Grand jury to investigate oil deals

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Potential criminal activity surrounding five-year-old Getty Oil Co. land deals in West Texas will be considered by a Midland grand jury Sept. 16, District Attorney Al Schorre told the Reporter-Telegram Friday.

But even as that hearing progresses, more information will be gathered in a Sheriff's Department investigation that so far has lasted almost four months, said the district attorney.

"I don't anticipate that any indictments coming out will end the investigation," Schorre said.

The case — involving at least seven Midland oilmen and others around the state — has grown large enough to prompt two separate grand jury presentations: one Sept. 16 and another Sept. 23, Schorre said.

"It's not that the case is that complicated," Schorre said. However, the district attorney wants to make sure that the grand jury sees a thorough picture, he said.

Texaco Inc. referred the case to the Sheriff's Department May 20 after a perusal of Getty land department procedures in 1982-83 indicated the possibility of large-scale theft, Texaco attorney Glyn King has said.

The district attorney would not comment whether District 3 City Councilman Kelly Fish — a Getty landman during 1982-83 who was questioned during Texaco's initial investigation — would testify before the grand jury.

Fewer than 10 persons are scheduled to testify Sept. 16, Schorre said.

Charges that will be considered include theft over $20,000, a second degree felony, he said.

Texaco began routine "internal studies" of all Getty's departments after it bought the smaller oil company about two years ago, King has said.

But accounting discrepancies "in the hundreds of thousands of dollars" led Texaco to call in Sheriff Gary Painter's Oil Field Theft Division, the sheriff said July 23.

King has said that internal investigators found most Getty land department dealings up to industry ethical standards.

Other sources within the oil industry cited two possible scenarios that could prompt an investigation into land department dealings of any oil company.

A landman could use his company's inside or proprietary information on future mineral lease acquisitions to tip off a third party, who could in turn lease the property before the oil company does.

'Least suspected guy' in Homestead charged with rapes

HOMESTEAD, Pa. (AP) — A 22-year-old black man arrested in a controversial investigation in which police sought fingerprints from all the town's black men was charged Friday with raping five elderly women.

Mayor Steve Simko called the suspect, Dennis Foy, "the least suspected guy in town."

Foy, who is unemployed and lives with his parents in this struggling steel town outside Pittsburgh, had been arrested by another department on a stolen property charge. His fingerprints were sent to the Homestead police department, which matched them with prints from the rape scenes, Police Chief Christopher Kelly said.

Foy was charged with five counts of rape, one count of attempted rape, burglary, theft and receiving stolen property charges.

Kelly said Foy confessed to raping six women, ages 64 to 85 and all living alone, between Aug. 10, 1983, and Aug. 25, 1987. He said one of the women has since died and Foy would not be charged with her rape.

"These ladies can go on with their lives now," Kelly said Friday. "One lady called me right after she heard it on the news and she said, 'Let me hear it from you. Please, is it true?' I told her, 'Yes,' and then she began crying."

Kelly's strategy of asking black men to be fingerprinted drew fire from the American Civil Liberties Union, which said it violated blacks' constitutional rights, and Kelly was forced to defend his action on national television.

However, the effort had the support of most black and white residents, including Simko, and Kelly said Friday he would thank each man who had submitted to the fingerprinting.

"I'd do it again," Kelly said of the fingerprinting. "If he was white, I'd do the same thing...We were trying to stop a homicide."

Foy, who has no criminal record, was not among the 125 black men fingerprinted during a door-to-door canvass by police officers seeking information and asking for fingerprints.

Kelly said, however, Foy's name came up during interviews "as someone we might want to check out."

MPD officer fights crime on campus

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

Officer Dan Walkenshaw, the Midland Police Department's new school liaison officer, makes no bones about his role throughout the Midland Independent School District.

Fighting crime on campus is one of Walkenshaw's prime responsibilities.

"I have to," Walkenshaw, 47, said Friday. "My boss is the chief of police, and I'm bound by the rules of the Midland Police Department."

Since taking on the newly created job this week, Walkenshaw already has become involved in one on-campus juvenile detainment, he said.

While he allowed that the case dealt with an alleged possession of a prohibited weapon, the officer could not say which MISD campus was involved or relate other aspects of the case.

Confidentiality clauses in state juvenile law keep the officer from giving a full account of the detainment, he said.

Those laws present "a new challenge" to the 17-year law enforcement veteran, he said. Part of his role is advising school officials on aspects of the law.

And since he started devoting extra hours to studying state juvenile provisions, Walkenshaw has concluded they are pointed foremost toward protecting the child's own welfare.

"A juvenile has every right that an adult has and then they have other rights," he said.

In addition to laws broken by juveniles, Walkenshaw's law enforcement duties include investigation of incidents involving school property like vandalism and theft, he said.

But the officer's duties don't fall totally within the realm of law enforcement. A two-page job description also highlights the importance of promoting safety and positive school and community relations.

He recalled a basic safety presentation given to first and second graders earlier this week. When confronted with a man in uniform, "their eyes got this big," he said.

But Walkenshaw expects high schoolers to be less impressed by the uniform, which he likely will wear on campus only part of the time, he said.

Convenience store clerk killed in apparent robbery

From Staff Reports

A Town & Country Convenience Store clerk was shot to death late Friday during what authorities are calling an apparent armed robbery.

The clerk, whose name, age and address were withheld pending notification of family, was pronounced dead shortly after midnight by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe of Midland.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said the woman suffered at least two gunshot wounds during the shooting, which occurred about 11:30

Iran's possible interest in talks pushes oil prices down

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices slipped lower Friday, pressured by a report that Iran may be interested in negotiating an end to its war with Iraq in the Persian Gulf.

At the United Nations, Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Iran has agreed to discuss with him implementation of a U.N. plan to end the Iran-Iraq war. He said he will travel next week to both combatant nations to discuss the idea.

The news hit the market early in the afternoon, and analysts said it stirred a wave of selling after a session that had been otherwise sleepy, as traders looked ahead to the three-day holiday weekend.

On the the New York Mercantile Exchange, which will be closed Monday for the Labor Day holiday, contracts for October delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $19.32 per 42-gallon barrel, down 18 cents from Thursday.

Among refined products, October contracts for wholesale unleaded gasoline settled at 50.17 cents per gallon, down 0.22 cent from Thursday, while wholesale heating oil closed at 51.83 cents per gallon, down 0.37 cent.

Word of the report from the United Nations began sweeping through the market in early afternoon, when the near-term crude contract was trading around the $19.40-per barrel level. The contract then gradually dropped to a low of $19.20 before recovering about half its loss by the close.

Madison Galbraith, senior energy specialist for Merrill Lynch Energy Futures, said the news was bearish for short-term prices because a peace agreement "would allow immediate shipment of oil from Iran and Iraq in the Persian Gulf without any interruptions."

In a market already concerned about reports that members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are producing up to 3 million barrels a day more than the world needs, such new shipments could only add to the glut, pushing prices down.

Treating addiction 'life-long process'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Jones | Alsup | Welpmann

Treatment for alcoholism and other addictive diseases is a "lifetime process," Dr. Wilton Jones said Friday at the Permian Basin Mental Health-Mental Retardation's Johnson Center in Midland.

"It has to be a life-time of recovery," said Jones, who is chief of services and director of the addictive disease treatment program of the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Big Spring. "Treatment never ends. To think that you are ever out of treatment is absurd."

Speaking of his own experience in recovery, Jones said, "I can't have breaks; I can't have interludes."

Jones was one of three principal speakers at the Second Annual Luncheon, Open House and Information Program at Johnson Center, a residential intermediate-care treatment facility for alcoholism and other drug addictions.

The center, which until a year ago was a detoxification facility, operates a 90-day in-house treatment program and has room for

Iran, Iraq claim civilians killed in shelling of cities

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran and Iraq, in conflicting reports, claimed scores of civilians were killed or wounded in shellings of border cities Friday.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, said nine civilians were killed and more than 100 wounded by Iraqi artillery fire on the city of Sardasht before dawn. But the Iraqi News Agency reported a military spokesman in Baghdad denied Sardasht was shelled and quoted him as saying Iraq has "refrained from shelling any populated Iranian areas so far."

The Iraqi report in turn accused Iranian artillerymen of firing at three Iraqi urban areas.

It said nine civilians, including two children, were killed and 19 wounded in the southern port city of Basra. The report also said three civilians were killed and seven were wounded in "criminal Iranian shelling" of the northern Iraqi town of Sirwan and shells also hit nearby Qalat Dezah.

There was no report of serious fighting along the 730-mile front, but Friday's reports, monitored in Cyprus, indicated there might be a resumption of the "war of the cities" in the 7-year-old conflict between Iran and Iraq.

Iraq reported its warplanes bombed three Iranian oil fields and Iran said the fighter-bombers struck at "civilian locations," killing or wounding several people during religious ceremonies marking the Shiite Moslem holy day of Ashura.

Ashura marks the anniversary of the death of Imam Hussein, one of the Shiites' most revered figures, in the 7th century Battle of Karbala against Sunni Moslems.

Exhausted firefighters still battling blazes in the West

Associated Press

The lightning strikes that ignited the West tapered off Friday but exhausted firefighters had their hands full with nearly half a million acres of brush and forest fires, including a blaze within Yosemite National Park.

Up to 1,000 Army troops and even a small number of federal surveyors and secretaries prepared Friday for crash firefighting courses that would enable them to join nearly 20,000 firefighters, some from as far away as the East Coast, who were trying to contain the worst rash of fires in a decade.

Most of the scorched earth was in California, where 375,000 acres were blackened, and Oregon, where the total reached 75,000 acres.

"We've got a lot of tired people out in the hills," said Ray Naddy, a spokesman for firefighters in Oregon.

About 16,000 people were forced to flee the flames, all but 1,000 of them in California.

The Pentagon said Friday evening that nearly 1,000 soldiers from Fort Ord, near Monterey, Calif., would be trained today and be deployed Sunday, said Maj. Larry Icenogle, a Pentagon spokesman.

"They will be deployed to mop-up operations to free regular firefighters to hit the hot spots," said Tom MacKenzie, an Army spokesman in San Francisco. Dick Thomas, a spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management in Phoenix, Ariz., said the agency gave physical examinations to secretaries, surveyors and other employees to see who was qualified to join the battle in California.

As of late Friday afternoon, about 50 people, including at least four women, had passed the physical, and were slated for a day of firefighting training Saturday, officials said.

Lab worker apparently infected by AIDS virus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A laboratory worker with no other known exposure to the AIDS virus has become infected, apparently the first such case involving a research worker, federal officials said Friday.

The infected worker, who handled highly concentrated amounts of the virus, apparently became contaminated with the virus more than a year ago but there are no indications he or she yet has symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, they said.

"The worker has no known risk factors and investigators are unsure how the individual came to test positive for the disease," said a brief statement issued by the National Cancer Institute and it's parent agency, the Department of Health and Human Services.

"The laboratory in question produced and worked with highly concentrated AIDS virus unlike the concentration found anywhere outside a laboratory and a mishap in laboratory procedure is one avenue being explored by scientists," said the statement.

"Because of the many variants of HIV (AIDS virus) in nature, it is considered unlikely that the individual was infected from a source other than the laboratory," the statement said. "How the infection occurred is currently being investigated."

Jim Brown, an HHS spokesman, said the department believes there was no reason for laboratory workers to be unduly alarmed by the isolated case.

"We believe lab workers are safe following the (safety) procedures that are in place," Brown said.

Dr. Peter J. Fischinger, deputy director of the cancer institute, said in an interview that the worker was employed either at the National Institutes of Health, in Bethesda, Md., or at a Washington-area contractor for one of the NIH units.

Fischinger said that because of privacy considerations he had no information on the identity of the worker, his or her age or sex, or the job the worker performed.

Officials said said more specific information was not immediately available because health investigators working on the case are concerned with breaching legal confidentiality requirements protecting people who become infected with the virus.

p.m. Friday at the West Highway 80 convenience store.

Witnesses told authorities they found the woman lying on the floor after the robbery occurred and believed she was alive. But Painter said the clerk appeared to be dead by the time paramedics arrived.

Painter said authorities remain clueless as to what, if anything, was taken in the apparent robbery.

Although Painter said authorities have no suspects, he added they are looking for an older-model blue automobile in connection with the incident.

RECOVERY

12 clients — 10 men and two women.

Other speakers at the program were Clyde Alsup, director of the alcohol and drug treatment program at Big Spring State Hospital, and Dr. Joseph Wolpmann, medical director of Clearview Treatment Center in Midland.

In guiding the alcoholic and drug addict toward recovery, Jones said, "We can only give you the tools of recovery."

And in making an analogy to half-hearted-treatment efforts, Jones said "I'm tired of feeling like a car wash; I get you clean, but you don't take care of your car."

He said that treatment centers are dropping the term "after care" and are bringing in the term "continuing care" in their treatment programs."

Treatment must go on "until the day we are buried," he said.

"Treatment is not a short-term business," said Clyde Alsup. "These people do not recover in 28 days. That's only the bare beginning. To experience sobriety takes a long time."

Alsup said that addictive people who have admitted that they "were powerless over alcohol" have done a "tremendous job" in their quest "to start the process of getting well." And the recovering alcoholic's decision to turn his will and life "over to the care of God" takes time.

Fifty percent of patients in America's hospitals are there because of a "direct or indirect result of some type of substance abuse," Alsup said. He noted that the use of alcohol and cocaine are decreasing somewhat but that the use of narcotics and sedatives are increasing.

Joseph Wolpmann cited the "desperate need" for treatment facilities, such as Johnson Center, for the medically indigent. "The need has not been diminished."

Treatment centers such as Johnson Center help people turn their lives around, get off of welfare rolls, and get out of crimes which had supported their "lifestyle" of drug abuse, he said.

"We have accepted in this community that we have a problem," Wolpmann said and noted that Johnson Center's 12 beds are inadequate for a community the size of Midland.

"We're just kind of kicking a little dust in the face of the (drug) problem," Wolpmann said.

Bill Collett, Johnson Center's coordinator, counselor and staff supervisor who emceed the event, said the center needs to be expanded to serve more people addicted to alcohol and other drugs. William "Bill" Pettit, chairman of the Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR, introduced guests at the luncheon.

Earlier in the luncheon, which was attended by about 45 people, Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas said that the "city depends on it (Johnson Center) very heavily. The community is very proud of it. I think it is an excellent program and an asset to the community.

"Unfortunately," he said, "it's in a very much needed area."

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders, a retired FBI special agent and former Midland city judge, said he really enjoys "working with people who need help."

As city judge, Ahders said he was introduced to Alcoholics Anonymous to help the suffering alcoholic and "became so enthralled" with the AA program for recovery and with the help which AA and Palmer Drug Abuse Program offer people whose lives are adversely affected by alcohol and other drugs.

"With God's help," Ahders said, "they help so many people."

DEATHS

Myrtle Price

SWEETWATER — Myrtle Price, 78, died in a Sweetwater hospital following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in the Thomas Funeral Chapel with Rev. O.J. Archie, pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial was to follow in Fairview Cemetery with Thomas Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

She was born Sept. 27, 1908, in Texas and had been a resident of Midland for 40 years. She moved to Sweetwater in 1984.

Her husband, Willie D. Price, died April 1, 1984.

She is survived by her son, Johnny Moore of Sweetwater.

MC enrollment up five percent from last year

From Staff Reports

With just over a week left for late registration, Midland College is reporting five percent more students than at the same time last year.

Midland College will be closed Monday for Labor Day. Tuesday is the final day for persons to sign up as full-time students, taking as many as five classes.

Those who want to take up to three classes can register as late as Wednesday, Sept. 16. Hours are 8 a.m.-6 p.m. except Friday, when the hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Late registration is handled in the Student Services Office, Administration Building.

By Friday morning, the registrar's office was reporting 3,467 students enrolled for credit courses. That's 178 more than the 3,289 who had enrolled at the same time in 1986.

Final count last fall was an all-time record 3,683.

"There's no doubt we will have more students this fall when we conclude registration," said Dee Windsor, associate dean of students and registrar. "For these last few days it depends on which classes the students want to take."

Although administrators had been predicting, and planning for, around 4,000 students this fall, there still are some closed classes.

"It's still possible for students to get into classes," said Dr. Ray Yell, vice president for instruction. "Some of the most popular classes are closed even with the additional sections that were created. Some of our lab courses also have closed due to space or equipment limitations."

Yell explained that counselors are able to assist students during late registration with obtaining classes they need, although they might be at less desirable times.

"The best thing is to come in and talk with the counselors in person rather than assuming classes are not available," Yell said. "With our computerized system, we know the enrollment in each section and which sections still have vacancies. We're doing everything we can to accommodate the students."

Yell also noted that interested persons can obtain information on classes which have openings by calling 683-4501.

OFFICER

The officer has received offers of office space at both Midland high schools and at Midland Freshman High School, he said. He readily will use all three, but expects to spend time on each campus as the need arises.

While his role is not in an undercover capacity, Walkenshaw already has gleaned information merely by his on-campus presence that he believes would not have otherwise become known to the police department.

That information has to do with likely locations of illegal student conduct — drug deals and the like — in the alleyway south of Midland High School and Illinois Avenue and near the baseball diamonds west of Lee High School.

Acting on the information is a tricky matter, the officer said. "It's kind of like you know where speeding is happening, but you can't stop it," he said.

A solution to the problem comes in "being there every day," he said, and it's a solution that the police department is addressing in the creation of Walkenshaw's new job, he said.

At least one Midland High School senior, 16-year-old Ramone Andrade, welcomed the officer's presence on campus.

Andrade hoped the officer would help "keep a lot of kids from carrying drugs into the school, keep a lot of kids from fighting (and) keep them from skipping."

For Walkenshaw's part, he is confident that "we're breaking new ground in this position.

"With the total support I'm getting from the school system, it's exciting," he said. "There's no doubt that it's going to work."

When the oil company decides to lease the property, the third party could re-lease it at an inflated price and split the profits with the company landman.

Or in another scenario, the landman could tip off a business partner who would use the inside information to buy outright the mineral rights to a property the company was looking to lease.

The business partner — acting as an independent broker — then could lease the property directly to the oil company at an inflated price and once again split the profits with the landman.

In connection with that second scenario, oil industry sources speak of a practice known as "double-dipping," which gives the company landman an extra level of separation from the ultimate company deal.

Under that practice, the business partner leases the mineral rights he and the company landman own to yet another independent broker in on the scheme, who in turn re-leases the property to the oil company.

In that case, the company landman could garner illegal profits two times — once when leasing with his partner to the independent landman and a second time when the independent leases back to the oil company.

Oil industry sources said independent landmen often are contracted by company landmen to do actual "field" work because of the volume of drilling prospects they encounter — especially during boom times.

On Aug. 4, Painter acknowledged at least seven men — all listed in the Midland City Directory as having full- or part-time oil-related occupations — were a part of his investigation.

Three of the seven were listed in the 1986 city directory as independent landmen; one was an oil and gas operator; a fifth was listed as an oil and gas investor; and two were listed with affiliations to independent oil-related companies.

Emmett prepares bid for RRC

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Former state Rep. Ed Emmett of Kingwood is preparing to announce his 1988 bid for the Texas Railroad Commission.

Emmett, 38, will seek the Republican nomination to run against incumbent Democratic Commissioner Jim Nugent of Kerrville. A four-term House member and former chairman of the House Energy Committee, Emmett is currently executive director of TEX-AID, an organization that successfully lobbied for trucking deregulation during the spring legislative session.

Perennial candidate John Thomas Henderson, who switched from the GOP last year, also plans to challenge Nugent for the Democratic nomination. Henderson finished second to former Rep. Milton Fox of Katy in the 1986 Republican primary for Railroad Commissioner and was the unsuccessful Republican nominee in 1984.

Emmett finished third behind Fox and Henderson in last year's GOP primary. He has called a Capitol press conference for Tuesday morning to announce his intentions.

A second Railroad Commission race will involve Republican Kent Hance, whom Gov. Bill Clements has appointed to replace resigning Chairman Mack Wallace, and Democratic state Rep. Clint Hackney of Houston.

75,000 'Winter Texans' generally find warm reception in Valley

EDINBURG (AP) — More than 75,000 "Winter Texans" flocked to the sunny shelter of the Rio Grande Valley in the 1986-87 season, pumping $154 million into the economy, the authors of a new economic study said Friday.

Although some of the Winter Texans, mostly retired Midwesterners, had some complaints of cultural clashes with the local population, more than a third said they didn't have any particular problems, according to the census and survey of consumer spending habits.

The study was compiled by Pan American University business professors Dr. Vern Vincent and Dr. Gilberto de los Santos.

The actual number of visitors in the Valley probably was higher than the 75,700 they found in February at the peak of the season, the professors said. They did not count the total who pass through the Valley and stay for various lengths of time during the season, generally considered to last from November to April.

Nearly 70 percent of all Winter Texans visiting the Valley came from the Midwestern states, with Minnesota and Iowa accounting for about 26 percent of the total Winter Texan population.

Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Kansas, Montana and Canada followed in representation, along with various other states and countries.

"Certainly, their numbers are growing," de los Santos said, adding the area every year becomes an increasingly important destination for retirees.

The researchers surveyed 100 park owners, operators or managers of the 491 facilities listed in the "1987 Recreational Vehicle and Mobile Home Park Directory for the Texas Rio Grande Valley," and studied questionnaires returned by 1,222 Winter Texans.

The most frequent complaint from visitors in the new survey was that 14 percent were offended when local residents spoke Spanish in their presence.

Some felt that the Spanish speakers were talking about them, de los Santos said, adding, "or they think this is America, so everybody should speak English."

About 8 percent complained about bad drivers, but included other Winter Texans among the offenders, and 7 percent listed gasoline prices as a minor problem.

DPS officials say traffic deaths may number 42

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Public Safety officials predict the Labor Day weekend traffic death toll may reach 42.

The official counting period began at 6 p.m. Friday and will continue through midnight Monday, DPS spokesman David Wells said Friday.

The toll predicted is slightly lower than the 48 deaths reported for the 78-hour holiday period in 1986. Last year three more victims died later as a result of injuries.

"Overall, the number of fatalities and traffic accidents have seen a decrease," Wells said. "The main reason we're putting out the estimate is because we're just hopeful people will be more cautious when they're driving."

Wells said officials hope the new open-container ban law will have a positive impact.

Officials to issue alert after pool chemical fire

EL PASO (AP) — Fire officials plan to issue a nationwide alert warning against storing two swimming pool chemicals together following a fire at an El Paso store, an investigator said.

The fire, which started when a 14-year-old boy was playing with chemicals in the swimming pool section of a hardware store, sent 29 people to the hospital and caused $100,000 damage.

The boy, whose name was not released, "spilled the liquid accidentally, and it was very reactive with another product on the shelf, which started a chemical fire," investigator Richard Cuellar said Thursday.

No one was seriously hurt in the Aug. 19 fire, although three people were hospitalized overnight. Fire sprinklers apparently allowed the chemicals to mix even more, causing clouds of fumes to billow out the doors of the evacuated store.

Fire department officials would not identify the chemicals, citing fear of lawsuits from chemical manufacturers and concern that children would deliberately mix the substances to cause fires.

At the time of the accident, fire officials said they thought hydrochloric acid had mixed with powdered chlorine. They also said liquid mildewcide might have been involved.

Authorities were not aware the two chemicals were reactive, Cuellar said, adding that during testing of the products involved, "within three seconds, we had fire."

He said the department will send out a nationwide advisory.

Officials want to send their findings to the National Safety Council for "a more professional opinion," Assistant Fire Chief Don Johnson said.

Cuellar said a charge of criminal mischief against the El Paso County youth was declined by the Juvenile Probation Department.

Parents file suit against fraternity over son's death

DALLAS (AP) — Parents of a University of Texas student have filed a $40 million lawsuit filed against Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and 10 of its members over the alcohol-related death of their son.

Joan and Jeffrey Seeberger filed the suit Wednesday in a Dallas state district court seeking $40 million in punitive damages and unspecified actual and compensatory damages for their son's Sept. 18, 1986, death.

The lawsuit charges that their son, Mark, consumed 16 ounces to 20 ounces of rum in two hours to four hours and died of acute alcohol poisoning.

An autopsy revealed Seeberger's blood alcohol content was 0.43, more than four times the 0.10 level of legal intoxication in Texas.

No criminal action was taken against the fraternity, although a Travis County grand jury criticized the fraternity and the university's weak anti-hazing laws.

The lawsuit names as defendants Phi Kappa Psi's Texas and national organizations; Texas Alpha Educational Foundation, which owns the fraternity's Austin chapter house; and 10 individuals.

Phi Kappa Psi in Austin did not return calls to The Associated Press Friday.

The suit says that several fraternity members are liable because they bought or made alcohol for Seeberger, who was 18, three years shy of the legal drinking age. The Seebergers also claim that the members were negligent because they failed to ensure Seeberger's health and safety.

Seeberger was taken on a "ride," a practice in which fraternity initiates are driven to an unfamiliar location and left, often intoxicated, to walk home. He was led from his home in handcuffs, put in a van and instructed to drink and sing fraternity songs, the suit says.

The suit says Seeberger's companions apparently recognized he was too intoxicated to be left and took him back to his dormitory.

Seeberger was unconscious when he was put to bed. At 9:45 a.m., Seeberger's roomate discovered Seeberger had no life signs.

Five independent plans submitted to Energy Department

Associated Press

Texas has entered seven bids for the multibillion-dollar "super collider" research project.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, which coordinated a statewide contest for site proposals, formally submitted bids for the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Amarillo.

But five independent site proposals also reached the U.S. Energy Department before Wednesday's filing deadline.

Edward Bingler, executive director of the state's research laboratory commission, said state officials had expected two of the five additional bids but were surprised by the remaining three.

The anticipated entries came from Garden City in West Texas, near Big Spring, and for a site near El Paso.

The other three involved sites in southeast Texas, Jim Sherwood of the Department of Energy's Washington, D.C., office said Friday.

According to the Energy Department, a total of 42 proposals from 25 states were submitted in the nationwide competition for the super collider, a 52-mile-long underground atom smasher that will be used for high-energy physics research.

STATE in brief

Ex-lab worker sues hospital

BEAUMONT (AP) — A former laboratory technician contracted AIDS at the hospital where she worked and has since spread the disease to her family, according to a lawsuit filed in the case.

Dana Brooks claims she contracted the fatal disease while working at the Baptist Hospital of Southeast Texas in 1980, according to the suit.

Baptist hospital allegedly failed to "institute proper protocols for dealing with blood in the laboratory and in the hospital," and "provide laboratory technicians including Dana Brooks with proper protective equipment," the lawsuit contends.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome cripples the body's ability to fight disease.

Ms. Brooks claims she spread the disease to her husband George and her unborn child, Dera Brooks, who is now 1. The suit filed in state district court seeks unspecified damages.

Hospital spokeswoman Ann Blackburn said officials could not comment on litigation.

Women join LULAC chapter

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The first women have joined a League of United Latin American Citizens council whose membership has been all-male since 1929.

Seven women were admitted to LULAC Council No. 1 Thursday following a closed door meeting and vote on several applications.

The women are: Nueces County Court-At-Law No. 3 Judge Hilda Tagle; Janey Berlanga Castillo, an advertising executive; Eva Rodriguez, a real estate agent; Elizabeth De Los Santos, an insurance agent; Amada Gorham, a teacher; Alice Gonzales, a nurse; and Celeste Boyd, a lawyer.

Delegates at the LULAC national convention in Corpus Christi this summer voted to allow women into all LULAC councils, although some already were allowing women to join. As a result of the vote, all-female councils were formed in some areas, while other councils allowed both males and females to join.

Minor fire damages STNP

BAY CITY (AP) — A minor fire damaged a 12-foot-square electrical transformer at the South Texas Nuclear Project, Houston Lighting & Power Co. officials said.

The cause for the 10-minute blaze Thursday was not immediately known, and the company was investigating. The fire occurred outside the north end of the Unit 1 turbine building, spokesman Glen Walker said.

The transformer was being returned to service after maintenance when the blaze occurred, Walker said.

Federal Reserve raises discount rate; Banks then hike prime rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve, flexing its inflation-fighting powers under new Chairman Alan Greenspan, raised its discount rate on Friday for the first time in three years, prompting major U.S. banks to boost their prime lending rate.

The Fed increased its discount rate, the interest it charges on loans to U.S. financial institutions, from 5.5 percent to 6 percent, the first time this key lending rate has been increased since April 1984.

Major banks immediately followed the Fed's move by raising their prime lending rates by one-half percentage point as well to 8.75 percent, the highest level for the prime rate since March 1986.

These interest rate increases followed three weeks of turmoil in financial markets as investor worries over inflation spurred by the falling U.S. dollar had sent a variety of interest rates to levels not seen since early 1986.

Analysts predicted that consumer interest rates on everything from credit card purchases to home mortgages will be headed higher now.

Later Friday, the Veterans Administration announced that it was raising its maximum interest rate for federally backed VA mortgages one-half percentage point to 10.5 percent, effective on Tuesday.

The Fed action on the discount rate had not been unexpected although there was some surprise that the increase came less than one month after Greenspan succeeded Paul Volcker. Many economists had been predicting that Greenspan would take more time to learn his new job before making any dramatic change in Fed policies.

Greenspan, a respected conservative economist who had been chairman of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, won easy Senate confirmation although some questioned whether he would move as quickly as Volcker to impose a tight-money policy if it appeared that inflationary pressures were growing. During his eight years as Fed chief, Volcker was praised for policies which helped eliminate double-digit inflation.

"This shows Greenspan is willing to do what it takes to fight inflation and he was getting a bum rap from people who said he would be unwilling to slow the economy in an election year," said Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm.

The Reagan administration, which at times in the past had criticized Volcker's tight-money policies, voiced support for the discount rate increase, saying it would help keep alive the recovery, already the longest peacetime expansion.

Committee reports on five additional powers

Associated Press

1787 Constitution Daybook

Wednesday, Sept. 5, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Today's Pennsyvlania Gazette reported, "We hear that the Convention propose to adjourn next week, after laying America under such obligations to them for their long, painful and disinterested labors, to establish her liberty upon a permanent basis."

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Once again, only New York, New Jersey, Virginia, and Dane (Mass.), Irvine (Pa.), Ross (Md.), Ashe (N.C.) and Pierce (Ga.) attended Congress. Lacking a quorum, the body could not meet.

Virginia delegate Richard Henry Lee wrote from New York to his old colleague and political ally John Adams in London:

"We lately have contracted for the sale of six millions of Acres on the N.W. side of Ohio in the ceded territory, for lessening the domestic debt. And now another offer is made for two millions more. I hope we shall at least be able to extinguish the domestic debt created by the late war, which is by far the greatest part of the debt. So many of our Members have lately gone from hence to the Convention, that we have had but five States in Congress for a month past, which has prevented any determination on your application to return. It seems at present very doubtful whether there will be any Resident appointed to the Court where you are — Some being for a Minister, some for a Charge, and some for neither but a Consul only. How it will terminate can scarcely be conjectured yet."

CONVENTION TODAY

Chairman David Brearley (N.J.) of the Committee on Unfinished Parts reported five additional powers to be given Congress.

One was the power to raise and support an army, provided that no appropriation would be valid for more than two years. Elbridge Gerry (Mass.) objected to allowing appropriation for an army to run two years — "it implied there was to be a standing army which...(was) dangerous to liberty, as unnecessary even for so great an extent of Country as this, and if necessary some restriction on the number and duration ought to be provided." Roger Sherman (Conn.) remarked that appropriations were permitted, not required, and Congress might not be in session when money was needed if appropriations ran only one year. The proposal passed without further debate.

Discussion of the electoral college resumed, with objections centered on having the Senate elect from the five leading candidates when no one had a majority. Among those objecting were Charles Pinckney (S.C.), John Rutledge (S.C.), George Mason (Va.), Hugh Williamson (N.C.) and Edmund Randolph (Va.); Robert Morris (Pa.) thought that the Senate would decide less often than those objecting thought. A number of amendments to alleviate the problem were proposed and defeated before the Convention adjourned for the day.

DELEGATES TODAY

Nathaniel Gorham (Mass.) borrowed 36 pounds from fellow delegate Robert Morris (Pa.) to pay his board bill and for the trip home.

James McClurg (Va.) wrote from Richmond to give James Madison some long-distance medical advice.

"I am not surprised that you have been indisposed, at this season, with such a weight of business upon you. I am more surprised that you have been able to persevere in the application, which that business required. I hope you will never take a moment either from that, or from the relaxation which it renders necessary, on account of such a correspondent as myself, who would readily give up the satisfaction he takes in your letters, for the pleasure of hearing that you are in health."

LOOKING BACK
Militia or Standing Army

Elbridge Gerry's fear of a standing army may seem strange in 1987, yet all of the delegates, including the former commander in chief, shared his concern. All were aware of ancient and modern examples of military takeovers; all remembered the unwelcome presence of a standing army in the American colonies before the Revolution.

No American has ever been more aware of the need for civilian control of the military than Washington, who, as commander of the Continental Army and as president did much to ingrain that principle.

However, while most of the delegates, even such a thoroughgoing republican as Roger Sherman, recognized that a small standing army would be necessary, Gerry did not. Not having fought, and basing his judgment on Concord and Bunker Hill, Gerry would have relied for defense on militia. Washington, with a different experience, would have agreed with the definitive assessment of militia made by Virginia militia Gen. Edward Stevens to Gov. Thomas Jefferson in February 1782:

"If the Salvation of the Country had depended on their (militia whose time of service was up) staying Ten or Fifteen days, I don't believe they would have done it. Militia won't do. Their greatest Study is to Rub through their Tower (tour) with whole Bones."

Illinois publisher's nephew held for $1 million ransom

Small

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — A nephew of a prominent newspaper publisher and great-grandson of a former Illinois governor was kidnapped and was being held for a $1 million ransom, police said Friday.

Stephen B. Small, 39, was abducted about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday from a building he owned and was renovating in Kankakee, about 60 miles south of Chicago, Police Chief Timothy O. Nugent said.

Small went to the building, designed by architect Frank Lloyd Wright, after someone identifying himself as a police officer called to say the building had been burglarized, Nugent said.

"We have several suspects and several clues," Nugent said at a brief City Hall news conference. "We're not prepared to go beyond that at this time."

The FBI and the state police also were investigating, but there had been no arrests by late Friday, said Thomas F. Jones, FBI special agent for central and southern Illinois. "We're still questioning a number of suspects."

Nugent would not comment on whether Small's life had been threatened, saying, "There's no reason at this time to assume anything one way or another.

"Obviously the family and the law enforcement community are concerned about the safety of Mr. Small," Nugent said. "We're obviously hoping for his safe return."

Police said the kidnap had no relationship to Small's business dealings.

"We've looked into a lot of different areas, but his business dealings are not a concern of ours," Nugent said.

Small is descended from former Illinois Gov. Len Small, a Republican who served as the state's chief executive from 1921 to 1929, and is a nephew of the late Len H. Small, who was president of Small Newspapers Inc. and editor and publisher of The Daily Journal of Kankakee.

A telephone caller told Small's wife about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday that her husband had been kidnapped and demanded a $1 million ransom, Nugent said.

Surrogate mom who wants contract canceled has twins

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A surrogate mother who is suing to cancel her contract gave birth Friday to a boy and a girl.

The twins were born shortly before noon and were listed in fair condition, said Sparrow Hospital spokeswoman Carol Schwing. The mother, Laurie Yates of Ithaca, was listed in good condition.

The twins were conceived through artificial insemination after Mrs. Yates signed a contract with Barry Huber, a farmer from Jonesboro, Ark. The contract was arranged by Dearborn attorney Noel Keane, who also arranged the "Baby M" surrogate contract.

Mrs. Yates had agreed to let Huber and his wife, Glinda, adopt the babies but changed her mind and sued last month in Gratiot County Circuit Court to have the contract voided, saying it amounts to "involuntary servitude."

The suit also alleged that Mrs. Yates was coerced into submitting to two inseminations after a July 1986 miscarriage that should have canceled the contract.

Mrs. Yates already had two children.

The Hubers filed a countersuit Monday seeking custody and temporary foster care for the twins until the case is decided.

Michigan has no law covering surrogacy arrangements.

Orphan girl succeeds 'past wildest dreams'

BRAINTREE, Mass. — A few months ago, Maria Andy lived in an orphanage high in the Andes, maneuvering her crippled body around by "scooting along on her bottom."

These days, the 7-year-old girl is learning how to walk for the first time on a set of plaster casts and crutches while she awaits the fitting of artificial legs next week. And she's learned enough English to memorize and recite the telephone numbers of several new American friends.

"It's been unbelievable. She's succeeded past our wildest dreams. She's a fighter," said Dr. Martin Dunn, who helped arrange Maria's journey from Ecuador to Boston with a charity group, Por Cristo.

As an infant, Maria was rescued by nuns just as her parents were about to throw her into a bonfire. She had been born with severe scoliosis, or curvature of the spine, and used to move around "by jumping like a monkey," dragging her twisted, useless legs behind her, Dunn said.

Now, five days a week, she spends an hour in physical therapy at a rehabilitation center south of Boston.

There, she is learning to stand up straight for the first time in her life. She is coaxed into doing exercises by therapists who joke with her in English. Two little girls, sisters from Nicaragua who are bilingual, accompany Maria and the three blow bubbles at the end of the therapy session as a reward.

"She's pretty daring," said Debbie O'Neill, one of her therapists. "She's scared me a couple times with what she tries to do, but she's not scared at all."

Nicaraguan president's wife visits injured peace activist

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The wife of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega arrived Friday night with five of her children to visit a peace activist who lost his legs when he knelt in front of a munitions train, aides said Friday.

Rosario Murillo, Ortega's common-law-wife, said she had met S. Brian Willson in Nicaragua and was impressed by the strength of his convictions.

"I got the feeling he was a man of great integrity who represents the best feelings of the North American people," she said, adding that she brought her children because she read in wire service accounts that Willson always loved Nicaraguan children.

"We don't want any more sacrifices...What we want is peace," she said. Murillo said her husband would visit the San Francisco Bay area soon, but she would not elaborate.

Willson was struck by the train Tuesday during the anti-war protest at the Concord Naval Weapons Station, 45 miles east of San Francisco.

Meanwhile, the commander of the Naval Seas Systems Command has ordered an investigation into the incident, said Dan Tikalsky, public affairs officer for the weapons station.

Tikalsky said the Navy civilian train crew remained at work, but the train had not been used since the incident because it had not been needed.

Protest organizers are expecting a large turnout for today's demonstration at the base.

Speakers will include the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a likely presidential candidate, who is "deeply disturbed" at the the injury to Willson, said Lyle Wing, a California campaign worker for Jackson.

"We have 10 lines that are handling calls about the demonstration," said Stephanie Troyan of the Pledge of Resistance organization, part of the coalition that has been protesting alleged arms shipments from the base.

Troyan said the hospital where Willson was recuperating had been deluged with calls of support at a rate of 200 per hour and her group had received calls from as far as France, Switzerland and West Germany.

Willson's condition at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek was upgraded to fair on Friday, and he was removed from the intensive care unit, said spokeswoman Eileen White.

Besides Jackson, other speakers will include anti-war activist Daniel Ellsburg; Miriam Linder, sister of Benjamin Linder, an engineer killed in Nicaragua earlier this year; Holly Rauen, Willson's wife; and several fellow veterans who were with Willson when the train ran over him. Willson has said his experience in Vietnam led him to become actively involved in protesting U.S. policies in Central America.

Six protesters were arrested Thursday when they blockaded a munitions truck next to the base. The protesters were later released on their own recognizance.

NATION IN BRIEF

Boy has wrong surgery

ROBBINSDALE, Minn. (AP) — Two-year-old Nicholas Boehlke went to the hospital to have his tonsils and adenoids removed. Instead, his ears were operated on when workers confused him with another little boy named Nicholas.

"I feel it is a terrible mistake," said Timothy Boehlke, Nicholas' father.

Nicholas, who went into the hospital Aug. 24, is back home in Brooklyn Center recuperating from the ear operation and from subsequent surgery to remove his tonsils and adenoids.

During the first surgery, tubes were inserted in his ears. The tubes were removed during the tonsil and adenoid surgery.

"He still has a little blood coming out of his ears but they said it was just the dry blood from his tubes," said his mother, Lori Boehlke.

North Memorial Medical Center in Robbinsdale apologized Friday.

Airline complaints up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers filed 6,822 complaints about U.S. airlines with the government in August, nearly a sevenfold increase over the same month a year ago, the Department of Transportation announced Friday.

Northwest Airlines had the worst record of the carriers examined, accounting for 1,585 of the complaints, while Continental Airlines ranked second with 1,343 and Eastern Airlines third with 913.

In August 1986, the department registered 1,041 complaints against American carriers, while in July 1987 the total was 5,995.

The department attributed many of the problems to two factors: the airline mergers in recent months and their resulting problems, and the publicity being focused on airline problems.

Dotson goes back to prison

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson, who spent six years behind bars before the woman who had accused him of rape recanted her testimony, was ordered back to prison for at least eight months Friday for violating the terms of his parole.

Gov. James R. Thompson commuted Dotson's 25- to 50-year sentence in 1985 after Cathleen Crowell Webb said she made up her rape story. Thompson said at the time he did not believe Dotson was innocent but that he had served enough time in any case.

Thompson also ordered a three-year parole for Dotson.

Korean police fire tear gas at striking drivers

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Police fired tear gas Friday to break up a street protest by 3,000 striking taxi drivers in the capital, and elsewhere clashed with workers occupying the nation's largest shipyard and a Daewoo car plant.

In Seoul, the cabbies, unhappy with a labor-management agreement reached Thursday, hurled rocks and wielded wooden clubs in a battle with riot police. About 50 drivers were arrested.

About 12,000 taxi drivers in the capital remained on strike Friday despite the agreement, which gives them a 5.6 percent pay hike. The drivers are demanding they be given a standard monthly salary instead of the current daily payment that is based on the number of fares.

In the southern port of Ulsan, police fired more than 500 rounds of tear gas in a series of clashes with workers at the Hyundai Heavy Industries Co. shipyard. About 3,000 riot police stormed the plant before dawn Friday and arrested 162 workers who had occupied the plant for two days.

In another pre-dawn raid Friday, about 3,000 police stormed the Daewoo Motor Co. in Pupyong, 15 miles west of Seoul, and arrested 135 militant workers who had held the huge car plant since Aug.26.

Eight Daewoo workers were injured, including two who jumped from windows and one who tried to kill himself with a knife.

Suicide on occasion is used as a form of political protest in South Korea.

It was the government's first major crackdown on widespread labor unrest that began in July. Hundreds of thousands of workers have been demanding higher pay. The strikes have crippled industrial plants that are key to South Korea's export-oriented economy.

The crackdown followed a high-level security meeting presided over by Prime Minister Kim Chung-yul Thursday. One government source, who demanded anonymity, said Kim called for law and order during the meeting.

"The government will crack down on violent protest such as arson, destruction and holding people against their will, inside as well as outside worksites," Home Minister Chung Kwan-yong said after Friday's raids.

The strikes began in July after President Chun Doo-hwan bowed to weeks of violent protests and agreed to democratic reforms, including greater labor freedom. Under past authoritarian governments, wages were strictly controlled and labor activity was virtually outlawed.

Daewoo Motors, a joint venture between General Motors Corp. and South Korea's giant Daewoo group, planned to reopen Monday, but it was not clear whether it could.

After the police raid in Ulsan, about 8,000 Hyundai workers held a protest rally at the shipyard, demanding the release of arrested colleagues. By nightfall, they returned home.

U.N. leader will go to Iran, Iraq to discuss implementing peace plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Friday he will go on a peace mission to Iran and Iraq next week to discuss implementing a United Nations plan to end their 7-year-old war.

Iran has not stated firmly whether it would accept the plan, but Perez de Cuellar said the Islamic nation had agreed to speak with him about it.

"I can assure you that in my discussions with the Iranians, they have told me that they are prepared to discuss with me the implementation of the resolution," Perez de Cuellar told reporters.

The 15-nation Security Council authorized the trip in informal consultations Friday. It is asking Iran and Iraq to observe a cease-fire during the trip.

An Iranian diplomat said his country would limit fighting during Perez de Cuellar's visit.

"In all possible fields we (will) make utmost self-restraint and we will not prepare launching any attacks or making any major operations while he stays in Tehran," said Mohammad Jaafar Mahallati, director-general of the Department of International Affairs of Iran's Foreign Ministry.

Mahallati, who spoke to reporters after meeting with Perez de Cuellar, said his country's "self-restraint" would also apply during the U.N. chief's talks in Baghdad.

Iraq's U.N. ambassador, Ismat Kittani, said his government was still considering the request for a truce during the visit.

Iraq has said it would agree to a cease-fire and comply with other aspects of the U.N. peace plan if Iran did as well. The United States has threatened to push for a worldwide arms embargo unless Iran agrees to the plan during the U.N. chief's visit.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar tells reporters at the United Nations Friday he will go on a peace mission to Iran and Iraq next week to discuss implementing a U.N. plan to end the 7-year-old war. Iran has not stated firmly whether it would accept the plan, but has agreed to speak with him about it.

The peace plan is contained in Resolution 598, which the Security Council approved unanimously July 20. It calls for an immediate cease-fire, a return to internationally recognized borders, a prisoners-of-war exchange and the creation of an impartial body to determine who started the conflict.

Ambassador James Gbeho of Ghana, the council president, told reporters the secretary-general would elicit "a definitive and unambiguous response to the resolution" in Tehran. But he said the council does not consider the visit Iran's last chance to agree to the resolution.

He also said he expects both sides will cease fighting during the U.N. chief's visit.

"I don't expect that the secretary-general's visit will be clouded by heavy military action," Gbeho told reporters.

The spokesman for Iran's U.N. mission, Amir Zamani, said Iran was willing to discuss implementing the resolution but also had other issues in mind.

"That would be one of the points that will be discussed in Tehran," Zamani said in an interview. "All aspects of the war, including Resolution 598, will be discussed."

Zamani refused to say what other issues Iran would like to bring up.

21 Taiwanese die in tourist bus crash

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A bus packed with Taiwanese tourists plunged off a mountain highway into a 200-foot-deep valley Friday, killing 21 people and injuring 21, police said.

Police in Yangmingshan, a scenic mountain town outside Taipei, said the bus was carrying 41 passengers and the driver.

The driver said he believed the accident was caused by a brake malfunction.

Police said 20 passengers died at the scene and a woman with head injuries died later in a hospital. Bodies were trapped under the bus and a crane was used to lift the vehicle.

Thirteen passengers were in serious condition. The condition of the remaining eight was reported satisfactory.

More than 200 people were involved in the three-hour rescue operation.

The tourists had left Tainan, 180 miles south of Taipei, on Wednesday for a tour of the island, police said. The accident occurred as they were returning home after visiting Yangmingshan.

Bus driver Tseng Shui-hai, 40, who suffered bruises and a bone injury, told Taiwan Television Co. in an interview from Yangming Hospital that "I stepped on the brake before a bend and felt nothing working."

West German teen-ager faces grim life in Soviet camp

Rust

MOSCOW (AP) — Mathias Rust, the 19-year-old West German convicted Friday of flying a single-engine plane into Red Square, faces a grim life of monotonous work, isolation and poor sanitation during his term in a labor camp.

Soviet and foreign former prisoners have described a life of cold, hunger and exhaustion in the network known as the GULAG, an acronym for the State Directorate for Corrective Labor Camps.

Many labor camps are in the Soviet Union's harshest territories, in the vast land known as Siberia and in the Ural Mountain region of Mordovia.

Rust, from suburban Hamburg, was found guilty of all three counts stemming from his unauthorized May 28 flight from Helsinki to the heart of the Soviet capital.

Supreme Court Judge Robert Tikhomirnov sentenced Rust to four years in a "general regime" facility, the least severe of four levels of labor camps in the Soviet Union.

Former prisoners have described even the least restrictive facilities as Spartan clusters of rough-hewn bunkhouses enclosed by concentric rings of barbed wire and guard towers.

Gerald Amster, an American convicted in 1976 of drug trafficking through Sheremetyevo airport, wrote a book about his experience in a special labor camp for foreigners after his release in 1980.

In "Transit Point — Moscow," Amster said the camp put violent convicts with those sentenced for lesser crimes, provided weekly baths in which the water was changed only after 10 or more prisoners had used it and left inmates in a constant state of hunger.

It was not known immediately after Rust's trial whether he would be sent to a special facility for foreign prisoners, and the exact locations of those camps are not generally known.

The Soviet corrections system is cloaked in secrecy. Officials appearing at news conferences to discuss human rights issues have repeatedly refused to say how many prisoners are in the Soviet Union. Most of the camps and prisons are in areas closed to foreigners, and passes are needed to gain entry to all corrections facilities.

West German diplomats who visited Rust at Lefortovo Prison in eastern Moscow before his trial said the young pilot told them he had to sleep in a cell that was always lit and that he was allowed to shower once a week.

Alexander Ogorodnikov, a religious activist released earlier this year after eight years in the camps, told Western reporters about punishment cells with mud-covered moonscape walls that prevent the prisoner from resting against them.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Trains collide in Portugal

OLHAO, Portugal (AP) — Two passenger trains collided Friday in a popular resort region of southern Portugal, killing five people and injuring 29, officials said.

One of the dead was identified as a 52-year-old Portugese man. The identities of the other victims were not known.

An American woman, identified as Kerrie Ann Guidroz, 22, was treated at Faro Hospital and released. Officials said she is a resident of the Algarve region resort town of Albufeira.

The accident occurred at Fuzeta, 185 miles southeast of the capital, Lisbon, near the resort town of Olhao on the Atlantic Ocean. A train struck a car with French license plates that had stalled at a level crossing, but no one was injured, officials said.

About an hour later, after the automobile had been removed, the train continued along the tracks but struck the rear of a second train that was backing up to come to the scene of the accident. All the dead and injured were in the second train.

Olhao fire chief Joao Nogueira said 120 rescue workers removed five bodies from the wreckage, including those of a couple and their child. No one else was believed to be inside the wreckage.

Salvadorans end strike

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — About 5,000 public health workers ended a three-month-old strike for higher pay Friday when a judge declared the job action illegal and the government threatened to break their union.

The public health workers, including doctors and nurses, called the strike June 1 to demand an across-the-board $40 a month salary increase to compensate for inflation.

Guillermo Rojas, general secretary of the Social Security Institute workers' union, told a news conference it was impossible to continue the strike after the court ruling and the government's threat to dismiss those who failed to return to work.

Rojas said the union will appeal to a higher tribunal the ruling by Judge Edgard Cierra Quezada of the 6th Penal Court. The judge last week ruled the action illegal because it violated a constitutional ban on strikes by government employees. He also issued warrants for the arrest of all the union's leaders.

President Jose Napoleon Duarte's administration on Thursday gave the strikers 24 hours to return to their jobs or face dismissal and the legal dissolution of their union.

Black activists detained

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police detained the two top officials of South Africa's largest black-consciousness organization during a raid on their headquarters Friday, a colleague said.

Chief spokesman Muntu Myeza of the Azanizan People's Organization, known as AZAPO, said two other offices also were raided as the group prepared for a week-long observance of the 10th anniversary of Steve Biko's death in police custody.

Biko founded the black-consciousness movement, which rejects cooperation with whites in fighting for black rights. He died Sept. 12, 1977.

Showers, storms could overshadow holiday weekend

From Staff and Wire Reports

Revelers during much of the Labor Day Weekend could be hampered by isolated showers and thunderstorms, say forecasters with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Weathermen say today will be mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. The high will be in the upper 80s and winds will be from the south at 10 to 20 mph.

For tonight, forecasters call for mostly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. The low will be in the mid-60s.

By Sunday, skies will be partly cloudy, with less than a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. A high in the upper 80s is predicted.

The forecast for Monday will include partly cloudy skies and a high in the upper 80s. The low will be in the lower 60s.

Friday's high of 93 was 6 degrees cooler than the record of 99, set on that date in 1983. The low of 62 was 9 degrees warmer than the record of 53, set on that date in 1984.

STATE

Skies were mostly cloudy across West Texas Friday as moisture from Mexico continued to sweep north into the area. The rest of the state enjoyed mostly sunny skies because of a high-pressure ridge.

Afternoon temperatures were generally in the 90s, except in the cloud-covered west where readings were in the 80s.

Midland Lee halfback Joe Woodard finds daylight for big yardage in a big 47-6 win over Lubbock Coronado in the season opener at Memorial Stadium Friday night. Lee rolled out an impressive 457 yards rushing on runs like this one.

Lee TDs bury '86 memories

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Forget two consecutive losses to end the 1986 football season. Forget 10 consecutive quarters without scoring a touchdown. Forget an embarrassing shutout loss in the bi-district playoffs. Midland Lee 47, Lubbock Coronado 6.

The future is ahead of this explosive scoring armada and it went a long way toward destroying the way things ended a year ago for the Rebels, who had a perfect 8-0 record going into their last two games of the year — both losses.

"Well, this was one for the kids," said Lee coach Earl Miller. "We played every kid we had and everyone played a lot. We don't always get to do that. I know one thing, we'll take 47-6 anytime.

"WE probably gave up a touchdown by playing all the kids, but that's OK. We knew we had a good offense, but we were a little disappointed that we didn't get off to a better start. The defense came up with two interceptions for touchdowns that took a lot of pressure off the offense.

"We still have a lot of improvement to make with this team. We're still green on defense and that's my fault, but we're going to work on it."

The Rebels did get off to a slow by driving to the Coronado 14 and missing a field goal and quarterback Geoff Rich threw an interception after the Rebs moved to the Mustang 12-yard line. All Lee ended up with in the first quarter was a 20-yard touchdown run by Waymond Goodley for a 6-0 lead.

BUT LEE defensive backs Eugene Farmer and Jimmy Fennell shook off the cobwebs of the Lee scoring machine by returning Coronado interceptions for touchdowns of 40 and 42 yards and a 19-0 lead. It started a 28-point second quarter and a string of six consecutive touchdowns, running through the third period.

Lee rolled out an amazing 457 yards rushing. Goodley rushed for 102 yards in the first half alone and only carried once for two yards in the second half as Lee went to its bench early.

Dennis Sterling had 99 yards rushing and a touchdown run of 45 yards and Goodley's backup at fullback, Tony Rice, had a field day with 77 yards rushing and 12-yard TD scamper. Add in 69 yards by Joe Woodard and six other backs with carries and you have what amounts to a nuclear attack, complete with mushroom.

"That many yards (457) is impressive," said Miller. "We are hoping that the offense can turn in some numbers like that this year."

LEE ALSO used alternating quarterbacks with Rich and Dudley Jordan. They combined for 59 yards rushing and 30 yards passing, completing three-of-five between them.

Big Spring's Byron McElreath muscles way for short yarage as Steers opened the season with a loss at El Paso Riverside Friday night.

Riverside whips Steers

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

EL PASO — This wasn't Quinn Eudy's idea of a good time.

First, he and his Big Spring Steers endured a seven-hour bus ride to the border city. Second, both sides were drenched by a cold, third-quarter rain. And finally, the Riverside Rangers uncovered the high school reincarnation of Fran Tarkington.

The result was a 48-21 shellacking of the defending District 2-4A champions.

It was a young, rocket-armed, flamethrower and scrambler named Gabriel Herrera that spelled an early end to the Steers in their 1987 football opener.

Herrera threw for four first-half touchdowns and guided the Rangers to a fifth score in the third period before being mercifully — for the Steers — pulled.

"Early in the game, we just didn't move the football on offense, and we put our defense in a hole," said Eudy. "But I have no doubt that we can come back. We just have to rededicate ourselves to the basics of being a good football team."

While the Big Spring offense was digging a hole in the first quarter, the Steers gained 11 first-quarter yards without a first down. Herrera was throwing dirt on them at every opportunity.

The five-nine, 170-pound junior was 15-of-26 on the night, with just one interception. That pick-off, by Robert Rodriquez, came on the Rangers first possession after driving all the way to the Big Spring 16 yard line.

Herrera made sure on the next two possessions, first firing a six-yard strike to David Cisneros, then finding Ruben Ortega for a 57-yard bomb on the first play after recovering a Big Spring fumble.

That quickly, it was 14-0.

An 87-yard kick return by Big Spring's Dennis Hartfield was nullified on a clipping penalty 15 yards behind the score, and Eudy and the Steers were all but through.

But Herrera wasn't.

Herrera drove the Rangers right back down the field 67 yards, finding Cisneros again for a 9-yarder.

"We needed to cover them a little tighter and tougher, but they have some fine receivers and a strong-armed quarterback," Eudy said. "We really had only one blown assignment, and we can get over that."

Big Spring came back with a drive resulting in Danny Williams picking up a bobbled pitch and running 17 yards for a score. But Herrera just kept coming.

This time he acted as a receiver, catching one pass for 32 yards, and as a decoy, engineering a faked field goal attempt to throw another touchdown as time ran out in the first half.

Bulldogs ease by Plainsmen

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK - Midland High outplayed Lubbock Monterey in every statistical categroy but two in the season opener for both teams Friday night at Lowery Field. Those two categories almost cost the Bulldogs their 15-14 victory.

Five first half turnovers and nine total penalties for 55 yards nearly overshadowed the Bulldogs' 350-yard offensive performance.

And, when all the pluses and minuses were added up, it was a trick play for a two-point conversion that proved to be the difference.

After Monterey's Ed Crites capped an eight-play, 41-yard drive with a five-yard run followed by a Brian Fez kick for an early 7-0 lead, the Bulldogs came roaring back.

Starting at the Monterey 41, Midland High needed just six plays to score as tight end Herbie Cavenaugh hauled in a broken play, 42-yard TD pass from quarterback Jeff Somers. Cavenaugh coasted easily into the end zone.

"I sprinted out one way, ran back the other and Herbie was open," said Somers. "It was a busted play, it wasn't a route, that's for sure. Herbie worked himself open and it turned out he was wide open. Nobody was going to stop him on that one."

MIDLAND High then stole two points on a trick play the Bulldogs first used two years ago against Odessa Permian. After the TD, the 'Dogs lined up to the left of the ball, which was center snapped to halfback Guy Giesecke, who took it into the end zone for an 8-7 MHS lead.

The Bulldogs stretched their lead when junior halfback Dwane Roberts broke free on a "28 counter option" and ran 62 yards for a touchdown. Jeff Fry made it 15-7 with 3:23 left in the half.

Roberts, a transfer from Midland Lee, was the individual yardage hero in the game, rushing for 138 yards on 15 carries and catching three passes for 55 more.

"I think I did a great job and everybody on the team did a great job," said a happy Roberts. "The defense did the job and the line blocked for me and I ran hard. I thank God for giving me the potential, for being here today and for living."

THE EIGHT-point lead turned out to be short-lived as the Bulldog defense had its first and only big breakdown of the night, this time allowing Greg Powell to escape a sure loss and turn it into a 75-yard TD romp.

The play started out as a sweep right but the Bulldog defense had the way blocked. So, Monterey's junior tailback reversed field, broke a tackle on the corner and won a foot race to the end zone.

With an entire half yet to play, the Plainsmen opted for the extra point and Fez kicked it for a 15-14 score.

The strategy almost worked. Just before the half ended, the Plainsmen tried for the lead, calling on Fez to kick a 52-yard field goal. The ball fell well short of the posts and the Plainsmen never got another chance as the Midland High defense dug in, allowing only 39 total second half yards.

With three minutes left in the game, the Plainsmen received their final possession, after a missed Jeff Fry 27-yard field goal, but managed only 16 yards. On one play, linebacker Clyde Govan put a tremendous hit on Monterey quarterback Shane Byrd, who hit the ground and lost the ball. The play was whistled dead but it was indicative of Midland High's defensive spirit.

"WE HAD our backs were against the wall," said Govan of the Bulldogs' last stand and a slim one-point lead. "We had to rise to the occasion, get it up, not let them have a big play."

About Powell's 75-yard run, Govan said, "We stopped it real good on the weak side but didn't have any pursuit to the strong side. He really had some speed. Other than that, we shut them down pretty good."

MHS coach Doug McCutchen agreed.

"Defense, I thought, played a great ball game," said the fourth-year Bulldog head coach. "We broke down on the long run but overall we had an excellent game. Several times the defense had to rise to the occasion and they did it every time."

Offensively, however, the Bulldogs struggled despite their 350-yard output. Somers was intercepted twice and Russell Page once, albeit a pass that bounced off Shaun Savas' shoulder pads. Also, the Bulldogs lost two fumbles.

Cowboys may answer suspicions in Texas showdown

Battles

Tonight's the night we find out if the Dallas Cowboys are for real.

Are they what they seem or were the first three exhibition games just a pose?

You remember the Over-the-Hill Gang that made the Redskins famous. The current Dallas Cowboys have been behaving like the Over-the-Hill, Gone-AWOL gangs.

As far as the Cowboys are concerned, the current Labor Negotiations are important primarily for the AARP considerations involved.

THE COWBOYS are an aging team, but they never did protect their quarterbacks.

Roger Staubach was forced into early retirement, judging by the ages of the current Dallas members, because he kept getting his head bumped on the ground.

As for Danny White, maybe it's a holdover from the last strike when White went against the grain or perhaps it's all that money that Danny gets.

Pelleur, poor abused Steve Pelleur. Maybe they are just making sure he never finds himself in the same position.

Dallas quarterbacks deserve hazardous duty pay.

IT'S only the fourth exhibition game of the season, but already fans are asking that age old question- ...What's wrong with the Cowboys?

It's no mystery. The Cowboys have just aged and management still is living on their glory years.

Tony Dorsett, still productive, has been around longer than most NFL running backs with a rare exception of a Walter Payton. Tony was an NFL veteran, as running backs go, when Earl Campbell came out of college, set the world afire for a few years, and now is in retirement like any good running back should be at his age.

Herschel Walker is young, but Marv Matuszak raised the question of his dedication the other night, wondering aloud why an "injured" Herschel wasn't even on the sidelines for the Cowboys' last exhibition.

After what the Raiders did to Dallas Sunday, better that Herschel was safely out of harm's way. On the sidelines he might have been hit by a flying body, Cowboy body.

But this injury business is standard procedure for NFL stars. Ownership recognizes it and is in collusion with their prize T-bones.The way it works, one year, the star is a holdout. The next year it's the scraped hair on his shin or something.

This year, I understand, Walker got confused and when asked why he wasn't in the lineup, began "We are still miles apart on contract...er, ah" That's when he realized that THIS wasn't THAT year.

It's all part of the act and either excuse is valid in keeping the vital performer from senseless injury.

BUT TONIGHT is the big one as exhibitions go. The final tuneup before the regular season and, more importantly, it's for the Texas State Professional Football championship. Actually, in the past, it has been bigger for the Houston Oilers than the Dallas Cowboys, who always had bigger and better things to look forward to.

This year, however, it's important to Dallas as well.

For one thing, it may be the last Texas State Pro Football championship ever played. But even that is secondary to the fact that the Cowboys need to sell some tickets.

It's either start winning, or schedule some Football Bingo nights.

Badgers thump Rangers, 17-6

By PETE HERNDON
MRT Correspondent

GREENWOOD — Playoff-proven McCamey quarterback Ramon Zarate pulled the Badgers out of a season-opening first half slump Friday night at Greenwood's W.M. King Stadium, running and passing for a combined 81 yards and scoring a touchdown after intermission to lead the Badgers to a 17-6 victory over the Rangers.

"Except for Zarate running outside and throwing outside in the third quarter, I thought we shut them down pretty good," said first-year Greenwood Coach Bob Purser after the game. "But we knew about him coming into the game. He's a good athlete and got the job done."

Early in the game, it didn't seem that Zarate's efforts would be needed.

Both team's had a severe case of opening night blues early, combining for six fumbles and a blocked punt in the first seven posessions of the game. With Greenwood backed up to its 3-yard-line, McCamey's Sal Holguin took advantage of a mishandled snap by Rangers quarterback Tommy Lawson, pouncing on a loose ball in the end zone to give the Badgers a 7-0 lead with :26 seconds left in the first quarter.

The Rangers found the mark in the second quarter, however, holding the Badgers to seven offensive plays and two punts, while putting together a 73-yard scoring drive.

Running from the wishbone, Rangers backs Randy Donnell and Wade Melton chipped in 43 yards of the scoring march, before Lawson atoned for the earlier mistake by hitting tight end Tom Marvin on a slant for an 11-yard touchdown play. Lawson's attempt at a conversion pass from kicking formation fell to the grass after a strong Badger rush, allowing McCamey to take a 7-6 lead into halftime.

McCamey Coach Buster Leaf said the Badgers changed their offensive strategy at halftime after Zarate was held to four yards on four rushing plays in the first half.

"Their linebackers started staying at home in the second quarter," Leaf said, "and they're so much bigger and stronger that we couldn't get them off the ball. It shut down our inside game."

"We had to change our blocking on the option," he added. "We went back to our regular pitch-out option."

Zarate flourished with the change, starting the Badgers at their own 34 with 8:15 left in the third stanza, the McCamey senior hit two 17-yard pass completions and ran for 10 more before plunging over from the two-yard-line with 4:57 showing on the clock.

On McCamey's next posession, Zarate put the game out of reach with a 21-yard scramble to the Rangers' 26-yard-line. Six plays later, Chris Chunn put the icing on the board with a 23-yard field goal with 6:58 left in the contest.

McCamey takes its 1-0 record home next week to face longtime rival Crane while the Rangers go on the road next week to face Reagan County.

Woodberry paces Lamesa win

From Staff Reports

LAMESA— Friday night football kicked off in style here as Lamesa Golden Tors and Levelland Lobos converged on Lobo Stadium. Gary Woodberry led Lamesa to a 21-20 victory over the Levelland.

The game was a display of two very distinct offenses. Levelland used a ball control offense to strike from the opening kickoff and march 70 yards to pay dirt. The 12-play drive saw Jay Fortner, who led Levelland with 134 yards rushing, plow over from the eight. Benny Rodriquez added the point for a 7-0 lead.

Following the kickoff, Levelland forced a Lamesa punt, but on the first play, Fortner fumbled after a 10-yard gain.

The Tors made the most of the miscue. Two Santo Mareno passes to Tim Demerson of 12 and 16 yards moved the ball to the Lobo 10. Mareno then rushed for eight to the two. Demerson then took it in and Wes Shook added the point after for a 7-7 tie.

Levelland came back with the kickoff and drove 62 infantry yards in 13 plays with Patrick Doran scoring from the two. Rodriquez point after was wide left.

Levelland's defense held Lamesa on the next series as Larry Dent saved a long runback when he tripped up Woodberry on the kickoff. A screen pass from Mareno to Jim Horton covered 29 yards and Levelland again saved a TD when Demerson took a pitch from Mareno and pulled up to pass to a wide open Willie Butler, but feee safety Timmy James came from out of nowhere to break it up;.

Woodberry returned a punt 29 yards to the Lobo 39. On the first play, Demerson took a pitch right to score with a minute left in the first half. Shook's point made it 14-13.

In the third quarter, Lamesa took its second possession, Woodberry swept left ends for 59 yards to score untouched.

Levelland retaliated by driving for a touchdown with Fortner carrying five times for 45 yards rushing. Eddie Dent scored on a fourth and one as the fourth period opened. Rodriquez kicked the point.

Hopkins' late TD wins for Buffs

From Staff Reports

SEAGRAVES — Stanton quarterback Skip Hopkins scored on a one-yard plunge here Friday night with 11 seconds left in the game to give the Buffaloes a scary 12-7 season opening football victory over the Seagraves Eagles.

Hopkins drove Stanton 42 yards in the last 2:20 of the fourth quarter to earn the victory. Stanton began the drive trailing the Eagles by a 7-6 margin. The drive was made possible when Stanton's Robert Schoolcraft recovered a Seagraves fumble.

Seagraves had taken a 7-6 lead in the third period when tailback Randy Cavazos scored on a 38-yard run and Curtis Wilson added the point after.

Stanton led 6-0 at the half after Hopkins' two-yard TD in the first period, but missed the point after and it was almost a telling failure.

However, the Stanton defense rose to the occassion by stopping Seagraves at the 15-yard line before the half and at the nine-yard line in the third period.

Stanton will take its rabbit foot home for Coahoma Friday in the home debut.

Ryan sets whiff mark in victory

From Wire Reports

HOUSTON — Nolan Ryan, 6-14, pitched two-hit ball for seven innings and set a major-league record for strikeouts in a season by a pitcher 40 or older, leading the Houston Astros past the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 Friday night.

Ryan, who turned 40 last Jan. 31, took over the National League lead with 210 strikeouts, three more than teammate Mike Scott.

He broke the record for strikeouts by a 40-or-older pitcher, set by Niekro in 1979 when he struck out 209.

Bill Doran broke out of an 0-for-13 slump with a two-run single in the fifth to score both Astros' runs.

Reds 4, Cubs 3

CHICAGO — Kal Daniels' two-run double tied the game and Dave Parker hit a sacrifice fly to score the winning run as Cincinnati rallied for four runs in the ninth inning.

Cincinnati won its third straight. Frank Williams, 4-0, pitched two innings for the victory and John Franco pitched the ninth for his 28th save.

Braves 7, Expos 4

ATLANTA — Ozzie Virgil drove in four runs with a pair of singles and Dale Murphy hit his 37th homer tying his season high as Atlanta defeated Montreal.

Murphy's solo homer off reliever Randy St. Claire in the fifth matched his high, set in 1985. Rick Mahler, 8-13, won in relief.

Odessa High 7, Palo Duro 7

From Staff Reports

ODESSA— Underdog Odessa High battled Amarillo Palo Duro to a 7-7 tie at W.T. Barrett Stadium Friday night and had 29 and 38 yard field goal shots to win it.

Palo Duro, heavily favored after a 4-2 scrimmage win over Odessa Permian last week, scored first when Clifton Monroe punched in from the one-yard line after a 14-play, 55-yard drive with 2:59 left in the first period.

Odessa retaliated in the second period when Tracy Bickerstaff broke four yards for a score to wrap up a six-yard, six play drive.

Bickerstaff's 42 yards led the Bronchos in rushing. Roger Harris led the Dons with 66 yards in 12 carries.

STEERS

Herrera racked up 228 yards passing and 32 receiving. Halfback Walter Garcia added 43 aerial yards, and Ortega tossed in another 25 and a TD pass as the Rangers riddled the Steers' secondary for 296 passing yards.

The Steers offense sputtered behind the play of both Craig Knocke and Steve Gill. But when third-string quarterback Shawn Shellman was inserted in the fourth quarter, the Steers offense had some spark of its own.

Shellman first found Tony Lewis for a 63-yard TD pass, then on the very first play of his next possession, he heaved it 57 yards to Buddy Everett for another score.

But by then, Riverside was well on its way to icing its revenge victory for last year's 21-12 loss in Big Spring.

Sindelar leads by 7

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Joey Sindelar shot an 8-under-par 63 Friday that gave him a seven-stroke lead after two rounds of the $400,000 B.C. Open golf tournament.

Sindelar's advantage tied the largest 36-hole lead since the Professional Golfers Association began keeping detailed records in 1972. Tom Weiskopf was up seven strokes after two rounds of the 1975 Westchester Classic but lost the tournament.

"I guarantee I've never had a lead like this on the tour", said Sindelar, who at one point was 9-under for the day until he bogeyed the final hole. If he had stayed at 9-under-par 62, Sindelar would have tied Fuzzy Zoeller and Jay Delsing for the lowest single round at the par-71, 6,088-yard En-Joie Golf Club.

Sindelar's two-round total of 128 (14-under) also ranks as the second lowest 36-hole total on the Tour this seson. Robert Wrenn was 16-under-par 128 after two rounds of the Buick Open in July. Sindelar also tied the best nine-hole performance when he finished the front nine 7-under-par 30.

The closest golfer to Sindelar was Peter Jacobsen, who moved into the lead briefly Friday by firing a 5-under-par 66 to take a one-stroke advantage before Sindelar started his second round.

Roger Maltbie was third, eight strokes back at 6-under-par 136 after the first 36 holes. There were five golfers at 5-under-par 137, and another seven at 4-under-par 138.

The field was trimmed to the top 70 scorers and ties for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Evert first to reach 1,200 victories

U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert became the first woman player to win 1,200 matches when she beat Niege Dias of Brazil Friday in the second round of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

Evert's 6-0, 6-1 victory over the 20-year-old Dias moved her further ahead on the list of all-time winners in women's play, where she already led Martina Navratilova.

Men's play was highlighted by a pair of upsets as seeded Ramesh Krishnan of India beat No. 10 Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, and qualifier Mark Woodforde won three tiebreakers to eliminate No. 12 Tim Mayotte of the United States.

WOODFORDE, who won three qualifying matches to get in to the main draw, stunned Mayotte 7-6 (7-2), 7-6 (7-5), 3-6, 2-6, 7-6 (7-5) on an outside court at the National Tennis Center.

"I'm playing fairly tight tennis in tiebreakers," said Woodforde, who reached the third round of a Grand Prix tournament for the first time this year. "In the fifth set, as the games went by, I knew if I could get to the tiebreaker I'd have the advantage because I won the first two."

Also advancing to the third round were No. 5 Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia and No. 14 Emilio Sanchez of Spain.

In women's play, No. 5 Pam Shriver, No. 10 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 11 Lori McNeil and No. 13 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany won their second-round matches in straight sets. No. 16 Wendy Turnbull was upset by Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia.

Anderson 17, SA 6

SAN ANGELO — Austin Anderson scored a major season opening upset over District 4-5A's San Angelo Bobcats here Friday night with a 16-7 come-from-behind victory.

After taking a 3-0 lead in the second period on a 35-yard field goal, the Bobcats regained the lead as Dedric Washington scored on a two-yard run for a 7-3 lead. But Anderson got two third quarter touchdowns on a 1-yard and 16 yard runs by Chris Paegle to take the upset.

Matt Rix is not just another pretty face within the contemporary song writing establishment. His musical act ranges from 50's material to Top 40, Country and Rock, Blues and Jazz, Fogelberg, Croce, Chapin, Mason Williams, Cat Stevens, and many more. This does not even include his liberal amounts or original and comic material. Matt has appeared on stage with many well know entertainers such as Ray Charles, John Denver, Emy Lou Harris, and the Smothers Brothers. He is a humorist, storyteller, singer, and guitar player, who by his own admission is a little crazy, but well worth an evening you'll spend laughing and singing along with him.

Parity hasn't quite arrived yet...ask NTS, Utah State

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Parity has not completely taken over in college football. There are still such things as breathers for teams that want to open the season with a sure "W."

No. 1-ranked Oklahoma and No.2 Nebraska apparently have found two such patsies who were willing to travel to Norman, Okla., and Lincoln, Neb., to serve as Saturday's fodder. Oklahoma plays North Texas State, a Division I-AA school, and Nebraska meets Utah State, 3-8 last year.

"You're going to keep coaches around if you have an easier schedule, but your athletic director is going to want a tougher schedule," says Jackie Sherrill, who is both coach and AD at 15th-ranked Texas A&M — and opens at home Saturday night with No. 6 LSU.

In the same dual role is Pat Dye of fifth-ranked Auburn, which entertains Texas, unranked but certainly no patsy.

Elsewhere in the Top Ten, No. 3 is at home against San Diego State, No. 8 Florida State hosts Texas Tech, No. 9 Clemson entertains Division I-AA Western Carolina and Florida, tied for 20th, visits No. 10 Miami, Fla.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Penn State's defending national champions is home against Bowling Green, Stanford visits No. 13 Washington, Colorado State is at No. 17 Tennessee and Virginia visits Georgia, the other No. 20 team.

MONDAY NIGHT, No. 19 Southern California visits Michigan State. No. 4 Ohio State, No. 7 Michigan, No. 12 Arkansas, No. 14 Arizona State and No. 18 Notre Dame are idle until next week. Iowa, No. 16, is off off following its 23-22 loss to Tennessee in the Kickoff Classic.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer is trying to sound scared of North Texas State but the best he has been able to come up with is that "it figures the year we play them they'd be favored to win the (Southland) conference."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne says Utah State has him "groping." "The first game is the hardest to really know much about....we ought to win if we play well."

PLENTY OF passes are expected when UCLA entertains San Diego State. Coach Terry Donahue has named Oklahoma transfer Troy Aikman as the Bruins' starting quarterback.

Aikman started Oklahoma's first four games in 1985 before suffering a broken leg against Miam-coe completed 27 of 47 passes for 442 yards and one touchdown before his injury allowed the Sooners to return to the pure wishbone, Switzer's first love.

FLORIDA'S probation is over and TV viewers (TBS) will get a chance to see quarterback Kerwin Bell for the first time since 1984. Bell has thrown 47 touchdown passes, the most in SEC history for a quarterback entering his senior year.

Miami is counting on sophomore Steve Walsh to replace Vinny Testaverde at quarterback. Florida Coach Galen Hall says Miami "very well could be the best defensive team around in 1987. With nine defensive starters back."

Lost in the aftermath of Miami's 14-10 loss to Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl was the fact that the Hurricanes held the Nittany Lions to 162 yards in total offense.

Penn State not only lost 15 starters from 1986 but had what Coach Joe Paterno calls "a tough preseason in a lot of ways. We're very banged up. I'm concerned about getting our legs back and the return of some people who have been out with injuries."

Cowboys, Oilers eye Gov's Cup

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING (AP) — With the safe return of the long-missing "Governor's Cup," the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers collide 8 p.m. tonight in an NFL preseason finale for the unoffocial Texas professional football championship.

The Governor's Cup trophy was found in an old cardboard box in a Houston office building this week where it had been lost for several years.

Cowboys Vice President Joe Bailey said he gave it to a Houston equipment manager years ago after a Dallas loss, and it soon disappeared.

The Oilers and Cowboys have met every year in the preseason beginning in 1967 with Dallas holding a 15-5 edge. Houston won 17-14 last year.

It's normally a close game as 12 of the 20 exhibitions have been decided by a touchdown or less. Two of them (1974 and 1976) went into overtime with the Cowboys winning on both occasions.

Dallas has a 4-1 lead in regular season play.

Both teams are 1-2 with Dallas losing 34-10 to the Los Angeles Raiders on Monday night without Tony Dorsett and Herschel Walker in the lineup. Houston lost 17-6 to Indianapolis on Saturday night.

Dorsett, who averaged 6.8 yards per carry in the first two games before bruising his calf, was expected to play Saturday.

Walker, out since Aug. 6 with a sprained knee, may see his first game action of the summer against the Oilers.

The Cowboys come into the game off a miserable performance against the Raiders in which they suffered five interceptions and were penalized 17 times for 163 yards.

"I don't remember being quite as embarrassed," said Dallas quarterback Danny White, who served up three of the interceptions.

Houston quarterback Warren Moon has been nursing tender knees during the Oilers' preseason but should play over half of the game. Impressive rookie Cody Carlson of Baylor will play at least a quarter.

UT, Tech, Ags 'dogs against Top 10 foes

From Wire Reports

The Southwest Conference takes on three AP Top 10 teams Saturday and oddsmakers say Texas, Texas A&M, and Texas Tech should take their lumps.

SWC

Fifth-ranked Auburn was a 13-point favorite over Texas, sixth-ranked Louisiana State was a field goal choice over Texas A&M, and eighth-ranked Florida State was a 15-point favorite over Texas Tech.

The Texas Longhorns and the defending SWC champion Texas Aggies will both be on ESPN-TV.

Longhorns' Coach David McWilliams makes his 'Horn debut on the road in a 3 p.m. game. Texas has a 6-1 record against Auburn.

McWilliams, who was an assistant coach under Fred Akers, took Texas Tech to a 7-4 record last year. Akers was fired after a 5-6 season.

Texas A&M hosts LSU at 7 p.m. with more than 72,000 fans expected. LSU leads the series 23-14-3 but the Aggies have won 14 straight at home. The Tigers upset the Aggies 35-17 last year in Baton Rouge. LSU is a 4-point favorite.

A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill plans to start Craig Stump at quarterback but also plans to play Lance Pavias.

TCU Coach Jim Wacker also has a rough opener against Boston College in a 12:30 p.m. clash. The Eagles have won eight consecutive games and BC is favored by 10 points.

TCU hasn't lost an opener since 1981.

Texas Tech, under new Coach Spike Dykes, who was McWilliams' defensive coordinator, meets Florida State at Tallahassee.

Baylor and Rice open at home and are the only SWC teams favored.

The Bears is 17-point over Louisiana Tech at 7 p.m.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said Ed Lovell, a sophomore, will start at quarterback.

Rice faces a former coach, Ray Alborn, who now directs the Lamar. Alborn played and coached at Rice.

The Owls are two-touchdown choices 7 p.m. in Rice Stadium. Rice won last year's game 28-14.

BOWLING BEAT

Smith makes his mark

By RANDY ISENBERG

Isenberg

Rick Smith is capable of bowling as well as any one in Midland. Monday in the His N Hers League at Fairmont Park, Smith managed games of 267, 256, 179-702 to pace bowlers over the last two weeks.

Dawna Payne is newcomer in Midland, but it has not taken her long to be recognized as one of the best. Payne rolled games of 211-218—615 in the ladies Scratch League at Dellwood.

In the His N Hers league at Fairmont: Ken Robey, 232-612, Jim Burnett, 222-604, Tom Green, 596, and Bruce Moore, 236-571.

Bruce Frazier in the past few weeks has been at the top of his game with a 225-640 in the Wednesday Nite Misfits League and a 212-602 in the Friday Bowl A Gans League. Also in Bowl A Gans League at Fairmont, Mark Ehrlich rolled 215—604 and Jim Morris a 236-604.

In other leagues: Pete Zepeda, 214-572; Gary Matthews, 211-566; Mike Reed, 214-600; Roy Nini 200-580; Terry Justice, 220-578; Mike Levassar, 248-615, Dean Berry, 230-610; Gary Hagen, 225-580; Wes Culbertson, 245-565.

The women at Fairmont rolled their share of top scores over the past two weeks. Dora Velasco, 225-570, Molly Breland, 210-579; Dana Larson, 186-572; Wanda Zepeda 204-552, 210-597; Diane Hesselline, 201-562; Carol Thompson, 192-543; Sandra Mitchell, 196-523; Vickie Smith, 205-529;; Brenda Weeks, 200-530; and Paula Bayley, 520.

Cathryn Garcia may be as underrated as any woman bowler in Midland. The past two weeks she recorded series of 211-532, and 199-567 while in the Bowl A Gans League.

At Dellwood Lanes, Roman Harper rolled a 228-662 in the Adobe Oil Mixed League to pace the men.

Tom Kuzmich has made great strides to rank with the most improved bowlers in the city. Kuzmich rolled a 222-618 in the Tuesday Night Men's League at Dellwood. Over the past three Sundays in practice totaling over 30 games, Kuzmich has averaged between 212-215.

In the Dellwood Scratch, Mike Boyer and Paul Cox have been among the point leaders.

Last week Cox drilled a 235—655 four game set. Boyer leveled an 821. The week before Boyer rolled a 229-849.

For consistency, George Overton and Leo Rodriguez are among the best. Overton rolled 803 and 795 over the past two weeks and Rodriguez a 245 game in each of the last two weeks and a 807 series.

Other top marks in four game sets: Mike Levassar, 246-792; Sherman Wright, 223-791; Jeff Minnick, 244-812; Gary Wessels, 246-798;

For three game series, Bob Crites, 209-613; Mike Boyer 236-610; Scott Mitchell, 204-600; David Ekman, 220-600; Dan Fisher, 241-602; Arthur Williams, 212-604; Lawrence Young, 226-580; Terry Hubbs, 236; Sergio Gonsales, 258, 222; Woody Woodside 235, 211; and Oliver Ennis, 204-585.

'Righteous Brothers' begin new regime at Alabama

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Steve Sloan, Alabama's new athletic director, and Bill Curry, the new football coach, are men of such strong religious beliefs that one syndicated columnist has referred to them as the Righteous Brothers.

Which brings to mind the time Sloan was an assistant coach at Florida State and had an offer from Georgia Tech. However, every time Coach Bill Fulcher pressed for an answer, Sloan would reply that he was giving the offer "prayerful consideration."

Fulcher happened to run into Clemson Coach Frank Howard and mentioned that every time he asked Sloan for a decision, the answer came that it was still getting "prayerful consideration."

Howard suspected what was happening. "Tell you what," he drawled. "You up your offer to that young man by about $5,000 and I'll bet his prayers will be answered."

Fulcher did — and Sloan moved to Georgia Tech.

WITH THE Southern Methodist's violation-ridden football program in limbo for two years, SMU players have transferred to numerous schools. The Pac-10 and Big Eight Conferences each recruited seven.

Fourteen players decided to remain at SMU, but only three will still be eligible if the Mustangs resume football in 1989.

College Notes

Former SMU players who might be considered all-star candidates include these:

Arizona, guard Kevin McKinney, quarterback Bobby Watters; Georgia, guard Shelly Anderson, cornerback Mark Vincent; Hawaii, linebacker Ken Masterson; Houston, cornerback Franky Thomas; Illinois, linebacker Gabriel dela Garza; LSU, linebacker Rudy Harmon; Michigan State, flanker Jeffrey Jacobs, cornerback Derrick Reed; Missouri, linebacker A.J. Miller; UCLA, offensive tackle Dave Richards, linebacker Ben Hummel; Washington, kicker Brandy Brownlee.

Other ex-Mustangs dispersed as follows:

Arizona State, split end Lynn James; Auburn, fullback Jed Martin; Baylor, linebacker Shon Nichols; Brigham Young, defensive tackle Nick Unger; Columbia, defensive end John Robinson; Georgia, cornerback Michael Bowen; Houston, defensive end Robert McDade, offensive tackle Del Montgomery; Kansas, tailback Darryl Terrell; LSU, cornerback Jimmy Young; Memphis State, defensive end Scott Rumley; Missouri, linebacker Reginald Ballard, quarterback John Stollenwerck; Oklahoma, offensive lineman Tre Giller; Oklahoma State, defensive tackle Ken Grant, center Kim Johnson; Penn State, offensive lineman Matt McCartin; Texas A&I, offensive guard Rod Mounts; Tulane, strong safety Mitchell Price; Tulsa, fullback Cobby Morrison, strong safety Roderick Wilson; Utah, tight end Vince Jenkins; Washington State, wide receiver Elmer Thomas; Western Kentucky, defensive end Darryl Atwood, fullback Tony Brown, linebacker Randy Garrett, fullback Gerard Mark.

If SMU were playing football this year, the Mustangs would have opened against Oklahoma on Sept. 19. If football returns in 1989, the schedule starts with Rice at home on Sept. 2. Besides the eight SWC opponents, the Mustangs are scheduled to meet Oklahoma, Boston College and Notre Dame in 1989.

WHEN AUBURN assistant coach Pat Sullivan bailed quarterback Jeff Burger out of jail in July, he violated the NCAA rule which states that "the following practices shall constitute 'pay' for participation in intercollegiate athletics and are expressly prohibited:

"An extra benefit. As used in this subparagraph, the phrase 'extra benefit' refers to any special arrangement by any institutional employe or representative of the institution's athletics interests to provide the student-athlete . . . with a benefit not expressly authorized by NCAA legislation."

One of the "examples of special arrangements that are specifically prohibited" is "a guarantee of bond." Another is 'a loan of money," such as the $365 that Minnesota quarterback Rickey Foggie accepted from assistant coach Larry Beckish to buy an airplane ticket in February 1985 to attend his grandmother's funeral in South Carolina, even though he paid it back six months later.

Foggie was ruled ineligible by Minnesota while the NCAA reviews the case. The same thing happened last year — Foggie was declared ineligible for accepting a plane ticket but the NCAA overturned that ruling — and Auburn did the same with Burger. The NCAA subsequently said he could play this season.

NOTES ON some teams that play this weekend:

—No. 1-ranked Oklahoma has had fewer losing seasons — eight — than any other major college since the Sooners began playing football in 1895. Alabama and Texas are next with nine in that period.

—Oklahoma led the nation in six different statistical categories last season, the most ever for a Division I school (Syracuse led in five in 1959). The Sooners were No. 1 in total defense, rushing defense, passing defense, scoring defense, rushing offense and scoring offense. They finished second in total offense.

—In 1986, Georgia tailback Lars Tate became the first player to lead the Bulldogs in rushing, receiving and scoring in the same season.

—Clemson led the nation in kickoff returns last year with a school-record 26.1-yard average but the Tigers failed to score on a kickoff return for the 24th straight season.

LEE

Then Lee used Danny Elliott the entire fourth quarter at quarterback and he directed a 17-play drive to the Coronado nine before the offense stalled to stop the consecutive touchdown streak at six.

The Lee defense seemed a little confused at the start of the game and highly touted Chris Henson ate up the Lee middle on an impressive opening drive that went to the Lee 30-yard line. Henson, who had 85 yards rushing, got the big chunks in the first period and was shutdown by the Lee defense the rest of the way.

Coronado did rush for 199 yards and passed for 54 more. But Lee was tough when it counted as the Lee defense produced seven turnovers — three interceptions and four fumbles. Farmer had a second interception that was almost returned for a touchdown. Tackles Dejuan Norris and Ray Sanchez were also outstanding as was defensive end Marcus Mayberry.

LEE LOST its shutout with 1:20 left to play when Coronado reserve Scott Taylor broke a 49-yard run for a TD.

The Rebels now take the act on the road to Plainview next Friday, hoping that the rushing explosion continues.

If Lee uses as many players as they did in the opener, some statistician is going to have a nightmare. Keeping up with Lee's numbers on the field is like running through a revolving door.

But it sure was fun.

Rankin 28, Iraan 27

From Staff Reports

RANKIN — Rankin's Brian Braden ran for a five-yard touchdown with 53 seconds left here in a season opening football game with arch rival Iraan and then ran for a two-point conversion to give the Red Devils a 28-27 non-conference victory.

Rankin outscored Iraan by a 16-14 margin in the fourth period to take the victory.

Braden gave Rankin a 6-0 lead in the first period on a 75-yard run, but Iraan countered for a 7-6 lead in the second period when Billy Castenada scored on a 22-yard run. The loss spoiled a great effort by Castenada, who scored all but six of Iraan's 27 points.

Rankin also got TDs of one yard from George Abalos and 36 yards from Mic McCravey.

Iraan's other points came from Jacky Stone on a two-yard run.

Iraan held a 27-20 lead with 3:04 left in the game after quarterback Robert King hit Castenada with a 52-yard scoring toss, but Braden came back to save the day for the Red Devils.

All's fair at Auburn in love, football and classroom

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

It was touch and go there for a while, but when No. 5 Auburn opens its season against Texas Saturday, more than 80,000 fans will pack Jordan-Hare Stadium and Jeff Burger will be at quarterback.

The 80,000 never was in doubt. That's an automatic at Auburn. Burger's attendance, however, was questionable. Having him in the lineup is no small achievement after the quarterback's eligibility came under attack on two separate fronts this summer.

First there was the matter of assistant coach Pat Sullivan, a former Heisman Trophy winner, posting a $700 bond for Burger after the quarterback was jailed on weapons and intoxication charges.

THE NCAA, which once sat down Steve Alford for posing for a charity calendar, and considers as an "extra benefit" schools paying for athletes to travel to funerals of teammates, decided the bond payment was not a flagrant enough violation to bar Burger. "An isolated, inadvertent incident," was the way the protectors of collegiate athletics described the episode.

The quarterback was not, however, in the clear quite yet.

Auburn's academic honesty committee, composed of four professors and three students, found that Burger had plagiarized a term paper for an industrial psychology course and recommended penalties that included a two-quarter suspension. Such suspensions do not ordinarily include participation in football, although at Auburn anything is possible. It was there, remember, that running back Brent Fullwood showed up promptly every Saturday last season, long after he had stopped attending classes Monday through Friday.

THE COMMITTEE'S recommendation on Burger was noted by Warren Brandt, the university's vice president for academic affairs, who amended it to eliminate the suspension part.

Presto. The quarterback had dodged two eligibility bullets and was annointed as an acceptable student-athlete for this, his fifth year at Auburn. And if Burger has a big day, Texas can have no complaint about being beaten by a rules-breaker. The Longhorns, remember, are under NCAA sanctions themselves.

There's no surprise here, really. After all, Burger did not commit some capital crime like accepting money from an agent. This is no Cris Carter or Charles Gladman case. Sure, the quarterback may have bent a few academic rules along the way and maybe he carried a sidearm around town. But at least he didn't tarnish the Simon Pure spirit of NCAA amateurism by taking cold, hard cash, the way Carter and Gladman did. Heaven forbid. That kind of misdemeanmor simply can't be tolerated, perhaps because it comes so close to the economic heart of the matter.

THE 80,000 who will jam Auburn's stadium Saturday, aren't paying for their tickets with Monopoly money. And ESPN didn't buy the television rights with Confederate currency. There is major league legal tender changing hands here, but let a player prematurely claim a little slice of the financial pie for himself, and the foundations of the NCAA seem to tremble. Swipe an exam. Brandish a weapon. But for heaven's sake, don't take any money.

College football will clean its house today by shipping Carter and Gladman off to the NFL in the supplemental draft. The dollar sign that cost them their collegiate eligibility is not exactly a scarlet letter in the pro community.

Wilford Bailey, president of the NCAA, acknowledges that the system is so chock full of inequities it is sometimes laughable.

"I certainly agree that the NCAA rules are too strict," he said. "It is imperative that they be re-examined. There are extremes in the legislation and the way it is interpreted. It can work to the disadvantage of student-athletes. The membership recognizes that and wants to address that matter."

Horse Show set for Big Spring

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING— The Howard County Youth Horsemen Club will hold an Open All Breed Horse Show starting at 10 a.m. Sept 12 at the Garden City Highway Arena. Thirty-nine classes with 20 halter clases and 16 performance classes will be offered.

Injury keeps Dallas back on sidelines

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Injured running back Herschel Walker won't play in the Dallas Cowboys' final preseason game against Houston Saturday night, but he is listed as probable for the regular season opener next week against St. Louis, a team spokesman said Friday.

Walker sprained his right knee during the Cowboys training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., last month and only began limited practice this week, team spokesman Greg Aiello said.

Meanwhile, linebacker Brian Baldinger underwent arthroscopic surgery to remove cartilage from his left knee Friday and will be out for four to six weeks, Aiello said. Baldinger was placed on injured reserve earlier this week.

Center Tom Rafferty will snap for field goals and extra points in Saturday's game at Texas Stadium, but otherwise won't play, Aiello said. Rafferty has been injured for much of the pre-season.

Eagles draft Cris Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — Wide receiver Cris Carter, who lost his eligiblity at Ohio State for accepting money from agents, was chosen by the Philadelphia Eagles in the fourth round of an NFL supplemental draft Friday

Pitt running back Charles Gladman, the only other player in the special draft, was not taken on any of the 12 rounds. Gladman, who was suspended from college play for refusing to cooperate with an inquiry into agents, is now a free agent eligible to sign with any team.

DOGS —

"I guess it was first game jitters," said Somers. "Get all the bugs out this game and hopefully we won't have any more of them."

"I was as pleased as I can be with our offense with all the penalties and turnovers we had," said McCutchen. "We had 37 players on the team that hadn't lined up on varsity before. We had some pre-game jitters and I think it hurt us some."

Now, with a 1-0 record, the Bulldogs, hopefully, have thier jitters conquered and can look forward to spending next week at home as they host Andrews at Memorial Stadium at 8 p.m.

Labor Day . . . the traditional day honoring the labor force of the nation. It's a legal holiday . . . when working people across the country take a one-day break on the first Monday in September.

Work has long been viewed as the cure for most of the troubles of the world. Honest and productive work, which one intends to get done, is a real blessing for humans. It keeps us moving forward and making our days on this earth worthwhile.

As the parable of the talents shows, God expects us to do something with our abilities. Draw fresh inspiration for your life and work in your house of worship this week.

LIFESCOPE

President Proclaims National Day Of Prayer! Lifescope Says, "Seven Days Without Prayer Makes One 'Weak!'"

Jesus said, "When you pray, you shall not be like the hypocrites. For they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the corners of the streets, that they may be seen by men. Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward.

"But when you pray, go into your room, and when you have shut your door, pray to your Father who is in the secret place; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you openly.

"But when you pray, do not use vain repetitions as the heathen do. Therefore do not be like them. For your Father knows the things you have need of before you ask Him.

"In this manner, therefore, pray: Our Father in heaven, Hallowed be Your name. Your kingdom come. Your will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And do not lead us into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. For Yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. Amen.

"Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, 'God, I thank You that I am not like other men - extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this tax collector. I fast twice a week; I give tithes of all that I possess.'

"And the tax collector, standing afar off, would not so much as raise his eyes to heaven, but beat his breast, saying, 'God be merciful to me a sinner!'

"I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other; for everyone who exalts himself will be abased, and he who humbles himself will be exalted."

Don't be anxious, but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. To be continued

Fundamentalist Christian movement strong

RELIGION

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Although the federal courts this summer have dealt fundamentalist Christians three major setbacks without a victory in their drive to shape public education more to their liking, the drive itself remains very much alive, authorities on both sides of the issue say.

As the courts block one legal avenue after another, they say, the battle is likely to intensify on other fronts. They foresee countless grass-roots skirmishes between school boards and fundamentalists who want to promote the study of Christianity and creationism, and to block the study of what they call secular humanism, a value system and a view of life that excludes the supernational.

Textbook publishers, too, are expected to be the target of renewed pressure.

Nor is the struggle in the courts entirely over, and the fundamentalists hold high hopes that in at least one instance they will ultimately prevail. That is the case in which a federal appeals court in Cincinnati, in a decision announced Monday, ruled that public school students can be required to read and discuss textbooks, even though the lessons may offend their religious beliefs. Fundamentalists in Tennessee had sued a local school board because they considered the textbooks to be godless.

On Wednesday, in another blow to the fundamentalist cause, a federal appeals court in Atlanta reversed a trial judge's order that had banned 44 textbooks from Alabama public schools because they were held to promote a godless, humanistic religion.

In the first of this summer's big rulings, on June 19, the Supreme Court struck down a Louisiana law that required public schools to teach the creationist theory of man's origin alongside the theory of evolution.

The impact of the three decisions "takes some of the wind out of their sails," Professor Laurence H. Tribe, a legal scholar at Harvard University, said of the fundamentalists. "But it doesn't sink the ship."

The lesson of the rulings, Tribe said, is that attempts "to reshape public programs in the fundamentalist image are bound to fail" in the courts.

Fundamentalists say they will appeal the Tennessee and Alabama cases as far as they can. "We're going to utilize the system that's made America great and proceed to exhaust all those possiblities," said Robert Skolrood, the executive director of the National Legal Foundation in Virginia Beach, Va. The organization was founded by the Rev. Pat Robertson, the television evangelist who is seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

The series of court decisions "doesn't end the fight," said Ira Glasser, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union. But, he said, the decisions "confirm that the law is on our side, and makes the fight easier to win."

Since the fundamentalist movement began its most recent push in the schools about 1980, Glasser said, it has pursued three lines of attack: promoting creationism, pressuring Congress and the courts to permit school prayer, and fighting for fundamentalist religious content in public school curriculums and textbooks.

Some advocates of the fundamentalist cause concede that in some ways, their movement has stalled. The Supreme Court decision denying equal treatment of creation science "looks like the end of the road on that one unless we get a change in the Supreme Court makeup," Skolrood said. The vote in the case was 7-2.

The appeals court also overturned an order by Federal District Judge Thomas G. Hull that the defendant in the case, the School Board of Hawkins County, Tenn., pay the seven families involved in the suit more than $50,000 for private school tuition and other expenses.

Hearst gets rights to O'Connor, Koch book

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The Hearst Corp. has obtained all publishing rights to a book by John Cardinal O'Connor and Mayor Edward I. Koch of New York City, it has been announced by Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of Hearst, and Mayor Koch, speaking for himself and Cardinal O'Connor.

The Hearst Corp. will pay a $200,000 advance, plus royalties that exceed the advance, for world-wide book rights and has agreed to contribute, in addition, all publishing profits to Catholic charities and to projects to be designated by the mayor for the City of New York. William Morrow & Company Inc., will publish a hardcover edition and Avon Books will publish a soft cover edition. Morrow and Avon are both part of the Hearst Books/Business Publishing Group.

In addition, at least two other Hearst units are involved. Good Housekeeping magazine will pay a separate fee for magazine rights and King Features Syndicate will serialize the book to newspapers throughout the country. Profits from the newspaper serialization will also go to Catholic charities and to designated City of New York projects.

Morrow hopes the book will be ready for publication by fall 1988. The book will present the Cardinal's and Mayor's views on several subjects, including abortion, child care, homosexual rights, Israel and others.

"While the book's publication probably is about a year off, we decided that this was an appropriate publishing project for Hearst to undertake during this year which marks the centennial of our company," Bennack said in an announcement made at City Hall. "For most of those 100 years, we have been headquartered in New York City.

"We believe the relationship between Cardinal O'Conner and Mayor Koch is unique and is one that has created a positive, productive dialogue involving many questions of concern and importance to all citizens. This book will further extend that dialogue throughout the extensive publication program we plan for it," Bennack added.

Personality types explored in Trinity Presbyterian class

Jerry Kelly

— Sept. 16, exploring the 16 Types;

— Sept. 23, Type and Communication; — and, Sept. 30, Type and Spirituality.

The course is open to those in the ninth grade or older. Cost is $10 for scoring the MBIT. For more information or to become a participant call the church, 682-2514.

FPC's men's CBS in third year

Midland Men's Community Bible Study will begin its third year of study 7 p.m. Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church.

The format of CBS is a combination of home study, group discussion and lecture. Beginning at 7 p.m., core groups made up of approximately 15 men meet together to discuss answers to home study questions and at 8 p.m. all of the core groups convene in the FPC Chapel for a short lecture.

The interdenominational study drew a registration of 215 men last year. The men were from 30 churches in Midland as well as those in Odessa, Garden City and Greenwood. Cost of the year's study is $40, and registration is open to all men.

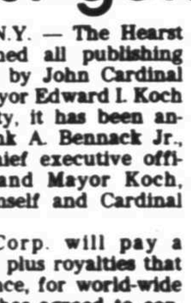
St. Nicholas rector resigns



Schley

The Rev. Joseph H. "Buddy" Schley has resigned his post as rector of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church to take the position as rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Cleburne.

His new position was effective Sept. 1. Cleburne is a town of about 25,000 people located about 29 miles south of Fort Worth.

Schley had served as rector of St. Nicholas the past eight years. During that time, he also was very active in numerous community service organizations.

In leaving the Northwest Texas Diocese, Schley is resigning as dean of the Permian Basin, as chairman of the committee on credentials of the annual Diocesan Convention and as a member of the Ecclesiastical Court, the Committee on Review of Diocesan Structure, the Committee on Constitution and Canons and as Clerical Deputy to the Synod of the Province of the Southwest.

Schley was selected in 1986 by the Jaycees to receive the annual Boss of the Year Award. In his selection he was cited for his community involvement and for inspiring the growth of St. Nicholas. "Recognizing that the work of the church only begins on Sunday morning Father Schley has been active in every community in which he has lived but particularly in Midland" the presenter had said.

That community involvement includes past president of the Midland Association of Churches, Visual Aids and Council on Alcoholism; past vice president of Midland United Way; director of the Samaritan Counseling Center; and a member of the Midland County Families in Action, Midland Health/Mental Retardation and Midland Association for Retired Citizens.

He is a former U.S. Air Force captain, lawyer, judge and businessman. Schley holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree and a Doctor of Jurisprudence Degree from Southern Methodist University. He attended Virginia Theological Seminary and was ordained to the priesthood in 1974.

He has done additional study at the College of Preachers in Washington, D.C., St. George's College in Jerusalem, Israel, the University of Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute and The King's School in Canterbury, England.

He and his wife, Carolyn, have two sons.

Constitution special to air

In response to a challenge from Gordon B. Hinckley, president of The church of Jesus christ of Latter-day Saints, a one-hour television variety special on the U.S. Constitution has been produced by Bonneville Media Communications to air nationally during September.

It will air locally on Channel KTPX at 6 p.m. today, and again Sept. 12.

The program titled "America, the Dream Goes On," features performances by the Tabernacle Choir and Marie Osmond. It highlights the committment that citizens have made to the Constitution in celebration of the 200th anniversary of its founding. The speical in not only entertaining, but also portrays the Constitution as a living thing, an integral part of the lives of U.S. citizens, and not just a document under glass. It shows the Constitution's impact in U.S. cities, farms, places of worship, jobs, homes and on foreign soil.

The question is asked "Where is America?" The program seeks to answer the question through music, scenes of Americana and portrayals of the founding fathers.

In addition to the film, a new family home evening booklet on the Constitution is being made available by the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus christ of Latter-day Saints. Approximately 1.3 million copies of the booklet have been printed, in commemoration of the bicentennial of the signing of the U.S. Constitution.

The booklet contains three family home evening lessons which members are urged to use as part of their family home evenings during September in conjunction with the national bicentennial celebration.

Group says events discredit Monroe Doctrine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The American Friends Service Committee has urged the federal government to abandon what it calls long-time U.S. domination of Central America under the Monroe Doctrine and actively support regional peacemaking processes now at work there.

The Quaker organization, in a major declaration by its board of directors, said events have thoroughly discredited the Monroe Doctrine and what the group called a corollary U.S. policy of exercising "international police power" in the hemisphere.

Under those policies, the United States repeatedly has occupied Honduras and Nicaragua militarily, and lately, claiming a Communist threat, has "relentlesly sought to overthrow" the Nicaraguan government by supporting Contra rebels, the document says.

It says the real "external threat to the security of the countries within the hemisphere comes not from the Soviet Union but from efforts of the United States to impose military solutions on regional conflicts."

Would like to establish a conservative (Reformed) Presbyterian Church in the Midland/Odessa Area.

Mysterious man in white says passing out greenbacks to people 'is my calling'

Famous Amos

LUFKIN (AP) — He wore a white suit, called himself Famous Amos and passed out green stuff — cold cash — with no strings attached.

"It makes me feel good to make people happy," Famous Amos, who declined to give his full name, said as he breezed through Lufkin this week. "Also, I love to see people's reaction when I hand out money."

Amos said he's not independently wealthy and he needs money just as much as anyone else.

He said he works a variety of jobs, mostly selling airplanes in the Northeast. He has his commercial pilot's license and also teaches flying lessons.

"I work and save up a bunch of money, and then I go around the country giving it away," he said. "It's my calling. I was called to do this."

He gets as many different looks as bills he hands to total strangers.

"I'm not looking for praise," he said. "I just love to see people's reactions."

People stand amazed. Those who get the money — $1, $5, $10, $20, $50 or even a $100 bill — are stunned.

His approach is simple, and no questions need to be asked. But don't ask for the money or he won't give it.

"It takes away all the joy and surprise for me," he said. "People are completely different when they ask. They're not sincere. I give to people who do not expect to receive."

At a shopping mall, he approached a lady and said, "Hi! I'm Famous Amos and this is for you."

He gave her a $1 bill and a card which read: "Famous Amos, The man in white."

"Thanks, I needed that. I'm broke," she said.

"Gosh, I didn't know you were broke," Amos replied. "If that's the case, here, take some more."

He peeled off five more ones. She stood amazed. He just walked away. No questions, no answers.

Amos said he began his latest cross-country journey in Bangor, Maine. He travels by car and stops when the feeling hits him. He's not the Famous Amos who made his fortune in a cookie advertising campaign.

"No, I couldn't be," he said. "He's black and I'm white."

There are those who seem to wonder about his motives.

"Many people will walk right past me when I try to give them money," he said. "They simply won't take it."

Others think the money is fake.

"Why counterfeit $1 bills?" he said. "This is real money. This is my calling. Some have other jobs. Mine is giving away money."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Rhythm-and-blues musician Ike Turner, the ex-husband of singer Tina Turner, has been ordered to stand trial on charges after police allegedly found cocaine in a dental floss container in his car.

Superior Court Judge Charles Rubin ruled Thursday after a preliminary hearing for Turner, 54, of Cerritos, on charges of transporting cocaine and possession of cocaine for sale.

Turner, who pleaded innocent, is free on $15,000 bail.

Sheriff's deputies said they stopped Turner's car Aug. 19 for erratic driving. Police said they found nearly 6 grams of a crystalline form of the drug known as rock cocaine.

Turner already faces trial on charges stemming from a 1985 arrest in which he allegedly conspired to sell 10 ounces of cocaine to a Pasadena undercover police officer.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Sounding a bit wistful, presidential press spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the best man to hold the job in recent memory was Pierre Salinger of the Kennedy administration.

"Salinger was pretty good but, of course he was only there for a 1,000 days," Fitzwater said recently. "The press loved his candidate and he knew how to present him."

Fitzwater, who holds court in a hotel here while President Reagan is on vacation, said Salinger dealt with a smaller and more trusting press corps.

"I think back then the press felt they were more a part of the presidency," Fitzwater observed. "Since Watergate, the press has assumed a very adversarial role that changed the whole dynamic of press relations in the White House."

Nowadays, personal relationships with reporters are almost out of the question, he said. "Salinger had to deal with 15 to 20 reporters. When we go on a trip I have to deal with 300."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Mary Schmidt Campbell, who replaced the embattled Bess Myerson as New York City's commissioner of cultural affairs, says her proposed $250,000 exhibit by 1960s black artists "was not a popular notion."

"People distrusted the idea of rehashing the emotion, tensions and confrontation of the '60s," said Ms. Campbell, 39, who prior to her appointment was director of the Studio Museum of Harlem.

She said it has been an uphill battle for six years to get support for the exhibit, "Tradition and Conflict: Images of a Turbulent Decade, 1963-1973." The 43 works are on display at the Arkansas Arts Center through Sept. 20.

The exhibit also commemorates the 30th anniversary of the forced desegregation of Little Rock Central High School.

Myerson, a former Miss America, resigned the cultural affairs post after allegations of impropriety.

SAN FRANCISCO (HNS) — Ollie North can sell quite a story to Congress, but his likeness hasn't sold beans.

A San Francisco couple have found out the hard way that the gap-toothed star of the Iran-contra hearings this summer won't be another G.I. Joe.

Financial consultants John Lee Hudson, 35, and Shana Hudson, 28, say they've lost $20,000 to $30,000 trying to peddle Barbie-size statuettes of Lt. Col. Oliver North. They're getting out of the business.

Despite widespread publicity in newspapers across the country and a small ad campaign, the Hudsons' $19.95 Ollie doll has generated a grand total of 52 orders in the last six weeks.

John Lee Hudson says he will return the money in full along with a letter of apology explaining that demand was not sufficient to mass-produce little Ollie.

The couple had originally hoped to market 500,000 dolls by mail order, using a manufacturer in Taiwan. The prototype, designed by Shana Hudson, wore a tiny full-dress military uniform and North's tough-guy expression.

"Someone asked me when we introduced it if I was going to share the profits with Ollie, and I said I might," John Hudson said, laughing. "Now, I wish he'd share my losses. Put that in the paper. Maybe he'll send me a check."

Economist likes to walk in others' shoes

By NANCY SHULINS

CHESTER, Vt. (AP) — Running an inn in a tiny Vermont town seems an unlikely occupation for a nationally prominent labor economist and former college president — that is, until the innkeeper turns out to be John R. Coleman.

Coleman has a penchant for turning up in unlikely places. That was him, in 1973, digging sewer ditches in the early morning chill of an unseasonable Atlanta spring, and later, hauling garbage in a Washington D.C., suburb.

Unlike his fellow laborers, however, Coleman climbed out of the ditch to chair a meeting of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia. He quit his job with the garbage crew to resume work as president of Haverford College.

"There's a restlessness in me, a desire to walk in other people's shoes," says Coleman, whose adventures as an anonymous laborer became the subject of "Blue-Collar Journal: A College President's Sabbatical," one of seven books he's written. The others, including one co-authored by Secretary of State George Shultz, concern labor economics.

Coleman's latest bout of restlessness, in January 1986, led him to Chester, a southern Vermont town of 3,000 people, white clapboard houses and leafy maples, where horses graze on main street and folks greet each other by name.

"My hobbies are listening to music and cooking. I mentioned this to a friend who said, 'Oh, you're talking about an inn.' I thought about it for a couple of years before I dared to say it out loud," Coleman says.

With the help of his son and daughter-in-law, he renovated the vacant three-story Chester Inn, transforming it into an airy Victorian showplace that opened for business the following May.

Coleman called it "The Inn at Long Last," a name that alludes to the newfound contentment that has accompanied his move to Vermont.

"I'm more at peace now," says Coleman. Indeed, he looks right at home perched on a tufted leather chesterfield in the lobby, a spacious, high-ceilinged room with fieldstone fireplace, handmade quilts and venerable antiques.

"Very few people come to an inn by mistake," he says. "In a year, only one man didn't like it. He wrote a letter complaining that we had 'old' furniture, that there were no phones or TV sets in the rooms."

Though he lives in an apartment next door, Coleman considers his customers guests in his home. With each of the 37 guest rooms named and decorated for people and places that are special to him, a stroll through the inn becomes a journey through the innkeeper's past.

The Old Boston Room recalls Coleman's days as a professor at MIT, as well as his job as an anonymous salad-and-sandwich chef at the Union Oyster House, a popular Boston eatery.

The Copper Cliff Room is a recreation of his boyhood home in a Canada mining town, "a place grim and barren to visitors, but a place of pride and accomplishment to us."

The Kathleen Ferrier Room is a sentimental tribute to the beautiful young singer who captured Coleman's imagination during a concert in London in 1944. The inn's collection of her recordings is often shared with guests.

"Taking over redecorating an old inn is like playing house for keeps," says a written introduction to the inn. "The imagination gets free reign. Each room can become just about anything the players want it to be..."

What Coleman wants his inn to be, for his guests and himself, is a haven as well as a home. But that isn't to say that his search is over.

Fifteen years ago, Coleman's three-month leave from Haverford, a small liberal arts college in Pennsylvania, enabled him to return to the blue-collar work of his youth, when he toiled as a 39-cent-an-hour smelter in his Ontario hometown, the center of the world's nickel industry.

John Coleman takes a proud stance at The Inn at Long Last in Chester, Vt., which he runs. As a prominent labor economist and former college president, Coleman turns up in unlikely places and occupations.

"Ever since I was very young, I've been interested in what others do with their lives," says Coleman, a 65-year-old grandfather, whose elfin features and reedy slimness belie the hard labor he's done.

"My mother was friends with everyone, unless they put on airs. She was the same with the mayor, the garbage man, the man who brought the eggs. She cared about all of those people."

Like mother, like son. Coleman's fascination with the world's laborers never left him, not even as he joined the ranks of the world's managers.

As a professor and college president, Coleman had often urged his students to take time out to vary the rhythm of their lives.

During the early 1970s, when Coleman perceived a growing rift between academia and the workaday world, he decided to take his own advice.

Those first three months merely whetted his appetite. The following summer, Coleman once again abandoned the ivory tower for the back of a garbage truck, resuming a job that made him feel at once "happy and proud."

He followed it with stints as a roughneck on a drilling rig in the uranium fields of New Mexico, a miner in a marble quarry in Wyoming, and a construction worker at a sewage disposal plant in New Jersey.

He left Haverford in 1977. "I had announced my impending resignation during the winter, and in mid-March, I fell asleep in class. I was right in the middle of a sentence," he recalls. "That was the end of my career."

On to New York City, where Coleman became president of the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, a philanthropy devoted to the severely needy. The job kept him busy, but not too busy to take to the streets for 10 days in January of 1983 to live the life of a homeless man.

Two nights a week, he donned the uniform of the city's auxiliary police and patrolled the streets of Manhattan. He also served as an emergency medical technician, and is thinking of joining a voluntary ambulance crew in Vermont.

He takes time out from inkeeping to speak to local groups about his experiences. The theme is always the same: dignity.

"I have matured in my understanding of the concept of the dignity of every person, the fundamental worth of every person," he says. "Each of us has a unique quality, a worth. I get struck by how easily we lose that.

"Next to love, dignity is my favorite word now. My life is still concerned with learning about the dignity of every human being."

Oldest ranger guards ruins of church, pueblo

By WALT SMITH

ABO, N.M. (AP) — Frederico Sisneros, the nation's oldest park ranger at age 93, is still standing guard over the sandstone ruins of a 360-year-old church built by the Spanish and pueblos built by the Tampiro Indians.

Sisneros, who concedes he's "almost 94" but declines to reveal his birthday, has lived all his life on this sagebrush-covered land and he protects it as if it were still his own.

A farmer like his father before him, Sisneros in 1938 donated to New Mexico his portion of the property — 1½ acres — where the church and pueblo ruins sit, in a slightly hilly region west of Mountainair, N.M. The Sisneros family has lived on the land since 1838.

In 1944, he was named caretaker of the site, at a salary of $10 a month. Then, in 1981, a year after the Abo ruins became a national monument, he was named a full-fledged National Park Service ranger receiving full salary and benefits.

"This is my work," says Sisneros, at his post in a tiny plastered adobe hut facing a dirt parking lot, with the red sandstone ruins of the church rising 50 feet high behind him. He lives with his wife, Guadalupe, 82, in a small house on the other side of the parking lot.

Sisneros, a small, soft-spoken man, greets visitors with a wave of his hand and invites them into the small room. He asks them to sign a guest list placed on an adobe window ledge between two of the room's three chairs. He offers them a brochure to guide them through the maze of partially standing buildings.

His years of protecting the site have not been ignored. He has been given a superior service award from the National Park Service and a certificate of commendation from the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The San Gregorio de Abo Church is one of three sites at the Salinas National Monument about 80 miles south of Albuquerque. About 40 percent of the original pueblo and church still stand as ruins, guarded by Sisneros and a 6-foot-high chain link fence.

The other two sites nearby are the San Buenaventura Church and Pueblo de las Humanas at Gran Quivira and the Nuestra Senora de la Purisima Concepcion de Cuarac Church at Quarai.

Abo and Quarai both are made of red sandstone rock held together by mud mortar. The National Park Service does not rebuild the ruins but each summer new mortar is forced between the rocks to keep the walls standing.

Sisneros remembers when archaeologists came to the Abo site earlier this year to excavate what he believed as a child to be a pile of rocks. The archaeologists told Sisneros there was a second, older church beneath the one standing and that they were going to find it.

"I said they were fools but when they found the other church I said I am the fool," Sisneros says.

Sisneros walks among the ruins and points at the ground, describing the walls found by archaeologists that since have been covered up. He says he knows nothing about the ruins but he is able to describe the rooms in the pueblo and their purpose.

However, during excavations he made many wrong guesses about the ruins, he says. When a courtyard first was discovered in the pueblo ruins, he thought it was a corral because there was a post in each corner. He also thought an indentation in the ground was used to store water. It later was discovered to be a kiva, a large room used for religious ceremonies.

"I don't know much," he says.

Despite the church having been abandoned for hundreds of years, Sisneros says it still is a holy place. He has left it for an extended time only once. In 1974 he took a two-week trip to the Holy Land "to see where our Lord lived."

He recites stories from the Bible in detail and describes the places where biblical history took place. He saw the hill where Jesus gave the sermon on the mount and many temples in Jerusalem.

'Cap'n Jim' has life-long adventure

By LEIGH HOPPER

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — Ec-cen-tric (ik-sen-trik), noun, a person that deviates from conventional or accepted conduct, especially in odd or whimsical ways.

Meet Jim Gilliam of Freeport, the man beneath the straw hat, astride a bicycle with a small black dog in the basket.

Leprechaun-like with white beard, twinkly eyes, and long-stemmed pipe, Gilliam gestures with his hands when words fail him, and punctuates his stories with raucous, knee-slapping laughter.

Gilliam has packed several lifetimes' worth of adventure into his 73 years. He likes to be called "Cap'n Jim" in honor of his seagoing days, but skippering boats is only the most recent in a varied succession of careers.

"I don't have to turn on the TV. I can turn on my memory. It's more interesting," he says, puffing his pipe.

Now living in a small apartment, for most of Gilliam's life home has been where he hung his hat. Born in New Mexico, nearly three-quarters of a century ago, Gilliam grew up on a ranch that covered 7,500 bone-dry acres, learning to ride a horse by the time he could walk.

ADVENTUROUS BY nature, it didn't take him long to get antsy in the saddle. "I bailed out at the age of 13," Gilliam says. He left home and landed a $45-a-month job as a top hand on a 205,000-acre West Texas ranch. According to local legend, the owner made his fortune in oil but kept 11,000 head of cattle out of tradition.

Impressed by the spread's vastness and happy with his salary, Gilliam stayed with the 15-man outfit for nearly two years before wanderlust struck again.

"I went out wandering around," he says. "I wanted to go to town."

Like a hobo, Gilliam hitchedhiked and rode boxcars to jobs all over the country. Hitchhiking was the slowest way to go because automobiles weren't as numerous in those days.

An able-bodied man easily found work because highways, railroads and pipelines were under construction everywhere. Gilliam spotted a work crew and watched until he saw a ditch that needed digging. He'd start shoveling until the foreman asked the stranger what he thought he was doing.

"Workin'," Gilliam would reply.

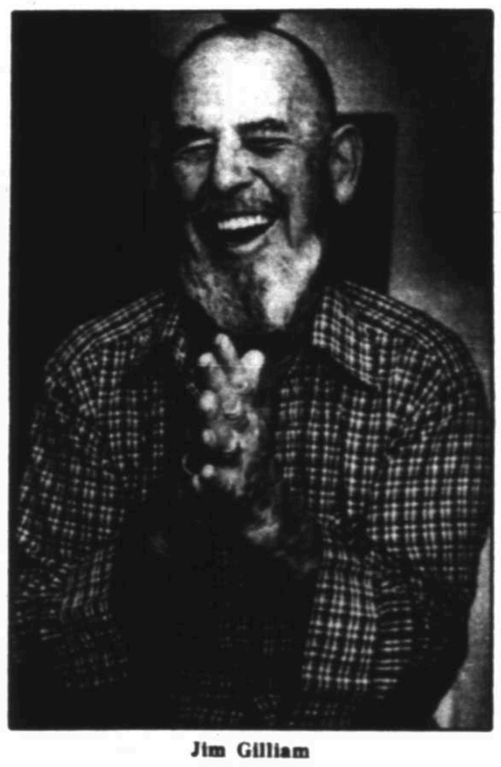
"Well, you better go over to the time shack and put your name in or you won't get paid," the foreman would say.

Gilliam eventually ended up in Minnesota in a settlement populated by immigrant Swedes, Norwegians, and Germans, hardworking people rooted in European traditions.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY and a plumbing apprenticeship kept Gilliam in Minnesota nine years. The apprenticeship bloomed into a lucrative career and in the meantime, Gilliam got a college education.

Gilliam, who never went to high school, got into college quite by accident. He worked nights at a restaurant and one of his coworkers had trouble with her college English class. She washed Gilliam's dishes while he dashed off her English papers.

Her professor eventually caught on, and when the student confessed that Gilliam had written her papers, the professor demanded to see Gilliam.



Jim Gilliam

"I tell you what, you need to be in college," the professor told Gilliam.

Gilliam protested, but at the professor's urging, he took an aptitude test and passed with a score higher than the average high school graduate.

Gilliam spent two years in school, but Minnesota's severe weather was wearing thin. In 1939, he decided he'd seen all the snow he could stand, and headed for Freeport, where men were streaming in from all over the world for the construction of Dow Chemical Co.'s Plant A.

Gilliam got a job casting concrete pilings. Stooped over, pushing wheelbarrows full of wet concrete, "you can't imagine how hard that work was," he says. The construction company routinely replaced four to five workers a day.

WHEN THAT job was finished, he applied to work directly for Dow. After talking his way around a bad eye, he was hired to work in a lab. Gilliam registered for the armed services but was turned down because of flat feet and his eye.

Not long after, Gilliam took advantage of his non-military status and got married.

One evening during their Houston honeymoon, Gilliam and his wife sat in a movie theater watching a U.S. sergeant singlehandedly fighting off the German army.

The screen suddenly went dark. After a few moments of hoots and catcalls, a man stepped into the spotlight and announced the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"For two minutes it seemed like 30 minutes there was not a sound. Then all hell broke loose," Gilliam says.

All service people were to report directly to their base. Within two weeks, Gilliam's status was upgraded and he entered the service as a petty officer.

Gilliam and his wife parted ways at the train station he, bound for the base in Norfolk, Va., she and their 5-week-old son bound for her mother's home in Denton.

GILLIAM HAD $200 in his pocket and gave all but $20 to his wife.

"That's all we had in the world," Gilliam says.

Gilliam's train was filled with recruits and as they got under way the good times began. A craps game began, Gilliam pulled out his $20 and rolled the dice.

He won $500.

First chance he had, Gilliam mailed four $100 money orders to his wife keeping $100 seed money for himself. He told her the $400 was a special bonus for volunteering.

Three and a half years later, Gilliam returned to his family, buying a house with money he'd accumulated through gambling and free-lance photography. He resumed his job with Dow, but the fumes combined with rock dust he'd inhaled began to take their toll.

"Get out of there and find the cleanest air you can find and stay there," his doctor advised him.

Gilliam left Dow, toyed with business and off shore oil exploration and drifted south to Brownsville. There, he met commercial fishermen who told him of big money to be made.

GILLIAM SPENT the next 19 years fishing and shrimping all the way from the Gulf of Mexico to the Caribbean Sea to the Amazon River. It was good money, $1,000 a month.

He left shrimping and spent the next 11 years transporting boats for owners thoughout Mexico, Central America, South America or anywhere. "It didn't matter to me as long as the money was right."

"If it seems I'm emphasizing years," he says interrupting his story, "I've been here almost three-quarters of a century. My last birthday was my 73rd. That doesn't mean I'm 73 years old. I've just been around that long."

Resuming his narrative, Gilliam says he returned to Freeport to care for his mother who was nearly 90 years old by that time.

After she died, he returned to the sea, working on oil supply boats as captain, mate and even cook. He was regarded as one of the best cooks on the Gulf. Then four or five years ago "they quit hiring me," bypassing him for younger folks.

"Yes, I regret that, but I have been in the sun so much I've exhausted my tolerance to the sun," he says. Trouble with skin cancer keeps him inside on sunny days.

"If I could overcome that," he says, pausing, "I would live a long time."

NOW HE spends his days puttering around his apartment or taking Osito, "Little Bear," for bicycle rides. Gilliam maintains a lively interest in politics and in Osito's latest doggie tricks.

"I don't fear death. I'm not concerned," he says, growing philosophical. "We have to be aware of time. Time. Eternity is on and on and on."

"I wasn't afraid to live," he says, breaking into a guffaw, "Why should I be afraid to die!"

Ex-NASA technician forges interest of music, machines

By T.J. SIMONEAUX

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — Twenty years ago, Ronnie Utt was helping to forge the "New Frontier." Today, he's returned to the forge to help children understand frontier ways.

Utt, 53, a former technician at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, is a bespectacled musician who doubles as blacksmith at Prickett's Fort State Park in Marion County, W.Va.

He helps to recreate for school tours the West Virginia life of the late 1700s — including old Appalachian and British ballads and Irish lullabies that have been passed down through the generations.

"It's the first time my machinist and music interests have come together" in one job, says Utt, who speaks and sings in a drawl that's reminiscent of country singer Willie Nelson.

"It's great," he says. "And to think, I found it only eight miles from where I was born."

The job calls for "showing the old and the new" to help children comprehend how pioneers lived, he says. For example, he tells his young visitors that chores they do at home are much the same as those performed oy frontier children — such as taking out the garbage.

He also leads sing-alongs of the ballads and Irish lullabies that some of the children's parents still sing.

"People don't understand the importance of music on West Virginia society," says Utt, who plays guitar in a trio with his banjo-picking wife, Nancy, and a local fiddler.

"Now, we're starting to see it, with Mountain Stage and Vandalia, the music festivals," he adds. "And these children, they sing real good."

Utt grew up on a farm outside Morgantown, W.Va., and the rural life fostered in him a passion for both tinkering with machines and traditional Appalachian music.

"My stepmother sang the old songs," he says. "I'd sit up and sing far into the night with her."

His father had a hand-cranked forge, which young Ronnie ran when his father made tools and farm equipment — including a tractor built from scratch.

Utt joined the Air Force shortly after high school and became a machinist. He was stationed in central Louisiana, where he sang in a gospel group, and then Texas, where he worked in the oil fields after leaving the service.

Then Utt "went looking for greener fields" and joined Philco — now Ford Aerospace — in 1965. He helped design and install the Johnson Center's control-room consoles — "that room you see on TV with the green lights" — between 1965 and 1980, from Gemini 3 to the first Columbia space shuttle flight.

"It was a new frontier. We were pioneers in space," he says. "We knew we were going to the moon. I didn't go, of course, but I helped put those there that went."

"People don't understand the importance of music on West Virginia society.

"Now, we're starting to see it, with Mountain Stage and Vandalia, the music festivals. And these children, they sing real good."

— Ronnie Utt, former NASA technician

But the job entailed chemically treating the circuitry and consoles to prevent corrosion. "After 13 years of spray painting and working with chemicals, it was affecting my health," Utt says.

He developed allergies and sinus problems. He also had a 40 percent hearing loss due to the chemicals — "a scary thing for a musician," Utt says. The chemicals, combined with the high humidity and pollution of Houston, drove him behind a desk.

"But by then, the damage was done. So I moved home," he said.

His health cleared up once he returned to West Virginia and the outdoors, he says — ironic in view of his current job, since frontier blacksmiths usually died young because they breathed so much hot coal dust.

state government-paid job. He insists upon dressing correctly for the part, including hand-sewn linen frontiersman britches and blouses.

His wife sewed one of the shirts from "synthetic material, and I won't wear it," he said. He bought his brass-rimmed specs in an antique store.

Utt even lives in a log cabin dating from the 1830s. It has electricity and running water, but other facets — including a well-used cooking hearth — retain the frontier feeling.

"It took me years to find the right kind of windows for it," he said. "I wanted it to look old."

At the end of the day, however, when the school buses full of children have departed, Utt slips out of his leather moccasins and into his work boots for the trip home.

See This Fantastic New 1988 Model Now!

Are you a type S personality?

In other words, are you cool? Then the new Prelude S just might be your perfect matchup.

Take a look at its unhurried lines. Everything seems to flow together. And well it should.

Honda engineers agonized over how best to refine the Prelude without losing the character everybody has come to love. Obviously they arrived at a very sensual conclusion.

First, they lowered the hoodline for better aerodynamics and greater visibility. Window area was increased to provide a more sweeping view. The glass fits more flush to the body. Again for less wind resistance.

The engineers were looking for an open feeling that wouldn't leave you feeling left out in the open.

When they were finally satisfied with the outward appearance, they turned inward. Here great pains were taken with your comfort.

You'll find the driver's seat shifted ever so slightly to better position the foot pedals. The front bucket seats have been redesigned to make it easier to get in and out of the car.

You'll notice that the instrument panel has a smoother, rounder shape and we made all the gauges easier to read. The center console integrates into a cockpit feel.

Below the heating controls is an AM/FM stereo system with a cassette player and four speakers to soothe you. A standard power-operated Moonroof sets the mood.

To add a little excitement there is a new, responsive 2.0 liter overhead cam engine with dual carburetors. It's made of aluminum to cut down on the weight. And the engine itself reclines toward the rear so it fits under the hood. That smart move also lowers the center of gravity to help improve the handling. Even the engine mounts have been reworked to better absorb vibrations.

There is a new available 4-speed automatic transmission with a sport shift mode that shifts through the first three gears at higher engine speeds for sportier driving. It's electronically controlled. The computer that controls it also performs diagnostic functions for service technicians.

You can shift gears full time with the incredibly smooth manual 5-speed transmission that comes standard.

For this year the Prelude includes double wishbone suspension on all four wheels. That's a new feature and it makes handling an absolute pleasure. Double wishbone suspension is one reason why race cars are so much fun to drive. Front and rear stabilizer bars help to keep the fun manageable. So do the four-wheel disc brakes. And the power-assisted rack & pinion steering gives you a better feeling of the road.

Mainly, you'll discover the new Prelude S to be a personal car. Be good to yourself. HONDA
