Tropical Storm Followed by Downpour Which Floods Mexican Province and Threatens American Towns Along Border; Many Said to Have Lost Lives; Town Deserted

By Associated Press.

LAREDO, Texas, June 17.—Continuing its rise slowly, the Rio Grande late today was at the 52.15 foot stage. Flood waters from the upper reaches of the San Juan were expected to cause the highest rise of the river's history.

The number of dead in the floods was undetermined, owing to crippled communication. Many are reported to have lost their lives in a cloudburst in the Mexican province of Nuevo Leon, according to reports here tonight.

Residents of the flooded area are rushing to the hills to escape the waters coming down from the mountains.

The tropical storm reported off Tampico Thursday is said to be responsible for the heavy rains.

Baby Killed When Car Backs Over It

Winnifred Lee, the 15-month-old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, 1006 Seventh street, was crushed to death Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock when an automobile driven by Mrs. W. E. Spiers of 1008 Seventh, backed over the child's body.

The baby, just able to toddle about, had been on the porch with her mother. The child crawled down onto the ground and walked up a driveway between the rooming house where Mrs. Smith lives and the Spiers' residence.

Mrs. Spiers never knew that she had struck the infant until her vehicle had passed entirely over the lifeless form. It is believed that both of the right wheels passed over the child's head, which was crushed.

The body was carried to the Hines undertaking establishment, where it was prepared for burial.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Lasker Has Backbone Webb Sets the Law And Ferguson Comments

By H. N. F.

CHAIRMAN ALBERT D. LASker on the shipping board appears to have a backbone. Sale of liquor on shipping board vessels at sea will be continued until a separate decision has been rendered, holding such practice illegal under the prohibition laws or until he has been convinced of its illegality. There has been a decision rendered.

Dr. Atticus Webb of Texas holds that it is both illegal and outrageous and Dr. Atticus recognizes no higher law than himself. He is ready to extend the three mile American limit to the Liverpool docks on the other side of the Atlantic ocean and the ultra drys are in hearty accord with Dr. Atticus. It is queer that thousands of Americans who take passage for Europe prefer wet to dry ships.

JAMES E. FERGUSON SAYS that when roses begin to bloom on hop vines congress will go wet, if candidates are given the place on the ballot and then their followers are shut out of the primary.

Missouri Busch raised the row. He owns the largest brewery in America. It is dark. Drys made it so. Busch swears that the selling of intoxicants on an American passenger ship is a violation of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. Busch is right. It is a violation. If American ships are made dry the contention is that foreign ships which are wet will get the business. President Harding is for a subsidy of a hundred million dollars a year and he is going to fight to put over his pet measure.

If the subsidy bill goes down in defeat those who are close to the president say the merchantman fleet of the republic will droop and then perish

CHAIRMAN LASKER IS FOR the subsidy, and he is for the sale of the stuff that is said to cheer when American ships have passed the three-mile limit. There is a merry row on. Pros in and out of congress say that the bars must be driven from American ships; that all the ships must be made as dry as bats nests, "business or no business." Of course, the people will pay the freight. They invested $3,500,000,000 in these ships.

All the people were patriots at the time. They said they were willing to spend the last dollar and sacrifice the last man, but the Atlantic must be bridged with ships and the kaiser smashed. Of course, the kaiser was smashed after the Atlantic had been bridged.

NOW MANY OF THESE PATRIots of other days say the building of the ships was a piece of monumental folly, that it cost $33,000,000,000 dollars to win the war when it should have been won for a third of the sum and that the cost of government is making raw spots on their backs. These same patriots told the soldier boys to go in and win and save the world from the blight of the sword and if they saved it all the world would be theirs for the asking.

Now they don't like the income tax. They don't like the interitance tax on fortunes. They don't like to pay their full share of the war debt. They don't want to pay a bonus to the soldiers. They damn organized labor for clinging to war-time wage schedules. They don't believe in the organization of wage earners. They do believe in the organization of all others. They say that the people are socialistic in their demands.

THEY SAY THAT THE MEN who did the fighting were paid for fighting while they wore the uniform. Many of them demand high tariffs on all importations that interfere with their manufactured products.. They would place on the free list and did place on the free list petroleum. They say they are protecting American labor and that is the chief reason why they are for a high tariff.

'NO CUT' SAY K.C.M. & O. MEN TO RAIL CHIEF

Road Men Refuse Proposal Made By Receiver

By Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., June 17.—Answering a suggestion made here today by William T. Kemper of Kansas City, receiver of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad, that they agree to temporary wage reductions of 20 per cent in order to assist the road in what was described as an immediately pressing financial situation, employes of the road tonight indicated to Mr. Kemper and other officials that it would be impossible for them to accept decreases at this time.

It was the contention of representatives of the employes that the present wage scale is not sufficient to meet their demands and that by past sacrifices they had done their share toward keeping the road from abandonment.

Mr. Kemper's suggestion was made at a meeting of state officials and others from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, who gathered here to consider what might be done toward relieving the financial stringency. Mr. Kemper told the conferees that unless financial assistance was forthcoming at once the road would have to be sold for junk after July 1.

Two Governors Present

The conferees, who included Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, Governor J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma, and Allison Mayfield, chairman of the Texas railroad commission, held another meeting tonight at which, it was stated, further plans were discussed. At today's meeting the two governors as well as Mr. Mayfield, pledged assistance of their states to the company.

In presenting the financial situation Mr. Kemper estimated that at the present rate the road is losing money, the operating deficit for 1922 will be $1,740,000. The operating loss for the first four months of the year has been more than $450,000, he said.

If the interstate commerce commission grants a 50 per cent increase in the division of joint rates, as petitioned, $1,300,000 in additional revenue will be produced annually, Kemper said. Salary reductions, on the basis outlined by the receiver in his proposal to the employes, would result in an additional saving of $428,000 for 1922. Contemplated reductions in material, fuel and supplies would save $75,000 more. These reductions would total $1,803,000 as against the estimated deficit of $1,740,000 for the year.

A record of the proceedings today was taken with a view toward presentation to the United States railroad labor board, in support of a petition to have the Orient designated a railroad of the second class and a lower schedule of wages authorized. The federal board has so far declined to grant a concession to the Orient.

STRIKE PLANS ARE APPROVED

Leaders Say Walkout Inevitable

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 17.—Withdrawal of wage reductions ordered by the railroad labor board and the taking back by railroads of contracts farming out shop work only can avert the threatened strike of approximately one million workers July 1, rail union executives said tonight.

Union leaders declared complete strike plans have been approved and unless the railroad labor board revokes its decision cutting wages and altering working conditions the threatened strike will go into effect as scheduled.

Voting in Favor.

The triple barreled strike vote of seven unions so far returned was announced by union leaders as being 98 per cent in favor of a walkout. However, leaders said this percentage is high and they did not expect the final vote to reach more than 95 per cent.

Tuesday the rail and miners' union officials will meet to discuss "co-operative action" between members of these organizations. John L. Lewis, president of the miners, formally announced today that the meeting would discuss "the industrial situation affecting the strike of organized mine workers and the outrageous action of the United States railroad labor board in imposing unwarrantable and unjustifiable reductions upon the railway employes."

Klan Seeks to Win Chillicothe Over With Big Parade

It is known that not a single man residing in Chillicothe took part in the procession. There is not a local organization of the robed order, but it is known that one or two attempts have been made to perfect a strong body here. It is said that when several leading citizens were approached by the organizers that they refused to become interested.

Vernon and Electra klansmen and probably some members from Oklahoma took part in the parade here last night, it is understood. More than 25 automobiles came over from Oklahoma points. Many witnesses from across the line also were present to view the procession as it wended its way through the streets.

One hundred and twenty-eight klansmen, robed in pure white, took part in the march. The parade was headed by a buglar and drummer and the manner in which the men conducted themselves as they treaded the streets to the beat of the drum, impressed the onlookers. The long white line illuminated against black night with a fiery cross, large American flags being carried at its head, passed silently along all the principal streets of the town.

After the town was paraded by the klansmen, they gathered at the ball park, disrobed and departed for their homes.

People here seem to think that the klan is seeking to "break into" Chillicothe, according to comment heard on the street.

The most outstanding feature of the entire affair is the general belief that the parade of the 128 klansmen was intended to stir enough interest in the subject here to bring about a local organization. Chillicothe prides itself on its clean police record and general peace of its daily life. That is to say klansmen were giving no warning to anyone here, so far as is known. No banners were carried, nor a word said by any of the visitors. Bootleggers in this neck of the woods are as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Many strangers coming through with parched throats daily vouch for this statement.

But at the same time the klan is strong in this section, with Chillicothe the excluded. It is organized on either side of the town in both Oklahoma and Texas.

Guard Shoots Down Prisoner at Texas Pen, Says Ex-Inmate

Convicts Beaten Till Backs Are Raw So Says Discharged One To Reformer

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS, Austin Correspondent

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—Charges that a Mexican, Maximo Vega, convict in the Texas penitentiary at Huntsville, was shot down "in cold blood" by a guard, and charging that convicts are beaten and abused, that their food is uneatable, and that the prison advisory board is useless, are recited in a purported affidavit, bearing the name of Wesley Lynch, who recites he was discharged from the prison two months ago, and purported to be sworn to before George W. Dixon of Houston, prison relief worker, has been sent by Dixon to persons in Austin, though it has not been filed at the governor's office.

The purported affidavit declares that Lynch saw a convict, A. J. Miller, beaten until his back was "raw as beef."

He says he was beaten at the orders of a farm captain, and with a leather whip which had been dipped in wet sand; also that A. J. Miller and a convict named Smith, while lying on the ground ill, were ridden over by the farm captain and a guard on horseback, and that the captain drove his spurs into their sides.

That building tenders have been promised a pardon for killing the next convict attempting to escape, was also alleged.

Avis and Gipson Go On Ticket For Seats In House; 2 Women For County Clerk

Withdrawal of two candidates for sheriff and the entry of one of them into the race for nomination as constable marked primary election developments Saturday, the last day for candidates to file application to have their names placed upon the ballot.

The candidates announced for sheriff who withdrew were Bob Windham of Wichita Falls and Eugene Buckner of Burkburnett, with Windham filing for the constable's office against Frank Morgan, present incumbent, and Will Bryan. The withdrawal of Windham from the sheriff's race leaves three seekers for the office of Sheriff Smith, who is a candidate for re-election, Jimmie Maxwell, Jim Glenn and Pat Murphy.

W. T. Harris, county clerk, who was an announced candidate for county judge, did not file application to have his name placed on the ticket in accordance with the intention expressed some time ago of retiring at the end of his term to devote himself to private interests.

Two additional candidates for the legislature, J. D. Avis and E. H. Gipson, filed their applications Saturday, as it was indicated Friday that they would.

OMAHA BANDIT SHOT DOWN BY ARMED POSSE

Brief but Spectacular Career Comes To Close

By Associated Press.

RAWLINS, Wyo., June 17.—Fred Brown, Omaha's bad man, tonight rests upon a cot in the hospital at Wyoming penitentiary, hovering between life and death. It is an even chance that Brown, who was wounded by a posse that captured him near Medicine Bow, early today, will recover, according to Dr. E. A. Kell, who is attending him.

A steel jacketed rifle bullet is embedded in Brown's body just above the heart. It was this bullet that ended Brown's career of lawlessness that began in Omaha May 27, last, when he kidnaped two young women and later chained them together in a shack at Benson, a suburb of Omaha.

Quick thinking by a woman resulted in Brown's capture. The woman, whose name is unknown by the authorities, lives near Medicine Bow. Last night she saw a motor car driven by an unshaven, unkempt man, stop near her home. Having heard reports that Brown was in the neighborhood, she telephoned the authorities. A posse quickly formed.

The posse set out from Medicine Bow at 11 o'clock this morning.

As they approached a man leaped from the machine and with an automatic pistol in each hand made a dash for the shelter of a large boulder not far from the side of the road.

Brown is said to have admitted his identity and confessed that he was the man who overpowered two city policemen at Sidney, Neb., last Monday and left them tied on the county fair grounds there while he continued on his way.

TWO DIE WHEN PLANE CRASHES

Tragedy Puts Stop To "Air Circus"

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 17.—An "air circus" to raise funds for Waverly Hill sanitarium where many former service men are patients, ended tragically here today when two aviators crashed to their death. Both bodies were burned beyond recognition when the gasoline tank exploded following the crash.

The dead are:

Staff Sergeant Arthur Opperman, 45, air photographer, Camp Henry Knox.

Thousands of persons saw the planes line up and many heard Lieutenant O'Hanley call out to his companion to let him take the air first so that he could obtain photographs of the other aviators' stunts. The plane rushed down the field in the face of a gusty wind and rose to an altitude of about 200 feet. Spectators noticed the something was going wrong with the plane and observed Sergeant Opperman clinging to his photographic apparatus.

When about 100 feet from the ground, the plane lunged sideward and then crashed down. Officers rushed to the scene in an effort to rescue their companions but the flames already had enveloped the plane.

Following the crash, all stunt flying was called off.

Harvester Head, 51, Loses One Wife, So He Undergoes Operation Before His Marriage To Youthful Opera Star

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 17.—Mystery tonight veiled the exact nature of an operation performed on Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the executive committee of the International Harvester company, Monday night, the news of which did not become public until today.

At the Wesley Memorial hospital, it was at first denied that Mr. McCormick was a patient there, although it was later admitted that he occupied an entire wing, which had been walled off from the rest of the institution to insure his privacy.

The operation was performed by Dr. Victor D. Lespinasz, widely known surgeon, who figured some time ago in a controversy with Dr. Voronoff of Paris on the proper manner of transferring animal glands to humans, a branch of surgery which he was said to be well versed. After having been questioned at length by newspaper men regarding the operation on Mr. McCormick, Dr. Lespinasz issued the following statement:

"Harold F. McCormick is a patient in the Wesley Memorial hospital under my care. He has been in the hospital some time and has undergone a minor operation. He was here principally for rest, both mental and physical."

Dr. Lespinasz, members of the hospital staff and of the McCormick family refused to discuss widely published statements that Mr. McCormick had been the subject of

Mine Boss Arrives At Convention

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 17.—Observing a Saturday half holiday, the American Federation of Labor convention here today toiled through a short session in a sultry hall, with the principal business an overwhelming decision to change the convention date from June to October. Numerous other changes in the federation's constitution also were considered, but none was adopted.

The session also was marked by the federation's executive council, composed of its eleven officers, submitting their report condemning the supreme court decision in the Colorado coal case, which held labor unions liable for damages under the Sherman anti-trust act. No remedy was suggested for overcoming the decision on account of special policy committee having been named to recommend a remedial program.

Lewis Arrives.

The convention session today was marked by the arrival of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who announced "absolutely and unqualifiedly' that he would not be a candidate against Mr. Gompers for president of the federation. Mr Lewis was the unsuccessful contestant against Mr Gompers last year. He also told the convention that he and other leaders in the miners' strike would meet with the rail union chiefs Tuesday night to consider joint strike action in the threatened rail walkout

CENTERNIAN HUES TO LINE AS TIE CUTTER

(By International News Service.)

RICHWOOD, W. Va., June 17.—Jack Clark, claiming to be 108 years old, still is hewing cross ties down here in the heart of West Virginia, though he is minus one eye.

Though past the century mark, Clark does the work of a much younger man. Hewing cross ties is no child's play. He finds enjoyment in everything and only recently attended a circus with as much display of pleasure as the boys about him. He came early and stayed late.

Clark was born in the northern part of New York state April 20, 1814. His early life was spent in Potter county, Pennsylvania, where he followed the lumber industry. About twenty-seven years ago he came to this part of West Virginia.

He has outlived five wives and has been the father of thirty-five children, twenty of whom are living, but they are scattered all over America. He wears a heavy beard, is above the average height and is as erect as a man who has served a long time in the U. S. army.

Clark attributes his advanced age and perfect health to living a simple life, obedience to the laws of nature and breathing pure air twenty-four hours a day. He is a great reader.

CARRIES STAMPS

CHAUNCEY, Ohio., June 17.—Herman Luckoff, local merchant, has received a letter from his aged father in the Russian Crimea which is attracting much attention.

To the back of the envelope is attached a great square of stamps, each marked "1,000 rubles." There are 30 of these stamps. In the olden days these stamps would have been valued at $16,000 in American money.

"We can earn millions of rubles daily for our labor," wrote the elder Luckoff to his son, "but it will not buy anything. Forty pounds of flour cost 1,000,000 rubles in Soviet money. One cannot get the flour. It is not to be had."

The elder Luckoff wrote that soviet printing presses are working night and day turning out money for the peasants. Gold and silver, he said, are rarely seen.

ALTOONA MAN SEEKS FOR BURIED TRASURE

(By International News Service.)

ALTOONA, Pa., June 17.—Some years ago a gypsy woman told occupants of the property of F. R. Zook, in Martinsburg, Blair county, that there had been buried there a sum of money. She said if they would dig down they would find a stone wall and a brick wall. Later a man did start digging and found the stone wall and brick wall, but he quit the job before finding the money. Jacob Showalter is now digging for the supposed hidden treasure.

Thorough Test Of Vernon Well's Sand Is To Be Made

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, June 17.—Those in charge of the Sigier offset being drilled 12 miles south of town will make a thorough test of the sand encountered before proceeding further, according to advices issued from the office of the oil company. The present sand, about two feet in depth, holds promise, it was pointed out, and its possibilities as a producer of merit will be carefully determined.

The Triangle hole, 2,069 feet deep, is being reamed down to the bottom, and casing will be set. After this work has been completed, the hole will be standardized. A promising sand has been encountered, but little is known of its nature as the surface has only been scratched.

For several weeks drillers on the Noble well southeast of town have been endeavoring to dislodge a steel shoe lodged in the hole. It was found necessary to drill out the obstruction. This work is nearly finished.

The delegation from Atlanta, which arrived late today on a special train, was the first of the larger contingents to reach here. Other smaller bodies, however, trickled in from all sections of the south and the north, too, sent many followers of Jefferson Davis and General Robert E. Lee.

Compromise Reached For Subsidy Bill

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Under a compromise plan suggested today to President Harding by house republican leaders, and which, it was said, did not meet his disapproval—the house will take up the ship subsidy bill immediately after the senate has passed the tariff bill.

While the question will be considered further at the white house conferences next week, Chairman Campbell of the rules committee, who outlined the situation to the president, declared tonight it was "morally certain no action will be taken on the subsidy bill by the house until the senate has concluded consideration of the tariff.

Two More Wells Brought in at Electra in 1900 Foot Sand

BIG PRODUCERS HIT SATURDAY

Planet and Texas Get Good Wells

Two unusually large wells were contributed as the week's sensations by the South Electra pool on Saturday, both in the 1900 foot sand.

The Planet Petroleum company No. 46 Burnett brought in early Saturday morning flowing at the rate of 1,000 barrels daily. The well was drilled into the 1900 foot sand on Friday night. It is an extension of the sand, being an inside location. In size it ranks with the best of the deep completions to date.

The second 1900 foot well was reported for Saturday, the Texas company's No. 224, drilled into the 1940 foot sand Friday night and reported Saturday flowing at the rate of 600 to 700 barrels. This well offsets the No. 5 of Harvey and Cullum.

On the Burnett lease the Planet has three more wells on the sand, and promises to give more interesting developments this coming week.

Reports from the McCallister, Brown and Grisham well on Section 34, W. T. Waggoner Saturday showed the well swabbing around 250 baels, from the sand drilled on Thursday at 1625 feet. The well has not been drilled deeper, and is reported swabbing, and flowing.

In Section 29, southwest of the Harvey-Cullum and Texas company deep producers, the Sure Oil company is drilling its No. 1 around 1100 feet, after testing out the 800 foot sand, without getting production.

Texas Completes 30-Barrel Well

The Texas company's No. 228 Waggoner was reported completed Saturday for a 30-barrel producer in the shallow sand, 780 feet. The new well is the first shallow well completed by this company in some time. It is an offset to an old shallow producer, on the same lease, in Block 784, H. & T. C. survey.

Armstrong Drills Third 100-Ft. Well

The third 100-foot well was drilled into the sand Saturday by W. J. Armstrong, on his Dodson lease, South Burk-Texhoma field, at a depth of 110 feet. The well is to be put on the pump Monday and is expected to make around five barrels, the production of the two other wells. This is well No. 24. No. 25 will be started with the spudding machine on Monday.

WELL SUPPLIES

Four car loads of oil well supplies have been started by a local house to Argentina, a journey of 8,000 miles from New Orleans. The supplies were shipped by Roy & Co., and are consigned to the South River Davia Oil company, a subsidiary of the Anglo-Persian Oil company, in the interior of Argentina. The shipment included a Johnson rotary rig complete, and a complete assortment of smaller supplies.

FISHING JOB HOLDS

A fishing job, resulting from a core barrel broken off in the sand, has held up completion of the Harvey-Cullum No. 6 Rio Bravo, reported on the 1500 foot sand earlier in the week. The well, which was showing up for a hundred barrel producer, afforded a three-quarter of a mile extension of the 1500 foot sand, which the Harvey-Cullum interests opened up several weeks ago in their No. 1.

SPEEDWAY, Uniontown, Pa., June 17.—Showing a great burst of speed toward the end of the 225-mile grind, Jimmy Murphy today won the Universal trophy automobile race on the speedway here.

Murphy's time was 2:12:15.13. Ralph Mulford was second, while Jerry Wonderlich took third place. The positions of other drivers were: I. P. Fetterman, fourth; Ora F. Habie, fifth.

Elliott was forced out in the 101st lap and Hartz jumped into the lead, which he was still holding at 125 miles. His average was 103 miles an hour, the fastest time ever recorded on the speedway here.

His victory today was the second notable one credited to Murphy in the last month. On Decoration Day he was returned winner in the 500-mile Indianapolis classic, in which he set a new world's record for that distance.

DANCIGER PLANS NEW WILDCAT

It'll Be Drilled In Speight Area

The Danciger interests which were among the first and have been among the most successful of the Mexia operators, are planning a new wildcat in the neighborhood of the Speight test, which has attracted attention of the fraternity interested in Mexia operations during the week.

Joe Danciger, through the Wichita Falls office, announced his plans to start a test immediately in this new territory, seven miles south of Mexia, making his first location on the Roscoe Cook tract, one half mile south of the Revere Oil company's No. 1 Speight. This new wildcat which is opening up considerable territory, got the oil sand at 3,557 feet and is cementing casing.

The Danciger Oil and Refining Company has blocked up several hundred acres in the new territory around the Revere. Mr. Danciger stated that the sand taken from the new strike shows up much richer than the sand in the original Fish Pond well, which led to the first entrance of the Danciger Oil & Refining Company into the Mexia pool.

The company completed their 25 producer in the proven pool this week, their No. 18 Sherrer, good for 806 barrels. The No. 19 is reported on the sand.

The Danciger company has a daily production at this time of 7,000 barrels, said to be second only to the Humphreys production in the field.

Discouraging Report From Griswold Well

Saturday developments in tests on the Jennings, south of the Gulf Production Company's 1900 foot discovery well, south of the Beaver Electra Refinery, were rather discouraging, the Griswold No. 1 Jennings being reported as down below 1950 feet, with not enough oil in the 1900 foot sand, to make a well.

Both the Gulf and No. 2 Jennings, and the Kruger et al No. 1 Jennings are reported down below the depth in the discovery well without getting production.

The Griswold test got a sand around 1700 feet which showed up for production, but was passed up. This may be developed later, it is understood, but there are no definite plans for this.

LAREDO FIELD NOT EXEMPT

Wells Must Be Kept At Distance

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—New oil fields at Laredo and High Island will not be allowed the famous "gulf coast exemption" to oil and gas rule No. 37 of the railroad commission which exemption existing in all older fields of the gulf coast permits the drilling of wells closer together than 300 feet, according to J. W. Hassell, chief of the oil and gas division, who announced the new rule Friday.

Orange field had two producing wells when the exemption was adopted, November 26, 1919, and the department permits drilling of wells close together or near boundary lines, without special permits. This applies also to West Columbia and Hull, it was stated, but will not apply to new producing fields, even of the gulf coast, it being held to have exempted only fields already in existence.

Rule 37 prohibits drilling of a well within 150 feet of a boundary line or within 300 feet of a drilling or producing well.

E. H. GIPSON AND AVIS IN RACE

Business Men Back Up Candidates

Announcement that he would be a candidate for representative in the state legislature, place No. 1, district 111, against F. G. Swanson, was made by E. H. Gipson, city prosecutor of Wichita Falls, Saturday afternoon following a conference held with a number of prominent business men, who presented Mr. Gipson with a petition requesting that he become a candidate.

The petition contained the signatures of 500 representative citizens of Wichita county.

No statement as to the platform on which he will make the race was made by Mr. Gibson, although it was intimated that he would stand for a program of law and order.

At the same time it was announced that J. D. Avis, ranchman, would also make the race for representative from Wichita county against John M. Simmons, for place No. 2. The names of both were submitted to P. B. Cox, chairman of the county democratic committee, Saturday noon in sufficient time to appear on the official ballot.

The petition submitted to Mr. Gibson was addressed to both himself and Mr. Avis. "We realize that the acceptance of this office may mean financial loss and sacrifice of personal business on your part," it states, "but at this time our state needs men of your type in its lawmaking body and we urge that you serve us in this capacity, the said E. G. Gipson to run against F. G. Swanson and the said J. D. Avis to run against J. D. Parnell and John Simmons."

Mr. Gipson, a lawyer whose connection with the city police department in the capacity of prosecutor for the corporate court was obtained through a demand for law enforcement in Wichita Falls, came to Wichita Falls soon after the signing of the armistice. Receiving his education in Missouri, his native state, he served as adjutant general of Oklahoma during the world war, and has been practicing law here since that time.

Mr. Avis is well known in Wichita county, having resided here over 30 years. His name has been prominently linked with numerous enterprises, although he has given most of his time to livestock interests.

W. B. Bledsoe of Lubbock, candidate to succeed himself in the state senate, has Arthur H. King of Throckmorton as an opponent. Neither will be in this district if the 1924 provision of the senate redistricting bill is held unconstitutional. In that event J. D. Parnell, candidate for place two in the lower house, will become a candidate for the state senate in the new district which includes Wichita county.

Candidates Meet Monday.

The candidates will meet with the county democratic committee Monday at 1:30 in the office of P. B. Cox, county chairman, and draw to determine the order in which their names will appear for the various offices on the ticket. At this meeting the county committee will also determine whether to adhere to the test prescribed by the state executive committee for participation in the primary or whether to hold merely to the statutory oath.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.
(Washington Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The senate within a few days will begin its investigation of the reasons for the continuing increases in the price of gasoline, despite the constantly mounting stocks.

There were in the nation, according to the bureau of mines, on May 1, total stocks on hand in this country of 892,267,766, an increase of 38,000,000 gallons over the previous high record of April 1.

The Texas stocks amounted to 100,094,366 gallons on May 1. April is the last month for which official statistics have been tabulated and these show that Texas produced 78,831,896 gallons of gasoline in April.

Senator Harreld and others believe there is no reason why in the light of this big production prices should not come down. The case of Texas is fairly typical. It must be admitted, of course, that Texas is the biggest gasoline producer, but a dozen other states are also big producers, Texas representing only about one-fifth of the entire national production.

While production records are being broken, the figures for the consumption of gasoline are also on an upward spurt. Thus, while domestic production for April, 1922, registered an increase of 10.96 per cent over the production in April, 1921, domestic consumption of this product in April, 1921. While the figures for domestic production plus imports of gasoline for April, 1921, the figures for domestic consumption plus exports and shipments for April of this year show an increase of 13.61 per cent over similar figures for the corresponding period last year.

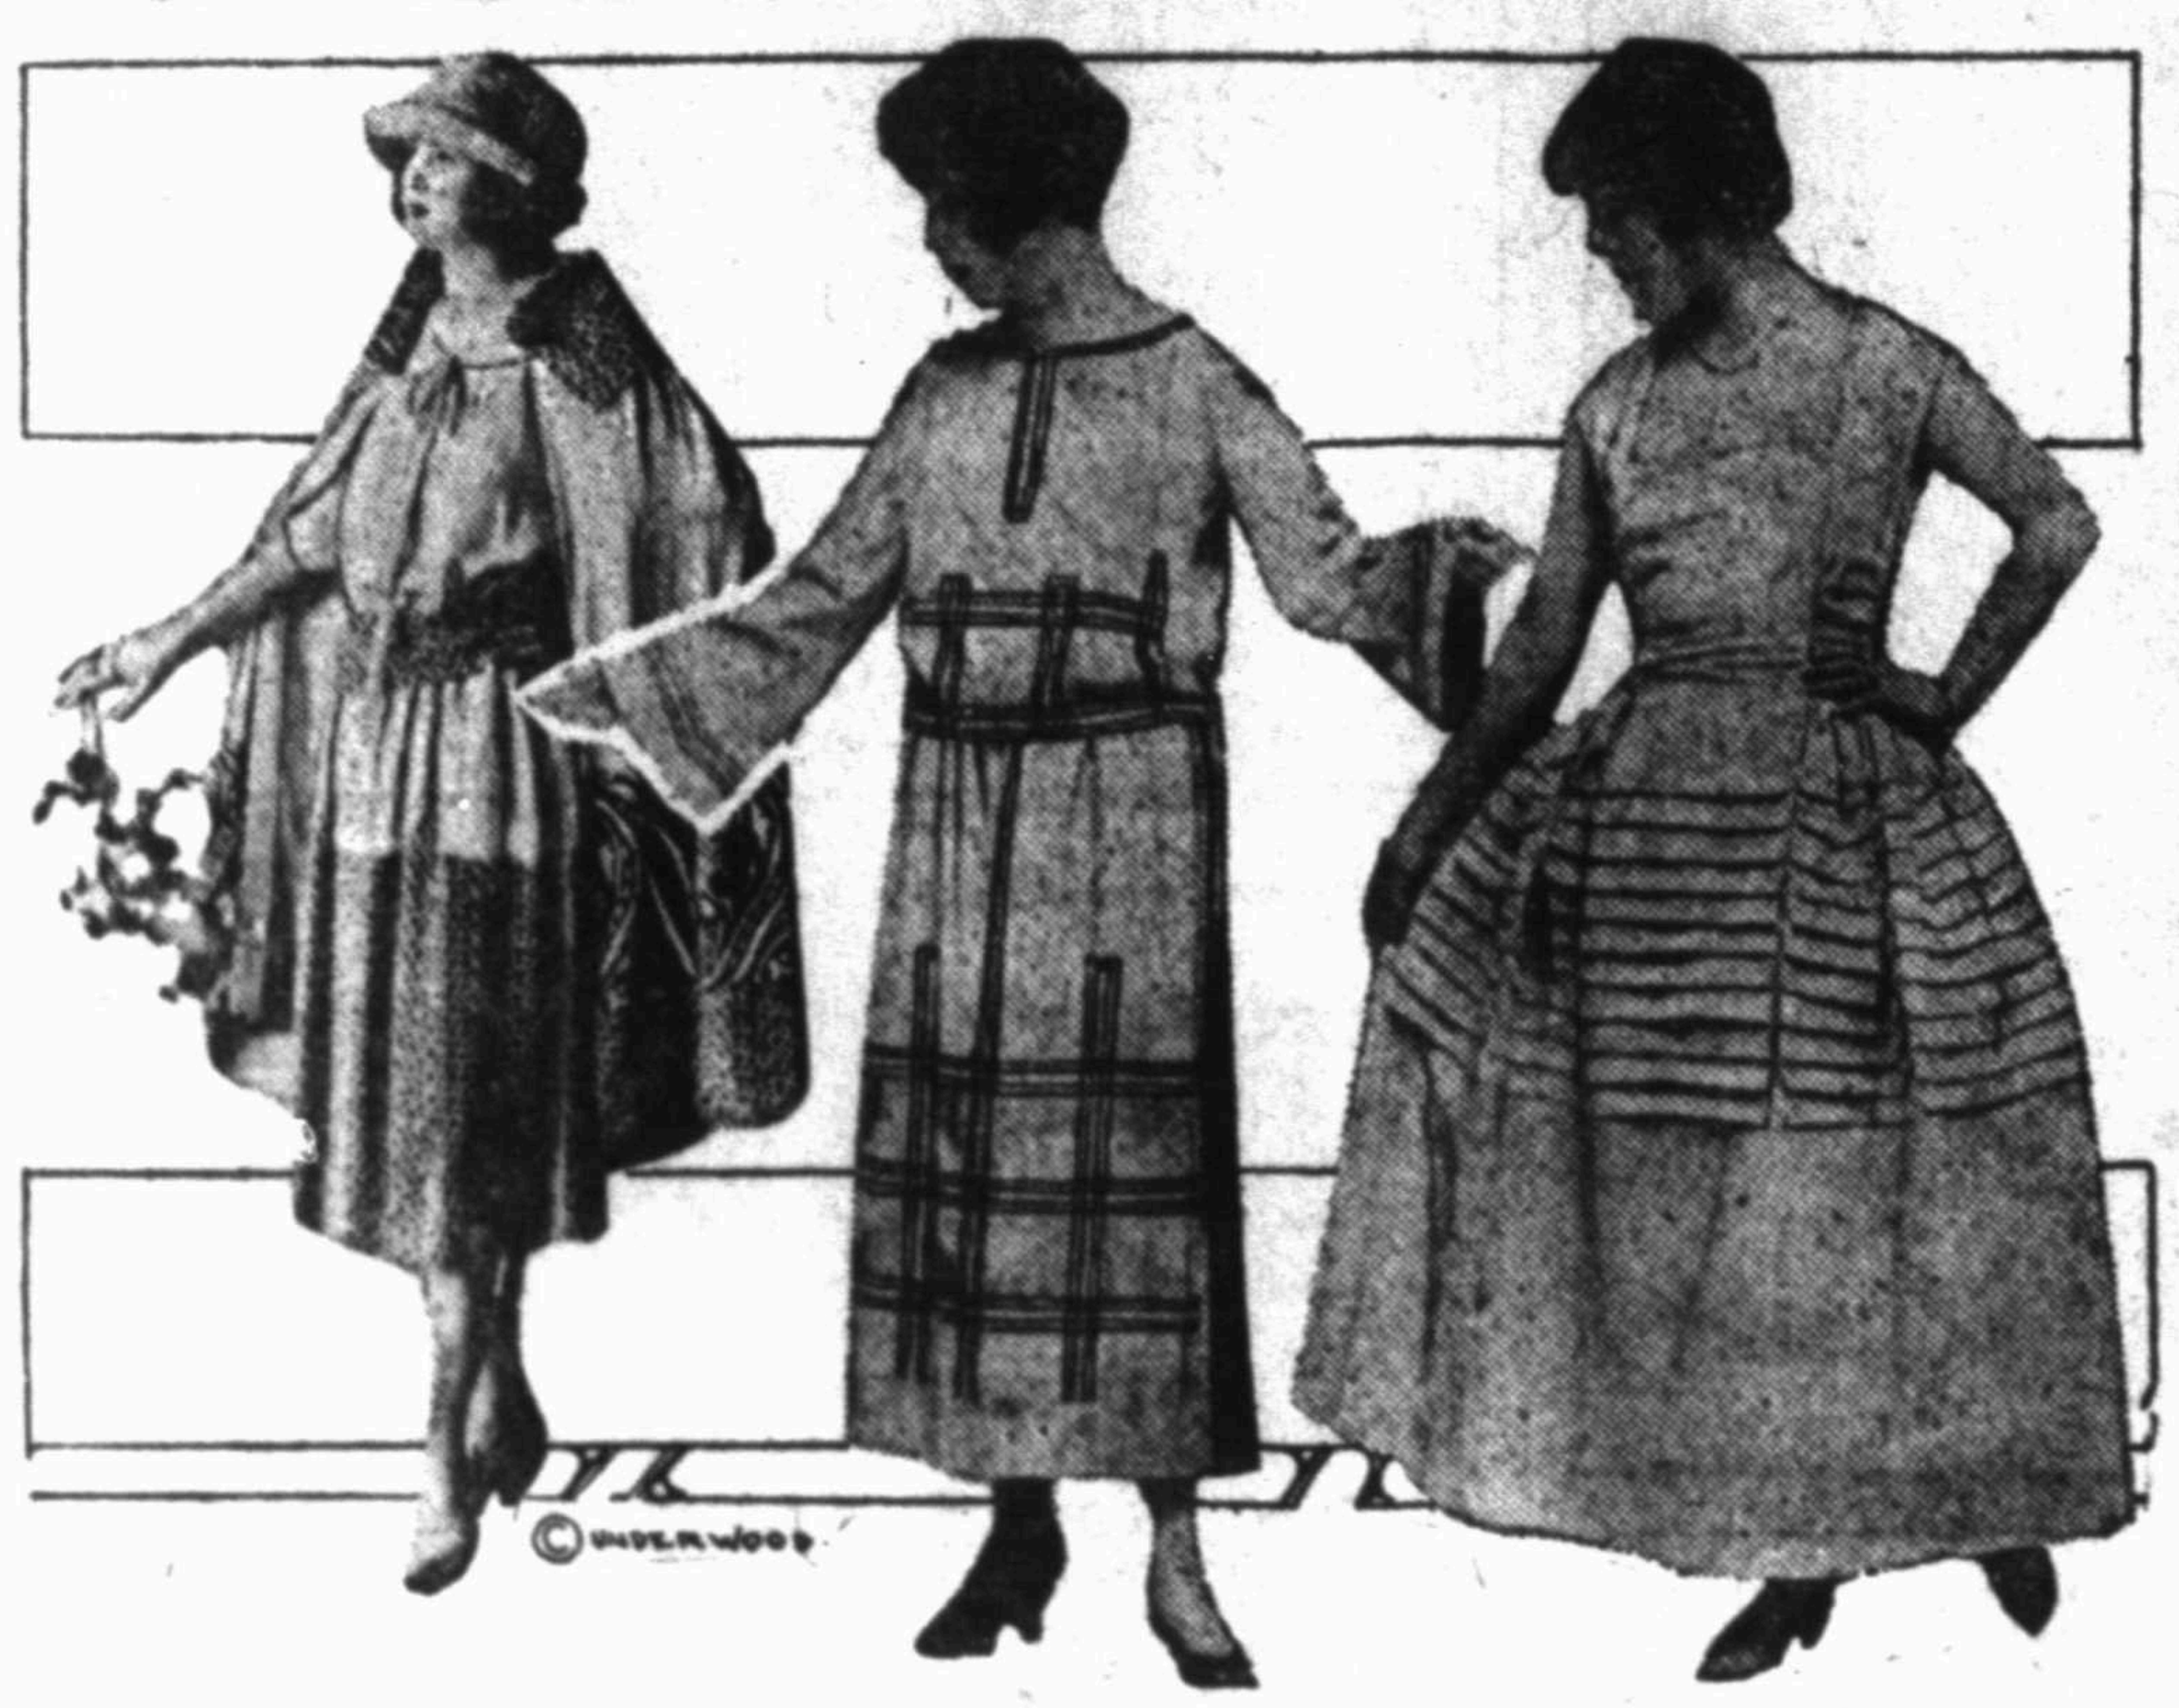
The production of gasoline during April, which amounted to 472,920,182 gallons, showed practically no increase over March. Total consumption figures, including exports and shipments to insular possessions, however, show an increase of 12,000,000 gallons. Exports for April amounted to 58,007,495 gallons; shipments to insular possessions, 1,894,426 gallons; imports, 10,581,720 gallons; domestic consumption 385,563,870 gallons.

A daily average of 1,357,000 barrels of oil was run through the stills of the 303 refineries reported to the bureau of mines as operating during the month of April. These figures show a decrease of 30,000 barrels in the daily average run, also 3 less operative plants than the report of the previous month. The April reports show operative plants to be running 77 per cent of their daily indicated capacity.

The seasonal decline in the gasoline stock curve, occurring generally during April or May, has not yet started, as is evidenced by the sharp increase in reserves.

Both production and stocks of kerosene shows an increase during the month of April. Stocks of this material on hand in May amounted to 325,836,126 gallons. Production of kerosene in April amounted to 188,809,385 gallons. Exports and shipments during the month consisted of 90,000,000 gallons, this being the largest amount since December, 1920.

ORANGE TINTS FAVORED IN NEW GOWNS



All the shades of orange from the pale, delicate pink-orange shades to the deep burnt orange hue are in order for summer frocks. Sports togs feature orange stripes and plaids, afternoon frocks feature figured silks in orange and white and evening gowns are often of delicately tinted orange taffeta. Here are three very fetching frocks all showing the season's vogue for orange.

A street or informal frock is shown in the center. It combines simplicity wit hsmartness. It is made of light orange silk crepe trimmed with black satin and black silk braid. The satin faces the wide sleeves and forms narrow side insets. The braid is put on in a rather conventional design.

The dance frock at the right shows the Parisian touch in the length of its very full skirt. It is made of pale orange taffeta with many tucks on the skirt and a demure little tight fitting bodice. The lack of sleeves accentuates the charm of the frock.

Hurricane Warnings Sent Through South By Weath . Bureau

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 17. — Instruction to "be alert and ready to distribute hurricane warnings" was the gist of instructions sent today by the weather bureau to all its south Atlantic and Gulf coast stations in preparation for what was described as "the hurricane season which is about to begin." Additional funds were said by the bureau officials to have been made available for extending the hurricane service to July 1 and trained meteorologists will be placed in charge of stations at Brownsville, Texas, and Apalachicola, Fla.

Roberts Upholds Crabs' Protest

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, June 17.—The protest of the Galveston club of the Texas League over empire J. F. O'Hearn's forfeiture of the game of June 5 in Beaumont to Beaumont was sustained in a decision by J. Doak Roberts, president of the league, today. President Roberts ruled that the game be played out from the point at which the forfeiture occurred. The uncompleted game will be finished before the game of August 6 at Beaumont.

The game stood 13 to 10 in Beaumont's favor with one Galveston batter out in the eighth inning at the time of the forfeiture, which was ordered because of alleged objectionable conduct by Galveston players. President Roberts' decision removes one victory from the Beaumont club and a defeat from the Galveston club in the present league standing.

Mexican Strike Situation Improves

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—The strike situation in Mexico City and Vera Cruz improved apreciably today with prospects of a complete settlement within the next 48 hours.

Information obtained at the office of the governor of the federal district indicated that the street car strike is near adujstment with the possibility of normal transportaion facilities tomorrow. This would mean that the sympathetic walkout of the bakers and telephone operators would be automatically settled.

Disagreements among the various labor groups as to a policy and leadership are accounted responsible for the inability of the strikers to maintain their position and this same dissension is declared to have operated with the same effect at Vera Cruz, where port activities are said to be gradually returning to normal.

MASKATS WILL GREET VISITORS

Band and Patrol to Turn Out

Six hours chocked full of entertainment are planned by local Shriners for the Shrine "cargo" of the El Mina all Shrine special, which will stop here next Tuesday evening on their return from the meeting of the imperial council of the order at San Francisco. In addition to the members of the El Mina Temple at Galveston, the train will bring a number of Shriners from Beaumont and Houston and other south Texas points. The party will be headed by the crack El Mina band, supplemented by musicals from Maskat and other Texas temples, and their crack patrol.

Potentate W. D. Cline, W. W. Gardner, Horrace Robbins and D. J. Builes, representatives of Maskat Temple to the San Francisco meeting, will return on this train.

The program includes a dinner party at the Kemp at 6:30, followed by an automobile ride over the city, with an informal dance at the Kemp, beginning at 9 o'clock, to finish the schedule.

Maskat Temple band and patrol will be ordered out in full uniform to welcome the visitors and returning divan officers of Maskat Temple, and escort them to the Kemp hotel for dinner. El Mina Temple has a wonderful band and patrol and they will be seen on the streets in full uniform just after the arrival of the special train.

Potentate L. W. Norwood of El Mina Temple has stated that the El Mina bunch has always been anxious to visit the oasis of Maskat Temple, on account of the reputation earned by this city when Maskat Temple was instituted in August, 1920.

The local merchants are making preparations to decorate the interiors and show windows for the El Mina nobles, as well as for the Shrine circus which will be held July 1 to 8.

Now That's Rather Odd

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK.—An hour after she had been prepared for burial yesterday, Mrs. Rebecca Senps sat up in her coffin.

Physicians summoned the woman's children and relatives during the afternoon and at 5 o'clock, after she had suffered a paralytic stroke she was pronounced dead. Ice was packed about her body and candles lighted.

Neighbors who came in to console the woman's children were gathered about the coffin when the body stirred. Mrs. Senps sat up and asked for a drink. Physicians said she would recover.

Campaign On For Negro Hospital

Campaign work in connection with the proposed million dollar hospital to be erected at Dallas for the negroes of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas will start next week, according to an announcement.

The solicitation at this time will be for only small amounts, as only $8,000 to $10,000 is expected from the four states in the mid-summer drive. The present work is designed to serve as the ground work for the bigger drive in the fall. The million dollars will be raised, according to the plan, during the next four years.

The board of directors will include negroes and a number of the most prominent white people of the four states, according to the plan.

The hospital is also expected to serve as a nurses' training school for negro girls from all over the South.

The plan has received the endorsement, according to Rev. J. A. Tyler, the founder of the institution, who is now here, of many of the most prominent men in public and private life in Dallas and other points in North Texas.

The campaign manager is expected to reach Wichita Falls the first day or two of the week.

Gas Systems are Costly

Because natural gas is so convenient a fuel, and possibly because the product itself is furnished by nature, few people think of the enormous difficulty and high cost necessary to bring it to their doors.

The Lone Star Gas Company, which has over $20,000,000 invested in the procuring and transporting of gas for 43 communities in Texas, has been forced to go further and further for its supply of gas, until now it has 875 miles of pipe line devoted exclusively to the transportation of gas, and 29 compressor units, the sole purpose of which is to force gas along these pipes.

Extending the Territory

Naturally, the first supply was from wells near the consumption. But gas wells have the unpleasant habit of failing, and gas consumption is increasing.

Therefore new territories have to be explored, new gas pools found, and new wells sunk. These, when they are successful, require new pipe lines to them and new compressors to force the gas along. Thirty more compressors have been ordered for delivery this year.

Expensive Work

Gas wells are expensive, and gas pipe lines cost high. The constant extension of the field is necessary to provide the supply, and huge sums are lost every year by the failure of wells.

Continuous effort is necessary for the maintenance of our service. It must be planned years ahead, and the plans do not always work out. Hence, the maintenance of your supply means constant expenditure as well as vigilance.

BOWMAN HURLS SPUDDERS TO 6-5 WIN AS ENTIRE TEAM PLAYS GREAT GAME AFIELD

Bescher Continues Hitting Streak; Summa Forced Out With Bruised Arm; Bischoff Wallops In Pinch For Needed Runs; Fans To Be Out Today For Last Game

By "SPIKE" COOPER

When George Bischoff lammed a single into left with the bases filled in the seventh yesterday, away went Houston's chances for a ball game. Two runners spiked the rubber, and Bescher counted the winning run a moment later on McDonald's infield out, which won for the Spuds 6-5.

Abe Bowman pitched a masterful game throughout although he yielded up a dozen blows, one of which was a well-hit homer over the right wall by Eiffert. Abe pitched great ball in the pinches and repeatedly let the visitors down light. Bowman was responsible for two of the runs, both coming after smashing singles. He pulled a neat piece of base running in the fifth when he counted from first on Adam's double into right center.

Bob Bescher continued his uninterrupted hitting streak of [illegible] and singled safely in both times at bat. He was passed twice with runners in scoring position.

Spectacular fielding by the Spudders stole Buff hits repeatedly. Summa, Adams, Bescher and Beck pulled great plays for themselves and assisted Bowman to [illegible] in the victory.

Al White trumped in with his 16th double of the season in addition to a single out of three chances at the platter. In the seventh Al went back into right [illegible] and pulled down a hit that threatened to make the game more interesting.

Kitchens made his second appearance in the line up since the team returned home and well acquitted himself after the long rest. He pulled a beautiful play at the plate which saved a score in the seventh. Blades attempted to score from first when DeNoville singled to right with two away. McDonald's throw was good, but Kitchens had to dive head first into the sliding runner, but he was out on a close and dangerous play.

Summa was the victim of a fast pitch in the second when he stopped one of Reinhart's fast ones with his elbow. He continued in the game until the pain grew intense and was relieved in the seventh in favor of Bischoff who promptly sewed up the ball game.

Fans had an opportunity to see Clements, the new Buff shortstop. He looks like a comer. His fielding is good and he meets the ball hard and often. Although he got only one safety, he was robbed twice, once when Adams went behind third and took a grounder and threw to first. It was robbery in every sense of the word. Then again in the sixth Summa [illegible] was labbed [illegible] or three bases when he smashed [illegible] into left [illegible] took a terrific [illegible].

Eiffert caught one of Bowman's slants in the fifth and poled it far over right field fence for a homer. It was a terrific drive and cleared the fence by many feet. He led the day's hitters with three out of four.

Jake Miller was out with the press aggregation [illegible] his crutches. His ankle resembles an eggplant more than anything else. It is swollen to twice its normal size and badly discolored. He expects to join the team when they return to Fort Worth July 2.

Fans are elated [illegible] first double bill of the season [illegible] when the Buffs and Spudders [illegible] up for two games at 2 o'clock. [illegible] two games will wind up the home stay of the Spuds for 20 days. Out-of-town fans are expected in large numbers and before the starting bell, the crowd will likely overflow into the grounds.

In the first half Adams cut loose on the first pitch and [illegible] out to Bailey. Tanner was out, Blades to Denoville. Bescher singled into center, but went out stealing.

The Buffs were out in order again in the second. Whiteman flied out to McDonald in short right. DeNoville lofted to Bescher and Adams threw Doyle out at first.

Homer Summa failed to get in the clear on a pitch and suffered a badly bruised arm. As McDonald fanned, Eiffert turned it into a double play when he picked Summa off first. Beck fouled out to Doyle.

Two hits, a pass and a hit batsman failed to materialize into a run. Clements singled emphatically into left and Eiffert fired one into right. Reinhart moved both along the paths with a perfect sacrifice. Bittle grounded to Beck who played to the plate in time to get Clements. Eiffert failed to advance on the play.

Bailey walked, filling the bases and Bowman then tightened up and fanned the hard-hitting Ray Blades.

White got the Spudders' first hit in the third, when he slid into first, beating out a throw from third that had him caught on the line, but he slid under and around DeNoville. Kitchens advanced him with a deliberate sacrifice. Bowman grounded out, Blades to DeNoville, and White went to third, but Adams was out, Doyle to first.

Only three Buffs hit in the fourth. Whiteman grounded out, Adams to Beck. DeNoville singled between Tanner and Adams, but when Doyle grounded toward second, Adams made a great stop, tagged up and turned it into a neat double play.

Summary: Two-base hits, Beck, Adams, White; home run Eiffert; stolen bases, Whiteman, Blades; sacrifice hits, Kitchens, Adams, Reinhart; double plays, Eiffert to Denoville; Adams to Beck; bases on balls, off Bowman 1, off Reinhart 4; struck out by Bowman 2, by Reinhart 2; hit by pitched ball, Summa; time of game 2 hours; umpires Daly and Brashear.

Buffs Go In Front

The Spud lead was promptly smothered by the Buffs in the fifth, however. Adams robbed Clements of a hit when he went behind third after a grounder past Tanner and threw out the runner. Eiffert whaled one over the wall for the first marker. Reinhart singled into center and moved up when Bittle repeated. Bailey forced [illegible] to Kitchens, but Blades singled into left. Bescher [illegible] the [illegible] Whiteman got a fluke hit into center, scoring two runners and sending Blades to third. A double steal netted the fourth counter of the frame just before DeNoville fouled out to Tanner.

One run was the Spudder effort in their half of the sixth. Kitchens was out when he grounded straight to Blades. Bowman fired a single into center and scored from first when Adams doubled to the fence in right center. Buddy fanned after losing a [illegible] by inches when his drive down left field line hit barely outside. Bescher was passed and Summa grounded out to Blades on a vicious drive.

Summa's Great Catch

Bowman fanned Denoville in the sixth. Clements lined into left center but Summa pulled a circus catch. Eiffert got his third hit, a single into center but Reinhart left him stranded when he popped to Tanner.

McDonald and Beck grounded out to first in the sixth on hard drives. White doubled into left but Kitchens flied out to left.

Bischoff Breaks It Up

The seventh was the Spudders big inning. Summa had to retire in favor of his arm and Bischoff substituted in center. Bowman beat out an infield hit when his drive bounded off Reinhart's glove. Adams sacrificed him to second. Tanner and Bescher were passed, filling the bases. Bischoff got a big hand when he came up and immeditely singled through third, counting Bowman and Tanner. McDonald grounded out, Blades to Denoville, but Bescher tallied the winning counter on the play. Beck flied out to left.

The Buffs were easily out in the eighth. Doyle was out, Adams to Beck. Clements popped to Tanner and Beck robbed Eiffert of a hit when he drove a grounder down toward right.

White opened the Spudder half with a walk and moved up when Kitchens hit to third on a hit and run play. Bowman popped to short and Adams skied out to left.

Then in the ninth only three Buffs batted. Josefson went in to hit for Reinhart and grounded out, Bowman to Beck. White threw Bittle out at first and Bailey flied out to Bescher.

Spuds After Pelt of Rampaging Panthers Despite Handicaps

SOUTHERN JOURNEY SHOULD LAND TEAM IN FORT WORTH ON EQUAL TERMS WITH CATS

Repetition of Last Trips by Both Teams Is Possible; Spudders Show Great Strength at Bat; Wichita Has Been Lucky With Umps; Stand Is Now Being Erected

By "SPIKE" COOPER

The Spudders leave tomorrow on another jaunt around the Southern end of the circuit. Monday is an off day for the Wichita club, and will likely find them over in Panther Park where the Sand Crabs will be finishing their northern journey.

From Fort Worth, the Spudders hie into the surf town for a three day engagement at the Gulfview ball lot. This series will afford the Spudders opportunity to lead the season count with the Island City nine.

During the past two weeks the Spudders have been confronted with two evils, the Panthers and Exporters. The lesser has been removed, and was accomplished at the hands of the Spudders themselves. True enough, Fort Worth and Beaumont had a hand in the affair, but it was the Spudders that shunted the Mathesites into third place where they are now below the .600 mark and only a burst of speed can place them in striking distance.

But the Cats! Something has to be done, and done in a hurry, for if the season is to be split, then the Spudders have a hard road ahead to overhaul the flying Atzcats.

Should the Spudders repeat their last road trip and enjoy the same circumstance from the Panthers, then July 2 will find the two teams battling on about even terms when Salm will lead his chargers into Panther park for the big holiday celebration, climaxed by a monstrous double bill on July 4.

On the last trip out, the Spudders returned with 10 scalps out of 14 battles. Then for an average, of the 12 games scheduled between now and the Fort Worth engagement, the Spuds must tank nine. They did it once, and the juberous fans who predict a repetition as impossible may be badly fooled.

The Panthers managed to drop more than half their games on their southern trip. Will they do it again?

Playing the Spudders to repeat, they will drive into Heiferville with a percentage of .648. And playing the Panthers to repeat, they will return home at .657, less than a full game ahead of the Spudders.

The five games to be played in four days will then determine the winner of the first half in case there is a split in the season.

SPUDS SHOW WAY AS HITTING CLUB.

All this philosophizing is to show the possibilities which lie before the team as they take the road. They have fought their way into striking distance and are bound to continue what some might term a "dizzy pace."

A team that is hitting well above .300 is dangerous every time it enters the gate of a park. And that is the Spudders. Friday night averages showed the team, figuring eight regulars at approximately .331 as a team. Clouting like that is going to win three-fourths of the games regardless of what might happen.

Pitchers of the opposition show no hesitancy in admitting that they fear the Spudder hit-mill far more than any other of the league. Dave Griffith, former manager of the Sand Crabs confessed that it was next to the impossible to outpitch the Spud hitters.

The Spudders are recognized and feared, and that is half the battle But who can blame hurlers for dreading to face the whirlwind attack which is loosed at will under Salm's direction?

WICHITA HAS NOT SEEN THE BAD UMPS.

There is a wail around the Lone Star circuit over the umpires handed out by J. Doak Roberts. A number of instances have demonstrated the grounds for objection. Already Prexy Roberts has rearranged the personnel of the arbiter staff, both through dismissals and additions.

But Wichita Falls has been fortunate.

True enough the fans have not agreed entirely with the decisions handed out by the directors of play who have worked in Athletic park, but there have been no rank breaches of conduct, no disregard for the fans, no objectionable conduct, in fact nothing to create comment when taken as a whole.

Then Wichita Falls is lucky and—best of all, bears no malice toward the officials whose duties brought them here.

STANDS TO BE FINISHED WHEN SPUDS RETURN HOME.

The Spudders are to have a new home when they arrive from Shreveport, July 10 to meet Jim Galloway's hired hands for three days.

Foundations have been poured and have set. Timbers are being raised into position by the small army of workmen who are laboring under the direction of Bert Adrian who has accepted the contract.

The first effort will be to complete that portion that lies directly behind the plate. Actual construction on the first 88 feet is well under way and will be complete before the team returns.

More than 4,000 comfortable seats will be located in the new stand. The stand will extend in a horse-shoe curve from first to third base, with provisions for additions in the future. Bleacher seats will extend to the fence along either field. Approximately 1,200 seats will be included in the boxes which will be slightly raised above the level of the field.

The stand will be modern and complete in every respect and will have no advantage as to location, since the entire seating space will be practically equidistant from the diamond.

THREE ENTRIES FROM U. S. IN ENGLISH PLAY

Critics See Small Chance For Winning

NEW YORK, June 17.—Three of the most able of the many formidable professional golfers of the United States will tee off in the qualifying round of the British open championship which opens Monday at Sandwich, England, over the ancient links of the Royal St. George's club here, in an attempt to again defeat the British at their own game, "in their own backyard."

It was done successfully last year by Jack Hutchinson, of the Glen View club, Chicago, who, obeying his heart after deciding first not to make the trip, has returned to defend his title. With him are "Long Jim" Barnes, of the Pelham County club, United States open champion, and Walter Hagen, western open champion and title holder of the American professional golfers association.

This trio is "The America's Big Three." Last year American professionals and amateurs swarmed over the course at St. Andrews, enabled to compete by their friends at home who took up a nation-wide subscription to send them. This time Hutchinson, Barnes and Hagen are the only three American professionals of repute there in contrast to the many British players who will stream across the Atlantic later for the American championship.

As the defending champion Hutchinson is the cynosure. He is represented by his admirers as not in the same superb form he displayed last year when he won the classic after a thrilling match with Roger Wethered, an amateur. Jock's card was sprinkled with birdies and eagles. If the Chicagoan attains his best form expert British opinion anticipate that he may well carry the crown again back with him.

Hagen is regarded as one of the very best match players in the United States. His principal reason in going to Sandwich was to make the first leg of the round-the-world tour that he has planned with Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick shot star, who, they do say, can make a golf ball do everything except talk a Scotch brogue.

"Long Jim" Barnes and Hagen made the longest-distanced professional golfing tour ever undertaken during the winter, encircling the United States and playing principally in the sunshine tournaments of southern California and the Pacific coast. Should Barnes win he will be the golf master of two continents.

BISCHOFF AND TANNER SET SWAT PACE

Two Spuds Hitting Over 400; [illegible] Leads As Team

The Texas League still boasts a pair of .400 hitters in two slamming Spudders, Bischoff and Arch Tanner, who are setting a stiff pace with the willow for the league to follow. Among players who have participated in nearly all of the games the lead still rests with George Whiteman, boss of the Buffs, who is clouting .386 in fifty games.

The Texas League batting streak is maintained far beyond its usual normal period and through Thursday's game thirty-nine batters were hitting at better than a .300 pace.

Pug Allen of Dallas, the leading home run hitter with twelve circuit clouts, is not in the .300 division, but Ezzell of Shreveport, the base stealing leader by a wide margin, is in the select company.

Summa of Wichita Falls has taken the lead in the race for the first century in base hits with eighty-seven.

By bunching hits off Connally in the pinches, plus the errors on the part of the Gulf boys, lost the Gulf their leadership of the City Loop in a hard game, 7 to 5, Saturday. Dahl, the Texaco star, was roched for a dozen bingles, but they were kept well scattered. Connally pitched a good game for the losers, whiffing five and allowing three free passes.

The Gulfers started in the first canto, bringing in three tallies before the stars could put three aside. In the fourth the Texas company lads bunched hits, took the lead by crossing the platter four times. The Stars rang another in the fifth and a pair more in the final round. The leaders staged a ninth inning rally and counted twice. The tying run was on the bases but Friedlander struck out and ended the game.

Gordon, Davis and Highfill of the winners poled out homers, two of them having a man on base which was the deciding factor of the win for the Stars. Score:

SISLER WHOLE SHOW IN MAJORS

Hornsby Main Ring Performer In National

Writing baseball this season has developed almost exclusively into writing about George Sisler for the incomparable first sacker of the St. Louis Browns is playing such brilliant baseball that he leads in almost every branch of the sport and seems to be trying to win a pennant for the Mound City singlehanded.

The major league averages released today, show that Sisler not only stands at the top of the American league in most branches of the game, but that his figures in most cases are better than those made by any National leaguers. The statistics show that Sisler is—

This Is Old George:

First in batting averages in either league.

First in runs scored in either league.

First in total hits in either league.

First in total bases in either league.

First in three base hits in either league.

First in stolen bases in either league.

First in either league to make 100 hits this season.

And close to the top in two baggers and home runs in the American league.

Sisler went on a batting streak last week that brought his average to .433 against .419 the previous week. He made his 100th hit Wednesday in the game with Washington, which he virtually won with a home run with the bases full. Sisler's stolen bases number 23, with Ken Williams, his teammate, second in the American league with 21. The averages include games of Wednesday.

Williams Has 16.

Bing Miller of Philadelphia is runnerup to Sisler on the American league averages with a mark of .376. OILERS AND TEXHOMA SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

The Texhoma Oilers and Presbyterians split a double bill, the Oilers taking the first, 9 to 6 and the Churchmen the latter, 6 to 5. The first canto of the game was rather loose on the part of both. The Oilers tallied six in their half, while the Churchmen rang up four. Heavy hitting was indulged in on the part of the Oilers and three pitchers tried their curves. Holmes for the winners started by walking three straight and gave way to Winfrey. Lanky held them to seven scattered hits, while his team mates won the game. Score:

First game:

Texhoma	600 120 x—9	8	4
Presbyterians	401 010 0—6	7	5

Second game:

Batteries: Steimal, Ferguson and Beck; Gordon, Sanderford and Neal.

Too many of the Bankers and Railroaders wanted to attend the Spudder game, and their own was postponed. According to Gus Pelz, he has resigned his position as manager for the Brakies and their fast nine is on the verge of disbanding. The Bankers have had too much hard luck lately. Several of their star players are injured and they might not last the balance of the season with the City leaguers.

WESTERN MEN WIN TRACK HONORS

California Athletes Smash Records In Chicago

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 17.—California, winner of the eastern intercollegiate meet, carried off team honors in the second national collegiate track and field meet today by scoring 28½ points. Pennsylvania State was second with 19½, Notre Dame third with 17 7-10, Illinois fourth with 14 7-10, and Iowa fifth with 11¾. Nine records were smashed in the games which brought together the greatest field of college stars in a meet this year.

He won the shot put and hammer throw and landed fourth in the running broad jump. He smashed the record for the hammer throw with a heave of 161 feet 4 inches. Leonard Paulu, of Grinnell was second with 10 points, breaking records in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Six Records Broken

The sixth record to go by the boards was in the 220 yard low hudles, Brookins of Iowa won this event in 24 1-5, beating the former record of 24 4-5 made by Gus Desch of Notre Dame in the meet a year ago.

Merchant, the California star, winning his second event, smashed the hammer throw mark by 27 feet 6 1-4 inches when he shattered the record of 133 feet 9 3-4 inches held by Redmon of Chicago.

Merchant's new mark was 161 feet 4 inches. After the event was finished he swung the weight 165 feet 1 inch in an exhibition.

GENERAL MART MAKES ADVANCE

Cotton Shows Small Net Gain

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 17.—Moderate reactions were followed by firmness in the cotton market today with October contracts selling up from 21.74 to 22.02 and closing at 21.98, compared with 21.85 at the close of yesterday. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 10 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 10 points on overnight buying orders which had evidently been zbrought in by the strength of late yesterday.

There was scattered southern selling as well as local selling on the early setback which carried July off to 21.82 and December to 21.51, or about 6 to 12 points net lower. Buying encouraged by yesterday's bullish week end figures and favorable week end reviews of the dry goods trade, checked the decline at this level and the market turned firmer during the middle of the morning on the forecast for showery weather in Texas. Early sellers covered and there was some trade buying on the advance to 22.06 for July and 21.80 for September, or about 17 to 20 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Last prices were a fe wpoints off from the best under realizing.

Manchester cable advices published this morning said that general business prospects were encouraging and a firm tone was reported in the domestic goods markets. Sales of cloths in the Fall River marketfor the week were estimated at 200,000 pieces and the curtailment of production there was placed at 50,000, or about the same as the previous week.

WHEAT BULGES NEAR DAY'S END

Saturday Session Is Featureless

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 17.—A closing bulge similar to the one yesterday was the only feature in an otherwise lifeless session in wheat on the board of trade today. Houses that were buyers late yesterday were on the buying side again today during the closing rally. The buying was believed to be for a big cash interest which is taking advantage of the technical condition of the market and force pit shorts to cover. At the finish wheat was 1-8 to 7-8c higher, July 1.11 3-4 to 1.11 78 and September 1.12 14 to 1.12 3-8; corn unchanged to 38c lower; oats were unchanged to 1-8c off, while provisions sowed 7 12 to 12 1-2c decline.

There was a lack of enthusiastic buying of wheat in the early trading. Scattered showers were reported in Oklahoma and Kansas and temperatures throughout the southwest and central west were lower, although the forecast was for generally fair with rising temperatures. Disappointing threshing returns on wheat were received from Texas and Oklahoma with mention of black rust damage in the latter state. Commission houses bought September on a moderate scale early and July came out rather freely, tending to widen the difference somewhat.

Corn and oats were rather dull. Local traders bought corn early while commission houses sold and the market on the whole showed an easy undertone. Reports on oats continued relatively poor but so far have had little effect ~~on~~ the market. Provisions were dull and easier trade.

NEW YORK BONDS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Like the stock list, today's bond market owed much of its activity to the agreement reached between Mexico's fiscal representatives and the international bankers committee.

Mexican government 4's and 5's made additions to yesterday's sudden recovery, but these were cancelled in part on the evident desire to take profit. There was some trading in issues of the national railways of Mexico but changes in that quarter were not impressive.

The demand for liberty bonds was continued, the fourth 4 1-4s scoring a new high at 100.14. Final quotations in that group however, showed nominal gains and losses.

Changes among the speculative rails, industrials and utilities were narrow, transportations again inclining to ease because of impending labor difficulties.

Leading European loans showed further dullness and uncertainty although holding well considering the renewed heaviness of most of the foreign exchanges. Total sales, par value, aggregated $8,649,000.

STEEL DEMAND STILL ACTIVE

Production Rate On Increase

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The demand for steel continues active for near delivery and the rate of production is increasing despite the fuel situation, which, however, causes constant uneasiness. Prices are very firm with an upward tendency owing to the increasing cost of production. Pig iron is strong and in good demand, although quotations are irregular, according to position.

Copper is quiet and easier; presumably having supplied immediate needs, foreign demand has diminished and domestic buyers are also holding off which has led to some shading of prices by second hands and small producers. It is reported that small lots of electrolytic have been sold at 13 3-4 cents delivered, but the larger producers are holding at 13 7-8 to 14. Production of refined, according to estimates, is at the rate of about 100,000,000 pounds per month, including imports. The exports so far this month have been at the rate of approximately 50,000,000 pounds, but are expected to fall off.

EVANSTON, Ill.—A large majority of business men "now conduct their affairs in accordance with the avowed belief that right is superior to might; that morality is on a par with legality and that the observance of both is essential to worthy achievement," Elbert H. Former Judge Gary is an alumnus of the law school of Northwestern. He will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the commencement exercises next Monday.

MONEY IS NEEDED

To erect new houses, to pay notes due against existing homes and to finance the purchase of residences by home buyers who are again entering the market for Wichita Falls property after an absence of about eighteen months. Citizens of this city can serve themselves and the community in no better way than to save a portion of their earnings or place some of their surplus cash through this institution to be loaned in connection with these real estate and building transactions. Their interest rate will be good, their security absolute and yet their funds may be withdrawn if needed. The demand for loans is far in excess of the supply of money available. Your serious attention is directed to the part that this institution is playing in the further upbuilding of Wichita Falls.

B. F. Johnson Announces Candidacy

I have been urged by countless friends to make the race for REPRESENTATIVE from Wichita County.

There is nothing I would rather do than serve the people of this County in the Legislature again. I am glad if I was able to accomplish something during the last session for Wichita County and whenever I can be of service in any capacity again, I stand ready, but right now there are five reasons why I cannot run for re-election:

The first is my business—it demands my entire time—the other four reasons are at home and must be clothed, fed and educated.

Therefore, I AM RUNNING for your Insurance and Real Estate business.

Yours With Sincere Gratitude,

The Destructive Force of Silence

"We have advertised a long while," said a manufacturer who wished to stop. "And have good will. That good will will last us for a long while. We don't need to add to it right now."

To some extent that is so. The flywheel goes on turning for a while after the power is shut off. But not for long. And when it stops it takes more power to start it, by six times, than it takes to keep it running.

One might almost as well say:

"We won't buy coal now that it is so expensive, we will gradually chop up the plant and burn that in the furnace until coal is cheaper. And then we can rebuild the plant."

Good will is a fine thing to use.

But not a fine thing to use up.

Nothing is ever finished—done. Time is destructive. Stop building up and time starts tearing down. Some things last longer than others. But nothing lasts so very long. You think of your plant, for instance, as built. But it only stays built because you are painting and repairing and gradually but continually replacing it bit by bit.

Think how much more rapid the inevitable loss in a thing so intangible as familiarity—as reputation—as good will.

Out of sight, out of mind—not all in a minute but before so very long.

Advertisers who stop advertising expose the advertising structure, on which they have invested much money for many years, to elements quite as destructive and more rapid in their action than those which attack the disintegrate an unfinished, abandoned building.

In almost every community you will find the ruins of an ambitious but unfinished mansion—generally called Somebody's Folly.

Much money went into the work and then financial reverses stopped it all. And the winds blew and the rains descended and the sun warped the wood and the dampness rotted it, and rust and decay completed its ruin.

Now, an advertising structure, dependent on familiarity and reputation, can never be finished even to the extent that a building can be finished. We venture to say that never, in your most optimistic moments, have you felt that your advertising structure was finished and that it would shelter and protect your established business forever after.

No, you realize, when you stop to think, that the work of building must go on until the end of time.

Good will is a fine thing to use.

FRUIT APLENTY THIS SEASON

Canners Busy During Past Few Days

Wichita county's "hot biscuit crop" as one epicure expressed the splendid wheat crop which is now being harvested, will have an accompaniment of plenty of home made preserves and jelly, from a survey of local orchards and the wild plum thickets along creeks and river banks. For the first time in three seasons there will be an abundance of fruit in local orchards and housewives are already busy with their canning.

Strawberries have held the center of attention from home canners for the past two weeks, but other berries and peaches and plums are beginning to come in. Heavy demands on the sugar stores of local merchants are reported. Fruit jars, which have enjoyed a new use in the past months, will probably be at a premium before the season is over.

Granfield Dokies To Invade City

Wichita Falls will be invaded Monday morning by Knights of Pythias and Dokeys from Grandfield, headed by band, uniformed patrol and clowns in the interest of the big Dokey ceremonial at Grandfield Monday week, according to word received by local Pythians.

The ceremonial at Grandfield will bring as participants the governors of two states, according to the announcement, Governor Robertson of Oklahoma, a tyro, and Governor Neff of Texas, an initiate who will help "pour it on" his fellow executive. The ceremonial is expected to attract a number of prominent Pythians from the southwest, as well as a large class of tyros. Fifty or sixty local Pythians will attend, it is expected.

Before reaching Wichita Falls the Grandfield delegation will visit Devol and Burkburnett, and will visit Iowa Park and Electra after leaving here. They will reach Wichita Falls at 11 o'clock and parade the downtown section, after which they will take lunch as the guests of the local Pythians.

MISS VERSCHOYLE GRADUATES WITH HONORS

Miss Mattie Ellen Verschoyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Verschoyle has returned from Dallas, where she graduated this year from the Bryan high school. Miss Verschoyle stood third in the large graduating class, according to a recent issue of the Dallas Journal, with only three tenths of a point difference between her standing and that of the valedictorian, despite a months' absence on account of illness.

Leroy Verschoyle who was also a student in Bryan high, is also at home. The young people were with their grand parents during the school days.

ALLEN GETS HOME

DeCourse Allen has joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reese S. Allen, at the Kemp hotel, after spending a day in a Dallas hospital, following slight injuries in the wreck of the Sunshine Special at Mineola on Wednesday. He was on his way home from Cornell university, where he finished his junior year.

MERCHANTS FIX SIGNS

Nearly all local merchants have moved or changed overhanging street signs to conform with the new sign ordinance passed a year ago, and which goes into effect Tuesday week, according to a local sign man who has been busily at work during the past three weeks making belated changes.

He expressed belief that all will have been changed to conform with the new ordinance by the end of the coming week.

EAST RELIEF FUND COMPLETE

Baptists to Make Up Contribution

With the special contribution at the First Baptist church this morning Wichita Falls 1922 Near East relief subscription will be completed.

Cash and pledges in the hands of the treasurer, W. M. McGregor, amount to more than $4,000, and the subscription from the First Baptist church is expected to be sufficient to bring this well above $5,000, judging from the contributions in the other churches.

Definite figures from the different churches have not yet been compiled, waiting on late subscriptions, but the First Methodist South contribution was in excess of $1,100 at last reports, the First Presbyterian near $1,000 and the First Christian around $900.

The contribution of the households of the city to the old clothing campaign netted one and a half tons, final surveys show. The exact weight of the clothing was 3,590 pounds.

An extension of the old clothing campaign to Electra and Vernon is planned for the coming week. Mrs. Reese S. Allen will accompany Mrs. B. F. Armstrong, who is here from Fort Worth in the interests of the campaign.

Small Entry List At Monthly Shoot

The gun club held the regular monthly registered shoot Friday morning, but for some unexplained reason, the smallest entry list of the year participated.

Three squads toed the line in the 16-yard rise singles events with the following scores: Greenburg 18-24; Hamming 19-22; Landon, 14-20; Gallagher 20-21; Lyon, H., 22-14; Deatherage 22-22; Lyon, L. L., 21-20; Rigsby, 17-18; Dempsey, 20-20; Nabb, 23-22; Foster, 8-12; Randle, 19-21; Rhodes 23-22; Bowen 23-22; Adams 17-4.

In the doubles event shot at 12 pairs, the scores were:

An extra squad of doubles were run off which afforded close competition. Lyon, H. 18; Adams 18; Gallagher, 15; Deatherage, 15; Dempsey, 16.

This is the third registered shoot held by the local club and the success enjoyed in all of them has encouraged the club to where the membership campaign which was started several days ago will be resumed this week.

The plan now calls for an added membership of 100 Wichitans which will afford the largest membership of any club in the southwest, and one of the most active as well.

DICKSON TALKS ON RACE FACTS

Negro Minister Shows Present Status

Friday June 16 Rev. W. L. Dickson, president and general manager of the Dickson colored orphanage, spoke to more than 800 people here. Rev Dickson emphasized to the congregation that the negro was here and was here to stay and it was the duty of the good negroes to array themselves against the bad negroes of the country and to stand unqualifiedly for peace and harmony between the races. He said God made the negro a black man and he intended for him to be a black man. God also intended for the races to live in harmony with each other. He said the negro must seek cooperation from the white man and if he would let the white man understand that he was striving to make the best citizen of himself as a negro the white man would help.

He urges his people to go to work, stop loafing the streets, stop going to white families claiming to be married when you are not. He said God was watching the race, and the race was not only lowering themselves in the sight of God, but the race, by that kind of conduct, was lowering themselves in the eyes of the intelligent world. He said he knew hundreds and thousands of white men and women who stood ready to help the right kind of negroes.

If you are working for another man and you mean to quit, give him notice and quit like a man. Don't slip away and say that you are coming back when you know that you are gone. Pay your honest debts.

The federal government has been paying compensation to a one-armed negro, James H. Williams, for injuries supposed to have been received in France during the world war. He confessed, under cross-examination, that he lost his arm in a railroad accident at Rocky Mount, N. C. It was asserted that Williams has never worn a uniform.

10 PCT FREIGHT CUT ORDERED

State Board Slashes Intrastate Traffic

General freight rate reductions of 10 per cent on intrastate traffic conforming to the interstate rate cuts ordered recently by the interstate commerce commission have been granted to state railways by the Texas railroad commission.

Announcements of the ruling handed down by the state commission were received in Wichita Falls by local railroad officials Saturday. The decision is the body's reply to the request of Texas railways made before the commission at Austin June 13 in a hearing that lasted several days.

In speaking of the state commission's decision yesterday, it was pointed out by local traffic men that the action is the first big step taken by the Texas railroad body since "state rights" have been revested in the commission through the recent decision of the United States supreme court in ruling on the famous Shreveport rate hearing case, as a result of which the interstate commerce commission withdrew its power over intrastate matters on May 15.

The interstate commerce commission recently ordered all carriers to reduce their rates 10 per cent. Railway officials of Texas lines immediately requested a hearing before the state railroad commission, asking that similar reductions be made on intrastate traffic in this state. The hearing, held at Austin, was declared to be a revival of the old days before the interstate commerce commission usurped intrastate powers the state commission had held.

The 10 per cent reduction is based on the rates that were in effect August 2, 1920. On August 26, 1920, the interstate commission ordered rates increased 35 per cent, making a basis of 135 per cent for the roads to operate upon. The reduction sought by and granted to Texas lines aggregates 10 per cent of 135 per cent, or 10 per cent less than the rates in effect August 26, 1920, which still gives the carriers a rate of 21½ per cent over that in effect on August 26, 1920.

Following the increase ordered by the interstate body the 26th day of August, a number of the railways in Texas went before the state commission and created special or emergency rates in order to still handle certain commodities for companies that otherwise might have been forced out of business. These special rates were a great deal less than those ordered by the interstate commission.

It was stated by local railroad officials Saturday that they will not be affected by the order of the Texas commission unless their present level is over the basis of the rate decrease.

Local railroads, among others in Texas, created several emergency rates, which, it was stated Saturday, will not be affected by the new state commission order. According to Wichita Falls officials, only the special rates applying in the Fort Worth and Galveston districts will have to be reduced.

Consummation of the plan fostered by Texas lines, it is said, will prove a valuable asset to the railroads, for the state carriers not only have the 10 per cent reduction in effect on interstate freight, but on intrastate as well.

De Molay Initiates 21 New Candidates

With the closing of the colleges of the south, where many Wichita Falls boys are completing their education, the Hope Chapter, Order of De Molay is steadily increasing its membership. At a meeting held at the Masonic temple last night twenty-one candidates were initiated into the order. About half of the new members are from Texas schools.

The membership was formerly numbered at 125, consisting of boys of this city and adjoining towns. The organization is doing work among the boys and many new features are being planned, some of which are now under way. The patrol is nearly completed and is planning organization of a band before the summer ends. A baseball nine is also being discussed by the De Molays.

PRIZES OFFERED AMONG CATACLYSM

Your car will probably be blocked at the cross roads more than once this summer by a pretty girl with a camera taking a picture of Neighbor Jones' rusty water pipes, and your son will insist on carrying a ladder every time he takes his camera out so he can get a good close-up of all the metal roofs in the district, so you might just as well know the truth now. They are not nearly so foolish as they look. Everybody all over the country more or less will be doing the same thing. This is the reason:

Announcement has just been made in New York City of a photographic contest closing September 1 and of interest to anyone who can wield a camera. It is intended to secure from all over the country a collection of pictures showing the permanency of the non-rusting metals, copper, brass and bronze, and to stress the wastefulness of substitutes in the American home.

There will be fourteen prizes for photographs showing the lasting qualities of the metals and fourteen more showing the disadvantages of using substitutes. The first prize in each class will be $150, the second $125, third $75, fourth $50, and ten prizes of $10 each.

One of the restrictions is that any copper leader, gutter, roof, pipe, or other copper or brass article of utility or ornamentation that is photographed must be at least 35 years old to qualify and the rules state that facts as to the age and condition of the subject photographed will be verified before the prizes are awarded.

The photographs of substitutes for copper and brass may be of any age, and include such subjects as rusted leaders and gutters, pitted plumbing pipe, walls damaged by plumbing leakage, or floors torn up to make repairs to plumbing, rusty hardware, etc.

The subject photographed need not be the contestant's property, but he must have the owner's permission to photograph it unless it is public property. Where the subject is installed as a part of a building it is permissible to send also a photo of the building itself if it lends additional interest. Such information as is necessary should be written on the back of such photos. Some of the prize-winning pictures will be printed after the contest is over. The photographs should be carefully protected with cardboard in mailing.

A contestant may enter with one or more photographs and it is promised that the prizes will be awarded within 60 days after September 1.

The contest will be held under the auspices of the contest committee of the Copper and Brass Research association, 25 Broadway, New York, which has drafted the rules and to which the photographs will be sent.

TRADE COUNCIL BACKS BONDS

Rogers Also Backed For Governor

At the regular weekly meeting Friday night of the trades council, officials were insistent that all members support the school bond issue, which will come before the voters again in the near future.

The council will also support Fred S. Rogers, labor candidate for governor, and will do all possible to assist them here. Since Mr. Rogers is to speak here, the local council will do all in their power to assure him of a large hearing. They insist that all workmen, both union and non-union, further the labor cause.

Committees from the building locals report work still in abundance throughout the city, which bears out the fact that Wichita Falls is still on the upturn.

Progress Made On Irrigation Work

Little except reports from progress on construction already under way was reported from the irrigation project this week.

Driving of the sheet steel piling under what will be the best of the big dam has been finished, except in the present bed of the stream, which will not be driven until the concrete conduits are finished.

There is about four weeks more work on the big conduits. When the piling is driven in the river the water in the stream will back up and float the dredge, recently launched in a basin, and it will begin the piling up of the immense embankment. The finishing touches are being applied leisurely to the dredge, which will not go into action until next week. Additioanl progress on the placing of the gravel blanket on the lighter section of the storage dam, which is being erected by teaming contractors, is reported.

At the diversion dam, where actual construction of the big embankment is under way, the usual progress is reported. The same is true of work on the south side canal and on the concrete canal structures for the same.

Bachelor To Fumble Over Baby Queries

What is a pacifier?

At what age should a baby change from long dresses to short?

When should swaddling clothes be worn?

Oh you bachelors! For the best answer to the questions that appear among these and others in a questionnaire, the bachelors of the Bachelor apartments, who will be entertained this evening at 8:15 at the Olympic theater with a special screening of "The Bachelor Daddy," will be requested to write clear, concise answers.

There's a prize for the best answer—but just what it is has not been revealed by the theater management yet.

Soon after the announcement was made that the theater would entertain the bachelors in a special show, large placards announcing the hour and the place were placed in the Bachelor apartments, with the result that the bachelors plan to march to the theater in a body.

So don't get excited if you see a drove of wild-eyed "birds" walking down Eighth or Indiana streets tonight, looking as if they're suffering from malnutrition—it won't be a Sunday school class by any means; it'll just be a "gang" of bachelors.

ROTATE AND IRRIGATE, SAYS SUCCESSFUL FARMER

RODEO QUEEN TIRES OF GAY LIFE OF STAR

Lucile Mulhall Is Happy On Quiet Ranch Home

Special to the Record News.

MULHALL, Okla., June 17.—It's the simple life only that appeals to Lucile Mulhall now. The most expert horsewoman in the world, who for a decade has been the premier drawing card in outdoor rodeo exhibitions of this and other countries, has laid aside her spurs and habit and taken up with garden flowers and sunbonnets.

The divorce decree that separated Miss Mulhall from Tom Burnett, rodeo king of the southwest, decided her. The financial settlement she had with Burnett made her certain of her future. As to the terms of the settlement, opinions are divided.

How Romance Started.

Whatever may have been the contract, Colonel Mulhall, who soulfully approved of the match between his daughter and the multimillionaire cattleman of Texas, will not be aggrieved over its terms.

Two and a half years ago, when the Mulhall rodeo troup was showing in Texas, Tom Burnett, son of Burk Burnett, multimillionaire stockman and oil royalty owner, was a spectator. He himself had been ambitious to get into the rodeo game. Lucile Mulhall roped and tied a steer in twenty seconds.

"Most wonderful thing you ever saw!" exclaimed Tom Burnett. "That stunt was worth a million dollars."

Whereupon he made love to the horsewoman, made love and won her. They were married and moved to the Burnett ranch, near Iowa Park, Texas.

"That's a good match," said Col. Mulhall. "The best match I ever saw. They are alike as two peas in a pod. They are outdoors people, like riding and roping and round-ups—everything about the ranch and the cattle business."

Sometime later Colonel Mulhall visited them. "They are the happiest pair you ever saw," he said on return. "You could spend an age on that ranch and not tire of it. They have land and cattle and money and are as carefree as any persons you ever saw."

That "Biggest Rodeo."

One day Burnett mentioned his rodeo aspirations. "We'll be partners, you and I," he suggested to Lucile. "We'll put on the biggest of all rodeos."

They did it, although it may not have been just to the liking of the daughter of the pioneer Oklahoma ranchman. Tom Burnett became the king of the rodeo world and Lucile Mulhall was his queen and the queen of his world. They undertook big events. The country had not seen the like. They exhibited at Wichita Falls, at Fort Worth, at Dallas and at lesser points. Trains ran excursions for the events. Men traveled hundreds of miles to see it.

It was a big event. For years Lucile Mulhall had enjoyed the plaudits of sportsmen of two continents. She was the champion horsewoman of the world—And Tom Burnett—his father had been the leading ranchman of the southwest, probably one of the most powerful factors in the cattle industry, and a town had been named for him and that town became internationally famous because in and around it was developed one of the greatest oil pools of the country and Burk Burnett had become so rich that it was difficult to count his millions.

Lights Too Bright.

Tom Burnett on his own account was worth a lot of money.

The country never saw such a rare combination of top notchers in outdoor sports. The 101 Ranch operators, who doubtless made a fortune out of a wildwest show, never displayed a pair of human magnets like these.

The Burnett ranch home became headquarters for the southwest of rodeo stars, ranchmen, notable devotees of outdoor sports and an assortment of lesser lights in the world of sports.

At the Mulhall ranch one hears

3,900 Calves Branded On Famous Four-Six Ranch in King County

Veteran Cattlemen In From Spring Round Up On Capt. Burk Burnett's Big Place

Thirty-nine hundred calves for the spring branding on one ranch isn't exactly a record-breaking crop, but it does show that the passing of the ranch isn't yet accomplished all over Texas.

This was the chore of the branding wagon crew this season at the famous Four-Six ranch of Captain Burk Burnett, in King county. Jerry Minter, nephew of the veteran ranchman, superintended the job, which is just finished, and was in Wichita Falls this week, visiting his mother, Mrs. J. M. Barkley, and his sister, Mrs. Bentley Bacon, on his way to Fort Worth from the ranch.

In addition to the branding each calf was innoculated against black leg. Eighteen men were with the branding outfit this year.

Outside the branding and vaccination the principal interests on the ranch this spring were rattlesnake hunts and accidents, according to Mr. Minter. He brought a box full of big rattlesnakes as souvenirs of the rattlesnake massacre. Broken jaws, arms and legs are the souvenirs of the various accidents.

The heavy rains have made the grass so high and luxurant that riders cannot see the holes. Stumbling cow ponies have been playing havoc with bones.

The grass on the plains is in even better condition than in Wichita and neighboring counties, Mr. Minter stated. There have been showers since the first heavy rains, at frequent intervals, and the grass is green and abundant.

THRESHING IS UNDER WAY HERE

Crop In Good Shape Along River

Threshing of wheat has already begun in Wichita county.

The statement was made here by County Agent Jones, who said that a full crew was running on the old Fowler place farmed by Willie Anderson. The place contains 600 acres.

Cutting of wheat is practically over, the agent said, and threshing will be in progress all over the county by Monday.

In speaking of the wheat crop of this territory, Agent Jones said that that the wheat all along Red river is good, and that a good production is expected from Wichita county.

Anderson will obtain around 20 bushels to the acre from his farm, he said.

10,000 Barrels of Oil Charter Given By Katy Engines

Had you ever thought how much fuel a railroad company consumes in one day?

According to H. G. Smith, divisional freight and passenger agent of the M., K. & T., the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway system, consumes 10,000 barrels of fuel oil per day in making steam for its locomotives.

Mr. Smith says that between Kansas City, Mo., and Parsons, Kans., on the main line, the company burns 3,806 barrels a day, while in our own vicinity—the Katy division and the Wichita Falls & Northwestern lines—728 barrels a day are burned up.

The local official points out the fact that the Katy is the third largest consumer of fuel oil in Texas today, being exceeded only by the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe lines.

Large storage tanks along the routes supply the Katy engines with oil, two of the tanks, both of 55,000-gallons capacity, being located in this city.

Katy Earns $10,000 Per Mile For Year

With agreement apparently reached with the owners of stocks and bonds in all the subsidiary corporations and on the various branches, Katy reorganization, toward which officials of the system have worked for several years, is apparently really over the hump, and can be expected to work itself out within the next few months, according to information reaching here.

Once more set upon its feet, absolutely no reason for its failure to make a go can be seen in local railroad circles. The Katy's gross earnings last year were around $10,000 per mile, and a railroad management which is reasonably efficient should be able to make a go on business like that, it is felt in railroad circles.

Bonham Candidate To Speak Tuesday

Fred S. Rogers of Bonham, farmer-labor candidate for the gubernatorial nomination will speak in Wichita Falls on his campaign swing through the Panhandle Tuesday night at 8:00 o'clock. Mr. Rogers is expected to speak from one of the district court rooms.

It will be his first appearance in Wichita Falls. He is supposed to have a number of supporters here, and is declared to have gained considerable strength recently all over the state.

RED CAPS MAY COME BACK HERE

Youths Want to Earn Needed Money

Is the red cap a good thing, or is such a life a detriment to the youth who may choose to carry luggage from the station to the hotels and to automobiles

That is the question that is being raised in the circles around the union station and that has even crept into the minds of police and county officers.

The question was raised several days ago when it was learned that two enterprising young men had been carrying grips for travelers from the union station for about a week. When questioned as to their right to come on the railroad company's property and obtain customers, the lads immediately produced two sheets of paper which purported to be licenses granting them the privilege to ply their trade.

The license, supposed to have been issued by a county authority, will probably prove of little asset to the lads, since such rights are vested in the city authorities alone. Nevertheless, the lads are using them.

There are many about the union station who can remember when the old cry: "Carry yer grip, mister?" was familiar, but the day of the red cap ended in Wichita Falls when several youths were implicated in the disappearance of grips; this is the argument that is being issued against the beginning of such an undertaking for a second experience.

"There is no demand for red caps here, anyway," some are explaining.

But still, these little fellows who want to carry grips want to earn money in the summer time "just like brother does." And, why shouldn't he?

FIGHT FOR RAIL TRADE GROWS KEEN IN CITY

Katy Plans Extension But Others Will Fight It

Competition, always keen in railroad circles here, has become even feverish in the very recent past, and gives signs of battle for business by the two systems entering here which may soon become joined all along the line.

The operation during most of the years of Wichita Falls' history of some home-owned line, at the present writing the Wichita Falls & Southern, which having the claim of home ownership on shippers naturally had a good line on local business, has always made the getting of business by the other two lines a matter of get up and get, and it has been devil take the hindmost practically all the time.

But now the two larger lines have a new reason for rivalry. With the Katy reorganization apparently over the hill, and the line feeling prosperous again, comes the revival of talk of extension of the Wichita Falls & Northwestern from Forgan to Pueblo, Colorado, a dream of many years standing.

The battle for trade and the rendering of service, however, is just the opening skirmish brought on by such a plan, however. To build the line would require a permit.

Furthermore, the application will be opposed, fought, resisted and denounced. Not only by the Denver and the Colorado Southern, but by the powerful Burlington and Great Northern interests to which the first two lines belong.

The Fight Goes Merrily On.

So, the odds are against the Katy. That the line actually plans the new line, though, is apparently clearly indicated. The inclusion of the north part of the Wichita Falls & Northwestern, from Hammond to Forgan, in the reorganization plans under liberal terms seems to clearly indicate some such intention. Whether the Katy succeeds, or whether it does not, the fact remains that the two lines, with the Southern joining in and continuing to do its usual rushing business at its old stand.

Expect Record School Vote Again

With three polling places instead of one provided for, and with the record vote cast in the last election indicating the belief of Wichitans in the new junior college proposed as the "crown" to the local system of free education, school officials are expecting the heaviest vote in the history of Wichita Falls when the bonds are voted over here Saturday.

The bonds will have to be voted upon again, although the vote cast in their favor on May 13 was the heaviest ever cast in a school election, because the attorney general ruled that the state law instead of the special law passed for Wichita Falls governed the notice which must be given of an election. A total of 27 days notice was given, where the state statute required 30, although the special statute under which all previous local school bond elections had been held required only 20.

The three polling places provided at this election will be located at the city hall, at the court house and at the high school.

Two Trains Taken Off By Southern

Two trains which formerly played a part in the schedule of the Wichita Falls & Southern were taken off today.

Night trains Nos. 7 and 8 operating out of Ranger and forming a connecting railway link at Cisco, Texas, in passenger tickets for the W. F. & S., have been cut out by the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth railroad company. The road extends from Ranger to Dublin, Texas.

Officials of the Wichita Falls & Southern, speaking of the change in schedule during the past week, stated that the W. F. & S., will continue to make good connections with the C. & N. E., for points south and with the Katy for all points east and west of Cisco.

The trains, it was learned, will be off permanently.

Rail Head Okehs Katy House Here

Revised plans for the new Katy freight house at Wichita Falls have been approved by C. N. Whitehead, vice president and chief operating officer, according to information received here. This work together with the other work involved in the extensive improvement program for which the Katy recently floated a large loan, is expected to begin in the near future.

New freight houses for Fort Worth and Waco are provided for as well as the Wichita Falls house. The local house, with its new tracks, will call for an expenditure in excess of $300,000. It is one of the largest owned by the Katy in Texas, being larger in some respects than the house erected only a year or two ago at San Antonio

CITY IS LIVING WITHIN MEANS

Wichita Expenses At Minimum Figure

With the smallest general revenue per capita of any city of its size in the United States—40,000 to 45,000—Wichita Falls for the fiscal year ending March 21, 1921 showed one of the largest amounts remaining after paying general expenses and interest of any town of its size, according to financial statistics of cities just released by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

In other words, it came nearer living within its means than any of them—counting the regular running expenses of the city.

The capital outlays, paving, street improvement and most of all the practical building of city sanitary and storm sewer systems, were much higher than any other city of its size in the country, amounting to more than $22 per capita.

This was the year when the cost against the improvements made necessary by reason of the boom and the phenomenal development of Wichita Falls, experienced by no other city of its size in the United States, was taxed. Even with the outlays taxed, the excess of expenditure for all purposes over income was not much larger than that of many cities of the same size which made less than

SURE ENOUGH BERMUDA ONIONS

GENUINE BERMUDA ONIONS—big fellows averaging several inches in diameter and weighing from a half to three quarters of a pound each were exhibited down town Friday by W. B. Gutshaw who grew them in his garden at 2005 Tilden street. The onions were crisp and firm and were similar in appearance to the best of the product shipped in here from the Rio Grande valley.

"Its just an example of what can be done on this old no-account real estate around here," Mr. Gutshaw declared.

"It demonstrates that another highly marketable product can be grown as well here as anywhere," Mr. Kemp declared.

"The irrigated farms of this county will in a short time be sending as fine onions to the eastern markets, I am convinced, as were ever produced in Bermuda or in the Rio Grande valley."

Swanson Replies To Atticus Webb

Answers to a questionnaire recently addressed to candidates for the legislature by Rev. Atticus Webb, editor of the organ of the Anti-Saloon league in Texas, have been sent by F. G. Swanson, candidate for the legislature from this district, with the statement that the candidate has always been in favor of "open diplomacy."

To the first question, regarding the making of it a felony to possess a still not registered with the federal government the candidate said that while he believed that a man should be punished for possession of those things that have no use save illegal ones, he had not made sufficient investigation of this phase of the liquor question that would justify him going on record as favoring no penalty save that of a felony.

To No. 2 to the compelling those found drunk to tell where they got the liquor, he replies that "It can't be done." He declares also that bills of rights from time immemorial have granted constitutional rights through which this could be avoided, and suggests that the same thing could be reached by making more drastic penalties for being drunk, and by making it equally a crime to buy as to sell liquor—declaring that if there were no buyers there would be no sellers.

Big Trucker Believes Organization Good Thing and That One Will Be Formed

"The cabbage grown in this section of Texas is the best I have ever handled from any territory."

That statement made recently in an address at Iowa Park by George D. Keith, head of the Wichita Produce company, has interested W. H. Downing, successful truck farmer who produces sufficient vegetables from 20 acres of hand located at the end of Speedway and Harrison streets to net him an annual income of $5,000.

From his address, Mr. Downing and other truckers of this county, of which there is a very small number, have conceived the idea of a possible Wichita County Truck Growers' association, and possibly a Wichita County Cabbage Growers' association.

"I believe that such an association would be a good thing for Wichita county truckers," Mr. Downing says, "if it was organized in conjunction with the produce and wholesale houses of the county.

"It is my opinion that within the next year, Wichita county will see a cabbage growers' organization perfected."

Cabbage growing has been found a very profitable business on Mr. Downing's 20-acre truck farm. He raises more cabbage than any other kind of produce, and from his small patch of land, he obtains a larger income each year than any cotton farmer of Wichita county.

$5,000 YEAR CLEANED FROM 20-ACRE FARM

Wichitan Shows Way To City Man Thru Actual Practice

By R. WILLIAM ARCHER

Rotate your crops and irrigate.

This short, concise advice to the farmers of all classes, coming from W. H. Downing, whose 36 years experience as a truck farmer, coincides exactly with what agricultural specialists, county demonstration agents and agricultural schools have been teaching for years.

"Diversification is successful on any farm," Mr. Downing says, "and irrigation where irrigation is needed is the most profitable thing a man can place on his farm."

A trip to his place, where 20 acres of land are under cultivation in truck, is all that is necessary to settle any argument as to whether men can enter trucking to an advantage. A review of Mr. Downing's books which show his net returns through the 36 years that he has been interested in truck farming is conclusive evidence that it is a profitable business.

Get This Comparison.

Many a man bends over a desk and juggles figures seven days in the week, year after year, for less than $3,000 per annum. But there are few men who can sit on a porch well shaded with vines and rest in the summer breezes, while his theory of rotating truck crops goes on out in a 20 acre patch bringing in $5,000 a year as net returns.

That is what Mr. Downing can do, although he busies himself from day to day, especially through the summer months, experimenting with his crops, and finding out which pays him the most money.

Business Profitable.

Located at the end of Speedway and Harrison streets, in the corporate limits of Wichita Falls, Mr. Downing and his youthful son, J. Solon Downing, conduct probably the most profitable truck farm in Wichita county.

It is probably the most profitable because only 20 acres are cultivated, and from these 20 acres, Downing & Downing collect larger returns than many a thousand acre ranch or farm in this same section.

It is Mr. Downing's argument that a farmer doesn't have to cultivate hundreds and hundreds of acres of land to be successful. His 36 years in the business that he is still following have taught him that, he says.

A modern home, about which there is an atmosphere of prosperity, located in the foreground of his place, indicates that truck farming pays.

Assembly of God Revivals Continue

Revival services in progress at the Assembly of God church, Fifth and Broad, will continue until the beginning of the revival conducted by Raymond T. Richie, "Healing Evangelist" on Sunday, June 25, according to announcement by Rev. William Burton McCafferty, the pastor. The beginning of the "healing revival" was announced in a wire received by Rev. McCafferty from Rev. Richie.

The pastor of the local church is a firm believer in the "Gospel of Healing" and emphasizes this in his services.

Will Organize T-O Fair This Week

Organization of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association, and steps toward its incorporation will be taken at a meeting of the stockholders Wednesday night at the chambed of commerce. At this time officers and directors will be elected, and plans for the imvrovements and changes in the Call Field grounds lined out in preparation for the holding of the fair this fall.

Subscriptions to the capital stock of the association was materially increased by work during the past week and stock subscription campaigns were started in four nearby points which will have a particular interest in the two-state fair. Other points are to be visited in the near future.

Civil War Veteran, 73 Years of Age And Still Active In Business Life, Starts Long Trek To Reunion City

On his way to his 32nd Confederate reunion, Col. Ed C. Wilson of Electra, hero of a career which reads like fiction, passed through Wichita Falls Friday heading a party of six veterans with other relatives on the first leg of the long trail to Richmond. Col. Wilson is on the staff of General Julian S. Carr, the commander-in-chief of the veterans.

Other members of the party included A. M. Blackman, T. C. Dial, F. E. Pitt, H. E. Whitfield, W. H. Miller, Mrs. Tama Satterfield, a daughter of Mr. Miller and Gerald Miller and wife.

Col. Wilson, an ante-bellum cadet in a Louisiana academy, officer in a famous Louisiana regiment, and later a scout leader for the army of Northern Virginia, has had a career full of adventure and narrow calls, of financial success and of financial disaster. Captured at one time during the war, and sentenced to be shot as a spy, he made a daring escape the night before his execution and made his way back to his own forces.

Following the war he conducted a chain restaurant business in Chicago, and become well to do, to be completely wiped out in the great Chicago fire. Later he conducted a hotel business in Mexico where he had taken one of his brothers for his health, and was after that in California.

He came to Northwest Texas in its early days, residing at several points, and finally becoming the local agent for the Fort Worth & Denver, a position he held many years. He has held several public offices at Electra, and is now at an advanced age capably filling the office of justice of the peace—despite his 73 years.

Texas Women Know Their P's and Q's When It Comes To Politics, According To Press Association Delegates Here

Are women really in politics? Take it from those who met some of the delegates to the Texas Women's Press association here last week—they are.

Women of all ages and from all parts of the state were in attendance. Included among them were some very dear and charming elderly women, women who seemed as if they belonged to the drawing room and that their sphere of public interest was limited to the last work of pure literature or the rector's last Sunday's sermon.

But were they behind the times? Don't think so for a moment. Meet one and talk to her ten minutes and eight of it would very likely be devoted to a very reasonable and logical statement of reasons why So-and So had made the people of the state a very good officer indeed and should be re-elected on the merit he has displayed in his term of office.

They were up-to-the-minute on the various races for office, and the men who were seeking them. And they were not always inclined like you might think they would be.

June Brides Continue to Hold the Center of Social Setting Here

Weddings Attracting Out of Town Visitors And Add to Functions

JUNE brides, with the attendant showers and luncheons, continue to hold the center of the social stage.

Returning college girls, furnishing inspiration for their quota of dinners and dances, are also rushing through a mad whirl of excitement trying, it seems, to crowd in as much pleasure as possible before the migration of the birds of passage to their summer homes.

Brides and weddings true to costume attract some out of town visitors and as a result, the younger set has swelled in numbers, and have enjoyed the evenings with several summer dances.

Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. M. M. Miller will be an event of Wednesday, was the 1 o'clock luncheon at the Wichita club Friday, with Misses Sibyl Kell and Mattie Ruth Corlett, who will be maid of honor and brides maid at the wedding, hostesses.

The table was dainty and attractively decorated with wedding bells, forming the center. The bride-elect's place was marked with a miniature bride and groom while her chair was designated by airy trimmings of white tulle and daises. The yellow and white color scheme was further carried out in the four course luncheon. Guests included members of the wedding party.

Covers were laid for Miss Maer, her mother, Mrs. O. E. Maer, Mrs. W. N. Maer, Mesdames Charles I. Francis, Leslie Stringer, John O'Donohue, Louella B. Thompson and Misses Florence Sammons, Annette Walsh and Cecelia Adickes, Mattie Ruth Corlett and Sibyl Kell.

About 150 young people attended the welcome dance complimenting the local students recently returned home from various schools by the Comus club at the Lake Wichita pavilion on Friday evening. Numerous out of town visitors were also noted.

The oriental effect was carried out in decorations, including a miniature lake of water in the center of the ball room floor surrounded with reeds and plants in which real live fish were happily swimming around. The Comus insigina was set in the bottom of the pool in white stones, and other decorations included the Japanese parasols suspended from the ceiling and streamers in the oriental colors. Colored disc lights furnished a beautiful subdued glow over the dancers and spot lights threw their reflection far out into the water. The entire color scheme was declared by all who attended to be the most elaborate yet attempted by the local clubs.

LOST!

Found,—that glorious feeling that comes with a clear, pure, ruddy complexion.

No reward is offered, because they are lost forever! No question will be asked, except one question, "How did you lose them?" There is but one answer,—"I cut out new fad treatments and guesswork; I used one of the most powerful blood-cleansers, blood-purifiers and flesh-builders known, and that is S. S. S.! Now my face is pinkish, my skin clear as a rose, my cheeks are filled out and my rheumatism, too, is gone!" This will be your experience, too, if you try S. S. S. It is guaranteed to be purely vegetable in all its remarkably effective medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. means a new history for you from now on! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. SOCIETY GOSSIP

Timely Little Talks Over the Teacups

An Individual on the Inside Impresses Her Opinions on Friend

People Peggy Piedmont Meets During Week.

DEAR KITTY:

I know you will wonder what has happened unusual when you receive a letter from me. Well, I will relieve your anxiety right now, its a convention. The annual meeting of the Texas Women's Press association. I want to tell you particularly about some of the clever women I met during this affair, for I am sure could you have been here you would have agreed with me that you had never seen so many in one bunch.

And another thing, you would have been surprised if you could have seen how Wichita Falls' turned out at the social affairs and assisted in making their visit a pleasant one. I say Wichita Falls and mean it, for if the chamber and City Federation isn't representative, I don't know what is. Both organizations co-operated with the local press, Kitty, and the results were that the women expressed themselves as being delighted with the hospitality of our people. (Of course they don't know that we treat everybody that way, but you do.)

However, I must begin to cut a long story short, I am sure that you will be interested in just what "specie' of the feminine sex was here and I will begin by telling you what I learned about Mrs. Mamie Wynne Cox, first vice-president who presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. C. M. B. Hughes of Wharton, who was detained at home on account of the serious illness of her mother. Mrs. Cox by the way, is now the president being elected to the new office at annual election held here.

She is well known throughout the state for her pen contributions to various periodicals and for her poems, but of course you know that. But not having met her personally, you do not know what a charming personality she has. She and her clever sister, Mrs. Charles Barrett, according to my judgment were among the most interesting here. Mrs. Cox lives in Dallas and Mrs. Barrett has for a number of years been a correspondent and feature writer to the Houston Post from her home town Huntsville, as well as assistant editor, reporter and numerous other things for her own town paper.

Mrs. Bettie Magruder from San Angelo sounds like Irish, doesn't it well I expect it is, judging from the spicy little talk, she gave at the press luncheon, when called upon very unexpectedly. I am sure she is among the real workers of the organization. I am sorry, but I didn't find out just her line of work, and I am sure you would like to know and would have been interested, if you could have seen her, but between watching, listening and trying to follow the crowd, of course I could not know all about all of them. I must tell you right here before I forget it too, there were two daughters from Waco here, Miss Decca Lamar West (the woman of the many badges) and Mrs. Fred Robinson. I guess you will say when read this why "the woman of the many badges" but you may perhaps know, that besides being a penwoman of interesting journalistic experience, she is also the historical chairman of the T. W. P. A., state president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and belongs without a doubt to more state organizations than any other woman of the state, by the way, a new honor was trust upon her while here, she won the medal offered by the association for the best piece of literature turned in this year by the members.

Mrs. Robinson is one of the well known clubwomen and writers of the state and was very active in executive affairs of the organization while here. I tell you she was sure a busy woman, however she said she had a good time, but you know there are people who really enjoy being busy.

And before I forget it, I must tell youo about Mrs. Genie Griffin De Wolf, from San Saba, you may think you have seen a combination of business and literary talents, but you have never seen any thing to equal this woman I am sure. Feature writer for several south Texas newspapers, including the San Antonio Express, poetess of state recognition, manager of a cafe and picture show, "can you beat it?" Have forgotten

FIBER SILK

What is lovelier than white for summer wear? White silk sports frocks in many interesting styles are being shown this season. Many materials are used but white sports silks and satins, white silk crepe knit, white silk ejrsey and white tricolette are among the favored fabrics. The one piece frock seems to be taking precedence over the separate skirt and waist also.

Here is a white one piece sports frock which has the appearance of a skirt and waist because of its tailored style. It is made of white fiber silk with a pen stripe of green on the skirt and sleeves of the blouse. Piping of green edges the collar, the skirt pockets and side seams. The dress is made on straight one piece lines with a rubber in the waistline to form the low blouse.

Mrs. Harding's Chicken Pie Dish

This is the first of a series of "Famous Recipes by Famous Women." They were collected by Miss Florence Stratton, of Beaumont, Texas, through her acquaintance with many of these notables. Miss Stratton gathered the "Famous Recipes" pirmarily for publication in book form. She expects the volume to replace the famous White House cook book of days gone by.

She was prevailed upon, however, by one of the largest newspaper syndicating feature services in the country, to release them for newspaper publication and finally consented. They are now available and are being used in the best newspapers throughout the country.

MY FAVORITE RECIPE BY MRS. WARREN G. HARDING.

CHICKEN PIE—Boil chicken until it falls from bones, cut in small pieces. Cook small potatoes, one onion in chicken broth. Make a pastry of one quart flour, lump of lard size of egg, one teaspoonful dough to roll. Line baking dish with pastry and bake in hot oven; of salt, two heaping teaspoons baking powder. Mix to make soft then fill crust with chicken; cover with potatoes and small amount of broth; cover with pastry and brown in quick oven. Thicken remaining broth and serve over potpie.

Tomorrow—Pineapple Salad, by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

GOSSIP—

how many more accomplishments I was told that she possessed, but I do remember too that they said she was also the mother of three charming children. Don't you know she has plenty to do?

At the eleventh hour, whom do you suppose came sauntering in, no more nor no less verson, than our own little "brown wren" Phoebe K. Warner from Claude. The real little country woman, who writes such wonderful, helpful and practical articles for some of our best state papers.

Miss Alice Ballard of Beevile, perhaps the youngest member of the organization and Mrs. J. M. F. Gill of Burkburnett, both members of the journalistic fraternity holding positions of real news getters for state papers were prominent and busy people. Miss Ballard is the recording secretary in the organization and Mrs. Gill is one of the vice presidents.

Another one was here that I am sure you remember, but perhaps like me, didn't know was a member of the association although very literary, and a high light in the State Federation, our own little Mrs. W. R. Potter from Bowie, right here at our door. Mrs. Potter is not a newspaper woman (but we will excuse her for that) her work they told me was mostly confined to books and short story writing I found her to be exclusively clever.

Kitty I suppose if I didn't just quit, I would never get through telling you about these women. Have confined my news strictly to those I met personally even at that. There were perhaps many more here of equal importance as the ones mentioned, I am sure, but I didn't have time to meet them all.

Just another little bit of gossip before I close, did you know that Louise Frieze is to be married? I know that is a surprise to you it was to me. She will marry a man in St. Louis, a Mr. W. Middleton Graves Jr., July 6, so she told me. I tell you weddings are sure getting to be common affairs here. The town is full of brides-to-be. Things are sure enough interesting in the social world.

—Lovingly, PEGGY PEIDMONT.

Wilbarger Deputy Be Heard Monday

Hearing for F. A. N. O'Neal, chief deputy sheriff of Wilbarger county, Sam Brandon and E. Tarpley, charged jointly in a federal warrant with possession of whisky, will be held before United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz Monday.

The chief deputy, Brandon and Tarpley came to Wichita Falls soon after Federal Officer Archie Tyler had visited Vernon and vicinity in quest of them. The federal officer carried a warrant calling for their arrest in connection with the possession of 50 gallons of moonshine whisky. The commissioner granted them temporary bond of $500 each, pending their appearance here Monday.

Officer Tyler stated Saturday that he located the whisky buried in the stalls of an old barn a mile north of Vernon on the property of Chief Deputy O'Neal.

MEIGHAN MAKES NEW KID RULES

Movie Star Becomes Authority

Between scenes for his latest Paramount picture, "The Bachelor Daddy," Thomas Meighan diligently read Holt on the care of children. In this new picture, which comes to the Olympic theater Monday and Tuesday, he is the custodian of five lively youngsters and between registering for the camera and keeping the kids in a good humor, the genial star had his hands full.

By the time the picture was finished, Mr. Meighan had compiled the following rules for the care of children, Holt notwithstanding:

1—A cuckoo clock is the best pacifer.

2—Never try to wash little Johnny's neck unless you have a supply of candy as a "persuader."

3—When children are taken on a Pullman car one should always have an encyclopedia handy to answer all questions.

4—When at dinner in a dining car, children should be given free rein, for any attempt to cramp their style is sure to result disastrously.

5—Never leave children alone on a motion picture set if you expect it to remain the same.

6—When you have guests for dinner, don't leave the children alone in nursery, for there is sure to be a riot, which will not only disturb you but your friends.

Time to Forget Grudges Against Your Neighbor

"Aint's spring wonderful?"

The birds are singing. The flowers are blooming. House-cleaning is over and the great American family has signed the annual spring armistice with the neighbors.

"Pa" always did believe that it was best to get on good terms with the family on the right, along about May or June.

Of course "Pa" denies that the fact that said family usually gets a new car about that time of the year has anything to di with his "love thy neighbor" conversion.

Also "Pa" remembers one summer, not so long ago, when he had to buy a new mower because he insisted upon holding a grudge.

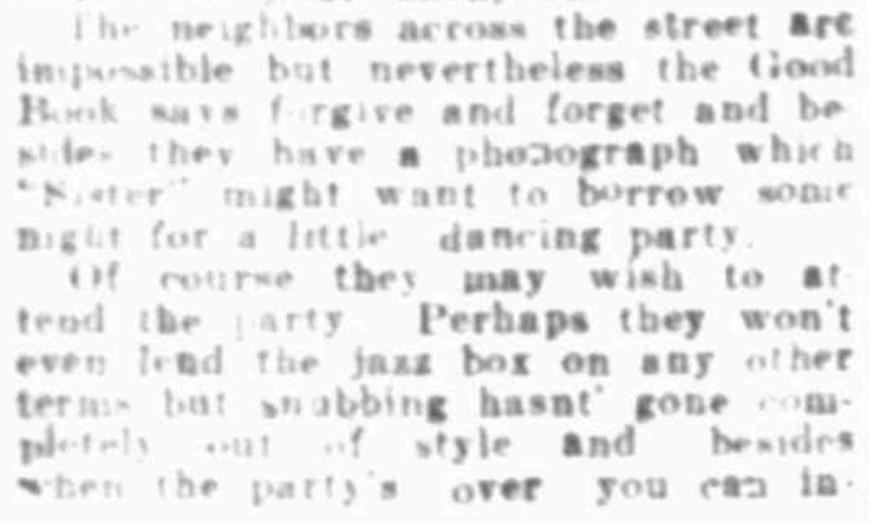
GUESS I'LL HAVE TO BUY A LAWN MOWER THIS YEAR

"Ma" too has come to the [illegible] conclusion that the "love thy ne[illegible]or" policy is best.

She had a fight with the woman next door last fall and had to buy her own eggs all winter. It isn't so bad when the neighbors only are mad but it's hard on the pocket bood when the chickens get to hote even the worms in your backyard.

The neighbors across the street are impossible but nevertheless the Good Book says forgive and forget and besides they have a phonograph which "Sister" might want to borrow some night for a little dancing party.

Of course they may wish to attend the party. Perhaps they won't even lend the jazz box on any other terms but snubbing hasnt' gone completely out of style and besides when the party's over you can invite them to go and take their music box with them.



"Pa" feels that there is no use being friendly with anyone you can't get anything out of. He says that some even expect you to like them when they haven't anything to lend.

"Pa" says you're lucky if you have everything you need because then you don't have to speak to anyone.

FEATURE BIG SHRINE CIRCUS IN WICHITA FALLS FOR A WEEK

The paraphernalia for the big Shrine circus is beginning to reach town and some of the performers are arriving. The "Flying LaVans," world renowned and most celebrated marvelous aerialists, have arrived on the scene and their flying trapese acts and stunts are regular "rair-raisers." Their flying from bar to bar, introducing cut-aways and twisters and doing sensational double and triple summersaults is one of the attractions that is sure to make the circus-goers happy.

Some of the other stunts are the Rosard Trio, sensational trapeze and iron jaw marvels; acrobatic rube fun making act; the McCune Grant trio, comedy acrobats, dancing and horizontal bars. This is a guaranteed attraction and played the largest fairs, parks and celebrations in America and Canada. The Raymonds, high class contortionists—funny, fast, seemingly impossible tricks and twists. One of the limberest men on earth. Stofer and DeAnzo, phenominal act, roller-skat cyclists and barred-jumpers, brimful of sensational feats. Aerial Maginneys, teeth work and original tricks and magnificent wardrobe. Tom Hays and Bessie Hays, gymnasts, wire-walkers and acrobats; craddle trapeze ring act including standing jump to a toe catch on a trapeze to a forward somersault to platform.

To the most popular lady in Wichita Falls and surrounding territory there will be given away free a five passenger Chevrolet car and to the lady standing next highest, one in the city proper and in the surrounding country will receive a $300 diamond ring. Each ticket sold is a chance to the holder for an automobile which will be given away at the circus grounds each night.

OPEN AT MAJESTIC TOMORROW

TOBY M'INTOSH.

OPAL SILVERTON.

With the presentation tomorrow night of "When Dreams Come True" the Roy E. Fox stock company opens an engagement that is hoped will prove of such merit as to warrant its being retained at least for the rest of the summer. Inasmuch as Wichita Falls has not had stock productions since late in 1921, the new offerings are expected to make a decided hit with local theatrical fans.

Shows will be given each night at 8:30, with matinee bills Wednesday and Saturday starting at 2:30. A band concert by musicians carried in the stock troup will be featured at 7:30 each evening in the Majestic lobby.

STAR AT STRAND

HATS—FIRST BEAUTY AID

Viola Dana Shows How and Why

Ever since Eve pinned a plain leaf on her head with a thorn for a hat pin and trotted away with Adam to the movies, millinery has been at the top of a woman's wardrobe.

As the apple captured Eve's eye, so the bonnet captures the eye of the modern Eve.

A hat makes or mars a woman's beauty. Take the moon-faced woman, for instance. Put a little round dumpy hat on her and she is hideous. Select a medium sized hat that rolls away from the face in graceful lines and she is ready for the artist to go to work to paint her as a thing of beauty.

Just reverse this rule and the thin woman apparently can remove some of her angles. Put the round dumpy hat on her and the spare look vanishes.

A woman's headgear is truly the greatest and first aid to her beauty. Besides, the hat usually portrays moods, personality and character.

Consider the fur turban. This type of hat is symbolic of wealth and luxury. Everything worn with such a hat should be rich.

Did you ever see a woman who was "just impossible?"

Fitts Gives Warning To Negro Vagrants

With the belief that Wichita Falls is practically rid of white vagrants, the police official stated that his officers will begin a war on negro vags now that will possibly bring numbers of them into the courts.

The commissioner urged that the residents of Wichita Falls "make a check up on their servant houses and find out if there are any negroes living in them who are not earning a livelihood themselves, but are either living off of negresses or friends."

New Film Shows Familiar Views

Western travelers are going to see familiar sights while those who have never ventured beyond the Rockies have a treat in store for them in "North of the Rio Grande" the new Paramount picture co-starring Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels which opens at the Olympic theater Thursday.

Beautiful shots of rugged country and cliff dwellings along the Apache Trail, Arizona, are varied by the riding feats of Jack Holt, mounted on "Robin Hood" his champion "jumper" and a band of twenty-five cowpunchers. Bebe Daniels has not been seen in westerns for years but is delightful as "Val."

The famous British war artist, Frederic Villiers, who died recently in London, began painting with the Russo-Turkish war of 1877. South Africa, Port Arthur, Tripoli, the Balkan wars and the world war were all covered by him.

"Trip to Paradise" Features At Gem

It is an Americanized version by Benjamin F. Glazer of a Hungarian drama by Franz Molnar that created a sensation on the continent. The locale has been changed to Coney Island. But Paradise—being internationalized—remains the same.

The picture version was received with enthusiastic comment by reviewers of its pre-release showing. The star, Mr. Lytell, is said to have achieved the most moving characterization of his career. He appears as Curley Flynn, a Coney Island barker, working at the Widow Boland's roller coaster.

"A Trip to Paradise" is a Maxwell Karger production, with scenario by June Mathis. It was the combination of Mr. Lytell, Mr. Karger and Miss Mathis that made so successful last year's production of Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way." They are said to have surpassed themselves in "A Trip to Paradise."

3 Negroes Charged With Safe Robbery

Following the recover Friday morning of a safe that had been removed from John Prang's domino parlor at 211 Mill street, Detective Chief Jack Miller placed three negroes under arrest Saturday morning, charging them with burglary in connection with theft of the safe. The safe contained $25, which, however, the negroes failed to obtain.

Charlie Gray, negro porter who had formerly been employed by Prang, made a statement to Detective Miller, it was stated Saturday, implicating Earl Reese and one other negro, who has not yet been arrested.

The negroes told Detective Miller that they knocked the combination off the safe and the handle to the door off with an axe, but were unable to effect an entrance to the money.

All of the nine corps headquarters, camps and stations are connected by a radio telephone "net" from Washington. A saving to the government in wire tolls of $10,000 a year is expected.

EMPRESS BOOKS COLLEEN MOORE

Appears First Three Days of Week

The time, the place and the girl met when Rupert Hughes wrote "The Wall Flower" the latest Goldwyn feature starring Colleen Moore which is to come to the Empress theater the first three days of this week as the main attraction.

The story is something of a modernized version of "Cinderella" with the heroine first appearing as a slighted and neglected young lady, imposed on by friends and relatives but who eventually rises to heights of social fame such as none of her acquaintances can ever hope to attain.

Selecting a cast for the production proved difficult, inasmuch as exceptional historic ability was needed in the leading roles, but the work of Miss Moore, as seen in the finished picture, leaves nothing to be improved on. She is supported by Richard Dix, Gertrude Astor, Tom Gallery and Rush Hughes. Rupert Hughes himself directed the filming of the play.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Empress will present Constance Binney, one of the most popular leading women on the stage in "Midnight."

TO ENTERTAIN FARMERS

VERNON, Texas, June 16.—Farmers of Wilbarger county will be guests of the Vernon chamber of commerce at the chautauqua on the opening day Saturday. The move has been undertaken in an effort to impress the character of the productions to be offered here upon the country as well as town folks.

COUNTY AGENT HEADS PARTY

Club Work Program Draws Attention

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, June 17.—Members of the boys clubs of Clay and Montague counties will be the guests of Henrietta Friday and Saturday when they hold their annual encampment. This club work is directed by the county agent and farm demonstrator, T. B. Lewis, who has secured this encampment.

The boys, about 200 in number ranging from 10 to 18 years of age, will bring their own bedding and sleep on the court house lawn. They will also bring provisions for breakfast and supper, which will be prepared under the supervision of Miss Beulah Bradley, county home demonstration agent. The merchants and business men of the town have arranged to give the boys their noonday meals on both days.

Some of the entertainments planned for these guests will be band concerts, picture shows and a ball game between a team of Clay county club boys against a team of Montague county club boys.

The main feature of this encampment is instruction in judging livestock, including beef cattle, dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, culling poultry and terracing land. Judging livestock and culling poultry will be conducted on the public square while the terracing will be conducted on the lands of C. M. Worsham or H. M. Force.

These demonstrations will be open to the public and all farmers are urged to attend. The classes will begin work at 1 p. m. Friday and 8 a. m. Saturday morning, continuing through the day with an intermission from 12 to 1 for lunch.

There will be six clubs represented from Montague county and 14 from Clay county.

The instructors for the encampment will include Dr. G. W. Orms from A. & M. college; J. W. Ridgeway of the Nissly creameries of Fort Worth and M. B. Oats, agricultural agent for the Denver railroad.

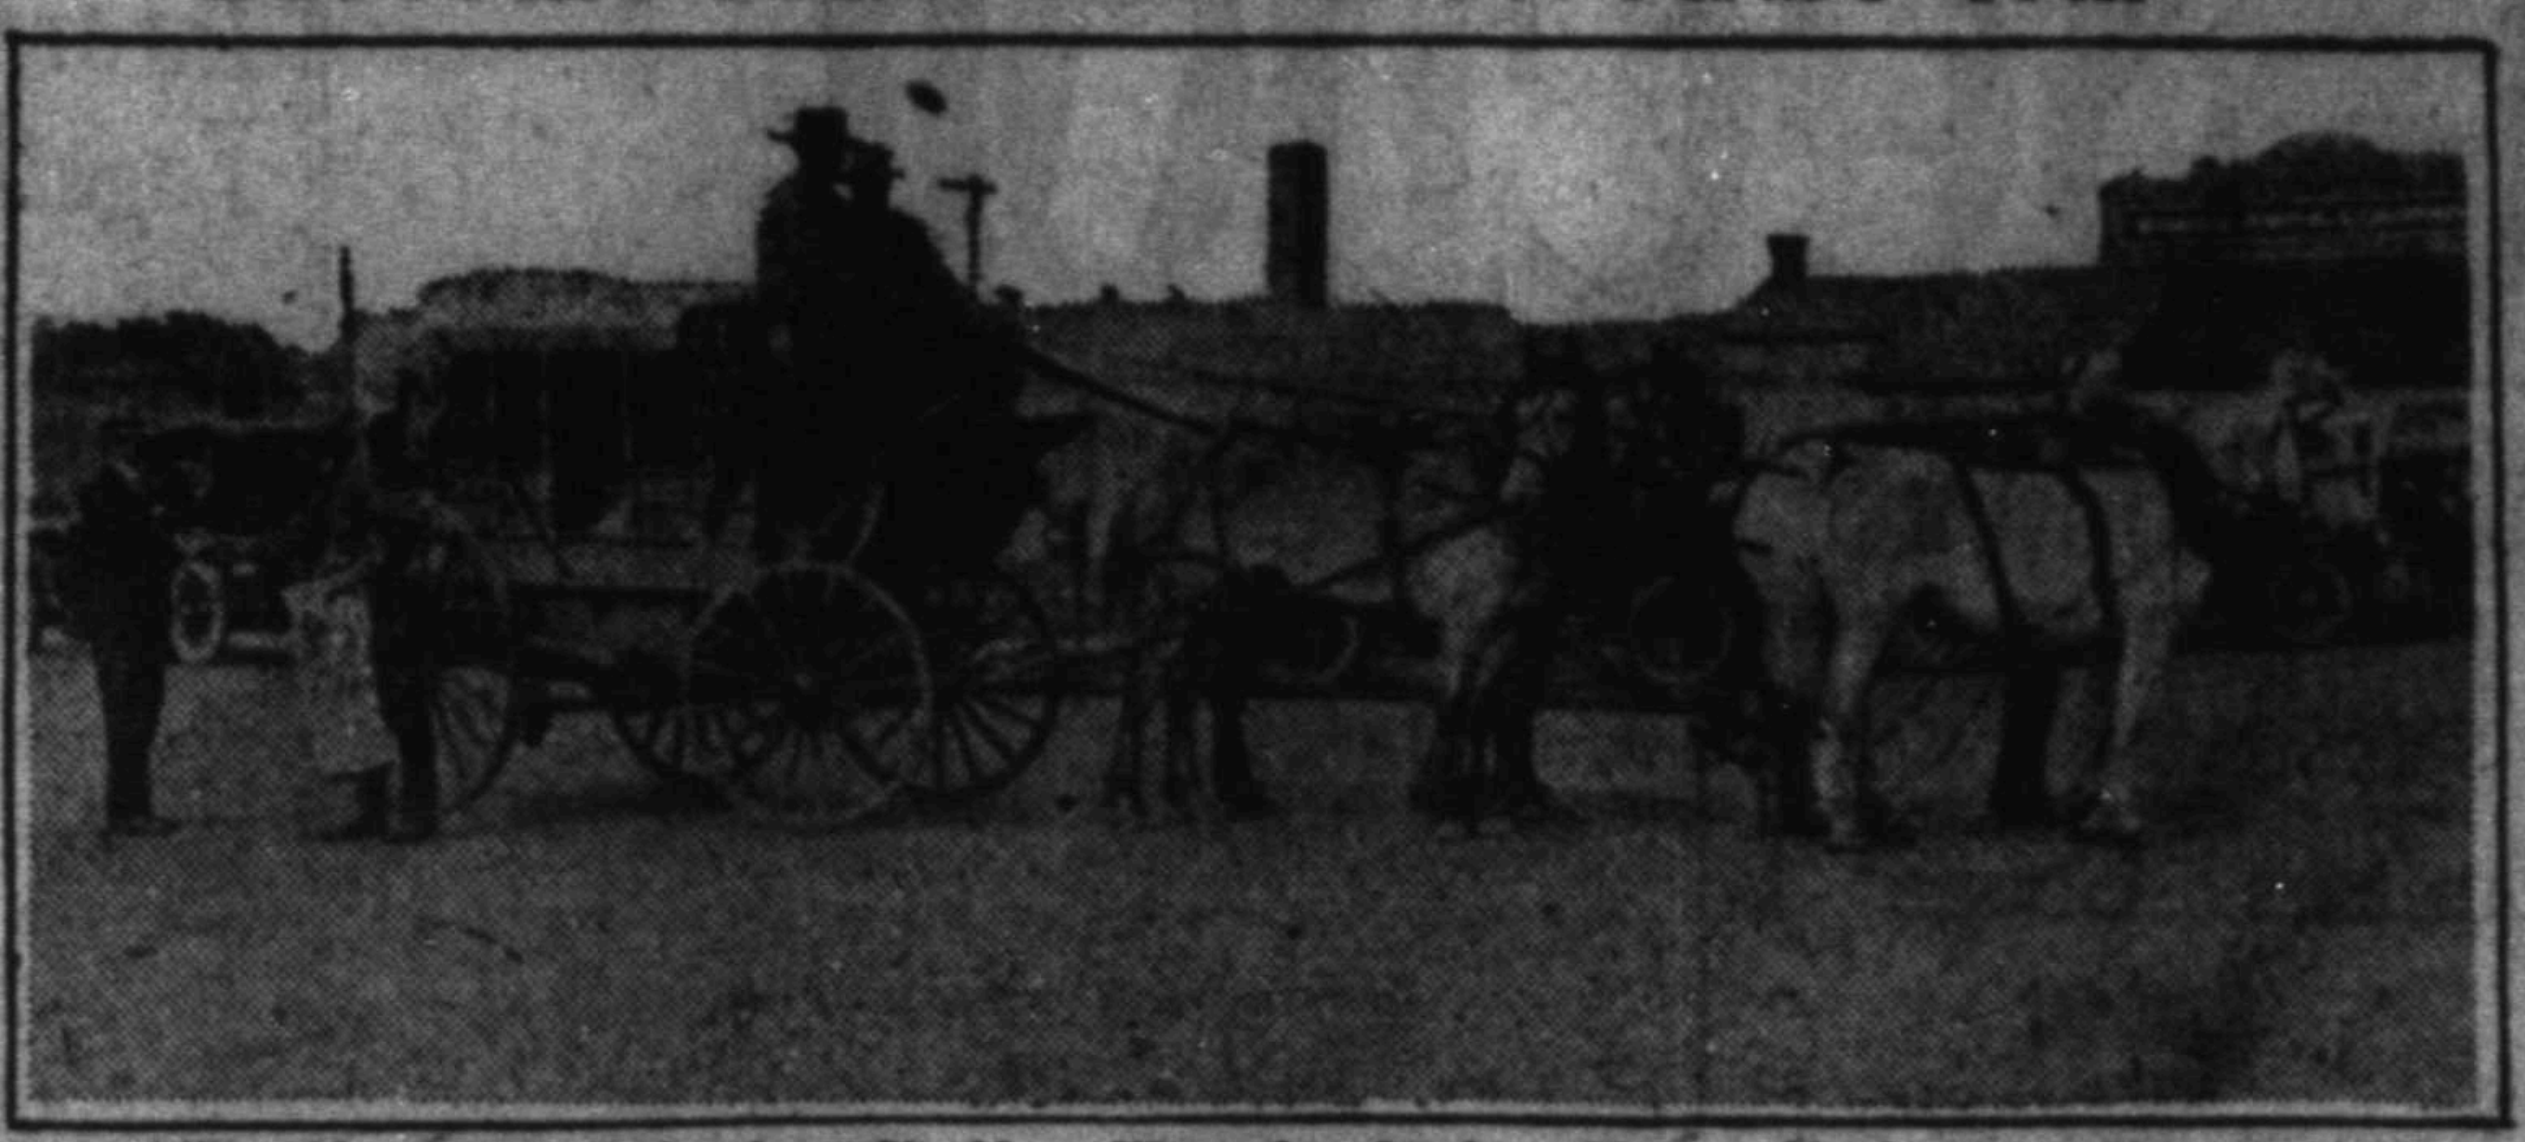
BUFFALO BILL'S STAGE ON FIRST TRIP



Buffalo Bill's old stage coach leaving Sheridan, Wyo., for Omaha. Mayor Charles W. Sheldon, extreme left, has just handed George Ostrom, who is making the trip, a sack of mail "forty years late." Ostrom is shaking hands with W. D. Fisher, secretary and creator of the Custer Battlefield Hiway, over which the stage will travel.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., June 16, 1880.—(By Courier)—Theodore Ostrom raced the overland stage into town today after escaping an Indian attack seventeen miles east of here.

Three passengers in the coach wounded by arrows of the redskin attackers were given medical attention. Ostrom declared that while coming through a wooded gulley the Indians attacked the coach with a shower of arrows. He whipped up the horses and the savages finally gave up the chase after "Cheyenne' Charlie Westcott had droped two with his trusty rifle while covering the flight.

* * * * *

Ostrom is making the drive in the same old coach he carried U. S. mail in forty years ago—the coach made famous by the late "Buffalo Bill."

In the old days Ostrom seemed to bear a charmed life for in numerous skirmishes with the red savages he escaped without a scar on his repeated trips over the treacherous Custer Battlefield trail.

"Reckon as how it'll be a whole lot different this trip than it was in my last one back in the eighties," Ostrom said as he took the reins preparatory to leaving Sheridan.

"Understand the old trail is pretty good now. Lot different than it used to be when those pesky Sioux were actin' up."

Ostrom is carrying a sack of mail to the mayor of Omaha from Mayor Charles W. Sheldon, of Sheridan.

"It was necessary to fix up the old coach a little," Ostrom said, "but she's been through some tough places in her days and I reckon she'll pull through this O. K.'

CABBAGE—

to raise from a half bale to a bale to the acre. This would show that the cotton farmer gets from $50 to $100 per acre off his farm.

The wheat farmers of this section will raise from 15 to 30 bushels of wheat for their 1922 crop. And wheat will sell for from $1.00 to $1.25 a bushel, bringing the wheat farmer from $18.75 to $37.75 an acre for his produce.

Mr. Downing's collections from his 20 acres of truck farm will net him around $8,000 for 1922, or about $400 an acre. "This," the trucker says, "is my argument for truck farming."

In 1920, Mr. Downing collected a total of $5,751.89 from 15 acres of truck; in 1921, he collected over $5,000, but less than he had taken in the previous year, crops in 1921 being greatly affected by the severe drouth that struck this section.

Gap In Dam Closed

Special to the Record News

BRADY, June 16.—The gap in Shropshire lake dam made by recent freshets has been closed by Contractor Carroll Gray and two feet of water has risen in the reservoir. The dam is being reinforced and the spillways made deeper and longer to prevent recurrence of damage by big rises. Seven hundred fifty trout from the government fish hatchery at San Marcos have been "sown" in the lake, guaranteeing a splendid nucleus for a fishing ground in the near future.

More than 2,000 Pennsylvania veterans of the world war, who were with the 79th division, are planning to revisit France and the old battlefields this summer.

Beyond the home, patch after patch of cabbage, tomatoes, dewberries, cucumbers, radishes, onions and even a large orchard makes an interesting settling for a Wichita Falls dwelling.

Came Here In '86.

In 1886, Mr. Downing moved to Wichita Falls and went into business with his brother, James L. Downing, just north of the Wichita river, establishing the Downing & Downing nurseries, which still is a big business here.

"I handled trucking on the side," Mr. Downing explains, "until about 15 years ago; I went into trucking then as my own business and I've handled nothing else since that time."

Mr. Downing says that he has tried both methods of truck farming—dry and irrigation, and it is his emphatic statement that "the latter is the most profitable."

Proud of His Ditch.

In this connection, Mr. Downing points proudly to an irrigation ditch which runs from the Wichita lake to the city settling basins, and which supplies his property. The irrigation ditch, Mr. Downing says, is supplying approximately 500 acres of land now under cultivation, while it is so constructed that it can easily supply 2,000 acres which are not cultivated.

Although the trucker raises a great quantity of cabbage and thinks that he will some day enter the field as a producer of cabbages exclusively, he also raises a number of other products from which he finds a profitable income. His truck farm of 20 acres includes 6 acres of cabbage, an acre of onions, 3 acres of tomatoes, 2 acres of sweet peppers, half an acre of hot peppers, an acre of dewberries, half an acre of cantaloupes, 2 acres of orchard and four acres in a miscellaneous crop of cucumbers, beets radishes and bush beans.

Best Cabbages.

The Copenhagen, Charleston Wakefield and Early Jersey Wakefield, Mr. Downing says, are the best kinds of cabbage that can be grown on the sandy loam soil of this section of Texas. Sparks' Early Anna, Greater Baltimore and the dwarf champion he has found to produce the best grades of tomatoes.

The trucker does not hold to the antiquated paths tramped out by his predecessors in truck farming. He believes in all the modern methods of the business and is always experimenting. His son who is now superintending the truck farm studied agriculture at Texas A. & M. college, and has familiarized himself with the modern theories, which are put into practical work on the Downing truck farm.

"We are continuously testing out and experimenting with other varieties of truck," Mr. Downing says. "When we find one kind of dewberries, cucumbers, radishes, etc., that produce better and seem to survive longer than others we have tried, then we put in that system of crop.

Never Replant.

"We never plant the cabbage a second time where it was planted during its first season. For instance, where it is planted now we will plant beans, or tomatoes or something else when we have gathered the crop. Rotation has proven to be the best method of trucking, for what one crop takes from the soil, the other puts back, and in the same way what one crop uses for food, another crop would throw away and use something else."

Mr. Downing says that many have argued with him that the water drawn from this section of the country would kill any truck that he might use it on in irrigation, "but in the 15 years that I have been irrigating with the water of this vicinity," he says, "I have found my crops getting better every year."

In speaking of the value of his land, from which he draws an average yield of nearly $400 per acre, Mr. Downing declared that he recently sold 1 1-2 acres of his property for $1,500.

"It is all worth just that much to me," he said, "in fact there isn't any of this land that could be bought for less than $1,000 an acre."

RODEO—

that Queen Lucile grew weary of this. She liked the ranch, liked her husband, liked her steers and heifers and chickens and hogs. But says the ranch spokesman, she became tired of constellations, constant constellations, assemblages of nondescript persons, men of idleness and money who lolled and loafed and celebrated to their heart's content.

Tom Burnett liked it. These were of his kind, his friends, his champions, his laudators. This was the life! The rodeo was the greatest of all outdoor shows.

Lucile didn't like it. There was too much of it, says the Mulhall ranch spokesman, and she packed her trunks and came back to her daddy.

Flies to Sell At 50 Cents Per Quart

Special to the Record News

HENRIETTA, Texas, June 17.—Flies will sell at 50 cents a quart in Henrietta dating from June [illegible]th, according to information given out by the civic league. In addition to this unusual market price the league also offers three prizes for the greatest number of flies caught during fly season by any one person, $10. For the second largest quantity the prize is $7.50, and third prize will be $5.

The league has engaged a mover with a team and driver and two additional men to mow the weeds on vacant lots. All weeds will be cut but the league urges that all who can will pay for the cutting done on their property. In this way the cost will be less than if the owner hired some one to come for his or her special piece of work.

AVIATRIX

Here is Miss Mupin Ju, daughter of Director Ju Cho Man. She claims the distinction of being the only one of her sex and race now flying. She completed her course of instruction only a short time ago but is ready to take her turn with the men aviators who are helping the south China government to fight its battles.

CITY IS—

a third and in some instances less than a fourth of the expenditures for permanent improvements.

The two Texas cities in the same population class, Galveston and Beaumont both showed a heavier revenue collected "per head" of its population, Galveston collecting $35.51 per head, and Beaumont $29.52, while Wichita Falls taxpayers gave up only $23.38 per head. Montgomery, Alabama, the only city in the list with revenues per capita as low as Wichita Falls, and with less than a third of the outlay for permanent imvrovements, showed almost as great a total of excess of expenditure for all causes over revenue.

Perth Amboy, New Jersey, which experienced an after war boom of something like the proportions, although not as great, as the oil and post-war booms brought to Wichita Falls, made an even bigger outlay for permanent improvements than Wichita Falls, and the outlay carried them proportionately further into the red, although like Wichita Falls their income more than met running expenses.

But the taxpayers of Perth Amboy gave up more than $36 per head against a little more than $23 for Wichita Falls, or about $13 per head in excess, while all of its running expenses exceeded that of the Texas city.

Only five cities lived within its income to the extent of paying for both running expenses and permanent improvements out of its income, while only four failed to keep ordinary running expenses within its revenue.

The figures showing the relations of the Texas cities were shown at an earlier date, but the present report contrasts the local government for that period with every city of its size in the country.

WICHITA FIFTH IN AUTOS FOR ENTIRE STATE

Other Towns In This County Rank High In List

Wichita county since the boom has more than held its own in the point of automobile registration — now standing fifth on that excellent barometer of wealth and prosperity, and ranking many counties in the state which exceed it in population from two to three times.

These figures are obtained from a report from the state comptrollers office, which not only shows Wichita Falls standing fifth—one above the rank it attained through the oil boom but as of date May 22, 1922, only 1,000 short of the registrations during the entire preceding year. By the end of the year the figures now carried as a decrease, will undoubtedly turn to an increase and Wichita county show the highest automobile registration in its history, as it must be kept in mind that the 1922 figures are only for the first half of the year—showing the re-registrations, but only a smaller part of the new registrations which come during the remainder of the year.

What the figures mean with regard to Wichita Falls can readily be seen when it is remembered that Wichita Falls has 7[illegible] per cent of the people and more than 70 per cent of the cars in the county.

This is maintaining its boast of years of having the biggest number of automobiles in proportion to its population of any city in Texas. Electra, Burkburnett and Iowa Park have always ranked high in the same respect.

In the following table it will be noted that Wichita Falls is ranked only, in order, by Dallas, Bexar, Harris and Tarrant counties, all counties of three or four times its population.

It ranks in turn many counties which exceed it in population although Wichita Falls outranks the principal city in several of them. Among them are El Paso, McLennan, Travis, Jefferson, Galveston, and many other thickly populated counties which are not even listed.

	Entire year 1921	To May 22 1922
Bexar	20,276	26,065
Dallas	33,785	32,173
Eastland	8,256	6,024
El Paso	10,422	9,458
Galveston	5,965	6,220
Harris	28,583	28,349
Jefferson	8,720	8,520
McLennan	10,983	10,531

TROLLEY AND BUS JOIN FORCES

The fact that he may reside blocks from a car line is not causing the commuter as much inconvenience as formerly. Electric railways in their desire to better serve patrons are installing motor busses for the convenience of riders living in sections not adjacent to car lines, and many a commuter now finds it possible to step from his porch into a waiting motor bus and be whirled away to the nearest transfer point on an electric line.

Electric railways are rapidly turning to the motor bus as an economical means for extending service and better serving the public. Numerous well known traction companies have added motor bus equipment in recent months and indications are the electric lines ultimately will become large users of the gasoline carrier. Railways in a number of cities have purchased busses for the establishing of feeder lines and initial experiments have proved so successful that many roads after giving the bus a thorough trial have decided to greatly increase their bus equipment. The bus offers an excellent cross-town transportation medium and is far less costly than equipment necessary for the operation of electric cars.

Inspect Your Car Before Touring

Knowing that the joys of automobile touring depend largely upon the service his car gives him, the tourist should give it a thorough examination before starting on an extensive tour.

As an aid to owners who desire to condition their cars for summer touring The Chandler Motor Car company has issued a list of hints and suggestions that should be of value not only to Chandler owners but to those who drive cars of other makes.

Among the more important points to be checked up are the following:

Examine the electrical equipment to make sure that the generator and ammeter are functioning properly and that lighting circuit, starter and horn connections are secure.

Lamps should have bulbs of equal candle power, have clean reflectors and be properly focussed.

Test the steering gear to see that it does not bind at any point and is thoroughly lubricated.

Examine the brakes. Determine that they are free and do not drag with lever and pedal released and that they hold with pressure even when pedal is depressed or lever drawn back. Brakes should be so adjusted that the car can be brought to a stop without grabbing.

Keep the radiator clean. Flush the water circulating system to remove any rust or sediment deposits as these tend to heat the motor.

Be sure that all hose connections are changed once a year. Hot water rots the rubber, loosens up the fabric which gets in the way of the water, cutting down the efficiency of the cooling system.

Inspect wheels carefully and note any damage. Do they run true? Are the flange bolts tight?

Inspect alignment of front wheels. With the wheel camber approximately correct the wheels point straight ahead. The distance between the felloe bands of the front wheels in front of the axle should be from ⅛ to ¼ of an inch less distance than between the wheels back of front axle.

Overland Sales Heavy In June

For the first fifteen days of June manager Ebner and his staff of salesmen announce the sale of 29 cars, or an approximate average of a car a day, with Sundays, when all good salesmen are supposed to rest, included. Mr. Ebner states they are getting regular shipments of cars these days, a handicap which confronted them a few weeks ago.

Overland Motors Company also announces the opening of a new branch service station at Burkburnett. C. F. Brokover, formerly of the sales department here, is in charge as manager and A. Willis as service manager. "Honest to Goodness" Overland Service is now available to the Overland and Willys-Knight owners of Burkburnett and surrounding territory. Mr Ebner also states they will open a service branch in Electra within the next few days to care for the needs of the rapidly growing lists of Overland owners in that section.

GAINESVILLE MAN DIES AT HOME

GAINESVILLE, Texas, June 17.—W. H. Cofer, 81, pioneer farmer and stock raiser here, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Murphy.

The Knights of Honor, an organization of holders of the three congressional decorations for valor, has opened headquarters in Seattle, Wash. The organization is open to winners of the Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service cross, and Distinguished Service medal. More than 5,000 persons are eligible for membership.

New Chevrolet Coupe Arrives

Paul Von Allman, manager of the Von Allman Motor Co., received a carload shipment of new Chevrolets last week, among them the new Chevrolet Utility Coupe. The new coupe has met with instantaneous favor throughout the country and is heralded as one of the greatest motor values manufactured by General Motors company, of which the Chevrolet company is a unit.

The Utility Coupe is especially suited to the needs of business men, salesmen, doctors and professional men. Its appointments and equipment ranks with that found only in cars much higher in price. It's large roomy rear compartment makes it an ideal car for salesmen who carry extensive luggage and travel by motor car.

Mr. Von Allman states he has had numerous inquiries regarding the coupe and has several tentative orders awaiting the arrival of cars to fill the demand. At it's price, $875 delivered in Wichita Falls it represents a motor value unmatchable, Mr. Von Allman says.

BODY CHANGES MADE BY DODGE

Business Coupe Is Latest

A new body model, the business coupe, has been brought out by Dodge Brothers, simultaneously with a number of changes in the full line cars.

The business coupe is the first all-steel closed car to be put on the market. The frame as well as the shell is of metal, permitting the use of the baking process instead of hand painting in applying the enamel finish.

Most noticeable of the refinements on the full line of cars is the approach to a streamline effect brought about by raising the cowl line considerably above its former level.

The hood is 3½ inches higher than before, and when viewed sidewise the cowl forms almost a straight line with the top of the hood hinge. A little further down on the sides of the cowl, however, there is a deeper curve to blend the dash in with the hood sides, so that the curved cowl, which was a characteristic of the Dodge, has not been eliminated entirely.

The most important constructional change is in the rear axle which is now of the semi-floating type instead of full floating as in past designs.

Sedans, which, like coupes, many dealers have been without for several weeks, are now going forward from the factory with the refinements noted. Coupes and open models will follow.

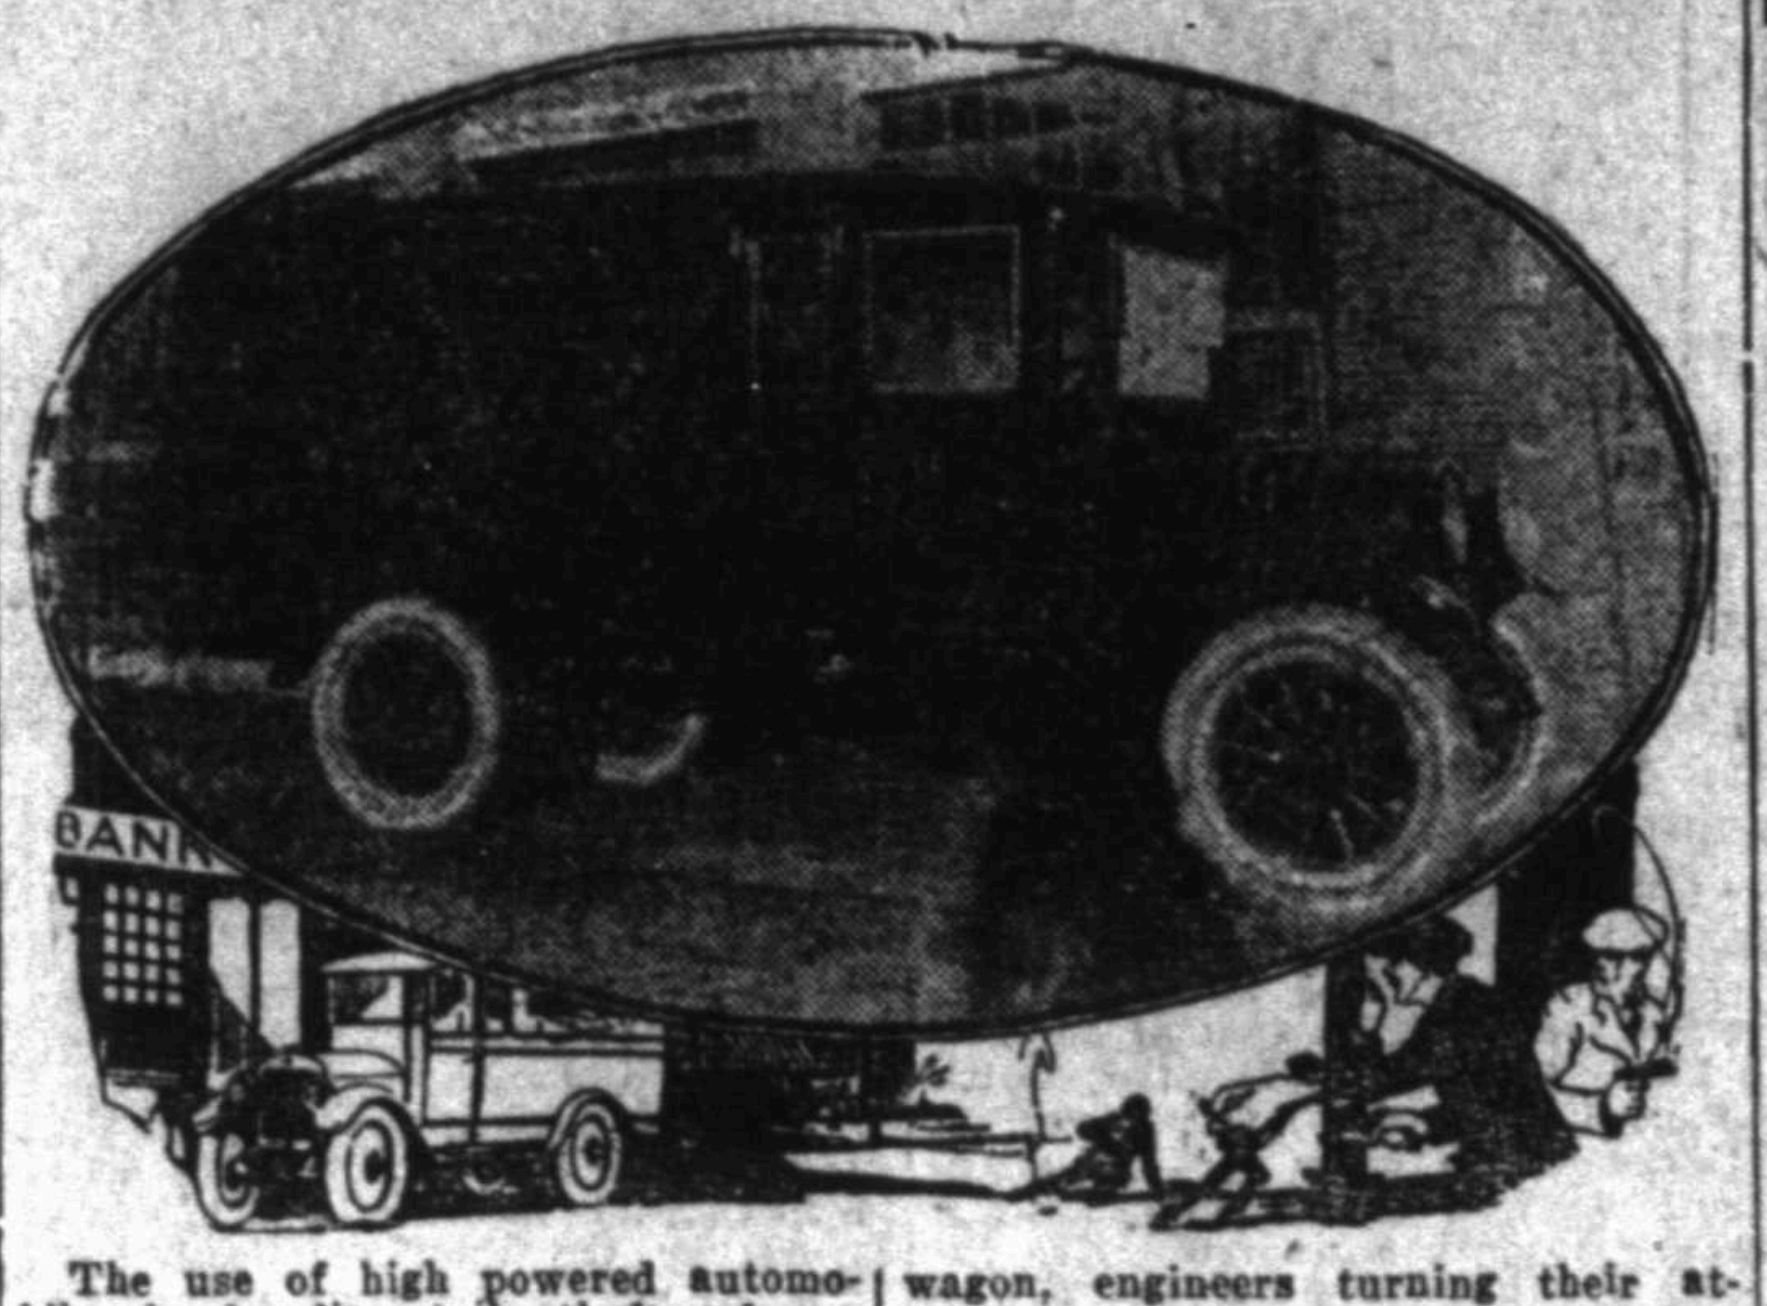
The new business coupe is an interesting development. For some time past Dodge Brothers have been experimenting with closed body construction in an endeavor to put out a closed car with the same baked enamel finish as is used on the open jobs. It has been found impractical to use the baked enamel method of finishing with cars employing the wood frame because of the effect of the high baking temperature on the wood.

Willys Enlarges Motor Production

PONTIAC, Mich., June 17.—Owing to the continued increase in demand for Willys-Knight cars, a portion of the No. 3 plant of the Wilson Foundry & Machine Co., of this city has been assigned for the expansion of the motor division, to permit for the second time the doubling of Willy-Knight motor production.

The Wilson Foundry & Machine company is the manufacturing division for Willys-Knight motors produced by the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio. It was largely the economies of removing the assembly operations of the Willys-Knight motor from the Elyria plant to Pontiac, which made possible the great reduction in the price of the Willys-Knight car last March. With the removal of this production to Pontiac the capacity for production of Willys-Knight motors was doubled.

ARMORED REO HALTS THIEVES



The use of high powered automobiles by bandits, daily thefts of pay rolls, the apparent daring use of firearms by hold-up men, and the inability of the police to prevent crime committed by highwaymen, has forced corporation executives to seek a solution to a very menacing problem, and an answer has been found in a special type of armored car.

While the master-minds of the underworld were scheming new robberies, with ensuing loss of life, the heads of big corporations in the east were facing a critical situation, augumented by the impending raising or rates of protective insurance.

A logical solution of the problem has been found in the armored speed wagon, engineers turning their attention to this war-time device as the only hope to cope with present day conditions. Speed is essential, stability of construction without excess weight, and yet the car must offer the maximum efficiency.

The result of these conferences is a practical type of armored body mounted on a chassis of dependable construction and proven merit. One of these armored cash carriers is seen daily in the service of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad and the body was built in accordance with the ideas of Major Francis H. Schoeffel, head of their secret service and police department.

"Randles Got 'Em" No Misnomer

"Randle's Got 'Em." How many times, rentle geader, have you read that assertion over the advertisements of C. C. Randle, local tire and accessory dealer? Maybe you have never thought much about it, or possibly thought it was merely a catchy line that looked good in print. If you take the pains to call around some afternoon and get an opportunity between tire sales to talk to C. C. Randle himself, you will make up your mind if its in the tire or accessory line that C. C. "Has Got 'Em," and is "Selling 'Em.'

"We can sell a man a tire at most any price he wants to pay for it," said C. C. yesterday, "and they are all good standard make tires too. No gyps here. Just good warranted tires that sell at gyp prices. We're stepping on the gas and hitting all six, in an effort to get our share of the tire business. And you can tell the readers of the Record News, we're getting our share, too."

"Truck tire sales are almost like old times again, and it's a happy sight to see those big trucks drive up for "all arounds" as they did in the old days. Trucks that have been in storage all winter are now coming from under cover to take care of the hauling needs of Electra and the oil fields. And they are buying tires for them, good tires, too."

In addition to handling Goodyear and Seiberling tires, Randle Auto Supply manufactures the Faith Batteries, and another battery to sell at much less than standard battery prices not to mention a full line of automobile accessories and motorists needs.

MARMON PROVES IT'S DURABLE

Speedometer Used In New Test

Nordyke & Marmon Company has within the last few weeks begun an effective means of proving the durability of the Marmon car. The usual testimonial letter was not considered sufficient in this case and steps were taken to secure photographs of the actual speedometer reading in those cars which showed a mileage of 50,000 miles or more.

The response was surprising.

The results have been gathered together in a small eight page folder in which are shown clearly 15 speedometer readings ranging from 54,000 to 89,000 miles. With each reading is given the year of the car and the name of the owner.

Oakland First In Sweepstakes

The grand sweepstakes cup in the Los Angeles-Yosemite economy contest, the most prized trophy in this nationally known yearly event, has been awarded to the Oakland 6-44, which scored the highest average in the grand total of points. Oakland not only won the grand sweepstakes cup for all five classes, but also the cup for the class in which it was entered.

Oakland's ton mileage average for the 360 miles from Los Angeles to Camp Curry was 40.37.

Ton mileage is obtained by dividing the gross weight of the car in tons by 360, the distance traveled, and dividing by the number of gallons of gasoline consumed. The gross weight includes the full load of passengers, their baggage, the full gasoline tank and spare tires as well as the weight of the car.

GOOD NAME IS DODGE PRIDE

Juliet asks "What's in a name? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But her question did not change the fact that the family name of Romeo was anathema to her family, or break down the barrier to her happiness. Nor does her classic question do away with the apptitude of names. Could any other combination of letters or any other Anglo Saxon sound equal the fitness of the world "rose" to that flower?

Solomon, like Shakespeare, has thought about names. He says that "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." Looking at this statement, one might say "I do not care if my name is Brown or Jones, or Smith, as long as I possess a million dollars," and, in so saying, speak foolishly. The wise king uttered a great word which today has been put on the billboards and in the newspapers all over America by Dodge Brothers. You have seen these three words "A Good Name!" on their field of blue.

It is clever publicity. Some merchants fill their show windows with a multitude of articles, and the total impression is nil. Some billboards are covered with much talk which does not say anything, but there are three words which leap straight and deep into the minds of men.

It is audacious publicity. There are motor car concerns which would not dare to go to the public with these words. They would recall a checkered career of poor cars, cheap workmanship and miserable mechanism, but here is an industry which has put seven hundred thousand cars on every city street and country road in America, over a period of seven years, now taking title from its achievement. Good names used to be inherited with patents of nobility; now they are earned by rendered service.

Dodge Brothers began to manufacture automobile "parts" in a humble and limited way, in the infancy of the automobile industry. They counted their capital in hundreds not thousands. Henry Ford went to them with a big faith and little money, and they trusted him, taking stock for their profits. They gradually increased their scope of operation until they were making "parts" for many cars. If a car had Dodge Brothers "parts" in it, an added reliability gave it standing on the market.

In 1914 they came to the American people with the cleverest advertising campaign that this country has seen in the last ten years. The announcement was made that Dodge Brothers would put their own car on the market. Specifications were gradually revealed. A nation-wide curiosity was aroused. Men who wanted to buy waited until they could see the Dodge Brothers' car. Why? A good name was in the making.

How is a good name kept? By being eternally dissatisfied with past achievements. The keeping of a good name is harder than its building when the hill is half climbed, and the race half won, every energy is aroused and in full play. Victory tempts to relaxation, and that may mean disaster. "In the moment of victory," said the Japanese general to his soldiers, "tighten your helmet strings."

"Good name in man or woman, dear my Lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls,
Who steals my purse steals trash;
'Tis something, nothing; 'twas mine, 'tis his,
And has been slave to thousands.
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And leaves my poor indeed."

A good name can be lost quickly, even though a lifetime has been given to its making. Horace and John Dodge are both gone, and the heritage they left will be closely watched to see how the good name is kept.

Dodge Brothers had what they called the "Three C test" for dealers when they were creating their selling organization: Character, Capability and Capital. Note the position of these three. Character is the primary requisite. The man must have that. He must also be capable. And latst, he must have capital. I have been told that often men who had the first two "C's" were helped to finance themselves by Dodge Brothers.

It is a heartening experience to probe this advertising slogan of Dodge Brothers and find it validated by the lives and labors of Horace and John Dodge. There is something strangely inspiring in their attempt to put thier ideals as well as their ideas into their car. I like the ring of their salesman's creed.

"Back of the motors' humming,
Back of the belts that sing,
Back of the hammers' drumming,
Back of the chanes that swing,
There are the eyes which scan them,
Watching through stress and strain;
There are the Minds which plan them—
Back of the brawn, the Brain!

"And so I stand, inspired with the blazing truth that I am selling through honest effort something not only built by man, but built of men to be sold to men by a MAN."

The most interesting phenomenon of our generation is the penetration of American industry by the spirit and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. Here is one illustration taken off the billboard, and it is the Gospel of our Lord in the life of today. Vachel Lindsay has the same thought in mind when he say;

"The signs in the street and the signs in the skies
Shall make a new Zodiac, guiding the wise,
And Broadway make one with that marvelous stair

LEGION TO HOLD INDIGNITY MEET

Aviation Matters Are To Be Settled

An "indignation meeting" will be held at Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, Wednesday evening at 7:30, according to statements made Saturday by a number of active legionnaries.

The meeting, it was asserted, will deal with matters pertaining to the aviation meet which was held some few weeks ago at Call field and which, according to statements made by officials of the post, resulted in a return of short collections.

Numerous legionnaires have been busy since the day it was reported that the funds collected as gate receipts were short, attempting to ascertain where the money disappeared to. It is known that a shortage of several hundred dollars was discovered when the final check-up on ticket sales was made.

According to members of the local post who have participated in an effort to find the missing funds, aviators who claim to have received only a portion of the funds due them will be present at the meeting Wednesday night to discuss a method of procedure.

The meeting will be the first that has been held in two weeks.

EVANGELIST HAND TO REMAIN HERE

In carrying on the revival services at North Side Methodist Mission church in this city leading laymen and laywomen of the First Methodist church, south, and Floral Heights Methodist church came to our help, delivering excellent addresses upon religious themes. It was found that our District Evangelist H. C. Hand also could be with us and he has given us very efficient service for a week, going into another meeting on Monday, 19th. It is well known that our membership in the Mission church is small and not possessed of large financial resources. As pastor I am wishing hereby any of our friends of the other churches mentioned above might kindly mail me a contribution for Brother Hand, whose support is largely derived from the churches he helps in meetings.

Much and lasting good has been accomplished by the services already held.

W. A. BETTS, Pastor.

At the East End Methodist church at Montreal on a recent Sunday the entire service was conducted by women members. They acted as ushers also, and furnished the musical program, while the pastor of the church sat with the congregation.

BLOW-OUTS

Otto Somers of the Somers Spring Company says when the next train leaves Wichita Falls for the trade trip to Breckenridge you can count on him or one of his representatives being aboard. Mr. Somers says he got his money's worth on the last one and figures it is about the best piece of publicity Wichita Falls has received for many moons. He also states he hopes the boss of the Record News will see to it that the bright and shining circulation manager of the filthy sheet, Edgar O. Perdue, better known as Eddie, is abroad.

Mr. Herrington of the Cut Rate Tire Co., was in Electra Tuesday and reports the tire business in that section as very good. The Cut Rate Tire Co. was recently appointed distributors for Howe tires for several counties in this section. Manager Gene Segal of the Cut Rate Company states they are expecting a large shipment of new Howes within the near future.

Milton Gaines is making the plains country this week in an effort to induce several prospects in that section to take on a new G. M. C. truck. Milt and Sidney report that things are all to the merry in the G. M. C. camp and that they are lining up some excellent prospects.

Claude Hall, Joe Weaver and Messrs. Hoffman and Clark of the Lolyd Weaver Company are making a pilgrimage to Dallas today for new Essex and Hudson cars. Among the new jobs they will bring back is a Hudson Coach, which has proven one of the most popular models produced by Hudson. It has been somewhat of a task to get them.

J. F. Johnson has purchased a new Chandler for use as a service car between Wichita Falls and Electra. "And now," says Jim Moulder, "you can ride to Electra and return, in style."

Among the sales made by Lloyd Weaver Company last week was a new Essex touring car to T. B. Webb of Petrolia. Mr. Hall, manager of Lloyd Weaver Company, reports excellent sales of used cars.

Been around to see Joe Zihlman's new place yet? Joe is getting things fixed up in good shape and it's going to rank with the best of them when he gets his long list of improvements made.

Negro Taken In Silk Theft Case

With the identification of silk goods here Friday as a part of the loot stolen from the McClurkan Drygoods store last winter, Detective Chief Jack Miller departed Saturday afternoon for Corsicana carrying Arthur Gray, negro, with him, where he and Police Chief McKnight of the latter place will conduct an investigation into the theft.

Gray, who is under a penitentiary sentence and has been in cinfinement in the Wichita county prison, is believed to be the cousin of A. P. Ross, negro, being held in Corsicana in connection with the theft, which netted the robbers more than $2,000 worth of goods.

The officers believe that by scouring the Corsicana vicinity, additional things connected with the big robbery here may be developed.

Statistics indicate that married men are more trustworthy than single men in the ratio of six to one, probably because of their increased sense of responsibility.

$80,000 WORTH OF NEW HOMES

Building Permits Up For Week

Although local building during the past week maintained an average with previous weeks, the structures for which permits were granted during the past seven days incur the expenditure of more money than any previous similar period in either May or June.

Five building permits were issued during the week.

Buildings to be constructed will be built at a total cost of $80,975—a large increase over the amount of the previous week.

The home to be constructed by Edward Peterson on the Seymour road greatly augmented the amount to be spent on construction in Wichita Falls in the immediate future. Mr. Peterson is building a home at a cost of $75,000. The home will be two-story, containing nine rooms. A two-story garage will be erected on the property.

Other permits were issued to the following persons:

H. J. Anderson to erect a one story frame servant house at 1915 Eighth street, $275.

Texhoma Oil & Refining company, to erect a one-story brick business house on the Burkburnett road within the corporate limits, cost $5,000.

Refining Head Dies In East

In 1886 Mr. Matthews attracted nationwide notice when he charged agents of the Standard Oil company with attempting to blow up his plant here.

When Harry de Windt visited the Siberian Ostiaks he found that they calculated quite long distances in terms of kettles, an almost identical custom at the other end of Asia. If a journey was five kettles long the explorer found they meant that it would take as long as it would to boil five kettles of cold water in succession.

Would You Use Two Cups to Drink One Cup of Coffee?

Would you let anybody convince you that it is necessary for you to use two cups to drink one cup of Coffee?

OF COURSE NOT

Would you use a six cylinder or eight or twelve cylinder motor if a four cylinder Sleeve Valve motor car would be as good or better?

Same argument as the two cups to drink one cup of coffee.

WHY NOT?

Did you ever, with your own eyes, see a four cylinder Sleeve Valve motor?

Don't use the other fellow's eyes, he may be cross eyed or he might want to grind his own axe. We don't blame him in either case.

The Sleeve Valve motor is entirely different—all over. That's why.

Only four cylinders with a heap less parts, less gasoline, less oil, no repairs for years, and

New 1600 Foot Electra Sand Feature

NEW POOL IN JENNINGS AREA

Gulf Gets Producer In 1900 Sand

With the opening of the 1600 foot South Electra sand almost two miles outside production; opening of a new 1800 foot sand in the new pool opened by the Gulf's 1900-foot producer on the Jennings and several other tests getting the 1900 foot sand on the Jennings; together with completion of several nice wells in the dee sand in inside locations, made the past week an eventful one for South Electra.

The McCallister, Brown and Grisham No. 1 Waggoner in section 34, with its flush production of 30 to 40 barrels an hour, was the week's most sensational well, opening up as it did territory for a two mile stretch south west of the older pool. This well, which is less than a half mile south of the 500 foot producers of the Petroleum and neighboring companies, in section 33, is almost three miles south of the deeper producers of Harvey-Cullum and the Texas Company.

In size as well as new territory opened, the McCallister, Brown and Grisham is of considerable importance. Only three feet of sand was drilled the first day, from 1625 to 1628, when the well started flowing. The well was estimated at 250 barrels, or possibly better by the owners. Other estimates ranged from 500 barrels upward.

The well has been drilling almost five months, encountering more than the usual amount of delays. When it was first started the water scarcity was the hindering factor. Then fishing jobs held up drilling. However, when the sand was entered there was no further delay and the well was completed without trouble. It is understood that it is not to be drilled deeper into the sand at this time, nor or as long as the production holds up satisfactorily.

The No. 1 Jennings of James T. Cumley et al, a mile south of the Gulf Production's discovery well in the 1900 foot sand on the Jennings, is flowing at the rate of 100 to 150 barrels a day, from a sand drilled at 1830 feet. A standard is being rigged up. The No. 2 is also to be started immediately, it is stated.

This Cumley test was planned to go to the 1900 foot sand, but the production in the shallower sand was so attractive that completion at this depth was decided upon.

Two of the Gulf's Jennings tests, started after completion of the No. 1, and the Griswold Oil Company's No. 1 Jennings are on the sand, ready for completion, in the 1900 foot sand.

The Gulf's No. 2 Jennings lease A has set casing and cemented, at 1901 feet. The No. 3 has set on the lime at 1890 feet.

The Gulf's No. 2 Douglas is also due to strike the 1900 foot sand in a few days.

These several wells promising a slight widening of the 1900 foot producing area, coupled with the 1800 foot producer of Cumley a mile to the south, and the 900 foot sand on the Douglas to the north give this new era a triple interest already.

1400 Foot Sand Tests

The rotary test of John O'Neil in section 31, west of the Harvey-Cullum Rio Bravo wells, finished a partial test of the 1400 foot sand this past week, and is drilling down to the 1900 foot sand.

The 1400 foot level showed, even in the limited test given at this time, promise of fair production. This is the second shallow sand that has been encountered on the O'Neil lease, and given enough of a test to demonstrate that they will be producers. A test is now to be made for the 1900 foot sand, the shallower levels to be developed later.

YOUNG SHOWS BIG INCREASE

243 Producers In South Bend

Young county's production for the week ending Monday, showed a daily increase of 1,550 barrels over the previous week's runs, putting the production up to 1[illegible] barrels, the high mark for the district to the present date, and the record increase in one week's time.

There are 243 wells producing now in the old South Bend pool, in the newer deep lime and in Bunger. The production is both from the true oil sand, and from the deep lime, and it is believed that this is the only district in the Texas fields with such a diversity of sands, and black and grey lime in the same pools.

Bunger's features this week include the 3750 foot lime well of the Union Oil company, on the Lynn, producing 450 barrels, and the testing of shows at 4,000 feet in a couple of other wells.

The Foster et al No. 1 Mahaney is reported drilling deeper into the lime which is showing oil and gas at 4,000 feet.

Several wells in the 1900 foot sand are reported this week in the main Bunger pool. The Mutual Oil company's No. 1 Whittenberg is making 100 barrels, at this depth.

The No. 4 Owens B of the Cosden Oil and Gas company is making 150 barrels, and the No. 11 Owens M of this same company is making 65 barrels also in the 1900 foot sand.

On the Driver, the No. 9 of the Elk Basin Consolidated is reported making 150 barrels; 1900 feet.

The No. 3 Whittenberg of the Ligon Oil company is reported a hundred barrel well, also in the 1900 foot sand.

Polynesia is probably the only place in the world where the marriage feast takes place without the presence of the bridegroom. For some unexplained reason, the young man is "sent into the bush" when the bride becomes a member of his family, and he invariably remains there during the subsequent festivities. It is only when the guests have departed and the girl is left alone that messengers are dispatched for him.

OLD DOBBIN VISITS DENTIST

(By International News Service)

Modernism is working havoc with horses' teeth. The food nowadays isn't what it used to be and as a consequence the feed and the teeth of the horses dont' work out according to the laws of nature.

Dr. Beachey explains that in the wild state and even down on the farm the animals had healthy teeth because they eat unground grains and other tough articles of horse diet. In that way the teeth are worn down as fast as they grow.

But the city horses are given chopped corn, bran and hay and all sorts of fancy and foolish food which fails to grind the teeth down as nature intended and the molars keep growing until soon the old "hoss" has "so much teeth' he can't get 'em all in his mouth. Then ever so often Dr. Beachey has to file them down so the poor animal can eat with a degree of comfort.

Reese S. Allen Will Build [illegible] For Panhandle Oil Fields As Daily Production Grows to 1,000 Barrels

It will be built just as soon as there is as much as 1,000 barrels daily production, according to Reese S. Allen, local operator, who also operates a refinery at Amarillo. Mr. Allen made this statement in response to the various reports in circulation that he was to build a pipe line to the new field. The line will probably be from the Carson and Hutchison county pools to Panhandle, in Carson county, a distance of about twenty miles, and the nearest railroad point.

While the pipeline is contingent on a certain amount of production, there are drilling operations contingent on the building of a pipeline. There is only a few hundred barrels of production now, from the Gulf Burnett and Dial wells, but there are operators owning close up acreage to these producers who say they are holding up drilling until facilities for moving the oil are in sight.

FIELD EXTENDED AT SOUTH BEND

Shallow Production Brought Closer

In the South Bend district the only new development of the week is reported in the No. 1 Scott of Colcord and the Puritan Oil company, which is producing between 100 and 150 barrels in the 1900 foot sand. This well gives an extension of several thousand feet to the east, from the McCluskey and Ford producers in this shallow sand and is the closest shallow production to the town of South Bend.

The No. 1 J. S. Williams of the Mahlstadt Mook Oil company is a rig, as is the No. 1 R. M. Williams of the same company.

Whitehead and Hinson, No. 1, McLaren, rig.

Whitehead and Hinson, No. 1 Herron, rig.

Ligon Oil company, No. 3 Whittenberg, rig.

Detroit-Mexia Oil company, No. 3. Lynn, drilling around 960 feet.

C. W. Brooks, No. 1 Ribble, drilling around 830 feet.

The No. 8 McCluskey of Conner et al is reported drilling around 1060 feet.

The North American Oil and Refining Corporation's No. 6 Scott is drilling around 1900 feet. The No. 8 same lease is reported spudding.

HARVEY MOVES 1500 FT. SAND

New Well Rated At Hundred Barrels

Another important development for the west side of the South Electra district was provided earlier in the week by the Harvey-Cullum No. 6 Rio Bravo, which extended the 1500 foot sand three quarters of a mile. The new well is rated as a hundred barrel producer.

The Texas Company's No. 169 Waggoner, an old producer deepened, has been drilled into the sand, at 1950 feet, and is reported making between 60 and 100 barrels.

The No. 224 Waggoner of the Texas Company, offsetting the No. 5 of Harvey Cullum is still drilling in sand at 1940 feet.

In Older Pool.

The Griswold Oil Company's No. 10 Burnett, Lease B, provided the older pool's largest well, coming in on Wednesday for a 600 barrel producer in the 1900 foot sand.

The Griswold's No. 20 Burnett, Lease A, is setting 5 3-16 on the 1630 foot sand.

No. 26 and No. 27 on this lease are drilling at 500 and 1000 feet respectively.

In the north end of the pool in Sec. 6, the Gulf Production company's No. 8 Burnett, Lease C, is running 5 3-16 on the oil sand at 1840 feet.

Thomasson and Mallory, who recently purchased the interests of Harris and Winkworth in Section 5, in the east side of the older pool, have started operations on their No. 5 Burnett.

Texas Company Operations.

Two new tests started during the past week bring the number of Texas Company drilling wells in the Electra field up to twenty. Several of these are nearing completion. The majority of the tests are inside locations, while the others offset production.

No. 217 Waggoner drilling around 1800 feet; No. 219 Waggoner, rigging up cable tools to drill in, 1890 feet. Casing trouble. No. 220 Waggoner, drilling around 600 feet. No. 221 Waggoner, drilling around 250 feet. No. 222 drilling in 1900 foot sand with star machine. No. 223 Waggoner, shut down for cement to set, 1850 feet. No. 224 Waggoner, drilling in 1940 foot sand; No. 225 Waggoner, drilling around 1750 feet; No. 226 Waggoner, drilling around 585 feet. No. 227 Waggoner, set casing to test 1500 foot sand. No. 228 Waggoner, testing sand around 790 feet. No. 229 Waggoner, drilling around 730 feet. No. 230 Waggoner, drilling around 1,000 feet. No. 231 Waggoner, drilling around 750 feet. No. 232 Waggoner, drilling around 500 feet. No. 233 Waggoner drilling around 700 feet. No. 234 Waggoner, rigging up rotary.

New Test In Sec. 29.

STRIKE TO PUT MEN IN FIELD

400 Here Planning Other Work

With the wheat harvest scheduled to be on the wane by the time of the impending rail strike, it is expected that a large number of the 300 to 400 railmen affected locally will, in the event of the strike, look to the oil pools of the district for temporary employment, according to the belief expressed yesterday.

It is considered a foregone conclusion that the vote of the workers will favor a strike, and with officials of the organizations declaring that they will not attempt to turn the action in the vote, a strike seems certain unless some legal action intervenes.

Votes of the local workers have been taken by mail referendum, according to a member of one of the crafts affected. The votes are taken by chairmen of the two railroad systems passing through here, both chairmen being stationed away from Wichita Falls.

It is believed that most of the votes cast locally favor the strike. The cuts here are not thought to have been particularly welcomed, as railroad men declare that the living here leaves as small a margain as at any point in the country on the old pay.

Three Steps in the Process by Which the Art of the Sculptor Is Applied to the Detection of Crime, First, the Skull as Found,

With the Face Recreated at This Point the Sculptor Gives Way to the Hairdresser and Costumer,

A WEATHER-BEATEN human skull, containing part of one eyebrow and a few wisps of hair was recently turned over to Grant Williams, retired policeman, former captain in charge of the bureau of missing persons of the New York police department. It belonged to the skeleton of a woman found by boys at the top of Cheesecock mountain near Haverstraw, N. Y., while they were tramping through that lonely and infrequently visited spot the morning of April 9 in search of trailing arbutus.

Cursory examination revealed nothing. What raiment had clothed the body the winter's rain and snow had rotted away. Coroner William Stahlman of Rockland county established, after a careful examination, that death had been caused by three terrific blows on the head. The case was proclaimed a murder mystery and, after several days had been devoted to fruitless efforts at identifying the victim, seemed destined to become an unsolved crime.

There was only one person concerned in the investigation who felt any confidence in getting results. That was Mrs. Mary Hamilton, policewoman, attached to the office of the chief inspector of police of New York city. It was she who turned the skull over to Williams.

She had worked under Williams when he was head of the bureau of missing persons. She remembered that in 1916 he had taken the skull of a skeleton found in an abandoned farm on the outskirts of South Brooklyn, one of Greater New York's sparsely settled sections, and had rebuilt the features so that they were recognized as those of Dominick La Rosa, a contractor. Nearby, a few days later, was found another skeleton. Clothing attached to the remains contained a piece of paper which identified it as the skeleton of La Rosa's dearest friend, both of whom had disappeared simultaneously. This discovery proved that Williams's face reconstruction was by no means a chance feat. Mrs. Hamilton remembered this and that was what impelled her to take the skull found on the top of the mountain near Haverstraw to the retired police official.

Williams worked on the skull three days. He reconstructed the fleshy coverings with plastiline, a putty-like substance used by sculptors. He matched the hair and eyebrows from what remained of them and restored them with the aid of a hair dresser. He inserted eyes in the empty sockets. Then he sent for Mrs. Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton, accompanied by the sleuth-sculptor, set out for the Letchworth Village Home for Feeble Minded, not far from the place where the body was found. Mrs. Hamilton had received reports of six girls missing during the past year from that section and had satisfied herself that five of them were wilful runaways. She suspected that the sixth, a former inmate of this institution, was the girl whose body had been found.

Arriving at the institution Mrs. Hamilton and Williams asked Dr. Charles S. Little, superintendent, to summon two witnesses. Two nurses were produced.

"Now, Doctor," said Mrs. Hamilton. "Who is this girl?"

"It is Lillian White!" exclaimed Dr. Little.

Both nurses agreed that the sculpture bore an undoubted resemblance to that girl.

"Well, Doctor," announced Mrs. Hamiliton to the superintendent, "Lillian White, then, was the girl whose skeleton was found on the top of Cheesecock mountain!"

Records of the intsitution were immediately produced by the excited official and his assistants. They showed that Lillian White had disappeared Sept. 13, 1921, from the home.

Capt. William A. Jones of the Haverstraw police was called in. He began questioning attendants at the institution. He discovered many things with the aid of Mrs. Hamilton and Williams, whose long experience with the police department had made him a skilful questioner.

They ascertained that Miss White was a wisp of a girl of 95 pounds, 4 feet 9 inches tall, brown hair, and had several teeth missing. She was 24 years old. She had adenoids which thickened her voice and she lisped. She was a moron. She was also a victim of abnormally passionate affections. The last letter she ever wrote, to her sister, Mrs. Pasquale Copertino, 27 years old, of 1408 Bergen street, Brooklyn, N. Y., revealed this disposition. It also showed that she wanted to learn and wanted to go to school again.

That a man took advantage of this warmth of feeling was the belief expressed by Miss Emily Williams, described by the superintendent as a "high-grade patient." Miss Williams was the chum of the missing girl and she talked freely to the investigators. She said:

"Lily had a love affair with an attendant. He used to exchange love notes with her. She confided to me that she used to meet him outside the institution. She mentioned a cave on a mountain where they kept trysts."

Her statement, investigated, brought into the case the name of a man who had been employed as an attendant at the institution up to March 13. On that date he disappeared. According to records in the office of Sheriff George Brown of Rockland county, this attendant had been questioned regarding the theft of $700 from the institution. Two months before he left he had married one of the nurses. She is now living in New England with her baby.

But, interesting as the points uncovered are, and encouraging as they are in the promise they give of ultimate solution of the most baffling murder, the most interesting part of the whole case is the technique employed by Williams in restoring to the unrecognizable skull contours and facial characteristics that not only were positively recognized by those who had charge of Lillian White, but by the more critical eyes of her own sisters, Mrs. Copertino and Mrs. Rose Doran of 51 Throop avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. This is how William did it:

"The first step in reconstructing a human face is to sterilize the skull with formaldehyde," he explained. "That having been done we wedge a piece of planed curtain pole into the 'foramen magnum,' the opening through which the spinal column joins the skull. Under the mastoid bones, the hard structures one can feel behind the ears, we insert two tubes to give added rigidity.

"Then we take plastiline and cover the skull with it at a depth of one-half an inch. In putting it on we are sure to follow the contours made by the jaw bones, the cheek bones, the frontal bones, etc.

"When we come to the nose we haven't as difficult a job as you would imagine. Noses are divided into four classes—straight, convex, concave and hook. The curve or direction of the nasal bone as it comes out of the forehead determines to what class the nose of the particular skull being worked on belonged.

"Feeling the cartilage as it joins the bone, one notes a straight direction or a decidedly 'dish' effect or a gradual slanting down and in, as in the case of the convex nose, or a great curve which marks the hook type. This also decides for us what the end will be like and its length. A turned or pug nose would be likely to have a thick end. The slightly curved down one will have a thin end. The length of the nose from the bridge to the base of the nostrils is determined by the roots of the teeth. Feel at the base of your own nose and there you will locate the roots of your teeth.

"The character of the eyes, bulging or deep-set, is determined in a very interesting manner. Take a pencil. Hold it slantwise so that it touches your forehead and your cheekbone. You'll find, then, that when you wink your eye your lashes just touch the pencil. Thus, allowing a slight distance back for the thickness of the upper eyelid, we figure the top of the eyeball will come under the top of the lid and there you are.

"To locate the pupils of the eye we borrow a trick from the optician. We hold a pencil horizontally across the bridge of the nose. The pupils will be directly beneath this pencil.

"As for the lip. If the upper teeth protrude there will be a full lip. If the upper teeth recede the lower lip will sink back considerably. If they are prominent below, then there will be a full lower lip.

By such a process, then, were restored to the skull of the skeleton found on the top of the lonely mountain the features identified as those of Lillian White. Sordid as the murder was, it had in it those tender notes that always pervade every case where love, either lawful or illicit, leads to death.

Not far from the spot where they found all that remained of the weak-minded little girl—whose mentality, they say, was that of 6 years instead of the 24 she had lived—was the cave where she kept her tryst with her lover. Not far from it was a stick with two knotted handkerchiefs tied to it several inches apart. Every passing breeze waved them. They were used by the murderer to tell the girl that he was waiting, investigators have concluded.

IS IT FOLLY TO WED FOLLIES GIRL?

NEW YORK, June 15.—Flo Ziegfield's ladies and "children" of the Follies may be the ant's eyebrow when it comes to looks and figure but they are the original Houdinis when it comes to getting out of the marriage bonds.

No less than nine Follies girls have been wed in the last two years. And no less than nine have been through the divorce mill in the same time or are in it now.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, perhaps, is the best known of the nine. Peggy is divorced but hasn't returned to the Follies for the very simple reason that Joyce's settlement was ample enough to make stage labor unnecessary for a while, at least.

But Helen Lee Worthing wasn't so fortunate. She married a millionaire. Eloped of course. Six months later she was back in the Follies with a divorce in her hand and a settlement in her purse.

Geneva Mitchell, 17, is one of the "children." She managed to stick it out a week with Bob Savage, Yale student. Then she came back and started divorce.

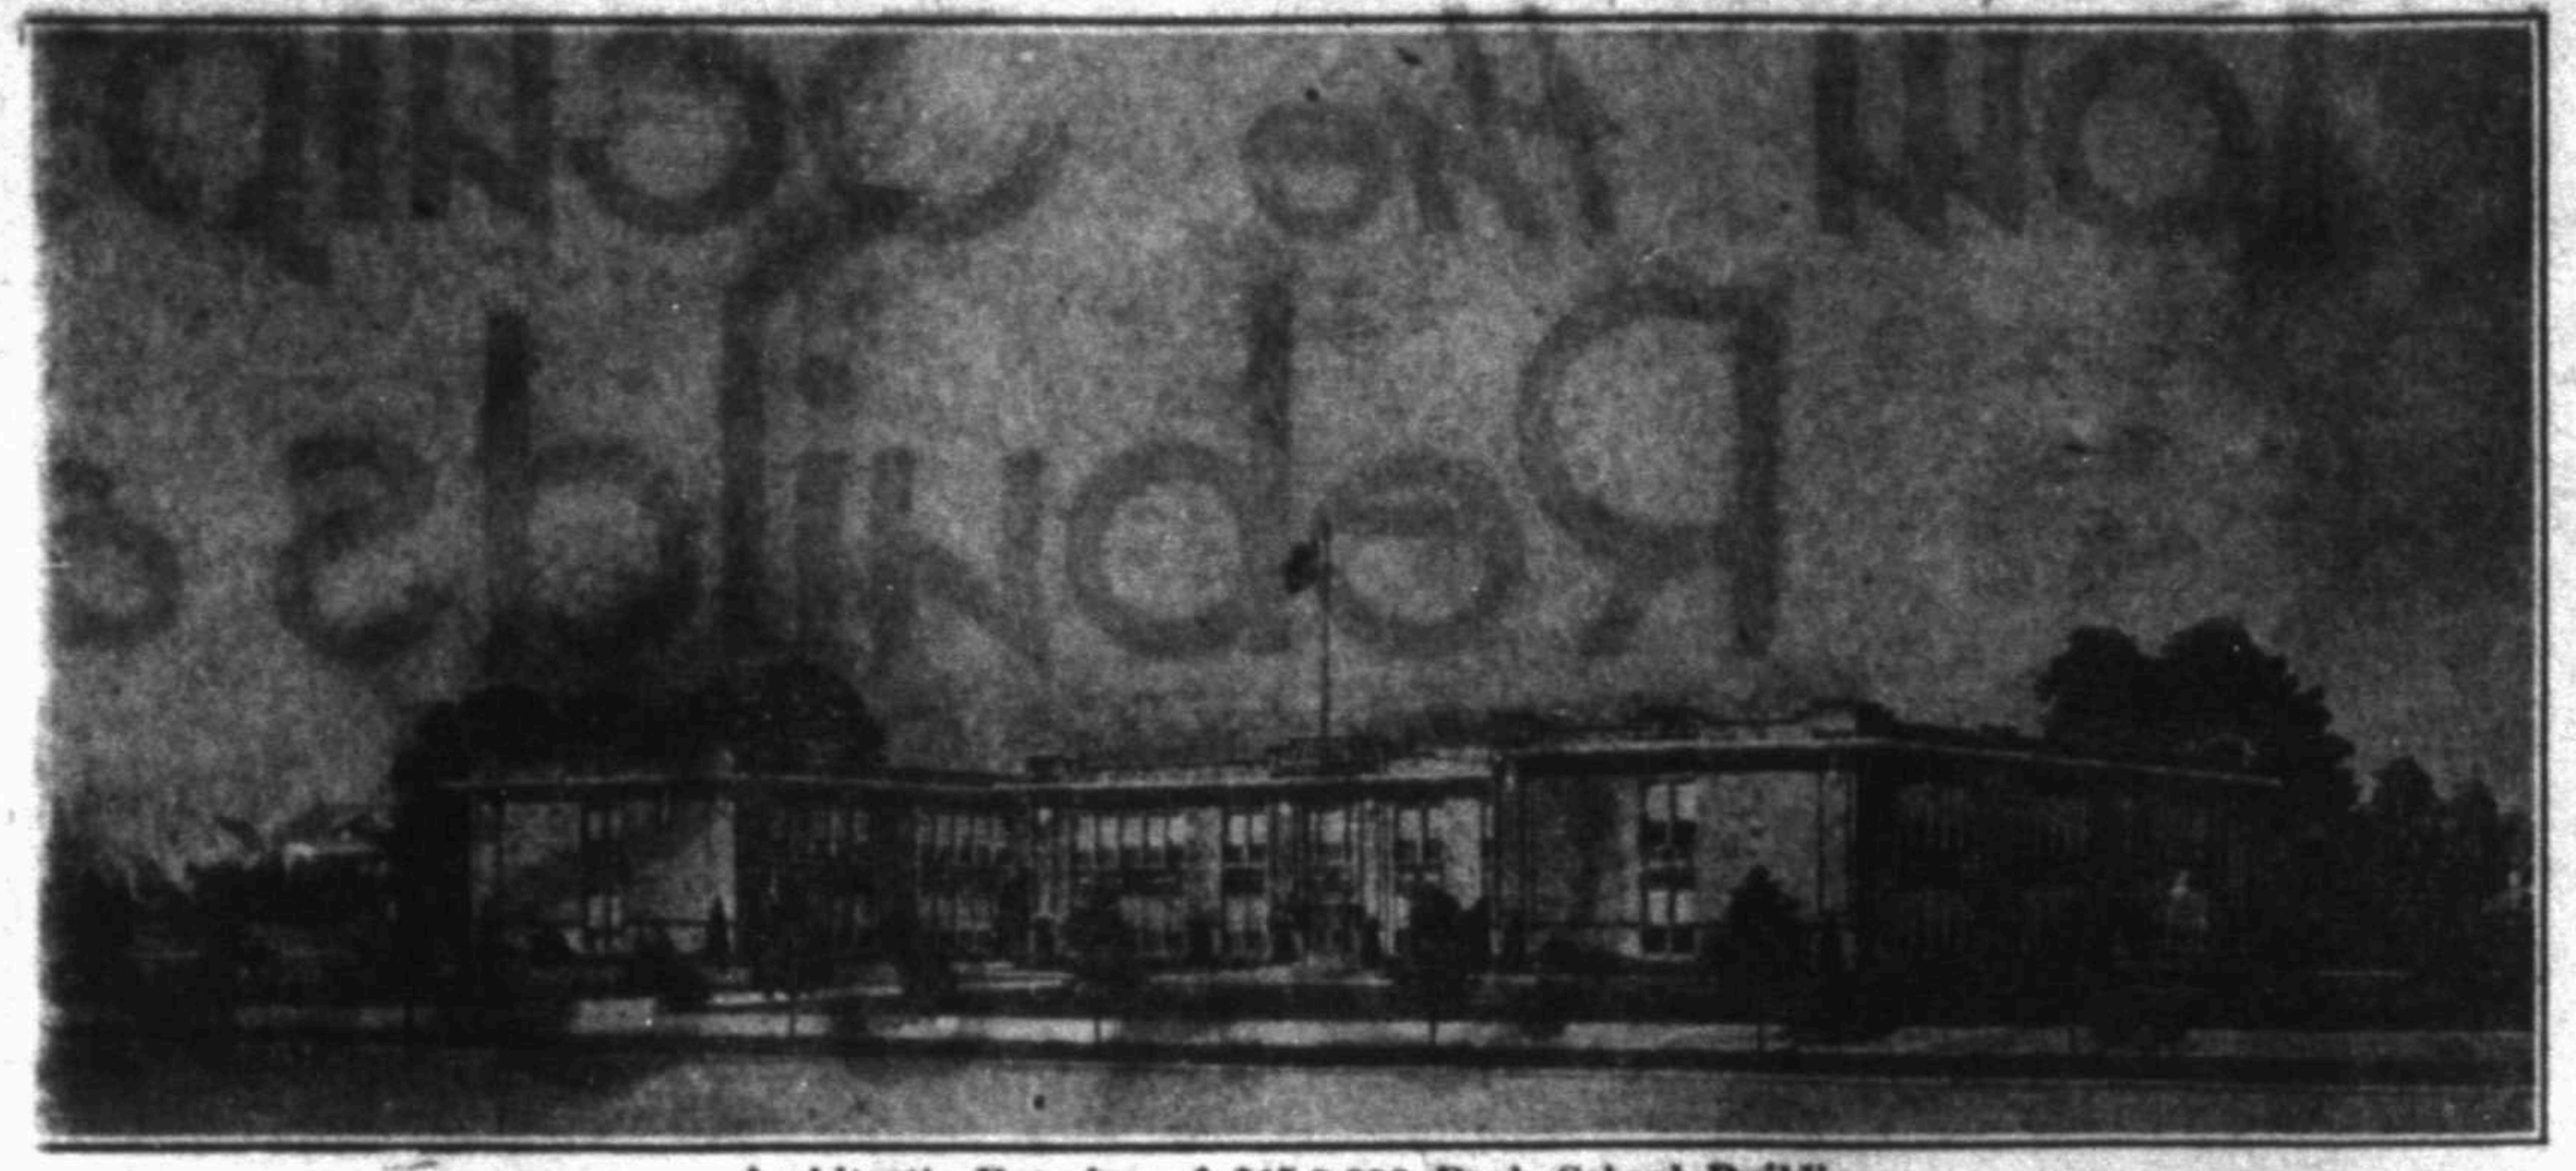
Phoebe Lee a year and a half ago married a Pittsburgh millionaire. Now Miss Lee reports at the stage entrance every night with nothing but memories of her husband which include among other things a limousine, motor boat, Long Island mansion and a string of pearls.

Peggy Udell, another of the "children" fell in love with John Montgomery before she found out he was a millionaire. They were married but the inevitable divorce action followed.

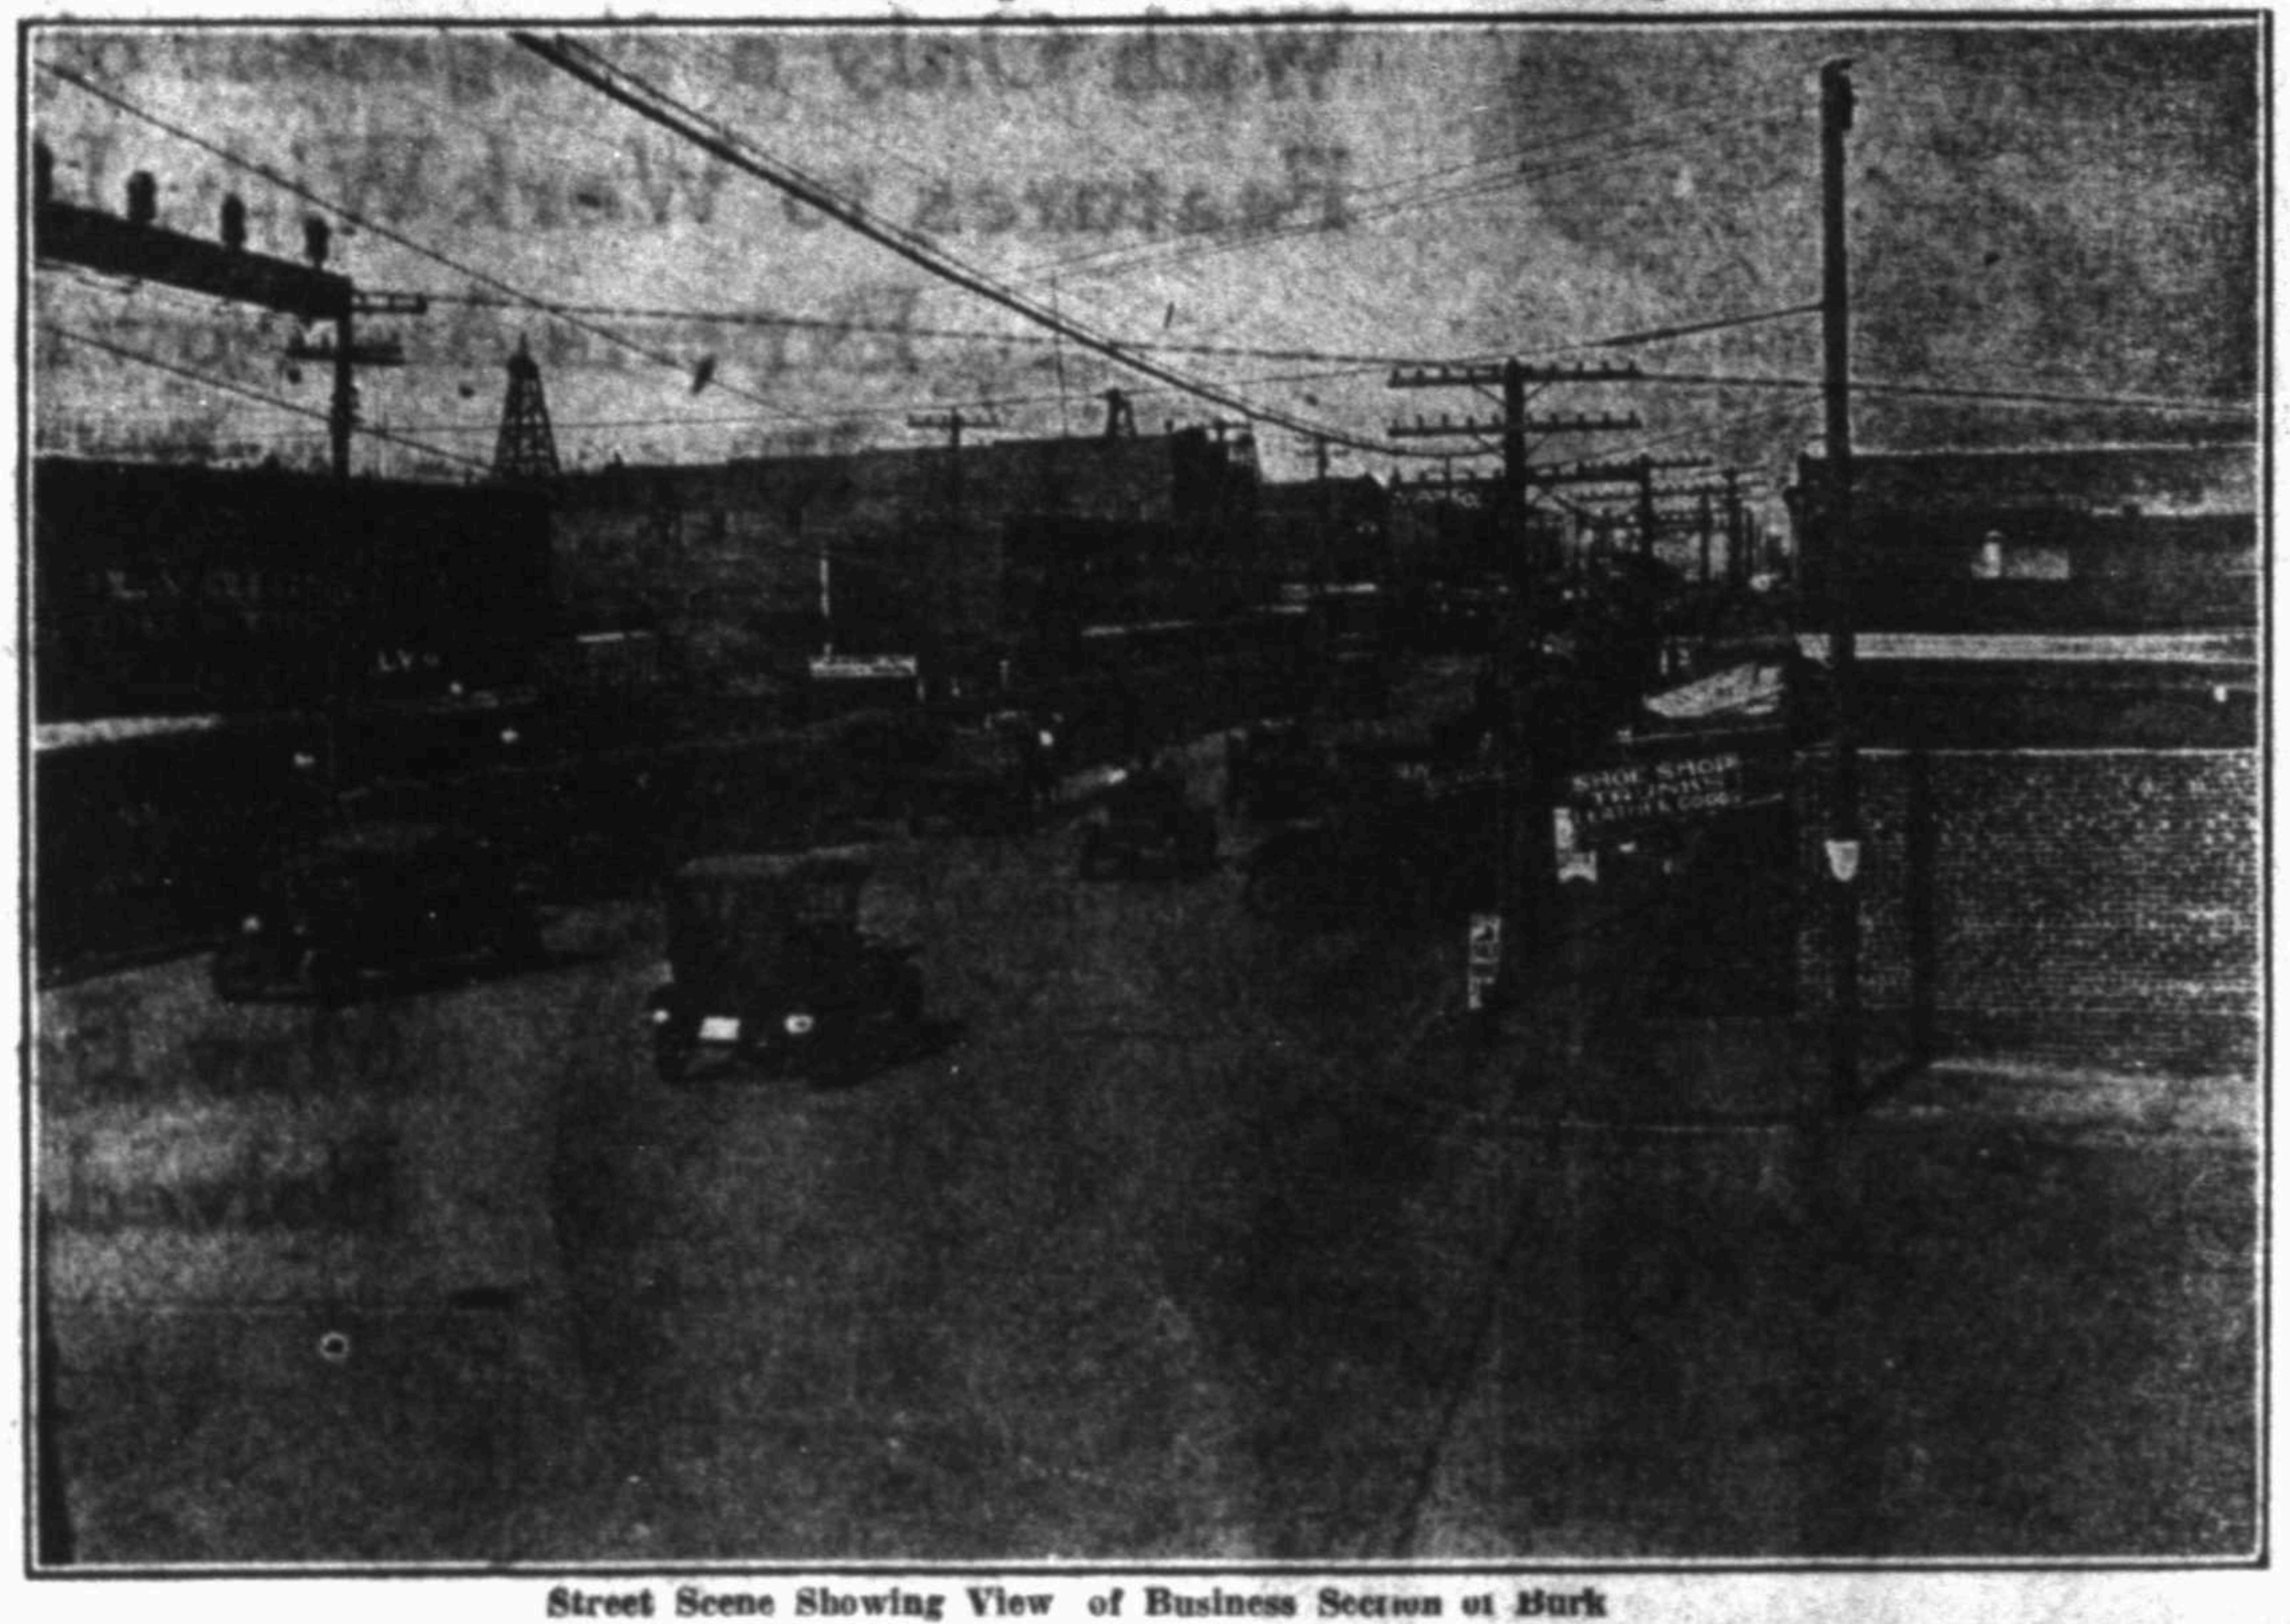
Peggy Davis married a handsome young chap who claimed to have his hands on a million dollar bank roll. All went well until several other wives of the same youth came to talk things over with her. Now she wants a divorce and he's missing.

Florence Crane and Addie Rolfs also have returned to the Follies with divorce documents and added publicity.

PROGRESSIVE BURK TO BUILD HANDSOME SCHOOL STRUCTURE



Architect's Drawing of $150,000 Burk School Building



Street Scene Showing View of Business Section of Burk

Progressive Burkburnett is forging to the front. There's something under way over there all the time. Now its citizens have voted $150,000 worth of bonds to construct a modern high school building. A large view of this structure is shown in the upper picture.

When Wichita Falls business men visited the town several days ago on the local booster trip, citizens of Burk told them the details of this magnificient, school and of other construction now under way and contemplated in that thriving town.

School bonds already have been sold. They were purchased by a Chicago firm recently at a premium. It is hoped that the money will be available in a short while. The new structure is to be located on a five-acre block of ground, one and a half blocks south of the present public schools.

The Burkburnett independent district school enrollment is about 2,300 pupils and 58 teachers compose the personnel of the faculty. R. H. Henry is president of the school board and E. J. Woodward is superintendent; J. S. Mills, John E. Haynes and C. W. Ferguson are members of the board.

In the second picture, somewhat of an idea of progressive Burkburnett's business section can be secured. A couple of the oil derricks loom just above the building tops. Burkburnett's streets are modern, many of them being paved and the business houses are models of up-to-date stores. Burkburnett has one of the livest newspapers in the state. This is the Star, published by Editor Billingslea. This is the only weekly paper in the state that sells an edition of from 500 to 1,000 on the streets on the day of publication each week.

The "Ghost" That Hypnotized a Bank President

And How This Official, According to His Own Statement, Became Involved in a $500,000 Defalcation, Because the Guilty Person Threatened to Commit Suicide and Haunt Him.

Albert H. Sporleder, Who, as President of the Milwaukee-Irving State Bank of Chicago, Is Said to Have Allowed a Shortage of More Than $500,000 to Go Unreported Because He Feared He Would Be Haunted by Peacock's Ghost.

Clara Rahn, Secretary of Everette Peacock, Testified She Attended Meetings Where Plans for Getting Money Out of Chicago Bank Were Discussed.

A HALF-MILLION DOLLARS has disappeared from a Chicago bank and a ghost is charged with being the chief accessory after the fact. Legal responsibility for the shortage rests with Everette R. Peacock, a former president, Albert H. Sporleder, who succeeded Peacock, and several others. But the real responsibility, according to Sporleder and several Chicago neurologists, is chargeable to a wraith and the most intangible sort of wraith at that.

It was Peacock who manipulated his account at the Milwaukee-Irving State Bank in such a way as to bring about the illegal withdrawal of the missing money. Testimony to this effect has been placed before the state attorney.

But when Sporleder became president of the bank and discovered the irregularities he went to Peacock, he says, and threatened him with exposure, unless immediate restitution was made. Peacock answered by telling Sporleder that if he didn't keep quiet, he, Peacock, would kill himself and that his ghost would stand on Sporleder's doorstep and haunt him.

Dread of Exposure

Sporleder, much shaken by this threat, went back to his bank and thought it over. He decided after a while to say nothing and that perhaps matters would get better. Instead of that, he says, they got worse. A shortage of $260,000 in over-drafts mounted to nearly half a million by the time affairs got so bad that the bank examiners caught the irregularities and the directors were notified.

Details of the "check kiting" operations whereby the over-drafts in question were made, were conveyed in statements made to the state attorney by Peacock, Sporleder, Miss Clara Rahn, Peacock's secretary, and Harold W. Anderson, former cashier of the bank. The state attorney announced that he would ask for the indictment of Peacock, Sporleder, Anderson and several others.

Sporleder's statement of the threat made by Peacock came at the end of his detailed confession to the state attorney. He said:

"When I first took over the bank I found several irregularities, but they were not for large sums. Mr. Peacock was one of the largest depositors and I thought it best to carry him along, even though some of the things were distinctly shady.

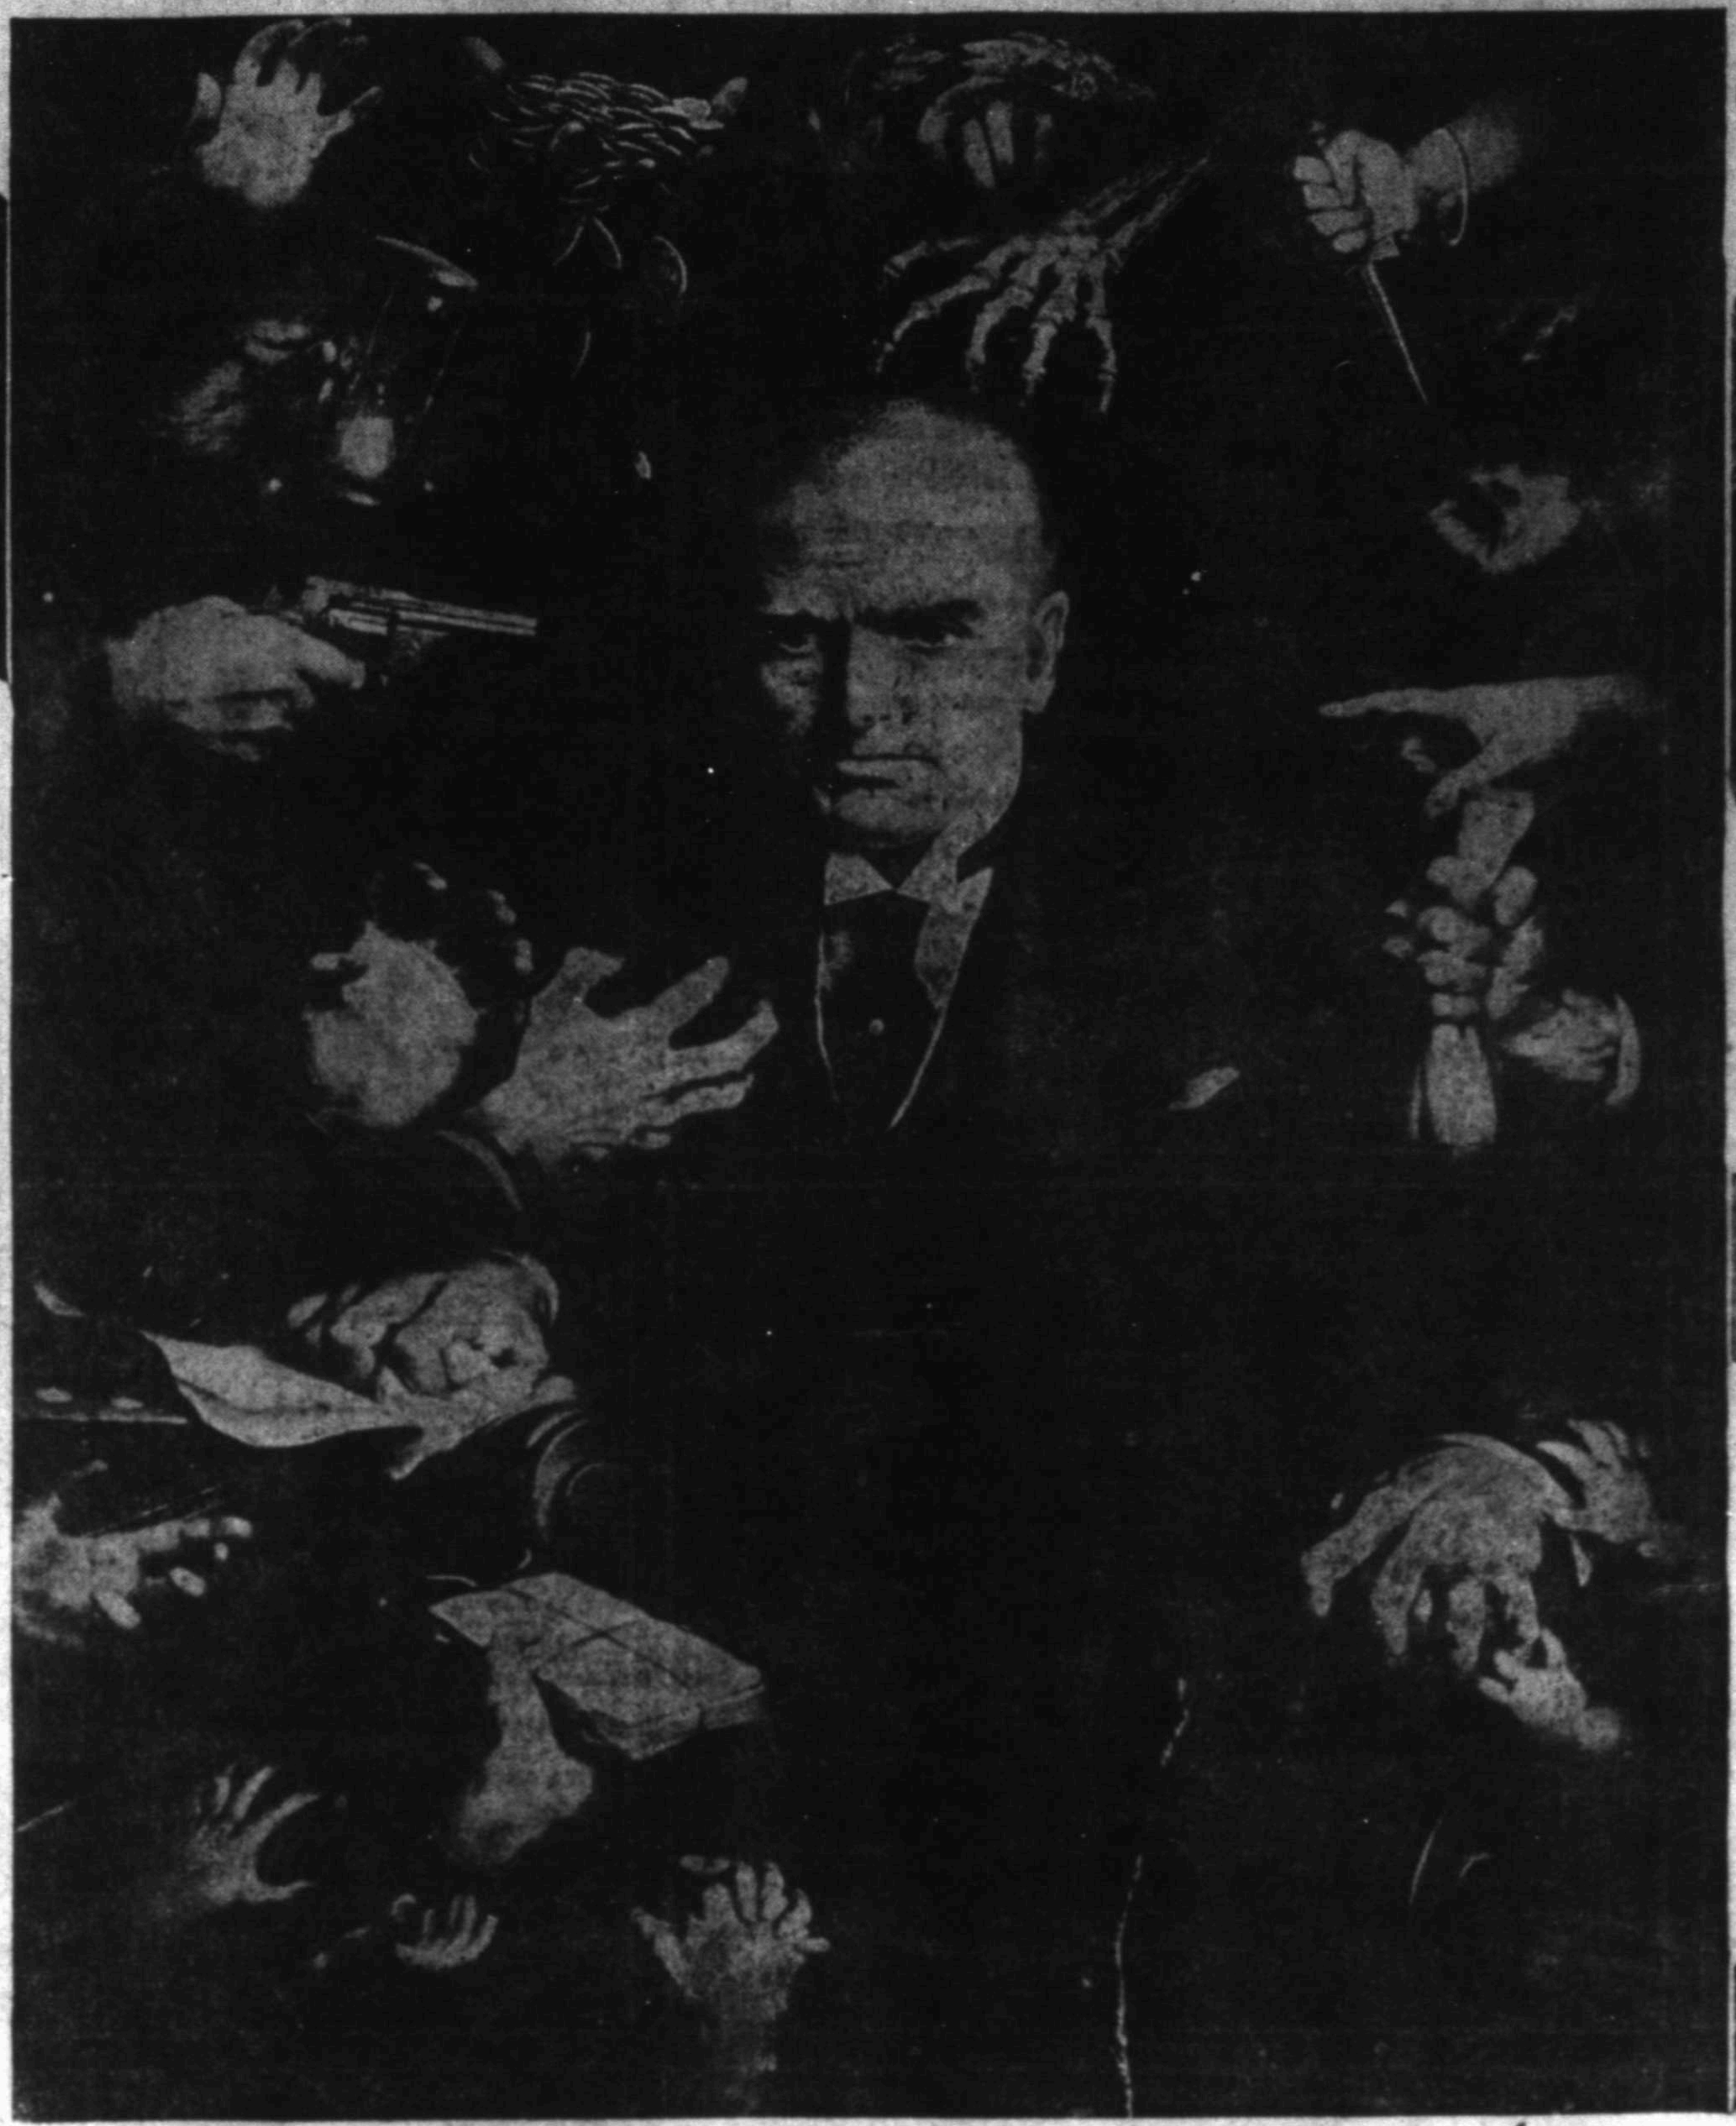
"Finally, when the full magnitude of the situation came to me, I went to Mr. Peacock and told him that unless he made immediate restitution and straightened things out I would have to put it all before the bank directors and the state attorney.

"'Do you remember the Paul Stensland bank case?' he asked me. He knew that I had lived within a few doors of the Stensland home and could not help but know of it.

"'You remember that a broker committed suicide because of that case,' he continued. 'If you want my ghost on your door-step, go to the state attorneys and the directors. I'll kill myself if you do. I can't face the world if the crash comes. You can save me if you will. Without you I haven't a chance and I'll kill myself as sure as the sun rises, if you force the disgrace.'

"After that I thought things might come out all right and went along with him. Instead of coming out all right, however, they all went wrong and I became involved deeper and deeper."

What passed through Sporleder's mind between the time Peacock made his threat and his final decision to stick by his predecessor, even Sporleder hasn't been able to tell with any accuracy. But from the known facts, Chicago neurologists and psychologists who have been interested in the psychological aspect of the case, have reached certain interesting conclusions.



William R. Leigh's Sensational Canvas, "The Reckoning," Which Represents Graphically a Man in the Grip of a Succession of Fear States. It Was Such a State of Mind, Chicago Neurologists Declare, That Prevented Sporleder from Exposing the Alleged Bank Shortage.

Sporleder was not a man who was known to be superstitious. Under ordinary circumstances he would have laughed away the thought that anyone he had known might come back and haunt him. What gave him pause at first was the possibility that Peacock might end his life. He evidently took seriously this threat.

As he sat turning over this possibility in his mind, however, the ghost thought kept recurring with greater frequency. The association between Peacock's death and his reappearance as a ghost grew closer and closer, as Sporleder's mind revolved in an ever-narrowing circle, until what was considered at first as childish and fantastic was now accepted as credible.

And once the ghost was accepted, the possibilities of what might happen to him if Peacock should die and haunt him, became manifold and terrible. His mind passed through a succession of fear states in which he imagined himself being dogged to his grave by unforgetable shapes and beings.

After a while, of course, Sporleder brought himself back to a comparatively rational state of mind, but the harm had been done. He had developed what the psychoanalysts call a complex. He could never think rationally on the subject of ghosts. Whenever he tried to, his subconscious mind would interfere and he would pass off again into a succession of fear states.

According to those psychoanalysts who follow the Freudian school, there are many cases in the history of psychic research where rationalist and materialistic persons have been brought to believe in ghosts and their power to inflict harm, within a comparatvely short span of time. In fact, it is an exceptional human being, who couldn't be brought to such a state if conditions were right. And once those standards of judgment which kept him from being what is called superstitious were destroyed, he would straightway become a prey to fears.

The reason for this, they declare, is that every human being has an inherent wish for immortality. When some of them are normal, they may conceivably tell themselves that personal immortality doesn't appear to be logical. But if certain unnatural conditions are brought to bear upon them, the wish to be immortal will become stronger than their rational processes and what they would ordinarily call unreal become real. For the wish has become a belief.

In Terror, Confesses

Those who believe in personal immortality are more easily led to a belief in ghosts, it is declared. It is often the case that the mere removal of the influences of one's normal environment will bring this about.

In his statement to the state attorney, Everette Peacock admitted that he had looted the Milwaukee-Irving State Bank for $486,000. He further admitted that he obtained an additional $155,000 through loans from six other banks and that of the entire $623,000 he could account for only $25,000. When these over-drafts were put through, Peacock was president of the Peacock Seed Company. He said that he and Albert Sporleder had at first realized money on checks that were no good and that the checks had been covered by money raised from the conversion of stock and bonds belonging to the bank.

Harold W. Anderson, the cashier, said:

Everette Peacock, Former President of the Bank He Is Now Charged with Looting.

"I was ordered to pay the money to Mr. Peacock by Mr. Sporleder on checks drawn by Mr. Peacock for various amounts ranging between $5000 and $10,000. There were no funds to cover these checks, which on Mr. Sporleder's order I carried as cash assets.

"The checks were presented by Charles P. Gascon, secretary of the Peacock company, and were in the name of the firm. The thing started in April, 1921, and went on for a long time."

After questioning Mr. Peacock, the state attorney sent for Miss Clara Rahn, Peacock's secretary. She admitted that there were irregularities practised, in the handling of the Peacock account at the bank for a year and a half, past.

She said she had been present at conferences between Mr. Sporleder, Mr. Peacock, Mr. Gascon and Harold W. Anderson, former cashier, at which methods for taking money from the bank were discussed. She said she had, on order from Mr. Gascon, signed fictitious names to checks which were later cashed at the bank. She told of minor transactions, but insisted she knew nothing of $500,000 worth of hidden assets as charged by the prosecutor.

When the directors first found out about the shortage, the missing amount was immediately made good. In his statement of the case made for the benefit of depositors, State Attorney Edgar Jonas said:

"It is only fair to the board of directors to point out that while the shortages exist it is not the depositors who will lose. The directors and the stockholders are the victims. The bank, I believe, can and always could pay dollar for dollar to its depositors."

MAKE YOUR CHOICE

TEXAS democrats will nominate a candidate for lieutenant governor Saturday, July 22. This is the bunch to pick from: State Senator T. W. Davidson of Harrison county; Andrew S. Jamison of Tarrant county; W. A. Johnson of Hall county; Colonel William Mayfield, Jr. of Harris county. Davidson is a prominent lawyer and farmer who stands at the head of the east Texas bar; Johnson is the publisher of the Hall County Herald, the oldest newspaper in the panhandle section. He is a former state senator and a former lieutenant governor. Jamison is the proprietor of a restaurant in the city of Fort Worth and was born on a farm in Anderson county. Colonel Mayfield is the editor of Mayfield's weekly, the newspaper organ of the ku klux klan in Texas. He has never held an office.

There is another Richmond in the field. He is Joseph E. Edmondson of Anderson county and it is his proud boast that he is a dirt farmer. He is the running mate of Major Fred S. Rogers of Fannin county. These two have the farm labor party endorsement, the backing of many Bailey leaders and the non-partisan political conference leaders. Major Rogers supported Joseph Weldon Bailey against Pat. Morris Neff. Joseph E. Edmondson hasn't been placed yet. He hails from Anderson county, the former home of Thomas M. Campbell, known to fame as the Sage of Palestine and who shed scalding tears of grief or shame when the Texas delegates compelled him to vote against the Bryan minority report at the San Francisco convention.

C. E. Wilcoxson and Luther Nickels who hope to be dirt farmers some day are the advisers of the men who were conducting the Rogers-Edmondson campaign. Lynch Davidson, so the politicians say, would have been renominated and reelected lieutenant governor if he hadn't taken himself out of the race. Some of his political enemies say that it cost Davidson one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars to be elected two years ago, but those who are close to him and are familiar with the detailed cost of the campaign say that he did not spend fifteen thousand dollars from start to finish and that this sum was spent for legitimate advertising and other incidentals.

Mr. Davidson has announced that he will be a candidate for governor in the year 1926. And then his political enemies will be given another opportunity to throw mud at him. He began as a wage earner at 11 he accumulated a fortune before he was 40 and he didn't rob anyone to get it. This is the record of his private life as his friends have given it and they promise to put up a real fight for him should he announce for governor two years hence. It doesn't cost a cent to tell the truth and it is an outrage to attempt to blacken a man's reputation without direct or convincing evidence.

"CRACKING" OIL.

ONE of the largest of the Middle West oil refining companies has begun operating "four new cracking units," says the Cisco News. It is using a process whereby the crude petroleum is made to yield a much larger proportion of gasoline by the "cracking" or breaking up of the molecules of kerosene and other less volatile parts of the petroleum. It is said that the company expects to convert into gasoline as much as 70 per cent of the crude oil.

This is about three times as much gasoline as used to be obtained from petroleum, and twice as much as was obtained quite recently. The product is not necessarily inferior to the old fashioned gasoline that came from simple distilation.

This achievement has a significant bearing on the gasoline supply problem. The supply of petroleum is virtually doubled or trebled, as far as gasoline is concerned. If it is possible to get seven gallons of "gas" for every 10 gallons of crude oil, there need be no fear of a lack of fuel for internal combustion engines for a long time to come. And when the national oil supply runs out, both the pool and shale deposits, there will still be the limitless possibilities of gasoline made from coal and of commercial alcohol made from vegetation.

Which came first—the man or the ape? William Jennings Bryan wants to know.

THE BALLAD OF THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

By ROBERT W. SERVICE

ILLUSTRATED BY HUBERT MATHIEU

ONE of the Down and Out—that's me. Stare at me well, ay, stare!
Stare and shrink—say! you wouldn't think that I was a millionaire.
A dollar? a dime? a nickel? Why, I'm the wealthiest man on earth.

No, don't you think that I'm off my base. You'll sing a different tune
If only you'll let me spin my yarn. Come over to this saloon;
Wet my throat—it's as dry as chalk and seeing as how it's you,
I'll tell the tale of a Northern trail, and so help me God it's true.
I'll tell of the howling wilderness and the haggard Arctic heights,
Of a reckless vow that I made, and how I staked the Northern Lights.

Bold were we, and they called us three the "Unholy Trinity";
There was Ole Olson, the sailor Swede, and the Dago Kid and me.
We were the discards of the pack, the foreloopers of Unrest,
Reckless spirits of fierce revolt in the ferment of the West.
We were bound to win and we revelled in the hardships of the way.
We staked our ground and our hopes were crowned, and we hoisted out the pay.

We were rich in a day beyond our dreams, it was gold from the grass-roots down;
But we weren't used to such sudden wealth, and there was the siren town.
We were crude and careless frontiersmen, with much in us of the beast;
We could bear the famine worthily, but we lost our heads at the feast.
The town looked mighty bright to us, with a bunch of dust to spend,
And nothing was half too good them days, and everyone was our friend.
Wining meant more than mining then, and life was a dizzy whirl,
Gambling and dropping chunks of gold down the neck of a dance-hall girl;
Till we went clean mad, it seems to me, and we squandered our last poke,
And we sold our claim, and we found ourselves one bitter morning—broke.

The Dago Kid he dreamed a dream of his mother's aunt who died—
In the dawn-light dim she came to him, and she stood by his bedside,
And she said: "Go forth to the highest North till a lonely trail ye find;
Follow it far and trust your star, and fortune will be kind."
But I jeered at him, and then there came the Sailor Swede to me,
And he said: "I dreamed of my sister's son, who croaked at the age of three.
From the herded dead he sneaked and said: 'Seek you an Arctic trail;
'Tis pale and grim by the Polar rim, but seek and ye shall not fail!'"
And lo! that night I too did dream of my mother's sister's son,
And he said to me: "By the Arctic Sea there's a treasure to be won.

On the slope of the lonely watershed that borders the Polar brim."
Then I woke my pals, and soft we swore by the mystic Silver Flail,
'Twas the hand of Fate, and tomorrow straight we would seek the lone moose trail.

Men of the wilderness were we, freed from the taint of sin.
The mighty river snatched us up and it bore us swift along;
The days were bright, and the morning light was sweet with jewelled song.
We poled and lined up nameless streams, portaged o'er hill and plain;
We burnt our boat to save the nails, and built our boat again.

So we came at last to a tundra vast and dark and grim and lone
And there was the little lone moose trail, and we knew it for our own.
By muskeg hollow and nigger-head it wandered endlessly;
Sorry of heart and sore of foot, weary men were we.
The short-lived sun had a leaden glare and the darkness came too soon,
And stationed there with a solemn stare was the pinched, anaemic moon.
Oh, it was wild and weird and wan, and ever in camp o' nights
And swift they pranced with their silver feet, and pierced with a blinding blaze.
They danced a cotillion in the sky; they were rose and silver shod;
It was not good for the eyes of man—'twas a sight for the eyes of God.
It made us mad and strange and sad, and the gold whereof we dreamed
Was all forgot, and our only thought was of the lights that gleamed.

We were climbing up a glacier in the neck of a mountain pass,
When the Dago Kid slipped down and fell into a deep crevasse.
And he says: "'Tis badly broken, boys, and I'll never walk again.
It's death for all if ye linger here, and that's no cursed lie;
Go on, go on while the trail is good, and leave me down to die."
He raved and swore, but we tended him with our uncouth, clumsy care
The camp-fire gleamed and he gazed and dreamed with a fixed and curious stare.
Then all at once he grabbed my gun and he put it to his head,
And he says: "I'll fix it for you, boys"—them are the words he said.
So we sewed him up in a canvas sack and we slung him to a tree;
And the stars like needles stabbed our eyes, and woeful men were we.
And on we went on our woeful way, wrapped in a daze of dream,

When the Sailor Swede had a crazy fit, and he got to talking queer.
He talked of his home in Oregon and the peach trees all in bloom,
And the fern head-high, and the topaz sky, and the forest's scented gloom.
He talked of the sins of his misspent life, and then he seemed to brood,
And I watched him there like a fox a hare, for I knew it was not good.
And sure enough in the dim dawn-light I missed him from the tent,
But I followed it o'er the seamless waste, and I found him at shut of day,
Naked there as a new-born babe—so I left him where he lay.

There is a mountain round and low that lies by the Polar rim,
And I climbed its height in a whirl of light, and I peered o'er its jagged brim;
And there in a crater deep and vast, ungained, unguessed of men,
The mystery of the Arctic world was flashed into my ken.
That hollow ring was the source and spring of the mystic Northern Lights.

Then I staked that place from crown to base, and I hit the homeward trail.
Ah, God! it was good, though my eyes were blurred, and I crawled like a sickly snail.
In that vast white world where the silent sky communes with the silent snow,
In hunger and cold and misery I wandered to and fro.

But the Lord took pity on my pain, and He led me to the sea,
And some ice-bound whalers heard my moan, and they fed and sheltered me.
They fed the feeble scarecrow thing that stumbled out of the wild
With the ravaged face of a mask of death and the wandering wits of a child—
A craven, cowering bag of bones that once had been a man.
They tended me and they brought me back to the world, and here I am.

And some that it's electricity, and nobody seems to know.
But I'll tell you now—and if I lie, may my lips be stricken dumb—
You can see it gleam in a golden stream in the solitudes of night.
And it's mine, all mine—and say! if you have a hundred plunks to spare
I'll let you have the chance of your life, I'll sell you a quarter share.
You turn it down? Well, I'll make it ten, seeing as you are my friend.
I'll do as much for you some day . . . God bless you, sir; good-night.

A MAN OF PEACE

WASHINGTON says that President Harding will not intervene to force a settlement of the coal strike. President Harding is a man of peace. He prefers golf to strife. He loves to walk the easiest way. He isn't a Theodore Roosevelt or a Woodrow Wilson. He isn't a man of action.

He would like to be at peace with all the world and to have all the world at peace with him. He is as placid as William Howard Taft. He is as companionable and as lovable as Champ Clark. But he is neither forceful nor militant nor a driver of men.

Politicians need a driver in the White House. Monopolies need a man in the White House who isn't afraid to use the big stick. Mobocrats need a man in the White House ready at all times to teach them the necessity for law and order.

Texas republicans promised to place a full state ticket in the field and capture two congressional districts now represented by democrats. An aggressive minority party is needed in this state. A brutal majority is a handicap. There is room in Texas for an aggressive republican party.

DANCES FOR ROCKEFELLER

Virginia Denike, 6-year-old dancer, is now ready for a niche in the Hall of Fame. She danced and sang for John D. Rockefeller on a ferryboat from Hyach to Tarrytown, N. Y., and he managed to loose the purse strings and extract two thin dimes.

COOLIDGE SLIPS COG

VICE President John Calvin Coolidge slipped a cog the other day. He made a speech and in that speech he said: "There is the league of nations which, whether successful or not, whatever imperfections may be contained within its terms, is at last an attmptd xprssion of a noble aspiraion for world association and understanding."

If John Calvin Coolidge had made use of the words in the campaign of 1920 he would have caused a republican stampede in the directiin of the camp of the vociferous and voluminiious James M. Cox of Ohio. But it is better late than never. One by one the republican chieftans are vindicating the league of nations given to the civilized world by a war president of the United States. Woodrow Wilson did not fail.

William Jennings Bryan has lauched another paramount issue. He is touring the nation for votes for God and against apeism. Having exhausted all the old topics or issues W. J. B. has invented a new one. He is a wonder. When he isn't writing he is talking; when he isn't talking or writing he is sleeping and all the time he is selling copies of the newspapers or grinding out books for the fiction reading public.

A WASHINGTON VIEWPOINT

THIS is to be a funny story. It shall sparkle with wit and humor. It shall shake with laughter. It may be that Americans will not be able to get many grins out of it. It is even quite possible that the Japanese will hiss outwardly instead of inwardly, as is their custom when pleased. Nevertheless it is a funny story—if true. As yet it has not progressed past the status of rumor. But it sounds real.

Some months ago we—all of us enlightened nations—agreed upon a scrap-the-navy treaty at Washington. We were to hammer out super-dreadnaughts into catboats and sell our great guns for lawn rollers. The fact may be remembered. Every one agreed that it was one of the longest strides that had yet been made toward peace on earth, good will to men. That treaty—if accepted by all the nations—might not make war impossible, but it would at least make it improbable.

It had an especial bearing upon the relations of the United States and Japan. Little by little it is being admitted that responsible statesmen of both nations believed they were headed direct toward war. They were starting upon a naval race, and naval races usually wind up in a fight. Japan must either abandon her naval aspirations, which being a proud and militaristic nation she was not apt to do, or in despair at rivalling the shipbuilding power of the United States would have forced a war before bankruptcy came. The scrap-the-navies treaty was very acceptable to Japan, because she was able to stop her ruinous shipbuilding programme and still maintain that position of eastern dominance she cherished.

But the other nations have not ratified the treaty. A chill wind of doubt is beginning to penetrate the inner fastnesses of the state department. There are persons in the state department who are beginning to wonder. They are beginning to suspect that before ratification Great Britain and France will demand a price.

Said price being approximately eleven billion dollars. Or approximately $100 from each person in the United States.

Great Britain and France know more international politics than we do. We are learning fast—the most confirmed believer in our national backwardness will not deny that—but we have not learned it all yet. It was our idea to begin with. Ours was the pride of authorship. If the navies are scrapped we need no longer fear that we will be pushed into an undesired war with Japan. It would save the American taxpayer money, and he needs it.

So the rumor goes that we can have the ratifications if we cancel Europe's indebtedness to us. That condition was not mentioned at the scrap-the-ships conference, it is true, but are we not all friends? Anyhow, we may not be able to collect those debts. Anyhow, does the state department want to lose face, after having had all those pleasant things said about its treaty?

But, granting the state department would like to trade those bad debts for ratifications, how can the state department persuade congress?

The laugh was delayed. I'll grant you, but here it is. And isn't it a good one?

THEY ARE WIDE APART.

ANTHRACITE operators and officials of the United Mine Workers are wide apart again. Miners rejected arbitration proposals submitted by the operators, declaring they were based on the theory that labor is a commodity which fluctuates.

Labor would be a commodity to be bought and sold in the open market if it were not for the conscience of the nation and those who insist that labor has the same right to organize that capital has to protect its interests.

It is the age old war between those who have and those who haven't. A man with an empty stomach, a hungry mouth and a flat pocket book is in no position to enforce the doctrine of collective bargaining unless he is an organized force. Of course the consumers of coal will pay the freight.

DENTON BAULKS.

DENTON is one of the stalwart democratic strongholds in the blackland district. County Chairman Fred H. Minor of the executive committee has repudiated the pledge or test prescribed by the state committee. This is his defi: "Two years ago I used the pledge certified by the state committee and had to go to the expense of reprinting the ballots when the attorney general held such a pledge was illegal. I do not intend to be caught in such a box again."

Does the head or the tail wag the donkey and why a test? There is said to be a chance for repentance at the eleventh hour in the spiritual life of man. Isn't there a chance for repentance in the political life of an American citizen? Wise men are said to change; fools never.

Mrs. Alice B. Davis of Wewokee, Oklahoma, has been chosen by the Seminoles as their chief. In the good old days the brave did the strutting and the squaw the work. Now the squaw is the chief and the brave is doing the work. There is something new under the sun.

FAMOUS psychglogists, such as William James, have found it impossible to detect the utility of many strange and hampering fear reactions that afflict man. In the bodies of primitive man, however, the automatic mechanism of fear was essential because it was necessary to provide quick mobilization of bodily resources for attack or retreat.

Although most of the dangers that beset primitive man vanished long ago, man of today still acquires in early childhood an army of needless fears that arouse harmful reactions.

By Wilfred S. Ogden

THE discovery that babies are born without fear, and remarkable revelations of how the hampering fears that dog every human's footsteps later in life arise, have resulted from a unique series of experiments recently undertakn by Dr. John B. Watson, a noted New York psychologist.

If you are honest with yourself, you will discover that you are more often frightened by simple objects and circumstances than you like to admit. Psychologists have discovered an amazing list of fears that plague grown men and women—fear of the dark, fear of open places, of heights, of lightning and thunder, of sudden noises, or of snakes, rats and cats.

Whence arise these ridiculous "phobias," as the psychologists call them? Why should they make life miserable for apparently strong-minded adults? Dr. Watson's discovery of an explanation may help us bring up future generations in greater freedom.

The problem is important not only because the victim of fear is notoriously a loser in the battle for success, but also because the shocks of repeated fears upset digestion and other normal processes of the body. A sudden fright produces an amazing series of physical reactions, all of which are interestingly explained elsewhere on these pages as having been important to our primitive ancestors, but which, constantly repeated, can only be harmful to men living at the high nervous tension of modern life.

Your fears are not your natural birthright, nor did they "just grow." Most of them were taught you by your parents and other "grown-ups"—almost before you were out of creepers.

Almost every common fear that you can think of has developed from, or has been "conditioned" on, some previous fear. That fear, in turn, has been conditioned on still another fear. Thus, your pet horrors and aversions have multiplied in steady progression, as the years have gone by, from two fundamental fears that startled you and made you cry when you were a helpless baby. These, Dr. Watson's experiments have revealed, were: 1. Loud sounds. 2. Falling, or sudden removal of support.

Children learn to be afraid just as they learn the letters of the alphabet—from their elders. If you want your son or daughter to be fearless, devoid of unreasoning terror, such as those called forth by a kitten or a snake, you must train the child carefully up to the age of 2.

When an infant is 2 years old, according to these new discoveries, its fundamental character is already formed. It has already become fearless or timid, active or indolent. The general pattern of its character, the emotional nature that will make or break the adult, has already been laid down.

The child of 5, Dr. Watson has found, is enormously sophisticated. By the time it enters the kindergarten, it has developed fear and habits that can be eradicated later only with difficulty.

Dr. Watson performed his experiments with infants born in hospitals, where they had been carefully protected from all outside influences. In age they varied from less than 4 months to 1 year.

As one of the methods of determining the cause of fear, each infant was seated in the lap of its mother, and a live animal, hitherto concealed, was suddenly thrust into its arms. Without exception each child crowed with pleasure and patted the animal. Whether it was a cat, a dog, a rabbit, or a white rat, seemed to make no difference. None of the children was naturally afraid of it. The same was true of fire. A baby, the doctor discovered, will reach for a candle until burned fingers teach it not to handle flame.

But if the baby was dropped to a pillow, or even if the experimenter tugged at the blanket on which it was lying, the result was quite different. Fear was invariably produced. The baby's muscles became tense; it sought to crawl away, and if the stimulus was repeated, it cried. Similar reactions were obtained by making a loud noise, usually by striking an iron bar with a hammer.

"But how can we square these observations with the facts of adult life?" asked Dr. Watson.

His final conclusion was that we learn to be afraid as we grow older; for nearly all grown-ups possess fears attached not only to noises and falls, but to animals, persons, places and even general situations. These secondary fears are caused, declares Dr. Watson, by a psychological process called "the conditioning of reflexes." To prove this, he actually developed a fear in one infant, doing under scientific conditions just what parents, through lack of proper supervision, unconsciously permit children to do. The tests were performed with "Albert," a child aged 11 months and 3 days, as the subject.

Repeated tests revealed that Albert at the outset feared nothing but loud noises and the removal of support. He played with a white rat without the slightest display of terror. From this point the fear-developing experiments proceeded.

The white rat was again shown to Albert, but this time as he reached for it, a bar behind him was struck with a hammer. Instantly the baby started and began to cry. He was not afraid of the rat, but he did fear noise.

A week later, the white rat was shown him again. He hesitated for an instant, then reached for it once more. When the bar was struck, he recoiled in terror.

A short time later the rat was shown to him, with no accompanying sound. Instantly the baby began to cry, then raised himself on all fours and crawled away.

The child's first terror of a noise had been transferred, by teaching, into real fear of an animal. And—more significant still—Albert had become afraid, not only of white rats, but of practically all animals. He had even learned to fear anything furry, such as a sealskin coat or a false face, donned by the experimenter. From two fears, he had quickly developed hundreds. A little patient training removed these fears and before long he was playing with the rat again.

"We thus see how easily such conditioned fears may grow up in the home," Dr. Watson observes. "A child that has gone to bed for years without a light with no fear, may, through the loud slamming of doors, become conditioned to darkness."

DOES WOMAN BECOME MORE ATTRACTIVE WITH AGE?

AT what age does a woman cease to be attractive? This question, so often propounded, may be answered, in a way, by asking another: Does woman become more attractive with age? But the real answer to the question is found by referring to famous feminine characters in history whose charm to captivate seemed to increase with the flight of years.

Feminine attractions are manifold, and the particular quality which captures one male understanding may quite as likely as not fall perfectly flat upon others. Beauty of features to some, symmetry of figure, grace of movement or sweetness of voice to others; or, again, it may be none of these, but intellectual gifts, brilliancy of conversation and vivacity of manner or even the more purely domestic virtues which appeal the most powerfully. One or other of these attributes is the property of the vast majority of women, so that not many lack a something with which to charm and attract.

Nor is there any good reason why they should not continue to retain such powers, failing physical breakdown, up to almost any age, for even beauty of features, which no doubt is the quality which prompts the above question, is not, or ought not to be, a matter of age at all. Varying of course in its phases, it is often retained throughout life, increasing rather than deteriorating with the flight of time. There are examples in abundance where a woman is relatively handsomer at 60 than she was at 20, at 30, or even 40.

As regards the other attractive qualities, it is certain not only that they can, and often are, retained through all the years, but that they shine their brightest after middle life has been passed. Such, inquiry will soon satisfy, has ever been the case from the beginning of history.

Turn to history and you will find numerous examples of the long retention by woman of her power to attract. If the ancient writers are to be credited, the destinies of the nations were in the olden times shaped and swayed by the charms of beautiful or intellectual women.

That great struggle which shook the world, the siege and defence of Troy, had for its prime cause the magnetic attraction of Helen, wife of Agamemnon, King of Sparta. Yet that royal lady, at the time when she was carried off by her youthful lover Paris, was 45 years of age, and was not restored to her husband until 10 years later. Long past the bloom of youth to a certainty, great must have been her attractions to have caused one monarch to risk his throne to wrench her from her home and another to raise all Greece for her recovery.

Aspasia, another of the most famous women of antiquity, was, when married to Pericles, closely bordering upon 40, yet for another 30 years to follow she maintained by force either of beauty or wit or both her empire over the hearts of men.

Quite past the bloom of youth too, was Cleopatra when first she appears on the stage of world affairs, being when she first met and at once enslaved Marc Antony, over 30 years of age.

Sabina, consort of the Roman Emperor Marcus Antoninus, regarded when a girl as quite insignificant, was reckoned as a great breaker of hearts long after she had passed 40.

Diana of Poitiers, too, had passed her 36th birthday when she won the heart of Henry II. of England, who was barely half her age.

Coming down to times nearer the present, the examples of women who when far beyond what is termed middle age, continued to exercise a wonderful power of attraction over all men with whom they came into contact, are no less striking.

Anne of Austria, consort of Louis XIII., and mother of Louis XIV., who as Regent ruled France so long and masterfully, is described as being at 38 the most beautiful woman in Europe.

It was not until she was well over 30 that Manon Philpou, wife of Roland de la Platiere, one of the most heroic and ill-fated figures in the great revolution, emerged from the obscurity of provincial life, and she was close upon 40 when she had at her feet so many of the public men of the day, including Louvet the poet, Conborcet the philosopher, and several other notabilities.

A still more striking figure in history, Josephine Beauharnais, was over 40 when Napoleon Bonaparte won her after so ardent a wooing, to be the sharer in his future glories and his bearing her off from numerous rivals aroused as much jealousy as his wonderful military triumphs.

It is noteworthy that of those French women, contemporaries of Josephine, who were esteemed the most beautiful, none were much her junior, Mme. Recamier being 35, Teresa Cabarus, wife of Tallien, 38, and Mlle. Mars 45. Mme. de Grandt, too, was 42 years of age when the celebrated Talleyrand, who had remained indifferent to all the blandishments of younger women, fell a victim to her charms. In connection with these notable women whose youth seemed perennial, Josephine Beauharnais, Mme. Tallien and Mlle. Mars were all Creoles.

Mrs. Siddons, the famous English actress, is described by a writer of her day, speaking of her when she was 20 as "fairly good-looking," and by another when she was 44 as "incomparably beautiful."

So, after all, who can say when a woman is too old to attract, to charm and to captivate?

MINING the AIR for Its VALUABLE ELEMENTS

WHO would have thought that the air man breathes holds a store of elements which are worth many millions of dollars annually? It is a fact, amazing as it may seem; and as a result a new industry is springing up in connection with mining of the air.

The atmosphere consists, roughly speaking, of a mixture of the gases nitrogen and oxygen, as well as quantities of argon and neon, among other things. Since the discovery of a method of liquefying air by extreme cold, scientists have found it possible to separate these constituents in the same way. And all these elements have now assumed a great commercial importance.

Oxygen is often used to maintain life in invalids, yet the amount consumed in hospitals and laboratories is a very small portion of the total output. In the United States alone it is estimated that the annual output of oxygen is a thousand million cubic feet. The present value of that is nearly $15,000,000.

In combination with acetylene oxygen is used to make the intensely hot flame which cuts through steel rails with the greatest of ease. Workmen are often to be seen in the streets using the flame in repairing trolley tracks. The oxy-acetylene process is one of the most important labor-saving devices ever invented, and it was the mining of the air that made it possible.

Once the oxygen has been removed from the air, attention is turned to nitrogen, which is trapped from the air for the manufacture of fertilizers—an industry carried on in Norway on an enormous scale. It is used also for the manufacture of explosives, for the filling of so-called nitrogen lamps, while it is sometimes employed for putting out oil fires. Nitrogen is obtained by driving the air over an intensely hot electric arc flame, six feet in diameter, known as the "electric sun." The nitrogen is trapped as nitre oxide, from which the nitrogen itself is ultimately combined to form nitro compounds.

Two of the remaining gases in the air are argon and neon, recently looked upon as rare and costly, but now sold at a few cents a cubic foot. Both these gases are used for filling incandescent electric lamps, while small glass tubes of neon are used for testing sparking plugs in motors.

How FISH Are Actually DROWNED by DROUGHTS

MANY fish are actually drowned during great droughts. They are drowned just as surely as a human being would have been drowned, through lack of oxygen.

All rivers and streams contain air, which is dissolved in the water, and from which the fish extract the oxygen as they pass the water through their gills.

The air gets into the water whenever any splashing occurs, thus, at every waterfall, and even when a tiny wavelet splashes, ever so little, some of the air bubbles are dissolved. Practically all this dissolved air can be driven out of the water by heating; so, if a fish is placed in water that has been boiled and allowed to cool, it will quickly die from suffocation.

In addition to keeping the fish alive, this dissolved air keeps the water free from pollution—which is equally important, for polluted water is most dangerous to health.

Stagnant water can only absorb a fraction of the air necessary to keep it fresh. Constant movement, then, is the means by which water is purified, and nothing becomes foul more quickly than stagnant water; that is, water that has no chance to absorb more air.

For ages it was thought that the oceans and the seas were preserved from pollution by their saltness; but stagnant sea-water becomes foul just as quickly as does fresh water, and there is no doubt that it is the constant movement and splashing of the waves that keeps the seas sweet and pure.

During a long drought the rivers and streams become sluggish and warm. Then not only are they unable to dissolve more air, but the warmth makes them give up a portion of what they have—with disastrous results for the "poor fish."

GOING to the CHEMIST for SHOES

MORE and more every year civilized peoples are depending upon chemists to keep them well-shod. While the public may be, for the most part, unaware of it, chemists in many laboratories are busy working toward the production of better leather and good substitutes for leather. In fact, the American Chemical Society has a large division, known as the Division of Leather Chemistry.

Despite the keen competition that exists among American leather manufacturers, there is a spirit of genuine co-operation among the chemists employed in this industry. They do not closely guard their discoveries nor the methods they have developed for cutting corners and getting better results with greater efficiency. On the contrary, they give and take the findings of their scientific and technical investigations.

The requests by tanners for information concerning the availability of papers indicate the growing appreciation of the value of the work of the leather division in increasing the efficiency of practical production, according to Dr. Arthur W. Thomas, of Columbia University, secretary of the division.

The leather industry, while dealing in chemical compounds, was not until comparatively recent years looked upon as a chemical industry. Chemistry made leather possible in the first place, but after it was found that certain infusions obtained chiefly from the bark of oak trees, would preserve animal hides and make them durable, progress in the industry was left, mainly, to increasing production, through tanning more and more hides.

However, there came a time when hides became harder to get, and when there was a steadily increasing demand for leather for a wider variety of purposes. The automobile industry, about 15 years ago, suddenly presented a great demand for upholstery leather which has constantly grown. This, of course, has been met since, largely by leather substitutes—developed by chemists.

The discovery of new compounds for tanning is comparatively recent. Tannin, used in the American leather industry, is commonly obtained from chestnut and quobracho woods and from oak and hemlock barks.

If left untanned, a hide, like meat, decays. In the untanned state the fibres of the hide are glued or matted together by the gelatinous matter in the skin. Tannin, which is a "colloidal" substrange, reacts upon the fibres of the hide and the gelatinous matter separating them so they will slip over each other, at the same time giving a compound of hide and tannin which is immune to attacks of bacteria. This is what prevents decay, makes the leather flexible and insoluble in water. In the dry, untanned hide, the bunches of fibre are stiff and unyielding. When tanned, the strings or fibres are "individualized," so that they move separately without tearing apart. This process also swells or thickens the skin.

A POTATO VASE

A VERY satisfactory substitute for a vase for holding cut flowers can be made with a raw potato. The holes in which the stems are to be inserted are bored with the sharp point of a paring knife.

Holes Are Drilled Into a Raw Potato and Stems of Freshly Cut Flowers Are Inserted Therein.

It is claimed that the placing of cut flowers in a potato in this manner will keep the blooms fresh much longer than when they are put in fresh water. Furthermore, this plan permits the arrangement of bouquets in various ways that is not possible with the ordinary vase.

When ONIONS Were USED as a MEDICINE

THE ancient Egyptians, it is said, were forbidden to eat the onion, garlic and leek.

According to the priests of Pelusium, the onion was barred because it caused a flow of tears, hunger and thirst, and hence was manifestly out of place in fasts and during religious ceremonies, according to a writer in the New York Medical Record. It did not seem right to weep on occasions of joy or to be tormented with hunger and thirst on days set aside for fasting.

The Hebrews regarded the onion purely for its culinary value. The Greeks were fond of both onions and garlic. The former were apparently used when drinking to increase thirst and enhance the pleasures of the cup. But in the palmy days of Rome the two vegetables had become largely the badge of the rabble.

In the Middle Ages any well-set table contained a plate of red onions. The chief repute of the onion in medicine was as a diuretic and remedy for dropsy. This belief has persisted up to the present time, and it is somewhat strange to find that as early as 1853 onions and a milk diet were pronounced the best remedy for dropsy.

In 1910 Mongour saw a still more remarkable case of cirrhosis of the liver with ascites clear up, after three days of onion eating, with a critical polyuria. Cruchet had seen a patient with dropsy recover after a period of onion eating—fifteen or twenty daily. In 1912 Dalche published his article on the "onion cure." He spoke of a case of a three-quart diuresis produced in a dropsical patient by this resource.

By KATHERINE LOUISE SMITH

THE Grand Canyon has been described as one of "the biggest holes there ever was in the ground." You look down, down as you stand on the brink. You see that you are level with tops of formations in this Canyon that look like mountains. You cannot see the raging, roaring Colorado River in the bottom for it is too far away. You feel that you are looking into a chasm so stupendous that words fail you. If you are "game" and a good traveler, not too fleshy and not too old, you will join the calvacade of fellow travelers and start early some morning on horse back or mule back—preferably the latter—and go down one of the South Rim trails. You will return at night—unless you decide to camp out near the river, lame and sore, but you will be rewarded by the consciousness that you have seen something of the depths of this stupendous chasm. You will feel superior to those less venturesome souls who have stayed around the hotel near the South Rim and have taken the automobile rides around the rim.

These rides, too, are remarkable but they do not compare with the experiences in the Canyon, the thrilling descent and ascent, the strange colorings, the variety of vegetation, and the glimpse of the wonderful river as it sweeps majestically toward the South. When you get down you are in a great gash in the earth's surface, two hundred and seventeen miles long, and from eight to twenty miles wide. You are a mile from the rim that you left in the morning anu you are near a river with a discharge of 20,000 second feet and a flood discharge of 150,000 feet.

The Suspension Bridge

Now, too, you will see the new suspension bridge if you go down the South Rim and, of course, you will for the North Rim is so difficult to get to and to get down. The new bridge seems to hang in air. You will wonder how the materials to construct the bridge ever got down those terrific Canyon walls and in reality the construction of this bridge was an interesting accomplishment.

This remarkable suspension bridge way down in the bowels of the earth—the Kaibab Suspension Bridge—is at the mouth of Bright Angel Creek. Until it was finished the only means of getting across the river was in a cage strung on trolleys—a method that frightened all but the most hardened—swimming—dangerous to both man and beast—and small boats. It was necessary to get from one side of the river to the other if the park administration was to be satisfactory and so this bridge was built. It has a deck span of 420 feet and measures 500 feet between anchor bearings. It is suspended from two seven-eighths inch steel cables, the deck being fifty-six feet above low water and about thirteen feet above high water. It took five months to complete it.

Though the bridge was built under contract the Park Service aided and furnished part of the material as well as packed the materials from the rim of the Canyon to the bridge site. This was considerable work for the packing covered a distance of fourteen miles. Nearly fifty tons of material went down the Canyon on mule back and several miles of new trails had to be built. The hardest proposition was the transporting of the cables from the brim to the bottom of the Canyon. Several suggestions were made and it was finally decided to send down the main cables, each weighing 895 pounds and each 500 feet long in a novel way. Coils at each end of the cables weighing two hundred pounds each were loaded on mules and the weight of the intervening cable was divided between fifteen men walking twenty feet apart. The plan worked splendidly and now those cables support the weight of the suspension bridge. It took eight and a half hours to get the cables down. The success in constructing this bridge encourages the Park officials to hope that other bridges will be built later from ledges where such work is feasible and that in this way the North Rim will be opened to visitors who can reach it over one bridge and return to the South Rim over another bridge—say at the Hermit Trail.

The North Rim

The North Rim of the Canyon has a poor trail to the suspension bridge, but this is being remedied. So far few persons have gone to the North Rim though there is a Wiley Camp at Bright Angel Point. Some day the North Rim may be the popular approach to the Grand Canyon but today it is known for its magnificent forests and its water supply. This last is a factor at the Grand Canyon for now the water supply is a consideration on the South Rim. All the water for the hotel and settlements has to be transported from Flagstaff, Arizona. To carry 100,000 gallons of water a hundred miles daily is no small proposition.

Many persons go down the Bright Angel trail in the Grand Canyon, but few know that this trail in reality belongs to the county of Coconino, and that a toll must be paid for every person who goes down it on horse or mule back. Foot passengers are exempt from the one dollar charge. This is the best known trail in the park, and the Park authorities are desirous of purchasing the rights of this trail. A newer trail is the Hermit Trail, built from the end of Hermit Trail on the rim to the river. It is four feet wide and the descent is accomplished by easy grades. It takes two days to go down and back to Hermit's Camp on the river's brim. There are numerous wonderful views especially at Cathedral Stairs, which vies in popularity with the Jacob's ladder on the Bright Angel Trail, where one zigzags down at a pitch to satisfy the most venturesome. It is cut across the face of hard blue limestone. Some of the trails were originally started by bands of Indians—the Havasipai—who live in Cataract Canyon, a tributary of the Grand Canyon. They live deep down, two-fifths of a mile from the river, but the surroundings are beautiful for there are nearby cascades which fall several hundred feet.

People are apt to rush in to the Canyon's brim, stay a few hours and then rush away again. This is a mistake. Even if you do not go down the trail you can walk around parts of the brim and watch the marvelous coloring as the sun touches the Canyon and lights the different rock strata. You will never see any wonder of nature comparable to this. People have tried to describe it but the majority fail. The colorings as you begin at the top and go down are marvelous. You pass hundreds of feet of light buff, beneath these are hundreds of feet of grey sandstone, then comes the wall of limestone and below this the bright red wall and brown wall.

A Great River

As you stand on the new suspension bridge and look down at the river—the latest handiwork of man in the Canyon—you are looking at one of the greatest rivers in North America. Formed by the confluence of the Green and Grand rivers further north it runs through a wilderness. Early Spanish explorers reported it in 1540. A Spanish priest saw it in 1776. There it lay unvisited save by trappers until the War Department made an attempt at exploration. In 1859 Powell, geologist, school teacher, one-armed veteran of the Civil War, accomplished the hazardous trip down this river and the world at length learned of the most unique Canyon in the world. Strange, weird Canyon that draws one and at the same time repels. You must see it to realize this tremendous gash across the earth's surface and hundreds of emotions will awake within you for it is a boding, terrible thing which allures with its vastness, its color and its silence.

TWO years ago Miss Hope Hampton was living contentedly in her native state of Texas. No one, outside of her own immediate circle of friends had ever heard of her.

The story of her entry into motion pictures through her selection as the most beautiful girl in Texas, is too well-known to need further recounting, and today at the age of 22, Miss Hampton is an independent star. She appeared in four successful features, her first being "A Modern Salome," in which she assumed the starring part—a most unusual undertaking in itself, leading roles as a rule, coming only after several years of screen experience and studio work.

"The Bait," "Love's Penalty" and "Stardust" followed. Her most recent production, "The Light In The Dark," will be released this fall.

"Hate"

Two gamblers carry on a feud over a girl. She plays one against the other. And to complete the intricate pattern the district attorney who is determined to obey his duty plays the hero. It is firmly established that a stroke of vengeance will eliminate one of the men. The weaker, physically, knowing the end near, commits suicide and does it in such a way that his enemy will be suspected of killing him. It is a gamble with him and he is the gambler even unto death. The district attorney prosecutes successfully. The innocent gambler is railroaded to prison, but the stinging rebuke of the girl that the minion of the law is a murderer preys upon his mind to such a degree that he devotes his energy to his victim's release. He succeeds in this and at the same time wins the love of the girl.

"A Virgin's Sacrifice"

In "A Virgin's Sacrifice," is told the story of a noble girl's struggle against the beast in man. Forced to carry on her young shoulders a burden almost too heavy to bear, beautiful Althea Sherrill turns to Tom Merwin for help. She asks a favor which demanded more chivalry of him than had ever been asked of Ye Noble Knight in days of old. He was to marry Althea and then having given her his name he was to leave her and never enter her life again. And in the background is Sam Bellows, the beast, who had brought about the situation and the parents of Althea who worshipped their daughter known in the northwest as "The Angel." But Tom and Althea fought a great battle against odds and won happiness despite the beast, and Tom having won "The Angel," did not leave her but stayed as a husband. Curtis Cooksey is Miss Griffith's leading man.

George Arliss

For more than twenty years Mr. Arliss has been a recognized artist on the American stage. For ten years prior thereto he did yoeman's service on the stage in the English provinces, mastering the intricacies of the art and studying its detail.

Mr. Arliss was born in London, April 10, 1868, in a house in the shadow of the British Museum. He attended school at Harrow-on-the-Hill, and at an early age decided to be an actor. When he was eighteen years old, he was given his first actual stage experience.

In 1899 he married Florence Montgomery, an English actress. She has supported him in a number of his plays and two of his photoplays.

"North Of The Rio Grande"

Two blue ribbon horses are stolen from the ranch of Col. Haddington, who is killed by one of the raiders. Bob, his son, vows vengeance. He becomes head of band. He turns his gold which he gets from bad ranchers over to Father Hillaire at Refugie Mission. Here he meets Val, the daughter of the man who later turns out to be "The Black Rustler," who is stealing cattle from his friends the while posing as "coming clean."

Bob discovers his identity and attempts to save him from a "rope party." He draws off an attaching party, then follows a wild race for the pass. Bob is captured and about to be hung when Val appears and proves his innocence.

Gwynedd Vernon

Gwynedd Vernon is the latest screen celebrity to come to this country from across the Atlantic. Upon her arrival in New York, she was immediately dubbed the "English Mary Pickford," which she objected to strenuously, declaring that she wanted to stand on her own and remain the "harem scarem girl" of the movies, as she is known in England. Gwynedd appeared on both the stage and screen in London and was seen in Fay Bainter's role of "Ming Toy" in the English production of "East is West." She met with considerable success in the leading role of "The Man From Toronto." On the silver sheet, Miss Vernon created her favorite role in "The Barton Mystery," in which she co-starred with the celebrated English actor, Lyn Harding.

The Merry Month Of June

When a young lady's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of—well—wedding gowns, orange blossoms, rings of both solitaire and plain gold band variety, has also affected the thoughts of Mildred June, beautiful and popular comedienne.
