Jacob Cole never envisioned this

Copano Causeway born 20 years ago

By PAT BLAIR

When Jacob Cole drove his cattle along the Gulf Coast in 1811 in search of new grazing land, he could never have dreamed part of his route would one day be the path of a major highway.

He would not have envisioned that the stretch of water between Live Oak and Lamar peninsulas — the meeting place of the Copano and Aransas bays — would eventually be spanned by a bridge more than a mile and a half long. Or that there would be a time when nearly 10,000 vehicles a day would pass over it.

In Jacob Cole's day, the only way to get from one peninsula to the other was by boat — and that remained the only way until construction of the old timber causeway in the early 1930s. That structure was a milestone in the development of Aransas County.

But the county grew, traffic increased. By the early 1960s, the old causeway was a bottleneck, unable to bear the loads of modern-day traffic. In some cases, it could not be used by trucks with even light loads.

In 1962, county officials and a delegation of county residents went to the then-Texas Highway Department requesting a new bridge.

In May 1963 — 20 years and a few days ago — a permit was issued for construction of such a facility. The long-sought new Causeway bridge was officially sanctioned.

The old Causeway bridge was authorized in the late 1920s, according to files at the Texas Department of Highways & Public Transportation office in Corpus Christi. Bids were taken for the structure in January 1930 and work began in February. Southwest L.E. Meyers Co. was contractor for the project.

Work was completed in early 1931 — a little more than two years before completion of Hwy. 35 itself, which was begun in the mid-1920s and finished in May 1933. Hwy. 35 was originally Texas Highway 57, according to highway department records. Fred M. Percival of Rockport was the resident engineer during the highway's construction, and a letter from Percival to the district engineer during that period noted, "Nearly the whole line (of the highway) is located on fine white drifting sand."

The old causeway was constructed of timber spans supporting six-inch thick concrete 20 feet across (two lanes of traffic). The old causeway had a 39-foot three-inch clearance for boats and the central span was a drawbridge. It was 8,955 feet long.

Bids went out and the contract was let for the present causeway in 1964. Contractor was Austin Bridge Co. and the bid price was $2.5 million. Work began on Feb. 26, 1964, and as of Oct. 13, 1966, construction crews had spent 470 out of a total 550 possible working days on the job. The off days, according to a Rockport Pilot account at the time, were due to high winds and rain.

The structure was completed and opened on Oct. 20, 1966, and on Nov. 7, it was formally dedicated to then-President Lyndon B. Johnson. Johnson was unable to attend the dedication ceremonies.

Cong. John Young of Corpus Christi, who was among those instrumental in securing the permit for the structure in 1963, was present at the bridge dedication, giving the principle address during the ceremonies. Master of ceremonies was local civic leader, attorney, real estate man and oil operator Emory Spencer.

Travis Long, Corpus Christi 16th District engineer for the highway department, accepted a bronze plaque to be installed at the causeway, reading: "Copano Bay causeway dedicated as the Lyndon B. Johnson Causeway in recognition of his untiring leadership in the effort to accomplish those things that will strengthen our defenses during time of war and will aid our prosperity in time of peace, as is exemplified by this project. Erected 1966."

Area wage earners fifth highest paid

Aransas County's average weekly wage is among the top five in the Coastal Bend, according to Juliet Wenger of the Coastal Bend Council of Governments. Wenger's figures come from a break-down of Coastal Bend employment records over a three-month period.

Aransas County came in fifth place with an average weekly wage of $306.09 among 5,288 employed persons. Of those employed, 1,524 are in trade; 1,207 in construction — the highest percentage of any county in the Coastal Bend. There are 347 in agriculture; 341 in mining; 483 in manufacturing; 294 in transportation and public utilities; 144 in finance, insurance and real estate; 341 in service-related work; 73 in state government and 533 in local government. Total wages for the quarter studied totaled $21,042,532.

Nueces County comes in just ahead of Aransas County with an average weekly wage of $309.37. The total number of persons employed is 114,839 and the total quarterly wage comes out to be $461,870,002. Of those employed, 433 are in agriculture; 8,503 are in mining; 11,268 in construction; 13,603 in manufacturing; 7,222 in transportation and public utilities; 30,751 in trade; 5,733 in finance, insurance and real estate; 20,333 in service-related jobs; 2,468 in state government and 14,503 in local government.

In first place with the highest average weekly wage is Kenedy County, where only 303 persons are employed. The average weekly wage there is $333.03 with 134 persons in service-related fields; 82 in agriculture; 63 in trade; 20 in local government and four in state government. Total quarterly wages were $1,311,839.

Another small county with a high average weekly wage is McMullen County where the average weekly wage is $314.25 with 249 employed persons. Those in service-related jobs number 133; 38 in trade; 61 in local government and 17 in state government. The quarterly wages for McMullen County totaled $1,017,233.

Of the 2,790 persons employed in Live Oak County, the average weekly wage is $310.64.

Of those employed, 628 are in mining; 453 in construction; 69 in transportation and public utilities; 612 in trade; 108 in finance, insurance and real estate; 538 in service-related fields; 45 in state government and 337 in local government. Wages for the quarter totaled $11,267,072.

The only other county with an average wage of over $300 per week is Duval County. Average weekly wage there comes to $304.52 with a total of $15,031,617 for the quarter. Most of the 3,797 employed are in mining with local government running a close second with 1,028. Transportation and public utilities employ 99; 400 are in trade; 62 in finance, insurance and real estate; 909 in service-related work; and 40 in state government.

According to the Council of Governments' figures, the average wages in Jim Wells and Refugio Counties are within 28 cents of one another. Both are strong oil industry counties. Jim Wells County has an average wage of $298.60 while Refugio has $298.36. Total quarterly wages came to $50,289,486 in Jim Wells and $10,482,849 in Refugio County with number of employed totaling 12,955 in the former and 2,703 in the latter. In Jim Wells County, 292 are in agriculture; 3,159 in mining; 561 in construction; 479 in manufacturing; 3,102 in trade; 481 in finance and real estate; 2,077 in service-related fields; 99 in state government and 1,619 in local government. The Refugio total breaks down to 124 in agriculture; 656 in mining; 81 in construction; 268 in transportation and public utilities; 657 in trade; 121 in finance, insurance and real estate; 255 in service jobs; 25 in state government and 516 in local government.

San Patricio County's average weekly wage is $277.26 with the quarterly wages totaling $56,416,330. Of the 15,652 employed, 560 are in agriculture; 890 in mining; 1,921 in construction; 2,249 in manufacturing; 799 in transportation and public utilities; 2,472 in trade; 267 in finance, insurance and real estate; 1,520 in service fields; 1,208 in state government and 1,690 in local government.

Board recommends changes in plans

For park improvements

soccer field be relocated and that provision be made for a large central parking area rather than multiple small parking areas.

The discussion and recommendations followed a report by Board Chairman George McCague on the Rockport city council's action last week in approving application for grant money for a series of improvements to Memorial Park.

The proposed improvements include a jogging-exercise trail, a new youth soccer field, new baseball field, a game slab, lighting on the adult soccer field, a pavilion, benches, parking and other facilities. McCague said a proposal recommended by the park board for reconditioning the existing youth soccer field was omitted from the grant proposal because city officials plan to do that work immediately.

Richards questioned the plans drawn up by John Olson of Olson & Associates, a Corpus Christi architectural firm, showing the location of the proposed new facilities in relation to existing facilities in Memorial Park.

"I'm not happy with the specific plans," Richards said. "This (proposal) sounds great, I'm extremely pleased with what I read, but I'm not happy with this (the map)."

Among the points Richards noted was that construction of the new baseball field in the area Olson indicated for it on the map would interfere with the existing youth soccer field. Richards questioned whether the plan as drawn by Olson was subject to change.

Board member Kathryn Winkelman commented that the map is a very rough draft and that she felt it could be changed. But, she said, "I would like to meet with Mr. Olson some time at his convenience."

McCague later observed, "I would like to see this whole committee meet at the park with Olson or Herman (Johnson)," but

Prints to be auctioned

The seven prints donated by the Rockport Chapter of Ducks Unlimited to benefit the Paws & Taws relocation fund will be auctioned to the highest bidder during the Paws & Taws fund-raising dance Saturday night, June 4.

The prints have been on display in the two area banks in recent weeks and silent bids have been invited. Additional silent bids will be accepted during the early part of the dance which begins at 9 p.m. Saturday and will continue until 1 a.m. Sunday.

Sam Neely and his band will be featured. The dance will be followed Sunday by a Mexican breakfast-lunch at the Paws & Taws Building. A $5 donation covers the cost of both meals, with breakfast from 7:30-9:30 a.m. and lunch from 11:30 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Hurricane Awareness Week is proclaimed

With the official beginning of the Texas hurricane season this past Wednesday, June 1, Gov. Mark White has declared next week, June 5-11, "Hurricane Awareness Week."

During this week, officials seek to remind residents of the Texas Coast of the threat hurricanes pose to them, their families, homes and businesses.

In preparation for the hurricane season, Rockport hosted a meeting May 20 of directors and coordinators of Region III Emergency Management. The meeting, at Rockport City Hall, included what Aransas County Emergency Management Coordinator Mitch Ammons called a "show-and-tell" of what emergency management coordinators have done or plan to do in hurricane preparedness meetings in their areas.

Ammons said no date has been chosen for this year's hurricane preparedness meeting but that it will probably be the latter part of June or the first of July.

"Historically," Ammons said, "most of the hurricanes that have hit this area have been from mid-August to mid-September. That is our actual hurricane season. We don't want to hold the meeting too early," he added. "If you do, then people tend to forget what you've said by the time the hurricane actually hits."

The Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Association (TCPA), concerned with the increasing threat of hurricanes to the Texas Coast due to the area's rapid growth in recent years, has developed guidelines, in cooperation with the National Weather Service, to educate coastal residents on how they can protect themselves and their property before, during and after a hurricane. "The key to survival," according to Dan Manthe of Dallas, TCPA chairman, "is awareness and advance preparation."

Among the recommendations to property owners before a hurricane is to determine the elevation of the home or business and determine the route to safety in event of a hurricane. Officials advised, "Plan your escape route early" and caution those who live on the seacoast, in a flood-prone area or in a mobile home to "always plan to relocate."

Residents are also advised to determine location of the nearest shelter, along with how long it will take them to get there.

TCPA officials say this is the time for property owners to determine their insurance needs: review insurance policies and coverage and consider additional coverage through the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program since flooding is not covered in Texas homeowners policies.

Property owners are cautioned to not wait until a hurricane is in the Gulf before trying to obtain additional coverage. "By then it's too late," TCPA officials says. "Insurance offices will be busy preparing

Editorial & opinion

Meg-Lev is a term you need to learn

Some of the new words recognized so far this year in dictionaries as being part of our language are not so new as far as usage is concerned, but at least two are not yet every-day terms.

Among new words now recognized as legitimate by American dictionaries are watergate, palimony, trickle-down and moonie. These have been much in the news lately.

The two words that haven't been widely used, possibly because they are scientific terms, are magnetic levitation, to be known hence forth as "mag-lev."

Mag-lev is likely to enter common usage as soon as transportation planners introduce mag-lev technology to U.S. financiers and industrialists.

Mag-lev has to do with the next generation of passenger trains, which will literally fly.

Now being tested in West Germany and Japan are the most modern versions of passenger trains that streak along at more than 250 miles an hour. Even so, metal never touches rail. These trains hover over their guideways by a force known as magnetic levitation.

Foreign manufacturers are selling mag-levs in the U.S., where some transportation officials see them as an alternative to expensive highway construction and overcrowded airports.

It looks as though mag-levs are catching on fast in the U.S., which has been trying to revive passenger train service.

The Florida High Speed Rail Committee envisions a mag-level demonstration model that would transport tourists and sightseers from Walt Disney World to Cape Kennedy, a distance of about 50 miles, in seven minutes.

Las Vegas city leaders are talking about connecting their city and Los Angeles with a mag-lev system that could make the 275-mile trip across the desert in an hour.

Wisconsin leaders have completed a $40,000 study that said a $1.2 billion mag-level train could be built to travel between Milwaukee and Chicago in time for the 1922 World's Fair.

Mag-level travel is like flying at ground level, experts explain. The propulsion system has no moving parts to cause vibration. It converts energy directly into motion. It is environmentally clean because it uses centrally generated power.

Another advantage of mag-lev systems is that they don't depend directly on petroleum-based fuels, as do other systems.

A mag-level train looks much like a giant capsule with windows. It operates on the concept that magnets of similar polarity repel each other.

Illegal alien problem has reached a crisis

The flood of illegal aliens into this country has reached crisis proportions, increasing pressure in Congress to change the Immigration and Naturalization Act.

In the first four months of this year, the Immigration Service apprehended more than 376,000 illegal aliens trying to cross the southern border of the United States.

We know there were thousands more who were not apprehended.

This excessive, and increasing, influx is the result of very serious problems in Mexico. The deterioration of the Mexican economy and the devaluation of the peso have placed many Mexican families in a heavy financial crunch. And, of course, we have seen the crippling effect this has had on Texas businesses along the border.

It is understandable that many Mexican nationals look toward the United States as the land of opportunity. When our economy was booming and American unemployment generally was low, we didn't pay much attention to the problem of the illegal alien in our midst.

But that has changed the past two years as our economy slumped into recession and unemployment swelled to more than 10 percent. That is why many congressmen believe it is time to revise the Immigration Act.

The Senate has passed a bill which would make sweeping changes but which makes important concessions to the agricultural industry and to civil rights groups.

The modifications bring the Senate bill closer to a House bill which has cleared the House Judiciary Committee, but there still are major differences.

A compromise Senate amendment gives "agricultural employers" three years to phase out the use of illegal aliens.

In the fourth year after enactment, agricultural growers would either have to use American workers or get permission to use foreign employees through a revised temporary worker program. There's a similar provision in the House committee bill.

For all industries except agriculture, the use of illegal aliens would become a violation six months after the bill is enacted.

Both the Senate and House bills would try to curb the flow of illegal aliens through a system of sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens.

The Senate bill would require employers of at least four workers to check documents of prospective workers, such as a driver's license and Social Security card, and keep records of those they hire.

The House bill is different. It would make the verification and record keeping optional until the Immigration Service finds an illegal alien on an employer's payroll.

Both bills provide a civil fine of $1,000 per alien for the first violation by an employer and $2,000 per alien for the second. Criminal penalties are provided in the Senate bill if there is a finding of a "pattern or practice" of violations by the employer. In the House bill, an employer would be subject to criminal penalties on the third "knowing" violation.

The Senate bill would provide permanent resident status to aliens proving they were in this country before Jan. 1, 1977, and temporary status to those proving they were here by Jan. 1, 1980. The 1977 permanent status would have to wait three years to qualify for federal benefit programs. The 1980 temporary status would have to wait three years for permanent resident status and six years for federal benefits.

I am basically opposed to the proposed legislation because:

- I am unconvinced that amnesty is fair when it means accepting perhaps as many as 12 million persons who entered the U.S. illegally while thousands of persons in other countries have waited patiently to enter legally.

- I strongly question the wisdom of entrenching illegal aliens when more than 11 million Americans are unemployed and seeking jobs.

- Counterfeit evidence, such as Social Security cards and driver's licenses, would make it easy for new arrivals to claim amnesty.

- I believe President Reagan and Congress should increase funding for the Immigration Service and Border Patrol to enforce our immigration law rigorously.

- Proposed penalties for employers hiring illegal aliens are too harsh.

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Is Congress aware of this?

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm has heard about the latest goal of computer scientists.

Dear editor:

What 998,991,923,919 multiplied by 998,991,923,919 comes to is something I've never thought about. Whatever the answer is, I couldn't find a place for it out here on this farm.

But a computer can give you the answer by the time you punch the last numeral. Scientists, however, aren't satisfied with that. They are now trying to build a computer that can talk and think like a human. They call it "artificial intelligence."

The first step, as I

as you can get.

As for the second step, building a machine that can duplicate human reasoning and do it as fast as it multiplies a two-foot long string of numbers, the question is, whose reasoning will it duplicate? Where will it turn for a model?

With the 10 or 15 best-known countries in the world all armed to the teeth on borrowed money and ready to fight, that machine may find that reason is not in great supply nowadays. I know it's not out here on this farm. Every year I reason that what's planted will at harvest time bring a good price. It never does.

Yours faithfully,

understand it, is to build a computer that talks. Thinking will come later.

Is Congress aware of this? I mean, if scientists build a machine that talks without thinking, won't a bunch of Congressmen wind up no longer needed?

If the scientists' aim is to build a machine equal to a human, the first phase will be adequate, no use spending money going any further, as a machine that talks without thinking seems about as human

Budget Resolution flawed

By John Tower
U.S. Senator

After weeks of protracted debate, the Senate finally passed its version of the first Budget Resolution for the coming fiscal year. Unfortunately, it is seriously flawed, failing to meet the most basic requirements for a responsible federal budget.

It provides insufficient funding for our program to restore our national defense capability. During the past two years, we have begun to make up for the serious neglect of our national security during the 1970s, a neglect which led to an alarming deterioration of our capability in comparison to that of the Soviet Union.

This year, President Reagan asked for an increase which amounted to 10 percent after inflation. He did so because that level of funding for this year would allow us to pay for our modernization effort in a cost-effective way, rather than stretching our programs over a longer time so that they ultimately are more expensive.

The Senate not only rejected that increase, but it also rejected the 7.1 percent increase which would barely fund the minimum requirements for continuing to progress in this vital area.

Second, this budget resolution calls for unacceptably high increases in taxes. The revenue figures called for in the Senate resolution would require an additional $75.6 billion in taxes over the next three years. Reaching this level of taxation would require at least a cap on the amount of the July tax cut and a repeal of indexing. To repeal indexing would put wage earners in a position of facing ever-higher tax brackets because of inflation. Both of these steps are completely unacceptable.

In passing the economic recovery package which included July's tax cut and future tax indexing, we made a promise to the American people, a promise they expect us to fulfill. Even if the Congress should vote to break this promise, the President is pledged to veto any tax legislation which voids the promised tax relief.

This means that the tax portion of the Budget Resolution is not only irresponsible, but also meaningless, because it is clear to everyone that a Presidential veto on this subject could not be overridden in Congress.

Finally, the Budget Resolution calls for $47.3 billion more in spending for domestic programs over three years than the President requested. It was the uncontrolled growth of this kind of spending which caused the serious deficit crisis which we are facing now. In fact, previous Administrations even referred to most domestic spending programs as "uncontrollable."

For the past two years, we have made some progress in getting control over the rate at which spending for domestic programs has grown, but we have not come so far that we can consider the problem solved. Increases of the magnitude called for in the Senate resolution actually reverse the trend we have begun.

We will not compromise our obligations to elderly Americans, the disabled and those most needy in our society, but the American people have made clear their mandate that we control the size, scope and cost of government.

It's either them or us

Austin at Wharf

Rare indeed is the day when one does not find a page one headline which describes another facet of crisis in the Middle East or Central America. Always I am torn between laughter and tears, because the blame, almost invariably, lies at the door of our own country, the United States. A harsh indictment, you say?

Let us look first to the Middle East. Were it not for the discovery of oil and the establishment of Israel that part of the world would today be just plugging along as it once had for a couple of thousand and more years. Sheikdoms large and small, fiercely devoted followers of Mohammed, roving desert tribesmen who sometimes skirmished amongst themselves, but in skirmishes so minor that they never caught the attention of the world.

In 1948 the Republic of Israel was created by the United Nations, officially. More realistically by powerful monied lobbies in Washington. Some opposition came from the British, the only major nation with even a fragment of understanding of the Middle East and its people. Here in America most us, sympathetic toward the Jews and horrified by their inhuman suffering during World War II largely at the hands of the Nazis, became convinced that they deserved a homeland. So, perhaps they did. The rub, neither noticed or considered by anyone, lay in the circumstance of disposing of one people from an ancient homeland to establish another people in a land that also once been there, nearly 2,000 years earlier. Naively, we dismissed the Palestinians as ignorant, dirty heathen. Ah, how simplistic.

A few querulous voices were raised. They noted that taking Palestine from its people amounted to exactly the same thing as recognizing the claimed rights of the American Indian. The United States should be returned to them and you who possess a city lot or ranch and farmland should get out. You and I should return to the lands from whence our forefathers came. A downright silly, ridiculous argument, everyone agreed. Not, of course, the remaining handful of Indians, or in the Middle East, the Palestinians. Now I might go on, consume thousands of pages discoursing upon the Arab-Israeli dilemma, but a summing up is dictated, and easily done.

The entire mess, and mess is the right word, is the American failure (I could say American determination) not to study and review history. Ours is a nation bent to never see anything except in black and white. There are no intermediate grays. There are only good guys and bad guys. This is a national shame and pity. It could lead to a cosmic tragedy.

Everyday I hear the voices of those who protest the manner in which this country is conducting its relations with Central American countries. "We are headed for another Vietnam," they scream. Well, they may be very right, and if they are it is as much their fault as it is of the politicians in Washington. But straight off let me insist that we were not "wrong" in Vietnam, not at least in what has come to be the accepted sense - that we had no business being there in the first place. Anyone who doubts me has no more knowledge of history than is provided by the evening telly network news. Suffice that in war there can and must be only single objective, to win. In Central America we are of course pussy-footing around, and being very moralistic about it. We are acting in what we think is a democratic manner and are hell bent on keeping the commies out and bringing in that wonderful thing we call democracy to the abused, put upon and misguided natives. To this I reply in good old American slang - nuts.

We have a need and a necessity to deal, even control if you will, what goes on south of our border for the very simple reason that if Central America goes communist it becomes a threat to our way of life.

Unfortunately protecting ourselves cannot be done in what we call a democratic fashion. Instead we should be stealing a leaf from the book of our friends in the Kremlin. In a word we should allow Latin countries to run their own governments, but like the Russians with their satellite nations, attend that those governments are run to our satisfaction. Nope! It ain't the American way, but we are not dealing with people who want or understand the American way. In other words, I am talking about protecting our national existence. That means Big Uncle needs to ride shotgun on all hands south of the Rio Grande. This is tough talk. Some of you will call it irrational, but I offer no apology, because in my views things have already gone too far, so for starters I would suggest that we let the world know that we are standing by the Monroe Doctrine, no matter what anyone else thinks about it. Because we are already at a point where "it's either them or us."

Letters

Now that the Paws and Taws Building is again in the headlines I can't help remembering a lot of warm thoughts and memories of the people who built that building - I mean the nail pounders, sanders, painters, cooks, pile drivers, truck drivers and many other jobs that were done and those who made it happen because they were square dancers!

The beginning idea was born out of necessity. Every Friday night the airplanes in a hanger at the county airport were pushed out onto a ramp and a p.a. system, a coffee pot and dancers occupied their space. At the end of the dance the planes were carefully put back inside.

Local people who were square dancers did almost all the work - only one or two jobs had to be paid. Some of these residents still live in our area and you'd be surprised how many people you know were workers on the building. To set the record straight, from the beginning it was the club's intention that this building would be of service to the community. The club requested a place on the Rockport navigation property for the building but after much argument and disagreements this did not happen. After an offer from Burl Wagley the building was placed in Fulton with a lease for $1 per year.

The club did the work and the community did its part by supporting a filling station, rummage sales, fish fries, programs, cookbooks, the sale of fruit cakes and other money-making projects.

Eager dancers had their first club dance on plywood placed over 2 x 4's and uncovered insulation shining on the walls. The "restrooms" were across the street at the filling station. It was in January and no heat available.

The "old" square dancers must have some feelings about the changes taking place. I know I do. The change of location and the ownership of the building is now coming to pass. I feel sad that there's a change but I also feel glad that the building has ultimately become the community center and that so many people have and can enjoy the facilities. I felt I had to remind folks that enter the door to once in a while give a nod and a smile to those who pounded nails and heads and put the thing together.

Now for a bit of trivia, for those who don't know Paws and Taws is a square dance term. "Paw" means a man and "Taw" a woman.

For anyone interested, The Rockport Pilot ran many articles in 1965 concerning this building and there was an article in a national magazine, "Sets In Order," September 1965. (s) Johnnie Vermillion

Bon appetit!

By Ann Thomas

Hi, everyone. Hope your holiday weekend was a good one. My brother, Joe, was our guest from West Texas and since he loves seafood I tried out several of this column's recipes. One was Shrimp Etoufee and it turned out really fine.

I mention this because one of my readers, M. Brannigan, wrote to me asking about the cooking time in the recipe, which was contradictory to what I stated about excessive cooking of shrimp. In this case, perhaps because of the "fixing" of the ingredients, the results were delicious.

This week we have some good punch recipes. Punch is special; it's nutritional, and goes farther than soft drinks. Don't wait for a party to serve it!

PARTY PUNCH
1 quart cold water
1 15 1/4-ounce can crushed pineapple, undrained
2 cups sugar
1 cup lemon juice
2 cups orange juice
2 cups pineapple juice

1 quart chilled ginger ale
Mix together all ingredients except ginger ale, which is added just before serving. Serves 15.

CAROLINE'S PUNCH
1 3-ounce package gelatin (lemon, lime or strawberry)
2 cups sugar
1 quart hot water
1 quart cold water
1 46-ounce can pineapple juice, chilled
Juice of 2 lemons
1 28-ounce bottle ginger ale, chilled

Dissolve gelatin and sugar in hot water. Stir in cold water, pineapple juice and lemon juice. Add ginger ale just before serving. Yields 25 servings.

MINTED FRUIT PUNCH
1 46-ounce can unsweetened pineapple juice
Juice of 4 lemons
Juice of 4 oranges
Juice of 2 limes
1/2 cup mint leaves
1 28-ounce bottle club soda, chilled
2 28-ounce bottles ginger ale, chilled
1/2 pint fresh strawberries, quartered

Combine juices, sugar, mint leaves and chill several hours. Just before serving, remove mint leaves; add ginger ale, club soda and strawberries. Pour over ice. Garnish with mint leaves and citrus slices.

See you next week. Bon appetit!

Clarification

The May 25 edition of The Pilot stated that a Rockport-Fulton High School senior has been awarded the Harbor Oaks Scholarship in the amount of $625. The scholarship is sponsored by the Harbor Oaks Women's Club.

Older adults can adjust eating habits to cope with problems

Many older persons have problems that require some adjustment in meals. But you can deal with these problems rather than ignoring them.

Buying necessary foods may be difficult on a fixed income. Whenever possible, do the shopping yourself. Shopping costs less than having groceries delivered, there are greater choices, and you may find it an enjoyable challenge in stretching your budget.

Don't let lack of energy or poor eyesight interfere with preparing good meals. Use a large print cookbook if you are having trouble reading recipes. You can check one out from the public library or purchase one from a bookstore.

When you don't have the energy to cook a full meal, try preparing smaller, more frequent meals. There is nothing magic about three meals a day. Five small meals a day are fine as long as they include needed nutrients and the calorie intake maintains reasonable body weight.

If you have dental problems or wear dentures, you may need to use more foods that are soft and easy to chew. Use strained or chopped fruits that are prepared for infants as sauce for milk desserts or combine with tapioca or rice. Serve strained vegetables instead of whole vegetables, or add them to ground meat.

Meal planning is especially important for older adults. Here are some suggestions that will help you plan carefully:

• Follow recipes so food is well prepared and not wasted

• Use shortcuts to save time and energy. Mixes, ready-prepared or home-prepared, and other prepared or partially prepared food will demand less energy.

• Plan one-dish meals or a main dish you especially like.

• Store leftovers promptly so you can use them for another meal. Leftover fruits and vegetables can make interesting salads or desserts. Meat, fish, poultry may be creamed or baked in a casserole with vegetables, rice, noodles, bread or cereals.

• Store enough food in the refrigerator or cupboard shelves so you can keep shopping to a minimum.

Living alone and cooking for one makes some older adults lose their appetite and interest in eating. But be aware that a person's attitude is very powerful. You can learn to enjoy dining alone.

Try new dishes occasionally and use additions such as herbs and spices to make food taste better.

For serving, treat yourself like a guest. Use garnishes on the food, attractive tray, pretty place mats and other decorations to make the meal enjoyable. Listen to the radio or play favorite records while eating.

If your budget allows, invite friends and relatives to some of your meals. Dine out occasionally for a change of food and surroundings.

While many older adults have to change their habits or cope with eating problems, most can find new ways to enjoy mealtimes.

To utilize storage area examine family lifestyle, composition

Today's trend toward smaller living areas means less space for storage. The purpose of storage is to provide a place for items not in use or until they are needed. But most of us have more items to be stored than space in which to store them.

A family storage plan can help utilize limited storage space more effectively. Start by assessing your storage needs. Take a close look at your family's size, composition and lifestyle.

Family composition makes a difference since storage needs change as family members grow and change. In planning for storage space anticipate changes that will take place during the next five years. You may need space to store games and toys right now, for example, but five years from now you will need space to store teenagers' records and stereo equipment.

Lifestyle must also be considered when planning for storage. Consider storage for hobbies and recreational equipment, whether you live formally or informally and how often you entertain. All of these things will affect the amount and type of storage needed by the family. If you hate to dust and dislike clutter, for instance, adding open shelves for storage would't make much sense.

Examine your home's existing storage space next. Take note of the type, size and flexibility of the present storage facilities. Categorize facilities into built-in or portable storage. Now you are ready to match objects with available storage space.

Take an inventory of items to be stored. Solve part of your storage problem by cleaning out closets and discarding unused items. As you take your inventory note the area where the item is normally used, how often it is used, its approximate height, depth and length and the number of items of this type to be stored.

Now you are ready to develop a storage plan. In deciding where to store an item, keep in mind these simple principles:

• Store items near their place of first or last use.

• Place items within easy reach.

• Keep items that will be used together in the same place.

• Store things where they will be protected from damage or adverse conditions. When you are satisfied with your plan, move items to their new location. As your family changes and your storage needs change, reconsider your storage plan to be sure it still meets your needs.

Business & finance

Going from bad to worse

By Scott Burns
For every dollar we collectively commit to economic growth and freedom, our government is incurring more than a dollar of future obligation.

That is the frightening conclusion of a study of our ability to save and invest and the snowballing obligations of the federal government.

Our economy grows because people like you and me and the businesses we create or work for make commitments to the future. As individuals and families, we save a portion of our income. Similarly, our corporations retain and reinvest a portion of their earnings to finance future growth. While this saving helps finance the purchase of new productive equipment and facilities to expand our economy, we also invest billions in education because we know that economic growth is the joint product of advanced equipment and highly skilled people.

The table below shows our yearly commitment of personal savings, retained corporate earnings and our total spending on all forms of education. As you can see, it has risen from a total of $256 billion a year in 1975 to almost $400 billion in 1982.

Unfortunately, our government has increased its obligations even faster. According to the annual reports of the federal government, the increase in federal obligations of all kinds — including annuity obligations such as federal employee pensions and the unfunded liabilities of Social Security — has accelerated and surpassed the ability of our economy to invest for the future.

As I reported in an earlier column, the federal government does not present its annual report on a timely basis — the last one available is for fiscal year 1980. However, you can get an up-to-date estimate of the increase in federal liabilities by asking the Treasury Department for the annual "Statement of Liabilities and Other Financial Commitments of the United States Government." As the table shows, those documents indicate that the obligations of our government increased by more than a trillion dollars between September 1980 and September 1982.

In other words, while you and I collectively invested a total of about $800 billion in the future over the last two years, our government was obligating us, collectively, for more than a trillion. For every dollar we committed to education and savings, the federal government, in one place or another, was committing $1.37.

Ironically, the federal deficit during the 1975-82 period totaled "only" $474 billion, one-fifth as much.

You can get some idea of just how much out of control federal commitments are by taking a closer look at some of the components of the trillion-dollar increase in liabilities between September 1980 and September 1982:

— Increase in accrued interest, $6.5 billion.

— Increase in accounts payable, $44.0 billion.

— Increase in Social Security liabilities, $191.6 billion.

— Increase in public debt, $232.7 billion.

— Increase in federal pension liabilities, $594.5 billion.

Coming to grips with these numbers isn't easy. They are, quite simply, beyond comprehension. What's important is the total absurdity of current political discussion and reporting.

In other, more reasonable times, concern about the growth of the money supply or worry about the federal deficit would be appropriate. Now such discussion is absurd. The real concern isn't the stated deficit, the money supply, or any other narrow look at the impact of government. It is the rate of increase in federal obligations of all kinds.

Area Permits nears $5 million

Boosted by almost $440,000 in new construction started in Rockport during May, new construction values in the city for the first five months of 1983 total just over $4.87 million.

New construction started during this past month showed a decline compared to prior months, according to records on file at Rockport's City Hall, but three new residences were started during the month and one new commercial establishment was permitted by city officials.

Residential construction values amounted to $154,442 with $95,800 of that being the estimated value of a 2,085-square-foot residence started in Rockport Country Club Estates. Permit for the four-room, three-bath structure was issued May 11.

Beginning of work on the new 12,800-square-foot Monroe's Furniture Building added another $245,000 to construction values for the month. A permit for the project was issued May 13.

A permit was issued for construction of a parking lot valued at $5,000 and remodeling and expansion, both residential and commercial, added another $19,000 to the month's totals.

Remaining permits were issued for an estimated $10,200 in fences and $6,050 in signs.

Approximately $800,000 in new construction was started in April and construction values topped $1 million for the first three months of this year. January leads in construction values for the year to date, with slightly more than $1.5 million in construction started during that month.

'Ain't that the luck? Prices have stabilized right where they began: Out of reach'

Age-old question

How can I make more money?

By Jim Mattox Attorney General

AUSTIN — The age-old question we have all asked at one time or another is "How can I make more money?" The phrasing varies from "How can I beat inflation?" to "How can I get a better return on my money." Anyone interested in investing his or her money is aware that there is a range of alternatives available to accomplish the task. The alternative that best suits any one investor depends upon the amount of risk one is willing to take, the amount of return one seeks and how far ahead one is willing to plan.

Generally, the investor is interested in income, either a higher income now or higher income later based upon the growth of capital. Before anyone embarks on making an investment plan, one must first analyze one's goals for the future, because most of us will be unable to make money overnight.

One choice available is putting money in fixed-dollar investments. To do this means you are lending your money in return for an agreed fixed payment of interest and for a relatively safe investment.

Before pursuing this route, however, one must learn a very important fact that will influence all future investment planning; that is, there is no such thing as a risk-free investment. This axiom is shown to be true daily, primarily when you examine the reduced value your cash carries in the marketplace. This function of our economic system should not make you wary of investing in fixed interest alternatives.

Fixed interest investing is advantageous in that you will generally know from month to month what you are accumulating. Likewise, you may be able to take advantage of high interest rates. In addition, fixed interest investing may suit your need for current, rather than future, income.

One of the most popular forms of fixed-interest investing is the mutual fund. The mutual fund is a practical and efficient way for people with similar goals to pool their money in an effort to achieve those goals. The most appealing aspect of the mutual fund is the spreading of risk through a professionally-managed portfolio of diversified investments.

Consequently, those of us who do not have the time to study and analyze stocks for ourselves can benefit from the diversification allowed through investing in a mutual fund. This aspect is very important in that it operates to reduce the risks of poor performance of a particular type of industry or security.

The objective of most mutual funds is to provide investors with a degree of both income and long-term growth. In addition, the investor benefits by the fund's diversification, full-time professional management, liquidity and convenience.

There are several types of funds from which one may choose. Briefly, these include: the growth fund, whose primary objective is long-term capital growth; the income fund, whose focus is on current income; the growth-income fund, whose aim is a "balance" between capital growth and income; the balanced fund, whose policy is to "balance" the portfolio among bonds and stocks; the bond fund, whose portfolio consists primarily of bonds and whose focus is primarily on current income; the money market fund, whose main objective is to make higher interest securities available to the average investor who wants current income and high investment safety; and the municipal bond fund, whose aim is to invest in a broad range of tax-exempt bonds issued by states, cities and other local governments.

Depending on the type of mutual fund chosen by the individual, various services are offered including exchange privileges, automatic reinvestment, withdrawal plans, IRA's and Keogh plans.

EDAP begins second year

The Commerce Department has begun the second year of its Small Business Export Development Assistance Program, according to Felix C. Guerrero, director of the department's Houston district office.

Matching federal grants to up to $100,000 for one year will be provided to qualifying local organizations, both private and public, to furnish export assistance and services to small businesses at the local level. The grants are not intended for the sole use of an individual small business recipient, but rather to provide support services through the recipient, to a number of small businesses in the grantee's region.

The departments' International Trade Administration (ITA) will administer the program under the Small Business Export Expansion Act of 1980. Last year, 16 organizations received grants under the program.

To qualify for grants, organizations must carry out international marketing programs to serve small businesses interested in exporting. This service would include:

— Market analyses of the export potential of small business concerns.

— Counseling on export financing, credit insurance, tax treatment, potential markets, marketing assistance, export pricing, shipping, documentation and foreign financing and business customs.

— Trade promotion activities abroad, including trade missions and participation in trade fairs.

— Organizations eligible for grants include state government agencies; any Small Business Administration-designed Small Business Development Center; any nonprofit organization; any regional commission; or any combination of such entities.

— At least one grant will be awarded in each of the Commerce Department's 10 geographical regions in the United States. A total of $1 million will be available for the program in 1983. Grant applications will be available through the Houston district office. Applications will be accepted by ITA until June 24. Award of grants will be made by the assistant secretary of commerce for trade development in September 1983.

Texas crude oil down for March

AUSTIN — Texas crude oil production totaled 72,782,028 barrels in March, according to Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace.

The figure compares with reported February production totaling 66,165,275 barrels and March 1982 production of 74,997,266 barrels. Texas oil production averaged 2,347,807 barrels daily in March, down from 2,363,046 barrels daily in February and down from 2,419,267 barrels daily in March 1982.

The March production allowable totaled 94,409,454 barrels. The preliminary March summary indicated Texas oil production was 22.91 percent under the allowable for the month.

ROCKPORT PILOT

A VIEW OF HWY. 35 — then T-57 — one mile north of Lamar is shown in the photo, at top, from the archives of the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Date is unknown but probably late 1920s, early 1930s. Photo at bottom was loaned by County Surveyor Tom Griffith and is another view of the April, 1930, celebration as construction of the old Copano Causeway got under way.

President's honor was credited to the Rockport Chamber of Commerce.

With completion of the new causeway for traffic — which was then measured at 3,850 vehicles per day — the old structure was transferred to the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department for conversion into two fishing piers with the middle, drawbridge span removed.

When it was announced that the old causeway would be converted into a fishing pier, so many fishermen swarmed onto the structure that the Austin Bridge Co. was unable to get men or equipment onto the bridge to remove the center portion.

The Pilot was asked to publish an article asking the fishermen to please stay off the causeway until the necessary work was finished.

The new causeway bridge was completely of concrete, with a hump in the middle replacing the old drawbridge. Horizontal clearance is 75 feet. Length of the causeway is 9,230 feet and width is 30 feet.

During construction of the bridge, a Vulcan 014 single acting steam hammer with 14,000-pound ram — the largest hammer ever used in this district to that time — drove the 18-inch-square prestressed concrete piles.

The longest pile driven without a buildup on the project was 104 feet. One pile with a 10-foot buildup was driven to -106.5 feet tip elevation.

In 1981, the most recent traffic figures available, a 24-hour weekday traffic count showed 9,600 vehicles per day traveling over the causeway. That figure does not include traffic on weekends or holidays when no counts are maintained.

Jacob Cole would have been amazed.

Wages

Kleberg has the second-highest number of government employees after Nueces County. The total quarterly wage came to $30,670,006.

Brooks County's average weekly wage comes to $237.30 with a total for the quarter of $6,364,416 for 2,063 employed persons. Of those holding jobs, 147 are in agriculture; 289 in mining; 28 in construction; 108 in transportation and public utilities; 547 in trade; 59 in finance, insurance and real estate; 288 in service-related work; 47 in state government and 550 in local government.

The lowest average weekly wage for all counties in the Coastal Bend is in Bee County, which has an average weekly wage of $230.82. Total employment is 6,893 with a total quarterly wage of $20,684,258. Of those employed, 42 are in agriculture; 919 in mining; 426 in construction; 198 in manufacturing; 1,685 in transportation; 249 in finance, insurance and real estate; 1,798 in service-related jobs; 83 in state government and 1,271 in local government.

Boat fishermen to be surveyed

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists will expand their information-gathering efforts on coastal sport fishing catches this summer by conducting interviews at city and marina docks.

Biologist Karen Meadoe of Rockport said most interviews in the past have been conducted with fishermen at boat ramps. "We will continue these interviews, but additional data collected at marinas should help us to estimate the harvest," Meadoe said.

Meadoe noted that docked boats, as opposed to those which are pulled out after each fishing trip, are increasing in numbers along the coast.

The data collected helps biologists make recommendations for future management of the coastal fishery resource, including bag and size limits.

Changes

pointed out that Olson would charge travel time and an hourly fee for such a meeting. McCague added he was not happy either with the proposed park layout as drawn by Olson.

In other action before the board in Wednesday night's meeting, McCague and Winkelman commented on results of a telephone survey of Rockport residents prior to the presentation to the city council of the request for the grant application.

The results of the survey, McCague said, "were not too different from what we already know." He and Winkelman said a swimming pool was high on the list of facilities people requested in the park.

"Everybody wanted a swimming pool," Winkelman said.

The park board earlier this year explored the possibilities of a municipal swimming pool but appear to have at least temporarily abandoned the subject as a result of the high costs of maintaining a public pool.

Hurricane

for the storm and insurance may not be obtainable."

A personal property inventory is advised, to help later if needed to obtain insurance settlements and/or tax deductions for losses. The inventory checklist and accompanying descriptions and photographs should be stored along with important insurance papers in waterproof containers or a safety deposit box.

Since 1900, 15 hurricanes have resulted in deaths in Texas, ranging from five due to Hurricane Allen in August 1980 to an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 in the Great Galveston Hurricane in September 1900. The Galveston Hurricane is considered the greatest natural disaster in U.S. history in terms of loss of life.

The storm of 1919, which severely battered Aransas County, resulted in only six deaths in this area but killed a total of 284 people, mostly in Corpus Christi.

Another hurricane which struck Galveston in August 1915 resulted in 275 deaths.

Deaths resulting from hurricanes have decreased steadily in Texas during the past 83 years, but officials are concerned that because of the significant increase in the population of the Texas coast in recent years, a major hurricane could become a "killer storm."

Allen, although it came inland at the southern tip of Texas, proved to be the costliest hurricane in Texas history, resulting in $600 million total estimated

A study of hurricanes that have hit the Texas coast or moved into Texas from Mexico or Louisiana from 1871-1982 show that the biggest threat is posed in August and September. The coast has been hit by 14 hurricanes and four tropical storms in August, 12 hurricanes and 10 tropical storms in September during that period.

By comparison, the coast has been hit by seven hurricanes and seven tropical storms in June, six hurricanes and six tropical storms in July, and three hurricanes and two tropical storms in October.

Between 1871 and 1982, there were 47 years in which no hurricane or tropical storm was recorded.

'Things kind of happened just right.'

For some people, destiny shaped by parents, by friends, by the individual's own personality —

For Manuel Rocha, Fate took the guise of kidney stones.

It was May 1968. Manuel had just graduated from Texas A&I University in Kingsville with a bachelor of arts degree in history and journalism. He lined up a job with a Corpus Christi television station then went to Houston to spend some time with his parents — and got sick with kidney stones.

"I was hospitalized — I had to give up the job with the TV station," he recalled during an interview this past week. Instead, when he was recovered, he returned to Corpus Christi and accepted a job at Miller High School, sponsoring the school newspaper and teaching journalism "and some history."

It was the beginning of a career in education that has so far spanned 15 years, the last nine of those at Fulton Elementary School where he is principal.

Born in Kingsville, Rocha attended school in Refugio, graduating in 1964 from Refugio High School. It was in high school that he "got hooked" on journalism. "I took it as an elective course — and I liked it. It was about the only extracurricular activity I took."

But after he went to Miller as a teacher, he got hooked on that profession. "I had to go back to school for certification (in order to teach)," he said, "and while I was there, I decided I should get my masters degree too." He did, in 1972.

Meanwhile, after three years at Miller, he transferred to Ray High School in Corpus Christi. Two significant things happened to him during his three years there: he was accepted as an intern into an administration program, and he met Don Meek, a Rockport resident who was then teaching at Ray.

Meek mentioned that there was an opening for a principal at Fulton Elementary School. "I had done six years in secondary education," Manuel recalls. "I thought going into elementary work might make me better rounded."

He expressed an interest in the job and Meek introduced him to Tom Rogers, then outgoing president of the Aransas County Independent School District board of trustees. "Mr. Rogers set up an interview for me with Mr. (School Superintendent Joe) Randow — and here I am."

"At the time," he continued, "I was very, very apprehensive. I was coming from a school of 2,200, which is the total enrollment of this district. In my first year at Fulton, enrollment was 88 (the enrollment is now close to 300) — it was a brand new area here."

He discovered that the smaller size of the campus actually made the transition easier for him. What was not so easy was making the transition from dealing with high school students and elementary age youngsters.

"I guess one of the hardest transitions was taking some of the elementary problems seriously at first," he recalled. "At Ray, I dealt with problems like a student with a gun in the front seat of his car. When I came here and the big problem was a student who had forgotten his math book — it was hard to take seriously."

"Now I take it seriously," he added. "But it was hard at first . . ."

Other differences were much easier to adjust to: "Very few high school kids bring you a present, or come running up to you in the hall and say, 'Hey! Look at this!'" He demonstrated a student holding up a paper for the principal to see. "That's one of the rewarding things," he said. "That's what it's all about."

"I enjoy the younger kids," he added.

He also enjoys some of the experiences, the challenges that a high school principal never faces — like the day, some six or seven years ago, when a small boy, one of the students, came into his office crying. The boy had lost a tooth — really lost it, Manuel added — and he was afraid the tooth fairy wouldn't visit him because he had nothing to put under his pillow.

"I told him I knew the tooth fairy," Manuel recalls. "I typed a letter to the tooth fairy explaining the problem." The next day, the child was all smiles — the tooth fairy had found the letter and left money for the youngster . . .

Solving those kinds of problems, Manuel adds with a smile of his own, "helps keep you young."

Manuel has been married 14 years — his wife is a teacher at Live Oak Elementary — and they have two daughters, Rebecca in the third grade and Claudia in the fifth, both students at Live Oak. He's a member of the Aransas County Library Board, currently serving as chairman. "This is my last year," he added. He doesn't recall how long he's been on the board but knows it's been "at least five years" and it amounts to the maximum term any board member can serve.

He's an active member of the Lions Club, describing it as "probably one of my favorite pastimes." He was president of that organization in 1979-80. He has served on the board of directors of the Boy Scouts organization, the American Heart Association and the United Fund.

"I enjoy people," he says. "That's why I'm involved — I enjoy the people aspect of it. I guess," he said, "the only other thing I would like to do, other than this, would be to get into the area of personnel."

When he first came to Aransas County, he said, he enjoyed golf, but over the years he's been less and less involved with the game. He collects coins, "dabbling" in Mexican and American gold coins, but he can't enjoy his collection the way he'd like to "because I've got them locked up in a bank."

He does enjoy photography. In college, he said, he worked for the college wire service and one of his duties was working with the sports department.

"One of our jobs was making superstars of the athletes," he said. He assisted several from college into the pros, among them James Hill, Levi Johnson, Ernest Price . . .

Now, he says, he would like to get into wildlife photography. "I enjoy taking pictures of birds." Now that he's free for the summer he plans to get more involved in his photography.

In retrospect, he has no regrets that he lost a career in TV journalism. He gained one in education.

"At the time I didn't think so, but looking back," he said, "I'm kind of glad I got the kidney stones. "Things kind of happened just right for me."

PR, advertising majors double over last decade

FORT WORTH — "Colleges and universities throughout the United States are overwhelmed with students declaring public relations and advertising as majors," said Doug Newsom, chairman of the journalism department at Texas Christian University.

"In the last 10 years, national surveys reported in 'Journalism Educator' show the number of journalism/mass communication majors to have almost doubled. Of these majors, almost one-fourth are in advertising or public relations. In the last five years, PR alone has accounted for between 10 and 14 percent," she said.

"Most of today's public relations practitioners received no formal education for their jobs. The first public relations course was taught in 1922 at New York University. That same year, the first public relations textbook was written by Edward J. Bernays. The author is still living and enjoying his role as one of PR's founders," Newsom said.

Today's public relations professionals are most likely still the self-taught journalists who went into the field from either newspaper or broadcast reporting, continued the public relations educator. Only in the last five to 10 years has education begun to supply the public relations job market directly.

The first nationally recommended curriculum for public relations education was approved by both educators and practitioners in 1975. In 1982 the same basics appeared in an international model, approved by the International Public Relations Association. IPRA is made up of members from 60 different countries, said the TCU professor.

Safe Boating Week

June 6-12

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White has signed a proclamation declaring June 6-12 as Safe Boating Week in Texas.

Texas boaters are urged to become more aware of safe boating procedures during the week and throughout the summer, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said.

Government agencies and the recreational boating industry are stressing the theme "Wear Your Life Preserver (PFD) — A Friend For Life."

"Personal flotation devices are required by law to be aboard all boats, but they won't do any good if they are not worn," said Capt. Larry Williford of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. "Today's flotation devices are lightweight and comfortable, and they don't restrict a person's movements."

Williford said Texas now is the third largest state in the nation in terms of recreational boating participation. "It's extremely important that boaters, especially first-time boaters, know how to handle their crafts properly. That is why the Parks and Wildlife Department offers the Texas Better Boating Course," said Williford.

Woman injured in mishap

Esther B. Decker of Fulton received reportedly minor injuries in an accident last Sunday, May 29, when her car dropped into a ditch as she was attempting a turn from Mathis onto Bay Street in Rockport.

Police said the accident occurred about 2:15 a.m.

Drivers of both cars involved were ticketed following an accident early Monday afternoon at the intersection of Live Oak and Laurel.

Police said the accident occurred about 1:28 p.m. when Mark W. Wyatt of Dallas, eastbound on Laurel, came through the intersection striking Carlton Richardson of Rockport as Richardson was southbound on Laurel.

Wyatt was ticketed for traveling the wrong way on a one-way street and Richardson for no driver's license.

Petroleum industry course set at UHV

"The Petroleum Industry, How It Affects You," a one-day course for laymen, will be taught Saturday, June 18, through the Division of Continuing Education of the University of Houston-Victoria.

Instructor Kent Gerhardt, who also instructs for the UHV Petroleum Training Institute, has designed the class for those who have no oilfield knowledge, but want to know what the petroleum industry does and how it affects their everyday life.

Gerhardt will deal with such questions as: Can I get rich on oil? Who is "Big Oil" and what do they do? How is a well drilled? How does Washington affect us in Texas? What is the future of oil as an energy source?

The class will meet from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Petroleum Training Institute, 3302 N. Ben Wilson in Victoria.

Further information and registration are available at the UHV office of continuing education, 576-3151.

Squid considered a gourmet seafood

Fresh squid are excellent bait for red snapper and other saltwater fish, but offshore anglers may not realize their bait may be as tasty as some of the fish they catch.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Jerry Mambretti of Rockport said the tentacles and mantles of squid can be prepared in a number of ways for a gourmet treat.

Offshore fishermen often purchase large boxes of frozen table-quality squid at local supermarkets for bait. The unused squid can be kept on ice and consumed later at home. The per-pound price is low compared to frozen shrimp and other frozen bait and actually cheaper than most frozen seafood.

The Shepherd's staff

What can sustain us?

By the Rev. Wayne J. Pafk Peace Lutheran Church Conflict. Trouble. Disaster — These are some of the words that we hear on the nightly news and sometimes these very words become reality for us.

We live in a world that is often unpredictable, and at times events in that world of ours causes us undue stress where we feel tired, frustrated and on edge. And when those stressful times happen all too suddenly and repeatedly we often feel that we are unwanted and neglected too. What can sustain us when we face those times in our lives?

Paul proclaims to us in Romans 5:1-5: "Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Through him we have obtained access to this grace in which we stand, and we rejoice in our hope of sharing the glory of God. More than that, we rejoice in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit which has been given to us." God is for us is what Paul proclaims because He has poured His love into our hearts through the Holy Spirit.

We as Christians do have a reason to hope for there is someone who sustains us and gives us life. As an old adage reminds us: "Where there is hope, there is life." How true this is when hope is taken out of a situation — life ebbs and it is gone.

There is a particular story of a soldier in Vietnam who was in a "tiger cage" who had lost hope. Losing a reason to live he withdrew into himself and within 48 hours died. It is also among those same prisoners that stories came of a hope that sustains as they remembered their faith and held onto God who sustained them till freedom came.

The hope that Paul talks about is not a mere wish nor just a mere saying, such as:

"I hope it will rain today." Paul says our hope is based on the grace and peace which is ours in Jesus Christ — God's offer of Himself to us.

The hope that God gives is that hope which will shape our very lives and asserts our faith in Him in all situations of life. But this hope does require effort. In fact it is a principle built into nature. There is a story of a tenderhearted woman who happened to be near when a butterfly was emerging from its dry, hard cocoon. The butterfly seemed to have such a hard time the woman was moved to come to its assistance with a pair of shears. But when it was freed it was unable to fly. Painful effort was essential to its strength and full development.

This is also true for the Christian. Our discipleship is not lived out in a vacuum; it is lived through a resisting medium. The struggles we find ourselves faced with are part of the process whereby God is making us His own. That is why Paul says we have joy in our sufferings — we know we are God's and God is developing us to be His own people. God's intention is not for us to drift down the paths of least resistance in our Christian lives, but to develop our Christian maturity, so that we have a sustaining hope.

God offers this hope to you and me by the offer of Himself. For when God pours out His love through the Holy Spirit He is claiming you and me for a new relationship that will transform what is old-rebellion self-seeking and hostility and to begin placing our lives into His hands so that we no longer rely on our own resources but His. This is the ongoing process that He established in the once and for all act of Jesus Christ.

Knowing God through Jesus Christ does not supply us with an instant bandaid but reminds us that he wants to bring us under His care, so that we may grow in the hope that God is for us and that He will sustain us in life.

Indians shoot down Cubs 15-8

The Indians stand alone at the top of the Minor League standings after defeating the Cubs 15-8 Wednesday night. The Cubs had been tied for first with the Indians, having defeated them before. They are now second in the Minor League rankings, after a tough contest.

The Indians were up first and had three runs in the top of the first, including pitcher Collins Herron's home run. The Cubs were able to come up with only one before the inning was over.

In the second, Israel Ybarra was up first for the Indians and got a center field single off pitcher Eric Florez. Curtis Herron gave Ybarra the ticket home with his long high triple over second. Herron stole in during Eddie Knudsen's bat. Knudsen hit a fly, caught by the second baseman Roland Rios for the first out. Florez got his first strikeout of the night on Josh Mennen and walked Phillip Williams. Dean Wix got a single, bringing Williams home but he was tagged out trying to steal home during Collins Herron's bat. The score was 6-1, Indians on top, going into the bottom of the second.

Up first for the Cubs was Martin Garza, out when Indian second baseman Rosendo Ricarte caught his high fly. Charlie Lozano got a home run thanks to multiple Indian errors, giving the Cubs one more run on the scoreboard. Herron got hot and struck out Bubba Kellogg and Duane Solis, ending the inning in a hurry.

Ricarte, up first for the Indians in the third, singled with a long hit that flew past third baseman Mario Hernandez. Ybarra doubled before Curtis Herron was out on a caught fly. Knudsen doubled, brought in Ricarte and Ybarra but was tagged out attempting to steal third. Mennen was struck out for the second time and the Indians were left with eight runs going into the bottom of the third.

Armando Rios was up first for the Cubs and went down fast when Ricarte on second caught his hit and threw to Wix on first. Roland Rios singled and John Sanchez followed suit. When Eric Florez singled to shortstop Curtis Herron, Roland Rios was forced out and Florez was out on first, ending the third.

Indian Phillip Williams was hit by the pitcher and took his base. Roland Rios on first and John Sanchez on second worked together to throw Wix out before he reached base. Collins Herron doubled and John "E.T." Tjerina singled, then stole. He was on second and Herron was on third when Rosendo Ricarte came to bat. Herron was tagged out attempting to steal home before Ricarte walked.

Ybarra's double brought in Tjerina and Ricarte doubled, bringing up Curtis Herron. Herron tripled, bringing in Ybarra, but he was tagged out at the home plate, leaving the Indians with 12 runs.

Mario Hernandez started things off for the Cubs with a fine double into left field. Following him, Junior Martinez walked before Charlie Lozano was the first out, hitting a pop foul that Wix caught right next to the fence. Jason Moon was out number two, and Ramon Garcia and Armando Rios both walked, bringing in Hernandez. Roland Rios singled, but was left on base when Martinez was out on an attempted steal into home. The score going into the fifth was Cubs 3, Indians 12.

In the fifth, John Little was walked first thing, then taken out on second when Williams hit right to Hernandez who threw to Roland Rios. Williams, Wix and Collins Herron all made it home before Florez got busy and struck out Richard Romero and Ybarra for outs two and three. The Indians had all of their 15 runs going into the bottom of the fifth.

Fine action from first baseman Wix and teammates Curtis Herron and Williams was the main reason the Cubs' fifth inning bat was over in less than six minutes. Sanchez was the first casualty, hitting a short fly to Wix. Up next, Florez hit to Curtis Herron, who threw to Wix to take the runner out. Hernandez was the third and last batter, hitting to Williams on third. Williams threw to Wix and the inning was over.

Moon replaced Florez on the mound in the sixth and did some fine pitching, striking out Curtis Herron and Knudsen one right after the other. He walked Little and Williams, then took down Wix, retiring the Indians.

Moon, Garcia, Armando Rios and Roland Rios all walked off Collins Herron and scored in the bottom of the sixth. Also scoring was Martinez who had singled. Herron got one strike out, off Lozano. Sanchez and Florez were outs number two and three and the game was over, the final score 15-8.

The Indians play the Astros this Monday and the Cubs face the Giants.

Summer means king fishing on the Texas gulf coast

AUSTIN — The onset of warm weather is a signal for offshore king mackerel fishermen that exciting action is ahead. The migrant kings are beginning to show up all along the coast, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Anglers going after the silvery fighters are reminded by TP&WD officials to be alert for tagged kings. Return of the tags bring a $10 reward to the angler, but more importantly the information gained from tag recoveries will help biologists learn more about the growth and movements of the popular game fish.

Tagged fish are easily identified by a plastic streamer protruding from the abdomen. The tag must be cut from the body cavity.

The $10 rewards will be paid by the National Marine Fisheries Service. Tags should be taken or sent to the NMFS, 3500 Delwood Beach Road, Panama City, Fla. 32407, or any Parks and Wildlife Department office.

Tagging was done by the NMFS off Grande Isle, La., during January in an effort to assess the effects of a commercial king mackerel fishery which developed off Louisiana last year.

Reciprocal license causes confusion

AUSTIN — Law enforcement officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said a reciprocal fishing license agreement among Texas and two other states still is causing some confusion.

Officials said residents of Oklahoma and Kansas 65 years old or older and those under 17 years of age may sport fish in Texas without the need of a fishing license.

Texas residents in the same age groups may sport fish in those states without a fishing license, except that although Oklahoma and Kansas law exempts Texas residents 65 years old or older from the need of a fishing license, a young Texas resident must be under 16 years of age to be exempt in either state.

The age exemption applies only to nonresident sports fishing license and not necessarily to special stamps.

Giants take down the Cardinals 8-7 Monday

The Giants slipped past the Cardinals 8-7 Wednesday night in Major League play. In a close contest, the Cardinals tied the Giants in the first, and led in the third 4-3 and stayed ahead in the fourth, 7-3. Four Giant runs in the fifth tied the score and one more in the sixth put them over for the win.

Batting first for the Cardinals, Jeff Ferguson singled and Kevin Patterson followed with a walk off pitcher Gene Garcia. John Lassiter and Kelly Lee both singled and came in to score after Shane Kullborg walked and Kenny Lassiter singled.

Jason Eckert and Phillip Rinaldo put the Giants on the scoreboard with one run apiece in the bottom of the first. Miles Adkison and Buck Hare were both retired by pitcher Kelly Lee and Mark Blankinship was taken out at first by Patterson, ending the inning with a 2-2 tie.

Mike Canterbury, up first for the Cardinals in the second, struck out. Ferguson doubled and was able to make it home before Garcia bagged two more strike outs off Patterson and John Lassiter.

Cardinal pitcher Lee answered Garcia's strike outs with two of his own in the bottom of the inning, taking down Robert Konvicka and Josh Valdez. Eckert singled but was the third out when Rinaldo hit to Kullborg on second, leaving Eckert no choice.

Lee hit to the pitcher and was taken out by Blankinship on first, getting the third off to a bad start for the Cardinals. Kullborg walked and was able to score before Kenny Lassiter and Edward Singleterry went down as outs two and three.

The third was a fast one for the Giants. Garcia singled but was out on second, when Joey Martinez hit to Kullborg. Adkison was hit by the pitcher and Buck Hare doubled, bringing in Martinez. Adkison was out on third and Blankinship posted out number three, hitting a fly to second.

Kenneth West, Canterbury and Ferguson scored in the fourth for the Cardinals. Garcia struck out Lee, Kullborg and Singleterry.

The Giants were scoreless in the fourth. Konvicka walked and got to second, the only man gaining a base. Valdez struck out, as did Eckert and Rinaldo hit right to Patterson on first and didn't have a chance to make the base.

In the fifth, things started to sour for the Cardinals. Garcia struck out West and Canterbury's long fly was caught by Adkison for the second out. Ferguson hit to the pitcher, making it three up, three down for the Cardinals.

Garcia, Martinez, Adkison and Blankinship all scored in the bottom of the inning, tying things up 7-7. Three more strike outs in the top of the sixth held the Cardinals at seven. In the bottom of the inning, Garcia was walked then came around to score and the Giants took the game.

Local Amateur Athletic track program is under way

The first meet of the summer track season is being held Saturday, June 4, in Sinton. Approximately 70 young athletes in the Rockport-Fulton area are participating in this year's Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) summer track program. Headed by coaches Brad Jett, Jim Moltz, Jan Chesbro and Tim Tate, the program began Tuesday, May 31.

According to Chesbro, the first week's sessions have been "real good." The coach says that most of the youngsters turning out this year have been younger than expected. "Most of them are in the 6 to 10-year-old group," she says. "We've got a few junior high kids and a few from high school." Athletes are divided into five age groups in the AAU season — Bantam, Midget, Intermediate, Junior and Senior.

Most participants have yet to concentrate in one event area. "Right now, we're mostly doing conditioning to see what they can do," states Chesbro. "We've run them through the long jump and other events and they've done some sprints. We'll start them into groups later." However, athletes from the junior high and high school track programs are already working in their various specialties, according to the coach.

Sessions are held daily 8:30-10 a.m. The AAU season lasts throughout June, with four meets. In addition to Saturday's meet, meets are scheduled for Rockport (June 11), George West (June 9) and Refugio (June 18).

Rockport Resort hosts Lipton Tea Doubles tourney June 11-12

The annual Lipton Tea Mixed Doubles tennis tournament will be hosted this year by the Rockport Resort Tennis and Swim Club on June 11-12. Registration will remain open through June 8. Each registrant must pay a $5 fee.

The tournament will be held at the club's courts. Players wishing to participate should call the club office at 729-0815 or tournament director Art Weiss at 1-758-7135.

State parks are already filling up for summer

AUSTIN — State parks officials remind those planning a summer outing to a state park that overnight facilities are fast being filled up and advanced reservations may be necessary to assure accommodations.

Reservations may be obtained for campsites, screened shelters, cabins and group facilities by calling the park you intend to visit, said Bob Hauser, park operations head for the Texas

Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Persons interested in staying in cabins especially need to make reservations," said Hauser, noting that most cabins have full occupancy during the summer months.

Hauser also noted that the Texas State Railroad excursion train which runs between Rusk and Palestine now has a toll-free number for reservations, 1-800-442-8951.

Correction

In the Wednesday Pilot, Live Oak Country Club manager Mike Wells was incorrectly referred to as the club "pro" in a photo outline. In the same outline, Wells was referred to as being on the left of the picture when he was on the right. The Pilot regrets these errors.

'Pawelek's delivers old-time service'

Pawelek Meats is, in the words of owner Ron Pawelek, "an old-fashioned meat market." He specializes in the old time butcher-type relationship with his customers - something which he feels is unique in these days of pre-packaged supermarket meats. Pawelek Meats in Aransas Pass has been open for one year but Ron has over 12 years experience in the meat business. His shop is an extension of the Pawelek's

K.C. Locker Plant in Karnes City. As Pawelek tells it, the firm has its own processing plant, under inspection, which eliminates the need for a middle man. The result is fresh, high quality meat at low prices. All cattle are handpicked out of feedlots in both the San Antonio and Houston areas. The meat is processed and transferred here, giving it a "home-butchered effect." The firm specializes in one-on-one service as well as high quality meats. "People want to see their meat cut," he says. "They want to see the quarters coming out of the coolers." Pawelek Meats will do special cuts for customers and will sell meat by the half or quarter as well. In addition, the market features a variety of pork cuts. "We're the only market I know of that handles the whole hog," says Ron. Pawelek Meats also has its own egg farm as well. The eggs are ungraded but considered large, he says, and always fresh. The market stuffs its own sausage, another unique feature. An old-time sausage stuffer sits behind the counter. Other specialties include fresh fryers, patties, standard lunchmeats, bacon, cheeses, hams, freezer orders and a large variety of delicacy items. Pawelek Meats is located at 326 S. Commercial in Aransas Pass. Hours are from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The phone number is 758-2041.

How much house is affordable?

By Meceal Casterline

Probably one of the questions that is asked most frequently by first-time homebuyers has to be about the matter of trying to determine "how much house" they can afford. In fact, now that the economy is on an upswing, Realtors are happily facing that question more often.

I feel sure that the two main factors that need to be considered are: 1) what amount in monthly payments the buyer or buyers can afford comfortably, and 2) what buyers can afford to invest as a down payment on the home.

As you know, monthly payments include the principal and interest on the mortgage loan, property taxes and homeowners' insurance. For other buyers, there may be fees for homeowner association dues, mortgage insurance and condominium fees.

Most lenders seem to feel that monthly payments should not be higher than 25 to 30 percent of the gross income of the buyer. The next step, then, for the buyer is to decide this matter, and then proceed to shop around and compare interest rates and types of loans at a variety of financial institutions.

Most homebuyers realize quickly that what makes the home affordable or possible is what kind of financing can be found. (I do want to remind the buyers that it is good to check out also seller-assisted financing.)

Realtors are not attorneys and they are not bankers, but they are professionally trained to explain clearly various techniques of financing that might be available. Don't hesitate to ask questions and more questions during the conversations with Realtors. They welcome the clients' interest in all details.

Now let's talk about the down payment. Perhaps there is no down payment at all... that is the case if it is a Veterans-backed loan. On the other hand the house might come with an FHA-approved loan offering fairly low down payment requirements. Now with conventional loans, the buyer may have to come up with about 20 or even 30 percent of the purchase price for a down payment. Where will the buyer look first for the down payment? You know that answer: his or her or their savings accounts.

Now what are some of the steps that might be taken if the down payment is more than the buyer can afford. There are several avenues that the Realtor may suggest. Some parents may be able to present the buyer with a gift to meet the amount asked. Under the Federal Income Tax laws each parent is allowed one tax free gift of $10,000. This means that the buyer is not obligated to pay federal taxes on the amount and neither do the parents. It is probable that the Realtor will suggest that a "gift letter" be available to verify that the parents do not expect repayment.

Other areas to explore could be life insurance policies, stocks and bonds and sometimes even company profit-sharing or savings plans. You see, if the buyer has built up a cash value in his insurance policy, he might borrow an amount to help meet the down payment needed.

Clients are encouraged to talk over their financial situation frankly and honestly with Realtors. To purchase a home is a serious matter, for often it is the largest investment a family will make in its lifetime. The Realtor knows that and he is determined to help make this transaction a happy one for all concerned.

As real estate professionals we welcome your questions. Call any member of our Board of Realtors any time.

In case of Hurricane or Storm U.P.I. quotes Dr. John Byrne, Chief of the National Oceanic & Atmospheric, who said, "Erratic weather could produce more deadly hurricanes than any time since 1960." NUTRITIOUS SNACKS
It's not that snacks in general are necessarily bad for your diet. In some cases, the well-timed snack actually helps you keep meal calories down and eating between-meals can make you feel less deprived and give your diet the morale booster it needs. The problem is that most so-called "snack foods" are empty of nutrients and full of calories; prepared foods that are easy to reach for and take little time to eat are the least satisfying, often have nothing but calories to offer your body, and when they contain sugar, they might actually stimulate your appetite rather than quell hunger pangs. Here are alternative ideas for healthy, low-cal, tummy-filling and satisfying snacks:

* You can eat raw vegetables to your heart's content between meals. The best dieters always keep them on hand, cut up, washed and ready to pop into your mouth. Broccoli flowerets, carrot and celery sticks, green pepper strips and radish disks are crunchy and good; add curry powder and fresh coriander to half a cup low-fat plain yogurt (75 calories) for a great veggie dip that perks up your snack.

* Another snack to prepare in advance is gelatin with fruit; use sugarless, low-cal gelatin mix and put in fruit pieces. One of my favorites: low-cal raspberry gelatin with tangerine pieces. Just peel, segment, and seed one small tangerine; cut segments in half, and add to gelatin mix after adding cold water. Delicious at just 50 calories per serving.

* A melon half filled with sweetened cottage cheese can be as yummy as an ice cream sundae. Just halve a cantaloupe and scoop out seeds. Then combine 1/4 cup low-fat cottage cheese with 1/4 packet of granulated artificial sweetener, 1/4 tsp. cinnamon, and a dash of vanilla extract. Stir together and spoon into melon hollow, then sprinkle with 4 pecans or walnuts, finely chopped. That's only 120 calories, plus lots of nutrition and taste.

The best defense against snacking on empty junk foods is to plan ahead and prepare low-cal snacks that you always have on hand. When snacks are high in nutrients, they're actually an aid to good dieting.

Beware of too much sun

The tanning season has arrived and you may find yourself complaining about not having enough time to lie out in the sun. You may have even considered buying a membership to a tanning salon.

Before you do, the Texas Medical Association warns that these salons can be harmful to your skin and eyes. So can excessive exposure to the sun.

Tanning salons use ultraviolet light, the same as that emitted by the sun. Ultraviolet light may either be short-wave (UVB) or long-wave (UVA).

Experiments on animals have linked artificial tanning with UVB to sunburn and long-term skin damage. UVB also can damage the cornea and lens of the eyes, so protective goggles should be worn.

Artificial tanning with UVA has been found to be more suitable and safer than UVB, but this does not mean it is safe. UVA also may damage the eyes if protective goggles are not worn. It has damaged retinas and produced cataracts in laboratory mice.

In addition, your skin may be overly sensitive to UVA if you are taking medication such as antidepressants, oral contraceptives, antihistamines and a variety of other sensitizing drugs.

Both ultraviolet types can damage the skin. Three common types of skin cancer that can occur are basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell carcinoma, and the worst kind, malignant melanoma. These occur most frequently on continuously exposed parts of the body such as hands, face and neck.

In basal cell carcinoma, cells just below the skin's surface become cancerous. A tumor may develop and become ulcerated. Caused by long-term exposure to ultraviolet light, this cancer will not spread to other parts of the body. Basal cell carcinoma usually occurs on the face, especially near the eyes or on the nose.

Squamous cell carcinoma attacks underlying skin cells that have been damaged by continuous exposure to the sunlight. With this type of cancer, a malignant, or life-threatening, tumor will develop. The cancer will usually occur on any region constantly exposed to the sun.

Malignant melanoma is the most serious form of skin cancer because it may spread. A cancerous tumor develops from a mole present since birth, but sunlight also can play a part in the development of the disease.

For these reasons, it is advisable to avoid long-term exposure to ultraviolet light whether in a tanning salon or on a beach.

Right to sunlight

Solar energy systems are designed to collect energy from sunlight for use within the home. Therefore, the solar collectors must have unobstructed access to direct sunlight.

When used in urban areas, the collectors must be placed so that adjacent buildings do not block the sun. But what happens when the adjacent lot is vacant when the collectors are placed but is later developed so as to obstruct the light?

The Wisconsin supreme court recently ruled on such a case in favor of the homeowners continued access to sunshine. Applying the common law rule of reasonable interference with the enjoyment of adjacent property, the court decided the homeowner has the right not to be cut off from the sunlight needed to power his system.

While this is only a state court opinion, it could provide a precedent for similar cases across the country.

GET YOUR $$ WORTH

PRIMER ON BONDS
Bonds are really a very simple way of investing extra money that isn't doing anything very exciting in a saving account. Many bonds are as safe as a savings account, as easy to buy (you can do it at your bank), and it's more lucrative. Here's how bonds work:

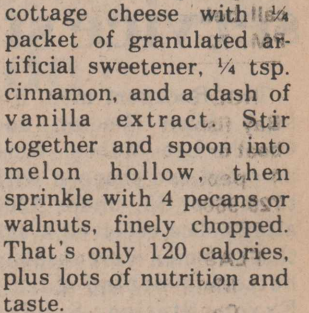

When a part of the government, or a corporation or public utility, want to raise cash, they often do so by selling bonds. As a consumer, you can purchase one of these bonds, and let the selling organization hold onto your money for a specified period of time - say, 10 years. Over the period of time that your money is being held, you will be paid a yearly interest, 8 percent, for example, and when the time is up, and the bond has matured, the amount of money you paid for it is returned to you.

To think of it in simple terms, it's like lending money to a friend who agrees to pay you interest and return the money eventually. If you lend your friend $5000 to help him open a bakery, and he agrees to pay you 8 percent interest over 10 years and then repay the loan, you will have a yearly income from the loan of $400, and when the 10 years are up, you will have made $4000. Plus you'll be getting back the original $5000 you gave your friend.

What makes bonds attractive is that, while the interest you receive may be lower than with other kinds of investments, you are assured that it will not be lowered over the course of the period of time that you hold it, if it is a highly rated bond (you can check ratings with financial services such as Standard and Poor's). Most bonds require a minimum $1000 investment, and there are some, such as municipal bonds, that do not require payment of federal income tax on interest.

Pansy popularity due to variety of colors

By Ted Brice
The Garden Editor
The pansy is known botanically as the Viola tricolor hortensis and Viola cornuta. The pansy is one of the most popular plants because of the variety and combination of colors. You can find colors of purple, white, blue, rose and dark red and yellow. Many people describe these combinations as smiling happy faces. The pansy comes to us from Europe and is one of the most hybridized plants.

A pansy always has five overlapping petals. Most pansies have blooms of two to three inches, but we have the Rogue Giants and the California Giants which are a hybrid type and can have blooms of up to four and one half inches.

Pansies are technically a perennial but they tend to deteriorate very fast in this climate after the first year and, therefore, we must treat them as annuals or even bi-annuals where the temperature is warm or hot such as we have in the Southwest and Gulf Coastal areas.

Pansies normally grow to a height of about eight inches and are considered to be a low-growing plant which makes them excellent for borders. They are also good as an edging as well as in window boxes and used as potted plants.

They have a delightful fresh fragrant aroma. Remember that the more often you pick your pansies during their blooming stage, the more blooms that they will produce for your pleasure. They are one of the mainstays of grandmother's garden, and this is one of the reasons why.

Pansies like full sun except where the temperature exceeds 90 degrees. They can also grow in semi-shade so they are very versatile as to both color and growing conditions. A mass display of pansies is very effective landscaping.

There are two ways to start pansies. One way is from seed and the other way is to buy bedding plants. Local nurseries all have good stocks of pansies on hand now. Remember when selecting plants to pick vigorous looking ones, as you get what you pay for in most instances.

Pansies from seed should be planted around here from August to November, and you can enjoy their blooms from November to May. If you mass plant and stagger your planting dates you will receive a greater abundance of color for a longer period of time.

Pansies like rich sandy loam with an abundance of humus. Pansies like a regular well-balanced diet with a water soluble fertilizer. Remember that pansies will reward you with larger and more abundant blooms if they are fed on a regular schedule, and the spent blooms are picked off.

Pansies are one of the plants that love fireplace ashes, especially oak ashes. The further north you go, the later the beginning blooming date. Don't delay another day if you still plan to have pansies from bedding plants for spring bloom this year, and if you want blooming pansies in November, be sure to plant your seed in August.

My neighbor and I both bought pansies one year and planted for a mass effect. He could never understand why mine were so much bigger, but it is really very simple as I told him. I bought a quality plant and gave it the care it needed; he bought a Saturday Special and did not fertilize to any extent. Just remember, pansies will produce for you if you produce for them.

Good gardening until next week from your garden editor, Ted Brice.

Cross your bridges before you come to them and you have to pay the toll twice.

San Antonio's Texas Folklore Festival tickets

SAN ANTONIO — It's June, and families across the state are making plans for that summer sojourn called "vacation." What better way to spend that time than enjoying the Texas Folklife Festival in beautiful San Antonio? This year's twelfth annual celebration, August 4-7, promises to be an exciting and fun-filled adventure in living Texas history.

Sponsored by The University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures, the Folklife Festival is a state-wide extravaganza featuring the more than 30 ethnic and cultural groups who have shaped Texas' past and present.

Each August more than 6,000 participants from every corner of the state come together on the grounds of the Institute, located in the heart of downtown San Antonio, to celebrate the folkways of their ancestors and honor their glorious variety that is Texas. Featuring food, crafts, dancing, music and storytelling, the four-day festivities offer something for everyone.

The opportunities for educational entertainment are as diverse as Texas is wide. The "Back 40" hosts an array of friendly pioneers eager to demonstrate their crafts and skills. Bill Sallee of Arlington coaches visitors in carving whistles from elm shoots; Sid Owens of Woodville explains the fine art of whittling; and Doris Riedel of Mesquite discloses the secret to cooking up a perfect batch of lye soap.

Each of the authentic craftspeople show festival-goers how to create a little Texas history of their own. From making a horsehair rope to cooking a hoecake, visitors can try them all.

"Hands-on" contact with frontier animals is also an integral part of the festival experience. Pet a registered American Indian horse and foal and learn how these mustangs made life on the plains more bearable. Stroke a Southdown sheep; then watch Cruz Marquez of Sanderson demonstrate how to shear one. Pigs, poultry, bees, hog dogs and a longhorn steer are some of the special animal visitors to the festival, and each one contributed something unique to frontier Texas.

With nine stages and many impromptu performance sites, the entertainment never stops. If country music holds a special fascination, there's plenty of it with the Clearfork Express from Abilene and the Devine Music Makers. The air is full of sweet sounds of all types from the trumpeting of Mexican mariachis to the harmony of old-time gospel singers and German choirs.

Ethnic dances also are part of the continuous entertainment. Fiery Flamenco dancers and the beat of the Alabama-Coushatta Indians can be heard in one corner of the grounds, while Mideast dancers and Ukrainian sword specialists thrill audiences in another area.

Dancing, however, is not confined to the performers themselves. Visitors can step up on the stage and learn a German polka, try the Filipino tinkling or tap their toes to the Ukrainian hrechyanky. If music is a universal language, dancing is a universal sport. Everyone is encouraged to try.

All these activities can certainly whet an appetite, and the festival offers a smorgasbord of international foods for the palate — from all-time favorites such as barbecue, chicken fried steak and yam pie to ethnic delicacies such as Hungarian kolbasz (sausage), Rumanian pui in tzeapa (chicken) and British pastie (meat pie). And those with a true taste for adventure can try a pig ear sandwich or Alsatian parisa, a raw meat concoction on a cracker. To wash it all down sample some strawberry wine or mint tea.

This summer, fill your family's vacation with history, fun, beauty and tradition. Visit the Folklife Festival and take a little bit of Texas home with you.

Tickets for the twelfth annual Texas Folklife Festival are $5 for adults ($4.50 in advance) and $1 for children age 6-12; children under 6 are admitted free. Advance tickets are available at the Institute of Texan Cultures and will be offered at various San Antonio locations beginning July 1.

For more information write the Texas Folklife Festival, Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294 or call (512) 226-7651.

student of Aransas County High School, was among 235 graduating students from Robert Moody Callaway in Jackson, Miss.

Fifteen members of the Explorers took a trip to HemisFair. They stayed at Lackland Air Force Base.

Aransas County Little League Association and Rockport Jaycees worked together and made improvements to the Little League Park. New additions included incandescent lighting, hurricane fencing, scoreboard and flag pole.

L.D. Nuckles, information officer for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Rockport, narrated a CPL film "Wonderful World of Wildlife." The 28-minute film showed the varieties of native and imported wildlife in South Texas.

Rev. C.J. Molmen, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, was accepted to attend a three-day Christian writers course sponsored by Decision magazine. Only 200 writers from the United States and Canada were accepted.

Jody Manning won top honors in the organ division of a recital presented by Blanche Shell. Manning had won numerous trophies and ribbons for her performances.

Recession creates a new poor group

FORT WORTH — According to a study conducted at Texas Christian University, the recession of the last three years has created "a new poor."

In order to identify service needs that exist in Fort Worth and to shape local policy, the United Way of Metropolitan Tarrant County and the City of Fort Worth contracted with the Center for Organizational Research and Evaluation Studies (CORES) at Texas Christian University to complete a city-wide social services needs assessment.

"We don't have the problems that you associate with poverty. Traditional poverty — the kind we saw exposed in the 1950s — was second — and third — generation welfare families," said Patrick R.

Miller, associate director of CORES. "There's a myth, I think, that has grown about poverty that focuses on people who aren't willing to work, who are primarily black, Hispanic. But our findings don't reflect that. Sixty percent of the households that were at or below the poverty level have at least one person who is employed full time."

"Because our unemployment rate didn't rise as rapidly or as quickly as it did in other places, we felt like we were able to avoid the impact of the recession. The working core, which is what we identified, are the people of 1978 or 1979 who before the recession began were just above the poverty line. Those are the people who are impacted first," he said, "and they are the people who recover last."

Two arrested for service station theft

Two Rockport men, Joseph Allen Wooten and Orville Lee Mabes, were arrested and charged with theft over $5, under $200 after police received a call that two men were stealing batteries behind Jack's Exxon Station Sunday evening, May 29.

The incident occurred about 8:05 p.m. Both men were placed under $1,000 bond by Justice of the Peace Eileen Jeffers.

Police during the past week arrested one man on a charge of driving while intoxicated, made two arrests on charges of public intoxication and arrested one man for driving with license suspended.

Summer ballet classes scheduled

Summer ballet classes for children will be offered for six weeks beginning Monday, June 6, at the Ballet Academy in Rockport.

Classes will be offered for intermediate, beginner and pre-ballet levels on Mondays and Wednesdays under the direction of Nancy Sulik. Registration will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday, June 6, at the studio, located at the Shapemakers Studio in Market Center. For more information regarding schedule and tuition call 882-5224.

Library reading program to begin

A cattle drive from Rockport to Abilene, Kans., is the theme of this year's summer reading program set to begin Tuesday, June 7, at Aransas County Public Library.

Children in elementary plus 6th, 7th and 8th grades may register for the reading program which will officially begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

A variety of activities are planned around the cattle drive theme, according to Head Librarian Eunice Hamon, and each child participating in the program will be entitled to move his or her "cattle herd" closer to Abilene as he or she enters and complete each activity. Special programs are planned throughout the reading program — which will continue through July 28, Hamon said. Included in these will be a study of brands and each youngster will have the opportunity to design his own brand.

The summer reading program will also include films, posters and contests, Hamon said.

Last year 129 Aransas County children participated in the summer reading program and 83 of those read 10 or more books.

Holiday Beach VFD receives equipment

The Holiday Beach Volunteer Fire Department will receive a new piece of fire fighting equipment from the Texas Forest Service, Forest Fire Control Department, at 1 p.m. Wednesday, June 8.

Included will be one slip-on rig out-water expansion pump unit featuring a 750-gallon tank, electric reel and a 150-foot length hose one inch in diameter, plumbed into one unit.

TFS personnel will demonstrate the equipment and show firefighters how to operate it. The unit was purchased from TFS.

Although the Holiday Beach VFD does not yet have a chassis on which to install the new equipment, it is in the process of raising funds. Donations will be accepted.

The public and all interested persons are encouraged to attend the demonstration Wednesday.

Print, fabric combinations are newest fashion trend

Combining printed or textured fabrics is the idea behind an exciting current fashion trend. These fabrics can be combined in a single garment, or several garments of contrasting fabrics may be worn together to create the effect.

Practice is the best way to get a feeling for which fabrics and prints work well together. There are no set rules for this technique, but here are several suggestions:

- FOR PRINTS
 - Use a common color when mixing prints. Try to select the strongest of most dominant color or shade.
 - Fabrics using the same design in different sizes work well in combination. A wide stripe and a narrow stripe may be used together, for example.
 - A positive-negative effect can be created by using two calico prints that are identical except the print and background colors are reversed.

- Related or similar prints often coordinate well. Just remember that overwhelming prints or prints with no predominant color scheme do not mix easily.

- When mixing different patterns — like stripes with plaids — remember that each pattern should be about the same size and color.

- Consider using a dot or stripe with a small scale print in the same color.

- FOR TEXTURES
 - A "fuzzy" fabric will often mix well with a flatter-surfaced one.

- Consider the weight of each fabric if you are mixing them in one garment and make sure that they are not too different.

- Arrange the fabrics with the most delicate on top and the heavier fabrics toward the bottom, for a more pleasing appearance.
- Be sure to select compatible fabrics with the same care requirements.

Prints and textures can be tied together with binding, bias details, compatible lining, piping or foldover braid. Use accessories like belts, ties or scarves to accent color for a finishing touch.

Look at current fashion trends for ideas about mixing prints and textures for an exciting look to update your wardrobe.

Ask Kate

Natalie didn't sing

By Kate Woods

Natalie Wood

Help! I have a $50 bet on this with my girlfriend. She says Natalie Wood did her own singing in "West Side Story." I say it was Myrna Loy. — A.O.

Miss Wood was dubbed, but a sparkling soprano voice was never among Myrna Loy's many talents. Marni Nixon was behind the microphone.

FALLEN TREE — Why did "Monitor" replace a great show like "Family Tree"? — A.M.Z.

Because "Family Tree" never took root in the ratings. Despite its obvious quality, new episodes were never ordered after its initial six-week run. Oddly enough, "Monitor" finished this season in last place — 98th in the ratings — but has been renewed by NBC.

The network is putting it up against "60 Minutes" next year in programming's version of David and Goliath.

RAWHIDE REMEMBRANCE — How long did the series "Rawhide" run and what's become of Eric Fleming, who played Gil Favor? — G.H.

"Rawhide" ran on CBS seven years, from January 1959 through January 1966. Fleming left the show after the '65 season to concentrate on films. He drowned the following year while doing a movie scene on location in the Amazon. Fleming was 42.

FIRST CAGNEY — I say Sharon Gless is the original Cagney on "Cagney & Lacey." My mom disagrees. We have $20 on it. — V.R.

Loretta Swit was the original Chris Cagney in the movie pilot; Meg Foster took over the role in the initial series run, now we have Miss Gless. One thing is sure, she will be the last — CBS has dropped the show.

 Week of June 5-June 11

ARIES (March 21-April 20) Friends could hurt your reputation to the point where your job may be on the line. Put an end to gossip by facing up to reality.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) Approach someone who holds the key to your successful future and make overtures of a friendly nature. You have much to look forward to at the present time.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) Social activities will keep you busy most of the week. Don't neglect home duties in the meanwhile. You could fall behind in areas that are important.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) You will receive the support of an important person once you rid yourself of one who holds you back. All drift wood to drift.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) Promote a favorite hobby. Seek favors when and however necessary. You are in a good luck cycle and should take full advantage of it. Love comes to you via the back door.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Financial luck may give you that lift you've been waiting for. Don't sit back and expect the baskets of plenty to fill up, all by themselves.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) You may be tempted to become involved in an affair of the heart that can only have sad consequences. Don't allow someone to talk you into a sordid mess.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A neighborhood celebration could put your name in lights. Don't be surprised if someone who holds you in high esteem boosts you a step further up the ladder of success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Make up with someone you've been neglecting for a while. You will need this person's support in the near future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Compromise on a domestic issue and expect good results in the long run. Romance is still unpredictable, so be careful how you play your cards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Entertain to show off your new surroundings to those who are important to your future. Iron out a difference of opinion with someone you care for.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could fall in love with one who is fickle minded and quite irresponsible. Affectionate behavior on the part of someone you know well will astound you.

DOCTOR DETROIT, from Universal Pictures. Directed by Michael Pressman. Written by Carl Gottlieb, Robert Doris and Bruce J. Friedman. Starring Dan Aykroyd, Howard Hesseman and George Furth. Rated 'R.' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Who as a mild-mannered college professor, fights a never-ending battle for truth, justice and the American way? Not to mention equal rights for hookers.

Who is this modern-day, street-wise superman? It's none other than Dan Aykroyd, who plays a meek and mild college professor of literature who suddenly finds himself playing a pimp known only as "Dr. Detroit."

How does the professor become the super-"bad" Doctor Detroit? One hopes it will be through a wild, frantic and terribly humorous set of absurd circumstances, all of which leads to a vastly entertaining conclusion.

All of this is what "Dr. Detroit" wants to be, but it never really makes it.

Howard Hesseman plays "Smooth Walker," a pimp with a problem. He has been swindling money that his "girls" bring in to buy penthouses and limos, and turning it over to "mom," the mob leader in this stretch of turf known as Chicago. When Hesseman splits with the money, he looks for a patsy to take the fall, and sets up Aykroyd as the new gangster who has moved in on the action.

Aykroyd is not a stranger to playing many different characters, and here he gets to play the opposite roles of professor and pimp. Much of the action of the film centers around how Aykroyd steps out of his classroom and into the role of a downtown Don Quixote.

The "working girls" he befriends are a sort of United Nations of hookerdom. Comprising a foursome is one Oriental, one wayward Jewish princess, one black, and one blonde, all-American cheerleader type.

The film is not farcical enough to be consistently funny, even though moments will provide some laughs. Even these, however, are a tribute more to the talents of Aykroyd than the movie in general. There will be a movie that will fully utilize the enormous talents of Dan Aykroyd, but "Dr. Detroit" just isn't it.

Oenophile's Notebook

* In early April, the prestige vintner, Robert Mondavi Winery of Napa Valley, released their 1979 Reserve Pinot Noir. Reflecting the cool 1979 harvest season, this pinot noir has a delicate supple character, as well as both complexity and good structure from aging in French oak. A technique used in Burgundy, retaining the stems of the grapes during fermentation, offers this wine sufficient backbone for long development in the bottle; the winery suggests potential up to 10 years. An elegant wine of deep color, the Robert Mondavi 1979 Reserve Pinot Noir makes an excellent accompaniment to pungent, red meat dishes.

* Why are the worldwide exports of French Champagne down by 11 percent from last year if the Champagne harvest was the largest in history? The reason is that the new wine was used to replenish depleted cellar stocks, a policy adopted by Champagne producers to increase reserve stocks in order to maintain the quality of their blends; short harvest in the last four years have reduced stocks in Champagne.

* The 1982 vintage in Italy is slated to be memorable. In some quarters, it is being called the harvest of the century, with phrases like "an exceptional vintage," and "a vintage to remember," being used. Bountiful sunshine during the spring and summer resulted in both abundance and quality, and this has given the '82 vintage the appellation of the "Sun Harvest."

* The year 1982 was also important for France since their exports were up 20 percent and the harvest was excellent, with an overall very good rating throughout France and an exceptional qualification given to the Bordeaux '82 vintage. Partager is the largest selling French wine in the U.S.

Soap Beat

Love triangle puts Geary back in groove

By Connie Passalacqua

Tony Geary is a star even to people who loathe soap operas. The "General Hospital" actor is the first "crossover" soap star — known not as a mere daytime player who "moved up" to nighttime and who just happened to get his start on a soap, but as a celebrity recognized for his work while still on a soap. Three summers ago, Geary gained such notoriety (along with former co-star Genie Francis) that he appeared on the cover of Newsweek. This year he soloed on the cover of People. He's also the first daytime star to do a celebrity endorsement (for Members Only outerwear). But for many true soap fans, Geary's work after that glorious summer of 1980 has been a letdown. Genie Francis left the show a year and a half later, and "GH" wasn't able to come up with story lines to spotlight the talents of the actor who struggled to play the Laura-less Luke. Geary, handicapped by being inferior scripts, was under enormous pressure to prove his acting mettle.

Geary took a 13-week vacation at the beginning of this year, and since returning in early April, even nonbelievers admit he's again on the path to greatness. Obviously well-rested, he gives a strong performance as his character struggles with leg paralysis.

When Luke disappeared from Port Charles (during Geary's sabbatical) and was believed dead, his best friend Robert Scorpio (Tristan Rogers) married Luke's pregnant love, Holly Sutton (Emma Samms) to give her baby a name. Holly lost the baby but fell in love with her new husband.

Now that Luke is back, the Luke-Holly-Robert triangle is again letting Geary showcase his interpretation of the multifaceted Luke. Although this story line is a bit melodramatic, it's Geary's depiction of Luke's vulnerability in a similar situation that originally earned him his colossal fan following.

MEDICINE CHEST

Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

How many anti-viral drugs are there? — T.B.

Only five anti-viral drugs are approved. Amantidine (Symmetrel) for type A flu, Idoxuridine, Trifluridine (Viroptic) and Acyclovir (Zovirax) for the treatment of initial genital herpes. Other agents nearing approval are: Ramantidine for type A flu, Ribavirin (Virazole) for A & B flu and Interferon for the common cold.

I take Zylprim to prevent gout. Why is it very important to drink lots of water? — G.B.

This drug is a classic example of risks vs. benefits. The benefits, as you know, are that it prevents painful gout attacks from occurring. The risk is that the drug can cause another painful condition — the formation of kidney stones. This risk is greatly reduced by drinking at least 10 to 12 full (8 oz.) glasses of fluids a day.

What's in a salt substitute? — B.H.

They are a combination of chemicals. For example, one formula contains potassium chloride, monopotassium glutamate, tricalcium phosphate plus spices and flavorings. If you have reduced kidney function, you should avoid salt substitutes which contain large amounts of potassium.

reconciliation. Coming: Daphne devises a scheme which seems just perfect for Renee's purposes. Edge Of Night: Jody managed to get a job for Preacher at the theater. Gavin seemed anxious to help her but insisted she have dinner with him first. Nicole felt uneasy throughout the broadcast and finally passed out before she could finish the show. Coming: A new threat comes into Miles' life. General Hospital: Natalie stayed around while Luke interviewed a candidate for the new "pit boss" job at the casino. She asked the man questions, then persuaded Luke to hire him. Later "Control" cautioned her about putting one of their operatives on the spot. Jimmy Lee kidnapped Celia before her wedding to Grant and locked her in a cabin. She managed to escape. Coming: Connie gets closer to Luke. So does Natalie; each woman already has a reason for doing so.

Guiding Light: Morgan's decision to leave left Amanda feeling alone and anxious about the future. Alan promised he'd stand by her. Mrs. Renfield prepared a surprise for Quint and Nola. Coming: Ed becomes concerned over new information from Mike. One Life To Live: While going through Becky's things, Brad stumbled on a surprising secret about Delila's past. Clint was bewitched by Echo while Vicki was unaware of what was happening. Dorian continued her campaign to get Vicki's position at the paper. Coming: Becky's new threat to leave seems more real than at first. Ryan's Hope: Frank seemed to have lost his anxieties regarding Charlotte until he received a letter with her scent on it. Leigh's lawyers advised her against buying a TV station. She responded by firing him. Jill found Charlotte's dress hanging in Frank's closet. Coming: Maeve manages to trip up Frank's story. Leigh and Tom Jones meet again. Search For Tomorrow: Though proclaiming his intentions to end his wandering ways to save his marriage, Warren still cheated and wound up in Wendy's arms. Dane decided to leave Sunny. Coming: Michael and Andrea discuss their respective problems and each teaches the other a lesson in courage. Young & The Restless: Kay reconsidered her decision not to get more deeply involved. Nikki and Kevin reconsidered their decision regarding their future together. Julia considered Victor's request. Coming: Victor adds a new twist to his suggestion.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I work in a large advertising firm in New York City. My boss is a young, attractive, dynamic man. His energy and creativity are absolutely incredible. My problem is that I find myself so attracted to him, I can barely concentrate on my work. I have always considered myself a level-headed, professional woman. More and more, I catch myself staring at him during a meeting just daydreaming about what it would be like to be involved with him instead of concentrating on the business at hand. To make matters worse, he's married. I don't want to stop working for him because I can learn a lot from him. However, I am seriously thinking of transferring in order to get back on the right track. Do I have any alternatives?

STAR STRUCK DEAR STAR STRUCK:

Yours is not an uncommon problem. Many career women find themselves hard-pressed to resist the charms of their employers. Therefore, the first thing you have to do is stop feeling guilty about your feelings. However, you must approach this situation in much the same way you might approach a mathematical problem. Sit down one night and weigh everything carefully. Ask yourself some questions: What can I learn from this man that I can't get elsewhere? Why am I so obsessed with him? What do I stand to lose by actually indulging my feelings? Can I control these feelings? Am I really as attracted to him as I think I am?

Be honest when you answer the questions. It might even help to write them down. I believe once they are answered, you will have the solution to your problem.

DEAR DEBBIE:

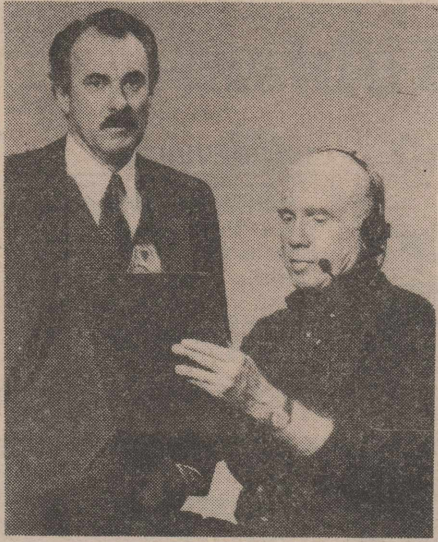

My husband and I have been married over 25 years. He has always been a hard-working, ambitious man. About a year and a half ago, for some reason unknown to me, he quit his job. He has not actively sought work since that time. I have a small dry-goods store which I share with someone else, but it doesn't provide the income we need to survive. Consequently, we have gone through our entire savings account, C.D.'s, etc., in order to meet the bills. I have confronted my husband to no avail. He gets hostile and tunes me out. Frankly, I've had it. I can't understand his sudden behavior change and can't live like a penny-scrouter. I'm really almost ready to dump him. How can I get him to go back to work?

BREADWINNER DEAR BREADWINNER:

Did you ever think your husband might have been fired a year and a half ago? Of course, I'm only guessing, but many men find that experience so utterly humiliating, they can't face going out to possibly be rejected again. This is especially so with middle-aged men. You might want to ask him, but do so with gentleness and tact. If he still refuses to discuss it, then you have to lower the boom. Tell him how you've been feeling and how serious this situation really is. Suggest to him that you both go for counseling so that your marriage and home life can get back on a workable keel. Sometimes, that third, objective party can more easily get to the root of the problem and provide you both with some insights you've overlooked.

McShane bares all about axed 'Essence'

By Joan Crosby

Even though his series "Bare Essence" had just been canceled after 11 episodes, Ian McShane was smiling.

"It's all right, love," says the charming British actor, who played Niko Theophilus, a conniving Greek shipping tycoon on the NBC serial.

The conclusion of the series airs Monday, June 13 as a two-hour TV movie, "Bare Essence: The Final Chapter."

"Next year there will probably be a miniseries called 'The Best of Bare Essence,' and 10 years from now, it will be a cult series."

McShane offered this post-mortem: "We certainly needed better writing and more delineation of character. They would bring in characters who were confusing. Also, the network changed the time slots, so the audience felt confused and they felt we wouldn't make it."

When "Bare Essence" began, the serial focused on the lives and loves of women perfume executives, but as the season wore on, McShane's character became more dominant.

On the show, he got to say lines like "I could populate a Greek fishing village with my illegitimate offspring." That remark was made to a woman who told him he should marry her because he had made her pregnant.

"I loved saying those lines," he says.

McShane says he doesn't want to do another TV series immediately. "But I would hate to block myself from anything good," he adds. He can now be seen in the current film "Exposed," and will be in "The Doorman," directed by Tony Lo Bianco. He's also ready to return to working on stage.

Ian McShane

He appeared in Los Angeles last year (with Penny Fuller and Lawrence Pressman) in Harold Pinter's "Betrayal" in an Equity-waiver theater (which means none of the actors got paid for their work). For that performance, he won a Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle Award.

McShane, who became a permanent resident of Hollywood two years ago, is married to American actress Gwen Humble. After shuttling for many years between Hollywood and Europe, he now says the advantage of living in the States is that here he can combine stage, film and TV work.
