Reagan to meet Gorbachev Dec. 7

■ Congressional reaction, Page 8C

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced Friday he would meet here Dec. 7 with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and expects to sign a treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Reagan said he hoped to visit Moscow next year and sign a second pact to slash their long-range arms by 50 percent. A joint announcement said the summit was envisaged for the first half of 1988.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze told a news conference that the two sides remained divided over Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense program, and that no pact on long-range weapons, and no Moscow summit, were possible until agreement was reached.

The treaty to eliminate U.S. and Soviet missiles with ranges of 315 to 3,125 miles is still not finished. But Secretary of State George P. Shultz said confidently "We will get that treaty done before the summit. You can be sure of that."

Among the remaining issues is whether Soviet inspectors will be stationed at bases in West Germany, Britain, Italy and Belgium where the U.S. missiles are deployed, Shultz said at a news conference.

Gorbachev estimated in a letter to Reagan it would take two or three weeks to clear up all the details, said a White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "We're down to the short strokes," he said.

The scheduling of Gorbachev's first visit to America sharply reversed his hesitation only last week to set a date for his third summit meeting with Reagan.

Shevardnadze, standing next to the president, insisted "There was no flip-flop," and Reagan avoided any direct criticism of the Soviet leader.

"There never has been to my knowledge any negative from him," he said.

The visit evidently will be confined to Washington. Reagan said "scheduling problems" on both sides precluded a tour of other parts of the United States. A White House official said the summit would last two or three days.

President Reagan was asked upon arrival in Phoenix for a memorial service today for Mrs. Reagan's mother if he was disappointed that Gorbachev would not see his California ranch.

"No. It'll happen sometime," Reagan said.

The president, then asked whether he was worried Gorbachev would not come at all for a summit, replied, "No."

On Capitol Hill, the reaction was generally positive, but congressional leaders said any arms pact would be scrutinized "with our guard up and our ears open."

One Republican presidential aspirant, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, condemned both the emerging treaty and Shultz.

"This summit may fundamentally endanger the security of future generations," he said. "For months, I have feared the fix was in, that George Shultz and the State Department were so eager for an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union that they were willing to delay deployment of SDI in order to get it."

Many senators said they must be assured that Soviet compliance with the treaty can be adequately verified before approving it. Others said the West must quickly move to modernize conventional forces in Europe in the aftermath of agreement to eliminate the shield represented by U.S. intermediate and shorter-range missiles there.

Shultz defended the treaty, including the fact it would require the Soviets to scrap more missiles than the United States. "The thing makes so much sense that everyone is going to be in favor of it," he said.

In announcing his determination to pursue a treaty to cut back on long-range bombers, missiles and submarines, Reagan said he was not retreating on his "Star Wars" missile-defense program, known officially as the Strategic Defense Initiative or SDI.

"I made it clear, and they did not reject this, there is no way we can give up SDI, which we believe is offering an opportunity for peace in the world," he told reporters in the White House briefing room.

Gorbachev has tried to restrict the program to place exotic technology and nuclear weapons in space to shoot down ballistic missiles, saying it threatens to extend the arms race to a new sphere. But Reagan suggested the Soviet leader would not hold up a treaty in an effort to stop the U.S. program.

"It is no longer put down as a flat demand," he said.

In fact, the president said, it was no longer "a condition," but he said the issue would be discussed "between our people."

Also, the joint announcement said, the two leaders would consider a pledge not to withdraw from the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty for "an agreed period."

The Soviets are insisting on a 10-year period and the Americans on seven years, Shevardnadze told reporters.

And he said that the Soviets did not accept the Reagan administration's proposed "broad interpretation" of the ABM treaty which would allow expanded Star Wars testing.

Coordination enabled show to go on

More to live broadcast than meets the eye

By GEORGIA TODD TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

The parade is over. The Oprah Winfrey Show is home again in Chicago. Only memories remain to remind Midlanders of the recent whirlwind blur of activity focused on Centennial Plaza and Midland Center.

Some, like Mitch Clark, will "never forget" the parade — which honored those who rescued little Jessica McClure from an abandoned water well — the press and the Oprah Winfrey Show. As director of Midland Center, Clark was in the middle of the action.

"Not only did we have this (Oprah Winfrey), but we had all the media from all the major networks who wanted to work from the same place we wanted to work from," Clark said. "By location, the coordination of all media activity became my problem."

Clark wouldn't even begin to try to count the number of people working behind the scenes to make all the activities happen on schedule.

"It was a large number of people all trying to do same thing at the same time, and we had no choice but to get one mind together, so it would work.

"Little things you don't think about. For example, each network had to jockey its truck around to hit the correct satellite — that was a trial and error situation."

Bob Selby, owner of Fiat Lux of Fort Worth, estimated 100 technicians, production crew members and stage workers worked all day Thursday to put the Oprah Winfrey Show on the air Friday. The weekday talk show, which won three 1986 Daytime Emmy Awards, emerged into national syndication in September of 1986.

"It's pretty remarkable that a group of people can put together a program this technically complicated in one day," said Selby, who provides the lighting equipment for Austin City Limits, a Public Broadcasting Service Network program. "But, we did it, and it worked."

Most arrived on Wednesday. The behind-the-scenes equipment which made the one-hour show possible was provided, for the most part, by companies in Texas. Those here from Chicago, home base for the show, included an executive engineering staff from the ABC affiliate station in Chicago and Miss Winfrey's production company.

Prior to the 9 a.m. air time Friday, two technical checks were done. The first was conducted Thursday evening, and the second began at 6 a.m. and was completed around 7:45 a.m. Friday.

Acid cloud forces thousands out of homes

TEXAS CITY (AP) — A crane dropped a load onto a pipe at an oil refinery Friday, unleashing a hydrofluoric acid cloud that forced 2,000 to 3,000 residents from their homes and sent more than 220 people to hospitals, officials said.

Thirty-five people were admitted in serious condition at AMI-Danforth Hospital, suffering mainly from respiratory problems, hospital spokeswoman Beverly Boase said.

"The chemical drops the level of oxygen in the blood," she said. "They are all receiving oxygen treatments."

Danforth also treated 186 people for minor problems, while Mainland Center Hospital treated 39 people for minor injuries stemming from Friday night's leak.

"We still have a large crowd in the emergency room," Ms. Boase said about midnight. "People are continuing to come in, and we expect they'll continue to come in throughout the night."

A crane accidentally dropped parts of an industrial heater it was carrying at about 5:20 p.m., shearing a pipe leading into a Marathon Petroleum Co. storage drum containing the acid, company spokesman Ira Winston said.

The acid vaporized, releasing a cloud that prompted the evacuation, he said. Refinery workers sprayed water into the vapor cloud Friday night in an attempt to bring it to the ground, and the leak was sealed off.

Marathon workers were trying to cool the acid by pouring cold water onto the tank so the chemical can be pumped into trucks and taken to another refinery, Marathon spokesman Larry Jones said.

"We expect the process to continue through the night and perhaps through tomorrow," he said at about 11 p.m. CST. "It's well under control, but there is a small amount of fumes still leaking from the tank."

Jones said workers also are using soda ash and lime to neutralize the hydrofluoric acid.

"Once all the product has been removed, the local health district will then make a determination when people can go back to their homes," Winston said.

Texas City police Capt. Ronnie Schoolcraft said the evacuation area was originally only 30 blocks, but was expanded to 52 because the acid's odor had spread.

Residents had to be moved from their original refuge at the Nesler Civic Center to Northside Elementary School, about 2½ miles from the plant, on the other side of this city of 41,000 southeast of Houston on Galveston Bay, officer Robert Elliott said.

By midnight, the refuge site was housing around 200 people, police Capt. Allen Carlisle said, with the rest of the evacuees apparently going to stay in motels or with relatives and friends.

Police barricaded the evacuated area, but reported no problems with security, Carlisle said.

Residents will be allowed back into their homes once the company reports the vapors are under control, Schoolcraft said.

"We're not going to send an 'all-clear' until we are absolutely certain there is no danger," Winston said.

Hydrofluoric acid is poisonous if inhaled, and contact may cause burns to the skin and eyes. The acid was in a tank with a capacity of 850 55-gallon drums, but Winston said he didn't know how much of the chemical was in the tank.

Police canceled the Texas City High School Homecoming football game scheduled for 7:30 p.m. against the Galveston Ball High.

Officials show off support for super collider measure

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Claiming they have little opposition, a group of state officials stopped off in Midland Friday urging support for a constitutional amendment that would allow Texas to issue $500 million in bonds to land the Superconducting Super Collider project.

The debt service imposed by bonds — allowed by the passage of Proposition 19 — is minimal compared to the benefits offered by one of the largest federal projects to be built, said University of Texas physicist Austin Gleeson.

Two official state sites, Dallas and Amarillo, and two independent bids, Garden City and El Paso, are among 38 competitors nationwide hoping to snare the huge physics lab that is expected to employ up to 2,500 scientists and generate $300 million a year in operating expenses.

State Rep. Terral Smith of Travis County said "The competition is fierce for the project and passage (of Proposition 19) is vital for Texas to obtain the project."

The bonds would be issued only if the U.S. Department of Energy chooses one of the four Texas sites, Gleeson said.

Early polls on the amendment indicate about 60 percent of the state's voters support it, while 19 percent are against it, Smith said.

However, he acknowledged that supporters for the amendment are worried because the Nov. 3 ballot is crowded with 25 amendments and election turnout may be low.

Midland oil-field worker killed in car-truck mishap

From Staff Reports

MIDKIFF — Bruce Wayne Pipkin, a 34-year-old Midland oil-field pumper, was killed Friday night in a car-truck accident about one-half of a mile west of Midkiff on Farm-to-Market Road 3095, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported.

The mishap occurred about 7:30 p.m. Friday when Pipkin's 1980 four-door sedan, which was west-bound, crossed into the east-bound traffic lane at a curve and struck the left-side dual wheels of an eastbound 1979 International tractor driven by James Edward Rardin of Midkiff, according to DPS reports. Pipkin's Mercury car then went underneath the shop-made tanker trailer pulled by the truck, the DPS reported.

Bardin was not injured.

DPS Trooper Richard Isatt of McCamey investigated the accident.

Thai woman's art a cut above the rest

By DIANA SMITH

More local news, Page 12C

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Pam Maneeratana gets away with some rather ghoulish effects with her set of small, curved knives. And people can't wait to watch her do it again.

"A sharp cut is a must," she says. "Once you press your knife in, don't pull it back whether or not that one is the wrong cut. You just have to go for it, throw that piece away and start another one with the new lesson."

Ms. Maneeratana, 35, says she may be one of fewer than a dozen people in the world who are masters of kaesaluk, the 700-year-old Thai art of carving fruits and vegetables.

The evil-looking creatures are created by hundreds of precise, curving cuts, so many that the pumpkin almost appears in imminent danger of collapsing. A closer look shows that many cuts do not slice all the way through the flesh, but give the illusion of doing so.

A large pumpkin takes about two hours to carve. So elaborate is the knifework that people will stop in the restaurant where she works and argue whether the art emerging from the lumpy vegetables and her flying hands is real.

"It doesn't impress them because they don't believe it," said Ms. Maneeratana, shrugging.

Ms. Maneeratana has had to modify the art considerably to suit American tastes.

People in the United States seem to be least impressed with her most elaborate work — very small but finely detailed flowers made from bits of fruits and vegetables. One small flower can take an hour to carve.

Americans tend to like animals, fish and faces better than the flowers and vines she was trained to create.

"In Thailand we like to do a small thing to show how good you are. But I find that in this country, you have to get the biggest thing you can," she said.

In Thailand, kaesaluk also is supposed to delight all of the senses, including taste. There, such carved fruits and vegetables are intended to be eaten along with the meal. In the United States, people want to carry home what they consider to be garnishes or decorations in doggie bags.

Ms. Maneeratana said the key to success when working with a medium as transient as fruits and vegetables is a quick and sure hand.

Strict concentration is important. Kaesaluk is not the kind of hobby you can practice while watching television, unless you want to become an amputee.

Ms. Maneeratana said she finds the work therapeutic.

"To me, each cut of mine is like conquering. I can't beat anybody else, so I beat my vegetables," she said.

She doesn't draw designs on the fruits or vegetables before taking a knife to them, although she sometimes creates an idea on paper.

She first gets the desired shape she wants in the vegetable, then starts on the largest details and works down to finer details. No two designs are exactly alike.

"When you work on fruits and vegetables, they never come in the same size," she said.

She uses a series of knives with curved blades, the largest of which is no bigger than a paring knife.

By that time, audience members were already lined up outside the center and being allowed in in groups of 25.

By 8 a.m., it appeared there might be too many people and not enough seats. Audience members were asked to "get cozy."

"It was a little spooky for a while," Clark said. "But, we squeezed everyone in."

"Everyone" added up to around 1,300 people in the audience. Those volunteers, fans and press members were treated to a show not seen on television. It began at 8:45 a.m. with what Diane Hudson, who works for Miss Winfrey, called an "audience warm-up."

The list of "dos" began with, "What you can do is make comments. Tell us about your experience, how this whole thing made you feel, how it relates to the rest of your life and the world."

Then, Miss Hudson appealed to the audience on an emotional level.

"The whole, entire world watched you and said, 'That's what it's supposed to be about.' A lot of people don't get to experience something that touches them deep enough that they love their own kids a little more, or remember to love them a little more everyday, to take care of them a little better.

"And that's why we're here, to give a message to the whole nation that in one baby is everything. That's what you all did, you said everything is in one child. And we wanted to come here and go to a lot of effort and spend a lot of money to say, 'You got it.'"

After the applause died down, Miss Hudson explained that certain people were placed in certain places so that Miss Winfrey could get to them during the show. Then, she pointed out the four microphones in the audience, made suggestions as to the most effective talks from them and told audience members not to go up to a mike when two people were already standing there.

Next, the stage manager explained her job.

"I've got a couple of jobs. One is to see that Oprah gets to her commercials on time, which she won't. And the other job I have is to make you guys look good."

The stage manager then instructed the audience on how and when to applaud, explaining that the center would require a lot of applause because it was a big house.

After a trial run of applause, she said, "Maybe part of the problem is that ya'll don't think you can breathe during the show. Breathing is allowed during the show, no matter what. Put your purses under the chairs, just because when Oprah comes to talk to you, you don't drop all your belongings on network television.

"If you're chewing gum, you might as well forget watching yourself on the 3 o'clock playback. I'm telling you that because you're going to hate yourself. So, get rid of your gum, but don't put it under your chairs."

Suddenly, time ran out. Oprah Winfrey came on stage, and the show began.

During the first commercial break, Miss Winfrey asked the audience how it could let her sit on television with her split skirt open and her "thighs hanging all the way from here to Odessa?"

When the laughter died down, she said, her voice taking on a confidential tone, "I hear we blew out the phone lines. I hope they're all watching."

Later, she complained about the cue cards, saying, "I can no more see those cards than a man in the moon. I have on contacts, and I can't see a thing." She turned to the audience and said, "Ya'll are being so formal like."

Following the show, Miss Winfrey and some of those who had worked in the rescue effort, answered questions during a press conference.

"The way the people of the town pulled together tirelessly, I think, is an example to the rest of the country," she added.

Her primary focus was on honoring the people who worked in the rescue effort and she felt the show accomplished that.

The story also presented her with an opportunity to do a different kind of a show.

"On the show, we do 'everybody always has a problem.' Their husband has left them, and they're hurting because he's gone, and so it's good to do something that just shows the good side of America."

Miss Winfrey, who played the role of Sofia in the movie "The Color Purple," said this experience showed men in a different light.

"This ordeal has shown that men are people, too, and are just as caring and loving as women. I think it has touched us all in a way that we will never forget."

She felt that people in any area of the country would have responded to a similar situation in much the same way.

"I think that they are representative of what this country's all about — the spirit of this country. The reason why everybody watched and no matter where you went the question was 'Is she out yet?,' is because people know if they were in the same position, they would have done the same thing."

Contras claim American religious worker released

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Contra rebels said Friday they have released American religious worker and peace activist Paul Alan Fisher, whom they abducted two weeks ago.

Fisher, 41, of Mill Valley, Calif., a member of the Witness for Peace organization, was taken captive on Oct. 17 in Chontales province, about 105 miles southeast of the capital of Managua.

A person claiming to be a member of the Nicaraguan Resistance rebel organization telephoned The Associated Press office here Friday night to say Fisher was freed about 11:15 a.m. near Paiwas, 150 miles northeast of Managua, in Matagalpa province. The caller said Fisher was turned over to a person he identified only as "Jaime."

Earlier, in Miami, a spokeswoman for the Nicaraguan Resistance, Marta Sacasa, told The Associated Press that Fisher was released in the town of El Negro in Zelaya province.

"I was called from rebel forces. That's the information they gave, but due to the communications, I'm sure that details will be coming until tomorrow," Ms. Sacasa said. She said Fisher was freed in front of witnesses and was in good health.

Caroline Parker, a Witness for Peace spokeswoman in Managua, said she heard of Fisher's reported release from the group's Washington office.

"We are very encouraged by the report," she said, adding that it was believed Fisher was still a two-day walk from Rio Blanco, about 120 miles east of Managua.

"As we understand it, he is still a few days away. We certainly will try to meet him as soon as we can," she said.

As a member of Witness for Peace, Fisher was investigating alleged atrocities by U.S.-backed Contra troops.

To ensure the amendment will pass, organizers have raised about $800,000 for a publicity campaign which began Friday. About $400,000 is being spent for televised advertisements, said Susan Tonetti of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission.

The bonds will enable Texas to "even up" the competition with Fermilab near Chicago, not "buy" the project, Gleeson said.

Illinois has been able to knock $400 million off their proposed lab cost because of Fermilab — a facility set up to accelerate subatomic particles, he said.

Several operations like Fermilab will be needed to propel subatomic particles to travel near the speed of light before they are collided inside the SSC's proposed 53-mile ring, Gleeson said.

Garden City, about 40 miles southeast of Midland, is among the 36 sites undergoing technical review by a National Academy of Science and Engineering panel.

A preferred site is expected to be designated next July. After a safety and environmental review process the final site will be announced January 1989.

Political scandal rocks Chicago school

CHICAGO (AP) — Student government at the University of Chicago, considered one of the nation's most prestigious centers for higher education, has been wiped out by a political scandal that has ousted all 50 officers, a school spokesman said Friday.

Within less than two weeks, the student body president has admitted to ballot-stuffing and resigned, the vice president has been ousted for not being enrolled as a student and new elections have been ordered to replace all officers elected in the Oct. 14-15 contest for Student Goverment Assembly seats.

"It's not unusual to have political problems and bickering on student governments here and anyplace else," said university spokesman David Rosen. "Something quite as drastic (as this) is not common."

The scandal at the South Side school began with allegations that student body president Kathryn Sampeck had stuffed ballot boxes while working as a poll watcher in a campus cafeteria.

Ms. Sampeck, 22 and a junior from the Dallas suburb of Sunnyvale, Texas, acknowledged her actions, but said she had acted in retaliation for what she considered election violations by Vice President Jim Jacobsen of Ottawa, Ill.

Meantime, Jacobsen, a junior, was ordered to leave office Wednesday after a student committee formed to investigate Ms. Sampeck's allegations found he wasn't enrolled this fall, Rosen said.

Jacobsen, who had not registered for classes in time to meet the required deadline, could not be reached for comment.

The committee "found in essence no evidence of widespread fraud and abuse in the election, but certain procedural flaws, and called for a new election" of all officers, Rosen said.

The new election will take place Nov. 10 and will be strictly monitored "to make sure nothing of this nature happens again," he said.

Lisa Rogers, student government secretary, said the committee found that one or two of the 200 candidates didn't have enough signatures on their candidacy petitions

In resigning last week, Ms. Sampeck issued a statement calling her actions "a momentary lapse of judgment and it has taught me a lesson I will never forget."

She has left her studies as an anthropology major, planning to return to Texas on a leave of absence until next spring.

FBI probes Houston bank fraud case

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal indictment against missing Galveston real estate developer J.R. McConnell is part of a huge case expected to unfold more as time goes on, federal officials say.

"This is one of the largest bank-fraud cases in U.S. history utilizing title insurance," said U.S. Attorney Henry Oncken, who promised more indictments as a result of the 18-month FBI investigation.

McConnell's whereabouts have been unknown since shortly after he filed for bankruptcy late last year, but a warrant has been issued for his arrest, FBI agent-in-charge Andrew Duffin said.

The indictment, announced Thursday, alleges McConnell and five associates last year arranged $4.2 million in loans through fraud, including false ownership papers for property put up as collateral.

Two loans listed in the indictment, one at a Houston bank and another at a savings and loan, were only part of a larger scheme to defraud lending institutions of at least $162 million, U.S. Attorney Henry Oncken said.

Named in the six-count indictment are McConnell, 40; Texas National Bank president Walter Beard, 40, of Houston; and former Home Savings Association senior vice president H. Wayne Gray, 48, of Houston, who now works as a loan officer at Houston National Bank.

Others named as defendants were Federal Title Co. president Mary Lynne Smith, 38, of Houston; former McConnell employee Griffith P. Temple, 45, of Cypress; and Temple's wife, Candace, 40, a former loan officer at Texas National Bank.

Attorney Mike Hinton said the Temples would plead not guilty on grounds they were used by McConnell.

Beard said he was surprised and outraged at the indictment.

In connection with the fraudulent loans, the grand jury accused Gray and Beard of making false entries in the books of federally insured lending institutions. Gray was an officer at Home Savings at the time, and Beard still is president of Texas National Bank.

Bankruptcy judge denies efforts to scuttle Hunt plan

DALLAS (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has denied bank creditors' efforts to scuttle the Hunt brothers' financial reorganization plan.

Judge Harold Abramson Thursday declined to immediately decide on the matter, instead ruling that the plan should be kept under consideration by the court while the banks and other creditors file their own plans on how they can be repaid.

While refusing to strike Placid's reorganization plan, the judge reserved the right to do so in the future once he looks at more evidence.

"We didn't win," said Henry Simon, Placid's lead bankruptcy lawyer. "He (Abramson) decided he's going to move on and see what the banks have."

Placid Oil, owned in nearly equal parts by the trust funds of brothers Nelson Bunker, William Herbert and Lamar Hunt, filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code in August 1986 after bank creditors attempted to seize its assets.

Placid's reorganization plan, filed in August, proposes to segregate different types of creditors and to repay all its debts over a 10-year period. The plan hinges on Placid's argument that its far-flung oil and gas properties are worth more as part of an ongoing operation than if they were sold off and the money used to repay creditors.

STATE in brief

FDIC sues banks' heads

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., on behalf of three failed banks, brought suit against former directors of the banks, claiming they allowed insider loans and other unlawful transactions.

On behalf of Executive Center Bank, Energy Bank and Park West Bank, all of Dallas, the federal agency accused the banks' directors of negligence, mismanagement "and other wrongful or improper conduct," which the suit said led to a loss of $16 million among the banks.

The FDIC names founding and former directors of the three banks, David E. Wise and Ivan Alspaw, in each of the suits. It also names 14 other directors involved with one or more of the banks.

Wise was not immediately available to The Associated Press Friday. Alspaw was not listed in the telephone directory.

Wise Energy Bank opened for business in June 1982. During its first full year of operation, the office of the comptroller of the currency noted that management "appeared to be lax and excessively informal," the suit said.

Nevada sheep arrive

VAN HORN (AP) — Desert bighorn sheep from Nevada arrived in Texas Friday on the second day of an airlift that state officials hope will lead to the re-establishment of a Van Horn Mountains herd.

David Cottom, public affairs coordinator for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said the first shipment of eight sheep arrived Thursday. The animals are being captured in nets fired from helicopters in mountains north of Las Vegas.

The final shipment is scheduled for today.

Nevada has agreed to provide 25 bighorn sheep this year and 25 next ear, Cottom said.

"We are restoring a bit of Texas' st natural heritage," he said.

Texas was down to "just a hand- l" of bighorn sheep in recent ars, according to Cottom.

The plan is to put 25 bighorn sheep each of five Texas mountain nges during the next five years.

Teen-ager says suspect talked of killing officer

STATE

MIDLOTHIAN (AP) — A teen-ager told authorities that a 16-year-old suspect in the death of an undercover policeman said he planned to kill the officer, according to an affidavit filed by a Texas Ranger.

The affidavit by Ranger George Turner said that a Midlothian High School student told investigators he saw the two teen-agers charged in the killing drive away in a pickup last Friday with Midlothian police officer George Raffield Jr. The youth later picked up the two suspects near where searchers found Raffield's body Saturday.

Raffield had enrolled at the high school as a student to investigate drug trafficking. Richard Goeglein Jr., 17, and a 16-year-old suspect, whose name was not released because he is a juvenile, have been charged with capital murder in Raffield's death.

Turner's affidavit said the teen-ager told him the 16-year-old suspect "had shown him a pistol and told him that he and Richard Goeglein were going to kill officer Raffield," according to a story in the Dallas Times Herald Friday.

Goeglein, in a statement to police, has implicated his co-defendant and the teen in the shooting, saying he was only a witness, according to Brad Lollar, an attorney advising Goeglein.

In a pretrial hearing Friday, a judge appointed attorney Lee Johnson of Ennis to represent Goeglein.

Meanwhile, authorities investigating the June beating of a Williams, Ariz., youth said they want to question Goeglein further about that incident, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday.

Goeglein, whose family moved from Williams to Midlothian less than a month after the Arizona beating, was not charged in the incident. But Coconino County, Ariz., law enforcement officials have acknowledged that Goeglein changed his story at least twice when he implicated another youth in the beating.

Goeglein testified to police that he was a witness to the baseball bat beating of another teen-ager at Goeglein's home.

Investigators in the Midlothian killing and the attempted homicide in Arizona said both incidents may have involved "occult activities."

In a pretrial hearing on the Arizona beating in July, Goeglein testified that he had been involved in occult activities, which he considered religious.

15-year-old claims self defense

HOUSTON (AP) — A 15-year-old boy said he got into a fatal shootout with an alleged drug dealer after an argument erupted during a drug buy, police said.

"He said there were two guns on the table and (the victim) reached for one and the suspect got the other, and he was a little quicker," said Houston Police Sgt. Robert Parish.

Oscar Roberts III, 17, was fatally shot Wednesday morning in his Houston apartment. A handgun was found near the body and 199 small bags of marijuana were found in the apartment by police, said homicide Sgt. David Calhoun.

After the incident, the boy said he went to the home of two relatives, who convinced him to surrender and tell police the shooting was in self-defense, Calhoun said. When he surrendered, the youth gave police a handgun suspected of being used in the killing.

The youth was being held in the Harris County Juvenile Detention Center. Prosecutors had not decided how to proceed with a case against the youth, and no decision had been made whether to try to have him certified as an adult for trial.

"It's profitable for a kid," said Officer C.P. Abbondandolo. "If you live in a toilet, and you eat garbage every night and somebody offers you that kind of money, are you going to worry about some police officer coming and arresting you?"

F-16 pilots told to reduce stress after failure

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Pilots of the F-16, one of the U.S. Air Force's most widely used fighters, were told Friday to reduce the stress on the airplanes after a wing failed during a ground test.

In issuing the order, the Aeronautical Systems Division based at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base followed a recommendation issued earlier this week by the plane's manufacturer, General Dynamics Corp. Fort Worth Division in Texas.

The wing test failure is the latest in a series of problems the airplane has experienced, one of which allegedly caused a 1982 crash, killing a pilot.

The restrictions on training flights will affect 413 F-16C and F-16D models already shipped to the Air Force, said Mike Wallace, an ASD spokesman. Another 109 of the planes have been shipped to U.S. allies, Wallace said, but he did not know if the Air Force would recommend that the allies follow the same restrictions.

Wallace said the restrictions would not affect more than 1,300 F-16A and B models already in use.

In a prepared statement, the Aeronautical Systems Division, which manages the research and procurement of most Air Force weapons, said the restrictions were a "precautionary measure" until engineers could analyze what went wrong with the wing and design any corrections.

Wallace did not know how long that might take. He also did not know what effect the restrictions might have on non-training operations of the fighter.

"No wing failures or related problems have been experienced in any of those aircraft" already delivered, the statement said.

Pilots were told to change maneuvers to reduce the stress on the airplane to eight times the force of gravity, or 8 Gs, instead of the normal 9 Gs, Wallace said.

The restriction applies only when the fuel tanks in the wings are more than half full, Wallace said. That would be about 4,000 pounds of fuel, General Dynamics spokesman Joe Thornton told the Dayton Daily News and Journal Herald on Thursday.

Thornton said the wing was being tested at General Dynamics last week for a production run next year. The unexpected failure raised questions about all single-seat F-16Cs and double-seat F-16Ds, he said.

"The computer tests that we have done showed that it should not have failed," he said.

The "static loads test" stresses the wings at 150 percent of the maximum 9-G loads, Wallace said. The wing failed as it was approaching the maximum 13.5-G load under that test, he said.

"This type of test is the standard means used by the Air Force to ensure a structural safety margin of 50 percent," Wallace said. "It's like if your fender is designed to withstand a crash at 10 mph, so you test it at 15 mph."

The 8-G restriction will restore the safety margin, he said.

On Monday, U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., criticized General Dynamics in a congressional hearing for allowing alleged defects in the F-16 to go uncorrected.

Last April, a federal jury awarded $3.1 million to the family of Air Force Capt. Ted Harduvel, whose F-16 crashed into the base of a mountain in 1982. A lawsuit blamed the crash on allegedly known design defects that allowed electrical wiring in the airplane's navigation equipment to chafe, eventually short-circuiting.

In 1981, the Air Force grounded the fleet of 269 planes at the time to control electrical surges that shut down the flight-control computer. The Air Force grounded 240 F-16s in 1982 to inspect wear in leading edge flaps on the wings.

Hopefuls set for GI Forum

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Nearly 2,000 delegates and several presidential candidates are expected for the American GI Forum's national convention to be held in Corpus Christi next August, officials said.

The 40th annual national GI Forum convention will be staged at the Marriott Hotel and the Bayfront Plaza Convention Center, forum founder Dr. Hector P. Garcia said Thursday.

Between 1,500 and 2,000 delegates will attend the national convention, which will be held from Aug. 1 through Aug. 7, 1988, Garcia said.

Among the politicians scheduled to attend are U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, both of Texas; and U.S. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, who is running for president.

Nine-year-old girl raises cattle, says Brahmans her 'favorite'

WEST COLUMBIA (AP) — At 9 years of age, Rhonda Winebrenner may be a newcomer to many of life's experiences, but in the cattle-raising business, she's an old pro.

"My daddy had cattle when he was my age, and I've grown up with them, too," she says, patting her prize-winning bull, Tyler's Pride. "I love all animals, but 'braymers' are my favorite. I love the little heathens."

Rhonda has raised Brahman cattle since she was 5, and even though the animals are 20 times her size, she manuevers herself between them like they were mice.

"This is Holly," she says, wrapping her arms around the neck of a huge, wrinkled cow. "She was my first. I love her the best. Holly's fat, but she can't help it. She just likes to eat."

Rhonda's parents, Earl and Donna Winebrenner, take her to the pasture every day to feed and care for her cattle.

But five minutes in the pasture and Rhonda is spotted with mud. As if by magic, stains appear on her clothes and body, which seems never to be still. "I'm a wiggler, ain't I," she says, smiling and crinkling up the freckled-splashed nose and rosy cheeks.

But for Rhonda, winning is not what's important. She just enjoys going to the shows and meeting people.

"Yeah, I have lots of friends at school, but I have a lot more at shows. Me and Samantha Novak, we're like this," she says, holding up two criscrossed fingers.

"She's my best friend. We're going to go to A&M together, and then we're going to live in a big, two-story house in the country," the bright blue eyes sparkle with the thought. "We're going to have a beauty shop and raise Brahman cattle. I know I never want to stop showing cattle."

Working with the animals has taught Rhonda a lot about life and death. She remembers with some pain staying in the pasture one dark night until 2 a.m. with a cow giving birth, but the two calves were born dead.

"That was pretty sad," she said.

But there are so many fun things about showing animals and embarrassing ones, too, Rhonda added.

"Oh, I have to tell you this story," she says. "Me and Samantha, we were at this dance, 'cause you have to go at the shows, and, you know, the girls were together and the boys were together, but Samantha, she went off and left me there, and I had to do the Cotton-Eye Joe with all those boys, and I was the only girl. Jeepers, that was embarrassing."

'Lunchroom Lady' has catered to thousands of schoolchildren

By JERRY WHITE

AUSTIN (AP) — Her name is Novel Lee Clark, but to many of the thousands of Austin schoolchildren who have eaten the meals she's cooked, she's known only as the "Lunchroom Lady."

Ms. Clark, the cafeteria supervisor at Webb Elementary School in North Austin, has been preparing lunches for Austin Independent School District students for 35 years.

Before starting at Webb 11 years ago, Ms. Clark worked at Highland Park Elementary, the defunct University Junior High, Wooldridge Elementary, Kealing Junior High School and Blackshear Elementary.

Some of the students she served at Blackshear now teach at Webb.

"I can't go to the mall or store or almost anywhere without running into kids I've had over the 35 years," said Ms. Clark, 60. "They remember me, and I get embarrassed because sometimes I can't think of their names. There have just been so many of them."

Ms. Clark is one of about 690 people who work in the school district's 85 kitchens.

Vivian Bauhof, the school district's director of food services, said more than 5.7 million lunches were served to students during the 1986-87 school year. That works out to nearly 33,000 a day. Another 1.8 million breakfasts were served last year to students. Adult district employees ate more than 343,000 meals.

If all of the hamburger patties served by the district last year were lined up next to each other, they would stretch over 59 miles. Last year, the district also dished out more than 615,000 slices of pizza, served more than 7.6 million half-pint containers of milk and mixed 385,950 pounds of white flour — about the same weight as 23 full-size school buses.

Ms. Bauhof and Ms. Clark said there has been a gradual trend over the years to serve meals that can compete with fast-food restaurants but still be nutritious.

One recent menu included Greek gyros — bread packets with meat.

"The kids call them 'Fajita Pitas' like Jack in the Box serves," Ms. Clark said. "And we have pizza, and we have steak sticks just like they can buy at Dairy Queen."

Ms. Clark said there have been other changes.

"Thirty-five years ago we didn't have powdered stuff like we have now," Ms. Clark said. "We all had to make it all from scratch. If we had potatoes, we'd peel potatoes with a potato peeler. Now we use the instant.

"We didn't have meat patties sent to us already pounded out and rounded out," she said. "We had to make our own hamburger patties. We'd weigh them and see that all the kids got the same amount of meat because if we didn't, some kids would get upset."

Ms. Clark said that while she's used to fixing meals for 800 children at a time, she sometimes has trouble carving down her cooking talents at home.

She said, "When you go home, you'll be making a normal meal and look at what you've made and think that it's such a small amount, then you'll remember where you are."

One-time 'Kid Bullock' knows how to give two kinds of shiners

By DAVE SAELENS

BEAUMONT (AP) — Henry Bullock's gone by plenty of names over the years.

He was "Kid Bullock" for a few years when illegal fighting on the streets turned into a career as a middleweight professional boxer.

He was "Pappy" to the other enlisted men aboard a Navy warship cruising the Atlantic in 1944. At the ripe old age of 38, he was the oldest steward on board.

But these days, when folks happen into the Gaylynn Barber Shop for a visit with the 80-year-old shoeshine man, he's content with being called just plain Henry.

"I got one foot in the cemetery and one out now, but I'm still the best in the business," he says, snapping a dingy white towel with a flare only someone with a lifetime of shoeshining experience could have perfected. "Of course, I don't have that much competition any more, but I can shine 'em."

Just plain Henry will launch into tales about nearly any episode in his life, whether it be about picking cotton when he was 7 years old to shining shoes in a seven-chair shop at the elegant Crosby Hotel, where every customer wore a coat, hat and tie.

And while his hands are a blur as they make the little rag whistle and snap around a pair of black wingtips, his hazy brown eyes will twinkle as if they're watching the story he's telling happen for the first time.

"Now fifty years ago I can tell you about, but last week I can't remember," he laughs.

Henry started shining shoes when he was 10 years old after another kid who lived on Pine Street taught him how to be a porter — the title of Henry's profession back then.

Henry figured it was a step up from picking cotton on a ranch just outside a city that was little more than trees and swamps, and he steadily got better by practicing on his father's shoes at night.

The seven barbers in the shop at the Crosby Hotel gave Henry his first shot at being a young entrepreneur. Of course, that was also about the time he left the streets and entered the ring for a three-year boxing career.

"I learned from outlaw fightin' on the streets, first fightin', and I'd run three or four miles every morning to stay in shape," he says, explaining how a prizefighter named "The Bear" gave him several "whoopins" before he finally got the hang of it. "I got whipped many times before I got better, but I always looked good out there."

The feisty 18-year-old had to fight in Orange since boxing in Beaumont was illegal in 1925. His boxing career took off, for three years anyway, and in the meantime he still shined shoes on the side.

Soon-to-be pork chops hog butcher's mural

VERNON, Calif. (AP) — The last stop for swine boasts a mural of hoggish proportions, and it's getting bigger.

The mural adorning the perimeter of the Farmer John pork-packing plant dominates a city block.

"Sometimes people drive around the block just to see all of it," said Luis Rivas, 36, a butcher who has worked four years against the backdrop of realistic roaming pigs and green fields.

VOTE NO IF YOU CARE...

...about gambling destroying families...VOTE NO!
Forty-three percent (43%) of divorced women in Gamblers Anonymous indentified gambling as a major factor in the failure of their marriages.

...about how gambling hurts children...VOTE NO!
SOCIAL WORK magazine reports that magazine reports that a study compulsive gamblers and their families found the children to have "moderate to severe" emotional problems.

...about crime in your community...VOTE NO!
Since para-mutuel gambling started on a horse track in Minnesota, the local chief of police stated that the crime rate has risen 45% and the burglary rate 100%.

...about the impact of gambling on the poor...VOTE NO!
The DALLAS TIMES HERALD says: "Gamblers are drawn disproportionately from minority and poor populations that can ill afford to lose, that are especially susceptible to the lure of gambling, and that especially need a government that will not collaborate with gambling entrepreneurs."

...about needless animal suffering...VOTE NO!
A field investigator for the Humane Society of the United States says: "Dog racing as it exists today is nothing other than a 'bloodsport' since greyhounds in training are allowed to attack and kill small animals like kittens, rabbits, guinea pigs, and chickens. Up to 100,000 such animals are killed each year!"

...about REAL economic development and REAL jobs...VOTE NO!
The Texas Horse Racing Association's study by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company in 1985 forecast 4,000 jobs at racetracks, only 10% of which would be permanent. Texas would be better served by bringing in "clean" industries that create high-paying jobs lasting year round.

...about gambling bringing problems, not prosperity...VOTE NO!
State budget analysts predict that after five years of racing, dog and horse track gambling might bring in $110 million per year in revenue for the state. That is only ½ of 1% of the state's current $19.2 billion annual budget needs.

...about para-mutuel gambling creating a costly new bureaucracy in an attempt to regulate dog and horse racing...VOTE NO!
The legal counsel for the Pennsylvania State Racing Commission said that the cost of regulating racing will soon outstrip the revenue most states receive.

...about corruption...VOTE NO!
The NEW YORK TIMES said: "Gambling is a business so rich, so fast, so powerful and perhaps so unsavory that if cannot help but undermine government."

...about honesty and integrity in government...VOTE NO!
When the state engages in gambling, it loses moral stature. Where is the integrity of the state when it is in a business which only prospers when its people lose? How can a state claim to act in behalf of the common good when it exploits its own citizens?

If you care about Texas...VOTE NO to dog and horse race gambling on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd.

Estimates of public revenues and economic benefits of legalized gambling are exaggerated. Pari-mutuel revenues in surrounding states have never produced more than one percent of a state budget and have declined in a number of states in recent years.

Pari-mutuel wagering would absorb money that otherwise would be spent on consumer goods, sales of which add to the state's sales tax revenue.

Legalized gambling generates increases in illegal gambling, which attracts organized crime and leads to corruption of police and the criminal justice system.

Legalized gambling effectively imposes a regressive tax on the poor because gamblers are drawn disproportionately from among the poor. It increases the problem of compulsive gambling.

Animal abuse would increase do to the use of live lures in greyhound training, the racing of immature and injured animals, and the destruction of less productive animals.

Notoriety didn't protect Salvadoran human rights worker

By MARY JO McCONAHAY
Hearst News Service

While the killing has been exhaustively covered in the media here, many Salvadorans seemed to regard it as an almost routine part of the life of violence they have been living since 1980. In eight years of civil war, some 63,000 have died, the majority of them civilians.

SAN SALVADOR — "Mommy, mommy! My papi is all bloody!" cried Rosa Margarita Perez Anaya, 10, as she ran to her mother's arms.

Herbert Ernesto Anaya's wife, Mirna Perla, quickly blocked her other four children from leaving their apartment. She ran to the parking lot where her husband had just gone to warm up the car before driving the couple's children to school Monday morning.

"I touched him. He was dead," she said Tuesday in an interview.

Herbert Anaya, 32, was the leader of the non-governmental El Salvador Human Rights Commission. An articulate and increasingly visible figure, he often publicly blamed the government and security forces for the killings and disappearances that have plagued this nation. Tuesday, the commission blamed security forces for Anaya's death.

In a statement published in local newspapers Tuesday, the armed forces called the charges irresponsible, suggesting instead that the killing was carried out by "subversives." The government condemned the killing and said it would investigate.

After Anaya's wife found him in the car Monday, others quickly appeared. Witnesses told her two men dressed in civilian clothes shot her husband at point-blank range with silencer-equipped guns, then sped off in a white pickup with darkened windows.

After several moments, she realized she "couldn't do anything."

"I went back and took the children out the other way so they wouldn't see their father like that. Then I dropped them off at school myself."

Anaya's 32-year-old widow, a lawyer and teacher, spoke softly inside the darkened offices of the commission. Also present were two other commissioners, who looked red-eyed and strained but remained busy writing communiques and planning the week's events, including Anaya's funeral. Like Anaya, they received telephoned death threats several weeks ago.

A commission spokesman said the funeral scheduled for Wednesday would be postponed to allow time for the arrival of international delegations and Salvadorans who live outside the capital.

Human-rights sources here have been reporting an increase in death-squad style killings for several months.

Anaya's murder, however, stands out for its boldness. Anaya was well-known abroad and the commission has observer status at the United Nations as well as being linked to several church and human-rights groups elsewhere.

The slaying also represents a clear threat to the Salvadoran peace process. It couldn't have come at a tenser time, as the Nov. 5 deadline nears for achieving a cease-fire under the terms of the pact signed in Guatemala by five Central American leaders last August.

While the killing has been exhaustively covered in the media here, many Salvadorans seemed to regard it as an almost routine part of the life of violence they have been living since 1980. In eight years of civil war, some 63,000 have died, the majority of them civilians.

"It's not that we are insensitive, but if they killed someone of high rank like Monsignor Romero, how can other killings shock us?" said taxi driver Victor Manuel Vasquez, 30, as he approached the city's cathedral.

He was referring to Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, killed by a right-wing hit squad in 1980 after he called for soldiers to lay down their arms and for an end to U.S. aid to the military.

Inside the cavernous cathedral, however, hundreds kept a vigil in front of Anaya's coffin, which had been placed several yards from Romero's tomb. Some of those present wept quietly as they stood around the open coffin.

A stain of blood that trickled from the left corner of Anaya's mouth had not been wiped away.

"I never met Herbert, but when I heard yesterday on the radio that they killed him, I wanted to come," said 72-year old Natividad Beltran, who boarded a bus at daybreak Tuesday from the western province of Santa Ana to come to the cathedral. "He had a reputation for being a man who fought so this misery wouldn't continue."

Damp weather may cast pall over weekend

From Staff and Wire Reports

A damp and overcast weekend, somehow befitting of today's Halloween holiday, may settle on Midland today and Sunday.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport has forecast a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms today and a 30 percent probability of those storms tonight and Sunday.

Both days are to be partly cloudy.

The high temperature today is to be in the lower 80s, and the low tonight is to be in the upper 50s. Winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph today.

For Sunday, the weatherman is calling for a high in the upper 70s.

Friday's peak temperature was 88 degrees, which tied the Oct. 30 record high set in 1947. The overnight low was 51 degrees, which was far from matching the Oct. 31 record low of 32 degrees, which was set in 1949.

NATION

A storm system moving out of the Southwest on Friday was putting a damper on the Indian summer the nation's midsection had been enjoying for the past few days, bringing rain and lower temperatures in its wake.

The cool weather came hours after record high temperatures were recorded in several cities.

The storm system brought rain over northwest Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Golf-ball sized hail and 60 mph winds were reported in Eldorado, in southwest Oklahoma. Rain was turning to snow in the higher elevations of Colorado and southeast Wyoming.

The storm front was expected to spread clouds and rain across much of the central United States, which had basked in sunny skies and temperatures in the 70s and 80s.

Some of those temperatures were record highs for the date. In Oregon, Eugene's high of 68 broke the record of 67 set in 1939 and tied in 1967, and Portland's 69 broke the mark of 68 set in 1949. The 82 at Kansas City International Airport shattered the 77 set in 1974. Midland, Texas' 88 tied a record set in 1947.

A cold front approaching the northern and central Pacific Coast brought much-needed rain over drought-stricken western Washington and Oregon. It was the first significant rainfall in more than three months in some parts of Oregon.

Raiders seek revenge against defecting ex-coach today

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

In 1986, David McWilliams earned Southwest Conference Coach of the Year honors by taking Texas Tech to seven football victories, including a two-point triumph over Texas.

Today, McWilliams tries to beat the team he was coaching last year as the leader of the SWC-leading Texas Longhorns.

McWilliams left Tech for Austin after Fred Akers was fired, causing some hurt feelings. Spike Dykes, McWilliams' defensive coordinator and a Lubbock native, was hired to replace McWilliams.

Red Raiders' fans fumed over McWilliams' defection after only one year at Tech and vowed revenge on Oct. 31, 1987. About 10,000 of them have bought tickets for Saturday's 1 p.m. game in Austin. Texas officials expect a crowd of about 70,000.

However, McWilliams and Dykes are good friends, and most Tech players have forgiven McWilliams for his sudden departure.

"I wasn't a traitor to Tech," said McWilliams. "It was just a chance to come home."

McWilliams was a co-captain on the 1963 Longhorns' national champion team under Darrell Royal. He was a defensive coordinator under Akers.

"David did a good job at Tech and wasn't looking for a way out. He got a chance to go to Texas and that opportunity doesn't happen very often. They've had four head coaches in 50 years," said Dykes.

McWilliams and Dykes have met three times previously in high school games.

Dykes' Big Spring team beat McWilliams' Abilene club in 1967, 1968, and 1969.

"It's been awhile since then," Dykes said.

Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver said he understands now why McWilliams left.

"When he was at Tech he bled Red Raider black and red," Tolliver said. "We're not playing McWilliams. We're in Austin to play the Texas Longhorns."

MHS assures plus .500 season with easy victory

ODESSA — For a brief moment Friday night, West Texas football fans were transported to the Windy City, Chicago. The year is 1986 and William "Refrigerator" Perry is making a name for himself as a defensive tackle by scoring touchdowns on short yardage situations.

Fame and fortune followed for the 300-plus-pound Chicago behemoth. A new contract, commercials, endorsements...

The fringe benefits Perry received aren't likely to follow for Midland High's version of the "Fridge." Toby "Ice" Box, also a huge defensive tackle (high school standards), is quite a bit smaller than his professional counterpart, weighing only 247 pounds. But, it was his size the Bulldogs opted for on first-and-goal on the Odessa High one Friday night at Ratliff Stadium.

Leading by a 7-0 count despite living in Broncho territory the entire first half, the Bulldogs took advantage of a Bryan Dominguez' mistake early in the third quarter. The junior punt returner touched the ball instead of letting it bounce and be downed.

Bulldog Shaun Savas recovered on the one and, on the next play, Box got the call. His weight wasn't needed, however, as he scored untouched. Richard Fry, 5-of-5, kicked the PAT and the Bulldogs were on the way to a 35-6 District 4-5A victory.

"The Ice Box, that's my nickname," said Box. "This is the first touchdown I've scored this year. We ran that play about five or six times when I was a sophomore but haven't used it since."

"We had so many out sick this week we didn't have enough to run

Rebels smash San Angelo to go 8-0 for season

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

After an emotional victory over Odessa Permian a week ago, the worst fear in the Midland Lee camp this week was the possibility of a letdown against San Angelo Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

But forget the worry. This Lee team is the most wicked witch in West Texas and Halloween Eve was just another night to fire up the old vat and fry another kind of cat. Lee 42, San Angelo 14 — letdown 0.

The Rebels "took care of business" as Coach Earl Miller likes to put it, and they did it in usual style with 452 total yards of offense.

With the victory, Lee moved to within one game of finishing regular season play with a perfect 9-0 record, but the Rebels still don't have anything sewed up. The win insures Lee will at least tie for the district championship, but due to Abilene High's 14-10 win over Abilene Cooper, there could still be a three-way tie for first place if Abilene High defeats Lee and Permian beats San Angelo next week.

That would force a three-way coin flip, giving the possibility that Lee could miss out on the state playoffs altogether with a loss next week. Abilene High defeated Lee in the last regular season game a year ago at Memorial Stadium and Lee has to travel to Abilene this year.

"We feel good about our situation," said Miller. "We're in the same shape we were in last year and we didn't get the job done by losing to Abilene High on the last night of the district season. We would really like to clear that hurdle next week."

Miller, however, was unimpressed with Lee's first half play against San Angelo, despite a 21-7 lead.

"We had a sloppy effort in the first half and we felt like the kids might be a little flat. But they showed some character in the second half and took control. San Angelo scored again on us in the last quarter, but we were trying to get a lot of kids into the game."

Both halfback Dennis Sterling and fullback Waymon Goodley rushed for 108 yards and two touchdowns in the Lee romp and Sterling was glad to see Lee win so easily.

"We feared a letdown because the offense didn't practice too well this week," said Sterling. "That sure won't happen next week because we remember what Abilene High did to us last year (a 6-3 loss). We'll be practicing like we did for old Mojo."

Kermit smothers Greenwood, 35-6

By JOHN FREY

KERMIT — There wasn't the usual glitter and pizazz of the big play offense. And halfback Billy Ray Thompson was held, reasonably, in check. But the Kermit Yellow Jackets were still able to come away with a 35-6 win over the Greenwood Rangers.

The Rangers were able to do something that most other teams have not been able to do to the Yellow Jackets: make them grind out a victory. But they were able to adjust along with taking advantage of a couple of Ranger errors to pull out the win.

"Greenwood did a real good job against us tonight," Kermit coach Randy Hicks said. "Sometimes you get spoiled when you start to break open a lot of big plays for touchdowns. We needed some tough competition, someone to make us drive the ball. Greenwood did that."

On their first possession the Yellow Jackets began their ball control offense. Starting out at their own 18 yard line, they drove 82 yards on 18 plays for the score. The drive took eight minutes and 31 seconds to complete with Ricky Moralez scoring

Monahans blanks Big Spring, 27-0

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

MONAHANS — Coach Bren Holland and Monahans may have shed the "left out" label for good.

The Loboes waltzed over Big Spring 27-0 Friday, taking a major step toward erasing the memories of what-could-have-been in 1985 and 1986.

Holland, the second-year head coach who took over when Gary Gaines departed for Odessa Permian after the 1985 season, still needs wins over Lamesa and Fort Stockton in the final two games before the Loboes earn their first playoff berth since 1984.

"We still have a breath of life," Holland understated. "We've still got two games to go and we can't afford to look past anyone."

The Loboes certainly weren't guilty of looking past the defending District 2-4A champion Steers. A pair of first quarter Carlton Jordan to Ronnie Molina touchdown passes took care of that.

On both drives, Jordan took advantage of good field position, moving the Loboes 43 yards on 10 plays and 39 yards on just four plays for an early 14-0 lead.

"Carlton is coming along every week, he's just a rookie you could say, but he's handling it all very well," Holland said. "We felt like to win we were going to have to throw the ball because of the strength of their interior defense."

That strength and size began to take a toll on the Loboes in the second half as Monahans managed just one first down in the third period. And when the fourth period began with Big Spring's Chris Mason blocking a Nile Martinez punt, it appeared the tide was turning.

But any visions the Steers may have had of pulling off a miraculous comeback were quashed by the Loboes' Mean Green defense with a fourth quarter goal line stand imme-

Andrews' big fourth period stuns Chiefs

By PETE HERNDON
MRT Correspondent

ANDREWS — The Andrews Mustangs football team will have something going into next week's game against District 2-4A leading Sweetwater that they haven't had since the last game of the 1985 season — a winning record.

Running backs Michael Hernandez and David Emiliano each rushed for more than 100 yards Friday night to lead the Mustangs to a 25-13 win over San Angelo Lake View.

With the victory, the Ponies raised their season record to 4-3-1 with a 3-2-1 district mark.

"It feels great," Andrews coach W. T. Stapler said after the game. "The Snyder win was big because we beat them when we were crippled and playing flat. This win could be a big momentum builder for us.

"It's great to see the kids finally pull together. This was our best game of the season."

The Andrews offense rolled up 320 yards on the evening, using 70 plays to eat up the clock and keep the ball from San Angelo quarterback Eric Dumas.

Dumas came into the contest as the state's fourth leading passer, but the Andrews defense held the Chiefs signal caller to one insignificant completion in the second half and had three interceptions.

"We had pretty good pressure and we didn't have to stunt that much," said Stapler. "We had an extra week to prepare and that helped. Then we just mixed up our coverage in the secondary."

With the Andrews defense holding Lake View at bay, the Mustang offense started rolling in the second half.

With the score tied at 6-6, Emiliano broke open a counter play with 2:17 left in the third quarter and outraced the Chief defense 59 yards for a touchdown and a 12-6 lead.

Lake View, however, took advantage of an Andrews fumble with 10:27 left and drove for their only lead of the night.

With fourth and one at the Mustang four, running back Eddie Gonzales found a seam on a dive left to knot the game at 12-12. Lance Coe then made the first extra point of the game to give the Chiefs a one-point edge.

Emiliano then struck the Chiefs again on the ensuing kickoff, taking the ball at his own 10 and racing up the middle of the field to the Lake View 48. A face mask call against the Chiefs tacked on five yards and Andrews began an 11-play drive that would produce the game winner.

The key play of the drive came with fourth and one from the five-yard line. Stapler elected to go for a first down over taking the field goal and Emiliano's dive play picked up the necessary yardage by a half length of the football. Four plays later, fullback Robert Morris dove into the end zone on an option left and Andrews had the lead for good at 18-13.

After the Andrews defense held Lake View to four downs on the following possession, the Mustangs took over at the Chief 23-yard line. Four plays later, Hernandez raced 24 yards for the final score.

For the evening Hernandez carried the ball 30 times for 115 yards and Emiliano added 109 on 14 carries.

Staubach considers running for Senate

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach said he is considering running for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Lloyd Bentsen, but not next year.

Staubach, 45, said if he ran, it would be as a Republican against Bentsen, but said he would wait until the end of the three-term Democrat's next term before making a decision.

He said Bentsen would be unbeatable as he approaches an expected run for re-election in 1988.

The outlook would be different, however, Staubach said, if Bentsen decided to retire in 1994.

"Even if he doesn't step down, if I have the desire and I'm ready, I'll give it a shot," Staubach told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

The former quarterback said he may be more prepared to run in 1994 because his five children would be older, and he may be able to take more time from his private life.

Alpine defeats Cranes

From Staff Reports

CRANE— Alpine's Bucks dealt the playoff hopes of Crane's Golden Cranes a severe setback with a 10-0 in District 4-3A action here Friday night.

Mark Gallego kicked a 19-yard field goal with 8:33 left in the half to give the Bucks a 3-0 halftime lead. The clinching touchdown came on a 43-yard run by Robert Losoya with 4:43 left in the third period.

Losoya carried the ball for 181 yards on 22 carries as Alpine amassed 241 yards on the ground. Robert Carrasco's 83 yards on nine carries led the Crane's 274 infantry yards. However, the difference was Alpine's 101 yards passing. Crane didn't have any.

The win gives Alpine a 2-5-1 record for the season and boosts the Bucks to 2-2 in the district. Crane, with a skeleton squad from the one that started the season, 4-5 and 2-2.

Crane finishes the season at Kermit next Friday and Alpine is at Fabens.

Dallas firm sues Danny White

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas corporation filed suit against Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White and a business associate, claiming they used a stock sale to defraud the corporation of $30,000.

The suit, filed Thursday in state district court here, alleges Southwest Professional Marketing Inc. agreed in January to buy 30,000 shares of stock in Kowboy Krome Accessories, a company formed by White and associate Paul Linford.

Southwest Professional Marketing agreed to pay $30,000 for the stock which was to be issued on or before Feb. 10, according to the suit. The company alleges it never received any stock.

The suit asks for restitution of the $30,000 investment, at least $60,000 in punitive damages and $20,000 in attorney's fees.

Not Up For Trade

Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm said rumors that running back Tony Dorsett might be leaving the Cowboys were unfounded.

Scratchpad

NFL FOOTBALL— The Denver Broncos might be interested in acquiring Dallas RB Tony Dorsett, but only if the price is right, Broncos owner Patrick Bowlen says. Dorsett's availability became known earlier in the week when Tex Schramm indicated the Cowboys "would entertain offers" to eliminate the problem of having both Dorsett and Herschel Walker on the same roster. Schramm Friday, however, denied Dorsett had been offered to the Broncos. "We are not negotiating and have no plans to trade Tony Dorsett."

SERIES MVP— Frank Viola, 17-10 with two Series wins, thought about leaving the Minnesota Twins as a free agent. A World Series title and MVP award may have changed that. "There were times in Minnesota that I didn't want to be there," Viola said. "If my free agency comes up next year, which it is, I'd worry about it if we were losing. I'm not going to worry about that now."

TENNIS— Second-seeded Hana Mandlikova downed Judith Wiesner 6-3, 7-to kreach the semifinals of the $150,000 European Indoor tournament and faces Nathalie Tauziat, winner over Christina Singer 7-5, 6-4.

AUTO RACING— Al Unser is out and Al Holbert in this weekend as driver of the new Porsche Indy car at Miami. "We had previously agreed that Al would drive for Roger Penske in the Marlboro Challenge," Holbert said. "After Thursday's practice sessions for both races, it was obvious that Al would be more competitive in the (Penske) March."

BALTIMORE BID— The Maryland Stadium Authority authorized its chairman to enter into negotiations aimed at bringing the St. Louis Cardinals NFL team to Baltimore. The authority's chairman said recent events in Missouri meant Maryland could pursue the Cards without being tagged a "raider."

BASEBALL— After 15 years with the Kansas City Royals, Hal McRae is going back to the National League, where his career began, to become the Pittsburgh Pirates' minor-league hitting instructor.

NBA— Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan and Coach Doug Collins have kissed and made up, figuratively and literally, after Jordan's abrupt exit from a practice earlier in the week. Jordan stormed out of practice 20 minutes early Tuesday over a disagreement about scorekeeping during a scrimmage. Jordan apologized, even kissing Collins on camera following a team practice.

PRINCETON COACH— Steven P. Tosches was named Princeton's football coach to replace Ron Rogerson. Tosches was named interim coach after Rogerson died Aug. 8 from an apparent heart attack while running on an outdoor high school track in Wolfeboro, N.H. The Tigers are 4-2 overall and 2-2 in the Ivy League.

Sutton won't be back with Angels in 1987

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Don Sutton, 11th on major-league baseball's all-time list with 321 victories, won't return to the California Angels next season, the team announced Friday.

Mike Port, the club's senior vice president and general manager, said the Angels had decided not to pick up the option on Sutton's contract and have waivers for the purpose of giving Sutton, 42, his unconditional release.

"We appreciate what Don has done for this ballclub and baseball in general," Port said. "He has given us some wonderful moments. Don is a good friend and a well-respected professional for what he has accomplished throughout his career."

Sutton was acquired by the Angels from Oakland in September, 1985. He was 15-11 with a 3.74 earned run average in helping California win the American League West championship in 1986 and 11-11 with a 4.70 ERA this past season.

Sutton, who completed his 22nd big-league season, is among the all-time leaders in several pitching categories. In addition to ranking 11th in wins, he is second in games started (740), fifth in strikeouts (3,530), eighth in innings pitched (5,394 1-3) and 17th in appearances (758).

Last season marked the 21st time in his 22 years that Sutton won 10 or more games. He won his first major-league game in April, 1966, with the Los Angeles Dodgers, defeating Houston.

Sutton pitched for the Dodgers from 1966-80 before signing with Houston. He pitched for the Astros in 1981 and most of 1982, until being traded to Milwaukee on Aug. 31, 1982. Sutton pitched for the Brewers through 1984, when he was dealt to Oakland.

His 300th win came on June 18, 1986, when he beat the Texas Rangers 5-1 at Anaheim Stadium.

Port also announced Friday the Angels coaching staff of Marcel Lachemann, Bobby Knoop, Moose Stubing, Jimmie Reese and Rick Down have been retained for the 1988 season.

Bullpen coach Bob Clear recently retired and his spot on the staff will be taken by former major-league pitcher Joe Coleman, who spent last season as the Angels' roving minor-league pitching instructor. This past season was his fourth as a coach-manager in the Angels' system.

Coleman, 40, began in the major league with the Washington Senators in 1965, compiling a 142-135 record and a 3.69 ERA in his 15-year career.

The club also reported that outfielder Gary Pettis underwent successful surgery on his left hand to repair a small ligament tear between the middle and ring fingers. The surgery was performed Thursday by Dr. Norman Zemel at Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles.

Rams' White back in rehab

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Running back Charles White of the Los Angeles Rams, charged with being under the influence of a controlled substance last August, was placed in a rehabilitation program Friday at his arraignment in the North Orange County Municipal Court.

White was charged with the misdemeanor offense in connection with an incident Aug. 21. He was arrested by the Brea Police Department while allegedly under the influence of a controlled substance.

"All criminal charges have been suspended and will remain suspended until he completes the diversion program," said John Anderson, an Orange County deputy district attorney who is prosecuting the case.

White, 29, will attend a rehabilitation program at the Center for Creative Alternatives in nearby Mission Viejo for at least one year with a six-month progress report, Anderson said.

At the end of one year, Anderson said, Judge Kazuhara Makino will determine if White will be required to continue the program for up to an additional year.

If at any time during the program White stops attending meetings or is dismissed from the program, the criminal proceedings will be reinstated, Anderson said. If White completes the program successfully, the court will dismiss the charges, Anderson added.

White, attended the University of Southern California and won the Heisman Trophy in 1979. He was the first draft choice of the Cleveland Browns in 1980 and played with them until being released after the 1984 NFL season. While playing with the Browns, White admitted he had a drug problem and entered a rehabilitation program.

White signed with the Rams as a free agent before the start of the 1985 season and has served mostly as a backup to Eric Dickerson since that time.

White has played with the team since the alleged incident in August and, according to a club spokesman, has been under the care and supervision of Dr. Forrest Tennant, the NFL drug advisor.

KERMIT

from two yards out. Saul Alvarado added the first of his five straight extra points to make the score 7-0.

Kermit's second possession was almost identical to the first as this time they went 72 yards on 16 plays. This drive took over seven minutes to complete. Alvarado did the honors this time on a four-yard run.

On the ensuing kickoff the Yellow Jackets took advantage of a terrible mistake by the Greenwood return team. The Rangers allowed the kickoff to bounce high in the air giving Kermit a chance to get near the free ball. And get near it they did as they recovered the loose ball on the 28 yard line.

This drive was not so methodical as it took only one play. Quarterback Brett Fostel turned up the option play and raced into the end zone untouched. Alvarado's extra point put the halftime score at 21-0.

At that point the Rangers could have rolled over and died. But that was't going to happen. The Ranger defense came out ready to play in the second half and forced a Kermit punt after only three plays. Then Greenwood used the big play to get on the scoreboard.

On a third down and 16 from their own 25, Wade Melton connected with Randy Donnell for a 75-yard scoring strike. Donnell caught the ball on the 40, broke a couple of tackles and then outran everyone the final 60 yards for the score.

The Rangers held tough for a while, stopping the Yellow Jackets on their next possession. The offense then moved as close as the 37 yard line before turning the ball over on an interception.

Kermit added its forth touchdown after partially blocking a Ranger punt and downing the ball on the Greenwood 10. Two plays later Thompson went in from eight yards out. The Yellow Jackets added an unneeded fifth touchdown after calling three successive timeouts with less than 30 seconds left in the game before scoring.

Despite the final score the game was much closer than it looked. The Rangers held tough and were only a couple of plays from turning it around. Coach Bob Purser saw some real positives in the game.

"I knew our kids would come out and play real hard," Purser said. "It just came down to that Kermit executed their option better than we executed our defense. We just couldn't get them into a forth and long situation where we could create some breaks. But I was very pleased with our kids effort."

"We were worried about the Greenwood line coming into this game," Hicks said. "They are very big and fire off the ball real hard. They then run the fullback up the middle and are very tough on the ground. I thought our defense did a good job of stopping them. I was also very pleased with our offense. They adjusted well to what was given to them."

The win assures the Yellow Jackets of a playoff spot while the Rangers are still in the hunt with the loss.

Midland Lee's Mark Colvin brings down San Angelo's Rob Leathers (2) for a short gain Friday night at Memorial Stadium. Lee defeated San Angelo, 42-14, to move within one victory of completing a perfect 9-0 regular season mark.

LEE

Sterling got the Rebel broomstick in motion with a 30-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. Goodley answered with a 1-yard TD score in the second period before San Angelo stung the Lee defense with a four play, 75-yard drive that quarterback Shane Bruton closed out with a one-yard TD to narrow the gap to 14-7.

Lee junior linebacker Mike Pearson said, "We came off a big win and had an emotional letdown in the first half, but at the half, we got our fundamentals straight and played well from there on.

"I wasn't on the varsity last year when we lost to Abilene High, but the seniors are already talking about that game. I have a feeling we are going to be ready next week," Pearson added.

Lee got a four-yard TD from quarterback Dudley Jordan just before the half as Lee moved 80 yards in less than four minutes for a cushion.

Then the explosion started again in the third period as the Rebs scored three of the first four times they had the ball in the second half.

Reserve running back David Whiteside scored from one-yard out. Goodley scored again on another one-yard plunge and Dennis Sterling scored on a six-yard run for a 42-7 lead.

San Angelo got a meaningless TD late in the fourth period when Sergio Alcala scored from a yard out. Alcala was brillant despite the lopsided loss. The fullback had 180 yards rushing, the most yardage posted against the Lee defense this year by one back.

"We did a poor job against the trap and that fullback killed us several times," said Miller. "He did a good job of running with the football."

One of the big reasons for the Lee success this year has been in its turnover margin. Lee lost one fumble, but recovered three for a another 3-1 edge in that department.

Robin Pyle, James Hanlan and Marcus Mayberry came up with fumble recoveries. Cornerback Mark Colvin had a big game defensively as did Todd Henderson, Dejuan Norris and John DeFrance.

BIG LAKE— Quarterback Scott Lipsey ran five and three yards for touchdowns and threw 24 and 29 yard touchdown passes as Reagan County defeated Stanton, 50-0, in District 6-2A to raise its record to 7-1 for the season and 4-0 in league play.

Shane McCutchen caught the 24-yard TD pass and Danny Bingham was on the receiving end of the 29-yarder.

Tailback James West scored on runs of seven and two yards for the Owls, ranked No. 5 in the state.

About the only mistake Reagan made all night was a fumble and defensive end Jeff Hall pounced on it for the Buffs, but Stanton was unable to cash in.

Stanton plays Ozona at Stanton in its final game next Friday while Reagan County travels to Eldorado.

From Staff Reports

VAN HORN — McCamey's undefeated Badgers won a repeat state 2A playoff berth here Friday night with a 57-0 district victory over Van Horn.

The Badger defense was awesome in this contest as McCamey held Van Horn to a meager 21 yards of total offense.

Meanwhile, McCamey rolled out 387 yards of offense, including 305 rushing yards.

Offensively, no less than nine Badgers got in on the scoring act. Justin McKee was the only player to score two touchdowns on runs of nine and four yards.

McCamey hosts Iraan next Friday in the regular season finale.

Dallas Green shouldn't have any trouble finding a job

CHICAGO (AP) — Dallas Green, who left the Chicago Cubs in the same gruff manner he used while running the team, should have no trouble finding a new job despite his occasionally abrasive style, other major league executives say.

The 53-year-old Green on Thursday became the latest general manager to land on the unemployment line since the end of the season. Green's resignation followed his apparent failure to stop encroachment from the Cubs' front office.

"I think he'll turn up somewhere before you know it," said Andy McKenna, a member of the Cubs board who was chairman of the team in 1981, when he spotted Green's name in a National League guidebook and put the Philidelphia Phillies' front-office man in charge of the Cubs' day-to-day operations.

"I think it's related to the whole shaping of the organization. It's not one single or overriding issue," McKenna said. "These things happen — in sports, business everywhere."

Dykes' Big Spring team beat McWilliams' Abilene club in 1967, 1968, and 1969.

"It's been awhile since then," Dykes said.

Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver said he understands now why McWilliams left.

"When he was at Tech he bled Red Raider black and red," Tolliver said. "We're not playing McWilliams. We're in Austin to play the Texas Longhorns."

Texas (2-0) was a six-point favorite over the Red Raiders who beat the 'Horns 23-21 last year when McWilliams was the coach against his alma mater.

In other games, Arkansas was a 21-point favorite over Rice in Houston in a noon regional (Raycom) game, Texas Christian was a seven-point pick over Houston in a 2 p.m. game in Amon Carter Stadium and Texas A&M was a 24-point pick over Louisiana Tech in a non-conference game in College Station.

Baylor is idle.

Arkansas and Texas Christian each own a league loss and can't afford another slip.

"Rice always plays Arkansas hard, particularly in Houston" said Hog Coach Ken Hatfield.

TCU Coach Jim Wacker is concerned with Houston's passing.

"Houston is dangerous," Wacker said. "Oklahoma State is the only team that has stopped its run-and-shoot offense this year."

There will be a strange happenings in the A&M-Louisiana Tech game. The Bulldogs didn't send their band to Aggieland and A&M's athletic department invited the Southern Methodist band.

The Mustangs, who got the NCAA death penalty for repeated rules violations, were scheduled to play A&M on Oct. 31.

The SMU band accepted and will march at halftime and play for the Bulldogs during the game.

Ironically, SMU was penalized 15 yards last year for unsportsmanlike conduct because the band played too loud when A&M tired to call its signals.

Mecir eliminates McEnroe

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) — Miloslav Mecir defeated John McEnroe 7-5, 6-4 Friday to join fellow Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl and Australian Pat Cash in the semifinals of the $923,000 European Community Championships of tennis.

Cash, the reigning Wimbledon champion, struggled past Polish veteran Wojtek Fibak 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 to earn a semifinal berth against the top-seeded Lendl, who dominated American Tim Mayotte 6-3, 6-3.

Second-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden played another American, Brad Gilbert in the final quarterfinal match. Friday's losers earned $50,000 each.

Mecir bounced back from a rusty start to overwhelm McEnroe with great service returns and passing shots while the edgy New Yorker lost his touch and confidence as the match progressed.

It had started well enough for McEnroe. Playing almost flawless tennis, he took the first three games as Mecir was struggling with the pace on his shots.

But as soon as Mecir found the range on his groundstrokes, McEnroe's game fell off. After trailing 4-1, Mecir took the American's next three service games, mainly because McEnroe never got his first serve going and progressively lost control over his short game.

"I made some errors because I wasn't concentrating," McEnroe said. Concentration "is the key thing I have to work on" to return to the top of tennis.

McEnroe, the defending ECC champion, is currently ranked 11th in the world.

Although Mecir also lost his serve in the 10th game, he immediately broke back to close out the set.

Mecir won the deciding break in the fifth game of the second set when he lashed one of his perfect service returns past McEnroe. He scored three love games in a row and withstood a late charge by McEnroe to wrap up the victory.

Fibak, 36, had a good start against Cash, the 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, breaking the Australian's service in the ninth game of the first set to lead 5-4. In the 10th game, Cash fought off two set points before Fibak held to close out the set.

In the second set, Fibak's passing and service games became erratic. He lost his service in the second game and quickly trailed 3-0. Cash, holding his own serve, quickly closed out the set to level the match.

Midland High halfback Dwane Roberts (33) is hit by Odessa High defender Omar Nunez (56) in Friday night's 35-6 Bulldog win Friday at Ratliff Stadium.

MHS

the scout team so Toby said he'd do it," said defensive secondary coach Rick Wood. "He ran hard and looked like he knew what he was doing, so we suggested it."

"We put that in this week and felt, if inside the five for short yardage, we'd take advantage of his size," added head coach Doug McCutchen. "We probably should have been using him all along."

THE "ICE BOX" touchdown was one of many highlights on a night that will go down in Midland High history.

Though there are no playoffs in store for the Bulldogs, the 1987 seniors will be able to go out as winners for the first time since the 1975 team posted a 6-3-1 record. MHS is 5-3 (2-3 in 4-5A) on the year with only one game left to play. OHS ended its season at 2-6-1, 0-6.

"We made a great accomplishment and next week we'll try to make it a 6-3 record," said linebacker Clyde Govan, part of the MHS defense that held OHS to only 19 yards in the first half and 120 total.

"I think our whole defense played a great game," said Govan. "We were really fired up. I think this is the greatest defensive game we've played."

McCutchen didn't disagree. "The defense, to me, did a tremendous job. We had three turnovers in the first half on our end of the field and the defense went out and took over."

ONLY ONE time in the first did the Bulldog's offense keep from stalling out and it came on their first possession. MHS easily moved the ball down field, using eight plays to cover 53 yards. Quarterback Jeff Somers capped the drive on a five-yard keeper with 6:13 left in the quarter.

Box scored the next TD nearly two quarters later with his one-yard stroll with 6:47 left in the third and halfback Dwane Roberts made it 21-0 with a 13-yard TD pass from Somers on the Bulldogs' next possession.

MHS made it three straight TD possessions early in the fourth quarter when Roberts broke free on a 41-yard run for a 28-0 score.

Odessa followed with its only drive of the night, with Jeff Parsons scoring from 15 yards out. The kick failed, 28-6.

On the ensuing kickoff, Parsons' celebration turned to extreme agony. Expecting an onside kick, the Bulldogs sent only Roberts deep. He took the pass and, with the help of an illegal block by Clyde Govan, returned it 65 yards.

The block was on Parsons and the Broncho senior fullback lay on the field with a "probable" compound fracture to his left leg, halfway between his ankle and knee. A growing splash of red on his sock showed where the bone pushed through the skin.

STEERS

diately followed by a backbreaking 99-yard scoring drive.

"They really did wear us down, they had the ball what seemed like the whole third quarter," Holland said. "But our defense really rose up and passed the test on the goal line. Those are the kinds of plays you need to win big games."

After spinning around Charles White and stopping him short on a fourth-and-goal from the two, the Mean Green took over on their own one.

But rather than pull a 1-2-3 and punt routine as they had much of the second half, the Loboes called on Charles Thompson, as they often do. Thompson, playing at about 80 percent because of deep leg bruise, ripped off a 50-yard run to midfield that had the Monahans offense in business.

Just three plays later, Thompson was in the end zone with a business-like eight-yard run and a 20-0 lead. Monahans added a polishing-off touchdown with less than a minute left by junior Scott Jordan.

Thompson, the district's leading rusher, added 144 yards on 19 carries against the Steers. Big Spring's Charles White gained 73 yards on 25 carries.

Big Spring, which had hoped to vault back into the district forefront with an upset, instead bows out of the District 2-4A race with a 3-3, 4-4 mark with a pair of games left on the schedule.

"It's a pride thing for our kids now," Big Spring coach Quinn Eudy said. "We have to dig down and find what's necessary to close this thing out with a pair of wins."

Oil prices likely to go down, not up, Safer says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A oil price break downward is more likely than an upward spike in the next few years, an industry analyst and consultant said Friday.

"The greater problem is on the downside," said Arnold Safer, president of Washington Analysis Corp., at a seminar for reporters and others sponsored by Americans for Energy Independence, an industry organization that supports domestic energy development.

Stressing that he was not necessarily predicting that prices would break either way, Safer said it could be argued that $20 a barrel, close to current prices, "is a reasonable long-range price."

But economies of western nations continue to improve energy efficiency and members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have "enormous" excess production capacity and "inability...to get their act together" to stop cheating on production quotas.

These factors "could produce in the next recession" a price collapse, in 1989 or 1990 perhaps, as could a price war in OPEC, Safer said. He said he could not see a recession imminent and noted, "We haven't had a recession in a presidential election year in many, many years."

Safer was asked how far prices might fall and a colleague in the firm, analyst Adam E. Sieminski, replied for him, "There is no answer to your question."

Rose Bowl may hinge on UCLA-Arizona State showdown

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

What happens Saturday will go a long way toward determining who goes to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

In Tempe, Ariz., seventh-ranked UCLA (6-1 over-all, 4-0 in the Pac-10) meets Arizona State (5-2, 2-1). Meanwhile, No. 20 Michigan State (4-2-1 over-all, 3-0-1 in the Big Ten) visits No. 15 Ohio State (5-1-1, 3-1). Eleventh-ranked Indiana, which leads the Big Ten at 4-0, visits Iowa.

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue says that "whoever is fortunate enough to win this game has the opportunity to control their own destiny. That's very important going into the last three weeks of the schedule. But that doesn't mean whoever wins this game is going to the Rose Bowl."

Besides Michigan State-Ohio State, the weekend's only other game between members of AP's Top 20 has 10th-ranked Florida (5-2 over-all, 2-1 in the Southeastern Conference) at No. 6 Auburn (6-0-1, 2-0-1) under the lights. Fifth-ranked LSU (6-0-1, 3-0), the league leader, has a night game against Mississippi in Jackson while No. 12 Georgia (6-2, 3-1) is idle and No. 16 Alabama (5-2, 2-1) plays Mississippi State at night in Birmingham.

THE NATION'S top three teams are on the road — No. 1 Oklahoma at Kansas, No. 2 Nebraska at Missouri and third-ranked Miami, Fla. at East Carolina.

Rounding out the Top Ten, fourth-ranked Florida State entertains Tulane under the lights, No. 8 Syracuse visits Pitt and ninth-ranked Notre Dame plays host to Navy.

In the Second Ten, No. 13 Tennessee is at Boston College, Wake Forest at No. 14 Clemson, Kansas State at No. 17 Oklahoma State, West Virginia at No. 18 Penn State and North Carolina State at No. 19 South Carolina.

After this week, UCLA plays Oregon State, Washington and Southern Cal; Arizona State's remaining opponents are Oregon, California and Arizona.

"The players are looking forward to playing Arizona State," Donahue says. "But players look forward to big games. They knew all along this would be a big game.

"They also knew they had to beat Cal last week, but in the back of their minds they were looking forward to this game. I was, so the players had to be."

JOHN COOPER, who coached Arizona State to the Rose Bowl last year, says UCLA "has the best over-all talent in the league. We will have to play the best game we've played in three years to beat them. We're not home free if we win and we're not completely out of the race if we lose. But it is as important a game as we've played in a long time."

Michigan State and Ohio State haven't played since 1984. The Spartans settled for a 14-14 tie with Illinois last week when a last-second 28-yard field goal attempt was blocked.

"A tie is something no one wants to end up with, but it's still better than a loss," Coach George Perles says. "We can only wait to see if this tie will have any bearing on the conference race."

Ohio State is coming off its best performance of the season, a 42-9 rout of Minnesota.

"That's how an Ohio State team is supposed to play," Coach Earle Bruce says. "A win like that gave us a little momentum. That's important because we are in the meat of our schedule."

OKLAHOMA-Kansas is the longest uninterrupted rivalry in the nation and this is the 88th consecutive year they have met. If the Sooners win — and they are 53-point favorites — Coach Barry Switzer will tie Bud Wilkinson for the most victories in school and Big Eight history.

Wilkinson's record was 145-29-4. Switzer is 144-25-4 — and somewhat concerned.

"The minute you begin to take an opponent lightly is when that opponent jumps up and bites you," he says. "I don't think we will forget what Kansas did to us in 1975 (a 23-3 victory, spoiling Switzer's 29-0-1 record) and 1984 (another stunning upset), perfect examples of what I am talking about."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne, who became a head coach in 1973, the same year as Switzer, also can tie Wilkinson's Big Eight record

Old Grudges get settled in Austin today

Battles

Today is the day. The big grudge match at Austin where Texas Tech fans hope the Raiders extract revenge on David McWilliams for deserting Tech after a year to become coach at the University of Texas.

Funny thing, though, talking with Tech players, there's no animosity directed at their former coach.

At first, there was hurt, but with the passage of time, they came to recognize that for McWilliams, who spent most of a lifetime as a player and assistant at UT, this was a rare opportunity.

Hey, they still want to knock the Longhorns' socks off, but it's because they are the Longhorns, not because McWilliams is the coach. Yet, a win over UT and McWilliams would bring with it a little extra satisfaction.

I suppose the last guy who holds a grudge against McWilliams is current Texas Tech Coach Spike Dykes.

Spike readily admits that if it weren't for McWilliams, a longtime friend, coworker, and opponent, he wouldn't be Texas Tech coach.

And it's not because McWilliams left to take the UT vacancy. "It's because he talked me into staying on the staff when he came to Tech," says Spike. "I had applied for the Tech job and when I didn't get it, I felt it was time to move on."

McWilliams got Spike to stay and, as they say, a football takes strange bounces sometimes and this was one of them.

This week against the line....

The SWC....

Texas Tech plus 6 1/2 over Texas- There's no doubt about the desire and enthusiasm with which both teams will play this game. It boils down to a matter of execution. Since both make a lot of mistakes at times, the final score could be decisive.

Houston plus 7 1/2 over TCU- Cougars play 'em close, but always come up short.

Rice plus 22 1/2 over Arkansas- Too many points.

The Big Ones...

Iowa minus 6 1/2 over Indiana- Hoosiers suffer letdown after last week's historic win over Michigan.

Michigan State plus 4 over Ohio State- Both from sublime to ridiculous this season so take the points and run.

Pitt plus 4 over Syracuse- Orangemen still on the wagon, but it's still hard to believe they'll go unbeaten, yet this is the last chance for defeat.

North Carolina State plus 16 1/2 over South Carolina- I know the Wolfpack will let down after beating Clemson, but 16 1/2 points?

Vanderbilt plus 6 1/2 over Rutgers- Are the Scarlet Knights really that good?

Maryland plus 2 1/2 over North Carolina— It's at College Park.

Florida even over Auburn- Jeff Burger is ineligible Thursday, eligible Friday....what about today?

The others...

Clemson minus 17 over Wake Forest- Demon Deacons suffer as a result of NC State's indiscretion last week.

New Mexico plus 16 over UT-El Paso- Miners will find it tough getting ready for Lobos after Falcon loss.

California plus 9 1/2 over Oregon- The bottom has fallen out for the Webfoots in recent weeks.

The pros...

Giants minus 7 over Cowboys- Dallas host Super champs last time, but not this time.

49ers minus 3 1/2 over Rams- Eric Dickerson is the difference...and he won't be playing.

Oilers plus 6 1/2 over Bengals- I know, Houston has as much chance as the Man in the Moon.

"World Community Day, observed Nov. 6, 1987, is an annual worship event that brings Christian women togetehr to affirm their mutual commitment to work for a world that is peaceful and just for all persons regardless of race, religion or national origin," says a news release from Church Women United.

"Church Women United, the sponsor of World Community Day, acts as the catalyst for this ecumenical gathering that takes place in some 1,800 communities across the country."

The theme for this year's service, "Sojourners for Justice," was written by an ecumenical group of women and men who live and work in the South Texas border area. They are United Methodist, Roman Catholic and Lutheran, both lay and ordained, who share a ministry to refugees as part of their daily experience.

Singing duo brings talent to First Baptist Church

Annie and Steve Chapman

The husband and wife singing duo of Steve and Annie Chapman bring their unique style of blending music, humor and candid discussion of family relationships to First Baptist Church, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m.

Called "musical ambassadors to the family" by noted author and psychologist Dr. James Dobson, the Chapmans present a capsulized emotional and spiritual therapy session in their usual 90-minute concert.

Dobson says of the Chapmans, "They have the most incredible music for families I've ever heard. You cannot listen to the words of the songs without being moved."

The Chapmans have five albums to their credit. Their music and message on the family have been featured in numerous magazines such as Family Life Today, Singing News, Contemporary Christian Magazine and Charisma.

Performing at a pace of 100 concerts nationwide a year, they still find time to compose most of the songs they record.

"Stylistically, our music is somewhat different and doesn't follow the current trends in music," Chapman says. "It'd be hard to sing 'Daddy, You're the Man in Your Little Girl's Dreams' with a rock beat. We find our lyrics require a gentler, simpler, smoother form."

Mrs. Chapman says the most important goal of their travels revolves around bringing harmony to relationships in the home.

"When we hear of those who have been reconciled with loved ones or of those who have been encouraged to stand with and for their families, that's what makes the work we're doing worth all the effort."

When the Chapmans are not on tour, they make their home in Nashville, Tenn., with their two children, Nathan, 9, and Heidi, 6.

Local coordinator for the First Baptist performance is Gene Hilburn. For more information call 682-1646.

The presentation is free and open to the public.

LIFESCOPE

Keep your eyes on Jesus, our leader and instructor. He was willing to die a shameful death on the cross because of the joy He knew would be His afterwards; and now He sits in the place of honor by the throne of God. If you want to keep from becoming fainthearted and weary, think about His patience as sinful men did such terrible things to Him.

So see to it that you do not reject Him or refuse to listen to and heed Him Who is speaking [to you now]. For if they [the Israelites] did not escape when they refused to listen and heed Him Who warned and divinely instructed them [here] on earth - revealing with heavenly warnings His will - how much less shall we escape if we reject and turn our backs on Him Who cautions and admonishes [us] from heaven?

So continue to love each other with true brotherly love - never let it fail. Do not forget or refuse to extend hospitality to strangers - being friendly, cordial and gracious, sharing the comforts of your home and doing your part generously - for through it some have entertained angels without knowing it.

Remember those who are in prison, as if you were their fellow prisoner; and those who are ill-treated, since you also are liable to bodily sufferings.

Honor your marriage and its vows. Let the marriage bed be undefiled and pure; for God will surely punish all those who are immoral or commit adultery.

Let your character or moral disposition be free from the love of money - [including] greed, lust, and craving for earthly possessions - and be satisfied with your present [circumstances and with what you have]; for He (God) Himself has said, I will not in any way fail you nor give you up nor leave you without support. I will not in any degree leave you helpless, nor forsake you. Assuredly not!

Christian Index editor retiring

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack U. Harwell, editor of Georgia Baptists' monthly newspaper, The Christian Index, for 21 years, said Tuesday he is retiring because of pressure from fundamentalists.

He said he told the paper's board of directors Monday he will take early retirement Dec. 31.

"A year ago the board of directors created a review board to review everything I write and publish in the paper because of the criticisms of my editorial work," said Harwell, 55, who has worked for the paper since 1957.

Those criticisms, he said, came from fundamentalist church members who disagreed with his moderate stance on church issues.

"Ever since that board was created a year ago, I have been under great tension in my own soul about the freedom and the integrity of the paper," he said.

"As a matter of personal integrity and for the sake of my family, I can no longer serve under those conditions. And I feel that rather than being a continuing source of division within the (Georgia Baptist) Convention, it would be best for me to retire," he said.

Harwell said he is afraid the denomination may split in the near future.

Much of the pressure on Harwell came from Lee Roberts, a fundamentalist Baptist layman from Marietta. Roberts sought to have Harwell fired, and he was a major force in shaping the editorial review board that Harwell objected to.

Roberts declined comment Tuesday on Harwell's announced retirement.

Roberts also has been the chief mover in a campaign criticizing Mercer President R. Kirby Godsey because of alleged immorality and heresy on campus.

Harwell said, "No question about it," the attack on him was part of the same attempt to take control of Mercer's administration.

Ethiopians 'again in danger of starvation'

NEW YORK (AP) — People in Ethiopia "are once again in grave danger of starvation" as a result of a summer drought that greatly damaged the harvest there, says Catholic Relief Services.

It says that many relief organizations left Ethiopia after the 1984-86 famine subsided, but CRS has maintained active projects there, distributing nearly 100,000 tons of food in the past year.

CRS reports the Ethiopian government estimates a food deficit of 995,000 tons for 1988, affecting up to 8 million people.

Help an addict. Threaten to fire him.

Addiction doesn't lend itself to halfway measures.
Hard drugs lead to desperate situations.

People who deal with the problems of addiction say that one of the few shreds of hope for an addict is that a spouse or a boss will get tough.

Divorce. Dismissal. Prison. Those are the alternatives that get addicts into treatment.

If you want to help an addict in your company, don't be soft about it. Put the proposition in clear terms: Get well or get out.

'Folk-Aid' concert planned to back financially troubled Kerrville festival

AUSTIN (AP) — In the tradition of benefits for the hungry, homeless and helpless, a "Folk-Aid" concert is being planned in support of the financially troubled Kerrville Folk Festival.

The summer show was hit this year with 13 inches of rain, hurting attendance and leaving the festival with $60,000 in unpaid bills. Heavy rains also soaked the show in 1975, 1976 and 1977.

The festival, which annually draws many top names in folk music, began in 1972 with 2,800 fans and grew to 28,000 in 1985.

The Nov. 6 benefit at Austin's Paramount Theatre will be hosted by Cactus Pryor and Steven Fromholz. Also appearing will be Kinky Friedman, Bobby Bridger and others who have played at Kerrville.

Tickets for the benefit concert and dinner are $50.

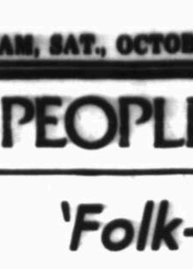
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kitty Wells, the Queen of Country Music, and her husband, country star Johnny Wright, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Friday.

Asked the secret of their long marriage, Wright said: "The only answer I can give is that we're not jealous of each other. I've tried to help her and she's helped me."



Hall

"We're together constantly," Ms. Wells said. "We've worked together and traveled together and been at home together for 50 years."

Ms. Wells, a Country Music Hall of Famer, popularized many country standards, including "Release Me" and her signature song, "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels."

Wright's 1965 solo hit "Hello Vietnam" introduced Tom T. Hall's songwriting and has recently gained attention again with the release of the movie "Full Metal Jacket."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Guillaume, Danny Glover, Eddie Murphy, Dexter Gordon and Robert Townsend were nominated as leading film actors for the 20th annual Image Awards presented by the National Association of Colored People.

However, the association made no nominations in the leading actress category this year because officials said Thursday they found no movie that cast a black actress in a positive starring role.

Murphy

Guillaume starred in "Wanted Dead or Alive," Glover in "Lethal Weapon," Murphy in "Beverly Hills Cop II," Gordon in "Round Midnight," and Townsend in "Hollywood Shuffle."

The awards, to be presented Dec. 13 by the NAACP Beverly Hills-Hollywood branch and televised by NBC on Jan. 9, honor movie, television and musical performers and productions that present blacks in a positive manner.

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A Fort Bragg private picked to star in the Army's new recruiting television commercials says he skipped a haircut before his audition to give himself an edge on other applicants.

"I figured that would be the ticket in. I'd look like a civilian," said Pfc. David C. Hank, who was picked for the starring role this week. "I was wrong. They told me to go get an airborne haircut."

Hank, a 6-foot-3 artilleryman in the 82nd Airborne Division, plays a focal role in the Army's new generation of commercials with the theme "Get an Edge on Life."

The commercials will be added to the Army's familiar television ads, which proclaim "Be all that you can be" and "We do more before 9 o'clock in the morning than most people do all day," according to Army officials.

Bowie

DALLAS (AP) — Rock star David Bowie has been ordered to appear in state district court Nov. 12 to determine whether he should be tested for the AIDS virus, according to court officials.

The order was issued Thursday at the request of a 30-year-old woman who has accused Bowie of sexually assaulting her at his hotel room Oct. 9, when he was in Dallas for a concert.

The woman has tested negative for exposure to the virus that causes AIDS, said her attorney, Robert Rose. Bowie and his attorneys have failed to respond to requests the 40-year-old rock star also be tested, Rose said.

"Basically, she wants to know if he's got it," Rose said. "It's an entirely reasonable request."

The virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome cannot be detected in blood tests for several months after a person is infected. By testing Bowie now, Rose said, the woman can determine whether the singer carried the AIDS virus at the time of the alleged assault.

Bowie said in a statement issued earlier that the complaint was groundless.

"It is both ridiculous and outrageous that this woman, who I met at a party in Dallas...and spent the evening with, brings these false and outrageous accusations," the statement said.

The woman told police Bowie assaulted her after she spent most of the early morning hours of Oct. 9 with him at a party.

An affidavit filed in the court of state district Judge David Brooks, who ordered the hearing, claims that Bowie told the woman he had just given her AIDS.

NEW YORK (AP) — Toy trains chug around tiny tracks inside staid-looking briefcases. Stereo speakers loom 7½ feet tall and have an equally huge pricetag: $48,000.

It's called the Toys for Adults Fair, but many of the toys — personal saunas, laser jukeboxes, a restored 1962 Ferrari — are only for those adults to whom money is a plaything.

"I think most people would find it very intimidating, walking into a Porsche showroom, knowing they can't afford it," said Gary Kirschner, 35, who created the show and counts himself in that majority.

It started five years ago as a one-weekend-a-year venture in Cincinnati. This fall, it spread to Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Hartford, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Many attend the shows to dream, he said. A few actually buy. But the exhibitors consider everyone as "future customers," said Kirschner.

As New York's first show opened a three-day run Friday at the Javits Convention Center, Kirschner pointed out his own favorite: a gray 1962 Ferrari. Driven just 42,000 miles, it is offered for $235,000 by an exotic-car dealer.

Juveniles make up 40 percent of arrests

BOSTON (AP) — Juveniles accounted for 40 percent of arson arrests last year, with 6.6 percent of those arrests involving a child under 10, according to a report Friday that said arson caused 705 deaths and nearly $1.68 billion in property damage in 1986.

There were 111,000 confirmed or suspected arson fires in the United States in 1986, down 5 percent from 1985 and 34 percent from the 1977 peak of 167,500, the National Fire Protection Association said in its annual arson report based on figures supplied by fire departments nationwide.

The 705 civilian deaths represented a 5 percent increase from the 1985 total of 670 and one of every seven lives lost in building fires, the Quincy-based group said.

Arson was the largest single cause of property damage by fire, accounting for more than one of every four dollars lost in building fires.

The number of vehicle fires blamed on arson in 1986, 57,000, was up 25 percent from 1985, causing more than $151 million in damage, the highest figure since 1982. "This is the only property class with a strong upward trend in incendiary or suspicious fires in the 1980s," the report said.

The report said 51 percent of confirmed or suspected arson fires in 1986 were in residential properties and blamed arson for 71 percent of prison and jail fires; 60.3 percent of fires and vacant buildings; and nearly 56 percent of the fires in schools and other educational facilities.

Police arrested or identified suspects in 18 percent of the 1986 arson fires, the report said. Eighty-six percent of those arrested for arson were males, it said.

While the percentage of arson arrests involving juveniles has remained relatively stable in recent years, the organization in the 1986 report for the first time compiled figures on the age breakdown of the arrested juveniles.

"The children playing with matches and lighters who don't know what they are doing are not even included in these figures," said John R. Hall Jr., the association's director of fire analysis and the author of the report. He said one of every 15 people arrested for arson was under 10 years old.

Ginsburg makes quick trip to Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senators Friday accused President Reagan of taking a confrontational approach on Supreme Court nominee Douglas H. Ginsburg, as the nominee himself made a quick trip to the Capitol to meet key lawmakers in their offices.

Less than 24 hours after Reagan nominated the 41-year-old appellate court judge, who is largely unknown to many on Capitol Hill, senators began a series of floor speeches with two basic messages: Keep an open mind and hold down the rhetoric.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said he thought Reagan's announcement of the Ginsburg nomination was "rather confrontational and combative. I don't understand why the president...would start off with that sort of an attitude."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said, "No president is going to stampede this Senate into acting with undue haste as long as I'm majority leader. I hope the White House will restrain its collective tongue on this matter."

Reagan said in his announcement that if Ginsburg's confirmation hearings "take more than three weeks to get going, the American people will know what's up."

Byrd and Bumpers both called for fair hearings and urged senators not to make early judgments. Those thoughts were echoed by three crucial swing-vote senators on the Judiciary Committee — Howell Heflin, D-Ala.;, Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

All three voted against the president's previous nominee, Robert H. Bork, whose nomination was defeated 58-42.

Specter said, "A presumption of innocence is equally applicable to a nominee to the Supreme Court of the United States...We really do have to hold back."

Ginsburg was accompanied in his Capitol visits by White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., who was reported to have lost an internal battle with Attorney General Edwin Meese III over whom should be nominated.

Meese reportedly favored Ginsburg, who is known as a staunch conservative. Baker was said to want the more moderate U.S. Circuit Judge Anthony M. Kennedy of Sacramento, Calif.

Ginsburg's first stop was at Heflin's office. When Bork went on his courtesy calls, he made Heflin his last visit among Judiciary Committee members, even though it was known the senator's vote could be crucial not only in committee but among Southern Democrats.

Heflin is respected on judicial matters in that bloc, because he is a former chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court.

Asked in Heflin's office if he looked forward to the confirmation process, Ginsburg told reporters, "I do. I've been through it two times before and I look forward to this one more than ever."

Ginsburg previously was confirmed as assistant attorney general in charge of antitrust in 1983, and a year ago as a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Bork serves on the same court.

"My first impression is that he will not be as controversial," Heflin said after the 20-minute meeting. "That's a first impression, but I reserve judgment on it."

Heflin said he asked Ginsburg how many opinions he has written in the year he has been on the federal bench, how many times he has dissented from opinions and about his writings before becoming a judge. But the senator said there wasn't time for a substantive discussion on those matters.

Congress calls summit 'good news'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The announcement of a U.S.-Soviet summit is "good news," congressional leaders said Friday, but they vowed to open debate on a prospective treaty eliminating medium-range missiles in Europe "with our guard up and our ears open."

"Summits are an opportunity to do real business and we have plenty of important business to do with Mr. Gorbachev," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas. But he added, "A summit is not an end but a means to an end."

The comments from Dole and others came after President Reagan announced that he and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev would meet here beginning Dec. 7 and expected to sign the arms pact.

Dole said he has "serious concerns about the treaty as it has shaped up" and wants the Senate to address them, probably through formal reservations.

Many senators said they must be assured that Soviet compliance with the treaty can be adequately verified before approving it.

Others said the West must quickly move to modernize conventional forces in Europe in the aftermath of agreement to eliminate the shield represented by U.S. intermediate and shorter-range missiles there.

One leading Senate arms control supporter, Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California, said the summit could become "a major breakthrough towards peace" but added that serious opposition may develop Senate over the treaty.

"If the treaty is rejected in the Senate, the whole arms control process could blow up," Cranston said.

"We go into this with our guard up and our eyes open," said Senate Majority leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. "We can't make mistakes on treaties with the Soviet Union."

Byrd said the Soviet Union's continued occupation of Afghanistan will be raised in Senate debate and may be the subject of written understandings or reservations.

Byrd noted pointedly that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan six years ago compelled President Carter to withdraw the SALT II arms control treaty from Senate consideration, and he made clear his belief that Afghanistan could continue to be an arms control stumbling block.

Accusing Reagan of having "welshed" on a promise to seek early Senate ratification of two long-pending nuclear-testing treaties, Byrd said it would be a "good start" for the new arms control debate if he were to keep that promise now.

And he underscored his view that the entire content and substance of the treaty should be laid before the Senate and that there "ought not be any secrets under the table."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the signing of the treaty will turn the diplomatic spotlight on the heavy advantage the Soviets hold in conventional arms aimed at Western Europe.

Nunn said he believes that verification issues will be a primary focus of the missile treaty debate because they will set a precedent for more sweeping agreements on intercontinental, nuclear-armed weapons.

He said the United States and its European allies in NATO must now quickly modernize their conventional forces to respond to an era without the protective umbrella offered by the medium-range nuclear-tipped weapons.

Nunn said it was "good news" that Gorbachev has dropped the preconditions he appeared to seek last week about limitations on the development of a U.S. "Star Wars" missile defense system and will not demand the United States "pay a price" for his attendance at a summit.

"This summit may fundamentally endanger the security of future generations," he said. "For months, I have feared the fix was in, that George Shultz and the State Department were so eager for an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union that they were willing to delay deployment of SDI in order to get it."

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., another presidential aspirant, termed the summit "good news" but said "the odds are growing worse with time that we can get a breakthrough on strategic nuclear force reductions or a bargain on SDI."

"Ironically, one of the most serious threats to progress may come from many presidential candidates in the president's own party who seem out to kill the INF treaty or any other treaty he brings in for ratification," Gore said.

Republican presidential hopeful Alexander Haig said the United States should "not withdraw our missiles from Europe until we have an agreement in principle on deep cuts in long-range missile systems and until we address the overwhelming Soviet edge in conventional forces."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., ranking GOP member on the Armed Services Committee, called the treaty "the first step toward a meaningful reduction of nuclear arsenals."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, gave cautious approval of the proposed treaty saying, "verification is the primary concern we have."

Officials probe near-collision at O'Hare airport

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities are investigating an incident in which the pilot of a United Airlines jetliner had to make an abrupt maneuver while taking off from Chicago's O'Hare airport to avoid an incoming commuter plane, it was disclosed Friday.

The pilot of the United Boeing 737, which was carrying 101 people, told authorities that he missed colliding with the commuter, operated by Air Wisconsin, by less than 75 feet Thursday afternoon.

The commuter pilot "saw a shadow only. He didn't see the other aircraft," said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Matthew Gonring, a spokesman for United Airlines, confirmed the incident and said both the Federal Aviation Administration and the airline were investigating it.

FAA spokesman Mort Edelstein in Chicago confirmed that an investigation was under way. But he said the agency could take between five and 30 days to determine whether a near-collision actually occurred and whether reprimands should be issued.

Sources said the National Transportation Safety Board also asked the FAA for more information on the incident.

Earlier this week a Pan American World Airways Boeing 727 came within 50 to 100 feet of colliding with a Caribe Air cargo plane during an approach to the St. Croix airport in the U.S. Virgin Islands. The pilot reported that the cargo plane was flying without navigational lights.

That incident also is under investigation by the FAA.

The near-collision at O'Hare involved United Flight 973, which was carrying 95 passenger and six crew member from Chicago to Omaha, Neb., and a twin-engine propjet Fokker-F27 operated by Air Wisconsin.

It was not immediately known how many people were aboard the Air Wisconsin plane, which was on a flight from Milwaukee under the name of United Express.

According to government and aviation industry sources, the United 737 had received clearance to take off by air traffic control, but that the initial clearance was garbled. A second clearance was given 10 seconds later.

Mother of teen suicide found guilty of abuse

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A mother whose teen-age daughter committed suicide after being forced to work as a nude dancer was found guilty Friday of child abuse for causing the girl to kill herself.

Theresa Jackson, 40, was also found guilty of procuring a sexual performance by a child, and forgery.

Broward County Circuit Judge Arthur Franza ordered an immediate psychiatric evaluation of Mrs. Jackson, who had threatened to commit suicide.

The prosecution had argued that Mrs. Jackson was responsible for 17-year-old Tina Mancini's suicide, and attorney Kenneth Whitman said he would appeal the landmark verdict.

He and prosecutors believe this is the first time a parent has been criminally charged in a child's suicide.

Whitman, who said he didn't think his client was suicidal, said she reacted calmly because "she understands that... she will be vindicated on appeal."

"This ugly precedent that has been set will be wiped from the annals of criminal justice," Whitman said. "It should never have been in court."

Mrs. Jackson faces sentences that could range from community supervision to 25 years in prison. At a bailiff's instructions, she calmly removed her jewelry and belt and was fingerprinted in the courtroom.

Mrs. Jackson only shook her head as reporters followed her out of the courtroom shouting questions.

"I'm very pleased with the verdict," said prosecutor Kathleen Kearney. "It did give her (Tina) some measure of dignity."

Ms. Kearney said she didn't think the verdict would be a precedent and said it should not scare parents.

"I think they (the jurors) were very courageous. This was a child who was in need and who truly was abused," Ms. Kearney said.

"I think the verdict is right," said Mrs. Jackson's father, Charles Gouveia. He had testified for the state in a trial marked by testimony about a family with a long history of troubles.

"It broke my heart to see her taking off her earrings and stuff like that," he said. He said he hadn't talked to Mrs. Jackson since two months before Ms. Mancini killed herself.

Franza scheduled sentencing for Dec. 3, and Mrs. Jackson was taken to Broward County Jail.

Ms. Kearney argued that Ms. Mancini committed suicide because the mother forced her to work as a nude dancer and then lived off her earnings, which some weeks totaled more than $1,000.

Three months after Ms. Mancini started work in bars featuring nude dancing, she killed herself with her mother's .357-caliber Magnum handgun. No suicide note was found near her body March 24, 1986, although Mrs. Jackson testified she later found a note from that day that said "I love you Mom. Love, Tina."

Whitman maintained that his client is an emotionally and mentally disturbed woman who was unable to control a headstrong, rebellious teen-ager.

Ms. Kearney, an assistant state attorney, argued that Mrs. Jackson forced her daughter to degrade herself to support her mother.

Thursday, jurors twice asked Franza to repeat his instructions on the law concerning the child-abuse charge, a third-degree felony.

The panel also asked to be read the testimony of Dwan Bent, a defense witness who said Mrs. Jackson and Ms. Mancini frequented her tanning salon. Ms. Bent had testified the two had always seemed happy together and that Ms. Mancini told her she was dancing nude to break into show business.

Besides Ms. Bent and the defendant, the defense called Mrs. Jackson's best friend, Ms. Mancini's half brother whose father underwent a sex-change operation, and psychiatrists and psychologists who have treated Mrs. Jackson.

Witnesses for the prosecution included Mrs. Jackson's elder son and father, whose reports to police led to the charges against her. Ms. Mancini's best friend, a stripper who briefly worked with the teen, and a Harvard psychiatrist who provided a "psychological autopsy."

Dr. Douglas Jacobs, who based his retrospective analysis of Ms. Mancini's death on records Ms. Kearney provided, said the exploitative relationship between the girl and her mother was a significant contributing factor in the suicide.

1787 Constitution Daybook

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Today, Benjamin Franklin attended the joint session of the Supreme Executive Council and the Assembly and was re-elected president of Pennsylvania. At the time, he was 81 years old, he had suffered for some time from kidney stones and gout, and he already had held the same office for two terms. The duties of this office may not have been as rigorous as those of present-day governors, but it required regular attendance at council meetings and a number of administrative duties.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Thomas Jefferson had served as minister to France for about two years. During that time, he had devoted a great deal of energy to encouraging trade between the two nations. Today, Brailsford and Morris, a mercantile firm in Charleston, S.C., responded to a proposal written by Bernard and Co. and enclosed in a letter from Jefferson to Edward Rutledge.

The merchants were delighted with the French proposals and anxious to have access to a new market. But, in the past, they had experienced nothing short of grief in dealings with merchants from that nation. "We have been only troubled with a set of needy adventurers," they wrote, "without fortune or character, who by importing the refuse of French manufacturers, have effectually strengthened our prejudices in favor of the British."

Yet, while Brailsford and Morris had unpleasant memories in their dealings with France, they were open to explore new trade possibilities. Further, they thought the new Constitution would improve America's trading position.

RATIFICATION TODAY

"Federalist 2," written by John Jay, was published in the New York Independent Journal today. Jay focused on the failure of the Articles of Confederation and how its weaknesses prompted the Philadelphia Convention. He also offered his opinion that the new form of government would solve these problems.

DELEGATES TODAY

Dr. James McClurg, a delegate from Virginia, had left the Philadelphia Convention early, without knowing the final result. James Madison had sent a copy of the Constitution, and today McClurg acknowledged receipt of the document. He said many Virginia citizens were concerned with the amount of power given to the Senate — primarily the partnership of that body and the president to select the executive officers in government. That combination of power appeared to be incongruous with the authority of the Senate to try the president in impeachment proceedings.

Delegate Nicholas Gilman of New Hampshire wrote John Sullivan, the president of his state, to inform him of his work in Congress. He reported that Western land was selling at a brisk pace ($7 million worth to date), and it appeared that North Carolina and Georgia might cede more land to the central government.

LOOKING BACK

James McClurg

Dr. James McClurg was regarded by his peers as one of the finest physicians in the country. He had received his undergraduate education at the College of William and Mary and his medical training and degree at the University of Edinburgh. For several years he remained in Europe to continue his medical studies. While there he published a highly regarded article, "Experiments Upon the Human Bile," which established his reputation as a major medical scholar.

Following his studies in Europe, McClurg returned to Virginia to establish a practice in Williamsburg. He served as a physician during the Revolutionary War, then, in 1779, he accepted a chair in anatomy and medicine at his alma mater. Four years later, he left William and Mary and established a practice in Richmond, where he stayed for the rest of his life.

McClurg's appointment to the Constitutional Convention was his first venture into the political arena. William Pierce of Georgia wrote that "he attempted once or twice to speak, but with no great success." He advocated a life term for the president and a federal veto over state laws. Neither position was adopted, and McClurg left the Convention early to return to his medical practice.

Later, McClurg would serve on the Executive Council in Virginia and as mayor of Richmond. He did not enjoy a long or distinguished political career, but he was regarded as one of the nation's eminent early physicians.

NATION IN BRIEF

Woman held in kidnapping of baby from hospital room

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A woman was arrested Friday for kidnapping a baby from his mother's Baltimore hospital room in June, and the infant was being tested to make sure of his identity, FBI agents said.

Dorothy Jean Brown, 44, was arrested at the Pentecostal Bridegroom Shelter in west Philadelphia, said special agent Wayne G. Davis. The baby with her was not harmed, Davis said.

Davis presented the infant to an evening press conference. The curly-haired baby, dressed in a blue sleep suit, cooed and gurgled.

Blood tests would be carried out to determine whether it was Kendol Kernes, the missing infant.

In Baltimore, the parents remained in seclusion Friday night pending the positive identification of the child.

Davis said Ms. Brown, of Randallstown, Md., apparently left Baltimore on Sunday and arrived in Philadelphia a few days later, staying at several shelters for the homeless.

AIDS guidelines discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal agencies told the nation's hospitals and other health-care employers on Friday that they must start following federal guidelines to protect employees from AIDS, hepatitis and other blood-borne diseases.

The notice published in the Federal Register officially spells out for the first time that employers can be held accountable for failure to implement the guidelines developed by the Centers for Disease Control and heretofore considered voluntary.

"It is the legal responsibility of employers to provide appropriate safeguards for health-care workers who may be exposed to these dangerous viruses," says the notice issued jointly by Labor Secretary William E. Brock and Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen.

In addition to being published in the register, an information packet on the new enforcement drive is being mailed to an estimated 500,000 health-care employers starting in early November.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, an arm of the Labor Department, announced on July 23 that it intended to fine hospitals that do not follow guidelines issued by the CDC, an arm of the HHS department.

Dole releases video bio

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole's presidential campaign previewed a biographical videotape on Friday depicting a man who overcame poverty and paralyzing war wounds to become a leader worthy of sitting "across from Gorbachev and the Soviet dictators."

The videotape, produced at a cost of $30,000, shows Dole's past adversities and human side in several settings. They include a moment in his 1976 GOP vice presidential campaign when he wept as he thanked residents of his hometown for donating the money that helped pay for his rehabilitation from World War II wounds.

"I can recall the time when I needed help, the people of Russell (Kansas) helped," he said as he wiped tears from his eyes and momentarily was unable to continue. "That was a long time ago and I thank you for it again."

Bill Lacy, a campaign official, said the videotape was produced as part of an effort to demonstrate Dole's "character and strength" and to give voters a better understanding of who Dole is.

It also is in keeping with a campaign strategy of stressing Dole's human qualities, rather than dwelling solely on his reputation as a tough Washington insider.

Senate OKs airline bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Friday to force the nation's airlines to let would-be passengers know which carriers are most — and least — likely to get them where they're going on time and with all their luggage.

The 88-5 passage of the consumer-oriented bill capped three frenetic days in which the Senate also voted to ban cigarette smoking on most airline flights and authorized $15.6 billion for airport and air traffic control improvements over the next three years.

Panel condemns Israel security force for lying

By NICOLAS B. TATRO

JERUSALEM (AP) — A judicial commission reported Friday that Shin Bet secret service agents for the past 16 years routinely perjured themselves about their interrogation methods. It said, "This evil has to be uprooted."

The findings, which stem from a five-month probe, could spur a rash of court cases from Israel's nearly 4,000 security prisoners, most of them Palestinians, who are expected to seek new trials.

The 88-page report does not call for resignations of senior officials. Nor does it recommend against prosecuting Shin Bet agents for past misdeeds.

It does call for a house-cleaning in the secret domestic counter-terror agency and greater government oversight.

The report says Shin Bet agents lied in court "in a methodic and ongoing way" to conceal the use of force and other questionable interrogation techniques.

"This evil has to be uprooted. The first step for this necessary cleaning-up must be, as we see it, telling the truth and the whole truth," it declares. The report says two former Shin Bet chiefs and several agency legal advisers failed to understand that no security activity can be above the law.

The practice of lying to preserve confessions and to ensure convictions grew gradually, starting in 1971 when Shin Bet faced an upsurge of anti-Israel acts, the panel found.

The commission, headed by Supreme Court Justice Moshe Landau, rejected allegations from Palestinian activists and human rights groups of widespread use of physical force by Shin Bet agents to compel confessions or elicit information about terrorist groups.

The report asserts that "very limited" physical force had been authorized in the past and frequent claims of torture were part of a campaign to discredit the Shin Bet.

"Terror organizations have no moral right to demand that the government guarantee their civil rights," it says. "However, the state and its bodies, including the Shin Bet, must remain humane in their treatment of terrorists in order to safeguard the rule of law."

The panel said use of "physical pressure" or psychological deception may be justified in dealing with terror suspects.

A definition of the limits of force and recommended guidelines for Shin Bet activities were contained in a separate, secret report.

In addition to calling for improved oversight, the commission recommended a reduction from 14 to seven days the period prisoners from the occupied West Bank and Gaza can be held without being brought before a judge.

It also recommended renovation of detention centers to provide proper lighting and sanitary conditions.

In preparing the report, Landau, former Mossad intelligence chief Yitzhak Hofi and State Comptroller Yaacov Martz visited interrogation centers and interviewed former Shin Bet officials and government leaders.

The committee discounted claims by some Shin Bet officials that military prosecutors and even judges knew of the lying.

One former senior Shin Bet official told investigators that Israel's political echelon knew of and approved the perjury. The report says three prime ministers in power during the period all "denied any knowledge" and that all called the practice "fully unacceptable."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and former premiers Shimon Peres, now foreign minister, and Yitzhak Rabin, now defense minister, were among the 42 witnesses questioned. The three, as leaders of Israel's coalition government, have pledged to support the commission's findings, which are not binding.

In an apparent attempt to limit public debate, the report was released by Shamir's office just hours before the onset of the Jewish Sabbath Friday evening, when all political activity halts.

Yossi Sarid, a liberal member of parliament, said Shamir should be held accountable for assuring that necessary changes are made in Shin Bet methods since his office oversees the agency.

"The legal system in Israel will now need to allow retrials of all those convicted where there are doubts as to the verdict because perjury was involved," he added.

The panel, saying a flood of appeals for retrials on the basis of false testimony could seriously harm the Shin Bet, recommended that such actions be quashed because they could diminish defenses against terrorism.

Israel's Cabinet ordered the probe May 31 after Shin Bet agents were found to have fabricated evidence in two cases.

Army Lt. Izat Nafso, a member of the non-Arab Moslem Circassian minority, claimed he was kicked, thrown to the floor and subjected to threats against his family before he confessed to treason and espionage. He served seven years in prison before the Supreme Court set him free in May.

Shin Bet agents also lied to conceal their role in the fatal beating during interrogation of three Palestinians who hijacked an Israeli bus in April 1984. President Chaim Herzog pardoned 11 agents involved and the head of the service resigned last year.

5,000 attend rights worker's funeral

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — About 5,000 people carrying red carnations and black flags marched in the funeral procession Friday of slain human rights activist Herbert Ernesto Anaya.

Assailants shot down the president of El Salvador's independent Human Rights Commission with silenced pistols last Monday as he prepared to drive two of his six children to school. He was 32 years old.

One of the 11 Roman Catholic priests who conducted the Mass asked during the homily: "Will we have only one death? Will there be only one? Herbert is the symbol of all those who are dying. We live in a system of death, and we have death every day in the street."

Afterward, the crowd walked with Anaya's coffin through the main streets of the capital to the cemetery.

Protesters shouting "People united will never be defeated!" and "The people will not be silenced with tanks and gunfire!" damaged about 15 cars. They set four government vehicles afire and punctured tires of public buses.

Shortly before the burial, hundreds of people at the cemetery chanted similar slogans. Some wept and many carried burning candles.

Human rights activists from the United States, Philippines, Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica and Guatemala placed flowers on the coffin.

Some of those carrying red carnations said they symbolized the blood of Salvadorans killed in the war between leftist guerrillas and U.S.-backed governments, which began in October 1979 and has taken an estimated 65,000 lives.

No one has claimed responsibility for Anaya's death. Members of the Human Rights Commission and leftist organizations have blamed right-wing death squads linked to the military.

Anaya was the fourth member of the commission slain since 1980 and two other members disappeared while in police custody. It is an independent, private organization founded in 1977 by lawyers and other professionals.

The commission has criticized violations of human rights in the civil war and rightists in the military often accuse it of leftist sympathies.

To protest Anaya's death, the Salvadoran rebels said Thursday they will not participate in cease-fire negotiations scheduled for Mexico City this weekend.

Nicaragua plans rally for 'revolutionary force'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government plans a huge rally next week to show "revolutionary force" on the date for implementing a regional peace plan, toward which it has adopted a tougher line.

A call for the rally appeared in the Sandinista party newspaper Barricada on Friday, the day after the government announced new decisions about the proposal, including a vow never to negotiate with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

Bayardo Arce, one of the Sandinista National Liberation Front's nine commanders, was quoted as saying: "Up until now we have taken to the streets with some shyness. The workers, the women have had some demonstrations, but they could deceive the rightist sectors into believing that that's the total revolutionary force."

Barricada said the demonstration will be held after President Daniel Ortega announces the steps Nicaragua has taken to honor the peace plan, which the presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Costa Rica and Honduras signed Aug. 7.

It calls for cease-fires, amnesties, democratic reforms and an end to outside support for guerrilla groups and sets a deadline of 90 days, which expires Nov. 5.

Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala, the three Central American countries with guerrilla wars, have failed to achieve cease-fires.

El Salvador's guerrillas say they will protest the murder of a prominent civil rights activist by staying away from peace talks set for Mexico City this weekend.

Nicaragua declared a unilateral cease-fire in four war zones, but refuses to deal with the Contras either directly or through a mediator. The Sandinistas want negotiations with the United States but Washington refuses.

A Sandinista officer in one of the cease-fire zones claimed the United States was using the government's partial cease-fire to increase resupply flights to the rebels.

Lt. Gustavo Garcia, commander of the army office in Quilali, 200 miles northeast of Managua, told The Associated Press on Thursday those flights had been the only success of the cease-fire.

He said eight planes dropped supplies last week to the Contras, who "got maybe one or two flights a week" before that. "They usually come after midnight, going below the anti-aircraft or not getting close enough," Garcia said.

Arce announced the tough position on the peace agreement in a speech Thursday night.

He repeated the Sandinista position that amnesty would not apply to jailed former members of the late President Anastasio Somoza's military forces. The Sandinistas overthrew Somoza in July 1979.

Sandinistas ask Soviets to make up oil shortage

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista government asked Soviet-bloc countries Friday to help make up the oil shortage plaguing the crippled economy.

Nicaragua has relied on the Soviet Union for nearly all its oil supplies, but the Kremlin said earlier this year it had marketing problems and was reducing shipments. Widespread shortages have resulted in gasoline and other products that already were being rationed.

Henry Ruiz, the foreign trade minister, said the country needs about 350,000 barrels of crude oil for the rest of 1987.

He spoke at a meeting with representatives of Comecon, the Soviet-bloc equivalent of the European Economic Community.

"The pressures exercised by the United States on Latin America have succeeded in cutting the traditional petroleum supply to Nicaragua," Ruiz said.

Venezuela and Mexico have refused to renew oil shipments to Nicaragua, which Venezuela suspended in 1983 and Mexico in 1985 because the Sandinistas did not pay their bills.

After pleas from the Sandinistas, the Soviets agreed in August to provide 700,000 barrels more than this year's quota of 2,100,000. Cuba, East Germany, Bulgaria, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary have provided about 2,150,000 barrels.

The economy has been drained by the war with the U.S.-supported Contra rebels and a trade embargo imposed by the Reagan administration in May 1985 that effectively halted commercial relations between the two countries.

Ruiz told the Comecon group military needs claim nearly half Nicaragua's budget, 40 percent of its material production and more than 20 percent of the economically active male population.

"The aggression and the U.S. blockade have represented for Nicaragua a direct cost of $1.2 billion," Ruiz said.

Rebels behind killings, paper says

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist guerrillas almost certainly masterminded the slaying of three Americans and they plan to kill more, a newspaper quoted a rebel leader as saying Friday.

A Manila-based communist rebel group denied responsibility, but did not rule out the possibility that another communist group might have killed the Americans.

But President Corazon Aquino told foreign correspondents that authorities had not yet determined if communists were responsible. She said Americans were not in danger.

The U.S. Embassy said CIA deputy director Robert Gates was in the Philippines but refused to say why he was here. The Manila newspaper Financial Post reported that Gates arrived Thursday at Clark for three days of meetings with U.S. and Filipino military officials.

The Philippine Daily Inquirer said an unidentified officer of the communist-led National Democratic Front spoke on the killings.

U.N. committee recommends Nazi files be opened

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A disbanded U.N. commission recommended Friday that the wraps be taken off thousands of secret files on suspected Nazi war criminals, sources said.

In a victory for Israel and Jewish groups, the 17 member governments of the U.N. War Crimes Commission said the files should be available to individuals affiliated with an "institution of higher learning, research center or relevant professional society," according to one source.

Another source indicated access would be broader, saying the rule would cover anyone who had a "letter of introduction" from an institution or professional society.

The commission was disbanded in 1948 but reconvened in September to deal with the issue. Members met behind closed doors and clamped a news blackout on their decision, but diplomats familiar with the deliberations spoke on condition of anonymity.

The recommendations were turned over to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who is expected to announce the new access rules next week.

"Opening the archives is going to open a new chapter in Holocaust research," Israeli Ambassador Benjamin Netanyahu said. "We are engaged in laying the ground for systematic and thorough study of the files."

At issue are 8,000 confidential files, stored in a Manhattan office vault, on more than 36,000 people, some of whom are accused of Nazi crimes during World War II.

Israel and Jewish groups launched a campaign last year for full public access to the files after it was discovered one name mentioned in them was Kurt Waldheim, the former U.N. secretary-general who is now Austria's president.

Waldheim has denied allegations he participated in Nazi atrocities while serving with the Germany army in the Balkans during World War II.

The 17 governments grappled during three rounds of meetings that began last month over sensitive legal and moral issues regarding access to the files.

Some governments were concerned that innocent people mentioned in the files might be hurt if their names were published. Many countries have laws safeguarding the right of criminal suspects to a presumption of innocence, and the files contain unsubstantiated allegations.

The commission is recommending that people allowed to view the files be required to sign a statement designed to protect the United Nations and the commission's governments from legal action, such as libel suits, that could result from the allegations.

"You won't be able to walk in, flash your Social Security card or something and say, 'I want to see the file on Brown.' But in a roundabout way, people who want to see the files will be satisfied," said one source.

According to the sources, a person wanting to see the files would be required to submit an application to the government stating membership in an institution or professional society. The government then would turn the application over to the United Nations, after certifying the information was accurate. The world body would then have to grant access, the sources said.

The information in the files was provided by member governments during the 1940s, so it has already been available for prosecuting Nazi war criminals. Israel contends that many countries never acted on the information and that the public should have access so it can pressure governments into prosecutions.

Under current rules, the files can be examined only by U.N. member governments, provided they cite the names of specific suspects.

Sudan base for illegal sales of plutonium, British TV reports

LONDON (AP) — A British television report Friday said Sudan has been used as a base for the illegal sale of plutonium and uranium stolen from civil nuclear plants.

At least six shipments of nuclear materials used in making atomic bombs have passed on the black market through the Sudanese capital, Khartoum, since 1980, and recent buyers of low-grade uranium have included warring neighbors Iran and Iraq, according to "Dispatches: The Plutonium Black Market."

The program by independent television company 20-20Vision, said the illegal sales began in the 1960s to fuel Israel's secret nuclear projects and that emerging nuclear states such as South Africa, Argentina and Pakistan bought materials for several years.

Sudanese Prime Minister Sadiq Al Mahdi said on the program he was aware of the illicit market and that agents from several countries visiting the East African nation to buy plutonium offered by international dealers.

The report gives the shipments and quotes Anton Khushal, a former Sudanese intelligence officer who was killed...

Pope calls lay people 'hope of church today'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II said in closing the worldwide synod of bishops Friday that lay people are "the hope of the church today" and he soon will issue a document on their role.

In the homily of a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica the pope singled out women, whose place in the church caused some divisions among the more than 200 bishops who met as an advisory body to the Vatican.

Near the end of the Mass, an American rushed forward screaming and was grabbed by Vatican security men about 20 yards from the altar. John Paul continued and it was not known whether he saw the man, who was not armed.

Vatican spokesman identified him as Thomas Siemer, 57, of Columbus, Ohio. They said he told police he wanted to express his ideas on peace and nuclear weapons to the pontiff.

The synod's final recommendations condemned discrimination against women but omitted U.S. proposals, included in an early draft, that the church open all non-ordained ministries to women.

Such ministries include acolytes, lectors and altar servers, people who assist in functions at Mass such as lighting candles and preparing the altar.

A Senegalese cardinal told a concluding news conference the women's issue and problems about movements within the laity caused "tensions" during the month-long conference.

John Paul said at the Mass: "The synod has given special attention to women and to youth...from a profound conviction that it should give full consideration to these two vast areas in the people of God.

"Profound and stimulating things have been said on these points and it will be my task in the coming months to gather them together and present them in an orderly form to the entire people of God."

His apparent reference was to an apostolic exhortation, the name of an official papal document.

Addressing the bishops Thursday night, the pontiff said he would use their recommendations as the basis for a document on the synod. He said he would prepare the report "as soon as possible," which a Vatican official said prompted applause.

The pope had instructed the synod, which met in closed session, to examine the role of lay people in the church and society.

He said in his homily that participation of lay observers underscored the laity's importance to the church.

"In a certain sense the experience of this synod is unprecedented and hopefully it will become a model, a reference point for the future," he said. "Now we have turned our thoughts towards the laity, fully aware that they are the hope of the church today, a hope rich in promise."

The synod's document of recommendations stressed the "dignity" of women and recommended further study of their anthropological and theological roots.

"A wish became manifest: that every expression or attitude that leads to discrimination of women be avoided."

Korean students protest hopeful

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Hundreds of student militants demanding that government candidate Roh Tae-woo pull out of the presidential race pelted riot police with rocks and firebombs in battles at two universities Friday.

No injuries or arrests were reported in either clash.

The students were also demanding that President Chun Doo-hwan's government be replaced by a neutral, interim regime to ensure fair elections.

Opposition leader Kim Dae-jung meanwhile met with supporters to draw up plans for the formation of a new political party to back his presidential bid.

Police triggered the fighting at two campuses in Seoul — Korea and Sogang — when they fired tear gas to stop hundreds of students from marching into the streets.

The protests followed Chun's warning Thursday that extremists who stage demonstrations would be punished.

Police vowed Friday to block nationwide rallies scheduled for Saturday by the National Coalition of a Democratic Constitution, an alliance of dissident and religious activists that said it would hold rallies in Seoul and 13 other cities to urge the formation of a neutral Cabinet.

Chun has rejected the demand, saying the coalition is trying to incite "seditious" unrest.

WORLD in brief

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — Four South Texans were arrested in an area known as "Boys Town" after paying their bills with allegedly counterfeit money, police said Friday.

"Those people were arrested with $140 in denominations of $20," said officer Jose Vicente Medellin with the Municipal Police in this border town 10 miles south of McAllen.

Two 18-year-old men, a 19-year-old man and a 16-year-old boy, all from Edinburg, remained in the city jail in Reynosa Friday night and were to be arraigned before a Mexican federal judge there today, officials said.

The four were arrested Thursday night in an area known as the "Zona Roja," or Red Zone, also known as "Boys Town" and the "Zone of Tolerance," said officer Jose Vicente Medellin with the Reynosa police.

Bar proprietors became suspicious when they were handed money on thin paper with blurred printing, Medellin said.

Officials said they believe the four spent more counterfeit money which has not yet been discovered.

Editor detained in Moscow

Officers earlier detained Andrei Shilkov, another Glasnost editor, Popov said. The officers had been outside the apartment all day, he said.

Popov, whose apartment serves as the editorial office of Glasnost, said it appeared authorities were detaining dissidents they suspected would take part in a demonstration later Friday evening on behalf of political prisoners.

But he said the 46-year-old Grigoryants, a former political prisoner released early this year, had not been planning to take part in the protest.

Grigoryants has sought but not received official approval for his journal, which he named after Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's policy of allowing greater openness in Soviet society.

Americans awarded prize

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss foundation Friday awarded two University of Washington scientists a $275,000 cancer research prize for bone marrow transplant work.

In announcing the award, the jury of Switzerland's Dr. Josef Steiner Foundation credited C. Dean Buckner and Rainer Storb for making transplants "a possible form of therapy for diseases such as leukemia as well as other functional disorders of the bone marrow."

The two professors, both 52, work at the Fred Hutchison Cancer Research Center in Seattle.

"Both were involved in the first bone marrow transplantations in Seattle in 1969 and have since untiringly contributed to the improvement of the method," a foundation statement said.

Storb was cited for showing in animal experiments how rejected of transplanted marrow could be avoided. Buckner developed several key transplant measures, including destruction of diseased bone marrow cells before healthy marrow was transplanted from a donor.

88 Malaysians arrested

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A wave of arrests of dozens of politicians and social activists spread to eastern Malaysia on Friday, where authorities said an environmentalist who led anti-logging protests was seized.

Police said nine more people were detained, three of them in Sarawak state on Borneo island, 800 miles east of the capital across the South China Sea.

That brought to 88 the number of people arrested and held without charge since Tuesday in a sweep the government said was needed to prevent Malay-Chinese tensions from escalating into race riots.

All previous arrests had been on peninsular Malaysia.

The government Wednesday banned all public rallies and closed three newspapers, including the English-language Star Daily, and said their reports threatened security.

Police set up roadblocks in various parts of Kuala Lumpur, the capital of 1 million, and were conducting searches on some vehicles.

Asian and Western diplomats speaking on condition of anonymity say there is a real danger of Malay-Chinese clashes.

Wall Street picks up after collapse

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street capped a week of measured comebacks Friday with a 50-point advance that left the Dow Jones industrial average up more than 40 points for the week.

The Dow average rose 55.20 points to close at 1,993.53, still more than 250 points below its level of two weeks ago, before the Oct. 19 collapse erased more than $500 billion from the value of all stocks.

The market continued to pick up confidence — in itself, the dollar and negotiations in Washington toward cutting the federal budget deficit, analysts said.

"With every passing day a little more confidence comes into the market for investors," said Hugh Johnson, a senior vice president at First Albany Corp. "You can buy stocks without believing you'll be absolutely killed in the next minute."

Friday's jump in the Dow, the average's seventh-largest point gain ever, represented a 2.8 percent increase in its value and followed a 91.51-point climb Thursday. The gain for the week totaled 42.77 points, or 2.2 percent.

The market value of all stocks, as measured by Wilshire Associates, rose $86.13 billion, or 3.65 percent, Friday, to $2.44 trillion. On Thursday, stocks rose $106.57 billion.

"With every passing day a little more confidence comes into the market for investors. You can buy stocks without believing you'll be absolutely killed in the next minute."

— Hugh Johnson, senior vice president of First Albany Corp.

Despite this week's improvement, the market value of stocks as measured by the Wilshire index has lost 13.16 percent, or $370.19 billion, over the past two weeks.

The broader market, which had trailed the blue-chip issues represented by the Dow average, continued to catch up Friday. Seven stocks gained in price for every one that fell on the New York Stock Exchange, and issues also were broadly higher on the American Stock Exchange and on the over-the-counter market.

NYSE volume totaled 303.36 million shares in another abbreviated, but hectic session. The markets closed two hours early through Friday to allow Wall Street to catch up on paperwork following the collapse nearly two weeks ago.

The NYSE, American exchange and over-the-counter markets said they would curtail hours again next week, closing at 2:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and at 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

"Barring any unforeseen market event we expect to resume normal trading on Monday, Nov. 9," said Martha Cid, an NYSE spokeswoman.

Other markets, including the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Chicago Board of Trade and the Kansas City Board of Trade, said they also would shorten their sessions for trading of stock index futures and stock index options.

"We got beaten down so badly we were due for a knee-jerk, oversold technical rebound," said Alfred E. Goldman, a vice president with A.G. Edwards and Sons Inc. in St. Louis, adding that "Bulls feel this is a great time for bargain hunting."

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported Friday that its index of Leading Indicators, the government's main economic forecasting gauge, fell for the first time since January, after posting seven consecutive gains. Some economists warned that Wall Street's troubles would lead to even sharper drops in the months ahead.

The dollar, which fell sharply overseas on Thursday, was mostly higher Friday. It was mixed in later New York trading.

In earlier London trading Friday, stocks rose sharply, with the Financial Times-Stock Exchange index of 100 leading shares closing up about 4 percent. The government decided late Thursday to go ahead with selling shares in British Petroleum Co., the government-owned oil giant, despite the depressed market.

The government promised to buy back any shares that could not be sold, a move that could help the brokerage firms.

HHS' Bowen assures Smith of funds

WASHINGTON — Texas likely will be repaid millions of dollars more than originally estimated for the cost of services to newly legalized immigrants, the Secretary of Health and Human Services has assured U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio.

The official, Dr. Otis R. Bowen, made that assurance to the congressman Thursday and he asked Smith to arrange a meeting of HHS officials and Texas congressional offices to work on the final formula for repaying states for the costs of last year's historic immigration law.

Smith has been leading an effort to get Texas its share of the funds since this summer, when he spearheaded a letter by 24 of the state's House members complaining the formula then being considered was "inequitable, uneconomical and unacceptable."

Texas stood to lose an estimated $17.3 million in federal aid under that plan, according to a press release from Smith's Washington office.

But Bowen said new HHS calculations eliminated that loss and showed Texas gaining millions more than the $94.5 million originally estimated.

"This is very reassuring news," Smith said. "I look forward to working with the administration to ensure that our state gets its due and that politics are removed from the process."

Dukakis backs tax breaks for oilmen

LONGVIEW (AP) — An oil import fee would be a multibillion-dollar burden on the economy, Democratic presidental hopeful Michael Dukakis has told Gregg County supporters.

The Massachusetts governor said instead of the oil import fee, he proposes tax breaks for independent oil and gas producers. He suggested that a $5-per-barrel premium be paid for oil from new wells dedicated to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and that a moratorium be placed on construction of nuclear power plants.
