Persian Gulf crisis felt here

By MISSY TRULL
SDN Staff Writer

According to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, the United States now has deployed 100,000 American troops to the Persian Gulf and among them are a few hometown boys.

At least eight local servicemen are in the crisis region taking part in Operation Desert Shield.

For the families of these local heroes, emotions and tensions run high. Virginia Townsend of Hermleigh said she cried all day the day she found out that her son Randy, serving in the Navy, was being sent to the region.

"I'm proud. I want him to stand up for our country and I want our country to do what is right," she said between tears.

Virginia and her husband Jim, pastor for Central Baptist Church in Hermleigh, traveled to California two weeks ago to bring back Randy's wife Michelle and their two children.

One of the hardest things Michelle had to face was packing up Randy's things for storage "like he died."

"I feel like I have a hole in my heart, like when you are hungry and your stomach feels hollow. My heart feels hollow," said Michelle.

"The second he drove away on the bus, it felt like someone had ripped the right side of my body away," she choked.

Randy, a 1987 graduate of Snyder High School, and Michelle were able to talk about what would happen if Randy came back wounded or even paralyzed, but when Randy tried to talk about death, Michelle stopped the conversation.

"If I had a date of when he was going to be back, it would be better. At least I would have something to look forward to," said Michelle.

She said she doesn't watch the news anymore.

"They aren't going to tell us what we want to know. All we want to know is when our husbands are going to be home.

Michelle reflects upon Christmas, their anniversary and their daughter Destiny's birthday. "It is so sad to think that he won't be home for any of that."

"They said that it could get easier after 6-10 weeks. I think they lied. It just gets worse."

Being with family is little consolation for Michelle. "I want Randy." She made the decision to come to Texas mostly for the children's sake. "It doesn't matter to me where I am, but I feel the children are better off here."

Two-year-old Destiny is still too young to understand where Daddy is and why he is gone away. She can be found talking to the picture of Randy in the living room and every night she prays for Daddy.

Destiny doesn't seem too concerned about Daddy because she says that Jesus is taking care of him.

"You try not to worry. You can't do anything... just hope they're okay," said Vera McSpadden. Her son, Brad, is in the Navy and in the gulf region.

For Linda Hinojos, the reality of the situation became too apparent last week when she heard sketchy news accounts of a fire aboard the U.S.S. Saratoga, Gabriel's ship. Two men had

Classes will dismiss for conference

Snyder schools will dismiss classes Tuesday for a three-day period while staff, faculty and administrators attend an Effective Schools Conference at Scurry County Coliseum.

The conference is scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Some portions of the workshop will be held at Snyder Junior High.

Dr. Larry Lezotte, known throughout the United States and Canada for his work with school reform, will be one of three key speakers at the conference. Also featured will be Dr. Bob Fortenberry, superintendent of the Jackson, Miss., school system, and Dr. Ruben Olivarez, deputy commissioner of accreditation with the Texas Education Agency.

The conference will open with registration at 7 a.m. Tuesday and will include a banquet from 6:30-8:30 that evening. Fortenberry will be the keynote speaker.

Full agenda slated for council tonight

Snyder City Council has a full agenda — including the second reading of the city's $5.5 million budget and approval of the tax rate — when it meets at 6:30 p.m. today.

Among the items of discussion Friday and to be included on Monday's agenda are the second reading of an ordinance which would increase water, sewer and sanitation rates by five percent. Also scheduled under old business are the second reading of the $5.5 million budget and the 1990-91 tax rate of .3871 cents per $100 valuation.

The city will also consider wrecker service standards and a review of procedures of the handling of DWI vehicles. Staff

Snyder will help host reception for Terrell

Snyder will join five other West Texas communities Tuesday in hosting a reception in honor of Charles Terrell, outgoing chairman of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

The TDCJ Board meets at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Senate Chambers, and as usual, representatives of the Snyder Economic Development Committee will be in attendance.

At 5 p.m. the reception will be held in the Lieutenant Governor's Reception Room behind the Senate Chambers. About 500 persons are expected to attend.

Terrell, chairman of the TDCJ board since November, 1987, spoke at the groundbreaking and ribbon cutting of the Price Daniel unit. Terrell announced his resignation last month and Gov. Bill Clements is expected to name a new chairman at Tuesday's meeting.

About 15 persons from Snyder are expected to attend the reception. Other host communities are Abilene, Amarillo, Childress, Lamesa and Pampa.

Executive session...

WTC board to meet today

Western Texas College board of trustees will meet in executive session prior to their September meeting this evening.

Board members will convene in a closed meeting at 5:45 p.m. to discuss the director's position at Scurry County Senior Center. Jerry Baird is the director.

Following executive session, the board will address several topics. Among them are the resignation of Mace D. McDaniel, lab assistant in Golf and Landscape Technology, who has taken a position in Midland; the appointment of a member to the WTC Scholarship Foundation Board to replace Mike Banta; and a policy revision concerning the director of the physical plant, Leon Pettitt.

Also on the agenda are pre-bid consideration for two computers and a printer for the office careers department, as well as pre-bid consideration of a 15-passenger van and a sedan.

Trustees will also hear President Dr. Harry Krenek give a report on enrollment and how census figures show a reduction in population in WTC's primary service area. Krenek has said that according to census data, the five counties supplying WTC with most of its students have witnessed a population reduction of about 3,500 over the past 10 years.

Also scheduled is a discussion of institutional goals. Administrators plan to give the board a list of future goals for the college.

History of West Texas, 'Reflections,' available

After years of collecting historical photos and hundreds of hours of compiling them into a book, Charles Anderson's third book, "Reflections: An Album of West Texas History, 1840-1990," is now available.

Anderson again teamed with Lu Bright, Abilene artist, in putting together a 496 page history of the Deep Creek and Colorado River area of West Texas. The work was published by Snyder Publishing Company, Inc.

Historical commission members, in addition to others, assisted in compiling materials for the book. Nineteen chapters trace the history of West Texas from buffalo and Indians days to the present. It is a large print book with large pictures, along with a 5,000-word index. (see BOOK, page 8)

Commissioners handle minor items in meeting

Scurry County commissioners court this morning met in an executive session with the manager of the Hermleigh Water Works, but no action was taken following that meeting.

Harold Mason, manager of the Hermleigh water system, had requested the meeting with the court. At a meeting last month, Mason had objected to a court plan to establish a water system advisory board.

In other action today, the court named Jackie Smith of Ira as election judge for voting precinct 9. He replaces Sandra Pennington who has moved out of the precinct.

The court also heard a request from Pat Cornett concerning the closing of a dedicated street in Hermleigh. Mrs. Cornett said the street is a cotton field and has never been used as a street or roadway.

Public notice of the closing request has been posted, and at a future meeting the court will be asked to consider a resolution to close the street.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin presided at the meeting. Commissioners present included C.D. Gray Jr., Tommy Pate and Duaine Davis. Absent was Ted Billingsley.

NEW BOOK — Several historical committee members gathered Friday morning to honor individuals and businesses who purchased copies 1-5 of Charles Anderson's new book, "Reflections, An Album of West Texas History, 1940-1990." Anderson, third from right, presents book No. 1 to Bill Parker, representing West Texas State Bank. Next to Parker is Hassie Sneed, president of the Scurry County Historical Commission, and Lu Bright of Abilene, artist for the book, followed by

Ask Us

Q—How much is the Effective Schools Conference going to cost? Are the taxpayers paying for this?

A—School officials say that some 80 out-of-district faculty and administrators have signed up at $250 each and if so, that should put the district in a position to break even on expenses. Regardless, say officials, the cost will be minor when it is considered that the entire staff, faculty and administration of SISD will be able to attend the conference and use that knowledge to better educate local students.

In Brief

Rig count up

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of working oil and gas rigs in the United States soared by 27 this week to 1,039 — an indication that the domestic oil patch finally is feeling the effects of the Middle East crisis, Baker Hughes Inc. reported today.

"This is the second highest this year," said Ike Kerridge, who keeps track of the count for Baker Hughes. "It's the highest since Jan. 2 when the count was 1,042."

Although the count traditionally increases this time of year, Kerridge said the jump was clearly larger than he expected.

"I think this is the beginning of the reflection of the higher (oil) prices," he said.

Kerridge has said he expected it to take several weeks for the rig count to increase in response to rising oil prices.

Partly owned by House Speaker...

Businesses owe thousands in taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — A published report says six companies partly owned by House Speaker Gib Lewis, who helped enact billions in new state taxes, owe government taxing agencies hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Austin American-Statesman reported Sunday that the half-dozen companies have not paid the state more than $24,000 and owe the Internal Revenue Service about $111,000.

The businesses owe a total of about $157,000 in back taxes, the report said.

The bills to the state were accumulated over the past eight years in which Lewis, a millionaire Fort Worth businessman, helped enact new taxes. Lewis, who told the newspaper he was only one of "dozens of investors" in each of the companies, said he wasn't to blame for the shortfalls.

Lewis, a Democrat who has been speaker since 1983, told the newspaper through an aide that his debts are not an issue. But he is running for re-election at a time when many lawmakers are urging yet another tax increase.

"There's nothing pleasant about the failure of a business due to the downturn in the Texas economy," said Lewis' press secretary Tim Conger, in a statement. "It is all too real when it happens to a venture in which you have an interest."

Earlier this year, the subject of Lewis' holdings and unpaid taxes surfaced when the Tarrant County Gun Club Inc., which operated the Shooters Palace gun store and firing range in Fort Worth, filed for bankruptcy.

Records list Lewis as the company's board chairman and a key stockholder.

The corporation, in its filings, reported owing more than $90,726 to government tax entities — including $24,720 in state sales taxes, to be collected from customers and is supposed to be sent on to state coffers.

Lewis' aides initially insisted that he and his partners would pay up. But Lewis later changed that.

"I don't think that I am personally responsible for the taxes of a company that I happen to be an investor in," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "For all those taxes, I don't think I am personally responsible."

Conger noted that Lewis is current on all his personal property taxes, as well as those of his primary business, Lewis Label Products Inc.

According to public filings at the Tarrant County Courthouse and in Austin, Lewis has other tax debts:

—Kiosk Buildings of America Inc., a Fort Worth firm, faces $29,727 in IRS tax liens. Lewis has been a stockholder since 1986, according to state financial disclosure reports.

—Brandywilde Development Inc., a Lewisville firm in which the speaker was a stockholder from 1985-88, owes the IRS $22,609 in unpaid employee taxes from 1986 through 1988.

—Tejas Equity-Reconstruction Inc., W.W. Shipman Inc. and LL&M Aviation Inc., three defunct firms in which Lewis was a stockholder, owe the state franchise taxes.

Mary Jane Wardlow, a spokeswoman for the state comptroller's office, said the specific amounts are confidential under state law.

However, Lewis' allies say the tax matters are inconsequential. Such tax debts are common in Texas' battered economy and it is unfair to hold a stockholder responsible for a company's shortfalls, they say.

But opponents say Lewis, as the No. 3 public official in Texas and a key player in tax legislation, has a higher obligation than ordinary citizens.

Conger said Gore was attempting to "politically exploit the misfortunes of failed Texas businesses" to his own ends, and was "twisting the truth."

Lewis' businesses are among 28,200 firms and individuals that owe more than $265 million in unpaid sales taxes, comptroller's records show.

Funeral business investors tough to find

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — When Rusty and Michael Carnes lost their jobs at a local funeral home, they thought they'd have more time to start their own business.

But like other small businessmen, the Carnes brothers soon learned investors in new firms are hard to find.

Franklin "Rusty" Carnes figures he contacted more than 60 potential investors, everyone from retired Amoco plant workers to fellow Elk Lodge members — anybody who might have the money or might know someone who did.

"Most people didn't want to hear anything about it, because if they do, they have a fear that something is going to happen to them," said Rusty Carnes, 29. "It's a stigma."

Eventually, they got the money to start the business, but not before going through some tough lessons.

One doctor backed out after his wife objected to investing in a funeral home while she had a terminally ill mother.

"I was afraid, you know, people would walk into at church, they'd run the other way," said Michael Carnes, 27. "It was sort of like the bum on the street asking for money, and you walk the other way because he's going to ask you for money."

State officials said the Carnes' experiences were not too different from those of other small businessmen.

"People have the misconception that banks are there to lend money for start-up businesses," Price Arrrendo, director of the small-business division of the Texas Department of Commerce, told the Houston Chronicle. "That is not the case."

"Banks need to see some type of history of performance, a couple of years of operations, that they have a good product and that they can have a good management team before they can assess the risks," said Robert T. St. Clair, senior economist with the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas.

The Carnes brothers both were graduated from the Commonwealth College of Funeral Service in Houston, operated an independent mortuary service for a few years and then joined Malloy & Sons Funeral Home. After five years there, they made an unsuccessful bid to buy the business and were later fired by the new majority owner.

The brothers scraped by on unemployment checks, their wives' salaries and handouts from relatives while they planned their own business. They had a piece of rental property for collateral and several thousand dollars in funeral equipment, but estimated they needed about $1 million to get started.

The Carnes brothers sought private investors, but were unsuccessful.

Finally, they got a $750,000 loan from the First National Bank of Missouri City, a small institution specializing in small business loans. The Small Business Administration guaranteed 85 percent of it.

The brothers found other investors to help with the $250,000 matching funds and retained majority control.

The Carnes Bros. Funeral Home opened in the old Allen's Food King on Aug. 13 — a year after the brothers were fired from Malloy & Sons. The brothers used $173,000 to refurbish the facility. Wainscoting, overstuffed armchairs and a bronze statue of Christ have created a funeral parlor in what was once the frozen foods section.

Cancer research pioneer will relocate lab in Texas

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Hwa Lee, a pioneer in cancer research, is leaving his faculty post at the University of California, San Diego, to head a new biotechnology institute in San Antonio for the University of Texas.

Lee, 40, will direct the new Institute of Biotechnology at UT-San Antonio. The center has $13 million in endowment and start-up money and a $15 million building donated by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot.

"That's a tremendous amount of responsibility, but I'm looking forward to it," he said.

Lee, a pathology professor, was the first to demonstrate that the retinoblastoma gene in the human body can suppress cancer. He hopes to further his research by performing clinical tests of gene therapies in humans.

The only other laboratories pursuing this area of research are at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Southern California, said Lee.

Though he hasn't yet resigned his UCSD position, Lee expects to move to San Antonio next summer with about 15 staffers from his 20-member research team. To minimize disruption to his research, Lee said he is negotiating with UCSD to move the research equipment with him.

The new biotechnology center was established as part of a statewide effort to diversify the Texas economy following the oil industry bust, said John P. Howe III, president of the University of Texas Health Center at San Antonio.

One main reason for the move is the 60,000-square-foot facility in San Antonio that will give Lee the opportunity to expand his research, said Robert Hollingsworth, a post-doctoral molecular biologist who joined Lee's staff in March and will go with him to Texas.

"We've always wanted to attract new talent, but we can't because we don't have the space (at UCSD's 2,500-square-foot facility)," Hollingsworth said.

"This is a very fast-paced and competitive field. There are a lot of other labs interested in doing the same kind of research, so it's important that we keep our work at top speed."

The team also will be getting in "on ground level" of San Antonio's effort to develop biological science research, Hollingsworth said.

Nobel Laureate Joseph Goldstein, a molecular biologist at the University of Texas-Southwestern in Dallas, recommended Lee to head the center. He was offered the job after an 18-month international search.

Lee, a native of Taiwan, was hired as an assistant professor by UCSD in 1984 after obtaining his doctorate in molecular biology from the University of California at Berkeley. He was granted tenure in 1987 and became a full professor this year.

Dear Abby

Remembering Mother's Life Best Honors Her After Death

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have never written to you before, but after reading the letter from "Sorrow in San Francisco," I cannot keep silent. "Sorrow" wrote: "I had the sobering experience of visiting the grave of a friend who died 10 years ago, at the age of 21. Her family was distraught at the funeral and buried her in a wedding gown because she never had a real wedding. Apparently time had dimmed their grief; her grave was neglected, without a single flower to brighten it. Please continue to remind readers to show their love to others while they live, but also remember them in death."

Abby, for many years, I felt compelled to visit my mother's grave, even though it left me overcome with grief to the point of becoming hysterical. With the help of a fine therapist, I was able to resolve the issue.

Now, I do not visit my mother's grave or place flowers there very often. Instead, I choose to remember her as she was the last time I saw her alive — or as she was during my childhood — instead of in that grave. To me, to remember her in her grave is to remember her gone, and she will never be gone from my heart.

Why put myself through the torment of visiting where she is not? Surely not for her! She would be the last person to want me to suffer such pain. Sign me ...

REMEMBER THEM ALIVE

DEAR REMEMBER: Thank you for putting into words what many feel. We don't all handle grief in the same way, so to those who find peace and comfort at the gravesite of a loved one, I say, "Go, and may God be with you, but don't sit in judgment of those who find gravesites too painful to bear."

I published this poem several years ago that says it all:

"Do not stand at my grave and weep,
"I am not there, I do not sleep.
"I am a thousand winds that blow;
"I am the diamond glints on snow.
"I am the sunlight on ripened grain;
"I am the gentle autumn's rain.
"When you awaken in the morning's hush,
"I am the swift uplifting rush
"Of quiet birds in circled flight.
"I am the soft star that shines at night.

"Do not stand at my grave and cry.
"I am not there; I did not die."
(Author Unknown)

DEAR ABBY: Apropos the letter about the secretary who was looking for "Europe" under "U" in the dictionary:

Back in the '50s, we had a young secretary right out of high school. One day the boss asked her to call Captain Smith at such and such a number in Washington, D.C. She dialed the number and asked to speak with Mister Captain Smith!

While discussing this later, one of my co-workers mentioned another young secretary who typed from dictation. "These figures were calculated with a sly drool." (Back in those days, we used slide rules.)

Another person recalled the time he received a telephone call from a person inquiring why the first person had sent him an envelope containing only three pieces of carbon paper. It seems that the first person had dictated a letter to the secretary and asked her to send three carbons to the second person.

Another time, the boss had to make a quick trip to Washington, D.C., so he asked his new secretary to get him an airplane ticket. When he examined the ticket he found that the destination was Seattle. Upon questioning the secretary, he was told, "You told me to get a ticket to Washington, but you didn't say where in the state, so I picked a city for you!"

Believe it or not, Abby, these are all true stories.

RAYMOND F. ELSNER, LITTLETON, COLO.

DEAR RAYMOND: I believe you. Nobody could make up anything that good.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Prisoner is recaptured after escape

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A prisoner who ate limpets and lizards during a two-week odyssey of escape from Mexico's version of Alcatraz has been recaptured on charges of trying to sell stolen religious objects, newspapers reported Sunday.

"My suffering was so great during those days (of escape) that the authorities should pardon my earlier crimes, for which I was sent to the islands," Carlos Miralrio Mujica was quoted as telling the daily Excelsior.

Miralrio, serving 26 years for murder and attempted auto theft, fled on July 27, 1989, from the top security prison at Isla Maria Madre, 70 miles west of central Mexico's Pacific coast, the daily La Jornada reported.

Miralrio told reporters he packed plastic bags with salt, matches, a machete, sweets, a jug of water and other supplies, then swam for roughly seven hours through shark-infested waters to Isla Maria Magdalena, six miles (10 kilometers) southeast.

There, he gathered rain water and ate iguanas, limpets, insects and cactus, as well as building a raft of maguery cactus spears, the newspapers said. After a few days, he sailed nine miles (15 kilometers) southeast to another island, Isla Madre Cleofas.

He reportedly gathered supplies from an abandoned encampment, built a larger raft and then sailed some 60 miles (100 kilometers) east to the mainland port of San Blas.

Family, children's home do battle over custody

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A family's plea for help from a church after a disabling accident resulted in loss of custody rights for three children and triggered a lengthy legal battle, lawyers said.

A battle with a Pentecostal church and a Mississippi children's shelter has kept James and Leslie Cryer away from their two sons and daughter. But church officials claim the parents are unfit.

"We looked for help from our church and about all we got in return is a lot of sharp blades stabbed in our back," Cryer told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

He said the Tupelo Children's Mansion coerced him into signing his children away and that the Eulesch church has violated Texas law governing the placement of youngsters across state lines.

But Mansion administrators contend that jail time served by Mrs. Cryer, stemming from a domestic dispute, has made the Eulesch couple unfit parents.

The shelter's administrators say a pact Cryer signed allows them to keep the children for up to two years unless the "administration feels it is in the best interest of the child or children."

A court order in Mississippi grants temporary custody of the children, the administrators claim. The couple countered with a restraining order from a Texas district court prohibiting the children from being moved from the Mansion until a judge decides on the youngsters' custody.

A Tarrant County district court is scheduled to begin custody proceedings today.

The family's woes began the day after Christmas when Cryer, 60, fell through glass doors at a San Antonio hotel and fractured his skull. With Cryer unable to work and the family's only source of income cut off, the couple turned to their church for financial aid.

At the First United Pentecostal Church of Eulesch, its pastor suggested the Cryers place their children in the Pentecostal foster-care home in Tupelo, Miss., until they could get back on their feet.

The church said the Tupelo Children's Mansion would provide food, clothing, shelter and schooling in a church-camp atmosphere for Clinton, 7, and twins Christina and Christopher, 5.

"It was suggested that the Children's Mansion could care for my children until I was in a financial position to do so," said Cryer.

Texan evacuated from Kuwait describes harrowing escape

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas petroleum engineer who worked in Kuwait says he hid from invading Iraqi troops for a week in a ceiling air-conditioning duct before embarking on a escape disguised as an Arab. "I was lucky enough and smart enough to get away," said Jimmy Hawkins, who was among the more than 300 weary U.S. evacuees who returned to the United States Sunday. "Americans can't go out. No way. If you don't have Arab friends, you're stuck," Hawkins said.

Hawkins returned to the United States on a chartered 747 jet that left Amman, Jordan, early Sunday and arrived at Charleston International Airport Sunday evening. He then flew on to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

After Iraqi troops occupied his Kuwait city apartment building, Hawkins said he hid in the ceiling duct for a week and was brought food and water by a Jordanian friend in the Kuwaiti resistance.

The two realized they would eventually be caught by the Iraqi soldiers, Hawkins said, and tried to escape Sept. 4 in a car owned by Hawkins. They were arrested in Basra, Iraq, and spent two days in jail before bribing a police officer for their release, he said.

"I was dressed as an Arab, playing deaf and dumb," Hawkins said.

"We went and caught a ride with an Iraqi Army lieutenant and sergeant to Baghdad," Hawkins said in Dallas. "They took us on, never had an idea I was an American. I was in the back seat the whole way."

After a night in a Baghdad hotel, Hawkins said he disguised himself as Arab with fake Lebanese papers and drove by taxi to the Jordanian border. After being turned back, Hawkins said he crossed into Jordan on foot across the desert.

"I ran through the desert about 10 kilometers," Hawkins said, before coming across Jordanian desert police in the neutral zone.

"They protected me, held me overnight until they were sure who I was," Hawkins said. The following day, he was driven to Amman, where he contacted U.S. Embassy officials.

Suspended chief's probe 'humbling'

DALLAS (AP) — Accustomed to working 10 to 18 hours daily in the fight against crime, suspended Police Chief Mack Vines says that he's uncomfortable sitting on the other side of the legal fence.

A Dallas County grand jury today was expected to begin hearing evidence against Vines, named in multiple felony perjury charges. The Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story Sunday he feels prepared.

"I'm comfortable with our preparation," Vines told the newspaper. "But I am a bit nervous."

The 52-year-old chief said the pending deliberations have made him appreciate family life more.

"This has been the most humbling experience I've ever had in my life," Vines said. "My name is very important to me, and my image is very important to me."

Places in the News

JORDAN

In the present Middle Eastern crisis brought about by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, no country is caught more in the middle than Iraq's immediate neighbor to the west, Jordan.

In the early part of this century, Jordan was the eastern portion of Britain's Palestine Mandate. In 1921 the British split off the eastern two-thirds into the autonomous state of Transjordan and installed Abdullah, son of the ruler of Arabia, as emir. This began the royal line that has continued down to King Hussein today. In 1946 Transjordan became an independent state.

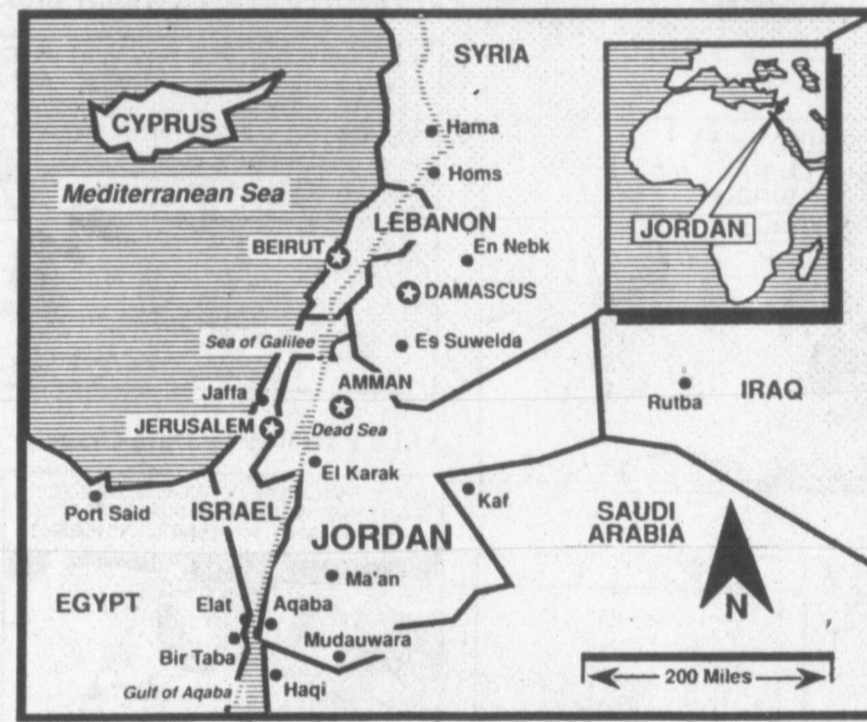

During the 1948 Arab-Israeli war, the West Bank of the Jordan River and the city of Jerusalem were annexed by the newly renamed Kingdom of Jordan. They in turn were lost back to Israel in the 1967 war.

For years Jordan has been the Arab state with the closest ties to the United States. The United States has given Jordan billions in aid and loans, and in this confrontation with Saddam Hussein has expected that Jordan and King Hussein would join other Arab states in condemning the invasion and participating in the embargo and boycott.

However, Jordan is also one of Iraq's main links to the outside world. Almost a third of all goods reaching Iraq pass through the southern Jordanian port of Aqaba. The commerce in goods passing through Jordan bound for Iraq is so great that it represents about 20 percent of Jordan's economy. To cut that link would cost Jordan $1 billion a year, and would risk raising Saddam Hussein's ire.

In addition, a third of Jordan's population is composed of some 900,000 Palestinians who have never really supported King Hussein. They now view Saddam Hussein as a hero and liberator. There is a very real fear that Jordan could explode in a popular revolt and that Saddam Hussein would move in to restore "peace" as he has in Kuwait.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 2-year-old grandson has been diagnosed with a hemangioma on his right lower lip. He's had two serious traumas with it so far. What is the success rate in removal and the prognosis of same?

DEAR READER: Basically, hemangiomas are birthmarks; reddish areas in the skin that are due to a congenital overgrowth of blood vessels. About one-third of newborn infants exhibit hemangiomas; most disappear during early childhood, but some remain to cause cosmetic problems. Hemangiomas may bleed readily if injured, as did your grandson's. However, they are entirely harmless.

Depending on their size and location, these red areas can be removed by laser surgery or by excision. If your grandson has a single lesion on his lower lip, a plastic surgeon should be able to treat it with lasers, leaving no cosmetic consequences. Because the prognosis of hemangiomas varies with their extent and depth, you should request from the surgeon (before the operation) what he or she proposes to do and what, if any, complications might result from the procedure.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have had trouble with digestion since a sigmoidectomy in 1987. Five medical doctors and four hospitals have been of no benefit. Recently, a neuropath suggested glutamic acid and enzymatic digestant from a local health-food store, and my problems seem to have cleared up. Are there any down-the-road side effects from these medications?

DEAR READER: Sigmoidectomy means removal of the sigmoid colon, the part of the large intestine just above the rectum. The operation does not affect digestion, which takes place in the stomach and small intestine, well before food reaches the large bowel. Therefore, I cannot comment on your symptom, because it is very unusual.

Some patients experience marked softening of their bowel movements after surgery on the large intestine. Ordinarily, this can be successfully treated with stool-bulking agents, such as Metamucil.

The fact that your symptoms improved from enzymatic digestants suggests a cause higher in the intestinal tract. Pancreatic digestive enzymes, such as Pancrease, often help patients with incomplete digestion stemming from a variety of conditions, such as malfunction of the pancreas. Such an affliction could explain why your poor "digestion" responded to this therapy, although your symptom was probably not related to your colon surgery.

Digestive enzymes — and the harmless compound glutamic acid — are safe to take for extended periods. If your "digestive" problems have been relieved with these substances, you may continue them — under a doctor's supervision — indefinitely. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Digestive Gas." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Ready and still waiting

By James Jacoby

Today's deal is a test for your imagination. Suppose you are East, defending against four spades. Cover the West and South hands, and prepare your defense as partner leads the 10 of hearts.

Declarer rises with dummy's heart ace and plays a spade back to his king. Partner plays low. Declarer continues with the jack of spades, and now your partner wins the ace. What did you discard? If you took the view that you hold values in both minors and really do not care what partner leads, you might have let go what seemed to be a worthless heart. Disaster!

The deal occurred 20 years ago, when Omar Sharif and the famous Italian Blue Team were touring North America playing exhibition matches. World champion Belladonna had led the 10 of hearts, and Omar was his hapless partner who failed to take into account that the lead of the 10 might be a deceptive stroke of brilliance and that West might also hold the king. Of course it's easy to look at all four hands and see that East should signal on the second trump with the 10 of clubs. West will cash the heart king and underlead the club ace to get the setting trick with a heart ruff.

The lesson of the deal, of course, is that one should always stay alert on defense. Be ready to congratulate partner when he deceives the opponents, but don't let him deceive you.

And how are we privy to this anecdote? Naturally Omar tells this story on himself, with some emphasis on Giorgio Belladonna's mood when Omar threw away the card that Giorgio had hoped to ruff.

2nd Blowout winners named

Sharrock, Medlicott tie Midland team for championship

Dave Sharrock and John Medlicott of Snyder and Wayne Younger and Greg Frazier of Midland tied for top honors in Championship Flight play in the Snyder Country Club Men's Golf Association Second Annual Blowout held on the club course.

Sharrock and Medlicott fired identical rounds of 64 for a 128 total.

The Younger-Frazier team shot a 65 Saturday and improved to 63 in Sunday's round for their 128.

Darkness prevented a playoff so the two teams split first prize.

A tie highlighted play in President's Flight, as well, as the Snyder duo of R.J. Kidd and Randy Hogan tied Carl Guelker and Jerry Wilbourn of Sweetwater.

Kidd and Hogan were winners after a playoff hole.

The Snyder pair carded rounds of 67 and 66 for a 133 tally while Guelker-Wilbourn notched a 68-65-133.

Tracy Long of Snyder and McCamey's Greg Watson combined to win first place in First Flight with their 69-68-137 followed by a 71-68-139 from Travis Price and Bart Talkington of Lubbock.

Idalou's Bush Jordan and Mark West of Ft. Worth were winners in Second Flight.

Their 73-69-142 was three strokes better than the 77-68-145 fired by the Sweetwater team of Ronnie Cox and Cuppy Graham.

Third Flight winners were Bill Seale and Kris Seale of Snyder. They registered rounds of 78 and 72 for a 150 total.

Second place in the flight went to Pat Gilstrap of Snyder and Dean Berry of Abilene for their 79-72-151 effort.

Snyder Country Club will host the annual Men's Club Championship Tournament Sept. 22 and 23.

The following is a listing of winners in places one through four in each flight of the Second Annual Snyder Country Club Men's Golf Association Blowout held Saturday and Sunday:

WINNERS — Dave Sharrock, left, and John Medlicott tied for first place in the weekend Snyder Country Club Men's Golf Association Second Annual Blowout held on the club course. # Sampras serves up U.S. Open victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Sampras and his big serve. See him make the top seeds disappear right before your eyes.

Sampras, who dazzled them in Philadelphia and thrilled them in England, brought his act to New York. It was a smash hit.

The 19-year-old Californian's two-week run at the National Tennis Center, just a few short miles east of Broadway, ended Sunday with Sampras taking home $350,000 and, more importantly, the U.S. Open men's singles title.

"Today was the best that I could possibly play," Sampras said after crushing Andre Agassi 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 in the final.

Agassi agreed with that assessment.

"Anything he touched turned to gold out there," said Agassi, the No. 4 seed in the 128-player men's singles field. "He moved well, hit well, came in well. He served big."

The latter was an understatement.

The 6-foot, 160-pound Sampras blasted 13 aces and 12 other service winners. For the tournament, he hit 100 aces and became the youngest U.S. men's champion. Oliver S. Campbell won the title 100 years ago at 19 years, 6 months, 9 days. Sampras is 19 years, 28 days old.

"I think that I deserve it," Sampras said. "I worked really hard to do well here."

It took Sampras only 1 hour, 42 minutes to rush past Agassi and capture his first Grand Slam title. Agassi now is 0-2 in Grand Slam finals, having lost to Ecuador's Andres Gomez at the French Open in June.

And it was Sampras' big serve that, if it didn't do Agassi in, set up everything the right-hander from Rancho Palos Vedres, Calif., did.

"When you hit a serve 120 mph on the line, there's not a lot (anyone) can do," said Agassi.

"It didn't look as though he was hitting his groundies as clean or as deep as he wanted to, and I took complete advantage of that," Sampras said. "I thought he would go for more shots and more winners, and he just seemed tentative out there. He wasn't being the aggressor."

"He was letting me dictate the play, and I think that was the difference."

Snyder spike team takes 3rd in event

ABILENE — Snyder's Lady Tigers captured third place in the Key City Volleyball Tournament held here Friday and Saturday.

In pool play Friday, Snyder split their first two games with Graham, 10-15, 15-8, before sweeping Abilene Cooper, 15-8, 15-8, and Abilene High's JV, 15-5, 16-14.

The Lady Tigers finished in first place in their pool and advanced to the playoff round dumping Aspermont, 12-15, 15-4, 15-9 before losing in the semifinals to Abilene High, 11-15, 15-10, 8-15.

The Lady Eagles of AHS coasted past Lubbock High, 15-4, 15-5 in the championship match.

Snyder's Katina Brandon was chosen all-tourney for her efforts in the event.

"I was really proud of the girls," said coach Patty Grimmett.

"They played great. They really improved during the tournament."

"The game we beat Abilene was the only one they lost through the whole tournament," she said.

"Several players and coaches from other teams commented on our girls' play and sportsmanship."

The Lady Tigers are on the road Tuesday as the freshmen, JV and varsity spike squads travel to Colorado City for a 5 p.m. match against the Lady Wolves.

JV volleyball crew finishes in second

Snyder junior varsity volleyballers snatched a second-place finish in their own tournament Saturday at SHS.

The Lady Tigers began with a 15-6, 10-15, 15-12 win over Colorado City to advance in the winner's bracket of the event.

The JV spikers defeated Big Spring, 15-10, 15-12 to move into the finals against Pecos.

The Lady Eagles lost the first game but came roaring back to beat Snyder in the last two, 3-15, 1-15.

"The girls played excellent volleyball the first two matches," said coach Laura Holt. "That was the best they'd played all year."

"They clawed and took the first game against Pecos but that seemed to take all their energy and we just let it get us down. We got behind 14-0 before we even scored in the second game."

Angela Good paced the Lady Tigers in the tournament scoring 19 points. Melody Sargent added 17 for Snyder followed by Julie Johnson's 16, 12 from Stephanie Molina and nine by Debbie Schwarz.

Holt went on, "The tournament was a great success. We had a lot of three-game matches, so there was some good competition."

"We want to be sure and thank everyone who worked the tournament, the JV and the freshmen."

The Snyder freshman Team 1 won their tournament, played at Snyder Junior High while the SHS Team 2 grabbed third. Scores were not available at press time.

Snyder's girls, freshmen, JV and varsity, will be back on the court Tuesday as they face Colorado City in the Lady Wolves home gym at 5 p.m.

Falcons whip Oilers, 47-27

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons are exactly as promised.

They outthudded, outhit, outchased and outexceeded coach Jerry Glanville's old team, the Houston Oilers, 47-27 Sunday.

"We're blitzing 7 guys, they've got 6 to block them, but we've got great cornerbacks," said linebacker Tim Green, who led a Falcons defense that turned two early fumbles into touchdowns.

One was scored by Bobby Butler, who recovered an often-bobbled ball in the end zone, the other by Jesse Tuggle, who hauled the ball 65 yards, stopping halfway, before scoring.

"We're coached to pick it up and go with it. We're coached to go for the football whether there's whistles or no whistles. We're going to outthistle everyone. That's the way we're coached," Green said.

The first fumble came when Aundray Bruce hit Warren Moon as he was getting ready to pass. The second came after Tuggle pried the ball loose from Moon.

"A lot of guys thought the ball was dead," Green said. "We're coached that if it's possible the ball's in play, we're going."

"I thought it was fumble all the way, I thought they might have ruled it down, that's why I stopped," said Tuggle, who was one who got a hand on the first fumble before Butler finally captured it.

"The play was behind Warren. The ball was behind his back, so I just picked it up. I picked it up and kept going."

"We've got some happy players in this locker room," Johnson said.

Aikman threw a 28-yard touchdown pass to Dennis McKinnon, who outjumped defenders Gil Byrd and Vencie Glenn for a 7-0 lead.

San Diego came right back to tie it 7-7 on a 62-yard drive climaxed by Mark Vlastic's 14-yard scoring pass to Craig McEwen.

Cowboys nip Chargers

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Keeping Bill Bates on the final 47-man roster as special teams captain is perhaps the smartest decision Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson has made this season.

Bates, whose roster spot was in jeopardy during the exhibition season, made the play that spoiled San Diego's daring fake punt on Sunday, helping the Cowboys to a 17-14 victory. It snapped a 14-game home losing streak, the longest in team history.

"When you see a freight train, you just close your eyes and hit 'em," Bates said of his game-turning tackle.

The "freight train" Bates saw was linebacker Gary Plummer taking the short snap on fourth and six at the Dallas 49.

"Fortunately, this 200-pound body was enough to stop that 260-pound freight train," Bates said.

Plummer was halted after a two-yard gain, then Troy Aikman made the Chargers coach Dan Henning pay dearly for the brash call.

Aikman, looking for his first victory after 11 losses, sneaked in from a yard out with 1:58 to play.

Henning was stunned by the loss, but didn't duck the issue.

"It was a dumb ... mistake," he said. "I was hoping somebody would bail me out on, it but it wasn't blocked correctly. I should have called it off."

"It's a disappointing loss, the kind I'll carry around a long time."

The smallest home crowd in 26 years, 48,063, watched Dallas get its first home victory since Sept. 25, 1988, against Atlanta, when Tom Landry was coach.

Aikman directed a 53-yard scoring drive after San Diego tried the fake punt on fourth and six with 5:15 to play.

Plummer was stopped by Bates and Daniel Stubbs.

"I knew something was up," said Bates, captain of the special teams. "We expected them to try something. The tackle didn't try to block me like he does normally."

Plummer took the blame. "We tried to call the play to the other side and nine guys heard it but one guy didn't," Plummer said. "It's my fault. I'm paid to make the plays. I should have run over somebody or done something. It's my responsibility."

SWC roundup... Horns dump Lions

The Texas Longhorns may have handed coach David McWilliams the biggest victory of his career.

Although Texas defeated Oklahoma and Arkansas last year, it wasn't as sweet as Texas' 17-13 upset of Penn State on Saturday.

Williams, who has caught considerable heat from the alumni over back-to-back losing seasons, said, "It was a big, big victory. It helped answer some of my critics."

In other games on Saturday: —Texas Christian rallied with two fourth quarter touchdown passes by Leon Clay to nip Missouri 20-19.

—Texas Tech was the victim of a 50-yard punt return for a touchdown in a 17-10 loss to Ohio State.

—Mike Romo threw a school record six touchdowns passes in Southern Methodist's 44-7 rout of Vanderbilt.

—Baylor lost to Arizona State 34-13, Houston downed Nevada-Las Vegas 37-9, and Rice fell to Tulane 21-10.

In games this week, Houston and Texas Tech get SWC play underway in a Thursday night nationally televised (ESPN) matchup in Lubbock; SMU is at Tulane in a noon regionally televised (Raycom) meeting with the Tulane Green Wave; Texas A&M gets back to play after a week's rest in a 6 p.m. meeting with Southwestern Louisiana; and Arkansas opens the season by hosting Tulsa at 4 p.m. in Fayetteville.

Defensive end Oscar Giles said the Longhorns dedicated the Penn State game to McWilliams

Police watching committee formed in wake of shooting

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — Residents of this West Texas city say they will travel to Washington in November to urge a federal grand jury investigation into the fatal police shooting of a Hispanic man.

"We fight in the courts. We fight in the streets peacefully and we fight politically," said Reuben Sandoval, a lawyer representing the group suing Colorado City, municipal officials and former officer Billy Ray Williamson.

Sammy Gomez, a sexual assault suspect, was shot three times, once in the back of the head, by Williamson, a part-time officer who is now the city fire marshal. A group was formed after Gomez' May 1988 death to monitor police for possible civil rights violations.

The Big Spring Herald reported Sunday that committee members will go to Washington Nov. 19 to push for the federal investigation, and a rally is planned for Dec. 1.

A civil lawsuit, filed in May, alleges that a cover-up followed the shooting death and that a history of attacks shows that officers here are ill-trained.

Sandoval said an amended complaint Wednesday will list four other beating attacks on Hispanics by police officers in the early 1980s. He said the attacks were documented by former county attorney Patrick Barber.

"This case is about the Wild West mentality that is entrenched in West Texas," said Sandoval. "Whether you believe it or not, this case is no longer (centered on) Sammy Gomez."

Williamson said Gomez went after him with a knife, and Mitchell County grand juries in May 1988 and November 1989 refused to indict him.

But five Hispanics on the November grand jury protested the presentation of evidence, saying it was biased. Officials with the League of United Latin American Citizens, the nation's largest Hispanic civil rights group, say Gomez was executed and a knife then planted on him.

Jose Garcia de Lara, LULAC president, has said he believes Williamson killed Gomez to end a vendetta against the 27-year-old man, and then planted a knife as part of a police cover-up.

Police say Gomez, who had a history of arrests, lunged at the officer as he tried to serve a warrant.

Diplomatic relations will be established between Iran, Iraq

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — In a major step toward ending its decade-long conflict with Saddam Hussein, Iran has agreed to establish diplomatic relations with Iraq, the official Iranian news agency said today.

The Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said the agreement was reached in a meeting between Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and his Iraqi counterpart, Tariq Aziz, who ended a 24-hour visit to Iran today.

Diplomats described Aziz' visit as an attempt by Baghdad to get help beating international trade sanctions imposed on Iraq after it invaded Kuwait Aug. 2. There were unconfirmed reports that shipments of rice and flour already were being sent to Iraq via Iran. Such shipments would end the economic isolation Iraq has suffered under the U.N.-ordered trade embargo.

Iran's leaders have said they will honor the embargo, although they object to the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia.

Also today, the Syrian government said it was sending more troops to Saudi Arabia at the request of the desert kingdom.

Diplomatic sources estimate that Syria has already sent 4-5,000 elite combat troops to the kingdom, and they expected this figure to almost double in the near future.

Autopsies show the victim was shot in the side of the chest, in the back below the shoulder blade and in the back of his head.

"I'm not asking for violence or nothing. But I think it's time we be a little more forceful," said Sandoval.

"If we don't pressure them it'll be under review forever" and no punitive action will be taken, he said.

Police make three arrests; investigate exposing report

The United States has led the military and diplomatic effort to force Iraq to return Kuwait to its former rulers.

Snyder police made three arrests and investigated a report of a man exposing himself during the weekend.

Officers were called to Snyder Junior High at 5:53 p.m. Saturday where a woman reported that a man in a light blue station wagon had exposed himself. Officers were unable to locate the subject.

At 12:27 a.m. Sunday, a 22-year-old male was arrested for driving while license suspended. A 58-year-old male was taken into custody at 1:24 a.m. in the 2200 block of Ave. Z for driving while intoxicated.

The final arrest came later that day at 8:43 p.m. in the 500 block of 27th St. Police took into custody a 35-year-old female for DWI, driving while license suspended and no liability insurance.

In other weekend activity, at 9:56 a.m. Saturday, police investigated an attempted burglary reported by Evelyn Ware at 806 33rd St.

At 3:06 p.m., Bonnie McDorman said, that the key cover emblem on her 1988 Dodge had been stolen.

An employee from McDonald's called at 9:39 p.m. to report an intoxicated subject blocking the drive-thru. When officers arrived, the subject had left.

A man came to the police department at 10:28 p.m. and said that there were two intoxicated subjects at Sonic. Police made contact with the subjects.

A prowler report was investigated at 11:08 p.m. in the 1100 block of 30th St. A search of the area failed to locate a subject.

A second prowler report was taken at 2:28 a.m. Sunday in the 400 block of 28th St. No prowler was located.

At 3:15 p.m. Wally Holmesly of 2310 Sunset said that someone had slashed the tires and smashed the windshield of his work truck.

Robert Joplin of 3106 Ave. B reported at 4:49 p.m. Sunday that damage had been done to his 1985 Nissan. A criminal mischief report was filed.

Police investigated a report at 2:54 a.m. today of someone entering a room at Snyder Nursing Center. No subject was located.

Bush: summit sends 'loud, clear' message

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, back from his brief summit with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, hailed their "loud and clear" condemnation of Iraq's Saddam Hussein and prepared to address the American people for the first time since sending troops to the Middle East.

Bush brushed aside lingering differences with the Soviet leader, including Gorbachev's reluctance to go along with the U.S. threat of force if sanctions fail to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Gorbachev also set aside U.S. concerns about the presence in Iraq of Soviet military advisers.

"Nobody said that the United States and the Soviet Union agreed with every nuance or every question," Bush said. "But on this one it is loud and clear, and if you missed that, you are missing something really important."

Bush spoke to reporters aboard Air Force One as he made the eight-hour flight back to Washington Sunday night from Helsinki, Finland, and his third meeting as president with the Soviet leader.

The president's next step is an address Tuesday night to a televised joint session of Congress to discuss his Persian Gulf policy and the summit. Bush has dispatched more than 100,000 U.S. forces to Saudi Arabia in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2. At NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium today, Secretary of State James A. Baker III, asked the allies to send ground troops to the Persian Gulf area to add pressure on Iraq, but the alliance made no decision, NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner said.

"He made this request for additional ground forces," Woerner said. A British official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said his government would "give active consideration" to the U.S. request. Other allies seemed more reluctant to make a commitment.

Also in Brussels today, Baker announced he will visit Syria on Thursday to meet with President Hafez Assad to discuss the U.S. drive against Iraq. Baker also told reporters that Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and the government of Kuwait would contribute a combined $12 billion to help defray the cost of the U.S. buildup in the gulf and to assist poorer nations hurt by the UN boycott of Iraq.

In Britain, meanwhile, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher hailed the outcome of the Helsinki summit, saying Saddam must "now feel very isolated indeed." Also, Kuwait's displaced prime minister, Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, said in Paris, "The whole world's happy" that the superpowers are united in condemning Iraq's occupation of Kuwait.

Gorbachev returned to Moscow after the summit, which included six hours of talks between the two leaders at the Finnish Presidential Palace followed by a joint hour-long press conference.

Book

"Reflections" traces the history of West Texas from the 1840s when General R.B. Marcy came through and mapped the area along Deep Creek and the Colorado River. A few years later, in 1856, Gen. Robert E. Lee, then a lieutenant, came through rounding up renegade Indians. The book traces the life of Peter Snyder, J. Wright Moorar, the Nunns and numerous others.

In addition, the book contains research into the life of Gen. William Read Scurry, the county's namesake.

Other chapters in the book highlight ranching and farming, military, oil and special celebrations such as parades and rodeos. One of the longest chapters highlights early schools of West Texas from the late 1800s to the present.

Scurry County Historical Commission will be selling "Reflections" through Christmas at special times at the Brud Boren Insurance Building. "Reflections" is a limited numbered edition and can be purchased in regular cover hardback or in a special leather covered edition.

"Reflections" is Anderson's third book. The others, "In Search of the Buffalo: The Story of J. Wright Moorar," and "Deep Creek Merchant: The Story of William Henry 'Pete' Snyder," are considered collector's items by many.

His other published writings include articles for Good Old Days Magazine, The American Bard, Texas Outlook, American Survival Guide Magazine and Texas Scenes.

The first five copies of "Reflections" sold for $1,498.50 to benefit the Dermott School renovation. Scurry County Historical Commission is selling the book as its 1990 fund-raising project. Sales continue today and Thursday evening as well as Saturday morning of this week.

been injured. Linda eventually learned from news reports that Gabriel wasn't injured, however it made the crisis all too real.

Other local servicemen in the region include Scott Smith, Air Force; Jimmy Fuentez, Marines; Kyle Burleson, Marines; Troy Mosley, Marines; and Casey Hale, Army.

Dozens of other area service people and reservists are on stand-by alert and could be called to duty in the Persian Gulf any day.

News reports out of Saudi Arabia have emphasized the importance of mail to soldiers whose days grow long and boring in the Gulf region.

Here is a partial list of addresses for local servicemen:

CPL Sterling Kyle Burleson, 458-57-3594, E Company 27 Third Paltoon, SPO New York 09503-5513.

Gabriel Hinojos, USS Saratoga CV-60, VF-74 IWT, FPO Miami, Fla. 34078-2740.

Desert Shield mail

Individuals or organizations interested in sending "any servicemember" mail to United States military personnel deployed to Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield should use one of two addresses:

For the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps in Saudi Arabia, the address is:

Any Servicemember
Operation Desert Shield
APO New York 09848-0006

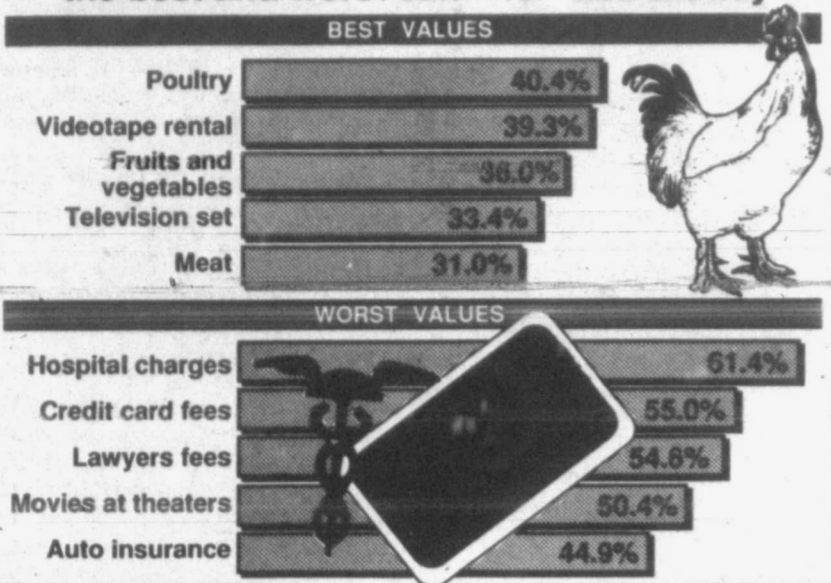

For the Navy and Marine Corps onboard ships in the Saudi region, the address is:

Any Servicemember
Operation Desert Shield
FPO New York 09866-0006

Due to the current deployed situation, "any servicemember" and personal mail is limited to first class mail of less than 12 ounces, including audio tapes. Currently, first class mail is taking about 10 days to reach Saudi Arabia.

Several upsets are possible in voting slated for Tuesday

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Former state official Mike Hatch, attacking Gov. Rudy Perpich for abandoning projects "when the glitz is gone," is one of several candidates bidding for upsets in 11 primary elections on Tuesday.

Hatch disputed a recent poll that found Perpich had jumped to a 17-point lead in his Democratic primary bid for a fourth term. The former commerce commissioner said several other surveys showed the governor with only a slight lead.

Rep. Roy Dyson, D-Md., was the other office holder on the endangered list in the upcoming primaries. Under challenge by state legislator Barbara Kreamer, Dyson has been hurt by the disclosure that despite his hawkish stance in Congress, he was a conscientious objector during the Vietnam war.

A poll published Sunday in the Baltimore Sun found 47 percent of the district's Democratic voters said they would back Dyson, compared with 25 percent supporting Kreamer. However, the survey also said Dyson was trailing all eight candidates for the Republican nomination to oppose him in November.

Among the other top contests on Tuesday were these:

—Former Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham was bidding for the GOP nomination to regain the office he lost in 1988 after an impeachment trial on charges of misusing funds from contributors and interfering in a police investigation of an alleged death threat by an aide. The front-runner in polls was developer Fife Symington, but more than 40 percent of people surveyed said they were undecided.

—Former Sen. John Durkin of New Hampshire was in a race against Nashua Mayor James Donchess and businessman John Rauh for the Democratic Senate nomination for the seat being relinquished by Republican Gov.

Expert calls for stringent tests to detect drug usage

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas horse racing officials need to develop more stringent tests to detect animal druggings, a race expert said.

Robert Gowen, an animal specialist who administers a drug testing and quality assurance program for the Association of Racing Commissioners International, told the Texas Racing Commission it must spend more than the $27 million it used last year to do drug testing of race animals.

"There are drugs out there right now which are being used so that we don't have a test for. These are areas we really need to work on and one of the reasons we need a lot more money," Gowen said.

Testing laboratories used by various racing states had an overall detection rate of 54.8 percent in blind tests, in which they unknowingly received drug-tainted urine and blood samples.

But the ARCI is trying to improve that rate.

"The whole industry decided that this problem was too big. The whole industry got together so that the integrity of racing could be protected. We can't have a national marketing for racing until we have a national program to make sure the integrity of racing is in place," Gowen told the Houston Chronicle.

City council members John Ray and Charlene Drew Jarvis and lawyer Sharon Pratt Dixon were leading. The other states holding primaries on Tuesday were Connecticut, New York, Utah, Vermont and Wisconsin.

In Minnesota, Hatch resigned as Perpich's commerce commissioner to launch his Democratic-Farmer-Labor gubernatorial campaign. His new television commercial faults the governor for stepping back from economic development projects he once promoted.

"When the glitz is gone, so is Rudy Perpich," a narrator says. "Can we afford four more years? We need guts, not glitz."

Hatch said he decided to run the ad after Perpich began airing commercials in which he takes credit for creating 350,000 jobs in Minnesota since 1983.

"As long as he's personally claiming that, then it's my obligation to say, 'Look, that's baloney,'" Hatch said.

Last year, laboratories conducted drug tests on 776,711 horse samples and found 1,956 positive results. They performed tests on 218,393 greyhound samples and found 677 positive results, Gowen said.

"Obviously, from the number of positives, there are many, many drugs being found by the chemists," he said. "The question is are we finding them all? Are our laboratories finding the important ones?"

"And when new drugs become available to the horsemen, are our laboratories learning methods and adding new technologies to find those drugs?" Gowen said.

ARCI racing officials from Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma met in San Antonio with Texas racing officials Saturday at a gathering sponsored for the first time by the Texas Racing Commission.

The ARCI is comprised of state racing officials from around the nation. The organization began in 1988 to develop a program of blind tests to check on and grade testing labs.

The ARCI added drugged blood and urine samples in routine samples sent to various labs. The labs didn't know they had received some drugged samples. Test results ranged from a low of 27 percent being detected to a high of 83 percent.

Immigrants return to Ellis

NEW YORK (AP) — The sounds of people on the move echoed through the cavernous halls of Ellis Island again as the gateway through which 12 million immigrants passed into the land of opportunity reopened as a museum.

Six years and $156 million after work began on the biggest restoration project in U.S. history, the 90-year-old brick building was dedicated Sunday as the Ellis Island Immigration Museum and turned over to the National Park Service.

"What we celebrate in Ellis Island is nothing less than the triumph of the American spirit," said Vice President Dan Quayle, who snipped a white ribbon to open the museum at what was once America's busiest port of entry.

"We may all know in our minds that time and time again, it has been the immigrant who has renewed and rekindled the American spirit. But here in Ellis Island, we feel it in our hearts."

An audience of about 2,500 invited guests gathered outside the huge, four-towered immigration building, which was renovated entirely with private contributions to a foundation that also repaired the Statue of Liberty nearby.

After the ceremony, people poured inside the building, once again filling the vast Registry Room with sound.

Forty-nine new citizens were sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia, and six people who entered the nation through Ellis Island in the first quarter of the century were singled out to represent the 12 million immigrants who passed through from 1892 until 1954.

They included Johanna Flaherty, 84, who said she left Ireland in 1923 because she "didn't want to wake up and stare a cow in the face every morning."

Another was Clara Larsen, who came from Russia in 1913 because she wanted an education. "In Russia, the Jewish kids didn't stand a chance," she recalled. "They didn't accept them in the public schools." She went on to become an early leader of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Abortion foes to distribute pamphlets among lawmen

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A pamphlet planned for distribution this week by abortion opponents to more than 200 law enforcement officers has drawn criticism from authorities who say it's heavy-handed.

But Officers for Life, the anti-abortion group that will print the 12-page pamphlets and distribute them by hand and by mail, counters that it is only trying to educate the law enforcement community.

The pamphlets contain a plea that authorities not prosecute abortion protesters and include a reference to Nazi persecution.

The pamphlets "are designed to educate law enforcement officers," said Ruben Rodriguez, Officers for Life founder. "It's mainly meant as an eye-opener so people can find out what's really going on at the abortion clinics — behind the doors, not just all the hubbub outside."

In the pamphlets, a Lutheran pastor and the Catholic bishop of Corpus Christi urge authorities not to enforce laws against anti-abortion protesters and compare such enforcement to Nazi actions during World War II.

Some prosecutors and police have criticized the statements by the Most Rev. Rene H. Gracida, Bishop of Corpus Christi, and the Rev. Dennis Schiefelbein, pastor of Iglesia Luterana Nuestro Salvador.

Especially offensive were comparisons to the Nazis, authorities said.

"It just makes me wonder how far it's going to go," County Attorney Carlos Valdez told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. "Because the next logical step would be the people who enforce the police officers' activities — which would be the prosecutors — and after that, the judges and jurors."

Some authorities also raised the constitutional principle of separation of church and state in criticizing the statements.

Rodriguez said Nueces County Sheriff James Hickey, who has announced publicly that he would not enforce the law by removing or arresting abortion protesters, has included a letter in the pamphlets.

The pamphlets also contain a copy of the controversial photograph of an aborted fetus that which Hickey posted in his office in January and "technical and medical" information regarding abortion, Rodriguez said.

About 40 members of Officers are city, county and federal law enforcement personnel, he said.

The group's main objective is to obtain a "conscience clause" in state law that would protect the jobs of authorities opposed to abortion who refuse duty at protests.

Panel of judges would admit cameras, mikes to federal courtroom cautiously

WASHINGTON (AP) — A camera tapes the day's proceedings for a federal court juror who is sick and unable to attend the trial.

A closed circuit video system allows a marshal to maintain a security surveillance of the courtroom.

Highlights of testimony in a highly publicized civil trial are aired on the evening news.

Such are the visions of a five-judge study committee that is recommending a three-year, carefully controlled experiment that would allow cameras and radio equipment to record proceedings in federal courtrooms.

The U.S. Judicial Conference, the policy-making arm of the federal courts, scheduled a meeting Wednesday to consider the proposal. The conference has 27 federal judges as its members, and is headed by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist.

There are signs of erosion in the solid opposition that has kept cameras out of federal courts.

Rehnquist said last May that he was "by no means averse to the idea" of an experimental program. Rehnquist's predecessor, Warren E. Burger, was dead set against the idea. "Over my dead body," Burger reportedly said of a proposal to televise Supreme Court proceedings.

And while the study committee reported that most federal judges oppose a blanket lifting of all restrictions on cameras in the courtroom, it said the "substantial majority favor the committee's more cautious, deliberative approach."

The panel, headed by U.S.

District Judge Robert F. Peckham of San Francisco, called the current rules governing cameras "unduly restrictive" and said they should be "expanded somewhat" to include security and other areas of judicial administration.

It also voted 4-1 to open some civil — but not criminal — proceedings to camera coverage and broadcast.

"Like the chief justice, a majority of your committee is not averse to controlled experimentation on a voluntary basis and would like to offer federal judges the opportunity to observe the effect of camera coverage and broadcasting of proceedings in federal court," the panel wrote.

The experiment, to begin in July 1991 if approved, would be limited to two federal appeals courts and six trial courts. Judges would have to volunteer their courtrooms for the experiment, and they would have broad discretion to "refuse, limit or terminate media coverage of an entire case, portions thereof or testimony of particular witnesses," the panel suggested.

It said 44 states permit, in varying degrees, camera coverage of their judicial proceedings and that most began or are continuing on an experimental basis.

"The nation is on the brink of a major victory for openness in the federal court system," Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said after the committee report was made public last month. Kastenmeier heads a House Judiciary subcommittee that helps oversee the courts.

Solzhenitsyn's return to Russia uncertain

CAVENDISH, Vt. (AP) — The Iron Curtain has come down, but not the wall around Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

The changes in the Soviet Union have brought publication of Solzhenitsyn's long-banned books and an offer to restore citizenship to the exiled writer.

But the Nobel laureate and chief chronicler of 20th century Russian history remains in his Vermont compound deep in the woods off a dirt road, his home surrounded by a fence with a TV monitor at the gate.

What has emanated from behind the fence in recent months has been mostly silence. Only two brief statements have broken the quiet, with Solzhenitsyn's characteristic anger and sarcasm.

Robert Redford makes Populist campaign pitch

AUSTIN (AP) — Robert Redford made some election pitches here over the weekend, appearing for Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's self-styled "Populist Back-to-the-Ranch Political Extravaganza."

Hightower has run his campaign in support of organically grown produce and hormone-free beef that has delighted health food advocates and angered some mainstream farmers and ranchers.

"I like his ideas," Redford told Hightower supporters at a ranch barbecue Saturday. "I think he's got policies that are new, invigorating in a pretty-well-dead policy area and I don't believe it's going to come from the top."

"It has to come from the bottom," said Redford, who has made appearances for environmental causes. "That's where it should come from. It's going to take strong, courageous

A Soviet official was quoted by the Tass news agency Aug. 16 as saying the 71-year-old Solzhenitsyn had held high-level talks with Soviet officials about restoring his citizenship.

The response from the writer's wife, Natalia, who frequently speaks for him: "This is a lie."

Until Soviet authorities formally lift their charge of high treason against her husband and admit they were wrong to expel him in 1974, "there can be no discussion about the reinstatement of citizenship," Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said.

In late August, Solzhenitsyn indicated he was preparing to speak out at length. He wrote to the Soviet newspaper Komсомolskaya Pravda that he had completed an article containing his views on current Soviet affairs and the "potential as well as necessary measures that need to be taken."

But in what appeared to be an indication of his doubts about Soviet changes, Solzhenitsyn sarcastically referred to past official excuses about paper shortages preventing widespread publication of his works:

"One only has to wonder whether there will be enough paper in the U.S.S.R. to facilitate an inexpensive and mass publication of this brochure."

Michael Scammell, Solzhenitsyn's biographer and former translator, said that until the article appears, those wondering about Solzhenitsyn's desires for his homeland have to rely on his "Letter to the Leaders," written in 1973.

In that letter, Solzhenitsyn said the Russian Orthodox Church should be allowed to function freely; the Communist Party should give up its monopoly on power; censorship should be abolished; the republics should be given the option of independence, and a strong authoritarian leader should head the government but also allow strong debate within society.

Scammell said the Soviet Union in recent years had moved "well past 50 percent" toward meeting those goals. The Russian Orthodox patriarch was shown on Soviet television last Christmas; Christmas and Easter may become official holidays again.

Rifts within the Communist Party have created power sharing, Scammell added. Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago," his devastating critique of Communist repression, has been published, and "The Red Wheel," a series of historical works about the Russian Revolution, is being serialized in literary magazines.

Scammell said it's difficult to know whether the changes are good enough for Solzhenitsyn.

Unless he has had a major change of heart, Solzhenitsyn's dream for Russia is not modeled on Western-style democracy. The author lashed out at the West as too legalistic and materialistic in a commencement address at Harvard in 1978.

Citgo and Irving firm will merge

DALLAS (AP) — Champlin Refining and Chemicals Inc. will merge with Tulsa-based Citgo Petroleum Corp. under a restructuring plan designed to cut costs, a report said today.

The Irving-based firms' parent, Petroleos de Venezuela S.A., said the refining operations of Venezuela's national oil company will continue under the Citgo name.

The combined companies have annual revenues of more than $7 billion and refining capacity of 480,000 barrels of oil per day, The Dallas Morning News reported.

It isn't clear what effect the move will have on Champlin's Irving office and its 150 employees, a Citgo spokesman said Sunday. The two subsidiaries are to be united by the end of the year. Ronald E. Hall, president and chief executive officer of Citgo, said Citgo's headquarters will remain in Tulsa.

Citgo has 900 workers in Tulsa and employs about 3,300, with most workers located at its Lake Charles, La. refinery. The facility can produce 320,000 barrels per day.

OPEC members, led by Venezuela and Saudi Arabia, have agreed to increase oil production to make up the lost oil supplies resulting from the Persian Gulf crisis.

Military buildup in Persian Gulf hampers enrollment in college

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — The troop buildup in the Persian Gulf is reducing enrollment at colleges in areas near military bases, says a published report. Students and educators at several Texas institutions are wondering whether Operation Desert Shield and other world events will continue to cut into their off-campus programs, the Plainview Daily Herald reported Sunday.

Wayland Baptist University, which operates several off-campus centers located near military bases, is among institutions affected, the newspaper reported.

Off-campus centers for Wayland are in Wichita Falls, San Antonio, Amarillo and Lubbock, as well as Hawaii, and Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska. The newspaper said all but the Amarillo center are near military posts.

With students exchanging their books for the military gear needed in the Mideast crisis, Wayland officials say registration will continue to suffer.

At Wayland's off-campus center in Kaneohe, Hawaii, classes are not being offered after the U.S. Marines comprising the bulk of the student population were deployed to the Middle East.

Half of the 1,166 students enrolled there a year ago were military personnel.

"Probably, where we would feel it the most is in Hawaii," Wayland President Dr. Lanny Hall said.

"Thus far, the impact has been minimal," he said. "In some areas where there is a high concentration of Marines we have felt a negative in that we have lost students as a result of the world crisis."

Also, soldiers at some bases are not registering for classes out of fear they will be moved after school begins.

For soldiers called to serve, special policies are being developed, said Dr. Bill Hardage, vice president for external programs. He said students can take an incomplete in the class or get a refund if they're called up.

The University of Maryland and several other institutions also have military programs and face similar problems.

"We are all doing the same thing," said Hardage. "Everybody is making arrangements as we are for the students to withdraw."

Wristbands on jailed homosexuals under fire

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A jail here has promised to reconsider its system of marking homosexual inmates with colored wristbands, a policy one gay activist says is "like throwing meat to the dogs."

But officials did not say when the policy might be changed.

All prisoners at Tarrant County Jail wear colored wristbands: red for felons, blue for misdemeanor offenders, orange for those awaiting transfer to federal prisons, yellow for prisoners with medical problems and gray for homosexuals. New inmates are questioned as they enter the jail, which houses both men and women. Those who say they are homosexual or bisexual are allowed protective custody because homosexuals are common targets of abuse by other inmates, jail officials told the Dallas Times Herald.

Homosexual inmates who choose protective custody are given gray wristbands and housed in isolated groups, although they mingle with the rest of the prisoners during meals and exercise breaks, officials said.

Now classified low medium...

Fed prison tightens security

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — The new fence around the federal prison here is just one of the measures taken to upgrade "Club Fed" from a minimum security unit to a low-medium security facility.

The prison was officially classified as a Level II facility on Sept. 1 and the name was changed from Big Spring Federal Prison Camp to Big Spring Correctional Institute.

The first Level II prisoners could arrive this week, said Joe Aguirre, executive assistant to the warden.

The prison camp opened in 1979 at the former Webb Air Force Base, which had been closed two years earlier.

Some residents dubbed the facility "Club Fed" because of its colorful list of inmates, including Billy Sol Estes and former millionaire rancher Rex Cauble, the Abilene Reporter-News reported.

Level I prisoners "more likely than not are in prison for the first time and have committed a non-violent, nonaggressive type crime," Aguirre said.

Level II inmates typically have been in prison before, and might have been involved in an aggressive crime, he said.

The changes inside the prison will affect the community as well as the inmates. Level I prisoners used to help umpire Little League baseball games and they also renovated a park and rebuilt bicycles for needy children.

But since Level II inmates can't leave the grounds, many community volunteer projects will be dropped once the Level I prisoners are gone, the newspaper reported.

A shortage of Level II bed space in the federal prison system, which has six classifications of prisoners, is the reason for the changes at Big Spring, Aguirre said.

Capacity of the prison remains at 1,000 inmates, Aguirre said. As the 548 Level I inmates left at the prison serve out their sentences, they will be replaced with Level II inmates.

Between $8 million and $10 million is being spent to upgrade the prison. About 100 more employees — including guards, counselors, case workers and medical staffers — are being hired.

"We're happy that we're growing and playing an important part in the federal prison system and the community," Aguirre said. "The upgrade means more jobs for local people."

Besides the 12-foot high fence topped with razor wire, other construction projects underway include moving the infirmary, visiting area and softball field, inside the fence.

114 Indians are set free

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has freed 114 Indians from prison and plans to free 63 more under an agreement between the attorney general's office and the National Indian Institute, newspapers reported Sunday.

The daily newspaper Excelsior reported that the Indians, from numerous ethnic groups, had been held in preventive custody or on minor charges of drug cultivation.

The agreement reached last July 5 aimed at taking greater care in prosecuting Indians, often from remote rural regions, because of their "social isolation, extreme poverty and ignorance" of the law.

Among the provisions is a plan to ensure that Indians who do not speak Spanish have a translator available when questioned by police.

Meanwhile, leaders of the Otomi people meeting over the weekend in Ixmiquilpan, in the state of Hidalgo, have demanded greater rights.

Alberto Blanco from the town of Maguay Blanco said the Otomi are tired of "bearded, paunchy anthropologists in sandals" trying to gain their confidence so they can justify costly programs that bring no results.

"They have studied us, they have photographed us, they have observed us, they have exhibited us, they have measured us," said Roberto Pedraza Martinez, president of the Otomi supreme council.

"Now what the thousands of tribes want are results," he added.

He complained that Otomi children are often forced to study English as a second language in schools rather than their own languages.

The Otomi leaders also want their people to be called Hnahnu, because the name Otomi was imposed by early conquerors.

Bodies of old couple found

OAXACA CITY, Mexico (AP) — The bodies of two very old people were found in a remote village in the southern state of Oaxaca with their throats slit and police have no clues as to who committed the murders or why, a justice official says.

Gilberto Trinidad Gutierrez, the state attorney general, told reporters in this state capital on Sunday the couple was found dead in the early morning in the village of La Toma.
