UNLESS WEATHER CLEARS UP TODAY, GAME WILL PROBABLY NOT BE PLAYED

A steady downpour of rain that set in early Wednesday evening and continued until late in the night and as the Herald goes to press, is still threatening, may cause the postponement of the Perryton-Spearman game scheduled to be played on the local field this afternoon, according to W. B. Irvin, unless the weather clears up today.

Wednesday was a big day at King's Clothing Store, according to Allen King, proprietor of the new store, even though they were handicapped to a large extent by the failure of much of their merchandise to arrive.

Practically all of the new merchandise will arrive this week and will be placed immediately in stock. Those who visited the store during the opening, Wednesday, are cordially invited back to see the goods that is arriving daily.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT NEEDED

PETITION ASKS THAT THIS DISTRICT BE MADE INTO TWO SEPARATE DISTRICTS

Pampa, Texas, Nov. 27.—A petition asking Senator-elect C. C. Small and Representative Dewey Young to sponsor a legislative measure to create a new judicial district composed of Carson, Gray, Roberts, and Wheeler counties is being circulated today under the direction of the chamber of commerce.

This plan would leave Hutchinson, Ochiltree, Hansford, Hemphill and Lipscomb counties in the other district, instead of having concurrent jurisdiction in the nine counties as now provided. The 84th district, of which Newton P. Willis is presiding judge, is a specially created district which will automatically cease to exist January 15.

Some disposition of the matter must be made by the coming session of the legislature, since the press of cases needing court action is as strong as when the 84th district was first created. There has been some mention of a short-lived third district court to clear the dockets.

Under the plan proposed in the petition, the home of Judge Willis at Canadian would be in his district, and Roberts county, home of Judge Reese Ewing, would be in the other district. Each judge had stated that he has no particular wishes in the matter.

Mrs. E. Hall and son, Pete, who now live near Ideal in Hansford County, visited friends in this city on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Nell Stimmel, formerly with the Caley Specialty Shop at Woodward, Oklahoma, came in the fore part of this week to accept a position as sales lady with the Ladies Store of this city.

Mrs. Verna Caley, proprietor of the Ladies Store of this city, came in Monday from Woodward, to visit with her father, C. C. Rifenberg, until after Thanksgiving and to oversee the sale which will start at the Ladies Store next Saturday.

Mrs. O. E. Blank and sons left Tuesday for Goltery, Okla. to spend Thanksgiving with her father.

Starch does not taste good unless it is well cooked, hence it is advisable to cook cereals until the starchy flavor disappears, but it is no longer considered necessary to cook them for several hours before they are given to children. Many of the package cereals now on the market have already been precooked so that some of them need only a very brief cooking in the double boiler.

When making jelly it is not necessary to heat the sugar before adding it to the fruit juice. The only reason it is to shorten the time of boiling the jelly. If the juice is boiling hot when the sugar is put in, the boiling process will only be checked for a minute or two by the addition of the cold sugar. It is then boiled rapidly until the jelly stage is reached, which should be in from 5 to 10 minutes or even less.

Mildew stains on fabrics when very fresh, may sometimes be washed out with soap and water, or bleached in the sun. The growth of mildew is at first on the surface of materials that have been allowed to become damp, but in a short time these molds penetrate the fiber and injure it, and are almost impossible to eradicate. Soaking the stains in sour milk overnight and placing in the sun without rinsing, will sometimes help. Slight stains are sometimes removed by moistening them with lemon juice and salt and placing in the sun. Javelle water, used as a bleach, will take out mildew stains on white cotton or linen but should never be used on silk or wool. Other chemicals are also used at times. Mildew on shoes should be wiped off as soon as detected and the shoes washed with soap and warm water, and well dried. Stuff the shoes with soft crumpled paper or dry oats, and dry in a warm, but not hot, place.

Make hot cheese toast for winter suppers sometimes. For 12 or 14 slices, you will need 1 pound of medium sharp American cheese, 1-2 pint rich milk or cream, 2 eggs, 4 drops of tabasco sauce, 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, and 2 tablespoons of flour mixed with an equal amount of water. Flake the cheese with a fork. Heat the milk in a double boiler, thicken it with the flour and water mixtures, and cook for five minutes. Add the beaten eggs, the cheese, and the salt. Cook very slowly until the cheese has melted and the mixture is thick and creamy. Allow it to cool and add the baking powder. Spread on the untoasted side of bread that is browned on one side only. Put the mixture on evenly to the very edges, Otherwise they will be too hard and brown. Brown the cheese toast delicately under a low gas flame or in the oven. If desired lay a strip of crisp bacon across each slice of cheese toast. Serve immediately.

A number of vegetables are suitable for filling with stuffings of various ingredients. Eggplant, green peppers, large Spanish onions, cymlings, tomaties, and cabbage are among those served in this way. Usually the stuffing is made of other vegetables, ground meat, and some starchy material such as bread crumbs, or cooked rice, or spaghetti, to give body. A great many combinations are possible in stuffings and they offer an excellent way to use up small portions of leftovers. For stuffed onions, for instance, the following combination is particularly good—chopped celery, buttered bread crumbs, ground cooked ham, and a little leftover gravy or sauce to act as a binder. Most stuffed vegetables can be prepared early in the day and set aside until it is time to reheat them. For this reason, and because they are tasty and unusual, they are well adapted to "company" meals when one wants something a little out of the ordinary.

THE VALUE OF LEGUME HAY FOR POULTRY RATIONS

On many farms where eggs, dressed and live poultry are produced, more attention is given to total production than to economy of production. Only the poultryman who carefully studies methods of feeding and management will be able to make his business profitable year after year. Probably the feeding of the farm flock offers the best opportunity for reducing production costs.

While hay has been considered a standard feed for cattle and sheep, hay, particularly good legume hay, hay, partcularly good legume hay, can make up a very valuable part of the poultry ration.

At the Ohio Experiment Station, it was found that legume nays such as alfalfa, clover or soybean of good quality, when fed to hens was as valuable in the ration as green feed.

Alfalfa meal has been used to some extent in poultry mash feeds but at the Ohio Station chopped or recut alfalfa was found to be considerably more valuable than alfalfa meal for laying hens. This chopped hay was fed in wire netting feeders and was found to give excellent results in the laying ration.

NATURE'S COSMETICS BEST

Declaring that cosmetics are essential to health and beauty but that nature's brand is the best on the market and that the vanity case should be kept on the dining table rather than the dressing table, home demonstration authorities of the A. and M. College Extension Service are emphasizing gardens as the magic gateway to beauty. "Garden cosmetics should be applied internally for the most part," they say. "Rouge your face with carrots, spinach and turnip greens. Let your mirror be a dish of delicious vegetable soup and note the effect in a bevelled edge mirror. For sparkle in your eyes try boiled onions or spinach for they contain phosphorus which concentrates in the beacon-like beam, one from each eye.

"Vegetables, both raw and cooked, fruits, fresh air and milk are the health givers that will aid woman in her eternal quest for beauty. The best face cream in cow's vanishing cream used daily. For a clear skin apply fruit juice and plenty of vegetables down the inside of the neck. Make your morning meal of oatmeal or other cereals, and take plenty of water, both internally and externally, drinking at least one quart daily. Drill yourself to clean your teeth after each meal or the dentist will drill them for you."

This is the advice 34,000 rural club women and girls are getting from their county home demonstration agents who are showing how it is done by conducting demonstrations in gardening and dairying and in the healthful use of vegetables and dairy products.

THREE CENT RUGS

The braided rag rug which won first place in the Eastland County Fair this year cost just three cents and this was for thread for sewing the braids, announces Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent there. "While this is an exceptional case it is true that rag rugs, which are becoming more and more popular, are very cheap and easy to make," she says. Thousands of Texas women have learned through demonstrations how to take an assortment of various colored rags and work them into durable floor coverings of artistic designs.

"Soft woolen rags of such materials as flannel, serge and light weight suitings are best for the purpose, although good rugs can be made of such cotton fabrics as firmly knit underwear and stockings, outing flannel, cotton blankets, domestic, percale and gingham," states Mrs. Bernice Claytor, Home Improvement Specialist in Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. "The cloth should be old enough to be soft and pliable and the color should have been softened by repeated washings.

"Since rugs form a part of the foundation and background of the room, at least two-thirds of the rags should be neutral and usually dark in color. Tans, browns and greys are ordinarily the most attractive. Conirast and variety may be obtained by use of the lighter and more vivid colors. The center and the outside edge of the rug should be of darker colors if it is to look as if it were lying flat on the floor.

"A rug 27 by 36 inches, suitable to place before a door, will take the equivalent of 15 yards of cotton cloth. Women interested in making rugs may learn through their county home demonstration agents, or in case the county does not employ one the A. and M. Thanksgiving

The Pilgrim Fathers were forced to carry a blunderbuss where ever they went. They knew the value of PROTECTION. After a year of hardships they set a day and called it Thanksgiving, the first Thanksgiving. Every year thereafter they celebrated the day and in this manner the habit has come down to us.

Today, three hundred years later, people also know the value of PROTECTION. It is not necessary to carry a blunderbuss, but it is NECESSARY to bank your money, valuable papers and jewelry. The Utopia which is absolutely free from danger of theft is yet to be found, and until it is, it will be necessary to place valuables in theft proof places. We solicit your business.

To relax muscles and stimulate circulation of the eyes, rest the elbows on a table, supporting the chin with the thumbs. Move the third finger across the upper eyelids in light rotary strokes from the inner corner of the eyes outward—then inward on the lower lid. Beginning between the lower lid. Beginning between the brows, run the fingers in firm, gentle strokes over the eyebrows to the outer corner of the eyes and finish with a light circular movement.

When years of neglect have left their imprint it is usually necessary to give the eyes a more elaborate treatment. After cleansing the face clear the eyes with a good lotion lay upon them a pack of soothing herbs dipped in water as hot as can be borne. Repeat two or three times then film the eyelids with cream and proceed with the special movements.

But try these simple rules for keeping eyes forever young and you will not regret the ten or fifteen minutes a day required to apply them.

STORED WHEAT MAY BE DAMAGED IN THE BIN

An average of many guesses suggests that between 20 and 25 percent of the Oklahoma wheat crop is still held in farmers' bins awaiting a better price. With prices definitely below $1 most of the stored wheat is there to stay until spring.

The Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman of November 1 reports that the season has been bad for holding wheat aside from the fact that the price has taken a bad turn. Weevil and flour worms are more plentiful than usual. One-third of the wheat arriving at elevators is infested with weevils.

Unless farmers make use of carbon disulfide to kill the weevils, much of the wheat now in storage will depreciate more from the ravages of bugs than it has already depreciated from the ravages of a price decline. It isn't a big job to place carbon disulfide at the rate of 5 to 15 pounds per 1,000 bushels in vessels over the tops of the wheat. The amount depends on whether the bin is open or tight.

WORLD FARM CENSUS

Cooperation of approximately 98 percent of the countries of the world is to make possible the taking of a world agricultural census in 1930, according to the November 1 Oklahoma Farmer Stockman. The results of the census will be published probably in 1931 or 1932. The figures of the census will give the number and size of farms the area and production of important crops, and the number of each kind of livestock by age and sex.

CREAMERY PROMOTER BUSY IN SOUTHWEST

Fifteen years ago promoters succeeded in building some 20 creameries in Oklahoma. In each case the promoter picked out a community, sold stock, installed machinery, got his money and left, says the November1 Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman.

Within three year many of these so-called co-operatives went broke, and at the end of five years only one was left. It soon closed its doors.

After this disasterous experience with promoted creameries eight years passed without a co-operative creamery in the state. In the last two years interest has been revived. Two strictly co-ops have been built and a third is ready to operate.

The success of these creameries has created statewide interest, and with that interest has again come the promoter.

The basis on which the promoter operates is unsound. He organizes a stock company, not a co-operative. Stock is sold to anyone, and the promoter with his high pressure selling methods does the selling. Folks buy stock who later regret it and the creamery is off to a bad start.

A creamery so financed is not a cooperative creamery. It is a corporation. Such stock companies have never succeeded. They have been tried out in every state in the union and have all been junked.

FARM THIEVES HAVE STARTED OPERATIONS

Chicken thieves have started operations in Oklahoma and Texas, declares the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman of November 1. These thieves may get away with close to $1,000,000 worth of chickens and other property in this territory during the coming winter unless farmers take steps to prevent it.

Only community organization can handle the problem of farm thievery. A good many communities are reviving their anti-thief organizations, replenishing their reward funds and making plans to catch the first thief who molests property belonging to members.

County officers and deputies are being advised of these rewards. A careful check is being kept on chickens, livestock and other property so that a complete report can be made to officers in case of a theft. Officers often complain that farmers are usually two or three days late in reporting a loss but some communities are taking steps to report thefts immediately. Other communities will wait until a half dozen farmers have lost several hundred dollars worth of chickens before they take any interest in preventing such thievery.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Turner and son, Troupe, Las Vega, New Mexico, came in Tuesday to spend Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. B. S. Ellis.

Word has been received by the relatives of F. M. McGee, St. Louis, Okla that he is slightly improved. He has been seriously ill at a hospital in Oklahoma City for several days. His many friends here wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Otis Shearer returned Monday from Enid where she visited several days with her sister.

Mrs. E. W. Witt, who has been visiting with her daughter at Clarendon for several days, returned to her home Tuesday.

Mrs. W. C. Barber writes from Excelsior Springs, Mo., where she and Mr. Barber have been sojourning for the past few weeks, stating that they expect to leave there soon for this city.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1928-29 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ght 1928, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 5

...yers generally seem to have the ...n that four-card suit bids are ...est from suit bids where the suit ...ns five or more cards. Such an ...n is erroneous, of course. The ...difference between a four-card ...and a five-card suit is that the ...cards of the former will average ...oduce one trick, while the small ...s of the latter will produce two ...

...example, a four-card suit headed ...e Ace-King will average three ...—two for the high cards and ...for the low cards. A suit of five ...headed by the Ace-King, how... will average to produce four ...—two for the Ace-King and ...for the small cards.

...ther words, there are two kinds of trick takers in Auction: high cards, such as Aces and Kings; and small cards which become trick takers as a result of various combinations of length in suits. For this reason, before you start to make bids on suits of only four cards, remember that such a suit will average to produce one trick less than the same holdings in a five-card suit. If you set the minimum number of tricks in high cards that must be held to justify a bid with five cards of a suit, you must logically increase that minimum by one trick when you bid four card suits.

For example: With the following four-card suit holdings, you should hold the number of tricks specified in plain (side) suit to make the four-card suit a justifiable original bid.

Four-Card Suit Holding	Strength in Plain Suit Must be High Cards
A, Q, 7, 6	One Trick
K, Q, 10, 4	One Trick
A, J, 10, 6	One Trick
K, Q, 4, 2	One Trick and a Half
A, K, 3, 2	One-half Trick

...above holdings are about the only ...ible original four-card suits that ...d be bid and then only as dealer ...ond hand. If you will study this ...and rigidly follow the require... for high card tricks in plain ...you can bid four-card suits with...ting into trouble. If, however, ...d four-card suits without outside strength, you will have trouble and plenty of it.

Here is an interesting hand that shows the value of taking out certain suits in one's own hand and partner's and then forcing the opponents to lead the other suits to their disadvantage. Such play is called "elimination" or "stripping a hand".

Mr. and Mrs. Liel Lewellen returned last week from a two weeks trip to southern Texas. They visited with friends and relatives in Fort Worth, Dallas and San Antonio, then went on to Bayside, Texas where they spent several days fishing and visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ballew, who are spending the winter on the coast. They then went to Kerrville, Texas for a deer hunt and Mr. Lewellen was successful in killing one of the biggest bucks killed in that section this year. Liel is one of our best hunters and he seldom fails to come home without a buck.

STYLE IS GREAT ASSET

"A woman does not have to be slender to be chic, but she must study herself and determine the lines best suited to her type, then select a model which is smart and correct for her type. Present styles can be adopted by the large woman. There are a great many side draps used today which are especially good for the stout woman. Surplice lines are kind to the woman of ample proportions, and vertical lines which extend from neck to hem, the use of panels, loose draperies, rows of buttons and plaits are very becoming to the stout woman," so Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, clothing specialist in the A. and M. College Extension Service explains.

"The woman with over-developed legs should not wear skirts which are too short. V neck and deep neck lines are usually becoming to the large figure, and fitted garments which cling but are not too tight tend to reduce one's size. It is very important not to over-fit, for example: A large arm will look larger if the sleeve is too tight. Tightness at the top of the hip is correct at present but there should be ease everywhere else.

"High lustre materials should be avoided by the large woman. She should like-wise shun a sharp contrast of color when it breaks the figure horizontally. The short necked woman should try to increase the apparent length of this connection, and the narrow shouldered woman should try to get the effect of more breadth by use of reglan sleeves, bertha, drop shoulders, etc. By increasing the apparent width of shoulders the apparent size of the hips is reduced.

"All accessories should be selected to bring out the best lines. The person of short neck and double chin should never wear a choker necklace but a long string of beads. All these things are important, for woman's dress aids her progress by giving her self reliance and self respect."

Surprise Dinner

* * * *

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McClung were very pleasantly surprised on last Sunday when a large crowd of their friends walked in on them with well filled baskets, the contents weighing down the dinner table which was soon prepared. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Kirt Williams and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dodson and son, Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Dodson and children, Mrs. A. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams and children, Misses Irma Smith and Winnie Williams, Messrs. Robert Smith, Virgil Dodson, Earl McClung and Claude Shearer and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. McClung. After the bountiful feast was spread, the afternoon was enjoyed by all telling jokes and playing games after which the guests departed for their homes, one and all having had a very enjoyable day.

Barlow-Cooper

* * * *

Miss Anna Barlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Barlow of northeast of Perryton, and Mr. Guy Cooper, were quietly married on last Sunday afternoon by Rev. E. C. Raney, pastor of the Perryton Methodist Church.

The bride is a very accomplished young lady and is very poular among the younger set of this town and community. She has lived in this country for the greater part of her life with her parents, who are numbered among our most prosperous and respected citizens.

Mr. Cooper is well known in this county having lived here in the earlier days. For the past few years, he has lived in Hansford County where he is making a success of the farming and stock raising business.

Mrs. Cooper was very charmingly dressed in a gown of chocolate brown crepe trimmed in velvet. The bridegroom wore a beautiful suit of gray. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper left on a boneymoon trip to Southern Missouri where they will visit with friends and relatives after which they will be at home on the groom's farm near Gruver. A host of friends join in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous married life.

A WORLD'S RECORD TWO TON LITTER

Mr. A. T. Sanders, Dixie Stock Farms, Lancaster, Kentucky, are noted for their having produced a world's record on a two-ton litter of 12 pigs, weighing 4323 pounds in 180 days, produced on the Dixie Stock Farms.

Most of their success they attribute to proper feed preparation.

They use a combination chopper, grinder and mixer and grind everything from legume hay, down to small grains of all kinds.

They report that the machine paid for itself in less than six months. It is their opinion that better feed preparation pays and their remarkable results seem to indicate this fact

Chopped or ground alfalfa, with grain mixed in, may be fed through self-feeders. Reducing the alfalfa hay, by chopping and grinding induces the brood sow to consume more of it. The brood sow may be regulated like a machine, adding or removing just enough grain to add or remove fat. The feed prepared is in a more convenient form to weigh, to mix and to dispense.

Grace Moon is suffering with a broken arm received Sunday while trying to cranK a car.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gray of the Gray neighborhood were shopping here last Friday.

RECORD MILO YIELD CLAIMED

"The biggest per acre production of maize ever reported in west Texas, where the grain was actually weighed out," is claimed for a Martin County 4-H club boy, Aubrey Reed, who weighed out 4300 pounds of threshed milo from his club acre. He planted his crop on the "two rows and skip one" method advocated by J. V. Bush, the county agent, who declares that in spite of a comparatively wet year such crops are out yielding the ordinary fields. Rupert Shrader, another club boy in that county also using the skip method made 96 pounds more of maize from two rows than his dad did from three rows. Bush believes the results will be still more convincing in drier years.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

- a Six in the price range of the four!

The Chevrolet Motor Company announces The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History . . . a Six in the price range of the four!

Spectacular as Chevrolet's achievements have been in the past . . . notable as its engineering triumphs have proved themselves to be—this remarkable new car dwarfs every previous Chevrolet accomplishment. Not only does it introduce into the low-priced field an entirely new measure of performance, comfort, beauty and style—but it is sold at prices so low as to alter every previous conception of motor car value.

The new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine—developed from more than a hundred motors designed especially for this sensational car—stands out as an engineering masterpiece. With a power increase of approximately 32% over the previous Chevrolet motor, with sensationally greater speed, and faster acceleration—it offers a type of performance that is literally astounding . . . even to those who have been driving cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

Throughout the entire speed range, it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that have never before been approached in a low-priced automobile. At the slower speeds of city traffic it idles along with wonderful silence and ease. On boulevards and country roads it responds with an eagerness that is a constant delight. It takes the longest and steepest hills with an abundant reserve of power that is a source of pride to the driver. And its economy of operation averages better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

This revolutionary performance has been achieved as a result of the greatest array of engineering advancements that Chevrolet has ever announced. A high compression, non-detonating cylinder head . . . a new heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced . . . automatic lubrication of the entire rocker arm mechanism . . . semi-automatic spark control . . . hot-spot manifold . . . gasoline pump and filter . . . new and larger carburetor, with automatic acceleration pump and improved venturi choke . . . fabric camshaft gear . . . heavier driving gears . . . heavier differential gears . . . improved crankcase breathing system . . . improved lubrication . . . new 4-wheel brakes that are powerful, safe and quiet under all conditions—these indicate the importance of a group of engineering advancements that embrace every major unit of the entire chassis.

In appearance, this Outstanding Chevrolet is destined to become an automotive sensation—so smart, so stylish and so distinctively appointed that it rivals the costliest custom creations. The new Fisher bodies are longer, lower and roomier with an adjustable driver's seat in all closed models—and reveal the matchless artistry of Fisher designers. With their modish new colors, their smart dual mouldings and their distinctive concave pillars, they achieve a degree of original beauty that has seldom been equalled in motor car design.

You are cordially invited to visit our showroom and secure complete and detailed information on this sensational new car which will be ready for delivery beginning January 1st.

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES
Acts 24: 24-27; 26: 19-29
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D., Associate General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association

Group hatred strengthens every participant. More than 40 in Jerusalem vowed they would never eat until Paul had been killed. This plot was discovered by a lad who gave the information to Paul and the authorities. Then the prisoner was sent northward to Caesarea under a heavy guard. The governor there was fair and said the case would have due attention when the accusers arrived. Ananias, the high priest, came with Tertullus the lawyer. Felix soon discerned that it was a question of isms and not of lawlessness against the constituted authorities. Paul would have been acquitted except that there was a fine possibility of obtaining a bribe for his release, for the man was well related in friendships as well as personally. Freedom of approach was granted, among whom must have been Philip the evangelist who resided at Caesarea (Acts 21: 8-9). Read Acts 24-27 for all the details covering these two years.

It was a formal occasion when Felix, with his wife Drusilla, invited Paul to present his case. Though Drusilla was the daughter of the Herod who killed James the brother of John and later put Peter in prison there was no fear as the most was made of this fine opportunity to tell "concerning the faith in Jesus Christ." Both the government and his wife needed all that was said about "righteousness, self-control and the judgment to come." Though Felix trembled he merely said "Go thy way for this time."

Porcious Festus went to Jerusalem within three days after he succeeded Felix. At once the accusers of Paul urged that the prisoner be sent back to Jerusalem for trial; their purpose being to kill him en-route according to the old plot. "No", said Festus, "the case must be continued at Caesarea." Bribes had doubtles been offered and shortly after the case had started Festus proposed that there be an adjournment to Jerusalem. Paul sensed the situation and knew the sure outcome. Then he exercised his right as a Roman citizen and declared "Caesarem apello." Fastus, though he took up the matter with the council, had no alternative and said "Thou hast appealed unto Ceasar and unto Caesar thou shalt go."

But what was he to write in transferring the case to Nero? He had nothing to declare against Paul that would be the basis of a case in Rome: in fact, he felt that the whole matter should be dismissed at once. A way out came in his quandry when company arrived in the persons of king Agrippa and Bernice, his sister though living with him as wife. It was with much pomp that the company of titled men and women assembled the next day. Paul was not disturbed when the call came to present his argument of defence. This was just another fine opportunity of exercising his office of Evangelist which had been denied him in recent months.

The situation became intense when Paul said "Agrippa, believest thou the prophets?" The reply was in sarcasm: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," and is the way that many seek to dismiss a matter when under conviction. The conclusion announced by Agrippa was that Paul might have been freed if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

RELIEVING THEMSELVES

Practically everybody would be glad to see some practical means of farm relief brought about by legislation, but the wise farmer is not depending too much on politicians for a betterment of his conditions.

Some instances in which farmers have succesfully sought relief through better methods are related in a recent magazine article which gives food for thought. Here are a few:

John D. Brader of Oswego, Kan., rented out three-fourth of his land seven years ago and devoted the rest to dairy cattle and poultry. From 17 cows and 350 hens he cleared $2,600 last year. Fifteen years ago he was a renter; now he owns his farm and is president of a bank.

A. E. Nelson of Gonvick, Minn. found a few dairy cows profitable so he increased his herd, likewise increasing his monthly milk check to an average of $308.

Henry Hogeman of Emmet County Iowa, got out of the beaten path by raising 30 acres of beets which brought him $3,600 last season. William Molison, another Iowa farmer, raised a big flock of poultry in connection with his other farming operations and made money.

In many sections of the South the "cow, sow and hen" are bringing prosperity to farmers who formerly grew poorer and poorer through depending on cotton alone. In every state many progressive farmers are bettering their condition by similar means.

There is no denying that agriculture is in a bad way generally, but a better planned farm program would enable many farmers to overcome this condition to a great extent.

Fall is the most advantageous time for the cow to freshen, winter the next best season, and spring and summer the least advantageous, according to dairy specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cows that freshen in the fall rank highest, on an average, in yearly production of milk and butterfat and in income over cost of feed; and those freshening in spring or summer produce the least milk and butterfat and return the smallest income over cost of feed.

SIDELIGHTS

Humane education is compulsory in Kentucky schools and many animal pets are used to demonstrate the effects of kindness upon dumb brutes. Which shows that Mary and her little lamb were merely ahead of their day and generation.

Bachelors of Damascus complain bitterly of the exorbitant prices charged by fathers of comely prospective brides, and some suitors have been obliged to arrange installments payments. Really it would be tough to see wifey pick up and leave with half the installments unpaid.

A Kansas City Telegraph clerk automatically proceeded to count the words of a mesage presented by a stranger. There was no signature, so the clerk read the message, which said: "I am holding this place up." Confirmation was evidenced by the muzzle of a revolver, which also indicated that the mesage was "collect." And the customer collected $42.35; all the money in the till.

Alexander Szbo, Hungarian actor, has just taken his twelfth wife, saying that the other 11 were nice girls and "if at the time I thought some of them treated me badly I have forgiven them and have forgotten what it was about."

Dancing contests of the coming season will be devoted to illustrations of a new series of gyrations called the "bendola," according to a press dispatch. The new dance is said to combine the worst features of the cake-walk, the Charlston and the St. Vitus.

John Gildea, New York bridegroom, was disillusioned early. Immediately after his marriage to Rosalind Stanford he attempted to kiss his bride, but she objected, finally submitting to a formal caress on the cheek. John said, "I didn't know they got that way for a year or two."

Miss Rosemary Lytton, daughter of a milionaire Chicago merchant, tried society life for a while but it bored her. She got her father's consent to work in his men's clothing store. She likes that better and hopes to make good.

Everything comes to him that waits, it is said. Captain W. P. Scott of the United States Navy has just received a medal awarded to him by the Sultan of Turkey 27 years ago "for sinking the Spanish Navy, assisted by Admiral Dewey."

FARM BY THE BUDGET

The farming industry of the United States loses many hundred millions of dollars each year because production is overexpanded along some lines and underexpanded along others. These ups and downs in agricultural production are partly the result of changes made by farmers in acreages of crops and numbers of livestock. Changes of this kind are necessary and unavoidable, but too often they are overdone in some lines and underdone in others. Decisions as to these changes are often based upon the prices at or immediately before planting or breeding time and upon the crop yields and livestock production of the preceding season. The application of the budget method, used in other business undertakings, is suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture as one way for farmers who act independently to meet the situation. A farm budget is a carefully worked out plan based on estimates as to how well a particular combination of crops or combination crops and livestock will pay. These estimates are based upon available information as to what the prices and crop and livestock production are likely to be during the year or period of years just ahead. Although prices, crop yields, and livestock production can not be forecast exactly, they can be foretold within broad enough limits to make it profitable to organize carefully and to focus attention upon the best available information relating to them. A method of doing this is outlined in Farmers' Bulletin 1564-F which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. There is no charge.

Bees do not hibernate in the winter as do other insects and therefore they must be protected from cold. In protecting bees from cold in winter, the hives may be packed in chaff, leaves, or similar dry material. Hives made with double walls, the space between which is filled with insulation material, are good for outdoor wintering. With proper protection, the moisture given off by bees in winter does not condense within the hive. This, if not prevented, would cause a great deal of damage.

QUALITY IN EGGS BEGINS ON THE FARM

Practically all egss are of good quality when first laid. But if they are to retain their quality and reach the market in good condition they must be properly handled and cared for on the farm. There is no process in marketing which can improve an egg of poor quality. All that can be done is to preserve the original quality. First of all it is necessary to have poultry stock of a standard variety in order to produce eggs of uniform size and color. The flock must be well housed, fed and cared for in order to increase productivity. As soon as the hatching season is over, all male birds should be disposed of, or separated from the flock, so that infertile eggs of superior keeping will be produced. Nests, clean and sufficient in number, must be provided in order that the largest possible percentage of eggs may be kept clean. Dirty eggs should never be washed unless they are to go into channels of immediate consumption. Washing reduces the keeping quality and reduces in losses, especially if the eggs are to be placed in storage. Eggs must be gathered frequently, at least once a day. During very hot or very cold weather it is preferable to gather them twice a day to prevent heating or freezing injury. They should be kept in a cool moderately dry place to maintain their quality and to prevent mold development.

Do not throw away commercial feed stuffs that have spoiled; if they become moldy or otherwise unfit for feed, apply them to the soil. All commercial feeds make good fertilizers, and those rich in nitrogen, such as cottonseed meal, bran, and beef scraps, are especially valuable.

Party invitation at the Stewart Printing Company. 27-tf-p

Silage or roots furnish a good, inexpensive feed for sheep at times of the year when pasture is not available. These feeds are especially valuable for keeping ewes in good condition during the winter.

Potatoes for table use should be stored where it is dark. Exposure to light quickly injures their food quality.

Eggs shipped to market should always be packed in the fillers small end down, as they carry better in transit and storage when in this position.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part — the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy in the new Ford through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Ford and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

Notice To All Motor Car Dealers and Owners!

NO CUT OUTS WILL BE PERMITTED

The state law prohibiting the use of a cut-out on a motor vehicle within the State of Texas will be rigidly enforced and no car will be registered in the state having a cut-out on car.

CARS MUST BE LEGALLY TRANSFERRED AT TIME OF SALE!

All transfers of second-hand motor vehicles must be legally transferred as provided by an act amending Article 1434 providing as follows;

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Article 1434 of the Penal Code be and the same is hereby amended so as hereafter to read as follows:

Art. 1434. Whoever acting for himself or another shall offer for trade or sale any second-hand motor vehicle in this State, without then and there having in his actual physical possession the tax collector's receipt for the license fee issued for the year that said vehicle is offered for sale or trade or a certified copy of the tax collector's receipt for the fee paid by said party offering the vehicle for sale or trade for a general distinguishing number; or whoever shall sell or trade any such vehicle in this State without transferring by indorsement of the name of the person to whom said receipt was issued by the tax collector and by physical delivery of the tax collector's receipt for license fee for the year that the said sale or trade is made, or a certified copy of the tax collector's receipt for the fee paid by said party offering the vehicle for sale or trade for a general distinguishing number; or whoever acting for himself or another who shall buy or trade for any such vehicle in this state without demanding and receiving the tax collector's receipt for the license fee issued for said motor vehicle for the year that said vehicle is bought or traded for, or a certified copy of the tax collector's receipt for the fee paid by said party offering the vehicle for sale or trade for a general distinguishing number, shall be fined not less than ten nor more than two thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in jail not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 2. The fact that this Act removes a conflict in the statutes in reference to motor vehicles, and the further fact that the change in the law herein made is very important to the welfare of the people of this State, create an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the Contitutional Rule requiring bills to be read on three several days in each House be suspended, and said rule is hereby suspended, and that this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and it is so enacted.

Approved June 7, 1927.

Perryton High-School News

Note: The material in this column is written and edited by the high school staff composed of members of the journalism club.

KEEPING UP APPEARANCE

A good appearance is the outward sign of self-respect. If we, the students of Perryton High School honor and respect our school, it is up to us to make it so appear.

When visitors go through the building, what do they think? How are they impressed? If we "crane" our necks when they come to the study hall door, or pass them disrespectfully in the corridors, we certainly will not be rated very high. Courtesy and deference, if you will,—whether toward visitors, teachers, or fellow students, is a distinguishing characteristic of the students of a good school.

Unnecessary haste in "making" stairs or leaving the building is, as Mr. Irvin has pointed out, entirely undesirable and avoidable. Let us conduct ourselves with as much restraint as possible whether within the buildings or on the campus.

Then, there is neatness. We ought to try in rainy weather to leave the mud where it belongs. Scrap baskets, incredible as it may seem, are properly used not for antiquated forms, but for waste paper. Desks should be kept in decent condition. Locked doors are to be shut. Incidentally, lockers doors were not originally intended to be slamed for the morning exercise.

Allowance must necessarly be made for the few, but let us, the student body as a whole, measure up to and deserve, not only in conduct, but also in scholarship, the enviable reputation made by Coach Shupe and the Ranger squad for themselves, our school, and the community.

Examinations are past, and reports issued. There have been probably the usual number of gasps on the part of the "stude". It is well to remember that only five more weeks remain until term finals.

The pep squad and band have done well this year. Their enthusiastic and sporting spirit last Friday, in the face of defeat, was entirely commendable.

Our school certainly is proud of their Rangers, for their reputation, which they have earned this year, not for the way they held Memphis down, Friday, in the championship game. Rangers! Rangers! Rah! Rah! Rah!

PEP SQUAD ENTERTAINS

In spite of the defeat in the football game, Friday, with Memphis, the Pep squad, to show their good sportsmanship, and to show the Rangers their appreciation of the excellent fight they put up to keep Memphis from walking away with the game, entertained both our football boys and those of Memphis.

The girls of Memphis did not stay on account of the bad roads and the hurry to get home, after the game.

Mrs. A. C. Witt entertained the girls after the game, with a delicious supper served in the Home economics department by the Home Ec girls.

After the supper, the Pep squad girls who were not serving began to "show up" and the group went to the picture show. During the show, they gave a few yells, for despite the victory on the part of Memphis, Perryton felt fine, and wanted everyone to know it.

Games were played in the Home Ec Department, after the show, and then refreshments were served. It was a grand entertainment, and everyone had a splendid time.

HOME "EC" CLUB MEETS

Thursday afternoon, at four o'clock, the Home Economics club was called to order by the president, Bessie Littleton. The club song was sung, according to the rules of the club constitution. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Viola Smith, and then the following program took place, after the Lord's prayer was spoken, in unison, by the members of the club.

The first number on the program was a reading by Mildred Thornton, entitled, "The Angel Child."

The second number was a piano solo by Ruby Neufeld.

Then, a talk on miscellaneous subjects of interest to the club, by Miss Upton.

A talk on the club spirit, by Lola Mae Barbour.

Then business topics were taken up, discussed and the meeting was adjourned, to go below to the Home Economics department, for refreshments.

Mr. Shupe—Why is it always best to tell the truth?

Ted Rethcock—Because you don't have to remember what you said.

Carter Pens at the Herald Office.

LITTLE CHAPEL

The Little Chapel programs for the week are as follows:

Monday:

An original poem—Bess Crum

Vocal Duet—Ruby Neufeld and Mildred Stansberry.

Tuesday:

Bob Smith and Charley Teas entertain us with duets on their saxophone and banjo.

Wednesday:

A debate.

If this is as interesting to outsiders as it is to the students, you will be glad to know that we have a vacation on Thursday and Friday to celebrate Thanksgiving.

FOOTBALL SEASON NEARING CLOSE

The season has its end close at hand, but the Rangers aren't worrying, for they are quitting with an excellent record, for the year. They plan to play Spearman, Thanksgiving which will close the season. Perryton's record for the year is as follows:

Perryton 0	Shattuck 12
Perryton 38	Gate 6
Perryton 45	Spearman 0
Perryton 0	Follett 0
Perryton 13	Follett 0
Perryton 17	Pampa 7
Perryton 0	Memphis 13

WITH THE PIRATES

The Pirate club met, Friday, November 23. The roll was called by Miss Clayton. House was called to order by Mabel Smotherman, as our Captain was absent.

The program was rendered by the Black Hawk group. Several of our Pirates were attending the "Pep Meeting" at this time so our program was not as good as it should have been.

Guitar Solo—Jewel Shockley.

Reading—Mabel Smotherman.

The remaining time was spent in telling jokes and asking riddles.

We were certainly glad to have the visitors. You are welcome at all times, call again.

—Reporter.

Hazel Purcell was among those absent, last week, because of bad roads.

The Twichel and Plainview trucks were unable to run last week, because of the roads.

The Hoghland girls, Fay, Irene and Tommy, have returned to school, after an absence of about a week.

WHAT THE CLUBS ARE DOING

The English club met last Friday, at its usual twenty minute period. The class had a discussion about modern day authors, which proved very interesting, and then Miss Hutchinson, the club sponsor, read an interesting Russian story, to the club.

The Debating club met Tuesday morning, at eight-thirty, which is their usual meeting time. Business was discussed, in which plans for a party, Friday nite, were included. Mildred Todd is a new member, and is gladly accepted into the club.

The "Student Players Dramatic Club" is studying, to a certain extent one-act plays, and find them very interesting, under the direction of Miss Henry.

The Journalism club is deriving a great deal of good from their work. At present, they are outlining some important chapters in Bleyer's "Feature Articles" and in "Writing for Print." Their work is much better than it was at the beginning of the term, and they feel that they owe their advancement to the able direction of Miss Jennings.

The Gymnastics club is progressing, admirably. Most of the members of the club have their required "rompers", and Miss Mitchell is just the person for the leadership of the girls in the club. This is a wonderful thing for the school, for the girls, individually, and for the community that is to come, for it is making strong women out of weak girls, and stronger women out of strong girls.

The Agriculture club, which has been working, now and then toward making a basketball team, as well as farmers out of its members, has ordered red and white turbans, or something to that effect, and intend to wear them, especially during the basketball season.

Thrills For Hunters

M. M. Cudd and J. H. Norwod and Party Kill Six Bucks in New Mexico Hills

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Norwood and M. M. Cudd returned the fore part of the week from New Mexico where they had a very successful deer hunt, though it was replete with dangerous thrills and experiences. The members of the hunting party which assembled at Capulin, N. M. were Mr. Norwood; Mr. Cudd; H. A. Wilhelm, R. L. Newton and son, Elmer; Bob Sagler and Oren Norwood, 12 year old son of Clell Norwood. The other members of the party all live at Capulin, but are former residents of this county and of Beaver County, Oklahoma.

The party left Capulin on the 9th and pitched camp in the Mitchel canyon about 12 miles north of Des Moines, N. M. The season opened on the next morning and bright and early the hunters started out. Before 8:30 on the first morning, Oren Norwood and Elmer Newton, age 17, had bagged their bucks. The young boys were hunting together and shot their deer at the same time.

About 4:30 in the afternoon of the first day, Mr. Cudd shot a big 10 point, 235 pound deer but did not kill him. He and R. L. Newton were hunting together so they trailed him, by the blood stained tracks, for about two miles before they found him. When they came upon the mortally wounded buck, they stood and debated whether to shoot him again for he looked as though he was ready to drop dead at any moment. Suddenly the buck came to life and rushed for Newton striking him with his head in the stomach and knocking him off a bluff into a rocky creek bottom, the deer falling on top. Mr. Cudd jumped down the bluff and killed the deer by cutting its throat. The only thing that saved Mr. Newton's life was the fact that the buck hit him square, there being just room for Newton's body to pass between the points of the deers horns. As it was one small point pierced Newton's clothing and skin. It was thought at first that Newton was mortally wounded. He was carried back to camp but was practically recovered by the next morning.

On the second day, Wilhelm and Newton both killed bucks bringing the total for the two days hunt to five deer. They went back into Capulin that night and on the next day drove to the Turkey mountains about 30 miles south of Raton, getting into camp about noon. That afternoon Sagler succeeded in bringing down another big buck, making six. Then came the big snow. When the hunters arose the next morning, they found the ground around their tent covered with a 20 inch snow with the drifts much deeper in many places.

They had come into camp expecting to remain only two days, hence the provisions were getting low so they decided to fight their way through the snow to a Mexican sheep herder's cabin located about one-quarter of a mile away. They loaded part of their equipment into the cars and after hours of hard work they made the camp. Here they remained for a day with Milan Cudd as cook. Some pretty hard tales are going forth regarding Milan's ability as a cook and they are especially hard concerning the hardness of the biscuits that he made. A sample of these biscuits are on display at the Herald office and if any of the ladies of Perryton desire the recipe, after seeing the biscuit sample, we will endeavor to obtain same from Mr. Cudd.

It took the hunters all day to buck and shovel their way the 16 miles from the camp into Maxwell through the big snow drifts and when they got into Raton they found that the highway from Raton to Capulin was closed. They went to Capulin on the train, returning later for the cars. Mr. Norwood reports there was much suffering, a number of deaths and many cattle and sheep frozen during the storm. Tourists and hunters were the chief sufferers. Mr. Norwood was the only one of the party who failed to bag a deer but it was a very successful hunt. Six deer by seven hunters in two and one-half days hunt is pretty good. Mr. Norwood said that all hunters reported more deer in the mountains than they had seen for many years.

THE LAST OF THE DUANES

by Zane Grey

Illustrated by Verne C. Christy

Evidently the outlaw's wife liked Euchre, for her keen glance rested with amusement upon him.

"As for Jen, I'll tell you her story some day," went on the woman. "It's a common enough story along this border. Euchre here is a tender-hearted old fool, and Jen has taken him in. When Euchre had shuffled into the house Mrs. Bland turned to Duane with curiosity and interest in her gaze.

"I'll tell you, Duane," she said earnestly. "I'm sure glad if you can to bide a while. I'm a miserable woman, Duane. I'm an outlaw's wife, and I hate him and the life I have to lead. I come of a good family in Brownsville.

"I never knew Bland was an outlaw till long after he married me. We were separated at times, and I imagined he was away on business. Then the truth came out. Bland shot my own cousin, who told me. My family cast me off, and I had to live with Bland.

"I was only eighteen, then. I've lived here since. I never see a decent woman or man. I never hear anything about my old home or folks or friends. I'm buried here—buried alive with a lot of thieves and murderers. Can you blame me for being glad to see a young fellow—a gentleman—like the boys I used to play with?

"I tell you it makes me feel full—I want to cry. I'm sick for somebody to talk to. I have no children, thank God. If I had I'd not be here. I'm sick of this hole. I'm sick—"

There appeared to be no doubt about the truth of all this. Genuine emotion checked—then halted the hurried speech. She broke down and sobbed. It seemed strange to Duane to be an outlaw's wife—and a woman who fitted her consort and the wild nature of their surroundings—should show weakness enough to weep.

"Would Bland object if I called on you occasionally?" inquired Duane.

"No, he wouldn't. He likes me to have friends. Ask him yourself when he comes back. The trouble has been that two or three of his men fell in love with me, and when half drunk they go to fighting. You're not going to do that."

"I'm not going to get half drunk that's certain," replied Duane.

Without any solicitation or encouragement from Duane, the Bland woman fell passionately in love with him. His conscience was never troubled about the beginning of that affair. She launched it herself. It took no great perspicuity on his part to see that.

He was playing a game of love. Playing with life and death! Sometimes he trembled, not that he feared Bland or Alloway, or any man, but at the deeps of life he had come to see into. He was carried out of his old mood.

Not once since this daring motive had stirred him had he been haunted by fantoms of Bain beside his bier. Rather had he been haunted by Jennie's sad face—her wistful face—her eyes.

He never was able to speak a word to her. What little communication he had with her was through Euchre, who carried short messages. But Duane caught glimpses of her every time he went to the Bland house. She contrived somehow to pass door or window, to give him a look when chance afforded.

And Duane discovered with surprise that these moments were more thrilling to him than any with Mrs. Bland. Often Duane knew Jennie was sitting just inside the window, and then he felt inspired in his talk, as if it was all made for her. So great that she came to know him while yet she was almost a stranger. Jennie had been instructed by Euchre to listen, to understand that it was Duane's only chance to help take her mind from constant worry. Duane gather the import of every word which had a double meaning.

Euchre said that the girl had begun to wither under the strain, to keep up with intense hope, which burned within her. But all the difference Duane could see was a paler face and darker, more wonderful eyes. The eyes seemed to be imploring him to hurry, that time was flying, that soon it might be too late.

Then there was another meaning in them—a light—a strange fire only inexplicable to Duane. It was only a flansh, gone in an instant. But he remembered it because he had never seen it in any other woman's eyes.

Beside Duane's body there was a pain, his heart pounded, his blood raced, his breast bore a heavy pang. Something hot had dug into his vitals and the pain remained. In the dark of his mind, his soul, there was chaos.

She left something dying in him. He suffered. Hope seemed far away. Despair had seized upon him and was driving him into reckless mood when he thought of Jennie.

He had forgotten her. He had forgotten that he had promised to save her. He had forgotten that he meant to snuff out as many lives as might stand between her and freedom.

The very remembrance sheered off his morbid introspection. She made a difference. How strange for him to realize that! He felt grateful to her. He had been forced into outlawry; she had been stolen from her people and carried into captivity.

They had met in the river fastness, he to instil hope into her despairing life, she to be the means, perhaps, of keeping him from sinking to the level of her captors. He became conscious of a strong beating desire to see her, talk with her.

These thoughts had run through his mind while on his way to Mrs. Bland's house. He had let Euchre go on ahead because he wanted more time to compose himself.

Darkness had almost set in when he reached his destination. There was no light in the house. Mrs. Bland was waiting for him on the porch.

She embraced him, and the sudden violent, unfamiliar contact sent such a shock through him that he all but forgot the deep game he was playing. She, however, in her agitation did not notice his shrinking.

"Duane, you love me?" she whispered.

"Yes—yes," he burst out, eager to get it over, and even as he spoke he caught the pale gleam of Jennie's face through the window.

He felt a shame—he was glad she could not see. Did she remember that she had promised not to misunderstand any action of his? What did she think of him, seeing him out there in the dusk with this bold woman in his arms?

Somehow that dim sight of Jennie's pale face, the big dark eyes, thrilled him, inspired him to his hard task of the present.

"Listen, dear," he said to the woman, and he meant his words for the girl. "I'm going to take you away from this outlaw den if I have to kill Bland, Alloway, Rudd—anybody who stands in my path. You were dragged here. You are good—I know it. There's happiness for you somewhere—a home among good people who will care for you. Just wait till——"

His voice trailed off and failed from excess of emotion. Kate Bland closed her eyes and leaned her head on his breast.

Duane felt her heart beat against his, and conscience smote him a keen blow. If she loved him so much! But memory—understanding of her character hardened him again, and he gave her such commiseration as was due her sex, and no more.

"It's Bland!" whispered the woman, grasping Duane with shaking hands. "You must run! No, he'd see you. That'd be worse. It's Bland. I know his horse's trot."

"But you said he wouldn't mind my calling here," protested Duane. "Euchre's with me. It'll be all right."

"Maybe so," she replied, with visible effort at self-control. Manifestly she had a great fear of Bland. "If I could only think!"

Then she dragged Duane to the door, and pushed him in.

"Euchre, come out with me. Duane, you stay with the girl. I'll tell Bland you're in love with her. Jen, if you give us away I'll wring your neck!"

The swift action and fierce whisper told Duane that Mrs. Bland was herself again. Duane stepped close to Jennie, who stood near the window.

Neither spoke, but her hands were outstretched to meet his own. They were small, trembling hands, cold as ice. He held them closely, trying to convey what he felt—that he would protect her. She leaned against him, and they looked out of the window.

The approaching outlaws, halted a rod or so from the porch. Then Mrs. Bland uttered an exclamation, ostensibly meant to express surprise, and hurried out to meet them.

She greeted her husband warmly and gave welcome to the other man. Duane could not see well enough in the shadow to recognize Bland's companion, but he believed it was Alloway.

"Dog-tired we are and starved," said Bland heavily. "Who's here with you?"

"That's Euchre on the porch. Duane is inside at the window with Jen," replied Mrs. Bland.

"Duane!" he exclaimed. Then he whispered low—something Duane could not catch.

"Why, I asked him to come," said the chief's wife. She spoke easily and naturally, and made no change in tone. "Jen has been ailing. She gets thinner and whiter every day. Duane came here one day with Euchre, saw Jen, and went loony over her pretty face, same as all you men. So I let him come.

"Kate, you let Duane make love to Jennie?" queried Bland incredulously.

"Yes, I did," replied the wife stubbornly. "Why not? Jen's in love with him. If he takes her away and marries her, she can be a decent woman."

Bland kept silent a moment, then his laugh peeled out loud and harsh.

"Jennie," whispered Duane, "that was clever of Mrs. Bland. We'll keep up the deception. Any day now be ready."

She pressed close to him, and a barely audible "Hurry" came breathing into his ear.

Then he stepped out into the moonlight and spoke. Bland returned the greeting and, though he was not amiable, he did not show resentment.

"Met Jasper as I rode in," said Bland presently. "Duane, I want you to stop quarreling with my men. If you were one of us—that'd be different. I can't keep my men from fighting. But I'm not called on to let an outsider hang around my camp and plug my rustlers."

"I guess I'll have to be hitting the trail for somewheres," said Duane.

"Why not join my band? You've got a bad start already, Duane, and if I know this border you'll never a born killer. I know every bad man be a respectable citizen again. You're on this frontier.

"More than one of them have told me that something exploded in their brain, and when sense came back there lay another dead man. It' not so with me. I've done a little shooting, too; but I never wanted to kill another man just to rid myself of the last one.

"My dead men don't sit on my chest at night. That's the gunfighter's trouble. He's crazy. He has to kill a new man—he's driven to it to forget the last one."

"But I'm no gun-fighter," protested Duane. "Circumstances made me——"

"No doubt," interrupted Bland with a laugh. "Circumstances made me a rustler. You don't know yourself. You're young; you've got a temper; your father was one of the most dangerous men Texas ever had. I don't see any other career for you. Instead of going it along—a lone wolf, as the Texans say—why not make friends with other outlaws? You'll live a while longer."

Euchre squirmed in his seat.

"Boss, I've been givin' the boy egzactly that same line of talk. That's why I took him in to bunk with me. If he makes pards among us there won't be any more trouble. An' he'd be a grand feller fer the gang. Slickest of all the gun-throwers I ever seen! An' I've rustled around over the southwest."

MEMPHIS WINS BI-SECTIONAL

A short pass makes a small gain. C. LaMaster is substituted for Shearer, Peery going to half, LaMaster at quarter. Another pass is incomplete and the ball goes to Memphis on downs. Memphis makes 1 yard through the line as the half ends.

At the half the Rangers substituted Hood for Bruner and Rogers for Wilson. Peery kicked off again making a good kick but the play was called back and the Rangers penalized 5 yards for being off side. A bad kickoff and a good return gave Memphis an advantage. Making four straight first downs, Memphis marched down the field, May again going over for a touchdown. Jameson failed to kick goal. The Rangers substituted Williams for Hood. Witt took the Memphis kickoff and made an 18 yard return. After three plays that gained put 6 yards, the Rangers punt. On the last play Johnson ran into Massey, both men being injured. Memphis substituted Perdue for Johnson who was knocked unconscious. Memphis makes two first downs but is forced to punt when they fail to gain on the third down. The Rangers punt back. A Memphis linesman completes a pass but is penalized 25 yards for doing so. May gets away for a 39 yard run. Three offensive plays show a 2 yard loss as the quarter ends.

Memphis punts over the goal as play is resumed in the final period. The Rangers are again forced to punt when they fail to make their yardage. Wilson is substituted for Skeen. Memphis makes a first down but is forced to punt when they fail to make their yardage a second time. The punt is blocked and Bruner recovers on his own 35 yard line being downed on the Memphis 45 yard line. The Rangers again open up with their passes but are unable to complete them. An exchange of punts is advantageous for the Rangers and they gain possession of the ball on the Memphis 36 yard line. Shearer is substituted for LaMaster in the backfield. Tucker fumbles and Jameson recovers on his 41 yard line. A first down for Memphis and a punt puts the ball again in Ranger territory. Tucker makes a first down around right end by an 11 yard run. Lewis is substituted for W. LaMaster and Memphis substitutes Hammond for Walker, the latter being injured on the last play.

Massey intercepts a Ranger pass but Memphis cannot gain and again punts. C. Wilson is substituted for E. Wilson. Peery's pass to Tucker is completed when a foul is called on Memphis for a 13 yard gain. Peery's pass to Shearer is complete for 15 yards. Peery gains 5 yards but a penalty resulting from two incomplete passes put the ball at the starting point. Another pass is incomplete and the ball goes to Memphis. Memphis is penalized for being offside and on the next two plays 4 yards. They gain five yards of this loss back just as the game ends. Score: Rangers 0, Memphis 13.

THE GAME FROM THE SIDELINES

We're still mighty proud of our Rangers. They played a good game, every member of the team was doing his best.

The Memphis team averages 165 pounds, the Rangers but 147 pounds. On a dry, fast field, this may not have mattered so much. On a soft, wet field, it made a lot of difference.

But we lost fairly and to a mighty clean team. Those Memphis boys certainly had a hard trip up here through the mud, some of them being up all night, the night before the game, others walking in the last few miles.

The rumor was started in Perryton that Johnson, the Memphis boy that got knocked out, died from the result of his injury. Of course the report is false. Johnson was very much alive the next morning, feeling fine, and in the best of spirits as he left for home.

Several of the Memphis boys stated before they left Saturday morning that they had never played a cleaner team than the Rangers nor had they ever been treated nicer than they were in Perryton. It certainly speaks well for a school and a town that can lose and still be a good sport about it.

We're not trying to alibi, but the Rangers did get some pretty tough breaks. Two costly fumbles, a blocked punt and an intercepted pass offset many a yard gain.

From some source or other the report got out that Memphis was playing two men who were over age and therefore ineligible and that the game would be contested. Without doubt this report is false for we don't believe that a school with the splendid standing that Memphis has, would risk their reputation in such a back-handed manner. Even if it were true it would be poor policy for Perryton to start such an action.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Buckley will spend Thanksgiving in the home of her sister, Mrs. T. F. Printz, Liberal.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Wilson, Sunday, November 18.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

"A large portion of our earthly ills are due to faulty diet, and he who limits himself to bread, meat, potatoes and sugar is bound to suffer certain bad results," declares Miss Lola Blair Ford specialist in the A. and M. College Extension Service, in outlining food and health programs for women's home demonstration clubs the coming year. "Milk, fruit and vegetables furnish the large share of the phosphorus, calcium and iron in our food and when combined with eggs, meats and grains they form a balanced diet."

The essentials of an adequate diet as suggested by the Division of Rural Research, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, furnish the basis of a dietary program to be pushed by Texas home demonstration agents this year. This adequate diet consists of 1 1-2 pints of milks daily; at least one serving of butter, whole cereal and starchy vegetables each day, and leafy vegetables at least three times per week. Every person should have two servings of fruit daily of which one should be raw, and three times during the week some citrus fruit or tomatoes (fresh or canned) should be eaten. Of protein-rich foods such as meat or eggs or cheese or beans or peas or nuts, a person should have one serving of any two of these daily. If these essentials are observed, say these authorities, a person may consider himself to be keping to a fairly good diet.

The Livestock Situation.

While the several years following the world war were lean ones for the stockman and caused many a good man to lose the results of his lifetime work, yet there are compensations which are more and more evident every day. Forced liquidation caused the sale of thousands of breeding cows and heifers—but the producer of pure breds, as well as the average range operator, found the very cream of his breeding herd was worth comparatively little more than his culls, so his disposition was to cash his plainbred cows and heifers, retaining the best bred animals.

A trip among several of the large cow herds in the western states indicate close culling out actually occurred, with the result that today the breeding herds of cattle are probably superior to any previous period in the history of the cattle business. It is well that such is the case for the cowman must advance with the times and improve his product just as every business man or manufacturer must do in serving the public.

The riddance of the plainly bred animals and the scrub cows and bulls through pressure of liquidation of loans and urge for cash certainly accomplished such a result. It, of course, went even further in forcing some cowmen to ship well bred animals to market for beef and this blood and type was lost to the industry forever.

But with the majority of the breeding stock now available for production purposes of higher average quality, it means that the cattlemen are in better position to cater to the demands of the consumer. Better bulls and better beef, quicker maturity of the calves and a product of better quality which finds a more ready sale to the consumer.

Another factor is that the good cowman attempted to retain those animals with good constitution and proven progeny. This means a higher percentage of calf crop annually, thus aiding in cutting down ranch overhead. It may ordinarily be figured that the cow in a range herd is an expense—until she produces a calf. As long as she continues to produce good calves, she is helping to keep the cowman in business by providing a source of income. When the critter produces only 50 percent of the calf crop, it becomes a liability instead of a profitable producer. If the percentage of cows producing calves can be increased to 60 or 70 percent, the cowman's overhead is cut down that much and his cost per calf is decreased. Raise the percentage to 80 percentage or, in the case of a range herd I visited recently, raise the percentage to almost 90 percent, and the average cost of the calves is still further reduced.

These results are accomplished only through the use of good, vigorous cows and pure bred, healthy bulls; plenty of water, plenty of feed, particularly at calving and weaning time; and sufficient bulls in the herd to insure proper service.

As we improve the quality of our beef, so we improve the demand. Competition in all lines is keen and particularly among the varied interests which cater to the public's appetite. To maintain its place, the live stock and meat industry must always strive to improve its product and let the public know about it through well planned publicity and advertising. It is a day of youth. The popular animal for both the breeder and feeder is the young one, of good breeding, which develops rapidly, making for more economical production and producing the tender and less wasteful meat cuts which are bound to be the most popular with the consumer because they are the most satisfactory in the long run.

LIGHTS INCREASE EGG PRODUCTION

There are several ways, according to the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman of November 1, in which lights can be used to help the farm flock lay more eggs.

The primary benefit of lights is to increase food consumption by giving the birds a longer time to eat and a shorter period when it is necessary for them to go without feed. More feed means quicker maturity, less time to molt and a heavier rate of egg production.

With late-hatched or slow-maturing pullets, the use of lights can be made to shorten the time required to get the birds started to laying, and if the ration is properly planned, there is no particular danger of injuring the pullets by this stimulation. Since the chief virtue of lights is to stimulate feed consumption, it is just as easy to get the the pullets to eat more grain which will give them plenty of body substance as it is to increase the amount of mash to hasten sexual maturity.

With old hens, lights can be used either to delay the molt or to hasten the birds back into production after molting. With such birds, increasing the consumption of mash prolongs their laying season and delays the molt.

SEVERAL METHODS AVAILABLE FOR WATERPROOFING SHOES

For waterproofing shoes that must be worn in the snow and dampness of winter the chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture recommend the use of one of the following formulas. Which to use will depend, as a rule, on the convenience of gathering or purchasing the materials:

Formula 1. Neutural wool grease, 8 ounces; dark petrolatum, 4 ounces; paraffin wax, 2 ounces.

Formula 2. Petrolatum, 16 ounces; and beeswax, 2 ounces.

Formula 3. Petrolatum, 8 ounces paraffin wax, 4 ounces; wool grease, 4 ounces; and crude turpentine gum (gum thus), 2 ounces.

Formula 4. Tallow, 12 ounces, and cod oil, 4 ounces.

To apply any one of the compounds, mix the ingredients thoroughly after melting. The mixture should be applied warm, but not hot, and to all outside parts of the boot or shoe. In the winter a slight excess over what the leather will absorb will do no harm. Grease with particular care the welt and the edge of the sole. Then saturate the sole with the waterproofing mixture. This can be done conveniently by setting the shoes in a shallow pan that holds melted grease enough to cover the soles. Do not put rubber heels in such a mix- of rubber-heeled shoes put the mixture in a pie plate and let the heels hang over the edge.

Shoes so treated are not as waterproofed as rubber boots, but do afford a considerable measure of protection and resistance to wetness.

Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a man to enjoy. It is physical exertion made attractive by the fact that you have to dress for it in a $200 club house.
