Bill Fixing $15,000 Fine And Pen Term Penalties Echoes Cotton Prediction

Senate Takes Stand On Future Price Trend Prophecy

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 11.—Spurred on by Senator Heflin of Alabama, the senate passed today a bill imposing maximum penalties of $15,000 or five years imprisonment or both on any government official issuing or authorizing publication of cotton price predictions. The measure went through 64 to 10.

The Heflin bill grew out of the cotton slump of last fall which synchronized with a price trend statement issued on September 15 by the bureau of agricultural economics. A senate subcommittee has been investigating causes of the slump for months and has had several department of agriculture officials connected with preparation of the price study on the carpet repeatedly to explain by the prediction was made, particularly because of final paragraph, forecasting a price drop, came at the end of a summary of the "bullish" conditions then prevailing in the market.

The Heflin bill follows a specific interdiction of price forecasts by the agriculture department inserted in the department appropriation bill which was also finally completed today in the senate with adoption of the conference report. No penalties attached, however, to the prohibition in that measure and the Heflin bill proposes to put teeth into the ban upon cotton price predictions.

Applies to Cotton Alone In its original form, the bill would have prohibited such government forecasts as to prices of grain and other agricultural commodities, but these were eliminated by the senate without debate, leaving its application to cotton alone. Senator Heflin originally proposed a penalty of $15,000 or five years imprisonment or both on any government official issuing or authorizing publication of cotton price predictions.

Issues At Stake Come Into Relief

Officials Will Abide By Ruling Of Board Although Union Men Say Their Strike Will Come.

(By Associated Press) WICHITA FALLS, May 11.—The first day of investigation of President Coolidge's fact-finding board appointed to report on the wage dispute between the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad and its employees, brought out sharply the issues between the owners and the Big Four Brotherhoods, whose strike on the Orient, called April 29 was held up by the president's action in appointing the board.

Orient officials, while insisting the railroad is not financially able to meet the employees' demands of "standard wages," have said they will abide by the findings of the board in settlement of the dispute. Employees adamant. The employees have taken the opposite stand. They insist the strike has been postponed, but not called off, and that the investigation of the president's board is in no sense an arbitration of their wage dispute.

Wage increases asked by the 600 Orient trainmen involved, amount to $66 per year per man above scale offered them. The Orient, the board was told today, considers there is much more at stake in the present controversy than granting the so-called standard wage to the operating unions, since the management would be forced to establish the standard wage for all its employees if the Brotherhoods win their demanded increase.

CLERKS END MEETING

Select Fort Worth As 1929 Convention Site

ARILENE, May 11. (AP)—After two days of meetings, the Texas court clerk's association and the West Texas Peace officers convention here in annual meetings, adjourned Friday afternoon after the clerk's board selected Fort Worth as the 1929 convention city and the sheriff's Mineral Wells for their next quarterly meeting in August. The sheriff's meeting ended with a pistol shoot Friday afternoon. C. B. Johnson of Seymour won first place, second honors went to Bob Hammett of Eastland and third to H. C. King of Chillicothe.

Moody Expresses Resentment After Love's Statement

Governor Is Ired Over What He Terms "Inferences" Of Insincerity In Announcement

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, May 11.—Resentment at "inferences" contained in a statement issued in Dallas Friday by State Senator Thomas B. Love, head of the constitutional "ultra-dry" democratic faction, was expressed early Friday night by Governor Moody.

Senator Love declared that he would withdraw as leader of the group "if any personality should be keeping the prohibitionists of Texas apart in their efforts to prevent the nomination of Governor Al Smith."

"I am anxious," Love added, "to prevent Governor Moody from making the mistake at Beaumont that John Davis, C. C. Renfro and others of the faction did in our Dallas convention—namely combining with the Smith forces."

Governor Moody's written statement in reply: "I have seen Senator Love's statement. His claims of unity to prevent me from doing at Beaumont what he says certain men did in Dallas county. In regard to a base and insincere effort to create the impression that someone other than himself is willing to betray public confidence, I will say more about this later."

The governor did not comment on Mr. Love's offer to quit the fight.

POOL EXTENDED

Howard County Production Area Widens

DALLAS, May 11. (AP)—The Roberts pool in Howard county was extended about a half mile north when, according to R. A. Elliott, secretary and treasurer of the F. H. E. Oil company, the Dora Roberts well No. 1-D was drilled in last night by that company. Mr. Elliott said the well flowed 125 barrels an hour with tools still in the hole. Depth of the well is 3000 feet.

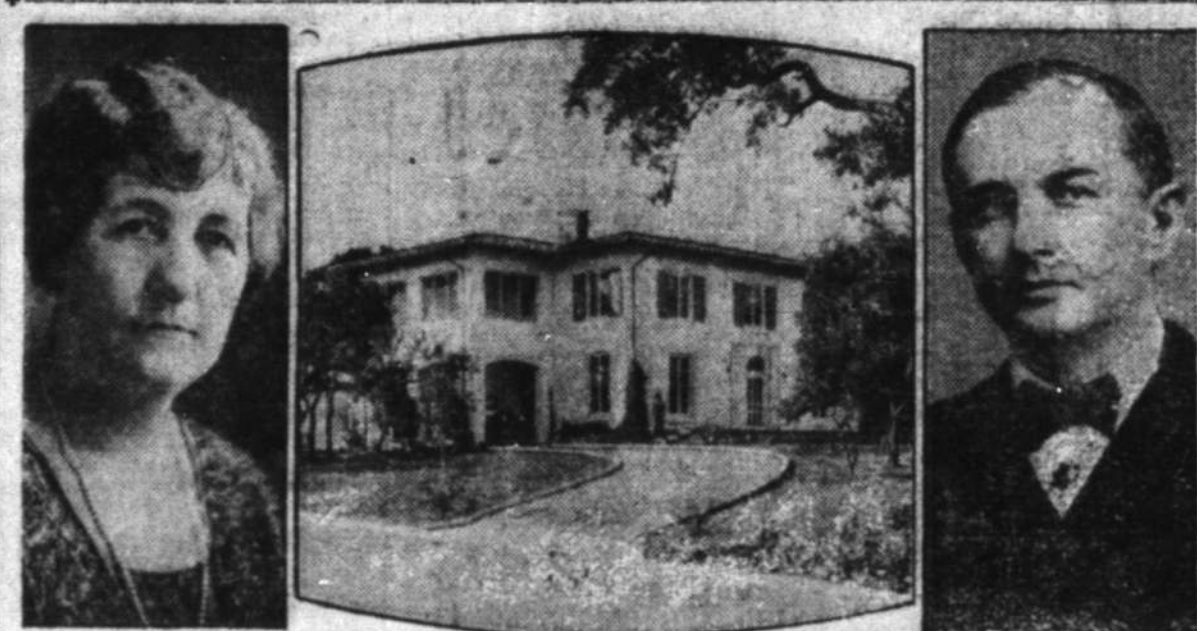

NOT ADMITTING IT

"Bone Dry" Still Believe Smith Will Be Beaten

AUSTIN, May 11. (AP)—Highway Commissioner Cone Johnson, officer in the army of the "Constitutional" or bone dry, democratic faction, declared here Friday that his group does not in any sense concede an ultimate nomination victory for Governor Al Smith.

"If the Anti-Smith forces will stand hitched at the national convention, Smith can't be nominated," he declared. "Reports indicate that not more than a third of the delegates will be instructed definitely for Smith."

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, both of them former governors of Texas are a happy and carefree couple now. Their new home in Austin (above) is the center of their interest and Mrs. Ferguson says they will do nothing in the political campaign this year.

Union With Other Churches Proposed In Methodist Meet

Ultimate Consolidation Of Three Denominations May Result From Action Taken Yesterday.

(By Associated Press) KANSAS CITY, May 11.—The Methodist Episcopal church in its Quadrennial General conference today ratified the idea of church unification, and announced itself ready to receive and extend overtures for closer co-operation and union with like-minded denominations.

A single commission of 37 members was approved to represent the church in all unification discussions. The personnel of seven bishops, 15 ministers and 15 laymen is to be announced by the board of bishops by May 21. Expenses of the commission were ordered paid by the general conference.

The action was taken by a vote of 853 to 3. Only technical points were argued in debate and the conference refused to send the resolution back to committee for reconsideration on minor points.

It had received the unanimous approval of 96 members of the Former Governors of Texas Enjoy Life In New Home

By L. B. DILBECK (Associated Press Correspondent) AUSTIN, May 12. (AP)—Beautiful new home is of more concern than politics now to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, former governor of Texas.

Almost any day she may be found working among the rose bushes and Texas Bluebonnet beds about the grounds of the spacious white house which was built on a lot donated by her admirers after she left office.

Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, who, too, is a former governor of Texas, are happy over their new home and glad to be out of the turmoil of politics. Mrs. Ferguson says she and her husband will take no part in the campaign this year beyond supporting a presidential candidate.

Mrs. Ferguson has been somewhat in seclusion since the relinquished the executive office to Governor Dan Moody, who defeated her at the polls in 1926. She has devoted her attention mainly to the building of the new home. She frequently visits her farm near the Bosque county holdings of her husband.

Majestic trees surround the more majestic Ferguson mansion, which commands the entrance to the most exclusive residential section in the capital city of the Lone Star state. The ground was purchased with donations obtained by Eugene Smith, who was secretary and later chairman of Mrs. Ferguson's state highway commission.

The two former governors still have one of their daughters, Dorcas, with them. The other daughter, Ouida, is married and also lives in Austin.

Health Officers Battle Smallpox In Western Texas

Vaccination and Quarantine Measures Hold Disease In Check at Poyote, Odessa, Big Spring.

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, May 11.—Spread of smallpox in western Texas towns has been checked by vaccination and quarantine measures, the state health department reported Friday.

Responding to an appeal from State Representative Harry B. Webb of Odessa, Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer, sent department workers immediately. At a meeting of county and city authorities and the chamber of commerce, arrangements were made for widespread vaccination.

At Eastland, individual guards for smallpox victims were decided upon rather than a general quarantine.

Big Spring appropriated $1,600 for general vaccination. Midland under close inspection, showed eighty percent of its population vaccinated.

Wink and Poyote, further west, are reported to be endangered unless preventive measures are effected.

Dr. Anderson said that there is "an imperative necessity for vaccination" so that the smallpox may not spread over the state.

FARM BUREAU MEET

Session To Be Held At The Experiment Station

The regular monthly meeting of the Lubbock County Farm bureau is to be held today at the agricultural experiment station, east of town, for a program of lectures and educational demonstrations. The program is to start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

A "Better Farmer" feature will be presented prior to the meeting by Mrs. Earl Davis. Likewise, preceding the session at the experiment station, delegates will meet in the office of Field Representative N. H. Payne to make nominations for the district director.

COOLIDGE TO SIGN

Intimates He Will Okeh the Flood Bill

WASHINGTON, May 11. (AP)—President Coolidge expects to attach his signature to the Mississippi flood control bill as soon as interested government departments have examined it and reported to him. The president has until midnight of May 22 to sign the bill and the development today that he expects to approve it was regarded as indication that the much discussed measure will become law before that date. The office of the army engineers now is studying the bill and it later will be sent to the budget bureau for a checking over of cost estimates.

Heavy Fogs Block Flight of Italia KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11.—The dirigible Italia was back at its base here tonight after an attempt to fly to the little known Lenin Island, which was blocked by the thick fog encountered over the ice fields. On landing here the hindmost motor struck and was dragged along the ground and will require repairs before another flight is attempted.

General Umberto Nobile on his return said that the dirigible had reached Franz Josef Land, one of the few bits of land breaking the monotonous stretches of ice and water, when the air became so insupportable that nothing could be seen. The dirigible already had encountered adverse conditions in the form of a snowstorm. He said that he tried to find a way through the fog at heights ranging from 100 to 1,000 meters, but all at no purpose.

At 1 o'clock he gave the order to turn the dirigible back toward its base which it reached shortly after 4. Instead of the 40-hour flight which had been anticipated, the Italia was back at her haven in eight hours after the take-off this morning.

Weather conditions were good here and the landing was accomplished with ease with the exception of the moments when the rear motor bumped along the ground.

Released Yesterday, Boy In Jail Today

Released Thursday by local officers because he promised he would do no more wrong, one of the twenty-two boys arrested recently on petty theft charges, is again in jail facing another theft charge.

It is charged that the youth stole a six-shooter from a local theater Thursday night soon after his release. He is considered one of the "ring leaders" of the alleged organized gang of young boys that has been responsible for the wave of petty thefting that has swept the city in the past few weeks.

THE
WOMAN'S DAY
By Allene Sumner

No phase of our modern life seems to bring such a beat and a moan and a general to-do whenever it is mentioned as the working wife—not that wives, most of 'em, haven't always worked, but I mean the wage-earning, eight-hour-a-day, or less, outside the home working wife. One would think that by this time she would be casually accepted. We have known her nearly 10 years. But not so. Let there appear one letter of protest against employed married women in any newspaper anywhere and the editor is buried under the flood of letters that sweeps into his office.

Everybody Waits

The letters have an astonishing similarity. They are the same today as they were a year ago. No one has done any real thinking on the subject. There are the usual irate letters from men who complain that they can't get jobs because all the married women have them. There are the usual letters from unwed dangles who rave that they can't get jobs because the married women "who've got men to support them" have all the jobs. There are the usual letters urging employers to refuse to hire married women. There are the usual letters from the married women themselves, challenging the world to show just and true cause why they haven't the same right to work for a home and education for their children as a single girl has to work for mink coats and French perfume and weekly facials and manicures.

All the letters are so futile. Not one of them examples anything but the earth-old habit of human selfishness—of so construing one's own condition, one's own niche in life, that it satisfies one's philosophy. In other words the single girl's philosophy demands work on the working wife, until she herself is a wife when, if she wants to work, she creates a new philosophy atune with her new condition and insists on her right to work, if she wants to. Only in the rarest case does one find a wife who admits truth in some of the single woman's arguments, or a single girl who looks at the question impersonally and grants the wife's right to work.

The Why Of It

I am only repeating what I have said many times on this subject when I say that great sweeping social conditions make our moves rather than we ourselves. There would not be enough working wives to create a problem if there were not a demand for them which they are meeting. Wives still would be in homes if the great social and economic scheme needed them there worse than it needs them somewhere else.

Motherhood's a Job

Despite all the hue and cry about the conveniences of today's woman as contrasted with the sorry plight of wives a generation ago, I am convinced that home-making is a good full-time job for any wife with even but one child, and if she has two or three or four, she works many times as hard as the employed woman.

I have heard wife after wife confide that absolutely the only satisfaction she gets out of working outside the home is that of doing a job she enjoyed rather than that of housework which she despises, because it takes every penny she earns to pay for home jobs for which she is responsible.

The result, of course, is that babies are left out of the scheme of things, which to me is the only argument pro and con working wives, and even then the whole question is not one of duty or obligation to state, but whether wives are not themselves choosing a lesser thing and losing a greater one.

Violent Advances On Stock Market

"Shorts" That Have Resisted Upward Trend Driven To Cover by Huge Buying Orders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 11.—Violent advances of 5 to 15 points in a number of high price specialties featured the resumption of the upward-price movement in today's stock market. "Shorts," who have stubbornly resisted the advance on the theory that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction, were driven to cover on the appearance of huge buying orders in the recent pool favorites. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales again running well over 4,000,000 shares.

Retention of the 4 percent red-count rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, lowering of the call money rate from 6 to 5 1/2 percent, which rate was maintained all day, and U. S. Treasury predictions of easier money later in the year more than offset the increase in nearly $30,000,000 in broker's loans shown in the weekly federal reserve statement. Rights, trading and alcohol prices, declaration of a $2 extra on General Motors common and the usual crop of merger and dividend rumors all helped to create bullish enthusiasm.

Industrial shares again supplied the bulk of the market leaders. The average of 20 leading industrial stocks, compiled by the Associated Press, advanced nearly 2 points to a record high level for all time. The average of 20 leading rails showed a slight loss.

Heavy speculation in the airplane stocks was again an outstanding feature. Wright soared 21 points to a new high record at 194, which contrasts with the year's low of 68, but fell back to 190 on realizing.

PROSPERITY TO ENDURE

See No Reason For Decline In Ranching Trade

SAN ANGELO, May 11.—Forty seven secretary treasurers of Farm Loan associations in West Texas were in San Angelo today meeting with officials from the Federal Land Bank of Houston. The Houston officials were headed by M. H. Gossett, president of the Houston institution.

There will be no recession in the present prosperity of the ranch business, Mr. Gossett said, though he added that under the law of averages and economics, prices of livestock more than likely will drop below present prices within the next two years.

DAILY MARKETS

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 11.—Cotton rallied over $2 a bale on the market here today following an earlier decline of from 11 to 13 points on poor cables, but in subsequent trading eased off and closed with a net gain of only 12 to 15 points. The general market closed steady.

Reports of beneficial rains in Texas supported the downward movement in early trading that started with the arrival of Liverpool cables that were 11 to 13 points worse than due. July contracts sold at 20.94, a loss of 12 points from the previous close.

Promises of cooler weather and showers in the central and eastern sections of the belt caused the market to rally near mid-session. July reaching 21.23, October 21.04 and December 20.99, 39 to 40 points above the low and 27 to 29 points above the previous close.

The advance was supported by reports that a private authority soon would issue bullish consumption statistics. Some realizing was attracted at these figures, causing prices to sag 12 to 15 points. The market soon recovered on fears of rain in the central belt and new highs with October at 21.06 and December at 21.00, 40 to 42 points above the early lows. July did not make a new high. The close was 13 to 15 points from the best.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 11.—Enlarged export demand, together with dry weather northwest unfavorable for the spring wheat crop, did a good deal today to turn wheat prices up. It was estimated that Exports bought 1,000,000 bushels of wheat today for prompt shipment from North America.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1-4c to 1-1-4c net higher, with corn varying from 1-4c decline to 3-8c advance, oats 3-8c to 1-1-8c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 to 10 cents.

Corn rallied at the last, influenced by wheat. Oats showed their strength largely to unfavorable crop reports.

Provisions sympathized with an upward trend of hogs.

LINDY BILL PASSES

Requires Separate Promotion List In Air Service

WASHINGTON, May 11.—A bill which was endorsed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh—the Forfeiture to create a separate promotion list for the army air corps flying officers—was passed by the house this week, and sent to the senate.

Without debate or a record vote the measure was adopted in only a few minutes, although considerable controversy has raged about it in and out of army circles. The lack of a separate list was one of the chief criticisms of the army air service voiced by Colonel William Mitchell, former assistant chief of air service.

The estimated cost is placed at $1,600,000 with $150,000 annually for maintenance.

GANG LEADER SHOT

Three Months Search Of Officers Ends

CHICAGO, May 11.—State and federal authorities who spent three months searching for William Jackson, 38, wanted for participation in the $123,000 Evergreen Park train robbery last February, found him—shot to death beside his automobile in a south-side alley.

The police immediately started to work on a theory that Jackson was slain by his gangsters because he tried to get away with most of the loot of the Grand Trunk robbery, only about one-third of which has been recovered.

This new Allen-A creation is rapidly becoming the most popular of all hosiery. Famous screen stars and smartly dressed women now wear it almost exclusively. You'll love it, too.

It is exquisitely sheer from top to toe. Full-fashioned to mold closely to ankle and knee, thus enhancing the natural curve.

The new Allen-A heel, which tapers to a point above the slipper, gives an alluring slenderness to the ankle never before attained. It also reinforces the heel.

To assure long service, the Allen foot is further reinforced by an extra narrow sole and special side and top toe guards. Invisible even when worn with "cut-out" slippers.

Walter Hagen Makes Comeback To Win British Open Trophy, Retrieve Reputation Lost In Special Match

Gene Sarazen Follows Behind American Pro Star With Score of 294; Argentine Star Sixth.

(By Associated Press)
SANDWICH, England, May 11.—Walter Hagen today won his third British open golf championship with a 72-hole score of 292, coming through with what the British call "a Hagen finish." The American golfer scored two 72's in his last two rounds, taking the lead in the morning and holding it to the end.

He was followed home by Gene Sarazen, another pro from the United States, who needed only 291 for his 72 holes, 73 in the morning and the same score in the afternoon. Archie Compston, a British left-hander, also finished with a pair of 73's for a score of 295 to take third place.

The other two Americans remaining in the competition to the bitter end were Bobby Jones last year and the year before and with Hagen's victory today has been in the hands of golfers from the United States in seven of the last eight years.

"I congratulate that fine sportsman, Walter Hagen," said the prince in presenting the cup. "He has won the trophy twice before and with Hagen's victory today has been in the hands of golfers from the United States in seven of the last eight years."

Winning today as dramatically as he lost a special match to Archie Compston two weeks ago by the one-sided score of 18 up and 17 to play, Hagen effectively silenced critics that his defeat by the giant Compston marked the beginning of his decline as a player in important competitions.

Sensational Comeback.
Three strokes behind Joe Jura, the Argentine, this morning Hagen won by a landslide and confidently played himself into the lead by a stroke at the end of the third round and a two stroke lead when all the returns were in.

The bronzed, boyish, almost cherubic Sarazen, was the last threat. He scored a feat of strength with a lot of nerve, sloped from his leading position of the morning to tie with "Long Jim" Barnes and Aubrey Boomer for sixth place.

Jura's Still Popular.
The wee Buenos Aires pro lost none of his popularity as he faded from the picture under the grueling test. The marvel to those who watched him play was not that he slipped but that he saved so many among the giants of the game. He fought a gallant fight against men almost twice his size and with years of experience to help them.

To Jim Barnes, who has also won the title in years gone by, went the honor of having the best round of the closing day. His 71 was a great performance and landed him well among the first 19 when he seemed doomed to finish far back after taking 76 this morning and with the nightmare of an 81 brought over from yesterday.

Scores of the leaders in the British open golf championship follow:
Walter Hagen, United States: 73-73-73-73-292.
Gene Sarazen, United States: 72-76-73-73-291.
Archie Compston, Great Britain: 75-74-73-73-292.
Perry Allen, Germany: 74-76-75-73-298.
Fred Robson, Great Britain: 79-73-72-74-298.
Jim Barnes, United States: 81-73-76-71-301.
Joe Jura, Argentina: 71-71-76-80-301.

Governments Are Called to View Follies of War

Inherent Right of Any Nation to Arm. In Self Defense Is Upheld, However, In Session.

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, May 11.—The Centennial Congress of the American peace society went on record today as recognizing the inherent right of nations to arm for self-defense but called upon all governments to see the moral obligation of outlawing war as an instrument of national policy.

The approval of the right of nations to prepare themselves against attack was contained in a favorable vote on the report of the committee on international law which was adopted after lengthy debate.

The commission's proposal that the society approve armed defense of the "common interests of international society" was stricken from the report on the ground that it was a loophole which might let the society in the light of sanctions wars which it actually opposed.

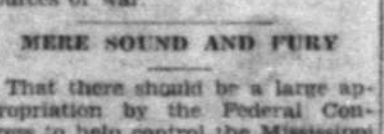

At the same session of the congress denied the "moral responsibility" of any government to protect the foreign investments of its nationals in countries "notoriously unsettled and disturbed. The recommendation for this action came from the commission on religion and was approved without any specific reference to the Chinese and Nicaraguan situations or any other instances of disturbed conditions.

The same commission reported that it recognized the economic exploitation of politically backward peoples as one of the most prolific sources of war.

There should be a large appropriation by the Federal Congress to help control the Mississippi floods is not denied. The problem is national and must be dealt with nationally. But from the first President Coolidge has insisted that certain parts of the great undertaking must be cared for by the communities directly affected. Now, however, we see what happens when an appeal to Washington to do it all becomes popular. Political principles are at once discarded. People worship them in words but discard them in practice. Local government and self-help becomes things simply printed on paper. Uncle Sam is rich enough to pay all the bills of expediency. When such notions get abroad and become powerful, all the addresses and resolutions in favor of States rights and full of warnings against the deadly consequences of centralization at Washington, reduce themselves to mere sound and fury, signifying nothing. LITTLE ROCK, May 11.—Bearing fresh memories of the eventful days of the sixties three thousand United Confederate veterans were scattering tonight after their 38th annual reunion—the last for many of them.

Little Rock's second Confederate reunion and believed by many to be the last to be held west of the Mississippi river was brought to a close today with a spectacular parade of the veterans, participated in by several thousands descendants of Confederates.

It was different from the first held here 17 years ago. In that 10,000 or more survivors of the Confederate army marched with martial tread to the sacred tunes of "Dixie."

Splash Way Through Four Inches of Rain to Victory In Third Annual Texas Conference Meet.

(By Associated Press)
ABILENE, May 11.—Yellow Jackets from Howard Payne college splashed their way through four inches of rain to the track championship of the Texas conference in the third annual meet of the organization. Howard Payne had 89 1-5 points to 49 4-5 for the Simmons Cowboys, runners-up. Southwestern University and Austin college tied for third with 8 points each and St. Edwards university had 7.

In the early afternoon three conference records fell, but later in the day the track had been so heavily flooded that the performance were far from a record breaking nature. Nick McCarver of Howard Payne was credited with blow of the new marks, 10 flat in the century dash and 15.8 in the 120 hurdles. A team mate, Cates, registered the third with 51 seconds in the quarter mile.

McCarver of Howard Payne was high in scoring with 18 points, followed by Capt. Tommy McCollum, of the Simmons squad with 12 3-4.

Golden Rule Contest Is Halted by Rain

After playing two innings, the Boys' Golden Rule club was forced to abandon a baseball game yesterday afternoon at the Central ward school grounds, because of rain.

Frank Beauchamp was in charge of the game and he and Rev. S. H. Erwin served lemonade to the boys.

A meeting of this club will be conducted tomorrow at 3 o'clock in the district court room.

DISABILITIES OF MINOR RE-MOVED

T. W. Gallagher, Jr., 19, yesterday was granted an application removing the disabilities of a minor by Judge Clark M. Mullican in 99th district court here.

Mr. Gallagher was seeking to sell some property which was in his name. There is a lien on the property and he has been unable to make the transaction since he has been a minor. The order of the court will now allow him to do anything that a man is allowed to do with the exception of voting.

Safe and Sane Relief for Pain

Capidine is the logical agent to relieve pain and high nerve strain because it gives relief by soothing the nerves—not by deadening or dousing them. It contains no opiates.

Being liquid, Capidine acts very much quicker than tablets and powders. Highly effective for headaches, neuralgia, rheumatic pains, periodic pains. At all drug stores; 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

Japanese Hold Control Of Turbulent Chinese City, After Bitter Battle

(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, May 11.—Tsinan has been cleared of nationalists by the Japanese after a week of bloodshed but anti-foreign feeling today was smoldering in Shanghai.

It was considered extremely risky for foreigners to venture into native territory. Japanese troops patrolled the Japanese section of the foreign city.

Japanese residents of Canton were evacuated to Shamen, the foreign settlement, and Hong Kong. A run on the Taiwan bank, a Japanese institution in Canton by Chinese depositors because of the Taiwan crisis, resulted in foreign banks, especially American ones, gaining accounts.

Japanese Boycott
A strong anti-Japanese boycott was under way in Canton. The city was placarded with anti-Japanese posters.

Efforts were being made to effect an anti-Japanese boycott in Shanghai. Chinese department stores attempting to dispose of Japanese goods cut prices heavily but few buyers were reported.

Only five Americans were believed to be in Tsinan, including two consuls—Edwin F. Stanton and Ernest B. Price of Foochow.

Nationalist advisers said the Japanese in Shanghai were in complete control of Tsinan, the entire Shanghai railway, the south end of the bridge across the Yellow river and the city of Kooten, 15 miles east of Tsinan.

Coming to Tell America
Dr. C. C. Wu, former foreign minister of the Nanking nationalist government, has been asked to go to Washington to place the Shanghai situation before the American government. Wang Pa, present Nanking foreign minister, announced on his arrival in Shanghai from Tsinan: It was possible that Dr. Wu, who is now in Paris, would ask the United States to mediate in the Tsinan case. Advises from Tokyo said that government circles would not accept mediation since they did not consider that a state of war existed.

The loss of life among both Chinese and Japanese in Tsinan was believed to be heavy, although reports of casualties were indefinite. Three field batteries placed by the Japanese in the foreign settlement shelled the city with shrapnel. Most of the population of 400,000 were caught unaware and a heavy slaughter was believed to have resulted.

Parts of Wall Blown Up
During the fighting the Japanese blew up the southern and western corners of the city wall and the nationalists were forced to flee to the north. Nationalist resistance in general amounted to sniping, although occasional small bands put up desperate resistance to avoid being disarmed and expelled.

The military proclamation issued by General Fukuda on the expiration of the Japanese ultimatum was published in Japanese newspapers in Tungshao. After General Fukuda stated his regret that he was unable to arrange a pacific settlement, he concluded:

"In view of the belligerent attitude of the nationalists and in order to maintain the prestige of the Japanese empire, it intends to take drastic measures against the southerners and to punish the troops who have committed the outrages against the Japanese."

Consuls Have Long Record
Ernest B. Price and Edwin F. Stanton, the two American consuls who heroically helped Americans who had been out of the beleaguered city of Tsinan under gunfire and remained behind to look after American interests are both men of long service in the Orient. Price and Stanton both entered the consular service as student interpreters in the American legation at Peking and after they had been trained for two years in the Chinese language, Chinese history and diplomatic procedure became vice consuls.

Price was born of American missionary parents in Burma but claims Rochester, N. Y., as his home and is a graduate of the University of Rochester. Stanton was born at Buckville, N. Y., and is a graduate of the University of Southern California.

GENEVA, May 11 (AP)—The Nanking nationalist government today appealed to the League of Nations against the Japanese who have driven the Chinese nationalists out of Tsinan.

The league secretary received a communication from the foreign minister of the Nanking government asking the intervention of the League of Nations under paragraph two article eleven of the covenant. It also requested that special meeting of the league council be convened to investigate the Japanese expeditionary movement into Shanghai.

Ready for Settlement
The communication was immediately telegraphed to all members of the league council. It expressed a willingness on the part of the Nanking government to accept any proper agreement which might result from international inquiry or from mediation.

The document gave a history of the recent situation in China and mentioned what it termed the "unjustified depredations of the Japanese."

The fact that the league immediately circulated the Nanking protest to all members of the council left a firm impression that the league would act officially in the matter despite the fact that the Nanking government is not recognized by the league as the official government of China. The Peking government, represented by China Loh on the league council, is the officially recognized government.

TOKYO, May 11 (AP)—It was officially stated today that 21 Japanese soldiers have been killed in the fighting with the Chinese nationalists at Tsinan. Seventy were wounded.

Thirteen Japanese civilians were killed and nine wounded. Twenty-eight civilians are missing and two of these are believed to have been murdered.

TOKYO, May 11 (AP)—Railroad authorities have been ordered to prepare for the transportation of 20,000 men and 5,300 horses to Shanghai, China, between next Sunday and the end of the month.

This will bring the total Japanese forces in Shanghai to about 23,000 men.

NEW INSTRUCTOR

Bonnie K. Dysart Added at Tech

Miss Bonnie K. Dysart, a practical educational psychologist of wide experience, has been added to the faculty of Texas Technological college, according to Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the department of education. Her special work in Tech will be as social professor of primary education and psychology. Dr. Evans says that Miss Dysart is one of the leading teachers in the field of primary education and that her coming to Tech will add much to the prestige of this phase of the work.

Miss Dysart has been primary supervisor at Roswell, N. M., at Amarillo, and for years was head of this work in the San Antonio schools. During the past year she has been in charge of primary education in Williamson county under the new state law making the county an educational unit. The state authorities were very reluctant to release Miss Dysart from this important work.

Mystifies 'Em

Selvin, Magician Does His Stuff

Lubbock gazed, gaped, marveled and sat in a state of stupefaction last night in the Land-sey theater as Selvin, magician and mystery man, performed his thesmaturgy for the second time in the city.

Opening with stock magician tricks, Selvin carried his audience on through a series of amazing problems and climaxed his program with his "Buried Alive" act, which has drawn much comment and bewilderment from his audience on both nights.

Placed in a casket, which was later nailed into the casket box Selvin astonished the crowd by appearing outside both in the short period of less than four minutes.

Other acts of his program consisted of causing ducks to disappear, the usual card and switch tricks, shooting a tinny bird into a light globe and various other mystifying spectacles.

He is to appear in several more performances, remaining in the city until Tuesday. As a part of his act are included his changes of program, it was said.

Mullican Urges Youths To Take Part In CMTC

Wide Variety of Training Given to Youths Attending Camps, Says Local Judge In Interview.

Applications from this section for admittance to the Citizens' Military Training camps to be held this summer throughout the Southwest are requested to be made immediately. Varieties are rapidly filling up.

An officer to consider applications is being held each afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock at the Tech Gym by Lieut. H. E. Killin, military instructor at Tech, who has been placed in charge of the enrollment for the camps.

In an interview yesterday afternoon Col. Clark M. Mullican, judge of the 9th district court, appealed to the youth of this county to enroll for the camps. Immediate enrollment means acceptance, he said. "Showing the applicant the choice of the camps. Last summer many were denied admittance because the applications were sent in too late."

Several camps will be held at Fort Sam, Houston, Texas; Fort Logan, Colorado; Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Fort Bliss, Texas; and Camp S. D. Little, Arizona. Equipment, clothes, quarters, mess and physical examination will be furnished free with the camps. Transportation will be furnished to a point equal distance.

They Like Tech

Local Graduates Select School

The adage that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own land" and therefore, by inference that "a college is not popular in its home town," is disproved this year, at least for Texas Tech. Eighty-five percent of the record class of 220 at the Lubbock high school are to attend Texas Tech during the coming long session.

About 9 percent of the graduates were not positive as to whether or not they would attend the Tech, and 8 percent specified colleges other than the home institution as their choice.

One hundred and forty-six of the 173 graduates of last year attended the Tech this semester, figures show.

Rockefeller Is Praised at Meet Of Business Men

Flaudits to Magnate Echo Scathing Rebuke Handed To Officials Corrupted by Riches.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 11.—An ovation of several minutes' duration greeted the introduction of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., last night before the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which previously had been on record with a severe condemnation of corruption of public officials by men of the business world.

Mr. Rockefeller has demanded the resignation of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, as a result of the latter's testimony before the senate oil committee, but refused to comment further on his action during his visit to Washington.

Prolonged applause and cheers greeted the financier after Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, had eulogized him as the "conservator and distributor of a great estate, exponent and defender of high standards in business and elsewhere, promoter and supporter of worthy educational and charitable enterprises everywhere."

Asked regarding Stewart's statement in Chicago, Mr. Rockefeller politely declined to comment.

"If I did have anything to say," he said, "I am sure you will appreciate the serious situation and understand my position."

committee on state of the church, Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, chairman and president of Boston university, reported. Dr. Marsh hailed the move as the "One of the most significant things done by any religious body in a long time."

Prime significance was attached to the church's declaration because like proposals will be made before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America at Tulsa, Okla., May 24 to 30.

Eventual union with all the Presbyterian and Methodist bodies, and with the Congregationalist church was sought in more than a dozen memorials sent to the committee, of which today's resolution was the synthesis.

Delegates estimated that unification negotiations in the three churches would involve 60,000 churches, 55,000 pastors and educators, the spiritual interests of about 35,000,000 people and property valued at approximately $1,300,000,000.

Last Minute Scramble Of Demos Looms

AUSTIN, May 11. (AP)—A last minute scramble may determine who will hold major places in the state democratic convention at Beaumont it developed Friday.

Governor Moody said that the "Harmony" group, of which he is one of the heads, had prepared no slate for the chairmanship of the convention and the other important posts.

Highway Commissioner Connel Johnson, leader in the "constitutional" ultra-right faction, made the same declaration.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT HALTED BY MISAP

SEVILLE, Spain, May 11. (AP)—Attempting to take off on a flight to break duration and distance records, the airplane Jesus Del Gran Poder crashed into an automobile today. The lower right wing was considerably damaged making a flight impossible.

The plane started down the runway with Captains Ignacio Jimenes and Francisco Iglesias for an unannounced destination at 6:15 a. m. The air drome was crowded with people who cheered the fliers. Suddenly the plane plunged into a military automobile in its path preventing the flight.

Girl Plans Flight to Paris

Attempt to be Made by Plucky Cleveland Miss Next Summer; Has 100 Air Hours

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, May 11.—Miss Carrie Bellet, Cleveland high school graduate with 100 flying hours to her credit, today announced she would make an attempt to fly from Cleveland to Paris next summer, either in July or August.

Already a number of offers have been received by Miss Bellet from persons living outside Cleveland to finance the trip, she announced, but these have been turned down. She is now endeavoring to interest Cleveland capital in the enterprise. Last summer the Cleveland chamber of commerce offered a $25,000 prize to anyone who would fly from Paris to Cleveland. Miss Bellet said she is attempting to have the organization finance the flight. The chamber of commerce withdrew its offer after the Bremen flyers made their recent crossing.

That Miss Bellet is a competent aviator was revealed when inquiry was made at the Cleveland airport. Major John Berry in charge said Miss Bellet is "an experienced and competent aviator and has been preparing for the last two years for such a flight."

Major Berry said that Miss Bellet last year had done considerable flying for the Rocky Mountain Air line and had dropped 3,000 feet in a parachute at the dedication of the Denver aviation field.

Already, Miss Bellet said, a number of experienced pilots have offered their services as co-pilots on the proposed flight. She said a number of Denver people had offered her financial assistance for the proposed flight. She refused to reveal their names.

A single motored plane will be used, and a pilot-navigator will accompany her.

Miss Bellet for the past several months has been taking an extensive course here in aerial navigation.

by Dayle Wallace of Mount Calm. Then as the queen takes her staff in hand, surrounded by her court, glances into eras of American and Texas history will follow hand in hand, leading figures of each era appearing in costumes of the periods in which lived.

The production closes with an interpretation of what the college is endeavoring to do for those who come under its influence.

More than 20 different costumes, arranged for by Miss Mabel Erwin, are to be shown throughout the evening, ranging from those of the ancient world Spanish costumes of the 17th century, through the Colonial, Civil War and World War days up until the present time. Every individual making an appearance will wear a special costume.

All in Readiness.
Lighting, properties, settings, music, broadcasting and everything else in readiness last night for the affair.

The theme of the pageant's story which was written by Miss Cox, centers around the lives of the men whose names and faces are carved on the administration building of Tech. Columbus, Washington, Lee, Lincoln, Wilson, of American history; Austin, Houston, Crockett, Johnston and Hogg of Texas history; and Plato, Aristotle, Hippocrates, Shakespeare, Paul, Angelo, Homer, Pestalozzi, Gladstone, Newton, Pasteur, Franklin, Burbank and Edison, leaders in all phases of activities, are to make their appearance in connection with portrayal of bits of their lives and the eras in which they lived.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the college band under the direction of Prof. Harry LeMaire.

Moody

in Love Ridge, Friday night issued a statement in reply to one by Gov. Dan Moody which was read to the constitutional democrats' leader over the telephone. He said:

"What I said today was that I was willing to make any personal sacrifice that would tend to insure a union of all dry forces in the Beaumont convention against the common enemy. I pointed out that if there was not such a union, the Al Smith forces would be likely to support one or the other of the factions as they did in the Dallas county convention Tuesday, and that I sincerely desired to avert such a result because of my high regard for Governor Moody. There was nothing base or insincere in what I said, as I am very sure the three reporters and Sen. V. A. Collins, who were present, will attest. Nothing was further from my mind."

"If the governor does not know that I have never treated him with business or insincerity, I sincerely regret it. I am confident that most people in Texas do know it."

erable damage to crops. In other localities less severity was reported. The rains are regarded as highly beneficial to wheat and cotton crops.

Half Inch of Rain Reported At Floydada

FLOYDADA, May 11.—One-half inch rain fell here this morning. It will still aid some of large wheat acreage and give farmers opportunity of planting cotton. Rain was heavier in north and east portions of county.

Farmers Changing To Cotton At Lockney

LOCKNEY, May 11.—95 hundredths inch of rain fell in the Lockney made territory last night and this morning. Large wheat farmers report that prospects are bright for a fair yield on the summer fallowed land while most of the crop on land not prepared so well will be a total failure. Local ginners and cotton oil mill operators are making every effort possible to secure plenty of good cotton seed as they anticipate a large acreage of cotton to be planted in Floyd county this year. Many farmers will plant the land prepared for feed and cotton in cotton only while a large part of the wheat land will be planted in grain sorghums.

Inch and Half Reported In Littlefield Section

LITTLEFIELD, May 11.—A good general rain fell over this entire section of the county last night and early this morning. Reports have come in from the various towns surrounding Littlefield, and the rain has extended south as far as Levelland, south and west to Pep community and south east as far as Anton. This puts this country in excellent condition for cotton planting. The rain amounting to as much as an inch and a half in most places. A reasonably good wheat crop is also practically assured. A general air of optimism now prevails among the farmers and business men of this section.

Plains Realtors to Stop in San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, May 11.—Members of the Lubbock and Amarillo real estate boards who will spend a real night in San Angelo to be joined by the local delegation in journeying by automobile to the annual convention at San Antonio May 16, 17 and 18, will be guests of the San Angelo Real Estate Board at a dance at the St. Angelus hotel roof garden.

The Amarillo-Lubbock-San Angelo automobile caravan is expected to be the largest to enter the convention city, as while according to information received here Amarillo and Lubbock will be well represented by delegates, practically the entire membership of the San Angelo board will make the trip and will go prepared to make a strong bid for the 1929 convention.

D. J. Burk, president, and T. R. Logan, past-president of the San Angelo Real Estate Board, will head the local delegation, which will be accompanied by Keating's orchestra, which also will supply music for the dance here Monday evening. The orchestra will help the San Angelo delegation raise up things at convention headquarters. And all the paraphernalia necessary to attract attention will be carried by the delegates.

"LEAVE TO PRINT"

Speaking "leave to print" outrages committed by senators and representatives now and then, consider for a moment what Senator Heflin of Alabama put over. The senator, at odds with Mayor Gunter of Montgomery, and is seeking to prevent the mayor's election as a delegate-at-large to the Houston convention. In replying to some charges the mayor made against him, the senator used 168 typewritten pages, and in the document he devoted himself chiefly to further attacks on Al Smith and the Catholic church. It was this tirade that he secured leave to print in the Congressional Record. What excuse there was for putting it in the Record does not appear. The contents of the article were intended for consumption in Alabama, and they were concerned principally with a local fight. The cost of printing the Heflin reply was no considerable sum, and it was borne by the treasury, to which all the people of the country contribute. It is a rank injustice to force the whole American people to pay for the printing and distribution of the campaign documents of Heflin or any other politician.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ality of not more than $10,000 or five years, or both. But Bruce of Maryland attempted to cut this to $2,500 and two years, before the Bruce change could be voted on. Heflin shot in a substitute setting the $15,000 and five year maximum and this went through without a record vote. On the final roll call on the amended bill Bruce first voted no but changed to aye before the announcement was made.

In the course of the committee hearings department officials explained that the price trend work was started three years ago for their product at better prices. Committee members without exception, however, insisted that the September statement had served merely to smash the market and virtually every cotton merchant or cotton exchange official examined agreed that that it had precipitated the crash. The departmental witnesses held the downward trend prediction was fully justified because there was a visible supply of cotton in the world in September of more than 20,000,000 bales offsetting whatever bullish factors were influencing the market.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Sally, crouching on the floor of her room, spread the cracking sheets of The Capital City Press her eyes devouring the two-column picture of David Nash. Two lines of type above the photograph leaped out at her:

"Honor graduate of A. & M. inherits grandfather's farm."

He hadn't been injured or killed in an accident, he wasn't married: In a frenzy of relief and gratitude to the God she had just been accusing of deserting her, Sally Barr, who had been Sally Ford bent her head until her lips rested on the lips of the photograph. And it was rather a pity that Arthur Van Horne, "connoisseur of kissing," was not there to see the passionate fervor of the kisses which the girl whom he had dismissed contemptuously was raining upon an unresponsive newspaper picture.

When at last she was calmer she read the short item through. It was the last paragraph that brought her to her feet, her slight body electric with sudden determination:

"Young Nash is living alone in the fine old farmhouse, and apparently is as capable in the kitchen as on the seat of a cultivator. He says his whole heart is in scientific farming, and that his only sweetheart is 'Sally,' a blue-ribbon heifer which he is grooming to break the world's butter-fat production record."

"David, darling David!" She was laughing and crying at the same time. "He hasn't changed! He hasn't forgotten that we're half-married!"

Jerking open a drawer of her dressing table she caught sight of her face in the mirror, and her eyes widened with delighted surprise. Come was the puffed, white, shame-stricken face, and in its place was beauty such as she had never dreamed she possessed. She turned away from the mirror tremulous and aghast for what she had to do would not be easy. Her eyes tried to avoid the exquisite photograph of her mother that stood in its blue leather frame on the dressing table, but at last she snatched it up and carried it against her breast as she ran to her desk.

She felt that she was talking to David as she wrote, pleading for understanding and forgiveness from those dreaming misty, corn-flower-blue eyes.

"Mother, darling, I'm running away to go to David. Please don't try to stop me or bring me back for I'll have to run away again if you do. I'm going to marry David because I love him with all my heart and because he is the only man I could ever marry without causing you shame. He already knows the truth, and it made no difference in his love for me. You know how it was with Grant Proctor. You said yourself that if I told him, he would not want to marry me. And I could never marry a man without first telling him the truth. Arthur Van Horne knew and wanted me to be his mistress. He told me today. He did not think I was good enough to be his wife. It would always be the same. And so I am going to David, who knows and loves me anyway."

"Oh, mother, forgive me for hurting you like this. But don't you see that I would hurt you more by staying. After a while you would be ashamed of me because I could not marry. I would humiliate you in the eyes of your friends. And I could not be happy ever, away from David. I wanted to die after Arthur Van Horne told me today what he really wanted of me, but now I know I want to live—with David. Please, mother, don't think my love for you."

She could write no more just then. Laying her hot cheek against the cold glass of the framed photograph of her mother she sobbed so madly, so heart-brokenly that she did not hear a knock upon the door. She did not know her grief was being witnessed until she felt a hand upon her shoulder.

"Sally, darling! What in the world is the matter?" It was Enid Barr's tender, throaty contralto.

Sally sprang to her feet, her eyes wild with fear, her mother's picture still tightly clutched in her hands. "I—I was writing you a letter!" she gasped. "I—I—"

"Perhaps I'd better read it now," Enid said in an odd voice, and reached for the scattered sheets of pale gray notepaper on the desk.

Sally wavered to a chair and slumped into it, too dazed with despair to think coherently. She could not bear to look at her mother, for she knew now how cowardly she had been, how abysmally selfish.

Her flaming face was hidden by her hands when, after what seemed many long minutes, she heard her mother's voice again.

"Poor Sally. You couldn't trust me? You'd have run away—like that? Without giving me a chance to prove my love for you?"

Sally dropped her hands and stared stupidly at her mother. Enid was coming toward her, the newspaper with David's picture in it rustling against the crisp tulle of her bouffant skirt. And on Enid's face was an expression of such sorrowful but loving reproach that Sally burst into wild weeping.

"Poor little darling!" Enid dropped to her knees beside Sally's chair and took the girl's cold, shaking hands in hers. "We all make mistakes, Sally. I've made more than my share. Maybe I'm getting old enough now to have a little wisdom. And I want to keep you from making a mistake that would cause both of us—and Court—untold sorrow."

"But I love David and I shan't love anyone else," Sally sobbed, though she knew her resistance was broken.

"I'm forced to believe that now, darling," Enid said gently. "And I shall not stand in the way of your happiness with him. That is not the mistake I meant."

"You mean that you'll let me marry him?" Sally cried incredulously. "Oh, Mother, I love you so!"

"And I love you, Sally," Enid's voice broke and she cuddled Sally's cold hands against the velvety warmth of her own throat. "Your mistake would have been to run away to marry David. You have a mother and a father now. Sally, you're no longer a girl alone, as David called you. You have a place in society as our daughter, whether you want it or not. If David wants to marry you, he must come here to do so, must marry you with our consent and our blessing."

"But—Sally's joy suddenly turned to despair again. "He wouldn't marry a girl with a fortune. He told me so when he was here."

"That was when he was penniless himself," Enid pointed out. "I've just read this newspaper story about his inheriting his grandfather's farm. It's a small fortune in itself, and since there's no immediate danger of your inheriting either my money or Court's I don't believe he will let your prospective wealth stand in the way."

"Oh, he does!" Sally laughed through her tears. "Look!" She snatched the newspaper from the floor and pointed to the last paragraph of the story about David.

"He named his prize heifer after me!" It says here his only sweetheart is 'Sally'! Oh, Mother, I don't know anyone could live through such misery and such happiness as I felt today. I wanted to kill myself after an—Oh—"

"Tell me just exactly what he said to you," Enid commanded her lovely voice sharpened with anger and fear.

When Sally had repeated the contemptuous, sneering speech as accurately as possible, her mother's face, which had been almost ugly with anger and disgust, cleared miraculously.

"The man is an unspeakable cad, darling, but I am almost glad it happened, since you escaped unscathed. He won't bother us again. I'm sure of it. He's not quite low enough to gossip about me to my friends. It is evident that he planned all along to use his knowledge as a club to force you to submit to his desires. And now that he doesn't want you any more, he will lose interest in the whole subject. I've known Van nearly all my life and I've never known him to act the cad before. He's probably despising himself now that his fever has cooled. If you marry David, with our consent, he'll probably turn up at your wedding and offer sincere congratulations with a whispered reassurance as to his ability to keep our secret."

"When I marry David, not if!" Sally cried excitedly, flinging her arms about her mother's neck. "Oh, I'm so glad I have a mother!"

"Don't strangle me!" Enid laughed. "Leave me strength to write a proposal of marriage to this cocksure young farmer who brags that he is as capable in the kitchen as at the seat of a cultivator."

"He can't cook half as well as I can!" Sally scoffed. "You ought to taste one of my apple pies. He can play nurse to his blue-ribbon stock all he wants to, but he's got to let me do the cooking. And, Mother, you'll tell him how much I love him, won't you? And—and you might remind him that we only need half a marriage ceremony—the last half. Wouldn't it be fun if we could go back to Ganfield and let the 'marrying parson' finish the job?"

"Don't be too confident!" Enid warned her. "He may refuse you!" But at sight of Sally's dismay she relented. "I know he loves you, darling. Don't worry. If I were you I'd get busy immediately on a trousseau."

"One dozen kitchen aprons will top the list," Sally laughed. Four days later the second telegram that Sally had received from David arrived: "Catching next train East, darling. Happiest man in the world. Can we be married day I arrive? Am wiring your blessed mother also. I'll be loving you always, David."

"Of course you can't be married the day he arrives," Enid exclaimed indignantly when Sally showed her the telegram. "I'm going to give you a real wedding."

"I think the children are right, Enid," Courtney Barr, unexpectedly championed Sally in her protest. "A quiet, impromptu wedding, by all means. Our announcement to the papers will indicate that we approve, and since the boy is unknown in New York and Sally has only just been introduced, I think the less fuss the better."

Sally kissed him impulsively, aware though the knowledge did not hurt her, that she liked her better now that she was to leave her home, than she had ever liked her.

David arrived on Monday, and was guest of honor that night at a small party of Enid's and Sally's most intimate friends, at which time announcement of the forthcoming marriage was made. They remembered having seen him briefly at Sally's coming-out party and so handsome he was, so much at ease, now that he was to be married to the girl he loved, that it occurred to none of Enid's guests to question his eligibility. Sally, sitting proudly beside him, looked happily from her mother to David, knew that in gaining a husband she was not losing a mother, as she would have done if Enid had not interrupted the writing of that terrible letter.

On Tuesday Sally and David, accompanied by Enid and Courtney Barr, went to the municipal building for the marriage license and the afternoon papers carried the news on the front pages, under such headlines as: "Popular Deb to Marry Rich Farmer." But in all the stories there was no hint of scandal, no reportorial prying into the "past" of the adopted daughter of the rich and prominent Courtney Barrs.

The wedding took place on Wednesday, in the drawing-room of the Barrs' Fifth Avenue mansion, and the next morning, in his account of the "very quiet" wedding, a society editor commented: "The ceremony was read by the Reverend Horace Greer, of Canfield—, the choice of celebrant being dictated by unexplained sentiment."

What the society editor did not know was that the "marrying parson" of Canfield spoke only the last half of the marriage service, beginning where he had been interrupted nearly three years before.

Sally and David were no longer "half-married."

FAR PREFERABLE TO A VETO MESSAGE ON ANY BILL

Completion of flood-control legislation at this session of Congress seems virtually assured as the result of a conference between the president and spokesmen for either house. From whatever viewpoint that consummation is more important than the form which the legislation finally shall take. Delay would jeopardize the entire program and, in the end, almost surely would cost the people more heavily than the Jones Bill project, without the commensurate returns. Evidently the differences between the Executive and Congress, over this question, were less serious than previously painted. The only revisions which Mr. Coolidge demanded had to do with flowage right and the jurisdiction of the special commission proposed. In its final form the measure still would appropriate 325 millions for the work, and all would come from the Federal Treasury. As amended, the bill stipulates that the government shall pay for flowage rights over the necessary flood-undation. That is a minor matter as compared with the entire vast project, but the president feared that claims running into millions might develop. It does no harm to guard against that possibility. Every such situation can be handled as it arises, and the government may be counted on to do justice to land-holders involved. Of course, they would not be allowed to put over a "steal." Practically speaking, this problem is not difficult. Most of the area needed for the disposal of excess waters in an emergency is wooded and suitable only for timber-growing. It can be flooded as required without inflicting much damage. The other major change effected in the bill has to do with administration. It directs the army engineers to submit their report on flood-control in the tributaries to the Mississippi River commission rather than to the special board that the measure creates.

That body—embracing the chief of army engineers, the chairman of the Mississippi River commission and one civilian engineer appointed by the president—is to be temporary. Its function will be mediatory only, to conciliate the differences which have arisen between the army engineers and the Mississippi River commission. The task of spending the 325 millions and putting the program into effect would devolve upon the Secretary of War, Major General Jadwin and the commission. Once the president signs the bill, urgently needed work can go forward while the mediatory body performs its labors, and construction on the main project should not be long delayed. Public confidence will be strengthened immediately. The method by which this agreement was reached—a frank talk between the president and Congress—is so plainly preferable to a veto message that it probably might be followed in other situations.

"DEAD BANDITS"

W. M. Massie, president of the Texas Bankers' association, was greeted with prolonged applause when he announced at the opening of the annual convention of the association in San Antonio, a few days ago that the reward of $5000 per head for dead bank bandits would be maintained another year. President Massie asserted the reward is necessary to protect the banks of Texas; that the value of the policy has been proved, citing that only three successful robberies have occurred in the state the past year. William E. Hawkins of Breckenridge, who asserts he is running for governor against Dan Moody, waxed extremely wroth over the "presumption" of the Texas bankers. He informed an audience at Austin Tuesday that as soon as he is elected governor he will request the legislature to make "liberal" provisions for adequate state rewards for the arrest and conviction of any and all kinds of bank robbers," and would make it a felony for an individual or association to offer a reward such as the Texas bankers have posted. There are two contingencies to be considered in connection with Mr. Hawkins' proposal: First, the remote possibility that he will be elected governor; and second, the difficulty he would encounter, in the event he should be elected, in inducing the legislature to make the appropriation for those "liberal rewards." Incidentally, the spectacle of the Texas legislature passing a law making it a felony for the Texas bankers to vote a reward to protect their institutions against bandits would be, to say the least amusing. The theory of the Texas Bankers' association that dead bank bandits are good bandits could very profitably be applied to other classes of bandits. If the Texas bankers desire to declare a 12-month "open season" on bank bandits the only protest will come from the bandits themselves and a few politicians who are seeking a little notoriety.

OPPOSES THIRD PARTY

There is none of the Coolidge ambiguity in the reply of Josephus Daniels made to a telegram from Wilbur Legett, California manager for Senator Reed, asking Mr. Daniels if he would accept the vice-presidential nomination on a third party ticket. Mr. Daniels positively and unequivocally said, "No." And he gave excellent reasons for declining. He does not believe a third party would stand any chance to elect its candidates. Mr. Daniels is also convinced that the main issue of the 1928 presidential campaign is republican corruption, and that the democratic party offers "the only hope" for wresting the government from the republicans. This is sound doctrine, informed doctrine, and Mr. Daniels does his country and his party a good service by reaffirming it in a manner that should discourage further talk among democrats of a third party movement, if Al Smith is nominated at Houston. What republicans do is of no concern to the democrats, except as it may lessen or increase the democratic chances for victory. If Senator Borah should decide to head a third party ticket the democrats would owe him a debt of thanks, for that decision would make democratic victory in November certain. The Legett telegram intimates that Senator Reed or Senator Borah might be willing to accept a third party nomination for the presidency. The possibility of a third party headed by Borah has been widely discussed, partly because of the independent views expressed by Mr. Borah and the attacks he has been making lately on his party. But Senator Reed in the role of a bolter is something new in the body politic. Reed and Borah have both had much to say about republican corruption, but Reed, who is a pronounced and lifelong wet, does not believe prohibition is an issue, or a major issue, in the current presidential campaign. Mr. Borah thinks otherwise. He has bedeviled republican presidential candidates with his prohibition question and insists the republican party adopt a militant stand with respect to prohibition enforcement. Mr. Daniels is bone dry. He made the United States navy dry when he was secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinet. Nevertheless, Mr. Daniels is a democrat first. He wants the democratic party to win, for its own sake and the country's sake, in order that the forces of privilege and corruption may be ousted from Washington. And he sees that the only way to accomplish this purpose is for a united democratic party to make an aggressive fight at the polls on the issue of republican corruption in office.

George Tyler, a theatrical producer, attempted to produce nine plays and nine times his plays failed. With his back to the wall financially he decided to revive an old play, "She Stoops to Conquer." Mr. Tyler, who has made and lost 12 millions on plays in his theatrical career, is winning back. Encouraged by that success, he is putting out other old favorites and they are winning.

SO THINK WE

We think the street corner loafers are going to have something new to talk about now, since the rain. Their conversation was getting very dry before the showers.

We think the people of this country put in so much time contemplating the crop failures that we do not have time to transact business.

We think if the street corner loafers and tobacco chewers could elect the people to office that they might not have such an expense in holding the elections, but we doubt if the officers could say that they were elected by a representative bunch of people.

It is reported that some Central Texas fellow got up at the South Plains Convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and made the statement that West Texas would not have had anything at all if Central Texas had not furnished it. That may be true too, but we are glad to say that the cream of that country rose and came west and left mostly bluebonnet and almond milk down there. He talked and acted like he was even sored.

We think that every man and every woman whose mother is living should send them greetings Sunday. Either with some token of remembrance, letter or telegram, or long distance telephone. Either way we appreciate it and it will be a blessing to you.

We think about the best efficiency expert that we have heard of is the fellow who walks backwards to keep his pants from bagging at the knee.

We think that time is possibly just now that the men dare not cut their hair extra short for fear of being mistook for a woman.

We think nearly every man feels out when he is taken in.

We think it is about the most exciting thing that happens in a bathing revue is when the bathing beauties get their feet wet.

We think that fellow from Oklahoma who took a mouse to the beach with him so that he could tell the men from the women, was not so foolish after all.

We think that possibly if a burglar was to get into our house about all he would get would be practice, but even at that we are not wanting to give them that so we have locks on our house.

OPINIONS

THE EAST HOLDS BACK
Senator Walsh of Montana sought to reassure the Boston Chamber of Commerce a few days ago on the question of the Boston Harbor highway. He announced that Congress was expected shortly to go into this matter, and indicated quite plainly that it ought to have favorable consideration, even in Boston. The Senator from Montana said some of the benefits of this proposed channel of commerce which would move seaports inland by a thousand miles or more. He said that savings on grain shipped from Chicago or Duluth would amount to 5 or 10 cents a bushel, and that twenty states of the interior have organized to support the waterway.

Opposition to the St. Lawrence project has come from portions of New England, and more particularly from New York, on the ground it would divert business from these areas, especially to ports of entry. That generally is admitted. But, Senator Walsh pointed out, New England would stand to benefit especially from the cheaper waterway rates on raw materials shipped to factories of the region from the Middle and Far West.

That is a valuable consideration. But another is more important. The coast regions, including New England and, of course, New York City and its suburbs, are situated heavily along the Panama Canal. The significant point is that the inland region has not shared in the canal benefits, but rather has suffered because of the extent to which they have been available for the coast cities and districts.

So it appears that Eastern objection to the St. Lawrence project, which will have to wait not only for the sanction of Congress but the Canadian government, has little or no justification. It is as selfish as the opposition that has arisen at various times in the past to waterway development in the Middle West. The latter, fortunately, is now well advanced. It has come to be rather generally recognized not simply as a sectional, but as a national question. The outcome ought to be the same with this additional project which holds the promise of still more transportation facilities for a wide inland territory.—Kansas City Times.

A NEW WATERMELON

An item that carries a great many possibilities of pleasure for the human race is one coming from San Francisco and announcing the development of a new type of watermelon at the university farm near Davis, Cal. by Dr. J. T. Hasko. Dr. Hasko has worked out a new watermelon in the watermelon he is a wizard and the benefactor of his day and generation. The Klondyke has been the standard watermelon in California and a very good melon, indeed, it is the testimony of Californians to be trusted. Now Dr. Hasko has taken it and made it a pink, deep red, instead of a pink, and caused the seeds to be a shining black. The rind has been toughened so that there is less danger of bursting in shipping. These items are just what a real watermelon should possess, especially dark red flesh and glistening seeds of a definite blackness. Incidentally, the improvement in the Klondyke melon shows that Burbank's work is being carried along by others and that the lesson he taught have been heeded by some of those who observed the wonders he wrought.—Nashville Banner.

YOUR HEALTH

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article third of a series of six articles on the healthful regulation and control of swimming pools and beaches. Tomorrow: Rules for Bathing.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The water in any swimming pool should not be artificially heated to a temperature above 72 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature of the air at any artificially heated swimming pool should not be permitted to become more than 2 degrees Fahrenheit warmer or more than 2 degrees Fahrenheit colder than the water in the pool at any time when the pool is in use.

For the best results, it is desirable that the air temperature should be about 5 degrees Fahrenheit warmer than the pool temperature. The advantage of this is, of course, the avoidance of any sudden changes in temperature of persons using the pool.

Limits on Bathing.
It is also important in the context of swimming pools to establish definitely limits as to the number of persons using the pools at any one time or during the day. The amount of dirt and bacteria introduced in the pool is, of course, in proportion to the number of bathers.

A committee of the American Public Health Association adopted the standard that the total number of bathers using a swimming pool during any period of time should not exceed 20 persons for each 1000 gallons of clear water added to the water during that period.

The term clear water was interpreted to mean new clear water used to refill the pool, new clear water used to replace loss by splashing or during cleaning, water taken from the pool and returned after filtering, or any combination of such waters.

Every pool should be provided with shower baths and bathers should be compelled to use soap and water before entering the pool. Every pool should have an overflow trough to carry away impurities from the surface.

That Littlefield's greatest asset yet remains entirely undeveloped is still known by a comparatively few people of this section, yet within a few miles of this growing little city lies latent a business project in the form of a great rock quarry inviting capital and labor for development which will mean far greater convenience, efficiency and financial saving to the entire Panhandle country.

This undeveloped rock quarry which is located approximately nine miles southwest of Littlefield, near Bull Lake has a face of solid hard rock averaging from 20 to 40 feet deep and nearly a mile in length, which is pronounced to be among the very best of rock to be found throughout the entire state of Texas.

One favorable feature of the location is its admirable position for developing, since the ledge lies high along the canyon rim, where the rock may be blasted and rolled down the bluff by gravity to the crushers and thence carried on by the same process for loading purposes. A right-of-way for spur railroad track leading to the quarry out of Littlefield has already been obtained for most of the distance. This property which belongs to the Yellow House Land Co. is located on three labors of land which have been set aside for quarry purposes.

This gives abundant room for locating of crushers, track yardage houses for officials and labors, etc. During the past two years numerous contractors and engineers have visited the quarry, and, without a single exception, pronounce it to be the best rock they have ever seen in the state, and the further fact that there is nothing like it in the entire Panhandle section, makes it of peculiar value to this part of the state. Rock from this quarry is to be used in the paving of Main street, contract for such work having been let last week. Tests of the rock have been made by chemists at the State University of Texas and by chemists in Kansas City, Mo., by the Yellow House Land Co. and the Santa Fe System, respectively, both confirming the high quality of the rock obtainable.

Following is the report as furnished by N. A. Parkinson, assisting testing engineer of the State University, El Paso, Texas:

Specific gravity, 2.44
Weight per cubic foot, 132 lbs.
Per cent of wear, 2.56
French coefficient, 13.5 high
Hardness, 17.15 hard
Toughness, 16 good
Cementing value, 74 very good.
Compressive strength, 27,350 very good.

It is taken for granted that all persons known to be or suspected of being affected with infectious diseases shall be excluded from the pool, and that construction and appliances to reduce to a minimum the dangers of drowning and of injury to bathers from falls and collisions shall be provided.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that the women lawyers in England are complaining of being boycotted. Possibly the men cannot tell them from men lawyers.

It is reported that four or five women were out on the highway a few days ago, and their car was suffering from a flat. None would help them, however, because it was thought by the passers by that it was a bunch of men and they could handle the situation alright. They were all dressed in men's attire, short hair, men's hats, etc.

It is reported that there are mothers in Lubbock who do not know where their children are when night time comes. This is a condition that will never build citizenship. Even the chickens have to be looked after at night, but by housewives there are a lot of the youngsters these days and time that do not.

It is reported that quite a number of people are of the opinion that the water rates in Lubbock are too high, that this stands in the way of beautifying many homes. We do not know that this is a fact, but if it is the case then we wish that the trouble could be corrected for pretty lawns are a great asset to any city.

It is reported that the Lubbock High School band will soon start out on a several weeks tour of the west. They will advertise Lubbock, and will at the same time enjoy the things that they see on the trip. It will be quite educational to them, and it will be a fine outing for the entire group. We hope they will have a wonderful trip.

LAUGHS

House Agent—By the way, sir, I suppose you can let us have a banker's reference? Just a formality, you know.

Client—Well, I could; but I'm afraid it would only disappoint you.

Our Own Vaudeville

June—I hope he keeps it up, my boy friend sells fire extinguishers.

high pounds per square inch on 2 inch cube.

Remarks:
The sample of material represented by this report consists of a hard and fairly tough calcareous sandstone. This stone has high resistance to compression and good cementing value.

When crushed and properly graded this stone should prove very satisfactory for use as an aggregate in cement and bituminous concretes and railway ballast. This is an excellent quality of stone.

Respectfully submitted,

SINGING

People spend a vast deal of money every year in listening to singing.

But the trouble is they simply listen to it. They are auditors and not singers.

We like to crowd the bleachers, watch baseball and football and tennis games, and we like to go to grand opera and concerts and vaudeville and hear them sing.

But the best part of singing is the reaction upon the singer himself.

We are notoriously bad singers.

We hire choirs in churches to sing for us when we ought to be singing ourselves.

Do it yourself is the best advice in physical culture.

Let us not have so many things done for us, but do them ourselves, and we will be better off. It may be pleasant to have a master or a teacher to guide you, but the best form of exercise is self-culture.

Get out and take a walk or play a game or do something that starts the sweat and thus improve the sewage system of the body, something that circulates the blood rapidly.

Exercise should be taken judiciously, of course, but the best form of exercise is mild exercise which you do regularly. Irregular exercise or exercise once in a while is about as good as none at all.

Many people are constantly making sports toward physical culture, but sports are not what we need. We require regularity.

Take any form of physical exercise and system, for they all embrace about the same points, only adapt some system that will bring the unusual muscles of the body into play.

There is no better healthful exercise than singing, provided we do the singing ourselves.

Huge Collection Is Given Plains Historical Society

What is thought to be the most interesting and most valuable individual collection of relics and mounted specimens in the Panhandle-Plains country has been deposited with the Historical Museum of the Plains Indian, at the University of Oklahoma, by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Baxter of Okemah. An entire room in the main building of the West Texas State Teachers College has been set aside for the display of this collection, which is the result of fifteen years' diligent work.

The Baxter collection contains at least eight hundred separate articles.

Mounted Specimens

The most interesting and valuable of the mounted specimens is a pair of steers horns more than eighty years old, which measure eight feet four and a half inches from tip to tip. They are thought by many to be the best in the famous Buckhorn saloon collection of San Antonio. They came from the Minnesota section. Among the mounted game heads are ten deer, an enormous elk, caribou, mountain sheep, and bears. Mounted ducks, herons, squirrels and alligators run the total number of mounted specimens to almost forty. Mr. Baxter is a noted sportsman, and has spent much time hunting in the Rocky Mountain section and has been in Alaska. He collects his own specimens upon hunting and fishing trips.

Indian Relics.
Mrs. Baxter has been interested particularly in archeology. She has given much study to the subject of aboriginal relics. She and Mr. Baxter have made several trips to the ancient ruins of the Indian races in Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado.

The result of Mrs. Baxter's study and work in these ruins are to be seen in a very fine collection of pottery.

The collection contains sixteen complete pieces, besides many fragments showing the interesting designs used by the Indians in decorating. A square made of stone which Mr. Baxter believes the Indians used in making the angles in decorating the pottery is contained.

THE CAREFUL DRIVER AVOIDS A TRAGEDY

I read by morning and by night in headlines black and white the names of those who died.

The list of traffic accidents, the names of those who died. Disaster makes a screaming tale The careless driver wins.

A flood of notoriety for all his many sins, But oh, I wish I knew his name, and knew the name of him.

Who partnered in an accident which didn't quite occur. I print these lines to credit him whose name I wish I knew.

He drove a motorcycle down a busy avenue. The woman did a foolish thing—the ran before a truck.

And truly owes her life today to that.

He could not turn to left or right—He swung his wheels about.

But how he missed that accident I've yet to figure out.

The tragedies which do occur are mentioned in far and near. But of the ones the brave present we very seldom hear.

And so I write these lines today in praise of him unknown. Who saved a careless woman's life although he risked his own.

Unto the foolish driver's shame we point to many graves.

But not one ever learns about the lives the driver saves.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

International Sunday School Lesson
For May 12, 1928.

General Topic: Jesus Enters Jerusalem.
Scripture Lesson: Mark 11:1-10, 15-18.

1. And when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, he senteth two of his disciples.

2. And saith unto them, Go your way into the village that is over against you; and straightway as ye enter into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon no man ever yet sat; loose him, and bring him.

3. And if any one say unto you, Why do ye this? say ye, The Lord hath need of him; and straightway he will send him back hither.

4. And they went away, and found a colt tied at the door without in the open street; and they loose him.

5. And certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye, loosing the colt?

6. And they said unto them even as Jesus had said; and they let them go.

7. And they bring the colt unto Jesus, and cast on him their garments; and he sat upon them.

8. And many spread their garments upon the way; and others branches, which they had cut out from the fields.

9. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:

10. Blessed is the kingdom that cometh, the kingdom of our father David; Hosanna in the highest.

11. And they come to Jerusalem: and he entered into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and them that bought in the temple, and overthrow the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold the doves:

12. And he would not suffer that any man should carry a vessel through the temple.

13. And he taught, and said unto them, Is it not written, My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations? but ye have made it a den of robbers.

14. And the chief priests and the scribes heard it, and sought how they might destroy him; for they feared him, for all the multitude was established at his teaching.

Time: Sunday, April 2, A. D. 30, in the last week before Christ's crucifixion.

Place: The Mount of Olives (Bethany and Bethphage). The temple in Jerusalem.

Golden Text: Behold, thy king cometh unto thee; he is just, and having salvation.—Zech. 9:9.

Introduction
"As the transfiguration scene gave a glimpse of the heavenly glory which Christ left in order to come to earth on his mission of mercy, so his triumphant entrance into Jerusalem gives us some idea of the earthly power and splendor which might have been his for the asking. He definitely rejected it when tempted with it at the beginning of his public ministry, and later when the multitude offered him a crown; but now, within a few days of his crucifixion, he accepted the regal homage of the Jerusalem crowd as his due, for it could no longer injure his work."

Christ's Last Journey, v. 1.
"And when they draw nigh unto Jerusalem," Christ and his twelve disciples going up to Jerusalem for the last time before the Saviour's crucifixion, had walked the fifteen miles from Jericho, where they were last noted. It is an uphill walk, over a dangerous road infested by robbers who lurked in the caves on hillside—the road where the traveler was rescued by the Good Samaritan of Christ's parable. "Unto Bethphage," Bethphage, "the house of figs," was a village near Bethany on a slope of the Mount of Olives. Not a trace of it has been discovered by explorers.

Bethany, v. 1.
"And Bethany." This village lies on the Jericho-Jerusalem road, on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives, and a little less than two miles from Jerusalem. Its name means "the House of Dates" or "a Low Place." Here lived Lazarus, whom Christ raised from the dead, with his sisters, Martha and Mary, the beloved family whom the Lord so often visited as he went to Jerusalem.

The Mount of Olives, v. 1.
"At the mount of Olives." This mountain, sometimes called Olivet, is a limestone ridge east of Jerusalem, from which is separated by the valley of the Kidron. It rises about 200 feet above the temple area, and is more than 2,000 feet above the Mediterranean. The ridge has three summits, the middle one being the Mount of Olives proper, that to the north being Mount Scopus and the southern being the Mount of Offense.

"The Lord Hath Need of Him," v. 2.
"Say ye, The Lord hath need of him." The man knew who "the Lord" was and owed him allegiance. Perhaps Christ had healed him of some terrible disease or had worked a healing miracle for some loved one. At any rate, it was enough for him to know the Lord's desire, and he would grant it. This is Christ's own definition of his friends, that they do whatever he commands. We should count it the highest of all honors that the King requisitions anything that we have.

And straightway he will send him back hither. Here is a text for all borrowers! Who can doubt that our Lord saw that this promise was carried out? Not to return what is borrowed, sending it back promptly and in good condition, is to give evil for good, and seriously to lessen the world's supply of good will for the future.

Triumphal Entry Into Jerusalem, v. 8-10.
"And many spread their garments upon the way." Thus Sir Walter Raleigh, when Queen Elizabeth came to a muddy place, did not hesitate, but drew his costly cloak from his shoulders and threw it down for her to walk over. "And other branches, which they had cut out from the fields." The road, from the fields, Jerusalem, passed through plantations of palms, olives, figs and other fruit trees. Carrying out the idea of homage suggested by those that threw down their cloaks for Jesus to pass over, the crowd proceeded to cut the boughs with branches from the trees. "And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, Hosanna."

King, Ruler and Master
The sincerest devotion to that Lord recognizes him as King, Ruler and Master of our lives, our fortunes, our destinies to whom we are obligated to render unreserved loyalty and service. Is there such a thing as the divine right of kings? If you mean King Jesus, yes. For he is the Chosen and Appointed, and Son of God. The ideal of the Christian life, that every Christian is to aim at, is: absolute subjection to this King. Being the King he is, that will, however, make us loving subjects, not serfs. His royalty does not set him aloof. Because he makes himself my Elder Brother, I, too, may say, "I'm the child of a King." His motto might be that of the Prince of Wales: "I serve."

As Christ, during the Passion Week, spent the nights with Lazarus in Bethany, on his way to Jerusalem, one morning he noticed a fig-tree clothed in glossy leaves. It was April and the fig usually bears fruit in June, but the fruit precedes the leaves, so that Christ was warranted in expecting to find fresh ripe figs on the tree. But he found on the tree "nothing but leaves," the perfect symbol of life making

COTTON CONFERENCE

Plans for More Profitable Marketing Talked

AUSTIN, May 11 (AP).—Representatives of the multiple presses of the cotton industry composing the Texas cotton committee, met here Thursday and worked out a remedial program in which efforts for more systematized and profitable marketing will be based on a plan to standardize the variety of cotton grown in each ginning community.

A resolution was adopted deploring the existing system of cotton marketing which "penalizes the producer of staple cotton and rewards the grower of short staple." The resolution offered as a remedial alternative the community one-variety plan. The offer of the Texas cotton association to pay adequate premiums for better staple was commended.

fair professions but with no worthy deeds to justify it. Therefore, the Lord said to the tree, "No man can fruit, from then henceforward for ever." The next morning, as they passed, the disciples noticed with awe that the curse had taken effect, "they saw the fig-tree withered away from the roots."

Christ Cleansed the Temple, v. 15.
"And he entered into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and them that bought in the temple." At the great feasts worshippers came to Jerusalem from many distant lands, to offer the required sacrifices. For their convenience, in the outer court of the temple a market had been established, where animals and birds for the sacrifices could be bought, together with oil, incense, wine and other sacrificial material. At the outset of his ministry (John 2:13-17) in a burst of indignation, had cleansed the temple of this traffic, but in the intervening years it had grown up again. The pretext for this business was the requirement that temple offerings of money and the yearly temple tax of half a shekel due from every Jew, could only be paid in a special coin called a Temple Shekel, not often used outside the temple. To get it the worshippers must exchange their Greek and Roman coins, and their money-changers often availed themselves of the easy opportunity to defraud. No wonder that Christ, in hot wrath, turned over the stalls of these bankers, scattering their base coins about the pavement.

Slaton Items

BY MRS. L. C. ODOM
Slaton, Phone 287-J

Mrs. Martha Heatherly left the first of the week to visit relatives in Kansas. Mrs. Heatherly makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Bechtel here.

Jack Lokey was brought home from the Lubbock hospital the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Easterwood and son, Edwin, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Varmillion, left the first of the week to visit other relatives in Jacksboro.

Betty Pack is ill with mumps this week.

Mrs. J. N. McReynolds returned home from Sweetwater Wednesday where she has been with her son, Clifford, who has been ill.

Mrs. J. H. Teague, Sr., was in Lubbock Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDonald and daughter, Marie, of Lamesa, were here Thursday. Miss Della Smith returned to Lamesa with them.

R. J. Murray of Lubbock was here on business Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moss, and son, James, and Mrs. Moss's sister, Mrs. Theveng, came in Tuesday from Waco. Mrs. Moss has been away about three weeks. Mrs. Theveng left for Clovis Tuesday afternoon where she will visit her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Porter and Miss Pearl May spent last week end at Shallowater at the home of Mr. Porter's mother and Miss Mays sister, Mrs. W. A. Porter.

SANTA FE PROGRAM
The Santa Fe entertainment held at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening was well attended, and the program was one of the very best rendered during the season. Mr. Marriott stated that this was the last performance booked for this year. Slaton people are certainly fortunate to be able to hear some of the best artists to be secured and free of charge through the courtesy of the Santa Fe Reading and Roman coins, and their money-changers often availed themselves of the easy opportunity to defraud. No wonder that Christ, in hot wrath, turned over the stalls of these bankers, scattering their base coins about the pavement.

PARTY
Mrs. R. D. Griffin entertained a number of little folks at her home on West Lubbock street in honor of her little son, Herman's tenth birthday. Lots of interesting games were played on the lawn after which lovely refreshments of cream and cake was served to the following children: Gilbert Wilhite, Kirby Scudder, George Tolbert, Meri Hagerman, Minnie Will Wooten, Maxine Odum, Joretta Rogers, Doris Minor, Chrysteille Scudder, Junior David and Frank Todd, and Dixie and Cecil Griffin.

RECI-TAL
Miss Aline Phillips, expression teacher, presented her high school pupils in a recital at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening.

Those appearing on the program were: Mildred Rucker, Mildred Swafford, Helen Harlin, Katrina Houston, and Mary Katherine Toliver. Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Bain and children of Singleton, are visiting Mrs. Bain's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hoffman here this week.

Perry Clements of Brownfield was here Wednesday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Griffin. Mr. Clements will move his family to Slaton June the first.

The Methodist Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon in the regular business meeting. Mrs. A. L. Robertson presided in the absence of the president. Good reports were given by the officers of the different departments. There were fifteen members present.

PREACHERS TOO ROUGH
LEICESTER, England.—Because the preachers are "too rough," Leicester police will not play the clergy this year in the customary charity football game.

Hoover Campaign Expense Believed To Total $250,000

Contributions and Expenses Listed by Manager For Drive; $3261 Spent In Texas.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—James W. Good, directing head of the Hoover organization, told the senate campaign funds committee today that the Washington headquarters of the commerce secretary had received contributions totaling $30,150 and had spent $42,032.16.

Of the amount received, Good said $1,000 had come in currency in an unmarked envelope. This sum had been deposited in a bank and would not be expended until the donor had been established.

Expenditures Listed:
—Good listed expenditures as follows:

Telephone and telegraph, $1,925.88; advance to Kansas City headquarters, $3,948.13; postage, printing, lithographing and mailing, $5,417.79; headquarters expenses, including rent and office supplies, $13,422.04; salaries, $4,072; traveling expenses, $5,676.82; speakers bureau, $2,250; stenographic services, $2,432.45; primary filing fee, $270; clipping bureau and newspaper subscriptions, $52.75; editorial research, $1,787.50.

Good said that in his opinion the aggregate expenditures of the various state Hoover clubs which he mentioned would be less than $250,000. Considering the scope of the campaign and the issues involved, he said, the expenditure was "very modest, indeed," being "less than any similar campaign expenditures with which I am familiar."

State Campaign Costs.
He read into the record reports from various state campaign managers which showed $7,800 had been expended in Michigan; $6,000 in Minnesota; about $500 in Arkansas; not to exceed $27,000 in California; $2,512.94 in Oregon; about $1,200 in Colorado; $3,261.90 in Texas; $4,033 in Washington state; not exceeding $30 in Rhode Island; $336 in Maryland; $1,287.05 in Oklahoma; $9,192.20 in New Jersey; and $9,267 in Massachusetts.

The witness was unable to give detailed information regarding some states, but said his information was that $35,000 or $40,000 had been expended in Indiana; that "approximately $40,000" was spent in the Ohio primary campaign, and that the New York Hoover committee had expenses of around $35,000.

Good testified that receipts included, $5,000 from Edsel Ford; $3,500 from Julia Rosenwald, Chicago merchant; $2,500 from Franklin Fort, representative from New Jersey; $2,500 from Paul Guenther, a retired business man of Dover, New Jersey; $2,500 from H. L. Moses, a New York lawyer, and $3,000 from Walter E. Hope, a New York lawyer.

YOU CAN'T WEAR OUT THEIR LOOKS

Six Months at Work Tells The Story

Most new shoes look good in the shop window. The question is, how will they look after several months' wear? The only kind of a shoe that's truly economical is the kind that holds its shape, its lustre, its style. You'll like Smith Smart Shoes when you first put them on. You'll like them better when you've worn them six months. That tells the story.
