By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt, the point man in the Reagan administration's attack on "environmental extremists," has taken on another role — darling of the rubber chicken and green pea circuit.

Watt has become one of the most successful fund-raisers in the Republican Party, his aides say, and he is playing a major role in building party coffers for the 1982 congressional races.

He's become so popular, in fact, that for the rest of the year he will spend more time out raising money for Republicans than he will in his office, aides say.

AND AFTER A BRIEF lull in January and February, he will resume that pace for the rest of the campaign season, according to Doug Baldwin, Watt's assistant secretary for public affairs.

"He is in tremendous demand as a fund-raising speaker and he takes his political responsibilities very seriously," Baldwin said.

However, the amount of time Watt is devoting to political affairs over a year before the 1982 congressional elections has raised some eyebrows — primarily among Watt's critics in the environmental community.

"If he wants to be a political fund-raiser, he should join the staff of the Republican National Committee," said John McComb, Washington director for the Sierra Club. "He is paid to be the Interior Secretary and I question the propriety of his spending so much time in political pursuits."

RAFE POMERANCE, PRESIDENT OF Friends of the Earth, said that Watt's fund-raising could quickly produce conflicts with his role as chief steward of public lands.

"It troubles me that you have somebody in a position as a major regulator for the federal government out raising so much money," Pomerance said.

But Baldwin said Watt sees no conflict with his official responsibilities and his political activities.

"A Cabinet secretary wears a bonafide political hat. He is expected to do this, and Watt is willing to make the sacrifices of his own time to do it extensively," Baldwin said.

Watt's current availability for fund-raising functions is a drastic turnaround from his first six mnths in office, when he turned down all out-of-town speaking engagements as he put his own stamp on the department.

"THAT WAS ALL BY DESIGN," Baldwin said. "He wanted to get things done. Unfortunately, that meant that for the first six months people heard about Watt through the megaphone of the Sierra Club and the Wilderness Society."

Watt's own actions and the outcry they have provoked have made him the most controversial member of Reagan's Cabinet. But they also have made him a hero to the big-money types who contribute heavily to Republican campaigns.

Officials at the Republican National Committee said Watt has raised more than $400,000 for them, and Baldwin said that does not include a substantial sum Watt has raised for local Republican candidates.

Watt's political activities began in earnest in September when he took a month-long swing through his native West, making fund-raising appearances in Montana, Utah, Idaho, Arizona and New Mexico.

His rhetoric on the stump was vintage Watt.

"The liberals are after me," he said in one appearance after Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., had called for his resignation. "But we have the issues. The liberals are bankrupt, both financially and intellectually."

Kania replaced as Polish leader

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party on Sunday ousted moderate leader Stanislaw Kania after 14 turbulent months in office and called for an "immediate halt" to strikes by Solidarity, the official PAP news agency reported.

Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski, an army general who also is the defense minister, was promptly elected to replace Kania as party first secretary, the news agency said.

It was believed Jaruzelski would hold all the posts at least temporarily, and in his acceptance speech he said the Central Committee and Parliament would meet this week to make more changes.

"We haven't sought confrontation," he said. "We have always avoided it. Today we are not striving for it either, but one thing is certain: Our possibilities for retreat have been exhausted."

WORD OF KANIA'S OUSTER was reported without comment by the media in the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact nations, which have been bitter critics of his moderate policies.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Susan Pittman said, "It's too soon for a full assessment, but we note that as minister of defense and, since February, as premier, Jaruzelski has associated himself with a policy of seeking negotiated solutions with Solidarity," the independent labor federation.

Previous shakeups in the Polish party and government have been accompanied by rumors of possible Soviet intervention, and Ms. Pittman said there was no indication of unusual Soviet troop movements along the Polish border.

PAP said Kania submitted his resignation during a stormy session of the 200-member Central Committee, which ended its meeting Sunday that began Friday. Polish media said 104 committee members voted to accept the resignation and 79 were opposed. The reports did not say if the others abstained or were not present. They said 180 of 184 voting members cast their ballots for Jaruzelski to become the party's third leader since 1980.

THE COMMITTEE ALSO demanded an "immediate halt" to strikes, and asked the Parliament to "temporarily suspend the right to strike" won by Solidarity, the only independent union in the Soviet bloc. It was founded in August 1980 amid a wave of nationwide strikes.

Scattered labor actions had been reported Friday, with women weavers in Zyrardow occupying mills for a fourth day to protest food shortages and teachers in Tarnow holding a sit-in to press demands for better school facilities.

The Central Committee resolution calls on the government to take drastic steps if needed to "defend the most vital interests of the state and nation."

Many party members had called for firm action against leaders they said were "ineffective." The decision to replace Kania, 54, with Jaruzelski apparently represented that feeling by the party members. However, PAP gave no reason for the resignation.

"Kania had apparently lost much support and had taken a harder line," a Western diplomatic observer said. "It seems, though, that the committee was absolutely fed up that he wasn't doing what they wanted."

JARUZELSKI, A STERN, SILENT career military officer, has been minister of defense since 1968 and became a Politburo member in 1971. He became premier last February, replacing Jozef Pinkowski who resigned.

Since he became premier, Jaruzelski, 58, has appointed several generals to his Cabinet or top positions in the government, heading the ministries of the interior and mining as well as the Polish national airline LOT.

Jaruzelski was a supporter of Kania's "line of agreement," or peaceful solution to Poland's problems and Solidarity demands, but he recently took a harder stance, urging Solidarity three weeks ago to moderate its policies.

It was not immediately clear if the switch forecasts a tougher line against the 9.5 million-member union, which had boldly challenged Poland's Communist authorities for power in the past year.

In Lens, France, a spokesman for Solidarity head Lech Walesa, said, "I would be very surprised if the move signals a hardening (of the position of the Communist Party) because that would have dramatic consequences." Walesa is in France at the invitation of labor unions there and said he saw no reason to cut short the trip.

Greek elections signal radical shift in pro-Western stance

By GILLIAN WHITTAKER
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Andreas Papandreou and his left-leaning Panhellenic Socialist Movement swept the Greek elections on a platform calling for withdrawal from NATO, the closure of American bases and a referendum on continued membership in the European Common Market.

Premier George Rallis conceded the defeat of his conservative New Democracy Party Sunday evening as returns from the day's balloting signaled a radical shift in the nation's pro-Western policy.

With 5.2 million of an estimated nearly 7 million votes counted, the charismatic Papandreou's Panhellenic Socialist Movement — Pasok — had 48.08 percent of the popular vote, more than enough to control the 300-seat unicameral Parliament. The New Democrats had 35.97 percent and the Communist Party 10.82.

"We will build a socialist Greece," Papandreou, a Harvard-educated economist, told reporters in a victory news conference at his home in suburban Athens.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Caspar Weinberger said today in Stockholm, Sweden, that Western defenses would "unquestionably" be weakened if Greece pulled out of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Sometimes there's quite a wide gap between campaign rhetoric and the realities faced when you're actually in government," Weinberger told reporters before flying to Perth, Scotland, for a meeting of NATO foreign ministers. "I think it would unquestionably weaken the NATO alliance if they did decide to pull out.

In Yorktown, Virginia, President Reagan said "that's too bad" when a reporter called out that Greece might want withdraw from NATO. Asked if there were anything he could do about it, the president said, "I don't know. We'll have to see."

The military regime in Turkey withheld official comment on the Socialist victory, but officials speaking privately predicted it could harm the already shaky relations between the two wary neighbors.

Papandreou, 62, is awaiting the formal mandate of President Constantine Caramanlis to form a new four-year government. He told reporters he could be ready to swear in a Cabinet by this evening.

"WE ARE DETERMINED to carry out our program. You have given us a strong overall majority in Parliament so that we can unhesitatingly achieve our program," Papandreou said in a nationally broadcast victory speech.

However some analysts said security considerations might force the new government to re-evaluate its proposed withdrawal from NATO, and money might play a role in heading off the possible shutdown of U.S. military bases.

He told the Greek electorate one thing and his foreign listeners another, said one observer, who suggested that based on Papandreou's statements to foreigners the U.S. installations might be saved if Washington comes up with better terms for more military credits and modern equipment.

Meanwhile, actress Melina Mercouri and Lady Amalia Fleming, widow of the discoverer of penicillin, won their bids for seats in Parliament.

"I was overjoyed when I heard," Lady Fleming said today. Miss Mercouri was unavailable for comment.

On the domestic front, Papandreou won support from women by promising complete equality, and from the young by pledging sweeping social and economic reforms.

The election, which will leave only three parties represented in Parliament, was predominantly a fight between Rallis' conservative party, which had ruled the country for seven years, and Pasok. The third faction is the Moscow-line Communist Party of Greece.

Computer projections based on the incomplete returns showed Pasok gained 173 seats to 113 seats for the New Democrats and 15 for the Communists. Splinter centrist parties and extreme rightist and leftist factions were pushed out of the Parliament altogether, according to the projections.

IN A TELEPHONE conversation with Rallis, Papandreou called on the conservative leader to work constructively in opposition "for the good of the people and the country."

He also called on all Greeks, whatever their political convictions, to unite behind him and to work together to build a new nation.

While Papandreou based much of his program on the model of French Socialist President Francois Mitterrand, according to party members, his campaign was run on American lines. His relentless campaigning in rural areas, in coffee shops and at mass rallies paid off.

Texas Chamber of Commerce to hold meeting in Midland

ABILENE — The 1982 annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will be held April 21-23 at Midland, it was announced at the association's mid-year meeting held here this weekend. Midland had been awarded the 1982 meeting last April at El Paso.

President Burvin Hines of Arlington and formerly of Midland, named a program committee for the annual convention, including Joe Kloesel of Midland, chairman; W.H. "Bill" Collyns, Midland; John Mason, Odessa; Martha Walker and Ben Edmundson, both of Arlington and Joye Evetts of Fort Worth. Kloesel is WTCC's president-elect.

Hines also announced that a meeting of the executive committee will be held Jan. 21 at Wichita Falls.

Dan Mendell of Midland was elected to fill a vacancy on the organization's board of directors. Other new directors are Fred Calderon, El Paso; Dwight Royal, Copperas Cove; J.D. Stephens, Pecos; Larry Bowers, Del Rio and Patrick Page, Rule.

A Leadership Workshop, one of three scheduled for next year, will be held Feb. 11 at Odessa.

Congressman Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Texas Speaker Billy Clayton were the featured speakers at the meeting here. Clayton's subject was "The Water Trust Fund: A Way to Finance Texas Water Resources Needs in the Future."

Other speakers included Louis A. Beecherl Jr., chairman of the Governor's Water Task Force; Dr. Herbert Grubb, director of Planning, Texas Department of Water Resources; Ray Hutchison of Dallas, attorney and legislative consultant, and State Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene

Reagan concedes economic recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying what administration officials have carefully avoided, is acknowledging for the first time that the nation's economy is in a recession.

But Reagan says it's mild, and his chief economic adviser says "forces already are in motion" to reverse it.

"I think there's a slight recession and I hope a short recession," Reagan said Sunday on the White House lawn before leaving by helicopter to meet with French President Francois Mitterrand at Williamsburg Va. "I think everyone agrees on that."

Later Sunday, Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said in a statement "there are increasing signs that the economy has entered what can be called a recession," including a drop in industrial productivity, rising unemployment claims and the weak housing market.

But Weidenbaum said Reagan's economic program and built-in stabilizing elements in the federal budget will assure that the downturn will be short-lived.

"With both short- and long-term interest rates declining, forces already are in motion to reverse current downward tendencies, even though several more months of poor economic statistics are a likely probability," he said.

TREASURY SECRETARY Donald T. Regan said today he agreed with the president that the economy is in a slight recession.

Regan, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee on banking deregulation legislation, noted that recent figures have shown production by the nation's mines, factories and utilities was down, as were housing starts and auto sales.

Regan predicted the slowing economy would help reduce interest rates by the end of the year.

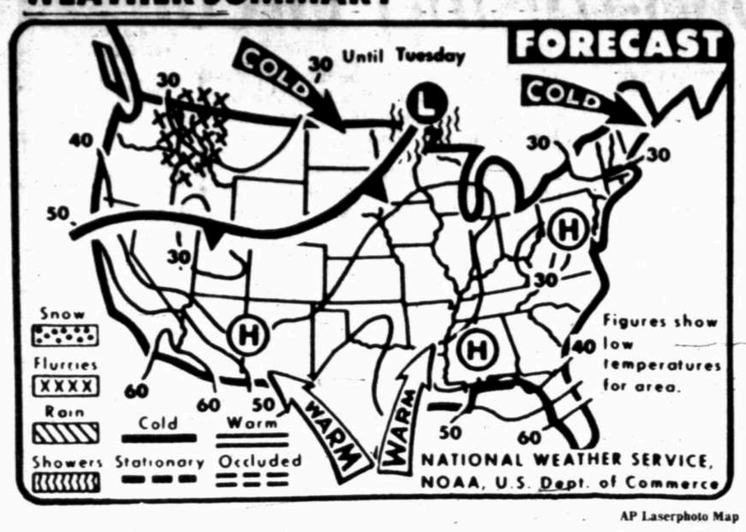

Although private economists have been saying the economy is in a recession, Reagan's comment caught his advisers and other aides by surprise.

As late as Saturday, White House spokesman David Gergen declined to characterize the economy as being in a recession.

Industrial production fell 0.8 percent in September, the second monthly decline in a row, and was at the lowest level in more than a year, the government reported Friday. Unemployment climbed from 7.3 to 7.5 percent last month.

Jerry Jordan, a member of the Council of Economic Advisers and the administration's chief economic forecaster, said last week that unemployment could go higher than 8 percent by early next year.

Man wanted on felony warrants in five states remains in Potter County jail

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A man wanted on at least five felony warrants in five different states remained in Potter County jail here Sunday night after being arrested by a Texas highway patrolman during a routine license check, officials said.

Marion Albert Pruett, wanted in connection with several robberies, the abduction of a Jackson, Miss., bank employee and the slayings of two convenience store clerks in Colorado, was arrested Saturday night near Stratford in the Texas Panhandle.

Sherman County sheriff's officers in Stratford said federal agents took Pruett to the Potter County jail by federal agents early Sunday.

A sheriff's spokeswoman said she was told by federal agents that Pruett was named in as many as seven felony warrants out of seven states. The FBI confirmed that Pruett, 32, was wanted on warrants issued by city, county or state law enforcement agents in Jackson, Miss.; Albuquerque, N.M., Fort Smith, Ark., and Pittsburgh, Pa., and Seattle, Wash.

Federal agents in Mississippi were seeking Pruett in connection with a Sept. 17 savings and loan robbery in Jackson. The abducted bank employee, Peggy Lowe, has not been seen since she vanished with the robber. Officials said Ms. Lowe was not with Pruett when he was arrested Saturday.

Police in Fort Collins, Colo., said Pruett was suspected in connection with two robbery-homicides at convenience stores in Fort Collins and Loveland, Colo.

James Balderson, 24, was shot to death in a Fort Collins store about 3 a.m. Friday, and Anthony Taitt, 21, was murdered about two hours later at a store in Loveland, about 15 miles from the scene of the first robbery.

Fort Collins police said it was looking for two men in both cases. The robberies netted a total of $60.

Texas authorities said Pruett had a hitchhiker when he was arrested Saturday. The rider was not detained but Colorado police were trying to find him for questioning, said Fort Collins Police Lt. Jerry Haals.

"Evidence links him (Pruett) to our area at the times of the homicides early Friday," Haals said. Investigators from Loveland and Fort Collins were sent to Texas to follow up the lead, he said.

FBI officials said Pruett was driving a 1969 Cadillac with New Mexico plates that had been reported stolen when he was arrested Saturday night.

Pruett, who was using the name Leroy Esmond, offered no resistance to arresting officers, officials said.

Windows smashed at Ron's Auto Engine

Thefts and a major criminal mischief case were being investigated this morning by Midland police.

Larry Ritchie reported the criminal mischief case which occurred at Ron's Auto Engine, 401 N. Terrell St., between 5 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Sunday. Front and side windows were smashed in eight vehicles.

During initial investigation of the case, police talked to a witness who told them three youngsters had beaten the windows with hammers. Total damage was listed as $3,030.

Virginia Johnson, 500 Spraberry Drive, reported the theft early this morning of a brown purse containing $140 and a white gold ring valued at $1,220. She said the theft occurred at the Kent station, 3300 W. Wall Ave.

Ronnie Olds, 1603 E. Butternut Lane, reported the theft of a .22-caliber rifle early Sunday. Olds told police the rifle was taken from a vehicle parked at his residence.

He valued the rifle at $280.

Midlanders in for partly cloudy skies

Midlanders will see partly cloudy skies through Tuesday with warmer afternoons.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the high should be in the upper 70s through Tuesday with the overnight low in the upper 40s. Winds are expected to be variable becoming southwest 5-10 mph tonight through Tuesday.

Sunday's reading of 69 was a pleasant fall-like temperature compared to the record high of 90 degrees set for the day in 1936. The overnight low of 49 was not quite as nippy as the 1966 record low reading of 35 degrees.

Marriage tax penalty is constitutional

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Tax Court has held that the "marriage tax penalty" is constitutional even though it discriminates against millions of working couples.

A New York couple challenged current tax laws with the argument that "we are unable to comprehend why we should pay several thousand dollars more in taxes than if we chose to get a divorce for one day out of each year."

The court ruled: "We think it sufficient for us to state that the differences in exposure to tax liability between married and single persons do not rise to the level of an impermissible interference with the enjoyment of the fundamental right to marry or remain married."

The marriage penalty results from tax laws that set a higher tax rate and a lower standard deduction for married persons who file separate returns than for single taxpayers. An estimated 17 million working couples thus pay more taxes than if they were single.

Congress has taken a step to reduce that penalty. In 1982, a working couple filing a joint return will be allowed a special deduction of up to $1,500; in 1983 and later years the deduction will rise to a $3,000 maximum.

But that relief comes too late for James O. and Joan S. Druker of New York. The court ruling on the marriage penalty and an unrelated issue will cost them $5,833 in extra taxes for 1975 and 1976.

The Internal Revenue Service wanted to assess the Drukers an additional $294 in penalties because they intentionally disregarded IRS regulations by using tax rates for single persons. But Chief Judge Theodore Tannenwald Jr., who wrote the opinion, rejected that claim in the ruling released late last week.

Druker, a lawyer who formerly worked in the U.S. attorney's office in New York, and his wife filed separate returns as married individuals in 1975 and 1976. But instead of figuring their taxes from tables for marrieds filing separately, the Drukers used tables for unmarried persons.

Druker attached a letter to his return explaining to IRS just what he was doing. "We feel most strongly that the present income tax structure unfairly discriminates against working married couples, and as such is violative of the equal-protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"We are perfectly prepared to litigate this matter, and to pay any taxes due plus interest in the event that we do not prevail," Druker added. "We feel that this course is preferable to that of the sham Dec. 31 divorce-Jan. 1 remarriage used by so many couples to legally obtain a single person's filing status."

The Drukers contended that separate tax rates spring from the notion that married women stay at home as non-earners; they cited a Supreme Court decision that struck down a welfare law that mentioned fathers but not mothers. Judge Tannenwald rejected that argument on grounds the marriage penalty hurts male and female equally.

The Drukers also referred to the famous California decision in which Michelle Triola, who had lived with actor Lee Marvin, was awarded a share of his property. That and similar state decisions blurred property-right distinctions between married and unmarried couples living together, the Drunkers contended, and thus federal laws with such distinctions no longer have a rational basis.

Tannenwald dismissed that point as "at best, disingenuous." He quoted from the Marvin decision: "Lest we be misunderstood...we take this occasion to point out that the structure of society itself largely depends upon the institution of marriage, and nothing we have said in this opinion should be taken to derogate from that institution."

Glenn accuses administration of 'political bribery'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, accused the Reagan administration Sunday of trying to use "political bribery" to win Senate approval of its proposed sale of five AWACs radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

Glenn, interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," said a "high-placed White House official" promised one senator that the administration would not campaign against his re-election if he would support the sale.

Another senator was told that his choice to fill a U.S. attorney's seat would be cleared by the administration if he went along with the president on the $8.5 billion arms deal, said Glenn, who opposes the sale.

"I deplore that kind of political horse-trading; it's political bribery," he said. "I think we can do better than that in this country."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., told reporters last week that a Republican friend had suggested to him that Reagan would not campaign against his re-election if he supported the sale.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, who is leaning against the sale, refused Reagan's invitation to meet with him last week after he was "strong-armed" by a White House official, according to a Grassley aide.

The aide, who asked not to be identified, said the White House official appeared to link Grassley's AWACS vote to administration approval of his choice for a U.S. attorney.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes denied the allegations, saying, "We don't operate that way."

Meanwhile, Undersecretary of State James Buckley said on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker: Sunday" show that Congress should not have the power to veto such sales.

"This arrangement, which I personally question the constitutionality of, has greatly complicated the ability of the president to conduct foreign policy," Buckley said. He accused congressional opponents of the AWACS deal of being "back-seat drivers."

Glenn denied that Congress is going beyond its proper role in questioning the sale or Reagan's foreign policy.

"When the president said the Congress is hamstringing him on this, he has hamstrung himself by not cooperating with us when he knew our advice and consent was going to be necessary before this deal could be consummated," Glenn said.

According to the latest Associated Press count, there are now 51 senators lined up against the AWACS sale and 38 in favor of it. Eleven senators say they are still undecided.

The Senate will vote on the deal next week. A simple majority against it is all that is needed to halt the deal. The House voted overwhelmingly against the sale last week.

Prosecutors want to depict murder scene

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The second week of Vickie Daniel's murder trial began in state court here today, with prosecutors still intent on clearly depicting the scene at the Daniel home the night Price Daniel Jr., a former Texas House Speaker, was shot to death.

"I think we have to account for everyone at the scene," explained Darroll Wilborn, district attorney for Liberty County and chief prosecutor of Mrs. Daniel. "We're still setting the scene, making sure everything is clear in the jury's minds. I'm not worried about boring the jury ... "

Wilborn began his case slowly when testimony opened Wednesday, calling as witnesses most of the people who arrived at the scene of the Jan. 19 murder.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmerman questioned each witness at length, often inquiring about the actions of Daniel's brother, Houston, who was also at the house.

"He's just trying to plant another seed of reasonable doubt in the jury's mind about what happened that night," Wilborn said, adding that he may call as many as eight more people who were at the scene.

Zimmerman said no decision has been made as to whether Mrs. Daniel, the only person who witnessed the shooting, will testify.

In trial last spring to determine the custody of her children, Mrs. Daniel testified she did not remember shooting Daniel but said if she did shoot him, it was an accident. She said the couple had argued about marijuana and he had beaten her.

She said she pulled a rifle out of a closet to scare her husband, fired a warning shot, then shut her eyes and heard a "funny noise."

Harrelson gun possession trial starts today

HOUSTON (AP) — Convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, identified by federal agents as a prime suspect in the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John Wood, comes up for trial today on unrelated charges of illegal possession of guns.

Harrelson, 43, who was convicted of shooting to death a man for money in 1968, was caught with three revolvers, a shotgun and a rifle last year in Houston and charged under a law prohibiting a convicted felon from carrying firearms. He was also accused of possessing cocaine.

The trial has been delayed twice. It first was set for July 1980, but Harrelson did not show up. He was arrested the following September near Van Horn, in West Texas, where he was charged once again with possession of guns and drugs. He also was accused of having some loaded dice and of jumping bail.

Free jazz concert is Wednesday

The Midland Jazz Association will present a free jazz concert in the recital hall at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday instead of Thursday as printed in The Reporter-Telegram's West Texas Sunday.

Although this is primarily for students and faculty, there are limited seats for the general public. Contact Dr. Teena Carson, student activities director, at 684-7851, extension 118, for more information.

SIDS usually occurs after heavy smog months

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A study of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, which kills some 7,000 babies a year nationwide, shows that the syndrome usually occurs after heavy smog months, a newspaper reported Sunday.

It also occurs most often among infants with irregular sleep patterns and fast heartbeats and respiration, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner said.

While the precise cause of the syndrome still is unknown, a study conducted by researchers of four institutions points to factors that may create mild lack of oxygen, making it harder for SIDS babies to breathe in the weeks or months before their deaths, the Examiner reported.

The disease usually strikes infants between the ages of two and six months. Death is sudden, and the victim appears healthy up to the time breathing stops.

Brothers and sisters of infants who died of SIDS were monitored in their sleep at County-University of Southern California Medical Center. The sleep patterns were analyzed at the UCLA Brain Research Institute. Neurologists at the Sepulveda Veterans Administration Hospital and statisticians at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development at Bethesda, Md., also participated in the study, which began in 1972.

Researchers analyzed air pollution conditions at the times of death of 693 Los Angeles infants who died suddenly between 1974 and 1977. The study also monitored the fetal heart rates of brothers and sisters of the SIDS victims.

Dr. Toke Hoppenbrouwers, who was in charge of the project at County-USC, reported a seasonal increase in sudden infant deaths. It occurred in the seventh week following the annual winter peaks of carbon monoxide and other pollutants.

"The findings don't say that the high carbon monoxide levels in the winter are what kills these infants," she said. "The medical history of SIDS show that it has always been higher in the winter, when there are more respiratory illnesses.

"But we think there is mounting evidence that there is a mild, chronic hypoxia — a lack of oxygen — in these infants in the period preceding their sudden death. It's like the lack of oxygen at a high altitude," she said.

She also said that SIDS infants born in months of low pollution and areas with less pollution die at later ages than SIDS infants born when and where pollution levels are greatest.

Dr. Ron Harper of the UCLA Brain Institute, who directed analysis of the sleep studies, said a control group of non-SIDS babies followed regular patterns of quiet sleep, waking, active sleep in which there were rapid eye movements and waking again. The babies from SIDS families followed no such pattern. They slept longer and had fewer waking periods, Harper said.

Harper said there was an apparent failure of an "arousal" mechanism in the SIDS babies — a command from the brains of those babies to tell their hearts and respiration what to do. Ms. Hoppenbrouwers noted it was possible the babies were sleeping longer to conserve oxygen.

No plans to to boycott oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Sunday that the United States has no plans to boycott Libyan oil to protest Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's support of terrorist groups.

"No," Reagan replied to reporters on the White House lawn when asked if the United States plans such a ove. "That would have to be a worldwide boycott ... because there are plenty of customers for oil and you got to make sure that none of them would take the place (of the United States)."

"No one country could affect them by having a boycott," Reagan said.

Leaders support one-day strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Labor union leaders told 5,000 striking teachers at a Sunday rally that they will support a one-day general strike set for Oct. 28 if the public schools walkout, now in its 41st day, isn't settled.

"We'll be calling on all our local unions to join us that day," said Edward Toohey, president of the Philadelphia Council of the AFL-CIO, with 350 affiliated unions. "There is unity in the trade movement."

"We must close ranks," said Henry Nicholas, president of Local 1199-C of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Workers. "When the school board decided to eliminate 53 important programs, we decided to join the teachers."

A number of unionists have voiced reservations, however, about supporting a city-wide strike. Transport Workers Union Local 234 president Dominic DiClerico and Teamsters Council 53 president John Morris have said they would make no commitments before meeting with their members this week.

But labor leaders representing government employees, grocery clerks, longshoremen, striking air traffic controllers and firefighters shared the stage at the Civic Center rally.

The strike by the 22,000-member Philadelphia Federation of Teachers began Sept. 8 after the school district, faced with a $223 million deficit, laid off 3,511 employees and rescinded a 10 percent pay hike in cost-cutting moves the PFT said violated a two-year contract reached last year after a 22-day strike.

Nixon's side trip surprise to White House

By LEE LESCAZE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. helped arrange former president Richard M. Nixon's four-nation Mideast tour without informing President Reagan or anyone in the White House, White House officials said Sunday. Dean Fischer, Haig's spokesman, denied that Haig did any more than supply the former president with briefing books on the countries he planned to visit. "It's not true," Fischer said of reports that Haig had helped arrange the trip.

But according to the White House version, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III and chief of staff James A. Baker III were angry that the Nixon trip was kept secret from them and Reagan and puzzled why Haig, who was Nixon's top White House aide in the last months of his administration, acted in secret.

HAIG'S ACTION

reawakened feelings in the White House that the secretary of state is not willing to subordinate himself as part of a Reagan team.

Nixon, who flew to Cairo as part of the official delegation to Egyptian president Anwar Sadat's funeral, left for Saudi Arabia following the rites. The trip came as something of a surprise, and State Department spokesmen described it then as a "private visit."

According to the White House officials, the former president spoke three or four times with national security adviser Richard V. Allen without mentioning his plans in the three days before Nixon, together with former presidents Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter, flew to Cairo for the funeral. Haig led the delegation as the senior administration official representing Reagan.

Fischer said Nixon told Haig of his travel plans as they went to Andrews Air Force Base en route to Cairo the night of Oct. 8. Fischer said he did not know whether Haig relayed news of the forthcoming Nixon trip to any White House official before it began two days later.

NIXON'S INCLUSION

in the delegation and his subsequent journey to Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Tunisia and Morocco has been taken by some as a sign of political rehabilitation.

He concluded his tour by issuing a policy statement that declared the United States should lead an economic quarantine of Libya and should stick to its policy of not talking with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

When asked about Nixon's call for a Libyan boycott, the president Sunday said the administration had no plans for an economic quarantine. "It would have to be worldwide ... . No one country could affect them by having a boycott," Reagan said.

White House officials said they first realized Nixon had plans of his own when he did not board the Air Force plane with Ford and Carter for the return trip to America following the Oct. 10 funeral.

There was no senior staff meeting at the White House the following Monday, because of Columbus Day, but at the Tuesday session the president's top advisers discussed how they would handle questions about the Nixon trip, and there were expressions of annoyance that Haig had acted without their knowledge, according to White House sources.

HAIG reportedly assigned Gen. Vernon Walters, who also was a longtime aide to Nixon, to handle the details of getting visas for Nixon and arranging the interviews between the former president and leaders of the nations he visited.

In its latest edition Sunday, Newsweek said it had learned that Nixon's tour of the Middle East involved delivering messages from and to the Reagan administration.

Charges that Haig is not a team player were made by the White House early in the administration when Haig submitted a plan for the organization of national-security policy-making that would have given himself a dominant role. They were heard again when he openly fought against the president's decision to make Vice President Bush the head of crisis management should Reagan be absent from the White House during an emergency.

In recent months, however, Haig and White House aides appeared to have established better, more cooperative relations, despite continuing reports of friction between Haig and Allen.

The major unanswered question about Nixon's four-nation trip is whether it served Reagan well or badly. No president wants to have a former president play the role of statesman in foreign capitals unless there is close coordination between the former president and the White House.

Broke sheriff's department back in business

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP) — When he heard that the county sheriff's office was broke, farmer Hines Digman told deputies to gas up two patrol cars and bill it to him. Digman wasn't the only one.

"We got enough gas money that we can operate," Lawrence County Deputy Hubert Adams said Sunday. "We are answering all calls that we get."

Sheriff Gene Matthews had announced Friday that his department had no money to buy gasoline. He said he had ordered deputies to ignore routine calls for help and respond only to life-and-death calls — on gasoline siphoned out of confiscated vehicles.

The announcement came after the county's chief executive officer vetoed an $11,000 emergency appropriation for the sheriff's office.

On Matthews' orders, deputies ignored reports Friday of an attempted break-in at Imboden, 18 miles away, vandalism at Strawberry, 20 miles away, and a burglary at Lake Charles State Park, 20 miles away.

"We're not even able to go investigate," Matthews said then.

On Saturday, donations of gas and credit from residents of this northeast Arkansas county of 19,000 totaled at least $2,000, said Adams. And the sheriff's department was back in business.

Digman heard about the crisis when he visited a farm equipment store Saturday.

"I just told the service station man that if Gene and them come over, just put it on my bill," Digman said.

He told the sheriff to fill two cars, and, "I'll probably donate more," he said.

Matthews said he had five offers of help in a 30-minute period on Saturday. One farmer brought in $1,000 he collected in donations.

"Several people called and said go to the gas station and ... fill it up," said Adams. Charlie Cook, owner of one service station, donated $200 in gas.

Matthews, who started a two-year term as sheriff in January, first asked the County Quorum Court, the main governing body, for more money last month. He said he needed $12,000 to get through the year.

The court appropriated $6,400 on Oct. 12, but after Matthews paid overdue bills the department was broke again. The court appropriated $11,000 on Thursday for gas, office supplies and food for prisoners.

But County Judge D.S. "Rosie" Foley vetoed the appropriation Friday, saying the sheriff could get by if he cut his spending.

"The county's in a financial crisis," Foley said.

Matthews said the county attorney told him that the court could not call a special meeting to override the veto. The next scheduled meeting is Nov. 9.

Foley says the sheriff could operate for the rest of the year if he laid off one of his three deputies and parked one patrol car.

"I think if he would try, the sheriff could cut back," Foley said.

Automakers expecting big loss

DETROIT (AP) — Auto industry analysts are predicting the Big Three U.S. automakers will report losses of $600 million or more for the third quarter, with little improvement expected in the fourth quarter.

American Motors Corp., the only U.S. carmaker so far to report third-quarter results, said Friday it lost $16.8 million from July to September — its sixth consecutive quarterly loss.

Other automakers are expected to issue quarterly statements within the next two weeks.

Wall Street analysts predict General Motors Corp. may be $200 million to $300 million in the red for the third quarter, with losses of nearly $300 million predicted for Ford Motor Co.

Analysts noted, however, that a $600 million loss still would be an improvement on the $1.6 billion in red ink reported in the third quarter last year.

The fourth quarter has gotten off to a slow start as well, with sales at a 23-year low for the first 10 days of the period.

Pap smear does not reveal ovarian cancer

Dear Dr. Solomon: I make it a point to have a Pap test done periodically. Will this detect cancer of the ovaries? — Mrs. A.L., Waynesboro, Va.

Dear Mrs. L.: While the Pap Test is extremely valuable in detecting cervical cancer, it does not reveal ovarian cancer.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 35 years old and planning my first pregnancy. Naturally, I'm concerned about the possibility of a birth defect, particularly Down's syndrome.

What are the chances of my having a child with Down's syndrome? Does the fact that this is my first pregnancy make it more likely? — Mrs. A.O., Vineland, N.J.

Dear Mrs. O.: According to the National Foundation/March of Dimes, Down's syndrome occurs in about one of every 280 children born to women 35 to 39 years of age. The risk is the same regardless of the number of pregnancies the woman has had.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've always thought of rheumatism and arthritis as conditions that affect older people. But a child in one of the elementary school classes I teach has been found to have juvenile rheumatoid arthritis. I assume this is not a common disorder, but, having seen this one child, I'd like to know more about it — Eve, Norfolk, Va.

Dear Eve: It is estimated that about 250,000 children throughout the country have juvenile rheumatoid arthritis (JRA). As you may have noticed in the child in your class, the condition is characterized by inflammation and swelling of the joints. In some cases, the disease is progressive.

Unfortunately, no one knows the cause of JRA, or a cure for it. Racial groups are equally affected, but girls get it more often than boys. Although children usually outgrow arthritis, some are left with deformed joints and eye or heart disease. In addition, some children suffer psychological damage.

Dr. Deborah W. Kredich, of the Duke University Medical Center, explains there are three major types of juvenile arthritis. One type, commonly found in children 1 to 3 years of age, affects only a few joints. The swelling may be mild and painless, the child usually is not obviously sick, and, as a result, the disease may not be apparent. However, this form of JRA is related to an eye disease that can lead to blindness.

Systemic juvenile arthritis also affects very young children. In this case, however, the child is very sick, with fever, rash, swollen lymph glands, and swelling of the joints.

The third type of JRA is somewhat similar to the adult form, and usually affects children 8 to 14 years of age. It is marked by the familiar swollen joints of hands and knees.

Treatment for juvenile arthritis includes large doses of aspirin, physical therapy, and splinting.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Japan's 'ninja' warriors live on in little known martial art

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Japanese ninja were the shadowy assassin-warriors of feudal times, who used speed, stealth and violence to carry out their missions. Today, the name lives on through "ninjutsu" or "ninpo," a little-known martial art practiced and taught by a handful of people to develop mind, body and spirit.

By KAY TATEISHI
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Centuries before electronic eavesdropping, poison darts and the James Bond school of dirty tricks, the Japanese had developed a science of espionage and murder-for-hire that makes the modern-day practitioners look like bumblers.

Or so it is claimed by believers in ninja — "men of stealth" — the seemingly invisible spy-assassins who carried out a variety of missions for the shogun rulers and feudal warlords in ancient Japan.

Trained from childhood in a rigid, closely-guarded code of conduct, ninja specialized in surprise and swift, unexpected violence. They could appear and disappear seemingly at will, scale walls, cling to ceilings, tread water, flit from tree to tree like birds, squeeze through tiny openings, melt into the background until time to strike swiftly and soundlessly.

In today's Japan, the science of "ninjutsu," or "ninpo," as it also is known, survives — but no longer as an outlaw trade. It is kept alive by a handful of dedicated experts and aficionados as a martial art to develop mind, body and spirit.

"Ninpo is strictly a martial sport, a practical, ethical means of unarmed self-defense," says Hideyo Saito, a 37-year-old office worker who spent 10 years learning the ancient techniques from a ninpo master and now teaches them to eight adults including a housewife, a banker and a Buddhist priest and 13 children, at his school outside Tokyo.

In the still of the night, children dressed in dark clothing — trousers, jackets, split-toe soft shoes, and scarves over their faces — flip, tumble and gyr te like acrobats at Saito's school. They climb ropes like Tarzan, leap or swing from tree to tree and vanish into the foliage, hurl small specially designed circular dirks, scatter powder as smokescreen, or overpower an adversary with a swift physical trick.

These are all the methods of the ninja, and the youngsters enjoy it, Saito says, while it "sharpens their reflexes, alerts them to their surroundings and develops them spiritually and physically." While it still can be dangerous, "it is no longer the art of harm," he says.

Historians trace ninpo to 6th century China and a master strategist named Sun Tzu. It came to Japan between the 14th and 16th centuries, when feudal warlords found it useful for spying and carrying out plots against their rivals.

Although the original ninja were sinister figures whose missions included cold-blooded murder, there persists a strong element of romance about them.

Japanese history tells of the exploits of such ninja heroes as Kirigakure Saizo, who could move like the fog, and Sarutobi Sasuke, nimble as a monkey. These servants of the feudal shoguns are superstars among the ancient ninja, although some experts say there is more fantasy than fact in the stories told about them.

Like the samurai warriors who swore allegiance to a warlord master and dedicated themselves to his service, the ninja operated under a rigid, but secret code of honor and ethics.

Unlike the samurai to whom death in battle was the most honorable objective, they were seen as social outcasts and traitors, and if caught, faced death by unpleasant means — like having their skin slowly peeled, being boiled in oil or buried to the neck near an anthill.

Today's adult practitioners of ninpo undergo something akin to the strenuous mental and physical conditioning that was part of ninja training — a secret to be protected at all costs in feudal times. Modern training is much less intense, however, and doesn't teach how to kill people.

Ninpo emphasizes stealth, and often hasn't always been taken as seriously as karate, judo, jujitsu, aikido and other, better-known martial art — elements that ninpo makes use of. When Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the commander of post-World War II occupation forces in Japan, banned other martial arts, he ignored the obscure ninpo as a "pointless antique."

In the old days, ninja skills were handed down from generation to generation. Training began at age 5 or 6, for both boys and girls, and continued for life. Those born into a ninja tradition had no choice, and most died violently.

Ninja worked to soften their bones and make limbs, muscles and tendons pliable enough to enable them to slip through tiny openings or escape the bonds of captors.

They learned the ways of birds and animals, could walk in at least 10 different ways, and recognize any sounds made by others without being seen or heard. They were masters of disguise, deception, hypnosis and sleight of hand. They learned to concoct powders and drugs from ingredients at hand to kill, immobilize or confuse an adversary.

There are today about 10 training halls in the Tokyo area, with about 100 students all told. Classes are held mostly at night, in part because darkness adds "an element of mysticism," Saito says.

Teachers come from varied backgrounds. In addition to Saito, they include an osteopath, a book publisher and a police officer.

In addition to teaching students unarmed combat, the instructors serve as consultants for film and television shows.

Shinichi Chiba, a popular actor, credits training under a master for his success in action films. "You can't undertake anything half-heartedly," he says. "Ninpo teaches that to succeed you require full physical and spiritual force."

A victim of economics

The policy statement on nuclear power issued by the Reagan administration recently is no more than a first step toward clearing the way for greater use of our most promising but most controversial energy resource.

The government is promising to simplify the regulatory maze that is now stretching out the lead time for building nuclear power plants to 12 years. This will help, but nuclear power is as much a victim of economics.

High interest rates for construction capital, and rate-setting policies which make it impossible for utilities to charge customers for the cost of building a plant until after it is completed, are cited by the industry as major factors behind the slump in reactor orders.

The administration also is lifting the ban on reprocessing of spent fuel from nuclear power plants, committing itself to the development of a commercial breeder reactor to produce electricity, and promising to get off dead-center in setting up a disposal site for radioactive waste.

These are important policy steps, since the United States has had an incomplete nuclear "fuel cycle" ever since President Carter placed a ban on commercial reprocessing and slowed down breeder development on grounds that these technologies could contribute to the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

The Reagan administration takes the view, correctly we think, that the United States can best help control weapons proliferation by remaining active in reprocessing and breeder development rather than surrendering the field to other countries.

Reprocessing will vastly increase the energy available from uranium supplies. The spent fuel assemblies now stored at nuclear power plants contain an energy equivalent equal to four times the oil reserves of the Persian Gulf. Reprocessing will produce fuel that can be re-used in the original plants, plus plutonium to fuel breeder reactors in the future. Reprocessing also will sharply reduce the volume of waste going into the yet-to-be located permanent storage facility.

Economics is a factor here, too. The owners of the reprocessing plant at Barnwell, S.C., the only one large enough to handle fuel from the nation's power plants, say they do not plan to operate it even though the Carter ban has been lifted. They say the investment to put the plant in operation would be too great against the risk that future political developments would affect the financial viability of the plant.

At this point, the uncertain political climate surrounding nuclear power is impeding its further development more than any unresolved technical or safety issues. It has now received a vote of confidence from the Reagan administration, but that confidence needs to be transmitted to Congress, state governments, investors and the public or the nuclear option will continue to be within our reach but beyond our grasp.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1981. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 19, 1954, Britain and Egypt reached agreement on evacuating troops from the Suez Canal zone.

On this date:

In 1781, British troops under Cornwallis were defeated at Yorktown, Va., as the Revolutionary War neared its end.

In 1944, U.S. troops landed in the Philippines during World War II.

In 1960, the United States placed an embargo on shipments to Cuba.

And in 1973, Libya halted its oil shipments to the United States in a dispute over Washington's Mideast policies.

Ten years ago: Japan called for the seating of both Communist China and Nationalist China at the United Nations.

Five years ago: A triple veto in the U.N. Security Council by the United States, Britain and France blocked a resolution to embargo arms shipments to South Africa.

One year ago: Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser's ruling coalition won re-election in nationwide voting.

Thought for today: "Only parents' love can last our lives." — Robert Browning, English poet (1812-1889).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Egyptian officials linked to shady arms deal

WASHINGTON — The sinister figure of fugitive ex-CIA agent Edwin Wilson lurks disturbingly in the background of a multimillion-dollar scandal involving the highest officials in Egypt today.

Jack Anderson

I have uncovered evidence that establishes direct links between the surreptitious award of a lucrative arms shipment contract and the men who are now the deputy prime minister and defense minister of Egypt. Another official deeply involved is the brother-in-law of Egypt's new president, Hosni Mubarak, who as vice president learned of the backroom deal but did nothing to stop it.

The company that was secretly given the exclusive contract to ship billions of dollars' worth of U.S. arms to Egypt was called Tersam. It is ostensibly headed by an Egyptian businessman named Hussan Salem.

But in a telephone interview with my associates Indy Badhwar and Dale Van Atta, Salem acknowledged that an Abu Dhabi merchant, Ali Shorafa, helped create Tersam. Shorafa happens to be a Palestinian, and he continues to have a hidden interest in the firm.

The tie to Wilson is through a former CIA official, Thomas Clines, who was deputy director of covert operations before his retirement in October 1978. Salem turned to Clines when Tersam's secret contract appeared to be in trouble; the Pentagon considered the company totally unqualified to handle the arms shipments.

Salem needed an American with good Washington connections, and Clines filled the bill. He was an old CIA buddy of Wilson; the two have been linked with companies secretly owned by the agency. At the time Salem came along looking for an American partner, Clines was already running a company with financial backing from his friend Wilson.

The solution to Tersam's difficulties was twofold: The company was reorganized into the Egyptian American Transport Services Co., with Clines as a 49 percent owner. Then the firm's competitors for the juicy shipping contract were to be bought off or forced out of the running.

The experience of the last potential rival to Egyptian American Transport bordered on the melodramatic. It took place in September 1979 in a suite at the ritzy Madison Hotel in Washington.

The businessman was confronted by Clines, who began bragging about his connections in the CIA and elsewhere. The visitor was impressed by the presence of armed guards and the Egyptian military attache, Gen. Abu Ghazala, who is now defense minister.

After Clines and the Egyptians got him to agree to a phony subcontract in return for his silence, the competitor was taken to a nearby room, where more armed guards ushered him into the presence of the then-minister of defense, Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali, now deputy prime minister.

Ali asked the businessman if he was satisfied with the under-the-table deal. The competitor assured him he was, though ultimately the payoff was never consummated.

There is another mysterious link between the high Egyptian officials and Wilson, who jumped bail on charges of smuggling explosives to Libya and is now hiding out in Tripoli under the protection of desert dictator Muammar Qaddafi. Both Ali's and Ghazala's names were found in notes confiscated from a former Wilson mercenary arrested for the attempted assassination last year of a dissident Libyan student in Colorado.

The suspect is known to have talked with Wilson before the Colorado shooting, and investigators believe the notes were made at that time. The two Egyptian officials' names were misspelled but unmistakable. In one significant reference to Ali, the notes say, "Defense Minister often finishes up his official business in a few days, and then takes time to clean up personal business at (Egyptian American Transport)."

This astonishing notation supports evidence I have already reported that links Ali and Ghazala personally to the secret arms shipment deal.

It's not surprising that Wilson would know these men. For years, his job in the CIA was to infiltrate international shipping associations and learn all he could about arms shipments. His contacts throughout the Middle East were extensive, and he has maintained them since leaving the agency.

A final note on Wilson: The CIA denies my report that the renegade spy met in Rome last July with an agency official. But my sources insist that the CIA desperately wants to know what sensitive operations Wilson might reveal if he is brought back to face the charges against him. As one source said enigmatically, the agency is most afraid he'll blow the whistle on "CIA involvement in deaths in the Middle East which he is aware of — and CIA activities in Egypt."

SOMETHING FISHY: Auditors for the General Accounting Office have detected a suspicious odor in the Army Engineers' purchase of an Idaho trout hatchery for $3.4 million. The hatchery was bought last March to replace trout killed off by dam construction on the Lower Snake River. But GAO investigators concluded that the Corps of Engineers paid more than three times the hatchery's true value.

According to the GAO, the Army apparently accepted the hatchery owner's figures without checking them out. A much larger hatchery nearby sold recently for half what the government paid for the Crystal Springs hatchery — and the government is planning to spend an additional $9.4 million to renovate the facility so it can produce steelhead trout instead of rainbows. The GAO concluded that the Army Engineers could probably have put more steelheads in the river at less cost by buying them from commercial sources.

INSIDE REPORT:

MX missile finding it difficult to locate a place to stay

WASHINGTON — Hidden in the thousands of words from President Reagan and his civilian defense chiefs trumpeting the new strategic defense plan lies the disturbing fact that the vaunted MX missile may never find a home of its own.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

That conclusion is inescapable when Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's clear preference for an airborne MX missile comes up against overwhelming opposition to an airborne system in the heart of the congressional defense establishment. With the Jerry Ford-Jimmy Carter mobile land system dead in its crib, it took the Reagan administration almost the full nine-month term to deliver an emaciated offspring in its place. The Reagan-Weinberger MX "decision" was a decision not to decide, leading the deeply-troubled Air Force and its allies among defense-oriented congressional leaders to predict that the MX itself may yet prove to be stillborn.

Underlying that possibility is the coming great debate on an airborne MX that started Aug. 6. On that day Sen. John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, warned Reagan point-blank that Congress would never buy an air-mobile system. For two uncertain months, Weinberger seemed to be heeding Tower's warning, strongly reenforced by Rep. Melvin Price of Illinois and Rep. William L. Dickenson of Alabama — chairman and senior Republican of the House Armed Services Committee.

But the clear priority Weinberger now accords the airborne system in voluminous congressional testimony and public speeches betrays an airborne mindset by the determined defense chief. Confidential evidence supporting that mindset is found in strategic spending plans in the secretary's office that have not yet been sent to the Air Force or Congress.

In announcing his plan Oct. 3 to ditch MX mobility on the land, Reagan said he would "pursue three promising long-term options": putting the missile in unbuilt, undesigned "continuous airborne patrol" (CAP) planes; protecting them in ground silos with futuristic anti-missile defenses; or implanting them in very deep underground holes.

Spending plans now under secret study in Weinberger's office show where the secretary's real interest lies, and it is not in missile-defense or in deep underground holes: It is in CAP.

They show a rapid growth in research and development on CAP from $200 million in fiscal year 1983 to $4 billion in fiscal '87, totaling $8.4 billion over the next five years. By contrast, the working paper allocates a mere $200 million to deep underground basing and raises present anti-missile research only marginally.

The Air Force is dead against putting the MX in the air. That is partly because of doubts about the system, partly because the costs of running it, if the plane can actually be built, would be huge.

Some White House aides, disturbed at both the president's cancellation of the Ford-Carter plan and at Weinberger's preference for an airborne system, predict months of bitter Pentagon warfare. "If Cap moves toward airborne as it now looks, the Air Force will pump up the costs to astronomical levels in hopes of killing it," one aide told us.

Mel Price confides to colleagues that Reagan's "no decision" decision is "a holding action" for the airborne system. He and Dickenson, who control the armed services powerful research and development subcommittee, doubt it would underwrite any crash research program for the new CAP plan. A majority of the panel's 16 members, including such dovish democrats as Reps. Ron Dellums of California and Pat Schroeder of Colorado, ideologically opposed to the MX, would probably vote it down.

As for the advertised plan to put the MX into hardened holes now occupied by the ancient Titan missile, insiders see it as symbolic. It has scant congressional support, even as a stop-gap providing a small measure of credibility for the president's decision to build the missile.

The MX is no longer the core of this country's strategic planning. The new plan features other means of deterrence: new bombers, nearly 1,000 cruise missiles for launching from conventional submarines, the new D-5 Trident submarine missile and long-overdue modernization of communications to protect wartime command and control.

With both the right and the left in Congress so opposed to Weinberger's airborne preference, the emaciated MX missile given birth by Reagan may be left to die by Congress. If not, it will be a long time finding a place, any place, to live.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Jimmy Carter denies the Washington Post story that he bugged Ronald Reagan at Blair House just before the inauguration. Carter is suing because it fills the time during retirement and because it gave him something to chat with Nixon about during that long flight to Cairo.

●

Nixon said, "Where did you get the equipment, from the CIA?" Carter answered, "No, a Radio Shack in Plains." The Post doesn't say who carried out the bugging. I think it was either Ms. G. Gordon Lilian or E. Howard Brzezinski.

●

I don't think Jimmy had anything to do with it. I think it was Amy with two tin cans and a piece of string.

CHARLEY REESE

Sadat was a study in myth-making

The assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat offers a number of insights to those of us who are curious about how the world works.

Charley Reese

You can see for example, how myths are made. Politicians create myths with the help of the press to suit their own purposes. In the case of Sadat, a genuinely interesting man who was in reality an opportunist, former Nazi collaborator, open admirer of Hitler, and a dictator is being converted into a modern version of King Arthur with an accent.

The fact is that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin initiated the moves which brought Sadat to Jerusalem. First, the Israelis saved his life by tipping him off to an assassination plot. Then, via Romania and Morocco they sent word they would be willing to give up the Sinai in exchange for peace.

Even so, it took a lot of courage and vision on Sadat's part, to respond. I'm not suggesting that Sadat was all bad; he was, by far, the most intelligent and boldest leader in the Arab world. Still, the myth is that Sadat initiated the peace process entirely on his own like a bolt out of the sky. That is not true.

Sadat had the courage to seize an opportunity and he was paid well, by Israel and the United States, for the peace treaty. He got the Sinai, which Egypt had lost in war and was unable to recover in war. It is a vast area with oil, minerals, and strategic ports. In addition to that, Egypt became the number one recipient of U.S. foreign aid. Egypt currently receives $1 billion a year in military aid plus 40 percent of all the U.S. food aid.

In return, Israel got a piece of paper in which Sadat promised not to wage war, although he stipulated that the peace treaty did not over-ride Egypt's other treaties with Arab countries still at war with Israel.

In short, Sadat's genius lay in his ability to play the U.S. media so that it appeared that he had made all of the concessions when, in fact, he had gotten the maximum in real terms of land, money, and arms for the minimum concession — an agreement to end a state of war with a nation which had whipped him soundly every time he had attacked.

U.S. leaders wish to create the myth of Sadat, however, because the oil concessions require that the Arab leaders who control them be appeased. The Rockefeller interests have most of those oil concessions in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, and the Sudan. The Rockefellers have always been able to persuade the State Department that what was good for them was good for the United States.

Thus, the Reagan Administration like the Carter Administration, is committed to trying to build an alliance with Egypt, Saudi Arabia and the Sudan. To do so, since a majority of Americans are sympathetic to Israel, requires that the image of the Arabs be "rehabilitated."

This in turn necessitates a lot of myth-making and outright deception. To justify the AWACS sale, the administration has simply ignored all of anti-American actions of the Saudis; it has fostered the myth of Israeli intransigence; and it has dropped its anti-terrorism policy, which you may recall was to be the keystone of American foreign policy. It's hard to be anti-terrorist when the Saudis are the principle financial backers of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Note, too, how U.S. media underplayed PLO jubilation at Sadat's death. Celebrating a murder sort of spoils the State Department's effort to create another myth — that the PLO has become a moderate, legitimate nationalist movement.

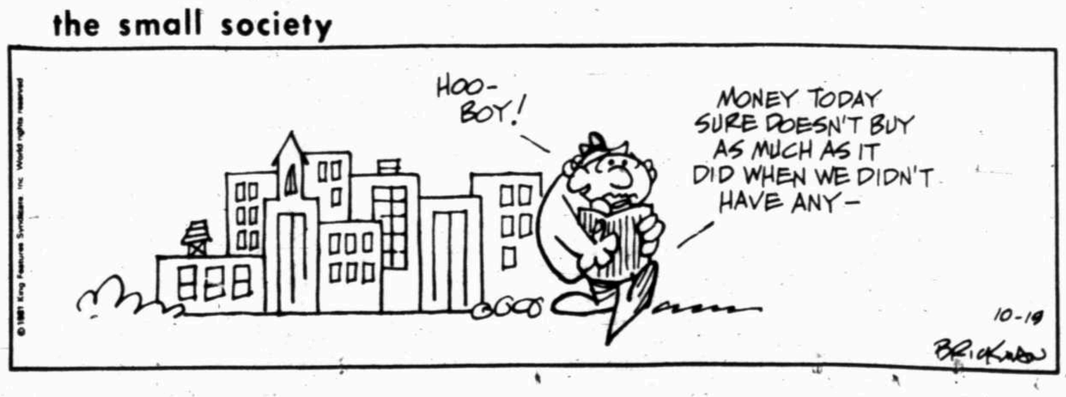

Israeli intelligence, by the way, warned Sadat a week ago to stay away from the parade at which he was killed. Chances are he checked with his own security people and they told him it was okay. If so, that means the assassination was a plot by people within the Egyptian government and not by a group of fanatics which is the Egyptian government's official line.

Reagan, Mitterrand at odds on arms sales

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand on Sunday celebrated two centuries of French-American ties and talked about the issues that now divide them.

The meeting was part of the pageantry marking the 200th anniversary of the battle of Yorktown in which French forces helped Gen. George Washington defeat the British army and assure American independence.

The two leaders met for more than an hour in private talks.

A senior U.S. official indicated afterwards that Reagan and Mitterrand remained at odds over French arm sales to Libya, economic assistance to poor countries and French recognition of the rebels in El Salvador as a legitimite political force.

The official, however, described U.S.-French relations in general as "on a very sound track and the overall bilateral relationship as excellent and getting better."

Reagan and Mitterrand conferred on several occasions Sunday — ranging from a luncheon on a French frigate to a state dinner at an elegant colonial mansion.

At the dinner, Reagan toasted 200 years of Franco-American friendship, saying the two countries are friends "ce soir, demain, et toujours (this evening, tomorrow, and forever),".

Their meeting was three days before the start of an international summit of rich and poor nations in Cancun, Mexico, where Reagan and Mitterrand are expected to differ on how wealthy nations should help poor ones.

Mitterrand said the Cancun conference should spotlight "that Third World countries need the econmic means for their liberty." He advocates massive aid from the rich to the poor in the international community. Reagan has advised Third World countries to develop their economies by using free enterprise.

The French leader said at a news conference that steps should be taken to provide cheap energy for poor people and that prices of basic commodities such as food stuffs should be fixed rather than being subject to market fluctuations.

The senior U.S. official, who briefed reporters with the understanding that he would not be identified by name, said Reagan expressed concern about Libyan terrorist activities.

But the official said Mitterrand intends to live up to the arms agreements France arranged with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy before Mitterrand took office.

Regarding the Cancun conference, the official said Mitterrand is not seeking a rigid formula but does hope the summit will "establish the basis for some concrete action."

"For our part," the American official said, "the United States does not disagree with that approach, but we are extremely interested in a free exchange of views."

The official acknowledged differences between Reagan and Mitterrand on aid to the poor, but said there was "far more agreement than disagreement between the two nations on the subject."

Both countries, he said, hope to promote economic growth and well-being for the people of poor countries.

The United States and France also have moved closer in their outlook under Mitterrand on the Middle East and both leaders support the Camp David framework for peace talks, the official said.

"It is clear both governments expect the problems in the region are first and foremost the responsibility of the sovereign nations in the region," he said.

The official declined an opportunity to restate U.S. apprehension about the inclusion of communists in Mitterand's government, saying there would be "no useful purpose to dredge up any of that previous rhetoric."

Arriving at nearby Yorktown by helicopter from Washington, Reagan was greeted by Mitterrand on the French frigate DeGrasse, named for the French admiral who blockaded Chesapeake Bay and trapped Lord Cornwallis, the British commander.

Reagan was piped aboard by two French sailors and greeted at the top of the gangplank by Mitterrand. The deck was lined with French sailors and a French navy band played The Star Spangled Banner.

The U.S. president was given a 21-gun salute by a ship's cannon, and a Coast Guard boat spewed water from its hoses in the red, white and blue of both country's flags. The French warship is tied up at the Coast Guard station in Yorktown, on the York River.

The two leaders and their wives had lunch in the ship's junior officer's mess. In an exchange of toasts, Mitterrand took note of the U.S.-French disagreements but said areas of agreement between the two countries are "far broader and wider" than their differences.

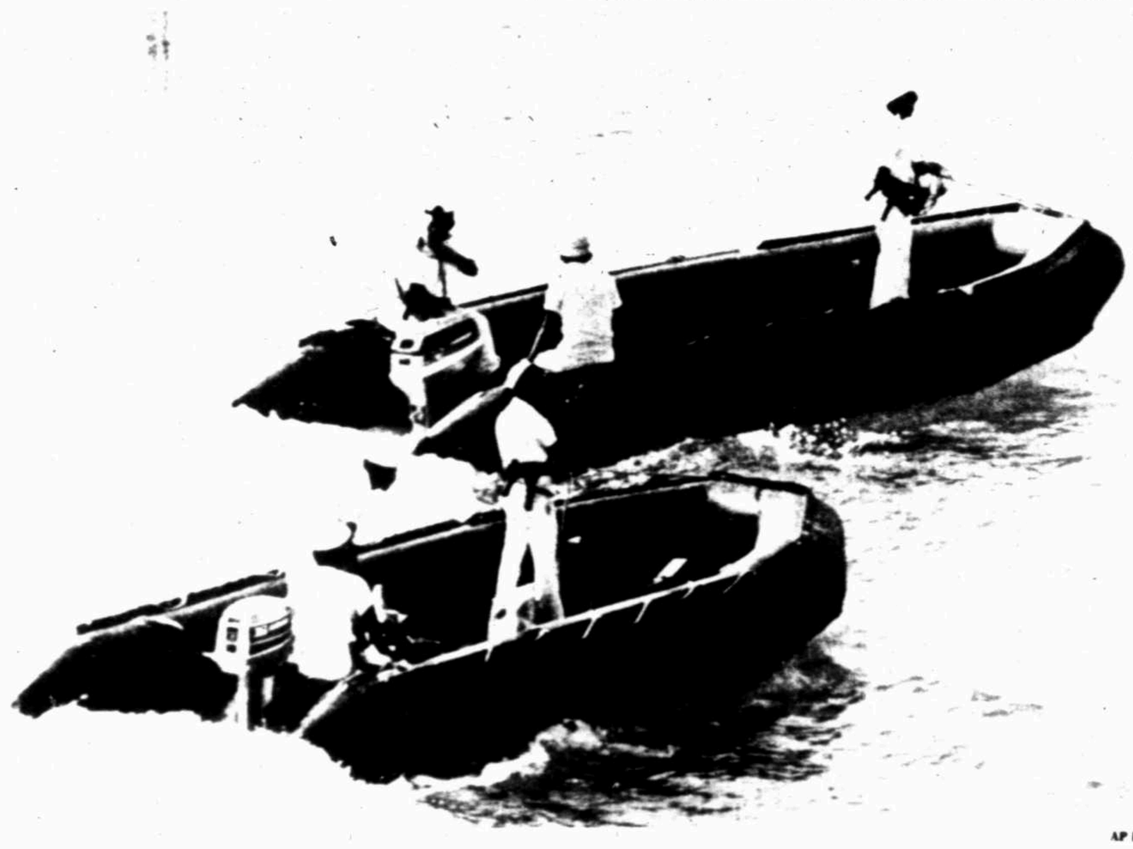

He said that by getting to know each other better the two leaders will be more prepared "to cross the inevitable difficult moments in the political discussions between two men from different backgrounds who have acceded to the same high responsibilty.

"We will not always be able to convince each other, but we are sure to illuminate our differences or our divergencies in the clear light of frankness," Mitterrand said.

For his part, Reagan recalled the financial and military assistance France provided in the Revolutionary War. "France and the United States are old, firm allies," Reagan declared. "You came to America when we needed you and we went to France when you had need of us. Well, the commitment still holds."

The two leaders also exchanged gifts, with the Mitterrands giving the Reagans a porcelain centerpiece and the Reagans giving the Mitterrands a Steuben American eagle crystal mounted on a wooden base. They also exchanged private gifts.

On Monday, Reagan and Mitterrand will return to the Yorktown battlefield where troops will parade in imitation of the surrender by Cornwallis on Octber 19, 1781. The commemoration also will end the six years of bicentennial observances that began in 1975.

Princess of Wales involved in a row over deer hunt

LONDON — The newly married princess of Wales was unexpectedly involved Sunday in a row over her first attempt at joining a deer hunt.

The wife of Prince Charles was charged by the League Against Cruel Sports with having participated in a deer hunt at the Royal Family's Balmoral estate in the Scottish Highlands and shooting, but failing to kill, a stag.

The league's executive director, Richard Course, said that the princess had shot but failed to kill a stag and it then had to "be put out of his misery" by one of the staff.

A spokesman for Buckingham Palace in London admitted that the princess had stalked deer last week but added, "The suggestion that she failed to make a clean kill is not true. But it was true that she went stalking at Balmoral last Monday. It was not the first time."

League director Course said that his members were "shocked and disgusted that the princess has joined the killing-for-fun brigade that is plundering Britain's wildlife."

He added: "I was absolutely shattered at the news. Like everyone else, I believed our fairy-tale princess with the sweet smile had a kind heart."

"I saw a television program in which she said that under no circumstances would she wear furs because of the cruelty involved — and then you hear this. "It's beyond belief."

Buckingham Palace also denied that the princess had fainted at the disembowelment of the stag, as one local report had it.

Royal Family watchers said they were surprised that the princess had participated in such a skilled activity as deer stalking.

The palace spokesman said that the princess had not shot a stag on Monday — the day in question — but confirmed that she had shot one on an earlier occasion. The kill had been clean, the Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

In the past, most observers thought that Lady Diana had little taste for hunting or shooting — two sports that her husband Prince Charles, as well as the rest of the family, have been keen on most of their lives.

Royal shooting parties have often been launched from an area near Balmoral Castle.

During their courtship, pictures were taken of Princess Diana watching her husband-to-be fish from trout streams in Scotland — but she did not appear to be fishing herself.

Tass did not comment on Kania's resignation

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet media, which has criticized Poland's leaders for failing to curb the Solidarity union, reported without comment Sunday the resignation of Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in its report on Kania's replacement by Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski as party first secretary, gave no indication whether Kremlin leaders approved of the change.

The Tass report, read on the national evening television news, did not report the call by the Polish Communist Party Central Committee for a ban on strikes.

Kremlin leaders have been critical of Kania and Jaruzelski for failing to suppress what Moscow claims is an "anti-Soviet" campaign being waged by "counterrevolutionaries" seeking to restore capitalism in Poland.

Soviet sources said recently, however, that replacement of Kania would not by itself change the course of events in Poland. Western diplomats withheld comment on the change, awaiting further information.

Eastern European sources in Moscow viewed Kania's fall from power as "a Polish choice," and noted the change was brought about by the Central Committee that had been elected at a party congress last July.

The latest Kremlin blast at Polish "counterrevolutionaries," published Wednesday by the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda, appeared to condemn Kania and Jaruzelski by ommission.

Instead of criticizing them by name, as earlier commentaries had, the Pravda article painted a bleak picture of Poland's economic and political situation, and said, "All this places special responsibility on the Polish working people and on the party and government leadership of the country."

The article was signed by A. Petrov, believed to be a pseudonym reflecting authorship by senior Kremlin officials.

Filipino-Americans afraid to speak out

By BILL BILLITER
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Smiles fade, frowns emerge and conversation often becomes frozen or guarded when the question is asked:

"How do you, as a Filipino-American, feel about President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines?"

A woman at the Filipino Culture Center recoiled at the question and looked at the questioner suspiciously.

"How do I know you are a reporter?" she asked. "You might be someone Marcos has sent."

Among Filipino-Americans, now the second largest Asian minority group in the United States — just behind the Chinese — and the largest Asian minority in California, Marcos' rule is a touchy subject not freely discussed with outsiders.

"It's because most Filipino-Americans still have relatives in the Philippines and are afraid to speak out," said Sal Morano, a worker in an anti-Marcos movement in the Los Angeles area.

Morano and others accuse Marcos of using terror tactics to quell opposition in the Philippines.

"Even here in the United States, Marcos has secret agents and spies disguised as consulate personnel," Hermie Rotea, editor and publisher of the Philippine Press in Los Angeles, contended.

But Rotea and other outspoken Marcos critics concede that their ranks are thin.

The Coalition Against the Marcos Dictatorship, in which Morano is a worker, has less than 100 active participants. "But we do have an active mailing list of about 300 people," Minerva Mabini, 26, a registered nurse and a co-leader of the coalition, said.

Supporters of Marcos — and those who profess to be neutral about him — scoff at the size of the opposition.

"There are at least 300,000 Filipino-Americans in the Los Angeles area alone," said Dr. Raynaldo Landero, chairman of the Los Angeles-based Confedertion of Philippine-U.S. Organizations, an umbrella group composed of presidents of 182 Filipino-American clubs and organizations.

The official 1980 U.S. census said there are 357,514 Filipinos in California, but Landero, explaining his 300,000 estimate for the Los Angeles area, said the census greatly undercounted the Filipino community.

Despite their numerical inferiority, the anti-Marcos elements in California are causing concern to Manila.

Last year, Victor Burns Lovely Jr., 36, a Filipino-American from the Los Angeles area, was wounded when a bomb that police said he was working on exploded in his room at the Manila YMCA.

Lovely, a naturalized U.S. citizen, was arrested and accused of directing a conspiracy to destabilize the Marcos government. In a plea for mercy, Lovely promised to implicate other Filipino-Americans suspected of plotting bomb attacks in the Philippines.

News media in Manila have reported that Lovely is back in California, still under Philippine custody, waiting to testify before a federal grand jury. U.S. officials will neither confirm nor deny that Lovely is in California.

But Bill Duff, a spokesman for the FBI's San Francisco office, said, "Lovely may be appearing before a federal grand jury to testify in the near future. I do not know where, but my guess is either in Los Angeles or San Francisco. He is not now in our control."

In addition to the Lovely incident, Manila has been the target of other bombing attacks, one in which an American citizen was killed.

DEATHS

Travis Haynie

STANTON — Services for Travis Werner Haynie, 85, of Stanton will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Ed Carson, pastor, officiating. Masonic graveside rites will be in Evergreen Cemetery, directed by Gilbreath Funeral Home.

He died Sunday night in a Stanton hospital after a lengthy illness.

Haynie was born Nov. 30, 1895, at West Point. He lived in Stanton for 82 years. He married Margaret Susan Anderson Dec. 6, 1923, in Big Spring. She preceded him in death on Jan. 2, 1969. He was a veteran of World War I. Haynie served as a railway section foreman of T&P Railway for Morita and Stanton and was retired. He was a 32nd degree Scottish-Rite Mason and a member of the First Baptist Church of Stanton.

Survivors include two sons, S.E. Haynie of Lomax and Travis L. Haynie of Stanton; a daughter, Ermine H. Pearce of Palacios; a sister, Mabel H. Dingwall of El Paso; and six grandchildren.

Tom Drummond

Services for Tom Drummond, 58, of 2308 W. Washington Ave., will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Primitive Baptist Church with Elder J.E. Barrington officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

He was born March 18, 1923, in Hamlin. He moved to Martin County at an early age where he attended school. He moved to Midland in 1939. He also resided in Morenci, Ariz., for one year and Indianapolis, Ind., for 10 years. He moved back to Midland in the 1950s. He was employed as a heavy equipment mechanic for various oil field industries. He retired in 1979 due to ill health.

Survivors include two daughters, Lucy Hurst and Linda Lynch, both of Indianapolis, Ind.; his mother, Fannie Drummond of Midland; a brother, Robert T. Drummond of Midland; a sister, Mrs. James R. Stanley of Midland; four grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Ruby L. Roye

Services for Ruby L. Roye, 74, of San Angelo, mother of Mrs. Roger (Kathryn) Meurer and Tony W. Roye, both of Midland, will be at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in Johnson's Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Jim Hill of Lake View Christian Church officiating. Burial will be in Belvedere Cemetery.

She died Saturday at her home.

Mrs. Roye was born Feb. 4, 1907, in Coryell County. She was married to Starling L. Roye in 1924 in Lampasas. She had lived in San Angelo since 1935 and was past president of Veterans of Foreign Wars District 22 and a member of VFW Auxiliary Post 1815. She was a member of Lake View Christian Church.

Other survivors include her husband, another son, two sisters, 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

James R. Gaddy

Services for James Randall Gaddy, 27, of Route 3, are pending at the J.L. Brown Funeral Home in Jacksonville, Ala. Local arrangements were handled by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Saturday in a Midland hospital following an accident.

Gaddy was born Dec. 30, 1953 in Alabama. He grew up in Anniston, Ala. He moved to Midland in April of 1981 where he went to work for Troy Vines as a cement truck driver. He was employed by Midland Tank & Rental for six months.

Survivors include his wife, Sandra Faye Gaddy of Midland; four sons, Randall Dale Gaddy, James Junior Gaddy, James Randall Gaddy Jr., and John Alvin Gaddy, all of Jacksonville, Ala.; his mother, Marion Gaddy of Anniston, Ala.; three brothers, Dennis Gaddy of Wellington, Ala., Sonny Gaddy and Larry Gaddy, both of Anniston, Ala.; and four sisters, Sharon Sharpton of Wellington, Ala., Shirley Heath and Sandra Buchanan, both of Anniston, Ala., and Lois Smith of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

David M. Hicks

Graveside services for David M. Hicks, 26, of 602 B Watson St., were to be at 10 a.m. today at Fairview Cemetery with Father Leo Gauvin of St. Ann's Catholic Church officiating under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Hicks died Sunday in a Midland hospital following a sudden illness.

He was born Sept. 15, 1955, in Austin. He grew up in Austin and moved to Pittsburgh, Pa., for a year. He moved to Midland three years ago. He was a member of the Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Elizabeth Ann Hicks, and his mother, Patricia Scott of Lawrence, Kan.

John H. Bailey

Graveside services for John Henry Bailey, 74, of San Diego, Calif., and formerly of Midland, will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday in Fairview Cemetery with L.E. Alexander, minister of Lee Street Church of Christ, officiating.

Thomas Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

He died in San Diego.

Survivors include a sister, Willie Mae Hatchett of Midland, a half-brother of Dallas, a half-sister of Tyler, and several nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Winfree L. Brown

Brown is president of Republican women's club

Mrs. Winfree L. Brown of Midland was elected president of the Texas Federation of Republican Women Saturday during the state convention in Waco.

In addition, Mrs. George Weis of Midland was elected a district director for the next two years during the caucus of the 25th Senatorial District. District Judge Barbara Culver of Midland installed the new officers during the Saturday luncheon.

Mrs. Brown has been active in Republican campaigns and club work since 1964 in addition to community involvement. She is the wife of County Commissioner Winfree L. Brown and mother of four.

Sixteen members of the Midland County Republican Women's Club attended the convention and included Mrs. James Calvert, president; Mrs. Dale McCarter, Mrs. Hank Temple, Mrs. Bill Fleetwood, Mrs. Robert Stine, Mrs. Weis, Mrs. Lee Park, Mrs. John Rhea, Judge Culver, Mrs. Jack Sayers, Mrs. Sam Terry, Mrs. I.W. More than 700 delegates, alternates and guests heard Gov. Bill Clements, U.S. Sen. John Tower, U.S. Reps. Jim Collins, Jack Fields and Ron Paul, State Sen. Ike Harris, State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, County Judge Jon Lindsay, County Commissioner Nancy Judy, Republican State Chairman Chet Upham, former Secretary of State George Strake and National Committeewoman Mrs. H.E. Chiles during the two-day convention. Main message of the convention was strong candidate recruitment for the 1982 ballot.

Marcos welcome in Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos arrived here Sunday to a flag-waving, singing welcome from supporters and jeers from a small group of protesters.

A crowd of more than 700 shouted slogans and sang patriotic songs as the chief executive emerged from his chartered DC-10 at Honolulu International Airport.

Thirty protesters nearby chanted "Down with Marcos," and waved placards, at times nearly drowning out the welcoming speech and Marcos's arrival statement.

No violence was reported, but a dozen police officers formed a chain around the protesters as the two groups passed each other after the ceremony.

Earthquake along Columbia, Venezuela border kills 10

CUCUTA, Colombia (AP) — A strong earthquake along the Colombia-Venezuela border killed at least 10 people and injured scores of others, authorities reported Sunday.

The quake, which hit shortly before midnight Saturday, toppled several buildings in Cucuta, a border city of 400,000 inhabitants and cracked streets. Colombian police reported four dead and at least 67 injured.

In western Venezuela, at least six people were killed and dozens injured, most of them caught in houses crushed by landslides, the state news agency Venpres reported.

Cucuta police said a city hospital suffered severe damage and patients had to be evacuated to a parking lot.

Sect linked to Sadat's death is behind police station attacks

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

ASYUT, Egypt (AP) — A Moslem fanatic sect linked to the assassination of President Anwar Sadat also was behind bloody attacks on police stations in this city in upper Egypt, according to investigators.

Diplomatic sources, meanwhile, told The Associated Press that the man believed by investigators to be the mastermind of the assassination, Lt. Col. Abu Abdel Latif el-Zomor, was behind the plot to create trouble in the Nile Delta city of Mansoura, where security was stepped up Saturday after a night of shooting.

El-Zomor, who worked in military intelligence, reportedly was arrested last Tuesday.

Cairo's Middle East News Agency said Sunday that 230 Moslem fundamentalist "terrorists" who belonged to a group led by el-Zomor have been arrested.

MENA, quoting a statement by the Interior Ministry, said the police discovered several arms caches and documents outlining plans for future "terrorist attacks" when the 230 were rounded up, but it did not say when the arrests occurred.

Just 41 hours after Sadat died Oct. 6, Islamic extremists launched suicide raids on Asyut's two police stations, besieging them for 24 hours. Security sources said at least 118 people were killed — half police officers — during the two-days of violence.

Cowboys poke Rams despite weird events

IRVING — A couple of weird things happened in the fourth quarter of Sunday's football game between the Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams at Texas Stadium.

There was a personal record attempt ended and then revived and there was a first down awarded to Dallas after the Cowboys lost 13 yards. Not impossible, but highly unsual for a football game. Oh yea, they happened on the same drive.

The first incident happened when Rafael Septien came in to attempt his ninth consecutive field goal of the year (he had hit No. 8 in the first quarter to tie his own as well as the team record) from 49 yards out. The kick went wide to the right. What saved Septien's strmng was the fact that Ram defender Johnnie Johnson was a little eager in his attempt to make the block and was hit with a roughing the kicker penalty, which gave Dallas a first down and wiped out the kick.

A few plays later came the loss yardage first down. It started when Tom Rafferty was called for a false snap for minus five yards followed by Reggie Doss sacking Dallas quarterback Danny White for minus 13 for a negative 18 total. The only problem was Doss used White's face mask to make the play and Dallas received five yards from the point of the infraction plus a first down. The chain gain then moved the yard markers eight yards away from the goal line.

Even with these breaks, Dallas failed to get any points on that particular drive as Tony Dorsett fumbled the ball away on the Ram 27 and Jonnson made up for his penalty on the field goal attempt by making the recovery. It didn't really matter much because the Cowboys had a nine point lead at the time and were well on their way to a 29-17 victory to end a two-game losing streak.

Dallas got off to a quick start in the game when fullback Ron Springs capped a 69-yard drive on the ninth play on a one-yard scoring run. Septien kicked the extra point to give the Cowboys a 7-0 lead with 8:50 left in the first quarter.

A little more than seven minutes later, Septien tied his record of eight straight field goals with a 40-yarder. Dallas struck a third time in the first quarter, only this time it was the defense that got the points.

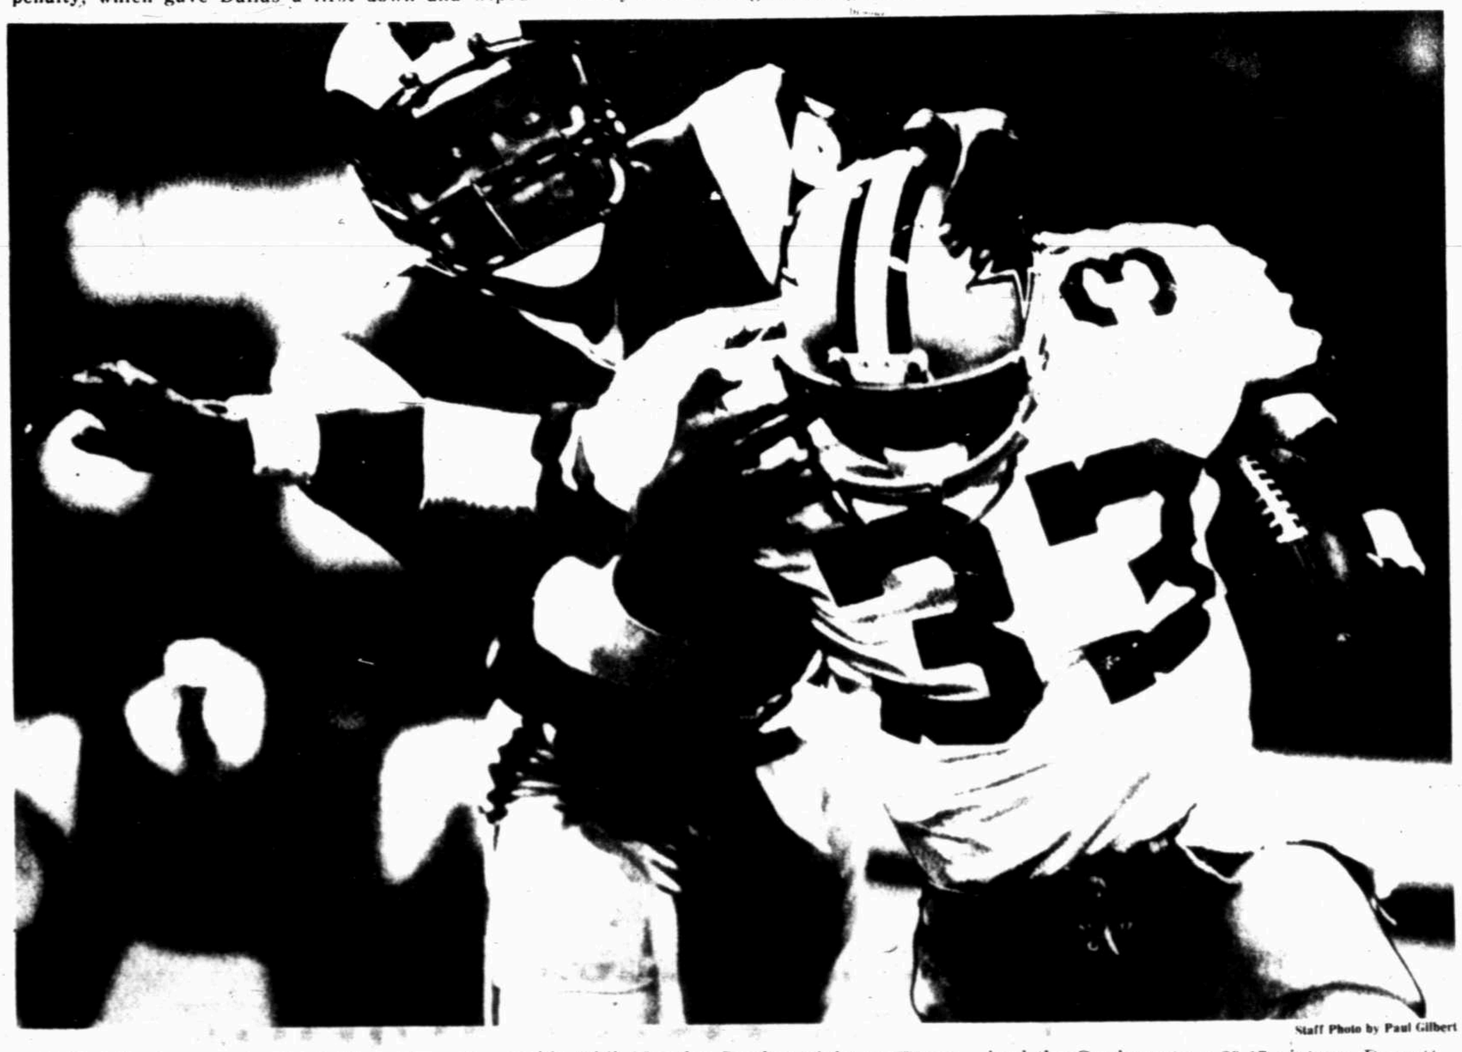

With 18 seconds remaining in the quarter, Los Angeles Pat Haden dropped back to pass from his own end zone only to see Doomsday to come swarming in. Haden tried to get back into free territory, but was trapped by Harvey Martin for a safety, a 12-0 lead and a free kick to the Cowboys.

Dallas took the kick at its own 38-yard line and proceeded to add another tally to the scoreboard. On the fifth play of the drive, Dorsett cut off left guard, broke a tackle and went 44 yards for the score. Septien added the PAT and Dallas held a commanding 19-point lead.

The Rams came right back on the ensuing kickoff, mounting a 71-yard drive in five plays with Wendell Tyler getting the call for the score from two yards out and Frank Corral kicking the PAT.

Los Angeles cut the Cowboy lead to nine on their next possession with a 40-yard field goal by Corral, only to see another seven go up for Dallas when Tony Hill caught a 63-yard strike and the PAT by Septien ended the first half scoring.

Penalties and incomplete passes and timeouts made for a long second half in which Los Angeles added a touchdown on a 43-yard pass from Haden to Drew Hill and a Corral PAT in the third quarter, and Dallas got a second field goal from Septien, a 39-yarder in the closing minutes of the game to get that record he nearly lost in that weird drive. — Bob Brundage

Dallas Cowboy running back Tony Dorsett (33) is finally dragged down by Los Angeles tackle Phil Murphy Sunday night at Texas Stadium. Dorsett's 100-yard plus game helped lead the Cowboys to a 29-17 victory. Dorsett had one scoring romp of 44 yards.

Dodgers, Expos beaten by rain

MONTREAL (AP) — The deciding game for the National League pennant between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Montreal Expos was rained out Sunday.

The game was rescheduled for 12:05 p.m. CDT today at Olympic Stadium. The weather bureau predicted clearing skies for today.

Sunday's game was to have started at 3:05 p.m. CDT and was called after a 3-hour, 25-minute wait by National League President Charles Feeney and his umpiring crew.

This was the second time since major league championship series were initiated in 1969 that a game has been postponed by rain.

The third game of the 1973 American League series between Oakland and Baltimore at Oakland was postponed because of rain.

SUNDAY'S scheduled starting pitchers, rookie left-hander Fernando Valenzuela of the Dodgers and right-hander Ray Burris of the Expos, were slated to oppose each other today, according to the managers of the two teams.

The postponement meant that there will be no travel day for the National League winner, which will leave immediately for New York and the start of the World Series against the American League champion New York Yankees Tuesday night.

In this best-of-five League Championship Series, the teams split two games in Los Angeles, with the Dodgers winning the opener 5-1 and then being shut out by Burris 3-0.

When the series resumed Friday night in Montreal, the Expos won 1-1 on a three-run homer by outfielder Jerry White. Then the Dodgers came back to deadlock the series with a 7-1 victory Saturday triggered by Steve Garvey's eighth-inning two-run homer.

Before the postponement, the rain stopped several times and the ground crew removed the tarpaulin from the field. But before the pitchers could even go to the bullpen to start warm-ups, the rain resumed.

JUST BEFORE the postponement announcement, it appeared to be raining harder than at any time during the day.

After the postponement was announced, the Expos' rookie outfielder, Terry Francona, dashed from the dugout, ran across the tarp and dove into a huge puddle in short right field. When photopgraphers, caught by surprise, asked him to repeat his run, Francona smilingly obliged with a second dash. Then, his uniform soaked, he retreated to the Expos clubhouse with the rest of his teammates.

Fanning was disappointed.

"I very much so hope we get this in today," Fanning said at one point during the long wait. "Our players are all keyed up and Burris is ready to pitch this game."

Both pitchers would have worked with only three days rest had the game been played, which prompted Fanning to comment: "If there is an advantage in playing Monday, it is that the pitchers will have a fourth day of rest. My reaction is that that is a standoff."

LASORDA SIMPLY shrugged his shoulders and said he had no control over the weather, but that he would have preferred to get it over with.

Lasorda said the postponement didn't give either team any advantage.

"We'll be going through the same thing Monday," said Lasorda, who recalled that the Dodgers had won the championship series in 1977 over the Philadelphia Phillies in a driving rain.

Burris appeared to take the postponement calmly.

"There is nothing I can do about it. We can't compete with Mother Nature," he said. "There's nothing wrong with getting another day's rest."

Burris was asked if the postponement prolonged the anxiety, especially for the Expos, who have never won a pennant in their 13-year history.

"There's no anxiety as long as you win," said Burris, who spent time in the dressing room reading the Bible.

Also in the Montreal locker room, first baseman Warren Cromartie tossed a football with utility infielder Jerry Manuel. There were two cakes sitting on a table in the Expos dressing room with "Go Expos Go" etched in the icing.

Outfielder Andre Dawson and pitcher Steve Rogers, winner of the third game of this series, sat playing cards, as did other members of the team.

MONTREAL shortstop Chris Speier said the rainout didn't bother him.

"It doesn't matter. I just hope we have the opportunity to play in the World Series on Tuesday," he said.

In the Dodgers' clubhouse, Lasorda held an early meeting in which he told his team what he thought they had to do to win the pennant.

"We went over a few things that I thought it would take to win this ball game.

"This is what we've strived for all year, to put one foot in the World Series, then the other foot," Lasorda said. "I told my guys to all get on the same end of the rope and pull together," said the Dodgers manager.

Pitcher Jerry Reuss displayed a load of telegrams the team's received from fans in Los Angeles.

Rainouts are rare in playoff history

By The Associated Press

Sunday's rainout of the deciding game in the National League Championship Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Montreal Expos was the second time a playoff game has been postponed by the weather since league title play began in 1969.

In 1973, rain forced postponement of an American League Championship Series game between the Baltimore orioles and the Oakland A's in Oakland, Calif.

The Dodgers-Expos game was postponed until 12:05 p.m. CDT today.

Grogan dances over tuneless Oilers as Patriots hold Campbell to 86 yards

BOSTON (AP) — Steve Grogan had been a wallflower for the past month in New England's game of musical quarterbacks. But he danced all over the out-of-tune Houston Oilers Sunday as he directed the Patriots to a 38-10 National Football League triumph.

Grogan started the first two games of the season before being benched during the Sept. 13 game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Against Houston, he threw for two touchdowns to spark a 17-point third quarter that carried the Patriots to their second win of a disappointing season. He also ran for their final touchdown.

"His job speaks for itself. It was a fine job and he put 38 points on the board," said Patriots Coach Ron Erhardt.

Grogan started over Matt Cavanaugh, who was ineffective a week ago in a 28-24 loss to the New York Jets.

"Our offense controlled the ball but the really satisfying thing was how we contained (Earl) Campbell." Erhardt said. "All we try to do is make him cut inside."

The Patriots' rushing defense, worst in the league, held Campbell to 86 yards in 27 carries. The NFL's rushing leader had steam-rolled for 368 yards in his previous two games.

"We got our tail beat. We evidentally just weren't mentally concentrating on the game," said Houston Coach Ed Biles. "We didnt play well offensively or defensively or on special teams. We just didn't play a good football game."

New England, which rolled to its best rushing performance of the season with 244 yards, was led by Tony Collins' game-high 89 yards in 17 carries.

On defense, the Patriots allowed just 120 yards rushing one week after limiting the New York Jets to 141.

Grogan replaced Matt Cavanaugh in the third quarter of that 28-21 loss and threw for 330 yards to earn the start Sunday. He completed 11 of 19 passes for 164 yards and one interception against the Oilers.

The seven-year veteran from Kansas State was helped by outstanding field position resulting from some short punts by Cliff Parsley and the interceptions. The only time the Patriots had the ball inside their own 30-yard line was midway through the fourth quarter when they started at their own 27-yard line and marched all the way for Ferguson's touchdown.

New England scored every time it had the ball in the third quarter. Cornerback J.C.Wilson appeared to be baffled when Morgan stepped in front of him at the right side of the goal line to snare Grogan's underthrown pass for the go-ahead touchdown.

Smith's field goal that boosted the score to 17-10 with 7:01 left in the third quarter followed a 63-yard drive that stalled at the Oiler 4.

Johnson, a substitute running back who comes in on throwing downs, then notched his first touchdown of the year on a 61-yard march featuring passes of 19 and 9 yards from Grogan to Morgan.

With his first quarter touchdown pass to Morgan, Johnson has now completed all five of his passes this season, three of them for touchdowns.

Mears captures Mexico Cup 150

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rick Mears, driving a Penske-Cosworth, held off Al Unser to the final lap to win the Mexico Cup 150 race for Indy cars Sunday.

It was the third victory outside the United States for Mears, who had won the race here last year and had clinched his second Championship Auto Racing Teams driving championship earlier this season.

Al Unser, driving for Midland's Bobby Hillin in the Longhorn Racing entry, finished second and third place went to Gordon Johncock. Only 14 out 27 starting cars finished the race. Mears took home more than $41,000 in prize money.

The victory in the CART event was Mears' sixth this year and his third in a row after recovering from burns suffered when he and his car caught fire during a refueling stop in last May's Indianapolis 500.

The track is full of tricky turns that put two drivers out of the competition Sunday. About halfway through the 60-lap race, Tom Sneva, jockeying for fourth place, slammed through a guard rail and was forced to drop out after he was unable to get his car back on the track.

Vikings' Kramer drops Eagles from NFL's unbeaten list

By The Associated Press

Minnesota quarterback Tommy Kramer fired four touchdown passes, three in the second quarter, as the Vikings drilled the Eagles 35-23 Sunday. Philadelphia, the last of the National Football League unbeatens, suffered its first loss of the season.

Kramer, who passed for four touchdowns last week in a last-minute victory in San Diego, completed 21 of 46 passes for 257 yards as Minnesota won its fifth straight after opening the season with two losses.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh's four-game winning streak came to an abrupt end when the Bengals, now alone atop the AFC Central at 5-2, embarrassed the Steelers 34-7 on the strength of Ken Anderson's 346 yards passing and two touchdowns.

IN OTHER NFL action, the New York Jets trounced the Buffalo Bills 33-14; the New England Patriots knocked off the Houston Oilers 38-10; the Cleveland Browns edged the New Orleans Saints 20-17; the Atlanta Falcons swarmed all over the St.Louis Cardinals 41-20.

The San Francisco 49ers topped the Green Bay Packers 13-3; the San Diego Chargers embarrassed the Baltimore Colts 43-14; the Miami Dolphins topped the Washington Redskins 13-10; the New York Giants whipped the Seattle Seahawks 32-0; the Oakland Raiders nipped the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 18-16 and the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the Denver Broncos 28-14.

Kramer's scoring passes in the second quarter covered 11 yards to tight end Joe Senser, 50 yards to wide receiver Sammy White and 1 yard to backup tight end Bob Bruer.

Philadelphia, 6-1, had taken a 6-0 lead late in the first quarter on a 1-yard run by Wilbert Montgomery. Tony Franklin, whose extra point was blocked by Matt Blair, put the Eagles ahead for the last time after Senser's TD catch with a 30-yard field goal. But less than two minutes later, Kramer connected with White and his short flip to Bruer came as the first half expired.

ANDERSON COMPLETED 16 of 28 passes, throwing second-half scoring strikes of 73 yards to rookie wide receiver David Verser and 5 yards to fullback Pete Johnson. It was Cincinnati's third straight victory over Pittsburgh. The Steelers avoided a shutout when Terry Bradshaw connected with Jim Smith from 17 yards out with 1:07 left in the game. The Cincinnati defense held Pittsburgh, the No. 1 ranked offense, to just 210 total yards.

Oakland's Ted Hendricks blocked Bill Capece's 30-yard field goal attempt with eight seconds left, the 22nd block of his career, an NFL record. Chris Bahr's 41-yard field goal with 2:21 remaining was the winner after Oakland blew a 15-0 halftime lead. The Raiders, 3-1, broke a three-game scoreless streak and scored their first points since four weeks ago on Bahr's 51-yard field goal early in the game.

Bobby Jones scooped up teammate Mike Augustyniak's fumble and ran 61 yards for a touchdown to climax the Jets' 21-point third quarter against the Bills. The victory avenged the Jets' 31-0 loss in Buffalo the first week of the season. The Jets trailed 7-6 at the half, but Bruce Harper's 29-yard touchdown run and a 19-yard TD pass from Richard Todd to Jerome Barkum gave the Jets a 13-point lead late in the third quarter.

Steve Bartkowski passed for 288 yards and four touchdowns, two each to Alfred Jenkins and William Andrews, as the Falcons stopped a three-game losing streak. Andrews caught eight passes for 132 yards and the two scores, one on a 70-yard screen pass. St.Louis quarterback Jim Hart moved into third place on the career completions list when he connected on 21 of 19 for 263 yards. It lifted his total to 2,170, one more than John Brodie and trailing only Fran Tarkenton and Johnny Unitas.

NEW ORLEANS' Benny Ricardo missed a 37-yard field goal with 1:11 remaining to ensure the Browns victory. Cleveland was stunned early when George Rogers ran 79 yards for one touchdown and Wayne Wilson went 8 yards with a fake field goal for another score. But the Browns came back on the strength of Brian Sipe's 270 yards passing and a 1-yard, fourth-quarter plunge by Mike Pruitt.

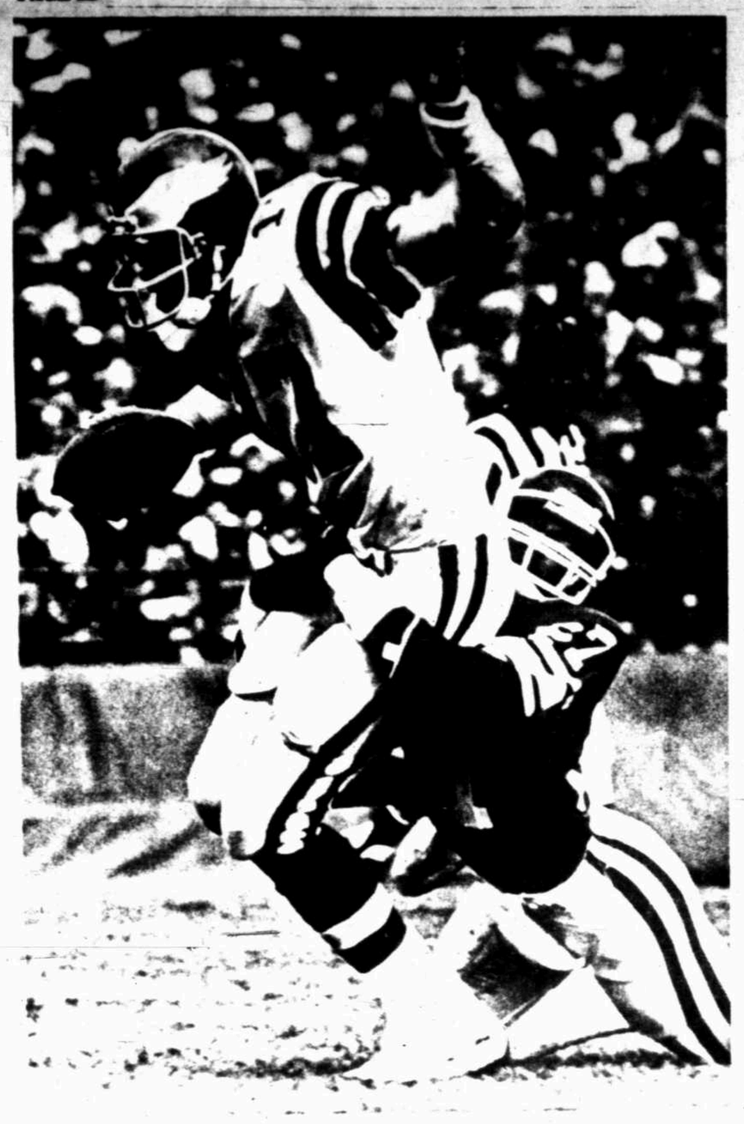

Johnny Davis plunged 1 yard for San Francisco's go-ahead touchdown late in the third quarter and Ray Wersching kicked two field goals in the 49ers' fourth straight victory. Packers quarterback Lynn Dickey suffered a jam neck late in the third quarter and was replaced by David Whitehurst.

Dan Fouts passed for three touchdowns and 298 yards in San Diego's victory. Running back Chuck Muncie scored twice on runs of 3 yards and John Cappeletti also scored twice on a 12-yard pass reception and a 1-yard run. The Colts, 1-6 and losers of six straight, went ahead 7-0 lead on a 29-yard pass from Bert Jones to Roger Carr, but San Diego scored on their final four possessions of the first half for a 23-7 lead. Jones was sacked six times for 59 yards in losses by the Chargers defense.

Rookie fullback Andra Franklin plunged 1 yard for a touchdown and Uwe von Schamann kicked a pair of field goals, including the game winner from 25 yards with 9:39 to play, extending the Dolphins lead over Buffalo to 1½ games in the AFC East.

JOE DANELO kicked a club record six field goals, including a 51-yarder, and the Giants, 1-3, turned in their first shutout since 1978. Danelo booted a club record 55-yarder in a victory over New Orleans earlier this year. The NFL record for field goals in a game is seven set by Jim Bakken of St. Louis in 1967. Giants fullback Rob Carpenter rushed for 116 yards and one touchdown while the New York defense held Seattle to 29 yards rushing.

Whitney Paul returned a fumble 17 yards for one touchdown, and Joe Delaney raced 82 yards for another, as the Chiefs moved into a three-way tie for first place in the AFC West with the Broncos and Chargers. Denver quarterback Craig Morton, the NFL's top-rated passer entering the game, completed 25 of 38 passes for 342 yards.

Don't tell Sarnoff the good news

(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

In the early 1920s when a new medium, radio, and a new monopoly, network broadcasting, burst on an unprepared public, the reigning satraps of the infant industry were locked in bitter ideological conflict.

On one side were the forces headed by Gen. David Sarnoff, ruler of the resident conglomerate, Radio Corporation of America, who held that the greatest good the new medium could perform was move goods. In other words, it should be a giant advertising agency whose entertainment specialties, like the old medicine shows, should be used principally to sell snake oil, to unclog the pipelines of America's manufactured goods.

ON THE other side were the forces of free enterprise which thought the entertainment should be sold directly to the public at the marketplace, just as stage, screen, sports and penny arcades were. Put your nickel in the slot and see the show. Pay-radio. not advertising-subsidized radio.

Gen. Sarnoff pervailed. He usually did. Pay radio never came into being. Instead, toothpaste companies controlled the medium. It hired the comics, paid the orchestras, leased the wires. Razor blade companies brought you the World Series. Beer bottlers put on the Wednesday Night Fights. Pro-football became sales pitches for shaving lather.

When television came in, the old argument reopened. Executives like Gene McDonald, president of Zenith Radio and Television, argued for selling products direct to home owners. His reasoning was logical: why should a World Series, which could gross $40 million a day if everybody who watched it put in a dollar apiece, sell for $175,000 for radio rights and $65,000 TV receipts (as it did then in 1949)?

McDonald and pay-TV advocates were blocked at every turn, largely by an aggressive mob of 12,000 movie exhibitors whose business was doomed anyway. They collected signatures and stopped pay-TV in its tracks. It was like the buggy-whip manufacturers collecting signatures to prevent the manufacture of carburetors, as the courts later ruled, but, for awhile, the illusion of "free" TV prevailed. There is no such thing as "free" TV, actually. You paid for Jack Benny and the World Series, anyway.

BUT ALL this is ancient history. Pay TV is alive and well and proliferating. It held a massive three-day convention this summer at which an industry which once held its convention "in a clothes closet in Las Vegas" had over 12,000 conventioneers and 350 exhibitors on the convention floor, attesting to the growth and vitality of a business its enemies thought they had patted in the face with a shovel two decades ago.

It's called "Cable TV" today but it's the same business. Gen. Sarnoff would be aghast. It managed to escape the political buzz saws of "free" TV in the nick of time because it happened to be needed. When there proved to be massive pockets of population in the U.S. unreachable by the ordinary TV signal because they were behind mountains or other interrupters, enterprising entrepreneurs built community antennas and charged the subscribers for piping the TV pictures into their living room. Not even a Gen. Sarnoff could say "You can't do that!" Nobody could collect signatures to take away television altogether from your home screen. So, pay TV had its foot in the door.

I had breakfast with a TV executive who has a foot in both doors. Chet Simmons, when I first kenw him, was in charge of sports programmning for NBC in the days when competition for sports pre-eminence on the networks made the Dodgers-Giants look like two sisters dancing. It's well to remember the American Football League succeeded where earlier expansion leagues had failed simply because NBC needed it. No other single factor contributed so much to its success. NBC could not tolerate putting on Sunday afternoon zoo shows while CBS was showing the real Lions and Rams and keeping score.

CHET SIMMONS runs an operation called "The Total Sports Network," ESPN (for "Entertaining and Sports Programming Network") with headquarters in Bristol, Conn., of all places. It's an audacious enterprise bankrolled by Getty Oil. It welcomes advertising but it distributes its product by cable system, an idea which Gen. Sarnoff never thought of.

"We are advertising-supported, we generate revenue the same way the three networks do," explained Simmons. "We are in affiliate agreements with cable systems. But we are in one business and one business only, we are a program source for the cable industry, that's all we do."

Where does a 24-hour all-sports network find product? Would you believe televising the NFL draft? Twenty guys sitting around a room for 8 12 hours sorting out photographs of kids with 20-inch necks whose classes had graduated from A&M (usually without them.) That's entertainment?! "Believe it," says Chet Simmons convincingly. "To our viewers. it's news, it's entertainment, it's suspense." Lyrics by Irving Berlin.

What do you do at 4 o'clock in the morning, Chet -- bar fights? Re-runs of the Cincinnati Bengals picking a linebacker? No. Chet reports that re-runs of an event first programmed live the evening before are as avidly watched by sports fans as Saturday aternoon cowboy movies by kids. They will watch the same film over and over again. Especially if the good guys win.

WHERE OTHERWISE do you get product? Well, Chet Simmons notes, the major networks leave an astonishing amount of prime sports footage just lying around. Not Notre Dame-Michigan, the World Series or the Super Bowl, perhaps. But they do leave the college World Series of Baseball, the NCAA golf tournaments, and even the famous Notre Dame-Brigham Young basketball playoff of last year was up for grabs. ESPN grabbed it. ESPN has the advantage, too, that it is all-sports. It does not have to go pettifogging off after comparative trivialities such as elections, assassinations, wars, revolutions, drownings, floods, and other dilemmatic happenings of the non-world out there. If it doesn't happen between the foul lines, so far as ESPN is concerned, it's a non-story . Network Sports news stations usually present a breathless announcer trying to cram 24 scores, a shouted interview with a third baseman on the way to a shower, and a look at a three-horse spill at Aqueduct, all sounding like Donald Duck interviewing Mel Tellis -- film at 11. Rush-hour train calling at Grand Central is more entertaining -- and informative.

How fair is the box office? "In May of 1979, we had a million and a half subscribers," reports Simmons. "In May of 1981, we have 10 million." How close is Cable TV to bidding competitively against the networks for a World Series, Super Bowls, Olympic Games? "We are a long way from making money," Simmons admits. "But, when it was estimated that it would take $400 million to wire the Borough of Queens for Pay-TV, 20 applicants bid for the privilege of spending $400 million. So you know what the return was they were looking at. The networks are now looking into eable TV themselves. What does that tell you?"

It tells me it's a good thing Gen. Sarnoff isn't around to hear it.

Bamberger tabbed as leader for Mets' job

MONTREAL (AP) — George Bamberger had emerged as the leading candidate to be the next manager of the New York Mets.

Frank Cashen, general manager of the club, said Sunday that essentially, the decision is up to Bamberger.

Bamberger told two New York reporters that he might be able to talk more completely about the situation by Tuesday, but it is clear that the former Milwaukee pilot can have the job if he wants it.

Cashen, in Montreal to watch the National League Championship Series between the Expos and the Los Angeles Dodgers, said he would probably talk with Bamberger on Monday. "If he says yes, we'll have to look at our options," Cashen said.

The New York Times, in its Monday editions, said Bamberger had been offered the Mets' job and might make his decision known as early as Monday.

"I am interested. I'm thinking it over," Bamberger said from his home in Reddington Beach, Fla. "It will be a personal decision more than a professional one. Let's say a family decision. And I should make up my mind within a couple of days.

"My health is excellent. It's just a question of the type of life I want to lead. Nut I'm interested."

Cashen said that he had spoken to three candidates for the Met job, which was left open when he fired Joe Torre on the final day of the regular season. In addition, assistant general manager Lou Gorman, who had been on the West Coast watching the first half of the Expo-Dodger series, interviewed another candidate for the job.

Bamberger left the Brewers because of a serious heart attack during spring training of 1980 and underwent triple bypass surgery. He remains with the Brewer organization in a scouting capacity, but has indicated an interest in getting back into a field manager's job.

"If he makes up his mind and wants to manage, he has to be given serious consideration," Cashen said.

Bamberger and Cashen were together many years in the Baltimore Oriole organization and throughout the search for a new Met manager, there have been indications that Cashen would depend on his Baltimore roots in making the selection.

HOW TO EARN UP TO $2,000 INTEREST AT THE DROP OF A HAT.

★ Introducing a financial first. From First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. The All Saver's Certificate, a fully insured savings plan that earns up to $1,000 tax-free interest on individual returns or $2,000 tax-free interest if you file a joint return.

★ Now for the first time, Uncle Sam will not only fully insure your savings plan, he'll give you a tax-break on it as well. Here's how it works: to equal an assumed tax-exempt yield of 12½%, a taxable investment would have to earn 17.86% if your family income is $25,000 and your tax bracket is 30%.

IF YOUR FAMILY INCOME IS	YOUR TAX BRACKET PROBABLY IS	THE INTEREST RATE YOU'D HAVE TO RECEIVE TO NET 12.5% AFTER FEDERAL INCOME TAX IS
$50,000	50%	25%
$35,000	40%	20.83%
$25,000	30%	17.86%
$20,000	25%	16.67%

Figures above are approximate and based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on 12.5% is an assumed average investment yield on the All Saver's Certificate. Actual rate is 70% of the average investment yield on one-year treasury bills at date of purchase.

★ You can see why the All Saver's Certificate is a savings break-through. But you may not see it for long. The program begins October 1, 1981 and ends December 31, 1982. So hurry to First Savings and Loan Association of Midland and purchase your All Saver's Certificates.

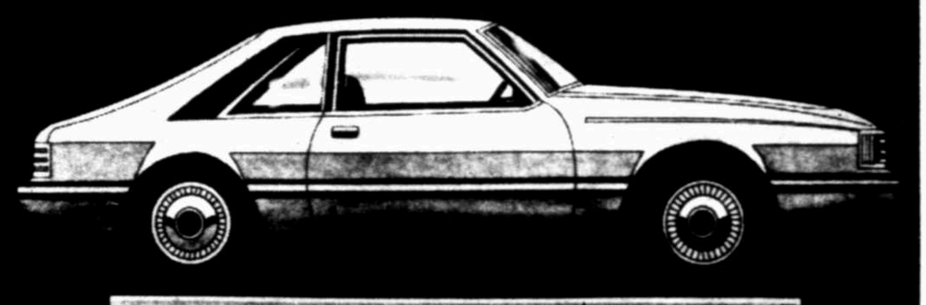

★ The All Saver's Certificate is a limited offer with valuable results.

Pate wins crown, but Kite wins too

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Pate shot a front-running, 1-under-par 71 for a 3-stroke victory Sunday in the Pensacola Open and Tom Kite ended Tom Watson's four-year reign as pro golf's leading money-winner.

Pate, a Pensacola resident and the unofficial host for this event, led throughout the final 18 holes over the 7,133-yard Perdido Bay Club course and scored his second victory of the season with a 271 total, 16 shots under par.

THERE WASN'T any water on the 18th hole, so Pate was unable to duplicate his running dive into a pond to celebrate his triumph in Memphis earlier this season. His big gallery of friends, neighbors and relatives had ~~to be~~ content with a smile and a wave.

Pate, who won the U.S. Open in his rookie season of 1976, collected $36,000 from the total purse of $200,000, boosting his year's earnings to $279,662 with the season now complete.

Although it was much smaller, the $11,600 check picked up by Kite almost certainly was even more welcome. It made him the year's leading money-winner with a final total of $375,699, ending Watson's four-year streak at the top of the money standings.

Kite, who had to make an eagle-2 in Friday's round to qualify for the final 36 holes, finished with a 69 in the chilly, windy weather and a tie for third at 275 with rookie Fred Couples.

COUPLES, WHO clinched a spot in the top 60 money-winners and an exemption from qualifying next year, had a closing 71.

Steve Melnyk, with a closing 70, was second behind Pate in the golf tournament with a 274 total.

Bruce Lietzke, George Cadle and Howard Twitty were next at 276. Twitty and Lietzke had closing 70's, Cadle 71. Ray Floyd shot 73-278.

None of them really were able to put any pressure on Pate. He opened the day's play with a 4-shot lead and wasn't really threatened. Melnyk once pulled to within 2 strokes, but Pate birdied the 15th and 16th and had it locked up.

Watson also failed in his last-gasp attempt to win a fifth consecutive Player-of-the-Year title. He had to win here to do it, and, with a pace-setting 64 in the first round, appeared primed and ready to do just that. But he followed with rounds of 76, 69 and 70 and finished far back in the pack at 281.

So, with the official season complete, that distinction went to Bill Rogers, who did not compete here. Rogers won the British Open, the World Series of Golf, the Heritage Classic and the Texas Open.

KITE, WHO finished the season with an incredible string of 17 finishes of eighth or better in his last 18 starts, also won the coveted Vardon Trophy with a stroke average of 69.80.

"Boy, this has been a tough week, really a very difficult week. I'm glad it's over. It's been a very tough grind," said Kite, who was being pressed by Floyd, Lietzke and Watson for the money-winning title coming into this season-closing event.

"This probably has more meaning than anything I've done in golf."

Floyd, like Watson needing a victory here to take Player-of-the-Year honors, finished second on the money-winning list at $359,359, followed by Watson at $347,660 and Lietzke at $343,446.

Yanks yawn over intramural fist fight

By THOMAS BOSWELL
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

MONTREAL — The distance between Olympic Stadium here and Yankee Stadium in New York may be fewer than 500 miles, but it seems like light years.

If the Montreal Expos meet the New York Yankees in the World Series, it will be a collision of cultural temperaments: congeniality against combativeness, enthusiasm against beleaguered satiety, and a sophisticated, yet fresh French-Canadian smile against a jaded Big Apple snarl.

This isn't just easy pop sociology. It's impossible to travel from grumpy, insulting New York to polite, provincial Montreal without thinking you are on a different planet.

HERE IN the 600 million Standing O, a marvelous mood has been created that mixes cosmopolitan culture, French friendliness and an enthusiasm as invigorating as cold, unpolluted Canadian air. Even American ballplayers, a cash-conscious, borderline cynical crew, get swept up in the simple, silly cheers and forget that they are supposed to have forgotten fun.

After his seven-hit victory on Friday night, Steve Rogers, two enormous ice bags on his elbow and shoulder, bubbled at a mass interview, "I wish my whole defense could be here, 'cause they were wonderful."

It's high-five time in Montreal. The bad blood of the 1979-80 Expos has been systematically drained by team President John McHale, the last drop leaving when Dick Williams joined Ron LeFlore and Ellis Valentine in exile: three guys who wouldn't trust a sunrise.

Now, it's the cheerful guys, like Gary Carter and Warren Cromartie, and the smart ones, like Rogers and Jeff Reardon, and the savvy old ones, like Woody Fryman and Bill Lee, and the funny ones, like Tommy Hutton and Rowland Office, and the young talented ones like Tim Raines and Bill Gullickson, and the just-plain-decent ones like Andre Dawson and Chris Speier, who set the tone.

"We're a real team now," said Rogers, almost in disbelief after the bitter memories of the separatist Expo clubhouses of the past.

THE PAST two years, the Expos seemed tense, joyless and internally divided as they lost division championships on the final weekend; their city was ebullient, but the team wasn't, yet. Now, the Expos and Montreal are one in attitude. How far they seem from New York.

In the Big Apple, the Yankees are yawning over their latest intramural fist fight. Bob Lemon, the perfect seen-it-all manager, wrapped a bow around the incident when he said, "What the hell uid ya expect? This is New York. Am I going to let it go? Why, sure."

It's one of the genuine appeals of the jock world that draeing room manners and delicate feelings do not exist. If you can't take an insult, or give one, if the mood arises, then you might as well get out. If you're appalled by a little punch in the mouth, what are you doing in here?

One of the reasons that professional athletes feel so deprived when they retire is that they never again can be part of a community that is so blunt, so emotionally exposed. Standard clubhouse therapy is simple, and eminently Freudian: whatever it is, get it off your chest, face it, then live w8th it.

Let's face it. Reggie Jackson — charismatic, clutch and even charming as he is — always has, and probably always will, need a periodic punch in the mouth. Anybody who says things like, "God gave me a good pitch to hit," needs all the humbling he can get. In Oakland, it was Bill North who always wanted to clean Reggie's clock and finally did. In New York, Graig Nettles figured somebody would eventually do the deed; he just didn't know it would be him.

JUST A week ago in Milwaukee, Nettles, his good play overshadowed again by Jack on and Dave Winfield, pointed to a dime-sized lapel pin of a cheeseburger on his jacket and said, "We can't all be hot dogs. I guess I'm a cheeseburger in paradise."

The sharpest shame in the Nettles-Jackson punch out is that Jackson managed to steal half a headline from a deserving teammate.

Nettles had to wait a dozen seasons to show the world his glorious glove in the '78 Series. Then he had to wait another three years before he could have a postseason series where he demonstrated why he has more home runs than any American League third baseman in history (exactly 300, counting five in AL championship series).

"It's a shame this happened, especially on such a good day for the ball club, and myself particularly," said Nettles after driving in nine runs in three games (a record) to be playoff MVP.

These days in Montreal, the Expos are winning for the joy of it, and for the satisfaction of making a name for themselves. In New York, the Yankees are winning to keep their jobs, to silence their plantation owner and to maintain their professional respect. No two moods could be more opposite.

In New York, a fan charges on the field and clips an umpire. Nettles, never shy, dives into the rolling bodies in the infield dirt. The miscreant is chucked down the Yankee dugout steps, face first, the way you'd heave an old sled down the basement steps.

In Yankee Stadium, players run off the field face down; look up and anything could hit you. Just four days ago, a baseball from the bleachers nailed Tony Armas in the back and a golf ball wizzed past Goose Gossage's hat.

In Montreal, the players run off the field, faces up, looking into the delighted adoring crowd.

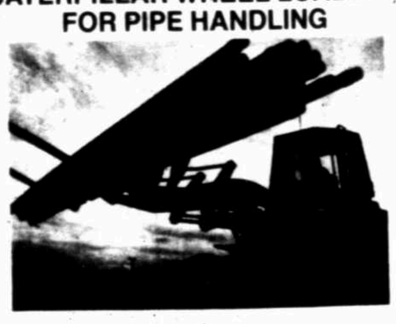

The only thing that hits them is an occasional long-stemmed rose.

Gas heating saves $226 per year!

Compared to the heat pump, gas heating can save you $226 per year on your utility bills. So if you hear that a heat pump is "more economical", remember, that is comparing it to other electric heating . . . not to gas! No other heating system even comes close to gas for economy. At Energas, we are committed to help you get the most for your heating dollar. Gas heating, combined with good conservation practices, saves energy, too.

Rappid Action wins feature

SUNLAND PARK (AP) — Rappid Action picked up where she left off last fall by rolling to a length win in Sunday's featured Don Lewis Memorial Handicap at Sunland Park horse track.

Last fall, Rappid Action was named Horse-of-The-Meet of the fall campaign. The 5-five-year-old mare is owned by Alan Antweil of Hobbs.

The victory Sunday boosted Rappid Action's earnings this year to nearly $27,000. Sent off as the favorite, Rappid Action returned $4.00, $3.40 and $2.80.

True Rounder set the pace in the six furlong race and held on to finish second. The 4-year-old gelding held a length lead midway down the stretch, but could not hold off Rappid Action's closing rush.

True Rounder, a 37-1 outsider, returned $24.00 to place and $12.40 to show. Another longshot, Kings Place, took third and paid $7.20.

The results of all races Sunday:

Six 'cats staked, confirmer completed, DSTs run on two

Basin prospectors have staked six wildcat locations across the region. In additon, they have completed one confirmer and run drillstem tests on on a gas discovery in the Hour, Strawn oil field and a wildcat well in Borden County.

DICKENS WILDCAT

J.E.M. Petroleum Corp., will drill the wildcat No. 1 Edwards to 4,900 feet, six miles northeast of Spur.

The drillsite is 1/2 mile north-northwest of a 4,746-foot dry hole, and generally north of other wells in the Croton Creek (Tannehill) field, which produces from a depth of 4,600 to 4,700 feet.

The location is 1,400 feet from the south, and 2,500 feet from the west line of section 306, block 1, H&GN survey.

PECOS VENTURE

National Petroleum Corp., Houston, will sink the 1,400-foot wildcat No. 1 Duval "A" State 12 miles southwest of Imperial.

The drillsite is in the Heiner, South field area. The field yields production from 1,323 feet in the Yates, to the Ellenburger at 5,397 feet.

The stake is 660 feet from the north, and 2,173 feet from the west line of section 14, block 105 GC&SF survey.

TERRY EXPLORER

McCormick Operating Co., Houston, will drill to 10,500 feet the wildcat No. 1 Black Trust at a site 5 1/2 miles northeast of Wellman.

The location is 500 feet from the south, and 1,400 feet from the east line of section 25, block C-36, PSL survey.

The drillsite is 1/2 mile northeast of the Williamson & Roden No. 1 Williams, abandoned April 27, 1955 at 10,108 feet. In this hole, the San Andres was topped at 4,727 feet, and the Pennsylvanian was topped at 9,893 feet.

LOVING EXTENSION

Clayton W. Williams Jr. Inc., Midland, has completed of an extension to the Vermejo (Fusselman gas) field in Loving County, three miles southeast of Mentone.

The No. 6 Gataga Gas Unit flowed 8,322,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a .219 inch orifice from perforations between 18,931 and 18,961 feet.

Calculated absolute open flow was 11,563,000 cubic feet per day with shut in wellhead preesure of 5,745 pounds per square inch. Flowing tubing pressure was 7,606 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 18,977 feet with 3 1/2 inch liner set at 18,977 feet.

Wellsite is in section 66, block 1, W&NW survey.

COKE WILDCAT

Sun Oil Co., Abilene, has staked location for a 6,600-foot wildcat test in Coke County, one mile southwest of Blackwell.

The new test is the No. 1 Jordan Estate, located 1,980 feet from the north and east lines of section 252, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

The site is 1 3/8 miles east of 6,578-foot Ellenburger production in the Blackwell, East field and four miles east of 4,078-foot Cisco oil production in the White Hat, Southeast field.

TOM GREEN TEST

Alps Oil Co., Odessa, will drill the No. 1 C.L. Latham as a 4,600-foot wildcat in Tom Green County, four miles south of Miles.

Drillsite is 908 feet from the north, and 44 feet from the east line of the German Immigration survey No. 366, 1 1/2 miles south of 4,250-foot production in the Urbam field, two miles southeast of 4,140-foot Canyon oil production in the R.L.G. field.

BORDEN TEST

Harvey E. Yates Co., Artesia, No. 1-25 Key "25-1", a project in the Rafter Cross (Ellenburger) field of Borden County, three miles north of Gail, reversed out 250 barrels of oil on a drillstem test in the Ellenburger between 8,477 and 8,795 feet. The test was open two hours and flowing pressures varied from 2,358 to 3,697 pounds per square inch.

The two-hour final shut in pressure was 3,697 pounds per square inch.

The well is currently bottomed at 8,495 feet and the operator is running logs.

Location is 510 feet from the north, and 660 feet from the east line of section 25, block 30, T-5-N, T&P, and 1 1/2 miles southeast of depleted Ellenburger producion in the Rafter Cross, South field.

The Rafter Cross (Ellenburger) field has only one producer.

TOM GREEN TEST

A Strawn gas discovery was assured in Tom Green County with the flowing of gas for nine hours at the rate of 2,950,000 cubic feet per day plus 12 barrels of condensate, at Natomas North America's No. 3 Jones, a confirmation test in the Hour (Strawn oil) field, 12 miles southwest of San Angelo.

Flow was through a 17/64 inch choke and from perforations between 5,504 and 5,528 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was not reported.

The project is in the C. Schobel No. 757 survey and is 1/4 mile northeast of the same firm's No. 2 Jones, an indicated second producer in the Hour (Strawn oil) field, and 1/4 mile east of the firm's No. 1 Jones, discovery well for the field.

NOLAN SEARCHER

Trenco Inc., Abilene, has staked location for a 5,800-foot deeper pool wildcat in Nolan County, 15 miles northeast of Sweetwater.

The wildcat is the No. 1 Purser, located 1,820 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of the Wm. H. Davis No. 286 survey.

It is 6,200 feet west of 2,741-foot Noodle Creek oil production in the White Flat, North field.

Andrews group meeting

The Andrews Study Group, SPE-AIME, will meet at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, at the Andrews Country Club. Frank Ford of Bell Petroleum Services will talk about "Stressfrac Stimulation Using Tailored Gas Pulse Techniques."

Ford has been involved in the research, development and testing of Stressfrac tools and techniques for the past seven years.

Wood fires, candy bars, sunflowers make 'em go

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — A pickup truck is powered by a wood-burning stove, a small compact runs on sunflower oil and other vehicles burn "snickerhol," an alcohol fuel distilled from waste candy bars.

They were among the 38 cars and trucks that left the Orange County International Raceway Saturday in a cross-country competition where speed doesn't matter but fuel efficiency does.

Entrants in the Alternative Fuels Rally hope to cover 3,300 miles and wind up in Rochester, N.Y., in seven days.

Each car carries a meter to monitor how well it conserves what it's using for fuel. Along the way pit stops will be made at wood piles or "snickerhol" tanks, which will be filled with a fuel made from stale and otherwise unwanted candy bars.

Other cars will fill up on ethanol made from avacado pits, sweet potatoes and corn.

And some won't have to refuel at all. They'll be recharging on solar power and electricity.

The race has had its share of troubles. The driver of the "Real People" entry in a cross-country fuel-efficiency rally was seriously injured Sunday as he left Phoenix, Ariz., to rejoin the road race.

Dave Carmichael, who also is public relations representative for the rally, was hit broadside when he failed to yield the right of way at a stop sign, authorities said. It took more than an hour to remove Carmichael from the wreckage. He was flown to a Phoenix hospital, authorities said.

Shortly after Sunday's accident, a California entrant withdrew from the race, claiming it was badly organized and failed to carry out the alternative-fuel theme of the rally.

William Schumer, president of Lafer Auto Sales of North Hollywood, Calif., pulled his ethanol-powered automobile from the race. On Thursday, Schumer's company filed a $2 million lawsuit against the rally's organizer, Joe Shepard, 37, president of a Rochester, N.Y., computer company.

A Lafer representative said the company filed the suit because Shepard failed to purchase an ethanol-powered automobile he had ordered from Lafer for the race.

Instead, Schumer said, Shepard chose to start the race in a large, gas-burning Lincoln "with flags on it."

A Lafer spokesman said five other cars have dropped from the rally, most for mechanical problems.

Shepard was not available for comment on Schumer's withdrawal.

Shepard has said he hopes the publicity from the rally will break through public apathy, and what he sees as oil company reluctance to become involved in non-fossil fuel sources, by showing that alternative fuels are available and practical.

"I think we (Americans) could be the Saudi Arabia of ethanol. It's the most American thing we could do," he said.

Each of the entrants put up a $200 fee to cover costs. Shepard contributed $25,000 in prize money for the winner.

The cars took off Saturday in a string, every 30 seconds, beginning at 9:52 a.m. Besides Phoenix, overnight stops were scheduled in Albuquerque, N.M., Denver, Omaha, Neb., Chicago and Rochester.

Pesky plants studied as a possible new source of gasoline

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Farmers, who for years have been fighting the pesky milkweed that chokes their crops, one day may be growing the plant and producing gasoline from it.

"We would call it petroleum farming," said Dr. Frank Matta, station operator at the New Mexico State University Agricultural Station extension office in Espanola.

Matta said work was being done at the station with milkweed to weigh the economic feasibility of producing gasoline from the plant.

Research also is being conducted in New Mexico and other areas of the Southwest with such plants as the tumbleweed, jojoba and guayule.

Milkweed is a hardy plant that can grow to 6 feet. Matta says the weed, which for years has been nothing more than a nuisance to farmers, grows wild along roads and in crops in northern New Mexico.

Matta said he was optimistic that an acre of milkweed would produce nearly 400 to 500 gallons of gasoline a year.

The University of Utah, conducting the scientific tests on the weed while NMSU does the actual field work, already has shown gasoline can be produced from the weed.

At the Espanola station, Matta said, is a test plantation site where about one-fourth of an acre of milkweed is growing and being studied.

To produce gasoline, Matta said, the weeds are put through a shredder and the latex substance contained in the plant's sword-shaped leaves is drawn off. The substance then is distilled to gasoline and other products of the petroleum distillate family.

Matta said researchers also had discovered alcohols and proteins could be extracted from the weed.

"It is going to have to be used as a multiproduct crop, in order for its use to be justified," he said.

The milkweed project, started in June 1979, should be completed by 1986, Matta said. But now money is a problem, he said, because financing for the project has been curtailed.

Tumbleweeds also are being looked at as fuel — but fuel for the fireplace, not the car.

Research has been done since 1976 on the use of tumbleweed as a fuel. Dr. Ken Foster, associate director of the Office of Arid Lands Study at the University of Arizona in Tucson, said the product should be ready to market this winter.

Foster said UA researchers had harvested and compressed their first crop of tumbleweeds into "tumble logs," which mostly will be for home use.

Foster and his fellow researchers said they hoped to have about 10,000 logs for a test market in Tucson this winter. He said research was also being conducted on tumble pellets for industrial use.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, October 20, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Humorist Art Buchwald, whose hobbies include astronomy, tennis and poker, celebrates this birthday with you. You will make impressive gains in the coming year but will probably work harder than ever to do so. Romance brings new sunshine into your life. Count on gaining a better financial footing as the result of certain economic changes in 1982. Those around you might not be as trustworthy as you believe. Stay on your toes! Family members are likely to play a larger role in your affairs. You may have to take some unpopular stands to advance your career and financial goals.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A change of style may alert others to your true potential. Financial concerns must be dealt with in a mature manner. Be candid when recruiting family members' support.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The job outlook remains unpredictable. You may have to take on some unpleasant temporary assignments. Duties come before pleasure. Mate's encouraging word will lift your spirits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A step-by-step approach nets you the best results now. Gain the confidence of those with whom you work. Money matters are more confusing than dangerous. Get expert help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not expect too much from others today. Postpone presenting new ideas. Higher-ups are unlikely to be in a receptive mood. Make the best of a difficult situation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check with financial experts to save time, money. See things as they really are. Conservation is the key to greater success. Forget your pride! Steer clear of get-rich-quick schemes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Learn to be more discreet! Expect well-intentioned friends to reveal things you tell them. New skills will lead to career advancement. Concentrate on do-it-yourself projects.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The emphasis is on making new friends and contacts. A fresh love interest could be part of the picture. Do not overlook the obvious. Show more confidence in yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stick to your principles! Exercise greater caution in financial negotiations. Ask special favors of an older relative. Do not get involved in mate's arguments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The best way to become acquainted with new neighbors is to let nature takes its course. Otherwise, they might think you're pushy. Obligations to mate come first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new cast of characters may be taking over at place of employment. This could mean sweeping changes. Do not despair! Most of them will be good for your pocketbook.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Two of your associates may have interests that conflict. Do not get caught in the middle. A good deal of money could be involved in a new opportunity. Stay on your toes!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Curtail spending or your paycheck might not stretch to cover all bills. A "rainy day" fund is an excellent idea. Take co-worker's comments with a grain of salt.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ76 ♡KQ982 ◇3 ♣A43
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	Dble	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has little or nothing, for with any values he should have taken another bid over two spades. Therefore, it is unsound for you to contest the auction any further, especially since partner might have only a four-card club suit. Pass.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1087 ♡J2 ◇AK943 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—It is true that two diamonds, a change of suit by responder, would be forcing. However, we prefer a jump shift of three diamonds. Our experience indicates that failure to jump now and show a strong diamond suit and a game-going hand could lead to complications later in the auction.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10854 ♡Q ◇QJ10652 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♡	Dble	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Some jump bid—not forcing in response to a double—is clearly indicated. While it is quite likely that partner has four spades, we would still choose to jump to three diamonds—there is just too great a disparity between the two suits. If partner is good enough to continue, you will get a chance to show your spades on the next round.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q ♡AKQJ1083 ◇Q85 ♣K4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
Pass Pass ?
What do you open?
A.—While an opening bid of one heart is technically correct, our vote goes to four hearts. Partner's pass rules out any hopes of slam, and since our defensive prospects are limited, we cannot even be sure that it is our hand. The preemptive opening might keep the opponents out of the auction.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♡QJ63 ◇KJ52 ♣A965
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Dble	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's double on the second round is for penalties—he could have doubled one spade had he wanted to hear from you. Pass. Your substantial values will come as a pleasant surprise to partner, and you can expect a handsome penalty.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10762 ♡AQ6 ◇AKQ982
The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid now?
A.—We suggest a slightly aggressive jump to three diamonds. Your hand rates to produce seven tricks, and you should encourage partner to bid again if he has reasonable values. Two diamonds is far too conservative. Also, we would not quarrel with a reverse bid of two hearts, which pinpoints your weakness in the black suits.

DEAR ABBY

Woman wants full loaf

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 60-year-old, attractive, marriage-minded widow who's been dating a 65-year-old, well-to-do, fun-loving widower. He recently moved into my building, and every unattached woman in the building is after him.

He propositioned me once in a cute way, saying, "What's another slice off a loaf of bread that's already been cut?" I made it plain that I wasn't interested in any kind of relationship that didn't include marriage. He insists that marriage is not in his plans.

Now he has a new approach. He told me that his urologist told him that men who are not sexually active are 100 times more susceptible to cancer of the prostate than men who have sex regularly. Is this true, or do you think he's just trying to get me into bed? — LAUDERDALE LIBRA

DEAR LIBRA: It's not true. He's looking for a treat as well as a treatment. Tell him you're sorry, but you can't practice medicine without a license — a marriage license, that is.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance (I'll call him Harry) has lived in an apartment complex for the last three years, during which time he became friendly with Gloria, the girl who lives across the hall. Gloria is moving to a condo next week, so Harry is taking her out "for a drink" next Friday as a sort of friendly farewell gesture. He says he's never dated her and they are just friends. Since Friday night is Harry's night out "with the boys," it didn't cut into our time together.

It seems to me that his taking Gloria out for a drink would constitute a date since I am not included. I'm afraid one drink might lead to another, and before they know it they'll be spending the whole evening together, and if that's not a date I'd like to know what you'd call it.

Abby, if Harry takes Gloria out for a drink, and they are "just friends," shouldn't I insist that I be included? — PROTECTING MY INTERESTS

DEAR PROTECTING: No. Trust Harry and quit making noises like a jealous wife or your fiance might have second thoughts about being married to a jealous and possessive woman.

DEAR ABBY: I have taken singing lessons and am told that I have a lovely voice. I love to sing and am frequently asked to sing at weddings. The problem is that many people I know only slightly (and some strangers) ask me to sing for free.

People don't realize that the soloist must meet with the church organist several times to practice, and gasoline costs money. Also, I have to look nice, which means getting my hair done and my dress dry-cleaned or even buying a new one.

On occasion I've been requested to sing certain songs for which I must buy the sheet music. Nobody seems to take this into consideration.

Abby, when I'm invited to sing at a wedding, I sometimes receive an invitation for the dinner and reception. Do I have to bring a gift? Or can my services be considered my "gift"?

Last week I sang at a Catholic wedding and was given $30, which I was delighted to get. (I never know whether I am going to get paid or not.)

Please print this with a few rules for brides as well as musicians. — FROM MISSOURI

DEAR FROM: When you are asked to sing at the wedding of a friend, bring a gift. (Instead of paying you, they should present you with a gift.

When you are asked to sing at the wedding of a stranger, state your fee. If you're invited to the dinner and reception, bring a small gift as a token. Professionals do not sing for their supper.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

Feminism gives woman a new lease on life

NEW YORK (AP) — In the late 1960s, Alix Kates Shulman wrote a controversial article called "The Marriage Agreement."

"It's really funny thinking back on it now, because at the time it was inconceivable for many, many people that a man should do a dish without destroying his manhood, and I had the audacity to suggest in this agreement that we split the housework and the child care 50-50, that was all. Nothing about sex, nothing about money, and it was scandalous," Ms. Shulman recalled in a recent interview.

Ms. Shulman was born in Cleveland. She attended Western Reserve University and then moved to New York City to study philosophy and mathematics at Columbia University's graduate school. She married and became the mother of two children.

"I was fortunate to be in on the women's movement from the very beginning and it changed my life in a lot of ways," she said. "Before that, in the middle '60s, I had the sense that I had done it, that was it. I had gotten married, had my children and that was it. And then with the great excitement of the new idea of feminism, I began to see it didn't have to be the end."

In 1972, her first novel, "Memoirs of an Ex-Prom Queen," was published and became a best seller. It depicted the fate of a white, middle-class girl who grew up to womanhood in the 1950s, trying to be everything that an ideal woman was expected to be before the women's movement — prom queen, beautiful wife and devoted mother — only nothing worked out as expected.

Ms. Shulman said she had begun writing short stories and children's books after her youngest child had entered nursery school. But she said the women's movement gave her the confidence to persist in "that isolated and arduous work of writing."

Ms. Shulman wrote two books on the anarchist-feminist Emma Goldman. Her second novel, "Burning Questions," published in 1978, was the story of a self-styled rebel who was finally transformed in the late 1960s by radical feminism.

The main characters of her latest novel, "On the Stroll," are a pimp, a teen-age prostitute and a shopping-bag lady.

"Bag ladies are actually homeless women who must carry their possessions with them either because they have no place else to put them, because they're literally without a home, or they can't leave anything that matters to them behind in their rooms because they'll be stolen," Ms. Shulman said.

NEW YORK: Shulman said.

"All kinds of women end up bag ladies and you also understand that they're just people who are poor and are down on their luck. They could be anybody, really, class, education, these things don't seem to make a whole lot of difference," she said.

"I'm not trying to suggest that everybody is on their way to being a bag lady, although that does seem to be a contemporary myth that has entered the consciousness," she said. "Now that the traditional protections that women have had in families, now that they're undergoing enormous changes, are under attack, really, people are scared about what's going to happen to them since the traditional protections are no longer reliable."

As for the prostitute, Ms. Shulman said there were thousands and thousands of 16-year-old girls across the nation who had run away from home, "and when you think about a female runaway's options, it's very difficult to know what all she can do except to go to the street."

The setting for "On the Stroll" is the Times Square section of New York City. Ms. Shulman, who worked for nearly three years writing and researching her novel, volunteered for a program that provided a coffee hour, once a week, for New York bag ladies. She interviewed youngsters who were brought into the offices of New York's Runaway Squad, and also came to realize the pimp "was as much maligned and stereotyped and mythologized as the bag lady and the prostitute."

Ms. Shulman said, "I want my readers to understand that these characters, these people, the bag lady, the prostitute and the pimp, are people just like the rest of us. What's different is the circumstances. But there's nothing depraved about their lives.

"Another thing I wanted to show was that for all three of these people, they have images of a much different and better life. They don't want to be hustling and grubbing."

Ms. Shulman is now at work on a new novel, in addition to her lectures and college workshops on fiction writing.

("On the Stroll," is published by Knopf.)

Cowboy boots rough on feet

Copley News Service

These boots were made for walkin', podnah.

And if you want to kick up your heels to the cotton-eyed Joe, the country swing, the clog — even the traditional square dance — you may be a candidate for the latest self-inflicted foot malady to hit country-western civilization:

The cowboy boot syndrome.

Men, says John M. Connolly, president of the California Podiatry Association, are the prime victims.

"They're suddenly being confronted with a problem that women have put up with for years — trying to wear shoes that never were meant to conform to the human foot," said Connolly, a San Mateo, Calif. podiatrist.

"The pointed toe so important to the urban cowboy fashion look is the culprit. Cowboy boots come to a point, the human foot does not."

The boots, depending on the originality of style and quality of leather, represent an investment of from $40 to $400 (not including bills from the foot doctor).

"If the boots are worn primarily for dancing," said Connolly, "the feet are constantly being subjected to jarring shocks. The result is a pair of aching, tired feet when the dance is over."

Everybody who wears cowboy boots isn't subjected to the problem. Many, podiatrists say, are predisposed to foot problems anyway — the cowboy boot simply accelerates and aggravates the malady.

"I have a pair of cowboy boots myself," said Richard Gilbert, a San Diego, Calif., podiatrist. "They feel fine, very comfortable. I use them when I travel. But I would never recommend them for dancing or proper foot health. I can't think of any condition they might help."

The key to avoiding problems, said Gilbert, is to buy a cowboy boot a half-size or so larger than one's shoe. This allows for greater toe room and the toe will not extend to the pointed tip.

"You may need an inch or an inch and a half between the end of the toe box and your toe," said Michael Simons, president of the San Diego County Podiatry Society.

"If you buy a bigger shoe than normal, and it's too big for your heel, you can insert materials around the back and sides of the boot heel to stabilize the foot."

Simons also suggests breaking in the boot before venturing out onto the dance floor.

"When you break in a boot, it is breaking you down," he said. "Hopefully, you'll win out over the boot. But the boot usually wins out over you."

Simons said he has seen a rash of patients recently suffering from the "cowboy boot syndrome."

His advice:

"I tell them that if they are going to continue to wear the boots, they're going to have problems presently and damage in the long run. I advise them to reduce the wearing time to a minimum.

"But you're talking about vanity. And that usually takes precedence unless the pain is excruciating. This is particularly true of women, the younger ones especially."

Blisters and the aggravation of existing ingrown toenails are the problems he most often sees in boot-wearing dancers, said Simons.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Reseasoning Dutch ovens

DEAR HELOISE:

I have just ruined a double recipe of meatballs and spaghetti sauce — three hours work scorched in my precious old iron dutch oven! Everything seems to stick lately, no matter how carefully I stir and watch.

Could it be that the pot needs reseasoning? If so, could you please tell me how do I do it as I have misplaced your instructions and have turned the house upside down looking for them. Nothing!

Help — The Three Bairds

I think you've diagnosed the problem correctly and your pot does need reseasoning. However, it has been my experience that any food with a high concentration of acid, such as tomatoes have, does not do well when cooked in cast iron.

To get your iron ware back in shape, do this: Wash the utensil in hot sudsy water. Dry it well and then rub the interior of the pot generously with suet or salt-free fat. Put it in a 300F oven for two hours.

Remove it from the oven (use a thick, dry potholder) and wipe off any fat residue with paper towels.

Your pot will be seasoned and ready to use. To keep it that way for as long as possible, follow these simple rules:

Don't wash the utensil with strong detergent. Instead, rinse it in hot water only, using a plastic scouring pad or a nylon net scrubbie to remove any food particles. Dry thoroughly, then apply a light coating of non-stick vegetable spray or cooking oil. Wipe out excess with a paper towel.

Don't ever let the pot soak in sudsy dish water or, worse yet, put it in the dishwasher as this absolutely ruins the finish.

Don't set cast iron on a stove burner to dry — it's too hard on the seasoning — and don't stack other pots or pans on top of your Dutch oven.

If you must do this to save space, place a heavy grocery bag between each piece to avoid scratching and prevent moisture build-up. Also, don't cover the pot with a lid when storing, as this may cause sweating and rusting.

In spite of all these don'ts, cast iron is easy to maintain and is an alltime favorite when it comes to cooking utensils.

It has been handed down from generation to generation and yours can be an heirloom too if you care for it properly.

One more thing...

If, for any reason, the ironware should require reseasoning at any time, just repeat according to directions given. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: Wouldn't it be nice if everyone would take the time to call an elderly neighbor daily or knock on their door to make sure they are O.K.

Just say, "Hi, wanted to make sure you are all right!" This could be a life-saver. — Doris Seipler

BOOT DRYING

Dear Heloise: When trying to dry boots and mittens, slip canning jar rings or something similiar into them so the air can circulate.

The rings will hold them open beautifully. — Mrs. Alice Berger

CRISP SALADS

Dear Heloise: I was preparing a big dinner with salad when I berated myself for not having purchased a salad spinner to remove the excess water from the greens.

Pressed for time, I grabbed a clean mesh grapefruit bag, put in the greens, stepped outdoors and swung it around.

It works! — Karin Cartwright

Cheerleader tracks down alumni

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Bes Kimberly goes to the West Coast she sees Jack Klugman, TV's "Quincy," or William Ball, founder and director of The American Conservatory Theater.

Or she might chat at a Carnegie-Mellon University (CMU) West Coast Drama Clan meeting with Mariette Hartley, Emmy-winner for "The Incredible Hulk" and better half with James Garner in camera commercials.

If you looked in Mrs. Kimberly's ironing room-office in her home, you'd see photos signed affectionately from Klugman, Barbara Feldon, Sada Thompson, George Peppard, all CMU drama alumni. Peppard's message on his photo: "To the woman with whom I've had a love affair for 20 years."

When she travels to the Totem Pole Playhouse in Fayetteville, Pa., Mrs. Kimberly is thrilled at the "royal treatment" she receives from owner Bill Putch, a CMU alumnus, his wife Jean Stapleton, daughter Pamela Putch, a CMU honors grad in drama, and son John.

So who is Bes Kimberly? Elizabeth Schrader Kimberly is Carnegie-Mellon University's 81-year-old "cheerleader."

"She has done more than anyone else and more than we could hope to organize and strengthen ties between the university and its drama alumni," declares Linda Schorr, director of alumni relations.

Mrs. Kimberly, who taught costume design and makeup for 40 years at CMU, has edited the Drama Alumni Newsletter almost single-handedly for the past 30 years.

"When I started the Drama Alumni Newsletter," she said, "it was six purple mimeographed sheets telling about what the 'dramats' were up to." Today, the newsletter, still compiled by Mrs. Kimberly, is close to 60 pages with about 800 items.

Readers of Mrs. Kimberly's newsletter will discover not all the alumni are working in the theater, which is just as well since about 75 percent of the nation's professional actors make $2,500 or less a year at their craft.

The late David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, was a CMU drama alumnus as is James Beard, the "passionate pasha of food," author of some 20 cookbooks.

Many teach. Robert Casey owns and operates a newspaper in Kingston, Mass. Some sell insurance, wait tables and wait "call backs" from auditions. One is even a Florida farmer.

Mrs. Kimberly has tracked down records of every noted theater person who has ever even cut across the campus on his or her way to fame and fortune. For the past 25 years, she has hosted a Christmas party in New York City for the large Drama Clan there.

Leafing through the New York Times one Sunday, Mrs. Kimberly was struck by the theater directory.

"We had a couple of dozen dramats working in Broadway and off-Broadway shows," she observed. "Acting or writing, doing the lights, dancing, designing costumes, producing, directing, criticizing."

Mrs. Kimberly cut out the directory, drew lines out showing who was working in what, toted it all over campus until she arrived at the public relations department where it quickly became a poster. The admissions office mailed thousands of the posters out to high schools, and drama department applications shot up.

Now, Mrs. Kimberly is writing a history of the drama department. Except for the first 12 years, she has experienced that history first-hand.

She met and married her husband, the late George Byron Kimberly, there. Together they worked on some 400 plays put on by the department. She was in charge of costumes, he, the lighting. The students found a home-away-from-home at the Kimberlys, where they congregated after late night "crew" calls. She still lives at the edge of campus.

Mrs. Kimberly, who began her teaching career in the country schools near her hometown of Massillon, Ohio, accumulated two years' worth of credits at Kent State University before coming to Carnegie-Mellon.

"I did four years of a production major (in costumes, sets, lights) at Carnegie-Mellon in two years, and then they offered me a job doing costumes," Mrs. Kimberly said.

After she retired in 1968, "The West Coast Clan kept writing to the powers," she says, still a little embarrassed. "They told them they wanted me kept on to help with the drama alumni." She became a special assistant to the vice president for development. When she reached 70, she retired a second time. But since then she has worked almost full time as a volunteer in the alumni office.

Two drama alumni, Helen Ruth Henderson and her daughter, Helen Lee Henderson, with support from drama clans in New York and California, have shown their appreciation by establishing the Elizabeth Schrader Kimberly Costume Design Award given each year to an outstanding design student.

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans made more than 7 billion calls last year from some 1.5 million public telephones located across the nation, according to Bell System officials.

The latest development in public telephone service is a coinless system under which users can charge a call to their phone company credit card or call collect.

'King of beer' ruled Belgium

The traditional kingly figure often seen astride a beer barrel, holding aloft a glass of beer and smiling broadly, is Gambrinus. His real name was John the First or John Primus, which became Gambrinus.

One of the most popular dukes of Burgundy to rule Belgium at the end of the 13th century, he's now known as the "King of Beer."

Air safety said to be deteriorating

Newsday

There are increasing signs that the nation's air traffic situation is deteriorating and that the government's plan to rebuild the air-traffic-controller work force will inconvenience travelers for two or three years.

Government officials, working air controllers and outside experts say that a relatively successful effort to maintain traffic safely may be faltering in the 2 and 1-2 months since the government fired 11,400 striking members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

"There has been a herculean effort to keep air traffic moving," Ira Furman, deputy director of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Friday. "We're concerned that the people operating the system are beginning to show some strain."

Furman and other experts emphasize that while safety may be threatened if current conditions persist, there is no immediate crisis. Indeed, the Federal Aviation Administration has recognized a need to retune the air-traffic-control system.

"We've begun to institute some rule changes that we expect will give us a greater margin of safety," said Dennis Feldman, an FAA spokesman. Those changes include new restrictions on private aircraft to go into effect Monday, and commercial flight cutbacks.

MOST EXPERTS SAY the FAA has maintained a reasonable level of safety under extraordinarily difficult conditions. But, on Wednesday, the safety board warned FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms that the current force of controllers might succumb to "fatigue and stress which may eventually degrade controller efficiency and aviation safety."

The public is getting hit harder by the strike, too. In recent weeks, flight delays have skyrocketed, providing the most obvious indication of trouble in the system.

From Oct. 1 through 14, there were more than 12 times more flight delays than for the like period last year. Last month, there were more than double the number of delays as in September 1980.

The FAA hopes its planned flight reductions will ease the delays. For the next two months, FAA officials say, travelers can expect cuts in scheduled flights from a level of about 84 percent of pre-strike service to about 77 percent.

The reductions are intended to "give our controllers some vacation time, let them get closer to a 40-hour week, and also to provide a safety cushion for the bad winter weather," Feldman said.

IN ADDITION, IT was learned last week that travelers may be inconvenienced much longer than the FAA had earlier predicted. For the two years it will take the agency to train a full complement of new controllers, the FAA said, air service will be restricted at levels significantly below pre-strike service. But even after two years, the agency expects to eliminate some peak-hour flights from major airports because it intends to eliminate 3,000 jobs from the pre-strike work force after the rebuilding process is complete. In August, the controller force numbered 16,000.

The initial rounds of schedule cutbacks were expected to benefit the airlines by allowing them to carry more passengers on fewer flights, but analysts and industry spokesmen said that has not happened.

Scheduling could change following a decision by the Federal Labor Relations Authority expected this week. The authority, Newsday reported Sunday, is expected to decertify PATCO, possibly opening the way for rehiring some of the strikers.

In the meantime, there has been little help for PATCO members who have been off the job since Aug. 3.

Unmarrieds living together rises

By BRYCE NELSON
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The number of unmarried couples living together tripled during the 1970s and the great majority of them were under 35, the Census Bureau reported Sunday.

The bureau's report, "Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1980," painted a picture of rapid and substantial change in the life styles of Americans during the 1970s.

It said a nationwide survey of 65,000 households last year also showed that:

—The number of children under 18 living with only one parent has increased sharply, from 11.9 percent of the nation's children in 1970 to 19.7 percent in 1980, mainly because of higher rates of divorce, separation and illegitimacy.

—The number of single-person households increased by 64 percent from 10.9 million in 1970 to 17.8 million in 1980. About 23 percent of U.S. households now consist of just one person.

—Much of the increase in such households is because three times as many persons under 35 lived alone in 1980 as in 1970.

—The age at which people marry continues to rise — the median age at first marriage for women rose from 20.8 years to 22.1 years during the 1970s, while the age for men rose from 23.2 to 24.6. The marriage age is now almost identical to what it was more than a half-century ago.

—Divorce continues to increase sharply. The ratio of divorced persons per 1,000 married persons living with spouses more than doubled — from 47 per 1,000 in 1970 to 100 per 1,000 in 1980.

—The divorce rate was much higher among blacks than among whites and Latinos.

White House, Baker reach budget agreement

By HELEN DEWAR
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — White House officials reached agreement Sunday with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., on a new budget plan that would cut less in spending and raise more in revenues than President Reagan requested last month, according to sources.

The plan, roughly in line with a strategy developed by Senate Republican leaders last Friday, is aimed at reaching Reagan's goal of more than $100 billion in new savings by 1984.

But, the sources said, it falls $2.5 billion to $3 billion short of Reagan's target of $16 billion in additional savings — on top of $35 billion already approved by Congress — for the 1982 fiscal year that began Oct 1.

As recommended by Senate leaders, only $5 billion to $6 billion would be cut from appropriations, in contrast to the $10.4 billion that Reagan recommended. Reagan had proposed that $2 billion be cut from spending increases planned for the Pentagon, with the rest to be cut from non-defense programs. Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., has proposed a cut of $4 billion from defense and other Senate sources have said $3 billion in defense cuts are likely.

The major difference between the congressional and administration proposals comes in the area of revenues, with the agreement calling for $48 billion in new revenues over the three-year period, or about double what Reagan proposed.

Reagan called for $3 billion in "revenue enhancement," as the administration described the plugging of some tax loopholes, for fiscal 1982. The Senate Finance Committee has also been considering other sources of revenue, such as increased excise taxes on cigarettes and alcoholic beverages and the consumer interest tax credit on items other than autos and home mortgages.

From $7 billion to $8 billion in new revenues would be anticipated for this fiscal year, although there reportedly would be no effort to pass another tax bill before Congress recesses at the end of the year.

Instead, the second (and theoretically final) budget resolution for 1982 that Congress is expected to begin drafting this month will anticipate tax increases later in the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, 1982, a task that may prove difficult in a congressional election year.

The compromise — reached between Majority Leader Baker and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III and Office of Management and Budget Director David A. Stockman — reflected congressional anxiety over further heavy budget cuts in the wake of deep cutbacks in domestic spending that Congress approved last summer at Reagan's behest.

The accord is also seen as relieving pressure that has been building in Congress for a deferral of the big individual income tax cuts that Congress also approved last summer.

Airline executives support firing of controllers

By JAMES PELTZ
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Executives of many airlines say they still support President Reagan's firing of striking air traffic controllers despite new urgings that some controllers be rehired to ease the strain on the nation's aviation system.

"We are completely satisfied with the handling of the matter by our government," said John J. Casey, chairman of Braniff International Airways. "I think the worst of it is behind us. I don't see any reason to change."

About 11,500 members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization who struck Aug. 3 were fired by Reagan on grounds they broke a law prohibiting strikes by federal employees.

The staff of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee contended last week, however, that Reagan had no alternative but to rehire "a substantial number" of the controllers as "the only way to lessen the strain on the system."

Reagan aides have said the president has not changed his position, despite the adjustments that had to be made because of the firings.

The FAA ordered scheduled airlines and private planes to cut the number of flights to about 75 percent of the pre-strike average. In order to assure safety with fewer controllers, the government has expanded the distance between flights in part by making some planes wait longer on the ground. But while that has irked travelers, the delays are no reason to have second thoughts about the president's stand, many carriers say.

"American Airlines has supported the decision and we shall continue to support the administration's position," said Gene E. Overbeck, a senior vice president at American.

Delta Airlines "fully supports the actions of the Reagan administration," said David Garrett, the line's president and chief executive officer. He called the firings "appropriate and necessary."

The Air Transport Association, which represents the carriers, "continues to support the government's action," said spokesman Daniel Henkin. "A strike is illegal," he said. "We believe laws should be upheld."

Braniff's Casey said that before the strike, the PATCO members had been led to believe they could get away with anything," which resulted in "an almost pompous attitude in the way they were handling our operations." If they were rehired, he added, "I could see nothing but trouble if we brought them back and let them get away with it, so to speak."

Opinions on the effects of Reagan's actions are mixed. While some have criticized the firings for leading to the layoff of about 15,000 airline workers, others believe the flight reductions simply accelerated cutbacks that were coming because of many airlines' overcapacity after a two-year decline in the number passengers.

The fourth quarter of the year normally is a time of slackening air traffic, and with the U.S. economy in an apparent recession, several analysts say the carriers would have cut their operations and staffs regardless of whether flights had been reduced.

The strike "has given them an excuse to reduce their capacity not only for the seasonal low period but for the recessionary period," said Robert Errigo, analyst for the investment firm Prescott, Ball & Turben.

Casey said he still thinks "it was a real tragedy to have this strike. The airlines still have facility and equipment which have to be paid for and which are not being used effectively."

"On the other hand, there is the recession, or declining economy, and the volume of passengers is substantially less than a year ago," he said. "Most of the carriers would probably have had to reduce the size of their operations."

Julius Maldutis, a vice president with the New York investment firm of Salomon Brothers, noted that the PATCO strike "exacerbated an already weak situation," but added that the "FAA-mandated reductions in operations will help the excess capacity-competitive equation, as carriers seek to rationalize their equipment and route systems."

Trans World Airlines did not specifically state a position when Reagan fired the controllers. "The only thing we've asked subsequent to the strike is that we all maintain the integrity and safety of the system," said Jerry Cosley, TWA vice president for public affairs.

But he added that despite the flight reductions, TWA currently is operating at less than 5 percent of where it had planned to operate anyway. "The average air traveler or consumer — except for delays — should see nothing different out there than from pre-PATCO," he said.

Although the airlines are not happy about delays, many consider them a necessary side effect of assuring safety in a system with fewer controllers. The ATA says less than 5 percent of flights are being delayed, and most of those are in the heavily traveled Northeast corridor, although delays there often mean delays for other flights connected to that area.

Papandreou may soften anit-Western platform

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Andreas Papandreou, who won a landslide victory in general elections Sunday, may be forced by Greece's precarious position to soften the anti-Western platform he campaigned on.

The 62-year-old leftist, at rallies throughout the country, had called for Greece's withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and for a referendum to decide the country's future within the European Common Market. He also campaigned against American military installations in mainland Greece and on the island of Crete, where the U.S. Navy's 6th Fleet enjoys anchorage and shore facilities.

But veteran political observers said that despite the majoring Papandreou's Panhellenic Socialist Movement party received, such a radical turn in foreign policy would be difficult to carry out without endangering the nation's security.

Greece is bordered on the north by the communist countries of Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, with Turkey, its longtime foe to the east. NATO miltary experts consider Greece one of the alliance's bulwarks — along with Turkey — against any communist threat to the eastern Mediterranean.

How Papandreou's foreign policy will develop is difficult to foresee - he has told the Greek electorate one thing and his foreign listeners another.

In conversations with foreign journalists, Papandreou said he wants to phase out the American military installations slowlu if he is unable to obtain better terms from the United States for more military credits and modern equipment.

On the question of Greece remaining in the Common Market, Papandreou has told foreign audiences that he wanted better conditions for Greek agriculture and industry.

An indication that he has watered down his opposition to the Common Market came within hours of the election victory. Papandreou said he planned to meet with Common Market commissioners to discuss the country's future relationship with the community.

If he does negotiate better terms, it appears certain Papandreou would not call for a referendum, avoiding a clash with President Constantine Caramanlis who has the final say on whether such a vote should take place.

Caramanlis, who signed the 1961 association agreement with the Common Market in order to give Greece time to prepare for full membership, would be unlikely to agree to such a referendum and watch 20 years of his hard work be shattered. Greece joined the Common Market as a full member last January.

Papandreou's anti-NATO stance could also be an attempt to force the Western allies to get Turkish troops out of areas they have occupied on Cyprus since they invaded the island republic in 1974.

Caramanlis, who was then premier, pulled Greece out of NATO's military wing in 1974, claiming the alliance was incapable of solving sensitive issues between its members. Last year, Greece returned to the alliance without being able to budge Turkey out of Cyprus. Papandreou may use Greece's NATO membership as a trump card as he prepares the groundwork for his new foreign policy.

Box 1152, Midland, Texas, 79702, until 2:00 p.m., on the 2nd day of November, 1981, and then publicly opened and read aloud in the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, at that time. Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked "Proposal for Block 10, Davis Heights Addition, Second Section."

A certified check or bank money order, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City, in the amount of the bid, apyable without recourse to the City of Midland, must accompany the bidder's proposal as a guaranty that the bidder will accept a conveyance to said land from the City for the amount bid, if he is successful. The appraised value of this property is $18,000 (Eighteen Thousand Dollars). Bids without the required check or money order will not be considered. All other checks will be promptly returned after the bid is awarded.

The City of Midland will issue a Special Warranty Deed and the bidder must satisfy himself as to title and acquire all desired abstracts and other title information or insurance solely at this own expense, and all other costs of sale, if any, must be borne solely by the successful bidder.

The proposed sale and Special Warranty Deed will be subject to the following conditions and covenants which shall expressly be made a part of the deed, to wit:

PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that this conveyance shall not effect the rights of any utility company, having pipelines, poles and transmission lines with appurtenances, or easements, which exist in, over, under, through or across the above described tract.

The City reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids, to waive technicalities, to negotiate with any of the bidders, and to make any investigation deemed necessary as to a bidder's financial status."

Valero Energy Corporation is a FORTUNE 500 company with significant involvement in the natural gas transmission and processing industries. It has an expanding interest in refining, exploration and production and many other key energy-related activities.

San Antonio, corporate headquarters for Valero, has grown to be one of the largest cities in the country. And it is laying the groundwork for a stronger and even more dynamic future. An exciting city and a growing company: it's a good combination for developing a career.

The following positions are excellent opportunities to help build batch processing and interactive applications for use throughout the corporation. Corporate computer support facilities include an IBM 370/303x with MVS, TSO/APL, and IMS/ADF.

Computer Systems Analysts
VARIOUS LEVELS-Will design, develop and implement computer and manual systems to solve business problems. Senior positions have some supervisory responsibilities and may lead to management positions. Minimum requirements for lower level positions include a Bachelors degree and 1+ years COBOL programming experience. Additional experience may be substituted for formal education.

Systems Analysts-Refining
VARIOUS LEVELS-Will design and install manual and computer based systems to solve business problems and improve planning, control, and operating results in a large refining environment. Senior positions have some supervisory responsibilities and may lead to management positions. Requires Bachelors degree with a minimum of 2 years programming and analysis experience in support of a refining operation. Additional experience may be substituted for formal education.

Information Center Analyst
Will provide interactive users throughout Valero with programming assistance and system design consultation, as well as help users interface with their data in a TSO environment. Knowledge of user oriented tools (i.e. EASYTRIEVE, IFPS, APL or SAS) a definite plus. Requires a college degree in business or science, good communications skills and a demonstrated ability to function independently.

Technical Specialist
Will provide operating system and technical support for corporate computer center. Specialists support a variety of IBM and non-IBM software products. This position offers an opportunity for professional achievement in a progressive environment. Requires college degree with computer background and 2 years of support experience in an MVS/JES 2/IMS environment. Additional relevant experience will be considered in lieu of degree.

IMS Data Base Specialist
Will interface with system development staff in the design, review and implementation of IMS Data Base systems. Candidate must have a Bachelors degree or equivalent data processing experience with a minimum of 2 years experience in data base design, application program support, data dictionary support and data base performance tuning procedures.

Opportunities exist in this growing organization for personal and professional advancement.

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt, the point man in the Reagan administration's attack on "environmental extremists," has taken on another role — darling of the rubber chicken and green pea circuit.

Watt has become one of the most successful fund-raisers in the Republican Party, his aides say, and he is playing a major role in building party coffers for the 1982 congressional races.

He's become so popular, in fact, that for the rest of the year he will spend more time out raising money for Republicans than he will in his office, aides say.

AND AFTER A BRIEF lull in January and February, he will resume that pace for the rest of the campaign season, according to Doug Baldwin, Watt's assistant secretary for public affairs.

"He is in tremendous demand as a fund-raising speaker and he takes his political responsibilities very seriously," Baldwin said.

However, the amount of time Watt is devoting to political affairs over a year before the 1982 congressional elections has raised some eyebrows — primarily among Watt's critics in the environmental community.

"If he wants to be a political fund-raiser, he should join the staff of the Republican National Committee," said John McComb, Washington director for the Sierra Club. "He is paid to be the Interior Secretary and I question the propriety of his spending so much time in political pursuits."

RAFE POMERANCE, PRESIDENT OF Friends of the Earth, said that Watt's fund-raising could quickly produce conflicts with his role as chief steward of public lands.

"It troubles me that you have somebody in a position as a major regulator for the federal government out raising so much money," Pomerance said.

But Baldwin said Watt sees no conflict with his official responsibilities and his political activities.

"A Cabinet secretary wears a bonafide political hat. He is expected to do this, and Watt is willing to make the sacrifices of his own time to do it extensively," Baldwin said.

Watt's current availability for fund-raising functions is a drastic turnaround from his first six mnths in office, when he turned down all out-of-town speaking engagements as he put his own stamp on the department.

"THAT WAS ALL BY DESIGN," Baldwin said. "He wanted to get things done. Unfortunately, that meant that for the first six months people heard about Watt through the megaphone of the Sierra Club and the Wilderness Society."

Watt's own actions and the outcry they have provoked have made him the most controversial member of Reagan's Cabinet. But they also have made him a hero to the big-money types who contribute heavily to Republican campaigns.

Officials at the Republican National Committee said Watt has raised more than $400,000 for them, and Baldwin said that does not include a substantial sum Watt has raised for local Republican candidates.

Watt's political activities began in earnest in September when he took a month-long swing through his native West, making fund-raising appearances in Montana, Utah, Idaho, Arizona and New Mexico.

His rhetoric on the stump was vintage Watt.

"The liberals are after me," he said in one appearance after Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., had called for his resignation. "But we have the issues. The liberals are bankrupt, both financially and intellectually."

Kania replaced as Polish leader

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party on Sunday ousted moderate leader Stanislaw Kania after 14 turbulent months in office and called for an "immediate halt" to strikes by Solidarity, the official PAP news agency reported.

Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski, an army general who also is the defense minister, was promptly elected to replace Kania as party first secretary, the news agency said.

It was believed Jaruzelski would hold all the posts at least temporarily, and in his acceptance speech he said the Central Committee and Parliament would meet this week to make more changes.

"We haven't sought confrontation," he said. "We have always avoided it. Today we are not striving for it either, but one thing is certain: Our possibilities for retreat have been exhausted."

WORD OF KANIA'S OUSTER was reported without comment by the media in the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact nations, which have been bitter critics of his moderate policies.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Susan Pittman said, "It's too soon for a full assessment, but we note that as minister of defense and, since February, as premier, Jaruzelski has associated himself with a policy of seeking negotiated solutions with Solidarity," the independent labor federation.

Previous shakeups in the Polish party and government have been accompanied by rumors of possible Soviet intervention, and Ms. Pittman said there was no indication of unusal Sovieo troop movements along the Polish border.

PAP said Kania submitted his resignation during a stormy session of the 200-member Central Committee, which ended its meeting Sunday that began Friday. Polish media said 104 committee members voted to accept the resignation and 79 were opposed. The reports did not say if the others abstained or were not present. They said 180 of 184 voting members cast their ballots for Jaruzelski to become the party's third leader since 1980.

THE COMMITTEE ALSO demanded an "immediate halt" to strikes, and asked the Parliament to "temporarily suspend the right to strike" won by Solidarity, the only independent union in the Soviet bloc. It was founded in August 1980 amid a wave of nationwide strikes.

Scattered labor actions had been reported Friday, with women weavers in Zyrardow occupying mills for a fourth day to protest food shortages and teachers in Tarnow holding a sit-in to press demands for better school facilities.

The Central Committee resolution calls on the government to take drastic steps if needed to "defend the most vital interests of the state and nation."

Many party members had called for firm action against leaders they said were "ineffective." The decision to replace Kania, 54, with Jaruzelski apparently represented that feeling by the party members. However, PAP gave no reason for the resignation.

"Kania had apparently lost much support and had taken a harder line," a Western diplomatic observer said. "It seems, though, that the committee was absolutely fed up that he wasn't doing what they wanted."

JARUSELSKI, A STERN, SILENT career military officer, has been minister of defense since 1968 and became a Politburo member in 1971. He became premier last February, replacing Jozef Pinkowski who resigned.

Since he became premier, Jaruzelski, 58, has appointed several generals to his Cabinet or top positions in the government, heading the ministries of the interior and mining as well as the Polish national airline LOT.

Jaruzelski was a supporter of Kania's "line of agreement," or peaceful solution to Poland's problems and Solidarity demands, but he recently took a harder stance, urging Solidarity three weeks ago to moderate its policies.

It was not immediately clear if the switch forecasts a tougher line against the 9.5 million-member union, which had boldly challenged Poland's Communist authorities for power in the past year.

In Lens, France, a spokesman for Solidarity head Lech Walesa, said, "I would be very surprised if the move signals a hardening (of the position of the Communist Party) because that would have dramatic consequences." Walesa is in France at the invitation of labor unions there and said he saw no reason to cut short the trip.

Greek elections signal radical shift in pro-Western stance

By GILLIAN WHITTAKER
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The left-wing Panhellenic Socialist Movement defeated the conservative New Democracy Party of Premier George Rallis in crucial elections Sunday that signal a radical shift in this NATO nation's pro-Western stance.

With 60 percent of the vote counted, Andreas Papandreou's Panhellenic Socialist Movement — Pasok — had 47.7 percent of the popular vote, more than enough to control the 300-member single-chamber Parliament under Greece' complicated election system.

Pasok is pledged to withdraw Greece from the NATO military alliance, close down American bases and call a referendum on whether the country should pull out of the 10-nation European Common Market.

Papandreou is a Harvard-educated economist who served in the U.S. Navy in World War II and became an American citizen, but then renounced that citizenship when he ran for the Greek Parliament in 1964. He told reporters at his home in suburbat Athens, "We will build a socialis Greece."

IN A NATIONALLY broadcast victory speech, Papandreou said, "We are determined to carry out our program. You have given us a strong overall majority in Parliament so that we can unhesitatingly achieve our program."

Computer analysis of the incomplete returns showed Pasok getting 173 seats to 111 seats for New Democracy and 14 seats for the Moscow-oriented Communist Party. The analysis indicated no other parties would win representation in Parliament.

The outgoing Parliament, elected in 1977, had members from seven parties, with New Democracy holding 171 seats and Pasok 93.

A dejected Rallis went to the press center in a downtown hotel to announce his defeat before hundreds of journalists.

"I hope the Greek people will not be sorry for their decision," Rallis said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Sue Pittman said the United States expects to retain a close relationship with Greece.

"The United States and Greece have long been allies, and we look forward to continued close relations," she said. "We believe a good bilateral relationship is in the interests of both Greece and the United States. We want to have the best relations with that government, and we intend to do what we can to foster them."

As Rallis made his short address, thousands of Pasok supporters were running through the streets, cheering their victory. Cars carrying green and white Pasok flags raced throught the main avenues with horns honking.

AFTER HIS CONCESSION, Rallis telephoned Papandreou to congratulate him. President Constantine Caramanlis also called the Pasok leader to offer congratulations. Papandreou is to meet with Caramanlis Monday to receive his four-year mandate.

Rallis conceded defeat within three hours of the closing of the nation's polling stations. Some seven million Greeks were eligible to vote, choosing between 2,916 candidates of 14 parties ranging from extreme right to revolutionary left.

The policies of the Pasok and the New Democracy Party were diametrically opposed, with Rallis calling for continued ties to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Common Market.

In domestic policy, Rallis said his party supported free enterprise and promised better housing and medical facilities for workers. Papandreou called for "socialization" of such important industries as banking, shipbuilding and pharmaceuticals. He also supported legalized abortion, government decentralization and clear separation of church and state — permitting marriage and divorce without sanction of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Rauf Denktash, leader of Cyprus' Turkish minority, said he hoped Papandreou's victory would not encourage "extreme elements" to press for military action on the divided island.

Denktash, in Rome for a meeting with Italian officials, said, "If Papandreou makes the statements he issued before the election into government policy, we're in for bad times."

In Nicosia, the capital of Cyrprus, bands of Greek Cypriot socialists celebrated Papandreou's victory with noisy motorcades.

WHEN TURKEY SENT troops into Cyprus in 1974, Greece pulled out of NATO's military wing to protest the lack of a response by NATO. Turkey also is a NATO member.

During the campaign, Papandreou criticized the subsequent Greek decision to rejoin the alliance as a full member while Turkish troops remained in Cyprus.

Moshe Dayan laid to rest in simple funeral

NAHALAL, Israel (AP) — Moshe Dayan, Israel's soldier-statesman who fought as hard for peace as he did for victory on the battlefield, was buried Sunday in a simple funeral at his boyhood village in the Galilee.

Thousands of people lined the road as the cortege drove to the little cemetery on a wooded hilltop overlooking a freshly harvested field. A throng of friends, relatives and dignitaries pressed around the grave.

The nation followed the funeral on a live Israel Radio broadcast. The press recorded Dayan's death as the passing of a legendary figure, a modern-day incarnation of the ancient Israelite kings and warriors.

Dayan led Israel's army through three wars as chief of staff and, later, defense minister. Then, as foreign minister, he helped negotiate peace with Egypt.

The gaunt 66-year-old statesman with the world-famous eyepatch suffered a heart attack Friday at Sheba Hospital outside Tel Aviv, where he died in the arms of his wife, Rachel.

BUT IT WAS HIS longstanding wish to be buried at Nahalal, 50 miles northeast of Tel Aviv, where he grew up in a farming commune and learned to handle a gun.

Dayan had insisted on an unadorned funeral. His coffin, draped in the blue-and-white Star-of-David flag, lay in state for two hours in the Nahalal cultural hall.

Then six army generals lowered the plain timber box into the grave as Dayan's sons Ehud and Assaf read Kaddish, the Jewish prayer for the dead, and a military cantor sang benediction.

Dayan's daughter Yael, 42, wept bitterly.

His widow, 55, kept her composure until the last minutes. Then, picking a yellow flower from one of the wreaths piled chest high on Dayan's grave, she broke down in tears and walked away.

Also at the graveside was Dayan's first wife, Ruth, who he divorced in 1971. All of Dayan's three children are by his first marriage.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who Dayan served as foreign minister until resigning in 1979 in a policy dispute, placed a wreath on the grave in the name of his government. President Yitzhak Navon and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon joined Begin in comforting the family.

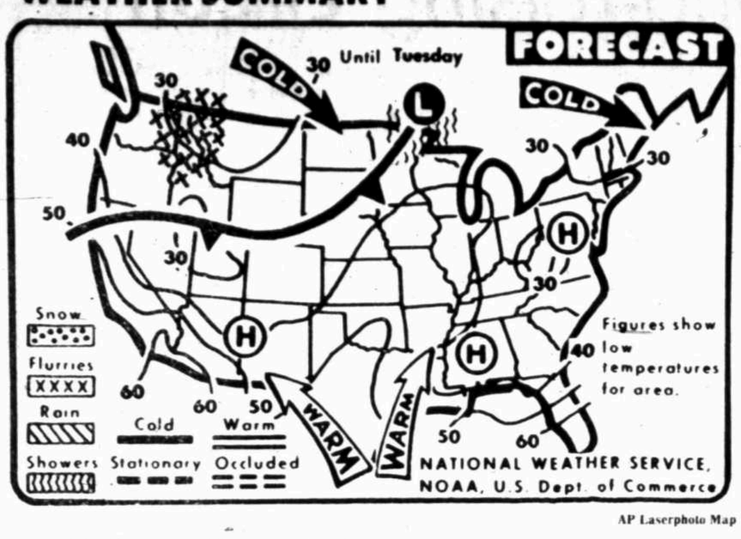

It was the second state funeral Begin attended in eight days. The Saturday before last he was in Cairo for President Anwar Sadat's burial.

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Tax Court has held that the "marriage tax penalty" is constitutional even though it discriminates against millions of working couples.

A New York couple challenged current tax laws with the argument that "we are unable to comprehend why we should pay several thousand dollars more in taxes than if we chose to get a divorce for one day ot of each year."

The court ruled: "We think it sufficient for us to state that the differences in exposure to tax liability between married and single persons do not rise to the level of an impermissible interference with the enjoyment of the fundamental right to marry or remain married."

The marriage penalty results from tax laws that set a higher tax rate and a lower standard deduction for married persons who file separate returns than for single taxpayers. An estimated 17 million working couples thus pay more taxes than if they were single.

Congress has taken a step to reduce that penalty. In 1982, a working couple filing a joint return will be allowed a special deduction of up to $1,500; in 1983 and later years the dedction will rise to a $3,000 aximum.

But that relief comes too late for James O. and Joan S. Druker of New York. The court ruling on the marriage penalty and an unrelated issue will cst them $5,833 in extra taxes for 1975 and 1976.

The Internal Revenue Service anted to assess the Drukers an additional $294 in penalties because they intentionally disregarded IRS regulations by using tax rates for single persons. But Chief Judge Theorore Tannenwald Jr., who wrote the opinion, rejected that claim in the ruling released late last week.

Druker, a lawyer who formerly worked in the U.S. attorney's office in New York, and his wife filed separate returns as married individuals in 1975 and 1976. But instead of figuring their taxes from tables for marrieds filing separately, the Drukers used tables for unmarried persons.

Druker attached a letter to his return explaining to IRS just what he was doing. "We feel most strongly that the present income tax structure unfairly discriminates against working married couples, and as such is violative of the equal-protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"We are perfectly prepared to litigate this matter, and to pay any taxes due plus interest in the event that we do not prevail," Druker added. "We feel that this course is preferable to that of the sham Dec. 31 divorce-Jan. 1 remarriage used by so many couples to legally obtain a single person's filing status."

The Drukers contended that separate tax rates spring from the notion that married women stay at home as non-earners; they cited a Supreme Court decision that struck down a welfare law that mentioned fathers but not mothers. Judge Tannenwald rejected that argument on grounds the marriage penalty hurts male and female equally.

The Drukers also referred to the famous California decision in which Michelle Triola, who had lived with actor Lee Marvin, was awarded a share of his property. That and similar state decisions blurred property-right distinctions between married and unmarried couples living together, the Drunkers contended, and thus federal laws with such distinctions no longer have a rational basis.

Tannenwald dismissed that point as "at best, disingenuous." He quoted from the Marvin decision: "Lest we be misunderstood...we take this occasion to point out that the structure of society itself largely depends upon the institution of marriage, and nothing we have said in this opinion should be taken to derogate from that institution."

Glenn accuses administration of 'political bribery'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, accused the Reagan administration Sunday of trying to use "political bribery" to win Senate approval of its proposed sale of five AWACs radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

Glenn, interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," said a "high-placed White House official" promised one senator that the administration would not campaign against his re-election if he would support the sale.

Another senator was told that his choice to fill a U.S. attorney's seat would be cleared by the administration if he went along with the president on the $8.5 billion arms deal, said Glenn, who opposes the sale.

"I deplore that kind of political horse-trading; it's political bribery," he said. "I think we can do better than that in this country."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., told reporters last week that a Republican friend had suggested to him that Reagan would not campaign against his re-election if he supported the sale.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, who is leaning against the sale, refused Reagan's invitation to meet with him last week after he was "strong-armed" by a White House official, according to a Grassley aide.

The aide, who asked not to be identified, said the White House official appeared to link Grassley's AWACS vote to administration approval of his choice for a U.S. attorney.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes denied the allegations, saying, "We don't operate that way."

Meanwhile, Undersecretary of State James Buckley said on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker: Sunday" show that Congress should not have the power to veto such sales.

"This arrangement, which I personally question the constitutionality of, has greatly complicated the ability of the president to conduct foreign policy," Buckley said. He accused congressional opponents of the AWACS deal of being "back-seat drivers."

Glenn denied that Congress is going beyond its proper role in questioning the sale or Reagan's foreign policy.

"When the president said the Congress is hamstringing him on this, he has hamstrung himself by not cooperating with us when he knew our advice and consent was going to be necessary before this deal could be consummated," Glenn said.

According to the latest Associated Press count, there are now 51 senators lined up against the AWACS sale and 38 in favor of it. Eleven senators say they are still undecided.

The Senate will vote on the deal next week. A simple majority against it is all that is needed to halt the deal. The House voted overwhelmingly against the sale last week.

Prosecutors want to depict murder scene

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The second week of Vickie Daniel's murder trial began in state court here today, with prosecutors still intent on clearly depicting the scene at the Daniel home the night Price Daniel Jr., a former Texas House Speaker, was shot to death.

"I think we have to account for everyone at the scene," explained Darroll Wilborn, district attorney for Liberty County and chief prosecutor of Mrs. Daniel. "We're still setting the scene, making sure everything is clear in the jury's minds. I'm not worried about boring the jury..."

Wilborn began his case slowly when testimony opened Wednesday, calling as witnesses most of the people who arrived at the scene of the Jan. 19 murder.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmerman questioned each witness at length, often inquiring about the actions of Daniel's brother, Houston, who was also at the house.

"He's just trying to plant another seed of reasonable doubt in the jury's mind about what happened that night," Wilborn said, adding that he may call as many as eight more people who were at the scene.

Zimmerman said no decision has been made as to whether Mrs. Daniel, the only person who witnessed the shooting, will testify.

In trial last spring to determine the custody of her children, Mrs. Daniel testified she did not remember shooting Daniel but said if she did shoot him, it was an accident. She said the couple had argued about marijuana and he had beaten her.

She said she pulled a rifle out of a closet to scare her husband, fired a warning shot, then shut her eyes and heard a "funny noise."

So far, each side has introduced stacks of photographs, and the state also has entered into evidence Daniel's bloodstained clothes and the rifle. Both sides promise some evidence not brought out in the child-custody case.

Man wanted on felony warrants in five states remains in Potter County jail

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A man wanted on at least five felony warrants in five different states remained in Potter County jail here Sunday night after being arrested by a Texas highway patrolman during a routine license check, officials said.

Marion Albert Pruett, wanted in connection with several robberies, the abduction of a Jackson, Miss., bank employee and the slayings of two convenience store clerks in Colorado, was arrested Saturday night near Stratford in the Texas Panhandle.

Sherman County sheriff's officers in Stratford said federal agents took Pruett to the Potter County jail by federal agents early Sunday.

A sheriff's spokeswoman said she was told by federal agents that Pruett was named in as many as seven felony warrants out of seven states. The FBI confirmed that Pruett, 32, was wanted on warrants issued by city, county or state law enforcement agents in Jackson, Miss.; Albuquerque, N.M., Fort Smith, Ark., and Pittsburgh, Pa., and Seattle, Wash.

Federal agents in Mississippi were seeking Pruett in connection with a Sept. 17 savings and loan robbery in Jackson. The abducted bank employee, Peggy Lowe, has not been seen since she vanished with the robber. Officials said Ms. Lowe was not with Pruett when he was arrested Saturday.

Police in Fort Collins, Colo., said Pruett was suspected in connection with two robbery-homicides at convenience stores in Fort Collins and Loveland, Colo.

James Balderson, 24, was shot to death in a Fort Collins store about 3 a.m. Friday, and Anthony Taitt, 21, was murdered about two hours later at a store in Loveland, about 15 miles from the scene of the first robbery.

Fort Collins police said it was looking for two men in both cases. The robberies netted a total of $60.

Texas authorities said Pruett had a hitchhiker when he was arrested Saturday. The rider was not detained but Colorado police were trying to find him for questioning, said Fort Collins Police Lt. Jerry Haals.

"Evidence links him (Pruett) to our area at the times of the homicides early Friday," Haals said. Investigators from Loveland and Fort Collins were sent to Texas to follow up the lead, he said.

FBI officials said Pruett was driving a 1969 Cadillac with New Mexico plates that had been reported stolen when he was arrested Saturday night.

Pruett, who was using the name Leroy Esmond, offered no resistance to arresting officers, officials said.

Windows smashed at Ron's Auto Engine

Thefts and a major criminal mischief case were being investigated this morning by Midland police.

Larry Ritchie reported the criminal mischief case which occurred at Ron's Auto Engine, 401 N. Terrell St., between 5 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Sunday. Front and side windows were smashed in eight vehicles.

During initial investigation of the case, police talked to a witness who told them three youngsters had beaten the windows with hammers. Total damage was listed as $3,030.

Virginia Johnson, 500 Spraberry Drive, reported the theft early this morning of a brown purse containing $140 and a white gold ring valued at $1,220. She said the theft occurred at the Kent station, 3300 W. Wall Ave.

Ronnie Olds, 1603 E. Butternut Lane, reported the theft of a .22-caliber rifle early Sunday. Olds told police the rifle was taken from a vehicle parked at his residence.

He valued the rifle at $280.

Midlanders in for partly cloudy skies

Midlanders will see partly cloudy skies through Tuesday with warmer afternoons.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the high should be in the upper 70s through Tuesday with the overnight low in the upper 40s. Winds are expected to be variable becoming southwest 5-10 mph tonight through Tuesday.

Sunday's reading of 69 was a pleasant fall-like temperature compared to the record high of 90 degrees set for the day in 1936. The overnight low of 49 was not quite as nippy as the 1966 record low reading of 35 degrees.

Harrelson gun possession trial starts today

HOUSTON (AP) — Convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, identified by federal agents as a prime suspect in the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John Wood, comes up for trial today on unrelated charges of illegal possession of guns.

Harrelson, 43, who was convicted of shooting to death a man for money in 1968, was caught with three revolvers, a shotgun and a rifle last year in Houston and charged under a law prohibiting a convicted felon from carrying firearms. He was also accused of possessing cocaine.

The trial has been delayed twice. It first was set for July 1980, but Harrelson did not show up. He was arrested the following September near Van Horn, in West Texas, where he was charged once again with possession of guns and drugs. He also was accused of having some loaded dice and of jumping bail.

The second trial was set for last April, but it was postponed at Harrelson's own request after he discovered a hidden tape recorder during a supposedly private meeting with his defense attorney, Don Ervin, last Dec. 10.

SIDS usually occurs after heavy smog months

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A study of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, which kills some 7,000 babies a year nationwide, shows that the syndrome usually occurs after heavy smog months, a newspaper reported Sunday.

It also occurs most often among infants with irregular sleep patterns and fast heartbeats and respiration, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner said.

While the precise cause of the syndrome still is unknown, a study conducted by researchers of four institutions points to factors that may create mild lack of oxygen, making it harder for SIDS babies to breathe in the weeks or months before their deaths, the Examiner reported.

The disease usually strikes infants between the ages of two and six months. Death is sudden, and the victim appears healthy up to the time breathing stops.

Brothers and sisters of infants who died of SIDS were monitored in their sleep at County-University of Southern California Medical Center. The sleep patterns were analyzed at the UCLA Brain Research Institute. Neurologists at the Sepulveda Veterans Administration Hospital and statisticians at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development at Bethesda, Md., also participated in the study, which began in 1972.

Researchers analyzed air pollution conditions at the times of death of 693 Los Angeles infants who died suddenly between 1974 and 1977. The study also monitored the fetal heart rates of brothers and sisters of the SIDS victims.

Dr. Toke Hoppenbrouwers, who was in charge of the project at County-USC, reported a seasonal increase in sudden infant deaths. It occurred in the seventh week following the annual winter peaks of carbon monoxide and other pollutants.

"The findings don't say that the high carbon monoxide levels in the winter are what kills these infants," she said. "The medical history of SIDS show that it has always been higher in the winter, when there are more respiratory illnesses.

"But we think there is mounting evidence that there is a mild, chronic hypoxia — a lack of oxygen — in these infants in the period preceding their sudden death. It's like the lack of oxygen at a high altitude," she said.

She also said that SIDS infants born in months of low pollution and areas with less pollution die at later ages than SIDS infants born when and where pollution levels are greatest.

Dr. Ron Harper of the UCLA Brain Institute, who directed analysis of the sleep studies, said a control group of non-SIDS babies followed regular patterns of quiet sleep, waking, active sleep in which there were rapid eye movements and waking again. The babies from SIDS families followed no such pattern. They slept longer and had fewer waking periods, Harper said.

Harper said there was an apparent failure of an "arousal" mechanism in the SIDS babies — a command from the brains of those babies to tell their hearts and respiration what to do. Ms. Hoppenbrouwers noted it was possible the babies were sleeping longer to conserve oxygen.

U.S. has no plans to boycott oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Sunday that the United States has no plans to boycott Libyan oil to protest Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's support of terrorist groups.

"No," Reagan replied to reporters on the White House lawn when asked if the United States plans such a ove. "That would have to be a worldwide boycott ... because there are plenty of customers for oil and you got to make sure that none of them would take the place (of the United States)."

"No one country could affect them by having a boycott," Reagan said.

Former President Richard Nixon said in Paris on Saturday that the Western powers should consider an "economic quarantine" of Libya to cut off its oil income. Nixon said the United States was moving in that direction.

Reagan, Mitterrand at odds on arms sales

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand on Sunday celebrated two centuries of French-American ties and talked about the issues that now divide them.

The meeting was part of the pageantry marking the 200th anniversary of the battle of Yorktown in which French forces helped Gen. George Washington defeat the British army and assure American independence.

The two leaders met for more than an hour in private talks.

A senior U.S. official indicated afterwards that Reagan and Mitterrand remained at odds over French arm sales to Libya, economic assistance to poor countries and French recognition of the rebels in El Salvador as a legitimite political force.

The official, however, described U.S.-French relations in general as "on a very sound track and the overall bilateral relationship as excellent and getting better."

Reagan and Mitterrand conferred on several occasions Sunday — ranging from a luncheon on a French frigate to a state dinner at an elegant colonial mansion.

At the dinner, Reagan toasted 200 years of Franco-American friendship, saying the two countries are friends "ce soir, demain, et toujours (this evening, tomorrow, and forever),".

Their meeting was three days before the start of an international summit of rich and poor nations in Cancun, Mexico, where Reagan and Mitterrand are expected to differ on how wealthy nations should help poor ones.

Mitterrand said the Cancun conference should spotlight "that Third World countries need the econmic means for their liberty." He advocates massive aid from the rich to the poor in the international community. Reagan has advised Third World countries to develop their economies by using free enterprise.

The French leader said at a news conference that steps should be taken to provide cheap energy for poor people and that prices of basic commodities such as food stuffs should be fixed rather than being subject to market fluctuations.

The senior U.S. official, who briefed reporters with the understanding that he would not be identified by name, said Reagan expressed concern about Libyan terrorist activities.

But the official said Mitterrand intends to live up to the arms agreements France arranged with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy before Mitterrand took office.

Regarding the Cancun conference, the official said Mitterrand is not seeking a rigid formula but does hope the summit will "establish the basis for some concrete action."

"For our part," the American official said, "the United States does not disagree with that approach, but we are extremely interested in a free exchange of views."

The official acknowledged differences between Reagan and Mitterrand on aid to the poor, but said there was "far more agreement than disagreement between the two nations on the subject."

Both countries, he said, hope to promote economic growth and well-being for the people of poor countries.

The United States and France also have moved closer in their outlook under Mitterrand on the Middle East and both leaders support the Camp David framework for peace talks, the official said.

"It is clear both governments expect the problems in the region are first and foremost the responsibility of the sovereign nations in the region," he said.

The official declined an opportunity to restate U.S. apprehension about the inclusion of communists in Mitterand's government, saying there would be "no useful purpose to dredge up any of that previous rhetoric."

Arriving at nearby Yorktown by helicopter from Washington, Reagan was greeted by Mitterrand on the French frigate DeGrasse, named for the French admiral who blockaded Chesapeake Bay and trapped Lord Cornwallis, the British commander.

Reagan was piped aboard by two French sailors and greeted at the top of the gangplank by Mitterrand. The deck was lined with French sailors and a French navy band played The Star Spangled Banner.

The U.S. president was given a 21-gun salute by a ship's cannon, and a Coast Guard boat spewed water from its hoses in the red, white and blue of both country's flags. The French warship is tied up at the Coast Guard station in Yorktown, on the York River.

The two leaders and their wives had lunch in the ship's junior officer's mess. In an exchange of toasts, Mitterrand took note of the U.S.-French disagreements but said areas of agreement between the two countries are "far broader and wider" than their differences.

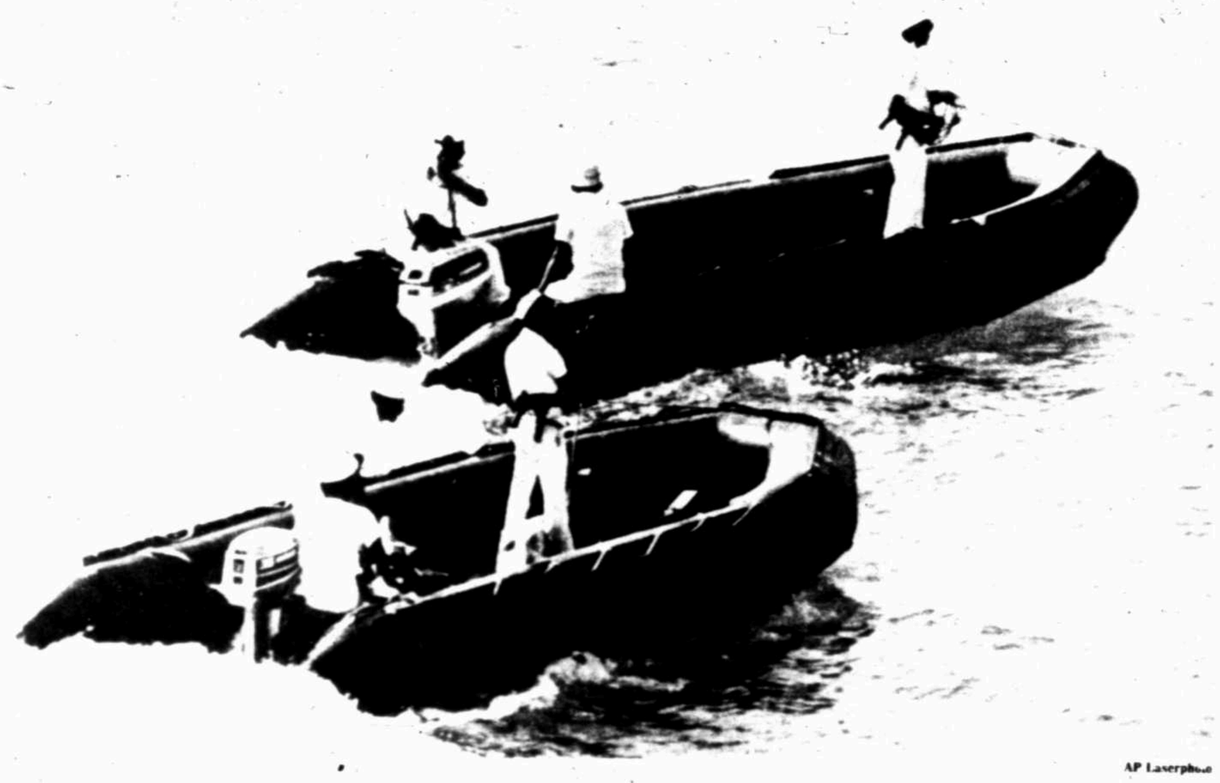

He said that by getting to know each other better the two leaders will be more prepared "to cross the inevitable difficult moments in the political discussions between two men from different backgrounds who have acceded to the same high responsibilty.

"We will not always be able to convince each other, but we are sure to illuminate our differences or our divergencies in the clear light of frankness," Mitterrand said.

For his part, Reagan recalled the financial and military assistance France provided in the Revolutionary War. "France and the United States are old, firm allies," Reagan declared. "You came to America when we needed you and we went to France when you had need of us. Well, the commitment still holds."

The two leaders also exchanged gifts, with the Mitterrands giving the Reagans a porcelain centerpiece and the Reagans giving the Mitterrands a Steuben American eagle crystal mounted on a wooden base. They also exchanged private gifts.

On Monday, Reagan and Mitterrand will return to the Yorktown battlefield where troops will parade in imitation of the surrender by Cornwallis on Octber 19, 1781. The commemoration also will end the six years of bicentennial observances that began in 1975.

Princess of Wales involved in a row over deer hunt

LONDON — The newly married princess of Wales was unexpectedly involved Sunday in a row over her first attempt at joining a deer hunt.

The wife of Prince Charles was charged by the League Against Cruel Sports with having participated in a deer hunt at the Royal Family's Balmoral estate in the Scottish Highlands and shooting, but failing to kill, a stag.

The league's executive director, Richard Course, said that the princess had shot but failed to kill a stag and it then had to "be put out of his misery" by one of the staff.

A spokesman for Buckingham Palace in London admitted that the princess had stalked deer last week but added, "The suggestion that she failed to make a clean kill is not true. But it was true that she went stalking at Balmoral last Monday. It was not the first time."

League director Course said that his members were "shocked and disgusted that the princess has joined the killing-for-fun brigade that is plundering Britain's wildlife."

He added: "I was absolutely shattered at the news. Like everyone else, I believed our fairy-tale princess with the sweet smile had a kind heart."

"I saw a television program in which she said that under no circumstances would she wear furs because of the cruelty involved — and then you hear this. "It's beyond belief."

Buckingham Palace also denied that the princess had fainted at the disembowelment of the stag, as one local report had it.

Royal Family watchers said they were surprised that the princess had participated in such a skilled activity as deer stalking.

The palace spokesman said that the princess had not shot a stag on Monday — the day in question — but confirmed that she had shot one on an earlier occasion. The kill had been clean, the Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

In the past, most observers thought that Lady Diana had little taste for hunting or shooting — two sports that her husband Prince Charles, as well as the rest of the family, have been keen on most of their lives.

Royal shooting parties have often been launched from an area near Balmoral Castle.

During their courtship, pictures were taken of Princess Diana watching her husband-to-be fish from trout streams in Scotland — but she did not appear to be fishing herself.

Tass did not comment on Kania's resignation

By BRYAN BRUMLEY

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet media, which has criticized Poland's leaders for failing to curb the Solidarity union, reported without comment Sunday the resignation of Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in its report on Kania's replacement by Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski as party first secretary, gave no indication whether Kremlin leaders approved of the change.

The Tass report, read on the national evening television news, did not report the call by the Polish Communist Party Central Committee for a ban on strikes.

Kremlin leaders have been critical of Kania and Jaruzelski for failing to suppress what Moscow claims is an "anti-Soviet" campaign being waged by "counterrevolutionaries" seeking to restore capitalism in Poland.

Soviet sources said recently, however, that replacement of Kania would not by itself change the course of events in Poland. Western diplomats withheld comment on the change, awaiting further information.

Eastern European sources in Moscow viewed Kania's fall from power as "a Polish choice," and noted the change was brought about by the Central Committee that had been elected at a party congress last July.

The latest Kremlin blast at Polish "counterrevolutionaries," published Wednesday by the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda, appeared to condemn Kania and Jaruzelski by ommission.

Instead of criticizing them by name, as earlier commentaries had, the Pravda article painted a bleak picture of Poland's economic and political situation, and said, "All this places special responsibility on the Polish working people and on the party and government leadership of the country."

The article was signed by A. Petrov, believed to be a pseudonym reflecting authorship by senior Kremlin officials.

Filipino-Americans afraid to speak out

By BILL BILLITER
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Smiles fade, frowns emerge and conversation often becomes frozen or guarded when the question is asked:

"How do you, as a Filipino-American, feel about President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines?"

A woman at the Filipino Culture Center recoiled at the question and looked at the questioner suspiciously.

"How do I know you are a reporter?" she asked. "You might be someone Marcos has sent."

Among Filipino-Americans, now the second largest Asian minority group in the United States — just behind the Chinese — and the largest Asian minority in California, Marcos' rule is a touchy subject not freely discussed with outsiders.

"It's because most Filipino-Americans still have relatives in the Philippines and are afraid to speak out," said Sal Morano, a worker in an anti-Marcos movement in the Los Angeles area.

Morano and others accuse Marcos of using terror tactics to quell opposition in the Philippines.

"Even here in the United States, Marcos has secret agents and spies disguised as consulate personnel," Hermie Rotea, editor and publisher of the Philippine Press in Los Angeles, contended.

But Rotea and other outspoken Marcos critics concede that their ranks are thin.

The Coalition Against the Marcos Dictatorship, in which Morano is a worker, has less than 100 active participants. "But we do have an active mailing list of about 300 people," Minerva Mabini, 26, a registered nurse and a co-leader of the coalition, said.

Supporters of Marcos — and those who profess to be neutral about him — scoff at the size of the opposition.

"There are at least 300,000 Filipino-Americans in the Los Angeles area alone," said Dr. Raynaldo Landero, chairman of the Los Angeles-based Confedertion of Philippine-U.S. Organizations, an umbrella group composed of presidents of 182 Filipino-American clubs and organizations.

The official 1980 U.S. census said there are 357,514 Filipinos in California, but Landero, explaining his 300,000 estimate for the Los Angeles area, said the census greatly undercounted the Filipino community.

Despite their numerical inferiority, the anti-Marcos elements in California are causing concern to Manila.

Last year, Victor Burns Lovely Jr., 36, a Filipino-American from the Los Angeles area, was wounded when a bomb that police said he was working on exploded in his room at the Manila YMCA.

Lovely, a naturalized U.S. citizen, was arrested and accused of directing a conspiracy to destabilize the Marcos government. In a plea for mercy, Lovely promised to implicate other Filipino-Americans suspected of plotting bomb attacks in the Philippines.

News media in Manila have reported that Lovely is back in California, still under Philippine custody, waiting to testify before a federal grand jury. U.S. officials will neither confirm nor deny that Lovely is in California.

But Bill Duff, a spokesman for the FBI's San Francisco office, said, "Lovely may be appearing before a federal grand jury to testify in the near future. I do not know where, but my guess is either in Los Angeles or San Francisco. He is not now in our control."

In addition to the Lovely incident, Manila has been the target of other bombing attacks, one in which an American citizen was killed.

STANTON — Services for Travis Werner Hanie, 85, of Stanton are pending with Gilbreath Funeral Home.

He died Sunday night in a Stanton hospital after a lengthy illness.

Hanie was born Nov. 20, 1895, at West Point. He lived in Stanton for 82 years. He married Margaret Susan Anderson Dec. 6, 1923, in Big Spring. She preceded him in death on Jan. 2, 1969. He was a veteran of World War I. Hanie served as a railway section foreman of T & P Railway for Morita and Stanton and was retired. He was a 32nd degree Scottish-Rite Mason and a member of the First Baptist Church of Stanton.

Survivors include two sons, S.E. Hanie of Lomax and Travis L. Hanie of Stanton; a daughter, Ermine H. Pearce of Palacios; a sister, Mabel H. Dingwall of El Paso; and six grandchildren.

Papandreou victory may turn Greece away from U.S.

By GILLIAN WHITTAKER
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Andreas Papandreou, whose victory in Sunday's election may turn Greece away from the United States and the Western alliance, is a Harvard-educated economist and U.S. Navy veteran who became a U.S. citizen during World War II.

The 62-year-old Papandreou renounced his American citizenship in 1964 when he ran for Parliament on his father's old Center Party ticket.

A former chairman of the Economics Department at the University of California at Berkeley, Papandreou steps into the premiership to face growing economic and social problems at home while promising to re-orient the nation's foreign policy.

Papandreou was born into a family steeped in politics.

His father, George, was premier from 1963 until 1965 when his party split and he lost his majority in Parliament.

A gifted speaker, Papandreou inherited from his father the ability to judge the mood of a crowd. With his organizational abilities, he built a faithful following and formed the Panhellenic Socialist Movement — Pasok — in 1974.

"I named Pasok a movement rather than a party because a movement grows among the people. A party just remains stable," he told a rally recently.

During the campaign he called for Greece to withdraw from the NATO military alliance and close U.S. military bases. He also proposed a referendum to remove Greece from the European Common Market.

Papandreou was born on the eastern Aegean island of Chios in 1919. Later, his family moved to Athens where he attended the prestigious American-funded boys school, Athens College, and graduated with honors.

In 1938, at the height of the right-wing Metaxas dictatorship, Papandreou was sought by police for his political activities and fled to the United States to continue his studies.

His four children — George, Sophia, Nicholas and Andreas — were all born in the United States. His wife, the former Margaret Chant, is from Chicago.

Papandreou earned a doctor's degree in economics at Harvard University and remained there as an instructor until he joined the U.S. Navy in 1944.

At that time he also took American citizenship. After the war, he returned to Harvard to teach. Academic posts at the University of Minnesota and Northwestern University followed before he went to California.

In the early 1960s, Papandreou returned to Greece at the invitation of then-Premier Constantine Caramanlis to head an economic research center. It was not until 1964 that his father, George, placed him on the Center Union party ticket to stand for Parliament in Patras, a family stronghold.

He was appointed minister of economic coordination in his father's government, which failed in 1965.

When the April 1967 military coup brought in a seven-year dictatorship, Papandreou was jailed by the coup leaders, but his former American colleagues campaigned successfully for his release. From jail he went to Sweden and then to Canada.

Brazilian president recovering satisfactorily from heart attack

By HENRY S. ACKERMAN
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Brazilian President Joao Figueiredo is "making a satisfactory convalescence" from a heart attack he suffered a month ago, doctors at Cleveland Clinic said Sunday.

But the physicians said they must conduct more tests to determine if the 63-year-old retired army general should undergo surgery.

"The present evaluation is to determine the extent of the damage to the heart, its effect on overall cardia performance and to assess options for treatment," William C. Sheldon, director of the cardiology department, said.

Figueiredo, who suffered a heart attack at his Rio de Janeiro home on Sept. 18, arrived in Cleveland on Saturday with 30 family members, doctors, top Brazilian officials, security agents and aides. He received a telegram from U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., assuring him "that you will receive the best medical attention available while you are here."

His press secrtary said he was in good spirits after preliminary examinations and discussions with clinic officials.

The Cleveland Clinic's cardiology department performs more open heart surgery than any other hospital in the United States — about 3,100 a year — and pioneered the catherization treatment in 1958, hospital officials say.

Catherization, a procedure in which a narrow tube is inserted into the heart through an artery, has been performed at the clinic some 88,000 times since 1958, according to Frank J. Weaver, hospital spokesman.

Figueiredo probably will undergo a catherization so cardiologists can examine his heart functioning through X-rays, Weaver said, noting that there is "minimum risk" in the procedure.

If surgery is required, Figueiredo could be in the hospital for 10 to 15 days, Weaver said. If not, he probably will return to Brazil Wednesday or Thursday.

Figueiredo, on an eight-week leave of absence from his post, has left power in the hemisphere's second most populous nation to his vice president, Aureliano Chaves.

The Brazilian president is the latest in a string of celebrities and heads of state treated at the clinic. Most notable in recent years was King Khaled of Saudi Arabia, who underwent bypass surgery there in 1978.

Earthquake along Columbia, Venezuela border kills 10

CUCUTA, Colombia (AP) — A strong earthquake along the Colombia-Venezuela border killed at least 10 people and injured scores of others, authorities reported Sunday.

The quake, which hit shortly before midnight Saturday, toppled several buildings in Cucuta, a border city of 400,000 inhabitants and cracked streets. Colombian police reported four dead and at least 67 injured.

In western Venezuela, at least six people were killed and dozens injured, most of them caught in houses crushed by landslides, the state news agency Venpres reported.

Cucuta police said a city hospital suffered severe damage and patients had to be evacuated to a parking lot.

Sect linked to Sadat's death is behind police station attacks

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

ASYUT, Egypt (AP) — A Moslem fanatic sect linked to the assassination of President Anwar Sadat also was behind bloody attacks on police stations in this city in upper Egypt, according to investigators.

Diplomatic sources, meanwhile, told The Associated Press that the man believed by investigators to be the mastermind of the assassination, Lt. Col. Abu Abdel Latif el-Zomor, was behind the plot to create trouble in the Nile Delta city of Mansoura, where security was stepped up Saturday after a night of shooting.

El-Zomor, who worked in military intelligence, reportedly was arrested last Tuesday.

Cairo's Middle East News Agency said Sunday that 230 Moslem fundamentalist "terrorists" who belonged to a group led by el-Zomor have been arrested.

MENA, quoting a statement by the Interior Ministry, said the police discovered several arms caches and documents outlining plans for future "terrorist attacks" when the 230 were rounded up, but it did not say when the arrests occurred.

Just 41 hours after Sadat died Oct. 6, Islamic extremists launched suicide raids on Asyut's two police stations, besieging them for 24 hours. Security sources said at least 118 people were killed — half police officers — during the two-days of violence.

The army had to help police fight the attackers, who police Lt. Col. Mohammed Fathy el-Mosallami said were armed with automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades.

During an interview inside his bullet-scarred police station, el-Mosallami said interrogations of suspected Islamic extremists, who are being arrested daily, show that the violence-prone Moslem group called Takfir Wal Hegira (Atonement and Flight From Sin), was behind Sadat's assassination and the Asyut assaults.

"We know it is the same group involved in both of these affairs, because they have admitted it to us," the colonel said.

Diplomatic and military sources said Saturday that more than 1,500 Moslem fundamentalists and political dissidents had been arrested since the assassination. The government said only a few "dozen" had been picked up.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

The contractual investment plan

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I've opened an investment program to put $100 a month into a "growth" mutual fund for 12½ years. I have 45 days to cancel the plan and get my money back. I'm thinking about doing that, because of the sales charges — $20 out of each of the first 12 monthly investments, $18 out of each of the next 24 and $4.60 out of all the rest.

Out of my first monthly payment, there were total deductions of $21.50 — the $20 sales charge plus other fees. That left only $78.50 of my money invested.

It seems to me that the charges I pay on this investment might result in itsdoing no better than an insured savngs certificate. Is this true? Do the potential profits justify the charges?

A. If you stay with that investment and keep putting in $100 a month, only time will tell whether it will do as well, better or worse than a savings certificate. The management of a growth mutual fund uses the money you and all other shareholders put in to buy stocks that, hopefully will increase in value — making the value of the fund's shares and your investment worth more. While there's no assurance that that will happen, most growth mutual funds have done well over the long term.

But you've signed for a "contractual plan" — a high-commission way to invest. With most of the sales charges levied in the first 36 months, your plan isn't as bad as some, in which commissions take 50 percent of the first year's payments.

Are those charges justified? That depends on whether you need the services of the salesperson who put you into that plan. More and more investors are turning to "no load" mutual funds, in which you can invest without any sales charge.

Q. What is the usual commission charged by brokers for buying and selling stock?

A. The word "usual" is indefinite. So are brokerage commissions. Back on May 1, 1975, the Securities and Exchange Commission abolished the "fixed commission schedules," formerly set by the stock exchanges, and mandated "negotiated rates." Now, each brokerage house can post its own commission rates. And customers can haggle.

Most brokerage firms "usually"—again, an indefinite word—have sliding-scale commissions, based on the number of shares and/or the amount of money in each transaction. The bigger the transaction, the lower percentage commission.

Q. When a broker sells 500 shares of stock "A" for a client and, at the same time, buys 500 shares of stock "B," shouldn't this be considered one transaction — with only one commission charge?

A.Nope. That would be two transactions. You can try to negotiate lower total commission charges. You may or may not be successful. That's between you and the brokerage firm.

Q. Recently, I sold 100 shares of stock, at $48.37½ a share, and was charged a commission of $86. On the same day and through the same broker, I purchased 200 shares of a different stock at $15.62½ a share, and was charged another commission of $86.84.

It doesn't cost the broker any more to handle 200 shares than it does to handle 100 shares. Is there something wrong with the commissions I was charged?

A. No. Those commissions are in line with the charges at many brokerage firms. Your mistake was not asking about commissions before placing your orders.

If you want to save on commissions in the future, shop arund at a number of brokerage houses.

Clothier tells executives it's time they divested

By RON S. HEINZEL
Los Angeles Times

Many young executives consider their wardrobe of three-piece suits as important to their career as their Harvard Business School degree. But Norman Block, co-owner of Dunhill tailors, New York's famed custom clothier, recommends that they divest — get rid of their vests.

Block, who has outfitted three generations of ultrasuccessful customers including fashion-plate actors like Cary Grant and George Hamilton, captains of industry such as Pepsico chief Donald Kendall and Warner Communications Chairman Steve Ross, considers the vest superfluous.

"Vests came in during the 1920s when men wore braces (susp3nders) and pants had high waistbands and low rises (mor3 distance from waist to crotch). Today's pants have high rises and narrow waistbands and no one wears braces anymore except old men," the 77-year-old Block said.

Dunhill suits cost a bit more than the off-the-rack variety — up to $1,450 each — and Block says a vest can add $300 to the price.

If an ambassador or chairman of the board doesn't need a vest, Block says, neither does the young executive.

Companies that offer cents-off coupons for their products may be getting more mileage out of their advertising dollar than they realize, according to the Consumer Network Inc., a Philadelphia-based consumer research company.

A survey in the current issue of the Shopper Report, the company's consumer-feedback newsletter, indicates that a product's share of market may be increasingly tied to its "shar3 of purse."

Women now rely nearly as much on their collection of in-purse coupons as they do on newspaper ads when drawing up their weekly shopping lists, the survey shows. "And a shopping list based on coupons tends to be much more brand-specific than one based on supermarket newspaper ads alone," the report sa8d.

Consumers also use their stash of coupons as an impulse shopping list that supplements their regular list, the report says. "With a purse full of coupons, a shopper makes price judgements based not on shelf prices but on net-after-coupons computations."

Who says talk is cheap?

Industry experts estimate that employees making personal phone calls at work cost business about $3 billion a year. In some cases, companies lose 1 1-2 months of productivity per employee a year.,

In the days of dial phones, many companies used locks on the telephones to discourage unauthorized use, but when push-button phones became common, the problem escalated.

Until now, most companies hav3 had to rely on expensive rewiring or complex electronic blocking systems to restrict telephone use. But Tele Vault Inc. of New York is now marketing a simple, inexpensive ($12.95) lock for push-button phones.

Two models of the OverTalk lock are available; one has a plate that blocks access to all the buttons, and the other allows interoffice calls but prevents outgoing ones by blocking only the 8 and 9, which are used to get an outside line.

Wall Street a world of contradictions

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. economy is snared in a world of Catch-22 situations, "a sort of paradox wherein one set of events is contradicted by another," says Henry Kaufman, Wall Street economist.

"Escapes, if any, are few and hold real problems," he told a meeting of financial executives. "The chances of going wrong in anything we do are many." Solutions create problems; to fill a hole you dig another.

Said the man "the street" considers an economic seer: "The best-intended decisions may produce the wrong results; measures of relief for some may produce unanticipated pain for others."
