Mrs. Vernon Rowe took the girls, Carolyn Rowe, Nita Ann McClure, Darlyne Jones, Margaret Horner and Janice Langford, to the Baptist Encampment Grounds early Monday morning. They plan to return to their homes Thursday evening.

Mrs. Raymond Jones is District G. A. Director and is in charge of the encampment. Rev. Jones took her to the camp site early Monday.

The Intermediate girls will attend their district encampment next week.

The World's Championship Junior Rodeo will be held at the Rodeo Grounds with each of the three performances beginning at 8:00 p. m. The rodeo is open to individuals to the age of 19 years and contestants will compete in three divisions. Information regarding tickets to the rodeo may be obtained from Mrs. Luther Parker, Ballinger, telephone 8053.

Tommy Stearns of Brownfield spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Stearns. Ruth Ann accompanied him as far as Odessa on his return home, where she will visit Sunny Atkinson and other friends. The Atkinson family and Ruth Ann will go to Ruidoso for a week's visit. Ruth Ann will then visit in Carlsbad, N. M. with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kline and Jean, Edmund Switzer and A. E. Switzer of Texas City spent Sunday in Wingate, visiting the Thomas Switzer family.

Change to Dial Operation Made On Schedule

The change over to dial operation of the Coleman County Telephone Cooperative was made as planned at midnight Tuesday. The rainy weather on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week delayed some of the operations as planned, but the cut-over was made and now all telephones throughout the area are operating on the dial system.

Many hours of work have gone into the change-over by the telephone company crews. All records in the office have to be changed to correspond with the new dial numbers and all lines and each individual telephone have had to be checked to see if they were working properly. Many small and delicate wires had to be changed during the night Tuesday to make the change-over complete.

Allyn Gill, manager of the Telephone Cooperative, said there would likely be numerous "bugs" that would have to be worked out as time goes along. However, most of them can and will be taken care of right in the new switchboard office. However, Mr. Gill requested anyone who does not have satisfactory service to report it to the business office.

There seemed to be some slight misunderstanding about the special instructions in the telephone book for those on party lines and those on rural lines. So far as the Santa Anna Exchange is concerned, if you are on a private line, all you have to do is get the dial tone then dial the number you wish to call. If you are on a party line and wish to call someone else on your line, you must first get the dial tone, dial 88 and you will hear the dial tone again, then dial the number you wish to call and you will get a busy signal. Hang up the receiver for about 30 seconds (giving the other party time to answer), then pick up the receiver and carry on the conversation. The called party will hear a fast ticking sound that will let him know someone on the same line is calling and he will wait for you to answer. Soon after July 1 each person on a party line will receive a list of those on the line.

Party line users wishing to call anyone not on their line will use the same procedure as the one-party line subscriber will use.

Party line users on the Santa Anna exchange will not be able to determine others on their line by the numbers, as can be done on the rural lines.

Another important message to party line users is contained in the instructions, on Page 2 of the new Telephone Directory. This concerns the use of the party line in an emergency.

A law was passed by the last Legislature and signed into law by the Governor last week, that states anyone who refuses to give up a party line for use in an emergency can be fined up to $500 or confined in the county jail for a period of 30 days or both. The law also states that anyone who is convicted of securing a party line by falsely stating it is for an emergency, can be fined the same amount and the same jail sentence.

This is the first time this has ever appeared in any telephone directory, but will appear in all directories in the future.

Telephone subscribers are urged to inform your relatives and friends out of town of your new numbers in order to give you better long distance service.

Darrel W. Downs Re-Enacts War D-Day Landing

Darrel W. Downs, son of the late Mrs. Otto Lange and grandson of Mrs. W. A. Featherston of Santa Anna, was one of five veterans who helped re-enact a paratroop drop behind the German lines on D-Day in World War II.

The re-enactment of the drop was on the 17th anniversary of the date the Allied forces invaded the European continent and launched the offensive that destroyed Nazi Germany. The five who made the anniversary drop were invited to do so by the Mayor of Sainte-Mere-L'Eglise, France, where the troop landed on June 6, 1944.

Mrs. Bill Darr and children, Chuck, Susan and Joe, of Little Rock, Ark., are here visiting her father, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mathews. She is the former Mary Field Mathews.

Farm Bureau Opposes Omnibus Farm Bill

Waco — The president of the largest farm organization in the state declared this week that most farmers and ranchers in Texas reject the Administration's omnibus farm bill which Agriculture Secretary Freeman promoted during his visit to central Texas last weekend.

J. H. West, president of the 81,000-member Texas Farm Bureau, said that organizations representing only a small minority of Texas farmers and ranchers had actually endorsed the Cochran-Freeman farm bill.

"According to reports we have received," West stated, "many people over the state and nation were given the false impression that Texas farmers and ranchers were united behind the Administration's bill."

A meeting of farm organizations over the state was called for Waco on the eve of Freeman's visit Saturday. Purpose of the meeting, according to Alex Dickie Jr. of Denton, president of the Texas Farmers Union, was to endorse the Kennedy farm program. Dickie exhorted "all" farm groups to attend and sign a resolution of endorsement. Only three organizations signed the resolution which was presented to Freeman Saturday in Rosebud. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White stated that he had received six other "proxies" which were added to the resolution.

White, who helped promote the meeting, said organizations which formally endorsed the Administration's farm bill are: Texas Turkey Growers, Texas Sesame Producers, Texas Federation of Cooperatives, Texas Grange, Texas Farmers Union, Old Cottonbelt Association, Southwestern Peanut Growers, Grain Sorghum Producers and Texas Wheat Producers.

"The Texas Farm Bureau, largest general farm organization in the state by at least ten times, was not invited to this meeting," West said. "Even if we had been invited, our policies which are diametrically opposed to the principles behind the Cochran-Freeman bill, would not have permitted our endorsing such a bid to concentrate unprecedented power over the destiny of American agriculture in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Executive Branch of government."

West pointed out that two of the largest commodity groups in the state, the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and The Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers Association, did not attend the meeting or sign the resolution.

A Namesake Retires at SMU

Mrs. Ed Bartlett received a picture and a clipping this week, concerning a girl born in Santa Anna about 64 years ago, and who was named for her. She is Mrs. Loretta Riley Hawkins, who is retiring as assistant to the president at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

Mrs. Loretta (Retta) McDaniel was a student in Howard Payne College when Loretta Riley was born here. During the ensuing years Mrs. Bartlett has received information about the progress of her namesake. Mrs. Bartlett said her success during the years has been a joy to follow.

For 36 years Mrs. Hawkins has watched SMU grow, having begun work there when SMU was, as she says, "three buildings and a hole in the ground." She retires as assistant to the president July 1, after serving as the connecting link for three presidents and in the vital nerve center of the university.

J. C. BIBLE UNDERGOING BASIC TRAINING IN CALIF.

Fort Ord, Calif., — U. S. Army Private James C. Bible is presently undergoing basic infantry training at this Monterey Peninsula training center.

The eight week program consists of such vital military subjects as rifle marksmanship, infantry tactics, first aid, military justice and the conservation and maximum utilization of military supplies. Upon completion of his basic training, the soldier will go on to either advanced infantry training or to one of the many Army specialist schools.

Private Bible graduated from Santa Anna High School in May. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bible of Santa Anna.

Disabled Workers Urged to File Claim By June 30

June 30, 1961 is an important deadline for many disabled workers, stated R. R. Tuley Jr., Manager of the Abilene Social Security District Office. Failure to make application for disability benefits in person or by mail on or before that date could result in loss of rights to disability benefits as well as future retirement or survivors benefits.

Tuley explained the work requirement that must be met in order to qualify for disability benefits. This is that a person must have social security credits for at least five years out of the 10 years before becoming disabled. However, after June 30, 1961, a person who became disabled before 1955 could lose his rights to disability benefits after the June 30 deadline.

In conclusion, Tuley urged all disabled workers with long-standing disabilities to contact the social security office no later than June 30, 1961. The office serving this area is located at 203 Fannin Street in Abilene. Affected persons unable to go to the district office should be sure to write a card or letter to the social security office before July 1, including words such as, "I want to file a claim for disability benefits." This will protect their rights, even though formal claim is not filed until later.

Petroleum Institute Calls for Conservation Of Wildlife

New York — Calls for extended cooperation among conservation organizations and a stepped-up program of education on wildlife and other natural resources were voiced recently by the American Petroleum Institute.

In a paper spelling out the Institute's policy on conservation, the oil industry trade association endorsed programs of education by its members designed to further public appreciation of wildlife and other natural resources and to promote good conservation practices by all individuals.

The Institute said it advocates full cooperation among industry, government and private conservation organizations. It favors cooperative conferences among these groups on national, regional and local levels "to promote mutual understanding of respective problems and purposes and to promote conservation objectives."

192 Fishermen Caught Without Their Licenses

Austin — Too many Texas fishermen tried to get by without buying a license during the month of May, and 192 paid fines, according to the violations report of the Game and Fish Commission.

In all there were 333 arrests. Fines and costs collected amounted to $7,783.03.

Eleven hunters paid fines for shooting deer out of season. There was only one violation for "telephoning" fish during the month.

Heaviest fine of the month was $150, paid by a Midland man for possession of doe deer out of season.

Several night hunters paid fines ranging from $25 to $50 each.

Capt. E. M. Sprott, director of law enforcement, warned vacation fishermen that a $2.15 license is required for any person between 17 and 65 fishing outside his home county, or fishing in his home country with any kind of winding device.

Mrs. W. E. Wallace returned home recently from a visit in South Texas with her children. She visited in Corpus Christi with Mrs. Nona Woodruff and her grandchildren Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Woodruff and Dr. and Mrs. Don Woodruff, then went to Robstown and visited Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wallace and family. Barbara Wallace returned home with her for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartow Boylston, Veva and Jan, of Aiken, S. C., are here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McClellan.

Visitors in the Roy Stockard home during the weekend were their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Morris McFadden and children of Abilene and Mr. Foy Mitchell, a student at Abilene Christian College, who recently returned from a 13-year stay in Germany.

5.25 Inch Rain Falls Here

Excellent rains fell throughout Texas last week, beginning on Thursday and continuing through Sunday. The official measurement for Santa Anna was 5.25 inches, as recorded at the Coleman Gas Company office.

The good rains were a big boost to most farmers and ranchers of the area. There were some few who did not have all their small grains harvested and others were in the process of replanting cotton lost to the heavy rains and hail several days previous to the weekend rain.

Pastures and other row crops will benefit an untold amount from the good soaking rains. They began about noon Thursday and steady soaking rains fell continuously until Sunday morning. Amounts varying from about 4 inches to more than 10 inches fell in areas surrounding Santa Anna.

Savings Bonds Attractive to Large And Small Savers

"Savings Bonds sales through May 1961 totaled $133,555," Mr. Robert I. Bowen Jr., chairman of Coleman County Savings Bonds Committee reported today. "Our county has now reached 41.3 percent of its 1961 goal of $450,000. May sales were $24,701."

Sales in Texas for the first five months of 1961 were $64,395,836 which is 39.0 percent of the state goal.

"Never before have United States Savings Bonds been so attractive to investors and small savers alike," Mr. Bowen, chairman of the Coleman County Savings Bonds Committee, said today.

Governor Urges Every Driver to Drive Carefully

Governor Price Daniel said today that "every Texas driver owes it to himself, his family, his passengers, and his State to make certain that he is not involved in a traffic crash at any time, but more especially during the traffic-crowded Fourth of July period."

The Texas Department of Public Safety said the official "Operation Deathwatch," during which all victims of violent or accidental deaths will be counted, will be observed from 12:01 a. m. to 11:59 p. m., Tuesday, July 4, making it a one-day holiday.

"But I feel fairly certain," the Governor added, "that Texas highways will carry an unusual amount of traffic also on July 1, 2 and 3, immediately preceding the national Independence Day observances. So again we appeal to all drivers to exercise unusual caution and to drive carefully and legally."

The Governor said the average daily traffic toll in Texas was nearly seven a day in 1959 and just over six a day in 1960. In the light of records for the one-day Fourth of July holidays in 1956, when 12 were killed, and in 1957, when 15 were traffic victims, Governor Daniel added, "It is quite possible that the normal average could be doubled on the Fourth, and this we want to prevent."

The Governor has asked all State and local law enforcement officials to "maintain steady pressure particularly on persons involved in speed too great for conditions and driving while drinking, and against all drivers who either cannot or will not drive safely and legally."

In 1956, when the DPS predicted 11 traffic deaths, 12 persons died. In 1957, with a prediction of 10 deaths totaled 15. In the past nine years, Fourth of July traffic deaths have been fewer than predicted only three times. Two of those better years, 1958 and 1960, followed strenuous Statewide campaigns staged under the Governor's sponsorship, in cooperation with State and local law enforcement agencies and civic groups.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mulroy spent the weekend in Houston with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Horton and family. They brought Mrs. Horton and children, Jennifer, Stephenie and Timothy, home with them for a visit.

Swimming Now In 2nd Week; Attendance Down

The annual Summer Recreation Program will complete its second week this week and attendance on the swimming instruction program has dropped considerably during the past few days. Some of the drop has been attributed to the cool and rainy weather; some of it is attributed to the fact that a number of the boys are practicing baseball during the morning hours.

Attendance the first week averaged 30 students, but it is down to less than 20 this week.

Mothers going on the bus with the boys are as follows: Last week, Mrs. Thomas Wristen and Mrs. Billy J. Harvey, this week, Mrs. Lee Ray Huggins and Mrs. Fred Hicks; next week, Mrs. Mary Nell Woodard and Mrs. Pat Hosh.

Mothers assigned to go with the girls during their three weeks swimming period are as follows: first week, Mrs. Leland Thompson and Mrs. Robert Robinson; second and third weeks, Mrs. Leland Thompson and Mrs. J. D. Kline.

Only two mothers are to go on the bus each day. Others may go to the pool in their cars if they desire to do so.

Mrs. Catherine Markland, president of the organization, said plans were being made to open the local wading pool about July 1. Further announcements will be made next week concerning this part of the program.

The teen-age girls program has been changed to Friday afternoons at the City Library. The program will begin at 4:00 p. m. and will be directed by Mrs. C. D. Bruce. Appearing on the program this week will be Cascha Kurda. She will be followed by Miss Nalette McCord of Coleman, who will bring a course in Conversational Spanish. Mrs. Markland said this course may continue for more than two weeks, depending on the interest shown in the course. All teen-age girls of the area are invited to participate in the program.

Plans are to get as many young girls as possible to come to carry on a light conversation in Spanish.

Mrs. Markland said plans were also in the making for anyone interested to take a Red Cross swimming instruction course in the Coleman Pool, after the girls part of the swimming program is completed. Adults, as well as youths could participate in this program. If you are interested, you are invited to contact Mrs. Markland.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brannan and family of Callon, Ark., spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Brannan and family. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wheeler and family of Fort Worth were also weekend visitors.

Mrs. D. J. Joplin of Lorington, N. M., has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alice Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil King and girls, Susan and Cella, of Brownwood, visited her mother, Mrs. Kate Holmes, last week. They also visited her brother, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Loveady of Texas City, here for a visit.

State Capitol NEWS

Austin — Texas' tax debate continues! Not as lively now as during the legislative session — but many voices are being heard. It's sort of a "speak now or forever hold your peace" period. Some type of tax bill, undoubtedly the biggest in Texas history, will have to be passed in July or August, and those with something to say are rushing to get in their licks.

Legislators report that the small-scale "great debate" is proving very helpful in stirring up opinions from previously silent constituents. They're hoping to discover enough home district reaction to guide them to a swift, sure solution when they return for the special session July 10.

Eight Central Texas lawmakers, in a reply to Gov. Price Daniel's report to the people, say that raising $341,000,000 in new revenue will require a "broad coverage tax."

Although five of the eight voted with the governor during the session, several objected to a "hit and miss" tax approach.

Some say that people in their districts object to selective taxes on grounds that "it's not fair to tax my product and not my neighbor's."

IN THE WIND

A number of new approaches to tax plans already battled around during the regular session are being worked on by lawmakers during this interim. Among plans being considered are these:

1. By Rep. Charles N. Wilson of Trinity (sponsor of the 2 percent sales tax passed by the House last session) — a new sales tax that would be linked, Siamese-twin fashion, with a corporation income tax.

2. By Rep. George T. Hinson of Mineola (a frequent sponsor of legislation favored by the governor — a 2 percent tax on everything selling for $5.00 or more, with the usual food and drug exemptions).

3. By Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas — selective excise taxes of 2 percent on a long list of items, but generally exempting the bed rock necessities of life.

NEW COMMITTEE AT WORK

Governor Daniel's new tax study committee, made up mostly of the board chairmen for various state agencies, got off to a diplomatic, soft-voiced start.

Several lawmakers took a dim view of having "another study group," recalling that the last one had come up with a payroll tax plan that never caught fire. Texas voters, they pointed out, selected their legislators to write the tax laws and will hold the legislators responsible for the outcome.

Members of the committee made it clear that they didn't intend to dictate to the Legislature. But they do hope to be able to indicate some possible paths of compromise among the various plans for which the legislators have shown favor.

Committee is to meet July 6 to write its report for the special session.

DOWN THE DRAIN?

Some legislators are fretting over the loss in state revenue resulting from the Legislature's failure to pass a tax plan during the regular session.

Here is the way they see it:

1. Bills passed by a simple majority vote take effect 90 days after the close of the session. If a tax bill had been passed in the regular session, it would have taken effect the last of August and money from it would be accruing September 1 when the new fiscal year begins.

2. If a bill is passed by a simple majority in the special session—say about August 10—it will not take effect until November 10.

3. A $340,000,000 tax bill covering the 24-month period would raise money at the rate of about $14,000,000 a month. But between September 1 and November 10, nothing would come in from the new bill. This awaiting period of two months, would mean the loss of some $35,000,000 in state revenue which would have been raised if the same bill had been passed earlier.

Question that immediately arises is: Can the Legislature pass a tax bill by a two-thirds vote of both houses so that it will go into effect immediately?

(As done in 1959.)

Today legislators are dubious. As the new tax bill is expected to affect more items, many Legislators feel that it would be unfair to expect businessmen and store keepers to get ready overnight to charge all sorts of new taxes.

NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER

With the election of John Tower as U. S. Senator, exultant leaders of the Texas Republican Party feel they have a foot solidly in the door.

Beyond the door, that they hope to swing wide, is a two-party Texas with the GOP sharing political power in Texas on a roughly equal basis.

New goals are being carefully considered. All but one (Travis) of Texas' big metropolitan counties went for Tower, as well as large sections of West Texas. In these areas, except where a very popular Democrat is entrenched, the Republicans can be expected to bid for places in Congress, the Legislature and even county jobs.

First test is due in Bexar County where Congressman Paul Kilday is due to resign to become judge of the Court of Military Appeals. Bexar County went for Tower last month.

Under the present law, Kilday's successor will be determined in a one-shot, high-man-wins special election, probably next fall. There is some talk of trying to get the Legislature, during its special session, to pass a law which would require a run-off in special congressional elections. This would reduce Republican chances.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that a person cannot be held in contempt of court for an act committed outside the court room.

In the case in point, a district judge held a man in contempt of court for assaulting him (the judge) at a filling station. Judge sentenced his assailant to 72 hours imprisonment and a $100 fine.

Nope, said the appeals court. Contempt of court has to take place in the court room.

COLOR AND DEEP FISHING

The deeper you fish the less important color becomes.

Colors on your lures tend to lose individuality the deeper they sink. Red is the first to lose distinction.

So concentrate on plug action in deep water, and never mind the color of your bait.

On the surface, however, color does count, with red and white the most popular. Contrast of the two colors seems to please (or displease) bass especially.

TRY BACKCASTING

Backcasting is important, especially in bait-casting.

Forward motion is increased by a snappy backcast. Backcasts not only get distance, but also save making bird's nests.

Learn to flick your wrist in a snappy cast to the rear, and then slash quickly forward.

It only takes a minute — to call 45 and let us know that you have entertained visitors.

See Texas As a Tourist

Austin — Why not see Texas this year from a tourist's point of view?

That is the vacation suggestion offered to Texas residents by the State's official tourist agency, the Texas Highway Department.

"Many Texans have never seen their own State through a tourist's eyes," explained State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer. "Some Texas residents plan out-of-state vacations because they are unaware of the wonderful variety of scenery, recreation and historical attractions in Texas."

Greer offered these vacation hints:

For more relaxation and enjoyment, plan your vacation early.

For help in planning it, write to the Texas Highway Department, P. O. Box 5064, Austin 31, Texas.

The Highway Department maintains a complete file of descriptive and informative literature on points of interest and special events throughout the State. This material, including Highway Department publications such as the 1961 Official Highway Travel Map, is available free of charge to prospective Texas vacationers.

Vacation outings ranging from full-fledged trips of a week or more down to shorter drives on holidays or weekends can be planned with the help of these free informative pieces. Vacationers writing for information should specify the area of the State they wish to visit and indicate their preference of things to see and do.

Once the vacationer is on his way, more than 60,000 miles of smooth Texas highways make quickly and easily accessible points of historical, scenic and recreational interest.

"Yet Texas tourist attractions often pass unnoticed by many Texans living only a few miles

Too Late to Change Your Mind

What if some glib salesman signs you up for an encyclopedia, or a set of pots and pans. Next day you change your mind. Can you cancel the order? Chances are you can't.

The typical pattern runs thus: the salesman fast-talks poor Joyce Jones into signing an order for a set of cooking ware, silver, or what-have-you. She pays a nominal amount down, the balance to be over a long term. The price is high enough, plus a big carrying charge, but the installments run for a long time and at first look reasonable.

away," he said. "It is like the famous 'acres of diamonds' story in which a man traveled all over the world seeking wealth, only to discover that he could have found it in his own backyard."

"Texans who know their State are aware that the Lone Star State has an unequalled variety of scenery, climate and tourist attractions within a few hours' drive. It is unfortunate that we have no funds to make these attractions known to residents of other States through tourist advertising."

Texas has one National Park (Big Bend), four National Forests, more than 600 miles of coastline, more than 50 mountains over 6,000 feet high, and numerous scenic underground caverns, Greer said, as well as many man-made attractions — artificial inland lakes, old cattle trails, restored forts, monuments and museums. More than 50 State Parks are available for outdoor recreation including water sports and camping.

The Texas Highway Department maintains some 1,000 Roadside Parks offering travelers a chance to rest or picnic.

"Plan your vacation with the aid of the free travel information available through the Highway Department," Greer urged, "then drive on a Texas highway to see Texas from a tourist's-eye view."

able. When the shipment arrives, Joyce decides she doesn't want it, and can't afford it anyhow, so she refuses to accept it and tells the company she is canceling the order.

But poor Joyce is out of luck. The company promptly tells her that they "sold" her installment contract to a bank or financial institution, and she must now deal with them, not the company. The company thus got its sale price in full, the salesman his commission and the new owner of the contract expects his money in full. Sorry, but it is too late to cancel the order. This is not at all like buying from a local store, where you can usually return the goods if they are unsatisfactory or if you change your mind. If Joyce ships the merchandise back, the company will most likely refuse to accept it.

Moreover, the companies buying such contracts are hard-boiled about collections. If Joyce doesn't pay, they will not hesitate to report her to a credit rating agency, or even sue.

The moral is, be sure you know who you are dealing with, and be sure you know what you are signing and the consequences.

A TIMELY VICTORY

The election recently of John Tower, Texas Republican, to the United States Senate is being hailed as a triumph for "Conservatism," and that it truthfully is.

He defeated William Blakley, a conservative Democrat. It's been a long time anywhere in the U. S. A. that voters have had an opportunity to choose between two conservatives. Texas voters chose the more conservative of the two candidates by electing John Tower.

To us this is proof of what we have been claiming for these past several years: Present a genuine conservative to American voters and they'll elect him. What transpired in Texas can be duplicated in practically all of the other 49 states.

Ed Erard, editor of the Kingsville (Texas) Record, in its May 31 issue, expressed the hope that it will inspire Texas Republican leaders to set up an effective organization to make Texas a two-party Senate.

Mr. Erard points out another favorable factor in this victory of John Tower in the concluding paragraph of his editorial. It reads:

"Yes, Texas has put a Republican in the Senate — and the world still rolls undisturbed around the sun. If nothing else, it was a fine gesture of acknowledgment that 'War Between the States' is over and coming in the Civil War Centennial Year it's most timely — in fact, overdue."

ONLY-ONE LIGHTHOUSE
Many tourists each year visit the Sabine Bank Lighthouse.

This guidepost for the ships at sea is still in use today. It lies 16 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico from Sabine Pass on Texas' eastern Gulf Coast.

This old lighthouse isn't a "one and only" but it still has distinction in the "only one" class. This because there is only one other lighthouse located in open water in the United States.

Mrs. Charles Ing and Reta Jane of Waco spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. W. E. Wallace.

National Farm Safety Week Set

The period from July 23-29 has been designated as National Farm Safety Week by a proclamation released by President Kennedy.

The President called attention to the fact that more than a million farm residents are injured and thousands are killed each year in accidents and that these accidents bring suffering and sorrow to our farm families and inflict heavy economic losses upon both the farm community and nation. The safety of these people, he continued, who produce our food is of vital concern to all our citizens.

President Kennedy is urging all persons and organizations interested in the safety of farm people to support and participate in this special endeavor to help reduce the number of farm accidents. He asked farm residents to remember that "Safety is a Family Affair."

In Texas, plans are going forward for the observance of the Week, reports the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. In many counties extensive programs will be carried out, emphasizing that safety is a family affair. County extension agents, 4-H Club members and their leaders, farm and community organization leaders and others with a deep interest in the promotion will contribute to the overall plans.

The Councilmen said that in many counties a different phase of farm and home safety would be emphasized each day during the week; Sunday, reverence for life; Monday, safety begins at home; Tuesday, agricultural chemicals; Wednesday, prevent falls; Thursday, highway safety; Friday, farm machinery and Saturday, recreation safety.

The failure of rural people to observe safety in their daily living is a chief contributor to their safety record. The Council said this record includes a disabling injury accident every 32 seconds and a death every 45 minutes to farm residents of the nation. The Council concludes it is time to stop this needless waste from accidents since most could be prevented.

Daily Supplements Not Necessary For Dairy Cows

Increasing numbers of Texas dairymen are feeding expensive mineral-vitamin supplements because they have been advised this practice would improve milk production and general health of dairy cows.

A. M. Meekma, extension dairy specialist, points out that researchers at Cornell University, in four separate experiments, using a complex mineral-vitamin mixture similar in composition to many now being sold, failed to increase milk production, milk fat test, weight gain, feed intakes or digestibility. Also, says Meekma, no improvement in the general health and appearance of the cows was evident.

The specialist further points out that the Cornell researchers used widely different qualities of forage and proportions of concentrates to forage in their studies. It is Meekma's belief that the negative results of this research can be applied to many Texas dairy farms.

About Your Health

Austin — Texas is a top prospect to become one of the first states to assume a new states' right — that of licensing authority for individuals and industries using radioactive isotopes.

Authorization for state jurisdiction in this function was assured in 1959 when Congress passed legislation to permit states to assume responsibility for radioactive isotope licensing by entering into an official agreement with the Atomic Energy Commission. Up to that time the AEC had exclusive licensing authority throughout the U. S.

Texas officially indicated its willingness to take over the licensing function when the recent session of the state legislature passed a radiation control act which names the Texas State Department of Health as the control agency and provides for a radiation advisory board of nine members to be appointed by the Governor.

Preliminary negotiations are now, underway between State Health Department officials and representatives of the AEC to effect the actual transfer of licensing duties.

More than 400 Texas users of radioactive isotopes are currently under AEC license. Uses to which isotopes are being put in medicine, industry and agriculture are increasing every day.

So far no state has actually taken over the details of isotope licensing, but several, like Texas, have enacted enabling legislation to do so when they can demonstrate their capability for the complex assignment.

Based solely on organization and the technical qualifications of staff personnel, only Texas, Kentucky, California and New York appear to be in an immediate position to take on the licensing program.

Health Department radiation specialists said control of radiological licensing holds many practical advantages for present or potential isotope users. It permits closer surveillance and supervision of activities vitally affecting the public's health. It means greater opportunity to develop peaceful uses of nuclear energy under a careful, state-administered program of control.

Under the Texas radiation control act, general or specific license — depending on the operation involved — would be required of anyone using radioactive by-products, radioactive sources, or special nuclear materials. The department will continue registrations of x-ray devices, under authority of State Board of Health regulations. A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman
O C FISHER

NOT LONG AGO a Coleman friend sent me a note containing a comparison of two distinguished Americans — Mr. Sam H. Gilliland of Coleman and Mr. Frank A. Mason of Clyde, Ohio. The former was born Dec. 14, 1858 and the latter was born five days later — on December 19, 1858. That adds up to 103 years for each of them.

Aside from age, there are other comparisons. Gilliland, a Democrat, never scratched a Democratic ticket and never missed an election. Mason, an equally fervent Republican, never deviated and never missed an election.

Both of these centenarians have been throughout their lives in their own communities. Mr. Gilliland, a life-long member of the Masonic Order, now resides in Holiday Hill Home for Senior Citizens in Coleman.

And so today we salute both of these great Americans. It is quite certain that they have done more for the cause of good government and for the improvement of the lot of their fellow citizens than can be claimed by any of us. In fact, in their own quiet but active lives it is quite likely they have done a hundred times more than most of us.

A wise man once said: "A people that take no pride in the noble achievements of ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by their descendants."

Plankton World Described By Marine Biologist

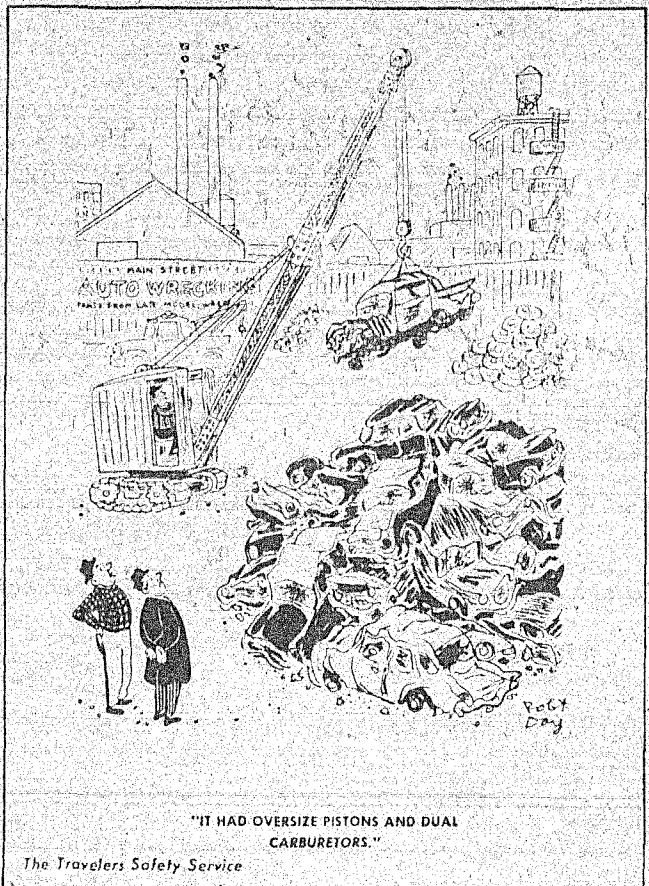

Austin — The plankton world provides an interesting article for the May issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine. In it, Henry Compton, marine biologist of the Rockport laboratory, describes these briny mites with words and illustrations for a comprehensive story.

Compton's article, "The Plankton World," is a detailed and interesting study of the microscopic life that floats in the water.

AN HONEST LOOK AT THE OMNIBUS FARM BILL

By John C. White

Commissioner of Agriculture
It's about time for taking a close, honest look at the Administration's proposed long-range Omnibus Farm Bill.

What will it do? Is it a "dictatorial" bill as has been charged? How does it affect existing farm laws? What would it change, and why?

To begin with, the farm bill is a far-reaching measure designed to up-date the carrying-out of national agricultural programs by snipping away red tape and making the operation of such programs more democratic in nature.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman's bill is predicated on the principle of opportunity for the farmer to take part in controls, subject to approval by the President and the Congress.

Criticism of the bill has been most severe in publications where basic prejudice against any type of government assistance to farmers (the only producers in our economy who have no way to influence financial rewards of their enterprise) has overshadowed responsibility for reporting the facts.

They charge that the Secretary of Agriculture seeks "dictatorial powers" and "stiff controls" on farmers when, in fact, no powers or controls could be affected unless the farmers of individual commodities themselves asked for and overwhelmingly approved them. In addition Congress would be required to approve such programs but would be spared the tedium of formulating them — having left that task to the Secretary and the President.

Of course, as Texas Congressman Bob Poage of Waco — a veteran in the field of farm legislation — has said, this farm bill, like all long and comprehensive measures, needs amendment to insure its fully democratic character. The Secretary has agreed to such changes, and argument on these points for the sake of controversy is nothing more than beating a dead horse.

The basic reasoning behind a change in the formulation of agricultural policy is obvious but not realized by most people: Agriculture directly influences but a small minority of American citizens — though a lot of Texans — today, and that influence is going to get smaller rather than larger. It becomes more and more difficult each year for Congressmen from big cities to vote for farm programs in which their constituents are not interested and which they may just flat resent without educated reason.

Many big city Congressmen have frankly served notice that they are not going to continue to vote year after year for programs for one crop after another. The most logical way to overcome this harsh reluctance is to present the programs with the added impetus of producer committee approval, approval by the Secretary of Agriculture and approval by the President.

The Administration's proposed farm legislation is the most workable and sound initial solution to the grave problems of inequitable farm income today. It is urgent that action be taken to correct these problems, and, in the total absence of any proposal more practical and more fair, it should be supported.

FISHY BUT TRUE

Many native Texans and thousands of visitors to the lone star state take advantage of Texas' vast water resources, both salt and fresh water, for the restful, yet exciting, sport of fishing.

Anglers fishing Texas rivers have lured many sportsmen to the Lone Star State by proving we really grow them big in Texas.

Lights Indicate Safe Drivers During Holiday

"Drive Lighted and Live!" Those four little words will be heard thousands upon thousands of times by hundreds of thousands of Texas automobile drivers and millions of Texas citizens when member-stations of the Texas Association of Broadcasters get their first big holiday traffic safety project underway July 1 and 4.

Governor Price Daniel has been advised by President Jim Hairgrove of Freeport, head of the Texas Association of Broadcasters, that the simple act of turning on car headlights during daytime hours will be suggested to Texas motorists once more as a signal that the motorist is driving legally and safely.

The idea was first tried during the Labor Day holiday in 1959 by a group of radio stations in the Victoria area, and by stations in the Corpus Christi area during the Christmas-New Year's holiday that same year. It proved so successful — not a single serious crash, no serious injuries and no deaths were reported in either area — that TAB adopted it for statewide use through 1960.

The first Statewide survey on success of the plan was attempted by a group of observers during the Christmas-New Year's holiday of 1960. Estimates of motorists' participation ranged from 15 percent in some areas to as high as 40 percent in other areas, depending on that attention given it by the local stations. The general average in areas where the idea was adopted by radio stations was from 25 to 28 percent. No survey was made, of course, in sections where stations were not publicizing the idea.

A Victoria businessman, R. B. Roos, originated the idea and succeeded in obtaining the active help and assistance of Victoria radio stations, newspapers, industrial fleet operators and others. That trial run for Labor Day, 1959, could hardly be improved — no deaths and not a single serious traffic injury over that weekend.

When this record was repeated in the Corpus Christi area over the Christmas holiday in 1959, officials of TAB adopted it for use during their three promotions in behalf of traffic safety through 1960.

Over the Fourth of July, 1960, traffic deaths were four less than expected, only the third time in nine years that this had happened.

YE OLE FRANKLIN
Ever been to Franklin, Texas, at the western tip of the state? No, we don't have our directions confused. We mean west, not east.

The Franklin of West Texas is a wonderful town with most everything that a town of over 130,000 population should have.

It's on the Mexican border too, for an added attraction.

Never heard of this Franklin? Well, that's probably because they now call it El Paso! But it was named Franklin way back when it was first settled.

more than one a year. But it is the kind of thing any Texan can do anywhere as his own little safety project, and the simple act of turning on his headlights in the daytime is something every driver can do to attract attention to safe and legal driving. That's all we had in mind."

The Texas trucking industry's Council of Safety Supervisors announced this week that its members, safety directors for the State's big truck fleets, would encourage their truck drivers to join the "Drive Lighted and Live!" campaign over the Fourth of July weekend, thereby bringing an estimated 700,000 commercial vehicles into the program.

TAB President Hairgrove said he was urging every Texas radio station to lend its support to the project. He told the Governor: "We are going to try to advertise traffic safety on every highway in Texas."

NOT LONG AGO a Coleman friend sent me a note containing a comparison of two distinguished Americans — Mr. Sam H. Gilliland of Coleman and Mr. Frank A. Mason of Clyde, Ohio. The former was born Dec. 14, 1858 and the latter was born five days later — on December 19, 1858. That adds up to 103 years for each of them.

Aside from age, there are other comparisons. Gilliland, a Democrat, never scratched a Democratic ticket and never missed an election. Mason, an equally fervent Republican, never deviated and never missed an election.

Both of these centenarians have been throughout their lives in their own communities. Mr. Gilliland, a life-long member of the Masonic Order, now resides in Holiday Hill Home for Senior Citizens in Coleman.

And so today we salute both of these great Americans. It is quite certain that they have done more for the cause of good government and for the improvement of the lot of their fellow citizens than can be claimed by any of us. In fact, in their own quiet but active lives it is quite likely they have done a hundred times more than most of us.

A wise man once said: "A people that take no pride in the noble achievements of ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by their descendants."

Plankton World Described By Marine Biologist

Austin — The plankton world provides an interesting article for the May issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine. In it, Henry Compton, marine biologist of the Rockport laboratory, describes these briny mites with words and illustrations for a comprehensive story.

AN HONEST LOOK AT THE OMNIBUS FARM BILL

By John C. White

Commissioner of Agriculture

It's about time for taking a close, honest look at the Administration's proposed long-range Omnibus Farm Bill.

What will it do? Is it a "dictatorial" bill as has been charged? How does it affect existing farm laws? What would it change, and why?

To begin with, the farm bill is a far-reaching measure designed to up-date the carrying-out of national agricultural programs by snipping away red tape and making the operation of such programs more democratic in nature.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman's bill is predicated on the principle of opportunity for the farmer to do as he controls, subject to approval by the President and the Congress.

Criticism of the bill has been most severe in publications where basic prejudice against any type of government assistance to farmers (the only producers in our economy who have no way to influence financial rewards of their enterprise) has overshadowed responsibility for reporting the facts.

They charge that the Secretary of Agriculture seeks "dictatorial powers" and "stiff controls" on farmers when, in fact, no powers or controls could be affected unless the farmers of individual commodities themselves asked for and overwhelmingly approved them. In addition Congress would be required to approve such programs but would be spared the tedium of formulating them — having left that task to the Secretary and

"Drive Lighted and Live!" Those four little words will be heard thousands upon thousands of times by hundreds of thousands of Texas automobile drivers and millions of Texas citizens when member-stations of the Texas Association of Broadcasters get their first big holiday traffic safety project underway July 1 and 4.

Governor Price Daniel has been advised by President Jim Hairgrove of Freeport, head of the Texas Association of Broadcasters, that the simple act of turning on car headlights during daytime hours will be suggested to Texas motorists once more as a signal that the motorist is driving legally and safely.

The idea was first tried during the Labor Day holiday in 1959 by a group of radio stations in the Victoria area, and by stations in the Corpus Christi area during the Christmas-New Year's holiday that same year. It proved so successful — not a single serious crash, no serious injuries and no deaths were reported in either area — that TAB adopted it for Statewide use through 1960.

The first Statewide survey on success of the plan was attempted by a group of observers during the Christmas-New Year's holiday of 1960. Estimates of motorists' participation ranged from 15 percent in some areas to as high as 40 percent in other areas, depending on that attention given it by the local stations. The general average in areas where the idea was adopted by radio stations was from 25 to 28 percent. No survey was made, of course, in sections where stations were not publicizing the idea.

A Victoria businessman, R. B. Roos, originated the idea and succeeded in obtaining the active help and assistance of Victoria radio stations, newspapers, industrial fleet operators and others. That trial run for Labor Day, 1959, could hardly be improved — no deaths and not a single serious traffic injury over that weekend.

When this record was repeated in the Corpus Christi area over the Christmas holiday in 1959, officials of TAB adopted it for use during their three promotions in behalf of traffic safety through 1960.

Over the Fourth of July, 1960, traffic deaths were four less than expected, only, the third time in nine years that this had been true.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Carolyn O. C. FISHER

NOT LONG AGO a Coleman friend sent me a note containing a comparison of two distinguished Americans — Mr. Sam H. Gilliland of Coleman and Mr. Frank A. Mason of Clyde, Ohio. The former was born Dec. 14, 1858 and the latter was born five days later — on December 19, 1858. That adds up to 103 years for each of them.

Aside from age, there are other comparisons. Gilliland, a Democrat, never scratched a Democratic ticket and never missed an election. Mason, an equally fervent Republican, never deviated and never missed an election.

Both of these centenarians have been throughout their lives in their own communities. Mr. Gilliland, a life-long member of the Masonic Order, now resides in Holiday Hill Home for Senior Citizens in Coleman.

And so today we salute both of these great Americans. It is quite certain that they have done more for the cause of good government and for the improvement of the lot of their fellow citizens than can be claimed by any of us. In fact, in their own quiet but active lives it is quite likely they have done a hundred times more than most of us.

A wise man once said: "A people that take no pride in the noble achievements of ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by their descendants."

Plankton World Described By Marine Biologist

Austin — The plankton world provides an interesting article for the May issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine. In it, Henry Compton, marine biologist of the Rockport laboratory, describes these briny mites with words and illustrations for a very comprehensive story.

Compton is an artist as well as a biologist. In beautiful color, the front cover of the magazine depicts the full cycle of the delicate life of the plankton.

Plankton are tiny, drifting organisms that live in the water. They are so small that they can only be seen with a microscope. They are the food of many larger animals, including fish. The plankton world is a complex and fascinating one, and it is important to study it in order to understand the life cycle of many organisms.

HUNTSVILLE HONORS HOUSTON

The gravestone monument of Sam Houston stands silent but proud in the Memorial Cemetery at Huntsville, Texas, in East Texas' Walker County.

Houston was a giant in history, a great statesman, and an unforgettable military hero and commander. He held many political positions. He was Governor of Tennessee, twice President of the Republic of Texas and Governor of Texas.

His monument at Huntsville reads, "The world will take care of Houston's fame."

With this monument, Huntsville has helped the world do just that.

COLONIZING DAILY

Stephen F. Austin settled his colony near Sealy, Texas, but on the same location you can now settle and rest with a quiet day of fishing, boating, camping and picnicking.

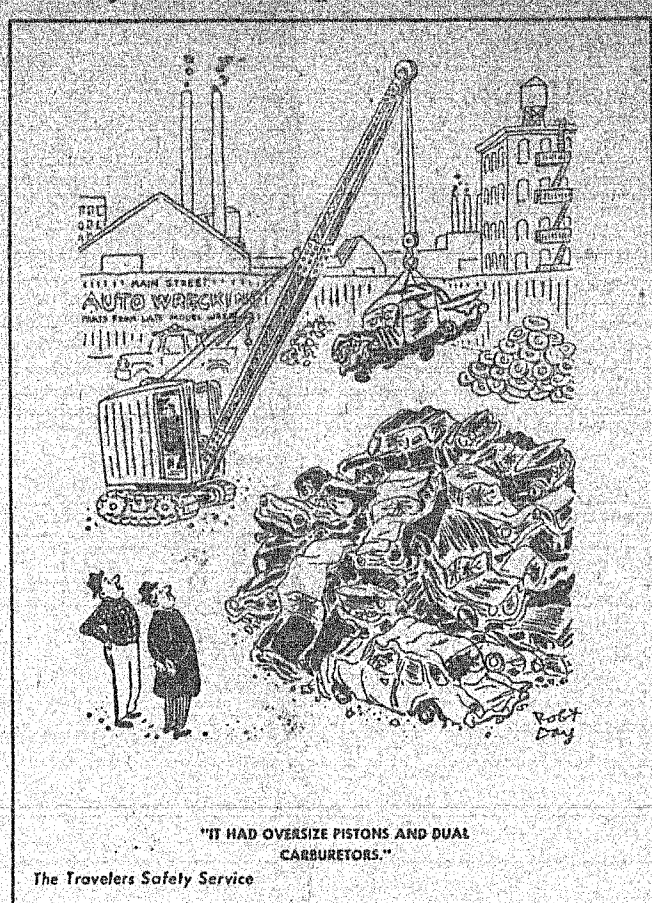

You can also play golf. The kids will love the playground and the concession stand.

This original site of the Austin colony is now converted into a beautiful 400-acre park for your enjoyment. It is located 5 miles east of Sealy, Texas, in Austin County, just west of Houston.

Don't miss the historical pioneer. A wooden fort on the site of the original fort is a reminder of the early days of the colony.

AN HONEST LOOK AT THE OMNIBUS FARM BILL

By John C. White

Commissioner of Agriculture

It's about time for taking a close, honest look at the Administration's proposed long-range Omnibus Farm Bill.

What will it do? Is it a "dictatorial" bill as has been charged? How does it affect existing farm laws? What would it change, and why?

To begin with, the farm bill is a far-reaching measure designed to up-date the carrying-out of national agricultural programs by snipping away red tape and making the operation of such programs more democratic in nature.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman's bill is predicated on the principle of opportunity for the farmer equal to that of any other basic producer in the American economy, and he seeks to give the farmer himself a voice in the making of the laws that govern his industry.

controls, subject to approval by the President and the Congress.

Criticism of the bill has been most severe in publications where basic prejudice against any type of government assistance to farmers (the only producers in our economy who have no way to influence financial rewards of their enterprise) has overshadowed responsibility for reporting the facts.

They charge that the Secretary of Agriculture seeks "dictatorial powers" and "stiff controls" on farmers when, in fact, no powers or controls could be affected unless the farmers of individual commodities themselves asked for and overwhelmingly approved them. In addition Congress would be required to approve such programs but would be spared the tedium of formulating them — having left that task to the Secretary and the farmers themselves.

An even bigger fact which critics have overlooked is that the Secretary of Agriculture now possesses most of the powers that are being asked for.

Moisture Content of Feed Important

College Station — Many Texas dairymen make the common mistake of setting up their feeding program without considering the moisture content of the feed, as fed, as compared to the moisture in the sample analyzed. J. W. Davis, extension dairy specialist, points out that all feed samples must be dried before analyses can be made and many laboratories report the results of their analyses on a dry basis. Others will convert the figures to the moisture content of the sample as they received it.

If the producer assumes the laboratory is reporting moisture content one way when they are actually reporting the other, his feeding program would be very inefficient. In one situation a wrong assumption would mean underfeeding, and the reversal of that situation would mean overfeeding. The solution to this problem would be to ask the laboratory which way they report analyses, explains Davis.

When results are reported on the basis of sample as received, the values must be converted to a dry matter basis before applying the formulas used in the Pennsylvania Forage Testing Program or in similar programs for estimating digestible protein, total digestible nutrients and net energy. Dividing the values given by the percent dry matter in the feed will convert the figures to a dry basis.

Davis says the importance of using the correct values when formulating the feeding program cannot be overemphasized. A wrong assumption usually shows up where it hurts the most — in the pocketbook.

IS GOD BANKRUPT?

By Dr. Alfred P. Haake

(Editor's Note: Alfred P. Haake, Ph.D., is a noted economist, public relations consultant, author and lecturer.)

Some years ago a member of a ministerial group to which I was speaking challenged me with the question: "Are you inferring that some of us do not believe in God?"

I had not meant to infer anything quite so vigorous, but there was something in his voice which nettled me and I replied: "I did not mean to put it that way, but since you do, yes! that is exactly what I mean. If you men actually believed in a God who created this world and rules it, if you believed that He has the power to enter and transform a human life, and that even such poor vessels as you and I could become vehicles for that power, you would rely on it, you would use it. But you don't. Instead, you go to social devices or to government to do for you what you are afraid God is either unwilling or unable to do."

And then he surprised me. Looking around the circle of ministers he came back to me and said: "Sir you don't know the half of it. A third of us don't believe in God, and that goes for this bunch right here." His statement was followed by utter silence, during which the chairman adjourned the meeting.

Since that day I have talked to literally hundreds of ministers individually, in small groups and occasionally larger audiences, to discuss the tremendous challenge confronting them. I would not venture any precise figure as to how many are less than completely dedicated, but there are some and they are too many.

In the meantime, government has not needed the impetus of clerical demands to enter fields which one would normally consider the Home, School and Church the best qualified of all institutions to handle. One of these is juvenile delinquency.

Now the President of the United States asks Congress to authorize a five-year program of federal action to combat juvenile delinquency, at a cost estimated by the Secretary of Welfare at ten million dollars for the first year.

"Juvenile delinquency and youth offenses," the President is quoted as saying, "diminish the strength and vitality of our nation." Of course they do, but one wonders just how well the federal government is qualified to deal with this problem, and what is happening among the persons and institutions who ARE or should be qualified and have the primary responsibility. For this is not the problem of the federal government.

However, that government can help. It can set an example of morality, devotion to principles of right and wrong, and straight thinking which could point our youth in the right directions. But the way in which a Congressional Committee recently was packed, the way in which we encourage monopolization of power by organized labor leaders, permit police to enjoy instead of curbing strike disorders, the economic measures offered to cure recessions, and the seduction of youth by government-guaranteed security, are not ways to correct juvenile delinquency. Through real morality and devotion to sound principles, with much less concern for votes, the federal government could at least refrain from encouraging the delinquency of youth.

The National Council of Churches is apparently too busy getting, Caesar to do God's job for him, gathering power to secure recognition of Red China, to prevent passage of right to work laws, turning our national sovereignty over to the United Nations, and undermining our system of property and freedom in enterprise — to bother with so undramatic a problem as to getting kids to behave.

It is still to the home, the community Church and other local agencies that we must turn. And we must begin by realizing that God is NOT bankrupt, that he does have the power to cure, a power still available to people who truly believe in Him and seek to serve Him, people who value the praise of God above the praises of men.

Let's place and respect the responsibility for building our youth where it belongs, in the home aided by church and school, and drop the federal government back into the limited sphere provided by our Constitution.

Plentiful Foods Provide Delectable July Eating

Food buyers who shop the Plentiful Foods Route have delectable July eating in store for them, reports the Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M College. The 8 foods on the USDA's Plentiful Foods List are right in spirit with the month — July 4th, summer picnics and Midsummer Turkey Time.

Turkeys and fresh peaches are the featured items. They are supported by a refreshing array of summer vegetables, fresh plums, watermelons, cantaloupes, eggs and shrimp. All will be plentiful throughout July.

These items have been selected by the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service because supplies at Texas markets are expected to exceed normal demands. The list provides a good shopping guide, and consumers who buy and serve these items often stand to eat better and save more.

Turkeys of all sizes are plentiful. July marketings are expected to be 35 or 40 percent larger than a year ago. Storage stocks on May 1 were a record high. Liberal peach supplies from many Southern States and California will hit markets in July. Southeastern growers expect the largest crop since 1947.

The shrimp industry faces large inventories and depressed prices as the new shrimping season opens. That's your cue to serve shrimp often. It will be readily available in fresh, frozen and canned forms in many markets.

Float Trips Combination Work and Fun

Austin — "If you have been on a float trip you know what is meant by adventure." So says Aquatic Biologist John N. Dorchester in his article "Let's Take a Float Trip," in the June issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine.

Float trips hold plenty of excitement and hard work, but the author says the hard work can be decreased and gives several tips for doing so. It is advisable to select a time when the river is on a rise or above its normal elevation, and the kind of boat used is important. A comparatively lightweight, stable aluminum boat, with welded seams, is recommended. It is wise to have a companion meet you with a car and boat trailer at the end of the trip, rather than trying to buck the current back upstream to the point of launching.

Mr. Dorchester gives advice on the kind of equipment needed, and says that it is best to go prepared for trouble. He gives some coolful instances of the kind of trouble he has encountered.

He also describes some of the excitement and says the adventure lies in the unexpected and "in trying to outwit the powerful but seemingly peaceful forces of the river."

Flying any national flag upside down at sea is the international distress signal.

Mrs. Julia McGonagill accompanied Mrs. Fred Turner, Mrs. Helen Goodloe and Mrs. John Bray on a visit to Arkansas last week.

Visitors in the home of Mrs. Fred Turner during the weekend included Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Kimmel of Lubbock and Mrs. Carl Horne and Galyn, of Waco.

Read Psalm 91:11-16.
What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee. (Psalm 56:3.)

Many years ago I was impressed by the story of a miner's son whose daily task it was to carry his father's lunch to him at noon. In order to reach him, the little fellow had to pass through a dimly lighted and, to him a frightening area. Other workers regularly heard him repeating over and over: "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

When we become adults, fears of some physical dangers generally leave us, but others replace them. We fear personal failures and wrong decisions. We fear that we may fail in directing our children properly toward the straight and narrow path, or that they will succumb to temptations they face on every hand.

Oh, the strength-depleting fears and anxieties we could avoid if only we would exercise the simple faith of the miner's son! May we never lose touch with the sustaining, protecting power of our loving Father in heaven.

PRAYER:

Our Father, give us, we pray, such a close walk with Thee that our fears may be replaced by the comfort and joy of Thy holy presence. In Jesus' holy name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The perfect love of the Father can cast out fear in His children.

Plant Disease Of the Week

Extension Plant Pathologist

NEMATODES LIMIT PRODUCTION OF GARDEN TOMATOES

Are your garden tomatoes poor producers? If so, the plants may have been damaged by root knot. Many other vegetables may also be affected.

Root knot occurs in all areas of Texas, and is usually more common in sandy soils. The disease is caused by nematodes. Nematodes are small, microscopic worms belonging to a group of animals known as roundworms.

Plants damaged by nematodes show a lack of vigor as indicated by stunting, wilting and yellowing of the leaves. Loss of leaves often occurs. Plants may die. Vegetables are usually small and unfit to eat.

To examine suspected plants, carefully remove roots and soil with a shovel. Diseased roots have abnormal galls or knots.

Nematodes are controlled by a combination of cultural practices and the use of nematocides. Some chemicals commonly used for nematode control are Garden Doflume, D-D, Nemagon, Fumazone, Nema X, Vapam and VPM. Most of these nematocides are used prior to planting. Apply as the manufacturer directs.

For further information contact your extension agent and ask for a copy of MP-356, "Plant Nematodes, Their Identification and Control."

TSCRA Initiates 4-H Awards Program

Fort Worth — The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association initiated a 4-H awards program in College Station June 7 when two 4-H club members and their coach received leather plaques for outstanding achievement in beef cattle business.

Both team members and their coach, were presented leather plaques by TSCRA president Dolph Briscoe Jr., of Uvalde, during the state 4-H Roundup.

In presenting the awards, Briscoe said this was the start of an awards program which in the years to come would include winners on the county and district levels as well as the state winners.

This 4-H program is based on the sound use of practical beef production, management and marketing in the 4-H club members' home area, and Briscoe congratulated the winning team members for their work in presenting the progressive practices which had increased profits on beef farms and ranches in Ellis County.

Magazine Tells How Bow Hunter Got Two Deer

Austin — Hunting Indian style is described in an article in the June issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine, telling how Dr. Curtis LeDoux, Fort Worth dentist got his deer with a bow and arrow. The article was written by Mary K. Sloan of Breckenridge.

Dr. LeDoux, wearing a camouflage suit, preched high in the top of an oak tree, to get a good view of his hunting range.

When two deer approached he drew down on the 15-point buck. The shaft went through the kidney section and the deer only ran 25 yards before falling.

Two days later he shot a doe through the heart, filling his bag limit for the season with bow and arrow.

He was hunting on the Pete Kelley's Walking Cane Ranch, south of Possum Kingdom Lake.

"Bulldozer Disease" Common Shade Tree Problem

Man-made situations can cause shade tree troubles. That word comes from Harlan Smith, extension plant pathologist, who adds that many specimen of oak and other shade trees received at the Plant Disease Diagnostic Lab show no signs of disease or parasites and leads him to believe the troubles are man-made.

Soil added or moved by bulldozers or graders may be responsible for the death of many shade trees. Too much fill soil around new homes may cause trees to die after three to five years or longer, Smith says. When surface soil is removed, a lowering of the tree's vigor can result and death may follow.

In many instances, he points out, new homes, paved driveways, streets, patios, parking areas, or garage turn arounds are built too close to older trees. Since feeder roots often extend two to three times the length of the limb spread, building too close may destroy many roots and cause eventual death of trees.

Shade trees can also be severely damaged, he continues, from constructing drainage ditches too close to trees, severe cutting back, injections of alcohol, vitamins or other harmful chemicals and failure to remove all rotted wood prior to the filling of cavities.

New Publication On Lateral Oiling

Cotton chopping may be going the way of longhorn cattle. At least the extension cotton specialists at Texas A&M say this could happen as more people realize the savings to be gained through the use of lateral oiling.

What makes this lateral oiling so special? The answer is simple — money. By substituting lateral oiling for hand hoeing, the producer can cut the cost of that operation by at least half. One Texas producer has reported savings much greater than this.

All this sounds fine, but what is lateral oiling? Lateral oiling refers to lateral spraying of seedling grass and weeds in young cotton with herbicidal oils, such as naphtha. This practice is recommended where rainy weather conditions have prevented timely rotary hoe use or where grass is rooted too firmly for a rotary hoe to eradicate. For more information on lateral oiling contact your local county agent. Ask for a copy of MP-504, "Lateral Oiling of Grass and Weeds in Cotton."

Economist Reports On Land Purchase Contracts

Due to the high initial investment and large amount of operating capital required, more and more young people are having greater difficulty entering the farming business. These potential farmers may have the necessary capital for one of these expenses, but not enough for both. C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist, says that land purchase contracts, or deferred payment contracts as they are sometimes called, are being used increasingly to overcome this obstacle.

There are many factors in land contracts that favor both buyer and seller, but there is one important point to remember before entering into one. Bates emphasizes the importance of having an attorney draw up the contract. These contracts cover a long period of time and involve a considerable sum of money; therefore the advice and assistance of legal counsel is invaluable.

Whon News

By MRS. TOM RUTHERFORD

The chief topic in our community is the wonderful rains of the past week. We feel more like we are on the county map again. All tanks are full. Most all rain gauges measured over 7 inches from Thursday to Sunday, starting Thursday. We received 3½ inches in a very short period of time. But all other moisture fell good. No high wind or hail.

Mr. and Mrs. Grahm Fitzpatrick and children attended memorial services in Brady Friday afternoon for Mrs. Fitzpatrick's uncle, Mr. George J. Jawers of San Angelo, who died of a heart attack Thursday in Rotan. Mr. Jawers was a cafe appliance dealer, and was there on business, when he suffered a heart attack at his pickup.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Rutherford and Rocky of Brownwood, spent Saturday night with his parents, the Tom Rutherfords.

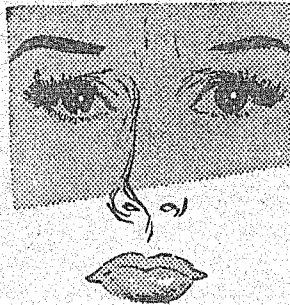

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cozart and her mother, Mrs. Bob Johnson of Coleman, were in Brady one day last week visiting Mr. Tisdale and Mr. Maness. They found a former resident of our community, Arthur Davenport, seriously hurt while working on the McCulloch County REA. Friends will hate to hear of Arthur's injuries, but glad to hear he is doing fine, following coming in contact with a hot wire and the right side of his body painfully burned.

Mrs. Ella Rawlins of Houston is visiting her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Zack Bible.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris received the death message Saturday of Mr. Ed Jones, who passed away in a Goldthwaite Rest

Living in Shadowland?

Some people never see clearly, brightly. It's as though they lived in a continual shadow.

The four great "shadows" that impair human seeing are nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism, and double vision.

So unnecessary, too—because these defects can nearly always be overcome by a good eyesight examination and a pair of prescription glasses. It's easy to come out of the shadow!

Knock Out 1962 Root Rot Now

College Station — To reduce "dying-off" or root rot, a cotton farmer needs to know when dry weather is expected for 10 days to 2 weeks. When dry weather follows deep plowing, root rot will be reduced, says Harlan E. Smith, extension plant pathologist.

Soil should be plowed 6 to 18 inches with a disk or moldboard type. The drying of the soil that follows help to kill the root rot fungus. Deep plowing and drying helps to kill old cotton roots and roots of susceptible weeds that harbor the root rot fungus.

Deep plowing plus the turning under of a large tonnage of old crop straw, stalks or leaves will give added insurance against root rot, Smith continues. The deep plowing and turning under of organic matter can often be done in one operation. Grain sorghum, small grains, clovers, and winter peas, where adapted, are often turned under to supply organic matter. Cotton burs have also been used.

The organic matter must be turned under deep in order to be effective against root rot the following season.

Following the deep plowing, rain may occur before the soil dries. When this happens the deep plowing should be repeated or a resistant crop should be planted, explains Smith. Crop rotation in itself will not reduce root rot. However, a rotation using deep plowing and burying of organic matter will reduce root rot.

Because of different amounts of rain each year, no single practice is likely to reduce root rot everytime. A combination of practices carried on for a number of years is necessary for best results, says Smith.

For further information, ask your county agriculture agent for a copy of the publication, MP-361, "Root Rot Losses of Cotton Can Be Reduced."

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jones of Bishop are here this week visiting her mother, Mrs. J. J. Gregg, while on vacation. They toured the Big Bend National Park and visited relatives in West Texas before arriving here Tuesday night.
