Bandit Once Well-To-Do Business Man

(By The Associated Press)

Charles Chapman, Arkansas' and Texas' "depression bandit," scrawled his name in bold letters across police records of the southwest after sudden economic reverses toppled into ruin an apparently profitable legitimate business career.

Chapman was 31 years old when he sought to extend his highway contracting activities from south Arkansas to Florida. A well-to-do citizen of El Dorado, Ark., prior to that time, he had built a number of roads in that section and was highly regarded by business leaders.

In Florida a combination of inexperience in building through swamp lands and the world economic depression virtually wiped out his contracting business. There, on April 30, 1931, he ran afoul of the law for the first time.

Records of the Arkansas state police and Federal Bureau of Identification show that on that date Chapman was arrested at Miami, Fla., on charges of carrying concealed weapons and hi-jacking. He was turned over to county authorities where the charges were reduced to assault with intent to kidnap and Chapman was released on bond. The case was passed several times and nolle prossed in 1933.

Chapman apparently left Florida soon after that trouble and was ar-

Three Highway Jobs Announced

Three highway jobs that mark another step in Pampa's hope of developing a highway network to the north and south have been announced during the past week.

One and three-fourths mile north of Canadian, work has been started on paving the last uncompleted gap on U. S. Highway 83 between Perryton and Canadian. When the 6.4 mile strip is completed it will mean a paved road all the way from the Texas-Oklahoma border on the north south to King county.

Austin Construction company, contractors for paving the Pampa-Borger road, also have the contract on the Highway 83 job. The strip to be paved extends from the junction of Highways 83 and 60 to Horse creek. Bid of the Austin Construction company for the job was $160,227, which includes grading, drainage structures, and paving.

Jensen Construction company has the bid for the construction of bridges at Horse, Big Timber and Dry creeks, at $63,923.

Concrete will be the material used in paving the gap. G. K. Reading of Perryton, Texas Highway de-

Robert Woolsey Of Movie Fame Passes

MALIBU BEACH, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP)—The film colony and a world of fans today mourned one of the screen's top comedians, bespectacled, cigar chewing, wise cracking Robert Woolsey.

Death came to the elder member of the Wheeler and Woolsey team at his beach home here yesterday, after an 18 months' illness which had forced his retirement from pictures.

Bert Wheeler broke off a personal appearance tour at Chicago and flew here early today to attend the funeral services, which will be held Friday.

"This is a terrific loss to me," he said. "Bud was not only my partner on the stage and screen, but a great personal friend."

Woolsey, 49, when he died, was a jockey at 15. But when Pink Star, later a Kentucky winner, fell with him and broke Woolsey's leg, he turned bellboy and met actors who helped him get a start in vaudeville and stock.

Lawyer Would Send Child Bride To An Orphanage

PRESTONSBURG, Ky., Nov. 1 (AP)—Floyd County Attorney Forrest Short sought today to commit Rosie Columbus, jailed child bride, to an orphanage.

As Short prepared to institute proceedings, authorities sought Fleming Tackett, 34-year-old coal miner, with a warrant charging him with the rape of Rosie, his bride, shown by medical records to be 10 years old.

I Heard - - -

That C. D Rosser, shop foreman in a garage in downtown Pampa, had a birthday today, and that when he appeared in the Canary Sandwich shop for breakfast he was served with a cake bearing two candles. "That's because he acts like a two-year-old, I suppose," explains Geo. Taylor, one of his bosses.

Pampa youngsters had a big time last night. They didn't do anything destructive but they inconvenienced many, many motorists by letting air out of car tires. Not only did they let the air out but they removed valve stems and caps.

Promoter Cliff Chambers and his customers down at the Pampa Athletic arena were probably the hardest hit. Nearly every car parked around the arena had from one to four flat tires. Cliff had to have service cars come to his assistance and it was a couple of hours before the last car had been driven away.

Pampa firemen thought they were seeing things when they answered a call to 1000 Christine street. As they topped the grade they saw a string of fire across the street. Water from the truck booster tank soon had the blaze extinguished. The firemen then found that pranksters had tied sacks on a wire, dipped them in gasoline, then strung them across the street and started the fire.

Steak Burns Up

The firemen were called out at 1:15 a. m. to 413 Malone street where grease in a skillet had caught fire. No damage resulted except that the steak being prepared for an oil field worker was lost.

School buildings were guarded closely by bus drivers and no damage was reported.

Pampans Will Be Dinner Guests At Mobeetie

Pampans attending the Mobeetie school carnival Wednesday night will be guests at a dinner to be served by the school home economics class. The local delegation will leave from the city hall at 6:13 p. m.

Plans for making the trip were made yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the goodwill committees of the two chambers of commerce. Attending were Shelby Gants, chairman of the senior group, and Wayne Phelps, chairman of the junior body, Walter Daugherty, Frank Hill, Tex DeWeese and B. M. Behrman. Present from Mobeetie were Mrs. F. H. Scribner, Miss Daisy Crump and Wade Duncan.

Following the dinner the Pampans will attend the carnival which will include all types of games and contests. Proceeds will be used to purchase playground equipment and books for the school library.

Pampans who can make the trip are urged to call 384 and leave their names.

Kennamer Will Be Given Sanity Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 1 (AP)—Phil Kennamer went about his work in the state prison with masked feelings today while preparations were made for a sanity hearing which may give the youth "society gang" slayer six months of freedom.

The moody, silent Tulsan declined to comment on a recommendation by the state's unofficial clemency board that he be granted a six-month parole, conditional upon a sanity hearing, to accompany his mother on a trip to Arizona for her health.

"Whatever the board did is all right," he said.

Kennamer was convicted in the sensational slaying of John F. Gorrell, Jr., in Tulsa, Thanksgiving day, 1934.

Sentenced to 25 years imprisonment, he has served two years and eight months.

Governor Marland, preparing to follow the board's recommendation, called for an immediate meeting of the state sanity board, and said he hoped they could get together at McAlester today.

The parole was recommended after Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, the youth's father, pleaded that his wife was critically ill and in need of her son's companionship.

HERE'S GERMANY'S OWN PLAN FOR CONQUERING EUROPE BY 1948

Germanys "10-year plan," projecting a program of Nazi-Fascist expansion and conquest that by 1948 would place most of Europe and parts of the Near East under the swastika, with Italy sharing in the spoils, is revealed in the above map, circulated in Austria a few hours after the Munich peace pact. Top row illustrates the 1938-39 expansion program, with the first two steps, absorption of Austria and Czechoslovakia accomplished, and the third, absorption of Hungary, scheduled for 1939. Second row shows Poland included in the Nazi orbit late in 1939 and the swallowing of Yugoslavia, Rumania, and Bulgaria in 1940. Third row, the drive east and west in 1941, year of the Big War, when German armies smash through Poland and Rumania, seizing all European Russia south of Moscow to the Caspian Sea, and at the same time sweep over Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and northern France. Large map at the bottom envisages Europe in 1948 completely dominated by the Rome-Berlin axis. Germany (dark shading), has taken over the British Isles and Ireland, southern Norway and Sweden and wiped out the Turkish nation, occupying Istanbul and Persia (light shading). Italy, represented by the white, holds all of Spain except the northwest coast which goes to Germany. Italy also gets a great chunk of southeastern France, Palestine, Albania, Greece, and the entire North African coast. This map, distributed by Nazi propaganda agents concurrently with the occupation of Czechoslovakia, came into French possession and eventually to New York. The legend across the top reads: "One people, one state, one leader." Across the bottom: "Germany, Germany over all."

Roads May Take U. S. Loan And Drop Cut

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Hints that the railroads might accept federal aid as an alternative to wage cuts in their search for economic relief came today from management officials.

"A railroad strike is so far, far away in my opinion," H. A. Enochs, chairman of the management's wage committee said with a smile, "that there's no use to get worried about it."

J. J. Pelley, president of the association of American railroads, also grinned when he told reporters that any strike was "at least 30 days away."

Pelley asked heads of leading roads to meet in Chicago Friday to accept or reject cancellation of a 15 per cent pay reduction. President Roosevelt's fact-finding board rec-

Bandit Dead In Woods Says Louisiana Officer

Dies Committee May Close Inquiry Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, said today the House committee on un-American activities may have to end its hearings soon because its $25,000 expense fund is running low.

Since President Roosevelt and members of his administration have taken some verbal digs at the committee, Dies was none too hopeful of getting more cash after Congress meets in January.

The $25,000 would have gone farther, the chairman indicated in a radio address last night, had government departments supplied lawyers, investigators, stenographers and clerks in accordance with the House resolution ordering the investigation.

He said, however, that appeals to the justice and labor departments, the WPA, and finally to the President had brought no result.

In fact, he added, Secretary Perkins and Interior Secretary Ickes joined "certain radical writers" in a campaign "to discredit the committee by ridicule and misrepresentation."

By arrangement of the Democratic national committee, Paul Y. Andrews, Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Star-Times, followed Dies on the air. Anderson said he had seen some "slip-shod" and "shockingly unfair" congressional investigations but declared none had approached the Dies committee's hearings in either of those respects.

Anderson said the committee used an "extraordinary presentation and manipulation of witnesses" for political effect, "regardless of the damage the truth suffers in the process."

Dies contended against whom charges were made in hearings had an invitation to appear before the committee.

Two Families Seek Custody Of Servant's Baby

WESTPORT, Conn., Nov. 1 (AP)—Judge Austin Wakeman ascended the bench in probate court today with such a knotty problem in child welfare to solve as once confronted King Solomon—but possibly Judge Wakeman's task of pronouncing judgment is the more difficult of the two.

The biblical king once decided the disputed parentage of an infant by awarding the child to the more humane of the two wrangling claimants, but the local jurist must decide which of two Westport couples may adopt ten-months-old Betty Lou Francos, or, as an alternative, may approve an offer of marriage made to the baby's unwed mother.

Claiming the baby are Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Brown, with whom the child is now living and who have exhibited an adoption agreement signed by the servant-girl mother Oct. 17, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Buttery, who have produced a similar agreement signed Oct. 15.

Since the Browns and the Butterys brought their case to court, a New York chauffeur has written to welfare director Howell F. Fuller, offering to marry the mother, Anna Francos of New York, whom he has never seen.

Although Judge Wakeman did not indicate before court opened whether he would consider the marriage solution, he said he believed the New York man was "absolutely sincere." Before the marriage offer the mother testified she was "too poor" to support the blonde, blue-eyed baby.

British Freighter Struck In Air Raid

BARCELONA, Nov. 1 (AP)—The 2,546-ton British freighter Gothic was struck by a bomb today in an insurgent air raid on Barcelona.

The ship, hit several times previously in insurgent raids, was reported considerably damaged. One person was killed and two were wounded by projectiles which sprayed the port area.

A single government pursuit plane attacked the two squadrons of insurgent bombers participating in the raid, but lost its wings and crashed into the sea.

The port of Tarragona also was bombed.

Injuries Fatal To Lone Star Employe

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1 (AP)—Grover C. Reed, 54, of Bowie, veteran employe of the Lone Star Gas Co., died in a hospital here this morning of injuries suffered in an auto accident ten miles north of here yesterday.

The Bowie man was superintendent of telephone construction and maintenance for the gas company and was one of the three oldest employes in point of service.

Mrs. B. W. Bettis who lives on the Merten lease south of Pampa left her car parked in front of the post office about 6 o'clock last night and went into mail a letter. She left her purse in the car.

Overton Buys Fine Ranch In New Mexico

RATON, N. M., Nov. 1 (AP)—W. L Horbury, wealthy English cotton broker, has brought to a conclusion his experiment in western "dude" ranching it became known today turning over his palatial Vallejo ranch to Dr. M. C. Overton Jr. of Pampa, Texas, sanitarium operator

At one time the ranch, a financial disappointment since Horbury took it over a year and a half ago, was prepared at great expense for a proposed visit by the Duke of Windsor and "Wally." The ranch, consisting of several thousand acres, is located near Cimarron.

Horbury turned his interests in the vast properties over to his son W. L. Horbury Jr., who will complete negotiations for the sale to Dr Overton.

The Horburys, it has been estimated, spent $300,000 on the ranch

Horbury also was sued for nearly $18,000 by three employes, who charged breach of contract, and for $225,000 for slander by a Santa Fe horse fancier in another action.

Attorneys said all the suits have been settled out of court, although amount of the settlement was not revealed.

Both Horbury and his son have returned to England.

Dr. Overton has not disclosed to what uses he intends to put the ranch, whose Spanish-pueblo buildings are of show-place proportions and richly furnished.

The property includes several thousand acres of land, tennis courts, polo fields, a swimming pool, some of the largest stables in New Mexico, guest cottages and an airport and hangar.

Parcel Post Silver Jubilee Celebrated

The month of November has been set aside as Silver Jubilee Parcel Post observance over the nation, Postmaster C. H. Walker announced today. Starting in 1913 as a means of serving small communities and rural areas, the service has grown until it has the second greatest revenue in the postoffice department, second only to first class mail.

When first established, parcel post carried only small packages, not weighing more than four pounds or larger than the size of a small shoe box. Now parcels weighing up to 70 pounds and measuring up to 100 inches length and girth combined may be sent parcel post. Insurance, Cash on Delivery and Air Mail service have been added in recent years.

During 1937 more than 700 million packages were sent by parcel post in the United States. Revenue for the year exceeded 144 million dollars, Postmaster Walker revealed today.

First Caliche Laid On Borger Highway

Two miles of the first course of caliche has been laid to date on the Pampa-Borger road, extending from the end of the present paving, seven miles west of Pampa. A total of 5,000 cubic yards of caliche has been spread.

Work on the road began October 11 and 51 men are employed on the project, including the number used in supervision. A total of 125 men have been assigned to the road from the Borger office of the Texas Highway department but not all of these have reported and some who did report were not accepted by the contractors, Austin Construction company. L. O. McCormick is superintendent for the contractor.

The subgrade on the road has been cut for a distance of four miles, extending to White Deer creek.

Bank Robber Surrounded But Escapes

Runs Behind Barn Then Into Woods, Firing Four Shots

PHILADELPHIA, Miss, Nov. 1 (AP)—Major Murphy Roden of the Louisiana state police said today he believed Charley Chapman, notorious southwest desperado, who exchanged gunfire with officers near here late yesterday and escaped, would be found dead in the woods

Major Roden said Chapman's companion, who he believed to be Dave Graves, a mid-western bank bandit, was captured and was being held today in an unannounced jail.

"I believe Chapman was mortally wounded," Major Roden told the Associated Press today, "as he fled, and it is my opinion that he will be found somewhere in the woods near here dead. However, he might have escaped and is being hidden out by some of his many friends in this area."

Three Arrested

Roden said three people were arrested and turned over to federal authorities on a charge of harboring a fugitive. He said they were Grady White, proprietor of a roadhouse near Philadelphia; Babe Williams, a woman friend of White's; and Mrs. O. P. Miller, White's sister.

Roden said a squad of officers came upon Chapman and his companion late yesterday, seated in a new automobile (Plymouth) in front of Grady White's place.

Chapman jumped out of the automobile and ran as the officers opened fire on him. His

British-Italian Accord Will Be Put In Operation

(By The Associated Press)

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today he expected to put in operation soon the Italian-British friendship accord, a key point in his policy of dealing with dictators.

Signed April 16, the agreement has remained inoperative pending a "settlement" of the Spanish question. The premier announced he intended to put the pact into effect "as soon as possible" and proposed the question for debate tomorrow.

The Rome accord was designed to provide a comprehensive settlement of all conflicts of British and Italian interests in the Mediterranean, Africa, the Near East and Spain. It provided for British recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia and for complete Italian withdrawal from Spain after the civil war and Italy's assurances she had no territorial or political aims in Spain.

Chamberlain refused to be drawn into discussion today of his reasons for deciding to make the accord effective, but it was believed the decision was based on Premier Mussolini's recent withdrawal of 10,000 Italian troops from Spain.

"Settlement of the Spanish question" was made a prerequisite to enforcement of the treaty when it was signed.

Dismantling Of Stands Begins

Forty WPA workers this morning began dismantling the condemned grandstand at Recreation park, a mile east of the city. In charge of the job is a local man, Bill Vasey, who has been named project superintendent by WPA.

Tearing up the seats and loosening nuts on reineforcement bolts started the job which will end in about two months. Later a steel grandstand will be constructed, as a separate project.

The grandstand was condemned a year ago following a load test which caved in one section.

An additional 114 WPA workers started the city-wide street paving project today. Work was begun on North Gillespie street and North Wynne street between Francis and Browning avenues on North Yeager street north of Browning avenue and on North Gray street between Kingsmill and Francis avenues.

A Mr. Bradley has been named area engineer of projects in Gray, Wheeler, Collingsworth and Childress counties, replacing H. P. Kay.

The Japanese drive continued from the captured tri-city area of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, with one column reported to have occupied Hanchwan, 60 miles by river to the west of Hanyang.

Local Florist Has Traveled 250,000 Miles, Including Voyage To Pitcairn

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

From Pitcairn Island to Pampa is a long, long way but it's only a small fraction of the total distance that Clarence Bauch, 26-year-old globe-trotter who now calls Pampa home, has traveled.

In the past 11 years Bauch has traveled 250,000 miles, a distance equal to ten times around the world. Most noted of his adventures have been his canoe trips on the Mississippi, Arkansas, and Rio Grande rivers.

Three Canoe Trips

With Jerry Fitzgerald, an Eagle Scout from El Paso who was with the Martin Johnson expedition in Africa in 1932, Bauch traveled by canoe from Lake Itasca, Minn., the headwaters of the Mississippi, a distance of 2,186 miles down the Father of Waters to New Orleans.

This trip was in 1935. The next year the two paddled their way down the Arkansas, 1,965 miles from Pueblo, Colo., through Muskogee and Tulsa, Okla., to New Orleans, and during the same year the two also made the trip down the Rio Grande from El Paso to Brownsville, 2,000 miles.

Wrote Two Books

Not only is Bauch a veteran explorer, but he is also a writer. MacMillian has published two of his books "5,000 Miles By Canoe," 322 pages, in 1936, and "Covering the Rio Grande By Canoe," 300 pages, in 1937. In addition to his two books, Bauch has written numerous articles for these magazines: Hunting, Fishing, Trapping; Outdoor Life; Field & Stream, and for the Southern Sportsman, a Houston publication. Bauch's pen name is Ken Tyler.

Paddling a canoe for a total distance of 6,781 miles should be adventure enough to satisfy anyone, but like Joseph Conrad, who as a schoolboy pointed to a spot on a map of Africa and said "Someday I shall go there," Bauch merely took the canoeing in his stride. He says he has been in every state in the Union, has the autographs of the governor of each, and in addition has traveled in Mexico, Canada, Cuba, the Hawaiian Islands, Virgin Islands, and lonely Pitcairn.

The trip to Pitcairn was as a member of a crew of 28 on a chartered steamer, in 1933. The expedition was sponsored by J. D. Philpott, a director of the Chase National Bank, New York.

Bauch wonders when the real story of Pitcairn will be told. The islanders are reserved, he says, and not inclined to talk about themselves. He indicated that he learned much of the islanders and their history and it would make a great story, but something of the tranquility of that isolated speck in the Pacific has its appeal for Bauch and he will not break the spell by writing any ponderous volume on Pitcairn.

How did this youthful adventur-

A Splendid Educational Service

We are publishing today the first installment of 20 questions which George Varnum has addressed to Walter E. Spahr, Professor of Economics, New York University, together with Dr. Spahr's answers.

When Mr. Varnum addressed these questions to Dr. Spahr, in care of this newspaper, he requested that we run them in the reader's column of the newspaper and commented that Mr. Spahr would throw them in the waste basket.

This newspaper is very glad to render the service of printing answers to inquiries of its readers by men who have made a life study of economic questions. Probably Mr. Varnum was of the opinion that Dr. Spahr would not answer the questions because there are educators who refuse to answer questions, under the guise that it would do no good and only lead to controversy. But Dr. Spahr understands his subject and does not advocate subversive ideas that he dare not let the public know he is really advocating. For this reason Dr. Spahr is glad to answer questions so that the public might come to better understand the fundamentals of economics that will bring about prosperity.

These questions and answers require a good bit of space, but we can think of no better way of being useful to our readers than having questions, that are confusing to many people, carefully and patiently answered by someone who is intelligent enough not to contradict himself or lead himself up a blind alley. It is only by getting the public to better understand the fundamentals that create new wealth and attempt to distribute it on a free market, that we can approach the standard of living to which a free people with the resources we have, are entitled.

Every Two Minutes

At the very moment you read this, fire engines are dashing with screaming sirens to someone's burning home. Every two minutes somewhere in America, this dramatic tragedy will be reenacted. So it goes, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year. Every two minutes a home catches fire.

Here's hoping your home isn't on that list. But hope isn't enough. No one can afford to leave fire prevention to chance. You can have a safe home if you want one, and if you are willing to put in a little time to make it safe. In other words, the safety of your home will be largely what you make it.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has printed a vivid little leaflet, entitled "Two Minutes Tick By—Another Home Goes Up in Smoke," which should be read, kept and referred to by every homeowner. It is free for the asking—simply write to the Board at 85 John Street, New York. One page of the leaflet illustrates, by means of a cut-away drawing of a home, 31 distinct hazards—any one of which could cause a fire that would destroy the house. They range all the way from unprotected steam pipes to improper storage of inflammables and the use of wooden containers to hold hot ashes. And in practically every case, these hazards can be quickly eliminated, at little or no cost.

Two-thirds of all our fire deaths occur in dwellings—and 30 per cent of these fatalities are children under ten. Mull that thought over in your mind. Then answer this question: "Is fire prevention worth while?"

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—John Barrett, minister to a half dozen South American republics at various times and first director-general of the Pan American Union, died a few days ago but he long will be remembered for some of the fastest thinking the state department recalls.

The Pan-American union building had just been completed and Barrett was walking toward the doorway of the structure with Andrew Carnegie, who had come to inspect the costly building for which he had supplied the money.

"Anything else you need?" asked Carnegie.

Barrett hadn't given the idea a thought—and he knew that he had to speak out before Carnegie left. He saw an ugly patch of mud at one end of the building. It clicked.

"If we had a sunken garden to replace that mud it would be mighty handsome," he suggested.

"How much would it cost?" asked Carnegie. Barrett hadn't the foggiest idea, but he shot back:

"Thirty thousand dollars."

Carnegie wrote out a check for the amount on the spot and the resulting garden is probably the handsomest one in Washington.

Ghosts of the Court

Not all ghost writers are in literature or politics. Some of the most forlorn "ghosts" are lawyers. They draft extensive law briefs on important cases, year after year, for presentation to the supreme court without having their names appear on them as counsel. Big shot members of the firm get that honor.

But there are exceptions. Even youngsters occasionally get such breaks. Francis Kirkham, former secretary to Chief Justice Hughes, recently appeared at the supreme court with the first brief to which his name had been attached as member of a large San Francisco law firm. As a "ghost" he had drafted dozens before, all to be signed by senior members of the firm.

"What this country needs," cracked a New Dealer after reading a headline on a speech by the conservative junior senator from Nabraska, "is more Burke control."

But New Deal critics are getting even by refurbishing an old Dockstader.

They tell of a New England druggist who advertises:

"XYZ rat poison—50 cents—kills 'em quick."

"ABC rat poison—25 cents—kills 'em slower."

"WPA rat poison—10 cents—doesn't kill 'em, but makes 'em so lazy you can catch 'em.

Army Waits for Braid

And at this point we must report that the army is held up by a shortage of gold-braid embroiderers. Recently an order was published requiring all officers to wear blue uniforms for evening functions. There are 12,000 officers in the army and when you begin sewing gold braid on 12,000 uniforms, or even on half that many, you have started something.

Uniform makers were swamped. They could cut and sew the costly blue cloth but the gold embroidery was a job for specialists—and there weren't half enough. It was a "bottle neck" such as harasses the army in times of emergency. If it isn't gold braid, it's a shortage of freight cars.

The order for blue dress uniforms had to be suspended until the embroiderers could lay on the gold braid.

"BUSINESS DODGES THE TRUTH"

Albert J. Nock, contributing editor of the American Mercury, certainly shows up the shortsightedness of big business in the November issue of the American Mercury. Mr. Nock says that he had been absent from the country for a long time and upon returning found the captains of industry were in a terrible twitter over government interference with business.

Mr. Nock points out that business men were complaining that government ought to get out of business, keep its hands off business and let business alone; that he was immensely pleased to hear this because this was exactly what he had been saying for a great many years; that he was astonished to hear big business men talking that way, as he had never heard them talk that way before, and whenever he ventured to talk that way, he found himself distinctly unpopular. Nevertheless, he said, he was glad to see that he was in good company at least and so started at once on the best way he could think of to help the cause of righteousness along.

He pointed out that for anyone who really wants the government to let business alone, Herbert Spencer's essays, called "The Man Versus The State," are precisely to government business relations what the New Testament is for anyone who wants to be a sound intelligent Christian. He says, "They are the fundamental document, an impregnable arsenal, bristling with irresistible philosophical and historical weapons. A businessman who is framed up with this volume knows where he stands and what the real strength of his position is, and he knows how to defend that position against all comers. It is a small book, too. In England, if you don't mind taking it in a paper cover, you can buy it for an English shilling, somewhat under 25 cents. In this country, unless you have the luck to pick up a second-hand copy somewhere, it is not to be had."

Mr. Nock relates that he had several friends in the publishing business and thought that inasmuch as business men were now so much interested in keeping government from interfering with business that it would be wise to reprint this volume. He says the publishers were all courteous but none would consider publishing it. Mr. Nock then says he went to some friends who were close to various eminent captains of industry and suggested that one or another of these captains take a cheap edition of Spencer and send it around to a picked list of representative businessmen throughout the country, with a personal letter. This did not work either. He was told that the representative business men would not read the book, could not be hired to read it, and that the eminent captain of industry who was fathering the issue would not read it himself.

He says he talked personally with one on very close terms with the heads of an immense concern—something in the mining way. He was sympathetic and extraordinarily frank. "This talk of wanting the government to let business alone," he said, "is all hooey. They don't want it to let business alone. Go to them today and offer to set up a government tomorrow on Spencer's model, one that would really let business alone, and they would die in hysterics. What!—no tariffs, no 'protection', no subsidies, franchises, concessions, nobody to run to when you get into a jam over some competitive scheme to swindle somebody? Do you think they would stand for that? Show them how to make a clean sweep of Roosevelt and John Lewis, and they'll give you their daughter in marriage, or all their daughters if you want 'em, and you can take 'em tandem, four-in-hand, or six-abreast. But show them how to put a crimp forever in all the Roosevelts and Lewises, their own kind included, and see what you'll get. Take it from me, the last thing they want is to abolish privilege, precisely as it is the last thing John Lewis wants. They want to monopolize privilege, which is just what Lewis wants, and your friend Spencer would stand the same show with them as he would with Lewis or with Roosevelt himself, and not a dam' bit better."

Then Mr. Nock goes on to say that after he picked up the morning paper and saw the large subsidies for shipping, he was convinced that this large captain of industry was telling the stark truth. Big business has been so much interested in accumulating wealth for themselves that they have neglected the most important thing of all—getting people to understand that there should be no special privilege to any group, rich or poor. They seem to think that they can be protected by tariffs, by prorates, by subsidies and that others would not demand the same thing.

This article was especially interesting to me because I had just read this book, "The Man Versus the State" by Herbert Spencer within the last six weeks. It so impressed me that I attempted to buy the book but the book seller advised there was none available but thought possibly he could get a copy from England. He was told to buy it wherever he could, but to date I have not been advised as to whether I can get a copy from England.

I agree with Mr. Nock that this book is really the New Testament when it comes to being a guide as to how government should be limited. It contends, "In relation to business, the proper functions of government are three. First, to punish fraud. Second, to enforce the obligations of contract. Third, to make justice costless."

Had we a government of this kind, we would not have 10,000,000 people out of work and millions of others working for much less than they should receive.

People You Know

By ARCHER FULLINGIM

Last night this one saw a baby that was born in an automobile outside a local hospital. It happened some time ago, and the chief figures in the incident can now smile, but it was pretty serious business then. The first thing the hospital staff knew of it was when the father, wild-eyed and panic-stricken, dashed inside the hospital and said, "I think a have a baby out there in the car! Run quick!" One of the nurses grabbed up her first-aid for maternity cases and streaked to the car. Several nurses and a doctor had preceded her. By that time the father had staggered outside and was sitting on the curb, holding his head in his hands. His face was deathly pale. He looked as weak as water. The baby was already born, and they took the mother and the infant into the hospital. . . The baby is a handsome child now. "He gave me the biggest scare of my life—and before he was born," said the father.

FIGURES THAT LIE.

The trouble with many statistical figures is not that they are gathered or calculated by men who have a flippant regard for truth, but rather that they are compounded out of too many radically different factors. In consequence they frequently do not "tell the story they appear to be telling." One or two examples will make this point clear.

A large, prosperous, commercial city took pride in its tuberculosis death rate, which was lower than that prevailing in other cities of comparable size. By statistical appearances that city was doing a good job in handling its tuberculosis problem.

However, the tuberculosis statistics given were for the city as a whole. Instead of lumping the tuberculosis figures for all sections of the city and for all classes, it would have been more revealing had the mortality rate of each section of the community been given.

The authorities of the city were challenged to break down the tuberculosis death rate figures. Upon doing so they found to their surprise that instead of having done a first class job, they had done a rather poor one. In some of the poorer sections the tuberculosis death rate was found to be several hundred per cent higher than the average rate for the city as a whole.

Another example of statistics compounded out of too many different factors is to be found in certain figures relating to maternal mortality rates. The exceptionally low maternal mortality rate found among women delivered by midwives is frequently cited to discredit the medical profession, but it is misleading.

Midwives have a select clientele. Women in their first pregnancies, and those knowing from previous experiences that labor is likely to be difficult, do not usually engage midwives.

Then again when a midwife runs into a difficult labor, she is quite likely to call in a doctor, or have the case removed to a hospital. If the case should end fatally, the last one in charge is credited with the mortality.

Walter E. Spahr,
"Professor of Economics"
New York University

Dear "Professor": I note the privilege of addressing questions to you—thanks.

The first question that occurs to me is: (1) Why should any one ask a question of you? What indication in your writing or your position encourages one to seek information from you?

Why do you operate a mere scolding machine of those who think—even though they may not follow your hopelessly century old views?

(2) Did it ever occur to you that SOMETHING may be considered, when in spite of "our money supply and bank deposits is at peak—and their USE at lowest ebb"? Such a TOTAL FAILURE of a system could not be more forcibly put than your phrase it. (3) Why the failure?

(4) Is the above condition, the result of your "sound economics" a good argument for its "return"? Rather is it not convincing proof that it is NOT "sound" because it has so obviously failed?

(5) Our present economic debacle commenced in 1922—as you doubtless know. The "statesmanship" and "intellectual integrity" plus the 'sound economics" whose return you long for, either produced, or at least failed to prevent, our present economic condition. (6) Having either produced it or failed to prevent it, why do you so fervently hope for its return, rather than some more up-to-date intellectualism that may sense a modern world and modern ideas?

(7) Just how can you provide that the "peak of money and bank deposits of all history" can be forced or coaxed or allured into use? I assume that even a "Professor of Economics" does not have to be told or shown that even a hundred billions of "money and bank deposits" (the latter a pleasant fiction) THAT DOES NOT CIRCULATE might just as well not exist.

(8) You speak of "crazy spending"—what is money for anyway? If it is not spent what good does it do? (9) Just when does the "crazy" spending of money commence? (10) Business is now many billions below what it was a few years ago: would it be "crazy" to have money circulate enough to equal the business of 1928? (11) Would it be "crazy" circulation of money to have it so circulate that merchants would sell twice as much as they do now and people would have twice as much as they now have? (12) Would some system for circulation of money, (or purchasing power) that would double production, and also double the circulation of the goods as well? be crazy? -or desirable?

(13) Then why not try to think up some way to INCREASE circulation of money and goods, instead of reverting to the "system" that has resulted in, or has not prevented, the present tragic economic status?

Cordially,
GEORGE VARNUM.

Retail Store Strike Ends

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Ratification of a "basis of settlement" by both employers and unions early today ended San Francisco's 56-day strike against 35 leading retail stores.

To the Pampa Daily News:

The questions raised by Mr. Varnum are probably typical of those that many people would like to ask economists. Most people are so busy with their daily affairs that they cannot possibly follow the economics of all major issues. Even economists, like physicians, tend to become highly specialized, because of the tremendous field covered by economics. For these reasons, I am glad to reply to Mr. Varnum's questions. To aid the reader and to simplify the reply, I have numbered the questions and the corresponding answers.

(1) Perhaps the best answer here is found in the purpose and assumptions of Economics. Its purpose is to explain how our economic system functions. After finding these principles, an economic program, designed to improve human welfare, must recognize not only these principles of human behavior but the following two basic standards of improving human welfare: (a) Those things are good which tend to raise the average material level of wealth and income and without sacrificing the future for the present. (b) Those things are good which tend to broaden the scope of individual liberty so that each individual may have a better opportunity to improve his personality to the limits of his physical and mental capacities. These two criteria as to what is good for humanity must be taken together, not separately. For example safety, security, and a higher material standard of living may be had behind prison walls, but at the price of liberty. In general, men have struggled for liberty even at the cost not only of property but of life. This is because of the inherent nature of people—the striving of the human personality for freedom for self-expression.

(2) Mr. Varnum is quite right in assuming that something is wrong when the velocity of our bank deposits is at a record low and that this should be considered as a problem. The answer lies in the reasons why people are not using their money. There are various reasons—but, in general, people hesitate to spend when the future prospects seem highly uncertain. People save until prospects are brighter. "General lack of confidence" is an expression commonly used today.

(3) The answer lies in an explanation of the prevailing lack of confidence in the future. Let Mr. Varnum ask himself and his friends why they do not spend their savings more freely, or why they do not borrow money and launch out on new enterprises. I think he will find the answer in part. In general, I should say that the reasons are to be found in the widespread oppression of business by a multitude of governmental policies and by the hard drive on employers made by organized labor.

(4) This condition of slow velocity of currency is definitely not the result of "sound economics"; it is the result of the failure of the present government to follow the directions of sound economics. It is not economic principles that fail, but governments and individuals who try to thwart them. Economic principles do not fail any more than does the law of gravity. The operation of economic principles has, for example, caught up with Secretary Wallace; and now both he and the farmers—and the country in general—are paying for the foolishness involved in assuming that the Department of Agriculture can ignore the operation of economic principles.

(5) I should go back of 1922 for several of the fundamental causes of many of our current economic maladjustments which that War caused. The period of 1920's perpetuated many of them because the government, by all sorts of devices, tried to save people from the pain of the readjustments which were really necessary. We assumed that we could go through the insane orgies of the World War and yet avoid a headache afterward. During the 1920's we took every variety of governmental aspirin and inflationary dope to stave off the reaction, but in 1929 the collapse got us.

(6) The issue is not one of [illegible] political party, but to sound economics. Sound economics was not followed in many respects in the 1920's, and it is not being followed in many respects now. But it should be remembered, if one is inclined to blame the government and the people of the 1920's for what happened in 1929-1933, that the depression was practically world-wide. It was not a respector of any government. All of them, regardless of form, tried to protect their people from the natural reactions which should have followed close upon the heels of the World War but which governments were able to postpone for awhile. In time the persistent operation of economic forces caught up with them all, and they all went down—not just monetary systems, but even some of the democratic governments themselves. It seems reasonably clear that no government on earth could have stopped the crash of 1929. A very wise government would have let it come early after the war. But people apparently will not stand for those things. They have to have their governmental dope as long as it can bolster them up. Then in the end they have a real nervous and physical breakdown. If they do not profit from this experience, they go in for more dope in order to "recover" hurriedly. That is what we have been doing since 1933, and someday we shall pay for it. The doctor bill for this dope alone is now many billions of dollars, and our children will have to bear much of this back-breaking burden.

(7) The present great supply of available money and bank deposits can be called into circulation either through increased confidence in future prospects for profits and safety of investments, or through the development of fear of the soundness of the currency. To get increased confidence, and a confidence velocity in our currency, involves a constructive governmental program that will let business go ahead in all lines, that will reduce unemployment and let people go to work again. A fear velocity of currency is what develops when people lose confidence in their currency—as in the case when a severe inflation gets under way, or when a nation suspends specie payments. Or a velocity of a currency may increase because of a mixture of sound recovery and inflationary influences. We have had much of this mixture since 1933, and it appears that we are to have more of it. A sound recovery and a confidence velocity are what are needed. Inflation always leads to a reaction. We saw that in the 1937-1938 recession.

(8) Money serves several purposes: (a) as a standard of value, (b) as a medium of exchange, (c) as a standard for deferred payments, (d) as a storehouse of value, and (e) as reserves against other money and deposits. If money is not spent, it is probably being saved—acting as a storehouse of past efforts and accumulations. Spending is never wise except for "value received," and if one sees no good reason for spending, it is always better to save. Then there should always be saving against the uncertainties of the future. That is the way the world progresses. Without saving a nation would consume all its substance and perish. People who spend all they have—or more—soon get into trouble. People and nations do not get into trouble through too much savings—, any trouble that arises is due to bad investments of their savings. Where people have saved most and invested wisely they have prospered most.

(9) "Crazy" spending of money begins when people spend more than is necessary in order to live and to save, and when they encroach unnecessarily upon their savings. The proper balance between one's spending and saving is determined by the size of one's income.

(10) An increase in money in circulation does not necessarily increase business activity. It may do just the reverse. If the circulation of money causes business activity, then German prosperity must have been phenomenal in 1922-24 when inflation was so great, and when the mass of people were being reduced to extreme poverty—to black bread and paper clothes. As business expands, a sound currency expands as a consequence. This is because most of such currency results from bank loans which, in turn, result from business expansion. An expansion of a sound currency will not cause a sound expansion in business. It will merely pile up in banks as surplus reserves until people find it profitable to use it. Only an expansion of an unsound currency has an effect. This brings a temporary, feverish activity resulting from fear of the currency, and results ultimately in a collapse. The problem of returning to a higher level of productive activity in this country is not a question of the currency supply at all, but of confidence and prospects for profits.

Our currency supply this summer far exceeded that of 1920 or 1926 or 1928, and yet our productive activity was much lower.

(11) If merchants and others can do twice as much business as now, the necessary amount of currency will flow into circulation as a consequence. But productive activity and sales cannot be doubled by doubling or increasing the currency supply. The currency in actual circulation, that is, supply multiplied by velocity, if sound, is like a thermometer. It records what is taking place; it does not cause it any more than a thermometer causes the temperature which it records. An inflated currency is like a cracked theromometer—it misleads people as to what is taking place, and it may lead them to go out into cold economic weather without an overcoat and to catch economic pneumonia.

(12) No device for money manipulation can double production. A sound currency can encourage more production because people can forget about their currency but it cannot do more. A manipulated currency distracts people in their efforts to produce and to make a living because they must also watch and try to counteract the flaw in the currency.

(13) The question of finding ways to increase production and an exchange of goods is the real problem, but that should not be considered as due to a scarcity of money. The solution is to be found in a governmental program that will follow economic principles, permit and encourage employers to go ahead, and permit the unemployed to find and return to work. This involves a survey of nearly every aspect of the government's program to determine the points at which sound business expansion and reemployment are being held back. Most of these have been pointed out repeatedly by reputable economists. In general, the efforts of our millions of people to live and to make a living would solve the problem if the government would remove obstacles from their path rather than obstruct them in so many ways because of its inordinate determination to manage so many people and so many things.

Newspaper coverage of the recent events in Europe had a happy sequel in Chicago when the board of directors of American Society of Newspaper Editors held its annual fall meeting. . . . The board passed a resolution which, unlike the heavy verbiage of most resolutions, comes squarely to rest on the fundamental difference between the United States and some of the governments concerned in the "stripping of Czechoslovakia."

"While readers in countries governed by dictators and burdened by censorship were deprived of any information antagonistic to the claims and ambitions of their leaders, in the United States, the story was presented daily," the resolution read. . . . "Unrestrained by fear of reprisals, American editors, aided by news services that spared neither money nor effort to get the facts, kept their public constantly alive to each new fact.

There are quarters for 100 prisoners, or should it be guests in such magnificent surroundings? Construction of the building, however, violated one of the time-honored customs of public construction. It was expected to cost $40,000 but actually cost one-fourth of that amount, $10,000. . . .This year has been momentous. Great things have happened at home and abroad. Historians of the future may ignore the peace of Munich, the shift to the Right in Democracies or the growth of Fascism to record that jail building reached the Golden Age with the construction of a white marble edifice to house 100.

McKay Trial Nears Close

Whether or not he would permit the defense to call four additional witnesses or would give his charge to the jury and hear the argument in the case was the question Judge W. R. Ewing was considering at noon today, before the trial of State of Texas vs. Faris McKay was resumed this afternoon.

The court adjourned at 9:45 this morning while Judge Ewing prepared the charge to the jury. Cause of action in the case is a grand jury indictment against McKay, charged with a statutory offense.

Trial of the case began Monday and the 31st district courtroom has been filled to near-capacity most of the time.

Ennis Favors and the firm of Willis & Via represent the defendant, with District Attorney Lewis M. Goodrich, assisted by John Sturgeon and Clifford Braly, representing the state.

Jurors hearing the case, chosen at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, are: H. P. Sharp, F. C. Lafoon, F. E. McLaughlin, John B. Ayers, D. B. Nash, Andrew Dunn, G. C. Austin, Frank M. Carter, Ernest Beck, Joe M. Smith, B. W. Bettis, and J. M. Saunders.

This is the final week of the September term of district court here. Members of the grand jury will reconvene tomorrow morning.

rested in Ventnor City, N. J., on Aug. 30, 1931, on a charge of highway robbery. He was turned over to the sheriff's office at Mays Landing, N. J., brought to trial and acquitted on Oct 3, 1931.

The former contractor then returned to his old haunts in the southwest.

Arrested in Oklahoma

On July 2, 1932, he was arrested at Muskogee, Okla., on a charge of robbing a bank at Minden, La. Returned to Minden, Chapman was tried, convicted and sentenced to from nine to 14 years in the Louisiana state penitentiary. He was transferred to the county jail at Shreveport and escaped from there Dec. 5, 1932.

Two months later, Feb. 23, 1933, two Arkansas banks were robbed. The First National Bank at Hope yielded $24,000 and the Citizens Bank and Trust company of Camden yielded $25,000 in loot. A Smackover bank also was robbed.

Officers suspected Chapman, trailed him to near Van Buren, Ark., where he was wounded and captured in a gun battle on March 11, 1933. He was turned over to Union county (El Dorado) officers on April 8 and released under $6,000 bond on April 26. Immediately Chapman disappeared. His bond was ordered forfeited June 9 and south Arkansas officers again took up the trail of the elusive bandit.

Sheriff Authur Ellis of Ouachita (Camden) county, Ark., finally brought about his capture at Gulfport, Miss, on Oct 19, 1934. He was brought back to Camden where he pleaded guilty to two charges and was sentenced to 15 years for robbery and five years for burglary. He was received at the Arkansas penitentiary Oct. 24, 1934, and was sent back to El Dorado where he was sentenced to another 15 years for robbing the Smackover bank. Again he was returned to the Arkansas prison.

Escaped in 1936

On Aug. 25, 1936 Chapman and two other convicted bank robbers, aided by a fugitive furlough violator on the outside, escaped from Cummins prison farm. The two other escapers were Buddy Sadler and O. Hugh Lindsey. Prison officials charged Charles O'Keith, the fugitive, engineered the escape.

Six days later, on Aug. 31, the trio of escaped convicts held up the First National Bank at Atlanta, Texas. Chapman, carrying $1,000 in loot, was felled by a hail of bullets as he ran out of the bank. Lindsey surrendered on the outskirts of town and Sadler, driver of the getaway car, was nabbed a few days later in Louisiana.

Chapman was convicted on this bank robbery charge and given a 60-year sentence at Linden, Texas, Oct. 24, 1936, and transferred to the Texas prison at Huntsville on Nov. 4. On Nov. 28, 1936, he was turned over to Clarksville, Tex., authorities on a kidnaping charge and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

He was serving these combined sentences of 85 years when he fled from Eastham prison July 8, 1937, with eight other convicts.

Federal officers renewed interest in his capture in January, 1938, when Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI at Washington, listed the fugitive as one of the nation's eight "public enemies" still at large.

MISCHIEF

"slow" signs made good material for street fires as the charred remains proved today.

Several garbage cans and trash barrels mysteriously disappeared, most of them being found in the middle of the street.

Soaped windows were numerous but several merchants used a concoction which combatted the effect. Cars were less fortunate.

Fruit Market Raided

Downtown Pampa was crowded with old witches, ghosts, goblins, and weirdly garbed children and adults until an early hour this morning. Police reported the crowd the most orderly in recent years. Not a single arrest was made for destructive pranks unless the intoxicated man in a South Pampa hotel who wrecked the furniture thought he was celebrating Hallowe'en.

A couple of raids on South Pampa fruit markets were extremely successful, police learned, but as Chief J. I. Downs remarked, "there is a law prohibiting the displaying of merchandise on the street and the fruit shouldn't have been out."

All in all a big time was had by all.

FLORIST

er come to "hang up his canoe paddle?" And, to make the retirement from the search of "what is over the next hill," even more unique, it was to the florist business that Bauch turned when he decided he was "tired" of exploring and adventure. The florists trade was one he learned as a boy, when he worked in his father's greenhouse. He explained that he is no floral artist and doesn't know how to make intricate floral designs, but that he does know how to grow flowers.

Trade An Asset

Knowledge of this business has been an advantage to him in his knocking about the globe, he explained, as when he was low in funds, he could always manage to make expenses by going to work for a florist.

How did he happen to choose Pampa?

The center of the Top O' Texas was known to the adventurer six years ago, when he was through here one time. He is acquainted with Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Hicks and with D. L. Parker, at whose Blossom Shop, 406 North Cuyler, he is now employed.

Claims Traveling Days Over

Will the call of adventure lure him away from the routine life of everyday people? Bauch vigorously claims he's had his fill of travel, that he wants to settle down. And there'll be no more speeches (he has delivered over 200 to various clubs), no more wandering, no more looking at the "next hill," he maintains.

Naively proud of having "been places and done things," of having traveled in lands other persons merely read about, the 26-year-old wanderer is by no means desirous of trumpeting his exploits. He's now closing the books to the call of adventure.

Yes, he's "hung up his paddle," he declares, but there's still a quickened tempo in his speech and a sparkle in his eyes that may be a criterion of a zest for adventure that is as rare in this modern world as orchids are in Pampa.

The November release of the World Broadcasting System for its program service on KPDN offer something new in musical arrangements, the World vocal orchestra. This is not just a mixed chorus, but an orchestral arrangement sung by human voices. Among a group of four numbers the World vocal orchestra gets its most novel effects from "There's Honey on the Moon Tonight," and "I'm Gonna Lock My Heart."

companion, who was seated under the steering wheel, was unable to get clear and was captured.

"Chapman was recognized," said Major Roden, "by L. A. Jones, warden of the Louisiana State Prison at Angola, who was in the party.

Refused To Talk

"Chapman's companion refused to talk but he fits the description of Dave Graves, wanted in Kansas and Missouri for bank robberies. He is about 40, weighs around 178 pounds, is five feet, eight inches tall, has slightly graying temples, and reddened complexion.

"In the automobile, which was confiscated, we found two high-powered rifles and a large supply of ammunition."

Major Roden said that though bloodhounds had lost Chapman's trail on the highway it was possible that continuous passing of automobiles, giving out gasoline fumes, had made it impossible for the dogs to keep on the trail.

"However," Roden added, "it would be like Chapman to have commandeered an automobile—but I still believe he will be found dead."

Major Roden said a small detail of officers was continuing the hunt but that he would return to Baton Rouge this afternoon.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1 (AP)—The sheriff's office here said today it feared Charley Chapman, southwest desperado who exchanged shots with a posse of officers near here yesterday, had escaped unhurt in an automobile.

Chapman was surrounded by a squad of highway patrolmen four miles north of Philadelphia last night, but eluded the officers, who opened fire on him as he ran behind a barn and then darted into an adjoining woodland. Chapman hesitated in his flight long enough to fire four shots, but none was effective.

A deputy sheriff reported today bloodhounds trailed Chapman on a circular course through the woods last night and back to a gravel highway, No. 16, that leads from Philadelphia to Carthage.

"The dogs followed the trail about a mile down the highway," the officer said, "where it abruptly ended."

Grady White, operator of a roadhouse near the place where Chapman was flushed by officers early last night, was taken into custody today and carried to an unannounced jail. Chapman, the officers said, had been hiding in the Neshoba county section for several weeks and apparently had been harbored by friends.

Major T. B. Birdsong of the state highway patrol identified as Chapman a man who last night fled from an automobile when officers opened fire.

Birdsong said he believed the 40-year-old fugitive, who before turning outlaw was a successful contractor at El Dorado, Ark., and who has escaped from Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas prisons, was wounded in the thigh.

Acting on a tip that Chapman was visiting here officers last night closed in. He was believed surrounded in the woods today.

Records compiled by the Arkansas state police and Federal Bureau of Identification show that Chapman was first arrested in Miami, Fla., in April, 1931, on charges of carrying concealed weapons and hi-jacking.

He was later released on bond and the charges eventually were nolle prossed.

In August, 1931, he was arrested in Ventnor City, N. J., on a charge of highway robbery, but acquitted when brought to trial at Mays Landing.

The former contractor then returned to the Southwest, where the records show numerous arrests and convictions. His last escape was from Eastham prison in Texas July 8, 1937. He was serving combined sentences of 85 years for bank robbery and kidnaping at the time.

RAILROADS

ommended Saturday that the roads drop that proposal.

Some 900,000 union railroad workers have voted rather than accept the cut, but under the railway labor act they can not walk out until Nov. 28.

Representatives of labor and management assured Mr. Roosevelt yesterday they would attempt to reach a peaceful settlement of the wage controversy. In turn they received the President's offer of vigorous support for legislation to help the carriers.

Mr. Roosevelt talked separately with Pelley and George Harrison, chairman of the railway labor executive's association.

They said afterward that the President suggested a joint committee representing labor and management might try to draft remedial legislation for congressional consideration.

Sub-Office Of Highway Patrol Opened In City

Establishment of a sub-office of the Texas Highway patrol at Pampa was announced today in Amarillo by Captain Jim Line. Assigned to the new office are Norvell Redwine of Amarillo and Ralph W. Robertson of Childress.

Redwine formerly came here from Shamrock with J. L. Pingenot Jr. on each Thursday to conduct the regular weekly drivers' license examinations, and Robertson also have done similar work here at various times. Redwine was transferred from Shamrock to Amarillo about two months ago. Patrolman O. K. Huddleston has been transferred from Amarillo to Childress.

Offices of the Texas Highway patrol in this section are now located in Amarillo, Childress, Shamrock, and Pampa. The new officers assigned to the new station here have been given orders to watch the stretch of U. S. Highway 60 between Miami and Amarillo, which has been the scene of several bad accidents lately.

Robertson and Redwine will make their headquarters here in the sheriff's department, while the drivers' license examinations will continue to be held in the office of the county tax assessor-collector across the hall, Deputy Buford Reed said this morning.

Cattlemen Fight Freight Increase

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1 (AP)—A hearing on the application of railroads to increase rates on stocker and feeder cattle and sheep opened here today before examiners of the state railroad commission.

Because the hearing is expected to have considerable bearing on the future of the livestock industry in Texas, cattle men representing numerous livestock associations were present from all parts of the state to offer evidence that the application should not be granted.

The belief was expressed by some that if the increase is granted, the restrictions set up virtually will eliminate the stocker and feeder trade, which is 15 per cent less than the tariff on fat animals for slaughter purposes.

The hearing, before Examiners C. E. Stiles and D. K. Copenhafer, is expected to continue several days.

Spearman To Have Two Scout Troops

Jitterbugs Caused Broadcast Hysteria

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Rudolph A. Acher, Indiana State Teachers college psychologist, traced Sunday night's widespread hysteria over a radio play today to the same thing he said causes "jitterbugs."

He said the alarm spread by a dramatization of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" and the antics of "shag" dancers both grew out of a "mass case of jitters" started by the World war and aggravated by "persistent economic chaos."

Applications Of Notaries Asked By County Clerk

Notaries who wish to be re-appointed and those persons who wish to become notaries were reminded today by County Clerk Charlie Thut that their applications for appointment or re-appointment should be submitted to Representative Eugene Worley, Senator Clint Small, or to the county clerk, before the legislature convenes on January 10. Commissions are for a two-year period, dating from June 1, 1939.

At the meeting of the legislature next January, new commissions are to be issued to all notaries in the state. Gray County has 250 notaries, according to the last count, made on June 1, 1937.

The legislature convenes nine days after precinct, county, district and all state officers, except the governor and lieutenant governor, begin their tenures.

November 4 is the next date on the political calendar this year, Friday being the final day for receiving absentee ballots for the general election of November 8. To date, only five absentee ballots have been cast here for the coming election.

On November 14, the county commissioners court is to canvass the returns and declare the results, with the county judge issuing certificates of election. Nine days later the state election board will canvass the returns for all state offices.

Stock Yards May Close Saturdays

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1 (AP)—A move to close livestock markets in this area on Saturdays to make it possible for commission firms to comply with terms of the wage-hour law was launched here today.

Representatives of practically every commission company here met yesterday and discussed the plan and a committee was named to ascertain the action of closing the yards here on Saturdays.

The opinion was expressed that the yards can be closed on Saturdays without detriment to shippers, or without prejudice to the Fort Worth Stockyards if other competing yards in this area close as well.

Czechs' Dispute With Poland Ends

PRAGUE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Czechoslovakia's frontier dispute with Poland was ended today by an exchange of notes betwen Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky and Casimir Papee, Polish minister to Prague.

The notes said the two governments were in agreement on their common border and that only slight rectification was necessary before a formal treaty could be signed.

Official Polish sources declared the accord excluded the possibility of a plebiscite in the Frydek district, disputed area near the regions of Teschen and Frystatt which Polish troops already have occupied.

A joint Czechoslovak-Polish commission is to meet at Prague soon to draw up documents necessary for conclusion of the border agreement.

The Polish-Czechoslovak border in Silesia is to be decided by Nov. 15 and the two governments bound themselves to finish mapping their Slovak border before Nov. 30.

A joint Czech-Hungarian military commission assembled in Bratislava today to outline plans for the eventful Hungarian occupation of undisputed areas of Slovakia and Ruthenia under the future supervision of Germany and Italy.

Turkey Market Opens With Birds Bringing 12 Cents

AUSTIN, Nov. 1 (AP)—Austin's turkey market opened officially today with prices ranging from 12 to 13 cents for No. 1 birds with medium No. 2's bringing 5 cents less.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sellers sniped at the stock market today and succeeded in cutting down or cancelling early upturns running to 2 points.

Steels led the morning foray with Bethlehem stepping into new high ground for the past year. Along with many other leaders these issues backed down at the close with several ending behind minus marks.

One or two mail orders, oils and specialties held on to modest advances and the rails, seemingly over the worst of their shivers resulting from the wage decision, generally maintained slight gains.

Except for the liveliness of several low-priced stocks, dealings were at a fairly even gait. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

The Republic officials made no immecompany previously said it was re- diate comment on today's incident.

Eight Bowling Teams To Open Season Tomorrow

Bowling teams will swing into action here tonight instead of tomorrow night as previously announced, according to President Alex Schneider of the Pampa Bowling Association.

Eight teams will roll tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock sharp. Four of the teams will battle at the opening hour with the other four teams following them on the alleys, at about 9 o'clock.

The schedule for tonight follows: 7 p. m.—Nehi Bottling Works vs. Jones-Everett Machine Shop; Kiwanis Club vs. General Atlas Carbon Company.

9 p. m—Weir Barber Shop vs. Cabot Company; American Legion vs. Gunn-Hinerman.

Other teams will roll games Thursday night if enough entries file their player list with President Schneider or with Joe Berry at the Pampa Bowling Alleys on North Frost street. The American Legion has definitely entered but drew a bye opening night. Several ather teams have signified their intention of having entries and they are urged to make formal application to the league immediately so that the Friday night schedule can be released not later than Wednesday morning.

All teams will bowl in one league until strength can be established. Then the teams will be divided into leagues according to class.

One of the most unusual bowling teams in local history is waiting to be adopted by some sponsor. It is a team composed entirely of lefthanders and there are some mighty classy wrong-handed artists on the team. Any firm wishing to sponsor the team should contact Mr. Berry immediately. There are seven members of the team for safety sake.

Many good individual bowlers are registered with Mr. Berry and team sponsors would do well to contact him for players.

Included on the Lefthanders roster are such bowlers as Lefty C. A. Huff, Lefty C. M. Carlock, Lefty Bob Bailey, Lefty W. M. McWright, Lefty Harry E. Hoare, Lefty L. S. Smith and others.

How to See Football

PROTECTION FOR THE PASSER.
By JERRY BRONDFIELD,
NEA Service Sports Writer.

Passers, like punters, must be protected when they drop back to heave an aerial.

Even though the passer knows where every potential receiver is supposed to be it often takes three or four seconds before he can spot someone in the clear, or with a reasonable chance of breaking into the clear.

Sammy Baugh, the greatest tosser of them all, would have little luck if he didn't have a couple of mates dropping back with him to cut down rushing linemen.

There is no rule against charging the passer and knocking him flat, as there is in connection with a punter. And it doesn't take long for fast-charging forwards to break through and nail a man for a big loss.

Although situations vary, one of the guards usually pulls out of the line, and with one of the backs protects the passer.

The men who furnish the protection may change with the play, but there always are at least two blockers whose job is to see that the passer has time to spot a receiver.

Amarillo And Lubbock Only Unbeaten Conference Teams

Although held scoreless twice and to three points once, the Pampa Harvesters have the best offensive record in district 1 this season. On the other hand, the Harvesters have the second poorest defensive record, both being in season play.

In conference battles the Harvesters have failed to cross their opponent's goal line in two games, once at Lamesa and again at Amarillo.

Best record for the season goes to Plainview's Bulldogs.

The complete District 1 record follows:

Bobby Childers Wins Matches In Roswell Tour

Bobby Childers, former Pampa high school tennis star, is still going strong with the West Texas State racquet team having lost only one match to date. On Saturday he won in both singles and doubles play against New Mexico Military Institute of Roswell.

Young Childers upset Robbins of NMMI 6-0 and 6-1 and then combined with Hill to down the NMMI pair of Duson and Sutton, 6-4, 6-3.

Only nemesis for Childers has been Barclay of Texas Tech, one of the top ranking players in the state, who had to go three sets before toppling the young Pampan.

Book Postage Reduced To 1½ Cents A Pound

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt ordered the domesitc postage on books reduced to one and one-half cents apound today, asserting he hoped this would stimulate "cultural growth, education and development of the American people."

At present books come under parcel post rates which range from seven cents a pound upward, depending upon the zone.

Lombardi Wins National Most Valuable Award

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Following, as it usually does, the best hitter or the best pitcher in the league, the award for the most valuable player in the National league in 1938 goes to Ernie Lombardi, an Italian playing an American game in a German town.

The Big Italian who catches for the Cincinnati Reds rolled up 229 points in the voting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He is the first Cincinnati player ever to win the title.

Lombardi has much to recommend him. He led the league in hitting with .342 and according to his manager, Will McKechnie, had much to do with the success of the Reds' young hurlers this year. He cannot run fast enough to scare any infielder but he is a big, calm, resourceful catcher with an arm like a bull-whip.

Ernie was 63 points ahead of Bill Lee, the Chicago Cubs' hurler, who finished second. Lee's 22nd victory of the year clinched the pennant for the Cubs.

Just behind Lee was Arky Vaughan, the Pittsburgh Pirates' shortstop and leading hitter. He wound up with 163 points to Lee's 166. Mel Ott, the Giants' perennial boy wonder who topped the league in driving home runs, was fourth and Buck McCormick, the Reds' large rookie first baseman, fifth.

Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs' catcher, Mace Brown, Pittsburgh relief hurler and McCormick all received votes for first place, Ducky Medwick, last year's winner, didn't get one and wound up 11th.

Lombardi is 30 and lives in Oakland, Calif. He came up to Brooklyn from the Coast league but was traded to Cincinnati in 1931. He has been there ever since, slightly overshadowed by the presence of Hartnett in the same league, but a valuable hand just the same.

His average is .320 for his eight years in the big show.

Scoring Lead In Hands Of Texan

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Leroy Fry of Texas College of Arts and Industries, a big-shot from the "small college" ranks, took over the national football leadership during the past week, while Everett Elkins, former leader from Marshall college of West Virginia, dropped to third place among the pace setters.

Fry, tied with Elkins at 66 points last week, scored eight points Saturday to bring his total to 74. Gaylon Smith of Southwestern (Memphis), pace-setter among the southern "minor" teams' stars, picked up 12 points to gain second place at 72 while Elkins was held scoreless for the second straight week.

Smith has made 12 touchdowns in six games, leading the sectional leaders in that department. Fry and Elkins have eleven each.

Connie Sparks ousted his Texas Christian teammate, Davey O'Brien, from the top of the Southwest conference list. In six games Sparks has scored 36 points, a touchdown-a-game.

HEN LAYS EGG SHAPED LIKE FOOTBALL.

Garcia Still Favorite To Beat Champ

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sport's oldest cliche, the one about the good little man not being able to lick the good big man, has been dusted off to front for the argument between Henry Armstrong, the welterweight champion, and Ceferino Garcia, the scarred Filipino from Los Angeles who bids for Henry's title Wednesday night in the Garden ring.

It is most apt. Gargia is a good big man for a welterweight. He can fight middleweights without harm—he banged Glen Lee recently—and he will go into the ring for the 15-round bout around 147 pounds.

Armstrong, who is as good a little man as you can find, has fought welterweights but no Garcias. He took the title from Barney Ross last spring but Ross never was a full-blown welterweight. He was a lightweight who fought best around 138.

Henry is even smaller. He weighed less than 135 for the Ross fight and the battle is which he took the lightweight title from Lou Ambers Just a year ago he was known as a very good featherweight. Now he is taking on a big, tough fellow who will outweigh him by ten or 12 pounds and who can hit and be hit by middleweights.

When the fight was made Garcia was a heavy favorite over the little man who failed to knoek out Ambers in 15 bloody rounds. But the long cut in Henry's lower lip is almost healed. He is hitting sharper and faster after a two-month rest. The odds are down to 6 to 5 and take your choice. Mike Jacobs expects a crowd of 18,000 or so to pack the Garden and nudge the profits of the 20th Century Sporting club up another notch.

All of which proves there is something in this good little man-good big man argument at that.

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER,
(Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz)

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Funny how fast the Reds and Ernie Lombardi got together on the '39 salary question, once it became known the schnozzola was named most valuable player . . . Incidentally, Boston's Bees now are the only club which never had a National league most valuable . . . Go get 'em, Casey . . . Twenty-three of U. of Portland's 35-man football squad are Irish . . . But when the team quartet gets together to sing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" the off-key noters are Herman Boyd, an Indian; Pinky Leinweber, German; Joe Enzler, Swiss, and Herman Vault, Jewish . . . The Garcia go is Henry Armstrong's thirteenth in New York . . . Add similies: "As gullible as a sophomore end" (credit Princeton Coach Tad Weiman).

Fordham Jimmy Crowley reports on the Pitt situation: When you play those Panthers, it's awful tough being on the defense—and that's where you are most of the time . . . Anybody know where Fred Fussell, the old Red Sox and Syracuse pitcher, is? . . . We have an urgent request for his whereabouts . . . Gertrude Whelton, a Galveston rooter, rises to oppose the idea the Southwest plays the best football (can this be treason?) . . . What happened, she asks, to Southern Methodist against Pitt and Arkansas and Texas Aggies against Santa Clara . . . The teams around here just aren't what they're cracked up to be, she says . . . Why Miss Whelton!!!

Lou Little doesn't like that talk of Virginia during a "breather" for Columbia Saturday . . . "Why, they might catch us out of breath instead," he points out . . . And Fordham scouts report St. Mary's, coming in from the coast this week-end, has its best outfit in four or five years.

Thousands Of Ducks Found Dead In Lake

(From Ochiltree County Herald.)

Enrollees from Company 2874, CCC, Perryton, are in Moore county aiding in the disposal of 4,382 wild ducks that had been killed by poisoned water in a lake near Dumas, Bill Rutherford, Dumas newspaper man, gives the fellowing account of the tragedy:

"Hunters in this section sickened at the sight of hundreds of tiny, emaciated and decayed bodies as they were piled into long burial trenches by CCC workers from the Perryton camp. The burial followed long hours in which approximately 100 men had skimmed the surface of the poisoned waters and searched the adjoining marshy lands for all that remained of what had been the sportsman's favorite bird.

"In a field hospital set up on the slopes of the lake, several hundred ducks were being nursed back to life by federal authorities. The drooping invalids were a pitiful surviving crew of the thousands of ducks found on the waters at the time the lake was first discovered to be fatal to birds."

Vernon D. Yelton, United States game management agent, whose headquarters are in Albuquerque, N. M., is in charge of all activities, and stated that the ducks had died of botulism, the equivalent of ptomaine poisoning in human diseases. He believed that death was due to a combination of vegetable and animal poisoning accumulated when the recent rains filled the hitherto dry lake. Yelton said that the infected ducks became paralyzed and soon lost control of head and wings causing them to drown.

Bodies of the ducks were first discovered by George Schlinkman, Moore county road grader, who reported his findings to G. E. Lewis, merchant and Moore county wild life conservation chairman. Lewis quickly called State Game Warden P. D. Moseley at Canyon, who asked Mr. Yelton's assistance.

Bucky Harris To Manage Senators Again In 1939

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1, (AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, announced today he had signed Bucky Harris to manage the team for 1939. He did not disclose Harris' salary.

Johnson Bewildered By 'Human Snake's' Holds

Joe Banaski, the Oklahoma cowboy, toppled Gust Johnson, Seattle Swede, from the undefeated list last night in one of the most dazzling exhibitions of wrestling seen here in many years. Banaski is a human snake when it comes to getting out of body scissors, headlocks and other holds where he can make his body muscles ripple.

Banaski won the first and last falls with beautifully applied alligator clutch holds while Johnson took the second with a leg breaker.

John Nemanic, turned wrestler from referee, lost the semi-final through disqualification to Scotty Williams in 22 minutes. Nemanic couldn't handle the slippery Williams and resorted to hair pulling and choking. Referee Big Train lements raised Williams' hand but neither he nor Nemanic were ready to quit and they went together with the referee in the middle. A wild melee resulted before the big referee took command.

Walter Stratton and Blacksmith Pedigo gave a top exhibition of strength and science in going to a draw in the preliminary. The pair are little giants who also know plenty about the wrestling business.

Banaski, a cocky grappler who does everything methodically, let Johnson take the lead for the first few minutes of their match. Then he opened up with a series of headlocks and a leg hold or two before he got the Swede in an alligator clutch for the fall in 13 minutes.

The Swede went to town in the second fall. He used head, legs and body holds in quick succession, never once letting Banaski take the offensive. The end came in 5 minutes with a leg breaker.

Banaski worked Johnson out of the offensive into a defensive game to take the final fall in 12 minutes with another alligator clutch.

Pranksters not only let the air out of cars but took the valves and Promoter Cliff Chambers had to send for a truck and a stock of valves to get his customers home.

Frogs Ranked Second Best Grid Eleven

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Since there's no chance for a battle of giants between Pitt and Texas Christian this week—nor any other week this season—the No. 1 game on the program next Saturday is California vs. Southern California.

That's taking them according to their current ratings in the weekly Associated Press roll. Pittsburgh's Golden Panthers remain far out in front of the field with T. C. U. as their nearest rival, supplanting beaten Minnesota as runner-up.

California is ranked third by a slim margin over Notre Dame while U. S. C. polled enough votes to tie with Holy Cross for thirteenth place on the list. Pitt is the only other "first ten" team which meets a rival even mentioned in the voting by 115 sports writers. Carnegie collected a total of seven points on the usual basis of counting from ten points for a first place vote to one for tenth. The Skibos tied with Texas A. & M. for 20th place

The first ten (points scored on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis), first place votes in brackets):

Team	Points
Pittsburgh (105)	1,139
Texas Christian (8)	901
California	692
Notre Dame	670
Dartmouth	624
Tennessee (1)	610
Northwestern	406
Santa Clara	390
Duke	274
Fordham	149

THEY'RE JUST TWO BIG HAPPY FAMILIES.

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP)—The Boggs girls like the Quickel boys. That's what the folks here decided after four of the Boggs sisters—Bessie, Della, Carol, and Ellen—married four of the Quickel brothers—Warren, Forrest, Guy, and Emert.

The first copule married in 1920 and the last in 1937.

Carl Smith Hurt In Gridiron Tilt

Carl Smith, former Pampa Harvester football star and now a power in the Cameron Aggie line at Lawton, Okla., was injured early in Saturday's game with the Connor Aggies of Warner, Oklahoma, and will probably be lost to the Aggies when they meet Southwestern Teachers Thursday according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Smith.

The former Harvester suffered a side injury early in the game. The big guard was the chief Cameron threat in making holes for fleet backs to charge through. Cameron won the game 6 to 0 to continue undefeated this season.

Smith, all state guard in his senior year at Pampa High school, in 1935, was named all conference guard last year, his second with the Aggies.

Rice And SMU Will Play Razorbacks And Aggies

The Rice Owls and Southern Methodist Mustangs had plenty to worry about this week as they gathered momentum for clashes that may reduce the field of undefeated teams in Southwest Conference play to the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs.

Rice, now on the way back up, must journey to Fayetteville to play the double tough Arkansas Razorbacks, even tougher on their home lot. The Mustangs meet the fast-moving Texas Aggies, who have hitched onto a battering sophomore and have high hopes of finishing with but one loss—that to the Frogs Oct. 15.

Texas A. & M. was still singing the praises of big John Kimbrough, the boy who brought victory over Arkansas last week in a brilliant drive in the last minutes of play. Coach Homer Norton was so impressed he considered using John's brother, Jack, at end, on the theory that two Kimbroughs should really be something.

Coach Matty Bell at Southern Methodist was worried about who was going to play end against A. & M. and help his team protest its unbeaten record, hung up when the Mustangs defeated Texas last week in their conference opener. Captain Charlie Sprague, first string end, was definitely out of the Aggie battle because of a wrenched knee.

Coach Morley Jennings at Baylor University stressed blocking. He anticipates strong defensive play from the University of Texas Saturday.

Coach Dana Bible at Texas announced that Joe Roach, an end from Decatur, and Wallace Lawson, backfielder from Cleburne, would be co-captains against Baylor.

Texas Christian University had a couple of regulars on the injured list as the Frogs prepared for a trip to Tulsa Saturday.

Connie Sparks, fullback, and Johnny Hally, halfback, were nursing hurts but neither was serious.

Rice counted Captain Jess Hines, tackle, among the casualties. Hines was hurt in the Auburn game but other Owls came out of that tilt in good shape. However, Ernie Lain, who has been out since the Texas game, is still ailing.

Fate Of Thousands Of Jews Considered

WARSAW, Nov. 1 (AP)—Negotiations betwen Germany and Poland over the fate of thousands of Jews stranded along the frontier originally planned for today, now are scheduled to begin tomorrow.

The problem arose Friday when Germany started deporting thousands of Polish Jews before a new Polish law went into effect requiring the revalidation of passports of Poles living abroad.

Mothers Of Phillips Football Boys Have Banquet For Team

PHILLIPS, Nov. 1.—The Mothers of the Phillips Blackhawks honored them with a banquet in the educational building of the Phillips Methodist church last week.

Orange and gold goal posts were placed on each side of the room and in between the long U shaped table was beautifully decorated in orange and black, with large bouquets of marigolds forming the centerpiece. As the Hawks entered all lights were extinguished except small candles in tiny footballs that were lighted before each plate, and the boys were greeted by a series of yells from the mothers who were led by the girl leaders of the Phillips pep squad, Misses Deloris Bailey and Betty Dunston. The last lights were then turned and each found their respective place. Coach R. F. Newman acted as toastmaster, and each boy in turn introduced his mother. Talks were made by Hugh Miller, Sr., and E. D. Davis, R. F. Newman, W. H. White favored them with several piano selections.

Places were laid for Stephen Ware, Jack Norman, Jim Braden, Herbert Hinkle, Clyde Edwards, Frank Baker, J. W. Barnett, Johnnie Helton, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. R. Newman, Mr and Mrs. H. 'Horror' Programs Will Be Watched

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Too much realism on the radio, particularly in drama, apparently is to get closer attention around the networks hereafter.

Already evidence comes in this statement by W. B. Lewis, vice president of programs at CBS: "The program department hereafter will not use the technique of a stimulated news broadcast within a dramatization when the circumstances of the broadcast could cause immediate alarm to numbers of listeners."

But just what further possible reaction will result from the Sunday night dramatization in the Orson Welles program on WABC-CBS of the H. G. Wells story, "War of the Worlds" still is crystalizing.

Radio row is wondering whether or not one outcome may be an immediate general ban by the broadcasters against "horror" programs of any description.

Attorney Killed In Car-Truck Smash-Up

AUSTIN, Nov. 1 (AP)—Marvin Trevathan, 30, an assistant attorney general, was injured fatally and Miss Lillian McCutcheon, an employe of the attorney general's office, received painful injuries in an automobile collision in Austin early today.

Trevathan, formerly of Lufkin, died soon after he was rushed to a hospital, police reported. Miss McCutcheon was treated for a fractured arm and severe cuts and bruises.

The police traffic bureau said Trevathan's car collided with a trailer-truck driven by Ernest Holub of Cotulla.

Court May Decide On Child Labor Act

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Supreme Court may decide whether the Roosevelt administration will ask Congress to submit to the states a new child labor amendment.

The court has before it an appeal from a Kentucky court decision that the constitutional amendment pending since 1924 is dead because more than one-fourth of the states have rejected it.

The case arose from the fact that the Kentucky legislature rejected the amendment in 1926, but reconsidered and ratified it in January, 1937. The Kentucky court of appeals called the reconsideration illegal.

Twenty-eight states have ratified the amendment, which would give Congress the right to regulate labor of persons under 18. If the Supreme Court holds that the amendment is not dead, eight more states must give their approval in order to make it effective.

Should the Supreme Court agree that the amendment no longer is pending, the administration would have a choice of standing on the provisions of the present wage-hour act, of seeking to strengthen these standards by additional legislation, or of asking Congress to submit to the states a new amendment.

Germany And Italy Will Confer Again

VIENNA, Nov. 1 (AP)—The glistening yellow castle in which Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg lived as independent Austria's last chancellor will be the scene tomorrow of a German-Italian conference on the further dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

The German foreign office mouthpiece said the 1920 Trianon treaty's "injustices" to Hungary would play "an essential role" in the talks and the newspaper of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering declared the conferees would "correct mistakes of the Paris suburban treaties (Versailles and Trianon)."

A new territorial alignment or plan for southeastern Europe, based on racial nationalism and aimed at appeasing the Danubian area, may be the result.

Goering's organ, the National Zeitung of Essen, said the parley on the Czech-Hungarian territorial dispute primarily would go down in European history as "a demonstration of the policy of the Rome-Berlin axis."

It added the ground work had been so thorough that "successful closing negotiations can be counted upon after one-day deliberations."

Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Count Galeazzo Ciana of Italy, the referees whose decisions will be final, will meet with Foreign Ministers Kolomon Kanya of Hungary and Frantisek Chvalkovsky of Czechoslovakia.

The entertainment was given at the close of a six-weeks contest of Sunday School attendance. Mary Beth Steph was the captain of the red side and Will Ferguson was captain of the blue side, which won in attendance by three points.

The teacher and children met at Denworth and hiked to McClellan Creek where they played games and roasted wieners and marshmallows.

Those attending were Adrian and Jim Bill Copsland, Gene Edney, Vendel Matthews, George Gatlin, Clella Pearson, Mary Beth Steph, Virginia Hale, Jean Rath, Donald Dowell, Elsie Mae Holloway, Loujana Roberts, Will Ferguson, Scott Ingram, and Earlene Eustace; four visitors, Mildred Holloway, Rheta Pearl Hale, Florene Matthews, and Dale Rath.

British Arms Program Argued In Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Parliament begins four days of debate this afternoon on the efficiency of the British rearmament program and the wisdom of government foreign policy.

The armament debate centers about means to speed defense measures which, the government has acknowledged, are not yet being carried forward with sufficient momentum.

Opposition parties in the House of Commons center their criticism of foreign policy about the Munich pact for dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, reached exactly one month ago today by Britain, France, Italy and Germany.

Opposition speakers have challenged Prime Minister Chamberlain with these accusations during the elapsed month:

That the League of Nations was reduced to impotence through British policy.

That collective security was shattered.

That British diplomacy was defeated successively by Manchurian, Ethiopian, Spanish, Chinese, Austrian and Czechoslovak events.

That the country's defenses had been neglected in perilous times.

A dreary rain fell as the members of Parliament gathered for the wind-up of the present session. Parliament had been adjourned for the summer except for a terse emergency session Sept. 28, before the Munich conference, and one after that conference, Oct. 6, when the House gave the premier a vote of confidence.

Hitler Names New German Army Chief

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (AP)—Military observers today saw in the appointment of a new chief of the army general staff another step in the gradual removal of officers clinging to the ideas of imperial days or unwilling fully to go along with the whole program under the Nazi regime.

Chancellor Hitler yesterday named Lieutenant General of Artillery Franz Halder, 54, to the post which General Ludwig Beck resigned because he could not see eye to eye with Hitler.

Colonel-General Fedor Von Bock, 54, was named to succeed Colonel-General Gerd Von Rundstedt, commander of army group No. 1.

Both of the new appointees led German soldiers into the former Czechoslovak Sudetenland, and well-informed circles believed they were receiving rewards for their work.

General Beck long had been reported at odds with Hitler and was said particularly to have disagreed on Military occupation of Austria and Czechoslovakia, when both first were considered.

SERIAL STORY

MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine. Wife of the sensational swing band leader.

ROBERT TAIT—hero. Newspaper photographer—detective.

ANNE LESTER—Myrna's closest friend.

DANNIE FEELEY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

Yesterday: The newspaper ad Tait runs is answered. A messenger brings the answer to Tait's rooms. Feverishly, he wonders if it contains Myrna's freedom, solves the murder.

CHAPTER XXV

DANNIE FEELEY, his long, old-fashioned nightgown trailing beneath a battered bathrobe, opened his front door and blinked at Bob Tait.

"For the love of Mike," he growled, "have you got a conspiracy on to keep me from sleeping, Tait? In the devil's black of this mornin' you ring me out of bed by telephone—and tonight you pound on my own peaceful door at 1?."

"You'll be glad I did," Tait said, stepping inside. "Dannie — I've found the musician we're looking for!"

"George Weeks? You're crazy!"

Tait grinned excitedly. "Maybe. I was crazy enough to play my hunch and put that ad in the Personals column. And I got this." He handed Feeley the letter he had received from the messenger half an hour before.

Bewildered, Feeley read the letter. Then read it again, this time aloud: "'Dear Sir—I can write a song similar to the one you mention in your classified item in the paper. In fact, I can tell you some things about that song which may surprise you. If you want to talk to me I will be in the lobby of the Pacific-Plaza Hotel at 3 o'clock tomorrow. I will be standing by the Number 4 elevator. Yours very truly, G. K. Weeks.'"

FEELEY looked up. "The guy is nuts."

"At least slightly. That's what I banked on when I put the ad in the paper. He couldn't stand to have it rubbed in—and no doubt the $10,000 had something to do with it."

"What ten thousand?" said Feeley wrily. He shoved the letter into his bathrobe pocket. "All right. You started this. What do we do now?"

"You become a song publisher and interview Mr. Weeks."

Feeley rumpled his thinning hair. "Why don't you be the song publisher?"

"There's the chance that Mr. Weeks may know me, and know that I'm the manager of The Swingateers. Remembering a certain night in the Millbay district, I think it's a good chance, too. So I'll go along with you and pretend I'm interested because my band will introduce and plug the song that you select to publish."

"Okay, Bob. I've been everything else, I might as well try acting a song publisher. Got any idea how they act?"

"Sure. They act dumb—like a detective," Tait laughed. "You won't have any trouble."

"Get out of here," Feeley roared. "And I'll meet you in front of the main entrance of the Pacific-Plaza at a quarter until 3 tomorrow."

"Good!" Tait said. "By the way, did you have Nelda Starr watched?"

Feeley nodded. "Mike Dunphy's been watching her. She stayed in her apartment after you left her, apparently, and then about 10 o'clock tonight she went down to the Golden Bowl. Mike 'phoned me from there. I told him to stick with her."

"Was Rogers with her?"

"No. He may have gone after you left—or he may still be in the apartment. Mike had one of his men stick around to see if Rogers came out and where he went if he did come out. I haven't heard from him, so I guess there's nothing on that."

Tait pulled a magazine from his pocket. "I don't know whether it's anything or not, Dannie—but look at this."

IT was the reprint comics magazine which Tait had picked up in Nelda Starr's apartment. "Thanks," Dannie said. "I like comics."

"Listen, Mr. Feeley, look at that advertisement on the back."

Dannie looked. It was the advertisement of a novelty company in Minneapolis. It offered and illustrated at least two dozen odds and ends appealing to boys. Plans for auto races, X-ray boxes, chameleons, turtles, a book on ventriloquism, invisible ink. Dannie grinned. "Yeah. I used to send for a lot of stuff like this when I was a kid. Once I got a chameleon. I put it on the linoleum in our kitchen. It was checkered linoleum and the darned thing died trying to make good."

"That's an old joke, Dannie. Look down there in the lower left-hand corner."

Feeley looked. Then he raised his eyes to Tait's. "Well, what do you know about that?"

"I don't know anything about it yet. But I do know it advertises a gadget to make a noise like a cat's cry. You put it in your pocket, squeeze it, and have fun with your friends and your dog. But I wonder if maybe it might be used for something else."

"You're dreaming, Bob. This nutty musician, with his obsession about a song called 'The Cat's Meow,' might get one of these things if he figured to do some murder. But Rogers or this Starr girl aren't crazy. It's just a coincidence."

"I suppose so. But the thing interests me enough so that I'm going to wire that outfit and ask them to tell me the names of the people who've ordered that gadget from this town in the last two months."

Feeley yawned. "Well, go ahead and have your fun. But let me get some sleep." The detective politely opened his door again "How's Myrna these days?"

Tait caught his breath, wondering if Feeley knew that Myrna had disappeared. He took a long chance. "Fine, Dannie." He felt like a heel, saying that—but he consoled himself with the thought that if Dannie knew that Myrna wasn't sleeping peacefully at the Claremont then Dannie Feeley himself wouldn't sleep the rest of the night.

AT 2:45 next day Tait stood in front of the Pacific-Plaza. He was on edge and worried. A telephone call to Anne Lester had revealed that no word had been received from Myrna since last he had telephoned. And Tait wondered if Weeks, the musician, would really appear. If he didn't—

"Well, Mr. Tait!"

The newspaper photographer turned to see Dannie Feeley, a flower in his lapel. "Perhaps you don't remember me, Mr. Tait. My name is Farnsworth. Elliott Farnsworth, the song publisher."

"Of course I remember you," Tait said, grinning in spite of himself. "Let's go inside and see if our genius is standing by the Number 4 elevator."

Side by side the pair went into the luxurious lobby of the Pacific-Plaza, steered themselves directly toward the bank of elevators. Surely enough, there stood by the fourth elevator a tall, cadaverous-looking fellow whose clothes were out of keeping with the well-groomed lobby and its prosperous-looking occupants.

"There's our man," Feeley whispered.

"Take it easy," Bob Tait said out of the side of his mouth. "Remember, you are a song publisher, not a dick. Don't whip out your handcuffs yet."

Landon And Farley Differ On Business Improvement Causes

(By The Associated Press)

Democratic Chairman James A. Farley and Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, were in disagreement today over the relation of New Deal policies to business improvement.

Landon told a political rally last night at Bartlesville, Okla., that election of Republican congressmen and governors next Tuesday would be "an important step in leading the way back to economic improvement."

Contined experimentation with the nation's finances, he said, is "the one thing that is holding back prosperity."

Farley, on the other hand, said in an endorsement of the California Democratic ticket that business is better everywhere, constituting "a complete answer to the woeful prophecies of those who are attempting to discourage the New Deal."

Their speeches, starting a heavy week of campaigning by both major parties, shared attention with criticism by Secretary Wallace of Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for governor of New York.

A statement by Wallace asserted Dewey had not told the whole truth to a Binghampton, N. Y., audience last Friday in saying farm income had not risen in New York as much as in the remainder of the country. Dewey failed to mention, Wallace said, that farm income in the state had not fallen as far from 1929 to 1932 as it did throughout the nation.

FDR Endorses Wagner.

President Roosevelt made his first endorsement to a New York candidate, praising Senator Robert F. Wagner in a letter as "a great liberal."

The New York Times, independent Democratic paper which backed Wagner six years ago, announced it would support John Lord O'Brian, his Republican opponent, and Edward Corsi, Republican candidate for the unexpired term of the late Senator Royal S. Copeland. The New York Daily News, independent tabloid which has favored the New Deal, endorsed Wagner and Representative James M. Mead, Corsi's Democratic opponent. Both newspapers have endorsed Gov. Herbert H. Lehman over Dewey.

In Pennsylvania Judge Arthur H. James, Republican nominee for governor, replied to criticism from President Roosevelt, who had charged James with misrepresentation in saying the chief executive had refrained from taking part in the Pennsylvania campaign in order not to put his hands in "muddy water."

James reiterated that there was no other inference when Mr. Roosevelt did not come to Pennsylvania after being photographed at Hyde Park with the state Democratic candidates.

"I have said it, and I repeat it," he added, "that the present Democratic candidates are not running on their own reputations."

Corn Loans Fall Due As Cribs Bulge

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Granaries throughout the farm belt were unusually well stocked with corn today as government loans to 39,000 farmers on almost 48,000,000 bushels fell due.

Visible supplies at terminal centers increased 7,946,000 bushels last week as old and new corn poured into the principal markets. Heavy marketing of old and new corn at the same time is unusual in the grain trade. The total U. S. visible supply of 24,674,000 bushels, while not large in comparison with country stocks, was 600 per cent greater than a year ago and the largest for the date since 1934.

Country elevators, too, bulged with corn and farmers throughout the belt hastened construction of new cribs. Lumber dealers reported brisk demand for materials.

Corn is selling in Chicago at approximately 45 cents, near the lowest price level in almost five years.

The latest figures on old corn supplies on farms showed approximately 350,000,000 bushels of 1937 crop grain has not been fed or marketed. The amount on loans was scarcely 14 per cent of this total. A year ago old stocks on farms totaled only 60,000,000 bushels. The 1938 supply is double that of the average in any of the past ten years.

Uncle Sam is owner of part of the old corn now crowding storage and transportation facilities. How much has been defaulted on loans, however, could not be determined.

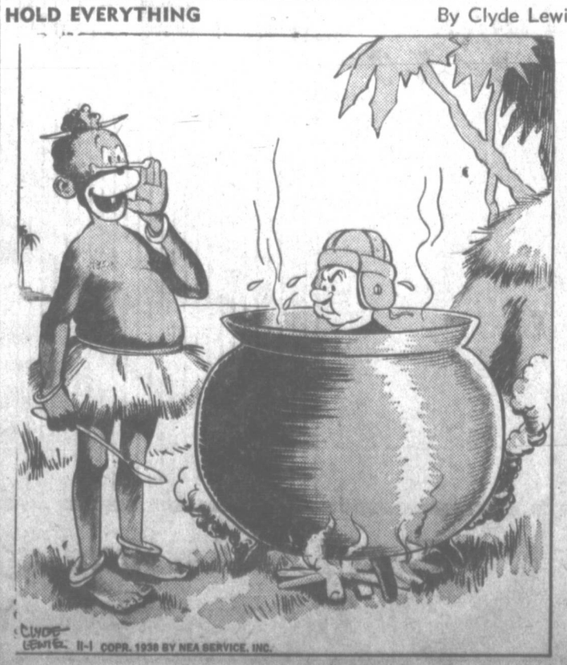

The Commodity Credit Corporation expects to sell some corn back to farmers for feeding, to distribute some in relief channels and to store some for normal merchandising later. Corn not turned over to the government for shipments may be red or released on new loans at 57 cents a bushel, seven cents over the old rate. The government expects to lend money on possibly as much as 300,000,000 bushels of 1938 corn.

Texas Heat Hit Pinnacle Last Month

By C. A. PRICE

DALLAS, Nov. 1 (AP)—This year of grace, 1938, is 80 per cent history, but records at the Dallas weather bureau—representative of a very large area of North, East and Central Texas— show it was neither abnormally hot nor dry, but did break one record.

Dr. Joseph L. Cline, forecaster, said the 100 degrees temperature Oct. 1 not only was the maximum for the 10 months, but also broke all known records for this region. His records show a maximum of 97 in 1917, was the next highest for October.

The drouth in 1929 is known at the weather bureau as the most severe and longest dry period in the growing season in some parts of the best agricultural portions of Texas. That dry spell began after a record rainfall of 10.38 inches in May and continued through June. July and August, with .33, .53 and .04 inches precipitation, respectively. The blighting effect of the 1929 dry period was because it was widespread and came in the crop maturing months.

For comparison it is necessary to take this year's record of rainfall back to '29 because it crowds that year's performance closely, although the precipitation was more evenly distributed. May had 1.09 inches, June 1.65, July .97, August .26 and September .50, but between Oct. 8 and 17, clouds became more productive and moistened the area the equivalent of 4.08 inches. The deficiency of normal through October is 4.75 inches.

The low moisture level in North, East and Central Texas was offset, Dr. Cline said, by substantial rains in West Texas due to a cool mass over the Rocky Mountains moving against a mass of warm air at the East. Other parts of the state did not benefit because meterogolical conditions over the United States were such that little movement across the continent occurred, and when the potential rain-making mass did move, physical conditions were "not such as to produce rain."

Dr. Cline said long study had taught that conditions in this or past years were not extraordinary.

"The Texas climate is noted for hot and cold, and dry and wet weather prevailing at some period in different parts of the state," he said. "A marked characteristic is that dry periods of more or less intensity occur in some portions nearly every year. There appears never to have been a year in Texas when crops in some part of the state were not affected in the growing season by drouth periods. There are drouth periods in almost all agricultural sections of the world when rain would improve yield of growing crops, but not always with the same regularity as Texas summer drouths."

'Weather Eye' Fallible

The Dallas forecaster does not hold with amateur prophets that the "weather is changing."

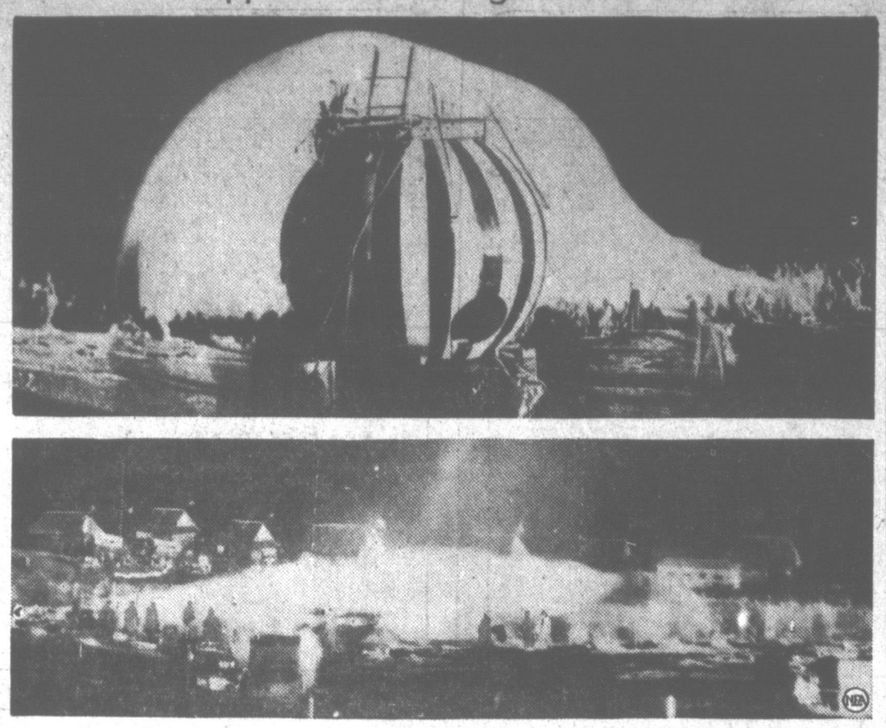

"Conditions somewhat similar to the fat and lean years in ancient Egypt frequently occur in localities in this age," he said, "but with improved farming implements, intensive cultivation and conservation of subsoil moisture better crops can be produced by less moisture. Hence, cycles, or long periods of dry weather, are not so noticeable or so disastrous. This is why some writers erroneously claim the climate is changing.

Geese flying south, twinges of rheumatism, or aching corns or Yankee bullets as weather prognosticators have Dr. Cline's respect but not his assurance of their reliability.

"However," he remarked, " I recall as a boy in Tennessee when I walked through the sage fields in the fall and found jackrabbit nests made with the heads to the south, cold weather followed in a few days of sometimes the same night. But no one can forecast heat, cold or rain merely with a 'weather eye'."

What Happens When a Big Balloon Goes Boom

A great gas-bag slowly inflates, top picture, as a prelude to a projected record-breaking flight into the stratosphere. The gayly painted gondola, which was to carry two Polish balloonists, stands in the foreground. Suddenly, a tremendous explosion rips the bag, flames shoot skyward and the balloon sinks in flames, as pictured in lower photo. Here are two pictures, taken within seconds of each other, that record the failure of a stratosphere flight before it began. These photos of the spectacular explosion were taken at Chochowska, 150 miles from Warsaw. The fliers had hoped to soar 16 miles.

New Deal Described As Economic Quack

By OLEN W. CLEMENTS

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Gus W. Dyer of Nashville, Tenn., today before the Texas Mid-continent Oil and Gas association convention accused the Roosevelt administration of foisting off "the biggest piece of economic quackery in the history of our country."

"They have been like a man on a drunken spree," he said, "their theory of economics is to make meat scarce for the people and raise the salaries of the workers above the good times level. That is the biggest piece of economic quackery I have ever heard of and if there is anything to compare with it, I have never heard of it."

The economist said depressions come every 10 years but "this is the first time the government has not confined its activities to its constitutional functions." He said in the big panic of 1873 and 1893 the national debt was not increased materially.

"But the government has financed this one," he said. "The remedy the administration has offered is to keep everybody drunk on money as long as the money for liquor holds out.

"Men never go the right way," he philosophized, "until they have tried all the wrong ways. I think we have tried all of the wrong ones, the people have been on an excursion in folly, but eventually we will head in the right direction."

The Vanderbilt University professor said the world was stirred "as it has never been stirred before economically. We have never had anything like it before. The low prices of cotton and corn are attributed to Hoover, but they are cheaper now than they were in the days of Hoover. And I'm sure things are the same in the oil industry."

He contended the functions of government are to regulate and not to direct business.

Assailing the wage hour law, he said "they have now made it a crime to give a man a job. The wage hour law is an example of direction and not regulation. That is stupid."

The delegates applauded frequently during his speech, which was one of the highlights of the convention, which yesterday heard W. Lee O'Daniel, Texas democratic nominee for governor, warn the oil men they may have to pay a portion of the cost of the $30 a month pensions he campaigned for in July.

Rules On Child Labor Law Set Up By Board

With the wage and hour law going into effect October 24, field offices of the Social Security Board have been instructed, according to Dewey Reed, manager of the Amarillo office, to clarify for employers questions raised regarding the employment of children who hold social security account numbers.

Approximately 150,000 account numbers—representing about three-tenths of 1 per cent of the 40 million total—have been assigned to boys and girls under 16 years of age," Mr. Reed said. Many of these young people probably now are legally employed under the laws of the states in which they live. However, isolated reports indicate a few employers believe that, because young people display account numbers, they are legally employable. This is not necessarily the case. With extension of child labor regulations in immediate prospect as a result of the new wage-hour law, it is particularly important to clear up any misunderstanding on this point."

Mr. Reed emphasized the fact that social security account numbers are assigned upon application, regardless of the individual's age. "Therefore," he pointed out, "the assignment of a number to a young person under legal working age means only that a wage account has been set up for him under the old-age insurance provisions under the Social Security Act. These accounts are maintained solely for use in determining the amount of old-age insurance benefits to which the wage-earner is entitled. Benefits are paid at age 65 or at death."

"When the child labor provisions of the law go into effect it seems likely," Mr. Reed continued, "that a considerable number of young workers will be dropped from pay rolls. If so, there will naturally be a time gap in their wage accounts, since they will no longer be receiving wages in employment covered by the old-age insurance program. Accounts already set up for young workers will be maintained; but no wages will, of course, be posted in such cases until the worker again obtains a job in covered employment — presumably after reaching the legal age. Account numbers will, however, continue to be issued to applicants regardless of age; and if wage reports should be received in the names of young workers who have accounts, these will be recorded to their credit.

"The Social Security Board is in no way concerned with the administration of federal or state laws relating to the employment of children. But we do wish to safeguard employers against misinterpretation, and to make the meaning of account numbers perfectly clear."

October, 1938 Driest At San Antonio Since 1901

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 1 (AP)—The passing month of October has been the driest here in 37 years, according to the weather bureau today. Only .13 inch of rainfall has been recorded for the month compared with .12 of an inch in 1901.

New Oil Law May Be Aim Of Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Oil moved toward the top of the Congressional list of essential legislation today as informed officials directed their attention to Texas and expressed frankly the opinion federal action must be guided largely by the nation's leading petroleum state.

Possibility of a new law designed to control the entire industry has been discussed here since the recent announcement of Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact, at Hyde Park, N. Y., that President Roosevelt had told him he would approve an extension of the compact to include refining. The six-state pact now covers only production.

The compact, sanctioned by Congress, binds the states to regulate producton as a conservation measure. Thompson contended at Hyde Park that although the states had not brought production to the level of consumption demand, large companies had cut the price of crude recently to the detriment of independent firms.

One factor which has been blamed for the price reductions has been the generally mild fall weather which has lowered the demand for fuel oil. In anticipation of greater fuel sales, refineries produced great stocks during the late summer months.

The compact expires next year, as does the Connally Act, which prohibits the intersate shipment of illegally-produced or "hot" oil. Equally important, officials here say, is the expiration Sept. 1 of the section of the Texas state law enabling the state's Railroad Commission to regulate production to market demands. Without that section, it is contended, the Texas law would lose its effectiveness and, in turn ,the Connally Act would avail little.

Texas Highest Producer

Texas produces about 45 per cent of the nation's oil. It is capable, experts say, of far greater production and any control program is largely dependent upon that state's action.

Interested persons here are more concerned over extension of the Connally Act than the compact, regardless of any broadening of the latter. They say the six compact states—Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and Illinois —include several with but a fraction of Texas' production. Latest figures show Illinois' daily average production to be 66,000 barrels compared with Texas' 1,412,000.

When the compact ratification was being considered in 1937, Secretary Ickes wrote that "some good may be accomplished by it" and that he did "not object to a favorable recommendation." On the other hand, he recommended the Connally Act may be made permanent law. Last month when he was questioned by reporters regarding the act he recalled his previous recommendation it be made permanent.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) wanted the law to be permanent and the Senate approved it in that form. The House, however, insisted on the time limitation.

The Connally Act requires oil shipped in interstate commerce to have a tender or certificate showing it was not produced in violation of state law. The Petroleum Conservation Division of the Interior Department is charged with its enforcement, which constitutes about 90 per cent of the division's work. The division has tender boards in the East Texas oil fields which pass on the applications for tenders.

Crude Production Drops During Week

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP)—The flow of crude oil from the nation's wells dropped 2,255 barrels daily for the week ending Oct. 29, reaching an average of 3,244,828 barrels daily, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma had a decline of 18,750 barrels daily and an average of 432,025, East Texas increased 197 barrels daily to 370,074 and the total State of Texas had an increase of 12,256 barrels daily to 1,260,340.

Louisiana's output increased 3,047 barrels daily to 269,645, California had a decline of 8,400 barrels to 660,500 and Kansas had an increase of 3,225 barrels daily for an average of 157,075.

Houses From 5 To 15 Years Old Prove Attractive To Buyers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Special—Homes built five to fifteen years ago and longer are proving attractive in many cases to the prospective home-owner in Texas when he considers whether to buy or to build, according to a survey just completed by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock.

Loans totalling $4,369,000 have been made by the insured savings and loan associations in Texas to 2,083 borrowers since January 1, 1938 to assist them in the financing of homes not of new construction. The loans averaged about $2,000 each and are payable in small monthly installments similar to rent. In the same period the associations loaned $5,749,000 to 2,371 other borrowers on homes of entirely new construction, the funds being advanced to them as the construction work on the houses progressed.

"There has been so much publicity recently about the building of new homes," said B. H. Wooten, President of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock," it is interesting to note from the figures we have prepared that the prospective home owners has not last sight of the good values which prevail today in many dwellings which are not of new construction. Home buyers during the past year have found that dwellings could be bought on the present market at less than their reproduction cost and, when needed, could be modernized at reasonable expense. The savings and loan associations in Texas have been quite active in helping to finance such transactions which tend to increase property values generally. They have ample additional funds available for more of this type of loans and for all kind of home financing."

According to the report the assets of the Texas associations continued to increase in September, they having received 45,450,000 in new funds from investors since the first of the year. Included in the compilation prepared by the bank are the figures of the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pampa whose shares are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.
