MC forces win referendum battle

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant City Editor

Vocal opposition to a proposed city referendum on the merger of Midland College in the University of Texas System killed the idea during a special City Council meeting this morning.

"I take it the council does not want the referendum," Mayor Carroll Thomas said after none of the seven members moved to add the issue to the Nov. 7 ballot.

The inaction came after more than an hour of comments by citizens on both sides of the issue.

More than 150 people packed council chambers for a hearing to consider putting the issue on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Proponents of a merger between Midland College and the University of Texas System took their case to City Council this morning in hopes of landing a non-binding referendum on the Nov. 7 ballot.

A civic group headed by former mayor Ernest Angelo and former chamber of commerce executive Grant Billingsley presented wording for the proposed referendum during a 10 a.m. special session.

The possibility of turning title of the north Midland campus over to the UT System is an idea that "deserves community consideration," said Billingsley, who is director of public relations for Wagner & Brown, an oil and gas partnership.

"What better way is there then letting the people choose?" he asked the seven council members.

Ralph Way, president of the Midland College Board of Trustees, expressed that group's opposition to putting the issue before the voters.

"We feel that the taxpayers have spoken and there is not a necessity for holding a referendum to get input. Any elected board cannot operate under the referendum theory; otherwise, the board would be shirking its duty of making important decisions," said Way.

Trustee Parker Humes said he would consider a council decision in favor of a referendum "an insult that our decision is not good enough."

Council members were apparently swayed by the trustees position. "It is the job of the elected officials of Midland College to plan the future of the college," said Councilman Bill Williams just before the mayor's unanswered call for a motion.

Speakers on both sides of the issue said that they would not argue the merits of the merger plan — or any other proposal — during the special hearing. However, much of the testimony focused on the merger proposal and the possible loss to the community perceived by those opposing such a plan.

First lady leaves mark on new school

By BRIAN PEARSON
Staff Writer

Bush Elementary School began its first "official" school day in a euphoric state today in the wake of first lady Barbara Bush's whirlwind campus tour.

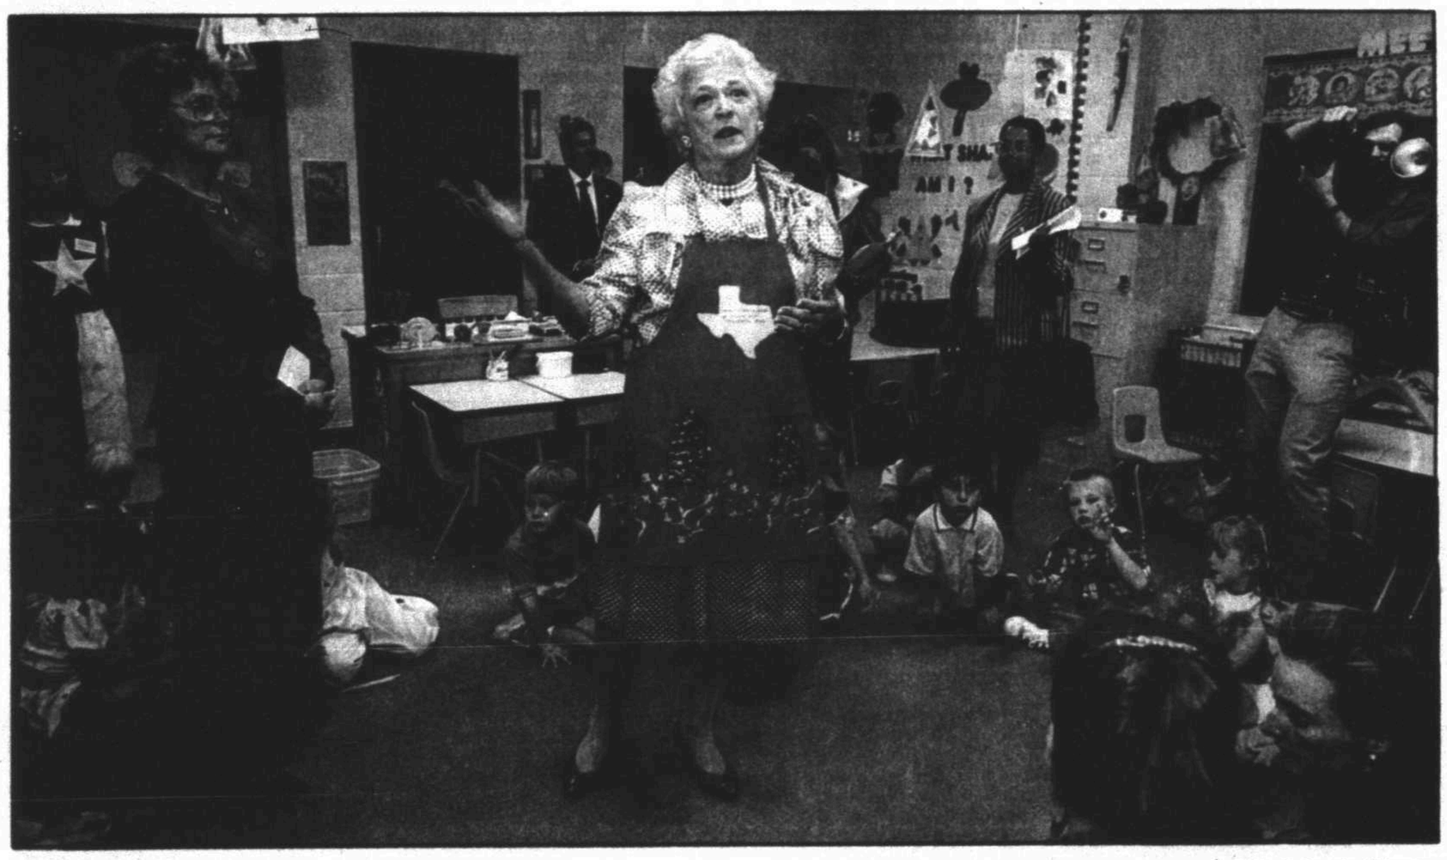

The first school to bear George H.W. Bush's name rolled out the figurative red carpet Monday afternoon to Mrs. Bush, who spoke during a brief outdoor dedication ceremony before touring the 5001 Preston Drive campus.

While inside she met "George Bush" the guinea pig and "Dan Quayle" the hermit crab as she visited the school's 36 wide-eyed kindergarten pupils gathered.

The children presented her with an apron covered with bluebonnet thumb paintings they had made in class.

But Mrs. Bush did not come empty handed, either. As she addressed a crowd of about 350 people outdoors, school custodians secretly nailed four George Bush portraits, which she had brought with her, to a hallway wall inside.

Hurricane heads for Bahamas

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hurricane Hugo spun toward the Bahamas today after thrashing Puerto Rico with 125 mph winds, leaving more than 50,000 people homeless throughout the eastern Caribbean. An official reported at least 25 dead.

Hugo hit northeastern Puerto Rico and then skirted its populous northern coast on Monday. It roared on to the northwest and toward open water, its hurricane-force winds missing the Dominican Republic.

At noon EDT today, the hurricane's center was near latitude 22.2 degrees north and longitude 68.5 west, about 175 miles east northeast of Grand Turk Island in the southern Bahamas, according to the National Weather Service. Winds fell to 105 mph.

Forecasters said it likely would hit the U.S. mainland later in the week but said it was too early to predict where. Cruise ships steamed out of the way, residents prepared along the North Carolina coast and Florida residents jammed the phone lines of insurance companies for financial protection.

"It's a long way from any potential landfall," said Bob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gables. "Unfortunately, the higher likelihood is that it will turn more west and could make landfall anywhere from South Florida to North Carolina."

At least 25 people in the Caribbean died from the storm, said Cizanette Rivera, a spokeswoman for the Civil Defense in Puerto Rico.

Maria Dolores Oronoz, a spokesman for Gov. Rafael Hernandez-Colon, said only two people died on Puerto Rico. The two died while trying to remove a TV antenna Sunday in preparation for the storm, she said. She said no other deaths had been reported in Puerto Rico.

The National Weather Service in San Juan reported its preliminary statement that said 25 had died on the U.S. commonwealth was incorrect.

Ms. Rivera gave no breakdown on where the other reported victims had died, but scattered fatalities were reported throughout the heavily visited tourist islands of the eastern Caribbean.

Hugo left a trail of smashed homes, power failures and injuries in Guadeloupe, Montserrat, Antigua and the Virgin Islands since Sunday, and widespread looting by machete-wielding mobs was reported on the island of St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Widespread evacuations apparently lessened the chance of fatalities.

Sailboats were blown out of the water and thrown up to 150 feet on shore in St. Thomas, and some waterfront businesses have disappeared.

Testimony begins in trial on judicial elections

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Lawyers representing the state's minority population relied Monday on a Midland woman's testimony in their effort to reshape the way Texans elect district judges.

The non-jury trial before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton began here with the League of United Latin American Citizens seeking a declaratory judgment that could abolish the existing at-large method of electing district judges in nine counties.

Plaintiffs allege that at-large elections dilute the voting strength blacks and Hispanics; and propose the creation of single-member districts to correct the irregularities.

Aquilla Watson, a Midland manicurist who lost her 1986 bid for Midland County Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 1, told the court that despite her ability to raise more contributions than her opponent, she was defeated by the white bloc vote.

Ms. Watson, who has been Precinct 308 chairman the past eight years, lost the special election to Republican Keith Jobe by more than a 3-1 margin.

During court testimony this morning, an expert witness whose voter analysis of the nine counties targeted in the suit, said he found sufficient evidence to prove racially polarized voting in most instances.

"I found that ethnicity was the major determining factor in how people voted," said Dr. Bob Brischetto of the Southwest Voter Research Institute.

In opening arguments Monday, plaintiffs' attorneys noted that the state's 190 judicial districts have a combined minority population of almost 30 percent, but that only 5.3 percent of the 190 judges in those districts are minority.

Named in the suit filed July 11, 1988 are Midland, Ector, Harris, Dallas, Lubbock, Tarrant, Travis, Bexar and Jefferson counties.

"Black voters are politically cohesive and whites vote as a bloc to prevent the election of the candidate of their choice," said Sherrilyn Ifill of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Legal Defense Fund.

She said Houston blacks vote sufficiently as a bloc to justify the creation of up to 13 Harris County judicial single-member districts.

Plaintiffs' claims of voter dilution hinge primarily on the premise that the present at-large method of electing district judges was intentionally created with a discriminatory purpose — a violation under Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Gabrielle McDonald, representing the Harris County Lawyers Association, said plaintiffs aren't advocating a quota system for district judges.

Jurors watch eight-hour PTL Club video

"It was called a board of directors, but at no time did it operate like one. It was a board of approval or affirmation only."

— Efrem Zimbalist Jr., former PTL board member

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jurors in Jim Bakker's fraud trial began watching the television evangelist making the sales pitch he is accused of using to defraud his followers of million of dollars.

Prosecutors on Monday began showing an eight-hour videotape culled from broadcasts of Bakker's "The PTL Club." Earlier in the day, actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. testified that the PTL board of directors, on which he once served, was little more than a rubber stamp for Bakker.

On the tape, Bakker asks followers to send $1,000 in exchange for "lifetime partnerships" that guaranteed the donors three nights a year lodging for life at PTL's Heritage USA theme park.

"We're going to unveil ... the most exciting project ever undertaken ... perhaps in the history of Christianity," Bakker, dressed in a black tuxedo, told his television audience in 1984.

Bakker is accused of diverting more than $3.7 million in PTL money raised from the partnerships to pay for personal luxuries. If convicted of the 24 counts against him, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined more than $5 million.

Gunman forces plane to land

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands (AP) — A gunman forced a Royal Air Maroc aircraft on a domestic flight in Morocco to land on Grand Canary island in the Spanish archipelago today, a police officer at the airport said.

The officer, who would not give his name, said police were standing by as the Fokker twin-engine turboprop aircraft as it touched down at the Gando Airport runway at 2:45 p.m. (9:45 a.m. EDT).

He said it was not clear whether the man had made any demands or whether any other people were involved.

He said he did not know how many passengers the plane carried or where it had been heading.

Gran Canary Island lies 384 miles southwest of the Moroccan port of Agadir in the Atlantic Ocean.

Gabor obeys warning, keeps her mouth shut

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — An uncharacteristically taciturn Zsa Zsa Gabor heeded a judge's warning to refrain from comment about issues surrounding her cop-slapping trial.

"I'm under gagging order," Miss Gabor told reporters in the halls of Beverly Hills Municipal Court as her trial entered its second week Monday.

Miss Gabor faces four misdemeanor charges: battery on a police officer, disobeying an officer's orders, driving with an expired license and having an open container of alcohol in her car. If convicted, she could be sentenced to 18 months behind bars.

Miss Gabor uttered "no comment" more than seven times when questioned by reporters. She even said "no comment" when asked about her ensemble of white slacks and a Navy blue blazer.

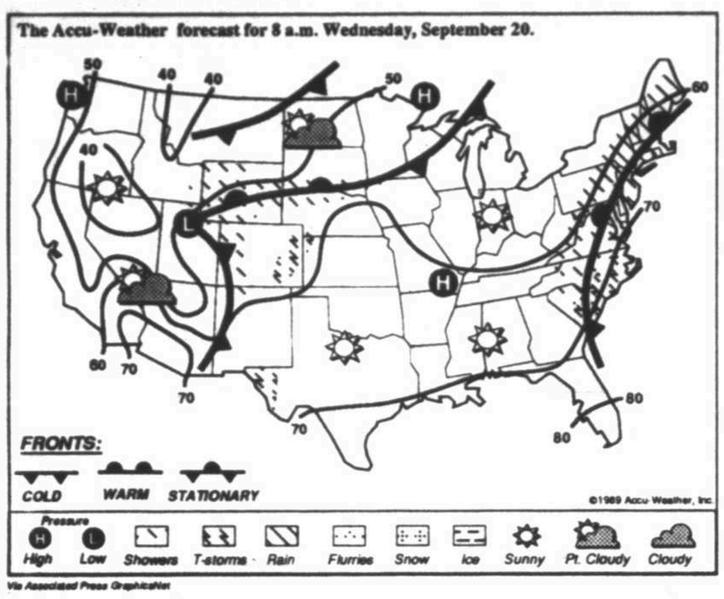

Last week, Miss Gabor said she was afraid of going to jail because of lesbians there. She also made unflattering remarks about the prosecutor ("He has a Napoleon complex") and called the policeman she is accused of striking an "Adonis" and "a liar."

Besides the gag order warning, Miss Gabor told reporters, "My mother is very upset and (sister) Eva could kill me" regarding the publicity accompanying the trial.

Coast Guard rescues 37 after collision

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two boats carrying 37 people collided in the dark early today and began sinking, forcing the passengers into lifeboats, the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard and Navy worked to rescue the passengers from the chilly Pacific about 20 miles south of San Diego.

A 50-foot chartered fishing boat carrying 29 people collided with a 65-foot vessel with eight people aboard sometime before 3 a.m., said Coast Guard Petty Officer Steven Dickerson.

The victims were reported in good condition, but both boats were "taking on water quite rapidly," Dickerson said. The water was about 60 degrees.

The cause of the collision was not known, Dickerson said.

He said he was unsure where the vessels were based.

Two Coast Guard patrol boats, a helicopter and two utility boats were being assisted by a Navy helicopter and a commercial salvage tug.

BUSH

Meanwhile, she told the crowd she was delighted to see her husband's name on a primary school, where pupils build a foundation for learning.

"George and I know the children who attend Bush Elementary School — I like the sound of that — will have an excellent career here," she said. "George Bush is absolutely thrilled about this wonderful school. This is really such an honor to him."

The Bushes lived in Midland for 11 years during the 1950s and 1960s. It was Mrs. Bush's first visit here since the election.

"George and I lived a rich and full life here, and this is where we really grew up," Mrs. Bush said. "I want to tell you how really great it is for me to be back in Midland, Texas."

During a photo session in the library with Midland Independent School District trustees, Mrs. Bush revealed that she knew the board's vote to name the school was not unanimous.

Trustee Ken Morrison said Mrs. Bush suddenly turned to them and said, "Whenever George gets a big head about being president, I just tell him four to three."

Board members Adela Marmolejo, Jim Builta and James Fuller voted against naming the school after the president.

After walking through the building, Mrs. Bush visited a classroom, where kindergarteners eagerly asked questions about what she planned to do with their gift apron.

"That's the cutest thing I ever saw," she said of the apron, which she said she plans to wear when gardening and cooking. "I love it. I'm crazy about it."

She acted surprised when pupils told her their pet guinea pig was named "George Bush."

"I'm not going to ask who the crab's named after," she said.

After meeting "Dan Quayle" the hermit crab, Mrs. Bush rolled her eyes and asked, "How do you know it's a boy crab?"

She then knelt and talked with the kindergarteners as they sat on the floor.

Bush kindergarten teacher Kerri Marsh was impressed with the way the first lady related to the children.

"She had fun with them," Ms. Marsh said, adding that it was exciting to be part of a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

During a short question-answer session with the media, Mrs. Bush was asked whether she supported allowing prayer groups to meet on school property.

Two Midland high school Christian groups have asked school officials to allow them to hold prayer sessions on campus. They will vote on the issue next Tuesday.

"That's really a local issue," she said. "You don't step into the courts or the Congress.

"I'm not against prayer in school. I said a prayer in school every day of my life and never saw it do anything but good."

Addressing a question of whether more sex education should be taught in schools, she said parents need to be reminded that they sometimes also must be teachers.

"Parents have to be parents," she said. "Of course we have to educate kids in every way."

Kindergartener Misty Raisbeck, 5, who sat inches away from Mrs. Bush in the classroom, said her favorite part of the visit was the first lady's speech outside.

"I learned to be nice," Misty said, referring to Mrs. Bush's statement about how people learn everything they need to know about life while in kindergarten, the subject of a best-selling book.

Before Mrs. Bush spoke, board President James Fuller took the podium and commended her on her efforts to eliminate illiteracy in America.

"We as a community, as a board, as educators, as parents in this community, are behind you in this initiative in promoting literacy across the nation," Fuller said.

Principal Toby Cross vowed that Bush teachers will "work diligently to overrun whatever burden they (pupils) bring to the classroom."

After Mrs. Bush left the building, Superintendent Joe Baressi said her visit provided the perfect kick-off for MISD's newest school, which opened this school year.

"I was extremely pleased she cared and had the time to come," Baressi said. "I would hope it would be an inspiration to all the boys and girls living in Midland that they someday could be president."

Mrs. Bush's trip was part of a statewide tour which concludes today with a stop in San Antonio. She also visited Amarillo on Monday.

She is scheduled to spend her time in San Antonio campaigning for literacy programs and touring the restored Majestic Theatre.

In testimony Monday, prosecution witness Maureen Cassidy said she was looking in her rear-view mirror when she saw Officer Paul Kramer being struck on June 14.

Kramer had pulled over Miss Gabor for having expired registration tags. As he checked for other violations, Miss Gabor allegedly drove off, was stopped again and ultimately slapped Kramer's face.

Kramer has said the slap was unprovoked. Miss Gabor, a foot-shorter and 100 pounds lighter than Kramer, has said she struck in self defense.

For the defense, a Beverly Hills physician testified that Miss Gabor "was hurting all over" after her arrest.

Harold Karpman, a cardiovascular specialist, said Miss Gabor called him after the incident and complained of "anxiety and nervousness and pain and discomfort."

Kenneth Elconin, an orthopedic surgeon, said he saw bruises on Miss Gabor's wrists when she visited him two days after her arrest.

The bruises probably were caused by handcuffs, Elconin said.

A third defense witness, Dr. Elias Cohenzadeh, said Kramer used excessive force when he was pulled over for speeding two years ago. "I've never felt so threatened in my life," Cohenzadeh said, claiming the officer threw him down on the ground.

The defense has contended that the officer has a history of being abusive with people he has pulled over for traffic violations.

MC

For his part, Angelo stated that it is too early to "dot all the 'i's and cross all the 't's in a proposed merger deal, but "with the leadership and representation this community has on the various boards in this issue, it would be shortsighted to say that it couldn't be done," he said of maintaining vocational and technical programs at the school.

The wording of the proposed referendum would have been: "The University of Texas System would be given title to the campus and facilities of Midland College and would make the campus a full-time part of a four-year and graduate level University at Midland/Odessa. The University of Texas System would assume all outstanding debt and ongoing operating costs and would, with local input, offer a full program of vocational-technical courses on the Midland campus."

He called the current situation a "unique opportunity to become a full partner in the University system."

MC President Jess Parrish criticized the proposed referendum as simplistic. "There is an inference that what is stated there could be delivered."

By the end of the session, Angelo said that he would be willing to withdraw his request for the vote given the amount of controversy raised by the issue.

However, Billingsley added that he had hoped for an "open, public forum for debate" in conjunction with a communitywide election but that he "was not inclined to withdraw the request for the referendum."

Gov. Bill Clements first suggested a referendum as a means to determine community sentiment in July when a compromise solution to the long-running four-year UTPB was presented for possible inclusion in the special session call.

While the compromise — it called for building a 40,000-square-foot upper-level center adjacent to the Midland College campus, was rejected by the governor — he recommended local leaders have a plan which the citizens are clearly behind before they come to Austin again.

Mayor Carroll Thomas presented City Attorney David Reagan's legal opinion that while the city has no specific authority to call the election, because it is non-binding there is nothing in the charter which prohibits such an election to measure public opinion.

Way's statement in total was: "The elected Midland College Board of Trustees are the representatives of the taxpayers' interest in handling the affairs of Midland College.

"We were elected just as you were elected to the City Council. We, as Midland College trustees, have had conveyed to us by the taxpayers in overwhelming numbers, that Midland College is needed and we should not gamble with the future of Midland College by turning it over to another entity, and like you, we have a responsibility to those taxpayers.

"We feel that the taxpayers have spoken and there is not a necessity for holding a referendum to get input. Any elected board cannot operate under the referendum theory; otherwise, the board would be shirking its duty of making important decisions.

"The reasons are quite clear why elected bodies should not conduct their business through referendums. Some issues are too complex to even word a referendum that completely and accurately states the issues. And this issue is a perfect example. That is not to say that serious efforts have not been made to reach a resolution of this issue. There have been a number of meetings (with various interests represented) held to discuss this issue. At some of these meetings the idea of a referendum was discussed. The majority conclusion at each of these meetings was that the issue was too complex to state in a referendum. As a matter of fact, your own Mayor Carroll Thomas was opposed to a referendum.

"You may also need to know that at one of those meetings a consensus was reached that the Midland College plan was accepted as the best solution to reach a compromise with Odessa concerning UTPB. This plan also met with the approval and support of representatives from Odessa. Mr. Angelo was out of town and missed this meeting. What you have here today is Mr. Angelo, who opposed the consensus plan and a very few others who believe Midland College is no longer needed, asking for a referendum.

"The wording of this referendum is probably written such as to lead the voter to believe that Midland College will be protected. The guarantee, that you the voters have, that Midland College will remain viable is Mr. Angelo's and Mr. Billingsley's statements that 'those details can be worked out.'

"That, simply put, is not a true statement, and in fact, is very misleading. Mr. Angelo and Mr. Billingsley are not members of the University of Texas Board of Regents and cannot accurately state how the nine members of that board will protect Midland College and the programs the people of Midland have worked so hard for.

"The facts are that the University of Texas system schools are governed by an appointed board in Austin, Texas. Midland College is governed by a locally elected board that is directly responsive to Midland community needs. There is absolutely no history, precedent or expected precedent to state that the University of Texas System has ever had or intends to have a community college plan within their system. Yet, these few individuals are asking you as council members to allow a referendum to be placed on a ballot without stating the full truths.

"The referendum that you are being asked to place on a city ballot deals with an issue concerning a taxing district that is more than just the city boundaries. Some of the Midland College taxpayers would be excluded from voting on this issue.

"This would be very, very dangerous precedent for you as Council members to involve yourself by calling for a referendum, requested by a few, that does not state the facts and is directly opposed by each and every member of the nine member Midland College elected board.

"As you probably know, there are other plans or alternatives which at least have met the approval of the majority of those representing community interest."

BAKKER

Witnesses have testified they bought the partnerships but could not get rooms. Others have testified that partnerships were oversold and that the money from such promotions often was used to cover PTL's day-to-day operating costs rather than finance construction of the guaranteed rooms and buildings.

FBI agent Harold Pearson, who compiled the videotape, said more than 66,000 partnerships were sold to viewers by the time Bakker left PTL, despite a publicized limit of 25,000.

"All we need is 25,000 people to become members," Bakker said on a program televised Feb. 20, 1984. "That's all the memberships we can have in the Heritage Grand Hotel. In two weeks, we will be closed."

On the tape, Bakker consistently mentioned the restrictions.

"When we reach the cutoff number, we will have to refuse the gifts," he told viewers. "To be honest, we can't offer more memberships than we can physically handle."

On a March 7, 1984, show, Bakker told viewers that about 1,000 partnerships had been sold each day since the promotion began 13 days earlier. But Pearson said records showed fewer than 7,300 had been sold at that point.

About a week earlier, Bakker said 12,500 partnerships had been sold.

"The memberships will be gone in a few days," Bakker said.

Zimbalist testified that the PTL board of directors did not challenge Bakker.

"It was called a board of directors, but at no time did it operate like one," said Zimbalist, star of "The FBI" television series and board member from 1981 to 1986. "It was a board of approval or affirmation only."

Asked if he recalled approving a $390,000 bonus for Bakker, Zimbalist said, "Oh no, oh no."

The white-haired actor, who testified during a break in the production in Spain of a television series, "Zorro," said the board was not informed of financial problems at its meetings.

"The financial condition of PTL was never discussed," he said.

But she said the minority vote will be "meaningless" if the practice of white bloc voting is allowed to continue.

In response to LULAC's claims, the state argues that the plaintiffs have failed to meet the federal prerequisites to establish a Section 2 voter dilution claim.

Renea Hicks, a special assistant attorney general defending the state, said the evidence will not show that whites, voting as a bloc, will consistently defeat minority candidates.

He said blacks tend to vote for the Democratic Party candidates, and the Democrats tend to lose in down-ballot races.

"It is completely unrealistic to ignore the simple fact that Democrats vote for Democrats and Republicans vote for Republicans," Hicks said.

The state also will argue two other points: that judges have entire counties as their constituencies and not small areas within counties; and that the low percentages of black and Hispanic judges reflect the low percentages of minorities who are lawyers.

Said Hicks: "It's quite possible that if you carve up single-member judicial districts, you'll have more minorities on the bench.

"But that says nothing about the fact that the percentage of minority lawyers eligible to serve on the bench is very low," he added.

The trial is expected to last two weeks.

U.S. moves toward closer economic ties with Hungary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration plans to boost Hungary's trade status following a series of steps viewed by U.S. officials as progress on economic and political issues by the Warsaw Pact nation.

"Hungary has undertaken major steps toward economic and political reform," leading to the U.S. plan to grant most-favored nation status to the Eastern European communist state, President Bush said on Monday.

Speaking at a news conference in Helena, Mont., Bush said the move "will open new doors for the Hungarian economy, encouraging greater market orientation and increasing the foreign exchange earnings."

That and other initiatives were announced Monday by Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, who was in Budapest for talks with Hungarian officials.

Meanwhile, The Washington Post today quoted Hungary's new parliament speaker, Matyas Szuros, as saying he sees the possibility that his nation could withdraw from the Warsaw Pact and become neutral by the end of the century.

Szuros said the shift to neutrality could take place "within a climate of trust" between Hungary and the Soviet Union.

The package announced by Mosbacher also includes new development programs and the establishment of a $25 million fund to help create private business in Hungary.

The proposals are part of a comprehensive pact to "support Hungary's efforts to develop a freer political system and to create and expand private enterprise," said Mosbacher.

The White House released Bush's letter to Congress in which he said "it is my intent to add Hungary to the list" of countries that qualify for most-favored nation status, which would guarantee Hungary the lowest tariffs for its products that any competing country gets.

Hungary recently defied authorities in East Berlin by allowing thousands of East German citizens to use Hungary as a conduit to emigrate to West Germany. In May, Hungary tore down the barbed wire fence that had sharply restricted travel by Hungarians to the West.

According to his spokeswoman, the only foreign gift that Secretary of State James A. Baker III keeps in his office is a piece of the fence which Hungarian officials gave him during his visit to Hungary in July.

The administration also attaches significance, officials said, to the withdrawal of some Soviet troops from Hungary in recent months, part of a commitment by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to reduce overall troop levels in Eastern Europe.

Monday's announcement came four days after Bush's decision to double food aid to Poland — another Warsaw Pact member — to $100 million in the next fiscal year.

Many in Congress had criticized Bush for not doing more for Poland following the accession of a noncommunist premier in Warsaw. There has been less pressure for an increase in U.S. cooperation with Hungary because Poland's economic situation is far bleaker than Hungary's.

Mosbacher said the $25 million to help develop private business in Hungary "is an important part of implementing President Bush's goal of building an American partnership with Hungary."

He said Hungary will be granted permanent most-favored trade status in October if its parliament, as expected, enacts legislation on freedom of emigration by September.

Bush says 'radical change' may be needed for schools

By CRAGG HINES
Hearst News Service

HELENA, Mont. — President Bush, preparing for an education summit next week, said Monday that "perhaps radical change" is needed to improve the nation's schools.

"The plain truth is that our educational system is not making the grade," Bush said in a speech at the state capitol to legislators from Montana, Wyoming, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

Bush did not spell out any reforms he would offer the nation's governors when he meets them in Charlottsville, Va., next week for the education summit. He made it clear, however, he will not use the unusual session to promote an increased federal role in schooling.

"For I reject the notion of federal mandates — federal bullying — in education," Bush said. "Instead, what we need are local ideas, local creativity and more local autonomy."

Bush pointed to recent tests of 13-year-old students in six developed nations on which the American children placed last in math and near the bottom in science.

"Spending more money on education than most countries, we're getting less return on the investment," Bush said. "It is time for change — perhaps radical change — to find new ways to improve educational performance."

The president's comments came in a day of appearances in South Dakota and Montana, two states celebrating the 100th anniversary of their admission to the union.

Bush flew on to Spokane, Wash., where he will help another centennial state celebrate Tuesday before returning to the nation's capital to prepare for his meeting Thursday with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

In a news conference at Helena, Bush addressed a wide range of topics after announcing the United States will grant Hungary the trade-easing status known as "most-favored nation."

Bush said while in Budapest two months ago that the status would not be granted until Hungary passed a freer emigration statute. The Hungarian parliament has not acted but is expected to soon.

Bush defended his administration's decision to set limits on the immigration of Soviet Jews into the United States by saying: "We have to have certain control of our own policy. ...

"I want to do whatever we can to encourage (emigration). But P.S., we have got to have an overall immigration policy that keeps control of our demographics in our hands."

In earlier speeches Monday, Bush plugged his commitment to the environment.

The president had tentatively planned to go to Alaska on his current trip but scrapped those plans on the advice of aides who called such a journey "a downer."

Judge OKs investigation of couple, their church

New York Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — A federal judge has refused to prohibit city police from investigating a couple recently convicted of prostitution charges involving what they said was their religion.

A federal suit filed last week by Wilbur and Mary Ellen Tracy contends that Police Chief Daryl Gates and City Attorney James Hahn violated the Tracy's constitutional rights by the investigation into the Church of the Most High Goddess.

Mary Ellen Tracy, 46, the church's self-proclaimed high priestess, was convicted earlier this month in Los Angeles Municipal Court on three misdemeanor charges for accepting "donations" for performing sex acts.

Her husband, 51, the group's high priest, was convicted of one count of running a house of prostitution in West Los Angeles.

The Tracys, who live in the Santa Clarita Valley about 20 miles north of downtown, contend their religion practices an ancient rite of absolution through sexual activity.

Authorities said the operation is merely a prostitution front.

In the federal case, U.S. District Judge William Matthew Byrne Jr. ruled the Tracys had not shown a reasonable likelihood of winning their suit against the city, said Assistant City Attorney Byron Boeckman.

"We believe that this is an inappropriate matter for federal court," he said, adding that the Tracys have recourse to appeal their conviction in state courts.

Another hearing is scheduled in the federal case Oct. 16, Boeckman said.

Meanwhile, Wilbur Tracy said he plans to file a motion for a new criminal court trial on the grounds that the jury received information about the church that was not introduced as official evidence in the trial.

Council expands AIDS awareness

NEW YORK (AP) — With AIDS appearing in many countries, the National Council of Churches is expanding efforts to inform missionaries about the virus and how to reduce risks of contracting it.

Member denominations are being provided with educational materials, special sterilized injection kits and other resources for missionaries as they are sent to their fields.

"The risk of AIDS is real for missionaries serving in infected areas, but not very high if a person takes precautions," says Dr. John Frame, NCC consultant on health affairs.

Of 40,000 American Protestant missionaries serving overseas, six are known to have been infected with the AIDS virus, four of them stationed in Africa and two in the Caribbean.

Another missionary, a hemophiliac infected through a transfusion, died of AIDS in Australia, Frame says.

Moderate Baptists denounce 'bullies'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Moderate Southern Baptist leaders said conservative "bullies" have divided the denomination to the detriment of God's work and can only be stopped if lay members and local pastors organize to stop them at the state level.

The moderates, organized into a group called Baptists Committed to the Southern Baptist Convention, bitterly denounced the conservatives Monday during a news conference coinciding with the semi-annual SBC Executive Committee meeting here this week.

The group warned that conservatives who have monopolized control of the national convention for the 14.8 million-member church body now are plotting similar mischief in 15 heavily Baptist states.

Though they gave few details, they argued the conservative wing already controls Georgia and is positioning itself for a takeover attempt in Texas, where a conservative rally this summer drew "70 young impressionable pastors."

"We've got to wake up, laymen and pastors, and realize what destruction has occurred and that the strategy to take over your convention is real," said Steve Tondera, a Huntsville, Ala., layman and director of Baptists Committed.

At stake, the group believes, is the fate of Baptist colleges operated by state Baptist conventions. Moderates fear that conservatives want to take them over and turn them into "fundamentalist factories" where professors teach only their peculiar brand of biblical inerrancy.

The moderate group also criticized the conservatives for consorting with former Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell, flirting with right-wing politics and attacking "defenseless men" like Lloyd Elder, head of the Baptist Sunday School Board, and Al Shackleford, head of the Baptist Press.

"The term 'conservative' has been compromised to divide Baptists right down the center of our denominational souls, ... consigning 7 million of us to the lower region of torment reserved for infidels, skunks and rats while shoving Lloyd Elder, Al Shackleford and other defenseless men into a Baptist hell on earth," said John Baugh, a Houston layman and major financial backer of Baptists Committed.

Elder narrowly avoided facing a motion to fire him by his conservative trustees last month, while Shackleford labors under the constant scrutiny of conservative leaders who question his commitment to unbiased reporting of SBC events, the moderates say.

Contacted later Monday, Nashville minister Jerry Sutton, a conservative member of the Tennessee Baptist Convention executive board, said the moderates exaggerate as a tactic for breathing new life into their movement.

"They're screaming 'fire!' to keep the movement alive," Sutton said. "If this handful of moderates who keeps stirring things up would back off, things would settle down."

Sutton acknowledged that conservatives would indeed like a stronger voice at the state level, but "I don't think it's so detrimental to allow parity for conservatives in the states."

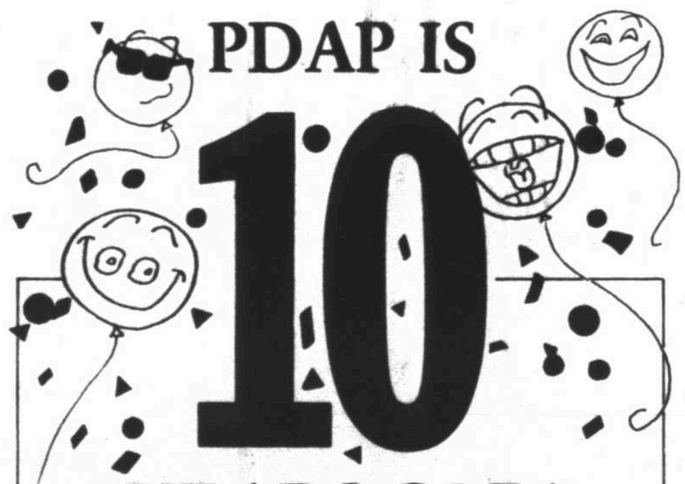

Sutton said takeovers are more difficult at the state level, however, because the state president does not have the necessary appointive powers that the national SBC president has.

Bush criticized for not stressing link between drugs, AIDS

Source: Center for Disease Control

AP

By BOB REHG
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The new national AIDS commission sharply criticized President Bush on Monday for not including in his anti-drug strategy a pledge to provide treatment on demand for drug addicts.

Stressing the link between intravenous drug use and transmission of AIDS, commission members said they would adopt a formal resolution Tuesday urging Congress to spend more money on treatment programs.

Increased treatment is needed to help curb the rapid spread of the human immunodeficiency virus that can cause AIDS among needle-sharing addicts and their sexual partners, commissioners said.

"(The resolution) would be a gutsy move, exactly what is needed to show we mean business," said commission vice chairman, Dr. David E. Rogers, medical director of the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The recently appointed AIDS panel was created by Congress last year and was meeting for the second time as part of its mandate to advise the president and lawmakers on AIDS policy.

After hearing testimony Monday from medical researchers, AIDS patients and advocates, commissioners said they were particularly troubled by President Bush's decision not to use his proposed anti-drug plan and the public's preoccupation with it to explain the connection between drug problems and AIDS.

"He had the forum and whole country watching and he didn't use the opportunity to tell people that there is a link between the two problems," said commission member Lawrence Kessler, executive director of the AIDS Action Committee in Boston. "I can't understand that."

The Atlanta-based federal Centers For Disease Control reports that, though 1988, 27 percent of all AIDS cases involved intravenous drug users. And recent medical studies showed that 61 percent of intravenous drug users who are seeking treatment for their addiction in New York City have tested positive as HIV carriers.

Statistics show that most newborn children with AIDS contracted the disease from mothers who were either intravenous drug users or had sex with IV drug users.

A previous federal commission which had been directed to set a national strategy for combatting AIDS stressed last year that there should be treatment on demand for drug addicts — meaning that anyone seeking help to overcome a drug addiction would receive immediate attention.

Activists say AZT still too high

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Federal officials praised Burroughs Wellcome Co.'s decision to reduce the wholesale price of AZT by 20 percent, but some AIDS activists say the cut isn't deep enough.

"This is a step in the right direction, but a very small step," says Peter Staley of the New York-based AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power. "It's not enough."

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced Monday that it will lower the wholesale cost of the only federally approved AIDS treatment, citing production efficiencies and research that suggests an increasing demand for the drug.

"The expected growth in patient population, coupled with recent production economies, will reduce somewhat our financial risk and will remove some of the uncertainties which existed when this drug was first introduced," said T.E. Haigler Jr., Burroughs' president and chief executive officer.

The company said, however, it couldn't guarantee that the full savings will be passed on to consumers, who have been paying $7,000 to $8,000 per year for full doses of the drug.

The reduction cuts the price to the wholesale distributor from $1.50 to $1.20 per capsule.

A patient now paying almost $8,000 a year for a high-dose, 12 capsule-a-day prescription of AZT would pay more than $6,500 a year with the lower price.

AIDS drug promising for children

HOUSTON (AP) — Long-term studies with AZT show the AIDS drug can reverse many symptoms of the disease in children while avoiding side effects, researchers say.

The drug previously has been shown to extend the lives of adults with AIDS and to delay the development of symptoms in those who are infected but not yet sick.

A year ago, National Cancer Institute scientists reported it could prevent brain abnormalities in children, but concerns about its side effects remained.

The most extensive study of AZT in children now shows it is safe, helps children gain weight and avoid life-threatening infections, and improves their well-being, says Ross McKinney of Duke University in North Carolina.

The study, part of a National Institutes of Health project to assess AZT in children, was reported Monday at a meeting of the American Society for Microbiology.

In other studies reported here, National Cancer Institute researchers said they had obtained promising initial results with two newer AIDS drugs, called ddI and ddC.

The drugs helped restore some brain function to a few children out of several dozen tested, without causing dangerous side effects, said Dr. Philip Pizzo, the institute's chief of pediatrics.

A 32-month-old boy who had lost the ability to stand and walk and was losing his speech — all because of an AIDS infection in the brain — stood, began walking with help and began to speak more clearly after being given ddI, said Dr. Karina Butler of the cancer institute.

About one-third of the children given ddI and ddC showed signs that their AIDS-damaged immune systems were at least partially restored.

Furthermore, both the new drugs seem to work well in combination with AZT, said Pizzo.

"That seems to us to be an area worthy of study," he said. "We're on the lookout for agents that can be put into combination regimens."

The combination may, as is the case with cancer drugs, reduce side effects while increasing efficacy, Pizzo explained. One child in the study, for example, could not tolerate regular doses of AZT without serious side effects but is now doing well on an alternating combination of AZT and ddC.

Twelve of 35 children required blood transfusions to counteract anemia caused by AZT's toxic effects on their bone marrow, McKinney said. Some also showed low white blood cell counts. But those side effects were considered manageable.

Only five of the patients developed the so-called opportunistic infections that often kill AIDS patients.

The children ranged from 5 months to 13 years old. Ten were younger than age 2. "It's looking more and more that that's who's going to be getting it among kids," McKinney said.

Giving it to children early may delay the development of serious brain disorders, which occur in about 80 percent of children with AIDS, McKinney said.

Determining when to give AZT to children will be difficult, however, because studies have shown that AIDS can be quite different in children and adults, McKinney said.

Mrs. Bush's visit stresses education

First lady Barbara Bush's visit to Midland on Monday should truly help signify the important ranking that education occupies in the Bush administration and even the Bush White House. The impression it imparts certainly is worthwhile.

While it's true that the years George and Barbara Bush spent in Midland during the 1940's and 1950's undeniably left them with a special fondness for the community and its people — and those ties alone would justify a stopover by the first lady on the occasion of the dedication of an elementary school bearing her husband's name — there are other qualifying factors involved in Mrs. Bush's welcome visit.

George Bush competed for the office he now holds on the promise of making education his administration's top priority. He said that he wants to be remembered as "the education president" — not a bad choice considering all the attention focused on declining quality in the nation's schools in the past few years. Education is, after all, the promise of future generations in a society so inextricably linked to technological advancement as ours and any emphasis the Bushes can bring to improving education can only help the nation.

Additionally, Mrs. Bush has been affiliated for years with the national campaign for adult literacy and, as such, has been able to focus the national spotlight on the need in that area.

Yet those reasons, though denoting the importance the Bushes attach to education, do not make the point as graphically as does Mrs. Bush's visit to Bush Elementary School. Her presence at the school's dedication Monday afternoon, in addition to asserting that Midland has a special link to the George Bush presidency, should make it clear to the nation that George and Barbara Bush are well aware of the role that the nation's elementary schools play in the educational health of our young people.

U.S. formulating new policy for Soviet Jews

How can the Bush administration turn so heartlessly against Soviet Jews yearning for freedom? "Heartlessly" does not, at first, seem too strong — not when Jewel Lafontant, the administration's refugee coordinator, tells Congress, so what if the United States doesn't admit them; they can "always go to Israel or return to Russia."

But the administration's policy is more hospitable than Ms. Lafontant's callous words. Soviet Jews were long regarded as refugees by definition: They could demonstrate "a well-founded fear of persecution."

Now that Mikhail Gorbachev is letting many more of them leave and now that they are less likely to face persecution if they stay, it is no longer obvious that they are entitled to come to this country as refugees.

The remedy is to escape the emotional grip of the word "refugee," with all its legal obligations. The Bush administration is trying to do that. But it and Congress now need to figure out how to accommodate more Soviet emigres while dealing decently with persecuted people elsewhere.

The administration wants to let in only 6,500 more Soviet refugees in 1990 than in 1989, even though many more want in. The administration also opposes bills to make it easier for Soviet Jews and evangelical Christians to qualify as refugees. Yet no one wants to deny entry to Soviet Jews.

Humane hospitality calls for admitting more emigres — but not necessarily as refugees. Many might be more appropriately accommodated by an administration proposal to issue up to 30,000 "special humanitarian visas" a year.

Under administration proposals as many as 100,000 Soviet citizens, most of them Jews, would enter the United States next year: 50,000 as refugees, 20,000 as immigrants and the rest under the new visas.

Only those formally designated as refugees are eligible for public assistance. As many as 14 million people around the world could so qualify. But tight budgets make for tough choices. For the $7,000 on average that it costs to assist each refugee who resettles here, the United States could help hundreds of refugees in Africa and Asia.

Until a year ago, Soviet Jews and evangelical Christians were presumed to be refugees. Then the U.S. government concluded that this blanket status was no longer appropriate for Jews and insisted on interviewing applicants one by one.

Some members of Congress proposed legislation restoring blanket refugee status. They acknowledge that religious persecution is the exception in Mikhail Gorbachev's Soviet Union. But they sense a surge in anti-Semitism under glasnost, and fear the exit door might not remain open forever.

The difficulty with that argument is there's a limit to the number of refugees the United States can accept. Granting refugee status to some people as a class would rule out accepting others with compelling claims, like Chinese students or Salvadorans.

The sensible course is to continue to admit those Soviet Jews who qualify, in case-by-case interviews, as refugees. The administration will now expedite that interviewing.

Meanwhile, the backlog of 17,000 Jews now waiting in Vienna and Rome could be cleared up by issuing them the new special visas, if private sponsorship can be arranged. They would be eligible for citizenship.

Not all Soviet emigres who want to come can be accommodated as refugees. But there are other ways, more worthy of urgent congressional support, to open the door.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, September 19, the 262nd day of 1989. There are 103 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On September 19, 1796, President George Washington's farewell address was published. In it, the first chief executive of the United States advised, "Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all."

On this date:

In 1777, American soldiers in the Revolutionary War won the first Battle of Saratoga over the British.

In 1783, Jacques Etienne Montgolfier launched a duck, a sheep and a rooster aboard a hot-air balloon at Versailles in France. They were the first animals to go aloft in a man-made craft.

In 1881, the 20th president of the United States, James A. Garfield, died of wounds inflicted by an assassin 11 weeks earlier.

In 1906, at the annual dinner of The Associated Press in New York, guest of honor Mark Twain said there were "only two forces that can carry light to all the corners of the globe ... the sun in the heavens and The Associated Press down here."

River diversion could be catastrophic

ON THE VOLGA RIVER, U.S.S.R. — Secret Soviet plans to revive this shrinking river could have catastrophic effects on the climate of the world, according to highly classified Central Intelligence Agency reports.

Jack Anderson

The Soviets are not deliberately planning to harm the delicate balance of the Earth, but the words "environmental impact statement" never cross the Soviet mind.

Since the time of the czars, the Russians have toyed with the idea of diverting their rivers to make up for a "mistake" of nature. The tilt of the Soviet Union's land mass in the north causes more than four-fifths of its fresh water to flow north into the Arctic Ocean instead to south where it can irrigate crops.

The Volga, the longest river in Europe, flows into the southern heartland where three-fourths of the Soviet people live and four-fifths of its agriculture and industry are based.

As long ago as 1830, an early surveyor named Alexander Shrenk first proposed diverting the north-flowing Pechora into the Volga to increase the amount of water going south. For almost as long as the Soviets have been toying with the idea, U.S. intelligence has been secretly critiquing the plans. We have examined a dozen CIA reports on Soviet river diversion schemes.

They say that the diversion of the Pechora would be nothing short of catastrophic. Granted, the Volga needs the water. Soviet irrigation has diminished its flow and shrunken the Caspian Sea, which it feeds. But the rivers that now flow north do more than just dump wasted water into the Arctic Ocean. They feed the icecap. "Only a very delicate balance of nature keeps the icecap alive, and to this end the continued inflow of fresh water is essential," one secret CIA report says. "The fundamental concern is with the potential diminution or elimination of the icecap, either of which might cause catastrophic modifications of weather systems and shorelines around the world."

No one can accurately predict what a Soviet diversion project would do — whether it would cause a global temperature change or simply deprive other countries of rain.

If the CIA and its scientists can't predict what will happen, you can bet the Soviets don't know. Their primitive computers force Soviet climatologists to "keep their models as simple as possible," the CIA reports say. And it isn't clear that the environmentally obtuse Soviets would be deterred.

The late Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev came the closest to implementing one of these disastrous schemes. He approved the diversion of the Pechora, the Onega and the Northern Dvina rivers into the Volga and committed $40 billion.

In spite of their grandiose schemes, the Soviets fortunately have lacked the will, the means and the political longevity of leaders to go ahead with any of the diversions. Desperation and demographics could cause Mikhail Gorbachev to change that.

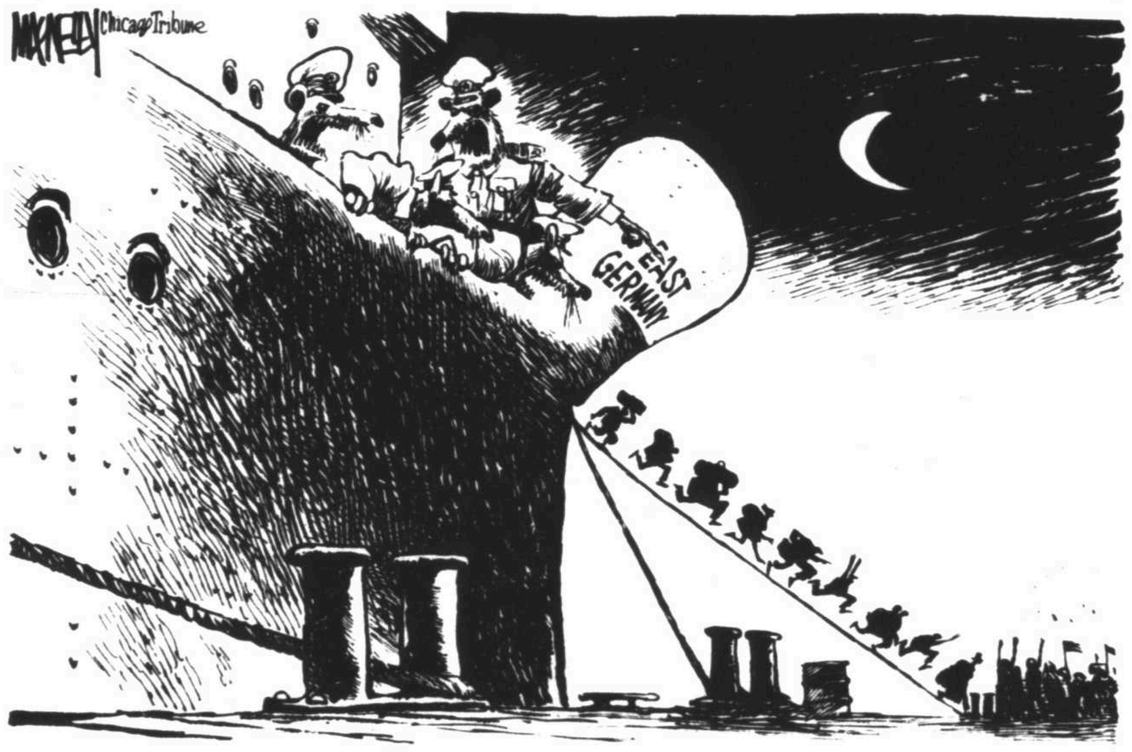

For his perestroika to succeed, Gorbachev could use some restructuring of the Soviet geography. One CIA report says the diversion of the Pechora River would stabilize the level of the Caspian Sea and do wonders for the drinkability of the grossly polluted Volga. Farming and fishing would thrive. And the Soviets could also produce 11 billion more kilowatt hours a year at existing hydroelectric power plants.

It would be a short-lived heyday in environmental terms, but the Soviets don't win any prizes for thinking in environmental terms.

COCAINE TERRORISM — Assassination has been the speciality of the Medellin cocaine cartel of Colombia. But some of the terrorists hired by the cartel to do its dirty work are equally adept at strikes against the infrastructure. The Shining Path terrorists who protect the cartel's coca crop in Peru have blown up electrical transformers to plunge Peruvian cities into darkness. Our sources say if the cartel really wanted to put the squeeze on the United States, it could easily attack bridges, highways, tunnels and utilities that serve major U.S. cities.

CHARLEY REESE

Reaction to presidential speeches bad practice

The practice of Democratic spokesmen following a televised presidential speech with a speech of their own should stop. Whether networks or Democrats or both are responsible, I don't know. It's a bad practice.

Charley Reese

First, George Bush is not president of the Republicans. He's the president of all Americans and he has the right to speak to them without having a party hack make a rebuttal.

To have a member of the opposite party always follow a presidential speech makes whatever he's spoken about partisan whether the president wished it to be or not. If the president's speech is not partisan, then why does the opposite party demand TV time to answer it?

This practice, which might be excusable during a campaign, contributes to the difficulties we have in this country in forming a consensus. It contributes to the already poisonous partisan air that sits over Congress like smog over Los Angeles.

TV networks simply should make a judgment call. If it's not during the campaign season, they should tell the Democrats — or Republicans if the situation is reversed and there is a Democratic president — no, you can't have free time to rebut our national leader. This isn't a campaign and he isn't going to make a campaign speech. If you wish to react to his speech, call a press conference and our news department will handle it.

None of us, either Republican or Democrat or whatever, should minimize the importance in a democracy of the one official elected nationally having a fair shot at rallying the people behind his programs. How effective would Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats have been if the radio networks had provided time for a Republican rebuttal immediately after each one?

The president of this republic is intended by the Constitution to be the national spokesman. Congress has its role to play. And it is in Congress where the party out of the White House can provide its input and alternative proposals.

But to suppose that everytime a president addresses the American people on any issue, this must be immediately followed by a partisan rebuttal is to trivialize the whole process of democratic government. It reduces every word spoken to a partisan scheme.

I've criticized Bush often and no doubt will feel compelled to do so again, but he has tried to be less partisan. Democrats, like scorned women, have not reciprocated. Most of them seem unable to open their mouthes without making a partisan speech.

Well, campaigns are tiresome enough without these mugs making them perpetual by mouthing a campaign speech on every issue every day of every year. Haven't any of them ever heard of the idea of leadership or statesmanship? Are they so ignorant that they don't know that in between campaigns they are supposed to govern, not posture?

The media bear a share of the blame. If journalists treat every utterance as merely a partisan speech, then naturally they will go to the opposite party for a reaction. This would not be the first instance where we journalists helped create problems we editorialize against.

If our system is to work — and remember, even under ideal conditions democracies are less efficient than dictatorships — then all of us have to forget party labels at least between elections. We need to let our representatives and senators know that we expect them to put partisanship aside at least on the major issues. It's one thing to play partisan games on minor matters but quite another to do it at the expense of vital issues like defense or dealing with the drug war.

PEGGY ROBERSON

Jim Lehrer has passion for bus memorabilia

WASHINGTON — Jim Lehrer, the former Texas newsman who juggles two careers — co-anchor of the nationally televised MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour and novelist — took time on a recent busy morning to talk about his hobby, collecting bus memorabilia.

Peggy Roberson

His latest acquisition is "kind of a big toy" — a 23-passenger 1946 Fixible Clipper that he found in mint condition in Tennessee.

"I had a lot of nostalgic reasons for wanting it," Lehrer confided. Lending credibility to the old saying that "the difference between men and boys is the price of their toys," Lehrer, 55, grinned and said he was going to "play with it."

Other bus souvenirs, faded framed pictures, ceramic figurines of greyhounds, a ticket machine and signs, crowd his office in Arlington, Va., and a special room in his Bethesda, Md., home. It brings back fond childhood memories.

When Lehrer was little he thought he might become a bus depot manager like his father, Fred Lehrer, who ran the Trailways operations in Beaumont, San Antonio and Victoria over three decades before his death in 1971.

Then, at French High School in Beaumont, an English teacher complimented him on an essay he had written on Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities."

That encouragement led to assignments on the school newspaper, and the start of a lifelong commitment to news. His path took him to the University of Missouri's renowned journalism school, then to the Dallas Morning News, the Dallas Times Herald, public television station KERA-TV in Dallas, and to the Public Broadcasting Service here.

"I also was very interested in athletics," said Lehrer, recalling his high school years in Beaumont. "But I was very small (now 5 feet 9 inches tall, 160 pounds) and not terribly good at sports."

So Lehrer chose to write about sports instead.

"I decided I was going to be a sports writer and also decided that I wanted to write fiction and I have never deviated from that goal."

Later, when his family moved to San Antonio, Lehrer edited Jefferson High School's student newspaper.

Lehrer never wrote sports news professionally.

From college he went to the Marine Corps for three years before joining the Dallas Morning News as a political reporter in 1959.

He won several awards for stories on alleged Communists in Texas and he reported on the John Birch Society, with no editorial resistance. But he ran into trouble when he wrote a series on a civil defense organization that was spreading right-wing propaganda. Furious because the editors refused to publish the stories, Lehrer said he "walked out and never went back."

The rival Dallas Times-Herald hired him immediately, prompting Lehrer to believe that he had "marketable skills" and that he could set limits on what he would and would not do.

Since then, Lehrer has been a risk taker, a quality he admires in Texans and Oklahomans who populate his novels.

In the fall of 1983, just after Lehrer, who works out of WETA in Washington, and Robert MacNeil, at WNET in New York, had expanded their news report from 30 minutes to an hour, Lehrer had a heart attack.

"I didn't know how much longer I had to live and I knew I had to get back to writing fiction," he said. Recovering from the heart attack and double-bypass heart surgery, he decided to do less television.

While recuperating, he tried his hand at play writing, encouraged by his friend Eudora Welty, the Mississippi novelist. Several of his plays have been staged to mixed reviews. "Chili Queen" had a brief run at the Kennedy Center's Terrace Theater in Washington.

Before coming to Washington he had written "Viva Max!," a tale about a Mexican general who tries to retake the Alamo. He got $45,000 for the movie rights and it was made into an unsuccessful motion picture in San Antonio.

Today the award-winning journalist — he has more than 30 awards, including an Emmy he shared with MacNeil for their coverage of the Senate Watergate hearings — is in a position to pick and choose his projects. He and MacNeil, who is one of his best friends as well as his partner, formed a production company that produces the NewsHour and other special projects.

After the heart attack, Lehrer says, "I do not do things I do not want to do, receptions and parties, whatever."

He turns down business lunches, opting for a sandwich at his desk, naps for an hour, exercises regularly and avoids cigarettes and caffeine.

Mornings are reserved for the administrative side of his work. Then at 2 p.m. he starts writing for the NewsHour. When he gets home, he has time for a couple of hours at a word processor before he goes to bed at 11.

Lehrer's wife, Kate Tom, a former Dallas junior high school teacher, also is a novelist. They have three daughters: Jamie Lehrer O'Brien, the mother of a 2-year-old girl and a 5-month-old boy, who lives in London; Lucy, a former NBC-TV staffer who quit to go to Paris and write novels; and Amanda, who graduated from Brown University in the spring and is now working for a foundation in South Africa that helps young blacks start their own businesses.

Teen surrenders after taking students hostage

McKEE, Ky. (AP) — A heavily armed teen-ager apparently acting out author Stephen King's thriller "Rage" took 11 classmates hostage during a daylong standoff that ended with his surrender after nine hours, authorities said.

No injuries were reported.

Dustin Pierce, a 17-year-old, straight-A student, was detained by police Monday evening after he released his last two hostages, laid down three guns and surrendered.

Charges were not immediately filed.

A copy of "Rage" and some personal writings found in Pierce's room at his grandparent's house were helpful in giving negotiators clues to what he planned, said state police Detective Bob Stephens, who negotiated with Pierce.

Stephens said he had been worried by parts of Pierce's writing that indicated "suicide was what we'd have to deal with at the end."

In King's novel, a teen-ager enraged at his father takes hostages at a school, is shot and wounded by police and ends up in an institution.

Like the character in the book, Pierce was upset with his father, whom he had not seen for 13 years, and asked to see him, authorities said.

Police arranged to have the father, whose name was not released, brought from Delray Beach, Fla., but Pierce surrendered before his arrival.

The trouble appears to have begun Sunday evening when Pierce's friend Brian Bond picked him up at his grandparents' house so the two could study together, said Paul Bond, Brian's uncle.

When it became late and they had not returned, authorities were called and began searching for Bond's red pickup truck.

The standoff began around 9:30 a.m. Monday, when Pierce and Bond roared into the high school parking lot aboard the truck.

Authorities said that at some point during the disappearance Pierce pointed a gun at Bond, in effect abducting him.

Bond, the son of high school principal Betty Bond, was the first hostage released.

Craig Eversole, a 16-year-old junior, was in the classroom when Pierce entered.

"He shot the ceiling and told the teacher to leave and let two rows of students leave," Eversole said. Later, Pierce fired his only other shot, blowing out a classroom window.

Throughout the day, Stephens traded food, cigarettes and soft drinks for hostages.

Stephens said Pierce was solicitous of his hostages, asking for cigarettes on their behalf and even releasing one who needed to go to the bathroom.

"He said he wasn't going to hurt nobody," Eversole said.

Transcript shows United pilots' disagreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pilots of United Airlines Flight 232 disagreed over how best to control their crippled airliner seconds before it crash-landed at an Iowa airport, according to a transcript of cockpit conversation.

The transcript shows Capt. Albert Haynes of United Flight 232 called for left turns, right turns and a cut in power within the final 20 seconds before the DC-10 cartwheeled and exploded in flames at Sioux City on July 19, killing 112 people.

But trainer pilot Dennis Fitch told Haynes that closing the throttles would take away the ability to steer the plane, according to the transcript released Monday by the National Transportation Safety Board. A report accompanying the transcript said Haynes believes he added power "just prior to contact with the ground."

Haynes, Fitch and two other pilots in the cockpit have been widely praised for bringing the jetliner down with no greater loss of life after one of its three engines exploded, severing all hydraulic flight controls.

The cockpit crew and 180 people survived the crash.

The transcript shows that just 15 seconds before impact, Haynes and First Officer William R. Records called for Fitch to "close off" both throttles.

But Fitch, who had been called into the cockpit from the passenger section to assist the airliner's three-man crew, replied, "Nah, I can't pull 'em off or we'll lose it. That's what's turnin' ya."

Fitch had been steering the plane by selectively applying power to its two wing engines after its tail-mounted third engine apparently threw out parts that severed hydraulic lines in its tail.

The DC-10's builder, McDonnell Douglas, last week announced changes in the design of its planes' hydraulic systems that James B. Busey, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, said would ensure similar hydraulic failure would not occur again.

John M. Martin, inspector for the FAA assisting in the NTSB investigation, said the plane's remaining two engines were operating when it hit. He said there were no apparent conflicts in statements flight crew members made to investigators about the landing, but acknowledged there was disagreement in the flight's final seconds over cutting back power.

Haynes' order to "close off" the throttles was to put the engines in idle, not to shut them down completely, Martin said.

The cockpit tape, on a loop that records over itself after about a half-hour, covers only the final 33 minutes and 34 seconds of the flight. The tape does not include the sound of the engine failure on the Denver-Chicago flight or pilot conversation over the next 10 minutes.

The safety board last month released transcripts of the plane's communication with the ground, but had not previously included sounds picked up by the cockpit microphone.

"Ease the power back," Haynes told Fitch a few seconds before impact.

"Maybe you can pull 'em all the way off," suggested First Officer William R. Records.

Haynes then called for left turns and said, "Close the throttles." After a few seconds, he called for a right turn and again said, "Close the throttles."

But Fitch declined.

The board provided no analysis of the taped conversation.

NATION IN BRIEF

Reports of Yeltsin's drunkenness denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American who sponsored Boris N. Yeltsin's tour of America strongly denies accusations published by a Soviet newspaper that the Communist Party maverick was publicly drunk for much of the trip.

"If there was any problem with Yeltsin, it was jet lag," said Jim Garrison, executive director of the Esalen Institute Soviet-American Exchange Program, which sponsored the nine-day, 11-city tour. "Most of the time he was cold sober."

Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee, on Monday reprinted an article from the Italian newspaper La Republica saying Yeltsin was repeatedly drunk during the tour and squandered his lecture fees shopping.

Yeltsin "leaves behind him a wake of catastrophic prophecies, insane expenses, interviews, and above all the perfume of Jack Daniels Black label," said the article, translated into Russian.

Pravda did not comment on the article, but advertised it in a front-page box that said Yeltsin found the United States "a holiday, a stage, a bar 5,000 kilometers long."

Yeltsin, interviewed as he arrived back in Moscow from the trip, called the report "garbage."

"It's a simple lie, slander and revenge for the fact that Americans received us with admiration," he said, flushing with anger.

HUD asks for reversal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Department of Housing and Urban Development officials are asking Congress to reverse a court decision they say could cost the government more than the $2 billion pricetag put on past agency abuses.

The request came Monday at a Senate Banking Committee hearing at which deputies to HUD Secretary Jack Kemp also promised to permanently flush politics out of the selection process for HUD's abuse-riddled Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation program.

It was the first HUD-related hearing by the Senate panel since Congress returned earlier this month from a month-long recess.

Chairman Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said the panel planned to call all of the major players in the Reagan-era abuses at HUD, an indication the Senate would seek to match an exhaustive investigation being conducted by a House subcommittee.

During prior testimony, Kemp agreed with a congressman's $2 billion "ballpark" estimate of the cost to taxpayers of the influnce-peddling, fraud and mismanagement in HUD programs during the eight-year tenure of former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce.

Quayle: Job isn't complete

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle stopped in Alaska on Monday and reassured officials that cleanup work is not over on the oil-smeared beaches of Prince William Sound.

"The job is not complete," Quayle said during a brief refueling stop en route to Korea, Japan and the Philippines. "You have our assurance that we will stay until the job is complete."

Quayle was referring to the Coast Guard's role as federal coordinator in Valdez. Coast Guard Commandant Paul Yost has been monitoring Exxon's cleanup work since three weeks after the March 24 wreck of the tanker Exxon Valdez.

The tanker spilled nearly 11 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound after slamming into a reef, resulting in the nation's worst oil spill.

Exxon declared its summer cleanup finished on Friday. The company said dwindling sunlight and deteriorating weather made further work this year unsafe.

Rocky Flats pact reached

DENVER (AP) — Federal energy and environmental officials announced an agreement Monday for handling wastes from the federal Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant, an issue that had threatened to close the plant.

Energy Secretary James Watkins said the agreement, also involving officials from Colorado, shows the Department of Energy's commitment to follow the nation's environmental laws.

"This agreement is a first in what will be a series of steps to refocus our priorities on environmental compliance," he said in a statement issued in Denver.

The problem arose because of concern by officials for DOE and Rockwell International Corp., which runs the plant for DOE, about their personal liability for the plant's failure to follow environmental laws by storing the mixed wastes at the plant.

Woman stabs attacker

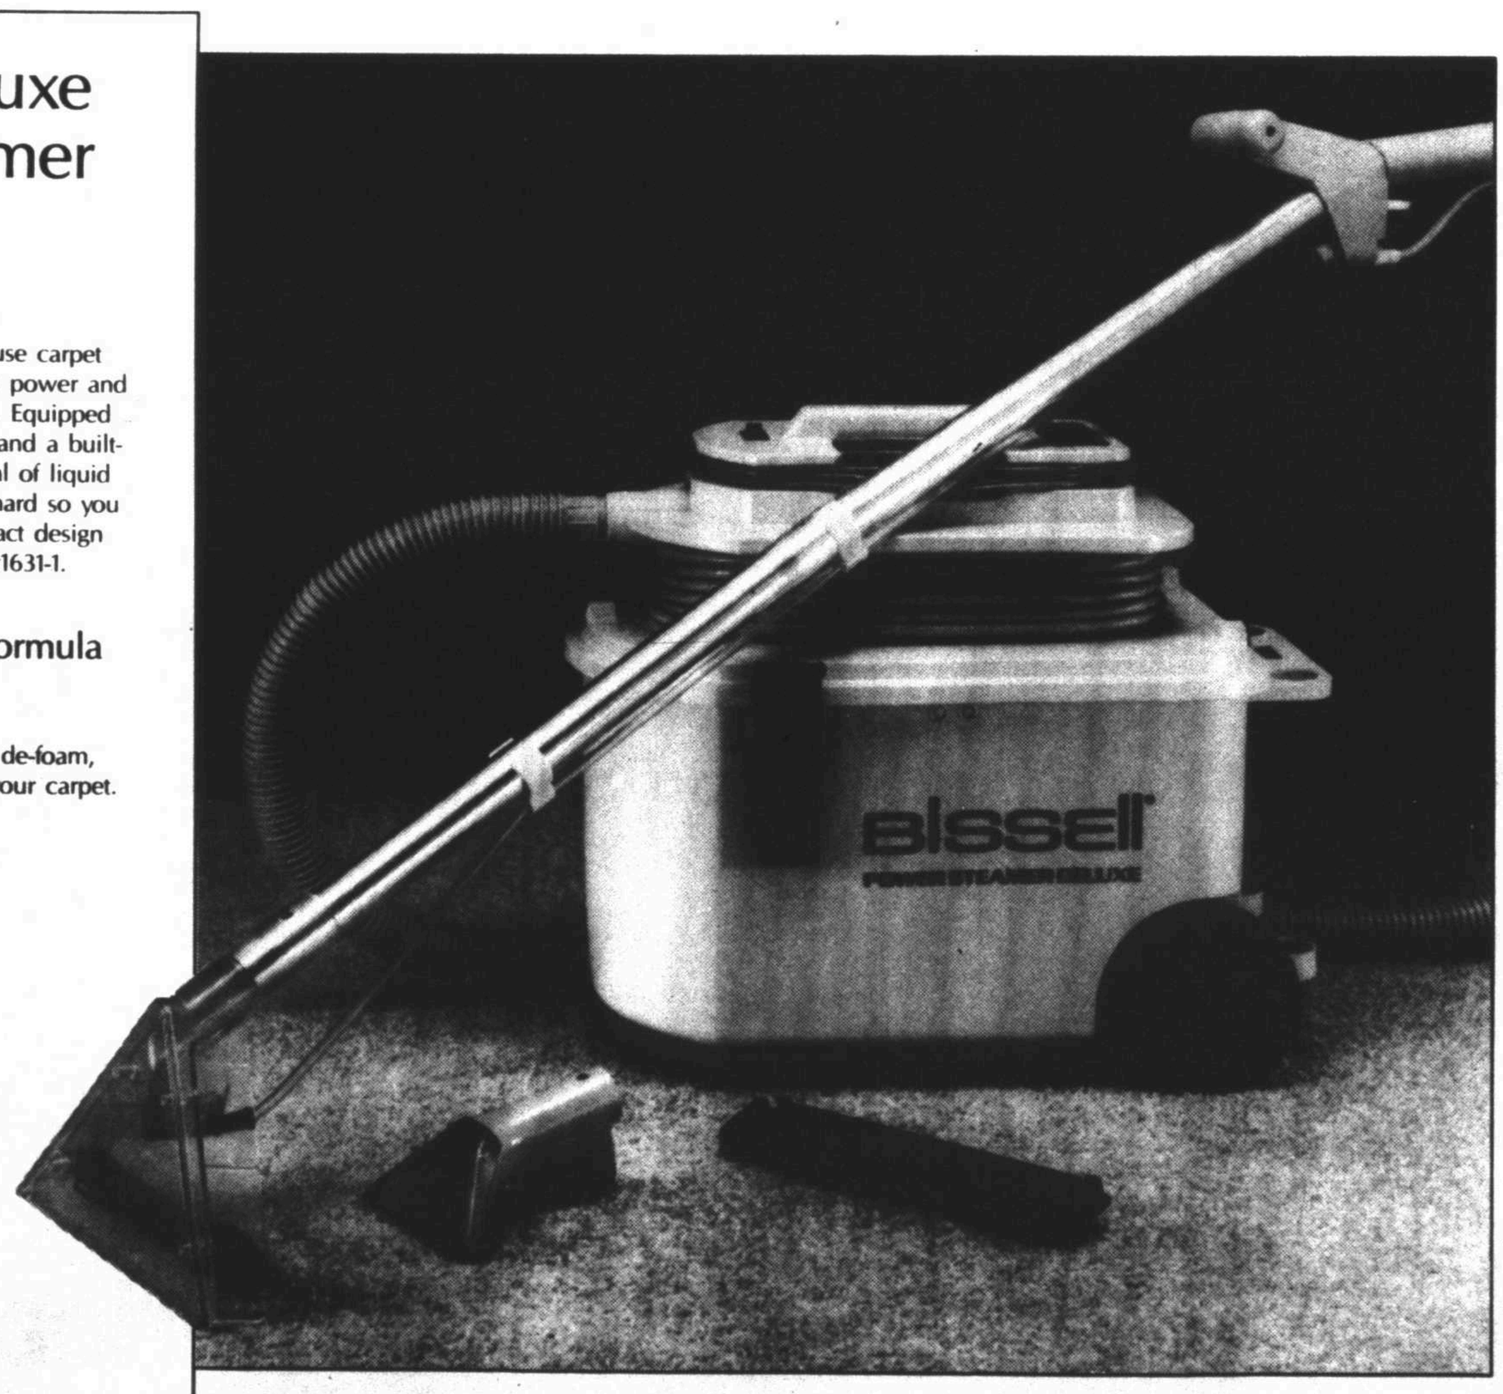

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A woman who was stabbed a half-inch from her heart plucked the knife out of her chest and stabbed the fleeing assailant in the back, police said.

The attacker got away, said police, who checked with hospitals to see if he sought treatment.

Tammis K. Groft, 37, was in critical condition this morning at Albany Medical Center Hospital. She was stabbed Sunday night in her house in Albany's fashionable Center Square neighborhood.

Police said the attacker had to climb a series of fences, some as high as 12 feet, to reach the window he used to enter the house.

Lawman designs flag for deaf bike riders

Sartor takes idea to state commission

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Ron Sartor recalls the bicycle safety class he taught last school year at Emerson Elementary, where Midland's hearing-impaired students are instructed.

"I was explaining to the kids in the hearing-impaired class that if they use this safety flag on their bikes, when they pass in between cars or something, a driver can see them and honk the horn," he said, recalling the moment a bit sheepishly. "They said that's great, but we can't hear the horn."

But thanks to Sartor, hearing-impaired children in the Permian Basin now may be able to bike around area streets without worrying about the world they can't hear — as long as motorists are on the lookout.

Sartor left the class wondering what he could do to help the children. He made a trip to Midland International Airport, where he spotted the international hearing-impaired symbol on a special telephone. Then he got to work.

He designed a unique flag with the symbol on it, then trekked to the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring. The feedback there was "totally positive," Sartor said.

"I wanted to make contact with the deaf community," he said. "I wanted to ask their opinion. It is important that I point out the purpose of this is not to target a child as hearing-impaired. We are trying to educate the people out there that these children are special, with special needs."

Vicky McWilliams, who teaches primary grades for the hearing impaired at Emerson, said students there have hearing losses ranging from mild to the "profoundly deaf."

Doug Sehres/Reporter-Telegram

Midland police Officer Ron Sartor hands out bike flags to hearing-impaired children at Emerson Elementary School. Shamick Hall, 9, was one of the first to receive the signs, which Sartor designed. At the lower left is a sign that has been proposed for the school zone near Emerson.

So far, no accidents have been attributed to the students' lack of hearing, she said.

"The children come on a bus, and the driver pulls up to the curb," Ms. McWilliams said. "But parents of the other children pull in front of that bus, and behind it, and they have no idea those kids can't hear. So far we have been very lucky. We try and stress to them always to be on their guard, to be looking out."

Ms. McWilliams wondered aloud why a special bike safety flag wasn't designed earlier. Sartor's design is believed to be the first of its kind in the country.

"I don't know why something wasn't done," she said. "It probably would have taken some kind of accident before anything would have happened."

At first, teachers were worried that the children were less than enthusiastic about the flags.

"We were worried about the stigma it might have," Ms. McWilliams said. "A lot of them don't want to say 'I'm deaf.' But now they are very excited about the flags."

On Monday, Sartor traveled to Austin and appeared before the Texas Commission on the Deaf. He presented to the commission a slide presentation of the area around Emerson, in an attempt to persuade officials that the symbol should also be adopted for use in school zones.

Sartor said he was pleased at the commission's response.

"The commission was enthused," he said. "We were successful. We did sell the program. They would like to see it promoted at a statewide level. They are willing to work with us."

Sartor also took a stack of questionnaires he received from parents of Emerson students and students and instructors at the SWCID. Out of dozens of forms returned to him, he only received one negative comment.

One woman wrote the hearing-impaired children should only be allowed to ride on bicycle paths, Sartor said.

The Midland Police Crime Prevention Unit has 125 flags, manufactured in Midland for $3.50 each and donated by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. There is no charge to citizens for the flags.

Sartor and crime prevention Sgt. Lalo Camarillo aren't through with the program. Both would like the flags used by hearing-impaired senior citizens, who sometimes travel in electric carts.

Eventually, they would like the symbol included in the Department of Public Safety Driver's Handbook, so that during drivers' education students would be taught what the sign means.

The flags likely will be distributed through regional state offices, such as Odessa's Regional Day School Program for the Deaf, Sartor said.

Designer drug 'ice' not yet encountered in Basin

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Drug experts fear it may replace crack at the top of the narcotics hit parade. It is not mentioned in the 140-page National Drug Strategy unveiled by President Bush two weeks ago.

Even more alarming, experts say, is the fact it can be manufactured anywhere.

It is known as "ice" because of its smooth appearance, but beyond the cool moniker is a deadly form of methamphetamine, or "speed."

"We have heard of it, and know what it is, and expect it to come to Midland," said Lt. Hank Norton, head of intelligence for the Midland Police Department.

Ice, which is smoked instead of injected with a hypodermic needle, began appearing in the Hawaiian islands about 18 months ago. So far this year, police have recorded 400 ice-related arrests in Honolulu alone.

It is attractive to users because it produces a much longer period of euphoria than crack, a rock-like cocaine derivative that is also smoked.

The drug can be made cheaply and easily in this country in the same illegal laboratories that now make speed, the powdered form of methamphetamine. "Meth" is a synthetic stimulant of the nervous system that is a form of amphetamine.

"There is an urgent need to stop the flow of cocaine from overseas, but there are plenty of dangerous drugs that are made in the U.S.A.," said Donald Hamilton, spokesman for William Bennett, the federal drug policy director. "Experts are warning us that smokable methamphetamine will be the drug plague of the 1990s."

And James N. Hall, the executive director of Up Front Drug Information Center in Miami, a nonprofit research foundation, agreed, saying: "Drugs from clandestine labs will demand attention because the United States is becoming a big producer of drugs. In the 1990s, most drugs used in America will be made in America."

Norton, who also heads the Midland police narcotics division, said ice is a form of "designer drug," and is expensive: $200 to $250 per rock.

"There are some claims it is here in West Texas, but we have not encountered it," said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter. "They keep coming up with this new stuff all of the time. Chemists are more concerned with the illicit narcotics market because of the profit. They are going to continue to come up with new and different stuff to make money."

Painter said the popularity of ice is another example that drugs are becoming "harder."

"People are just going to have to wake up," he said. "Things (in the drug trade) are not easing up. The drugs are becoming harder, and harder on the body."

Ice will be in West Texas eventually, according to the sheriff.

"I'm sure we will be seeing it. If it is dope, we will get it," he said.

But it may be several years before the drug reaches Texas, according to Art Van Dorn, former commander of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

State officials will organize office to regulate aquaculture

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State officials Monday will go ahead with plans to organize a Texas aquaculture office while they seek restoration of money Gov. Bill Clements vetoed from the Texas Department of Agriculture budget for regulation of fish and shrimp farms.

A three-member executive committee that includes the agriculture commissioner, land commissioner and parks & wildlife chairman agreed Monday to chip in $275,000 from their budgets over the next two years to staff the aquaculture liaison office, which will coordinate efforts of the three agencies to promote the fledgling industry.

But Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, chairman of the aquaculture executive committee, said he hoped the lost $373,000, part of $3 million cut out of his budget in a "political whack" by Clements, could be restored in the planned November special session.

The fish farming program eventually is expected to be self-supporting from fees, but it is projected to generate only $46,000 in the next two years, Hightower said.

Mike Toomey, the governor's chief of staff, said Clements had to veto the aquaculture appropriation because he had problems with other appropriations in the same "rider."

"As I recall, aquaculture was not the reason for the veto," Toomey said, but Clements has not decided whether to put the aquaculture appropriation on the special session agenda, since it might open the call to other budget issues.

In the meantime the Parks & Wildlife Department will continue to regulate fish farming, although the Legislature transferred that authority to Hightower's agency this past spring. "We're loaning our authority to them," Hightower said.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, author of Senate Bill 1507 that set up the aquaculture coordinator, believes the state can help make fish farming a billion-dollar industry within five to seven years. Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, was a co-sponsor in the Senate and Rep. Robert Saunders, D-La Grange, was House sponsor of the bill.

Under the new law, the Department of Agriculture will issue permits and regulate fish farming. The General Land Office will help develop the industry as a source of revenue for four million acres of submerged land along the Gulf Coast. The Parks & Wildlife Department will continue to regulate exotic species that could threaten wildlife.

The committee also approved a job description for the liaison officer, who will be paid up to $58,000 a year to work with bankers, developers, state agencies and farmers to promote the industry. "It will be a major diplomatic post, I'll tell you that," said Brooks.

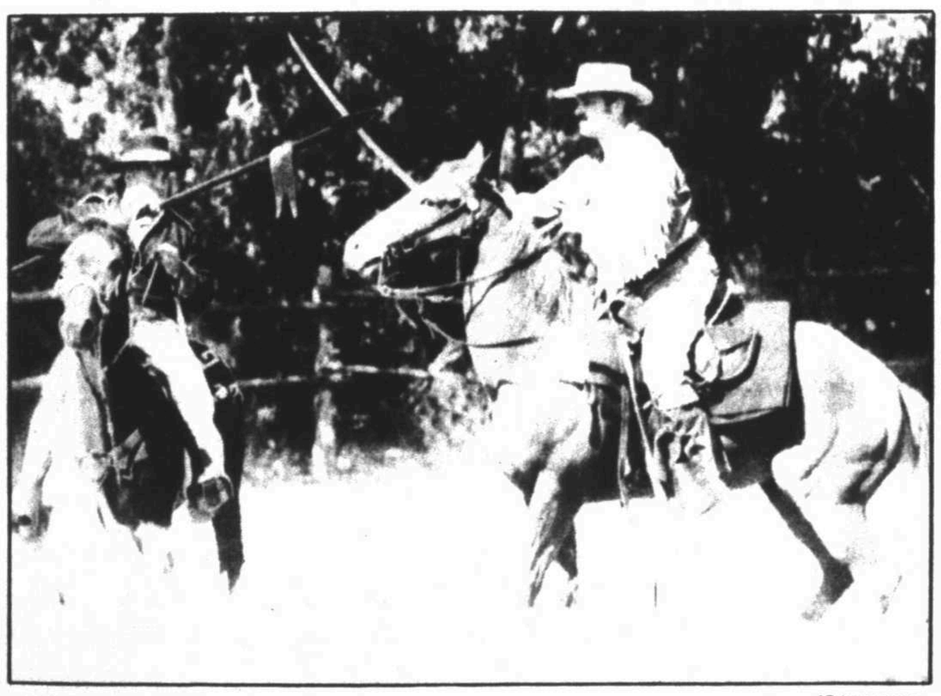

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro noted that $8.8 million worth of fish products are imported into the United States each year, ranking seafood second behind petroleum in imports that contribute to the U.S. trade deficit.

"It does catch our interest that there's an $8.8 billion industry out there that Texas doesn't have its share of," Mauro said. "We're in the oil game. We ought to be in the fish game."

The land office already has a 150-acre shrimp farm in Matagorda County that Mauro hopes will lead to development of an aquaculture industrial park there.

A farmer who was losing money feeding cattle in his 400-acre Southeast Texas ranch, experimented with raising crawfish on 40 acres, Hightower said. "He was losing money on four legs but he's making money on 10 legs," he said.

Battle re-enacted to celebrate Salado Creek's role in history

By JOHN ROSALES

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Although Sweet Thing will not spook at the sound of a cannon blast, a good saber fight is what highlights her skill as a battle horse.

"It takes a good horse and a high degree of horsemanship to participate in one of these re-enactments," said Wayne Vick, who rode Sweet Thing at Sunday's re-enactment of the Battle of Salado Creek. "She is trained to stay calm and get real close during a saber fight, which is a real crowd pleaser."

About 150 onlookers witnessed the re-enactment of the Sept. 18, 1842, battle in which a group of Texas Rangers and some volunteer soldiers baited and then ambushed about 60 members of the Mexican army.

The event was held at the actual battle site at Holbrook just south of Eisenhauer. The grounds are owned by Black Swan Catering.

"It was the last inland invasion of Texas made by Mexico," said Vick, chairman of the Lone Star Living History Association, which supplied some of the estimated 50 riders who helped stage the event. "We didn't have enough riders to represent the actual number, but it's close."

The event was sponsored by the Salado Creek Foundation to celebrate the creek's role in the history of Texas and to create an appreciation for its unspoiled beauty, said Pic Swartz, foundation president.

Hobby blasts law limiting immigration

By RICK BROWN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby Monday blasted a federal law that seeks to limit illegal immigration from Mexico, while Comptroller Bob Bullock said the problem is best addressed with a border economic master plan.

The two state officials offered testimony to a federal commission created by the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act and chaired by a former assistant secretary of state, Diego Asencio.

The panel has been studying causes and solutions to the international migration problem, including cooperative economic development.

The law requires employers to verify their employees' American nationality and includes an amnesty clause allowing millions of previously undocumented aliens to apply for citizenship.

Hobby said the law "if enforced, would make a federal criminal out of most housewives in South Texas and make felons of most employers."

The U.S.-Mexico border presents "a unique situation in the world," he said, in which a prosperous and unprosperous country share no major geographical barrior.

"Apparently, there's some supposition that by passing some law one can restrict the flow of people and capital from the poor country to the rich country," he said. "It's not possible."

The economies of South Texas and northern Mexico "are one," he said, "and always will be.

"We should recognize that truth and rejoice in it and benefit from it, rather than concern ourselves about putting up more barbed wire fences and so forth," he said.

"My understanding is that you are not in agreement with the goals of the legislation," said a commission member, Micheal Teitelbaum of the philanthropic Alfred P. Sloan Foundation of New York.

"That is an understatement, sir," Hobby said.

Hobby had told the commissioners that an economic solution was best for the immigration problem, a sentiment that Bullock, a candidate for lieutenant governor, echoed in his testimony.

"The best way to reduce illegal immigration is to provide a healthy economy on both sides of the border," Bullock said.

UT professor develops test to identify killer bees

Hearst News Service

AUSTIN — A University of Texas professor is developing a new method, similiar to a home pregnancy test, to identify Africanized "killer" bees.

Barrie Kitto, a biochemist at the University of Texas in Austin, said he is in involved in research that will produce a test strip on which a bee can be "squashed." The strip will then be dipped into three different liquids.

"If it changes color," Kitto said, "then this means the bee is Africanized, but if it doesn't, then it's a domestic bee."

The aggressive Africanized bees are called "killer" because they attack in swarms. "They will chase and follow a person and are much more easily annoyed than domestic bees," Kitto said.

Kitto's bee detection kit should be ready by June 1990 and initially will be used by the U.S. and Texas agriculture departments to analyze the bees coming into Texas from Mexico. The bees are expected to start arriving in Brownsville by the middle of next year.

Identifying killer bees can be a problem because they look no different than domestic brown honey bees, which have been in North America for more than 300 years, Kitto said.

The only current method to distinguish between the two types of bees involves killing them and taking 25 different microscopic measurements of their legs, wings and abdomens.

Kitto, with research grants and cooperation from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has identified three proteins unique to killer bees among the more than 10,000 proteins normally found in a honey bee.

He has injected these proteins into rabbits and is waiting for them to develop antibodies. Kitto, who will use the antibodies to coat the test strip, said Texas is not ready for the bees' arrival.

"The state's ill-prepared to deal with their arrival because the funding is poor at the state level, and at the national level too little importance has been placed upon the problem," he said.

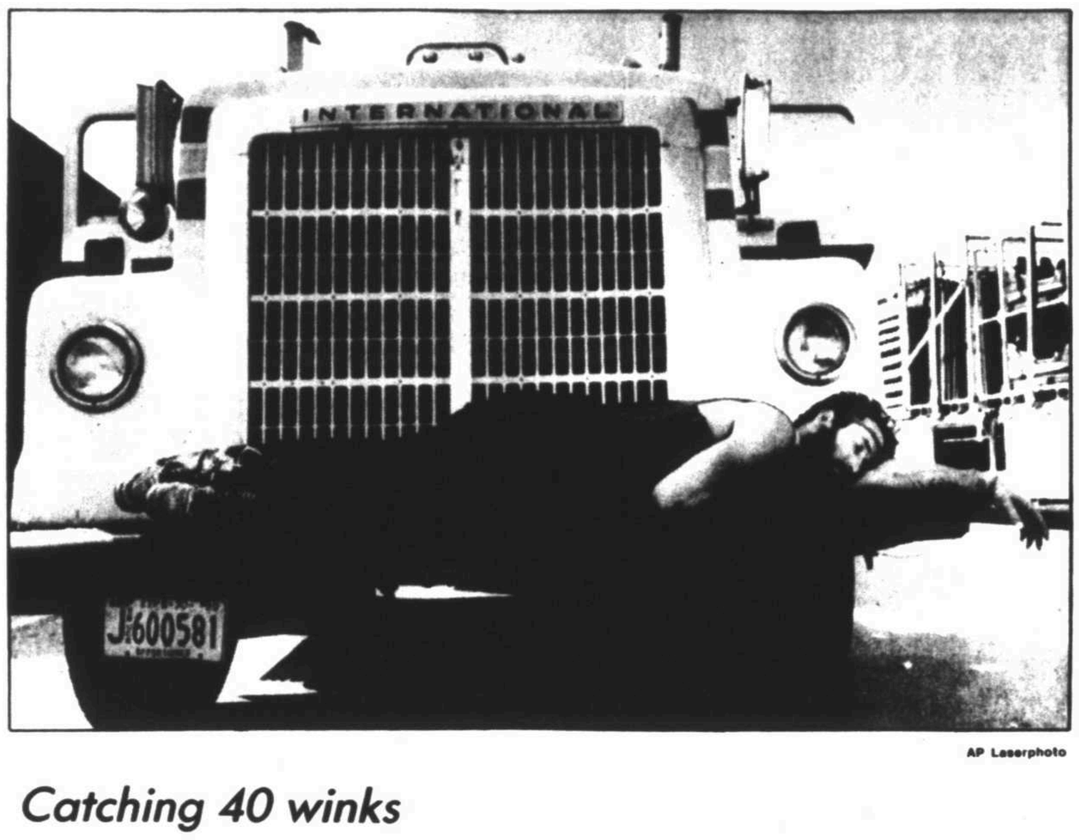

Although killer bees can cause problems for humans, they pose an even bigger threat to $800 million in crops, including citrus fruits, that are pollinated by domestic bees in Texas, Kitto said.

After Africanized bees passed through Venezuela, crop production dropped from 600 metric tons in 1975 to 100 metric tons in 1980.

Ordinarily, beekeepers place hives around a crop so the domestic bees can transfer the microspores of pollen from the male to the female part of a seed plant. However, Africanized bees interrupt this process by driving domestic bees out of their hives, forcing beekeepers to rely upon the killer bees for pollination.

This can create problems because killer bees do not stay in one place for long, and will attack workers in the field, Kitto said.

"The worst figures show Africanized bees are only half as good at pollinating as the domestic ones," he said.

Garfield toy deflects bullet fired in window

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A mysterious gunshot that crashed through a pickup was deflected by a "Garfield" toy attached to the window and injured a 5-year-old girl only slightly, police say.

Cynthia Guerrero suffered some facial cuts when the bullet was fired as her family was driving to church Sunday evening.

"While passing through the window, the bullet apparently struck the lower body of the stuffed animal, causing the bullet to change direction and minimized the injury to the child," police Sgt. John Priest wrote of the incident. The stuffed cartoon character is attached to glass by four suction cups.

Jesus Guerrero said something hit the truck and there was a loud noise as he made a turn. Then, his daughter screamed and he saw blood on her face.

Guerrero immediately drove to the hospital, where the child received four stitches for minor cuts and an injury where a bullet fragment grazed her face.

Police said the bullet is from a .22-caliber gun.

Guerrero said he thinks a neighborhood youngster might have been playing with a gun and does not believe anything malicious was intended.

ICE

"It usually takes years to get a drug to sweep the country like crack did," Van Dorn, now head of a Fort Worth-based task force, said. "We first saw crack in 1982 or '83, but it didn't get to Midland until recently.

"You don't just come out all over the country and start selling a new drug. You have to use established connections."

So far, the recipe for ice hasn't made it to the United States — but it may, soon.

"We don't know how to make it," Van Dorn said. "And we would know if they did."

The popularity of ice also may be slowed in this country because the traditional form of speed is much cheaper, and also enjoying popularity, Van Dorn said.

At present, most of the smokable crystals of methamphetamine are made in Hong Kong, Korea and the Philippines and smuggled to Hawaii by Asian drug gangs.

In addition to the epidemic in Hawaii, the arrests of sellers and users of ice are now being reported by the police in the areas of San Francisco Bay, Los Angeles, San Diego and Phoenix and in parts of central Florida, though the apprehensions in those areas are still small in number.

Law enforcement authorities and those working in drug treatment centers say that there have been no reports of the use of ice in New York City.

In Honolulu, as in cities on the mainland where crack is epidemic, medical and mental health facilities are beginning to show the strain of treating ice users.

Alma Y. Takata, the chief of the mental health division of the Hawaii State Department of Health, said Honolulu is averaging six hospital emergency room admissions a night for people being treated for symptoms caused by smoking crystal methamphetamine.

She said a survey of the 700 people who appeared for emergency treatment in the last six months showed that 50 percent had been using the drug by itself or in conjunction with another drug like alcohol.

Although ice creates feelings of euphoria followed by severe depression just as crack does, its effects differ significantly:

Instead of the 15-minute high with crack, the high from ice may last as long as 24 hours, and the psychological crash is much worse.

In addition to euphoria, crack, which is a stimulant, may produce highly excitable and agitated behavior and severe but short-lived depression.

With ice, along with depression, are symptoms of acute psychosis not normally associated with crack, that last up to 48 hours.

Severe paranoia, hallucinations, delusions and an impaired ability to speak coherently make its addicts temporarily indistinguishable from paranoid schizophrenics.

BATTLE

"We're hoping to stimulate interest in the creek," Swartz said. "The first thing we have to do is make people aware that it's here."

The battle took place six years after Texas had become an independent republic. Fearing Texas might join the United States, Mexican Gen. Santa Anna sent Gen. Adrian Woll and 1,200 soldiers to San Antonio as a show of force.

Once news of the impending invasion reached the city on Sept. 10, residents of San Antonio organized themselves into two forces: one of about 100 Mexican-Texans, the other of about 75 Texans of European decent. The makeshift army came under the command of Texas Ranger Capt. John Hays.

Later that day, Hays left San Antonio with a 10-member scouting party. When he returned, he found San Antonio occupied by Woll's army.

Hays sent some riders out for reinforcements and others to take refuge about two miles away at a site on Salado Creek.

On Sept. 11, Woll officially captured the city. When news of the takeover reached Gonzales, more than 200 volunteers under Mathew Caldwell marched to Salado Creek to join Hays and members of his scouting party.

The Battle of Salado Creek took place seven days later when Hays and a group of 38 men rode into the city to entice the Mexican army into a skirmish.

Red Cross says items not needed

From Staff Reports

Local Red Cross officials have joined with other organized disaster relief groups to emphasize no donations in kind are needed at this time for victims of Hurricane Hugo.

The International Red Cross is coordinating current relief efforts with the American Red Cross and federal agencies.

The Agency for International Development, State Department, Pan American Health Organization and many other agencies state, "Too often the donated items become a disaster in themselves, tying up emergency relief personnel in needless logistical nightmares."

Some of the islands still warehouse unneeded, unusable items from past disasters. Food and medicine donated will not meet the needs of local inhabitants.

FISH

He believes other farmers will consider fish farming as a way to diversify crops. He also noted that seafood can be farmed inland as well as along the coasts, with aquaculture projects under way in Tyler and Pecos.

With concerns about pollution in the Gulf, fish farming also is good for health reasons, Hightower said. "Fish farming is the one way you can make sure of what's in that fish," he said.

Texas A&M is updating the state's acquaculture development plan and hopes to get public comment at a two-day conference with the Texas Aquaculture Association that starts Jan. 30 in Corpus Christi.

Improvements 'sustained'

The improvement in central government operations in Latin America has been sustained for at least three years in nine countries, says the Inter-American Development Bank. The governments of Colombia, Chile, Guatamala, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Uruguay have been successful in lowering their deficits consistently since 1984. In most nations, cutbacks in capital expenditures have been the main policy instrument used in adjusting the overall deficit.

The state comptroller said the plan should be developed by both countries and apply from Brownsville to California. U.S. Rep. John Bryant, a commission member and candidate for state attorney general, called the plan "a very creative idea," while other members indicated willingness to include the proposal in the commission's final report.

Other state officials offering testimony Monday were Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Commission members include Esther Lee Yao, a University of Houston professor, former New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya, the Rev. Timothy Healy, president of Georgetown University, and California State Sen. Art Torres.

Eldred "Jake" Reaney begins his walk from the state Capitol to the nation's Capitol to publicize the plight of the homeless. He hopes to complete the approximately 1,500-mile trek by mid-December.

Texan taking homeless' problems on the road

AUSTIN (AP) — Eldred "Jake" Reaney says he doesn't have a solution for the homeless problem, but he's not going to stand around waiting for the answer.

Reaney, 40, of Austin, began his journey, by foot, Monday from the state Capitol to the nation's Capitol to publicize the plight of the homeless.

He said he hopes to walk about 20 miles each day and complete the approximately 1,500-mile walk by mid-December.

"I want to arouse public awareness about the homeless," Reaney said.

"We're the richest country. It's unacceptable to let people sleep under bridges who are mentally ill," he said.

Reaney, who is unemployed, said he has worked as a television journalist and most recently as a media specialist in the state attorney general's office.

He said he decided to make the trip because he was saddened by the sight of homeless people rummaging through trash containers for food.

"I'm tired of the lip service by politicians, both the Republicans and Democrats. Someone who is not homeless needs to do something," Reaney said.

"People know this situation (of the homeless) exists, but it's a problem that seems to get worse and worse," he said, adding, "I don't have the solutions."

Reaney said he will carry a petition on behalf of the homeless and hopes to deliver it to federal officials at the end of his trip, which will take him through much of Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee.

He says he believes he can make the trip spending $5 per day.

But his first stop was a restaurant near the University of Texas campus for a hamburger, he said.

STATE

Voters not likely to back lawmakers' raise, poll shows

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas voters appear unlikely to support a pay raise for their state lawmakers, according to results from a survey of likely voters.

A proposal on the Nov. 7 ballot would increase legislators' pay from $7,200 per year to $23,358.

The survey, commissioned by The Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle, shows that 51 percent of those surveyed oppose the constitutional amendment to triple legislative salaries. Thirty-eight percent favor it and 11 percent were undecided.

"It looks like a goner," said polister Richard Murray, adding that lawmakers "shouldn't spend the money yet."

Murray, a University of Houston political scientist, said the measure may be in more trouble than the survey indicates.

"Generally, proposals of this nature — whether it's to issue bonds or increase public officials' salaries — fare worse at the polls than show up in these elections surveys," Murray said.

Backers of the pay raise say legislators are paid too little and a raise would lessen the influence of lobbyists who make large contributions.

The statewide poll was conducted Sept. 5-13 by the Center for Public Policy at the University of Houston. It has a margin of error of four percentage points.

The survey was based on telephone interviews of 1,024 registered voters who said they were likely to vote in the March 1990 primaries. They were selected from 163 key urban precincts and rural counties.

The pay raise, the first of 21 proposed constitutional amendments to be decided by voters Nov. 7, is described on the ballot as a "limit" on lawmakers' salaries.

It would tie state lawmakers' pay to one-fourth of the governor's $93,342 annual salary. The speaker of the house and lieutenant governor would earn half of the governor's pay, receiving $46,716. The raise would take effect in 1991.

Publicity about some lawmakers' questionable uses of campaign funds and reports of about $1.8 million in spending by lobbyists during the 1989 legislative session have damaged the pay raise plan, Murray said.

Murray also said that because of the Houston mayoral election and the race to fill the seat of the late U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, Houston will make up 40 percent of the statewide vote in November.

He said the pay raise is "in better shape" in Houston, but heavy opposition from other parts of the state may drag it down.

Dallas lawyer announces gubernatorial candidacy

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas lawyer Tom Luce today entered the race for the 1990 Republican gubernatorial nomination, saying he was doing so with the encouragement of incumbent Gov. Bill Clements.

"I am conservative by philosophy, Republican by conviction and independent by upbringing. So I can do what's best for Texas," Luce said.

Luce, 49, said he had been considering the race for only three to four weeks, deciding late last week to run.

He said he wasn't concerned about a weekend opinion poll which showed him with only 1 percent support among likely GOP voters, arguing that it is too early to place importance on such surveys.

Luce said he personally opposes abortion and that further restrictions, such as parental consent for minors, might need the attention of the Legislature.

He refused to say whether he favors a constitutional ban on a state income tax, as proposed by fellow Republican candidate Kent Hance.

"I'm strongly opposed to an income tax," he said, calling debate over a constitutional prohibition is a "phony issue."

A founder of the Hughes and Luce law firm, Luce played a major role in the 1984 passage of House Bill 72, the sweeping reforms in Texas public schools. During that debate, he served as lobbyist and staff chief for Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot, who chaired the Select Committee on Public Education that made reform recommendations to the Legislature.

Luce joins an increasingly crowded GOP field that also includes Hance, Midland oilman Clayton Williams and former secretary of state Jack Rains.

A number of top Dallas Republicans had urged Luce to run, including Clements. Asked about the governor's support, Luce would say only, "He encouraged me to run. He said he thought I'd be a good governor."

Elsewhere on the campaign trail:

■ Hance Monday proposed a program for "educational excellence," pledging to bring adaptability, accountability and achievement to Texas public schools.

He proposed a 10-district pilot program to allow parents to choose the schools within a district where their children will attend; requiring public school boards to hold annual town hall meetings to report to parents and taxpayers, and requiring school officials to outline local test scores and compare them with state and national results.

Hance also called for making school campuses drug-free zones by doubling penalties for those convicted of sale or possession of illegal drugs within 1,000 yards of schools.

■ A reader call-in survey by the Dallas Times Herald showed 376 responses, or 10 percent, favoring Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan running for state agriculture commissioner. Another 3,224 calls were against the move being contemplated by Ryan.

Three Mexican inmates escape across border

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Three inmates, two described as extremely dangerous, were sought today after they escaped from city jail at Matamoros, Mexico in a hail of bullets, then crossed the Rio Grande.

"We are looking for the escapees and we are waiting for photographs from the Mexican authorities," said Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez. "We are checking the border and the colonias nearby."

Two of the inmates, armed with semiautomatic handguns, escaped along with a third prisoner Monday morning. A fourth inmate and two guards were wounded in the exchange of gunfire.

Perez said the three prisoners were last seen crossing the Rio Grande into Texas.

"Two of them are heavily armed," said Perez. "They have two 9mm handguns that were smuggled inside the jail."

He identified the escapees as Lorenzo Horacio Medellin Ibarra, 38; Ramon Salazar Casas, 31; and David Juarez Garcia, 33. All had been jailed on drug charges, Perez said.

Dionicio Perez Moreno, also in custody on drug charges, was wounded in the escape, the sheriff said. He was taken to General Hospital where he was listed in stable condition.

The exchange of gunfire at the jail also wounded Francisco Cortes Gonzalez and Francisco Cortes Serna, 19, a father-and-son team of guards, said Perez.

He said the escapees were not among four cult suspects jailed at the facility and charged with killing 15 people, including University of Texas student Mark Kilroy, in ritual sacrifices outside Matamoros.

The trio escaped about 6 a.m. Monday during the shootout that reportedly began when a maintenance worker entered the jail compound to refill the soft drink machine.

One inmate opened fire to make way for him and his companions to flee from the jail, State Judicial Police Commandant Silvio Brussolo told the Brownsville Herald.

STATE IN BRIEF

Former Leland assistant named to federal post

AUSTIN (AP) — Katherine Jett, who was senior legislative assistant to the late U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, has been named human resources coordinator in the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations.

Ms. Jett replaces Lori Bounds, who resigned for a position with the Prince Georges, Md., county government, the office announced Monday.

Before joining Leland's staff in February 1988, Ms. Jett monitored federal legislation for a private law firm. She also has been legislative assistant to U.S. Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill.

Leland, a Democrat from Houston, died in plane crash last month while on a mission to inspect refugee camps in Ethiopia.

Ms. Jett will be responsible for health, immigration, education and other human resource issues.

Town to have first park

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — Residents of this seaside community have begun work on their first city park, 50 acres on a peninsula officials decided to protect from real estate development.

"We were approached by real estate developers to build condos here because it is a prime location, but we said no because we wanted to build something here for families," said Mayor J.C. Barr, adding he hopes to see the park completed by next summer.

A ground-breaking ceremony for the park was held Saturday at the peninsula know as Roberts Point during the Port Aransas Days Festival in the community of 2,000 near Corpus Christi.

Proceeds from the festival will go toward $750,000 in local funds needed to win a matching grant from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to pay for the park.

The idea for the park came about because of a desire to give visitors and residents something to do in Port Aransas besides fishing and spending time at the beach, said Charles Zahn, chairman of Port Aransas Action Force.

Plans call for an observation tower, sports and picnic areas and an amphitheater.

Storm victims apply for aid

LONGVIEW (AP) — More than 4,000 victims of Tropical Storm Allison from nine Texas counties have applied for state and federal disaster assistance, emergency officials said on Monday, the deadline for applications.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency said it was still processing applications at the close of business Monday. By Friday, 4,076 people had registered for aid, said Mike Ellis, applicant processing section deputy chief.

Of that number, 2,076 people applied for temporary housing applications, Ellis said. The agency also received 1,884 applications for grants and 1,535 for U.S. Small Business Administration loans, he said.

The nine counties were declared major disaster areas by President Bush at the request of Gov. Bill Clements following Allison's onslaught from June 25 to July 7.

Assistance programs were also available for agricultural losses and for people who were unemployed because of the storms.

Archer gets Wright's office

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Congressman Bill Archer, the highest ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, is moving into the office occupied by former House Speaker Jim Wright.

Archer was one of several congressmen who "bid" for Wright's former office in the Longworth House Office Building. The offices in the House are allocated by seniority of service and Archer was the most senior member to apply.

Archer's new office is directly below his current space.

"It's a great advantage to have this office," Archer said.

Actress bitter 'Lonesome Dove' did not receive more Emmy recognition

DALLAS (AP) — The fate of this year's epic CBS miniseries at the hands of the Emmy Awards nearly lived up to the show's name.

The saga of western frontier life, "Lonesome Dove," was almost left alone by the television industry in Sunday's Emmys. It left Texans feeling Monday like they had been stampeded and left in the dust.

"It's something that you can't help feeling bitter or upset about," said Helen Human, the Dallas actress who portrayed the bossy and buxom "Peach" in the miniseries.

Robert Duvall and Tommy Lee Jones portrayed two aging Texas Rangers, central characters in the epic involving a cattle drive from dusty Lonesome Dove, Texas, to Montana.

"I just wish the people who were more vitally involved with it got the recognition they needed to get ... It kind of gives me the impression that somebody woke up with a sore tooth when they voted — that's how ridiculous it is," said Ms. Human.

She said Hollywood egos also might have been involved.

"Mr. Duvall is a very talented person, but he's also a very strong person and a lot of times, Hollywood doesn't like that ... but, there's no way you're going to know for sure."

The decision was termed "an unbelievable lapse in judgment" by a television critic at the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"The (Television Academy of Arts and Sciences) embarrassed itself by refusing to honor 'Lonesome Dove' as the Season's finest miniseries," said the newspaper's Art Chapman.

"It threw crumbs to the program most embraced by the American viewing public," said Chapman. The program won awards for casting, costumes, editing, makeup and sound and recognized director Simon Wincer.

But other programs walked away with the big awards. "Lonesome Dove" had topped the nominations with 18.

Duvall was thought by many industry observers to have a virtual lock on the Emmy for best actor for his portrayal of the talkative Texas Ranger Gus. Instead, the award went to James Woods, who played the co-founder of Alcoholics Anonymous in the CBS movie "My Name is Bill W."

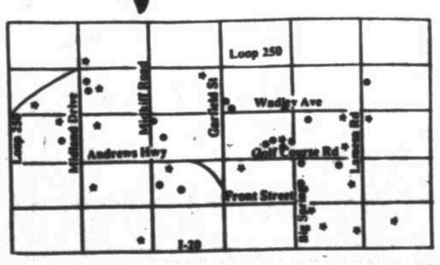

It was a "major shock" to win over "Lonesome Dove," admitted Dan Curtis, the executive producer of the best-miniseries winner, ABC's "War and Remembrance."

A Dallas television station official said "Lonesome Dove" was the most popular program in recent memory.

U.N. opens 44th General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — As the 44th General Assembly opens, diplomats and officials are looking forward to a new era of international cooperation after last year's session saw "an end to the Cold War."

In the last two years, the 159 nations have built upon the thaw between the superpowers, addressing in earnest issues such as peacekeeping, pollution and the world economy in a new, cooperative spirit.

"There's a feeling that fundamental changes are happening...and that now is not the time...to play up national differences," said Ronald I. Spiers, the undersecretary for General Assembly Affairs. "People want to work together and seek solutions to problems rather than score debating points."

President Reagan and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev approved that approach in speeches to the General Assembly last year.

Those speeches, said Dante M. Caputo of Argentina, the departing assembly president, "are the deepest and most eloquent reflection of profound change that has occurred."

"They demonstrate, I would venture to say, the end of the Cold War, which hovered over our world for such a long period," he said.

On Monday, Caputo closed the yearlong 43rd session of the General Assembly. Several unresolved issues were postponed for consideration by the 44th session, which was to begin today. The most dramatic was the Palestinian question and Israel's crackdown on the 21-month-old uprising in the occupied territories that has left at least 572 Palestinians and 40 Israelis dead.

That issue also provoked the biggest controversy of last year's assembly, when the State Department refused to allow PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat to enter the United States to address the assembly. Washington denied him a visa on the grounds that Arafat supported terrorism against Israel.

The General Assembly took the unprecedented protest step of moving to Geneva for five days in December to hear the Palestine Liberation Organization chief.

At the Geneva meeting, Arafat renounced terrorism and recognized Israel's right to exist, eliminating the two key issues on which the State Department had refused his visa request.

Arafat has said he wants to address this year's General Assembly. The State Department has said it has not yet received a visa request and will not comment on whether it would be granted.

Spiers, the top-ranking American in the world body and a former State Department undersecretary, told reporters that Arafat should be allowed to speak if he wishes.

Arab League Ambassador Clovis Maksoud said he was confident the Bush administration would grant a visa if one was requested.

If the visa is not granted, said Maksoud, "of course we would want to go back to Geneva." The Arab League has more than enough allies in the assembly to change its venue.

Among speakers scheduled to present their governments' views are President Bush, who is to address the assembly Monday, and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, set to speak the following day.

Vatican backs moving nuns from Auschwitz

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican said today that a Roman Catholic convent of Carmelite nuns near the Auschwitz death camp in Poland should be moved to another site, as Jewish groups have sought.

Breaking its silence on an issue that has severely strained Jewish-Catholic relations, the Vatican said it would help to pay for a prayer center in which the nuns would live.

Jewish leaders in the United States applauded the statement and said it would improve Jewish-Catholic relations.

A February 1987 accord between Jewish and Roman Catholic representatives stipulated that the nuns would be moved to the prayer center from a convent just outside Auschwitz. Jews have objected to their presence at a site where 2.5 million Jews were murdered by the Nazis during World War II.

However, the Polish primate, Cardinal Josez Glemp, has called for renegotiating the agreement and said the Polish church did not have the money to build a new home for the nuns.

The agreement, signed in Geneva, called for the nuns to have been moved by Feb. 22, but the deadline passed and the nuns remained.

The archbishop of Krakow, Cardinal Franciszek Macharski, said last month that the church was abrogating the agreement since it could not be fulfilled in an atmosphere of aggressive demands.

The Vatican's Commission for Religious Relations with Judaism said in a communique today that it was pleased with a declaration from Poland's bishops earlier this month that Roman Catholics and Jewish groups should resume talks on building a prayer center in which the nuns would live.

"The Holy See is convinced that such a center would contribute in an important way to development of good relations between Christians and Jews," the communique said.

The Rev. Pier Francesco Fumagalli, secretary of the commission, told reporters he expected the Geneva declaration would be honored. But he added "I can't forsee what will happen in Poland."

Miskitos cheer Carter's message in Nicaragua

New York Times News Service

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Former President Jimmy Carter told hundreds of cheering Miskito Indians on Monday that the Sandinista government had agreed to allow the return of their guerrilla leaders under the same terms of repatriation allowed to the U.S.-backed contras.

The agreement could lead to the return of some 30,000 Miskito Indians who have lived in Honduras since 1981, when Indian leaders launched their war on the Sandinista government.

Speaking in a church in Puerto Cabezas, the ramshackle village that is headquarters of the Miskitos, Carter said he believed their charismatic leader, Brooklyn Rivera, would be coming home in a few days.

The Indians burst into applause and song at the news that the exiled Rivera, as well as leaders of other Miskito factions, could return under the same terms as U.S.-backed contras fighting in the western area of the Nicaraguan-Honduran border.

After meeting with Minister of the Interior Tomas Borge, Carter said the government agreed to drop two conditions of repatriation opposed by Indian leaders and modified a third.

A few hours later in Managua, Carter announced that Rivera, the most prominent Indian leader, accepted the revised terms.

He said Rivera will meet with him soon to make plans to come home before Sept. 29. Exiles who want to participate in the Feb. 25 election must return to Nicaragua by Sept. 29, according to peace agreements signed by the government.

Previously, the government had demanded that Rivera and other leaders make the Indian guerrillas give up their arms within 30 days of returning as well as promise not to form a political party or to criticize the electoral process.

Carter said Rivera told him on Friday that he did not have the authority to force the guerrillas to demobilize so quickly.

The Sandinistas have now accepted Rivera's word that he will "make an honest effort" to persuade his fighters to give up their weapons, Carter said. He added that they have agreed that the Miskitos have the right to form a political party and to criticize the electoral process.

"In my opinion, the problem has been successfully resolved," Carter told reporters. "The agreement is that the Miskito Indian leaders would be required to meet the same conditions as the contras in order to return."

Communist Party reschedules its congress for October 1990

WORLD

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party today handed President Mikhail S. Gorbachev a chance next year to overhaul the party, which he said was being left behind by the nation's rapid social changes.

The party's 251-member Central Committee, its policy-making body, opened a meeting primarily devoted to ethnic unrest throughout the Soviet Union. But its first task was to reschedule the next congress of about 5,000 party delegates for October 1990, the Tass news agency said.

"The decision to convene the congress at an earlier date is dictated by the need to thoroughly update the party itself, with regard for its new role as the political vanguard of society during the state of restructuring," Gorbachev told the Central Committee.

He said the need to renew the party applied to the Central Committee itself.

A congress theoretically is the party's most powerful body, setting broad policy lines as well as determining the membership of the Central Committee and the ruling Politburo. It historically has reviewed the leadership's economic plans for the ensuing five years.

Congresses are usually held every five years, and by party regulations the next congress would not have had to take place before early 1991. The last, the 27th in the Communist Party's history, was held in February 1986.

That was less than a year after Gorbachev took power, when the Soviet leader had not yet accumulated as much power as he has now.

Gorbachev expressed concern that the party is lagging behind the political reforms he has set in motion — including the shift of more political power to elected government bodies.

"The reconstruction forces are going at such a rhythm that we often cannot catch up with them," Gorbachev said. He said many party organizations were slow to grasp the need for change, and "in this, we lose a great deal."

"We cannot leave things as they are, especially since fundamental economic and social processes are unfolding and an ideological and political struggle is under way over key problems of social development," Gorbachev said.

Some party stalwarts have said they fear the only legal political party in the country is losing its grip on power, as the legislature strengthens under Gorbachev's reform and frustrated citizens start taking local power into their own hands.

In addition to dissatisfaction with the poor state of the economy, ethnic disputes across the country threaten to imperil Gorbachev's reform drive.

On the eve of today's meeting, Armenian activists appealed to Moscow to order an end to what they call an economic blockade imposed on their Caucasus Mountain republic by neighboring Azerbaijan.

The Armenia-Azerbaijan conflict over the Nagorno-Karabakh territory is among the oldest and most intractable facing the Soviet Union's more than 100 ethnic groups.

Armenia's call for Moscow's assistance to get supplies of food, building materials and fuel from Azerbaijan shows how the ethnic problems interlock with the Soviet Union's economic difficulties.

"There's no salt. There's no sugar. There's no oil, said Rem Ananikyan, an editor of the official Armenian news agency Armenpress.

Worse yet, he said that since the flow of supplies through Azerbaijan dried up almost two months ago, reconstruction of northwestern Armenian cities devastated by December's earthquake had stopped.

In a draft document published last month, the party suggested that it is willing to look into opening the agreement made almost 70 years ago by which the Soviet Union was formed on the ashes of czarist Russia.

Besides Armenia and Azerbaijan, Gorbachev and the Communist Party face ethnic disputes in at least seven other republics. Some have been marked by persistent violence, with more than 200 people killed in the past 18 months.

Explore pampering pleasures

By BARBARA DeWITT
Copley News Service

"I pamper myself whenever I can. I deserve it," ad agency executive Barbara Storm says after her massage at a salon.

"I'm starting to think of facials and massages as a necessity instead of a luxury, because I get a lot of stress headaches," adds her friend and co-worker, Kathy Ondrus, treating herself to a facial.

There's a lot more going on in beauty salons these days than shampoos and cuts. Ordinary women, not just Hollywood stars, have begun to enjoy personal pampering services with the attitude that while the services may be expensive (facials start at $35), they're worth it.

While the early '80s were years of image make-overs and color charting, the decade appears to be ending with an interest in old-fashioned skin care, something Europeans have practiced for generations.

Beauty and fashion make-overs, popularized on television talk shows, have been replaced by stress therapy and full days of personal services.

Clients now come to the salon to be catered to, not made over, and it often begins with a glass of champagne, a gourmet meal and soothing music enhanced by the recorded sounds of gently crashing waves.

Don't want to go back to the office with fruit on your face? Some full-service salons offer private showers and complimentary makeup applications.

Services such as European facials (deep-pore cleansing), jade masks (minerals are supposed to be healing) and aromatherapy massages (herbs, fruits and exotic oils) are fast becoming routine beauty treatments.

"Fifteen years ago we had no facialists. Pedicures and custom makeup were just beginning to be popular. Then acrylic nails were the rage," says Darlene Sigworth, owner of a salon, "and now there seems to be a real need to be touched."

WHILE SOME clients believe a facial is as relaxing as a glass of wine after a hard day at work, interior decorator Hana Zatloukal says she often thinks of it as an alternative to a new blouse.

"The blouse will be out of fashion in six months, but if I take care of my face, it will look good forever," she explains while getting her hair permed.

Vera Brown, a skin-care expert to stars such as Jane Seymour and Heather Locklear, has seen business increase to the point that she recently added a second salon.

"Skin care is giving something back to yourself," explains Brown. "A facial cleanses the skin, gives you an inner glow and has a positive effect on the entire nervous system."

At another salon, owners Duke and Mickey Schneider also have noticed an increased interest in skin-care services.

"While we once had to promote our facials and other services, now ladies call us saying, 'I want to feel better,'" says Mickey, who adds that some of her clients are in their early 20s, and she wonders how they can afford the services.

Besides facials and body massages, they also offer the once-again trendy foot reflexology. While some salons offer it as a separate service, their salon includes it with pedicures.

More than just a foot massage, foot reflexology is based on ancient Egyptian and Oriental methods of healing and is founded on the belief that there are nerve endings in the foot (and hand) connected to every other part of the body. By manipulating the appropriate nerve ending, a therapist theoretically can improve the well-being of that body part.

OTHER SERVICES for the hands and feet are paraffin treatments, a method of softening the skin with hot wax. The appendage is dipped in the wax and then wrapped in mitts or socks, which sometimes are electrically heated.

While mud baths and oatmeal masks have become passe, one of the newest luxury services for the mind and body is the $500 deep herbal peel that removes the upper layer of skin, lessens lines and stimulates blood flow, according to esthetician Luisa Sladek.

And in the $50 category the fashionable monthly must-haves are exotic masks of ginseng and mint, strawberries and papaya and healing gemstone treatments of pulverized jade, gold and pearl, given in conjunction with a deep-pore cleansing facial.

Finding the services is easy. Beauty salons, nail clinics, beauty schools, spas with one-day programs, private masseuses and other pampering outlets can be found through your local newspaper or magazine.

Dependability marries style

By ZENIA CLEIGH
Copley News Service

Staying in fashion is a balancing act.

On one hand, women are more aware than ever of the need to create a personal style: a sensible wardrobe with the right colors and lines for you in quality garments that will last.

On the other hand, fashion-conscious women want to keep up with the trends, if only minimally. (After all, you don't want people to think your mother still picks out your clothes.)

Fortunately, this fall is a season where romance (or what the fashion designers want you to buy) and convenience (which is what you should buy) have a good chance of marriage.

Career clothes this fall are something you can count on. And the trends can be mustered into your wardrobe through well-selected accessories.

Phony is out. The tough, hard, liberated woman of the early '80s who exemplified this decade of greed with her flashy, aggressive suits is gone. The woman of the '90s is "kinder, gentler," more interested in her roots, and clothes this fall reflect that.

The're soft, refined and understated. They're also feminine, relaxed, comfortable and blessedly easy to care for. (Who among us has not shuddered recently at a bill from the dry cleaners?)

Here are the season's top looks:

Relaxed American classics. This is an all-American style that combines clean lines and soft draping for a relaxed, unstructured effect. It could be a bathrobe wrapped coat, a surplice wrapped sweater, a sarong skirt, tonal dressing. The "status scarf" is big as an accessory — anything with gold and horse tack motifs that can pass at a distance as a Gucci or Hermes.

New shapes. The jacket is the most important fashion piece for fall, and it comes in appealing new shapes. The pyramid, falling from a natural shoulder line to a full hemline, continues in popularity from last season. There's the newest of the new shapes, the column, a tunic or long jacket over a long or short slim skirt.

Then there's "fit and flare" — jacket and skirt combinations with softer shoulders, waists that contour the body, and full peplums. You can't beat the peplum for a feminine dinner suit. An alternative is shorter, fitted jackets, with longer, fuller sweep skirts. Finally, there are draped, wrapped and tied silhouettes, usually found in knits.

By the way, skirt lengths are a non-issue. Do what you want, whether it's 2 inches above the knee or as long as you care to go.

Outdoor style. Karl Lagerfeld shocked Paris this season by pairing the ultraconservative Chanel jacket with no skirt at all, just a thick pair of ribbed leggings worn with flat boots. This look was shown by American designers, too, such as Donna Karan's stirrup pants. Think ski for this look: pencil-thin pants, leggings, blanket wraps, quilted jackets in refined fabrics, aviator glasses, shearling trim on jackets. A more elegant variation on this is the English country look. Cutaway jackets, jodhpurs, beautiful leather accessories, tweed and velvet combinations.

Ethnic. Anything goes here. It could be restyled Western, jackets with fringe, suede jeans, Southwest-inspired jewelry. It could be beautiful tapestry print suits. It could be mixed patterns, paisley prints, antique fringe, decorated jackets, ornamental footwear. It could be fabric patterns derived from Morocco, India, the Scottish Highlands, the south of France, all mixed together. Fashion Note No. 1: This trend lends itself perfectly to interpretation through accessories.

To sum up the season: You'll find a sensible way of dressing with a focus on easy-wearing, appealing style. It's definitely not a return to basics, but this fall offers real clothes for real people.

Suedes, leathers and vibrant colors offer women a fashionable, more expressive alternative to the conventional business suit.

Keeping clothes in proper proportion important

By ANNE-MARIE SCHIRO
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — It's all a matter of proportion. That's something designers always say when fashion silhouettes or hemlines change. And it's certainly true. Getting the proportion right will show that a woman is attuned to fashion.

Getting it right can also be flattering to a woman's body, and that's really what it's all about.

Take this year's oversize jackets and bulky sweater tunics. Designers show them with slim skirts, skinny pants or tights because they know big tops can make a woman look several sizes larger when they are worn over wide pants or a full skirt.

Keeping the bottom of the silhouette narrow balances the broad top and seems to elongate the figure as well.

A woman in a long, columnar dress looks taller and slimmer than someone in a long, loose dress. And a heavy woman looks thinner when her clothes taper toward the hem.

Bubble-shaped sweaters like those Marc Jacobs designed for Perry Ellis can be a problem because they billow out over the waist and hips. A narrow skirt or pants would be the way to go.

Proportion also comes into play when choosing the length of a skirt.

Wearing a long skirt under a long jacket can make a tall woman look even taller but is bound to make a short woman look as if she's walking in a hole.

A short skirt that reveals more leg will make her appear taller.

Texture of choice for fall shoes is suede

By ANN DEACON-NOELL
New York Times News Service

ATLANTA — If there's one dominant force to come through in fall shoes, it's texture.

And the texture of choice this fall is suede, suede and more suede.

Take your suede earth-toned, embellished or multi-colored, but be sure to get at least one pair in this luxe material.

At the very least, choose a neutral-colored pair for day-into-evening wear.

Nothing looks smarter than a taupe or brown suede pump with the new crop of earthtone fashions and the deep, rich paisley designs that abound for fall.

By the same token, for an evening out on the town, a sumptuous pair of black suede heels looks ever so elegant.

The suede show ties in perfectly with the new monochromatic look this season, says Sally White, public relations director for Neiman Marcus in Atlanta.

"Using one color outfit, hose and shoe ties the look together and looks very pared down. Let the texture be the embellishment."

Bright, jewel tones like deep purple and claret red also figure prominantly in the fall footwear scene, says Italian shoe designer Enzo Angiolini, at Macy's recently to promote his footwear line.

"Of course, black is the top seller, but purple and deep forest green are very important," he notes.

If a woman can't decide, many suede and leather pumps come with bright blocks of color.

A Chanel-style pump by Escada features a black suede body, a red heel and a toe tipped in purple.

For the woman who longs for a more outspoken shoe statement this season, take a walk on the wild side.

Animal prints are making the rounds on fashionable feet this year, says Ms. White.

"The animal graphic motif is having a lot of impact, both in design and color," she says.

The newest animal prints can cover an entire shoe or be used as trim on a solid-colored black or brown pump.

Animal lovers should take note, the prints are hair-calf, calfskin with hair left on and stenciled with patterns to look like leopard or tiger or other animal skins.

Although animal motifs are also big news for clothing, beware of overkill, says Ms. White.

"Use the prints as an accent only. For instance, with the new monochromatic look, you may want to wear all black, with black hose and add a leopard-print shoe," she advises.

Color and pattern aren't the only ways a woman can express herself.

Ornamentation is an important look in chic shoes.

This season, Angiolini offers a black patent flat with a big floppy bow in velvet or silk and other flats topped with ornaments in brushed gold tones.

At Neiman Marcus, Escada shows a red suede shoe with ribbing and as well as a high-throated red suede pump detailed with black passementerie and a black tassel.

Donna Karan's suede pump has a gold leather design across the toe and Escada's evening shoe tops black suede with multi-colored jewels.

Boots come to the forefront this season more colorfully than ever before.

Often done in colorful suede, they take well to the ornamentation of fall, embellished with passementerie and tassels.

A rich taupe suede boot by Roberto Vianni for Neiman Marcus slouches comfortably around the ankle and boasts a bow on the back.

Not to be forgotten in the sea of new shoes is the timeless Chanel-style shoe.

The elegant camel pump with black heel and toe is practically a staple for the well-heeled woman.

The classic style goes colorful with Bruno Magli's two-tone pumps in red or purple with a black toe.

Chanel gives a nod to evening wear with a classic black pump topped with a gold toe.

Bruno Magli takes that look one step further with its black suede pump which features a gold quilted toe.

"With so many beautiful shoes to choose from, what's a woman on a budget to do? If she can only purchase one or two new shoes for the fall, what should she buy?

"Definitely a Chanel-style pump in the classic camel-and-black color combination," says Sally White.

"And a colorful suede pump, preferably in khaki, gold, red, purple or black."

Designer Angiolini suggests several pairs as must-haves for women this fall.

"The mid-heel black leather or suede pump is the necessary shoe for every occasion," he says.

"A taupe suede pump is very versatile. Also, if she could afford it, she could add a pair of purple or deep green shoes for accent."

Designers show flair in fall fashion

By TANNETTE JOHNSON
Copley News Service

CHICAGO — Eccentric, electric and extravagant best describe the fashion forecast for fall.

A review of lines by Windy City designers shows styles ranging from classics to sleek-and-sassy, all marked with a signature of imagination and versatility.

Caron Components' vibrant fall collection includes sporty mix-and-match separates in knits and washed silks. Colors range from brights to autumn hues. Among interesting styles are a lime-and-black striped peplum dress with black skirt and cinch belt, and a purple-and-black striped jacket with soft skirt and black turtleneck top.

Softness and femininity prevail in I.B. Diffusion's line. Shapes range from fitted to full with rounded shoulders. An example is an elegant gray sculptured turtleneck with matching skirt.

Diffusion also is among the many designers who experimented with bold colors and fun patterns, as illustrated by a bright wool cable-knit sweater accented with dots and worn over pants. Another eye-catcher is a red turtleneck worn with a black windowpane cardigan and skirt.

EMBROIDERY, BEADING and other decorative accessories are used by Barviani to add ambiance and pizzazz to fall clothing. A purple baroque tapestry cocoon jacket, long yoke tunic and pant combination is accented with gold beading. Barviani's gold studded black jersey bare shoulder dress is electrifying.

Dresses will be elegant and feminine again this fall, but with more attention to detail. Two class acts are a red coat dress with black collar and a white knit dress worn with a black jacket accented with bugle beads. Both designs are by Toni Todd.

In evening wear, the word is black. Black is back and this time with a vengeance. A dramatic choice for evening wear is a black velvet gown worn with a short, beaded jacket by Alyce Hamm for Alyce Designs. To really stand out, try this on for size: a black wedding gown with short beaded jacket and chiffon headpiece. Alyce Designs is known for producing extravagant gowns for beauty pageants, including Miss America and Miss USA.

Once again, accessories will be an important part of fall dressing. While scarves were the hit last year, jewelry will make a comeback this time around. If it swings around the neck or hangs below the stomach, it's happening for fall. Pakula's fall jewelry line features clusters of swaying beads and necklaces, woven tie bracelets, pins and large dangling earrings.

Jewelry by Marsha Brenner for Just Jewelry offers trendsetting designs in American brass in both matte and shiny finishes. A highlight is a matte gold-beaded long necklace with a pointed wing pendant of a tiger's eye.

CNB Photo

Black scooped-neck jacket, curry top and striped long skirt by Victoria March.

A MENSWEAR influence is evident in the collection by Robbie Sport. A look borrowed from the boys is a purple top worn with crop pants, cowl and mustard cape. A collection of acrylic knit separates in gold, fuchsia, blue, jade and purple is complemented by faux leathers in black and red. One example is a red faux leather blazer worn with a skirt and crest-patterned sweater.

Fall offerings by Richard Dayhoff include rich menswear tweeds and plaids paired with berry-colored wools. While jacket lengths will vary this fall, shorter-length jackets are featured by Dayhoff. A boss look is Dayhoff's imported Italian Viscose gray and black plaid short double-breasted jacket worn with black pants.

Skirt lengths will run the gamut from above the knee to midlength to below the calf. Longer skirt lengths are emphasized by Victoria March. Her black scooped-neck jacket, curry top and long, striped skirt and shawl make a perfect ensemble.

Full swingy shapes and longer lengths will be seen in coats. Look for shawls, drapes and fur wraps. Textures in coats will include mohairs, woolens, sheep and cashmere.

Nancy Miller's line includes a Tibet-inspired henna and multiwoven coat worn over a flannel snap shirt and skirt. The handwoven coats are definitely designed for warmth.

Kim Miller's collection features faux fur coats and classic wools trimmed in leather and suede.

Another exciting look in fall coats is the three-quarter length trapeze coat by Robin Andelman for Merle, LTD.

Trousers are back by popular demand. Caroline Rose has added a professional appeal to women's pants. Wide-legged pants are featured in her collection. The tailored look in pants is in for fall, as illustrated by a black-and-taupe-striped dolman jacket worn over striped pants and black top. Tiffani Kim's black silk pantsuit is bound to make a lasting impression this fall.

Rock 'n' roll brings back its generation

By ERMA BOMBECK

Bombeck

When I heard the Rolling Stones, the Who and other rock 'n' roll staples of the '60s were back, a chill went through my body.

They were the ones who created the music that shook the walls of our teen-agers' bedrooms and rendered us, their parents, sterile in the next room. They were the ones who seduced our young away from our bosoms with their long hair, spinning lights, and lyrics that didn't translate to anything human.

For more than a decade, they influenced the way my children dressed, the way they talked and the way they viewed life. It happened so quickly. One day my children were in front of the TV set singing, "M-I-C ... See you next week! ... K-E-Y ... Why? Because we like you! (They blew a kiss here) ... M-O-U-S-E!" The next thing I knew, they were in a cornfield watching seven people screaming "Yeah, yeah" over speakers the size of the Pan Am building, and they had tears streaming down their faces.

I lost them. For the next 10 or 15 years of my life, these groups were the only voices my kids listened to. I could have been Marcel Marceau in concert for all they knew. Rock music was the first sound they heard every morning as they prepared to go to school, the first thing to blast out of the car radio. It was the first thing to be reprised every evening. The sound continued to be fed into their heads by earplugs even as they slept.

As a mother, I tried to compromise. The Monkees seemed like a bunch of nice boys. My children laughed at me — out loud. I bought them a Carpenters album one Christmas. I found it the other day. The cellophane is still intact.

There was something about this music that was theirs and theirs alone; something their parents didn't begin to understand and probably never would; something that set them apart and kept intact the gap that parents try so hard to close and kids seek to widen.

I'm ashamed to admit it, but I've used the music of that era as a dumping ground for every shortcoming my kids ever had, from too many cavities to forgetting my birthday.

My grown son went to the Who concert recently and came away saddened that none of them was 17 again. It was painful to look back. The songs didn't fit the bodies singing them. The seats were harder than he remembered. The long lines to the restroom were tedious, and he had to go to work the next morning.

I look at it this way: If my kids can forgive rockers for growing older and not taking them with them, then I can forgive them for shoving me off center stage for 15 years.

DEAR ABBY

Religion considered 'off limits' subject

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the woman who complained that her relatives were forever arguing with her about religion was ridiculous. You advised her to simply declare that the subject was off-limits.

Are you suggesting that people talk only about trivial, meaningless subjects so as to avoid the possibility of controversy? Part of the problem in our society today is that so many people talk only about shallow, petty things, and never examine the deeper topics or question the truth.

It is arrogant to tell people that there are subjects which they may not mention in your presence. You could have suggested that she learn enough about their cult to show them the errors contained in its teachings. — CONVERSANT IN AMHERST, VA.

DEAR CONVERSANT: In my view, the height of arrogance is to attempt to show people the "errors" contained in the religion of their choice. That's a good way to start World War III.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Had Enough in Little Rock": I used to have the same problem with my sister — only she wasn't trying to convert me to her religion. She had a different mission.

She's anti-abortion and I'm pro-choice, and whenever the subject would come up, I would never allow it to reach the discussion stage because it would always end up in an argument. I'd tell her, "Becky, you and I do not agree on this issue and we never will, so let's not discuss it." Then I'd steer the conversation to another topic.

She still mails me magazine articles, newspaper clips and all the anti-abortion propaganda she comes across — but I don't have to read it. That's MY choice. — BECKY'S SISTER IN MADISON

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Had Enough in Little Rock," whose sister and brother-in-law kept trying to change her religious faith, I had this problem many years ago when I married into a family whose religion was different from my own.

About 20 years ago, I clipped something from your column and had it laminated and I have carried it ever since. Whenever the subject of religion came up with someone, I handed him this quote from a letter that Thomas Jefferson wrote to Mrs. H. Harrison Smith in 1816:

"I never told my own religion nor scrutinized that of another. I never attempted to make a convert, nor wished to change another's creed. I am satisfied that yours must be an excellent religion to have produced a life of such exemplary virtue and correctness. For it is in our lives, and not from our words, that our religion must be judged."

Thanks, Abby. — HAD MORE THAN ENOUGH

DEAR ABBY: You suggested to "Had Enough" simply to declare that the subject of religion would be "off-limits."

Abby, there is no such thing as "off-limits" to some people — and my mother is one of them. When I learned to think for myself, I realized that I could never accept my mother's religion, so I made a study of comparative religions, found them all to be implausible and became a free-thinker. As soon as I graduated from college, I married a man who shared my views.

My mother has never stopped trying to get me to accept "the truth" as she perceives it. She keeps telling me I am going to hell if I don't embrace her religion, and I keep telling her that if I do, it will be my problem.

It's not easy to maintain a good relationship with a mother as headstrong as mine, but I love her for her good qualities, and manage to make the best of it. — A MIND OF MY OWN

Chaparral Wash & Lube Center gets rid of rain, road grime

Following the welcome rains of the last couple of weeks, there's no better time than now to spruce up the inside and the outside of your car. Come in to Chaparral Wash and Lube Center and let the car cleaning professionals get the mud, dust and road grime off and shine up your car for fall driving.

While at Chaparral, why not get your car's oil changed and vital fluids checked, in addition to receiving the best car wash Midland has to offer. A free car wash is offered with each oil change at Chaparral. The center is conveniently located at 2300 N. Big Spring.

Chaparral owner, Texas Tech graduate and Midland businessman Leon Jeffcoat invites you in to measure the difference that this centrally-located wash and lube center has to offer. The friendly professionals at Chaparral Wash and Lube can help give your car the look and feel you want for cooler driving weather.

Also, if your car is showing signs of nasty street tar, Chaparral detail experts can get that off so you won't have to work up a sweat. You may have even tracked the tar into your car. Carpet and upholstery shampooing are also available. Just ask for an estimate.

Or, come by and pamper your car with some of the other extra Chaparral services you can combine with your detail car wash. For a minimal charge, the staff can hand wax, add white wall cleaner, wire wheel cleaner, a polish wax, interior dash and door treatment, bumper and trim gloss, car freshener and a vinyl top treatment.

A full service car wash, which includes a wash by gentle cleansers, chamois brushes and soft water is just $6.95. Standard vans and Suburbans are just $2.00 extra. Each car is treated to a thorough wash down before is is cleaned gently by the brushes. Vacuuming, hand drying and window cleaning are included in the low price. A discount is given with the purchase of Texaco gasoline.

A free car wash is offered with each oil change in the Chaparral lube center. Prices for the oil change and lube range from $15.50 to $21.50, and these prices have remained the same for more than three years. Pennzoil, Quaker State, Havoline and other major brands of oil are available. Jeffcoat recommends an oil change for your car every three months or 3,000 miles.

You get more than just an oil change and lube in the Chaparral lube center. Technician C.C. Banks enjoys a reputation for being friendly, knowledgeable and able to trouble spot car problems. "C.C., in addition to being personable, has many years of experience in car maintenance," explained Jeffcoat.

You'll also get your battery, tires, belts and hoses examined. Your vehicle is checked for important proper fluid levels, including brake, power steering, transmission and windshield washer fluids. As a part of this service, these fluids are replenished, if your car needs it.

For an additional charge, Chaparral can install transmission oil, freon, light bulbs and windshield wiper refills.

Generally open on rainy days, Chaparral's lube center and gasoline pumps are at your service. With the purchase of gasoline or an oil change, if the clouds are threatening, you'll receive a rain check for your next car wash.

Chaparral Wash and Lube Center is conveniently located at the corner of Big Spring and Scharbauer Drive. Texaco, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards are accepted.

Hours are 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Call 682-8013 for more information.

Curb sun's effects with cooling help from Mid-West Window Tinting

Remember when you could buy a product or a service at a good price that was really worth the money? At Mid-West Window Tinting, 901 West Washington, that opportunity still exists. Everyone likes saving money while still getting a good value. There is a large variety of quality films that can save you money on almost any application.

With utility costs going up, saving on your fuel bill becomes a must. Would you be interested in saving up to 30 percent on your cooling expenses? Mid-West Window Tinting films can do just that. Did you ever wonder why all of the new buildings going up in town have tinted or reflective glass? There is a reason.

It cuts cooling costs substantially while also giving the building an appealing appearance. Films can achieve the same look and results but at a much lower cost. Films cut out 95 percent of the ultraviolet light that causes skin cancer, fades carpet, upholstery and ruins the colors of clothing.

For furniture and clothing stores, films can save you time by not having to rotate display items away from windows so frequently. Films save you money by not having to replace ruined merchandise. Films also act as a security screen by holding broken glass together until it is convenient for you to get it replaced. As a result, you don't have to pay high after hour replacement costs any longer.

Window films deter theft and burglaries by making it harder to penetrate film coated glass. Even when glass gets broken it will keep your merchandise safe from flying glass. Security films come in clear or tinted so you can achieve the look you desire.

The new line of Mid-West Window Tinting auto films now carry a five year limited warranty against peeling, cracking, discoloration and delamination. They also carry a two year labor warranty and block out more heat.

Come see the friendly professionals at Mid-West Window Tinting for any of your film needs. They give free estimates on commercial and residential jobs and they pick up and deliver your automobile. For the do-it-yourselfer, any of the films are available over the counter.

Weather, worms ravage virgin stand of spruce, balsam fir

PITTSBURG, N.H. (AP) — The hulking roots of a toppled tree, covered by lush moss and surrounded by saplings, symbolize the extremes of life and death in one of North America's last virgin stands of spruce and balsam fir.

The 110-acre stand, on the Connecticut River headwaters six miles from Canada, has faced threats from nature as well as man in the past century. What is left, owned by The Nature Conservancy, is in many places not a pretty sight.

Saved by man from logging operations but ravaged by the great hurricane of 1938 and a spruce budworm attack in the early 1970s, the towering spruce trees, some estimated to be 350 years old, are few and far between.

"It looks sad up there now after the budworm. It was so pretty up there before," said Fred Cowan, a paper company forester instrumental in saving the stand situated at Norton Pool on East Inlet Brook.

The boggy lowlands are not ideal for spruce and fir, and more impressive specimens can be found elsewhere, said Fred's son, John. But at Norton Pool, he said, "the idea is that they haven't been trashed.

"You can see what nature does to itself, too ... It killed its own trees, and there's thick regeneration coming up underneath."

The stand's inaccessibility — it's 50 miles north of the state's last stoplight — has helped protect it through the ages. It faced its first threat in recorded times, from lumbering, in the late 1800s.

The Connecticut Valley Lumber Company bought it as part of 125,000 acres of timberland in 1888, and reached East Inlet 10 years later. The 10,000-acre East Inlet watershed had never been cut, but its spruce was in demand.

The spring of 1898 was extremely dry, however, and the loggers were unable to float logs down to mills and railroads. After a few weeks, they gave up.

There was a budworm onslaught from about 1910 to 1915, though it wasn't nearly as serious as the infestation in the 1970s. The tiny worms, which later become moths, eat spruce and fir needles, sometimes killing the trees.

Nature again wrought havoc in the hurricane of September 1938. Fred Cowan estimated that at least 25 percent of the spruce and even more of the fir were blown down or broken. Cowan observed the destruction for the first time in 1941 when, at age 23, he was in the first St. Regis Paper Co. team surveying to mark trees for cutting. St. Regis had bought Connecticut Valley Lumber in 1926.

"Sometimes we seemed to go a quarter of a mile climbing on top of blown-down trees ... You'd be perhaps 10, 15, 20 feet in the air, climbing over that stuff." The team recognized that the trees still standing were special, he said. "Most of us hadn't been in large old-growth stands before."

St. Regis began cutting in East Inlet in the late 1940s, though not in the area later protected. By the 1950s, with pressure increasing to cut the huge trees, Cowan and some colleagues began plotting actively to spare it.

"Some of us kind of decided, 'Gee, you know, let's kind of skip around that. We can always get back to get it.' That's what we had to tell some of the other people in the company who said, 'Why did you bypass that?' "

The Audubon Society and other conservation groups began expressing interest in saving the area that also held rare birds and plants. In the late 1960s, St. Regis agreed to save the stand, but St. Regis and Champion International Corp., which took it over in 1984, for years declined to give the stand to the groups, saying the company was taking care of it. Champion eventually deeded the land to The Nature Conservancy in July 1987.

By then, nature had wreaked havoc.

In 1974, masses of budworms swept into the region in a five-year infestation. "Lots of places, very close to 100 percent of the fir got picked off, and a lot of the other growth, the small trees underneath," Cowan said. "The spruce was a little bit more resistant to it, but it got hit badly up there. It really spoiled the looks of it."

"In this part of the world, things are both man and nature, and unless they pave it over, nature recovers," he said.

Quiz indicates Americans worst spellers

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Americans are the worst spellers in the English-speaking world, according to a Gallup spelling quiz.

Australians who did not go beyond grade school were better spellers, on average, than American adults, the recent survey showed.

The best spellers are in Australia, followed by Canada, the United Kingdom and then the United States. Americans misspelled, on average, more than six of the 10 words on the test.

The Gallup quiz was first given 34 years ago in the United States and Canada. The same words — which include magazine, sandwich, kerosene, calamity, penitentiary, picnicking, deceive, accelerator, cauliflower and parallel — were on a test given earlier this year in both countries as well as in Australia and the United Kingdom.

Only one in 20 adults in all four countries could spell all 10 words correctly. Among the other findings:

- Of the 10 words, Americans had the most trouble with penitentiary.
- Women were better spellers than men, except in the United Kingdom, where the sexes had equal ability.
- In the United States, the best spellers tended to be those ages 34 to 44.

In a survey of geography knowledge completed last summer for National Geographic, the United States fared poorly compared with the six other industrialized nations surveyed: Japan, France, West Germany, the United Kingdom, Sweden and Italy.

Average team finding respect

Associated Press

One interested observer had called Colorado an "average" team. That team now sports a 3-0 record and the No. 6 ranking in The Associated Press college football poll.

In an impressive display before a nationwide television audience, Colorado mauled then-No. 10 Illinois 38-7 last Saturday, moving the Buffaloes up two spots in the poll and dropping the Illini to No. 20.

"I think for an average team, we did pretty good — even by his standards," Colorado outside linebacker Alfred Williams said, alluding to statements by Illinois quarterback Jeff George on a Chicago radio show before the game. George had said Colorado appeared to be an "average" team and was perhaps overrated.

"You just have to give credit where credit is due," George admitted later. "They put pressure on me and ... were the better team."

Colorado has achieved its highest ranking since October 1977, but Coach Bill McCartney said the team can't afford to forget the season has just begun.

"We're not that much better than (Illinois). But we were (Saturday)," McCartney said. "We've got a lot of kids who are capable of making big plays, and we made them.

"This is exciting," the coach admitted. "It's something we've aspired for and worked very hard to attain. But we can't lose our focus and let it get to our heads.

"We have our toughest challenge to date in our very next game (at No. 11 Washington) in two weeks," he said.

Notre Dame, a 24-19 winner over then-No. 2 Michigan, solidified its hold on the No. 1 ranking with its 14th consecutive victory. The Fighting Irish earned 57 of 60 first-place votes this week, with the three votes going to Miami, which moved up a spot to No. 2 with a 31-3 drubbing of California. Notre Dame, which has won the last two games matching No. 1 and No. 2 games, could be facing another such match on Nov. 25, when the Irish close the season at Miami.

Nebraska, which improved to 2-0 by holding off Utah 42-30, was third this week and Auburn, 2-0, and Michigan, 0-1, were fourth and fifth.

The second five in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters were Clemson, Arkansas, West Virginia and Syracuse.

Oklahoma (2-1) joined Illinois (1-1) in dropping from the Top Ten. The Sooners lost 6-3 at Arizona and plummeted from No. 6 to No. 16. It is the first time in five years that Oklahoma hasn't been ranked in the Top 10 during the regular season.

Johnson appeals to refs for help

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING, Texas (AP) — First-year Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson has become so frustrated by the club's worst start in 26 years that he has turned to the referees for help.

So while Johnson on Monday was making an assortment of roster moves that now seem commonplace, he also announced the organization would try to hire officials to work practices.

"We are in the process right now of trying to hire officials, possibly retired NFL officials, or if nothing else college officials or high school officials," Johnson said. "We need someone with a black-and-white shirt to go out and work our Wednesday and Thursday practices, to work with the defensive backfield and the receivers and the offensive line."

Johnson's comments came one day after the Cowboys lost 27-21 to the Atlanta Falcons. Dallas, the most penalized team in the NFL last season, has been penalized 18 times for 176 yards in its first two games.

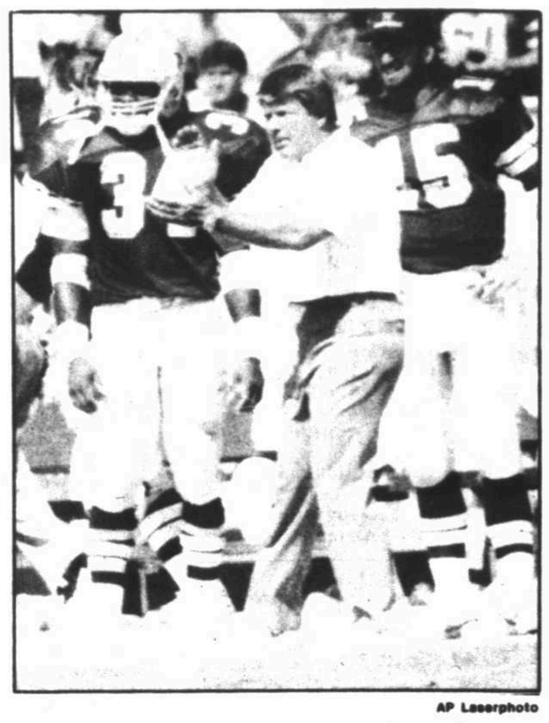

"We allowed Atlanta to get back into the game because of penalties," Johnson said. "We're bringing in some retired officials to work at our practices. We can't win games and have the penalties we've had."

Johnson said he didn't think the Cowboys were being picked on but had spoken to NFL officials about the large number of penalties assessed the team.

"I don't want to be complaining about the officiating," he added. "We have enough problems without worrying about that."

In particular, the Johnson was critical of the defense and the team's lack of conditioning, saying the players "kind of wore down in the second half."

"It was hot and our team showed it," Johnson said. "Hot weather gets you into condition to play and we didn't show good conditioning in the second half. I thought it was a huge factor in the game."

Johnson doesn't like training in the cool weather of Thousand Oaks, Calif. Although the Cowboys have indicated they will return to California in 1990, they are considering other sites, such as Austin.

Dallas led 21-10 at halftime but the Falcons shut the door in the second half.

New York Mets' Juan Samuel dives back safely into first base avoiding a pickoff tag by Chicago's Mark Grace.

Zimmer: 'One step closer with 12 to go'

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — Unless the Chicago Cubs turn into the Philadelphia Phillies of 1964, the New York Mets are finished in the National League East.

The Phillies of 25 years ago blew a 6½-game lead with 12 games left to give the NL pennant to the St. Louis Cardinals. After beating the Mets 10-6 Monday night, the Cubs have a 6½-game margin over the Mets, a team that six months ago was a top-heavy favorite to win the NL East

Mets manager Davey Johnson realizes the difficulty of the task.

"Now we have to win (Tuesday) and get help from some other people," Johnson said. "Somebody else has got to beat the Cubs."

In losing a game they absolutely had to win, the Mets sustained setbacks with each of their Cy Young Award winners. The Cubs battered left-hander Frank Viola, the American League Cy Young winner a year ago, for six runs and eight hits in 5 1-3 innings. And right-hander Dwight Gooden, the 1985 NL Cy Young recipient, was scratched from the starting assignment in today's game at Wrigley Field because of soreness in his right arm.

Chicago beat the Mets for the seventh time in eight games at Wrigley Field by overcoming a 3-0 deficit with four-run uprisings in the fifth and eighth innings. Luis Salazar hit a two-run homer to give the Cubs a 4-3 lead and Chicago led 10-3 after its least likely slugger, reliever Mitch Williams, hit a three-run homer. It was his first major-league hit in five at-bats.

"It was kind of a goofy game but I'm glad the good guys won," Cubs manager Don Zimmer said.

"We're one step closer with 12 to go," said Zimmer, who refused to say the race was over. "Funny things can happen in this game."

The Cubs' magic number was reduced to eight over second-place St. Louis and to seven over the third-place Mets. Any combination of Cubs' victories and Cardinals' losses totaling seven would give Chicago its second NL East title in five years.

The Cardinals remained five games back of the Cubs by beating Montreal 3-2.

In the other NL game, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 6-2.

Home runs by Gregg Jefferies, his ninth, and Darryl Strawberry, his 28th but first since Aug. 16, helped stake the Mets to an early lead.

The Cubs caught up to Viola, 3-5, by scoring four times in the fifth, the capper being Salazar's two-run homer. It was Salazar's ninth homer of

Broncos double Buffalo

By BARRY WILNER

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The defense was supposed to take charge, sparking the offense to a big show in prime time.

It did, unexpectedly, for Denver, while Buffalo's plans to do exactly that never materialized.

The Broncos, winners of just one of their previous 11 Monday night road appearances and beaten in their last eight games on artificial turf, convincingly reversed those trends with a 28-14 victory. Only when the Bills went to a hurry-up offense that their coach, Marv Levy, had called unethical before last year's AFC championship game did Denver's revitalized defense struggle.

But not for long.

"We didn't want to be in a situation where we were on our heels all the time," Coach Dan Reeves said. "To say it was a great win for us would be an understatement."

The Broncos ranked just 22nd in NFL defensive statistics last season. They made the Super Bowl in 1986 and 1987, only to have the defense betray them in the big game.

So Reeves fired longtime defensive coordinator Joe Collier and replaced him with Wade Phillips. The defense has been sensational, forcing eight turnovers, as Denver went 2-0 with wins over Kansas City and the Bills.

"He wants us to be aggressive," cornerback Wymon Henderson, who picked off two passes by Jim Kelly, said. "We want to be aggressive."

The Broncos were most aggressive in building a 21-0 lead. They got a safety when Michael Brooks was unblocked and tackled Jamie Mueller in the end zone one play after Nate Odomes' interception had given Buffalo the ball inside its 1-yard line. Henderson's first interception led to rookie Bobby Humphrey's 33-yard run and, two plays later, Vance Johnson's 9-yard touchdown reception.

Oh-fer so far, Greenwood looks for first win, first TD

There's good news and bad news at Greenwood.

Bad news first: The Rangers haven't scored a point this season.

Now for the good news: Coach Bob Purser's team played two dynamite squads in the first two weeks of the season. Both Denver City and Reagan County are favored in their respective districts.

Grimes

More good news: The Rangers were 0-2 at this time last season, but went on to win their first-ever district title.

Greenwood got things together in Week 3 last year with a 14-8 win over Stanton. This is not the same Greenwood team, however.

Purser can't say that he doesn't miss current college players like quarterback Randy Donnell (Texas A&I), linebacker Sean Holcomb (also A&I) and tight end Tom Marvin (UTEP). In fact, about the only place Purser has a concentration of experienced offensive personnel is in the backfield, where fullback Brian Aylor and halfback Randy Marquez returned from last season.

However, most backs are only as good as their offensive linemen and the Rangers are rebuilding there — with only right tackle Jason Gardner a holdover from last season.

In addition, neither quarterbacks Larry Nichols nor Cody Mebane has been able to engineer much of a passing offense, again taking into consideration the young offensive line and the caliber of competition.

The Rangers have rushed for only 218 yards in their first two games, while passing for only 76. Still, Greenwood might as well have a run-and-shoot compared to Stanton's passing attack.

Coach Dale Ruth's Buffs have only thrown for 15 yards out of the wishbone this season, though they have rushed for 285 yards in losses to tough Seagraves and an average Coahoma squad. Greenwood also uses a wishbone, but Purser likes to diversify with the pass nonetheless.

Greenwood has shown itself to be vulnerable against the rush, getting zapped for 492 ground yards in the first two weeks. Stanton, on the other hand, held Coahoma to 121 ground yards and kept the Bulldogs from a rushing first down in the first half before fading badly in the last 24 minutes.

On the plus side for Greenwood, the Rangers have faced stiffer competition in the first two weeks, have better overall size and are at home for the first time this season.

On the other hand, Stanton seems to have better team speed and 225-pound defensive tackle Richard Villa makes it tough to run up the middle on the Buffs, something Greenwood had great success with last season.

Who has the edge? I think Greenwood's home field advantage and the fact that they have played tougher competition should be enough for the win, but a Stanton upset would not be any shock.

We really should call it a tossup, especially if Stanton doesn't tire out in the second half like it did against Coahoma.

You may think that non-district games really don't mean anything. This one does.

Friday's Greenwood-Stanton winner is in a position to grab some momentum for the tough district races ahead. Friday's loser is in trouble. Nothing-and-three is hard to come back from, though it has been done.

AROUND THE AREA: Another big non-district battle looms Friday when Lamesa invades Andrews. These long-time rivals slugged it out to the end last year, before Andrews prevailed. Lamesa must show that last week's 28-3 win over Midland Lee's JV really did mean something, while Andrews needs to recover from two close losses ...

... Also, look for Garden City and Rankin to decide their district championship in Garden City on Oct. 27. Water Valley and Irion County both seem a bit down after playing well last season, while Sterling City and Robert Lee have trouble beating each other. Rankin put together a good game against weak Forsan last week, while Garden City did a 23-7 number on Grandfalls.

... Two districts that will almost certainly be a fight to the death are Districts 4-4A and 3-3A. Defending 4-4A champion Sweetwater is obviously down after Friday's loss to Abilene High, while Big Spring played tough Lubbock Estacado close before losing. Other contenders should include everybody else, with the possible exception of Fort Stockton.

... In 3-3A, all but Lubbock Roosevelt seem pretty salty. Returning playoff qualifiers Brownfield and Denver City are both 2-0, as is almost everyone else.

Stew brushes close to No. 20 ... again

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Deja vu meant No Luck II for Dave Stewart.

Stewart, for the second straight start, lost a chance at his 20th victory when Dennis Eckersley gave up a ninth-inning home run in a game the Oakland Athletics eventually won on a hit by Dave Henderson.

"It's amazing how closely this game resembled the other game," Oakland manager Tony LaRussa said after the Athletics beat Cleveland 4-2 in 10 innings Monday night. "Stew, Eck, and Henderson with the game-winning RBI. My only comment to Eck was that what he's doing for a living is very hard. Once in a while, you get burned."

It happened last year, too. Stewart stood to be the winner in Game 1 of World Series until Kirk Gibson connected off Eckersley.

This time at least Oakland won, ending a three-game losing streak and keeping its 2½-game lead in the American League West.

In other games, California beat Minnesota 6-3, Chicago rallied past Kansas City 4-2, Boston topped Toronto 6-3 and Texas defeated Seattle 5-2.

Last Wednesday, Stewart's try to become the first pitcher to win 20 games in three consecutive years since Jim Palmer in 1975-78 ended when Eckersley gave up a two-run homer in the ninth inning to Milwaukee's Greg Vaughn. Henderson's home run eventually gave the victory to Eckersley.

Stewart allowed four hits in eight innings at Cleveland and left with a 2-1 lead. But his hopes for his 100th career victory ended when Brook Jacoby led off the ninth with a home run against Eckersley.

Eckersley wound up with another victory when Henderson singled home the go-ahead run in the 10th.

"It's never easy to swallow, to watch a win get away when you just need one to win 20," Stewart said. "It's important because, for all the things that haven't happened to me in the 1980s, this would set me apart from any other pitcher in the decade.

"With Eck coming in the game, there's almost a 100 percent chance he's going to close it out," he said. "There was no doubt in my mind he would do it."

Eckersley, 3-0, blew his fifth save opportunity in 34 chances.

"After what I did to him the last time, it's like, what am I going to do? What can I say? He knows I'm out there trying," Eckersley said.

Oakland improved to 4-10 in extra innings. Cleveland lost its fourth straight game and is 2-15 in extras.

AL Roundup

Angels 6, Twins 3

Bert Blyleven pitched eight strong innings and Chili Davis hit a three-run homer as California beat Minnesota for its eighth victory in 11 games.

Blyleven, 16-4, beat his former team for the second time this season and mathematically eliminated the Twins from the race.

Red Sox 6, Blue Jays 3

Boston, which has lost 15 straight games at home to the Blue Jays since 1987, won at Toronto.

Toronto had its three-game winning streak stopped and its lead in the AL East cut to two games over Baltimore. The Red Sox won their fourth straight and pulled to 8½ back.

A record crowd of 49,579 at the SkyDome saw the Red Sox win for the fourth time in five tries at Toronto this year.

White Sox 4, Royals 2

Reliever Jeff Montgomery's throwing error keyed Chicago's three-run rally in the ninth inning as the White Sox won at Kansas City.

Tom Gordon and Steve Crawford combined to hold Chicago to three hits in eight innings. But Ivan Calderon singled to start the ninth and scored on Carlton Fisk's double for a 2-all tie.

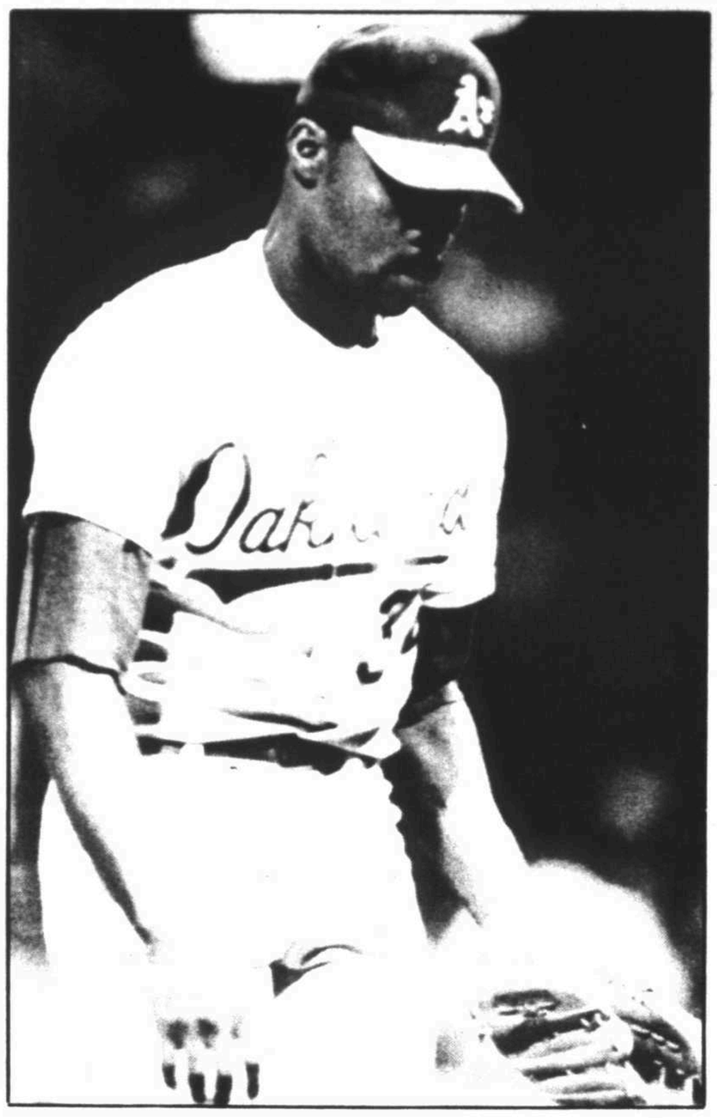

After Daryl Boston walked, pinch hitter Steve Lyons followed with a sacrifice bunt to Montgomery, who threw the ball past third base as two runners scored.

Rangers 5, Mariners 2

Fred Manrique hit a tie-breaking, two-run double in the eighth inning as Texas beat Seattle before 4,654 fans, the smallest crowd of the season at Arlington Stadium.

Pinch hitter Jack Daugherty and Cecil Espy drew walks from Mike Jackson, 4-6, and Manrique doubled. Rafael Palmeiro's suicide squeeze scored Manrique.

Cecilio Guante, 6-5, relieved Nolan Ryan with one out in the eighth.

'Twas a rough week for defending champs

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Two defending state champions, Dallas Carter in 5A and Corrigan-Camden in 2A, were sidetracked in only the second week of the regular season.

And their losses were reflected in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Carter, which was ranked fifth last week, lost to Killeen 10-7 and dropped out of the top 10.

"We just couldn't move the ball," Carter coach Freddie James said. "They weren't ready. It was a lack of experience."

Carter, 14-0-1 last season, returned four starters from its 1988 title team.

Corrigan-Camden, which compiled a 15-0-1 record en route to the Class 2A crown last year, lost to top-ranked Groveton 40-6 and fell from second to 10th in the latest balloting by Texas sportswriters and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, the current favorites, Converse Judson in 5A, Paris in 4A, Southlake Carroll in 3A, Groveton and Munday in A, all held onto their top ranks.

Carter was joined in the loss column by No. 7 Sugar Land Willowridge and No. 10 Marshall.

Willowridge lost to No. 9 Aldine 15-13 and dropped out of the top 10 while Aldine moved up to No. 5.

Marshall, 1-2, also dropped off the list after a 21-7 loss to second-ranked Odessa Permian, which held its runnerup slot.

Plano, 2-0, replaced Marshall at No. 10.

There were four losers in 4A including No. 4 Wichita Falls Hirschi, No. 8 Highland Park, No. 9 Denison and No. 10 Kerrville Tivy.

Hirschi was the only survivor, dropping to No. 9. The newcomers are No. 7 Jasper, No. 8 Tomball and No. 10 Belton.

Jasper, 2-0, has beaten two Class 5A teams by a combined 81-6.

Here is The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and points based on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

DENVER

Then Andre Reed, who had 13 receptions for 157 yards, fumbled and Denver converted it into David Treadwell's 46-yard field goal as the first half ended.

The rookie kicker also hit from 22, 33 and 24 yards.

"We've always got somebody coming up with a big play when we need it," said Tyrone Braxton, who had one interception Monday night and scored on an interception return last week. "Our rule is be consistent, don't give up the big plays and make the big plays ourselves."

Usually, that's what the offense does. It had its share of critical plays, too — by Vance Johnson, Humphrey and Sammy Winder, who went past 5,000 career rushing yards, and, of course, quarterback John Elway.

"This is a big, big win for us with a young team," said Elway, who saw Reeves make more personnel changes than any other coach in the league. "We knew we had to slow them down with our defense and the defense really hung in there."

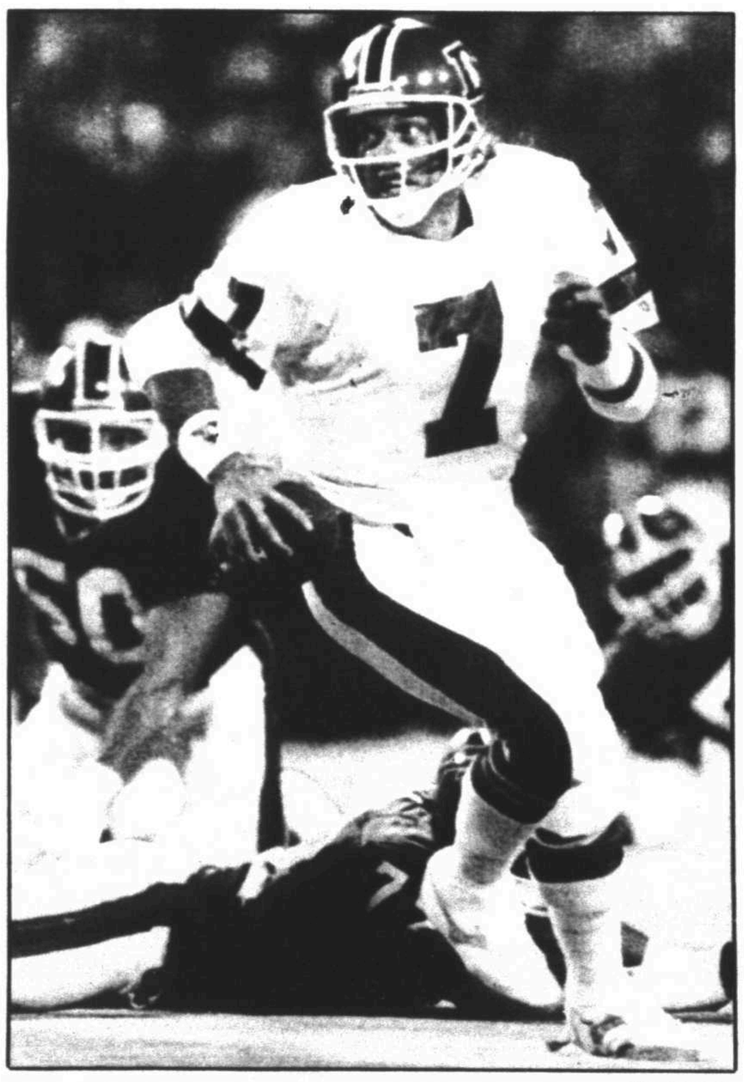

The Bills defense, the stingiest in the AFC last year, was victimized by Buffalo's offensive problems.

"It could have been 50-0 instead of 15-0 early on, with all the mistakes we made," nose tackle Fred Smerlas said. "Everyone tries to make a big play and that forces mistakes."

What the defending AFC East champions should do, according to Coach Marv Levy, is forget the past — last season's unbeaten record at home, and last week's defeat of Miami on the last play of the NFL opener.

"We're not going to win because we're good guys or because we know how to pull them out, or because we kick a field goal, like last year," Levy said. "We're going to win by playing better than last year because we had some good fortune. We earned a lot of that good fortune and we have to earn it again."

Buffalo looked like it might earn a dramatic comeback victory after Kelly led the team on 77 and 66-yard hurry-up drives to make it 21-14. Larry Kinnebrew scored on a 1-yard run and Ronnie Harmon took a 20-yard touchdown pass from Kelly.

John Elway showed he could he even scramble for yardage and the Broncos displayed a resurgent defense Monday night in Buffalo.

But Levy knows you don't win too often with gimmicks. And Denver's defense got back to making the decisive plays.

"You make a garrison try at it," Levy said, "and it looks exciting. But it's desperation football and it pays off on rare occasions."

Monday night was not one of them.

of the season and first since being acquired by the Cubs from San Diego Aug. 30.

Cardinals 3, Expos 2

Jose DeLeon was wild, but Montreal's hitters were undisciplined. As a result, the Expos are in even worse shape than the Mets.

"I was pitching behind in the count — a lot of 2-1, 3-1 counts," DeLeon said. "But I threw a lot of pitches they shouldn't have been swinging at, and they did."

St. Louis got a two-run double from Milt Thompson and a solo homer from Tony Pena to win for only the fourth time in 12 games.

DeLeon, 16-11, entered the game having allowed only two earned runs in his previous 30 2-3 innings — a 0.59 earned-run average. He has been especially effective against Montreal this season, winning four of five decision.

Pirates 6, Phillies 2

Three hits and three RBIs by Bobby Bonilla led Pittsburgh to its eighth victory in nine games.

Bonilla's bases-loaded single in the fifth inning scored two runs and broke a 1-1 tie against Jason Grimsley, 1-2. R.J. Reynolds followed Bonilla with an RBI grounder to make it 4-1.

Bonilla had tripled in the fourth to erase a 1-0 Philadelphia lead.

Jay Bell got an inside-the-park home run in the seventh when his sinking liner skipped past right fielder Dwayne Murphy and rolled to the warning track. It was the first inside-the-park homer by a Pirate since Barry Bonds hit one off Philadelphia's Shane Rawley on July 28, 1987.

Von Hayes and Charlie Hayes had RBIs for the Phillies.

Bob Patterson, 3-2, won in relief of Bob Walk, who left in the second after reinjuring his right groin. Randy Kramer got a save.

Five year win streak broken

WARRINGTON, Pa. (AP) — The longest winning streak in high school football ended at 55 games when Central Bucks West was beaten 13-10 by Cardinal O'Hara.

The game had been scheduled for Sunday at Springfield, but was set back to Monday and moved to Warrington because of rain.

West led 10-6 when, with 2:37 left to play, O'Hara quarterback Kevin Byrne completed a 22-yard touchdown pass to Fred Steigerwalt on a third-and-10 play.

"All I know is that I caught it at the 2-yard line and I had to get it in," said Steigerwalt, a junior making his first varsity start. "I just can't believe it. It's incredible, isn't it?"

West, which had last lost 7-6 to Central Bucks East on Nov. 24, 1983, failed to tie the Pennsylvania prep record of 56 consecutive victories, set by Braddock High School from 1953 to 1960.

"I figured we would run out of miracles sooner or later," West coach Mike Pettine said. "But you just can't wait for them to happen."

MC, Odessa tied for third at Grayson CC Invitational

From Staff Reports

SHERMAN, Tex. — Being rather rude hosts, Grayson County Community College took the first round lead of its own junior college invitational golf tournament here Monday. The 36-hole event concludes today at the Tanglewood Golf Resorts course, a par 72, 7,200-yard layout.

Midland College is sitting in a third place tie, right behind runner-up Odessa, but with a host of teams all bunched together.

"This is a fine course, but it's long and playing very tough," said MC coach Delnor Poss,. "Only one team was below par on the first round, but several teams could be posting great numbers tomorrow."

Grayson's Vikings are at 286 after the first round, two strokes under par. Odessa is at 289, while Midland and Weatherford are tied at 290.

MC's Dean Robertson had a nifty 71, while three other Chaparrals all had rounds of 73.

Poss has five players on the squad for this event, with four scores counted in each round. The Grayson JC event is the season-opener for the Chaps.

Gray expected back Saturday

Associated Press

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Injured Texas Tech running back James Gray is expected to start on Saturday when the unbeaten Red Raiders play Oklahoma State at Stillwater, Okla.

Gray ran seven times for 69 yards and scored on a 53-yard run Saturday in a 27-20 victory over New Mexico before coach Spike Dykes decided to protect Gray's bruised right shoulder.

"Our decision not to play James was a good one," Dykes said on Monday. "We didn't want to take any chances on getting him hurt further. We would have kept playing him and normally we would have left him in."

Dykes said Oklahoma State will be angry after starting the season 0-2.

"We're going into a hornet's nest," Dykes said. "It's their first home game and they'll be mad."

Dallas, which lost 28-0 to New Orleans in its opener, hasn't started 0-2 since the 1963 season. In their regular season home opener Sunday, the Cowboys entertain rival Washington, also 0-2.

"We made enough progress where we at least can identify some problem areas," Johnson said.

Because of injuries, the Cowboys played most of the game with only four defensive linemen available.

Johnson said Randy Shannon will start at the strongside linebacker position ahead of Ron Burton.

"We want somebody in there who will make some plays," Johnson said.

Cornell Burbage was placed on injured reserve because of a shoulder injury.

Johnson said he was tired of the receivers dropping passes. So he resigned wide receiver Ray Alexander, who led the Cowboys in receiving last season but was released late in preseason.

"We're dropping too many balls," Johnson said. "James Dixon will be getting more playing time at receiver. Every time we put him on the field he made some plays. We've got to give him an opportunity."

The Cowboys released defensive tackle Sean Smith and tight end John Duff, who was on the injured reserve list.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A move to another city or state after the first of the year is a real possibility. Welcome a company transfer if it is a step up. Being more innovative in your work will boost your earning power. A parent-child relationship improves, bridging the generation gap. CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Italian actress Sophia Loren, jazz great "Jelly Roll" Morton, author Upton Sinclair, hockey star Guy Lafleur.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A promotion or business upturn gives you fresh hope and inspiration. Set your sights accordingly. Partners may need a push to get going. Move forward with confidence. Your self-esteem rises.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Morning hours tend to be quiet and uneventful. Your interest will be aroused by noontime, however. It is not always easy to know who is right. A love relationship requires greater finesse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Welcome a unique opportunity to make your mark. You find ways to improve your co-workers' performance. A friend gives you something much more important than money. Express your gratitude in a tangible manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A coveted award comes your way. Higher-ups begin to see you in a different light. An exchange student shares a unique experience. Listen attentively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Despite your romantic mood, you and mate could get off on the wrong foot. Exercise will help you get rid of pent-up emotions. Reduce everyday expenses. Refuse to choose sides in a family feud.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Contact lawyers before signing contracts. A voice from the past will ignite a long-forgotten passion. Family life is increasingly important to you. Do not let a casual flirtation jeopardize things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A self-made individual has a tremendous effect on you. You could be thinking of changing your profession. Rearrange your schedule so you can help others.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

The captain of the bridge squad dreaded the summer holidays. Many of his key players went away on vacation, and he was occasionally forced to call on Trump Coup Tommy to complete his team. The results varied; more often than not they were below par, but when trumps failed to break, TCT was in command.

Tommy and partner reached a good six-heart contract on the auction shown. North's bid of three diamonds was a transfer to hearts, and North blasted into slam after checking on aces. With a normal 3-2 trump break, one of two club finesses was all that would be needed to land 12 tricks.

Declarer won the opening spade lead with dummy's queen and cashed two high hearts. When East showed out on the second round, the situation was tailor-made for Tommy. Most declarers would have played East for both the king and jack of clubs, but not our man.

TCT cashed the ace and king of diamonds, discarding a club from the table, then ruffed a diamond. Next came dummy's remaining high trump and the ace-king of spades. There was still one major hurdle to surmount. Tommy led a club to the queen and, when the finesse succeeded, the hand was over. Declarer cashed the ace of clubs, led his last diamond and caught West between the devil and the deep blue sea. If the defender ruffed, dummy's trump would be established as the fulfilling trick; if West discarded, the table's trump would win a trick en passant. When West chose to discard, both defenders won the last trick—West with his master trump and East with the king of clubs.

Walters says women can't have it all, uses herself as example

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Television correspondent Barbara Walters says women cannot have it all — career, marriage and children — and she pointed to herself as an example.

Walters

"You can have a great marriage and great children; great marriage and great career; great career and great children. But I think it is so hard to have a great marriage, a great career, not a job but a career, and great children," Ms. Walters told the "Virginia Woman '90s" conference sponsored by Sen. John W. Warner, R-Va.

She advised the 2,100 women in the audience Monday not to feel guilty if they have trouble meeting the demands of career and family, and admitted it hasn't been so easy for her.

"I've been divorced. I have a daughter, who, thank God, is 21 and out of her adolescence," said the 57-year-old ABC correspondent and star of the "20-20" show.

Ms. Walters advised the women to have a life beyond getting up in the morning and going to work, "although that can be pretty wonderful and intoxicating."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Todd Bridges got engaged to his 23-year-old girlfriend while he was in jail on charges he shot and wounded a man in a reputed drug den, according to a publicist.

Bridges

Bridges, who played Gary Coleman's older brother on television's "Diff'rent Strokes," proposed marriage to Becky San Filipo, according to the publicist who spoke on condition of anonymity. The date of the engagement was not revealed, the agent said Monday.

Bridges, 24, remains in jail on $2 million bail awaiting trial on charges he shot Kenneth Clay, 25, on Feb. 2 in a Los Angeles home authorities alleged was used as a gathering place for people to smoke "crack" cocaine.

Clay survived the shooting. Bridges has pleaded innocent to attempted murder charges.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave Dravecky, the baseball pitcher who came back from cancer in his throwing arm, has won the 1989 Willie Mac Award as the San Francisco Giants' most inspirational player.

The award, voted by the Giants' players, was announced Monday.

Dravecky, 34, underwent surgery in October to remove a cancerous tumor located in a muscle near his left shoulder. After months of therapy and a minor league rehabilitation stint, he returned to the mound Aug. 10 at Candlestick Park and pitched eight innings to earn a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Five days later in Montreal, Dravecky broke a bone in his upper left arm while making a pitch to the Expos' Tim Raines. He got the victory to finish the year with a 2-0 record and a 3.46 earned run average.

Dravecky, the 10th winner of the award named for Giants Hall of Famer Willie McCovey, will receive this year's plaque from McCovey on Sunday. The award recognizes inspiration, courage, leadership, character and dedication in the tradition of McCovey.

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — C. Everett Koop, who is leaving his post as U.S. surgeon general, has been elected to the board of the non-profit Medic Alert Foundation International.

Koop, who leaves his government post of seven years on Oct. 1, was selected by the Turlock, Calif., board during its meeting here Sunday, said Medic Alert President Kenneth Harms.

Koop, who has been outspoken on issues such as smoking, environmental hazards and AIDS, did not attend the meeting.

Harms said that adding Koop to the board was "a great honor."

Medic Alert provides medical information to emergency personnel 24 hours a day on its records hotline.

OTTAWA (AP) — Ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev, who recently leaped into the musical theater with "The King and I," said he has no qualms about taking over a role dominated for years by one actor — the late Yul Brynner.

"I've never been intimidated by anything," Nureyev told reporters Monday.

"I danced 'Giselle.' Nijinsky danced 'Giselle,'" he said, referring to the late Russian dancer Vaslav Nijinsky, considered one of the best dancers of all time.

Nureyev, 51, plays the role of the king of Siam in the revival of the Rodgers and Hammerstein hit, with British actress Liz Robertson playing his Anna.

Ottawa is the second stop of a tour that began in Toronto last month.

Nureyev, who has been artistic director of the Paris Opera Ballet since 1983, said he's enjoying the musical, in which he sings a couple of songs and must pretend he doesn't know how to polka for the famous "Shall We Dance" number.

"I enjoy it very much, yes, I do. It's not as hard as dancing."

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — More than 900 people packed Westminster Presbyterian Church on Monday to pay final respects to Dean A. McGee, the Kerrr-McGee Corp. co-founder and philanthropist.

"We must carry on the work of this gentle, generous genius of a man," said Dr. Michael Anderson, the church's senior minister, who delivered the eulogy.

McGee, the 85-year-old energy magnate and oil pioneer, died Friday at Baptist Medical Center, where he had been hospitalized for respiratory problems Aug. 30.

"There are epic proportions to Dean McGee's death," Anderson said. "It's the passing of an era and portends the birth of a new age," he said.

"His actions created the history that you and I live and enjoy," Anderson said.

State government and business leaders were among those attending the services, including former Gov. George Nigh and Lt. Gov. Robert S. Kerr III, grandson of McGee's business partner, the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr.

Anderson called McGee an "expansive personality" who was "frugal with words and prodigius of deeds.

"Dean knew how to lead. A leader knows how to grab the coattails of history," he said.

Anderson also praised McGee's generosity in civic, church and school matters, which he said was born of his "concern for a nascent Oklahoma culture."

Among other things, McGee was instrumental in the development of the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center.

Williams: 'San Jacinto just ahead'

Candidate sees victory for Texas oil industry

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Clayton Williams, Republican candidate for governor of Texas, put aside most of his politicking Monday night to discuss his views of the oilfield, past, present and future.

Guest speaker at the Permian Basin chapter, Society of Petroleum Engineers' annual Community Relations night, Williams said he sees lots of opportunities in the oil patch. "But, like an old bird dog, you've got to sniff them out," he warned.

Among the opportunities the Fort Stockton native cited was horizontal drilling in the Austin Chalk, which he said could create some drilling activity and some new jobs. Not only is he active in the Austin Chalk, he's active in South Louisiana and the Gulf.

He also cited natural gas as having a bright future, insisting that the end of the "natural gas bubble" is no more than two years away. He said natural gas has a stronger future than crude oil because there's more gas to be found. "It's deeper in the ground, and we haven't drilled that far down yet," he noted.

He added: "I expect we'll have good solid increases (in gas prices) this winter, and get good BTU value." He recalled buying natural gas for 16.5 cents a thousand cubic feet and selling it for $9 per Mcf.

Things have changed as the oil industry has undergone the most radical changes in its history, Williams told an audience that included the mayors of Midland and Andrews and officials from the Midland Independent School District, Midland College and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

"Everyone in this group is a survivor," he said. "We're all doing something different. We've had to change. I just bought production for the first time in my life. I recently drilled my first offshore well."

There are lots of opportunities in offshore drilling, he said, because as the majors downsize and pullout of offshore ventures, there's a great deal of information available and a good oilman can uncover overlooked commercial structures. In addition, he said, there are leases available and not much competition.

"Texas is poised for the future. We had our Goliad, our Alamo, and now San Jacinto is around the corner. But first we need to win the war on drugs," he said, taking the opportunity to do a little campaigning.

He repeated his plan to fight drug abuse in Texas by first increasing the number of narcotics agents working for the Texas Department of Safety.

Jobless rate still stable

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Stability appears to be the watchword for Midland's employment picture right now.

The Texas Employment Commission reported that the Tall City's unemployment rate fell to 6.7 percent in August, from 7.1 percent in July. The rate in 1988 was 5.2 percent.

However, Johnnie Isbell, office manager in the TEC Midland office, said claims were up slightly as there were some layoffs in oil-related areas. She said the increase was "nothing significant. Things seem to be holding their own, and we hope they'll get better."

Labor Market Analyst Lorna Biar with the TEC's regional office, noted, however, that total employment only rose 200 — from 46,100 to 46,300. It was 47,600 a year ago.

The total civilian workforce remained stable at 49,600, but was down from the 50,200 seen in August 1988. Total unemployment improved, from 3,500 to 3,300 in August, but was still up from the 2,600 seen a year ago.

In Odessa, the unemployment rate slipped from 9.4 to 9.3 percent in August. It was 7.1 percent a year ago.

Like Midland, Odessa's total civilian labor force rose — from 52,300 to 52,100; the figure, however, was 1,000 less than August 1988. Total employment in Odessa rose from 47,400 to 47,800, and total employment remained stable at 4,900. A year ago, Odessa had total employment of 49,900 and total unemployment of 3,800.

"For now, employment is pretty stable," Biar said. "Next month, we'll probably see some changes as summer vacations end and school starts again. August is still a summer month, and employment does strange things in the summer."

The improvement in employment was enough to lift Midland from 13th to 12th in Texas metropolitan statistical areas. Odessa fell from 22 to 23.

Bryan-College Station had the lowest rate in the state, 4.9 percent. Lubbock was second with 5.6 percent, followed by Amarillo and Sherman-Dennison with 5.8 percent. Austin and San Angelo were tied with 6.0 percent; Dallas had 6.1 percent, Houston and Wichita Falls had 6.4 percent, and Fort Worth-Arlington and Victoria had 6.5 percent.

INFLATION

Consumer prices still unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer inflation turned in its best performance in more than three years in August as prices remained frozen at the previous month's level, the government reported today.

It was the first time that the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index has not registered an increase since April 1986, when it fell by 0.3 percent. The August performance was credited to a 4.2 percent plunge in gasoline prices, the steepest one-month drop in three years.

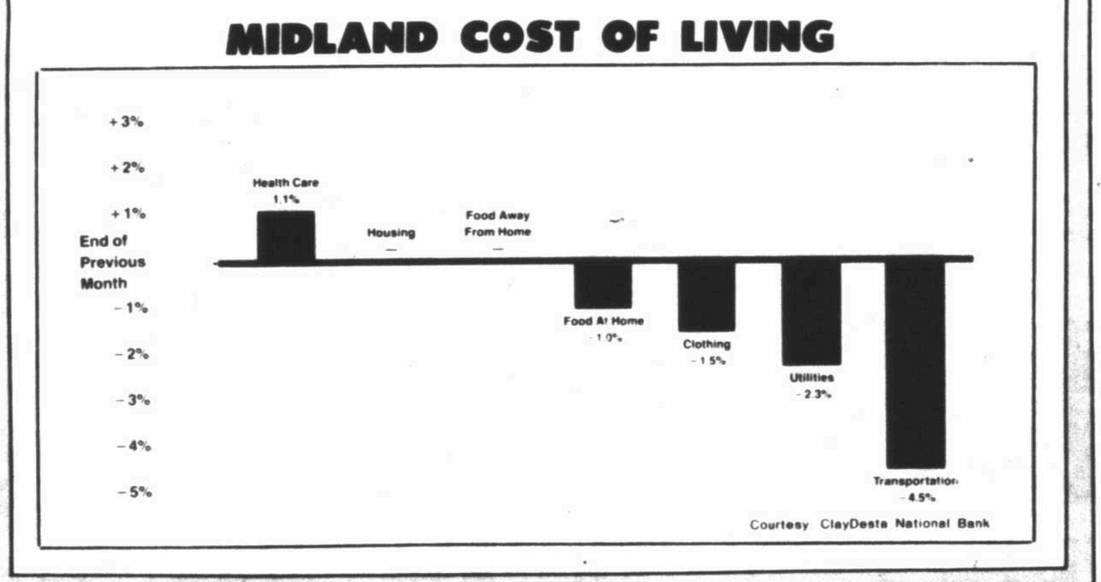

Falling energy prices have given consumers three consecutive months of good news on inflation. Prices were up a modest 0.2 percent in both June and July.

This was in sharp contrast to the situation earlier in 1989 when steep hikes in gasoline and food led to a surge in prices pushed the inflation rate up to an annual level of 6.7 percent for the first five months of the year.

But with the price moderation in the three months since then, consumer prices are now rising at a more modest annual rate of 4.8 percent, up only slightly from the 4.4 percent increase for all of 1988.

In another economic report, meantime, the Commerce Department said housing construction fell 5 percent in August for the largest decline in six months. New homes and apartments were built at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.35 million units, down from 1.42 million units in July.

Midland cost of living down

From Staff Reports

Midland's cost of living fell in August, the first decrease since February, according to a survey released by ClayDesta National Bank.

The survey indicates the Tall City's cost of living fell 0.7 percent, fueled by decreases in the categories of transportation, utilities, clothing and food at home. The food away from home and housing categories remained stable while health care costs rose.

Transportation showed the sharpest decline for a third consecutive month, falling 4.5 percent in August. The decline was due to a third month of lower gasoline prices.

Midlanders paid 1.1 percent more for health care in August, a second consecutive increase. A second month of higher doctor's fees and dental care offset a second month of lower prices for non-prescription medicine.

Utility bills continued a two-month trend by falling 2.3 percent in August. A 0.5 percent increase in electric bills was offset by an 8.2 percent fall in gas bills. Local water rates remained stable.

Clothing costs fell 1.5 percent in August, reversing two consecutive months of increases. Higher price tags for children's clothing were offset by lower prices for women's apparel and men's wear.

Increases in price tags for meat and alcoholic beverages were offset by lower prices for produce and shelf items as the cost of food for home fell 1.0 percent last menth.

Housing costs remained stable in August after rising in July.

After rising three consecutive months, the cost of eating at a Midland restaurant was stable in August.

FTC favors easing Love Field restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers could find traveling out of Dallas cheaper and less-hassle filled if restrictions on the use of Love Field are repealed and other carriers move into the downtown-area airport, a federal official says.

Removing the Love Field restrictions "would likely increase airline competition, provide added convenience, and reduce congestion at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport," says Tom Carter, director of the Federal Trade Commission's Dallas regional office.

"As a result, consumers both in Dallas and elsewhere, could benefit substantially," Carter says.

Some of those benefits include lower airfares to certain locations, lower parking and commuting costs, and reduced delays, Carter said in testimony recently to the Dallas City Council's transportation committee.

Under the so-called Wright amendment now under threat of repeal in Congress, direct flights out of Love Field are restricted to cities within Texas and its four neighboring states — New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Congressional hearings on a bill sponsored by Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., to toss out the Wright amendment will be scheduled after the Dallas City Council considers the issue, Glickman spokesman Scott Swenson said Monday.

Swenson said a council vote on whether to preserve the Wright amendment could be held Sept. 27, and he expects the council to favor repeal.

Sponsored a decade ago by former Rep. Jim Wright following construction of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, the Wright amendment was introduced because of concerns that unrestricted air travel out of Love Field would endanger the success of the new suburban airport.

The amendment has ensured both the success of D-FW, now the second busiest airport in the country, and of Southwest Airlines, the only major commercial airline operating out of Love Field, Swenson said.

But Glickman argues another result has been higher airfares for travelers in cities not served by Southwest Airlines.

Carter's study for the FTC's Dallas regional office found sharp differences in ticket prices from D-FW to cities not served by Southwest when compared with fares from Houston to those same destinations. American Airlines flights out of D-FW,

Oil prices head lower

From Staff and Wire Reports

Crude futures continue giving back some of their recent gains.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, October contracts for West Texas Intermediate were down 19 cents to $19.69 in mid-morning trading. The contract fell 8 cents to $19.88 Monday.

Gasoline futures posted gains after Hurricane Hugo caused at least two refineries — one in the Virgin Islands and one in Puerto Rico — to be shut down.

Unleaded gasoline for October delivery was up 0.52 cent a gallon, closing at 58.13 cents.

There was little news other than Hugo to influence trading, other than reports that Hisham Nazer, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, was recuperating from recent surgery and is expected to miss the meeting of the monitoring committee of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, set ro begin Saturday in Geneva.

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was mixed in quiet, early European trading today as market participants held off taking new positions ahead of new U.S. economic data scheduled for release later in the day.

Gold prices fell.

Foreign currency dealers said the release of the U.S. Consumer Price Index for August at 8:30 a.m. EDT, expected to show a slight rise in inflation, has slowed the trading session.

Late buying boosts stock prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip issues led the stock market higher Monday on the strength of a late flurry of buying near the close of a sluggish session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 77 points over the past two weeks, rose 12.92 to 2,687.50.

Advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 751 up, 693 down and 512 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 136.94 million shares, down from 234.87 million Friday, when activity was increased by the quarterly "triple witching hour" involving a group of expiring stock-index options and futures.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 166.73 million shares.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Housing starts plunge 5 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing construction fell 5 percent in August, the largest decline in six months, the government reported today.

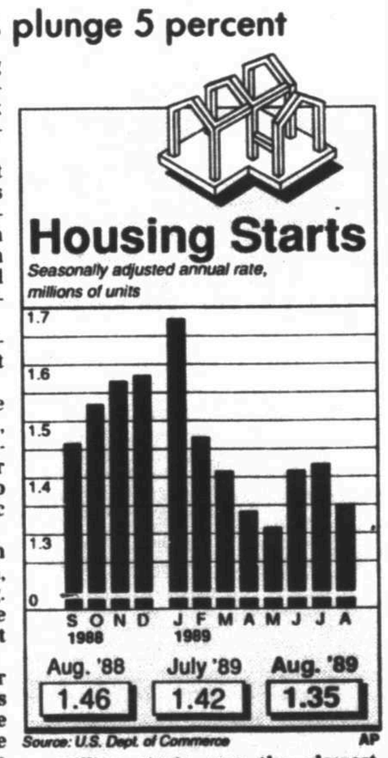

The Commerce Department said new homes and apartments were built at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.35 million units, down from 1.42 million units in July. Starts had gained 1.3 percent in July and 7.5 percent in June.

The August drop was the largest since a 12.7 percent fall last February.

It was the first decline since May for the housing industry, which had been among the sectors hardest hit earlier this year as the Federal Reserve drove up interest rates to slow economic growth and control inflation.

Fixed mortgage rates, which peaked at 11.22 percent in March, had fallen to 9.68 percent by Aug. 4, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Co. They stood at 10.05 percent last week.

Construction starts fell earlier this year for four straight months before rebounding in June, the longest string of declines since activity slowed for five months in a row from February through June 1987. The May level of 1.31 million starts was the slowest pace since the 1.30 million rate in December 1982.

Manufacturers Hanover restructuring

NEW YORK (AP) — Manufacturers Hanover Corp. announced a major restructuring that includes selling 60 percent of its CIT Group financial services unit to Japanese banking giant Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank Ltd. and adding $950 million to its loan-loss reserves to cover shaky Third World debt.

The New York-based bank also said Monday it would issue up to $500 million in new common stock before year's end.

Leaks in Milken case to be investigated

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge ordered the Justice Department to investigate whether the government has leaked confidential information to the press about its case against indicted financier Michael Milken.

But U.S. District Judge Kimba Wood said Monday she would not hold a hearing on the leak allegations made by defease lawyers until after Milken's trial, so as not to heighten publicity in the racketeering and fraud case.

Burroughs cutting price of AZT

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Burroughs Wellcome Co. is cutting by 20 percent the price of AZT, the only drug approved in the United States for fighting AIDS.

The reduction, announced Monday, reduces the price to the wholesale distributor to $1.20 from $1.50 per capsule. The action comes four days after five activists chained themselves to a banister at the New York Stock Exchange to protest the high cost of AZT.

SAN ANTONIO (SWN) — Well Solutions, Inc., the service subsidiary of New London Inc. announced effective September 1, 1989, it has acquired the business and assets of Panterra Well Service Co. in Giddings, Texas.

The business adds an additional three workover rigs to the two rigs already located in Giddings. This yard operates under the regional direction of Jerry Drake in Bryan, Texas, which is Well Solutions' East Texas divisional center.

Roy McKean, executive vice president of Well Solutions, said, "Panterra is a long established and respected well servicing name in the Giddings area and we believe that the addition of Larry Straheim and his team will add to our client base for well servicing, tool rentals, frac and vacuum truck work."

Apache high bidder on Gulf of Mexico blocks

DENVER (SWN) — Apache Corp. announced that it was apparent high bidder on six of the ten blocks bid on at the Aug. 23 Western Gulf of Mexico OCS Sale 122.

Final awarding of leases is subject to post sale review and approval by the Department of the Interior's Minerals Management Service. The company's net exposure would total $3.4 million assuming it is awarded all six blocks. All blocks have a five year lease term and a 1/6 royalty.

Apache is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with securities traded on the New York and Midwest Stock Exchanges.

Marathon, Irish government discuss gas field

HOUSTON — Marathon Petroleum Ireland Ltd. has begun discussions with the Irish Department of Energy concerning the possible development of the Ballycotton gas field located offshore Ireland in the Celtic Sea.

The Ballycotton field was discovered in March of this year with well 48/20-2 and delineated in May with appraisal well 48/20-4. The field is located approximately nine miles north of the Kinsale Head gas field.

Preliminary indications are that the Ballycotton reservoir will support a subsea development consisting of a productino facility at the 48/20-2 location with pipelines and control and chemical injection umbilicals tied back to one of the existing Kinsale gas field platforms. The preliminary schedule calls for the Ballycotton field to begin production in the latter part of 1991.

WyCal, city of Long Beach sign transportation accord

HOUSTON (SWN) — Wyoming-California Pipeline Co. and the City of Long Beach, California have executed a firm transportation agreement under which Long Beach would have the ability to transport up to 100 million cubic feet of natural gas a day for 20 years on the WyCal pipeline system.

WyCal, a subsidiary of The Coastal Corp., has been authorized by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to build and operate a 1,000-mile natural gas pipeline from the prolific overthrust gas fields in Wyoming to Kern County, California.

The City of Long Beach operates a municipal utility that serves the natural gas needs of approximately 130,000 customers in Long Beach and nearby communities.

In addition to the Long Beach transaction, Pacific Gas and Electric Company and Southern California Edison Company have executed letters of intent to contract for firm, long-term transportation capacity on the WyCal system, and Southern California Gas Company has entered into a settlement agreement with WyCal which gives it the right to purchase firm transportation capacity.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Future will tell if one-year CD was right move

By BILL DOYLE

Q. A $6,000, two-year certificate of deposit I had matured back on June 6. I decided to add another $2,000 I had available and get an $8,000 CD. At my savings and loan association, I was told the yield would be 9.11 percent on a two-year CD or 9.57 percent on a one-year CD.

So I decided to obtain a one-year CD, in order to get the higher rate. I think I did the correct thing. Don't you?

Doyle

A. We won't know until next June 6. If you are then able to invest the CD proceeds — the $8,000 plus accumulated interest — at a high interest rate, you will have made the right move. However, if interest rates plunge between now and June 6, 1990, so that you get a low rate when you reinvest, the answer will be a resounding "no."

You'll come out ahead if the interest your money earns averages out to 9.12 or higher over two years. Without going through complicated arithmetic, that means your money will have to earn at least 8.65 percent in the year beginning next June 6. Assuming it does, that rate combined with the 9.57 percent you are getting now will at least equal the 9.11 percent you could have received on a two-year CD.

You did very well getting 9.57 percent on your present CD. The Bank Rate Monitor index shows the average annual effective yield on one-year CDs was 9.15 percent back on June 7.

CD rates at most banks and S&Ls have come down quite a bit since you invested your $8,000. Whether rates will fall sharply by next June is pure guesswork. I learned a long time ago not to try to forecast the direction of interest rates.

Q. It has always been my understanding that long-term interest rates are higher than short-term interest rates. But when I renewed CDs several times this year, my bank paid higher rates on one-year CDs than on five-year CDs.

Following your admonition to "shop around," I inquired at other banks and savings and loan associations. I found roughly the same situation — although some offered their highest rates on six-month or five-month CDs.

What do you call this?

A. An "inverted yield curve." That's the moniker applied when short-term interest rates are higher than long-term rates. Your "understanding" is quite right — most of the time. But things are sometimes the other way about and we see an inverted yield curve.

Recall your grade school math and chart rates on graph paper, with the horizontal lines being the terms to maturity, say, from three months to 10 years and the vertical lines being interest rates.

Usually, the line you draw on the chart will move up gradually and reach its highest point at the end — showing that the longer the term of the CD or any other debt obligation, the higher the interest rate.

However, if you're plotting out that chart when some short-term rates are higher than long-term rates, the line you draw will bulge up almost as soon as you put pencil to paper and then come down to show that out-of-the-ordinary situation — an inverted yield curve.

Q. Why in the world would a bank pay higher interest on short-term CDs than on long-term CDs?

A. Generally, for two reasons — competition and loan demand.

When one bank offers high rates, other banks in town usually have to post equal rates on CDs with similar maturities, or else lose deposits.

More important, a bank's basic business is lending money. In order to make loans, the bank must bring in money. CDs are one method used. When there is heavy demand for short-term loans, the bank offers high interest rates on short-term CDs so that money will be available for those loans.

Then he wold attack demand by:

■ Revoking drivers license for high school students caught with drugs such as marijuana;

■ Expelling college students found with illegal substances.

He would prevent drug abuse by:

■ Educating Texas children, beginning in kindergarten;

■ Doubling the state's prisons and re-establishing the credibility of the system.

He would then rehabilitate drug abusers, especially young ones, by establishing a 90-day military-style boot camp at the state's newly purchased Big Bend ranch. Then the offenders would spend time at a work camp, where they would earn wages.

"I want them to have a second chance — a clean record and money in their pocket so they can go out and get a job, support themselves and pay taxes."

PRICES

While some economists say the country is in for moderation in inflation, other analysts are worried that underlying inflationary pressures are being masked by the plunge in energy costs.

These economists say energy prices, which surged early in the year only to fall back somewhat in the past three months, are likely to begin rising again this fall, reflecting higher crude oil costs.

Gasoline prices shot up 21.2 percent in the first five months of the year, then fell 1 percent in June, 2.2 percent in July and 4.2 percent in August. The August decline was the biggest drop since a 5.2 percent decrease in August 1986.

Natural gas and electricity prices registered a 0.2 percent decline while heating oil costs fell by 0.9 percent last month.

Food prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in August following a 0.3 percent July gain. Those figures were in sharp contrast to the first nine months of the year, when the lingering effects of the 1988 drought sent food costs racing ahead at a 9.3 percent annual rate.

For August, declines in the cost of pork and poultry were partially offset by increases for beef, fish and eggs.

Fruit and vegetable prices fell 0.2 percent in August following a 0.5 percent increase in July.

Clothing costs fell a sharp 1.5 percent in August, helping to push apparel prices down by 3.4 percent over the past three months. The price drop was credited to larger than normal end-of-season price cuts for women's and girls' clothing.

The various changes left the overall Consumer Price Index at 124.6 in August, meaning that a hypothetical marketbasket of goods costing $100 in the base period of 1982-84 would have cost $124.60 last month.

The price of goods and services, other than food and energy, rose 0.2 percent in August after climbing by 0.4 percent in July. It is this underlying inflation rate that has some analysts concerned that the battle against rising prices has not been won.

"The U.S. inflation rate is not as good as it looks," said David Wyss, an economist at DRI-McGraw Hill, an economic consulting firm in Lexington, Mass.

"We are seeing a slow acceleration of inflation but for the next few months that will be hidden by soft energy and food prices," he said.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington consulting firm, agreed with this assessment, saying the big plunge in gasoline prices is coming to an end, reflecting the rise in crude oil prices in recent weeks.

"Gasoline prices will not fall any further while prices other than food and energy will continue to rise on a broad front," Evans said.

Still, analysts believe the inflation rate for all of 1989 will not be too much worse than in 1988, when consumer prices rose 4.4 percent.

The Bush administration is projecting that consumer prices will rise 5 percent for all of 1989 — a forecast that is generally in line with most private economists.

The Federal Reserve is a bit less optimistic, saying it was looking for an inflation rate of between 5 percent and 5.5 percent this year.

Many economists believe the Fed is unlikely to ease up on credit anytime soon, in spite of the recent good news on inflation, because of its more pessimistic assumptions about underlying inflationary pressures.

LOVE

however, tended to cost about the same as Southwest flights to the same destinations.

Carter's study said the lowest available fares from Houston to Kansas City, Nashville, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., or St. Louis were significantly below the fares from D-FW from those destinations, Carter said.

For example, the FTC survey found the lowest available fare from Houston to St. Louis was $98 while the lowest available fare from Dallas to St. Louis was $200.

"For full fares, the differences are even larger, with full fares from D-FW being sometimes as much as four times more than full fares on routes originating in Houston. Thus, while the fare from Houston to Nashville is $168, the same airline's fare from Dallas to Nashville is $672," Carter told the city council.

"This evidence, though illustrative rather than conclusive, suggests that removal of restrictions may lower fares to consumers flying into and out of Dallas," Carter said.

Carter also said increased use of Love Field could help alleviate flight delays at D-FW caused by congestion. Calculations indicate the dollar value of reduced delay time may be substantial, "perhaps on the order of tens of millions of dollars per year," he said.

Passengers also would save time and money commuting to downtown Dallas from Love Field, which is 10 miles closer to the city's business center. The savings from reduced travel time alone could exceed $2 million a year, Carter said. The direct savings of traveling 10 fewer miles could exceed $3 million annually.

"Our analysis indicates that even without considering the substantial savings that may arise from lower air fares, the savings from reduced delay time and commuting costs could be substantial," Carter said.

Dole pushes capital gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said Sunday that while expanding individual retirement account benefits would be more politically popular, cutting the top capital gains tax rate would be of greater benefit overall.

Dole said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that President Bush is "on the right course" pressing for a cut in taxes on profits from the sale of stocks, real estate and other investments. The House Ways and Means Committee last week approved the reduction.

"Let's create some jobs. Let's make the cost of capital cheaper," which would make the country more competitive on the world market, Dole said.

Quayle's arrival in Korea protested

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Hundreds of students staged anti-U.S. protests in the capital and in the southern city of Kwangju today as Vice President Dan Quayle arrived for talks expected to cover human rights and democratic reform.

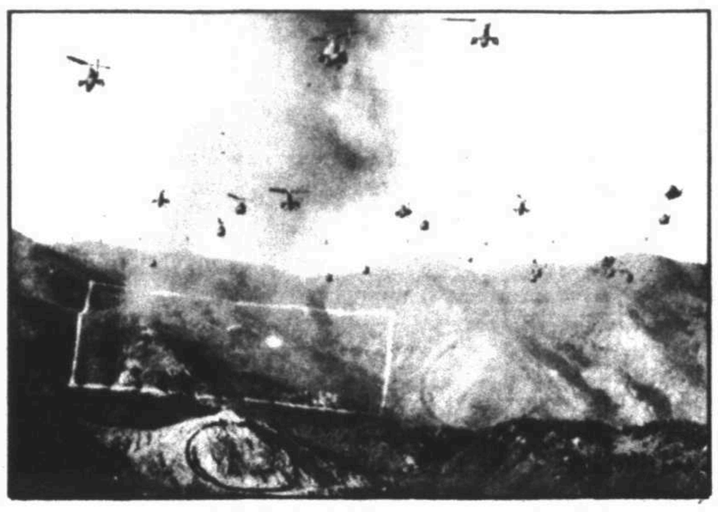

A clash also was reported near the U.S. Embassy in Manila between police and leftist students protesting Quayle's planned visit to the Philippines. Police fired pistols in the air to scatter the students, who then withdrew to a nearby park. No arrests were report.

In Seoul, hundreds of riot police lined the route taken by Quayle's heavily-guarded motorcade as he went from a military airport outside to Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon's office at the start of two days of talks.

Radical students opposing Quayle's visit staged a small protest at Seoul Municipal Polytech University, where about 100 students burned a U.S. flag and chanted "We oppose Quayle's visit to the death."

At Kyunghee University in eastern Seoul, 50 students burned a U.S. flag and an effigy of Quayle. They also shouted slogans against newly assigned U.S. Ambassador Donald Gregg, describing him as a "CIA master of political manipulation."

Protests were reported at two other Seoul campuses, but there was no confrontation with police.

South Korean military helicopters fly over a firing range Monday, near the central front to attack imaginary North Korean positions.

About 500 radical students shouting "Yankee go home!" battled riot police with firebombs and rocks in the southern city of Kwangju, police said.

The protests were minuscule by South Korean standards and dissident groups made no effort to organize demonstrations in protest of Quayle's visit. The radicals are demanding an end to close ties with Washington and expulsion of the 43,000 U.S. troops based in South Korea under a mutual defense pact.

South Korean and U.S. officials say the U.S. troops must remain to ensure North Korea does not attack the South. Washington intervened on behalf of the South during the 1950-53 Korean War and has kept troops in the country ever since.

Quayle and his wife Marilyn were greeted by the prime minister and top Cabinet ministers on their arrival from Alaska. Two Korean children presented the Quayles with flowers and the vice president inspected an honor guard.

Quayle is to meet President Roh Tae-woo and heads of the main political parties on Wednesday.

Quayle is expected to urge the South Korean government to keep its commitment to bringing in full democratic rule since Roh took power in February last year. The United States is unhappy about a recent wave of arrests of opponents of the Seoul government.

South Korean opposition leaders were to tell Quayle about their concerns about the deteriorating human rights situation, opposition party officials said.

Argentine leader to pardon 18 linked to rights abuses

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Carlos Menem says he will pardon 18 retired generals and admirals who face charges they committed hundreds of human rights abuses in the 1970s during the armed forces' war on leftists.

The cases of six other people, including two former presidents already convicted and sentenced, will be considered at a later date, Menem said late Sunday in a brief interview with state-run television.

Menem, who took office in July, said ordered the pardon "for the good of my country" and due to the "need for reconciliation to pacify Argentina.

"It is not possible to continue living in an ignominious past that wounds us all," Menem told Channel 7.

Menem's statement was the first firm indication of who would be included in the controversial pardon, expected to be formally announced after his return Sept. 28 from a visit to the United States.

"This is getting worse and worse," said Hebe Bonafini, founder of the Mothers of the Plaza de Mayo, a group made up of relatives of people who disappeared during the 1970s. "All the military is responsible for what happened — for the kidnappings, the torture and the disappearances."

Sixteen retired generals and two admirals face trial in civilian courts on hundreds of charges, including kidnapping, torture and murder, growing out of a brutal campaign conducted against leftists during the 1976-83 military regime.

Six others were convicted of similar charges in 1984 and are serving terms ranging from eight years to life at a military prison.

They are former military presidents Gens. Jorge Videla and Roberto Viola, former Navy commanders Adms. Emilio Massera and Armando Lambruschini and former Buenos Aires provincial police chiefs Gens. Ramon Camps and Osvaldo Riccheri.

A government commission named by Menem's predecessor, former President Raul Alfonsin, determined that at least 8,900 Argentines disappeared during the anti-subversion campaign and were presumed dead.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Rabin, Murbarak find bit of common ground

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Hosni Mubarak and Israel's Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin defined a patch of common ground in their first meeting on Middle East peace prospects, but did not bridge the chasm of differences in their views.

Mubarak also acknowledged that he has not yet persuaded the PLO to join his efforts to arrange preliminary peace talks between Israelis and Palestinians.

Rabin and Mubarak's three-hour meeting Monday at the president's heavily guarded suburban Heliopolis Palace exposed the intricacies and challenges of Middle East peacemaking, with the leaders voicing guarded optimism.

Mubarak said in Cairo that the talks were "very fruitful and very logical. We had some good points which we agree upon, and there are still some points which need more clarification. ... The talks went according to my expectations."

Two peace plans were discussed at the Cairo meeting, Rabin and Mubarak told in separate news conferences Monday.

Deng laughs at rumors

BEIJING (AP) — China's senior leader Deng Xiaoping today laughed about foreign reports of his death and spoke of how his reappearance in public had helped the Hong Kong stock exchange.

Deng, 85, also told Japanese lawmaker Masayoshi Ito that among the politicians he most respected were former President Nixon, Henry Kissinger and Japan's former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka. All three men led the way in improving their countries' relations with China.

The meeting at the Great Hall of the People was the second for China's reclusive leader in three days.

Two bombs rock Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Two more bombs exploded in Bogota, one injuring three people, and troops battling drug gang violence reported seizing a 22,000-acre ranch owned by a man reputed to be among Colombia's top cocaine barons.

Security was stepped up at the U.S. Embassy on Monday, which was struck the previous night by a rocket that did not explode.

Two bombs exploded Monday night in Bogota, at a shopping center and at a government telephone company's substation, a police spokesman said.

WE NEED YOUR HELP: VA welcomes comments concerning the condition of our properties. Any improprieties should be reported to the VA Regional Office at 817-757-6869.

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. The name of the successful offeror and sales broker will appear in subsequent publications. VA will accept cash offers up to 10 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers' closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 10 percent of the term list price. Offers must be submitted at term listed price when buyers request a new GI loan with $1.00 move-in. Interest rate of available financing is 9.5 percent (APR 9.6 percent).

Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26-6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser and Verification of Employment/Income, as outlined in Sales of VA-Acquired Properties Manual, attached to their VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale. Effective June 8, 1988, all credit underwriting for purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing is being referred to Miller and Davis PC. All brokers are reminded to refer to PM letter #17-88 dated May 25, 1988, outlining these new procedures. Purchase offers not accompanied by the required employment/income verification WILL RESULT IN REJECTION OF THE PURCHASE OFFER.

Prior approval will be required by VA for the transfer of a property secured by a vendee loan if the loan is not paid in full as part of the transfer. Public Law 100-689 also permits VA to charge a one-half of 1 percent funding fee for the transfer as well as a fee for processing the approval of the transfer.

VA has properties for sale statewide. If you desire to purchase properties in other areas, please contact any sales broker located in the area in which you are interested.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, broker must deposit in broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The Earnest Money Agreement (Exhibit "H") must be signed by the purchaser(s) and submitted along with the VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on all offers. The $500 earnest money deposit will be remitted to Miller and Davis PC upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchaser, the earnest money deposit WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to the VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure they want the property prior to submission of an offer to purchase. VA pays 6% sales commission. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:
