After Miners Reject Pact

Taft-Hartley Act Is Invoked

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter invoked the Taft-Hartley Act on Monday, seeking to compel striking coal miners to return to work after a three-month strike because the country cannot afford to wait any longer.

He suggested that the miners be paid at higher rates while they work under court order during the 80-day back-to-work period he seeks.

Carter said he expects the miners to abide by federal law, which provides for the 80-day cooling off period under federal court injunction.

The United Mine Workers voted down a negotiated contract by an overwhelming margin, and Carter said that means collective bargaining is at an impasse.

"My responsibility is to protect the health and safety of the American public, and I intend to do so," Carter said as he invoked the Taft-Hartley Act for the first time since Richard M. Nixon used it in a 1971 dock strike.

UMW President Arnold Miller said in advance that he would comply with Taft-Hartley even though he doesn't like it. He said if a back-to-work injunction be issued, he will observe it.

But Miller's control of his union rank-and-file is very much in doubt. He had called for approval of the contract the miners rejected.

Carter called on the miners, the mine operators, and all Americans "to join in a common effort under the law to protect our country, preserve the health and safety of the people and to resolve fairly the differences that have already caused so much suffering in our land."

The president said the law will be enforced. He asked the governors of the coalfield states to help "make sure the law is obeyed, violence is prevented, and lives and property fully protected."

While a Taft-Hartley injunction normally would order strikers back to work under the terms of their expired contract, Carter said he will seek to have the miners get the first - year pay raise provided by the contract they spurned. That would give them a $1 an hour raise, from wages which now average $7.80.

But it apparently would be up to the coal companies to decide whether to grant the raise.

Carter said he was opposed to any more liberal wage settlements than the miners already have been offered. The rejected contract provided for raises of 37 percent over a three-year period. Many miners said they opposed provisions of that contract on health benefits, pensions and local strikes during the contract period.

Dollar Rebounds

LONDON (AP) - The U.S. dollar rallied on European money markets today due to expectations that President Carter would invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to force striking coal miners back to work.

European dealers marked the dollar down against all currencies at the start of trading after it fell to a record low in Tokyo, but it rebounded and passed Friday's closing figures for everything but the British pound.

The dollar dropped nearly 2 yen in Tokyo to close at 235.175 yen despite an estimated $400 million in intervention buying by the Bank of Japan in an effort to stem the slide. It had closed Friday at 237.125.

The opening price in Frankfurt was 2.0030 marks, nearly 2 pfennigs below its closing rate of 2.0222 marks in New York Friday. Then it advanced to 2.0310 marks.

The same thing happened in Zurich. The dollar opened at 1.84375 Swiss francs, down from 1.8675 Friday. Then it shot up to 1.8735 francs.

In Paris, the dollar jumped to 4.805 French francs after opening at 4.75625. The later price topped Friday's closing quote of 4.77.

The dollar also gained against the lire, opening the Milan at 849.65 lire, down from 851.15, then jumping back to 852.75.

California Mops Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Flash flood warnings were in effect today for mountains and coastal valleys as residents of Southern California began cleanup operations from torrential rains that officials said killed eight people and damaged about 250 houses.

Four storm-related deaths were reported in Los Angeles County and one each was reported in Orange, Ventura, Riverside and San Diego counties.

Mexican officials said at least 26 people had died there, thousands had been left homeless and up to $1 billion in damage had been caused by weekend rainstorms that created food waters and mudslides.

The border town of Tijuana appeared hardest hit with 19 dead, officials said.

Ensenada, 60 miles to the south, was split in two by a torrent of water rushing through the city. More than 6,000 residents were homeless there with estimates reaching 100,000 for the entire 1,000-mile-long peninsula of Baja California.

Ethiopia Retakes Town

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - Ethiopia says it has recaptured the crossroads town of Jijiga, a major objective of its counteroffensive in the Ogaden War in eastern Ethiopia, and that its troops are pushing toward the frontier with Somalia. The Somali forces that took Jijiga in September deny that they have lost it.

"The revolutionary Ethiopian flag has been rehoisted in the town of Jijiga and is now proudly and triumphantly flying," Ethiopia's ambassador to Kenya, Mengiste Desta, told a news conference here today.

"The enemy forces are in complete disarray and are fleeing in every direction," he said, echoing an earlier statement from Radio Addis Ababa in the Ethiopian capital.

"There have been heavy losses, both human and material, but the enemy bore the brunt. At this very moment, the revolutionary army is marching forward scoring further victories," Desta said.

Jijiga lies at the foot of the Kara Marda mountain range in the northern Ogaden desert about 40 miles from the Somali border.

Deeper Cuts Seen

By The Associated Press

Utility and government officials in parts of the industrial East and Midwest say they will order stricter power curtailments following the United Mine Workers' rejection of a proposed contract. Deeper power cuts, which would slice the paychecks of millions of Americans, appeared to be the only hope for coal-hungry power companies already burning costly imported oil by the shipload and buying expensive out-of-state electricity. Simon McHugh, energy adviser to acting Gov. Blair Lee of Maryland, said the current 10 percent cut in power to many industrial customers in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia likely would be increased to 30 percent. Meanwhile, officials in Michigan, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Alabama readied calls for voluntary conservation and considered mandatory cutbacks.

Flynt Shot Outside Courtroom

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP)-Radio station WGST reported today that Larry Flynt, owner of Hustler magazine, was shot Monday while walking on a street outside the courtroom where he is on trial on charges of distributing obscene materials.

Police would not comment on the report.

No word on his condition was immediately available.

Tanker Law Struck Down

WASHINGTON (AP) - States are pre-empted by federal law from limiting the size of oil tankers using their territorial waters, the Supreme Court said today in a decision important to environmentalists and petroleum-product consumers.

Specifically, the court struck down most provisions of a Washington state law limiting the size of oil tankers on Puget Sound and other state inland waters.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the court, said existing federal laws show that "Congress intended uniform national standards for design and construction of tankers that would foreclose the imposition of different or more stringent state requirements."

The court's voting was splintered, with many justices agreeing in part with White and disagreeing in part.

During oral arguments before the court last October, Washington Attorney General Slade Gorton told the justices that officilas fear a major disaster and that "the state would lack the clean-up facilities to clean up such a spill."

State requirements on oil transportation, especially bans on supertankers, probably would have increased transportation costs - leading to rising prices for petroleum products.

Only Washington and Alaska had such tanker regulations on their books, but 16 states sided with Washington in friend-of-the-court briefs.

Those states are Alaska, California, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Missouri, Maryland, Delaware, Maine, Minnesota, New York, Florida, Idaho, Rhode Island, Virginia, Georgia and Hawaii.

Zone Case, Plat On City's Agenda

One zoning case and approval of a plat are on the agenda for tonight's meeting of the Snyder City Council.

The meeting is set for 7 p.m. in the council room at city hall.

The zone change is for the west half of Lot 4, Block 1, Lammert Addition. L.D. Womble seeks a change from an R-1 (single family dwelling) to R-2 (duplex or mobile home) zone. It has been approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Final plat of the Highland Addition, Section 3, will submitted by St. John's Episcopal Church.

In other business, the council is scheduled to appoint a board of tax equalization board and set the time and date for its final hearing; consider a request from Mike Graves to waive certain street improvement requirements adjacent to three lots which he proposes to develop on Westridge Drive west of Avenue Z; consider a request from Mike Dennis concerning water service at 3102 Avenue V; consider a request

Hospital Bond Sale Discussed

A schedule for the sale of bonds to finance improvements at Cogdell Memorial Hospital was being discussed this morning by Scurry County Commissioners.

Meeting with the commissioners was Joe Smith of First Southwest Co., who is serving as the county's fiscal agent.

Smith presented a schedule which would put the bonds up for sale on April 20. The issue date would be May 15, with the bonds to be delivered on May 23.

This would be compatible with the planning schedule, which was outlined at a meeting of the hospital board which was held earlier this month and which was attended by the commissioners court. The architects indicated that plans and specifications would be completed late this month for a proposed new addition to the hospital. The sale of the bonds in April would enable bids to be taken on construction in time for actual work to begin in early summer.

The $4 million hospital bond issue was approved by county voters last November. It was proposed to finance construction of a new wing at Cogdell Memorial Hospital to provide 50 additional beds for patients, plus facilities for other hospital services.

'Open House' Set Tonight In Schools

"Open House" will be observed at Snyder's six elementary schools and at the Humble-Smith Special School tonight as Texas Public School Week begins.

The open house events are set for 7 p.m.

Meanwhile, parents and others interested in the schools are invited to visit the schools at all levels during the week and to have lunch in school cafeterias with pupils. Elementary school lunch visitors have been asked to follow a schedule. Those visiting kindergartners were asked to come today, while first and fourth grade lunch visits are set for tomorrow, second and fifth grades for Wednesday and third and sixth grades for Thursday.

There is no set schedule for junior high and senior high lunch visits. The high school will stage a "operation switch" event Wednesday and Thursday, with participating parents taking the place of pupils in classes.

a more secure card

Making it more difficult to acquire a Social Security card, as the government is doing, is a significant step in the effort to curb the influx of illegal aliens into the United States.

Over the years, the Social Security card has emerged as a kind of unofficial national identity card. Social Security numbers figure in just about every computerized dealing with the public from federal incomes tax returns and state drivers licence registrations to department store charge accounts.

For aliens, a Social Security card also serves as a kind of work permit and, up until now, was obtainable virtually for the asking.

No more. To prevent "the possible misuse of the Social Security card as an indicator of lawful status in the United States," the Department of Health, Education and Welfare henceforth is requiring applicants to submit "documentary" evidence of age, identity and citizenship or alien status.

This alone won't solve the illegal alien problem, unfortunately. There is an efficient forged document industry with branch offices along the U.S.-Mexican border, capable of providing an illegal immigrant with anything he might need.

Even so, it would be foolish to continue a system that made it ridiculously easy for an illegal alien to obtain a Social Security card - and enabled some employers to maintain they had no way of knowing a worker was in the country illegally.

enough agencies now

It would be wonderful to believe that the effort to create a federal agency to act in an adversary role to other federal agencies finally has been laid to rest.

But rejection of the consumer agency by the House as an unnecessary new layer of government is no guarantee that the issue won't be revived. The concept has survived for eight years.

The regulatory agencies already in existence to protect the public interest can discourage further effort by diligent pursuit of their assigned goals. The welfare of the American people must be given weight equal to that of the industries scrutinized by the Federal Trade Commission, Civil Aeronatutics Board, Federal Communications Commission and other assorted bodies.

The bid to set up an agency with the power to disrupt government itself was bad legislation.

The best argument against its revival would be visible effectiveness on the part of the existing regulators.

Ad Note

It pays to make your ad look different from those run by competitors. "Me too" ads, besides being dull, are sometimes confusing. They make it easy for readers to forget whose ad they saw and which store had the best buys. Strive for a distinctive, recognizable style for your ads and stick to it. This style should identify your store almost as readily as your logo does.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

Adults do a lot of kidding about children.

How often have we said, "go out and play in the traffic." "Marrying your father was my first mistake. You were my second." Or, "If God had meant for mothers to take their kids to church, He would have put restrooms at the end of each pew."

I've said a lot of those things. It's a release hatch to let out some of the frustrations, the exhaustion, the pressures of raising children.

But sometimes I wonder if children ever know how most of us really feel about them.

Children hear a lot about the women who don't want kids to clutter up their lives. But do they know that every year, thousands of men and women keep charts, burn candles and seek medical help in an effort to have a baby?

Children are always reading in a newspaper how some child was abandoned in a bus station or left in a car to be discovered by anyone. But do they know that for every abandoned child, there's a list of adoptive parents who have waited and prayed for years to hold a baby?

Children hear a lot these days about abortion and the women who want to terminate a pregnancy. But do they know that some prospective mothers lie flat on their back for months, dedicate their entire being to this life within them, and some even put their own life on the line just to hang onto that precious child inside?

Children are forever hearing how much they cost, how much trouble they are, and how much different their parents' lives would have been without them.

And yet...those of us who have miscarried a child can still mist up when we talk of the emptiness...the pain...the sadness of never knowing what might have been. They don't know about that.

One of my sons fell into a chair the other day and said, "What can I do?"

"Have you thought of tearing down your room and planting trees?"

When I returned he was leafing through his baby book where pasted over his picture was a quote: When asked "What is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to you?" a woman answered, "Holding the baby you've been told by experts you will never have."

"You're a fake," he smiled, slamming the book shut.

Now he knows.

Clinging vine

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I have been going with the same boy for five years. People are always joking about our relationship, but I honestly don't understand the point they are trying to make.

For example, last week I was working on our high school yearbook with my girlfriend. She showed me a picture of my boyfriend and me with the caption, "The Bindweed and the Tree." She was joking about putting it in the book.

I laughed but I didn't understand the humor. I was afraid to ask. Maybe you know. What is a bindweed?

DEAR READER — A bindweed is a vine that grows wild in the forest. It seeks out a tall, strong tree and wraps itself around the trunk as it climbs toward the light. The bindweed flourishes — but in the process it eventually kills the tree by cutting off its supply of food and light.

In your relationship with your boyfriend, are you the bindweed or the tree?

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Two years ago my husband had an affair with a neighbor. In the aftermath of the scandal, she left town. I guess I should feel good again about my husband and my marriage, but I don't.

I have a nagging suspicion I can't trust him. I don't want to get hurt again.

DEAR READER — I can understand your need to protect yourself. But continuing to nurse your old wounds probably will not help.

In fact, your preoccupation with the past may even set up a situation where you might get hurt again. If your husband is aware of your intense suspicion — it's a hard feeling to hide — he might decide to have another affair. After all, no matter how he acts you insist he is guilty.

If you want to give your marriage a chance, give him the benefit of the doubt.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Sometimes this women's lib thing gets carried too far. I read an article that says boys get more stimulation from the moment they are born and, therefore, have an advantage over girls in the developmental process.

What could possibly happen in the hospital, for example, that would help boys develop faster than girls?

DEAR READER — Infants are usually wraped in blankets immediately after delivery — blue blankets for boys and pink for girls. Recent research on newborn babies indicates that blue is a more stimulating color.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Jimmy Carter has the dubious distinction of attaining the presidency - the nation's most powerful and prestigious public office - with the support of exactly 27.2 percent of the electorate.

That startling figure is attributable only in part to Carter's razor-thin margin of victory in the 1976 election. It is principally the product of the continuing decline in participation in elective politics, on the part of the country's voters.

When Democrat Brendan T. Byrne was reelected governor of New Jersey four months ago, he had the backing of fewer than 22.5 percent of those eligible to vote. Republican John N. Dalton was elected governor of Virginia on the same day with the support of less than 19.5 percent of the electorate.

Again, that's because only 39 percent of all eligible voters in the Garden State and only 35 percent in the Old Dominion even bothered to cast their ballots in those contests.

The plummeting rate of public involvement in virtually every major election held in this country since 1960 has been a topic of ceaseless analysis, study, discussion and debate among politicians and political scientists for mome than a decade. But the apparent lack of interest in any remedical action is reminiscent of Charles Dudley Warner's famed observation in an 1897 Hartford Courant editorial: "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

There is, however one organization which since late 1975 has made a serious effort to identify the causes of voter alienation and to propose alternatives and remedies: The Washington based Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

The committee's broad base of support is demonstrated by the fact that it has received funding from both oil companies and labor unions. Its advisory board includes well-known liberals and conservatives, Republicans and Democrats.

"The election process as we know it historically is no longer relevant to millions of citizens," says one committee report which notes that only 54.4 percent of all eligible voters participated in the 1976 presidential election, down from 63.4 percent in 1960.

Searching for distinguishing characteristics within the vast pool of approximately 70 million non-voters, the committee has reached some intriguing tentative conclusions. Among them:

There may be as many as 15 million "drop-outs" who previously were regular participants in the political process. They are heavily concentrated on the East and West coasts, and they tend to be better educated, more affluent and more alienated than other non-voters.

In another category are an estimated 30 million "chronic non-voters" who have never gone to the polls. They are heavily concentrated in Southern and border states.

The largest single group of non-voters are those under the age of 34. But black, Hispanic, Irish and French Catholic citizens also participate in elec tions at a lower than average rate.

By an overwhelming 4-1 margin, non-voters cite attitudinal reasons-unhappiness with government and political leadership - rather than structural impediments such as complex registration procedures for their failure to participate.

A large majority of non-voters tend to watch television news regularly and read newspapers daily, but at the same time they embrace a pervasive distrust of all the news media.

Non-voters distrust all large institutions, but at the very bottom of their list are the major political parties. They believe that corporations control decisions in Washington and that all major institutions have too much control over people's lives.

The committee's work, still far from complete, deserves far wider recognition and support, especially from the political parties and politicians who still remain oblivious to the very real possibility that their days are numbered.

john cunniff

it's a question season

NEW YORK (AP)-This is annual meeting time in the age of consumer activists, who for more than a decade have been asking of corporate executives the nastiest questions imaginable.

Questions, for example, about why the corporate jet seems to turn up at major sporting events as often as the Goodyear blimp, and why the chief executive gets a performance bonus but dividends are not raised.

Legitimate questions - but ones that some of our older executives find difficult to deal with, having developed their attitudes in an age when the corporation was not so public as it is now.

Just 15 years ago some chief executives, for example, might switch off the microphone to silence a persistent questioner, and then move on to a more polite interrogator, Why make life difficult.

It is different now, and more difficult, too. Federal regulators insist that corporations practice what their charters say they are: democratic institutions owned by investors who employ executives to manage them.

That is a grim change for any officer who felt the company belonged to him and a few other select individuals, and that investors were merely along for the ride and should not make a nuisance of themselves.

Some of those old school executives are now preparing themselves for the annual meeting ordeal in the same way President Carter prepares for news conferences, by backgrounding themselves on a variety of subjects.

Forewarned, executives have a notion of the types of questions that might be asked. A few years ago it was government interference, consumerism, ecology, ethics. Maybe something different this year.

Judging from background material prepared for this year's meetings, one new theme could be concern over what some stockholders feel is an unduly high level of executive compensation - cash and perquisites.

Coopers & Lybrand, one of the so-called "big eight" accounting firms, has circulated to clients a 25-page list of likely or possible questions from stockholders. Be prepared, it says, to answer:

"Why is the total compensation of officers so high or why did it go up? Why isn't there a ceiling on executive compensation? What factors were used in determining salary increases?"

Those are relatively simple questions. How about this one: "What were the expense allowances for executives last year? What is the approval procedure? Were they reviewed by the audit committee?"

Or this: "What specific non-monetary benefits do executives receive, i.e., use of a company airplane, boat, automobile, executive retreat or other company facilities, or other benefits for families of executives?"

Or perhaps these two: "Have steps been taken to ensure that the company is aware that all officers have filed federal income tax returns? Is there a ceiling set on executives' retirement benefits?"

These are among the questions on which "special emphasis is anticipated this year," says Coopers & Lybrand.

Drives Carefully, Thanks to Parents

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the letter signed by POP, who warned his 16-year-old daughter that if she was arrested for a traffic violation or was involved in an accident that was her fault, he would take away her driving privileges for a year. The daughter complained about the severity of the penalty, and POP asked for your opinion.

Well, I am also 16, and when I became eligible for a driver's license, my parents gave me a similar warning. At first I thought they were wrong, but now I realize that they were right. I drive defensively, always watching out for the other guy, and I've yet to have an auto accident or get a parking ticket.

I agree with you, POP's decision was a little too harsh. But fortunately, the girl only hit a post. What if she had hit another car?

SIXTEEN AND SAFE

DEAR SIXTEEN: Read on for more opinions of POP's letter:

DEAR ABBY: I am 15, the oldest of five, and a licensed driver. If POP takes your advice and allows his daughter to drive before her year is up, he's not very smart.

When my father sets a rule and does not enforce it, it's just like breaking a promise. If the girl's mom thought POP's rule was too harsh when he made it, she should have spoken up at the time. I agree, a year is too long, but once POP made the rule he should have stuck with it.

LONA H.

DEAR ABBY: I disagree that POP's punishment was too harsh. If he doesn't stick to his guns, his daughter will have no respect for him. I think the minimum age for drivers should be 18. It would take a bunch of these idiot kids off our streets and highways. I work near a high school and I see the stupid things those kids in cars pull every day. It's no wonder the death rate among teens from auto accidents is so high.

You should have congratulated POP on his wise decision instead of saying, "Lower the penalty this time, but if it happens again, lower the boom."

AGAINST TEEN DRIVERS

DEAR ABBY: How dare you give such irresponsible advice to POP? A conscientious father lays down the law to his daughter and you advise him to back down!

His daughter was lucky. Do you know how many thousands of people die in accidents caused by incompetent teen-age drivers? Losing driving privileges for a year is not too severe a penalty.

Rather than complain about the severity of the punishment, the daughter should thank God for a father who cares enough about her to make rules and stick with them. There should be more parents like POP!

Oswald: "This year's spring charity game of the American Contract Bridge League for the benefit of the Mental Health Association will take place on Wednesday, March 15. We hope many of you readers will play in it."

Alan: "With over 200,000 participants it is the largest duplicate game in the world. The hands are dealt by computer and as such are just what you meet in ordinary play. Some simple, some complicated and some interesting."

Oswald: "Here is hand one from the fall game. The normal contract is four spades by South. The whole play hinges on the play of the club suit. At some stage of the proceedings, South will lead a club from dummy. Assuming East plays low, South can rise with the king and make five odd for a good score or play the jack and just make four for a poor score."

Alan: "Some North-South pairs will stop at a part score contract for very bad scores, while their lucky opponents will get good scores."

Oswald: "Top North-South scores will go to those few pairs who got a chance to double their opponents at the five level and collect penalty bonuses of 500 points or more."

Ask the Experts

A Kansas reader wants to know if experts stick to the old-fashioned fourth-best lead when leading from a long suit.

The great majority do, but a few modernists have been experimenting with third and fifth best leads.

Jr. High Corrective Reading In 2nd Year

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on special programs in Snyder Public Schools prepared for publication this week in connection with observance of Texas Public School Week.

The Corrective Reading Program for junior high level students is in its second year. Students are pretested during their 6th-grade year to determine their need for the class. Currently, four English teachers are involved in the program: Mrs. Emily Collins, Mrs. Sue Eiring, Mrs. Margaret Corkran, and Mrs. Bobbie Caldwell. The classes are designed for students who have experienced difficulty in reading and in applying reading skills taught in the elementary grades. The program incorporates tried and effective teaching methods and the principles of carefully programmed instruction. It emphasizes the teaching of the coding skills which enable the students to read more fluently because they can sound out unfamiliar words and learn to pronounce them on sight. Part of the effectiveness of the program stems from the practice of correcting an error as soon as it is made and the use of constant drill. In addition, the program provides for a great deal of oral reading individually and in groups.

Another strong point of the program is that it builds up the confidence of the students, many of whom have experienced failure. The work starts out easy with a gradual increase in difficulty, but the steps are small so that students progress more easily. Students work for points which determine their grades. The points may also be exchanged for tangible rewards. This positive reinforcement is important, especially at first. They have known failure and then need a concrete incentive to interest them again in trying — not only in reading but also in other classes.

While it is a recognized fact that not any one program or method is a "cure-all" for the reading deficiencies of all students, the teachers feel that the Corrective Reading Program is definitely helping many of the students.

Hang-Glider Plunges To His Death

EL PASO (AP)-A 29-year-old El Paso man hit a deep downdraft Sunday afternoon as he was gliding in the mountains skirting El Paso and plunged 150 feet to his death.

The victim of the hang-gliding accident was identified as Thomas Green. The glider floated for about 200 feet over the edge of a scenic view area before hitting the downdraft.

A police mountain rescue squad retrieved the body from a rough area full of mesquite, rocks and scrub. The accident occurred in the Trans-Mountain area of El Paso.

In 1976, approximately 7,191,713 passengers enplaned at Kennedy Airport in New York.

Prostatitis treatment

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you possibly tell me what causes prostatitis and can it be treated?

DEAR READER — The ending "itis" means inflammation, so prostatitis means inflammation of the prostate gland. Inflammation can be acute or chronic so you can have acute prostatitis or chronic prostatitis.

Acute prostatitis is fairly common and is caused by a bacterial infection. The infecting germ may be any one of a dozen different organisms. That is why a culture and studies to learn what antibiotic will control it are often important. Chronic prostatitis is sometimes divided into those cases of bacterial origin (bacterial prostatitis) and those not caused by bacteria (non-bacterial prostatitis).

Acute prostatitis is usually easily treated. It causes symptoms of an acute infection and often painful urination. Gonorrhea is one of many examples of acute prostatitis, but you can have prostatitis from other germs without having any sexual relations at all. Hence acute prostatitis is not necessarily a venereal disease.

Chronic bacterial prostatitis is usually more difficult to treat and chronic non-bacterial prostatitis may prove to be a difficult and never-ending challenge to the physician and the patient.

Prostatitis should not be confused with simple benign enlargement of the prostate that usually occurs as men get past middle age. To give you more information on the disorders of the prostate, including prostatitis and cancer, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 48-year-old female. My hair is losing its texture and body and is falling out at a rather alarming rate. I realize as one gets older that the hair does become thinner but my condition seems to be in excess of what one might consider normal.

I have been told that taking one vitamin E capsule a day can help this situation. Is that fact or fiction?

I read in one of your columns that an overdosage of vitamin A can actually make the hair fall out. Does this apply to vitamin E as well? Is there anything that can be done to prevent baldness?

DEAR READER — Yes, persistent consumption of excess amounts of vitamin A can lead to hair loss. This stops when the toxic amounts of vitamin A ingestion stops.

There is no evidence that vitamin E either helps prevent baldness or causes it. You might as well take a glass of water and its cheaper — won't do you any good won't do you any harm, except in the pocket book.

Excess hair loss is a symptom. It can be caused from an overactive thyroid or an underactive thyroid. It may be related to changes in male and female hormone balances, nutrition, recent pregnancy or a recent operation. What should a person do then with excess hair loss? If it looks like it is not because of increasing age alone you should see a dermatologist and let him see the actual condition of your hair and scalp to determine the underlying cause of the problem.

Doctor Uses Pen To Save Man's Life

DALLAS (AP) - To the nameless physician with the trusty pocketknife and ballpoint, J. Wesley Ingram says, "Thanks Doc."

Ingram, 29, of the Fort Worth suburb of Bedford, was out driving Sunday when police said his sports car was hit by another vehicle, forcing it off the highway and into a steel light pole.

Sheriff's deputies saw the wreck and attempted to help but Ingram was jammed in the seat. It was then they noticed the engineer was not breathing. Their efforts to open his mouth and clear an airway failed.

Seconds later, a doctor stopped to render aid. Seeing the problem, he crawled into the wrecked auto, borrowed a deputy's pocketknife and made a small incision in Ingram's windpipe.

Quickly, he borrowed a ballpoint pen from one of the officers, stripped off the plastic hull and inserted it into the incision. After a few quick breaths down the tube, Ingram began to breathe on his own.

A deputy and the doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, accompanied Ingram in the ambulance.

He was listed in serious condition this morning, but he was alive.

IT'S THERE — As the final seconds were ticking toward a regional championship in Abilene Saturday, Coach Nolan Richardson portrayed some of the emotion that he felt. The coach, only in his first season at WTC, also speaks of some of those feelings in the article to the right. (SDN Staff Photo)

Unselfish Teamwork Is Key, Says Coach Nolan Richardson

By BILL McCLELLAN

The Westerners have opened the history book again this season. Just recently, Coach Nolan Richardson's squad chalked a WJCCA championship. And then, Saturday night, they edged out New Mexcio Military Insitute and took the regional title and along with it a berth in the NJCAA Tournament.

While there have been standout performances during the year and the tournament, such as Reginal Reid's clutch free throw shooting and Doug Worthington's keen control in the first game against Amarillo and Julio Gallardo's effort in the second game against McLellan Community College, it has been unselfish team play that has taken the Westerners along the winning road.

"Every kid that went into the ball game played his heart out," recalled Coach Richardson. "We're not the greatest talented team in the conference. We don't have the John Lusters or the Sam Worthens or the Merchants. But as an overall team effort, we've got the best.

"That's the most glorifying part of the team. There is no selfishness. They all give a part of themselves."

The coach explained his statement, pointing out Doug Worthington, a 6'5" guard who is reputed to have all-American capabilities, had he been allowed to play more and develop his skills.

"He have up his glory for the teams' sake," added Richardson. "And look at Jon Moorehead. He could care less if he scores no points as long as the team wins. There is one thing I can say...this is what you call a dream team. There's no bickering or arguing or complaining about how many points somebody got or didn't get. That, I think is the key to the success we've been having. Everybody is paying their fair share."

And for Richardson himself, who made a personal dream come true by winning the conference and regional championships in his first year at WTC...

"No coach is greater than the material he gets and how he molds them. As far as their God-gifted talent, the Man gave it to them, and all I can do is to help them to use it....to get the fundamentals down and work as a team."

It has been an emotional time for Richardson, who took on an established, Headed For National Tournament Competition...

Westerners Win Region Championship!

ABILENE -- Western Texas College put together a team effort here Saturday night and emerged -- for the third time in the history of the Snyder-based institution -- as Region V Tournament champions.

Five Westerners edged into the double figure mark, led by Jon Moorehead's 19 points, as WTC finished off tourney semi-finalist New Mexico Military Institute, 81-74.

The victory sends Coach Nolan Richardson's crew into the National Tournament, which will reportedly get underway Thursday. First round of the meet will be held in Texas, for WTC, and will be against either Navarro or San Jacinto Junior College. Winner of the Thursday game will advance to second-round play at the tournament arena in Hutchinson, Kan.

The Westerners relied on good defense to get through the first 20 minutes of Saturday's ball game, hitting 39.5 percent offensively from the floor -- their lowest output of the tournament. But the versitle crew, urged on by a vocal crowd of fans, kicked it out in the final half, swishing the hoop on 60 percent of its shots; 48.5 for the game.

Robert Brown, 6' 7" sophomore, dominated the boards with 8 and freshman Joe Mendoza had an equal amount of points to lead the Westerners through the first period of play and into a 33-33 intermission tie with NMMI.

Reginal Reid and Mendoza combined early in the second half to put WTC ahead 45-40, and from that point on, the Roswell, N.M. club never narrowed the gap by more than three points. Top of the key jumpers by 5' 9" guard Tony Phillips and shots by Arthur Anselmo kept NMMI in contention, however.

A flashy performance by Brown highlighted the proceedings in the second half. Brown scored three straight WTC baskets -- the last a slam-dunk maneuver which set the crowd on its feet and the team on its toes.

Then, with the clock ticking away rapidly, NMMI pulled within three points, 59-56 on a pair of Jerome Mobley free throws, but 6' 9" Moorehead countered for WTC with a three-point play to boast the margin again.

Most of the final moments of the championship game were spent at

Tigers Pounce ThirdOpponent

ODESSA -- Snyder High School baseball team took its third consecutive victory of the season over the weekend here, whipping Ector High School, 6-3.

The Tigers, who keep an unblemished record thus far into the 1978 campaign, were scheduled to host Odessa High School today at 4:15 p.m.

Snyder racked up 11 hits in defeating the Eagles -- including four doubles.

Senior pitcher-left fielder Alvin Ollison was credited with the win. Ollison faced 18 batters in his 3- 2-3 innings at the mound and noted two strike outs. He walked 6 batters.

Bobby Degrate came on to hurl three shut-out innings following Ollison's performance. Degrate gave up two hits and struck out one batter.

"Bobby was real impressive," commented Coach Lewis, who admits to being pleased with his team's efforts this early into the season.

Snyder scored all of its points in the third inning. Scott Crenwelge slapped a single to get the Tigers running, and Degrate and Dray Sikes added another pair of base hits. Richard Crayton belted in two of the runners with a double, and Tracy Witherspoon brought two more Tigers in with another two-bagger. Finishing out the hitting were Mitch Mackey, Walter Banks and Crenwelge, all with a single each.

Barrientes took the loss for Ector. The Eagles scored their points in the fourth inning.

Hogs And Cougars In NCAA Meet

SWC Trio Tourney Bound

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston gets glamour independent Notre Dame and Arkansas goes west to play Weber State in the NCAA Basketball Tournament and Southwest Conference co-champion Texas takes on Temple in the National Invitational Tournament.

Texas, which lost 92-90 in a wild run-and-gun SWC Tournament Championship finale Saturday night, found itself out in the cold after being ignored by the NCAA Committee despite a 22-5 record and a No. 12 ranking.

But the Longhorn's hope for a telephone call from the NIT committee became reality Sunday afternoon, and Coach Abe Lemons' squad will host Temple Friday in one of eight first-round games played across the nation.

Texas was the highest ranked of the 16 teams selected for the NIT competition.

The NIT gave Houston a chance last year, and the Cougars made it all the way to the finals.

Texas Coach Abe Lemons had predicted the NCAA

State Cage Tilts Cut Close Victors

AUSTIN (AP) - When announcer Phil Ransopher asked the state tournament basketball crowd "Isn't this something" he meant the tournament's new home, the Super Drum at the University of Texas.

After the championship games had been played, he might have added, "Wasn't that something?"

Fans, including the second largest crowd ever to watch a Texas high school basketball game, saw the closest five title contests in tournament history.

Four championships were decided by one point - two in the last second - and Huntsville led Mineral Wells only 48-47 with about a minute left before winning the Class 3A finals, 55-49.

Huntsville was joined in the champion ranks by Houston Wheatley in 4A, Whitehouse in 2A, Snook in A and Krum in B.

It was Wheatley's fifth title, a record in 4A, although Buna holds the tournament record with seven championships - in A and 2A.

It was Snook's fourth crown, which ties the Bluejays with two other teams for the most titles in its division. Snook won its other three titles in B.

Krum captured its second title by defeating Avinger, 69-68, on Keith Copp's free throw with one second remaining. Jamie Nix pulled the identical feat for Whitehouse, a tournament newcomer, with a last-second free throw to nip Dimmitt, 60-59.

Wheatley, tied 78-78 at the end of regulation play, edged San Antonio Fox Tech, 84-83, with six seconds remaining in overtime on two charity tosses by Gilbert Thomas.

the charity line and Reid was again the man of the day in that respect. The 6' 4" freshman dropped in five points from the stripe during the final 1:45.

While Moorehead's 19 points paced the Westerners, Brown clutched 15 rebounds to mainstay the boards. Brown also garnered 13 points, followed by Mendoza with 14, Reid with 11 and Adam Beadle with 10. Julio Gallardo, standout in Friday's victory over McLennan, grabbed five rebounds and 8 points. Scoring two points each were Dwight Williams and Wayne Jamison. Reid posted five assists.

Phillips led the NMMI crew with 22 points and 8 assists. Teammate Lewis Lloyd had 21. The only other Military play in double figures was Mobley with 8.

Gallardo and Moorehead received all-tournament honors for the Westerners. Phillips was the meet's most valuable player.

WTC - Gallardo 2-1-1-8, Moorehead 7-5-2-19, Williams 1-0-0-2, Jamison 1-0-0-2, Beadle 5-0-2-10, Worthington 0-0-2-0, Brown 7-1-1-15, Reid 3-5-1-11, Mendoza 7-0-1-14, Patridge 0-0-3-0. Totals 33-15-22-81.

Teamwork Is Key

healthy basketball program and came up with a great season. When most coaches might lean towards a troubled program - there is less danger there of being threatened by that job - Richardson decided to take on the task of Western Texas College.

A tough task, too, considering the Westerners had won the conference title three years in a row under former mentor Mike Mitchell, including two trips to the natonal tournament. And there were many of his old colleges who commented to him, that perhaps he was in for more than he could handle.

"It has been a struggle," Richardson revealed. "There were night's when I didn't sleep and I worried about what I could do to get the kids ready. And then it all turned around. That's the reward for me. Nothing could ever replace the feeling I had after that ball game (the championship game). I said to myself, 'Hey, I got there', and that gives me the opportunity to do it again. Maybe not next year, but once you've done it, you know you can do it again.

"I'm so excited about the fact that the people from Snyder have been a great to the team, myself and my family. I felt so in love with the community for all the support they've given us. Especially down at the wire. I'd really like for them to know how much I appreciate it."

Western Texas College will play the winner of tonight's San Jacinto-Navarro Junior College game, possibly on Thursday.

Tickets for the game will be on sale beginning tomorrow at the WTC business office.

would look the other way when it came to his Longhorns.

"It seems strange to me the way the NCAA works," said Lemons. "North Carolina won the Atlantic Coast Conference title then got beat in the tournament yet got an automatic ticket to the tournament. We didn't. ... Sure seems strange to me."

Houston will play Notre Dame at Tulsa, Okla. Sunday; and Arkansas meets Weber State Saturday in Eugene, Ore.

"The Cougars are as good as anybody around," said Lemons. "I thought we played hard ... but we just aren't physical enough to play with some of these teams."

Lemons said "It's the physical teams that do well in tournament play because the referees don't call the rough stuff.

Sports Summary

Donnie Allison, in relief of his brother Bobby, edged Benny Parsons by a car length for second.

The marathon, 4 hour, 17-minute race was slowed by caution periods eight times for a total of 62 laps. Pearson averaged 116.681 miles per hour was about 3 m.p.h. off the race record.

McLendon Bags Citrus Open

ORLANDO, Fla. - Mac McLendon held off a host of challengers with rounds of 69 and 68 and scored his third tour victory in the double-round windup of the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

McLendon won by two strokes over David Graham with a 271 total, 17 shots under par on the 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Golf Club course.

The victory was worth $40,000 for McLendon, who also qualified for the Masters, the Tournament of Champions, and put him in position to gain a spot in the World Series of Golf.

20 Club Owners Back Kuhn

NEW YORK - Twenty of major league baseball's 26 club owners have backed up Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in an attempt to prevent a reported move by a minority of owners to fire him.

Kuhn received on Thursday a 160-word resolution signed by the owners or top executive officers in both leagues except Charlie Finley of Oakland, Brad Corbett of Texas, Bob Howsam of Cincinnati, Jerry Hoffberger of Baltimore, Ray Kroc of San Diego and Bill Veeck of the Chicago White Sox.

The resolution came in response to a recent report that nine owners, spearheaded by Corbett, sought to oust Kuhn before his present contract expires in 1982.

Lightfoot Claims A PBA Title

MIAMI - Randy Lightfoot blitzed three former Professional Bowlers Association champions, including top-seeded Larry Laub to claim the title in a $150,000 PBA tournament.

Lightfoot mowed down sixtime champion Marshall Holman 242-188 in his opening match and beat 11 time winner Mark Roth 224-204 in advancing to the championship game against Laub.

In the title match, Lightfoot struck five times in a row during the late stages of the game and wrapped up the title, 246-202.

Town Keeping Close Watch On Ice Jam

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

PEQUEA, Pa. (AP)-Sitting on a bluff at eye level with soaring turkey buzzards, four Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. employees keep watch day and night over this tiny clapboard town.

For six weeks they have staked out a mammoth ice jam on the Susquehanna River a breathtaking 537 feet below. It is the highest jam since the spring of 1904, when chunks of ice as big as box cars destroyed the upriver town of Safe Harbor, which never was rebuilt.

The men check the ice with binoculars and with stationary transit instruments whose crosshairs are lined up with two amber lights planted by helicopter on the ice, which resembles a sea of moon craters after a dirty snowfall.

One day, probably this month, the amber lights will stray from the point where the hairs meet, signaling the pack ice is on the move.

The men will relay the news from their mobile trailer at the lookout site. Sirens at two dams and at the firehouse will wail, alerting the people who live along the river of yet another spring thaw.

No one knows what will happen next.

"That's the $64,000 question," says Jim Karr, postmaster of this hamlet of 100 residents. "It could take this building just like a toothpick, or the ice could rot away gradually and stay within the river's banks. We'll know pretty soon."

The latest spring thaw along this stretch of the river was April 2, according to surviving records.

Another Pennsylvania Power employee drops a tape into the river every two hours, noting in a log book whether the river is rising or falling.

He and another man have been doing that since Jan. 27, the day the ice arrived from Turkey Hill, a river bottleneck that almost every year fills with debris-packed ice.

"The temperature climbed into the 50s that day and we had three inches of rain," recalled Gordon Stark, 30, whose house sits on the river's bank here.

"That Friday night it was like watching cars on a freeway, those chunks were doing 35 to 40 miles per hour. Then all of a sudden they stopped.

"The river is pretty shallow along here. The big chunks started digging into the mud, and the little ones stacked up behind."

The ice jam spans the milewide river and is about six miles long, starting a few miles upriver from Pennsylvania Power's Holtwood Dam, below town, and extending to the Safe Harbor Dam to the north. The Safe Harbor dam is owned jointly by Pennsylvania Power and Baltimore Gas & Electric.

The ice has already knocked the hydroelectric generating station at Safe Harbor Dam out of operation for six months to a year by backing water into generators, said Arch Knisely, a Pennsylvania Power official in Lancaster. It also toppled a transmission tower, carrying two 230,000-volt circuits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Most things you put your mind to will be relatively easy to accomplish today. This doesn't, however, apply to betting on long shots.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can count on No.1 today more than anyone else. It follows, therefore, that you may listen to many voices, but heed only the dictates of your own conscience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you get an idea that seems so large in scope that it appears impractical, don't discard it. What your mind can conceive can be accomplished.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you've helped in the past wants to reciprocate today, but you'll feel he's being overly generous. It should be his decision, not yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) Don't be an old fuddy-duddy if your loved one comes forth with a brainstorm you think is too far-out. Give it the courtesy of careful consideration.

VIRGO (Aug.23-Sept.22) Be a volunteer for any worthwhile project where you're needed today. Extending your assistance freely could plant seeds for a handsome harvest.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct.23) Today others find you to be a person they want to listen to and emulate. Get out and take advantage of your popularity.

SCORPIO (Oct.24-Nov.22) The pathway to success is posted today with signs that say "Stick to it." Sink your teeth into an endeavor and don't let up until you've finished it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) Give coworkers their share of the kudos today. If you give credit where it's due, the returns will be in surprising proportions.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan.19) It's a cardinal rule of your personality that you must give equal value for what you receive. Today that virtue will be worth more to you than ever before.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) Let a smile be your umbrella today. A light-hearted attitude will open doors and soften opposition.

Drink Tax Bill Pays For Arrest

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - Editorials praise it or thunder against it. Doctors laud it. Bartenders ridicule it.

The subject of all the attention is a proposal which would levy a nickel-per-drink tax to build a $27 million fund to help local governments pay for the arrest and prosecution of drunken drivers.

The bill was authored by Rep. John Arlandson, who was called "sick" by one letter writer. Arlandson said he is pessimistic about passage of the bill but noted it had called attention to Minnesota's chronic problem of drinking drivers.

Officials say there are about 30,000 drunken drivers on Minnesota roads on any given Friday or Saturday are arrested.

Because it costs about $550 to arrest and prosecute a drinking suspect, $35 for each pre-sentence investigation, $25 for each day of jail sentence and $15 for each hour of patrolling between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m.

The bill also proposed giving local governments $800,000 for education, treatment and care centers for drug and alcohol abusers.

The bill has been approved by one House committee and is awaiting action in the House Tax Committee. It is likely to die there because legislators are eager to adjourn by March 18.

Arlandson said he has been "totally surprised" by the widespread reaction to his proposal - front-page newspaper articles and attention from national radio and television networks.

What helped draw attention to the bill was its description as imposing a "bounty" on drunken drivers, a word Arlandson says he never used.

Over $350,000 Damage In Merkel School Fire

MERKEL (AP)-A fire started in a boiler room of Merkel High School Sunday afternoon and quickly spread, causing more than $350,000 damage.

"We think at this point it is a total loss," Superintendent Travis Davis said. Monday's classes were canceled, and plans were made to resume them Tuesday in makeshift classrooms.

Two volunteer Merkel firefighters and an Abilene fireman were treated for minor glass cuts, but no other injuries were reported.

Merkel Fire Chief Wayne Adcock said the fire began in a boiler room where steam for the school's heating system was generated. The level of destruction around the boiler prevented fire officials from pinpointing the cause, but arson was not suspected, Adcock said.

Flames traveled through spaces between the basement ceiling and first floor and spread rapidly the length of the 55-year-old two-story building.

The school's auditorium, gymnasium and classroom annex connecting the main building were not damaged.

Heaviest loss was in the east end of the school, although every classroom and administrative office in the building suffered some smoke or water damage.

The fire was reported about noon. Four classrooms, a storeroom and 25 to 30 feet of a first-floor hallway were destroyed before firefighters tapped out the fire at 4:30 p.m.

Davis said the heating equipment had shown no signs of trouble throughout the year's cold winter.

As firefighters brought in their equipment, volunteers of all ages shuttled books, tables, desks and other school equipment to the safety of an adjoining courtyard.

It was the second fire in recent years to hit the Merkel school system. A blaze started in a bookcase 11 years ago and spread, gutting two classrooms and filling the building with smoke.

In Snyder Public Schools...

Top Flight Academics Remembered By Vestal

Editor's Note - This is Texas Public School Week and during the local observance the Snyder Daily News is contacting some graduates of Snyder High School who are in the community's business and professional community today, giving them an opporunity to reminisce and make observations about their own public school days and any changes they have noted since they graduated.

By JOHN LONG

A member of the class of '65, Jerry Vestal recalls the academic programs he was offered as a student at Snyder High School.

"We were offered excellent academic programs," he said. "When I got to college I was well prepared."

Vestal attended Southern Methodist University and studied social sciences and theology. He moved back to Snyder in January to be the manager of Eckerd Drugs, located in the Varsity Square Shopping Center.

He is the son of Maribeth Vestal and the late Bill Vestal, a one-time mayor of Snyder who died while in office.

Vestal, now 30 years old, still vividly recalls several of his high school teachers. He particularly remembers Hazel Hanback, an English teacher, who "taught me how to read and write."

Another teacher he remembers is Virginia Grove, a high school math teacher. She and Mrs. Hanback were "both very tough, strict teachers who helped prepare me for college."

Vestal was also involved in basketball and remembers coach Ned Underwood. "I was real involved in athletics. I think that provided a very good outlet," he said.

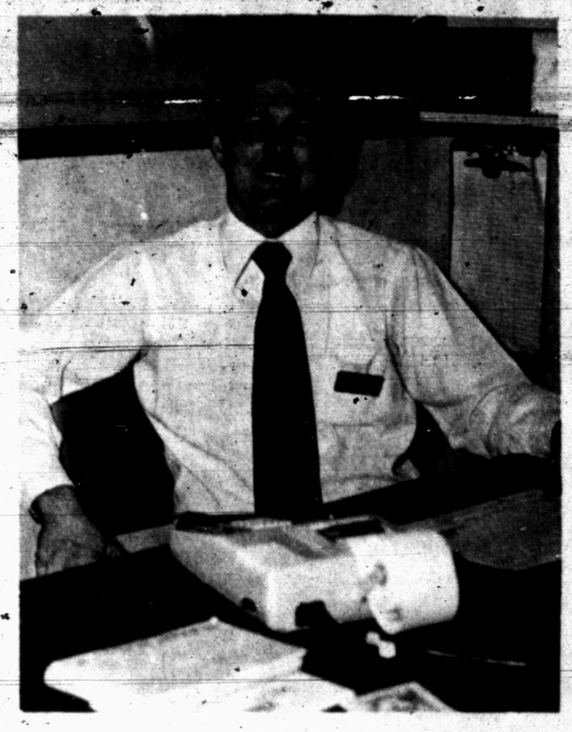
One difference Vestal noted in high school education in the early and mid 60s and that of today concerned the dress code. He said he did not believe Snyder High School had a written dress code during the time he was a student there.

"That (the dress code) was never something that was discussed then," he said.

Several years ago Vestal attended a class reunion. He remembers that "it couldn't have been a more enjoyable experience."

At the reunion he noted that some of his classmates had done very well for themselves.

"Apparently we did receive a pretty good education," he said.



SHS DAYS REMEMBERED — Jerry Vestal, the manager of Eckerd Drugs, is a product of a Snyder education. He was graduated in 1965 and recalls what school was like then. Among other things, Snyder High School helped prepare him for college, he said. (SDN Staff Photo)

Traffic Mishaps Keep Police Busy

A spate of traffic accidents was the main fare that kept police busy during the weekend.

The first mishap occurred at 5:21 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of East Highway and Ave. E. Involved in the mishap were a 1978 Subaru driven by Wanda Clark and a 1976 Ford driven by Cynthia Chapman. The wreck resulted in minor damages.

Minor damages were also the product of a collision of two cars in the 3000 block of 25th St.

According to police reports, a 1969 Ford driven by Robert Fenner was in collision with a 1975 Ford driven by Lillian Sands at 6:15 p.m. Saturday. A wrecker was needed to remove the Fenner vehicle.

The College Ave. Food Basket was the scene of a wreck involving a 1973 Ford driven by Jerry Lee and a 1978 AMC driven by Sandra Welch. The mishap took place at 6:35 p.m. Saturday and resulted in minor damage.

A traffic accident took place in the 2900 block of 37th St. and involved a 1977 Mercury driven by Johnny Garza and a parked 1974 Toyota owned by H.E. Woolsey. The mishap was reported at 12:06 a.m. Sunday. Moderate damge was reported to the vehicles.

Non-incapacitating injuries were reportedly sustained by Daniel Ramoz when the motorcycle he was driving was in collision with a 1976 Pontiac driven by Ozane Stringer Pylant Sunday afternoon.

Police reports indicate the mishap occurred at 5:36 p.m. Sunday in the 4700 block of College Ave. No wrecker or ambulance was called to the scene, reports show.

The final mishap of the weekend was in Towle Park.

A 1972 Chevrolet driven by Jeffery Couch struck a trash dumpster. Only minor damages were reported.
