Benson shines in last home game

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

It only seemed fitting that El Ced's final run of his high school career on the grass of Memorial Stadium Friday night came on an 11-yard touchdown run.

Midland Lee senior tailback Cedric Benson once thought that a game three weeks ago against Midland High was his last to tour the grass of Memorial Stadium. But the state playoffs brought him one more chance to shine. One more chance to haul pig hide in front of the home fans.

For Midlanders, it was the last chance to see El Ced do heroic deeds without leaving town.

U.S. Supreme Court accepts Bush's appeal

■ Bush led Gore Friday night by an unofficial margin of 659 votes.

By Walter Mears
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court stepped into the bitter, overtime struggle for the White House on Friday, agreeing to consider George W. Bush's appeal against the hand recounting of ballots in Florida, the state that will decide whether he or Al Gore becomes president. But first, on Sunday, Florida's secretary of state plans to certify a winner.

AP Photo

Broward County canvassing board member Judge Robert Rosenberg trains a magnifying glass on a disputed ballot Friday, at the Broward County Courthouse in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

At this point, Bush leads an incredibly close count. His unofficial margin as of early Friday evening was 659 votes.

The recounting went on into the holiday weekend, a wearing process that could be moot should the Supreme Court decide not to include the hand tallying of ballots originally cast in voting machines.

These striking turns in the disputed election mean that the longest, closest contest in 124 years may not be settled before early December, nearly a month after Americans voted.

The court will hear arguments next Friday, Dec. 1, from lawyers for Democrat Gore, who wants the recounts, and Republican Bush, who barely led the original vote and initial recounting of the voting machine totals.

Secretary of State Katherine Harris, a Republican and Bush campaigner, announced earlier Friday that she would certify the winner of the state's decisive 25 electoral votes sometime after 6 p.m. on Sunday. Her office said after the Supreme Court intervention that she was going ahead with her certification. On Nov. 17, the date she said state law set for certification, Bush led Gore

Bush lawyers make case for counting all overseas ballots

By Michael Cooper
N.Y. Times News Service

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Lawyers for Gov. George W. Bush asked a judge here Friday to direct more than a dozen Florida counties to reinstate the absentee ballots of members of the military that were disqualified because they lacked postmarks, dates, proper signatures, and even some that came from unregistered voters.

> '...The court just doesn't enter orders telling elected officials to comply with the law.'
> — Judge L. Ralph Smith of Leon County Circuit Court

But the judge, L. Ralph Smith of Leon County Circuit Court, gave them little hope that he would take such action. "Without any proof that any of these canvassing boards have not complied with the law, the court

Dispute over counting overseas ballots outrages local veterans

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland and Odessa veterans argue that the rejection of overseas military ballots on technicalities, such as no postmarks, would be an affront to America's armed forces.

"I think that's a bunch of bull," said 92-year-old World War II United States Army Air Corps veteran Ray O. McNeill of Midland.

McNeill, who earned the Purple Heart as a C-47 Skytrain radio operator in the China-Burma-India Theater, said, "Their ballots ought to be counted just the same as anybody else's."

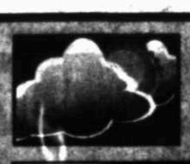

Whoever wins Florida's popular vote will claim the state's 25 electoral votes and the presidency.

"It should be taken into consideration that they are out of this country," McNeill said of overseas military personnel, "and it takes some time for their votes to get in here."

Other than instances of bearing no postmarks, some ballots apparently have been cast aside due to the lack of a signature or date of vote.

Midlanders weigh in on superintendent search

By Danielle Belton
Staff Writer

Help wanted: Medium-size West Texas school district seeking good business person with strong educational background for work on a semi-to-permanent basis.

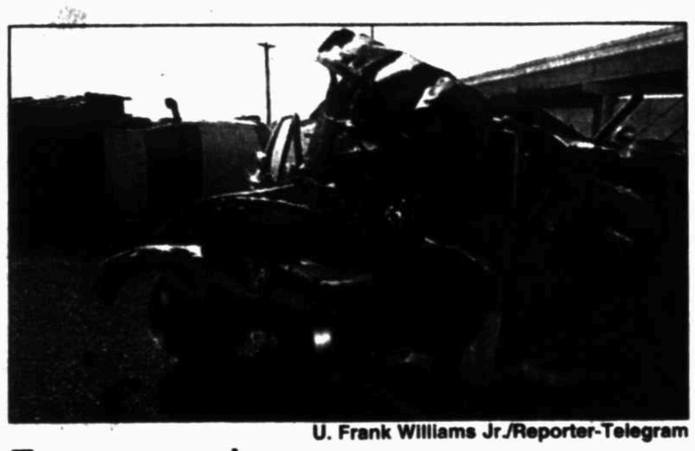

Yankees need not apply.

They could put it in the want ads, but the Midland Independent School District school board wants to find out what Midlanders think first.

In their search for the next MISD superintendent, the school board and their superintendent search consultant Bob Thompson, are looking for everyone from community leaders to teachers to voice their opinion on what would make an ideal superintendent candidate.

Some area teachers and community leaders are already preparing their laundry lists of needs for the new superintendent. From desiring someone who'd focus on quality instead of cost to demanding Texans and only Texans for the job, most of their views depended on how they felt about the man the new superintendent would be replacing.

RUN: Benson gives fans something to remember

(From 1A)

Franklin, El Ced had again churned out 201 yards on just 19 carries. That's an average of 10.6 yards per carry, almost the same number as his final tote for six.

Benson now has a career total of 7,876 yards rushing, moving him into fifth place on Texas' all-time rushing list regardless of classification. Benson has 3,387 of those yards at Memorial Stadium, averaging 188.2 yards every time he stepped onto the Midland grass.

As much as we hate to think that Benson's career at Lee is nearing an end, it's coming at us like a roller coaster. He has the potential of putting up numbers in three more games, but any loss would short circuit that bid.

Slowly, he's beginning to realize it.

"I really didn't think about this being my last home game until people started talking about it this week," Benson said. "But, yeah, this is it. I can't explain how I feel. It leaves you speechless. But in the end, it was another game to win, and we did that."

Benson got his yards the hard way against Franklin. He had only 86 yards rushing in the first half. In the second half, he busted loose for a 66-yard run and it was called back. So, a couple of plays later, he busted one again for 52 yards, that coming in the same series.

"I was pretty exhausted after the first long run, but I had a feeling it would be there again if we ran it again," Benson said. "I work hard in practice, so I can do that. Actually, that was kind of fun because it takes your body to the limit and I like testing the body."

Lee coach John Parchman said, "Cedric came to the bench with his eyes half crossed after those two runs, and I said to him, 'Double your pleasure, double your fun.' He still couldn't breathe."

El Ced was put on the bench with 4:22 still left to play in the third quarter, ending a chance at recording his seventh game of over 300 yards rushing.

"I talked with him and told him to save it up for next week," Parchman said. "He said that was fine with him. Besides, we got a chance to look at some of the younger kids, and this, too, might be the last chance they have this year for some quality playing time."

With all the attention El Ced receives in the media, there seems to be very little jealously among his team members. At least, the offensive line relishes the numbers he creates.

"I feel it's a privilege to block for Ced," said senior offensive guard Jacob Gosch. "You just don't see many running backs as talented as he is. In fact, when he scores, it fires us up. There's no jealously here. We're proud of him and what he does. We're just one big family here."

Tackle Chad Owens, a junior who will have to block for someone else when El Ced is at the University of Texas, said, "Cedric is great. I hope he goes on and has a great college career. Maybe someday I can say while watching TV, that I blocked for that guy."

Benson's numbers are staggering. He has now rushed for more than 100 yards in 32 consecutive games going back to his sophomore year when he had 98 yards against Lubbock Coronado in a bi-district playoff game. He has scored at least one touchdown in 35 consecutive games, again going back to 1998 against Abilene Cooper. He has 16 career games in which he has rushed for more than 200 yards, six of them for more than 300 yards.

But probably his best play Friday night against Franklin was when he scored on a 52-yard reception from quarterback Nick Hand. It was a perfect pass into secure hands, but it still took Benson's running knack to get the final five yards. Hit at the five, El Ced put his hand to the ground, somehow keeping his balance for a dive into the end zone. It looked like his arm went two-feet deep into the Memorial Stadium grass.

"I think I may have sprained my wrist on that one," Benson says.

So, keep the memories because El Ced won't be riding against the Moors any more in Midland.

But his act is still alive. It's just a road show now. He's headed for Texas Stadium next Saturday for a 4 p.m. date with either Duncanville or Lewisville. The Midland history chapter is now closed, but hopefully, there are three more games left in his high school career.

"It is getting short, isn't it?" Benson said. "Let's hope we have three more games in us."

There is something bittersweet about the end of any era. Rebel fans are hanging to this one with white fingernails.

Despite high-profile victories, numbers of women in office slip at state level

NEW YORK (AP) — Although women made record gains in the nation's highest offices in this year's elections, their numbers slipped in legislatures and other state offices — raising worries about the training ground for future leaders.

Come January, more women will sit in Congress and in governor's offices than ever before, with first-ever female governors in Delaware and Montana and Hillary Clinton's election as New York's senator.

But in state legislatures and statewide elected offices, women failed to continue the 30-year trend of steady gains, and their numbers actually fell slightly.

Lawmakers and scholars who hope to see women in elected office reflect their numbers in the population are concerned. Besides crafting and managing policy, legislators and officials at state levels prove their mettle for bigger jobs.

"We're not just losing numbers, we're also losing leadership and experience," said Deborah Walsh, director of the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University.

The change is slight. There will be 1,658 women state lawmakers in office next year, down 12 from the 1,670 who held office this year. Women elected to statewide office, including governor, also dropped slightly — down to 88 from 92 before the election.

The gains in higher offices are prominent. Clinton and at least two other women will be joining the U.S. Senate, bringing the number to a record 12 — possibly 13, if Maria Cantwell holds her narrow lead in Washington state. In the House, women increased their numbers from 56 to 59, another record. And five women governors — the most ever — will serve come 2001.

But on the state level, the stagnation is a break in a decades-long trend. In 1969, 301 women served in legislatures, about 4 percent. That grew to 10 percent by 1979, and to 17 percent by 1989. In 1992 — the so-called "year of the woman" because of a number of high-profile election victories — the numbers jumped to 21 percent. The new numbers are just over 22 percent, down from 22.5 percent.

Considering that women make up half the nation, "The numbers are still quite small," said Pennsylvania state Sen. Allyson Schwartz, who spent 10 years in the legislature and this year unsuccessfully sought election to the U.S. Senate. "We have a ways to go."

Building the ranks depends on women seeking office and serving at local and state levels, Schwartz and others said.

"State legislatures are a pipeline," Walsh said. "If you look at women who are in Congress and governor's offices now, a tremendous number were in state legislatures before."

New Hampshire Gov. Jeanne Shaheen, a Democrat who won a third term this month, served in the state Senate. Arizona Gov. Jane Hull, a Republican, was the first female speaker of the state House. The new U.S. senator from Michigan, Democrat Debbie Stabenow, served in the state House and Senate.

"You get the experience and you do a serious job," said Hull, who didn't face re-election this year. "That makes people much more comfortable in voting for you."

Others followed different routes to office — Clinton, running as the first lady, had never held office. Neither had Jean Carnahan, who will fill the Senate seat of her husband, former Gov. Mel Carnahan, who was killed in a plane crash in the midst of his campaign.

Some think this year's drop in victories is only a temporary bump, while others see a significant problem, noting that there also were fewer candidates than in recent years.

"The excitement seems to be gone, the movement seems to be gone to some respect," said Nancy Brown, a former Kansas legislator who works with female lawmakers at the Women's Network. "We were somewhat complacent, working with women who were in office rather than trying to find people to get there."

Schwartz said the political parties don't always promote and encourage female candidates, falling back on traditional networks of men. She said it's important to reach out to other women candidates, providing advice and a role model.

Delaware's governor-elect, Democrat Ruth Ann Minner, said women will increase their numbers in elected office as they branch out into the business world, which must come first because they are supporting their families.

"Now they've reached a comfortable level in business and finance they'll be moving towards elected office and giving back to the community," Minner said. She began her political career as a statehouse receptionist.

And as befits their widely different experiences and political views, these politicians see different results from women lawmakers and officials.

Women deserve some of the credit for the growing attention paid to education, welfare and other "quote-unquote 'women's issues,'" Hull said. "Women, because of their interest in them, have brought these issues to the fore."

Minner said she doesn't buy any distinction between men and women when it comes to issues — and bristles at the idea that she was elected because of her gender.

"You know, I don't think it really matters to me that I'm a woman," she said. "I've found out since the election, though, that it does matter to a lot of women. It matters to a lot of young girls."

Hospice Care
Comfort and Compassion When it's Needed Most

Coping with a terminal illness can be a daunting experience. Most of us would prefer to spend our final phase of life at home—as pain-free and alert as possible—surrounded by the people and things we love.

An end-of-life care option that provides dying patients and their loved ones with the services they want and need does exist.

It's called hospice care.

RECOUNT: Harris plans to certify winner Sunday

by 930 votes.

Her new timetable was in keeping with the decision of the Florida Supreme Court, which set a deadline of 5 p.m. EST Sunday for final returns and said they must include hand recounted ballots ready by then.

It was the unanimous state court ruling that the Bush campaign challenged, and the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to hear, ordering both sides to file legal briefs by Tuesday, for 90 minutes of arguments before the justices at 10 a.m. Friday.

It promises a scene like none before in American history, with the nine justices of the judicial branch of government considering a case that could determine which of two men will lead the executive branch for the next four years.

The recounting was continuing in two heavily Democratic counties, Broward and Palm Beach, where Gore expected gains, with a separate court dispute in which Republicans are demanding that disallowed military ballots from abroad be included, presumably to the benefit of their candidate.

The court's intercession in a state election dispute was a direct hit on Gore's struggle to overturn Bush's infinitesimal edge, in a state where about 6 million votes for president were cast on Nov. 7.

"The petition for a writ of certiorari is granted," the Supreme Court said, announcing it will hear the appeal.

But there is another track for challenge, since Florida law permits either candidate to challenge the certification of the outcome, and both campaigns have said they are prepared to do so, if they believe votes their side should have had were improperly invalidated.

"The Department of State is prepared for the earliest contingency, which would be certification Sunday evening," Ben McKay, chief of staff for the secretary of state, said. "This will be done publicly regardless of the outcome, which is, of course, unknown at this time."

While the Supreme Court accepted one Bush appeal, it rejected another, in which he tried to win reversal of a federal judge's decision to permit the recounts to continue. The practical impact seemed to be the same, since the appeal it is hearing deals with the question of whether recounted ballots are to be included through Nov. 26, or the outcome as of Nov. 17 is to be deemed final.

The court set up a breakneck schedule for next week: legal briefs are due on Tuesday and responses Thursday, then the in-person arguments before the justices on Friday morning.

Nothing the court did affected Harris' decision to go ahead with certification. The 25 electoral votes at stake would push either Bush or Gore past the 270 it takes to make a president.

While the court acted in Washington, canvassers sifted contested ballots, a Tallahassee court heard arguments on disallowed military votes, and Democrats accused Republicans of sending paid demonstrators to try to intimidate election officials.

Sen. Joe Lieberman, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, stepped out of Gore's residence to denounce demonstrations he said had been orchestrated by Republicans "to intimidate and to prevent a simple count of votes from going forward ...

"This is a time to honor the rule of law, not surrender to the rule of the mob," Lieberman said.

There were demonstrators from both sides in the recount cities in Friday.

Dick Cheney, the Republican vice presidential candidate, was released from a Washington hospital after two days of treatment for a mild heart attack. He said doctors told him to take the weekend off, then "return to a fairly normal schedule." He said "there are no restrictions" on his work, including the vice presidency.

With a crop of lawsuits from both sides, and with differing standards in the recounting counties for determining the intent of voters whose ballots had not been fully punched so as to register in voting machines, the route to the White House was through a swamp of controversy.

The court's decision to hear Bush's appeal came after aides to Gore said they were planning to challenge any Bush victory in Florida on the grounds that some Democratic votes had not been counted.

"We believe we stand on both strong political and legal ground for fighting beyond Sunday," said Ron Klain, a Gore adviser. He pointed to the decision of the Miami-Dade County canvassing board to stop its recount for lack of time to finish by Sunday. The Gore camp had expected to gain in the 10,000 ballots disputed there.

Six Democratic members of Congress demanded a Justice Department investigation on Friday, saying civil rights had been violated in "a shocking case of undermining the right to vote through intimidation and threats of violence" by Republican protesters in Miami on Wednesday.

Each side imported legions of lawyers to contest every point in the election dispute.

"We've lost count of the number of lawsuits that have been initiated by the Gore legal team," said Bush lawyer Theodore Olson.

David Boies, Gore's lead lawyer, said the Bush campaign "has already filed a contest with respect to about a dozen counties ... So regardless of who is ahead on Sunday night or not, there will be contests pending ... by both sides."

The Florida electors who would decide whether Bush or Gore is president-elect are to be chosen on Dec. 12. But the Florida Legislature, run by Republicans, could yet intercede to decide whether they belong to Bush or Gore. The Electoral College is to elect the new president on Dec. 18.

The Republican-dominated Florida Legislature retained attorneys to represent it before the Supreme Court, in opposition to the state Supreme Court. Harris also filed papers with the Supreme Court, saying the Florida court improperly "made a number of changes" in the state's election laws.

While she urged intervention, Palm Beach County argued against it. "Among the hallmarks of our democratic process is patience," lawyers for the Democratic county commission said. "... There is no constitutional crisis."

After the Gore campaign urged the Supreme Court to stay out of the case, Bush's lawyers filed papers saying that "the exceedingly important nature of this case provides a powerful justification for review by this court."

"This court has repeatedly recognized the powerful federal interest in the selection of presidential electors," the Bush brief said.

SEARCH: Many feel money is no object in superintendent decision

(From 1A)

"I like Joe Baressi so well that it would be difficult to say," said Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility executive committee member Mark Kimball.

Kimball, who was speaking for himself rather on the behalf of his organization said he has been pleased with current MISD superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr.'s past performance. He believes the position only needed some fine tuning as opposed to a complete overhaul of what Baressi has done.

"I think a good businessman would be the most important thing to me," Kimball said. "We need someone who really looks at the dollars and cents and leaves the politics out of it. It would be a nice thing if we could spend all of our money on education and get good results rather than spending it on politics."

Fellow CFR member and president Wayne "Woody" Woodside had a similar stance, but a different attitude toward Baressi.

"In most districts the superintendent is only there for five years," Woodside said when discussing Baressi's 19-year tenure with MISD. "Each superintendent comes with a strength and they don't last for 19 years."

Woodside also felt a superintendent with a "CEO-like" background was very important. He said someone with a business background would be more helpful for the district in managing its people and money.

"A school system is not just an educational system, it's a business," Woodside said. "Do you think the CEO of Texas Instruments knows how to build circuitry? No, he relies on his people."

While both Woodside and Kimball expressed the need of someone with stronger business skills, most teachers felt that the only business their superintendent needed to be in was the business of primary and secondary education.

"Just because they can run a business doesn't mean they can run a school system," said Midland Classroom Teachers Association president Shelley Reep. "Our business is educating children."

Midland Federation of Teachers Vice President Bill Jordan said a superintendent with an extensive education background would be better equipped to restructure programs in the district.

"I want him to have a strong educational background first so that he can go into all of these programs and see what it's going to take to make them better," Bill Jordan said. "He needs to look at every single program and see how we can make it better, not how we can spend less money."

Jordan said he'd like to see someone who will be able to clear up some of the uncertainty employees feel about the district. He said MISD needed a superintendent who would be able to tell the community and staff where the district is headed and what plans are available for the schools.

Ms. Reep was adamant about the board selecting a Texan as a candidate. They both pointed out that the Texas educational system was unique and the district would be better served in the long run by someone who already had experience with the system.

"I think Texas has some different educational issues and we do need someone who is understanding of how that works," Ms. Reep said. "We need someone who knows Texas."

Neither Ms. Reep, Jordan, Kimball or Woodside felt a doctorate in education was important. Most felt common sense and professional experience were more important. While Kimball and Ms. Reep liked the idea of a superintendent who would remain in the position for a long tenure like Baressi, Bond and Woodside were adamant about MISD needing a regular change in command. Bond and Woodside also felt that character was a major issue in selecting a superintendent.

"I think we need new blood," Bond said. "Someone from outside this district whose reputation is beyond reproach. Someone who is a problem solver. This district has a public relations problem. We need someone who has more strength, who is an honest person and a role model. I don't want another Yankee."

Ms. Reep feels MISD needs a superintendent who has a good working relationship with the teachers. She felt Baressi had been good at forming his relationships with MISD teachers and staff. Kimball said he'd like to see someone who could turn MISD from a "brick and mortar" school district to an "educational excellence" school district. Woodside feels there needs to be more accountability in the district for problems that have arisen in the past. He said often in MISD mistakes would be made, but no one would be punished.

"No one in our system is held accountable," Woodside said. "We see an executive that can't forecast and he isn't held accountable. We see an executive that lies about a land deal and he isn't held accountable."

Despite the difference of opinion over Baressi, backgrounds and tenure, everyone interviewed agreed on one thing — money wasn't an issue. All interviewed felt a good superintendent would be worth whatever the cost after the year MISD has had.

"I'd pay him a million bucks if he could straighten this system out," Woodside said.

BALLOTS: Local veterans say military votes should be counted

(From 1A)

McNeill's son, Vietnam War naval veteran Bill McNeill, 54, said, "Post-marked or not, if they (ballots) come from the military and they are there when they are supposed to be, they ought to be counted.

"These guys are voting for their boss (for president as commander-in-chief of the armed forces)," said the younger McNeill, who also won the Purple Heart. "And the military gets a bad rap anyway," he said, "and they are underpaid and everything else, and then to try to deny them a vote" is a disservice.

"They are putting it (their lives) on the line," the younger McNeill said. "They are over there protecting us so we can have Thanksgivings, and we can have Christmases and everything else, and then to come up and say, 'We're not going to count their vote.' That's a bunch of bull-corn."

The national voting age, as decreed by the Constitution's 26th Amendment in 1971, is 18. Before that, the voting age in most states was 21.

"That was me (in Vietnam): 'Go to war, can't vote,'" McNeill said.

In Florida courtroom arguments, lawyers for George W. Bush and Al Gore are focusing on the military ballots among other issues in determining the final vote.

Bush forces want adopted the Florida-certified vote count and the manual recount to stop. Gore forces want the manual counting continued in hopes of his overtaking the Bush vote.

A 1998 Florida Administration Code says about the presidential preference primary, in part, that "any absentee ballot cast for a federal office by an overseas elector which is postmarked or signed and dated no later" than the election date "shall be counted" if it is received within 10 days of the election and is "otherwise proper."

W.F. "Bill" Stepp, an 82-year-old World War II P-51 Mustang pilot over Europe, said that the military votes should be counted.

"I think people are getting pretty tired of the whole thing."

Ciro Sanchez, who served in the U.S. Army's 30th Infantry Division in France in World War II, said that the dispute is "a bunch of baloney."

Sanchez, 77, said he recalled voting absentee in England in 1944 at age 21 when he returned from combat in France. U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt was up for re-election.

"Can you imagine the votes they threw away?" he asked.

Overseas, the servicemen's and servicewomen's vote "might not count" depending on court rulings, Sanchez said. "It doesn't make any sense. (They are still) United States citizens."

In Florida, Bob Dole, the 1996 Republican presidential nominee, noted in an Associated Press report that "We're throwing out military votes on technicalities while we're over here divining votes of what somebody intended to do when they have no idea what they intended to do."

Alice Collins Coombes, a member of the United Service Organizations (USO) in World War II and bride of a naval aviator, said, "As far as I am concerned, they (the military votes) should be counted."

Mitch Swan, a 31-year-old Persian Gulf War naval veteran, said, "It is despicable (not to include the overseas votes).

"I think Gore is trying to work the system to get a win," Swan said.

"The military is the backbone of this country," Swan said. "If we can't decide our own leaders, then they are turning into a dictator. People like me have died for the right to vote. And for him to try to disqualify those votes is snubbing his nose at the sacrifice that everybody has given to preserve the right to vote."

Ritzie Williford, who served in the U.S. Navy's Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service (WAVES) in World War II, said, "Everything has gotten so messed up in Florida.

"If I had voted, and I thought my vote wasn't going to count, I would be madder than heck," she said. "It's not fair to them (armed forces personnel).

"I just don't think the whole thing is making any sense at all. The (political) groups are all fighting each other. It doesn't seem like they are trying to work together to work the problem out."

Had the military votes been cast "on the time schedule (on or before Nov. 7), and they were mailed in, . . . they (service people) should be given their chance to vote the same as everybody else," Mrs. Williford, 76, said.

Their votes "should be counted.

"You are an American citizen, and you are in the military for the American way of life, which is why we all went into the service — to fight for the freedoms that we are trying to keep," Mrs. Williford said. "It doesn't seem to me like we are going to be able to keep our freedoms if we keep changing the rules everyday."

From the viewpoint of retired U.S. Army Col. Bruce Wallace, "The whole thing is ridiculous."

Wallace, 76, served in three wars. He was a B-17 Flying Fortress tail-gunner over Europe in World War II, a U.S. Army infantry officer in the Korean War, and a battalion commander and then a brigade commander in the Vietnam War.

"The whole think is just absolutely asinine," Wallace said.

COUNT: Hearing clarifies Florida's muddy election laws

is very hard pressed to grant any relief, because the court just doesn't enter orders telling elected officials to comply with the law," Smith said.

He said he would consider further arguments on Saturday before issuing a written ruling.

Even without his ruling, though, a number of counties have already begun to reassess absentee ballots that they had previously disqualified, giving Bush at least 17 more votes. Officials in Clay County were dropped as defendants in Bush's lawsuit Friday after they reconsidered their overseas absentee ballots and decided to count 14 of the 17 that they had previously disqualified; Bush picked up a net gain of 12 votes there. Bush gained two more votes in Okaloosa County, two in Bay County and one in Nassau County, Republican officials said.

Oddly enough it was the Republican's defeat in the Florida State Supreme Court, which ruled over their objections last week to extend the deadline for certifying the state's election results until this Sunday evening, that allowed enough time to get some of the disqualified votes counted and allowed the lawsuit to be filed.

If Friday's hearing clarified anything, it was just how muddy and full of conflicts Florida elections law is. One state law says that only overseas ballots with postmarks are to be counted, while an administrative rule says that overseas ballots can be counted as long as they either have a postmark or are properly signed and dated before Election Day.

And, in a conflict that seemed to be particularly troubling to Smith, Florida law states that absentee ballots "must be received by the supervisor by 7 p.m. the day of the election," while an administrative rule states that absentee votes can be received up to 10 days after the election. Smith asked repeatedly about the discrepancy; Bush's lawyers argued that the administrative rule should take precedence over the state law, contrary to usual practice, because it was written in response to a federal lawsuit challenging Florida elections law.

Cheney says heart condition wouldn't keep him from being vice president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Told by doctors his heart condition would not impair his ability to serve as vice president, Dick Cheney left the hospital Friday with a prescription for a blood thinner and advice to take the weekend off before returning to a "full, normal, active life."

Cheney said he and George W. Bush talked by phone and chatted about his health, but spent a lot of time talking about Florida, "which is what we usually talk about these days."

Asked whether he had given any thought to asking Bush to replace him on the GOP ticket, the 59-year-old Republican vice presidential candidate replied, "No. Not yet."

The presidential election still hinges on the Florida ballot counting and legal challenges.

Appearing relaxed, Cheney called his fourth heart attack in more than 20 years "a reminder of the importance of living a healthy lifestyle and doing all of those things that a prudent man would do, given the fact that I have a long history of coronary artery disease."

Cheney said his doctors told him "there are no restrictions" on his future activities, including potentially the vice presidency.

"I should be able to return to a full, normal, active life," he said.

Cheney walked out of George Washington University Hospital two days after checking himself in with chest pains. Hospital spokeswoman Lisa Saisselin said that ordinarily "our patients are wheeled to the door."

Rather than emerge in a wheelchair, Cheney left the hospital walking beside his wife, Lynne, his oldest daughter, Liz, her husband and a granddaughter. From the hospital they went to their home in suburban McLean, Va.

Cheney dismissed campaign-related stress as a factor that might have led to the mild heart attack. He said his role as secretary of defense during the 1991 Gulf War was the "ultimate stress."

"I have not found this situation to be nearly as stressful as that was," he said, adding he could only speculate on whether his heart attack was stress-related.

"This has really been a trivial event and he's recovered very rapidly. And I have no concerns at all," Dr. Jonathan Reiner, a cardiologist who treated Cheney told The Associated Press.

Doctors put Cheney on the blood thinner Plavix for the next 30 days to reduce the likelihood of problems in the area where they inserted a metal device to widen an artery that had narrowed.

The main side effects of Plavix, which was approved by the Food and Drug Administration in 1997 to lower heart attack and stroke risk, are rash and diarrhea and there are rare cases linking the medication to a dangerous form of anemia. However, doctors say the benefits far outweigh the risks which they describe as remote.

Cheney said there also would be "minor modifications in the medications that I'm taking" which include Lipitor, a cholesterol-lowering medication and one of several known as statins that are a mainstay of treating people with bad hearts.

The ordeal began at about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday when he woke up with chest pains and "became increasingly convinced that it might be cardiac related" as the pain continued, Cheney recounted. He woke Lynne, and they reached the hospital less than an hour after his first sensation of chest discomfort.

"For some like myself, who has a history of coronary artery disease, it's more a matter of a sensation that something's going on that might be cardiac-related," he said.

Tests revealed that an artery had narrowed since his last heart checkup in 1996.

Cheney on Thursday returned a phone call from Democratic vice presidential nominee Joseph Lieberman who wished him a speedy recovery and a happy Thanksgiving. Despite the extraordinary presidential election legal contest taking place in Florida, the two vice presidential contenders had "a very pleasant chat," Cheney said.

"We agreed once the dust settles from all of this, we'd like to get together and to have a cup of coffee," he said.

Cheney suffered three heart attacks more than a decade ago and underwent quadruple bypass surgery in 1988 to clear clogged arteries. Doctors gave him a clean bill of health when Bush chose him as his running mate this summer.

More than 20 race horses killed in New Jersey barn fire

MANALAPAN, N.J. (AP) — A barn fire killed 20 race horses, including Cam Knows Best, runner-up in the 1998 Little Brown Jug and winner of nearly $600,000.

Officials said a portable water heating coil was suspected as the cause. The barn did not have fire or smoke alarms, or a sprinkler system, Deputy Monmouth County Fire Marshal Richard Hogan said at a news conference.

A passing motorist, Jeff Webster, saw the flames and stopped to help. He got one horse out of its stall and the animal was later captured unhurt. But the heat kept him and firefighters from rescuing others.

"It's the worst feeling I ever had, the worst thing I've ever experienced in my life," said Webster, himself a horse owner.

About 100 firefighters from seven fire companies fought the fire, which was reported late Thursday at Gaitway Farm.

One of the dead horses was 5-year-old Cam Knows Best, who had won $592,015 in 96 starts, which included 24 first-place finishes. As a 3-year-old, Cam Knows Best had finished a close second in the 1998 Little Brown Jug, the second of pacing's Triple Crown events. Pacing is a form of harness racing.

"He was good from the moment I had him," said the horse's owner, Robert Glazer of New York.

All the other horses in that barn were killed, said police Chief John G. McCormack.

"It's burnt right down to the ground," the chief said. "There's nothing standing."

He said his officers reported hearing the animals scream in agony.

The barn was one of about 15 on the 165-acre central New Jersey farm, which houses several hundred horses.

Investigators had not determined the cause of the blaze, but officials said a portable, submersible water heater was suspected. One of the 2-foot electric heating coils had been placed in a plastic bucket that stood against a wooden wall, Hogan said.

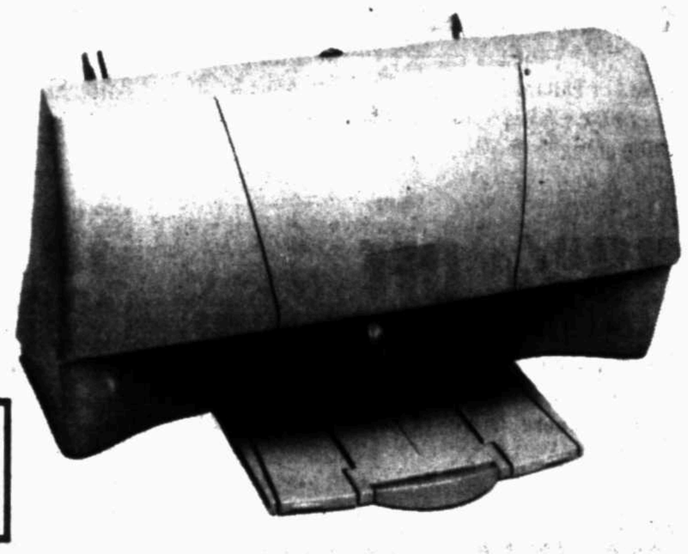

The farm banned the devices after a minor fire three years ago, "but it's impossible to police everything," Hundertpfund said.

Prosecutors were seeking a person who was in the barn an hour before the fire, but Hogan said the fire was being considered accidental and no criminal charges were expected.

Anglicans plan service challenging Episcopal leaders

ROSEMONT, Pa. (AP) — Anglican archbishops from overseas who oppose the Episcopal Church USA's liberal views on homosexuality are challenging the denomination's leadership by staging their own confirmation service here.

"The day of reckoning has begun," said the Rev. David Moyer, the rector at the Church of the Good Shepherd, where the confirmation of more than 70 youths and adults is planned Sunday.

The presiding bishops of Kenya, Uganda, Congo, and Sydney, Australia, are expected to attend or send delegates to the confirmation by Archbishop Maurice Sinclair of Argentina. They oppose the practice by the Episcopal Church, the U.S. branch of Anglicanism, of ordaining gay men and lesbians and allowing clergy to bless same-sex unions.

Bishop Charles Bennison of the Diocese of Pennsylvania called the move a "canonical crisis." Foreign intervention into the affairs of a national church runs counter to Anglican tradition.

"It's a breach of custom and canon and courtesy," he said. "I'm disappointed they would do this."

But Bennison said he would let the confirmation proceed and even attend as a spectator. He was scheduled to have tea with Sinclair on Saturday as a gesture of good will.

"I'm trying to do all I can to maintain the unity of the diocese," he told The Philadelphia Inquirer for Friday's editions.

Moyer, the North American president of the conservative Forward in Faith movement, said the service wasn't calculated to cause a schism in the American church, but to oppose "secularizing trends and false teachings."

July's Episcopal Church convention urged support for unwed couples living in committed relationships, implicitly including same-sex couples, even though the denomination formally opposes homosexual activity. Local clergy may bless same-sex unions without fear of reprisal. The convention also refused to bar diocesan bishops from ordaining gays.

But a 1998 world conference of Anglican church leaders at Lambeth, England, overwhelmingly affirmed Anglicanism's traditional teaching that all extramarital sex, including monogamous homosexual activity, is wrong.

Discounts, special deals drive customers to malls

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's retailers opened the holiday shopping season Friday with rampant discounting and special deals to get consumers to start spending again. Shoppers, who have been in a spending funk over the past few months, were only too pleased, waking up at dawn to flock to stores and malls — and their computers — to take advantage of the bargains.

"The best sales were today so we woke up early to beat the rush," said 34-year-old Billy Johnson as he lugged three huge bags in the Beverly Center mall near Beverly Hills, Calif.

Others wanted to get a running start on what are expected to be this year's hot toys: scooters and robotic pets, which do everything from wag their tails to sense touch and sound.

"We opened at 5 a.m. and within 15 minutes we sold out of scooters, Celebration Holiday Barbie and Tekno the Robot Puppy," all of which were heavily marked down, said Craig Schultz, manager at K-B Toys at Gurnee Mills mall northwest of Chicago.

"This is like a ritual," said Michele Mills, who was one of 100 people in line at Toys R Us in Columbia, S.C., at 5:45 a.m. "We do this every year because of the prices, and we have fun doing it."

Sears, Roebuck, & Co., sold all its 900 Poo-Chi robotic dogs, marked down from $29.99 to $14.99, within two hours in its Chicago, Fort Worth, and Jersey City, N.J., stores, company spokeswoman Jan Drummond said.

Kurt Barnard, publisher of Barnard's Retail Trend Report, said he was seeing more promotions than usual. "Many consumers are buying, but they are mostly buying on sale," he added.

He and other analysts expect about a 3 percent to 4 percent sales increase at stores this holiday shopping season, compared with 7 percent last year. Even online sales are slowing, with sales projections in December of $11.6 billion — up from last year's $7 billion, according to Jupiter Research. In previous years, holiday sales were known to double or triple.

Earlier this month, the Conference Board, a New York-based research group, reported that the consumer confidence index fell sharply during October.

"We're spending a little less this year," said Marilyn Borchers of Boise, Idaho, as she and her husband shopped for toys for their grandchildren.

But Georgia software engineer Srihari Koduri, 29, said though he lost some money in stocks this year, he wasn't going to cut back his spending.

"I found good deals for DVD players, scanners and VCRs, and I bought all three," he said.

Arel-Axtmann, who was shopping for her 7-year-old son at the Wal-Mart in Bismarck, said she was planning to spend more money on gifts this year than last, but not because she is doing better financially.

"I have another credit card this year," she said.

Despite forecasts that the number of online shoppers will nearly double to 35 million this year, analysts estimate that will only total about 1 percent of overall holiday sales.

And as shown Friday by the throngs who went shopping the old-fashioned way, Americans are not ready to abandon the nation's malls.

"I've already tried the Internet to get some toys, and they aren't available," said Debbie Fulkerson, of Pascagoula, Miss., who was standing outside a department store at 4 a.m.

World Health Organization: 3 million AIDS deaths in 2000

GENEVA (AP) — HIV cases in the former Soviet bloc will rise by 60 percent this year as the worldwide number of people infected by the virus that causes AIDS tops 36 million, the World Health Organization said Friday.

The U.N. health body said there are an estimated 250,000 new cases in eastern Europe and central Asia this year, bringing the total there to 700,000.

"Most of the infections continue to occur among injecting drug users," WHO said, noting that the AIDS epidemic only hit the region in the 1990s following the fall of communism.

The estimates by WHO and UNAIDS, contained in a weekly report released ahead of a major study on the disease next week, said there will be around 5.3 million new cases of HIV infection this year — including 600,000 children under 15 — and 3 million people will die from AIDS. Sub-Saharan Africa continues to be the worst-hit region, with 72 percent of the new infections and 80 percent of the deaths in the past year, according to the report.

It predicts that the region will have 25.3 million people with HIV/AIDS by the end of the year, 55 percent of them women. That would mean that 8.8 percent of all adults there would be HIV positive.

An estimated 6.4 million people in Asia and the Pacific will be HIV positive, WHO said. But, it noted, most of those infections are in a few large countries in south and southeast Asia.

"While prevalence in the adult population continues to be relatively low in many Asian countries, available behavioral data suggests an increased vulnerability," it said, citing the importance of the sex trade, use of illicit drugs and large population movements.

In the industrialized countries of North America, Western Europe and the Pacific, an estimated 1.5 million people will be living with HIV by the end of the year.

"While the availability of antiretroviral therapy has continued to reduce progression to AIDS, deaths and HIV transmission from mother to child, the number of new HIV infections has remained relatively constant over the past few years," WHO said.

The agency expects 45,000 new cases in North America and 30,000 in Western Europe.

"By the end of 2000, it is estimated that a total of 21.8 million adults and children will have died because of HIV/AIDS since the beginning of the epidemic," WHO said.

In Israel-Palestinian conflict, the battleground shifts

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Where have all the stone throwers gone?

Since Israelis and Palestinians began fighting two months ago, rarely a day has passed without fatalities — mostly Palestinian — in this impoverished patch of land along the Mediterranean coast.

Death remains a constant, but the battleground has shifted. The youthful army of Palestinian rock throwers has all but disappeared, no longer darting and dashing around the perimeter of Israeli military positions.

Now, small groups of Palestinian militants are stealthily launching targeted guerrilla attacks with automatic rifles and bombs, firing on Israeli troops and civilians when they leave the relative safety of their fortified compounds and housing settlements.

"During the first weeks, hundreds of kids would come close to our posts to riot, but this was not proving very successful for them," said Maj. Nan Adam, an Israeli military spokesman in Gaza. "Now we are facing terrorists who have bombs that are getting more and more sophisticated."

The now-deserted Erez crossing point between Israel and Gaza illustrates how the deadly confrontations have changed.

For weeks, Palestinian teenagers arrived in waves at Erez each afternoon after school, pelting the Israeli army post atop a dirt embankment with rocks, firebombs and occasional gunfire, and receiving tear gas, rubber bullets and periodic live fire in return. Some clashes lasted hours. Israel's army called in bulldozers to clear away shrub brush and empty shipping containers from the sandy soil outside the post, stripping the kids of their cover and quickly thinning out their numbers.

Stone-throwing has declined — though it hasn't stopped — elsewhere in Gaza and the West Bank, for several apparent reasons. The Israelis have torn down buildings, uprooted olive groves and generally rearranged the landscape surrounding military posts to keep Palestinian youths at a distance.

Also, the Palestinians have suffered high casualties — more than 200 dead and thousands injured — for what have essentially become routine daily protests. Palestinian parents say they have trouble keeping their kids from the clashes, but their warnings appear to have had some impact.

Today, Israeli troops are perhaps at greatest risk when they leave the confines of their military posts to carry out patrols or to escort settlers.

A roadside bomb exploded as an Israeli military jeep traveled on a road near Erez on Thursday morning, sparking a gunbattle that left one Palestinian dead. In the afternoon, an Israeli soldier repairing a fence damaged by the morning bombing was killed by a Palestinian sniper, the military said.

The attacks come amid a burgeoning sense of frustration among the Palestinians who live here. The Palestinians demand that Israel withdraw from all of the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem, territories it captured in the 1967 Mideast war. A common refrain is that seven years of negotiations were fruitless, and it's time to fight for a Palestinian state despite Israel's overwhelming military advantage.

"In the previous uprising (from 1987-93), Palestinians would say, 'I want to go and fight,'" said Dr. Eyad Sarraj, a Gaza psychiatrist. "Now they are saying, 'I want to fight and die.'"

Previously, it was mostly Palestinian teen-agers and young men who were prepared to take up arms, Dr. Sarraj said. Now he regularly sees men in their 30s, married with children, who talk about becoming "martyrs."

"They tell me it's better to die once with honor, than to die every day from fear and despair," he said.

At the tiny Israeli settlement of Kfar Darom, where a bomb killed two adults traveling on a school bus this past Monday, Sarah Friedman says she and her neighbors will not be driven out by attacks.

"We are here to stay," said Friedman, an American who moved to Israel three years ago from Miami Beach, Fla. "We don't believe the answer is to leave and to give your home away to a terrorist. The answer is the Jewish control of the land."

Rebels stuff Cougars like turkeys

■ Midland Lee defense holds Franklin down until Rebels' offense can warm up in 45-14 playoff rout at Memorial Stadium.

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

Maybe the members of the prolific Midland Lee offense had too much Thanksgiving Day turkey. Maybe they were dreaming of playing in Texas Stadium. Maybe the El Paso Franklin defense stepped up and surprised the Rebels, a 37-point winner the last time the two teams played.

"I don't know if it was tough to get focused, maybe it was complacency," Lee tight end Eric Winston said. "Thank goodness the defense came around and played (all) out."

Winston knew what he was talking about because while the offense sputtered, the defense was foaming at the mouth. They were not stuffed, but hungry, and despite missing its fourth shutout in five games, the defense caged the Cougars long enough for the offense to find its way in a 45-14 Class 5A Big School area round blowout at Memorial Stadium.

Midland Lee, which hit the 10-win plateau for the fifth time in John Parchman's six seasons, takes its 10-2 record to Texas Stadium next Saturday when the Rebels will face the winner of today's matchup of state juggernauts — Lewisville (10-1) and Duncanville (10-1) — in the state quarterfinals.

"Usually you hope something fluky happens and end up playing the softer of the two, but neither (Duncanville or Lewisville) is soft," Parchman said.

There was no fluke Friday night at Memorial for two reasons. The first reason is that the defense stepped up. Franklin, which ended the season with a 7-5 record, couldn't get anything going.

For the first three and half quarters, Franklin had the ball 10 times. The result of those 10 possessions were eight punts (six of which came after three-and-outs) and two turnovers.

"We are coming together and making things happen," said Lee linebacker Paul Gonzales, who picked off his third pass in three games and delivered some huge hits for the Rebels.

Franklin did score two late touchdowns and racked up 144 of its 245 total yards in the fourth quarter, but by that time, Lee already owned a 45-0 lead. The game was in hand.

Lee defensive coordinator Kelvin Ratliff said it was a strong showing by a maturing defensive group. Parchman said it was what Lee needed while the offense figured out what was wrong. The time needed was nine minutes, 14 seconds.

That is how long it took Cedric Benson to score his first of four touchdowns on the night. It came from 26 yards out. On Lee's next two possessions in the first half, Lee scored on a 33-yard field goal

Buffaloes blow past Ozona despite their less-than-perfect performance

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO — The Stanton Buffaloes admitted that they didn't play their best game of the year in their Class 2A Small School area round game against Ozona Friday.

But if the Buffaloes can beat Ozona 40-18 by playing what they called a "sloppy game" then imagine what the Buffs could do when they really start to click.

"It was a sloppy game for us, but I think a lot of that had to do with Ozona," said Stanton coach Mark Cotton, who will lead his team against the winner of today's Spearman-Hamlin game in the regional round next week at a time and place to be determined.

Although they were penalized nine times for 65 yards, the Buffaloes (10-2) made up for it with a balanced attack on offense. Stanton had another huge game on the ground with 305 yards.

Jeremy Hull led the way with 166 yards on 24 carries. Stanton also went to the air as senior quarterback Keith Cook was 8-of-11 for 133 yards and two touchdown passes.

Ozona (8-4), however, hung tough for three quarters and even slowed down Stanton's running game to just 72 yards in the first half.

"They were doing a lot of different things up front," said Cotton about Ozona's first half defense. "They rearranged a lot of stuff up front that hurt us... and we didn't block very well early. But you've got to give Ozona credit, coach (Robert) Taylor and his staff did a good job."

"I think they were just a little bit more ready to play than we were," said Hull about Ozona's first half performance.

The Lions could've taken momentum late in the second quarter with Stanton up 14-6. Stanton was driving and the Lions appeared to have picked off a Cook pass near the goal line. But a flag for Ozona being offsides gave the ball back to the Buffaloes, who then took advantage two plays later when Cook found Ruston Pardue in the left corner of the end zone for a 16-yard scoring toss.

With that touchdown, the Buffs

LONGHORNS VS. AGGIES

Simms-ational Performance

Young quarterback shows what he can do in rout of Aggies

By Jim Vertuno
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Texas' young guns are all grown up.

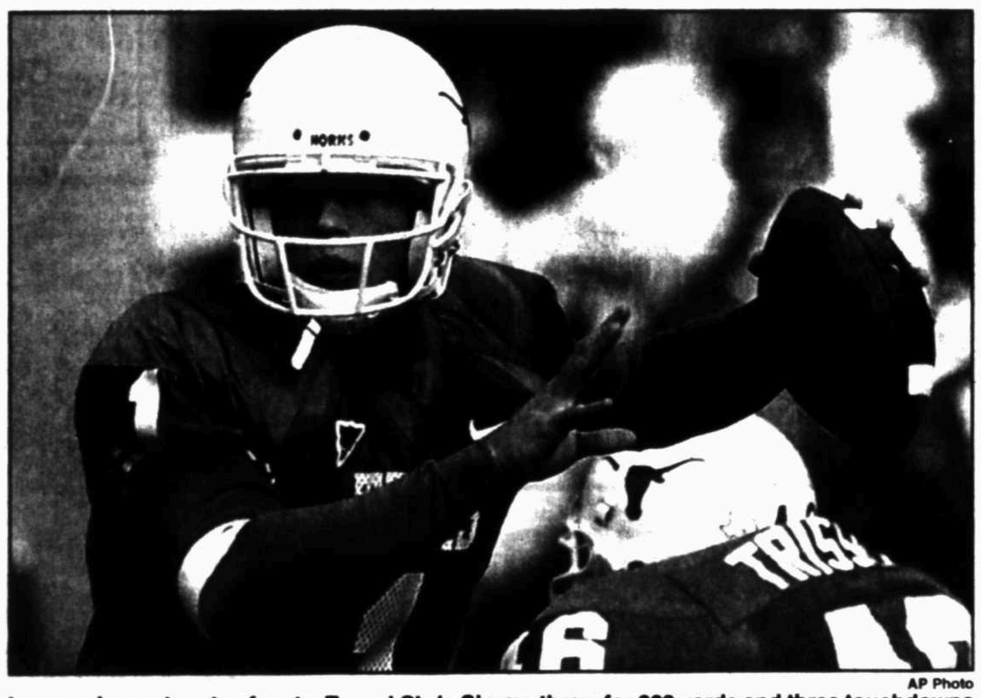

In a game of personal and team redemption in an up-and-down season, sophomore Chris Simms remedied unfulfilled expectations with his best game against the Longhorns' biggest rival.

Simms passed for 383 yards and three touchdowns, all to freshmen receivers, in the No. 12 Longhorns' 43-17 victory over No. 22 Texas A&M on Friday.

Simms was a perfect 8-for-8 passing for 234 yards and threw all of his touchdown passes in an explosive third quarter in which the teams combined for 37 points.

It was a dynamic coming-of-age performance for the son of former New York Giants quar-

Ex-Permian star sparks 3rd-quarter explosion

AUSTIN — The Texas Longhorns and 84,000 burnt orange clad fans were counting their reasons to give thanks and counting them for the long haul Friday during the 107th meeting of Texas and Texas A&M at Memorial Stadium.

And while those fans barely had time to digest their Thanksgiving turkey, Roy Williams sparked a feast on a young A&M secondary with two third-quarter touchdowns en route to a 43-17 victory.

"It really did remind me of the old Permian-Lee rivalry, especially seeing all the maroon out there," said Williams, a Odessa Permian product who got his first taste of the UT-A&M rivalry on Friday. "When we first walked out of the tunnel today, my eyes got really big."

Williams' 40-yard airborne grab pulled the Longhorns out of their own end zone and helped preserved a slim first-half lead. That was only an appetizer, though, as he sparked an offense that came out of the locker room with a vengeance.

Williams used his speed and a key block by B.J. Johnson to deal the Aggies a devastating blow at the start of the second half, cruising 40 yards to paydirt on an end-around.

"I took it, and I just read B.J.'s block and made a couple moves to hit the end zone," Williams said of the play.

Just minutes later, he struck again from 20 yards in his normal mode

Bulldogs get first win vs. Montwood

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

It took awhile for the Midland High boys basketball team to make itself at home Friday night, and appropriately enough, it was the friendliest place of the season so far for the Bulldogs.

Midland High overcame a 15-point first half deficit and hung together through a tight second half to defeat El Paso Montwood 67-65 in the MHS Gym. In their first game of the season in Midland, the Bulldogs pulled out their first victory, and that can do nothing but boost the confidence of the young MHS outfit.

Only three nights after a 40-point loss at powerful Hobbs, N.M., though, it looked as if it would be another rough outing for the Bulldogs (1-3). Montwood shot the ball unconsciously in the first quarter, hitting 11-of-13 from the floor.

But MHS battled back, and coach Jack Stephenson thinks the win could serve as a metaphor for his team.

"In 1994, we went to the state tournament, and we started the year 2-5," said Stephenson, who led his team back to Austin four years later, where it won a state championship. "It was quite an effort against one of the best teams in El Paso. Tony Harper does as good a job as any coach anywhere."

Stephenson also referenced Jack Nicklaus in talking about overcoming a slow start, telling the story of how a playing partner of the Golden Bear's wondered how Nicklaus could come back after shooting a seven on the first hole. Nicklaus responded that there were 18 holes to play.

Using that analogy, it was Midland High's Lucquente White who sank a short birdie putt to win it for the Bulldogs. With the score tied at 65-65 with over 20 seconds remaining, White drove to the hoop for a layup which proved to be the game-winner.

"I saw the opening and went with it," said White, who led the Bulldogs with 24 points. "It was up to somebody to get the ball and do it. (The win) was really important because everybody was counting us out."

Tomlinson tops 2,000 as TCU romps

Associated Press

DALLAS — Although LaDainian Tomlinson sealed his second straight NCAA rushing title, went over 2,000 yards for the season and had a 74-yard touchdown run, he was only a bit player Friday night as No. 13 Texas Christian beat rival Southern Methodist 62-7.

The Horned Frogs (10-1, 7-1 WAC) hardly needed Tomlinson as they scored six straight touchdowns in the second and third quarters.

The scoring streak actually went nine straight as a 43-yard field goal was followed by a 34-yard touchdown pass on fourth-and-4 and a 108-yard kickoff return by LaTarence Dunbar. College rules, however, credit him with a 100-yard return.

Casey Printers highlighted the rout with a career-high four touchdown passes. He also ran for a touchdown. Printers tied his career high with 251 yards passing and set another career-best with 90 yards rushing.

The blowout was a nice way for TCU to earn a share of the conference title and reach 10 wins for the first time since 1938, when it went 11-0 and won the national championship.

These Horned Frogs lost their shot at going to a BCS game by losing to San Jose State earlier this month. They're headed to the Mobile Bowl on Dec. 20.

Tomlinson ran 26 times for 174 yards, giving him 2,158 yards this season (No. 4 all-time) and 5,263 yards in his career (No. 6 all-time). He's the eighth player to reach 2,000 in a season and he joined former Texas star Ricky Williams as the only members of the 2,000-5,000 Club.

Despite the lopsided score, Tomlinson got his final carry in the fourth quarter. The 8-yard gain pushed him 4 past Herschel Walker on the all-time list.

TCU called timeout after the play and Tomlinson walked slowly to the bench. With his helmet off, he waved to the crowd — which included his mother, father, brother and sister seeing him play together for the first time — and was greeted at the sideline by the entire team, led by coach Dennis Franchione.

SMU (3-9, 2-6) had one of its most humiliating performance since coming off the death penalty. What made this one so bad was that SMU did not get a first down for the first 22 minutes, 10 seconds. It took another nine minutes for the next one. The Mustangs had just 10 in the game, or two fewer than TCU had touchdowns.

SMU's only highlight was seeing Eric Dickerson get his No. 19 jersey retired at halftime.

TCU also enjoyed the widest win in the 82-game history of the rivalry. This was the last time the teams met as conference rivals as TCU is joining Conference USA next season. The schools have agreed to continue playing through at least 2004.

The Horned Frogs' band even got in on the humiliation, dropping fertilizer in the shape of the letters TCU on SMU's new $54 million stadium during its halftime show. The prank was payback for a similar stunt by the Mustangs' band last year.

of operation — receiving — all but putting the Aggie upset bid in a coffin and ensuring that the host of the rivalry would emerge the victor, a trend that has held true since the forging of the Big 12 in 1996.

Though both teams came in with Top 25 rankings, this game did not determine the Big 12 South champion as it has in years past, with that honor already conferred to No. 1 Oklahoma. In fact, both came in with question marks on their rosters.

Texas was still dealing with the dilemna of having two of the best quarterback prospects in the nation — Chris Simms got the start because Major Applewhite was slowed by a bad knee. A&M was coming off of a heart-breaking loss to Oklahoma that saw the end of playmaking linebacker Jason Glenn's career and dealing with an injury that sidelined explosive receiver Robert Ferguson.

At least Texas found an answer to its problem. Simms threw for 383 yards, and he tossed three TD passes in the Longhorns' 27-point third-quarter explosion.

Simms benefitted from throwing to receivers like Williams, whom ardent supporters are beginning to compare to Randy Moss of the Minnesota Vikings.

"I don't think I'm anywhere close to Randy Moss. That's just what you've got to work for," Williams said.

Simms gives Williams a little more credit.

"Let's not make comparisons yet, but Roy is really good," Simms said.

But Williams is just one among a legion of receivers that promise to carry the Longhorns for the years to come. All four of Texas' third quarter touchdowns were made by freshmen: Williams, Johnson and Thomas Sloan.

"The Big Three were big today," Simms said. "They're unbelievable. They're the three best freshman receivers in the country, and I don't think anybody can deny that."

If that were not enough, they did it in playmaking fashion, striking from distances of 55 (Thomas) and 70 (Johnson) yards.

"We always want to make plays. When you see Roy out there succeeding, it keeps you motivated," said Thomas, one of the trio which meets together before each game. "We can't get happy with just this. We have to keep on working as a group and getting better."

Johnson had 187 yards receiving, topping Williams' previous mark for the most single-game receiving yards by a Longhorn freshman.

"I think it's a preview of what UT will be in a couple years," Williams said. "Our offense showed what kind of potential we have to the nation."

Williams, being the West Texas boy that he is, however, has more than just his football talents to show off. Fulfilling a promise made earlier this season, Williams celebrated the victory by singing a tidbit of his song "Chocolate Daddy" for reporters. He claimed that when it comes to singing, he can indeed top Randy Moss.

Whether or not his single ever hits the top of the charts, Williams' playmaking will be pushing Texas up in the polls this week.

Brigham Young lets Edwards retire with win

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — LaVell Edwards went out a winner.

Brandon Doman scored on a 4-yard run with 23 seconds remaining, lifting BYU to a dramatic 34-27 victory over archrival Utah on Friday night in the last game of Edwards' 29-year coaching career.

Doman, who ran an option offense in high school and opened the season listed third on the depth chart, converted a late fourth-and-13 play from BYU's 17 by throwing a 34-yard bullet to Jonathan Pittman.

On the next play, he found Pittman for a 36-yard gain to the Utah 13. From there, it took Doman and the Cougars (6-6, 4-3 Mountain West) two plays to send Edwards into retirement with a victory.

The Utes (4-7, 3-4) appeared to have it won after scoring 17 straight points in the fourth quarter to take a 27-26 lead with 2:16 remaining. Darnell Arceneaux found Matt Nickel wide open for a 20-yard TD to tie it.

The near-capacity crowd of 45,064 went silent on the ensuing PAT attempt.

Two years ago, Ryan Kaneshiro's last-second field goal try clanked off the right crossbar in BYU's 26-24 victory. But he connected this time, sending fans for both teams into a frenzy.

Edwards ends his career ranked sixth on the NCAA's victories list, with a 257-101-3 record, the 1984 national championship, 22 bowl games and 20 conference titles.

Greenwood's rushing attack faces challenge of stout Eagles defense

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

For the Greenwood Rangers to still be playing at this point of the season has surprised many close to and far from the football program.

The Rangers, as some would believe, are a year ahead of schedule of where they should be. But anyone who has seen the Rangers this year should know they are a very dangerous team once they get going on all cylinders.

The 8-3 Rangers hope to keep their Cinderella season going at 1 p.m. today when they face 9-1 Sanford-Fritch in the Class 3A Small School Area round playoffs at Lubbock's Lowrey Field.

In order for the Rangers to get past the Eagles, they are going to have to get by a very stingy defense, which has allowed only 71 points all season long. This season, the Eagles have four shutouts and have held opponents to under 10 points in four others.

The most the Eagles have given up in one game was in a surprising 28-27 loss to Class 2A Spearman early in the season. Other than that game, the Eagles have mounted a wall which has been hard to tear down. Last week, the Eagles held Shallowater to just two field goals in a 20-6 bi-district victory.

"Their defense is the key to their football team," said Greenwood coach Bob Purser. "They just run hard to the football, they're real aggressive and they attack hard. They remind me a lot of Crane's or Lamesa's defense."

A key to offset that great defense for the Rangers is to mix it up on offense. Lately, Greenwood has been a run-dominated team.

In last week's closer-than-expected 28-20 victory over Kermit in bi-district, the Rangers pounded out 397 yards on the ground, while only passing for 11. Junior running back led the way with 224 yards on 24 carries and one touchdown.

"It will definitely be the key to mix it up," Purser said. "But what they do so well is they don't get fooled on anything and they don't have to cheat to come stop you. They don't bring the secondary up to try and stop the run. They just stay back so you can't really hit a home run on them. You just have to be consistent and try to move the ball forward. Our plan is to just run right at them."

Purser would like to see his team's option game be a little more consistent than it has been the past few weeks behind junior quarterback Brandon Smith.

"We can still be a lot better football team than we are right now," Purser said. "I think we just kind of got sloppy here lately. I think this is when you're supposed to be playing your best. I think we can still play better and we can still ride the ship and win this football game. But we're going to have to execute better.

"Between the offensive line and Audas, that is what we've come down to the last coupl of weeks. We just get behind (Sam) Skidmore and give the ball to Audas and everybody else just play hard. We can be more balanced than that."

On offense, the Eagles are led by quarterback Shiloh Reed, who's rushed for 800 yards has passed for 800 yards and has scored 18 touchdowns on the season.

"Offensively, they haven't been that explosive but they just play such great defense that they just have to be adequate," Purser said. "I'm not saying that they're not good, but the strength is definitely their defense."

Notes: The Eagles defense is tough despite not being very big. Out of the starting 11, only three of them weigh more than 200 pounds... The Eagles don't have a long history of being in the playoffs. Sanford-Fritch has been knocked out of the area round in five previous playoff appearances.

Andrews gets luxury of home game

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

ANDREWS — For high school football coaches whose teams are good enough to be playing after Thanksgiving, they've usually spent the week or so prior to Turkey Day making arrangements to find a field for the next round of the playoffs or sweating out a coin toss, hoping it won't mean taking a marathon bus ride.

But Andrews coach Mike Lebby and everybody else involved with the Mustangs could sit down to eat Thursday completely free of such worries. Andrews will enjoy the best of all worlds in the Class 4A Small School area round playoffs today. The Mustangs will host El Paso Parkland at 2 p.m. in the Mustang Bowl.

Andrews won the coin toss for the right to host the game, and the Mustangs are enjoying a rare opportunity to host a playoff matchup.

"We're very fortunate it's worked out this way," said Lebby. "I know we're tickled to death we're not traveling that far."

The Mustangs did have to travel last week to Plainview to play Borger in the bi-district game, and it wasn't an easy trek. Andrews slogged through a game in which the two teams combined for only 10 first downs and didn't score a touchdown in the first three quarters.

Andrews finally broke through for a score when Jamie Bueno ran in from a yard out in the fourth period to give the Mustangs a 10-3 win. The win might not have gotten points for artistry, but it was enough to advance to the second round.

Still, Lebby wants to see more offensive production this week.

"We've got to pick it up on the offensive side but we're confident we can do it," said Lebby.

On defense, though, Lebby and his staff couldn't ask for the Mustangs to do any more. The Mustangs held Borger to two first downs and only 72 total yards, which doesn't exactly put a lot of pressure on the Andrews offense to produce.

In terms of points allowed, the win matched the best previous Andrews defensive effort of the season, a 7-3 District 4-4A win over Snyder.

"Our No. 1 goal every week is to shut out our opponent," said Lebby. "We do feel if we play good defense, we don't have to score a lot of points. We played field position (against Borger) and we weren't going to give them something they could rise up and go with, like if we threw an interception."

Lately, a pair of seniors have been keying the Andrews defensive effort in end Jayme Jackson and middle linebacker Eric Edwards, who each had 10 tackles against Borger. Jackson also had three sacks.

Parkland should present a challenge to the Andrews defense. The Matadors, who defeated Pecos 31-23 last week, are a strong running team, averaging 336 yards a game rushing.

However, Lebby thinks his team can rise to the challenge of a physical matchup that comes with facing a running team.

"They're good running the football," said Lebby of Parkland. "We always like (a physical matchup) if we can get one."

Matt Austin leads Parkland's ground attack with 1,465 yards rushing and 13 touchdowns. Artiese Cheeks has run for 907 yards and nine touchdowns. Wide receiver Michael Jefferson is a big play threat, with 23 catches for 608 yards and eight touchdowns.

It's no secret how Andrews likes to move the ball. Tailback Bueno has run for 1,903 yards this season, and with a typically solid game against Parkland, he'll surpass 2,000 for the season.

Where Parkland might have an Achilles heel is on defense, since the Matadors have several players who play both ways. But Lebby doesn't feel that should strain Parkland too hard.

"This late in the year, everybody's in pretty decent shape," said Lebby. "We still feel like we can put some points on the board against (Parkland's defense)."

The Mustangs have gotten to this point by making few mistakes, simply because they realize that even just one mistake can snowball into a situation which can end your season. But that's a lesson they learned at the beginning of October.

"There aren't many (games) left," said Lebby. "We've played that way since the Big Spring game (a 21-13 loss) and we haven't lost since."

Lee girls split in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland Lee girls basketball team split a pair of games at the Northeast ISD tournament Friday, narrowly falling to San Antonio Clark 43-38 to open the day before routing Killeen Shoemaker 79-35 to finish the day.

The Lady Rebels (3-5) took a 19-9 lead against Clark in the first quarter, but couldn't make it hold up. Clark outscored Lee 13-6 in the fourth quarter to go ahead for good. Shamera Bryson led the Lady Rebels with 12 points while Shandi Neatherlin added 10.

Against Shoemaker, Lee was in command the whole way, using a 26-9 run in the second quarter to pull away. Bryson again led the way with 17 points while Wykia Wallace added 16 and Neatherlin had 12.

Lee will play today at 9 a.m. against San Antonio Jay, and if the Lady Rebels win they'll play at 4:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Lady Steers fall to Merkel

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring girls basketball team fell in the last minute of their non-district game to Merkel, 49-48, Friday night.

Big Spring (3-2) trailed most of the night, but tied the game at 47-47 after a put-back shot by LaTrisha Rollins. The Lady Steers added a point when Crystal Long hit a free throw to give the LAdy Steers the lead.

However, with 52 seconds left, Merkel's Sunny Riggan made two free throws for the final points of the game. Riggan had 10 for the game. Merkel's Misti Maxey and Shelley Vaughn added 11 each.

Big Spring's Melissa Forth recorded a game-high 13. Big Spring hosts Coahoma at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

LEE: Rebels total 382 yards on ground

(From 1B)

from Michael Wynn and a 52-yard pass from Nick Hand to Benson.

"The momentum starts, and they started executing," Franklin coach Tony Grijalva said. "You can slow them down, but sooner or later, it breaks. Our defense isn't shabby, but they wore us down."

The wearing down process took place in the second half when Lee scored on its first three possessions. Benson, who had 201 yards on the ground, scored on touchdown runs of 52 and 11 yards. His understudy, junior Freddie Jones, ran one in from five yards out. Two possessions later Jones sprinted 52 yards for his second touchdown of the night. It was Lee's seventh score in eight possessions.

"We came out in the second half and scored on every meaningful possession," Parchman said. "The difference was the intensity."

Lee totaled 382 yards on the ground and 89 in the air.

But now, the first two rounds are over. Lee's bid for a three-peat is alive and well, although the road gets much tougher. The Rebels knew this coming into Friday night's game.

"We might have peeked and worried (about who's next), but we are taking it one step at a time," Lee defensive lineman Fred Thrweatt said.

Two steps down, three to go.

Games Notes: Lee's Robert Rogers returned to the field, taking part in a number of snaps at defensive end for the Rebels, once pressuring Franklin quarterback Michael Roth to throw early and Paul Gonzales intercepted... Lee's defense wanted that fourth shutout in five games. In the fourth quarter, the Cougars were driving on the second team defense when Lee inserted the No. 1 unit back on the field. Franklin scored on the first play against the No. 1s.

"We wanted the shutout," Thrweatt said. "We wanted to show everybody in the state that the first three weren't a fluke."

El Paso Franklin fans may have seen the hand writing on the wall. The Cougars sold no advance tickets to the area round matchup... There was a crowd of 7,500 at Memorial Stadium...

MHS: Bulldogs triumph

(From 1B)

That might have seemed natural after the first quarter. Montwood (3-1) went on a pair of 8-0 runs, the last of which stretched into the second quarter, and the Rams went up 28-13. But the Bulldogs reeled off an 11-0 run late in the first half, as a 3-pointer by White cut it to three and Montwood led 36-33 at halftime.

Midland High tied it three times in the third quarter, but couldn't manage to take the lead. That came early in the fourth quarter after Jarvis Brown and Roman Conner hit back-to-back 3-pointers which gave the Bulldogs a 54-52 lead. Neither team led by more than four the rest of the way.

The 3-pointer was a huge factor in the Bulldogs getting back into the game, as they hit 10 treys, including five by Brown, who scored 21 for his third straight effort over 20 points. Stephenson admitted to prodding his troops a little more from the sidelines this time.

"I'm trying to do what I think we have to do to win," said Stephenson. "Like with Roman Conner. I'd been after him about his defense and tonight he came through like I thought he could."

STANTON: Buffaloes rush for 305 yards

took a 21-6 advantage into the locker room.

"I think that was a huge deal," said Cotton about his team scoring right before the half. "To be quite honest, when I saw the flag I didn't know what it was for. If they (Lions) had gotten that and had kept us from scoring, it would've been totally different."

"I got lucky on a few of my passes," Cook said. "That (interception called) back was a big one but it happens. We had a sloppy game this week and we just have to play better next week."

That denied interception proved to be huge because early in the third quarter, Ozona got a big momentum boost when Ray Ramos busted through the line and went 75 yards untouched for a score. A failed pass attempt on the two-point conversion had Ozona down just 21-12.

But it didn't take long for the Stanton offensive machine to get rolling as the Buffs scored on their next possession when Hull culminated a nine-play, 75-yard drive on a four-yard TD run to make it 27-12.

Ozona then responded to Stanton's score on its next possession as Dustin Faught caught one of his two touchdown receptions on the night on a 13-yard pass from Kyle Richardson to make it 27-18 in favor of Stanton. Faught was brilliant as the 6-foot-1 wide receiver had six catches for 142 yards.

"He did a good job catching the football and they did a good job getting it to him," said Cotton about Faught's work against his secondary.

The Stanton running game proved to be the deciding factor as Hull raced 49 yards for a score down the far sideline early in the fourth quarter to give the Buffs a commanding 34-18 lead. Hull had 135 of his yards in the second half.

"We said in the locker room that we can't hold anything back and every play counts," said Hull who scored three touchdowns rushing and also had a TD catch. "We still made mistakes but we gave a lot more effort in the second half."

Ozona probably could've made it closer but two interceptions and three lost fumbles proved costly. The last fumble was returned by Clay White 28 yards for a touchdown.

Football Playoffs

Cooper 44, Del Valle 22

ABILENE — The Abilene Cooper Cougars took another step forward in the Class 5A Small School playoffs Friday night with a 44-22 win over El Paso Del Valle.

Cooper, 9-3, advances to play the winner of Coppell (6-5) and DeSoto (8-3) area game. Those teams will play at 1 p.m. today in Texas Stadium.

Del Valle, 11-1, bows out of the playoffs after falling behind 44-0 to Cooper before finally putting 22 points in lights in the fourth quarter against the Cougar reserves.

Brandon Diles, not Tremaine you know, rushed for 110 yards and Cooper quarterback Jordan Neal completed 16 of 23 passes for 224 yards.

terback Phil Simms.

After a season in which he bounced in and out of the starting lineup and had more interceptions than touchdown passes coming into the game, Simms got the start because Major Applewhite was hobbled by a knee injury.

"This year's been ups and downs and bumps and bruises," Simms said. "I knew I had to learn from everything that was happening. It was part of growing up. Today was a real big redemption."

Simms got his first career start against A&M last year when Applewhite got sick with a stomach virus on game day. Simms led Texas to a 16-6 lead in that game before he was pulled for Applewhite and A&M rallied for a 20-16 win.

This time, Simms was in total control.

Leading 10-7 at halftime, the Longhorns (9-2, 7-1 Big 12) opened the decisive third quarter by driving 71 yards on four plays. Roy Williams capped the drive with a 40-yard TD run on a reverse.

After forcing the Aggies to punt, Texas quickly struck again when Simms finished an 81-yard drive with a 20-yard scoring strike to Williams that made it 24-7.

The Aggies (7-4, 5-3) rallied behind 25-year-old quarterback Mark Farris to pull to 24-14 on a 56-yard scoring pass to Mickey Jones. Jones beat two defenders and scampered down the sideline for the score.

But Simms, who had four pickoffs returned for scores this season, never wavered.

On Texas' next drive, Simms hit Sloan Thomas on a deep out pattern. Thomas broke a tackle and turned it into a 55-yard touchdown play.

Simms struck again later in the quarter when he pump-faked on another out pattern and launched a 70-yard bomb to B.J. Johnson that made it 37-17.

"They're the three best freshmen receivers in the country," Simms said. "I don't think anybody can deny that."

As the clock wound down in the final minute, Simms turned to the crowd and waived his arms up and down as if all the expectations of him had been fulfilled.

"Chris played awesome," said Johnson, whose 187 receiving yards broke the Texas freshman mark of 179 set earlier this season by Williams.

"He stepped up in a big game and played his heart out. Today, he showed what he can do and what kind of power he has on the football field."

The victory also helped Texas fulfill some of the high expectations the Longhorns had when they the started the season ranked in the Top 10.

The win gives Texas its third-consecutive nine-win season under coach Mack Brown, the first time the Longhorns have accomplished that feat since 1981-83. It is also likely to put Texas back into the Top 10 for the first time since early September.

"How does this win stack up? Tonight, it's the biggest I've ever had," Brown said.

"This game was really important to us because I want to win 10 games," Brown said. The Longhorns haven't won 10 games in a season since 1995.

Farris, who had returned to A&M after a stint playing minor league baseball and had been praised by Aggies coaches for his poise this season, finished with 290 yards passing and set the Aggies' single-season record with 2,551 yards.

But he also made two critical turnovers.

His first pass of the game was picked off of by Greg Brown, who returned it 10 yards for a 7-0 Texas lead in the opening minutes.

"On the road, things snowball and we couldn't stop them," Farris said. "We all could have played better."

A&M trailed 10-7 in the second quarter when Farris killed a potential go-ahead drive with a fumble on the Texas 9.

Kris Stockton had field goals of 34, 31 and 30 yards to set a Texas single-season record with 22.

The game was the kind of shootout the 106-year-old rivalry needed.

State bragging rights were overshadowed last year by the A&M bonfire tragedy. Twelve people were killed and dozens more injured when the log stack for traditional pre-game blaze collapsed.

The rivalry appeared back on track early in the week when the Longhorns defenders said Aggie fullback Ja'Mar Toombs would "fold" if hit hard enough.

Toombs rushed for 126 yards and scored twice against Texas last year. He managed just 53 yards on Friday and didn't score.

Still up in the air are bowl options for both teams. Although Texas can't win the Big 12, the Longhorns haven't yet been released by the Bowl Championship Series. The Holiday and Cotton Bowls are possible destinations.

The Aggies are most likely destined for the Alamo, Insight.com or Independence bowls.

Tomey quits after loss to Arizona State

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Dick Tomey ended 14 seasons as head coach at Arizona on Friday night by resigning moments after the Wildcats' 30-17 loss to Arizona State.

Tomey, 62, was under considerable pressure after his last two teams went 6-6 and 5-6.

He told his players of his decision in the locker room after the loss.

"I just told them that I didn't think I could continue because the public debate has become so difficult for my family, for our team, for our coaches and their families," Tomey said.

Local ministry provides for churches' BASIC needs

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

Drive the streets of Midland's east and south sides and the most prominent architectural landmark you'll notice is the Christian cross, presiding over a neighborhood church, where, on Sundays and Wednesdays, their congregations come together, dressed in their best, bringing their best energies and talents in service to their God and to their neighbors.

Quite often, they also bring considerable ingenuity when they come, since the church budget allows for little more than a small allowance for Sunday School materials, the utilities and the minister's stipend.

Deborah Fikes, a member of First Baptist Church of Midland, is on the board of an organization that tries to alleviate some of those small churches' hardships. Brothers And Sisters In Christ (BASIC) Ministries Inc. has identified 45 small churches in the community and has initiated steps to learn more specifically what needs they have, and how those needs might be met. First consideration was to get to know the pastors of the neighborhood churches, and to establish a relationship — a goal made difficult because the pastors are often moonlighting during the week.

"Most minority churches have only one paid staff member, which is the pastor," Ms. Fikes said. "In addition to their pastoral duties, they often serve as minister of music, youth minister, education director, secretary and custodian. They also may work at another secular job to make ends meet."

BASIC Ministries Inc., formed about three years ago, has supported the Lumberyard Church, located at 401 S Main St., since its beginning, and has made the facility available to Christian groups for denominational and interdenominational events. Iglesia Bautista Antioquia meets at the Lumberyard Church for their Sunday services.

Other members of BASIC ministries include representatives of WWJD, an inner-city children's ministry, a multicultural Young Life ministry, and Teen Flow, for adolescent students.

BASIC's board chair, Ryan Reddell, said he is especially interested in BASIC's mission to small churches,

Group sponsors Bicycle Club Project

From Staff Reports

The Bicycle Club Project, sponsored by BASIC Ministries, provides an opportunity for small churches to purchase bicycles to be distributed as an outreach program to needy families.

There also will be a mentoring program where the children receiving the bikes will be asked to attend a "Bicycle Club" on designated weekends in their neighborhoods. Activities will include decorating their new bikes for a parade, bicycle races, etc, and will allow people in the churches to get to know the children and the special needs of their families.

The Bicycle Club Project is financed through donations by churches and organizations, individuals and families.

Grant allows ministers to take time off for personal renewal

By Kimberly Hefling
Associated Press

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Steve Thomas cherishes the decade he's spent as pastor of Walnut Hill Mennonite Church in Goshen, Ind.

But he worries about the toll it has taken on his wife, kids and even himself.

"There's nothing I'd rather be doing than my work, but it's stressful and it's a burden on my family," Thomas said. "My children don't always get as much attention as I'd like them to."

So it was joyous event for Thomas and his kids — ages 6, 9, 11 — when he found out he had received a $29,950 Lilly Endowment grant to take a few months off for a sabbatical next summer.

His family will tag along on some of his excursions that include tracing the apostle Paul's journeys in Turkey and Greece and exploring Mayan Indian ruins.

Elisabeth Baer, 41, left, pastor of St. Peter's United Church of Christ in Evansville, Ind., and parishioners Betty Briel, Judy Allen and Eunice Harper make a German coffee cake as part of an annual fund-raiser for the church. Ms. Baer has received a Lilly Endowment grant to take a sabbatical next summer.

"My children were jumping up and screaming," Thomas said. "It was like we won the lottery."

A clergy renewal program funded and administered by the Indianapolis-based endowment provides up to $30,000 annually to ministers to take a sabbatical focusing on relaxation. Part of the grant can be used to pay for pastoral services for the congregation while the minister is away.

Over two years, 53 ministers have received grants for sabbaticals ranging from the exotic — studying the faith of the aboriginal people in New Zealand — to the more practical — visiting family in the Midwest.

Until now, the recipients have been from Indiana. In December, the endowment is expected to add a similar program for pastors outside the state.

Ministers say the program addresses a problem many are reluctant to talk about: burnout for religious leaders.

"It's a huge problem, our denial about this," Thomas said. "We don't recognize the symptoms when they're happening and don't think ahead of time about what we really need."

Pastors commonly work long hours, often attending weekend and night meetings. They're there during the significant events in people's lives — deaths, births, marriages and times of sickness, but the emotional toll on the pastors is sometimes forgotten, said Richard J. Bruesehoff, co-author of the book "Clergy Renewal: The Alban Guide to Sabbatical Planning."

Bruesehoff sees sabbaticals as necessary for ministers to reflect and sit in the presence of God.

"There's a long-lived tradition that expects religious leaders (to) be people who can, in a sense, look beyond the present realities to the larger realities of our spiritual lives," Bruesehoff said. "You simply can't do that without sitting quietly in the presence of God."

Thomas agrees.

"I think of it in terms of being spiritually revitalized," Thomas said. "A pastor gives and gives and gives. If at a point you're not replenished, you become spiritually bankrupt."

Addressing the problem of clergy burnout is not new. Other programs such as SonScape Re-Creation Ministries in Colorado offer programs that provide a retreat for ministers.

In addition, some denominations offer scholarships or stipends to help pay for a minister to take a sabbatical in order to focus on some type of project or academic study.

The Lilly Endowment's clergy renewal program is different in that it expects the ministers to avoid too much structure and have a good time on sabbatical.

The Lilly Endowment funds the program as part of its interest in promoting religion. The foundation, created in 1937 by members of the founding family of Eli Lilly and Co. and funded with stock in the pharmaceutical company, also promotes education and community development.

Some applicants find the concept of relaxing on sabbatical difficult to accept.

Elisabeth Bauer, pastor of St. Peter's United Church of Christ in Evansville, was rejected the first time she submitted an application to the program because it was focused on devoting her time to graduate studies.

"It was too academic, too serious-minded, too work-oriented," Ms. Bauer said, laughing. "It took me a while to get a sense of what the clergy renewal program is for: It's for renewal."

Ms. Bauer rewrote her application with plans to go on a Quaker retreat in Pennsylvania and take sailing classes with her family. This time, she was accepted.

Some of the ministers' congregations also use the sabbaticals to replenish themselves.

At St. Peters, the congregation is bringing in religious leaders from Jewish and Islamic faiths as well as some black churches to study diversity while Ms. Bauer is away.

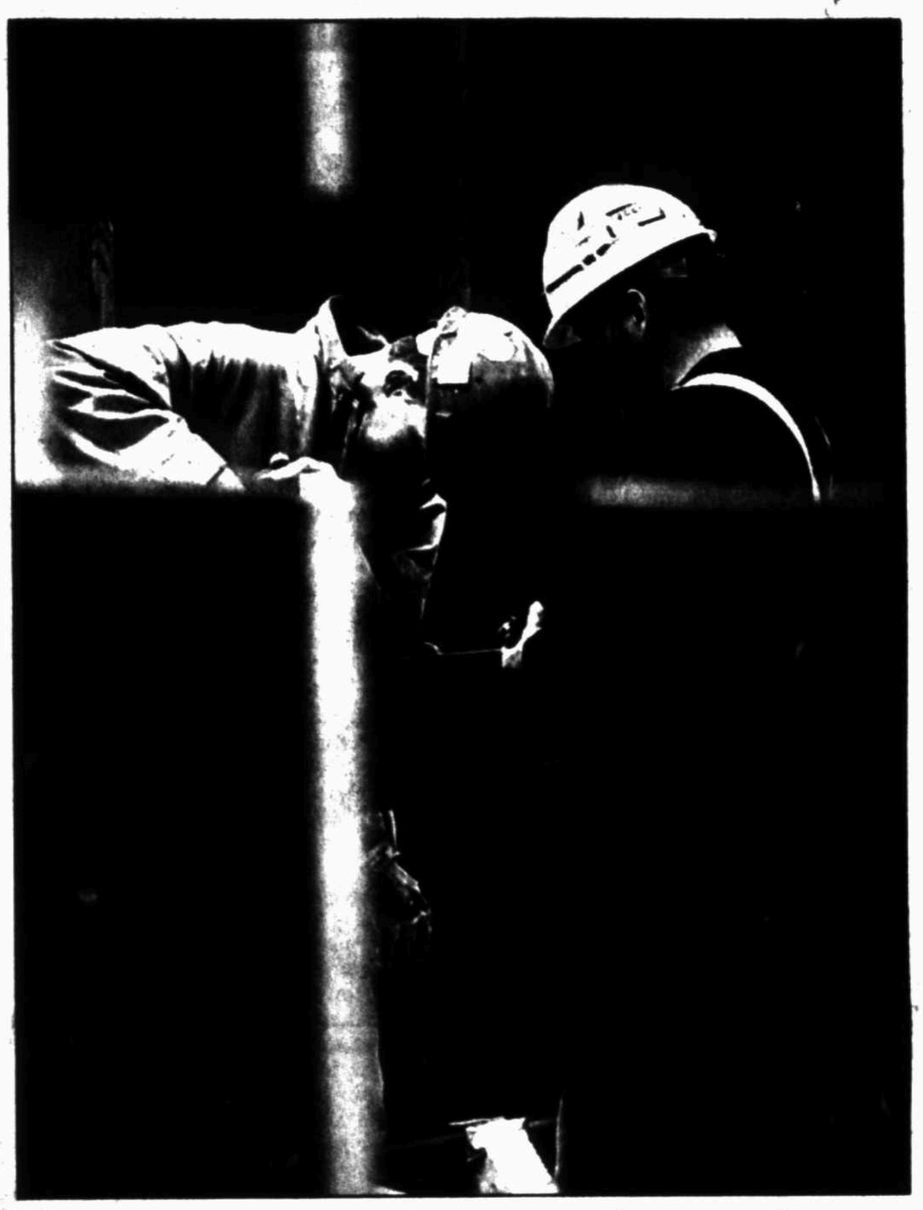

"To a church, they consider this an important program for their pastor and for them," said Gretchen Wolfram, a spokeswoman for the endowment. It's necessary "to pick up the reins while the pastor and his or her family are not around, and they've been very willing to do that."

So while the pastor is changing, so is the congregation.

Cathy Johns, co-pastor of First United Methodist Church in Warsaw with her husband, said she was so nervous the week before coming back that she couldn't sleep. She did not know what to expect.

After three months of activities that included visiting several churches in the United States and traveling in Greece, Turkey and Egypt, she wasn't used to feeling so refreshed, Ms. Johns said.

"I think the thing I learned from the whole thing is I need to not take myself so seriously," Ms. Johns said. "I think a lot of pastors do that. We get so wrapped up in all the stuff you have to do, you forget to do fun things."

New St. Nicholas is taking shape

By Johnnye Montgomery

"With heaven my throne and earth my footstool, what house could you build me, what place could you make for my rest?"
Isaiah 66: 1

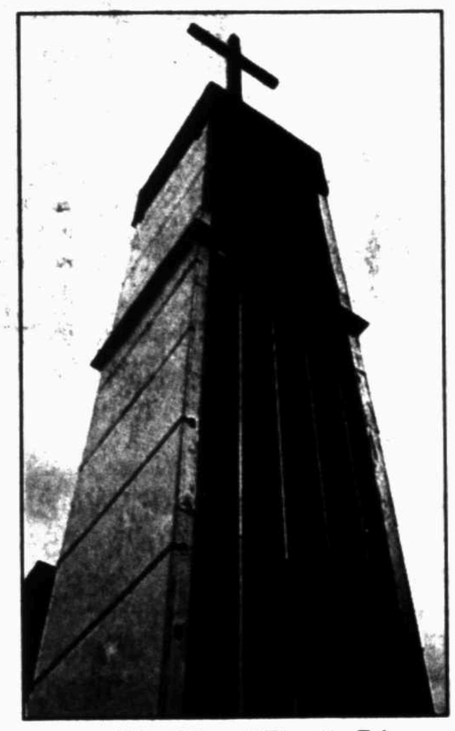

If construction is any indicator, then religion in Midland and Odessa must indeed be healthy, where the erection or reconstruction of churches seems to go on and on regardless of the state of the economy. Warren Cloyd, assistant building official for the city of Midland, says he can recall few instance in the past 10 years when there has not been at least one church undergoing some phase of construction.

"Churches are not always being built, but there is almost always a church being either remodeled or built in this city," he said.

Presently the most visible raising of a church in Midland is St. Nicholas Episcopal, just off Loop 250 on Midland's north side. The process goes deeper than physical relocation, however, according to Stan Jacobs, chair of St. Nick's building committee.

"It really goes back to a group of peo-

Cornbread contests don't compare with joy of heavenly family reunions

Williams

My mother was the youngest of five sisters who grew up and competed fiercely over cornbread. This grueling battle often took place at Thanksgiving (when cornbread dressing was involved). The designated cook/contestant slaved in the kitchen, while the others sat round the dining room table swapping yarns. At the perfect moment, the cook brought out the cornbread, took a bite, and pronounced, "It's not fit to eat."

Success was measured by the volume of disclaimers.

Early on, I decided not to buy into this one, choosing instead to bake cornbread dressing from a box, adding bizarre and unorthodox elements such as pecans and sausage. I'd rather be considered the "renegade" niece than "the one who failed the cornbread test."

Eight years ago, tragedy struck our family. My aunt and uncle and cousin were murdered in their home during a Sunday supper by two teens high on speed, intending to rob them. This event, of course, changed our lives forever. The horror has marked us deeply, and it has taken many years to resolve the theological questions raised that tragic evening.

We gathered in Kerrville bleary-eyed from crying, trying to make sense out of an event that would never make sense. Between cups of black coffee, we discovered that the media had informed the world that my relatives were eating chili, beans, and cornbread. "Cornbread?" my sister asked. Then she blurted, "Must not" have been fit to eat."

We sat stunned for one second staring at each other in disbelief, then burst into the kind of hysterical laughter only deep grief can produce. For a few precious minutes, we laughed.

I'll never forget how we grasped at that slender thread of humor. We needed that moment badly. Just when I thought I was going to die of grief — one quick comment reminded us that Jesus, too, had the last laugh over death.

In my family's Southern Gothic tradition (I was 13 before I realized that everyone didn't have a great grandmother living in her nightgown up near the attic for 20 years doing crossword puzzles), my grandmother had an unforgettable graveside service. A beautiful woman who raised five beauty queens (who also excelled in the cornbread department), my grandmother joked, "Put me in a coffin where my legs show. I've always had nice legs."

Twenty years later, when she died at 97, she was cremated, although this is not a comment on her legs. They were terrific until the end. The memorial service was held in 101-degree Oklahoma heat. We will all treasure the memory of the flowers and the sweet sentiment of the first half of the service. Then, an elderly gentleman collapsed, and sirens from the EMS drowned out the rest. The climax of the chaos occurred when one of the youngest cousins was prancing around the fake grass and fell spectacularly in the hole dug for Mamah's cremains.

The holiday season brings up family memories, funny and sad, and retrospect gilds pain so we can live with our memories. The beauty of God's gift to us is that His love triumphs: Cornbread contests just can't compare with the joy of heavenly family reunions.

CHURCH: New building follows St. Nicholas' mission statement

ple who made a commitment to growth a number of years ago, when we acquired eight acres on the Loop, and we decided not only to keep the land, but to build a church on it," Jacobs said.

"We decided we had something we wanted to share with the community of Midland, not thinking in terms of building so much as growing the initiative to salt the city of Midland with the spirit of what we had.

"We had people who were uncommonly involved in the community, serving on the boards of just about every organization in town — the arts community, civic organizations, municipal bodies, etc.

"And Fr. Stasney (rector of St. Nicholas) had this idea of a church in the marketplace. He had a connection with a church in England that was downtown, in the middle of things. This idea appealed to us for its accessibility, visibility and inclusion, three concepts that are at the cornerstone of our whole mission statement: to know Christ and to make him known."

Jacobs said the location of the donated land, between Wal-Mart and McDonald's, offered high visibility and easy accessibility to the growing community on Midland's north side, thus providing an answer to St. Nick's most pressing problems with its Princeton Avenue location, which is deep in a residential area between Andrews Highway and Whitney.

When St. Nick's began there as a mission in 1956, the quiet upscale neighborhood that now surrounds it was a cotton field. The first church house was a converted barracks building moved in from the old U.S. Army Air Base at Terminal, bought at a bargain.

But as the years went by, St. Nick's parish grew in stature and grace, and so did the surrounding neighborhood. By the 1980s, St. Nick's was seen as one of the loveliest churches in town, a church that was so secluded that many described it as hard to find, but worth the searching out, where the soul in need of respite could find peace and comfort.

Yet parking was on the streets, with parishioners and visitors having to be careful not to block residential driveways. And St. Nick's had added facilities and classrooms until there was nowhere left to expand.

The gift of eight acres, and the decision by the parish to build on it, were not without emotional consequences. For many of St. Nick's parishioners, the Princeton address is the only church building they've known as home. They have married there, celebrated the lives of their loved ones at funerals there and presented children, grandchildren and godchildren to be baptized and confirmed there.

Yet, for St. Nick's vestry, the dilemma stared them in the face with every church bulletin bearing the church's mission statement: To know Christ and to make him known.

It's easier to make Christ known when you're visible, accessible and inclusive. Jacobs said that was uppermost in the minds of the committee members.

"We considered what type of structures speaks to those three points, and what speaks of us and our worshipful connection to God.

"Worship is the most important thing.

"Certainly the idea of education, outreach prayer, and our whole mission statement: to know Christ and to make him known, was uppermost in our minds throughout this process. When we started imagining how to design the church, we thought first off what structure would best enable us to carry out our mission.

"Education and programs are important, but first you have to say, 'Here we are.'"

After deciding to build on the Loop, St. Nick's architect selection committee interviewed architects from around the state. They chose Johnson Seefeldt of Odessa as principal architectural firm and requested that it consult with Overland Partners of San Antonio, designers of the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center in Austin, the towering neo-Gothic St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Amarillo and the River Bend Church in Austin. A former St. Nick's parishioner, Tim Blonquist, whose parents still belong to St. Nick's, is an associate with Overland.

The chosen builder was Cooper Construction Co. Inc., known for its construction and reconstruction work with houses of worship. Builder of structures for churches and faith communities throughout the Permian Basin,

'Our original concept was to incorporate the four basic elements of earth, air, fire and water.'
— Stan Jacobs, building committee chairman

Cooper Construction's president, John W. Cooper IV, not only came with an excellent reputation but is also a parishioner of St. Nicholas Church and had worked with Johnson Seefeldt on other churches.

At the groundbreaking, held on a frigid day a year ago while the wind raged around them, a little group of parishioners joined hands and prayed for the project.

Cooper was among those who shouted out their extemporaneous prayers.

"Lord, we know that this structure we raise is temporary, but that the work we do in your name is eternal," he prayed.

Larry Johnson, president of Johnson Seefeldt, said that while the St. Nick's project was much prayed over, he doesn't consider church buildings to be radically different from other construction since in every project the overriding consideration is not the building; it's the people.

"You must constantly communicate. From the beginning, when you're deciding how many people you're going to accommodate and what they do, and what they think they will be doing in the future (and) what (the building is) going to look like, you have to be sure you understand what they want.

"By the time you get past what they do, there's parking and landscaping, and most burdensome of all is how much it's going to cost, and how to accommodate the need to grow," Johnson said. "You build what you can afford initially, but at the same time, you want to be able to add on to that building later."

Johnson added that steps should be taken throughout the entire process to ensure that the building would be beautiful.

"If it doesn't look right while you're growing, it won't be a part of the solution."

At St. Nick's, beauty comes out of the function with every board hammered in place, every rock cemented in. Soaring walls inside the sanctuary are planned to serve as projection screens for contemporary services, towering ceilings for acoustic and esthetic purposes and other features that will allow growth in the future. A parlor/library is now being built inside a space that can later become a part of the sanctuary, simply by removing walls and adding pews.

Johnson said those walls are specifically designed with that future need in mind. "You don't want to paint yourself into a corner by building walls that will be a problem to tear down later to add more space."

The first and by far the most visible component of the new church is the 45-foot-high bell tower, which can be seen from the Loop on a slight rise just before reaching the Midland Drive exit.

"It didn't even occur to us not to have a bell tower with a cross on top, because that's who we are," said Jacobs.

The entire church, interior and exterior, is designed to aid in worship and contemplation. There will be a columbarium outside the church courtyard, an outside reflecting pool surrounded by rough stones, and above it on the wall there will be an 8-foot bronze statue of St. Nicholas, patron saint of children and sailors. Jacobs is designing and creating the statue. Just inside the nave entry stands the baptismal font, an immersion pool, with the aisle leading unobstructed to the sanctuary, presided over by a cross.

"Our original concept was how to incorporate the four basic elements of earth, air, fire and water," Jacobs said. "We designed it to make the best use of these four elements. The vast Permian Sea, the air, the fire of spiritual passion at Pentecost and the water of baptism and cleansing."

Although much of the structure of the new St. Nick's has taken shape for its parishioners to recognize the nave, the parish hall, the courtyard and the parking lots, the beauty of it all still resides in the artists' and architects' drawings and on the Web page of St. Nicholas.

But there are signposts of progress.

"We meet with this group of sweaty workers in a little yellow trailer every Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.," said Jacobs. "We have two architects, the construction contracting supervisor, plumbing and electrical contractors, masons and others involved in the building.

"On the week that they had raised the bell tower, just as they were coming off the site, one of the workers looked up at the cross, and said, 'Now itlooks like a church.' That was a key moment for me."

NEEDS: BASIC can help churches pay their bills

since he has seen first-hand the commitment and time the pastors of these small churches give to their congregations and community.

"I have a business on the south side of town, and for years I have driven by small churches that are in bad shape, and just barely keeping their doors open," Reddell said. "I know some of these pastors, and I see them trying to hold a garage sale or some other type of fund-raiser just to pay the church's utility bills."

Recently, the board started a weekly luncheon, called "Up Close and Personal," at the Lumberyard Church, where board members and church pastors can meet and get to know one another while discussing needs and resources.

"Encouragement and fellowshipping among brothers and sisters in Christ can have a tremendous positive impact on the community," said Ms. Fikes. "And we hope as many ministers as possible will take this opportunity to speak and let us know what they need, and how we can assist them."

Several projects have already begun in response to needs stated by pastors who have attended the luncheons.

BASIC hopes to provide clerical assistance, resource materials and other practical help to the ministers of minority churches through an office that has been offered to BASIC Ministries and staffed with volunteers for this purpose. The BASIC office will act as clearinghouse and agent for churches needing supplies and services and for volunteers and donors of supplies and services. There are already clerical workers in place who have volunteered to do typing and copying for ministers of small churches.

"Bikes for BASIC," a bicycle drive that will enable poorer churches to distribute bicycles to targeted children. Funding for the program is done through BASIC, and receipts are given to donors for tax purposes. The bicycles will all be new, and will be chosen especially to fit the individuals receiving them.

Reddell said the possibilities are growing as more and more individuals and churches in the community become aware of BASIC.

"BASIC hopes to become a ministry that helps churches and organizations become aware of what is already being done in our community, and expand our working together across denominational and racial lines as real brothers and sisters in Christ," he explained. "This kind of unity can change our community and our world like nothing else can."

Ms. Fikes said from a personal perspective, that she thinks the larger, wealthier churches are eager to do their part.

"I have had the privilege of working on the mission committee of First Baptist Church of Midland and I have seen how much of a difference a large church like ours can make in partnering with smaller groups who are in the trenches," she said. "If these dedicated laborers for Christ's kingdom can give their time and energy, the least we can do is to provide some of the resources and encouragement they need."

BASIC Ministries' other projects include providing assistance to single mothers and their children, the sponsorship of mission trips for small churches in need of funds for such trips, the purchase of used vehicles for individuals to use in various ministries, contributions to the Midland Para Cristo crusade, and assistance to small churches with utility bills and for youth activities.

Up Close and Personal luncheons are scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Tuesdays at the Lumberyard Church, 401 S. Main. No reservations are necessary, and any minister or individual interested in becoming involved in BASIC Ministries Inc. is welcome. For questions about BASIC, or to learn more about opportunities to expand BASIC's ministries, call the BASIC Ministries office at 520-3488.

McCartney highest-earning rock star in history, magazine reports

NEW YORK — Paul McCartney is the highest-earning rock star in history with an estimated personal value of $750 million, according to Business Age magazine.

The former Beatle racked up the huge sum from album sales, royalty payments, stock investments and property holdings, the British magazine said. A new album of Beatles' No. 1 hits, "1," was released Nov. 13.

McCartney beat his nearest rival for the top spot — Elton John — by $500 million. Other top earners included Rolling Stones stars Mick Jagger and Keith Richards, with $225 million and $220 million, respectively, David Bowie, with $145 million, and Engelbert Humperdinck, 64, with $100 million.

"Age accounts for everything in this survey," Business Age editor Chris Butt told the New York Post. "The real route to financial success is down to a star's 'classic' status."

NEW YORK — Her first Hollywood role was a bit unfeminine, but she did have full makeup and a body double.

Kelley, the dog who plays Max in "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas," got a makeover after being rescued from the pound by trainer Roger Schumacher. For the movie, she wore a headpiece of long ears and had her tail dyed black.

She also had computer-generated doubles for distance shots and a real dog double, Chip.

As Max, Kelley dances, wears an antler as the Grinch's faithful reindeer and even pulls his giant sleigh up a steep mountain. It was no easy task for Kelley — or Schumacher.

"She's feisty, and she's hyper. She'll try to get away," Schumacher told USA Today. "She's probably one of the smartest dogs I've ever trained, but she'll try you."

ANANDBAN, Nepal (AP) — Britain's Princess Anne visited leprosy patients in the hills of Nepal, where lepers are considered untouchable in the Hindu caste system.

Princess Anne clasped her two hands together in a traditional greeting, smiled and said "Namaste," which translates roughly as "How are you?"

"Her royal highness asked me if I was knitting a cap ... I could not reply in English so I just put the unfinished knit on my chest to show her it was a sweater," said Basundhara Kundel, a 50-year-old woman who has spent three months in the Anandban Leprosy Hospital, run by the British-based Leprosy Mission International.

Contrary to popular belief, leprosy, a skin affliction caused by a bacteria, is among the least communicable of all bacterial diseases. Doctors say most leprosy sufferers have no access to treatment and the exact number in Nepal is unknown.

VALENCIA, Spain — Phan Thi Kim Phuc, the Vietnamese woman who as a 9-year-old girl was photographed fleeing a 1972 napalm attack, says she wants the picture to be used as a protest against wars.

"This picture is a powerful gift for me to promote peace," Kim Phuc said Thursday pointing at the naked and screaming youngster in the world-acclaimed photograph by Associated Press photographer Nick Ut, who won a Pulitzer Prize.

"With this photo, I want to tell people how horrible a war can be," said 37-year-old Kim Phuc, currently president of a humanitarian foundation that helps innocent young victims of war.

Kim Phuc was in this eastern city to attend a three-day international conference to plot strategies against rape, wife-beating, sexual exploitation and female circumcision.

Some 1,300 activists from around the world were invited by Spain's Queen Sofia Center for the Study of Violence to discuss gender-based violence.

Kim Phuc, who lives in Canada and has two sons, said that despite the passing of time, she has never got over the war, adding that when alone she can't look at the picture.

"It's terrible, it seemed to me like it happened yesterday," she said.

NEW YORK — Winning an Oscar flooded Helen Hunt's mailbox.

"I immediately got offered a lot of movies, and said no to every one of them," Hunt told Movieline magazine in its November editions. "Nothing felt exactly right, and I had been spoiled by having everything be exactly right in terms of my series and 'As Good As It Gets.'"

The Emmy-winning star of the NBC series "Mad About You" won an Academy Award for "As Good As It Gets," which also starred Jack Nicholson and Greg Kinnear.

"For a long time, every movie that came out was one I had read. I won't say what the movies were, because the actresses who starred in them might not know I was offered them first. Eventually, I wasn't the first person they came to, but the fifth."

Since her Oscar win, Hunt has starred in "Dr. T and the Women" and "Pay It Forward." She next stars in "Cast Away" with Tom Hanks and "What Women Want" opposite Mel Gibson.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 25, 2000:

You are unusually creative and dynamic this year. Others come to you for answers, solutions and ideas. You enjoy your role. Sometimes you have difficulty understanding others and why they act as they do. If you are single, romance blooms because of your high desirability and your ability to intuit another. Encourage your sweetie to talk about his feelings. Get to know a potential loved one better. If attached, your partner cannot do enough for you. Let the good vibes flow. Attempt to walk in your significant other's shoes. GEMINI is lucky for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Surprising news starts your day. New beginnings are possible with in-laws or a new person in your life. Evolve and attempt to look at others from a more creative and dynamic perspective. Allow your personality to come out. Tonight: Have a good time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ Think of yourself as part of the team. Recognize your limits with a certain strong personality in your life. New financial and emotional beginnings are possible with a key relationship. Others might be more interested in listening. You go overboard with spending. Tonight: Let another make the first move.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Another means well but has an odd way of expressing it. Make resolutions about your social life. Others understand that you mean what you say. Your natural ebullience brings others out. Tonight: Wherever the party is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You opt to be constructive rather than frivolous. Dig right in and go for what you feel is essential. You cannot, nor should you, do anything halfway. Your high energy, mixed with intuition, directs you with another. You know what to do. Tonight: By all means, take it easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ How you say what you think has a lot to do with how it is received. Open up to a new beginning. Let the fun and games begin. Others seek you out. If single, someone you meet today could make a big difference in your life. Go with a friend's invitation. Tonight: Turn down the heat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Another cares enormously. Share what is going on with yourself. Unexpected news takes you in a different direction. Laughter marks your relationship once you relax. Others seek you out. Tonight: Happy at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★★ You decide how to approach someone very important to you. You understand the importance of the words you choose. Others act in extraordinary and different ways. Maintain a sense of humor. Others tease and are very lively. Call a loved one at a distance. Tonight: Playtime.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ Above all else, you can make strong resolutions and decisions. You need to pull apart your finances as you decide what you want to do for the holidays. Your imagination inspires you. A partner wants to be included in the planning. Tonight: Talk money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★★ Today's new moon flatters you. Whatever you have been thinking about doing, whatever decision you make, easily could be long-term. Others find you extremely appealing, and they let you know. Do not get distracted from your goals. Follow your instincts. Tonight: Your smile makes a big difference to a loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ You might be a bit off kilter. Think through a decision carefully. You might need more time alone than you realize. The unexpected occurs. Stay in touch with your needs and honor them. Get into a favorite pastime or hobby. Do something totally for you. Tonight: Take a night off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ Aim for more of what you want. Listen carefully to another. You might be getting a different message. Your mind is unusually creative and meanders easily. A new beginning is likely with friends. You might opt to do something that previously seemed impossible. Tonight: Where your friends are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Others look to you for help and advice. Indulge a loved one or someone quite important to you. You might be concerned about how to juggle your responsibilities with the buzz and activity of the holidays. Let go of concerns and let everything fall into place. Tonight: In the limelight.

Serb police give deadline to NATO to halt Albanian offensive

BUJANOVAC, Yugoslavia (AP) — In a test for Yugoslavia's young democracy, Serb police on Friday gave NATO troops in Kosovo a 72-hour deadline to stop incursions by ethnic Albanian militants over the border into Serbia.

A show of force by Serbian troops could spark friction between Yugoslavia and the Western alliance that is running Kosovo, but if new Yugoslav President Vojislav Kostunica does nothing, he could risk being portrayed at home as incapable of dealing with ethnic Albanian extremists.

Ethnic Albanian rebels have taken control of several strategic points and a key road in the buffer zone between Kosovo and central Serbia in an assault that started Tuesday.

The rebels have managed to push Serb police out of much of the 3-mile demilitarized zone, but on Friday the police vowed to quash the offensive. The rebels are fighting for independence of both Kosovo and the so-called Presevo Valley — the buffer zone — in southern Serbia.

"Police have issued a 72-hour deadline for the attacks to stop," said a Serb interior minister, Bozo Prelevic. "We have received firm assurances that KFOR will prevent any incursions (from Kosovo) and disarm and arrest the terrorists who have come from Kosovo." KFOR stands for Kosovo's international peacekeeping force.

He said that in case NATO fails to prevent the ethnic Albanian incursions and force the militants back into Kosovo, Serb police "will return to the territory of the republic of Serbia (in the buffer zone) with the means that are available."

Prelevic said the countdown starts Friday at 7 p.m. local time, meaning the deadline would expire Monday.

Kostunica, returning form a European Union summit in Zagreb, Croatia, said: "The first step to solve the new crisis in Kosovo is to seal, hermetically close, the administrative border between Kosovo and the rest of Serbia ... to prevent further attacks by ethnic Albanian terrorists who shoot at our policemen."

In a statement, KFOR called on both sides "to exercise caution and restraint" and said it was "encouraged by the temporary cease-fire declaration" announced by the Belgrade government.

The statement apparently referred to the 72-hour deadline announced by Serb police, indicating they will not intervene until then.

In a statement released Friday night, ethnic Albanian rebel leaders announced a 48-hour ceasefire "to give room to the political process instead of armed confrontation."

Sporadic shooting was reported in the buffer zone Friday, where Serb police and armed ethnic Albanians eyed each other from dug-up positions along the front line, not far from the U.S. troops patrolling the Kosovo side of the zone. Four Serb policemen have been killed and a dozen injured since Tuesday.

"The obvious intention (by the extremists) was to provoke a reaction from police and army against the civilian population," Prelevic said. "The intention was to try to make the new government in Yugoslavia look the same as the old one."

Former Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic's fierce crackdown against Kosovo Albanian rebels between 1998-99 provoked NATO's 78-day air strikes against Yugoslavia, which forced Serb troops out of the province and paved the way for NATO deployment.

The buffer zone was the result of last June's NATO agreement with Milosevic's government, allowing only 1,500 regular, lightly armed Serb troops to patrol the area.

The latest crisis comes as a fresh test for Kostunica's government, which took over from Milosevic after winning elections in September. Already, Milosevic's loyalists in Serbia have been blaming the new government for not being resolute enough to handle the crisis.

However, if Serb police fight back with massive force, they risk a serious incident with NATO, only days after Kostunica's government re-established ties with the United States and its allies that were cut by Milosevic.

Prelevic said Serb police, if they intervened, would not be armed with heavy weapons in order to respect last June's peace agreement with NATO. "Serbian police will not create an international incident," he said.

Russian Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov on Friday urged the West to act more decisively in Kosovo.

"Preservation of Yugoslavia's territorial integrity is a question of principle for us. If separatists in Kosovo achieve their goal, and the territory separates from Yugoslavia, it will destabilize the ... Balkans and is likely to have far-reaching unfavorable consequences," Ivanov said.

Approximately 600 people have fled the area under attack this week, said Astrid Van Genderen Stort, a spokeswoman for the U.N. refugee agency. The ethnic Albanian refugees crossing the border into Kosovo reported shooting and shelling of their villages, she said.

In another possible sign of the delicate relationship between the new Yugoslav government and the United States, officials in Washington said Friday that Kostunica will not meet with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright during a conference next week in Vienna.

The officials blamed scheduling problems. There had been strong hints in European circles that Kostunica may not have been eager to meet with Albright because of her identification with the U.S.-led air war.

Fighting continues as officials resume security coordination

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli and Palestinian leaders spoke by phone Friday for the first time in nearly a month — with Russia's president serving as middleman — but their agreement to renew security coordination was quickly undercut by deadly clashes and rocket attacks in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Three Palestinians were killed by Israeli fire, Palestinian doctors said, and an Israeli motorist was shot and killed in a roadside ambush. In the Gaza Strip town of Khan Yunis, Palestinian gunmen fired at Israeli troops from behind walls of sandbags, drawing return fire and prompting an exchange of anti-tank missiles, the army said.

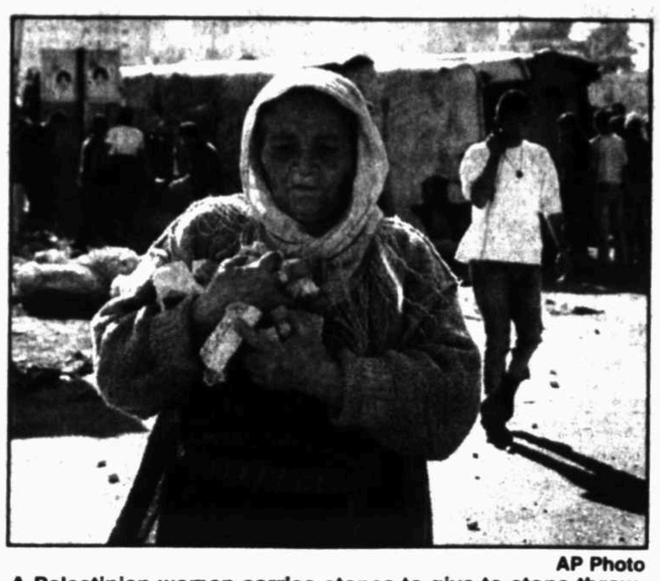

In Bethlehem, an Israeli tank shelled a Palestinian hotel — to flush out gunmen, according to the army, though the owners said the attack was without provocation. At the Karni crossing between Israel and Gaza, a few dozen Palestinian teen-agers threw stones at two Israeli tanks. One of the tanks swerved and pointed its cannon at the group, without shooting, and then pulled back to the jeers of the youngsters.

Friday's deaths brought the overall toll in two months of fighting to 268. The vast majority of those killed have been Palestinians.

Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat had not spoken for more than three weeks before their Friday phone exchange. The conversation was arranged by Russian President Vladimir Putin, who was meeting with Arafat in Moscow. Barak and Putin were speaking by phone while Arafat was in the room. At one point, the Russian leader, after asking Barak's permission, handed the phone to Arafat.

Arafat promised to make efforts to stop the violence, Barak's office said.

The two leaders also agreed to renew low-level security cooperation and the work of 10 liaison offices that Israel ordered closed Thursday after an Israeli soldier was killed in a bombing at one of the offices in the Gaza Strip. The liaison offices were a main component of peace agreements. A resumption of security coordination, even at the level of officers in the field, could help restore some of the lost trust and be a first step toward ending two months of fighting.

A Palestinian woman carries stones to give to stone-throwers clashing with Israeli soldiers in the West Bank town of Ramallah Friday. Israel said Palestinian attacks on Israelis must stop before peace talks can resume.

However, Gilead Sher, a senior Barak aide, was skeptical that a real truce would take hold, noting that several previous cease-fire agreements quickly unraveled.

"Reality is what we assess, not words," Sher told The Associated Press. He said Israel will consider a resumption of peace talks only if there is a "dramatic reduction in Palestinian hostilities."

Israel's foreign minister, Shlomo Ben-Ami, was to fly to Moscow in the coming days for a meeting with his Russian counterpart, Igor Ivanov, another sign of growing Russian involvement in Mideast mediation. Senior Palestinians, meanwhile, said Arafat has renewed an order that Palestinians stop shooting at Israelis from Palestinian-controlled areas.

Still, the fighting persisted.

Two Palestinians — Ghassan Karaan, 20, and Ayfar Hasis, 15 — were killed by Israeli fire in rock-throwing clashes in the West Bank towns of Qalqilya and Jenin. In the Gaza town of Rafah, Ziad Abu Jeser, 20, was found dead after being shot more than a dozen times, Palestinian doctors said, blaming Israeli fire. An Israeli motorist, Ariel Jerafi, was killed in a West Bank shooting ambush.

Near the Gaza town of Khan Yunis, a two-hour gun battle broke out between Israeli and Palestinian security forces. Israelis shot an anti-tank missile toward Palestinian police offices when another missile was fired from the spot, the army said. Palestinians said the Israeli soldiers shot five missiles and that five Palestinians were injured.

In the West Bank town of Nablus, thousands of Palestinians attended the funeral of Ibrahim Bani Odeh, an Islamic militant bombmaker who Palestinians say was assassinated by Israel. Bani Odeh's Hamas group pledged revenge.

"Our response will be more car bombs and they (the Israelis) will pay a high price," the Hamas leader in Nablus, Sheik Hamed Bitawi, told thousands of mourners, firing a pistol in the air for emphasis.

On Wednesday, two Israelis were killed and more than 60 wounded in a car bomb attack in the northern Israeli town of Hadera. The bombing was widely blamed on Islamic militants.

Mexico's president-elect announces labor, human rights Cabinet posts

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President-elect Vicente Fox announced some of the most sensitive positions in his Cabinet on Friday, including the appointment of a businessman to head the labor secretariat and special representatives to for Indians and Mexicans living abroad.

Fox created special offices for the first time to deal with discrimination and minorities, but the appointments also revealed his inability to draw other parties into his Cabinet, dominated by conservative northerners and business executives.

Fox, who will take office Dec. 1, named the members of his economic team on Wednesday and will name the justice, defense and interior secretaries on Monday.

Friday's announcement of the "social justice" area of his Cabinet highlighted Fox's pledge to help Mexicans pull themselves up by their own bootstraps. While such rhetoric may be a cliche in the United States, it has not been part of Mexico's political lexicon.

"We want each individual to have equal opportunities, to overcome poverty through their own effort," Fox said. That was a sharp contrast to the paternalistic attitude of Mexico's ruling party, which has held the presidency for 71 years. Fox takes office on Dec. 1.

The man Fox named as his top coordinator for social justice, the former rector of Mexico's National Autonomous University Jose Sarukhan, echoed that theme, calling for "government that serves as a facilitator, more than a distributor of paternalism."

Fox had promised a multiparty cabinet, but the only major appointee from another party was the former presidential candidate of the Democratic Socialist Party, Gilberto Rincon Gallardo, to head the special office on discrimination.

In his acceptance speech, Rincon Gallardo called for "compensatory programs and affirmative action programs," something Mexico has never before had for its 58 Indian groups, the disabled or other minorities.

Juan Hernandez, a U.S.-educated businessman Fox appointed to the Office for Mexicans Living Abroad, said he will "take a message of a new Mexico to my countrymen living everywhere in the world, and tell them they have a role to play in that new Mexico."

Hernandez said his office would work to ensure respect for the rights of Mexican immigrants abroad and in Mexico, and "invite the children of Mexican-Americans to get to know us better."

The most controversial appointment came when Fox named Carlos Abascal, the former head of the Mexican Employers' Council, as Labor Secretary, a post which has traditionally served as a mediator between unions and employers.

An activist in several Roman Catholic groups, Abascal has called for a more cooperative relationship between Mexico's low-paid industrial workers and the powerful corporations that dominate the economy.

He pledged to reform Mexico's antiquated 1940s-era labor laws, "seek consensus" between workers and employers, and promote greater democracy in Mexico's unions, dominated by aged and entrenched labor bosses. He did not mention any increase in Mexico's 37.90-peso (dlrs 4) per day minimum wage.

Luis H. Alvarez, a lawyer, former senator and long-time National Action Party leader, was appointed as Fox's point man on the troubled southern state of Chiapas. Alvarez served on the legislative commission that negotiated a partial peace accord with leftist Zapatista guerrillas in 1996.

Fox has pledged to implement that agreement — it has been stalled — but Alvarez acknowledged that the discrimination and violence in Chiapas posed "a difficult and complex problem."

The social development secretariat went to Josefina Vazquez, one of only two women so far in 17 cabinet posts. Others have been appointed to lesser special-office positions, but Fox fell short of his goal of a balanced cabinet. Vazquez is a former congresswoman for Fox's National Action Party.

Fox named Xochitl Galvez to head a new office on Indian affairs. An Otomi Indian who rose from poverty to found a successful high-tech consulting firm, Galvez called for a greater role for Indians in decision making, and said "this country can't develop unless the Indian peoples are part of that development."

Fox also appointed:

■ As Health Secretary, Julio Frenk, a U.S.-educated doctor and former World Health Organization official who promised to "democratize" and improve health care, a sector dominated by government hospitals.

■ As education secretary, Reyes Tamez, a chemist and rector of the state university in northern Monterrey. Tamez repeated Fox's pledge to continue "free, public, nonreligious education," a catch phrase designed to calm fears that Fox might give the Roman Catholic Church a greater role in schools.

■ To head the new presidential office for the disabled, Victor Flores.

■ as head of the office of planning and regional development, Carlos Flores;

■ for a new office on vocational and adult education, Rafael Rangel;

■ for a new office on alliance and civic groups, Rodolfo Elizondo;

■ as head of the government Foreign Commerce Bank, Jose Romero Hicks;

■ as head of the National Sports Commission, Nelson Vargas

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING
MIDLAND-ODESSA TRANSPORTATION IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, serving as the Metropolitan Planning Organization for the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study (MORTS), will host a public meeting to discuss the 2002-2004 transportation improvement program (TIP).

The 2002-2004 Transportation Improvement Program is a three-year plan that has been developed in cooperation with the Texas Department of Transport ion, the Cities of Midland and Odessa and Ector and Midland Counties. The TIP includes the following:

1. A priority list of projects and project segments that will be carried out within the 3-year period in the Midland-Odessa Urbanized Area, and
2. A financial plan that demonstrates how the TIP can be implemented, indicates resources from public and private (if any) sources that are reasonably expected to be made available to carry out the plan and recommends any innovative financing techniques to finance needed projects and programs.

The public meeting will be held on Thursday, November 30, 2000, at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission offices located at 2910 LaForce Boulevard, Midland International Airport. The meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m.

A ten-day comment period following the public meeting will permit interested persons to submit written comments regarding the 2002-2004 Transportation Improvement Program to Mr. Ernie Crawford, Executive Director, Permian Basin Planning Commission, P.O. Box 60660, Midland, Texas 79711-0660 (Fax 915/563-1728). All comments must be received in the PBRPC offices no later than 5:00 p.m., Monday, December 11, 2000.

Persons with disabilities who plan to attend this meeting and who may need auxiliary aids or services such as readers, large print, braille, or interpreter for persons who are deaf or hearing impaired, are requested to contact Liz Harrold or Jerry Tschauner at 915/563-1061 at least two work days prior to the meeting to insure appropriate arrangements can be made.

A list of proposed projects can be reviewed during business hours beginning November 30 through December 11, 2000, at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, 2910 LaForce Boulevard, Midland International Airport; the District Office of the Texas Department of Transportation, 3901 East Highway 80 (BI 20-E), Odessa; the Ector County Library, 321 West 5th Street, Odessa; and, the Midland County Public Library, 301 W. Missouri, Midland.

Chrysler Sebring applies coupe style to new four-door sedan

By Bob Plunkett
Special to Midland Reporter-Telegram

SNOQUALMIE, Wash. – A looped route, weaving through foothills of the Cascade Range in the state of Washington, quickly reveals the taut handling characteristics and precise road manners of a new mid-size sedan from Chrysler.

It tackles sets of curves with the sure-grip posture of a sporty machine, then delivers an instant kick each time you tap the throttle.

Despite the sporty attitude, Chrysler's newest car wears an independent suspension system tuned to favor a smooth ride quality, and the passenger compartment, padded and insulated, amounts to a plush space fitted with luxurious appointments.

There are further concessions for comfort that seem incongruent with the sporty nature of this car, such as the generous proportions of the cabin with seats for a family of five and four doors of a practical sedan rather than only the two doors of some daring coupe design.

Can a sedan with four doors and seats for all in the family effect the sporty persona of a two-door coupe?

Well, factors of practicality and comfort ultimately outweigh the lively manners and pavement poise, but Chrysler's design clearly demonstrates you can pick a sensible car with four doors and room for all yet still get a fun-to-drive vehicle.

Don't let the name fool you, though: It's Sebring.

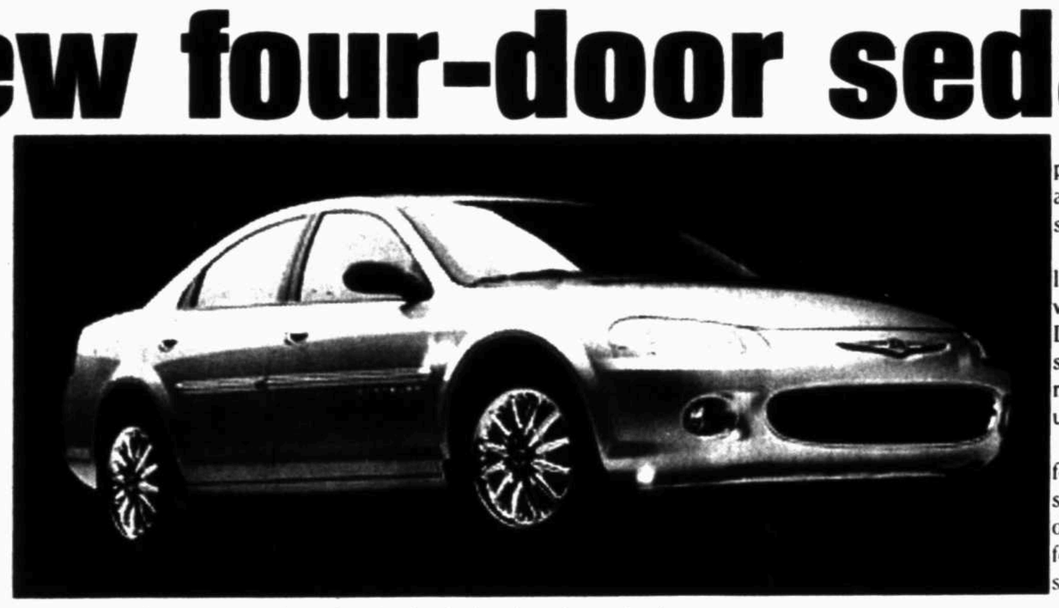

This year, Chrysler attaches the Sebring label to all of its mid-size vehicles – sedan, coupe and convertible.

All have been revamped with new structures and powertrains, and they share exterior styling points. However, each is unique, as the coupe and convertible use a platform that's different from the sedan and engines also vary. While Sebring as a sedan may look similar to the sporty Sebring coupe, the two stem from separate structures and use different powertrains.

Sebring as the new four-door r[illegible]laces Cirrus, Chrysler's former mid-size sedan.

The structure rises from the chassis used by Cirrus with wheelbase of 108 inches, yet Sebring's new package is longer, taller and stiffer. It does a far better job resisting tendencies to twist and bend when set in motion, and this action generates the firm pavement composure.

Styling borrows design traits from Chrysler's larger sedans, Concorde and LHS, as designers develop a family of vehicles that share visual cues. Thus, Sebring's windshield has a dramatic rake that sets up the gracefully arched profile. Also, Sebring's stubby nose shows the Chrysler signature of an exaggerated oval air intake port fitted with the egg-crate grille.

Glimmering headlamps, covered with clear polycarbonate lenses, wrap the front corners above round fog lights set low on either side of the grille.

Flanks flare around wheelwells to emphasize large wheels, which flash brightly with highlights from optional chrome alloy multi-spoke designs. Above door panels, blackened center roof pillars dim traces of the doors for an effect that seems similar to a pillar-less coupe.

Curvaceous rear pillars run down into the rolled rear flanks in a smooth transition from roof to body.

At the tail a spoiler lip arches over bold corner lamps and a thick monotone bumper. An edgy plane at the bottom of the bumper interrupts otherwise fluid contours, then reaches around corners and extends along side rails to define a subtle visual foundation.

Two trim designations draw from different powertrains.

Sebring LX, bearing price tags beginning at $17,945, totes a twin-cam 2.4-liter in-line-four engine that hits 150 hp and links to a four-speed automatic transaxle.

Luxurious Sebring LXi, pegged at $20,830, adds appointments including leather seats and a V6 powertrain.

This plant, displacing 2.7 liters off an aluminum block with twin cams, delivers 200 hp. Despite the output, the engine still achieves good fuel economy numbers and runs on regular-grade gas.

It links to a smooth automatic four-speed transaxle, but as a sporty concession Chrysler offers optionally the AutoStick for shifter control of a manual stick.

Chrysler also makes the V6 an upgrade option on Sebring LX for $800, which pitches a stylish mid-size sedan with V6 power for less than $20,000.

The suspension, with independent elements fore and aft, fosters a smooth ride quality. Both LX and LXi editions use the same suspension components, but wheel size and tires vary. The LX rolls on 15-inch wheels, while the LSi gets larger 16-inch wheels mounted with more aggressive tires.

A cab-forward structural design crafts ample room for passengers by moving the base of the windshield forward to enlarge the cabin in length and breadth.

Sebring's airy cabin sparks with stylish appointments in chrome highlights, leather and glossy simulated wood.

Two bucket seats covered in soft leather for the deluxe LXi edition stand on either side of a central console. In back, a three-person bench has a folding seatback split 60/40 for access to the spacious trunk. The LX trim differs by stretching cloth fabric upholstery across all seats.

Round analog instruments, rimmed with chrome bezels and faced with distinctive black-on-white graphics, tuck below an arched cowl.

The driver sits facing these instruments in a cockpit with toggle switches for windows and locks mounted on the left door and the console to the right holding the transmission shift lever and a padded armrest. On the dash over the console, audio and climate equipment employs large rotary dials in an easy-to-operate plan.

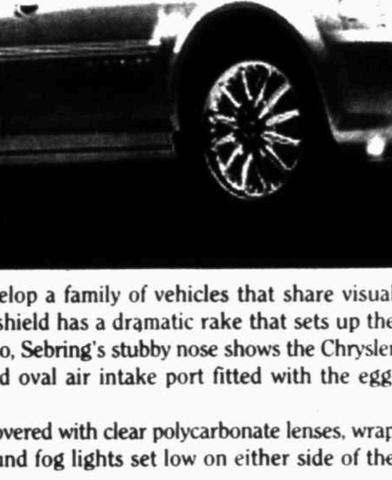

Appointments for Sebring LX include items typically available only optionally, such as air conditioning and power controls for windows, mirrors and door locks. The LXi edition adds the leather upholstery and eight-way power for the driver's seat, plus leather-wrapped steering wheel and a deluxe sound kit with CD player.

Stand-alone options include a power-operated sunroof and audio upgrades, such as six 120-watt speakers and an in-dash CD changer for four discs. The Luxury Group package on LXi adds these items, plus electroluminescent instruments, chrome alloy wheels and the AutoStick shifter.

Safety gear starts with Sebring's strong structure that rings the passenger cabin, but extends to active devices like four-wheel disc brakes with optional anti-lock controls and passive measures such as dual-stage frontal air bags. The headliner will accommodate curtain-style side air bags, available optionally.
