Stalemate continues at London embassy

LONDON (AP) — The Iranian government refused to negotiate with the three Arab Iranians holding its embassy staff in London hostage for the third day today and told the British government it was up to it to end the siege.

"We are prepared to accept the martyrdom of our brothers in England," said President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, "but we will not yield to blackmail." And Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the matter was "entirely in the hands of the British government" to resolve in "the way it sees fit."

Ghotbzadeh said the safety of the hostages was Britain's responsibility. But he said the 16 captive Iranians told him in a message they were willing "to die as martyrs for the Islamic revolution."

Ghotbzadeh warned that for each member of the embassy staff harmed, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime would execute one of the 91 Arab prisoners in southern Iran whose release the terrorists demanded.

The gunmen took over the embassy Wednesday, capturing 17 members of the Iranian staff, three Britons and a Lebanese, and threatened to kill the Iranians if the Arab prisoners in Khuzestan, Iran's oil province on the Iraqi border, were not freed.

The predominantly Arab majority in southern Iran's Khuzestan Province, or Arabistan as the Arabs call it, has been demanding autonomy from the Tehran regime. The Arabs are one of several minority groups, including the Kurds and Turkomans, who are seeking self-rule from Iran's Persian majority.

The terrorists freed an Iranian woman Wednesday, let two deadlines pass Thursday without incident and then freed one of the British hostages who was having acute stomach pains.

Ghotbzadeh said the takeover of the London embassy could not be compared to the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and 53 members of its staff because "The London affair is a terrorist act, while the occupation of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran is a reaction by the Iranian people against years of suppression and domination by American power."

An unconfirmed report by a French TV correspondent said the gunmen demanded freedom for the American hostages in Iran— now in their 181st day of captivity — and Tehran Radio seized on that report to charge the Conservative British government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher with complicity in the London embassy takeover.

The broadcast said the seizure of the Iranian mission was a "joint plot hatched by the CIA and British intelligence" and Mrs. Thatcher was a U.S. "puppet." It said in her letter to to the Iranian government vowing to help save the diplomats, "by raising the rights of diplomats and their immunity from any encroachment, she wanted tacitly to tell us, tit for tat."

Tehran Radio also criticized Britain's anti-terrorist police for not dealing harshly with the Arab gunmen while cracking down on chanting Iranian students demonstrating outside the embassy in support of Khomeini.

A policeman broke his leg scuffling with the demonstrators Thursday. One of the Iranians also was injured, and 10 were arrested. Some members of the House of Commons called for tougher immigration laws to curb the flow of Iranian students to Britain.

"What is this flood of young Iranians...ostensibly coming to take advantage of educational facilties? It's got to be looked at. It's got to be stopped," said Merlyn Rees, a former Labor government home secretary.

Texans to indicate presidential choices

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas voters decide Saturday if the ill-fated effort to rescue the Iranian hostages had a major effect in the state on President Jimmy Carter's bid for re-election.

The balloting also will reveal if Republican George Bush's determined five-day drive closed the wide lead generally given front-runner Ronald Reagan.

Campaigning continued in the final hours as Reagan and Bush made frantic efforts Friday to gather a few more votes, even ending up in Houston at the same time.

There also was last-minute campaigning in the two Texas Railroad Commission races, which attracted most voter interest in statewide contests.

Polls open at 7 a.m. Saturday and close at 7 p.m., followed by 7:15 p.m. precinct conventions which are particularly important to Democrats.

About 5.5 million Texans are eligible to vote but only 2 million are expected to take the trouble — about 1.5 million in the Democratic primary and 500,000 in the Republican primary. Absentee voting has been slow in larger cities, although strong in Mexican-American areas.

Until the aborted hostage rescue effort in Iran, Carter had been given a wide lead over Sen. Edward Kennedy, as much as 3 to 1. However, there were indications Kennedy support grew since his win in Pennsylvania.

Carter rushed to San Antonio April 28 to visit the five commandos injured in the unsuccessful Iranian incident. The two-hour "non-political" visit was his first departure from Washington since the Iranian crisis began 178 days ago.

Kennedy, D-Mass., visited the same five the next day. He held off direct criticism but aides claimed Carter's whirlwind trip was partially designed to help Carter in Texas. Kennedy also campaigned in Houston and San Antonio with farmworkers union leader Cesar Chavez among cheering Mexican-American crowds.

Rosalynn Carter, who cut short a previous campaign trip in Texas when the rescue mission failed, followed her husband to San Antonio three days later, vowing, "We're not going to lose Texas." She said "people thought it was the right thing to do."

Reagan has been running strong in Texas since former Texas Gov. John Connally withdrew from the race. The latest Texas Monthly magazine poll gave Reagan a 75-21 percent edge among Texas Republicans.

The former California governor made five trips to the state, hitting West, East and Central Texas, plus Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, and San Antonio. He counts heavily on the base laid in his 1976 sweep of all 100 Texas delegates from President Gerald Ford.

However, adopted Texan Bush set aside a hefty $500,000 for a quickie Texas campaign blitz that concentrated on urban areas. He said he was the "alternative to both Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan." His TV advertisements ended with: "George Bush is the one candidate that Jimmy Carter hopes he never has to run against."

"There has been considereable movement away from Reagan toward me ... we are going to do better than anybody has predicted," he said.

The Democratic Party's process of choosing a presidential nominee does not actually begin until the 7:15 p.m. precinct conventions Saturday.

At their 1978 convention, Texas Republicans decided that the vote in the May 3 presidential preference primary would be used in determining how many national convention delegates are committed to a candidate.

This will be a choice between Ronald Reagan, George Bush or "uncommitted."

On the other hand, Texas Democratic leaders decided last year to select their national convention delegates at the June 20-21 state convention in San Antonio.

However, last March 10 the State Democratic Executive Committee also decided to hold a non-binding voter opinion poll.

This referendum for President Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy or "uncommitted" has no direct effect on the choice of the delegates to the August national Democratic convention in New York, where the party's presidential candidate will be picked.

After Saturday's voting, state Republican headquarters will be able to say exactly how many national delegates were alloted to Reagan or Bush.

If either of the Republican candidates gets 50 percent of the vote in one of the 24 congressional districts he gets all three delegates from that district. If the leading candidate has a plurality but less than 50 percent, he gets two delegates and the other gets one delegate, provided the trailing candidate got at least 20 percent of the vote in that district.

This will account for 72 of Texas 80 delegates to the July national convention in Detroit. The other eight delegates will be selected at the June state convention in Houston, using the May 3 vote as a guideline.

At the Democratic conventions in the 5,804 voting precincts, those who voted Democratic on Saturday will sign in, giving their preference for the presidential nominee. This sign-in procedure will be used in selecting delegates to the county conventions on May 10, which in turn selects the state convention delegates by a similar sign-in.

At each convention the delegates will be divided proportionately between Carter, Kennedy and "uncommitted."

Polls will open here at 7 a.m.

Local Demos, Republicans have many choices

Polls for Saturday's Democratic and Republican party primaries will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Registered voters are urged to bring their white voter registration cards with them to the polls to cut down on lines and waiting times. Registered voters who have lost or never received their cards may still vote by signing an affidavit, but election officials note every delay can add to waiting time if the turnout is large.

Although poll workers stamp the voter registration cards with a party designation when a voter casts his ballot, the stamp is primarily to prevent people from voting in both primaries and does not obligate or make them members of either party, officials of both parties stressed.

The Democratic ballot includes the following candidates:

For the non-binding presidential preference referendum: Jimmy Carter, Edward M. Kennedy, Jerry Brown and uncommitted.

For U.S. Representative 19th District: Kent Hance

Railroad Commissioner: John Poerner and Buddy Temple

Referendum 1, for or against: Under supervision of a judge, the state police should be able to use electronic surveillance methods, such as wiretapping, in cases where suspected drug dealers are involved.

Referendum 2, for or against: Texas should have Initiative and Referendum, a way for the public to vote directly on issues and make laws in elections rather than depending only on the state legislature.

Railroad Commission races Texas' most hotly contested

By The Associated Press

Two spots on the powerful Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil and gas industry and public utilities in the state, have generated hotly contested races in Saturday's primaries. Challengers claimed the three-member panel — all Democrats — serves oil companies rather than consumers in its regulation of energy, transportation and gas utilities systems.

A new dimension was added to the races this week, when Texas became the first state to receive control of surface mining. That function was relinquished to the commission by the federal government Monday.

Incumbent John Poerner, appointed to the commission in 1978 by then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe, faced a well-financed campaign by State Rep. Buddy Temple for a six-year term.

Temple, 37, son of a East Texas timber magnate and a Time, Inc., vice president, charged the commission has been "a private club" for special interests. He called Poerner a lackadaisical commissioner who "does little to influence things."

Both candidates favor decontrolled oil and gas prices, deregulation of the oil industry and lower coal freight

Texas area forecast

West Texas. Partly cloudy through Saturday with widely scattered late afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms. Highs mid 60s Panhandle to upper 80s Big Bend. Lows mid 40s north to near 60 south. Highs Saturday upper 60s Panhandle to upper 80s Big Bend.

Cloudy, warm weather forecast

Midlanders can expect some cloudiness with Saturday's spring-like temperatures.

However, there remains a slight chance of rain tonight and Saturday.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting a 20 percent chance of precipitation for tonight and Saturday. The high temperature for Saturday should be in the mid-70s, with tonight's low in the upper 40s.

Thursday's high of 78 fell short of the record high for May 1 — 95 degrees set in 1936. The overnight low of 47 also missed the record low by 11 marks — 36 degrees in 1967.

Winds tonight should variable in direction at 5-10 mph.

Old sign causes fire

Someone who accidentally flipped the wrong switch apparently started a fire Thursday afternoon at the Apollo Motel in the 3300 block of West Front Street.

Firemen received the call at 1:55 p.m. and spent approximately 1¾ hours battling the blaze.

According to Fire Marshal Herb Bloomer, the fire began near a neon sign above the motel. The motel manager told fire officials the sign had been abandoned several years ago. The circuit breaker to the sign was located in a fuse box in one of the carports, and apparently someone having trouble with electricity in his room flipped the wrong circuit breaker, Bloomer said, activating the sign.

Rooms 22 and 23 received the heaviest damage, since the fire began in the attic by No. 22.

"It smoldered some time before it was noticed in those wooden two-by-fours in the attic," Bloomer said.

The fire spread quickly through the paper-covered fiberglass insulation in the attic and five rooms received smoke and water damage.

Several carport ceilings and one apartment ceiling were torn out by firemen in their effort to extinguish the blaze.

Firemen used 12,500 gallons of water to put out the fire.

Residents of Room 22 were forced to evacuate, but no one was injured in the blaze.

The motel is owned by Jay Patel.

Following swearing-in ceremonies Thursday for Midland city officials, City Manager James Brown, left, presents a nameplate to newly-elected Mayor G. Thane Akins. The nameplate, which states "G. Thane Akins — Avalanche," obviously alludes to Akins' eight-vote margin of victory in the April city election. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Jobless rate jumps to 7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate shot up from 6.2 percent to 7 percent in April, the highest level in 2½ years and a powerful sign that the economy is being squeezed by the vice of recession, the government reported today.

It also was the largest one-month increase in the jobless rate among adult men in more than three decades.

The Labor Department said the number of Americans without jobs grew by 825,000 from March to 7.3 million, with the largest unemployment increases coming in the slumping construction and auto industries.

THE RISE IN THE JOBLESS rate was the steepest for one month since January 1975, when the nation was in the grip of its last recession. Even more startling was the leap in unemployment among adult men from 4.9 percent to 5.9 percent, the largest monthly increase since October 1949.

The jobless figures parallel other recent economic indicators pointing to a recession and lend new evidence to revised predictions that the downturn will be substantially deeper then President Carter is forecasting.

The president has predicted a "short and mild" recession with unemployment rising to 7.2 percent by the end of this year and staying at about that level through 1981.

Some government economists, however, say unemployment now may rise to as much as 8 or 9 percent, matching the peak jobless figures during the 1974-75 recession.

THE EMPLOYMENT FIGURES "show that a labor market recession is clearly under way," Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, told Congress today.

Mrs. Norwood, whose bureau prepared the employment report, said in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee that so far this year unemployment has risen by 1.2 million people. Unemployment was at a 21.5 percent rate among auto workers and a 15.1 percent rate for construction workers, she said.

The deteriorating economy raises new questions about whether Carter will stick to his plans for a balanced budget and other tight fiscal and monetary policies for fighting inflation, which critics say are responsible for bringing on a severe recession.

HARDEST HIT BY THE unemployment increase were blue-collar workers. Their unemployment rate surged from 8 percent in March to 9.7 percent in April.

By contrast, unemployment among service workers rose from 7.1 percent to 8 percent, and the rate for white collar workers increased from 3.3 percent to 3.7 percent.

As of Thursday, Carter remained committed to curbing inflation as the top economic priority of his administration.

The Labor Department said employment decreased in virtually every economic sector during April except in government, where the number of jobs rose by 75,000, primarily due to the hiring of temporary workers for the 1980 census.

Employment dropped 140,000 in construction, 123,000 in autos and 130,000 in trade.

OVERALL EMPLOYMENT declined by 500,000 jobs during the month to 97.2 million, the lowest level in nearly a year.

The unemployment rate, until April, had remained remarkably stable at about 6 percent for more than two years.

The last time unemployment reached 7 percent was August 1977.

The Labor Department gave breakdowns of april unemployment rates among the following employment groups:

— Adult women, 6.3 percent, up from 5.7 percent in March.

— Teen-agers, 16.2 percent, up from 15.9 percent.

— Non-white teen-agers, 29.8 percent, down from 33 percent.

— Whites 6.2 percent, up from 5.4 percent.

— Non-whites, 12.6 percent, up from 11.8 percent.

— Full-time workers 6.6 percent, up from 5.8.

— Part-time workers, 8.9, up from 8.3.

Farmer guilty

A Midland jury found James Lloyd Farmer, 20, guilty Thursday of indency with a child.

Farmer was arrested in Dennis the Menace Park Feb. 2 after he picked up a small boy as police approached him. Testifying in his own defense, Farmer admitted he had been sniffing acrylics for "about 45 minutes" before the incident, but said he had "blacked out" and remembered nothing of the incident.

He denied having touched the boy.

A Midland police officer and the boy's mother testified Farmer picked the child up and ran holding him with one arm around the boy's chest and the other between the child's legs.

Testimony in the trial began Tuesday morning, and the jury began deliberations about 10:30 a.m. Thursday. The verdict was returned about 8 p.m.

Punishment phase of the trial began at 9 a.m. today.

Poer sets Sunday concert

Robert Poer will present a Midland College faculty concert Sunday in Memorial Christian Church at 7:30 p.m. The concert is open to the public without charge. The program will include selections from such composers as Bach, Brahms, Langlais, Walond and Boyvin.

Memorial Christian Church is located at the intersection of Cuthbert St. and Andrews Highway. Its sanctuary includes a large pipe organ.

An adjunct faculty member at Midland College for the past three years, Poer teaches keyboard classes and private keyboard lessons.

He earned his bachelor of music degree from Texas Christian University and his master of sacred music from Southern Methodist University. Poer has been a church musician for the past 22 years, including a number of years as minister of music at Midland's First Presbyterian Church. Currently, he is serving as organist for the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Midland.

'Freedom Flotilla' facing new storm

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A new storm churned toward the Florida Straits today and the Coast Guard warned hundreds of boaters in the "Freedom Flotilla" from Cuba to get off the water and seek shelter.

The Coast Guard warned boaters that "massive storms, high winds and hail" were expected within six to 10 hours.

"We don't want any capsized boats," said Coast Guard spokesman Paul Scotti in Miami. "We may never find them."

A similar storm on Sunday generated hurricane-force gusts that left more than 20 small boats capsized or sunk. Two bodies were found in one boat. Two others were sighted at sea then lost.

Meanwhile, as hundreds more Cubans shouting "Viva Presidente Carter" arrived at Key West, the U.S. government was erecting a refugee tent city at a North Florida air base.

The White House formally announced today that it is setting up a processing and screening center at Eglin Air Force Base in the Florida Panhandle to relieve the crush at Key West.

Jack Watson, a presidential assistant, said the Eglin facility would be able to accommodate approximately 1,000 persons within 24 hours and that within 10 days it could handle as many as 10,000 persons.

Meanwhile, federal officials calculated the flotilla shuttling refugees from Cuba to the United States had grown to about 3,000 vessels.

"If the people of Cuba have the opportunity, (President Fidel) Castro will be the only one left there," said refugee Jose Antonio Arse, 77.

The Coast Guard said Thursday the Cuban exile fleet that has carried more than 7,000 refugees across the Florida Straits in the last 12 days now numbers at least 3,000 boats.

The exodus apparently is the heaviest flow of Cubans ever into the United States. Some 1,000 refugees a week flew into Miami at the height of a Cuban airlift in the late 1960s and 1970s.

Federal officials said today that three persons were arrested after bringing 10 refugees ashore at Marathon, about 45 miles from Key West.

U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler said Orlando Perez, Herman Seffano and Rafael Casalas were arrested Thursday on charges of attempting to smuggle undocumented aliens into the United States. Their boat, the "Super S," was seized and the passengers were escorted to Key West for processing.

U.S. immigration officials had designated the old U.S. Navy base at Key West and the U.S. Customs dock on the Miami River in downtown Miami as the only entry points for Cuban refugees and had threatened to arrest anyone landing Cubans elsewhere.

In a May Day speech in Havana, Castro called the exodus a "hurricane" that started in the Peruvian Embassy in Cuba's capital city and "follows its natural course to the United States."

In the past two days, nearly all incoming refugees here have been among the 10,800 Cubans who flocked to the embassy a month ago seeking political asylum. Castro denied reports he was forcing undesirables off the communist-controlled island and onto boatlift vessels.

"We never have deported anybody," he said. "But we have the absolute right ... to authorize the exit of anti-socials who want to leave."

Cuban ex-convict Jesus Blanco Perez said in Miami that Castro's police "are picking up everybody who has been in jail and telling they must leave the country or go to prison for four years."

Seventy-two refugees had been detained for security reasons by late Thursday, said Richard Gullage, deputy U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service director in Miami.

Many of the refugees said thousands more Cubans are hoping for a rebirth of the "Freedom Flights" that brought 250,000 Cubans to South Florida a decade ago.

"The number of people who want to leave is in the millions," said Roberto Castro Bernal. "They are waiting for word of an air bridge from Havana."

Bond set for pair jailed in gambling raid

Peace Justice John Biggs Thursday set bond at $5,000 each for Dick Leonard and Billy Shipman, both of Midland, on felony charges of gambling promotion.

The charges were the result of a gambling raid early Wednesday morning by Department of Public Safety criminal intelligence agents and Midland police. Felony charges against a third man, who has been out of town, are expected to be filed today. Misdemeanor charges against 10 other persons also are pending.

A DPS spokesman said intelligence agents had been investigating this operation for about a year but had been unable to prove anything until Tuesday night. At that time, DPS Agent Jim Barnes received a call of possible illegal gambling at a north Midland residence. A search warrant was obtained and executed with the assistance of the Midland Police Department.

Thirteen people were taken into custody, and $7,400 was confiscated as well as gambling paraphernalia.

Mobster retrial probable

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The trial of reputed mobster kingpin Aniello Della Croce on murder conspiracy charges has ended in a mistrial, but a prosecutor expects the government to retry him using evidence excluded from this trial.

U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger Jr. declared the mistrial Wednesday after the eight women and four men on the jury sent him a note saying they were hopelessly deadlocked.

"The lines of the opposing jurors are drawn without a chance of arriving at a unanimous decision," the note read. "The jurors feel it would be senseless to continue."

DELLA CROCE, 65, who prosecutors called the "don of dons" of organized crime, was charged with violating federal anti-racketeering statutes by ordering the murder of a mobster turned informant and running a South Florida extortion ring through his top position in the New York Gambino crime family.

The state argued that Della Croce ordered the murder of Charles "Charlie the Bear" Calise during a meeting of mobsters at a New York restaurant in 1974 when prison records showed Della Croce was behind bars for tax evasion.

"I'm innocent," Della Croce said after the mistrial was declared. "This was all a big frame. Put that in your newspaper. I was in jail at the time. That's their hobby."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Fred Schwartz said the government would have no more evidence for a new trial, but "evidence excluded in one trial can be admitted in another trial."

THE PROSECUTION suffered a major blow when the judge refused to allow testimony about New York City jail scandals where mobsters reportedly were allowed to go in and out of jail. Several New York City guards have been convicted of letting Mafia figures out of jail overnight.

Schwartz said the witnesses would have explained how Della Croce could have been at Lanza's restaurant in New York allegedly planning the murder when he was supposed to be in jail for tax evasion.

But Roettger ruled the testimony was too remote and irrelevant.

The ruling left the jury with prison records showing Della Croce behind bars at the time of the meeting in spring 1974 and two prosecution witnesses who claimed he was not.

Jurors deliberated more than 10 hours over three days. They sent three notes Tuesday saying they were deadlocked, and the judge ordered them to keep trying.

Roettger ordered jurors not to reveal their split votes after receiving the fourth note.

Dickenson heads park service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russell E. Dickenson, a 33-year veteran of the National Park Service, was picked Thursday to head the agency in an action which received widespread praise from conservation groups.

Dickenson replaces William J. Whalen, who was fired as director last week by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus after a stormy three years in which Whalen came under fire from a powerful congressman, various conservation groups and park service employees complaining of low morale.

Andrus called Dickenson "an old pro who can be expected to inspire confidence among coworkers and those concerned with the future of our great national park system."

Muskie's mirror image

Cyrus Vance's resignation as Secretary of State and President Jimmy Carter's nomination of U.S. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine to replace Vance initially was viewed by allies and foes alike of the United States as an indication of a divided and incoherent America.

But in looking carefully at the facts, it seems that both Vance's decision to depart the Carter Administration and Muskie's nomination as his replacement may well prove beneficial to this nation's foreign policy.

Vance, although mirroring to a degree the weakness and ineptitude of President Carter and other administration officials on foreign policy matters, apparently had lost any semblance of continuity in attempting to stress the Carter administration's foreign policy decisions to the other nations of the world.

The final straw came when Vance could not bring himself to agree with the hostage rescue mission to Iran, which ended in failure last week with the deaths of eight American servicemen.

Vance should not be blamed totally for his change of heart on this departure from Carter indecision. During recent months the president apparently has begun to lean more toward harder line measures in dealing with the Iranians and in criticizing the Soviet aggression in Afghanistan.

A Secretary of State who cannot wholeheartedly embrace the stance of a president and his administration on policy decisions would be the ineffectual link in a chain that could well lead to failure on important foreign relations matters.

In that light, Vance's decision to resign must be viewed as a step taken in the best interest of the nation.

Vance was widely viewed by U.S. allies as a foreign policy "plus" for the United States, however, and announcement of his resignation brought the expected nervous response from both heads of state and the stock markets.

President Carter's selection of Muskie, as Vance's replacement, on the other hand, seemed to quiet some fears both domestically and abroad.

Muskie, who has served in the Senate since 1959 and was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1972, is not a political newcomer to the field of foreign relations, having served on the Foreign Relations Committee. But neither does he posses the diplomacy — the quiet voice in the storm — of Cy Vance.

The Maine senator's voting record indicates he probably will be able to support Carter's foreign policy decisions, an essential element in exhibiting an image of cohesiveness and unity to both allies and foes of the United States.

What the United States may see from Edmund Muskie as Secretary of State is more of a mirror image of Jimmy Carter. Hopefully that image will reflect more of the resolve and toughness we've seen from President Carter in recent weeks.

CHARLEY REESE

Rockefeller, the CFR determine foreign policy

Charley Reese

I am going to tell you why the country is in such a mess. The reason may strike you as unbelievable, but stick with me to the end and at least consider it.

It wouldn't be so hard to grasp except that there is a lot of confusion generated on the far right and far left. The far right sees what's going on and talks about communist conspiracies; the far left, including communists, also sees it and talks about capitalist conspiracies. The rest of us hear all of this talk and conclude they are both crazy.

Actually, they are both about 90 percent right. There is indeed a relatively small elite of extremely wealthy individuals who more or less run this country and make practically all of the important decisions on public policy.

The communists are wrong because these people, while they are very rich and in command of the megacorporations, are not really capitalists. A competitive free market system is about the last thing in the world they want, although they all pay lip service to free enterprise when it suits their purpose.

That far right is wrong because these people, while they sometimes cooperate with communists, are no more communists than they are capitalists. They don't believe in ideologies; only in money.

They exert their control with subtlety and indirection. They operate on the old boy network principle. They endow and sit on the boards of the most prestigious universities; they set up foundations, which in turn fund think tanks. They own the major communications outlets. They play an often decisive role in political campaigns. They have armies of journalists, professors, administrators and other employees on their payrolls. They themselves sit on all of these boards and marry each other's daughters. They are very much like the old aristocracies except they don't have feudal titles.

On the whole, they're a decent enough bunch; a bit arrogant but that's to be expected. If you are born to great wealth and surrounded all your life by people who cater to you, you have a natural tendency to believe that you are in fact a very special person.

Typically, they decide what is in their own economic interest and then, utilizing their complex network, convince the rest of us that what they want to do is in the national interest. Like the late Al Capp's Bullmoose, they believe that what is good for them is good for the country.

Unfortunately for us, many of these aristocrats have far more money and influence than good, common sense. Unfortunately for us, some of these aristocrats care a great deal more about their bank accounts than they do about such silly things as human rights, liberty or even peace.

Their major instrument of control in foreign affairs is the Council on Foreign Relations. This was set up after World War I, by the Rockefeller and Morgan interests. By World War II, the Council on Foreign Relations and the U.S. State Department were indistinguishable.

The Council on Foreign Relations has initiated every major foreign policy decision. From it came the United Nations, foreign aid, the international monetary system, the World Bank, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, you name it. If you look at U.S. foreign policy on the surface, it often makes no sense; if you look at it in terms of how it serves the elite, it makes a lot of sense.

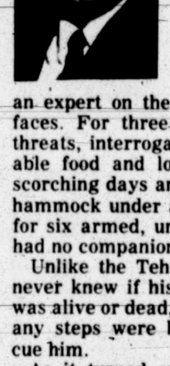

The Iranian crisis is a case in point. David Rockefeller, chairman of the Council on Foreign Relations, persuaded President Carter to admit the Shah. President Carter had been warned that if he did there would be trouble in Tehran.

For Americans, the decision proved disastrous, but for Rockefeller, it was a good one. He showed the Shah, a very big customer of his banks, that he could still perform valuable services. Furthermore, the crisis enabled President Carter to seize Iranian assets and one of his first decisions was to allow banks, including Mr. Rockefeller's, to deduct from those assets loans made to the Shah's old government.

For verification of what I've told you, see: Tragedy and Hope, by Carroll Quigley; Who's Running America, by Thomas R. Dye; The Powers That Be, by G. William Domhoff; and Serving the Few, by Edward S. Greenberg. Those guys, by the way, are all college professors and there's not a rightwing nut in the bunch.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

First Lady played quiet role to free Starr

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — First Lady Rosalynn Carter invited a U.S. hostage to the White House last week for a chat. It wasn't one of the Tehran hostages, but Richard Starr, a former Peace Corps volunteer who spent three agonizing years as the captive of Marxist guerrillas in the jungles of Colombia.

Mrs. Carter had a special reason for welcoming the 32-year-old botanist back home: She played a quiet but effective role in his release last February.

Unlike the bureaucrats in the State Department and the Peace Corps, who gave Starr's mother, Charlotte Jensen, the brush-off when she sought their help in freeing her son, Mrs. Carter interceded twice for Starr.

On a trip to Colombia a few months after Starr was abducted, she asked Colombia's then-President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen about the U.S. captive's predicament. Later, when she learned of my ransom negotiations with Starr's kidnappers, the first lady initiated contact with the government of President Julio Turbay Ayala and asked for their cooperation.

Starr and Mrs. Carter discussed the Tehran hostage situation during their White House meeting. She expressed the hope that the new sanctions against Iran by the United States and our allies would not drive the Iranians into the arms of the Soviet bloc — which appears to be just what's happening.

Starr had a special request. (This was before the abortive hostage rescue attempt). Would it be possible for him to speak with the families of the Tehran hostages? He told Mrs. Carter he felt he could reassure them that their loved ones could weather their ordeal without permanent ill effects.

There's no doubt that Dick Starr is an expert on the trauma a hostage faces. For three years he endured threats, interrogations, barely palatable food and loneliness. He spent scorching days and chilly nights in a hammock under a tarpaulin. Except for six armed, unsmiling guards, he had no companionship.

Unlike the Tehran captives, Starr never knew if his family thought he was alive or dead, and did not know if any steps were being taken to rescue him.

As it turned out, his indomitable mother never gave up hope that he was alive, and did not give up her battle to free him. Unable to penetrate the bureaucratic curtain of indifference, Mrs. Jensen finally came to me. Months of secret negotiations led to a ransom demand for $250,000. I borrowed the money from a friend in the business world and my associate Jack Mitchell flew to Colombia with the money.

After six days of clandestine meetings, coded phone calls, and pre-dawn car rides, the ransom was paid in a dingy hotel room near the edge of the jungle.

Four nights later, an exhausted but elated Starr was quietly brought to Mitchell at his hotel, and after a hasty exit from Colombia, he was reunited with his overjoyed mother the next morning at an Air Force base in Panama.

Footnote: Mrs. Jensen's heroic efforts were successful, but she hasn't been able to recover the full amount of the ransom. Contributions, which are tax deductible, may be sent to the Drew Pearson Foundation, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, D.C. 20013.

CAPITAL CURIOSITY: Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., is a respected if lackluster legislator, devoted to the Baptist faith, and more likely to be found in the prayer circle than the cocktail parties of Washington.

Hatfield puts public service ahead of material gain. He disdained a salary increase, because "I don't need the money for personal finances."

Yet the senator and his wife, Antoinette, have managed to accumulate more than their share of lucre. Most of their money has come from honest enterprise. But some of their financial dealings might raise Baptist eyebrows.

As the ranking Republican member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which has jurisdiction over energy legislation, Hatfield should disdain oil money above all other. Yet he accepted a no-interest loan of less than $15,000 from Graham Lacey, a Londoner who controls half a dozen companies.

Hatfield also received a $25,000 loan at the ridiculously low interest rate of 4 percent from Paul Temple, chairman of the Energy Capital Company, which holds substantial oil and gas leases in the United States.

Arab petrodollars also filtered into the Hatfield bank accounts at the same time that he has championed Arab interests on Capitol Hill. As a power on the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee dealing with foreign operations, he is courted by the Arabs. He was the only senator last year to declare the receipt of an Arab gift. He reported, as required by law, that he had accepted a $350 watch from Saudi Arabia's King Khalid. Earlier, Antoinette Hatfield was the realtor who sold the Saudi government a million-dollar building for use as an embassy. Her commission was over $30,000.

There is sworn evidence that Gulf Oil Company once contributed $10,000 to Hatfield's campaign at the suggestion of the Kuwait government. It was a suggestion that the company could not refuse since it depended heavily upon Kuwait for oil supplies. Hatfield is a friend of then-Kuwaiti Ambassador Salem al-Sabah, who is the son of the Kuwait emir, Sheik Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah.

Footnote: The Hatfields pleaded ignorant of the financial involvements of both Lacey and Temple, although the senator acknowledged to our reporter Mark Zusman that he had a vague idea that Temple "had something to do with oil." Hatfield also claimed he did not know that his Gulf Oil contribution was made as a result of Kuwaiti pressure.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, May 2, the 123rd day of 1980. There are 243 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 2, 1536, England's Queen Anne Boleyn was sent to the Tower of London. She was eventually beheaded at the order of Henry VIII.

On this date:

In 1670, the Hudson's Bay Company was chartered by England.

In 1863, Confederate Gen. Stonewall Jackson was mistaken for a Union scout and fatally wounded by his own soldiers during the Civil War battle of Chancellorsville, Va.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished labor unions in Germany.

In 1945, Berlin surrendered to Soviet forces in World War II.

Five years ago, Saigon radio — under communist control — announced the reorganization of the South Vietnamese labor movement as Hanoi continued to make changes in its newly conquered neighbor.

Last year, actor John Wayne underwent intestinal surgery, but his doctors said they had found no lingering trace of his stomach cancer.

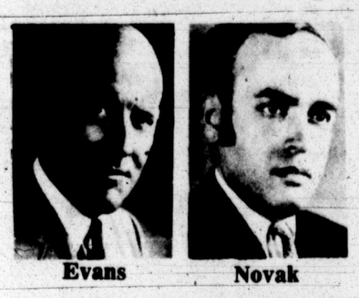

Today's birthdays: King Hussein of Jordan is 45 years old. Pediatrician and writer Benjamin Spock is 77.

Thought for today: Nothing is really work unless you rather would be doing something else — James Barrie (1860-1937).

WASHINGTON — The gap between Cyrus Vance and Jimmy Carter had so widened that the now-departed secretary of state specifically included the president in a slighting reference to "those pygmies in the White House" during an intimate chat recently with friends in his State Department office.

Vance's target, however, was less President Carter than the political aides who run the nation's policy on the basis of what is best for their chief's re-election. The "pygmies," Vance believes, had changed Carter's mind about the U.S. vote in the United Nations criticizing Israel. That greatly intensified Vance's alienation from the political team, headed by Hamilton Jordan, that long preceded the embarrassing presidential switch on the U.N. resolution.

Thus, what is at stake in the first walkout by a secretary of state since William Jennings Bryan in 1915 is not high U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union nor any sudden Carter switch from dove to hawk. The appointment of Sen. Edmund Muskie confirms no major change in Vance's course. Vance simply had reached a point of no return in working with a white house staff that, with the onrush of the 1980 election, had siezed tactical control of policy at his expense.

Evidence supporting this is the Carter private offer to Vance April 21: You can come out publicly against the hostage-rescue operation, Carter told Vance, and I still want you as secretary of state. Carter gave Vance three choices: publicly disagree and stay; publicly lie — pretending support of the hostage mission — and stay; or quit.

In other words, the president was not abandoning Vance's policy of conciliation at the expense of firm positions backed by a strong defense. The president wanted him to stay as secretary of state, if he would only acquiesce — in some way or another — in the Iranian hostage strategy devised by his political aides.

In his dramatic exit, Vance has become a martyr to the foreign policy establishment and other detentists who fear the "born-again hawk" in the White House is leading the nation to destruction. While Vance's departure seems to strengthen the more confrontational position of national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, no celebration has broken out among those who advocate a tougher foreign policy.

Vance was principal author of Carter's failed effort to make the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) the bedrock of detente with Moscow. Vance and his lieutenants at State repeatedly turned a blind eye to multiplying signs of Soviet incursions. That stategy was behind a tight-fisted attitude toward the defense budget, particularly naval and air expenditures.

But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan made pursuit of SALT II and the Carter-Vance detente policy impractical with a presidential election one year away. So, Vance's grand design lies buried in the dust of contemporary events, not a conscious rethinking of global strategy.

Although Brzezinski always demanded tougher policies toward Moscow than Vance wanted, it is uncertain whether the president is truly willing to accept them. As we have reported, the burst of anti-Soviet rhetoric from the president as Afghanistan was raped and the election neared has not been matched by changes in policy. Carter's agents on Capitol Hill have fought hard against higher budget ceilings for defense; his diplomats have kept the framework of U.S.-Soviet negotiations intact and tried to cover up Soviet germ warfare capability.

Moreover, Vance and Brzezinski often have been dual victims of the Carter political team. Brzezinski was an ally, however silent, of Vance in opposing presidential repudiation of the anti-Israel vote at the U.N. They also agree that Soviet aggression against Afghanistan (which has little domestic political impact) is a more fundamental problem in the long run than American hostages in Tehran (which has maximum domestic political impact.)

Both have suffered from the Carter political team's refusal to fund national security projects at the expense of politically-sensitive domestic projects. When Vance proposed massive U.S. aid to Oman for U.S. military rights, he was put down by Budget Director James McIntyre who insisted that the funds come out of the U.S. arms budget. Brzezinski suffered a similar fate when he returned from Pakistan with his arms proposals.

The crowning blow came with the political decision to make Vance the scapegoat for Carter on the U.N. vote. That was accompanied by Carter's dispatch to Paris of non-diplomatic emissaries — including Jordan allegedly wearing various disguises — to negotiate release of the American hostages. Carter's "pygmies" seized the hostage issue as their avenue to election-year success for a president with deep political problems.

When the president overruled Vance last week and sent the rescue mission to Iran, Vance's decision was easy; he had been ready to call it quits for a long time. He had lost, not to a newly-realistic world outlook, but to the exigencies of Jimmy Carter's re-election.

Mark Russell says

Ronald Reagan has picked up a large following over the years with a straightforward and simple style of speaking. His idea of a think tank — is a doctor's waiting room filled with old Reader's Digests.

Many people who didn't like the Gipper 10 years ago are gradually taking to him today. The way they put it — "The older I get, the younger he seems."

Old Washington hands are resigning themselves to a possible Reagan Presidency. They figure when he gets here, he'll cut the town down to the size of the Dixon, Ill., town council.

It's too bad President Carter can't use one particular strategy against Reagan by saying, "Haven't we learned a lesson from putting an ex-governor in the White House?"

Political reform: Strange bedfellows result of primaries

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strange things have been wrought in the name of reform. Tax reform bills have opened new loopholes. Welfare reform proposals have turned out to be either costly expansions or punitive cutbacks.

But it would be difficult to find a more bizarre product of reform than the process by which a handful of Democrats in Michigan picked 141 national convention delegates. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy got 71, President Carter got 70, and most of the voters got nothing to say about it.

Another big delegation, 152 delegates, will be selected in a caucus-convention system in Texas, beginning Saturday — and there, too, the participants are likely to be but a tiny fraction of the state's Democrats.

Both states have presidential primary elections but, for the Democrats, neither primary counts.

The problem: Democratic reformers have forbidden open primary elections, in which Republicans can cross over at will, on grounds they don't necessarily represent the view of Democratic voters.

Michigan has an open primary, coming up May 20. It will count on the Republican side.

Texas has something like an open system, since there is no party registration to determine who is a Democrat and who is not. So the Texas primary between Carter and Kennedy Saturday will be purely for show, binding no delegates. But voting in the Democratic primary also is the only way to get a ticket to the Saturday night caucuses that will line up the Texas delegation.

A Democrat who wants to take part in the precinct caucuses will first have to vote in the meaningless primary in order to get a card attesting to party membership.

That guarantees confusion and a tiny turnout at the caucuses.

All in the name of reform.

While all this is going on, the unreconstructed, unreformed Republicans are having their open primaries, Ronald Reagan versus George Bush, and urging Democrats to come on over.

They argue that crossover votes in the primaries are votes that could be held by the GOP in the fall.

The Michigan caucuses last Saturday drew about 16,200 votes. They were limited to registered party members, who signed up prior to a Feb. 26 deadline. Only 41,717 Democrats did so. A good many of them paid $10 party membership fees as part of the deal.

Four years ago, the Michigan Democratic primary drew 708,666 voters. Carter won it, narrowly, over Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

This time, the Democratic National Committee banned open primaries. Michigan Democratic chairman Morley Winograd headed the reform commission that recommended the step, then tried to get his state's primary system amended to conform. That ran afoul of Republican Gov. William G. Milliken, who supports George Bush and the open primary system.

Hence the caucuses, which eliminated such election niceties as the secret ballot. Rural votes counted for more than city votes. There was one delegate for each 115 caucus participants.

"We have enacted reforms which completely negate the results of non-representative primaries," Winograd testified a year ago in trying to get the Michigan primary changed.

But those caucuses could hardly be passed off as representative.

Ironically, the most open of the presidential primary elections was held in Wisconsin on April 1, and it counts. Carter won.

In Wisconsin, a voter didn't even have to ask for one party ballot or the other. Voters got both, marked one. Carter won 48 delegates, Kennedy 26, all firmly committed, despite the reform rule.

John C. White, the national Democratic chairman, said he will fight any attempt to challenge the Wisconsin delegation at the national convention.

He acknowledged that the open Wisconsin primary didn't comply with party rules. But Wisconsin Democrats decided to fight rather than change the system they have used for 75 years.

Kennedy also said before the primary that he'd play by the state rules. But that doesn't guarantee his supporters won't try a convention challenge to dislodge the Carter delegates.

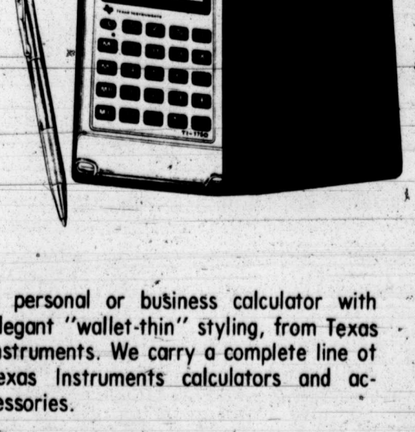

The party still is contesting the Wisconsin system in court. But White — a Carter man — said any decision would be applied in 1984, not to the 1980 delegation.

DEATHS

Wesley Hicks

BIG SPRING — Services for Wesley D. "Wes" Hicks, 46, of Big Spring will be Saturday in Smith-Fadeley-Kenney-Basford Funeral Home in Frederick, Md., with burial in Jefferson Cemetery in Jefferson, Md.

Big Spring arrangements were handled by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He died Monday at his home.

Hicks was born April 3, 1934, in Jefferson, Md. He had lived in Big Spring the past eight years and was a member of Evangelical Reformed Church of Christ. He was a veteran of the Korean War, having served in the U.S. Air Force. He had been employed at the Detox Center in Big Spring and operated a lawn and yard service.

Survivors include a daughter, Mona Lisa James of Leesburg, Va.; his mother, Margaret Hicks of Frederick, Md.; two brothers, Gary M. Hicks of Jefferson, Md., and Richard A. Hicks of Waldorf, Md.; and three sisters, Dorothy Andrews of Big Spring, Nancy Robinson of Waldorf, Md., and Susan Suddoth of Gaithersburg, Md.

Troy Bonner

SAN ANGELO — Services for Troy Don Bonner, 18, of San Angelo, son of Jerry F. Bonner of Midland, will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in Johnson's Funeral Home chapel here with burial in Lawnhaven Memorial Gardens.

He died Wednesday in a San Angelo hospital of injuries he received in a one-vehicle accident.

Bonner was born Jan. 1, 1962, in San Angelo. He was a lifelong San Angelo resident.

Other survivors include his mother, two brothers, two sisters, his paternal grandmother and his maternal grandfather.

Ilene Thomason

Ilene Thomason, 69, of 2315 Country Club Drive, died Thursday evening in a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Milo Arbuckle of Alamo Heights Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Thomason was born April 18, 1911, in Wise County where she was reared. She was married to D.A. "Dick" Thomason on June 8, 1931, in Walters, Okla. They moved to Bowie and then to Midland in 1956. She was a member of Alamo Heights Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband; a son, T.E. "Tommy" Thomason of Midland; a sister, Mrs. J.A. (Eunice) Swain of Bowie; five grandchildren, a great-grandchild and a niece and three nephews.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center, in care of Wayne Ulrich, Midland Memorial Hospital, 2200 W. Illinois Ave., Midland.

Refugees' faith was not lost

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Catholic priests greeting boatlift refugees here say they are surprised to find that 21 years of communist rule haven't eroded the religious faith of thousands of Cubans who have flocked to Florida.

"That has been our biggest shock," said Jose Nickse, director of communications for the archdiocese of Miami. "Even though religious practice is very restricted in Cuba, they have not lost their beliefs."

The Rev. Gustavo Mijares of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Key West said most refugees happily accept his offer to pray with them.

"Even the young ones who have lived in communism all their life are religious," he said.

Nickse said that while religious persecution in Cuba is not blatant, there is considerable anti-religious pressure.

"People don't usually get put in jail for their religious beliefs, but they are given a hard time. Their children are embarrassed in school and there are no religious schools to send them to. The children are constantly hearing the Marxist philosophy," Nickse said.

New song depicts personality of 'J.R.'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Songwriters have told ornery J.R. Ewing of "Dallas" what millions of television viewers are yeaning to: "You're rotten to the core."

That's the message in a song, "J.R.," about the despicable Ewing of the popular CBS television show.

Pulling no punches, the song says J.R. "is just downright mean" and "power is his game."

The song, recorded by B.J. Wright, was written three weeks ago by Wright, Don Lee, Joe Meador and Dave Hall. Released two weeks ago, it's already moving quickly up the country music charts.

Law Day focuses on lawyers and law

By KAY HORD-CRITES
Staff Writer

Law Day U.S.A. was established to serve as a counterpart to Red Day U.S.S.R., according to Texas Supreme Court Justice Zollie Steakley.

Steakley spoke Thursday to a gathering of lawyers and judiciary at a Law Day Celebration held at Midland Country Club.

"The original concept in the establishment of Law Day was to draw a contrast between law in the free world and the absence of law, as we know it in the free world, in the communist nations," he said.

Steakley also noted that this year, for the first time, the theme for Law Day focused on lawyers as well as the law. The theme is "Law and Lawyers Working for You."

"I wonder if you asserted this to the average lay person in Midland, would they believe this theme of lawyers working for you?" queried Steakley.

He stressed the point that, although lawyers represent law in the United States, they are not trusted by the general public.

"Our whole life is organized on the basis of law, and without law there would be total chaos, and yet very few people outside the legal profession have any legal understanding of the law as such or of the legal profession, its custodians.

"The only difference between an alley fight and a debate is law.

"We, who are lawyers and judges, are the custodians of this law, and as such we are under the highest form of responsibility."

The Texas Supreme Court justice admitted that the reputation of lawyers was hurt by those who were "less compassionate, efficient and honest" than the rest, but said these were in the minority.

"We cannot expect people to have a higher allegiance to the law than their respect for those of us who represent the law."

According to Steakley, the legal profession is one of paradoxes.

"On the one hand, law is the strongest link between man and freedom and we are the guardian of the law. Yet we lack this thing we call respect, as a profession. The interesting thing about that is most people who feel and voice disrespect do it in the abstract.

"They respect their own lawyer, but it is the profession in the abstract that seems to draw this.

"We are seen by our fellow man in the positive and negative of our community services, of our church loyalties and our activities as citizens."

Although difficult to obtain, Steakley told his audience that once community respect is earned, the lawyer's stature in the community is increased because of his profession.

"I am persuaded there is no profession where the rewards are greater in terms of satisfaction and personal respect."

Steakley has served on the Supreme Court of Texas since January of 1961. He was elected in 1962 to his first elective term and re-elected in 1968 and 1974.

He has announced his retirement upon the completion of his present term, Dec. 31, 1980, ending 20 years on the Supreme Court.

Prior to being on the court, Steakley served as secretary of the state of Texas beginning in 1957 and as assistant attorney general in the early 1940s.

Florida Air Base readies for refugees

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — Crewmen began hammering platforms and driving tent stakes today as Eglin Air Force Base readied for as many as 500 Cuban refugees expected by nightfall.

"We believe we can be ready to accept up to 4,000 refugees by the end of the first week, 10,000 in two weeks and 15,000 within three weeks," said Maj. Gen. Robert Bond.

The adjacent Fort Walton Beach fairgrounds, owned by the Air Force, will house Cubans who have no relatives in South Florida until they can be processed and resettled around the country, Bond said Thursday.

He said the refugee center would cost about $1 million.

An airlift was expected to ferry the refugees to the Florida Panhandle from Key West, where more than 7,000 Cubans have arrived aboard a "Freedom Flotilla" of small boats.

"With this just starting and talking about bringing in people tomorrow, you're really starting at zero," Bond said.

7-Eleven hit; Suspect may link to five other robberies

The 7-Eleven store at Garfield Street and Wadley Aveneue was the latest target by an armed robber, who's suspected of hitting at least five other stores in past weeks, according to police officials.

Police were notified of the latest robbery at 1:14 a.m. today. A store employee told officers that a black male entered the store, pointed a pistol at him and demanded all the money.

The suspect was last seen on foot leaving the store in an unknown direction.

He was described as being 20 to 35 years of age, heavy set, 5-foot to 5-foot 6-inches tall and with a dark, smooth complexion. He reportedly was wearing a dark colored shirt and blue and white diamond design pants.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken in the robbery.

Mission commander cried in frustration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Charles Beckwith clearly is not cut out to be a Pentagon Warrior — a desk soldier.

Given to plain and pungent expressions, his responses were frequently laced with emotion Thursday when he answered questions about the luckless effort of his 90-man commando unit to rescue 53 American hostages from Iran a week ago.

STRONG-JAWED and lean, Beckwith was dressed like a weekend golfer in open-throat blue sportshirt, zippered blue windbreaker and gray slacks as he stood before a small group of reporters at the Pentagon.

But he didn't need trappings of rank nor the ribbons from his three years of Vietnam War service to show he is accustomed to command and to making decisions — and that he identifies with the field soldier.

That indentification — and the emotion — was nowhere more evident than when he described his feelings about the failed mission in general and the eight dead servicemen left behind in particular.

JOHN WAYNE didn't cry in the movies, but real soldiers do and Beckwith cried with frustration and grief in the Iranian desert last week. He wasn't ashamed to acknowledge it Thursday.

"My God, I'm going to fail," Beckwith recalled thinking as the reality soaked in that the mission would have to be aborted.

Moments later the emotion deepened as the rotor of one of the helicopters trying to refuel sliced into a C-130 transport plane and both aircraft burst into flames, creating a funeral pyre for the eight commandos and airmen.

"I've got the finest soldiers in the world," Beckwith said. "I sat there and cried. It's a damned shame, but you can't help that."

Speaking in a husky Georgia drawl, Beckwith started the hour-long session with reporters by saying Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "asked me to be straightforward and totally honest with you, and I really don't know how to be any other way."

He then told how the mission had been going smoothly until he learned, at the desert refueling stop, that a third helicopter had been disabled by mechanical trouble and that he could count on only five choppers — one below the minimum deemed safe.

THE COMMANDER on the scene, an Air Force colonel, put the key question to Beckwith: Go or no go?

"I said, 'Sir, my recommendation is that we abort,'" Beckwith recalled.

There followed "a little discussion and it was a very good dialogue," Beckwith said.

"He (the site commander) said, 'Would you consider taking five (helicopters) and going ahead? And think about it before you answer me.'

"He said, 'Really, you're the guy who's got to shoulder this, Charlie.' I said, 'I know that.' ".

After taking "a couple of seconds to think it over," Beckwith said, he told the Air Force colonel: "There's just no way."

WAS THERE any second-guessing on his recommendation, either there in the desert or back in the safety of the Pentagon and the White House?

"I didn't hear any," said Beckwith.

A major reason Beckwith was brought out of the shadows was to refute rumors that he wanted to proceed with the mission, but was overruled.

His emotions flared when a reporter pressed him as to whether he really didn't feel he could have gone ahead with the mission, regardless of what the "book" said.

Leaning close to the reporter, the words came out: "With all due respect, sir, you don't know where you're coming from. I am not about to be a party to half-assed loading of a bunch of aircraft and going up and murdering a bunch of the finest soldiers in the world. i'm not that kind of man.

"I've been in the Army 27 years. I don't have to do that. I get paid to shoulder responsibility."

He said that "under those circumstances it was a no-win situation."

Beckwith reacted sharply, almost angrily, at another point — when he was asked about rumors circulating in Congress and elsewhere that he was planning to retire or resign in protest.

"That's pure bullshit, sir," Beckwith retorted.

How does he feel, now that the mission for which he and the commandos trained so long and so hard has failed?

"We're disappointed," Beckwith said. "I speak for my troops, too."

Col. Charles Beckwith

Tom Landry testifies in obscenity trial

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys football coach Tom Landry testified Thursday that he believes the average Dallas County resident would consider a movie shown by a local adult book store to be obscene.

Landry was called to the witness stand as an expert witness on community standards during the trial of Michael Wayne Kickbush, an adult book store proprietor, accused of violating Texas obscenity laws by showing the movie in a coin operated "peep show."

The popular football coach said he viewed the 12-minute film at the Dallas County courthouse at the request of Assistant District Attorney Richard Aguire.

Landry said that in his opinion "there was no question" that the average Dallas resident would consider the film obscene.

The coach testified that he speaks to 8,000 to 9,000 persons each year in Dallas County during speeches to civic organizations, schools and other groups and said he almost always speaks about the problems of obscenity and pornography.

"I speak on the philosophy of humanism which is creeping into our society, the philosophy that man is the center of everything," Landry said.

"That, coupled with materialism, and we have hedonism, the philosophy that you should do whatever feels good to you, which I think is a bad philosophy."

Landry said it is "very seldom" that he does not speak about obscenity in his speeches.

Landry said he receives many letters about his speeches and said most are favorable to his comments about obscenity.

"I get some other letters about football that are unfavorable," he said, drawing laughter from a packed courtroom.

Aguire asked Landry if he had viewed the film which Aguire said depicts sexual intercourse and oral sex.

Skating parson the icing on many greeting cards

Some call him "Wonderful Walker" or "Presbyterian on the rocks"

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Who is the Rev. Robert Walker and upon what lake, loch or pond is he skating along so moodily?

I presented this puzzle to the readership shortly after borrowing Sir Henry Raeburn's wonderfully vivid portrait of the skating parson from our town library under its new program of loaning out art prints for free like books and records.

The result has been an avalanche of conflicting information from readers spaced out (in the geographical sense) in many directions, including a theologian in Massachusetts, an art librarian at the University of Michigan, a Master of Arts confectioner in Scotland and a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in Georgia.

Mulligan's Stew

The senatorial aspirant, L.T. Kearson of Waycross, Ga., had no idea who the Rev. Walker was, but he deeply empathized with him in a terse note:

"The candidate, Larry T. Kearson, is likened to your Rev. Bob Walker on the thin ice of political waters. But I see an umbrella boat on the horizon. May it be filled with gold."

Our engraving of the Raeburn masterpiece did not include an umbrella boat (whatever that is), full or empty. It just showed the trilby-hatted cleric stroking along the ice somberly, arms folded, right legged cocked behind him against a background of murky cliffs faintly gilded by a sunset sky.

Janet Eliades of Nashua, N.H., was the first to pin down the icy locale because she happened on a greeting card with a detail of "The Rev. Robert Walker Skating on Duddingston Loch by Sir Henry Raeburn" the day before reading my column about him in the Nashua Telegraph. She kindly sent the card along.

Apparently the capering clergyman has been cutting quite a figure in the greeting card world under variously assumed names. Ruby E. Crawford of Atlanta, Ga. received him on a Christmas card under the title of "The Parson Who Skates." Others knew him as "The Skating Minister" and one wag even dubbed him "Presbyterian on the rocks."

Evangeline Piper of Concord, N.H., also received a call from the mysterious gentleman of the cloth at Christmastime, because a friend saw a resemblance to her in the painting! She writes:

"It only took four or five lines of your column to bring your Rev. Walker to mind, as last Christmas I received a picture postcard of the gentleman sent to me by one of my Maine friends. The minute she saw it, she was reminded of me. I have loved it ever since, particularly the red hair streaming below the tall silk hat. I am flattered."

Helen Gilmore of Orinda, Calif., writes that the Rev. Walker "is an old friend of mine in the National Gallery of Scotland. I love to go and see his picture and in fact sent a postcard picture of him to a friend whose middle name is Walker. She framed the picture and I often see it among a group hanging on a stairway wall. You have described him in such a charming way and gave him the debonair flip that I feel is expressed in the painting."

"It seems likely," answered President emeritus Roy Pearson of the Andover Theological School in Newton Centre, Mass., "that the person in your painting is the famous 'Wonderful Walker' who for many years was pastor of the tiny church at Seathwaite in the Lake District of England."

"Wonderful Walker," if he was the skating parson, not only got up at dawn to work his own farm, but helped his parishioners with their chores and ran a pub in his rectory, which may account for that debonair flip in his personality, although it left little time for skating.

"To help his parishoners," advises theologian Pearson, "he clipped and dipped sheep, mowed the hay and cut corn; and as the only learned man in the village he prescribed for bodily ills, cast accounts, drew up wills and served as a public writer of letters. He spun and knitted wool, mended the clogs of his 12 children, made his own furniture, operated a draught net for fishing in a nearby lake and sitting within the altar rails of his church taught the children of the village for eight hours a day, five days a week. As a further way to increase his small income he brewed his own ale, took out a publican's license and made his parsonage into the local tavern."

The poet William Wordsworth also found him wonderful, but apparently he is the wrong Walker in the opinion of other experts.

Valerie Meyer, fine arts librarian at the University of Michigan, admired the Rev. Robert Walker at the National Gallery in Edinburgh a few years ago, came home with a slide of the painting and some "information which will dispel the air of mystery."

The skating Walker, she informs us, was born at Monkton, Ayrshire, in 1755, son of William Walker, who served for a time as minister of the Scotch church in Rotterdam. Robert Walker was ordained at Cramond (near Edinburgh) in 1776 and served from 1784 to his death in 1808 at Canongate Kirk in Edinburgh. He joined the Skating Society in 1784, the year Raeburn painted the picture, and besides many published sermons was the author of "Kolf (sic), a Dutch Game."

The information is confirmed by Stuart McArthur, Master in Arts from the University of Edinburgh, who besides being a poet, an art historian and an expert on the religious content of the Rev. Walker's sermons is, according to the University of Edinburgh Journal which he included with his letter, "associated with his family's business of confectioners."

McArthur thinks the artist may have been amused and inspired by the rules of the skating club the cleric had just joined: "Admission was by ballot after a trial of skating powers which consisted in the candidate being able to skate in a complete circle on either foot and then jumping over first one hat, then two, then three on top of each other."

Teacher attempts sea trip

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A former New York history teacher with no sea experience tried to sail to North Africa in an old 23-foot sailboat, but drifted helplessly before being rescued about an hour before her vessel sank, the Coast Guard says.

Carol Dickson, 38, left Brooklyn, N.Y., last Thursday and drifted down the New Jersey coast for more than five days before she was rescued Wednesday by a Coast Guard boat about 12 miles off this resort, authorities said.

The 1940s pine sailboat, which Ms. Dickson covered with a crude cabin secured by putty, apparently broke up from old age and sank four miles offshore as it was being towed by a Coast Guard boat, authorities said.

"We saved her life, there's no doubt about it," said Chief Warrant Officer John Tolejko.

Coast Guard officers said they recently inspected the sailboat in Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, and warned the woman not to set sail because of her lack of experience and because the boat was unseaworthy. Officers said she was apparently living on the boat.

Lt. Thad Allen said the boat was equipped with a small compass, a plastic sextant and no lights. He said Ms. Dickson intended to use candles on her voyage to North Africa.

Officers said she left New York Harbor last Thursday and immediately ran into foul weather, which ripped apart and tangled her sails and damaged her vessel.

The woman stayed below for several days and only looked out once when a large freighter sounded its horn on Monday, officers said. The freighter could not help her because of the weather, officers said.

The boat, still drifting southward in rough seas, was spotted off Barnegat Light on Tuesday. Coast Guard authorities in Atlantic City issued radio bulletins and began their own search for the vessel.

A passing sailboat radioed a new position Wednesday and Ms. Dickson was rescued by a 44-foot boat from Atlantic City. About an hour after the sailboat was brought under tow, it apparently broke up and sank, authorities said.

Ms. Dickson, described as an unemployed history teacher and bookkeeper, refused to comment when she arrived in Atlantic City.

"I didn't do it for publicity," she said.

Tolejko said Ms. Dickson told him she wanted to go to Africa or the Middle East "to help people." He said she told officers she had read several books about sailing "and she felt completely confident that from the books she could handle it."

Terms reduced for Mandel, co-defendents

BALTIMORE (AP) — Marvin Mandel, Maryland's dominant politician for nearly a decade, heads to prison this month after winning a one-year reduction in his four-year sentence.

The former governor and five co-defendants had their terms reduced Thursday by the judge who sentenced them in 1977 on mail fraud and racketeering convictions in the state's longest government corruption case.

Mandel, who succeeded Spiro T. Agnew as Maryland's chief executive and was governor for almost 10 years until January 1979, had little to say after he and his co-defendants gathered to plead leniency and perhaps be in the same room for the last time.

"I'm glad that the thing has finally come to a conclusion," the 60-year-old Mandel, who must report to prison by May 14, told reporters after the hearing. "I'm glad it's over. I have no further comment."

U.S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor also granted one-year reductions in the four-year sentences of Irvin Kovens, W. Dale Hess and Harry W. Rodgers III. William A. Rodgers, Harry's brother, had his reduced from 20 months to a year and a day. Taylor did not change the $40,000 fine he imposed on each of these four.

Given a suspended sentence instead of 18 months in jail because of failing health was former attorney Ernest N. Cory Jr. Cory will be on probation for 18 months.

The six men were convicted of participating in a scheme which brought Mandel an estimated $350,000 in gifts, vacations and inclusion in business ventures.

In return, the diminutive, pipe-smoking politician unsuccessfully tried to get the 1972 General Assembly to enact legislative benefits for the old Marlboro Race Track, then secretly owned by the others.

When he personally pleaded his case to Taylor, Mandel said his six years of investigation, two trials and unsuccessful appeals were worse than prison will ever be.

"Two and one-half years ago, my life came to an end," he said. "No one can understand the tragic effects on not just me but my entire family."

"No prison with walls could be tougher than the prison we have lived in," the former governor concluded.

Taylor, in ruling that the defendants' sentences " must not be made to satisfy the public," said that "the paramount decision at this time in the mind of the court is whether the system of justice would be harmed if the sentences were reduced."

After leaving court, he would not discuss specific reasons influencing his decision, which he indicated he began arriving at before Thursday's hearing.

"I felt three years was adequate under all the circumstances," he said.

The 80-year-old Knoxville, Tenn., judge conducted the second Mandel trial after the first one was aborted by attempted jury tampering. All the other federal judges in Maryland had some political or personal tie with Mandel, necessitating Taylor's assignment.

If Mandel, Harry Rodgers and Kovens get the prison assignment they requested, they will become residents of the facility at Eglin Air Force Base, about 60 miles from Pensacola, Fla.

Hess, former majority leader of the House of Delegates, asked to be sent to Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

Hijacker protests rescue mission

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A gunman who commandeered a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet before its scheduled takeoff radioed a message criticizing the aborted Iran rescue attempt and then surrendered early today, officials said.

No shots were fired during the 5½-hour standoff at Stockton Municipal Airport, and the man's lone hostage, an unidentified PSA flight engineer, was released unharmed.

The gunman, identified as Steve W. Bilson, 25, of Ceres, was to be arraigned today in Sacramento on on a charge of air piracy, said FBI spokesman Otis Cox.

The siege began at about 7:15 p.m. Thursday when a man dressed in white shorts and a T-shirt bolted over a fence and ran up the rear ramp of the plane, Flight 818 to Los Angeles.

No passengers had boarded the Boeing 727 and all the crew except for the flight engineer escaped. "The crew looked like a bunch of scattered quail...The crew just ran out," said one witness.

Witnesses said the engineer was alone in the cockpit at the time and was unaware of what was happening.

FBI agents tried to talk the man into surrendering and a helicopter used by KCRA-TV in Sacramento was flown in at his request.

One PSA spokesman said he thought Bilson wanted to go to Salt Lake City, but shortly before the surrender the gunman issued a statement over the plane's radio indicating he wanted to go to Iran.

The long, rambling message criticized last week's ill-fated attempt to free the American hostages in Tehran. Bilson reportedly wanted to fly to Tehran, saying he thought he could bring back the Americans held hostage there. He also called for an impartial trial for the deposed Shah of Iran.

When asked if the flight engineer, whom Cox declined to identify, had talked Bilson into giving up, Cox said he understood the hostage was "certainly helpful."

Bilson's father, mother and girlfriend were taken to the airport by police but they apparently were not involved in the negotiations.

Nuclear plant licensing rules near congressional approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new set of licensing rules and penalties for nuclear power plants, inspired by the Three Mile Island accident more than 13 months ago, is nearing final congressional action.

House-Senate conferees broke a months-long deadlock late Thursday by reaching agreement on a wide-ranging bill authorizing programs for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The compromise legislation now goes back to both chambers for expected final approval.

Although the new standards contained in the compromise are modest compared to what nuclear critics had sought, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., head of the Senate negotiators, called the bill "the first major reform of the nuclear industry since the Three Mile accident last year."

A central provision is one requiring the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to certify the adequacy of state emergency evacuation plans before it could license new nuclear power plants.

The legislation would also:

—Raise civil penalties from $5,000 to $100,000 for each violation of an NRC order and make it a federal crime to violate NRC orders and reglations during construction of a nuclear plant.

—Require the NRC to consider the possibilty of a reactor core meltdown when deciding how far away from a town or city a plant can be safely located.

—Direct the NRC to hire 146 additional resident inspectors to be placed in full-time service at the nation's operating nuclear plants.

—Require the NRC to notify governors when nuclear shipments are to be transported through their states.

—Direct the NRC to issue new standards for state emergency plans that take into account lessons of the March 28, 1979, accident at the Three Mile Island power plant in central Pennsylvania.

The new standards are part of a bill authorizing programs for the NRC for the remainder of fiscal 1980, which ends next Sept. 30. Earlier attempts in both the House and Senate to attach to the measure a moratorium on new plant construction were rejected by wide margins.

The conferees accepted a proposal by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., that would impose a minimum fine of $25,000 a day and a possible two-year jail sentence on any firm or individual "who knowingly and willfully" violates an NRC rule or order while a nuclear plant is being constructed.

Bayh said the measure was designed to cover instances such as the deliberate use of faulty cement in building a power plant.

The NRC is investigating allegations that substandard materials were used in building the Marble Hill power plant in Southern Indiana.

Pro-nuclear lawmakers also got some language into the bill, mainly a provision that would have the effect of allowing the NRC to license new power plants over the objections of state governors.

OC extending sign-up deadline

ODESSA — The deadline for registering early for the first summer term at Odessa College has been extended through Tuesday.

The early sign-up period was to end today, but OC officials have extended the deadline.

Students can register from 9 to 11 a.m. or 2 to 4 p.m. on weekdays in the registrar's office on the second floor of the Student Union Building.

Persons signing up early don't have to pay fees until May 9 in the college business office.

Those not preregistering can sign up May 29 on registration day.

Classes will begin June 2 and run Mondays through Thursdays until July 8.

The spring term is due to end May 9.

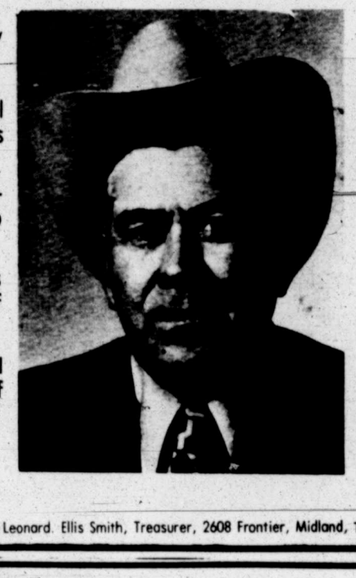

The college will begin its four-day operational week May 19 and continue the Monday through Thursday schedule until Aug. 18, when the five-day operation will resume. Offices will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays on the four-day schedule.

Coast Guard may add blimps to coastal patrol fleet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard may deploy a fleet of modern blimps if a new research program proves they can be used effectively in coastal patrol operations.

The service signed an agreement Wednesday with the National Aeronautics and Space Adminstration for development of new technology that could lead to an operational lighter-than-air machine by late in this decade or in the early 1990s.

"We're looking for a vehicle that can be used in search and rescue, law enforcement and other patrol functions," explained Lt. Cmdr. Kenneth Williams, chief of the Coast Guard's conservation and technology branch.

"Our goal is a machine that is two to three times larger than the Goodyear blimp," he said. "It could carry 8 to ll people, would have a cruising speed of 50 to 60 knots and maximum speed of 100 knots, a two-day patrol range of 2,500 miles and an altitude range of between 5,000 and 10,000 feet."

Williams said the craft must be able to take off and land vertically and be able to hover in a small circle for rescue operations.

He said fuel saving is a major consideration, with the airship using about 310 pounds of fuel per hour, compared with 1,272 pounds for the Coast Guard's Sikorsky HH3F helicopter and 1,925 pounds per hour for its HU25 small jet.

During "float and drift" observation missions, the vehicle would use practically no fuel, he said.

The cheap price of fuel was a major reason the Navy abandoned its airship program — used mainly for submarine and other patrol duties — in the early 1960s.

"Fuel costs a heck of a lot more today, and a recent Coast Guard-Navy study concluded that fuel-efficient airships are operationally and technically feasible for maritime patrol work, especially when used in concert with cutters and more conventional aircraft," Williams said. "But before before we go ahead we have to determine many things.".

The Coast Guard-NASA agreement will reduce development costs by coordinating research programs of the two agencies. Space agency scientists for some time have been studying lighter-than-air vehicles to determine their capabilities for lifting heavy equipment. This research will be broadened to meet Coast Guard needs.

NASA will work on developing stronger synthetics and better adhesives for the bag section of the craft, sophisticated electronics and more automated grounding procedures so a large ground crew is not needed to land and tether it.

The Coast Guard, with the help of the Navy, plans to build a demonstration model within three years to test techniques developed by NASA and Coast Guard researchers.

Helicopters used in raid were finest designed, says president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the failure of three of the eight helicopters used in the attempt to free the hostages in Iran, President Carter says that "the helicopters were the finest that can be designed."

Defense officials said Wednesday that five of the eight helicopters were accidentally sprayed with firefighting chemicals and salt water 10 hours before takeoff, but none of the operating equipment was affected.

Carter told a group of community leaders Wednesday afternoon at the White House that the rescue mission could have been attempted by "no other nation on earth, including the Soviet Union."

Its failure, he said, should not indict the nation's military capacity.

"There is no question in my mind that the degree of maintenance" on the helicopters used was good, Carter said.

The president has said he canceled the raid to free the 53 hostages because three helicopters developed mechanical trouble.

"No one anticipated this high a degree of failure in the helicopters," the president said. "It was unpredictable and we had bad luck as far as the number that were afflicted.

"I can assure you those helicopters were the finest that can be designed. The maintenance was done by the finest, best trained ... people in the country," he said.

Defense officials said that although two of the five sprayed helicopters broke down in Iran, their wetting down on the deck of the carrier Nimitz in the Gulf of Oman "did not in any way contribute to any of the problems."

Officials, asked to comment on a report of the incident aboard the Nimitz as reported by the New York Post, acknowledged that a chopper crewman accidentally tripped a switch that set off the sprinkler system on the Nimitz hangar deck, wetting five of the eight helicopters.

The sprinkler was turned off in less than a minute and within 15 minutes the five helicopters were hosed down with fresh water, dried out, inspected, their equipment checked and found to be all right, officials said.

According to this account, the helicopters were "all buttoned up" and none of the salt water or chemical foam penetrated engines, electronics compartments, navigation space, hydraulic equipment or cockpits.

They were painstakingly checked by maintenance and flight crews, who found no sign of foam leaks in any of the compartments or systems, the officials said.

The officials said electrical power was fed into the aircraft and the systems were activated without any evidence of malfunctions.

A final check was made on the carrier's flight deck, where the engines were started and run for a long period of time, the officials said, adding that there was also an exhaustive pre-takeoff check of all systems.

After the mission, each pilot and crewman was questioned aboard the Nimitz and each said the incident had no effect on the operation.

One of the five helicopters developed hydraulic problems and was left at the desert refueling point where the mission was aborted, officials said. Another was disabled earlier by what was first described by defense officials as a hydraulic malfunction.

But officials now say that questioning of the crew, which was returned ultimately to the Nimitz, disclosed that the helicopter's abandonment occurred mainly because an automatic warning light had signaled the pilot that the main rotor blade was in danger of breaking off. That helicopter did have hydraulic problems as well, officials said.

In the view of these officials, the difficulty in neither of these helicopters was attributable to the accidental drenching aboard the Nimitz.

The third helicopter that failed suffered gyroscopic navigation system problems and its pilot became disoriented in a "cyclonic" sandstorm, forcing his return to the Nimitz.

Texas should have Initiative and Referendum, a way for the public to vote directly on issues and make law in elections rather than depending only on the state legislature. (Tejas debe tener Initativo y Referendum, que será una manera en que el publico puede votar directamente sobre asuntos y hacer leyes por elecciones en vez de solamente dependerse de la legislatura estatal.)

Not all voters in Saturday's Republican primary will face the same array of candidates. Voters in commissioners precincts one and three will have their respective commissioner candidates listed on the voting machine ballot, while those in precincts two and four will not vote for a commissioner. Voters also will choose individual party precinct chairmen in Saturday's balloting.

Fashion designers make big impression for fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Pauline Trigere, Kasper and Mrs. H. Winter all made big impressions on standing-room-only audiences Wednesday at their showings of fall-winter fashions.

Trigere, America's only French designer, proved once again she can turn out couture clothes for the ready-to-wear market.

Her signature double-face reversible coats in mohair, wool and tweed often have matching dresses.

A one-sided lapel on a coat or the jacket of a trouser suit is very smart. So is a cape that buttons on one shoulder. The trouser suits are the best she has ever done with their snappy jackets and beautifully cut pants that flatter the figure.

Evening is all elegance and glamour, from the short black dinner dresses to a ravishing ball gown in red taffeta with big, puffed, cape-like sleeves.

In between there are paillettes embroidered on black wool, gold embossed chiffon nun's veiling splashed with brilliants, and a gold and black brocade jacket over a short circular black velvet skirt with a thick roll of the brocade on the bottom of the hem.

Kasper can always be counted on to interpret every trend on both sides of the Atlantic. He opened with a dramatic tableau of 10 models in varied styles in wool, mohair and angora. There were sweaters, skirts, suits, dresses, capes and pants. This was the clue to the rest of the show: ruffled collars and pussy-cat bows, swingy skirts and pleated, tiered and flounced skirts.

DEAR ABBY

Better 30 inches in the chest than 60 inches in the ground

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps if less importance were placed on the size of a woman's breasts, women wouldn't have such a horror of mastectomies. As an American Cancer Society volunteer, for 10 years I have driven patients to and from hospitals for chemotherapy treatments, and believe me, I could write a book!

One woman I drove for over a year told me that she had deliberately put off seeing a doctor for three years because she was afraid that the lump she felt in her breast was malignant, and she might have to have her breast removed. (It was and she did, but, unfortunately, it was too late.)

I myself fell victim to cancer and had to have both breasts removed. The day after I came home from the hospital, I helped cook dinner for my family of five. Two days later I was driving in the car pool again, and within two weeks I was back into the full routine of housework, social activity and volunteer work.

The loss was minimal. Sign me, "Better 30 inches in the chest than 60 inches in the ground," or... — ONE OF MANY.

DEAR ONE: Thanks for a timely letter. I wonder how many women are aware that simple self breast-examination instructions are available at every local American Cancer Society office. They're free for the asking.

DEAR ABBY: My compliments on your new picture. But, Abby, I must ask, didn't you have your face lifted? — M. C. IN TUCSON.

DEAR M. C.: No, but my phgotographer lifted a few lines.

DEAR ABBY: From the very first time my mother-in-law held my twins, there were hugs and kisses and tickles on the tummy, and she told them that they were the prettiest babies on earth and that Grandma loved them best of all.

Today, at 18 months, they drop everything and run to her shrieking with delight when she comes into the room. It bothers me because I am not as open as she is, and I'm afraid they will really believe that Grandma loves them best, so I asked her to stop it.

She said she understood and would stop it if I thought about it some more and still wanted her to stop. She says in time they will realize that everyone loves them in a different way and that I love them just as much as she does. What do you think? — HAVING DOUBTS.

DEAR HAVING: Be honest. What bothers you is that Grandma is more demonstrative in her affection than you, and you're afraid your children will love her more than you.

Paint brush for bricks

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When the exterior of your house is brick, stucco, shakes, shingles or any other rough-type material, a paint brush designed specifically for such surfaces may be the answer.

At least two such specialty brushes are on the market. Each is made of custom-processed synthetics. Both manufacturers claim this tool permits painting rough surfaces 50 percent faster than with a regular brush or applicator.

The brush does not look like a regular brush. A special grooved edge allows it to reach under double-course shakes and shingles and into mortar joints, slots, grooves and other hard-to-reach areas. Its handle features a threaded hole which takes an extension pole for added reach.

Some government and state housing officials have been getting pieces of wood in the mail. Each bit of lumber has the word "help" written on it. It's all part of a campaign by some builders to let housing authorities know how they feel about the conditions that have put such a dent in the sales of houses in all but a handful of communities throughout the country.

Big Boston cake

BOSTON (AP) — Boston served up a 3½-ton, 15-foot-high, red-white-and-blue cake as the first course of its summer-long 350th birthday party, but its baker was unhappy.

The concoction, complete with three miniature water fountains and dancing cherubs, was hauled to City Hall Plaza on Thursday in a National Guard cargo truck.

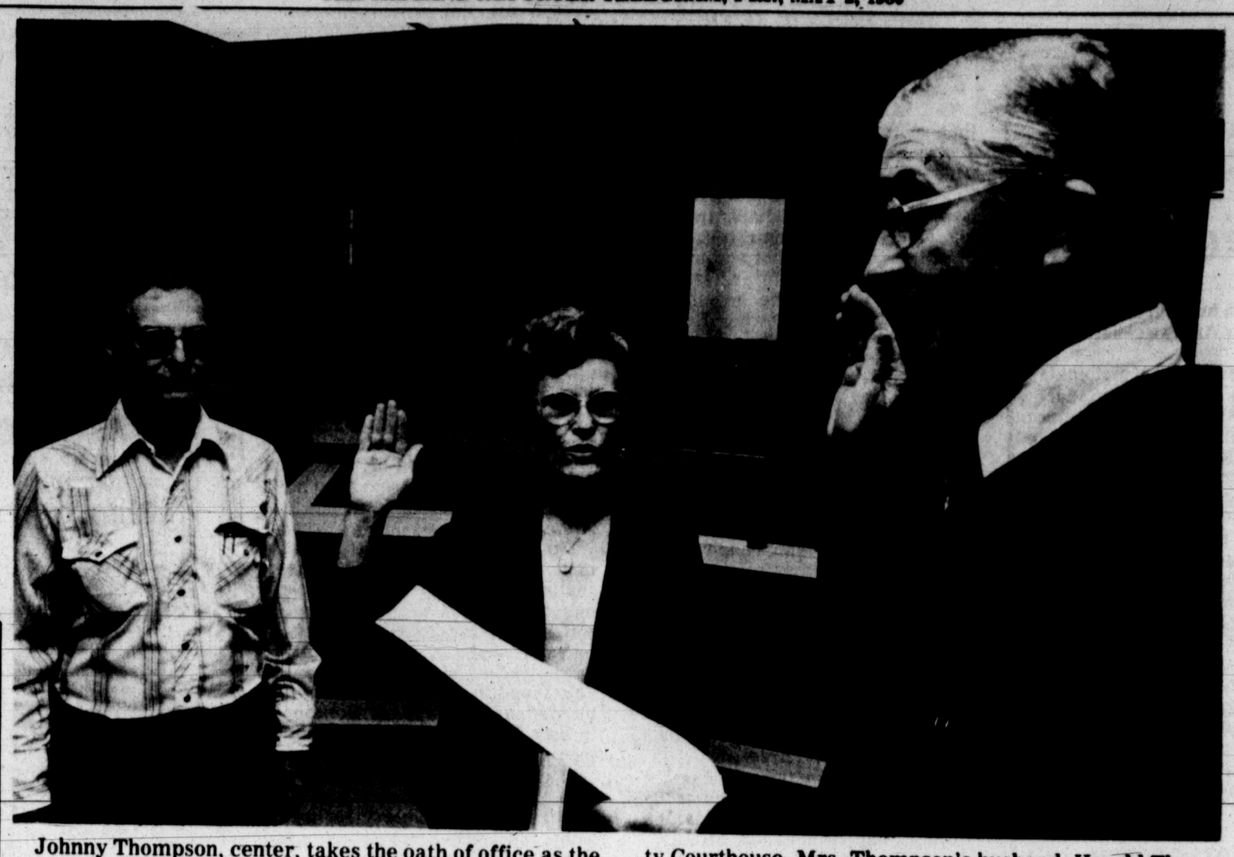

"I did it just for the City of Boston, because it's Boston's birthday," said the chef, Arthur Strasnick of suburban Lynn.

The eight-foot-long, four-foot-wide creation arrived late for the noon ceremony. So Strasnick still was frantically fitting round layers of cake into place when Mayor Kevin H. White declared, "I've never seen a handsomer cake" and sliced off a wedge from one of the lower corners.

Strasnick never did finish it. "I'm very disappointed," the crestfallen baker said later. "We had four more layers to go, but we ran out of time.

"For the average layman, it's great," he added. "But for me, it's not my best work."

Boston's actual birthday is Sept. 20, but the city plans an almost daily series of art shows, raffles, parades, dances and parties between now and then.

Author pursues Oswald exhumation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A British author who wants to exhume the body buried in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave to prove it is that of a Russian assassin may simply be trying "to help the sale of his book," a county prosecutor says.

The three-judge panel that heard arguments Thursday is not expected to rule for at least 10 days on whether Michael Eddowes, author of "The Oswald File," has the right to ask that the body be exhumed.

Eddowes claims a Soviet impostor, substituted for Oswald in 1959 during Oswald's 17-month defection to the Soviet Union, shot President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, was himself shot two days later by restaurant owner Jack Ruby and was buried here — 25 miles away.

A congressional investigation last year concluded that Kennedy's assassination "probably" was the result of a conspiracy.

Eddowes, who cited discrepancies between Oswald's Marine Corps physical and the autopsy on the assassin, asked a state district court to order the Tarrant County district attorney's office and the medical examiner's office to open the grave and perform another autopsy.

County officials refused to disturb the grave, saying they would exhume the body only under a court order. The district court denied Eddowe's petition, so he appealed.

Assistant District Attorney Fred Schattman argued on Thursday that Eddowes has no legal right to demand exhumation, calling him "some foreign national coming in ... perhaps to help the sale of his book."

But Eddowes continues to cite details from Oswald's military physicals and the autopsy reports on the body buried in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery.

"In all the Marine physicals he was listed as 5-11 and had those three scars on his (left) arm and one behind his ear," said Eddowes. "The autopsy never recorded a ⅜-inch scar (on the upper left arm) and the mastoid (ear) scar. The body of the assassin was recorded at 5-9.

"The man who shot the president was 5-9. It's all so very simple."

Last fall, Eddowes took his claims to the Dallas County medical examiner's office, which ran several tests and later announced there was significant doubt about the body's identity to warrant exhumation.

"The discrepencies were numerous," assistant medical examiner Dr. Linda Norton said at an October press cocference. "Scars on the body...color of eyes, height. The differences show up between his military entrance records in 1956 and the autopsy. In one, his height, for instance is 5-11. In the other it is 5-9."

But the issue bogged down in a dispute over which county had jurisdiction over the body — the one where the assassin died or the one where he is buried. Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Charles Petty said later he would not push Tarrant County for the exhumation.

Oswald's mother, Marguerite, who lives in Fort Worth, vehemently opposes the exhumation and calls Eddowes' efforts "a waste of time."

Auto layoffs soaring to high point next week

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs in the U.S. auto industry will soar next week to their highest point yet in the year-old sales slump with about one of every three production workers out of work.

Reports from the five U.S. automakers Thursday said more than 263,000 will be laid off, compared with about 214,000 this week.

Of the new total, more than 201,000 will be on indefinite furlough compared with almost 170,000 this week, the previous high point in the downturn.

Another 61,715 will be at home for a week or two, compared with 30,500 this week.

The previous record total for both types of layoff in the current slump was about 223,000 back in February. At the deepest point of the 1975 slump, more than 300,000 were laid off, and there have been predictions that total will be reached this year.

In Canada, whose auto industry is integrated with that of the United States, 20,000 workers are laid off in a production force of about 65,000.

Indefinite U.S. layoffs at General Motors Corp. have climbed 30 percent in two weeks. The No. 1 automaker said it now will have 107,000 production workers on furlough without a recall date. Two weeks ago the figure was 82,000; this week it was 90,300.

GM's temporary layoffs — those for a week or two — will rise from 12,750 this week to 33,800 in seven plants.

Ford Motor Co. reported it had 50,400 on indefinite layoff compared with 49,100 and would temporarily idle 24,415 in 12 plants against 17,750 this week.

Chrysler Corp. said it would run all its U.S. plants for the second week in a row. Its indefinite layoffs were 41,600, compared with 42,200 last week.

Though Chrysler reported no temporary idleness, the company is not counting the workers at one assembly plant shut down early for new model re-tooling. Those workers are being called back in groups of several hundred for brief periods to help the changeover in their areas.

American Motors Corp. said it would lay off 3,500 workers from its Jeep plant in Toledo, Ohio, in the first week of a three-week closing to reduce inventories.

Production will resume May 27 at the same daily output, 415, but with fewer large Jeeps and more small models, meaning indefinite layoffs for another 300 workers.

AMC reported 2,350 indefinite layoffs, unchanged from last week.

Volkswagen of America has no layoffs.

Next week's assembly plant closings:

General Motors

Cars: Flint, Mich., 2,150, and Lansing, Mich., 3,400, both full-sized models only; Pontiac, Mich., 5,550; Detroit, 6,300 at the Cadillac plant; Fairfax, Kans., 3,900; Leeds, Mo., 4,000. Trucks and Buses: Pontiac, Mich., 8,500 from medium and heavy truck and bus production in the annual shutdown for inventory-taking. The Flint, Lansing, Pontiac and Detroit car figures include associated body plants.

Ford

Cars: Atlanta, 1,480; Chicago, 3,100; St. Louis, 1,150. Cars and trucks: San Jose, Calif., 2,300; Lorrain-Avon Lake, Ohio, 7,200; Louisville, Ky., 2,410. Trucks: Kansas City, Mo., 1,350; Norfolk, Va., 1,925; St. Paul, Minn., 2,300; Wayne, Mich., 1,200

AMC

Jeeps: Toledo, Ohio, 3,500.

WORLD BRIEFS

Pope visits Africa to foster Christianity

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II set out today on his fifth foreign trip in 17 months, a "religious and missionary trip" to six African countries in 10 days to stimulate the growth of Christianity.

The 59-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff told a small crowd of diplomats and church and government officials at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport he was "going to the heart of the immense African continent that received the light of the Christian faith from the missionaries."

"I am happy to be able to participate intensely with my personal presence in the joy of those young churches in which the native bishops have now taken on the succession of the missionary bishops," he said.

"Contemporary Africa has a great importance and an original role in the context of today's international life because of its problems of a political, social and economic nature, of its dynamism rooted in the strength of its people, full of freshness and vitality."

A special Alitalia jetliner took the papal party on the six-hour flight to Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire, the former Belgian Congo, which has the largest Roman Catholic population in Africa.

It also has the largest number of bishops — 56 — and the pope will consecrate four of them at an open-air Mass on Sunday.

Awaiting the pope was President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire, a baptized Catholic who was married Thursday night in a ceremony conducted by Cardinal Joseph Malula, head of the church in Zaire. Diplomats viewed the marriage as a gesture of conciliation with the Catholic church on the eve of the pope's visit. Mobutu's first wife died in 1977 after 22 years of marriage.

Nepalese vote for democracy

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The Nepalese voted today in an election ordered by their king to defuse a revolt and give them a choice between two roads toward more democracy.

Nearly 7.2 million adults were eligible to participate in the first free balloting in a generation and the first nationwide popular vote ever in the landlocked little country in the Himalayas, one of the poorest and least developed in the world.

The ballots distributed to the 10,000 polling centers were in two colors because 80 percent of the Nepalese can't read. A mark on the blue half was a vote to legalize political parties, banned for two decades. A mark on the yellow side was for retention of the present pyramid system of nonpartisan panchayats — governing councils — from the villages up to the national level, but with reforms promised by King Birendra.

Castro favors maneuver cancellation

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — President Fidel Castro says the White House decision to cancel Marine maneuvers at the U.S. Navy base in Cuba is a "notable success" for his revolution.

But the Cuban leader told a May Day crowd estimated at a million that he hoped to mobilize 5 million Cubans for a nationwide demonstration May 17 against other aspects of U.S. policy toward Cuba, including the economic embargo, the Navy's retention of its Cuban base at Guantanamo Bay and American spy flights over the island.

Castro's disclosure to the crowd of the U.S. decision to cancel the maneuvers at Guantanamo Bay, which had been scheduled to start May 8, drew the longest applause of his 90-minute speech.

In light of the U.S. action, Castro said, he will cancel a counter military training exercise and a demonstration in front of the U.S. diplomatic office at the Swiss Embassy that were to have coincided with the Guantanamo maneuvers.

MacGregor to head British Steel

LONDON (AP) —The Times of London called it a "major error of judgment." Opposition Labor Party members of Parliament said it was monstrous. And even one of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party members ridiculed it as straight out of Gilbert and Sullivan.

The subject of the furor was the appointment of Scottish-born Ian MacGregor, a 67-year-old senior partner in the New York investment banking firm of Lazard Freres, to head the debt-ridden, state-owned British Steel Corp.

It wasn't so much the appointment that enraged member of the House of Commons Thursday, as the money that is to be paid as compensation to MacGregor's current employer.

Students killed in hospital beds

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Six hooded men barged into a private medical clinic and using silencers shot dead in "execution style" two university students as they lay in their hospital beds, a spokesman for the facility reported.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified by name, said the men entered the Centro de Emergencia shortly before noon Thursday.

He identified the students as Ernesto Flores, 24, and Alfredo Gonzalez, 26. He said they were admitted to the clinic, which caters to the wealthy, five days earlier with bullet wounds.

A police spokesman said he had no details on the slayings.

Five thousand leftists observed International Labor Day by marching through the downtown area, defying a government ban against demonstrations. Police said there was no violence and that the marchers avoided confrontation with nearby military patrols.

West Bank Palestinians move to open rebellion

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Less than 10 miles from the Tel Aviv suburb where U.S., Israeli and Egyptian negotiators are trying to work out a Palestinian autonomy plan, the Palestinians in the West Bank are moving to the brink of open revolt.

An Israeli officer shot and killed a 16-year-old Palestinian student Thursday, just as the negotiations began in the seaside town of Herzlia, in the most serious of an almost nonstop series of clashes venting Palestinian hatred of the Israeli occupation and opposition to the proposed autonomy plan.

Brig. Gen. Benyamin Ben-Eliezer, the military governor of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, says the clashes, while lacking the organization needed for a full-scale uprising, show a new boldness and violence that reflect growing extremism in the territory.

West Bank Palestinians say organization is their next goal.

"We are facing a new process," Ben-Eliezer told The Associated Press in an interview. "These are means against the autonomy, or any plan leading to the autonomy. It is a political, ideological problem."

One of the main tasks facing the negotiators in Herzlia, beyond bridging the vast gaps between the Israeli and Egyptian conceptions of autonomy, is to attract the Palestinians to the talks. But the spiral of West Bank violence appears to be pushing this goal farther from realization.

In Thursday's clash, described by Ben-Eliezer as the most serious of its kind in the region, the municipal military governor and two other Israeli officer were called to a school in Anabta, a village 12 miles east of the Israeli coastal resort of Netanya, to calm a demonstration by Palestinian students.

Ben-Eliezer said the officers were ambushed inside the school by youths armed with stones and a knife. One of the Israelis was clubbed to the ground with a rock, and in the scuffle the youth with the knife was shot and killed.

The tensions which led to the shooting have been building up since last week, when Jewish settlers took revenge for the stoning of Israeli cars near Anabta by smashing the windshields of 24 vehicles owned by Arabs.

Ben-Eliezer rattled off a list of other incidents which are by now so routine they don't even make the newspapers:

Demonstrators rolled a burning tire into an Israeli car, setting it ablaze. A driver parked his car by a roadside and found it a few minutes later burned and smashed. Somebody threw a Molotov cocktail at a military jeep.

"I can tell you why," Ben-Eliezer said. "Because the radical leaders of the area have brought them to this point. I feel very sorry for these people who follow the directives given by the local leaders."

Despite Israeli resistrictions, the Palestinians are trying to organize their resistance. An outlawed National Guidance Committee of Palestinian leaders is planning strikes and protests, and its influence reaches into every town and neighborhood of the West Bank.

Rome prison designer shot by terrorists

ROME (AP) — Four terrorists, including a woman, raided the studio of a man who designed a Rome prison where leftists and others are held, shooting him in the head and wounding him seriously, police said.

Police said the four terrorists fired a pistol shot in the back of the head of Sergio Lenci, an architect who helped design Rome's Rebibbia prison. His studio is close to St. Peter's Basilica.

Police said the terrorists dragged Lenci to the bathroom, where they gagged and tied him before shooting him in the head with a silencer-equipped pistol.

Before fleeing, the raiders painted on the studio's walls "Prima Linea (Front Line): To suppress technicians of anti-guerrilla."

Front Line is an ultra leftist guerrillla organization responsible for the assassinations of judges, policemen and industrial executives in recent years.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Many diabetics 'spill sugar'

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father, a diabetic, was told by his doctor that he is "spilling sugar." What does this mean? — Pat

Dear Pat: The term refers to sugar that leaves the body through the urine. Since a person with diabetes produces insufficient or less responsive insulin, his body cannot use the glucose (sugar) in the blood. As a result, the sugar "spills" into the urine.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Both my sister and I have 8-year-old sons (they are three months apart in age). At different time during the past year, both children were diagnosed as hyperactive. However, while my pediatrician recommended medication for my son, my sister's youngster is being seen by a child psychiatrist. Can you advise me as to which approach is preferred? — Mrs. A.N.

Dear Mrs. N.: As indicated by your experience as well as that of your sister, there are differences of opinion about the best method of treating the hyperactive child. Some physicians advocate the use of drugs, while other prefer counseling; still others advocate a combination of the two.

Researchers from Gateways Hospital and the University of California School of Medicine at Los Angeles recently reported that the combination of drugs and psychotherapy appears to be more effective than either method alone. After studying 84 boys, 6 to 12 years of age, they concluded that the combined approach produces an unexpectedly good outcome. They pointed out that while the use of drugs alone may produce satisfactory short-term results, the benefits are not sustained over the long term.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Two of my friends are currently in psychotherapy, and I know of at least two others who are taking tranquilizers prescribed by their physicians. Since they are all fairly affluent, professional people, they are not representative of the general population. Nevertheless, it seems to me that an increasing number of people are suffering from emotional problems. Is there any evidence to support this observation, and is there any way emotional disturbance can be prevented? — Ralph

Dear Ralph: There are some indications that the prevalence of emotional illness is, in fact, rising. Dr. Danielle Turns, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Louisville, estimates that up to 17 percent of the population of the United States suffers from some degree of emotional disturbance. She adds that almost eight percent of all men and 20 percent of all women who live to age 70 will probably experience depression during their lifetimes. Part of the reason for this is attributed to increased personal expectations and the person's accompanying greater disillusionment when the expectations are not realized.

Dr. Turns notes that mental illness is related to heredity, personality type and early life experiences, and that preventive measures have not been very successful.

Tuition level debated

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State college tuition should pay a fixed percentage of higher education costs, a blue-ribbon committee on higher education financing has agreed.

The recommendation, if adopted by the Legislature, probably would mean an increase in tuition every year or two as inflation forces college budgets ever higher.

The Special Committee on Higher Education Financing in Texas, headed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, put off until June 18 its decision on what share of college costs should be paid by students through tuition.

State College Coordinating Board staffers were told Wednesday to prepare figures showing how high tuition would go if it had to cover 6 to 15 percent of the cost of an education.

The committee said students should get more financial aid from the state if tuition rises.

Speaker Bill Clayton suggested the fixed percentage approach, at first mentioning 10 percent as the share of higher education costs that tuition might cover.

"Would that not be a way to get at it and not have to keep coming back and changing tuition all the time?" he said.

The Coordinating Board has recommended that the 1981 Legislature raise tuition but offered no suggestion how big the increase should be. Gov. Bill Clements also favors a tuition increase.

Tuition is $4 per semester credit hour for Texas residents, with a minimum of $50 a semester. A student taking a typical 15-hour course load would pay $60 a semester or $120 a year.

Texas' tuition and required fees for Texas residents rank 46th in the nation.

Coordinating Board statistics show resident tuition covers only 4.38 percent of senior college and university appropriations, which average $2,738 annually per student.

Twenty years ago, resident tuition — then set at $50 a semester — covered 15.15 percent of the cost.

Non-residents pay $40 per semester hour, and their average $1,200 yearly tuition covers 43.82 percent of the cost, compared with 60.6 percent in 1960.

Only Fred McClure of Waco, a Baylor University law student, voted against making resident tuition cover a fixed percentage of costs.

"If we make moves that are going to economically disadvantage Texas residents, I think we are defeating our purpose.... I don't think we should put our students in the position of being deeper in debt," McClure said.

Dividend record

WATERBURY, Conn. — (AP) — If it hadn't been for a heavy snowstorm in 1855 the longest record of uninterrupted dividends by an industrial company listed on the New York Stock Exchange — 123 years — would be even longer.

The payment record was noted in the 1979 annual report of Scovill Inc. The company began declaring dividends in 1850 when it became a joint stock company. But in 1855 the big snow prevented the directors from meeting to approve the then annual dividend action.

Rabies epidemic feared in region of Missouri

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — A third case of rabies has been confirmed in the St. Charles area and authorities fear the disease is spreading.

St. Charles health officer Robert Brandow said tests Wednesday determined that a stray cat, which has been destroyed, was rabid.

"We're a little worried the disease is spreading," he said.

The cat was found about a mile from a rural area where two earlier cases of rabies were discovered. One family's dog died last week and was later found to be rabid; a rabid cat was also found.

County Health Director George Robinson said a 30-day quarantine has been ordered in the area and pets found running loose will be shot.

"We obviously don't want to shoot any animals," Robinson said, "but we will if we have to. We must somehow convince the people in this area that there is a problem."

Two dozen families in this county north of St. Louis have been forced to have their pets destroyed because of the outbreak, Robinson said.

Because of their exposure to the dog at a weekend cookout, 27 persons have been undergoing a series of painful rabies shots.

"The exposure is definitely there," Robinson said. "We do not know the degree. Only time will tell that. But we have to get the animals off the streets and we have been advising residents that even if their dogs have been inoculated, it wouldn't hurt to get them booster shots."

Robinson has asked the owners of pets which haven't been inoculated against rabies to surrender them to county health officials.

Women insured

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average American woman is being insured for more than ever before, reports the American Council of Life Insurance.

The average, ordinary life-insurance policy purchased on the life of a woman more than doubled in size between 1972 and 1978, according to a survey by the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association.

Sniper's Revenge

Larry Hagman, as J.R. Ewing, faces a desperate moment in the episode of "Dallas," to be rebroadcast Friday, May 2, on CBS.

On a hunting trip in Louisiana, Jock finds himself the target of revenge from a man he doesn't even remember. Jock and J.R. are wounded by a sniper's bullets while hunting, and with their vehicle sabotaged, Bobby and Ray have to walk to town for help. Thinking he might not recover, Jock reveals a secret to J.R. that he has been hiding from Ellie since they were married. Meanwhile, at home, Ellie is afraid she might be facing surgery.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, May 3, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor and author Walter Slezak is one determined Taurus born on this date who has found success in many areas. Perseverance and a willingness to try new things are critical to your achieving greater success in career or business this year. 1980 is the time when you find out exactly who your real friends are. Large, unexpected financial windfall is a distinct possibility. In romance, you would be wise to seek a partner who shares your strong desire for privacy and independence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Member of opposite sex has good intentions but can complicate a simple domestic matter. Serious talk with mate, romantic partner could be necessity now! Be willing to make some new concessions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Family member could need your help in arranging a surprise. Enter into loved ones' plans with enthusiasm. New rapport is possible with acquaintance you thought indifferent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Loved ones cannot give you the support you need unless they know all the facts. Honesty wins you staunch allies. Older individual may play role in increasing your income.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Piece of news may come as a big surprise to you. How you react to bit of gossip could interest member of opposite sex. Be flexible, diplomatic in your dealings with in-laws or neighbors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Financial matters can occupy your thoughts. Do not underestimate capabilities of new acquaintance. Your warm, romantic nature makes tonight a big success. Quiet supper for two may be part of scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Firm but gentle hand is needed when dealing with children, teenagers. Domestic harmony is much more important than always having your own way. Surprise mate, spouse by tackling and completing unpleasant chore.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hobby could turn into extra source of income. New purchase to beautify home can give great enjoyment. Think about ways to make surroundings more comfortable. You have good eye for design and placement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Listen to friend's suggestions on ways to cut down spending. Small economies can lead to big savings. Whirlwind romance may seem glamorous but the memory of it could cause considerable embarrassment later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business, financial transactions are likely to be time-consuming. Do not allow small delays to make you grouchy. Good night to go out on the town or attend a party.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make effort to widen your horizons. Subscribe to special publication or join new group. Going for walk both tones the body and clears the mind. Contact relative; share good news with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spur-of-the-moment invitation may bring you enjoyable weekend. Sports may be part of plan. Do not overdo if you are out of shape. Catch up on personal correspondence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Many small matters command your attention. Not a particularly eventful day, so you can accomplish much around the home if you like. Remember friends or relatives, or call someone who can be feeling neglected, unloved.

Opening lead: Four of ♡.

A fascinating hand is reported by Terence Reese in the latest "Precision Newsletter." It is an almost perfect double-dummy problem. See if you can find the solution looking at all four hands.

The auction given is the one that occurred at the table, where the players were using an artificial club system. Although the normal contract of four spades would be virtually unbeatable as the cards lie, even with the 4-0 trump break, three no trump was a much better contract.

West made his normal lead of a low heart against three no trump. Declarer followed low from dummy, East won the queen and returned the ten. West made a good defensive play when he allowed dummy to win the second heart. Declarer entered his hand by leading a low club to the queen, and then led the ten of spades. West covered with the king, and when East showed out, declarer realized that he needed two entries to his hand to pick up the spade suit. He tried a low club, intending to finesse the ten. But East was alert and inserted the jack, so declarer had to go down. Have you spotted declarer's error?

At trick three, declarer must lead the king of clubs and overtake it with the ace! If West started with fewer than four spades to the king, declarer does not need more than two club tricks to make his contract. On the actual lie of the cards, though, declarer needs three entries to his hand to develop the spade suit, and now he cannot be denied them.

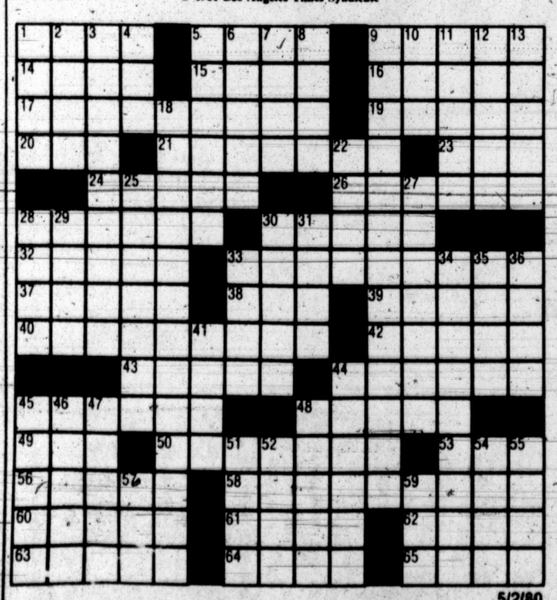

When declarer discovers the 4-0 spade split, he can reenter his hand by finessing the ten of clubs. He leads the eight of spades. West covers, dummy wins and declarer gets back to his hand with the queen of clubs to lead the six of spades, finessing West out of his seven-spot! Thus, technique is rewarded with an overtrick. Declarer must make five spade tricks, one heart, one diamond and three clubs.

Easy, isn't it!

Draft registration foes pessimistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of draft registration appear increasingly pessimistic about their chances of killing the program in Congress, but nevertheless are trying to stop it with stalling tactics and amendments.

A scheduled vote on President Carter's registration plan was delayed in the Senate Appropriations Committee Thursday when opponents raised a parliamentary objection and pointed out that a majority of the members was not present.

Opponents also won a ruling not to let the votes of absent senators be cast by proxy.

As a result, the committee put off its work on the issue until next Tuesday. The committee is the last stop for the plan before it goes to the Senate floor and an expected filibuster by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

Opponents were not able to stop the plan in the House, which approved it last week. They also admit they lack the votes to kill it in the Appropriations Committee.

"We don't have the votes, but they don't have a quorum," said David Landau, spokesman for an anti-registration group, after the committee called off Thursday's vote because of absenteeism.

Carter has legal authority to revive draft registration for men, but needs money to reactivate the machinery for doing so. He would need separate authorizing legislation to register women, an idea originally proposed by the administration but no longer being pressed. Likewise, the president would need separate cosngressional approval to reactivate the draft. He has not asked for that.

Hatfield proposed an amendment — still pending when the committee recessed — to cut the funding for male registration to $4.7 million.

That would be enough only to upgrade Selective Service's computers and to prepare a standby registration plan that would not go into effect until the president ordered mobilization in an emergency.

Opponents argued privately that delays benefit their side, because that gives registration foes more time to lobby and try to put election-year pressure on senators.

They said the aborted hostage rescue mission in Iran has helped Carter because senators don't want to do anything that might send a signal of weakness.

"The longer we delay, the lesser this Iranian military residue persists," said one source, who asked not to be identified.

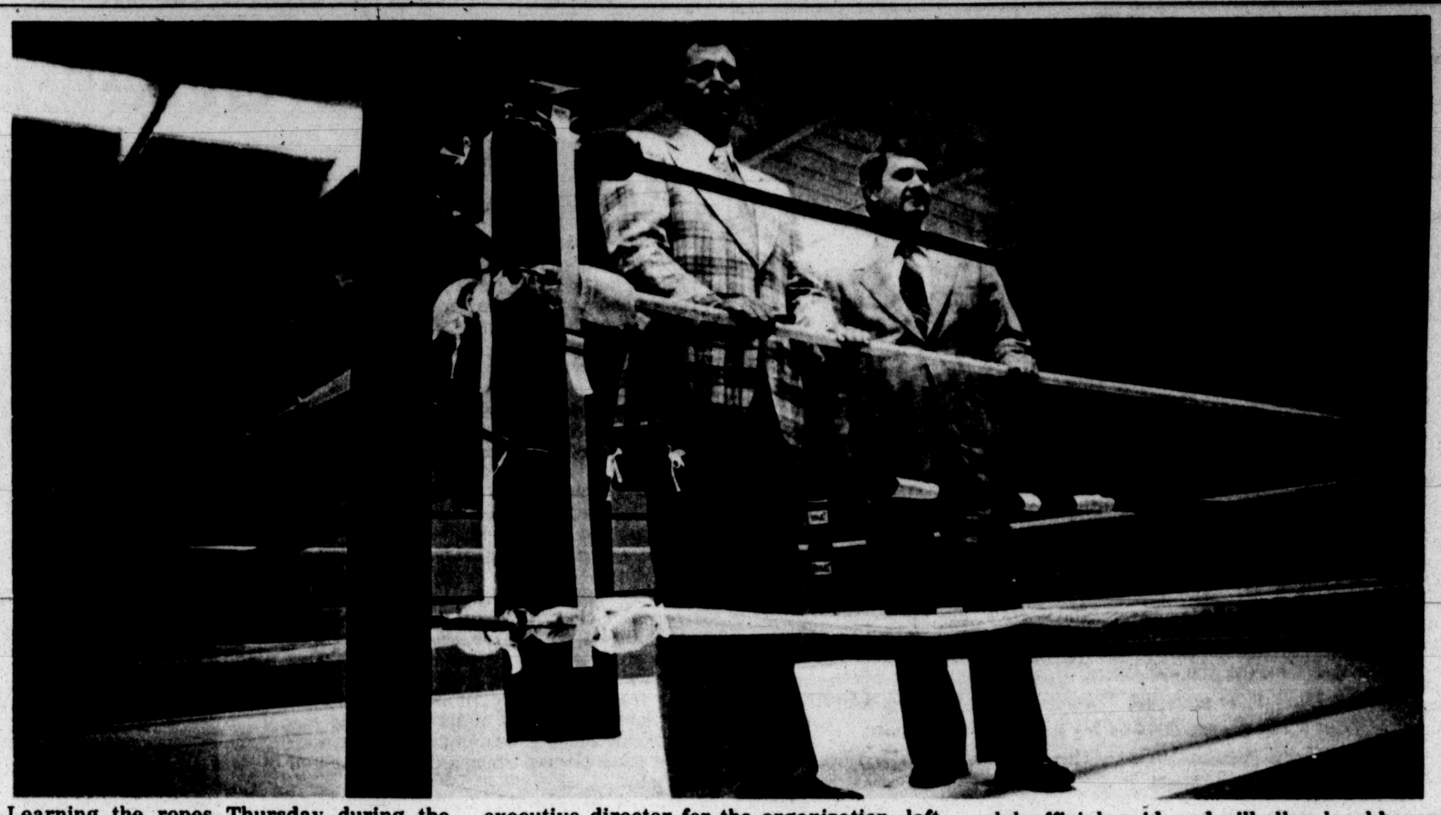

Hatfield is basing his strategy on lining up enough supporters to prevent his filibuster from being choked off.

A filibuster can be broken when 60 senators vote to limit debate.

"All we need to do is take 41 votes," said Hatfield aide Jack Robertson. "We're pretty close to that."

"I think it (registration) will pass when it comes to a vote — if it comes to a vote," said one registration foe, also asked not to be identified by name.

Administration officials believe they have enough votes to pass registration in the Senate — a simple majority of 50 plus one. They are not as confident, however, that they have enough votes to break a filibuster.

Learning the ropes Thursday during the opening of the new Boys' Club addition at 110 E. New Jersey Ave. are Donny Thompson, executive director for the organization, left, and Leon Jeffcoat, president of the board. The new boxing ring is the only one in Midland, club officials said, and will allow local boxers to train closer to home. (Staff Photo)

College may escape government foreclosure

CALDWELL, Idaho (AP) — It appears College of Idaho won't be foreclosed by the federal government after all.

The private, four-year college disclosed earlier it hadn't made a payment on a $2½ million loan from the federal government since 1975. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development was talking about foreclosure because the school was $610,000 behind on payments, officials said.

But college administrators flew to Portland Thursday for a conference with HUD officials and announced agreement on a repayment plan.

RRC incumbents receiving most business contributions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two incumbents seeking election to the Texas Railroad Commission have received most of their campaign funds from sources that might have business before the regulatory agency, according to Common Cause.

The self-styled citizens lobby reported Thursday that 71 percent of the identifiable contributions to the four Democratic candidates in Saturday's primary came from sources with a potential conflicts of interests.

"Our study reveals serious problems in the way that Railroad Commission campaigns are financed," said Ruth Milburn, chairwoman of Common Cause of Texas. "Several candidates have received a large percentage of their contributions from sources with economic interests directly regulated by the Railroad Commission."

As of April 3, Commission Chairman John Poerner had received about $362,000. Common Cause said it tracked $224,018 — 61 percent — to sources with potential conflicts.

Challenger Buddy Temple of Diboll listed about $300,000 in contributions. Common Cause said $47,342 — 16 percent — came from sources with possible conflicts. Temple reported $103,600 in donations from his wealthy family.

Common Cause found Commissioner Jim Nugent received $405,000, including $284,288 — 70 percent — from donors with possible conflicts.

Jim Hightower, Nugent's opponent, had no donations from sources with potential conflicts, according to Common Cause. He collected about $126,000.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Some day you'll understand why

JESUS knew on the evening of Passover Day that it would be His last night on earth before returning to His Father.

During supper the Devil had already suggested to Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, that this was the night to carry out his plan to betray Jesus. Jesus knew that the Father had given Him everything and that He had come from God and would return to God. And how He loved His disciples!

So He got up from the supper table, took off His robe, wrapped a towel around His loins, Poured water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel He had around Him.

When He came to Simon Peter, Peter said to Him, "Master, You shouldn't be washing our feet like this!"

Jesus replied, "You don't understand now why I am doing it; some day you will."

"No," Peter protested, "You shall never wash my feet!"

"But if I don't, you can't be My partner," Jesus replied.

Simon Peter exclaimed, "Then wash my hands and head as well—not just my feet!"

Jesus replied, "One who has bathed all over needs only to have his feet washed to be entirely clean. Now you are clean—but that isn't true of everyone here."

For Jesus knew who would betray Him. That is what He meant when He said, "Not all of you are clean."

After washing their feet He put on His robe again and sat down and asked, "Do you understand what I was doing?

You call Me 'Master' and 'Lord,' and you do well to say it, for it is true.

And since I, the Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you ought to wash each other's feet.

I have given you an example to follow: do as I have done to you.

John 13:1-15

Medalist after new kind of win

By SUSAN STOLER

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Olympic gold medal winner Bobby Morrow is going after a different kind of victory Saturday.

The star sprinter of the 1956 summer games has entered the political arena for the first time and will try to defeat a 16-year incumbent for the Democratic nomination for a Cameron County commissioner's post.

Morrow, 44, says he let friends persuade him to run for ofice but he nixed suggestions to play up his three gold medals won at Melbourne, Australia.

"I want people to vote for me not for my achievement in athletics but for my integrity and honesty," he said.

After working for several banks, Morrow returned to his native Rio Grande Valley 10 years ago from Houston. He farmed his father's land near San Benito and a year ago opened a men's clothing store.

At San Benito High School, he ran for two consecutive state schoolboy championships in the 100-yard dash. Going on to Abilene Christian College, he claimed 80 collegiate victories in the 100-yard and 200-yard events and ran on a world record-setting relay team in the 440-yard and 880-yard events.

At age 19, Morrow swept three gold medals in Austrialia for the best individual permformance since Jesse Owens' appaearance in the 1936 Berlin Olympics.

Morrow says he thinks most voters know of his sports past but he doesn't bring it up. However, customers at his store can see two of the medals and other awards on display.

The third medal was given to the Smithsonian earlier this year.

"I had to think about it a long time," he said of turning over the award. "But I thought after I'm gone, they'll just be thrown in a drawer."

Besides the medals in his store, there's his Sportsman of the Year Award from Sports Illustrated, plus a copy of the magazine announcing his selection in 1956.

In another case is a cap adorned with pins of different teams that competed in the 1956 games.

It's been 24 years since he beat the world's best sprinters. And kids still write for his autograph.

"I get letters from foreign countries, even now, addressed to 'Bobby Morrow, Texas.'

Richard Moore, Republican candidate for Midland County Attorney, and his wife Sandy greet one of the many Midland families they have met during his door-to-door campaign. Richard, an Assistant District Attorney, has endeavored to personally meet each voter, but if he is yet to knock at your door, please accept this as his introduction and request for your vote tomorrow.

Serious crime up in South

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime, which soared nationwide last year after a three-year letup, is growing faster in smaller communities and in the South, the FBI says.

As measured by preliminary data released Wednesday, serious crimes reported to police increased 8 percent in 1979 — the biggest jump since 9.8 percent four years ago. The crime index decreased 1 percent between 1976 and 1978.

The FBI said the figures showed that the number of serious crimes rose 11 percent in cities of less than 50,000 population and 8 percent in larger cities.

Overall crime rose 10 percent in the South, compared with 9 percent in the Northeast, 8 percent in the West and 7 percent in the North Central states.

Nationwide, violent crime was up 11 percent from the year before, with forcible rape and robbzry each up 12 percent and murder and aggravated assault each up 9 percent.

Property crime increased 8 percent, with a 10 percent increase in motor vehicle theft, a 9 percent rise in larceny-theft and a 6 percent rise in burglary.

The preliminary figures cover only crimes known to police agencies.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait again considering crude oil price hikes

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia, the largest of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and Kuwait, a smaller but more militant member, are reported to be considering increases in crude oil prices.

The reports came Thursday, less than a week before OPEC's oil ministers were scheduled to meet in Taif, Saudi Arabia, to take up a long-term price-increase program proposed by the Saudis several months ago.

The Saudi daily newspaper Al-Madia was quoted by the Gulf News Agency in Nicosia, Cyprus, as saying Saudi Arabia is expected to raise its crude oil price from the current level of $26 per 42-gallon barrel at the May 7 OPEC meeting.

The paper also said the Saudis, the United States' largest foreign oil supplier, were expected to ask other OPEC members at the meeting to cut their prices.

Next week's meeting was supposed to have been reserved for consideration of the long-term price plan; OPEC's oil ministers are scheduled to meet in Algeria June 9 to take up current prices.

The reported Saudi moves could turn out to be the third bid since last winter to narrow the gap between the country's price — the lowest in the cartel — and those charged by other members.

The unity moves were foiled twice before, however, when Kuwait followed the Saudi hikes with increases of its own. The Kuwaiti actions each time set off a series of boosts by other OPEC members.

Oil industry sources said they would not be surprised to see the Saudis raise their price — the traditional benchmark for other OPEC rates — to $30 a barrel.

Saudi Arabia produces 9.5 million barrels of oil a day, about one-third of OPEC's supply, and sells the United States 1.3 million barrels daily.

A $4-a-barrel increase by the Saudis could cost U.S. motorists up to 2 cents a gallon at the gasoline pump if other OPEC prices remain unchanged.

Kuwait, meanwhile, was reported by industry sources in New York to be asking a $5.50 premium over its official $27.50-a-barrel price on all new contract oil sales.

The Persian Gulf country produces 1.5 million barrels of oil a day — down from 2 million a day in the first quarter — but sells virtually no oil to the United States.

Kuwait recently charged British Petroleum Co., the Royal Dutch-Shell Group of Companies and others the $27.50 official price on part of the companies' long-term supplies and a $5.50 premium on supplemental amounts.

Now, "our understanding is that all new contracts" are going to carry the $5.50 surcharge, said a reliable source who asked not to be identified. The newsletter Petroleum Intelligence Weely had reported Monday that Kuwait was said to be asking $7 to $8 premiums on all new sales.

The industry source said buyers feel "there's no justification" for the premiums. They reason that world oil demand has slumped and inventories have swelled as prices doubled to an average $30 a barrel over the past year and a half.

In the United States, crude oil stocks were at a record 373 million barrels last week, up from 319 million a year ago, the American Petroleum Institute said Thursday.

But another source said because world oil demand is fairly slack, the Saudis could move to cut oil output in order to pacify Kuwait and other price hawks in the cartel.

The source cautioned a Saudi production cut could cause shortages and start a new price spiral if Iran's oil exports do not rise from their current estimated daily level of 500,000 barrels, down from about 2 million earlier this year.

Industry sources said, meanwhile, that Venezuela posted increases of 32 cents to $1.10 per 42-gallon barrel on prices of "residual" fuel oil, used on the U.S. East Coast to generate electricity and heat large apartment and office buildings.

Venezuela reduced residual oil prices last month as demand slumped. Markets have firmed in recent days, and a Venezuelan hike was expected, amid nervousness over the outlook for Iranian oil production.

West Texas counties gain location for wildcat tests

Wildcat operations have been announced in West Texas counties.

HNG Oil Co. No. 1-182 Wilkinson is a 9,950-foot exploerer in Sterling County, eight miles northwest of Sterling City.

The project is 1,320 feet from south- and 960 feet from west lines of section 182m block 2, H&TC survey. Ground elevation is 2,518 feet.

It will test lower formations as a wildcat and will also test for production in the Credo, East (Cisco) field which produces at 7,300 feet.

The drillsite is one location north of an 8,693-foot dry hole.

REEVES EXPLORER

HNG also will drill No. 1-9 ARCO-State as a 6,000-foot wildcat in Reeves County, 23 miles northwest of Pecos.

Location is 933 feet from north and east lines of section 9, block 57, psl survey.

Drillsite is 3 14 mile northwest of a 3,930-foot failure and 3 5/8 miles northwest of the Golden Eagle (Castile) field which produces at 6,031 feet.

TOM GREEN TRY

American Trading & Production Co. of Midland No. 2 Rust Estate has been staked as a 7,250-foot wildcat in Tom Green County, 14 miles north of San Angelo.

The prospector is 1,548 feet from north and 2,482 feet from west lines of San Saba County School Land survey No. 963. Ground elevation is 2,310 feet.

Drillsite is 1,200 feet north of the lone well in the Bald Eagle (Ellenburger) field and one location south of ATAPCO No. 1 H. S. Unit, active wildcat.

SCHLEICHER RE-ENTRY

Meador Land Co. of Eldorado announced plans to re-enter the former HNG Oil Co. No. 1-51 Valentine in Schleicher County and cleanout to 4,000 feet for tests as a wildcat.

The project, bottomed at 7,440 feet, is 660 feet fromnorth and west lines of section 51, block A, HE&TW survey and 5/8 mile southeast of the Eldorado (Wolfcamp oil and Canyon gas) field. It also is 2 7/8 miles southeast of the lone well in the Ramon (Wolfcamp) field. The drillsite is one mile south of Eldorado.

Meador will operate the project as No. 1 Valentine. It was plugged by HNG in April 1978.

RUNNELS TESTS

A pair of wildcats have been spotted in Runnels County.

Diamond Drilling Co. of Dallas No.1 James J. Urban will be dug to 4,800 feet two miles north of Miles.

Locarion is 1,980 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section97, ETRR survey, abstract 174. Ground elevation is 1,824 feet.

Drillsite is 1,650 feet northeast of the Urban, West (Dog Bend) field.

****

Master Drilling Co. Inc. of Abilene No.1 Ross M. Black Jr. is a 4,500-foot wildcat 3.5 miles northeast of Winters in Runnels County.

Location is 1,050 feet fromnorth and 550 feet from east lines of section 318, block 64, H&TC survey.

It is surrouned by production and depleted wells in the Briley multipay field.

CONCHO AREA

Petrolero Exploration Inc. of Abilene No.1 Speck is to be dug one-mile southwest of Strawn production in the Speck, North field of Concho County, 12 miles northwest of Eden.

Drillsite for the 3,750-foot test is 550 feet fromnorthand 1,463 feet from east lines of HE&WT survey No. 3, abstract 1,660. Ground elevation is 1,895 feet.

COKE PRODUCER

Sun Oil Co. No. 2 Sam B. Savage has been compelted in the Lygay pool of Coke County, 12 miles southwest of Silver.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 82 barrels of 46.6-gravity oil and eight barrels of water, through a 12/64-inc choke. The gas-oilratio is 1,329-1.

Completion was through perforations from 6,062 to 6,200 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and 84,000 gallons of fracture fluid.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of secton 71, block 2, H&TC survey.

Hughes third Texan to hold energy job

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Assistant Attorney General David Hughes of Texas, appointed Thursday to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, is the third Texan to get an important energy job in the Carter administration.

Charles Duncan is head of the Department of Energy and Lynn Coleman is the department's general counsel.

"I've been working on this one a long time," Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said of Carter's appointment of Hughes.

Armstrong is a co-manager of Carter's re-election campaign in Texas. He appeared at a Capitol news conference with Hughes and Texas Attorney General Mark White.

Armstrong said the FERC, which has five commissioners, had "no representation that suited me."

Hughes, 45, has been chief of the attorney general's energy division since January 1979. James Meyers, a state district judge for 12 years, will succeed Hughes. Meyers has been in private practice in Austin since 1977.

Hughes said President Carter appointed him to a four-year term to fill the position formerly held by Don Smith of Arkansas. The job had been vacant since October.

FERC — formerly the Federal Power Commission — was created in the 1920s to regulate interstate sales of electricity and interstate transportation of natural gas. In the 1950s the Supreme Court ruled that the FPC could regulate well-head sales of natural gas by producers to interstate pipelines.

FERC regulates oil pipelines and administers the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, which provides for a phase out of federal price controls over gas. It also is charged with encouraging electric utilities and industries to convert to the use of coal.

Hughes stressed he still must be confirmed by the U.S. Senate, and he said he was "not at liberty" to answer questions about "what I intend to do" on the FERC. He said the Energy and Natural Resources Committee should have the first chance at asking him specific questions.

"Virtually every act performed by FERC touches Texas in a major way," said Armstrong.

He said the "competition was tough" from Louisiana and Oklahoma to win the position.

"An able lawyer (Hughes) is leaving but my former law partner (Meyers) is succeeding him. This is a good day for the state," said Armstrong.

Wildcat, field work reported in NM

Sunmark Exploration of Midland No. 1 Loretta Lowe has been spotted as a 10,300-foot wildcat in Lea County, N.M., 12 miles southwest of Bronco.

It is 330 feet from south and east lines of section 22-10s-37e.

EDDY WELLS

The Winchester (Morrow gas) pool of Eddy County gained a new well with completion of Cities Service Co. No. 2 Government "S", 3/4 mile southwest of the closest Morrow producer.

It finaled for a daily potential of 6,166,000 cubic feet of gas, through a choke of unreported size and perforations from 11,214 to 11,237 feet.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 3-20s-28e and 12 miles west of Carlsbad.

****

Yates Petroleum Corp. No. 1 Goat Roper Communitized "LP" has been completed in the Eagle Creek, East (Morrow) pool of Eddy County, three miles south of Artesia.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 1,878,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through a choke of unreported size and perforations opposite the Morrow from 8,365 to 8,373 feet.

Total depth is 8,610 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set at 8,499 feet and the plugged back depth is 8,490 feet.

Wellsite is 1,230 feet from south and 1,300 feet from east lines of section 30-17s-26e. It is 7/8 mile northeast of other Morrow gas production.

****

The Logan Draw (San Andres) pool of Eddy County gained a new well with completion of Collier & Collier of Artesia No. 1 Hagen-Federal.

On 24-hour potential test it pumped 20 barrels of 36-gravity oil and two barrels of water, through perforations from 1,801 to 1,836 feet after a 2,000-gallon acid treatment. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure.

Total depth is 1,850 feet, 4.5-inch casing was cemented on bottom and hole is plugged back to 1,840 feet.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 19-17s-27e and 19 miles west of Loco Hills.

****

The Logan Draw (Morrow gas) pool gained a new well with completion of Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1 Willis-Federal Communitized.

It completed for a daily flow of 498,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 7/64-inch choke and perforations from 9,284 to 9,490 feet. The zone was azidizedwih 22,000 gallons.

Total depth is 9,50 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set at 9,589 feet and plugged back depth is 9,507 feet.

Location is 2,130 feet from north and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 28-17s-27e and 17 miles west of Loco Hills.

LEA TESTS

The second well in the area, it finaled for a daily pumping potential of 66 barrels of oil and 44 barrels of water, through perforations from 2,662 to 2,680 feet after a 2,000-gallon acid treatment.

Gravity and gas-oil ratio were not reported.

The well is 1 1/8 miles west of the other producer and 330 feet from south and953 feet from west lines of section 18-8s-29e.

Total depth is 2,830 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 2,804 feet.

Congressman asks for check

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Ohio congressman wants the Department of Energy investigated for ordering Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) to take action that would mean a price increase of 10 cents a gallon for the Sohio gasoline.

The price increased is meant to bring Sohio's prices into line with other Ohio gas retailers.

Sohio had been selling gas for as low as $1.01 per gallon and a group of independent dealers claimed that the price was so low it was hurting their business

Rep. Lyle Williams, R-Ohio, called Thursday for a congressional investigation of the order by Melvin Goldstein, DOE's director of hearings and appeals. Williams claimed the order would hurt consumers.

Meanwhile, a Sohio spokesman said in Cleveland that company will challenge the order in federal court.

Goldstein ruled Wednesday that Sohio had been unfairly aided by a subsidy it gets on shipments of Alaskan crude oil to its refineries. The subsidy comes from DOE's entitlements program, which is designed to equalize the cost U.S. refiners pay for crude.

Goldstein directed Sohio to pay $42 million into a federal escrow account during the next three months until the government decides what to do about the entitlement regulations, and he gave Sohio permission to raise its prices enough to recover that amount. That would be about 10 cents per gallon.

Meanwhile, gas pump prices across the nation are expected to go up at least a penny a gallon under a change in the markup rules for wholesalers announced Thursday by the DOE.

Suit filed on income tax rule

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A law clerk and his wife have filed a legal challenge to the state's recently enacted income tax relief and oil wealth cash distribution laws that favor longtime residents over new arrivals.

The suit was filed by Ron and Patricia Zobel, who have been Alaska residents since 1978, their attorney, Mark Sandberg, said.

Sandberg said in a telephone interview Tuesday night that the complaint was filed in Anchorage Superior Court on Monday. Zobel, who is a law clerk for U.S. District Court Judge James A. Von Der Heydt in Anchorage, could not immediately be reached for comment.

Alaska Attorney General Avrum Gross said that while he won't see the complaint until sometime today, he is confident the tax relief and permanent fund dividend laws will be upheld in this test, which he said is unique.

"The bills were carefully researched and I believe very strongly that we can sustain them against a constitutional attack," Gross said. "There's never been a situation precisely similar to this, but I think we can logically support it and the courts will uphold it."

Legislators and the administration knew there was a possibility that the measures would be challenged when Gov. Jay Hammond signed them into law April 15.

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed in quiet trading today as the market absorbed the news of a sharp rise in the unemployment rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 2 points in early trading, was up 1.28 at 810.07 by noontime.

But losers held a slight lead over gainers in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Labor Department reported today that the unemployment rate climbed last month from 6.2 to 7 percent of the work force.

The rate has now climbed a full percentage point since February, reaching its highest level in almost three years.

The news was the latest in a rapidly accumulating series of signals that the economy is moving into a recession.

Teledyne jumped 19⅞ to 114 after a delayed opening. The company said it was offering to exchange $160 worth of debentures apiece for up to 1 million shares of its stock.

Liggett Group climbed 1⅞ to 46⅝. The company, which is fighting a $50-a share acquisition bid by a British concern, said Thursday it was discussing a possible friendly takeover with another party which it declined to name.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .01 to 59.95. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .74 at 253.69.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 12.77 million shares at noontime, down from 14.37 million at the same point Thursday.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Government asks share of interest

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration says the government is being cheated because it doesn't get its share of interest on your savings and dividends on your stocks, and it hopes to do something about it.

And so the administration and Congress and the banks and others are arguing their cases with facts, figures, testimony, opinions, lawyers and money, and they will let you know when they reach their decisions.

But there is another constituency too, the individuals who would have their incomes withheld. It deserves to be considered at least; and if nothing comes of it, the individuals involved deserve an explanation.

But first, the positions of the administration and the institutions:

The administration hopes to create a withholding system for interest and dividend income, using banks, corporations and others to route directly to Washington 15 percent of payments intended for you.

The administration has its reasons. As Secretary G. William Miller explained: "We must ... take positive action to avoid needless loss to the Treasury of billions of dollars due under present tax laws."

The laws, it seems, are being flouted. According to Miller, about 9 percent to 16 percent of interest and dividend income to individuals — more than $2 billion a year — fails to show up on income tax returns.

Congress, however, might not buy the proposal, now before the House Ways and Means Committee, one reason being that those who would do the routing, such as banks, are uniformally and adamantly against it.

Their "anti" arguments are many, but generally relate to the cost of bookkeeping, to be assumed by institutions, and feelings that the plan would discourage savings and divert funds from more productive uses.

Presumably, someone will speak for the millions of individuals who would feel the pinch, but they won't have nearly the same ability to make so professional a presentation. They may have to rely on logic.

First, with the income of corporations already taxed, why should individuals have to pay taxes again on the dividends they receive from those profits? It's an old, old argument, but as relevant as ever.

Secondly, how many people have any real income from interest on savings? Very few. Inflation has consistently deprived individuals of that type of income during the Carter years. It has cost them instead.

In one instance, therefore, individuals are asked to pay tax on what already has been taxed. In the other, they are asked to pay taxes on an illusion — the illusion of profits, when the reality is a severe loss.

Their legitimate gripes aren't intended to offset the government's legitimate demands that it be paid everything the law declares it is entitled to. Nor is cheating on tax returns to be condoned.

Bentsen introduces bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen suggests that some of the Iranian assets frozen after the takeover of the American Embassy in Tehran last fall could be used to compensate the hostages.

The Texas Democrat and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., introduced a Hostage Compensation Act on Wednesday that would allow up to $1 billion of the blocked assets to be used as a compensation fund.

The bill would use the money to provide $200 a day from the fund for any U.S. citizen detained in Iran up to the time the bill becomes law. After that, each hostage or other American hiding in Iran would receive $500 a day until his release.

Families of U.S. servicemen killed in last week's unsuccessful military mission to Iran also would be eligible for compensation from the frozen assets.

"The Hostage Compensation Act, coupled with decreasing oil earnings, should put an increasingly effective strain on Iran's economy," Bentsen said in a statement.

"The bill is designed to increase compensation after it is signed into law, thereby sending the Iranians a message that any further delay in release of the hostages hurts them even more," the senator said.

After day of disruption, FTC back on the beat today

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government's chief consumer cop is back on the beat today, but officials of the Federal Trade Commission say there was a "substantial disruption" of business during the one day the FTC was officially out of business.

President Carter signed an emergency bill late Thursday supplying $7.6 million to operate the FTC for the next 30 days and providing a new lease on life for the agency created 66 years ago to protect consumers from shady and illegal business practices.

FTC critics say the agency has been too aggressive in regulating business and Congress is now considering a bill, separate from the temporary money measure passed Thursday, to curb the agency.

Despite the fact that the agency could legally do no work Thursday, the various laws it was set up to enforce were still on the books and can be enforced retroactively, said an FTC spokesman.

"Just because the cop was off the beat for a day, doesn't mean it's not illegal," said the FTC's Ira Furman. "It's still illegal. The cop just took a day off."

Most of the agency's 1,750 employees reported to work at the FTC building here and at 10 regional offices around the nation.

They spent the day packing files and preparing status-of-cases reports on hundreds of various actions. But most of the packing was done slowly because, as one FTC employee said, "The slower I pack, the less I'll have to unpack."

The machine that smokes 500 cigarettes a day to test tar and nicotine levels was stopped. No mail was sent out and people calling the FTC heard a recorded message saying the agency was closed "due to lack of congressional funds."

Although there was a lot of confusion, there was a minimum of gallows humor. However, one staffer who noted that repainting of the building had stopped, said, "They're waiting for the new tenant."

The unpacking began today and even though the "closure" was only for a day, "there's been a substantial disruption of business," said Furman.

For example, he said, a team of 10 FTC lawyers investigating oil company practices were ordered to fly back to Washington from Texas. Now, they'll have to turn around and go back to Texas, at the added expense.

In the FTC building near the Capitol, hearings on FTC allegations against three companies charged with illegal treatment of consumers were canceled.

The FTC, one of the government's smallest agencies, was formed in 1914, chiefly to protect consumers in the wake of exposes of various businesses, such as meat-packing, patent medicines, and oil.

With the rise of consumer advocacy in the 1970s, the FTC has become more active. In 1973, it won a federal court case upholding its power to issue broad regulations on unfair trade practices.

But FTC critics have attacked a number of investigations, such as those of the funeral and insurance industries, television programming and dairy cooperatives and hearing aid sales.

The agency has not had a regular appropriation since 1976. Instead, money has come through a series of stop-gap bills. But even that source died up Thursday after the latest appropriation ran out and Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said it would be illegal for the agency to continue work without appropriated money.

Violence erupts in May Day rallies

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

As millions of workers worldwide paraded in May Day celebrations, many rallies turned violent, leaving six youths dead in Turkey and hundreds arrested after clashes elsewhere.

In the United States, hecklers pelted rallying communists with eggs, rocks and bottles in several cities, and there were more than 50 arrests.

Once a celebration of spring, May Day is now a day for labor demonstrations by socialist and communist workers.

The huge annual labor rally in Moscow was boycotted by ambassadors of at least 16 nations — including Japan, China and Pakistan — to protest Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Red Square was filled with hundreds of thousands of Soviets as thousands of floats, ranks of students, office and factory workers moved past the Lenin mausoleum.

In Turkey, five youths and a 10-year-old boy were killed in fighting between 500 would-be leftist demonstrators in Antalya and security troops enforcing a ban on May Day demonstrations.

Norwegian police fought with 2,000 youths on Oslo's main street in a six-hour battle that left the street's shops in ruins and led to 110 arrests.

Huge crowds of Cubans gathered in Havana's Revolutionary Plaza to show support for President Fidel Castro's government, the focus of worldwide attention as thousands of refugees flee to Florida.

About 5.8 million Japanese marched in 1,000 cities to complain about inflation, criticize the government and enjoy the weather.

In Peking, red national flags were waving, but the day was more of a spring holiday than a time for demonstrations.

A rally in Tel Aviv attracted 60,000 Israelis calling for an end to rampant inflation and for the government's resignation.

Hundreds of thousands of Swedish workers marched as the worst labor conflict in the country's history closed virtually all Sweden's private industry and transportation.

In Los Angeles, about 30 people were arrested and 19 persons were injured in a club-swinging run-in between police and members of the Revolutionary Communist Party after a daylong march by about 250 people.

Some 15 members of the Revolutionary Communist Party were arrested in Detroit after trying to get high school students to join their parade.

A dozen demonstrators were arrested in Chicago after scuffling with police at a downtown rally. And in Atlanta, 13 communists were arrested when a scuffle broke out after a shouting match between anti-communist bystanders and some 25 demonstrators.

In Seattle, 75 members of the Revolutionary Communist Party were chased by Garfield High School students throwing rocks, bottles and chunks of concrete.

A demonstration in Charleston, W. Va., was broken up by about 300 protesters with eggs and clubs who attacked a pickup truck carrying members of the Revolutionary Communist Party.

Court to decide fate of unconscious orphan

CHICAGO (AP) — Three-year-old Shane Meyer was orphaned when fire killed his mother in March. Today, he lies unconscious in a hospital, hooked to a respirator as strangers in a courtroom ponder his fate.

Painful questions face the doctors and lawyers involved in the boy's case: Is the child dead? Should his respirator be disconnected? Who should make that decision? Who should be named guardian?

The boy is in critical condition at Swedish American Hospital in Rockford, said spokeswoman Jane Neubauer. "He's on a respirator. He has not responded since he came into the hospital. His brain waves are flat," she said.

Winnebago County Associate Circuit Judge Harris Agnew, conducting a hearing today, refused to discuss the matter.

Be informed.

The Texas Railroad Commission is far too important to the proper conservation and management of Texas energy resources to elect a Commissioner on the basis of vague information, mistaken identity or a general "feeling" about a candidate.

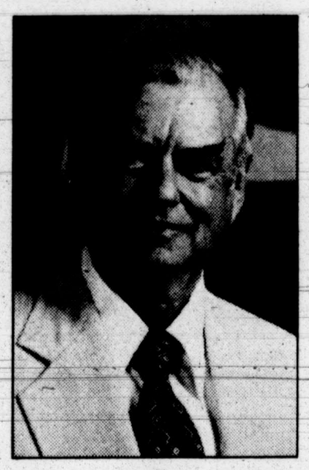

Make sure you know the facts before you vote!

Did you know Jim Nugent:

- Is uniquely qualified to handle the complex technical and legal matters that come before the Commission, thanks to his background in law and engineering.
- Has almost 20 years of service to Texans, first as a State Representative, now as our Railroad Commissioner.
- Successfully introduced and passed the first "ethics laws" for elected Texas officials . . . and completely revised the state's penal statutes improving criminal prosecution procedures without violating individual rights.
- Is supported by a broad cross-section of conservative, moderate and liberal Democrats who know he's the best man for the job!
- As a member of the State Legislature and as our Railroad Commissioner, is respected and known as a tough, independent and dedicated public servant who has consistently fought for the rights of Texas consumers.

Did you know that Jim Nugent's opponent, Jim Hightower:

- Has no qualifications to serve. His only background is having worked as editor of a radical left-wing newspaper (he calls himself an "investigative reporter") and working for a former liberal senator.
- Is the candidate of Ralph Nader, George McGovern, labor organizer Caesar Chavez and a group of Northeastern liberals intent on buying a seat on the Railroad Commission so the Northeast can continue to buy cheap energy from Texas.
- Is basing his campaign on hopes that the electorate will confuse his name— Jim Hightower—with well-known conservative Congressman Jack Hightower.

Don't make a mistake.

Vote Informed.

Vote Knowledgeably.

Vote Nugent!

Jim Nugent has been endorsed by major newspapers throughout the state. They have carefully considered qualifications of the two candidates, and have chosen Jim Nugent as the best man for the job.*

*Jim Nugent has been endorsed by the Austin American-Statesman, San Antonio Light, Houston Chronicle, Dallas Morning News and the Dallas Times Herald. As of April 22, no major newspaper in Texas has endorsed his opponent, Jim Hightower!

James E. (Jim) ★★★ Nugent

A Railroad Commissioner for Texans!

Vote Saturday, May 3 in the Democratic Primary!

LEGAL NOTICES

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
The State of Texas
To ROY B. MONTGOMERY, defendant in the cause numbered and styled hereunder.
You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable District Court, 23rd Judicial District of Midland County, at the courthouse in Midland, Texas at or before 10 o'clock a.m. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from April 14, 1980, the date of issuance of this citation, by filing a written answer to plaintiff's petition that was filed in said court on January 10, 1979, numbered B-28,775 on the docket of said court, and styled TUBECO STEEL & MANUFACTURING, INC., Plaintiff, vs. ANCHOR SERVICE & HOLES, INC., W. FRANK MORRISON and ROY B. MONTGOMERY, Defendents.
A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows: suit on sworn account against Anchor Service & Holes, Inc. as debtor as Roy B. Montgomery as guarantor of such indebtedness, as is more fully shown by plaintiff's petition on file in this suit.
If this citation is not served within ninety days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.
The officer executing this writ shall promptly serve it and make due return thereof according to requirements of law, and the mandates hereof.
Issued under my hand and the seal of said court at Midland, Texas, on the 14th day of April, 1980.

BD-80-10 — Consider a request by Corley Paper Co. for an exception of and/or reconstruction of a non-conforming use and a variance from the paving requirements on 2.33 acres out of Tract 18, Wallace Heights Addition, City of Midland, Texas. (1702 Holiday Hill Road)
(May 2, 1980)

ORDINANCE NO. 5581
AN ORDINANCE CHANGING THE ZONING USE CLASSIFICATION OF THE PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN SECTION ONE HEREOF, WHICH IS PRESENTLY ZONED "C-3" COMMERCIAL DISTRICT, BY PERMITTING SAID PROPERTY TO BE USED UNDER A SPECIFIC USE PERMIT FOR THE SALE OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES FOR ON—PREMISES CONSUMPTION; MAKING SAID PERMIT SUBJECT TO CERTAIN CONDITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS CONTAINED HEREIN; CONTAINING A CUMULATIVE CLAUSE AND REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 5053; CONTAINING A SAVINGS AND SEVERABILITY CLAUSE; AND ORDERING PUBLICATION
GENERAL PENALTY: CONTINUING VIOLATIONS: Whenever in this Code or any ordinance of the City an act is prohibited or is made or declared to be unlawful or an offense or a misdemeanor, or wherever in such Code or ordinance the doing of any act is required or the failure to do any act is declared to be unlawful, where no specific penalty is provided therefor, the violation of any such provision of this Code or any such ordinance shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00); provided, however, that if the minimum or maximum penalty provided by this Code for any such offense is less or greater than the maximum penalty provided for the same of similar offense under the Laws of the State, then the minimum or maximum penalty for violation as provided by the StateStatute shall be minimum or maximum penalty under this Code. Each day any violation of this Code or of any ordinance shall continue shall constitute a separate offense.
Any person who shall aid, abet or assist in the violation of any provision of this Code or any other ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in the preceding paragraph.
In any prosecution for the violation of any provision of this Code, it shall not be necessary for the complaint to negative or for the State to prove any exception contained in this Code concerning any prohibited act; provided, however, that any such exception made therein may be urged as a defense by the person charged by such complaint.

Ordinance No. 5582
AN ORDINANCE AMENDING CHAPTER ONE, TITLE XI, OF THE CITY CODE OF MIDLAND, TEXAS, BY PERMITTING THE PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN SECTION ONE HEREOF,WHICH IS PRESENTLY ZONED "O", OFFICE DISTRICT" TO BE USED AS A "PLANNED DISTRICT" FOR AN OFFICE CENTER AND TRANSITION DISTRICT: PROVIDING FOR SUCH USE TO BE SUBJECT TO CERTAIN SPECIAL CONDITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS AS SET OUT HEREIN: PROVIDING THAT THE PROPERTY SHALL BE IMPROVED ACCORDING TO THE SITE PLAN, ORDINANCES AND OTHER SPECIFICATIONS SET OUT AND REFERRED TO HEREIN; CONTAINING A CUMULATIVE CLAUSE; CONTAINING A SAVINGS AND SEVERABILITY CLAUSE; AND ORDERING PUBLICATION
GENERAL PENALTY; CONTINUING VIOLATIONS: Whenever in this Code or in any ordinance of the City an act is prohibited or is made or declared to be unlawful or an offense or a misdemeanor, or wherever in such Code or ordinance the doing of any act is required or the failure to do any act is declared to be unlawful, where no specific penalty is provided therefor, the violation of any such provision of this Code or any such ordinance shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00); provided, however, that if the minimum or maximum penalty provided by this Code for any such offense is less or greater than the maximum penalty provided for the same of similar offense under the Laws of the State, then the minimum or maximum penalty for violtions as provided by State Statute shall be minimum or maximum penalty under this Code. Each day any violation of this Code or of any ordinance shall continue shall constitute a separate offense.
Any person who shall aid, abet or assist in the violation of any provision of this Code or any other ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in the preceding paragraph.
In any prosecution for the violation of any provision of this Code, it shall not be ncessary for the complaint to negative or for the State to prove any exception contained in this Code concerning any prohibited act; provided, however, that any such exception made therein may be urged as a defense by the person charged by such complaint.

Amarillo turnabout leaves Cubs little to feel good about

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Turnabout is fair play, they say, but for Midland fans, it wasn't nearly as much fun.

Amarillo's Gold Sox, a victim of a three-hitter by Steve Viskas Wednesday, turned the tables as Steve Fireovid hurled a four-hitter to beat the Cubs, 11-1, and square the Texas League series at 2-2 going into tonight's Two-Bit Beer Night rubber game.

Wednesday Joe Hicks blasted a lead off homer in the seventh to spoil Viskas' shutout and Midland extracted an eye-for-an-eye when Dave Stockstill led off the seventh for the Cubs with a homer to rob Fireovid, now 3-1, of his shutout, but somehow revenge seemed a bit hollow.

Nevertheless, the awesome belt to right field saved the Cubs the ignominy of their first whitewash of the season. And it marked only the second time Midland had been held to one run this year.

IT WAS like getting beat to death with a feather. Amarillo collected 10 hits and nary a one went for extra bases. However, seven walks and three errors helped fatten the final margin.

The outcome may have been decided by a wind-changing sandstorm that rolled over the left and center field fences at 7 p.m., a sudden weather change that kept the Pack-The-Park night crowd to 1,101. For most of the Midland Cubs, it was the first sandstorm ever and it showed in the early innings whenever the ball was hit up into the strong wind blowing in from center.

At least, for centerfielder Melvin Hall, the wind never acted like this at home in upstate New York. Hall retreated for a well hit ball by Gary Ashby in the first and when the wind caught it, he had to race in for a diving shoestring catch.

Then in the second, hard-to-judge, but nevertheless muffed, flies helped fan the flames of a four run Amarillo rally which just about decided the game. Hall misjudged one in center, recovered, but dropped the ball. And pitcher Herman Segelke ran into third baseman J.W. Mitchell on an infield pop. Three runs raced across the plate on these two plays.

AFTER THAT, it was Fireovid's show. "Once I got in front, I just threw fast balls so that they would hit it." On the Stockstill homer, said the 22-year-old from Bryan, Ohio, "I guess I made a mistake. I wasn't trying to be fine. I just wanted to get it over."

Fireovid, 13-9 at Reno last year, lost his lone game to Midland at Amarillo, "I had three or four good innings and then just lost it." But Thursday, he kept it all the way.

He wound up pitching against old Miami, Ohio, University teammate Bill Earley, who entered the game in the third inning when Segelke was ejected from the game by plate umpire Terry Lure after hitting John Flannery in the head with a pitch.

Amarillo was leading 5-0 and had two on base when Flannery tried to bunt and fouled it off. Lure said, "Segelke came off the mound and yelled at Flannery, 'That was a mistake, buddy.' On the next pitch, he was hit in the head."

Lure noted that on certain situations, a knockdown pitch is treated as part of the game, "but not after a threat." In such situations, the ejection comes without a warning and brings with it a $50 fine.

Shortstop Javier Fierro finished up, pitching the last two innings, giving up just one run.

BRUIN BREWIN'S — Midland's Tom Spino, 0-2, will got against Mark Thurmond, 1-1, the former Texas Aggie in tonight's 7:30 Beer Night, Fashion Show game...Greg Pastors collected three singles to lead the Amarillo attack...Amarillo Manager Eddie Watt is the former Baltimore pitcher, who wound up his career with Philadelphia and Chicago. "I finished with two years at Hawaii before managing at Reno last year." An Iowa native, Watt now offseasons in Nebraska, "I just don't like big cities."...Hall after a good start against San Antiono, hit a 1-for-30 slump, "but I think I've got it licked. I was standing too close to the plate and getting jammed."...

Pirates sidestep Expos

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Matt "The Scatt" Alexander will do in a pinch — especially if the occasion demands a pinch-runner.

Like Thursday.

Willie Stargell had singled leading off the 10th inning for Pittsburgh and the Pirates' speed specialist was brought in to run for the lumbering first baseman.

Jitterbugging off first, Alexander distracted everyone.

It made a difference. Relief pitcher Woodie Fryman, afraid of throwing a changeup in that situation, came in with a fastball. Bill Robinson connected for a double and Alexander came spinning home with the winning run in a 2-1 Pirate victory over the Montreal Expos.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Houston Astros whipped the Cincinnati Reds 9-3, the Philadelphia Phillies stopped the New York Mets 2-1 and the San Diego Padres beat the Atlanta Braves 4-3.

The Expos had taken a 1-0 lead in the fifth on an RBI single by pitcher David Palmer. The Pirates tied the score in the bottom of the inning on Dave Parker's run-scoring single.

The victory went to Kent Tekulve, who worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the 10th.

Reds 9, Astros 3

Joe Morgan drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Houston ganged up on Mike LaCoss for five unearned runs to defeat Cincinnati behind Joe Niekro's six-hitter.

It was the second straight game in which Morgan homered against his former teammates and the victory completed a Houston sweep of a three-game series in Riverfront Stadium for the first time since September 1972.

The Astros now have won six straight games and lead the Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers by 1½ games in the National League West.

Phillies 2, Mets 1

Luis Aguayo hit his first major league homer to account for both Philadelphia runs as the Phillies survived a major league record-equalling strikeout performance by Pete Falcone to beat New York.

Falcone struck out the first six hitters he faced at the start of the game to become only the second pitcher in modern National League history to accomplish that feat. The other was Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers, in 1973. Three American Leaguers have done it.

Falcone permitted only three hits in seven innings and finished with eight strikeouts. Two of the hits came in the fifth when Larry Bowa singled ahead of Aguayo's home run.

New York collected eight hits off Philadelphia left-hander Steve Carlton, 4-1, who became the third four-game winner in the National League this season, and reliever Tug McGraw.

"It was a bad pitch, down and in," said Falcone of the gopher ball to Aguayo. "A veteran hitter would have taken that pitch. That's what makes this such a great game; you never know."

Padres 4, Braves 3

Willie Montanez stroked a ninth-inning single to score Gene Tenace from second and give San Diego its victory over Atlanta. Tenace had reached base on an error by third baseman Manuel Ruiz and Dave Winfield moved him to second with a single off loser Rick Camp.

Reliever Larry Bradford then surrendered Montanez' single, ending the game.

Bob Shirley picked up the victory in relief for San Diego.

Red Sox escape with 4-3 victory

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer heaved a sigh of relief and said, "Thank God we don't have to play them again for a while," after his Boston Red Sox edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 Thursday night in a game which ended in a heavy fog.

It marked the first series Chicago has lost this season after winning its first five.

In the only other American League games played Thursday, Cleveland edged Toronto 2-1 and California nipped Seattle 2-1.

"In that ninth inning, I kept pulling for ground balls because I could just see someone losing the ball in that fog with all of those runners on base," said Zimmer.

With the bases loaded and one run in, Zimmer got his wish. Reliever Tom Burgmeier came in and got Marv Foley to bounce to shortstop Rick Burleson, who stepped on second for a forced play to end the suspenseful ninth inning.

Harold Baines singled in the ninth and, with two outs, Jim Morrison was hit by a pitch. Wayne Nordhagen then lashed a double to left, scoring Baines. But quick fielding by Jim Rice prevented Morrison from scoring with the tying run.

"It's a good thing Nordhagen hit the ball as hard as he did and Rice hustled on the play," said Zimmer. "Otherwise the tying run would have scored."

Hurst, a left-handed rookie boosting his record to 2-0, allowed five hits but was yanked in the sixth when he walked two batters in a row. Drago bailed him out and pitched well until he got in trouble in the ninth and needed help from Burgmeier, who picked up his fourth save by throwing only one pitch to Foley.

Steve Trout, 1-2, finished brilliantly for the White Sox and didn't allow a hit in the last five innings. But he was the victim of the long ball in the early going.

Tony Perez hit his third homer in the second inning and the Red Sox added three runs in the fourth on doubles by Fred Lynn and Perez and Carlton Fisk's fourth homer.

"It's a shame," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa, "he pitched so well. I was proud of him for keeping his head after giving up the homer to Fisk. He was outstanding."

Indians 2, Blue Jays 1

Mike Hargrove drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the eighth inning to lead Cleveland over Toronto. The Indians loaded the bases and chased Blue Jay starter Dave Lemanczyk in the eighth with a double by Rick Manning and walks to Ron Pruitt and Jorge Orta.

With nobody out, reliever Joey McLaughlin got pinch-hitter Andres Mora to pop out, but Hargrove followed with a shot down the right field line past a diving John Mayberry at first that drove in the two runs.

Angels 2, Mariners 1

Pinch-runner Bert Campaneris scored on a fielder's choice in the seventh inning to lift California over Seattle in a game which was protested by Mariner Manager Darrell Johnson. The protest stemmed from an Angel appeal play in the top of the seventh which wiped out two Seattle runs.

Freddie Patek led off the bottom of the seventh with an infield single, taking second on a wild pitch and third on an errant throw by catcher Larry Cox. After Tom Donohue struck out, Jim Beattie was replaced by Shane Rawley, who intentionally walked pinch-hitter Joe Rudi and Lansford to load the bases for Rod Carew.

Surging Islanders need extra period to handle Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders, riding momentum which threatens to sweep the Buffalo Sabres out of the Stanley Cup chase, didn't mind the bumps and bruises of an 81-minute-plus hockey game.

"I feel great now," said goaltender Billy Smith after stopping 41 of 42 shots Thursday in a 2-1 double-overtime victory over the Sabres. "The win gave us a second wind. Our emotions are everything mixed together now. It's fun and it's pressure."

Meanwhile, the Buffalo locker room was bleak.

"I didn't feel that bad," said team captain Danny Gare, nursing his swollen ankles into socks and shoes. "It was tiring, but we kept the shifts fairly short."

THE TRIUMPH on enemy ice gave New York a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven semifinal series between the National Hockey League rivals with the third game scheduled Saturday in Uniondale, N.Y.

It ended at 1:20 of the second overtime when Islander forward Bob Nystrom shoveled the puck around Buffalo goalie Bob Sauve and into the net after a shot by Bob Lorimer and Clark Gillies' second theft of the puck in the Sabres' end.

Earlier, Butch Goring of New York had ended 35 minutes of scoreless hockey with a second-period goal and Buffalo's Andre Savard forced overtime with a desperation tally in the third period.

The Sabres, who outshot New York 42-33 for the game, held a 9-7 lead in shots in the first overtime, but the same tight defense which has carried the Islanders throughout the series sent the teams off to rest again.

SOME OF THE game's erratic passing was due to bone-cracking forechecking. Much of the warfare took place between the blue lines.

Buffalo Coach Scotty Bowman said Craig Ramsay, a valuable penalty-killer, broke his wrist in the first period when he was slammed into the boards. In addition, Rick Dudley sprained his neck and left the ice in the second period.

"I think we've just got to put everything into the next game," Bowman said. "If you win that third game, there'll be a lot of pressure on the home team."

Bowman, whose team lost consecutive games just once in the regular season, said he nearly ran out of strategy in the long contest.

"In the first overtime period, we tried to keep either (Richard) Martin or Gare on the ice all the time. Gare had 56 goals this year. You can't just go crazy and play with no strategy, but you can't have a guy there who's a low-percentage shooter," he said.

Coach Al Arbour complimented the Sabres as well as his team.

"When you get into late overtime, it can go either way," he said. "We sweated quite a bit."

Nelson event begins

The 11th annual Ernie Nelson Invitational Partnership Golf Tournament begins today at Midland Country Club with Randy Geiselman and Steve Whiteside back to defend their title in the three-day event.

Geiselman is a former University of Texas golfer and pro ball player and was the MCC club champion in 1977-1978.

The championship flight will tee off at 1:45 p.m. Friday and Sunday and at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Some 134 teams are entered.

Andy Shapira and Bill Munn are among the top challengers for this year's title. Shapira is a two-time MCC champion, 1974-1979, while Munn is a former University of Texas player.

John Farquhar, a two-time winner of the Nelson, teams up with Jess Claiborne, a former TCU star, while Graham MacKey, former MCC champ and 1978 Nelson winner, will play with ex-pro Ron Leverich.

Dr. Dean Strack, another ex-MCC titlist and a four time Nelson winner, will tee off with Ted Fergeson, who teamed up with Dean to win the Nelson in 1977 and also holds two MCC titles, 1975-76.

The Odessa team of Ron Folk and Steve Thompson, bridesmaids in this event the last two years, hope the third time will be a charm.

Other formidable teams from out-of-town include Fort Stockton's Mike Walling-Jamie Winkle; Kermit's Roy Peden-Mike Emmerson; San Angelo's James Savage and Cliff Richey. Here from Lubbock will be Dub Malaise and Jimmie Johnson, both former Tech players, although Malaise gained more fame as an all-SWC basketball player. Richey made his mark in tennis.

Also here will be Ed Brooks, Odessa; Leon Anderson, Hobbs, N.M.; Dean Wood, Houston; Larry Snyder, Midland; and Bruce Cotton, San Angelo, all former golf pros.

Geiselman and Whiteside shot the lowest three-round total ever posted in the Nelson tournament, a 202 on 70-65-67 last year. The 65 tied the low round set by John Farquhar and Mike Childers, Amarillo, in 1970. Farquhar and Munn equalled it in 1976 in finishing second.

The tournament is played in the memory of Ernie Nelson, a former star pitcher for the Midland Indians in the Longhorn League back in the 1940s and early 1950s. After his baseball career, Nelson made his residence in Midland and testimony to his imprint on the community is the fact that this tournament was named in his honor.

Flyers whitewash North Stars, 7-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers evened their Stanley Cup semifinal series with the Minnesota North Stars at a game apiece with a touch of irony.

The Flyers, the worst team in the league on power plays, scored four of their first five goals in a 7-0 triumph Thursday night with a North Star in the penalty box. The fifth was a short-handed shot by Bill Barber.

Adding insult to injury, Flyers Coach Pat Quinn ressurected goalie Phil Myre after 20 days of inaction and got a shutout from the veteran net minder, who stopped 27 shots.

Still another galling factor for the North Stars was that the Flyers' improved power play work was credited to watching Minnesota execute the maneuver on films. The North Stars were sixth best in the league on this phase of the game during the regular season.

In reviewing their execution, "it helped because they do it so well," said Quinn. "They get movement without the puck, and some of our guys responded. It wasn't necessarily emulation from instruction. Maybe it was osmosis ... Maybe it registered on our guys to play the same way."

The game was over when Paul Holmgren scored at 2:09 of the first period after Minnesota's Craig Hartsburg had been sent to the box for holding. That was all Myre needed.

The goalie, however, who hadn't played in the playoffs since April 11 when he won 3-2 in double overtime against Edmonton, refused to accept credit for the triumph in the best-of-seven series which moves to Bloomington, Minn., for Games Three and Four Sunday and Tuesday.

"The game was won by the hockey club," said Myre, who now has 126 minutes and 40 seconds of consecutive shutout hockey in this year's playoffs. "They made it easy for me."

Myre said he made a couple of big saves and that was it.

"I was just there and stopped the puck," Myre said, trying to make his accomplishment appear routine.

Quinn wouldn't let the goalie get away with the modest act.

"Myre was really sharp," Quinn said. "He went out and anticipated well, especially against the power play. Phil plays better with his brain than his body. There is a good chance he'll play the next game."

After Holmgren made it 1-0, the Flyers lost Kenny Linseman for high sticking, but Bill Barber rammed in a short handed goal at 3:20. In the second period, Bobby Clarke, Bob Dailey, who also had three assists, and Brian Propp all scored on the power play.

Al Hill and Reggie Leach wound up the scoring in the final period.

Morgan battles rainy weather for Houston Open golf lead

HOUSTON (AP) — As he often does, PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman held a brief, routine new conference to brief local writers on "the state of the Tour."

"The state of the Tour," the Commissioner said in solemn tones and without a trace of a smile, "is wet."

He paused for a moment.

"What is this, 13 out of 16 weeks or something like that?"

He made his remarks during another of a series of weather-delays that have plagued the tour all season. The latest, caused by a violent thunderstorm, was almost three hours in duration. It came Thursday in the first round of the $350,000 Houston Open. Play eventually was resumed in late afternoon but was halted again by darkness with 57 men in the field of 156 stranded on the rain-soaked course.

They marked their positions and were due to resume first round play at 7 a.m. (CDT) Friday, with the second round to follow immediately.

The morning half of the starters played in what John Mahaffey called "almost ideal conditions," mild temperatures, light breezes and overcast skies.

And they took advantage of it to post some extremely low scores. Well over half of that group, 43 of 78, broke par.

Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who has averaged about $160,000 a season in golf earnings for the past three years, set the pace with a 6-under-par 65.

Mahaffey, a hometown boy, ripped the back nine with a 5-under-par 30 and topped a group of four at 66.

The group at 67 included Dave Edwards' older brother Danny, Greg Powers, Sammy Rachels, Rex Caldwell, Mexican Victor Regalado, Canadian Jim Nelford and Australian Open champion Jack Newton.

Economic factors cause headaches in the Midwest

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The big business of major college sports in the Midwest is haunted by the same demons as other large industry — inflation, recession and government regulation.

And while budget deficits are pressuring schools to look beyond their normal revenue sources to feed the money-hungry athletics beast, the university officials who are supposed to be in charge often have little to say about its operation.

In a three-part series this week, the Kansas City Times explored the increasing financial pinch on the sports programs of large universities and how they are responding to the challenge.

ONE OF THE most obvious findings was an increase in red ink in athletic budgets, which can range from $6.39 million at Missouri to $2 million at Wichita State.

At football-crazy Nebraska, the sports program is expecting a deficit of $617,000 this year. The University of Tulsa faces a $30,000 shortfall and has disbanded its nationally competitive baseball program. Kansas is cutting out intercollegiate gymnastics competition, cutting its budget by $80,000 and reducing staff to avoid losses. Wichita State expects a two-year deficit of more than $120,000.

Even at the University of Missouri and Kansas State, where finances still are in the black, athletic directors talk of bolstering their coffers for leaner years ahead.

At many schools, ticket sales for athletic events already have been milked to their limit as revenue sources. Schools are reluctant to boost prices any higher, and football teams already play to sellout crowds.

THE ALTERNATIVE, the Times found, is to increase campaigns for donations from alumni and other benefactors. Enticements like complimentary tickets to athletic events, flights to away football games and invitations to dinners and receptions are viewed by athletic officials as an investment in fund-raising.

Over the desk of Ted Bredehoft, Wichita State athletic director, is a sign that tells the story: "Selling is the key to playing in the black."

One incentive used by many of the schools is the assurance that donations are tax deductible, an assurance the Internal Revenue Service says isn't always correct. Donors to the schools could face paying back taxes and penalties if they don't subtract from their deductions the value of any tickets, meals or trips received from the university.

An essential part of the money drive includes courting the press for favorable publicity and managing the news to attract the attention of financial supporters.

Missouri, for example, spent $641.70 on a dinner for coaches and reporters before last year's Missouri-Texas football game. Kansas, while cutting $10,000 from its baseball program's budget for this year, will spend more than $15,000 for "press relations" — including food in the press box at sports events.

BECAUSE ATHLETIC departments raise most of their own operating money through donations and ticket sales and use few tax dollars, they often are relatively free of the controls universities place on their academic activities.

The Times reported that business officials at Missouri and Kansas could cite instances where coaches and teams spent more than the schools normally allow for dinners. No illegal spending was found but, as one accountant noted: "They seem to do everything first class."

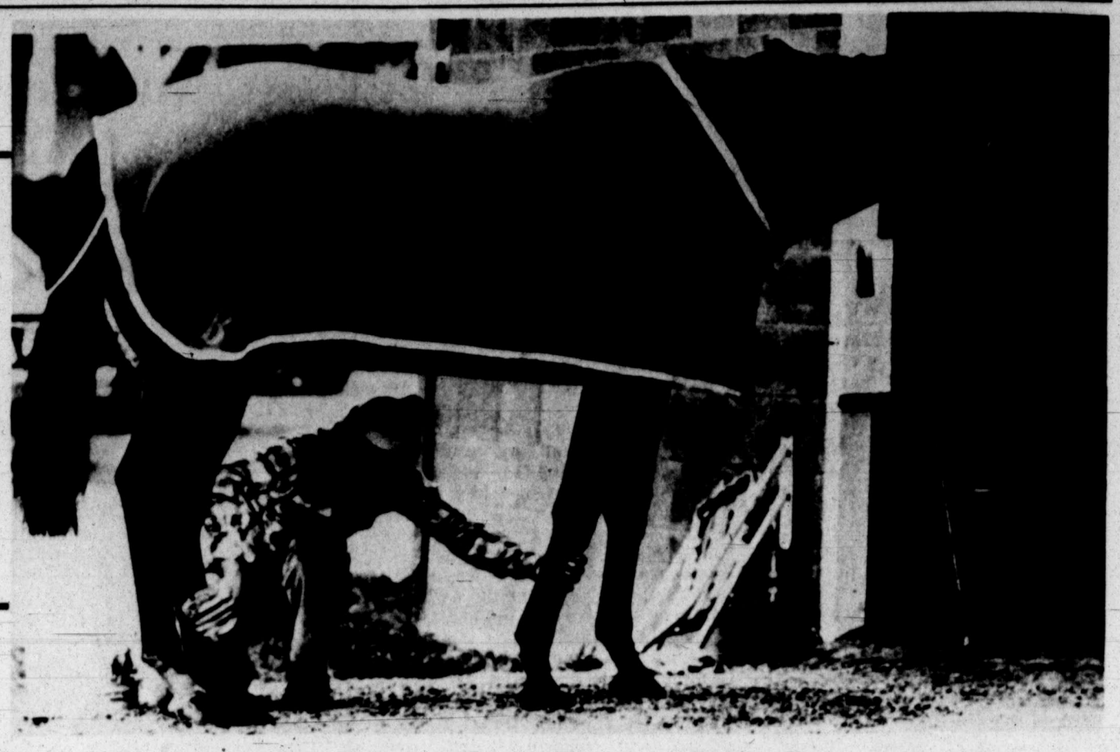

The governing boards of Kansas' six state universities and the University of Missouri don't even examine the intercollegiate sports budgets of the schools. The Kansas Board of Regents abolished its athletics committee two years ago.

"We do not exercise any budget control whatsoever over the athletic corporations," said regents executive officer John Conard of the nonprofit corporations that manage sports at some of the schools.

But a U.S. Supreme Court opinion following the 1970 crash of an airplane which killed members of the Wichita State football team held that athletic programs are merely an arm of the schools that sponsor them. The state of Kansas eventually paid $1.5 million in damages from that crash.

Increasing federal involvement in collegiate sports, including requirements for more support of women's athletics, may mean tax dollars will be needed to subsidize athletic programs in the future.

KU Chancellor Archie Dykes, recognizing the potential impact of federal regulation, lawsuits and sports program debts, pushed the KU Athletic Corporation to change its charter last year, giving the chancellor ultimate authority over the athletic budget.

What George wants is Derby crown

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Around the baseball world, there is a familiar refrain that goes like this: What George wants, George gets.

If the echo should carry over to the horse racing business — and it's logical to believe it will — then sometime in the near future we may expect to see the name of a George Steinbrenner thoroughbred flashed on the big electrical board at Churchill Downs as winner of the Kentucky Derby.

The enterprising, strong-minded owner of the New York Yankees has his heart set on it.

"I was pretty heavy into the business in the early 1970s," said the 49-year-old shipbuilding tycoon as he awaited Saturday's 106th running of America's premier horse race.

"Then for about three years, starting in 1974, I tapered off. I was busy trying to rebuild the Yankees. But now things are pretty well stabilized with the Yankees and I can give more time to my breeding and racing enterprises.

"It's a sport I love. It has a wonderful tradition. It provides excitement and challenge and the opportunity to associate with some of the finest people in the world.

"You can't beat the horse people. I regard John Galbreath (owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team and the Darby Dan racing stable) America's premier sportsman."

"Naturally, if you're in this business you aim to win the Derby. It is the ultimate."

WHEN STEINBRENNER purchased the Yankees from CBS in 1973, baseball's most successful franchise was in utter disarray. Talent had disintegrated. New York fans had fled to the new upstart Mets. The farm system was drained.

Steinbrenner instituted what he called a "five-year plan." Five years later, the Yankees were champions of the world. They became the first American League team to draw two million people both at home and on the road.

"Our farm system is well established now," says the Yankee owner. "We should have a flow of fine talent for years to come."

The Yankee owner is no neophyte to the so-called sport of kings although his introduction into it was chillier than he had anticipated.

"I started my breeding farm in 1970," he said. "I felt I was pretty gung-ho. In 1971, I went to the the Keeneland Sales with a fine crop of yearlings. I was sure I would get some good prices. But I was ignored. I felt then that I was being cold-shouldered by Kentucky breeders because I was from Florida. I was very discouraged."

One of that original yearling crop, Big Whippendeal, won $370,000, Noble Decree won the English 2-year-old Club Stakes and five of the seven yearlings became stakes winners.

Today the Tampa industrialist has been wholeheartedly embraced by the horsey set. He was the principal speaker Wednesday night at the annual awards dinner of the National Turf Writers Association. He got a standing ovation.

Steinbrenner had his first Derby entry in 1977 with Steve's Friend, who appeared ready to make a move when he jumped a shadow at the turn for home and finished fifth behind Seattle Slew. George's 2-year-old filly, Sweet Little Lady, ran off with the Debutante Stakes on the same card.

A CURRENT 2-YEAR-OLD filly, Firm Boss, captured the Lafayette Stakes at Keeneland last week.

Steinbrenner recently bought half interest in the Florida Downs, a Tampa track. His Kinsman Stud at Ocala, Fla., is thriving. Altogether, the Yankee owner has 35 brood mares, eight older horses, 24 yearlings and 14 2-year-olds. Standing in stud at Kinsman is Groshawk, sire of the Tropical Derby and Flamingo winner, Superbity, who would have been a Derby favorite had he not suffered a foot injury.

"To me, the five greatest sports events in America are the World Series, Super Bowl, Indianapolis 500, a big heavyweight title fight and the Kentucky Derby," Steinbrenner said.

"I've won the World Series, I've had cars at Indy. Now I'd like to win the Kentucky Derby."

Track meet set

HOUSTON (AP) — Rod Milburn will find out Saturday just how tough Redaldo Nehemeiah really is when the two meet in a featured race of the Houston Invitational track meet at the University of Houston's Robertson Stadium.

Four world record holders, including Nehemiah; Edwin Moses, 400-meter hurdles; Dave Roberts, pole vault, and Sara Simeoni, women's high jump, are entered in the world class field.

Dallas unveils latest NBA franchise

Now the Mavericks need to find some players

DALLAS (AP) — Now that the National Basketball Association's 23rd team has a name, the Dallas Mavericks, and a color — blue and green — the next step is to hire a coach and find some players.

Spokesmen for the $12 million expansion franchise say it will be at least a month before the Mavericks go after a coach either from the college ranks or an established NBA team.

Player personnel director Rick Sund is on the road contacting free agents and judging talent before the NBA's June draft.

Ralph Drollinger, a 7-foot center for the Athletes in Action, and teammate Marvin Delph, are two players being sought by the Mavericks.

"We don't feel the pressure of getting a coach right now," said Norm Sonju, one of the prime movers in getting the franchise in Dallas. "We are preparing for the draft. We won't announce a coach for some 30 days."

He added: "We'd love to have Ralph, but just about every team is after him. I do know this — there wouldn't be a better city in the NBA for him to play. He wants to go to seminary and play. Dallas would be ideal for him."

There was no hint who the Mavs would like for a coach. Sonju has said that Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton has ruled himself out.

Dallas will be in the Western Conference's Midwest Division, which includes two other Texas teams, San Antonio and Houston.

With the signatures of NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien, owner Donald J. Carter, Sonju and Douglas Adkins, vice presidents of Dallas Basketball Limited, the Mavericks brought professional basketball back to Dallas Wednesday at a formal press conference.

"The NBA has long recognized Dallas as one of the top sports areas in America," said O'Brien. "We in the NBA are happy to enter into an association with the Carter family and his associates."

The Mavs will begin play this October in the brand new $25 million Reunion Arena, which seats some 19,000 for basketball.

"In NBA history there has never been a similar situation — a new arena and a new franchise. Last year I went to New York disbelieving the arena would be ready. To my utter amazement, I was wrong. It's a remarkable site, perfect in every respect," said O'Brien.

Carter has 100 percent control of the team but will sell shares for some $600,000.

"I never played basketball but my wife did," said Carter. "It was my wife and kids who got me interested. It's been a long run to get a franchise."

Carter gave the NBA a $100,000 check two years ago to show his sincerity.

Lopez-Melton feels fine taking one-shot margin

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton says the first 18 holes of the Women's International golf tournament, which gave her a one-stroke lead in the four-round event, felt good.

"I really enjoyed myself," the 23-year-old Californian said.

"I was concentrating on just hitting the ball well," she added after firing a 4-under 68 Thursday over the 6,500-yard Devil's Elbow South courst at Moss Creek Plantation.

In 1978, Lopez-Melton won nine tournaments and eight more last year. But since September 1979, her only victory has been the Women's Kemper Open.

"I feel like mentally I haven't been too strong this year," Lopez-Melton said Thursday.

"I've been feeling very frustrated and I have to get over that if I expect to win. I wasn't being positive. I've got a lot of pressure on myself.

"But it's getting better," she added.

That was after she shot a 35 on the front nine and a sizzling 33 on the back side to finished ahead of a field of 72 in the $100,000 72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I really feel good now. I really do," she said.

Veteran Pam Higgins was one stroke back, using a blazing putter to sink two putts of 30 feet or more, one 15-footer and a pair of 10-footers for five birdies.

Her 35-34—69 round put her 3-under and one stroke in front of six other golfers going into today's second round.

"My caddy was a big help on the greens," Higgins said. "He's a member here and he knows how the grain moves on these greens. He helped me get the speed."

Six were tied at 2-under 70 and six more were just one stroke back at 71, all within striking distance of leader Lopez-Melton.

Tied for third were U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy, 30-year pro tour veteran Marlene Hagge, Alice Ritzman, Joyce Kazmiorski, Pat Bradley and Silvia Bertolaccini.

Tied at 1-under 71 were 1976 International champion Sally Little, Marlene Floyd, Beth Daniel, Bonnie Lauer, Beth Solomon and Texas amateur Brenda Goldsmith.

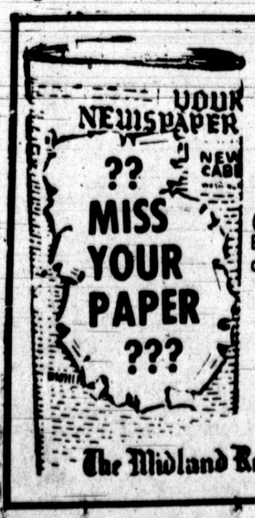

The tournament is sponsored by CPC International Inc. and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Shue leaves San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gene Shue, head coach of the two-year-old San Diego Clippers, is leaving the National Basketball Association club "to explore other opportunities," according to club president Irv Levin.

In a joint announcement issued Thursday, Shue and Levin said the departure was by mutual agreement.

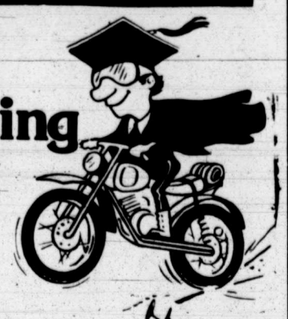

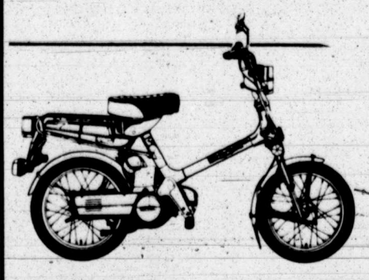

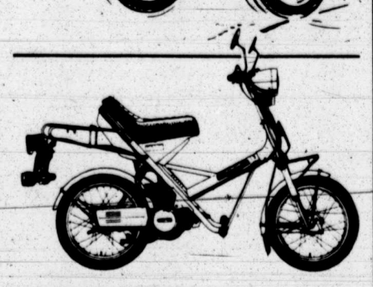

Shue's two-year contract, with a one-year option, expires July 1, but Levin said he gave Shue permission "effective immediately, to commence negotiating for future opportunities."

Chaps gain

GAINESVILLE — Midland College has some ground to make up here today in the Region Junior College Tennis Tournament.

NMMI leads the women's division with 10 points while McLennan is second with 7 and MC third with six points. MC must finish second to earn a national berth.

Cooke leads the men's division with 8 points while NMMI is second with six and MC is tied for third with McLennan with three each.

Brenda Burges and Debbie Smith are still alive in the women's singles while the No. 1 seeded doubles team of Burges and Teresa Landry are still alive in the doubles.

Chris Mosso, Rudolfo Rico and Russ Houck are still alive in the men's singles, but Houck has not played a match yet and no doubles matches have been played.

Thursday's results are as follows:

Women's Singles: Linda Hankins lost to Tari Higon, Cooke, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4; Brenda Burges def. No. 5 seed Val Hutchins, Cooke, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5; Teresa Landry lost to Amelia Evans, NMMI, 7-6, 6-1; Debbie Smith def. Jeannie Hershey, McLennan, 6-4, 6-2.

Women's Doubles: Smith-Hankins lost to Ann Hankins-Susan Balckwell, NMMI, 6-4, 6-4; Landry-Burges def. Val Hutchins-Diane Rake, Cooke, 6-2, 7-6.

Men's Singles: Sam Rivera def. Rob Johnson, Weatherford, 6-3, 6-1, lost to George Gamel, Cooke, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2; John Amundrud def. Kelly Holder, Grayson, 6-1, 6-3, lost to Alex Chisom, Cooke, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3; Gerald Sellars lost to Rod Rafael, Cooke, 7-5, 6-3; Chris Mosso def. Alfred Reyes, OC, 7-5, 6-4; Rudolfo Rico drew bye; second round match called by rain; Russ Houck hasn't played.

McEnroe wins easily

DALLAS (AP) — It was the worst slaughter on World Championship of Tennis books.

John McEnroe buried Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 in an hour and 33 minutes to charge into the semifinals against South Africa's Johan Kriek Friday night.

Jimmy Connors meets Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl in the other semifinal at 1 p.m., CDT.

The winners advance to the championship match and the $100,000 first-place prize at noon Sunday.

Gunthardt didn't stand a chance against the No. 2-ranked player in the world, never breaking McEnroe's service and winning only three games — a WCT low for futility.

"McEnroe never returned serve better in his life," said Gunthardt.

"Gunthardt never served much-poorer," said McEnroe.

Whatever, the rested McEnroe, his sprained ankle tightly wrapped, outserved, outran and out-volleyed his opponent.

"I was glad I didn't have to play until Thursday," said the defending WCT champion. "I was hurting and any rest I get is fine. My ankle hindered my moving some but I don't think it will get any worse."

The 21-year-old McEnroe is hoping to join Australian Ken Rosewall as the only two-time winner of the event. McEnroe defeated Bjorn Borg of Sweden last year for the WCT title.

"I just don't know how McEnroe could play much better," said Gunthardt, who was disheartened by his inability to get in a first serve.

McEnroe admitted "I'd be happy if I played like that all the time. I've had sort of an up-and-down year. I've had trouble getting up for matches."

"I've just played in so many tournaments it just seems like it is all the same," he said.

Jennings picks Tech

CLOVIS (AP) — In the recruiting battle for high school basketball star Bubba Jennings, Texas Tech had a couple of things going for it other universities chasing the Clovis sharpshooter couldn't match.

Texas Tech is located in Lubbock, Texas, only about a 100 miles from Clovis, and many of Jennings' friends attend school there, including a former high school teammate — Nelson Franse.

And Jennings, who signed a national letter of intent Thursday to attend Texas Tech on a basketball scholarship, said it was for those very reasons that he selected Tech from a field he had narrowed down to nine schools.

Jennings, along with his parents, met with Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers at the family home in Clovis to sign with the Southwest Conference school.

JIM MURRAY

Giants' Rennie Stennett forecasts clear sailing ahead

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times

When you go to talking of great feats in baseball history, you begin with Ruth's 60 home runs, DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak, Lou Brock's 118 bases stolen, Cy Young's 511 games won, Koufax's or Ryan's four no-hitters, VanderMeer's double no-hitter, Hack Wilson's 190 runs batted in — and, then, the camera pans to Renaldo Antonio Stennett and one hot afternoon in Chicago in 1975.

Rick Reuschel was pitching and his first throw to Renaldo, the leadoff batter, was an inside high fastball. Renaldo slapped it down the first base line for a double. A few seconds later, Renaldo got the first of 22 runs Pittsburgh scored that day in a shutout of Chicago. Then he came up later that same inning and drilled a single over second base. Even though he's a right-handed batter, Rennie Stennett disdains the left side of the field. He gives the pitcher that as he concentrates on right field.

Stennett got seven hits that day —all from second base to the right-field line. He came up twice again in the fifth inning and hit a single and a double. He hit four singles, two doubles, and a triple in that seven-for-seven day and it was the first time in 83 years anyone had rapped out seven consecutive hits in a nine-inning game. It was only the second time in all baseball history. Uncle Wilbert Robinson, playing for the old Baltimore Orioles, did it on June 10, 1892.

THE NEXT NIGHT, in Philadelphia, Stennett took his seven-for-seven to the plate and he knew he would have to be a bad-ball hitter. The pitchers were not about to yield a record. He also noticed Philly's second-baseman, Dave Cash, punch the ball twice in his glove before throwing to get a runner at first. Stennett hit two bouncers down to Cash and took off like a guy leaving a flood. He beat out both hits to go nine for nine. On his next plate appearance, pitcher Tom Underwood put the ball where Rennie could only hit it with his ear. Stennett went down just in time, then got up and slashed the next pitch into deep center field, where Gary Maddox robbed him of a triple. He wound up that night three for five, and, the next night, went three for five again.

Rennie Stennett broke or tied so many national and major league records in that outburst, the record book looks as if it had developed a stutter. You name it — most hits two consecutive games; most times, two hits an inning, in a single game; most hits, games; most consecutive hits, game. Stennett broke more records in three games than most stars do in a career.

So, why doesn't the scoreboard in Candlestick Park light up with "R-E-N-N-N-I-E" every time he comes to bat? Why isn't there a candy bar called the "Rennie"? Shouldn't he be shaving on television between innings, or explaining why he likes his Volkswagen Rabbit better than any of his Rolls-Royces?

STENNETT IS a born hitter. In fact, at the plate, he'll hit anything that doesn't hit him first. It's almost impossible to walk him — or to strike him out. He can get wood on a mosquito in the dark.

You know where the ball's going —right field — but you still can't stop it. But, what happened to Rennie less than two years after his explosion at Wrigley Field on Sept. 16, 1975, pretty much took him out of the Hall of Fame. On Aug. 21, 1977, Stennett was batting .336 with 20 doubles, 4 triples, and 28 stolen bases, when he went into second base hard at Three Rivers Stadium against the Giants to break up the double play. He broke up an ankle instead. Rennie Stennett is not going to beat out any ground balls to Dave Cash any more. The next season, he was lucky to beat out ground balls to the right fielder.

Neverthless, Stennett was the crown jewel in the free agent draft over the winter. And the San Francisco Giants shelled out a reported $3 million for him. A guy who goes seven-for-seven and 12 for 15 and equals one record that was set in 1892 and another that was set in — get this! — 1876, probably should be carried around the country in a glass case instead of the team bus.

Can Stennett put together another outbreak of pyrotechnics like that? "Well," says the record-holder, "I'm a streak hitter. But I'm not so much a streak hitter as a guy who doesn't go 'oh-fer' too much. I mean to say, I don't go 0 for 12, or 0 for 20. Also, my speed is returning. I hit a ball up the middle the other night that I would have beat out except the ball went to second for the forceout. I am encouraged that I am returning."

This will come as bad news to second basemen, who will have to creep in several feet within tooth range of line drives, and right fielders who will have to chase screamers down the right field line, and pitchers who will now have the prospect of facing Rennie Stennett several times an inning and seven times a game again.

Pac-10 scandal reaches Southern Cal

By JERRY COHEN and
GEORGE REASONS
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The scandal involving forged transcripts for athletes at Pac-10 Conference schools spread Wednesday to the University of Southern California.

USC, famed for decades for its sports prowess, already had been the subject of a lengthy Pac-10 investigation into questionable academic conduct of many of its athletes.

USC said Wednesday it discovered that one athlete had submitted a forged transcript in the spring of 1978 while the school was conducting an investigation ordered by conference headquarters.

The Pac-10 order, issued in February, followed revelations by the Los Angeles Times that three UCLA athletes had submitted forged transcripts. Almost simultaneously, it was learned that four University of Oregon athletes had received similary fraudulent credits.

USC declined to reveal the identity of the athletes who transferred 10 forged units from California Lutheran College in nearby Thousand Oaks, or to say what sport in which he participated.

However, the Los Angeles Times learned that he was a member of the track squad.

THE UNIVERSITY said the athlete no longer was attending USC.

The forged transcript showed that he had taken both extension and regular summer school courses at California Lutheran in the summer of 1977.

"In addition," said USC President John R. Hubbard, the university "has been unable to authenticate units transferred from Compton College (also in California) by the same student."

E. Jack Larsen, USC faculty athletic representative, said Compton "had refused to send the authentication."

Compton administrators were unavailable for comment.

Larsen said the athlete purportedly took the Compton classes during the "same time frame" as those credits transferred from Cal Lutheran.

Wiles Hallock, Pac-10 executive director, had ordered all Pac-10 members to check credits their athletes may have received from 19 "suspect" institutions. Cal Lutheran was among the schools. He directed that checks be made of all athletic squads for the last three years.

Cal Lutheran Dean David Schramm said Wednesday that USC had submitted the names of four athletes to verify their attendance there.

Three, added Schramm, took a human anatomy seminar there in the summer of 1977. But the fourth, he said, "was never enrolled."

The Pac-10 has been looking at the USC athletic program since early this year.

OTHER AREAS of scrutiny include:

—The non-attendance of 34 athletes in fall semester speech classes for which they were scheduled to receive credit. Most were members of the football team that won the 1980 Rose Bowl and were allowed to take a "crash" makeup course during the holidays that later was nullified because of irregularities discovered in it.

USC said it had turned the information about the forged transcript over to both Michael L. Slive, Pac-10 Conference assistant executive director, and the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

—The receipt of 28 credits by world class sprinter Billy Mullins in the fall of 1977 from four widely separated Los Angeles junior colleges, which made him eligible for USC's 1978 track squad.

A USC source told the Los Angeles Times that Mullins was not the athlete with the forged Cal Lutheran transcript.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association also is investigating the Mullins matter.

Watson says microphones have no place on golf course

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Golfer Tom Watson, burned two weeks ago when a live microphone picked up advice he gave to Lee Trevino, says he is opposed to players wearing the devices for live telecasts.

"I have never been in favor of (live) mikes," said the 30-year-old Kansas City resident who is the top money winner on the PGA tour. "I was afraid of swearing and cursing coming over. Golfers do that. People ought not to hear that.

"We are not directing ourselves to the audience," Watson said in an interview this week. "We are directing ourselves to our profession on the golf course. It adds a burden physically (a couple pounds of weight) as well as mentally what you say."

Watson, who is taking this week off the tour, said he would not object to a controlled situation, where tape of miked players could be edited.

Watson was penalized 2 strokes in the Tournament of Champions last month for giving advice to Trevino on his golf swing.

ODESSA—The Odessa Jaycees will hold a Base Hit Softball Tournament May 10-11. Entry fee is $65 and the tournament is open to all classes. It will be held at North and South Slater Park. For information contact Tom Whitmore (333 8331), Joe Cassas (332 5401) or Randy Hollar (366 3568).

Anti-American terrorism increasing, reports CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hostage attacks, such as those in Iran, Columbia and London, are part of a growing trend of terrorist activities in which American government officials and businessmen are primary targets, the Central Intelligence Agency reports.

The CIA also says that more Americans were killed or hurt by international terrorists last year than any one time in the last decade.

"Officials and businessmen, epecially individuals who are symbols of Western power and wealth, are still primary targets" of terrorists, the report says. "Tourists and other private citizens are victimized only incidentally, for example, as passengers on a hijacked airliner."

The report, finished this week and titled "International Terrorism in 1979," shows also that assassination attempts have increased in recent years, while the number of firebombings dropped off considerably.

Figures show that while there were fewer attacks on American citizens and their property in 1979 than the previous year, there were 12 deaths, more than any year in the last decade.

"Infrequent, though deadly, operations appear to have replaced the formally more common firebombings of American vehicles," the report says.

In Iran, 53 Americans have been held since last Nov. 4. In Bogota, Columbia, nearly 50 diplomats in the Dominican Republic embassy were seized last February by leftist guerrillas and 11, including the U.S. ambassador, were not released until this week.

In London Wednesday, Iranians seized their nation's embassy and held hostages.

And U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan Adolph Dubs was killed Feb. 14, 1979, in Kabul, the Afghan capital. Despite U.S. pleas for negotiations, Afghan police shot their way into a hotel room where Dubs was being held hostage. The ambassador and his kidnappers died in the gunbattle.

The CIA reports that bombings are the most preferred method of terrorist attacks, accounting for 40 percent of all terrorist operations.

Although the CIA published the report, spokesman Dale Peterson said the intelligence agency refuses to interpret the information or to provide additional statistical tables from which statements are made.

Other terrorist information, made available by the State Department's office for combating terrorism, shows that assassinations are the second most frequently used attack methods. They are followed, in order, by armed attack, letter bombing, kidnapping, fire bombing, hostages, sniping, hijacking, and theft or break-ins.

The CIA report shows also that hijacking, which had dropped off considerably since the late 1960s, increased somewhat in the year.

"Despite preboarding security precautions that make smuggling of weapons on board airliners highly improbable, aerial hijackers have discovered that pilots generally assume that their claims of being armed are true and have thus acquiesced to their demands."

Another aspect of the report shows that American businessman are the most frequent victims of terrorist attacks. One reason for this, the CIA says, is that some large corporations prefer to comply with terrorist ransom and publicity demands rather than follow the "no concession" policy of the federal government.

"The growing popularity of kidnap insurance policies increases the liklihood that terrorist kidnappers will achieve their monetary goals," the report says. "While kidnap insurance increases the chances of a victim being freed safely, its existance is counterproducive in the long run, defeating deterrence policies."

Honduras being placidy returned to civilian rule

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — As turmoil swirls around it, military-governed Honduras — like the eye of a storm — is placidly heading back toward civilian rule.

One of its Central American neighbors, Nicaragua, is shakily rebuilding after a devastating civil war. Another, El Salvador, is in the midst of a bitter left-right struggle. Terrorist kidnappings and killings are on the rise in Guatemala.

Tennessee-sized Honduras, a nation of 3.7 million people led by the military since 1972, elected a Constituent Assembly on April 20 to set the framework returning the government back to civilians.

"We are neither rich nor poor," said Hector Callejas Valentine, owner of 1,100 acres of land, trying to explain the social peace of his nation. "A Salvadoran landowner or businessman is a magnate compared with us. Here we are strictly equal — landowner and worker or small farmer. Our poverty is better distributed."

There have been few charges over the years of repression against the military governments, moderate by regional standards.

The current regime is led by Gen. Policarpo Paz Garcia, 46, who came up from peasant stock through the ranks and grows corn in the back yard of his Tegucigalpa home. The military council that put Paz Garcia in power deposed two of his predecessors on corruption charges.

Now the military says it wants civilian government, but will stay in power for the time being to assure a peaceful changeover. The United States supports the change, and when Paz Garcia visited President Carter recently he was promised more U.S. economic and military aid.

Both the Liberal Party, winner in the April balloting, and the rival National Party are considered to be traditional in thinking and reluctant to make fast, radical changes.

The Liberals, credited with many agrarian and labor reforms, have a core of leaders whose thoughts are similar to those of the Social Democrats of Europe.

"We need reforms," said Manuel Gamero, one of the leaders and a newspaper editor. "There is still time if we do the right thing."

Honduras has an annual growth rate of 6.5 percent — high for Central America — and an esentially agricultural economy based on coffee, sugar, bananas, meat and lumber that brings in about $900 million a year. Unemployment is nearly 20 percent and inflation approaches 30 percent.

"What has helped us is that we do not have the pressure of the floating population in the big cities of other Central American countries," Gamero said. He added that the 150,000 or so small farmers are a "stabilizing force."

But by unofficial estimate, nearly 60,000 people join the labor force a year, and large numbers find no work.

The new 71-member Constituent Assembly will be charged with rewriting the constitution and electoral laws and naming a provisional president.

Paz Garcia urged the Assembly to call for direct presidential elections, but it could decide to appoint a president and turn itself into a Congress.

The Liberals likely will have a majority of six or seven seats and may be able to call upon the smaller Innovation and Unity Party, which could end up with two or three seats of its own.

Changes in electoral laws could make it possible for the Communists and the Christian Democrats to take part in a presidential election.

The Communist Party is outlawed here and the Christian Democrats were shut out of the Assembly elections by the National Party, which accused them of getting financial help from Christian Democrats of other countries.

The Liberal Party is led by Roberto Suazo Cordova, who says his party wants a government of conciliation.

But the pressure is for a popularly elected president.

"If they (the Assembly) do not call for popular elections," said a diplomat, "we might see something strange — the army stepping in to defend the right of the people to choose their own president."

ABC's fall lineup top rivals for CBS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC, which blew a seemingly insurmountable lead to finish second in the season just concluded, marches boldly forth with a new fall lineup that promises a long run at the top for CBS. It may even help NBC finally climb out of the cellar.

Consider:

One of the features of ABC's 1980-81 schedule, announced this week, is a spinoff of ABC's popular freak show, "That's Incredible!" It is called, "Those Amazing Animals," and focuses on oddities from "the wondrous, amazing animal kingdom."

Early stars of "Amazing Animals" will be a frog that cries, a man who walks through a nest of rattlesnakes and a queen termite in Africa who has laid 10,000 eggs a day for 50 years. So, that's where ABC's programmers have been ... counting termite eggs.

They certainly haven't been studying past mistakes, because the collossal blunder that ruined last season for ABC is being repeated in '80-81. You may recall that ABC's biggest hit of '78-79 was "Mork and Mindy," which, in combination with the ABC Tuesday tandem of "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," gave ABC a firm grip on the top of the weekly ratings tables.

ABC uprooted the successes and tried to plant them in barren soil, "Laverne and Shirley" losing ground in various new slots and "Mork & Mindy" eating Archie Bunker's dust on Sunday.

So, ABC has moved its successful "Benson" series, protected last season with hit lead-ins, to Friday nights, where it will likely wither.

ABC has also given the kiss of death to "Charlie's Angels," moving that bouncy fluffcake to Sunday night, where "Archie Bunker's Place" will make all the "Who's gonna be the new Angel?" worries moot. It is possible, of course, that ABC is intentionally doing away with the "Angels," who have fallen from viewer favor of late.

"Taxi," now on Tuesdays, and "Soap," now on Thursdays, will be moved to Wednesdays, where "Charlie's Angels" used to fly.

"Those Amazing Animals" apparently represents ABC's quota of innovation. The other new series are:

—"Too Close for Comfort," a Thursday night sitcom with Ted Knight as the nervous single father of two pretty girls. In no way inspired, of course, by "Hello, Larry." Or "Bachelor Father," for that matter.

—"Bosom Buddies," another Thursday sitcom, about two struggling advertising men who move into an all-women's hotel. Sort of an "'Odd Couple' Meets 'Three's Company.'"

—"It's a Living," yet another Thursday sitcom, is about five waitresses in a high-class restaraunt. You can wager that this is the last time "high-class" will ever be used in connection with this series. It sounds like a typical follow-the-flow "creation," borrowing from "Alice," "Flo," "Last Resort" and almost any other current sitcom you can name.

—"But I'm a Big Girl Now," a Friday sitcom, plays a recently divorced young mother (are there any other kind on TV?) who hassles a lot with Danny Thomas, her father. A little "That Girl," a little "One Day at a Time," and you've got a series.

Four-year-old Richard James at his books. Richard, son of a school caretaker was recently checked by child psychoologists and adviised that he had an IQ of 170. He taught himself to read at age of two, and also acts as a mini-tutor for his 15-month-old sister, Sally. (AP Laserphoto)

'Barnum' on Broadway salutes legendary showman

NEW YORK (AP) — With blaring brass, eye-catching sets and costumes, ear-catching tunes and old-fashioned razzmatazz, "Barnum," saluting the legendary showman P.T. Barnum, has roared to Broadway.

It's done him proud. Bursting with color, energy and excitement, it bowed Wednesday, with Jim Dale pulling out all stops as America's premier 19th century student of "the noble art of humbug."

Rampant with gymnasts, jugglers, trapeze and high-wire artists, this exuberant spectacle traces Barnum's colorful life and times, from cheerful con man to sober Jeffersonian politician and finally back to the whiz-bang of the Barnum & Bailey circus.

It's possible the real Barnum was a rogue, a scoundrel. But none of that lurks in Joe Layton's brilliantly staged production, the book by Mark Bramble and music by Michael Stewart and Cy Coleman.

Their Barnum hasn't a mean bone in his body, just a tremendous zest for life and an overwhelming desire to bring color, excitement and industrial-strength hoopla to peoples' lives.

He starts by buying the contract of an ancient black lady billed as "the world's oldest woman." No business results — at least, until he gets a brainwave and bills her as "George Washington's nurse."

Then he puts his last $100 into a museum that among other things features "a great white whale from Labrador." No matter that the joint promptly burns down. He's off and running.

"Schemes again," sighs his patient, loving wife (Glenn Close). "Schemes and dreams." She disapproves, wishes he'd have "sensible" dreams, but sticks by him through thick and thin.

True, the book is on the thin side, but there's enough dramatic tension in it to make "Barnum" more than just a good-natured night of high-spirited leaps, bounds, cries and trombone roars.

Barnum's wife, a feminist, makes him socially conscious. Jenny Lind (Marianne Tatum), the "Swedish Nightingale" he hires to put respectability in his act, leads him astray.

But he mends his ways, goes into state politics in Connecticut, keeping a promise to his wife to put his energy to worthwhile use. Predictably, that gets drab, he gets glum.

But after her death, he reluctantly, then happily plunges back into harum-scarum, teaming up with circus man James A. Bailey.

It's an invigorating show. The only slow spot involves the tyke he hires and passes off as the famed Gen. Tom Thumb.

The 22-member cast is first-rate, and David Mitchell's circus settings and Theoni Aldredge's costumes will delight even the most jaded eyes.

The Stewart-Coleman score shines, too, particularly the rousing "There's A Sucker Born Every Minute," the lovely "The Colors of My Life," and a gospel kind of waltz, "I Like Your Style."

Dale's strong, Tony-caliber performance, the cast's lively hoofing, the feats of high-wire daring — including a turn by Dale as he sings — and a full-speed-ahead pace make this cheery musical one of Broadway's happiest arrivals this season.

There may be, as P.T. once said, a sucker born every minute. But I think you'll be a sucker for every fun-filled minute of "Barnum."

'Hawaii', 'Barnaby' replaced by 'Magnum P.I.' and 'Enos'

NEW YORK (AP) — Neither "Hawaii Five-0" nor "Barnaby Jones" will return on CBS this fall, but that doesn't mean the No. 1 network's fall lineup won't offer something to satisfy fans of the two long-running series.

CBS' fall schedule, unveiled Wednesday, includes "Magnum, P.I.," with Tom Selleck and John Hillerman as two former military men living in Hawaii. Selleck, as former Navy man Tom Magnum, goes to work as a private investigator and lives on an estate with the major domo and former British army officer played by Hillerman.

In addition, the network will unveil "Enos," with Sonny Shrover from "Dukes of Hazzard" joining a special Los Angeles Police Department metro squad after single-handedly capturing two of the country's most-wanted felons.

"Magnum, P.I.," will air Thursdays, 9-10 p.m. EDT, with "Enos" on the air 8-9 Wednesdays.

CBS beat four-time winner ABC in the 1979-80 ratings race, and, as expected, made few changes in its schedule for the fall. ABC unveiled its 1980-81 lineup Monday, and NBC said its fall schedule would be announced May 8.

CBS' new schedule includes only five new series and leaves three nights untouched.

"Hawaii Five-0," starring Jack Lord, premiered in 1968, and finished in the Top 10 four times. The series' best season — third place in the ratings — was 1972-73.

"Barnaby Jones," with Buddy Ebsen in the lead, was introduced in 1973, and reached its highest ranking, 18th, the first year.

Meanwhile, CBS said three series introduced this year would not return — "The Contender," "Hagen" and "The Stockard Channing Show."

"Palmerstown, U.S.A.," the Norman Lear-Alex Haley collaboration that premiered several weeks ago, "is currently under discussion ... regarding the possibility of having the series return sometime next season," CBS said.

Only two series will move to new time periods in September, CBS said: "Flo" from 9:30 p.m. EDT Monday to 8 the same night, and "WKRP in Cincinnati" from 8 p.m. Monday to the same time Saturday. The network said schedules for Sunday, Tuesday and Friday nights will remain intact.

In addition, CBS said "The Tim Conway Show" will be cut from an hour to 30 minutes for the 1980-81 season, and will air at 8:30 Saturday night.

Other additions to the CBS schedule include:

—"Ladies' Man," 8:30-9 Monday, situation comedy with Lawrence Pressman as the only man employed by a women's magazine.

—"Freebie and the Bean," 9-10 Saturday, Hector Elizondo and Tom Mason as streetwise San Francisco police sergeants whose differing lifestyles are a source of humor.

—"The Secrets of Midland Heights," 10-11 Saturday, drama set in a small college town controlled by its founders, the Millingtons.

'Angels' funds diverted

NEW YORK (AP) — A former ABC lawyer has charged that certain network officials and members of an independent production company tried to defraud two investors in the "Charlie's Angels" television series of more than $500,000, the New York Times reported today.

Jennifer Martin, who claims to have been fired last October after questioning the payment arrangement, said between 1977 and 1979 payments belonging to "Charlie's Angels'" investors were diverted to ABC's "Starsky and Hutch" show, the newspaper said.

Miss Martin said this was done to defraud actors Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood, who share 50 percent of the profits of "Charlie's Angels" with Spelling-Goldberg Productions.

The Times said it independently obtained copies of several memoranda Miss Martin turned over to the district attorney's office in Los Angeles, where she made the allegations.

The newspaper quotes a source familiar with the agreement between the Wagners and Spelling-Goldberg as saying any profits from "Charlie's Angels" should be divided evenly. Spelling-Goldberg is entitled to almost all the profits from "Starsky and Hutch," a show in which the Wagners have no interest.

Dick Connally, an ABC spokesman here, said in a prepared statement that the network had done a "complete investigation" into the "allegations."

ABC wins battle; 'Family' cancelled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Family" fans, your struggle is finally over, the battle is lost. ABC has won. "Family," the drama that was too good for prime time, is canceled.

From the beginning, "Family" has had a difficult time of it, grappling to stay alive in the face of network ambivalence that stunted its growth and eventually killed it.

The show first appeared as a limited series in the spring of 1976, a diamond in the rough at ABC, a quiet thing of quality in a schedule thick with cops and robbers and bouncy fluff. "Family," with its classy cast and thoughtful writing, didn't seem to fit in at ABC, the network whose success was owed to the likes of "Happy Days" and "Starsky and Hutch" and "Welcome Back Kotter."

At least, ABC executives apparently felt that way. Despite critical praise and an audience that promised to grow, ABC seemed bent on undermining "Family." There were pre-emptions, which disrupted the most important factor in commercial television, viewer habit. There were time period changes.

And ABC refused to rerun "Family" during the summer, robbing the series of the chance to attract new viewers. Summer reruns have saved the lives of several marginally successful shows, including CBS' "Lou Grant" and "White Shadow."

Why?

"I think quite frankly that the people at the network just didn't like the show," says Nigel McKeand, who as producer of the show until last year, has reason to resent its being submarined.

"The people at ABC who were originally responsible for 'Family,' one of whom was Fred Silverman (ABC's chief programmer when the show began, now president of NBC), left, and their successors were just left with the show.

"Also, it was considered basically a 'women's' show that didn't have a great male appeal ... but I think the people at the network simply didn't like it. You can't dismiss the fact that some people just don't like some things."

McKeand and his wife, writer Carol Evan McKeand, were brought in to make a series of the Mike Nichols-Jay Presson Allen pilot in 1975.

"ABC said they were very unsure about it," McKeand recalls. "We did six episodes and there was a lot of enthusiasm from the network about the scripts. Then, at the last moment, we were told they were not going to go ahead with it.

"And, suddenly, there was a turnaround and they said they were going to do it. Those first six episodes (in spring 1976) did very well. Then the network procrastinated endlessly before finally ordering (a full season's) 22 episodes.

"It crept along like that. My wife and I never worked as hard as we did on that show. My wife wrote and rewrote those scripts, working until four in the morning, until they were as good as they were. It was enormously hard work, but God, was it rewarding.

"Aside from what I had to do with it, I honestly think it was really a very good show, much overlooked. And, I also maintain that the show was a success in spite of what happened to it — no publicity at all and being endlessly pre-empted and moved around."

ABC programming executives, who axed "Family" earlier this week, were unavailable for comment on the matter. Doubtlessly, weak ratings will be offered as the reason for "Family's" cancellation, although it looks an awful lot like a set-up.

Somebody just didn't like it.

Larry Gatlin named top male vocalist

Willie Nelson
...entertainer of the year

Loretta Lynn
...artist of the decade

Larry Gatlin
...top male vocalist

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — On the eve of his 32nd birthday, Larry Gatlin picked up some of the nicest presents a country musician could ask for — three top awards from the Academy of Country Music.

Gatlin was named top male vocalist at the academy's 15th annual "Hat" awards ceremony Thursday night. His "Straight Ahead" won album of the year, and his "All the Gold in California" was the single record of the year.

Willie Nelson was named entertainer of the year, but he wasn't present, and actor Jan-Michael Vincent accepted the award for him. For the third time in four years, Crystal Gayle was named top female vocalist.

Accompanied by his brothers Rudy and Steve, Gatlin has been writing and singing a gentle brand of gospel-influenced music for some 25 years.

He's been nominated before, but Gatlin had never been honored by a major country music organization. His triple win, over such country kingpins as Kenny Rogers and Waylon Jennings, came as a surprise to many in the Knott's Berry Farm audience — and to Gatlin himself.

"Is this thing really mine?" he murmured as he clutched one of his three cowboy hat-shaped trophies backstage.

The night's only other multiple winner was Moe Bandy, who won song of the year for "It's a Cheatin' Situation" and shared top vocal group honors with bearded look-alike Joe Stampley.

Miss Gayle also took part in the presentation of a special artist of the decade award to her older sister, Loretta Lynn. The audience gave a standing ovation as the women's mother, Clara Butcher, joined them on stage to present Miss Lynn the plaque.

"This was a deep, dark secret," said Miss Lynn, who was host of the show along with Claude Akins and Charley Pride. "I'm really shocked and I'm really happy."

"The Electric Horseman," the Jane Fonda-Robert Redford film in which Nelson had a role and also supplied most of the music, was named country music movie of the year.

Top new male and female vocalist awards went to R.C. Bannon, who is Barbara Mandrell's brother-in-law, and Lacy J. Dalton.

For nostalgia, a special Pioneer award was presented to Patti Page. Another special honor, the Jim Reeves Memorial Award, went to Bill Ward, vice president of Metromedia and a former manager at Los Angeles country radio station KLAC.

A number of awards voted by the 2,000-member academy were announced before the telecast. For the first time since the academy began giving out awards 14 years ago, the Palomino in North Hollywood lost in the country nightclub of the year category. The winner was Mickey Gilley's, a Pasadena, Texas, nightspot that served as the location for John Travolta's "Urban Cowboy."

King Edward of WSLC Radio in Roanoke, Va., was named disc jockey of the year, and KFDI Radio in Wichita, Kan., was named radio station of the year.

Holzer appeal rejected

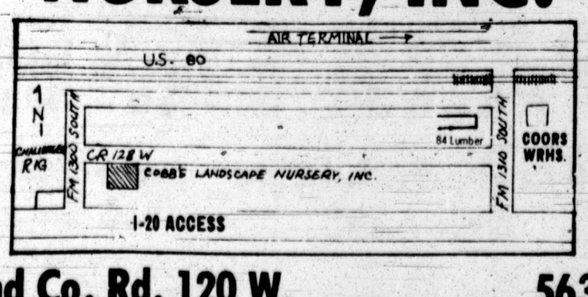

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway angel Adela Holzer has been ordered to begin a prison sentence of two-to-six years by an Appellate Division judge who rejected an appeal of her conviction as a multimillion-dollar swindler.

Mrs. Holzer, labeled "one of the cleverest and most successful white-collar criminals in the history of this state," was convicted of seven counts of grand larceny in 1979.

She developed the reputation as a financial wizard based on her own account of parlaying a $50,000 investment in the rock musical "Hair" into a $2-million profit.
