Known as Mama and Papa Pulido to most, the couple officially retired from the business seven years ago.

But they still report to work at 5 a.m. each day, spending most of their time in the restaurants' food preparation center in this Fort Worth suburb, making corn tortillas and chips.

"We never stop work," Dionicia Pulido said. "It is what we love."

Founded in 1966, the family-owned business is now managed by two of the Pulidos' sons, Robert and Rudy, along with a son-in-law, Edward Gamez.

The Pulido restaurant business all started more than 20 years ago when Dionicia Pulido made sack lunches of tamales, tacos and other Mexican recipes for her husband who worked at the T&P Railroad yards in Fort Worth.

Her special Mexican dishes caught on and soon she began getting orders from her husband's co-workers, along with many friends and neighbors.

"I love to cook," Dionicia Pulido said. "It was our dream to have a restaurant."

So, gathering after work each day for about six months, the Pulidos built their first restaurant in 1966. The restaurant still stands at 2900 Spring St. in Fort Worth — renamed Pulido Street earlier this year.

They spent just $300 to equip the new restaurant and called it Pulido's Restaurant.

It was a difficult start, but the business kept growing and in 1972, when the family opened its third restaurant, Pedro Pulido quit his job on the railroad.

"They were mobbed every night," Edward Pulido said. "The restaurant became so popular that they always had lines down the street."

Good food and a lot of hard work have made the restaurants such a success, Robert Pulido said.

"The business has grown so much because Mama's recipes are so good," he said. "Plus the whole family is very devoted to the restaurants so everyone is willing to work hard.'

Today, all the restaurants still use Dionicia Pulido's original recipes.

"Mama measures everything by handfuls and pinches, so at first we had to chase her around and get exact amounts on all the ingredients so we could write down the recipes," Robert Pulido said.

Although the Pulidos did not meet and marry until 1935, they both moved to the United States from Mexico in 1927.

Both came from large, poor families and had little education. "We always worked," Dionicia Pulido said.

They never expected their restaurant would be such a success, she said. "We expect to have only one restaurant. We could not do all this if we didn't come to America."

The Pulidos, who plan to open a 14th restaurant this year, say they have achieved all their dreams.

"This is our life," Dionicia Pulido said. "We give this to our children."

But despite their achievements, the Pulidos say they remain simple people. Dionicia Pulido still does her own housework and even has chickens in her backyard.

"They aren't the type who want to go to Europe or get a lot of nice clothes," Robert Pulido said. "That's just not their thing. They like a simple life with their family."

Okay sought for plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was awaiting a response today from Moscow on a plan that would free an American journalist accused of spying in exchange for an understanding that a Soviet physicist could be sent home after he stands trial on espionage charges.

The deal to liberate U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff would involve temporarily releasing Gennady F. Zakharov, the physicist who was assigned to the United Nations Secretariat, to the Soviet ambassador, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

There was no immediate response from Moscow to the proposal, the officials said.

The State Department would have favored release of Zakharov to the ambassador's custody before Daniloff's apprehension Saturday but was not consulted, said an official who spoke only on condition of anonymity. "That's standard procedure," he said.

However, a federal court in New York, acting on the advice of the Justice Department, turned down a Soviet request that Zakharov be turned over to Ambassador Yuri Dubinin until a trial date was set.

Daniloff, who was preparing to fly home after 5½ years in Moscow, subsequently was detained and jailed without formal charges, setting up the potential exchange now under discussion by diplomats in both capitals.

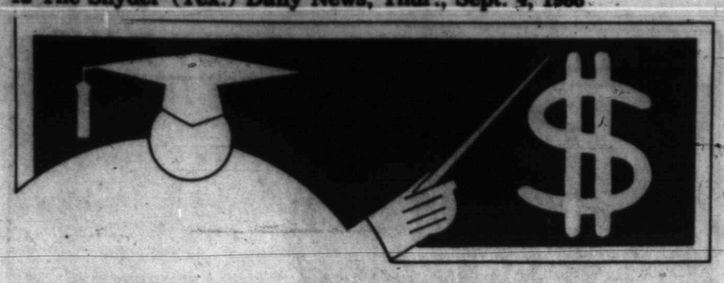

Zakharov was arrested by the FBI in New York on Aug. 23 and charged with spying.

U.S. officials, who insisted on anonymity, said Zakharov would face trial on spy charges under the proposal, but that there would be an "understanding" that he might be swapped in some future deal with the Soviets.

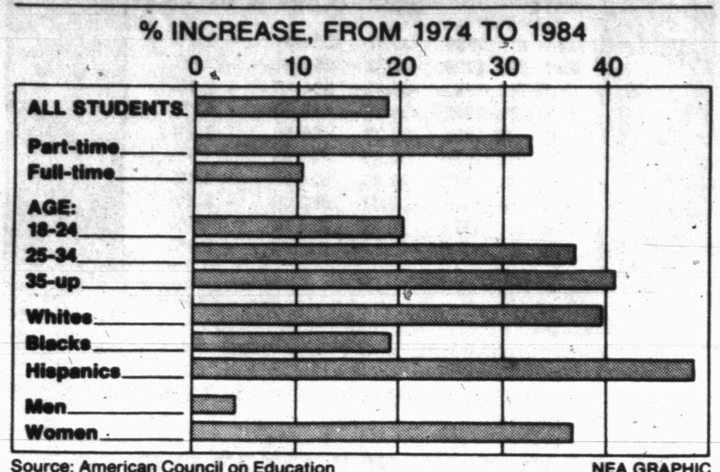

A similar deal in 1978 ultimately led to the release of five Soviet dissidents in exchange for two Soviets convicted of spying and sentenced to 30 years in prison.

The State Department is eager to seal the Daniloff-Zakharov deal before the 52-year-old Daniloff, the grandson of a general in the Czarist army, is charged.

"If it escalates, it will be harder to save face," said an official who insisted on anonymity.

Videotape can't be located

WASHINGTON (AP) — A videotape purporting to show American prisoners in Laos continues to elude government officials despite a multi-million-dollar offer from Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot and the intervention of Vice President George Bush.

A spokesman for Bush confirmed Wednesday that the vice president discussed the mysterious tape with Perot, who subsequently pledged $4.2 million in an effort to obtain it.

Perot said in a telephone interview that "I was asked by our government to pursue this thing, to get the tape if it existed, and I said fine, it's a long shot, but I'll be glad to do it."

It was the first time Perot's involvement in efforts to obtain the tape has been publicly disclosed.

When the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee held a hearing last month on the effort to obtain the tape, Brig. Gen. James Shufelt, deputy director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, referred to "an individual in the private sector who has agreed to assist in any way he can in helping acquire information to resolve this issue."

Shufelt never identified the individual who apparently was Perot.

The general said he didn't know if the individual "made a decision monetarily to support the effort."

The tape never was produced and the money never was paid.

However, Rep. Bill Hendon, R-N.C., another official who has played a major role in efforts to obtain the videotape, said Wednesday that "I am convinced of its existence and authenticity."

Hendon said he was shown a segment of the videotape by Robin Gregson, a British national who claims to have the evidence of Americans being held prisoner.

Hendon said the segment he saw "does not show any American prisoners" but, nonetheless, he added he remains convinced the full tape would provide such evidence.

"I won't go into the reasons," he said.

Marlin Fitzwater, spokesman for Bush, said the vice president discussed the tape with Perot and asked him to "take a look at the issues there and see if he thought they were legitimate."

But Fitzwater added that "I'm sure he (Bush) didn't ask him to make payments."

Perot said, "The fact that we have one American, a Special Forces major, who says he has seen the tape, makes it more than just some bogus thing floating out there in Asia."

He added that "the basic steps involved were to produce the tape, see the tape and if in fact the tape was what it was purported to be, at that point, pay for the tape and have it available to our government," he added. "So it was a kind of reasonably fail safe process in that you got (a chance) to look before you leaped."

Perot said of the videotape: "Like everything else around the POW-MIA thing, it's a will-o'-the-wisp."

The Dallas computer magnate first became involved in the POW issue in 1969 when he attempted to fly to Hanoi to deliver medical supplies and Christmas dinners to American POWs. He also financed a successful 1979 rescue mission to Iran to free two of his employees from a Tehran prison.

Retired Maj. Mark Smith told the Senate committee last June that he and Hendon went to Singapore in April with instructions from the Defense Intelligence Agency to offer $4.2 million to Gregson.

According to Smith, the money was on deposit in the Bank of America in Singapore when he attempted to obtain the tape.

Smith told the committee that Gregson, who also uses the name John Obassy, rejected the offer.

Smith testified that Gregson told him, "I didn't ask you for $4.2 million in cash. I asked you for support for these people in Laos. I have never asked for money."

The people in Laos were rebel forces fighting the communist government.

The major also told the committee he had seen the tape and that it showed Caucasians being held prisoner and forced to work in timber and mining operations in northern Laos.

De la Madrid only made excuses his opponents claim

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The opposition National Action Party, which boycotted President Miguel de la Madrid's state-of-the-union message in protest of alleged vote fraud, said the address only showed that the current government has been unable to solve Mexico's problems.

A detailed response to de la Madrid's Monday message said the president tried to blame all his administration's problems on events outside of his control, such as the abrupt decline in international oil prices.

"If the price of petroleum had not fallen, 'if' interest rates had not risen, 'if' Mexicans had ... et cetera, which only shows to us that the current government is not capable of solving the country's problems," the response said. It was distributed to news organizations late Tuesday.

The statement said de la Madrid "has tried to transfer historical responsibility for problems to external causes, exclusively, without recognizing internal errors."

De la Madrid had started his speech by noting the two disasters that hit Mexico in the past year, the earthquakes that devastated Mexico City last September and the "cataclysmic" fall in prices for oil, the nation's principal export.

The conservative National Action, known as PAN, is the largest minority party in Mexico.

It has 41 of the 400 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of Congress. The president's Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, which has not lost a presidential election or gubernatorial race in any of Mexico's 31 states since its founding in 1929, has 292 seats.

PAN had announced the boycott in protest of alleged fraud in the northern states of Chihuahua and Durango and the southern state of Oaxaca in state and local elections this summer.

The response said vote fraud "is not alien to the executive power."

De la Madrid had said in his speech that the Mexican constitution does not allow federal intervention to settle election disputes at state and local levels.

Seven hunger strikers from leftist parties lifted their vigil in front of the legislative palace on Sunday night on the promise that their complaints of fraud in Oaxaca would be reviewed.

The government newspaper El Nacional reported Wednesday that the Interior Department would review the complaints involving Juchitan, Oaxaca's second largest city, and "great are the possibilities that the recent elections might be annulled." The PRI defeated a leftist coalition that has been strong in the past in that city.

De la Madrid took office in December 1982 for a six-year term.

Medical chairman approved for post

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has returned to Gov. Mark White — at his request — the appointment of Kenneth Schorr of Dallas to the Texas Optometry Board.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said Wednesday if White had not withdrawn Schorr's appointment he would have asked the Senate to reject the nomination as a courtesy to Leedom.

"I don't even know the gentleman," Leedom said. But he said the Texas Optometric Association had taken a "hard position" against Schorr and he was abiding by the association's wishes.

Fred Niemann Jr., an Austin lawyer who represents the association, said a majority of the 1,000-member association felt that the consumer position Schorr was to have filled should be occupied by a person "who is truly independent with no ties to the optical profession" and Schorr did not meet that standard.

The Senate on Wednesday confirmed the appointment of Dr. Carlos Godinez of McAllen to the State Board of Medical Examiners. Godinez, board chairman, was one of eight board appointees who have defended themselves in recent weeks from claims by legislators and others that they were doing a poor job policing the medical profession.

Godinez said on Aug. 19, when he appeared before the Senate Nominations Committee, that the 15-member board had handled 669 complaints in 1985 and 271 disciplinary actions were taken. He was not present Wednesday when the committee, then the full Senate, voted on his appointment.

Committee chairman Chet Edwards, who has been critical of the board, said Wednesday, "I feel the board has made some sincere, positive steps in the right direction toward clearing up some problems I think existed for a long time at the board.

"I'd like to say I know Dr. Godinez has been on the receiving end of a great deal of questioning because he is chairman of the board and has served on it. I hope that it would be known that those questions were not designed specifically to criticize Dr. Godinez personally, and I have met with him in the last several days and am convinced he is making a legitimate effort to move ahead and make some significant changes at the board of medical examiners."

"I think in my voting today I'm not saying I'm convinced that all the problems have been solved, but I think we're moving in the right direction and Dr. Godinez has certainly shown a commitment to making some of the changes that we all feel need to be made," said Edwards, D-Duncanville.

The Senate on Wednesday also confirmed on a 28-0 vote the following appointments:

Battleship Texas Advisory Board — David Jones, Harris.

West Texas State University regents — Margo Fields and Burk Whittenburg, Potter; Dee Osborne, Harris.

Texas World Trade Development Authority Board of Directors — Edward Scott Jr., Potter.

Council on Disabilities — Reed Martin, Travis.

Justice 3rd Court of Appeals — Marilyn Aboussie, Tom Green.

Commission on Uniform State Laws — Edmund Wood, Dallas.

Session might be 'fruitless'

HOUSTON (AP) — Gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements predicted legislators would remain divided in a second special session and not reach a compromise on balancing the state budget.

The former governor also said Wednesday the budget shortfall could be met by reallocating about $2 billion in state funds not being used.

Clements said Wednesday evening after a Houston campaign rally he hopes legislators can balance the state budget in a second special session — but remains pessimistic.

"I think it's going to be the same song with the second verse," the Republican candidate said.

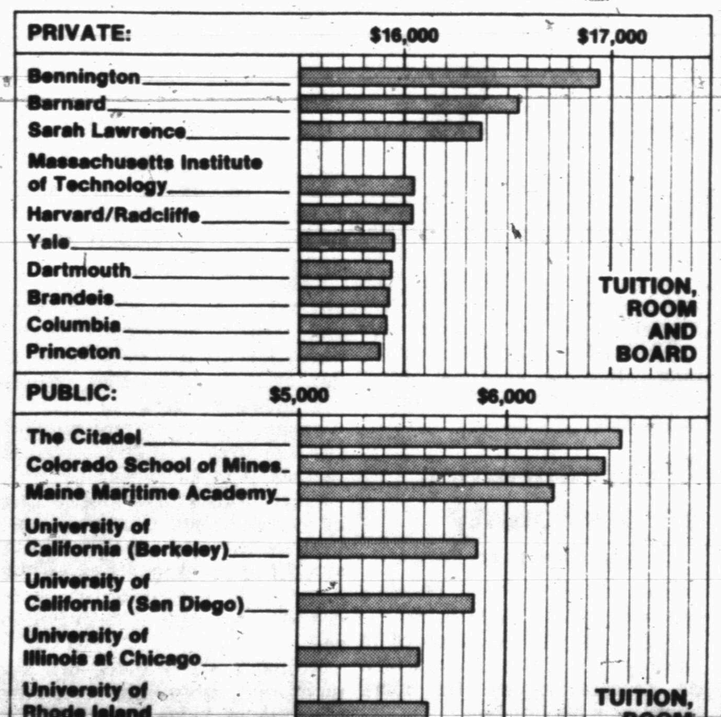

"I hope sincerely that they accomplish their purpose, but I'm afraid they will be unable to come up with compromises that we need for a solution," he said.

Legislators will get another chance beginning Monday to balance the budget in a 30-day special session after the present one ends today, House Speaker Gib Lewis announced in Austin.

Clements believes various state departments have about $2 billion in unused funds that could be transferred to make up shortfalls elsewhere, said campaign spokesman Reggie Bashur said.
