Chamber awards to be presented

The 76th Annual Colorado City Chamber of Commerce banquet will get under way Friday at 7 p.m. in the Civic Center.

The banquet will feature homemade Mexican food, prepared by chamber members.

A number of awards are to be presented including the Mayor's Award by Elmer Martin; the B&PW Woman of the Year Award by Christine Cooley; the Outstanding Farm Family Award by Dwayne Harris; and the Citizen of the Year Award by Tandy Curlee.

Midland banker and oilman Clayton W. Williams Jr. will be guest speaker.

Outgoing chamber president Horace Caldwell will turn over the reins to incoming president Ronnie Aston. Both will present reports.

J. C. Britton will present a report of the Industrial Team.

Other 1985 officers include Tom Lovell, vice president; Cecil Oursbourn, secretary-treasurer; and D. M. Smith, parliamentarian. Other outgoing officers include Max Shaw, vice president; Gloria Erwin, secretary; and Kathy Bowers, treasurer.

Incoming directors include

Becky Manning, Joy Morris and Trey Smith. Outgoing directors are Bob Chalker, Virginia Fuller, Steve Morris, Earl Plagens and Brenda Tarter.

Holdover directors are Kathy Bowers, Horace Caldwell, Ann Gregory, Max Shaw, D. M. Smith, Ronnie Aston, Gloria Erwin, Ronnie Feaster, Tom Lovell and Cecil Oursbourn.

The meal will be served buffet style and the menu will include enchiladas, tamales, tacos and beans.

A Mexican motif will be used to decorate the Civic Center and incoming president Ronnie Aston says the decorations will be sold following the banquet to help raise money for the chamber. This year's banquet is designed to raise money for the chamber and the $12.50 tickets are tax deductible.

Alford named president of City National Bank

Robert G. Alford, 50, was named president and chief executive officer of City National Bank Tuesday following a meeting of the board of directors.

Raymond Fuller, chairman of the board, made the announcement.

Alford, who will assume duties on March 1, comes to Colorado City from Breckenridge where he has been executive vice president and director of Texas American Bank since Nov. 1, 1968. Prior to that he was at First National Bank in Littlefield and First National Bank in Muleshoe.

"The screening committee worked a long time to find him (Alford)," said Fuller in making the announcement. "We're real proud to announce that he was elected today."

Alford and his wife Anne are parents of three children, Rob Alford who lives in Rowlette, Lydia Shirley who lives in Breckenridge and Greg Alford who lives in Richardson. They have four grandchildren.

A native of Kentucky, Alford started his banking career at 18 years of age when he went to work in Littlefield.

He is a graduate of the Southwest Graduate School of Banking at Southern Methodist University and has attended banking schools at New Mexico State University and Texas Tech University.

In Breckenridge, he has been active member of the chamber of commerce, serving as president, vice president, treasurer and director at various times.

He is a past president and vice president of the Lions Club and is a zone chairman of the Lions Club. He is also an active participant in the United Fund and the YMCA.

The Alfords are members of the First United Methodist Church where he is a member of the board of stewards.

Alford said he is looking forward to coming to Colorado City and to City National Bank. He said he does not foresee any changes in officers or employees at this time.

"We're looking for great things here," he said.

Alford assumes the position of president and chief executive officer left vacant by the death of C. C. Thompson.

Council interviews chief candidates

By Ray Mayo
Editor

Three candidates for police chief of Colorado City met with the city council Monday during a special meeting.

The police committee of the council had originally narrowed the field of approximately 30 candidates to four, but the fourth, Leo Huddleston of Clyde, was disqualified because of a question of his credentials.

Those appearing individually before the council included Bobby Sparks of Colorado City, Don Pennington of Colorado City and Steve Brasher of Abilene.

Sparks, 35, is a graduate of Colorado High School and Howard County College. The used car dealer is former police chief of Loraine and is a former member of the police reserves.

Sparks said the advantages of being a local resident far outweigh the disadvantages, adding that "you're not going to please everybody, but you can attempt to."

"I was born and raised here, I've raised my family here and I plan on staying here," said Sparks.

He said he has great interest in law enforcement and noted that "it is time the police department is opened back up to the general public."

"I know nearly everybody in town and they know they can call me and get a positive response," he said. Sparks said he feels the job calls for a highly visible police chief who is active in the community.

Pennington, 39, who as lieutenant is a criminal investigator for the Colorado City Police Department, said he feels the department's relationship with the community is getting "much better," adding that the job of police chief carries with it many responsibilities including administrator, street officer and public relations.

In his application, Pennington said that "I would like to keep the continuity in the department with little or no change from the way things are now. I feel we have a good, professional department and we work well together. I don't feel there would be any internal problems with me as chief nor with any outside agencies."

Pennington added that he and his wife have bought their home here and they plan to stay. He has been with the local department since 1984. Prior to that he was deputy sheriff and chief jailer at the Floyd County Sheriff's Department in Floydada. He also is a former patrolman for the city of White Settlement; chief of police for the city of Holliday; and deputy sheriff for

Man pays $1,400 in back child support payments

A Montana man paid $1,400 in back child support payments last week to avoid a 10-day stay in the Mitchell County Jail.

Thirty-second District Judge Weldon Kirk had sentenced Benny Harbour Jr. of Stephenville, Mont. Friday to 10 days in jail on contempt of court charges for failure to pay child support.

Rather than go to jail, the man opted to pay the back child support, according to District Clerk Bill Erwin.

TDC inmates bring message to students

By Ray Mayo

Their stark white prison uniforms were in sharp contrast to the dark curtain behind them as they gazed down from the Westbrook School stage.

The two young men from the Ferguson Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections looked like the proverbial boy next door—clean-shaven and short hair and with an innocent look of their faces.

But the message they brought to the Westbrook students Monday afternoon was hardly innocent—it was a story of drugs, crime and the harsh realities of prison.

Sponsored by the Colorado City Lions Club, the program was a part of the TDC's Community Education Program and was to be repeated later Monday to Loraine students.

Doug Eckels with the TDC explained that the two prisoners, both trustees at the Ferguson Unit, are volunteers who have agreed to tell their stories so that other young people might learn from their mistakes.

"Take their lives and your life and compare them," Eckels told the students. "Learn from their story."

Eckels explained that the Texas prison system with 36,000 inmates in 27 units is the second largest prison system in the United States.

Kyle, 20, who is serving a 10-year sentence on drug charges blamed peer pressure on why he first started using drugs.

Kyle explained that he and his family moved from Tyler to Mineola when he was in the seventh grade because his pa-

LOCAL VETERINARIAN Dr. Charles Froneberger was one of about 100 local citizens who wrote or turned in letters asking General Motors to locate its new Saturn car plant in Colorado City. rents wanted a small-town atmosphere in which to raise their children.

However, by the time he was 15, he was "drinking beer and smoking dope on weekends."

He said his parents noticed a change in his attitude and he started staying out later each night.

"One time when I came in late, Mom and Dad knew I was on drugs," he recalls. Although they pleaded with him to stop, "I was just doing what my friends were doing."

"My parents didn't want to believe I was on drugs," he told the Westbrook students.

Two months before he was supposed to graduate from high school, he dropped out of school. "I didn't care about anything," he recalls.

Sex, drugs and rock and roll was all there was to life," he said.

He said he finally started using cocaine. "I woke up one day and realized I was hooked," he said.

His life in crime began when he and a friend broke into a pharmacy to steal drugs. He was headed to Dallas to sell some of the drugs when he was caught at a roadblock.

He received a 10-year probation sentence for burglary of a building and possession of a controlled substance.

However, nine and a half months later, on the way to a rock concert in Dallas, he stopped in a small town for gasoline and a suspicious policeman found drugs in his car. This time, he was sentenced to 10 years in TDC.

Kyle, who said he had had five car wrecks, been arrested three times and overdosed twice, urged the students "to take a good look at where you're headed," adding that there's nothing "grown-up" about drugs or alcohol.

Nathan, 21, is from Abilene and is serving a 15-year prison sentence for organized crime which he explained involved a hot-check ring from which the proceeds of which were used to buy drugs.

Nathan says he comes from a middle class family and had a good family life. His life of crime began as a youngster when he broke into a car and stole a purse. When he was 11 years old, "my brother introduced me to marijuana."

He recalls that he started becoming dependent on marijuana and started stealing to support his habit.

He was caught stealing again at age 13 and sent to the West Texas Boys Ranch at San Angelo for two years.

Back home, he started sniffing paint, drinking alcohol and using speed. He dropped out of school. "I lost all interest," he said.

In 1982, Nathan joined the Job Corps, hoping to learn a skill. "I was running from the needle," he recalls.

He left the Job Corps in 1983 and went back to Abilene where he soon had a $300 a day drug habit. He recalls once he and his companions cashed $50,000 in bad checks during a five-day period.

"Be strong enough to say no when asked to get high," Nathan told the Westbrook students. "Don't make the same mistakes I've made in life."

Nathan told the students what life is like in a 5 by 9-foot cell with one cellmate.

He said there are 2,700 prisoners at the Ferguson Unit which houses men in the 17 to 21-year-old age group.

Your day begins at 2:30 a.m. if you want breakfast because it takes that long to feed everybody," he said. Work time, which for the first six months is field labor, begins at 6 a.m.

Violence is commonplace, he said, and Kyle displayed a variety of weapons confiscated from prisoners. The weapons were made from a variety of objects including combs, spoons and toothbrushes.

"When you first come into prison, you expect to fight," said Kyle, explaining that each prisoner must fight in order to gain respect from the other inmates.

Nathan and Kyle are staying at the Mitchell County Jail while in this area. They have a number of programs planned including several in Sweetwater. An armed guard is with them at all times.

News from . . .

Root Memorial Hospital

By Ray Mason

Root Memorial Hospital Administrator

There is concern all over the state and the nation regarding the drop in patient census in hospitals. As I have stated in previous reports, this is mainly due to the D.R.G.'s (Diagnostic Related Groupings) and admission criteria of the P.R.O.'s (Peer Review Organizations). These two programs affect hospitals with higher percentages of Medicare patients more than it does those with lower percentages of Medicare patients. Another factor contributing to lower hospitals census is that more people are being treated on outpatient basis, seeing their physicians and staying at home.

Last week I visited with administrators of five area hospitals to see if they were having the same decline in census as Root Memorial. The answers were the same—"Yes." The hospitals I checked with were hospitals with 25 to 46 beds. The hospitals with 25 to 31 beds are averaging nine to 11 patients and the hospitals with 35 to 46 beds are averaging 14 to 18 patients. If you figure the percent of occupancy, all of the hospitals are averaging 34 to 40 percent. Root Memorial is a 39 bed hospital and is averaging 14 to 17 patients, or 38 percent, which is in line with the rest of the hospitals in this area. These figures are based on the month of January.

The days of averaging 75 to 80 percent occupancy are few and far between. Hospitals all over the nation are having to gear down to lower occupancy rates. This means cutting down on employee hours, wise spending, and even cutting staff.

We all see changes and fluctuations in our individual lives and we constantly have to adapt to those changes. We will be seeing fluctuations in the census from now on and we will have to work around those changes.

Smith County.

Brasher, 34, was the last to meet with the council. He is currently president of Modular Home Mart Inc. in Abilene but said that he is in the process of selling the business in order that he can return to law enforcement. He has 10 years experience with the Dallas Police Department where his last duties were as criminal investigator.

He and his wife were former residents of Abilene and he said they chose to return to Abilene so their children would have a better environment.

He said that Abilene is becoming a smaller version of Dallas and he and his family have decided to locate to a small community such as Colorado City where they can become involved in civic, church and school affairs.

Brasher stressed the importance of communication with the citizens.

All three candidates said they could live with the $18,500 salary called for in the upcoming budget.

City Manager Brenda Tarter said she will do investigative work on the three candidates and have a recommendation for the council within the next week to 10 days.

Currently the police department is operating without a chief since the Jan. 8 resignation of Ken Farrow.

ED LEVESQUE removes water from the education building of the First United Methodist Church Tuesday after a water line on the third floor of the building separated, flooding the bottom floors of the structure and causing extensive damage. The water line apparently froze during the sub-zero weather Friday night and didn't thaw until sometime after church Sunday. The damage was discovered about 10 a.m. Monday.

Tim Green & Sharla Jameson

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Cohler Jameson of San Angelo announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharla Jameson, to Tim Green of Midland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Don Green of Lorraine.

The wedding is planned for March 9 at the Southland Baptist Church in San Angelo. Both the bride-elect and groom-to-be are graduates of Angelo State University.

Colorado City 7th, 8th and 9th grade basketball teams won four of six games against Abilene Wylie Monday night.

All three boys teams swept the Bulldogs while the eighth grade squad was the only winner among the girls contests.

In the first of three boys games played here, the seventh grade Wolves downed Wylie 35-27.

Dane Hoover and Mark Alvidrez led the Pack with 12 and 10 points respectively. Also scoring were Ken Land and Curtis Clemmer with four points, Danny Luera three and Stanley Bradbury two.

Following the seventh grade victory, Pat Ridge and Paul Ausbie both scored 12 points to lead the eighth grade Wolves to a 57-50 victory.

George Rivera and Chris Perkin added 11 and nine points respectively. Also scoring were Bubba Bailey four, Victor Luera three and Jack Strother, Bo Alvarez and Gilbert Flores two.

The ninth grade team completed the sweep of the boys games by defeating the Wylie Bulldogs 59-52.

Carv Ritchey had the hot hand for the Wolves with 19 points. Ritchey used a fine shooting form while Eduardo Melendez worked inside for his 13 points.

Also scoring were Guy Compton with seven points, Ismael Silva five, Greg Rodriguez three, James Wood two and Brandon Fuller one.

The games against Wylie were the last ones for the Colorado Middle School girls and the eighth grade team ended the season on a winning note-taking a 30-28 victory at Abilene.

Sheila Monroe and Denise Lowrance led the Wolves with eight and six points respectively. Scoring four points each were Darla Gregory, Jodi Mitchell and Sylvia Alvarez. Kim Wulfjen and Oria Gonzalez added two.

In the ninth grade game, the Wylie girls took a 34-16 victory. Jennifer Monroe led the Wolves cause with 10 points while Billie Muncie, Christy Mitchell and Amy Harrison added two each.

The seventh grade girls saw their hopes of an undefeated season fall during the last period of the last game of the season-losing a 20-19 verdict-their only loss of the season. The Wolves led after each period and held a 17-10 advantage after three periods but only scored two points in the final quarter while Wylie scored 10.

Cami Redwine led the Wolves with 10 points while Priscilla Mayes scored five and Tammy Bradley four.

Seventh, 8th and ninth grade boys teams conclude their season here next Monday against Snyder.
