Mobile home fire

Fire of undetermined origin gutted this mobile home at the Metroplex Mobile Home Park early Friday night. The blaze broke out about 8 p.m., according to park manager Michele Derck, who said the owner of the home, Willie Johnson, was out of town. The park is located a half-mile west of the Rankin Highway about three miles south of Interstate 20.

Moslems stage sit-ins to protest occupation

By The Associated Press

Moslems staged nationwide protests Friday against Israel's occupation of southern Lebanon, setting fire to an Israeli flag in Beirut and sitting-in at mosques.

Outside the southern Lebanese port of Tyre, gunmen hidden in an orange grove fired on an Israel convoy and the Israelis fired back, the U.N. force in southern Lebanon said. The United Nations peacekeeping troops said they were caught in the crossfire, but there were no reports of casualties.

Israel closed the three bridges across the Awali River in an apparent attempt to keep guerrillas from infiltrating from northern Lebanon to the Israeli-occupied southern third of the country. An Israeli military source in Tel Aviv said the bridges were closed to vehicles for "technical reasons" but would be opened "soon."

Meanwhile, Jesse Jackson, a U.S. Democratic presidential candidate, arrived in Damascus, Syria, to work for the release of captured U.S. Navy airman Robert O. Goodman Jr. The civil rights leader said he had "high hopes" he would be successful.

Goodman, a bombardier-navigator, was wounded and captured Dec. 4 when his attack jet was downed during a raid on Syrian positions in Lebanon's central mountains. The pilot of his plane was killed.

In Beirut, Sheik Hassan Khaled, the grand mufti of the Sunni Moslem sect in Lebanon, and Sheik Mohammed Shamseddin, acting d cx...council, led a sit-in against Israel's occupation and expressed solidarity with guerrillas resisting the 18-month Israeli occupation.

Khaled called for protests to "demonstrate indignation against the oppressive practices of the Israeli occupation, determination to resist it, and support for the legitimate struggle against it."

At the sit-in in Beirut's Sakiet al-Ganzir mosque, Shamseddin said: "Let Israel know, let the mothers of its soldiers know...there will be no peace for Israel in our land. We will never stop and we will never give up."

Three former Lebanese prime ministers — Saeb Salam, Selim el-Hoss and Rashid Solh — joined in the protest.

On the steps of the mosque, youths set ablaze a plastic blue and white Israeli flag and chanted slogans such as "Lebanon is the graveyard of the Zionists." The protests were prompted by the arrest of a Sunni Moslem mosque preacher on Tuesday.

The attack on an Israeli convoy came in the village of Hannye, about six miles south of Tyre and six miles north of the Israeli border.

Timur Goksel, a spokesman for the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, said United Nations peacekeeping soldiers got caught in the crossfire, but no Israeli or U.N. soldiers were wounded. There were no reports on guerrilla casualties.

There have been daily attacks against Israeli soldiers in southern Lebanon.

Israeli troops raided a mosque and the house of a religious leader in Sidon and surrounded another mosque. Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan of Lebanon said the incident was an "intolerable violation of religious immunity."

Sheik Mohammed Jalaleddin, the Sunni Moslem religious leader of Sidon, said Israelis searched his house and held his son for questioning for two hours.

"They fired heavily around my house before banging on my door. When I opened it, four or five soldiers moved in with submachine guns pointed at me and my family," he told The Associated Press.

"One of them asked if I have weapons. I said 'yes,' and handed him my personal pistol. He took it while the others turned the house upside down and the went away, taking with them my son Satea."

Israeli soldiers also surrounded Sidon's main mosque, the Zaatari mosque, and went into the smaller Battah mosque in the city, conducting a search with dogs and herding out worshipers.

Shortly after the 8 p.m. curfew in Beirut, a French military patrol came under rocket-propelled grenade and small-arms fire on a street near the French headquarters.

Big chill of 1983 still icing citrus groves, vegetable fields

By The Associated Press

The big chill of 1983 iced the citrus groves and vegetable fields of southern Texas with a second dose of some of the coldest weather of the century Friday while 15-foot snowdrifts blocked highways in the Northwest.

"We've got drifts up there the snowplow can't even go through," said state Trooper Jack Eckrich in northeastern Oregon where stretches of Interstate 84 were closed and stranded motorists packed motels, churches and an armory.

Up to 20 inches of new snow fell in the Rocky Mountains of Idaho while chinook winds gusting up to 78 mph caused ground blizzards and whiteouts from Montana to Colorado.

The weather death toll climbed past 430 for the last two weeks of a year that set records at both ends of the thermometer.

And the National Weather Service on Friday predicted below normal temperatures in January for most of the nation east of the Continental Divide and above-average precipitation.

The mercury tumbled again to record lows Friday in at least 41 cities across the Midwest and south to the Gulf Coast, with Illinois, Indiana and Ohio turning in many of the coldest readings. It was 15 below zero at Springfield, Ill., and 14 below at Indianapolis and North Platte, Neb. Toledo, Ohio, posted a minus 12.

CITIES ACROSS the South suffered low water pressure as pipes burst.

The second freeze since Christmas to send temperatures into the teens as far south as the Rio Grande set records for the date in 14 Texas cities and the 11-degree reading at Laredo was the coldest there this century. It was 9 in San Antonio, the coldest December day ever.

This has been the coldest week on record at Baton Rouge, La., where the 15 broke the record for the date by 12 degrees, and Corpus Christi on the Gulf Coast of southern Texas, where it was 18.

Earlier freezes had left damage to citrus and vegetable crops estimated at $400 million in Florida, Texas and Louisiana. Florida and Texas have temporarily embargoed the sale and shipment of citrus out of the state.

Texas Gov. Mark White said he was asking President Reagan to declare Hidalgo, Starr, Willacy and Cameron disaster areas so farmers can qualify for federal aid. White said other counties may be added to the list later.

In Houston, where the temperature dipped to 20 Friday, insurance officials estimated that more than 100,000 homes suffered damage from broken pipes. The state attorney general's office was investigating complaints that some plumbers were charging as much as $125 an hour, compared with the normal $35 to $50.

HOUSTON FIRE Capt. Mack Bowlin said the number of fires in the city had more than doubled to about 350 a day since the cold wave arrived. He blamed overworked or defective heaters.

The Edison Electric Institute, a trade organization of investor-owned electric utilities, said consumption of electricity in the country last week was 23 percent higher than the same period a year ago because of the cold.

On Friday, it was a record 11 below zero at Toledo, Ohio, Topeka, Kan., and Fort Wayne, Ind. In Huntsville, Ala., it was a record 6, with snow in the air, but the wind chill made it feel like 20 below.

Army officials say vet not involved in crash

FORT WORTH (AP) — A decorated Vietnam veteran who says he remembers only bits and pieces of a wartime helicopter crash can't get compensation because officials have no record of the accident.

Larry Gene Pruitt says he has nightmares about a crash that he claims left him with psychiatric problems and unable to work.

But military officials say the lack of records means Pruitt, 34, cannot get service-connected compensation from the Veterans Administration.

Pruitt, who lives in a detached pickup camper at a Fort Worth mobile home park with his wife and 20-month-old son, has honorable discharge papers, a Bronze Star, and the standard letters from President Nixon and Gen. W.C. Westmoreland thanking him for his service in Vietnam.

But he has no proof of the crash, which he says has left him without chunks of his memory, at the mercy of convulsions he cannot control and nightmares which cause him to scream in his sleep.

Weinberger prepares to order reviews of certain commanders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Reagan's declaration that no commanders should be "punished" in the wake of the Beirut bombing disaster, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was prepared Friday to order reviews that could result in career-blighting reprimands for some officers.

Pentagon officials, who spoke on condition they remain anonymous, said Weinberger would order service secretaries to undertake such reviews.

These officials said Weinberger decided on that course after receiving a clarification from the White House of Reagan's meaning in saying to the nation Tuesday that he accepted full blame for any security lapses that enabled a terrorist to kill 241 American servicemen Oct. 23.

Reagan appeared to rule out any disciplinary action when he said that "I do not believe...that the local commanders, on the ground, men who have already suffered quite enough, should be punished for not fully comprehending the nature of today's terrorist threat."

Even senior defense officials, including general counsel William Howard Taft, were understood to have regarded the president's words as providing absolution for military officers up and down the chain of command.

However, Pentagon officials were later informed by the White House that the president meant only to bar courts-martial, not to prevent administrative disciplinary actions where warranted.

Administrative measures such as letters of reprimand do not require such legal procedures as courts-martial. Although a reprimand may seem to be a light penalty to persons unfamiliar with the military promotion system, such a blot on an officer's record generally prevents advancement.

Freeze kills crops, jobs

IMMOKALEE, Fla. (AP) — Migrant workers lined up Friday for blankets, food and rent money in the wake of the Christmas weekend freeze that wiped out the winter tomato crop — and their jobs.

"I just had a family in this morning — 15 people living in a bus. They have no electricity," said Maria Sanchez, director of the Farmworkers Rights Organization. "Their bus is parked at a trailer park. It's $16 a night."

Thousands of migrants usually work the fields in Southwest Florida's Collier County this time of year picking tomatoes, but the tomatoes, along with beans, squash, cucumbers and bell peppers, were decimated by a hard freeze early in the week. The icy snap left the workers jobless.

Ms. Sanchez said she has seen between 150 and 200 people a day looking for food, clothing and blankets. One hundred blankets were passed out Thursday and another 100 were expected to arrive Friday from the Red Cross.

Just down the street in this rural farming community, the Immokalee Neighborhood Services office also was packed with jobless laborers looking for food, rent money and heating fuel.

Another cold spell was forecast, with temperatures expected to dip into the 40s Friday night and early Saturday.

"Nothing's improving," said Ben Hershey, director of the service office. "We're having a big problem with people coming in needing help paying rents. They're being evicted and don't have any money to pay rent."

Hershey said thousands of migrants travel to Collier County this time of year. "There's 6,500 Haitians in this area, and I know there's thousands of others."

The United Farm Workers of America estimates that between 80,000 and 100,000 workers will be eventually affected by freeze, primarily because of the winter vegetable loss, which has been estimated at $75 million. Only 15 percent of the vegetables had been picked.

The Texas Department of Agriculture said that 25,000 to 30,000 now are out of work.

"Vegetable harvesting is more labor intensive than citrus groves," said McAllen Mayor Othal Brand, who is a partner in Griffin and Brand, a large Texas packing company. "There are hundreds of people who go to the field for us every day. But there won't be anything for them to go into the fields for."

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said he would be working closely with the Texas Department of Community Affairs and the Texas Department of Human Resources to obtain assistance for pickers and packers who will be out of work after the emergency harvest of citrus is completed.

Using money donated by area churches and a few individuals, Hershey's office has distributed more than $6,000 to some 250 workers since Tuesday, Hershey said.

"The average one needs about $50 or $60. That would pay a week's rent or a month's electric bill, but we can't help them with all that," said Hershey, an Immokalee High School teacher.

The situation improved slightly Thursday because of a rush to the fields in an attempt to save what was left of the Florida crop from a second wave of cold weather forecast for the weekend.

But rain and 40-degree temperatures Friday morning made matters worse. "The only change now is the weather," Ms. Sanchez said. "Our office is still packed."

She said 298 needy people showed up Wednesday, followed by 153 on Thursday.

Two San Angelo firefighters are enveloped in steam created after they had hosed each other down in sub-freezing temperatures and then headed into one of the hottest parts of a two-alarm blaze that broke out early Friday morning. Frozen water lines and freezing nozzle connectors plagued firefighters' efforts as they fought the blaze for nearly five hours. No one was injured in the fire, which destroyed a freight warehouse.

Congress considers shortening withdrawal deadline for Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appeared Friday to be moving toward a showdown with President Reagan over whether to order U.S. Marines home from Beirut much sooner than the April 1985 deadline that Congress approved last fall.

As reports circulated in the Capitol that Democrats and Republicans alike were considering a move to shorten the withdrawal deadline — possibly by one year — White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was "very strong on that, very adamant" about not pulling out the Marines.

Asked about proposals in Congress to reduce the current 18-month authority for the Marines to remain in Beirut, Speakes replied: "We would not like to have that change. We think it's essential to have that time frame."

He said in Palm Springs, Calif., where Reagan is spending the New Year's weekend, that the president "feels his policy is a correct one, and he plans to remain with it."

Said Speakes: "Bipartisan support for the president's policy is an important signal to those with whom we are dealing in the Middle East, both friends and adversaries. But I don't think the president will be deterred in pursuit of his policy there."

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has called a meeting next Tuesday of his Lebanon monitoring group in the House to discuss the implications of a special Pentagon commission's report that was sharply critical of Reagan's policy in Lebanon, particularly his emphasis on the U.S. military role.

The monitoring group consists of 14 Democrats who had voted in October — with O'Neill's approval — to authorize the Marines to stay in Beirut for 18 more months, unless Congress changes its mind.

The Pentagon report blamed security and other lapses for the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing that killed 241 U.S. servicemen at Marine headquarters in Beirut, and said the United States should stress diplomatic rather than military efforts to achieve its goals in Lebanon.

The commission, composed of active and retired civilian and military Pentagon officials, said there was "an urgent need for reassessment of alternative means to achieve U.S. objectives in Lebanon and at the same time reduce the risk" to the 1,800 Marines in the multinational peacekeeping force.

Speakes said Reagan would discuss the Marines' deployment with Donald Rumsfeld, his special envoy to the Middle East, shortly after the president's return to Washington on Monday.

One administration official in Palm Springs, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said Rumsfeld, who is returning to the Middle East soon, "may have some diplomatic, tactical changes" and that the administration would consider some redeployment of the Marines.

O'Neill could not be reached for comment, but there were reports that he was considering a move to shorten the timetable for a Marine withdrawal.

Candidate Jackson arrives in Damascus with 'high hopes' for Navy airman's release

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson came to Syria Friday to work for the release of captured U.S. Navy airman Robert O. Goodman Jr. and said he had "high hopes" of success.

A spokeswoman for Jackson, Florence Tate, said he would see President Hafez Assad and Goodman on Saturday, as well as the foreign minister, Abdul-Halim Khaddam.

She said Jackson would meet with Khaddam at 10 a.m. (2 a.m. CST), with Assad at noon and with Goodman sometime during the afternoon. There was no confirmation of the appointments from Syrian officials.

U.S. Ambassador Robert Paganelli and Syrian Deputy Foreign Minister Issam Annayeb met Jackson when he arrived at the Damascus airport.

"We have high hopes this visit will be able to bring forth our message of peace," Jackson told reporters.

"We hope that somewhere in the course of these meetings, something can be done or said to allow us to break the deadlock and take a giant step toward peace, and that on high humanitarian grounds, Lt. Goodman can be freed," he said.

Goodman, a bombardier-navigator, was wounded and captured Dec. 4 when his attack jet was downed during a raid on Syrian positions in Lebanon's central mountains. The pilot of his plane was killed. The Pentagon said the raid was in response to earlier attacks on U.S. reconnaissance flights.

Paganelli said he welcomed Jackson's visit and "assistance in our job of gaining Lt. Goodman's release." But he refused to say whether he also considered the negotiations at a deadlock.

Jackson's party and Paganelli wore small blue ribbons in their lapels, which Jackson said were part of "the drive for world-wide solidarity to get Lt. Goodman freed and relieve tensions between our nation and Syria."

Paganelli has been negotiating with Syria for Goodman's release and Jackson was asked if his visit was an implied criticism of Paganelli's efforts.

Jackson shook his head.

"There is a deadlock along political and military lines," he said.

Gulf wins proxy battle, thwarts takeover efforts

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. has won its proxy fight to reincorporate in Delaware, slowing efforts by Mesa Petroleum Co. to expand its influence over the company, according to a preliminary count released Friday.

The reincorporation will allow Gulf to change its voting procedures to make it more difficult for an outsider to win a seat on the Gulf board.

The election was aimed at wounding the Gulf Investors Group, which is pressuring Gulf management to restructure by spinning off some of its oil reserves. Gulf management opposes the spin-off idea, saying it would weaken the company by depleting funds available for oil and gas exploration.

Gulf, currently incorporated in Pennsylvania, is the nation's fifth-largest oil company.

The investor group is led by Mesa Petroleum Co. Chairman T. Boone Pickens Jr. and holds 21.7 million Gulf shares, or 13.2 percent of the total outstanding.

"Our shareholders recognize that their long-term interests are best served by keeping Gulf a strong company in the oil industry," Gulf Chairman James E. Lee said in a statement.

Gulf received 87,124,743 votes in favor of moving the corporate charter. The preliminary results, tallied by independent judges, show 52,318,757 votes were cast against the plan.

Pickens said the vote indicated that "many of our fellow Gulf shareholders shared our views that management's reincorporation proposal was not in the best interests of shareholders." He added that Gulf stockholders had sent their company a message: "They want management to take positive steps to achieve enhanced value" for Gulf stock.

"The Gulf Investors Group intends to continue to pursue ideas which will maximize values for all Gulf shareholders," Pickens said. "Business as usual is an unacceptable game plan for Gulf."

Pickens did not say what specific steps his group would take next.

The preliminary election results are subject to review and challenge by both sides, and final results are expected Jan. 18, according to Gulf.

Weinberger to order reviews of officers

A special Pentagon commission which examined all the circumstances involved in the truck-bombing of the Marine headquarters building in Beirut recommended in its report to Weinberger that he take "whatever administrative or disciplinary action he deems appropriate."

The commission, made up mostly of retired and active-duty senior officers, found the entire chain of command, ranging from the Marine battalion commander, Lt. Col. Larry Geriach, to Gen. Bernard Rogers, commander of U.S. forces in the European theater, "to be at fault."

Pentagon officials said it is highly unlikely that Rogers, who commands some 300,000 U.S. troops in Europe as well as being supreme allied commander there, would be penalized for actions and decisions by his staff and commanders at various levels down the chain.

The commission specifically found that the battalion commander at the time "must take responsibility for the concentration of approximately 350 members of his command" in the headquarters building, "thereby providing a lucrative target for attack."

The battalion commander was further criticized by the commission for modifying "prescribed alert procedures, thereby degrading security of the compound" occupied by the Marines at the Beirut international airport.

The commission also held that the Marine Amphibious Unit commander, Col. Timothy Geraghty, "shares the responsibility for the catastrophic losses."

And it found further that "the U.S. Commander-in-Chief Europe operational chain of command shares in the responsibility for the events of Oct. 23."

In partial mitigation, the commission said it found "there was a series of circumstances beyond the control of these commanders that influenced their judgment."

Army officials deny vet ever involved in crash

He also stutters under stress and suffers from blackouts.

Pruitt says he remembers pulling a fellow soldier named "Kirkland" out of the flaming wreckage.

"I dream of it over and over, you know...I remember pulling him out. There was a fire...It hurts me so much...Why is my government treating me so?"

Despite the intervention of House Majority Leader Jim Wright, in whose district Pruitt lives, the Army says it can't help.

"There is no (helicopter accident) involving Larry G. Pruitt. Furthermore, Mr. Pruitt's medical and personnel records are devoid of any indication he was ever involved in any such crash," Lt. Col. John W. Richardson, deputy chief of the Army's Investigations and Legislation Division, told Wright in a recent letter.

Bell official knocks AT&T request

AUSTIN (AP) — A Southwestern Bell official said Friday "it is hard to understand" how AT&T Communications can justify a $301 million increase in long-distance rates.

Paul Roth, Bell vice president of revenue and public affairs, said Bell had asked the Public Utility Commission for permission to intervene in the AT&T rate request.

AT&T asked for the increase in long distance rates after the PUC gave Southwestern Bell a $653.3 million interim rate hike, effective Sunday. AT&T would have to pay $617.8 million of that increase, and two days later asked for its own rate increase.

On Sunday, Roth said, "Southwestern Bell and AT&T will be separate companies with divergent goals and interests. Our intervention is designed to protect our interests."

"After the breakup, Southwestern Bell will be both a supplier and a customer of AT&T Communications," Roth said in a statement. "AT&T will pay us for access to the local telephone network so that AT&T can complete long distance calls. On the other hand, we will pay AT&T for long distance calls made over the AT&T network.

"We want to assure that both the rates paid to us by AT&T, and the rates we pay them, are fair."

Roth said, "Overall, we believe that long distance rates should come down.

Ten firefighters hospitalized

HOUSTON (AP) — At least 10 firefighters were hospitalized after inhaling a toxic gas early Friday following a fire in a meat market on Houston's north side, authorities said.

None of the injured men was in serious condition, fire department spokesman Clyde Thomas said.

Minneapolis council member Charlee Hoyt argues in favor of an anti-pornography law Friday. Ms. Hoyt was one of the sponsors of the bill, which passed on a 7-6 vote.

Minneapolis council outlaws pornography

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The City Council narrowly approved a landmark ordinance Friday outlawing pornography as a violation of women's civil rights, but a civil liberties group said the measure was unconstitutional and offered to challenge it in court.

Those voicing concern about the broadness of the definition included Mayor Donald Fraser, who said he had not decided whether to sign the ordinance. It would take nine votes to override his veto.

Council member Charlee Hoyt, sponsor of the ordinance which passed 7-6, said it would end years of "degradation, hurt and systematic discrimination" against women. She said she welcomed a court test.

"Women have asked that we make a statement here today that starts the new history of this country," Ms. Hoyt said.

Other council members opposed to the ordinance said they wanted to curb pornography, but were certain that language in the new law was too vague to withstand a test on whether it violates the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

The law, which takes effect in six months, defines pornography as "the sexually explicit subordination of women, graphically depicted, whether in pictures or words..."

It sets out nine ways women might be subordinated, including being portrayed as sexual objects or commodities, as enjoying pain or humiliation, as experiencing pleasure in being raped, as tied up or being hurt, in "postures of sexual submission," as reduced to no more than parts of the body, as prostitutes, as having sex with animals or in scenes of degradation or injury.

The Minnesota Civil Liberties Union called the ordinance unconstitutional and said it would bring a lawsuit if someone asked for it.

Fraser said the ordinance set forth "an important idea" which unfortunately was couched in language that was unlikely to hold up in court, with the result that the idea would be "shot down and will disappear."

He urged the council to deliberate the issue further and await an opinion from the city attorney, who had not had time to prepare one.

Ms. Hoyt and other supporters of the measure pushed for immediate passage, since five of the 13 members leave office Jan. 1.

Judge blocks release of Nixon papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal trial judge on Friday blocked the public release, scheduled to begin Tuesday, of 1.5 million White House documents left behind when President Richard M. Nixon resigned in 1974.

District Judge Thomas Hogan struck down as unconstitutional part of the law allowing public access to the papers, which include some of the Nixon administration's most sensitive political documents. The ruling does not preclude eventual release of the materials, however. Indeed, Hogan opened the door to new rules that would accomplish that.

Still, it was a victory for 29 former Nixon administration officials who had challenged the government's plan to release the papers.

In a brief order, to be followed by a fuller, written opinion, Hogan barred officials of the General Services Administration and the National Archives "from further implementing or taking any further actions pursuant to the existing public access regulations until such time as newly promulgated regulations become effective."

Justice Department spokesman Brad Marman said he could not say whether the government will appeal Hogan's ruling.

"We are not in a position to comment at this time," Marman said. "We have to wait until we see the opinion."

The lawsuit, filed last October, challenged the public access provision of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Presevation Act.

In striking down that portion of the law, Hogan relied on a Supreme Court decision that last June barred use of the "legislative veto."

The provisions invalidated by Hogan made the GSA's companion regulations subject to the veto of either the House or Senate. Hogan said that is unconstitutional, in light of the Supreme Court's decision — and new regulations without such congressional power hanging over them must be drawn.

"The public access regulations issued under that (veto) authority are unlawful and void," Hogan declared.

Hogan's ruling, even if it is subsequently overruled or complied with by future regulations, will delay release of the papers.

The 1.5 million documents at stake in the case are part of some 42 million Nixon White House documents that the GSA has had under its control for nearly a decade.

The 29 plaintiffs are Richard Allen, Stanton Anderson, Roy Ash, Claude Brinegar, Patrick Buchanan, Stephen Bull, Frank Carlucci, Kenneth Cole Jr., Richard Cook, Stanley Ebner, Peter Flanigan, Mark Good, Alexander Haig, Bryce Harlow, Jerry Jones, S. Steven Karalekes, Kenneth Khachigian, Tom Korologos, Franklyn Nofziger, Patrick O'Donnell, Terrence O'Donnell, David Parker, Brent Scowcroft, William Timmons, Gerald Warren, Frank Webber, J. Bruce Whelihan, David Wimer and Ronald Ziegler.

Ziegler, Nixon's White House press secretary, said, "No one can operate at the highest levels of government knowing that what they write will be released in 10 years."

Quadriplegic takes case back to court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Carrying a plea from quadriplegic Elizabeth Bouvia to the state Supreme Court for the second time, attorneys Friday sought an order to halt force-feeding of their client and a hospital's efforts to discharge her.

Ms. Bouvia, 26, who suffers from cerebal palsy and arthritis, says she wants to free herself from a "useless" body and commit suicide by starvation in Riverside General Hospital while receiving pain-killers and nursing care.

But her legal efforts for care while she dies have so far been rejected, and hospital officials now say she is well enough for discharge, if the Riverside County can find a care home or individual willing to take her and not accede to her death wish.

Andrew Roth, an attorney for Ms. Bouvia, said in Riverside that he hoped the state high court would at least issue a temporary restraining order on the discharge portion of the request.

"We're worried that they might sneak her out in the middle of the night, so to speak," he said.

Deputy Riverside County Counsel William Katzenstein said Ms. Bouvia will remain in the hospital at least until Tuesday while officials continue to search for other accommodations.

Katzenstein said Ms. Bouvia is refusing to cooperate with doctors who are force-feeding her under the court order. Her refusal could be construed as contempt of court, but it is unlikely that she would be prosecuted, he said.

Ms. Bouvia is being force-fed liquid protein through a nasal tube that goes into her stomach.

Superior Court Judge John Hews, who previously turned down Ms. Bouvia's request for an order forcing the hospital staff to assist her suicide, ruled Dec. 22 that the hospital could force-feed her to keep her alive.

Doctors at the hospital then said she had regained her strength and was medically dischargeable.

The state Supreme Court on Tuesday refused to hear a plea by Ms. Bouvia's attorneys for an emergency order to keep her in the hospital, instead sending the case down to the 4th Court of Appeals in San Bernardino.

Senators will have to live with fewer chicken dinners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate can look forward to a pay raise on Sunday, but many will have to begin living within slimmer means. That's when the clock runs out on their unlimited take from the rubber-chicken circuit.

On Jan. 1, the Senate begins playing by the same rules as the House: so-called honoraria from speechmaking and writing cannot exceed 30 percent of a member's salary, which will be up $2,443, to $72,243, for both chambers next year.

That means no one can make more than $21,672 from such moonlighting in 1984.

The self-imposed limit is nothing new for the House, but it may cause some financial squeezes in the Senate, where outside speechmaking represented a $2.4 million income source in 1982, the last year covered by available disclosure reports.

In 1982, 91 senators accepted honoraria. Forty-nine of them earned more than the new limit. Their average was $43,000, just about double the ceiling.

The senator who will be hit the hardest, apparently, is Finance Chairman Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., who was the 1982 earnings champion with $135,750.

He is expected to again lead the pack this year. Actual earnings for 1983 won't be made public through the congressional disclosure process until mid-1984.

Walt Riker, Dole's spokesman, says the senator's 1983 earnings will be "a little bit ahead" of 1982, but he says Dole has not been out hustling speaking engagements to beat the clock.

In one week early this month, Dole spoke six times for pay, jetting from Oakland, Calif., to Los Angeles, then Ashland, Ky., next Washington and then back west to Chicago.

"This schedule is nothing out of the ordinary," Riker said, adding that in both May and July the senator made 13 honoraria appearances.

Man goes berserk in store, stabs five people, killing one

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — A man went berserk with a knife in a downtown grocery store Friday afternoon, stabbing one person to death and injuring four others, at least one seriously, police and witnesses said.

A man also sought by Maine authorities on undisclosed charges was arrested by police, who impounded a car with a Maine license plate. Officers had no details on what prompted the rampage, and did not release the man's name or background.

Three people were attacked in the grocery store and two others were stabbed outside, said Capt. Edward Largy.

"We have a homicide," he said, and another person is "very seriously injured."

"We had a guy that went berserk with a knife," said David Rozumek, owner of the grocery store. "He ended up stabbing about five people."

Police roped off part of the area in front of the department store in the U-shaped plaza on Main Street in this southern New Hampshire city of about 70,000.

Officials said three victims were brought to St. Joseph's Hospital and two were taken to Memorial Hospital.

No details were available on the person fatally stabbed.

Chief justice refuses to block natural gas consumers' refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on Friday refused to block a federal court order expected to lead to hundreds of millions of dollars in refunds to natural gas consumers nationwide.

Burger left intact a federal appeals court ruling that natural gas prices since 1978 have been illegally higher than they should be.

He turned down emergency requests from natural gas producers and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Those requests were aimed at blocking the need for any refunds until the full Supreme Court considers formal appeals in the pricing controversy.

The chief justice's brief order made it clear that the requests for blocking any action under the appeals court ruling may be renewed if and when a formal appeal is filed with the full Supreme Court.

At issue is the ceiling prices producers are allowed to charge for "first sales" of natural gas to pipeline companies.

Workers reject repayment plan

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — City workers who were accidentally overpaid by a total of $189,000 have rejected a proposal to repay 75 percent of the money over the next two years, officials said Friday.

The city proposal, which called for a 1 percent cut in salary and fringe benefits for two years, was approved by just 17 members — 27 percent of those voting on behalf of the Santa Clara City Employees Association.

The association represents about 200 of the 350 workers who were overpaid by an average of 2.5 percent in 1983. They include dispatchers, clerk-typists, meter readers and technicians.

The overpayments occurred when erroneous data was used to compute wage and benefit adjustments.

Jury: Man harassed over ticket

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal jury has awarded a man $130,000 in damages after ruling he was harassed by a Delaware police officer who pursued him on an alleged traffic violation into Maryland.

The U.S. District Court jury Tuesday ordered that Abraham Paul Korotki, of Towson, receive punitive damages of $100,000 from the town of Fenwick Island and $5,000 from each of three city officials — Alderman Richard Barton, Police Chief James Cartwright and Officer Thomas J. Goughan.

The town was also ordered to pay Korotki $15,000 in compensatory damages.

Zoo loses star attraction

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — After 27 years, the Capron Zoo is without its star attraction, an 1,800-pound performing polar bear.

The bear, named Frosty, died in its quarters Wednesday morning and was buried in the park, Thomas Sadler III, chairman of the park commission, said Thursday.

One of the bear's favorite tricks was to toss a light pine log in the air and catch it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Guard your privacy. Neighbors are both noisy and nosey. Trips and phone calls bring good luck. Get your priorities straight so that you can start off on the right foot in 1984.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not be duped by a selfish family member. Attend church with someone you love. A child's enthusiasm brings a sparkle to your eye. Mate shows a new vulnerability.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family affairs claim your attention. The new year gets off to an inspired start. Lovers reveal pleasing secrets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): HAPPY NEW YEAR! A long-distance trip may not live up to your expectations. Look on the bright side. Romance takes a giant step forward. You make all the right choices.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Recent pressures are lifted. With your chores out of the way, you can relax with your friends and loved ones. Romance spices up the day in a way you had not anticipated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You started the new year determined to make a cherished dream come true. Luck is with you. Romance keeps your spirits high. A parent-child conflict can be resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): HAPPY NEW YEAR! You have never been more charming than you are today. Family members are delighted with the welcome you give them. A financial windfall is part of the picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance has you walking on air. Follow your intuition in the days just ahead. Adventure and exploration are on your mind. Reserve more time for a favorite hobby or pastime.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your sweetness is part of your power. Be tactful when dealing with someone who is difficult. A brilliant investment plan is offered for your consideration. Act immediately on this unusual opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Although your eccentricity drives some family members to distraction, it cheers and amuses others. Let mate know the depth of your affection. A young person looks to you for guidance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): HAPPY NEW YEAR! Health and physical fitness are your top priorities. You cannot attain your goals without allies. Do what you can to improve communication within the family circle.

Reflections shed on TV in 1983

NEW YORK (AP) — Reflections on a glossy eye from the 1983 TV world:

A Round of Applause for the Weatherman:

As a ratings gimmick, a station in Dayton, Ohio, invited a studio audience for its early evening newscast. If this stunt catches on, maybe it will improve the performance of the actors on the local news.

Never Underestimate the Power of the Press:

The nuclear disarmament movement latched on to ABC's "The Day After" and scheduled demonstrations and discussions coordinated to the film's broadcast. Press coverage of the activities and the film helped make "The Day After" must-viewing for 100 million Americans.

A Bloodless Coup for NBC:

NBC's "A-Team" has more bullets flying than any other show, but nobody's been hit this season. Psychologists say the lack of blood and consequences will mislead children.

Maybe so, but this isn't supposed to be reality. For escapist entertainment, we'd rather see "The A-Team" fire cabbages and watermelons and mock the violence on TV than see real violence.

Can We Talk about Tacky?

Joan Rivers, one of the hosts of the Emmy Award telecast on NBC, put her foot in her mouth, calling James Watt "an idiot" and uttering a profanity. She also changed her wardrobe each time she made an appearance. Where was Johnny Carson when we really needed him?

Penalty for Piling on:

The fuss over Howard Cosell calling Washington Redskins receiver Alvin Garrett "a little monkey" on ABC's "Monday Night Football" seemed a case of hitting Howard when he was down. Of course, Cosell shouldn't have said it and shouldn't have denied he said it. But it was wrong of some pundits, perhaps penalizing Cosell for previous pomposity and egotism, to suggest he's a racist.

When Will this War Ever End?

ABC's "The Winds of War" blustered on and on, 18 hours worth of Robert Mitchum making the world safe for democracy. He met Roosevelt, Hitler, Churchill and Stalin, and we half expected to see his craggy face on Mount Rushmore.

CBS Brought the Troops Home:

"M-A-S-H" spent 11½ years building friendships and 2½ hours saying goodbye. This was the war series to end all war series. Where were you the night of Feb. 28? A TV-record 106 million viewers were saluting TV at its finest.

This Guy Could Sell a Used Computer:

Alan Alda was paid $6 million to plug Atari computers. We don't know about the product, but the pitch was certainly convincing. This Alda is no Mr. Whipple. Maybe he'll get a series someday.

Archie Bunker Finally Got His in the End:

CBS canceled "Archie Bunker's Place." But the demise of this show couldn't erase the comedy daring and insights of its predecessor, "All in the Family."

Best Co-ed Tag Team:

Sam and Diane of NBC's "Cheers." Great comedy comes from believable conflict, and these two lovers mix as well as beer and wine. As one of the show's producers said about their match, "they may fall in love, but they still won't like each other."

Nobody Does It Better:

Ted Koppel of ABC's "Nightline" makes journalism insightful and informative every night. He's gracious, witty and curious. See if you could hold conversations with four people simultaneously, make sense of it and still pause at the right time for the commercials.

Broadcast Journalism's Finest Hour:

Summer series from Charles Kuralt and Bill Moyers, back to back on CBS, proved, once again, that news and information presented entertainingly can be more entertaining — and interesting — than entertainment.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas attacked and temporarily occupied a major army base north of the capital in a pre-dawn assault Friday, rebel and U.S. sources said.

A U.S. Embassy official said as many as 1,000 rebels, firing mortars, rocket-propelled grendades and automatic rifles, attacked the army's 4th Infantry Brigade compound at 2 a.m. Friday and a few hours later overran most of the government positions. He said that by noon, the rebels were driven from the base, which is located at the town of El Paraiso in Chalatenango province, 36 miles north of San Salvador.

A Salvadoran Defense Ministry spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said most of the 1,200 soldiers stationed at the base were out on patrols in the hills northeast of El Paraiso.

UNESCO director-general acknowledges U.S. decision

PARIS (AP) — UNESCO Director-General Amadou Mahtar M'Bow acknowledged with regret Friday the United States decision to withdraw from the U.N. agency in 1985.

M'Bow, in a statement released 24 hours after Washington's announcement, said "we can only regret a decision which, if put into effect, would be prejudicial to the principle of...universality" of the organization.

He said U.S. Ambassador Jean Gerard delivered a letter Wednesday from Secretary of State George P. Shultz formally advising him of the U.S. decision to withdraw Dec. 31, 1984, from the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

M'Bow, of Senegal, said he immediately informed the presidents of UNESCO's General Conference and Executive Board of the letter.

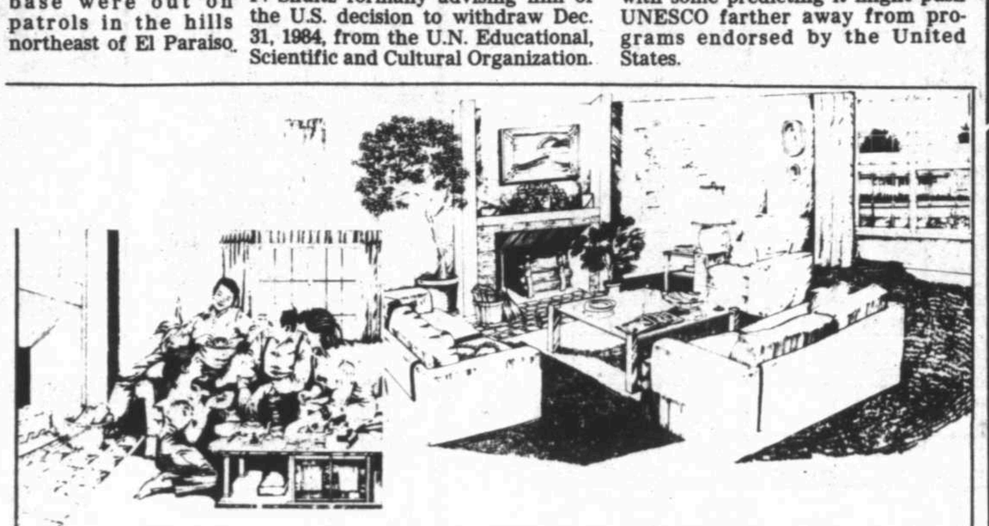

U.S. opposition to what it considers political progams and budget mismanagement in UNESCO led to the withdrawal notice. America's contribution to UNESCO accounts for about one-quarter of its $200 million annual budget.

Diplomats at UNESCO remained divided Friday over the effects the scheduled withdrawal might have, with some predicting it might push UNESCO farther away from programs endorsed by the United States.

Bradshaw still question mark for Sunday

By Associated Press

Many of the players who made the rivalry between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Oakland Raiders into classics of hard hitting and immaculate receptions are trivia questions now. But Terry Bradshaw remains — maybe.

Bradshaw may be at quarterback when the Steelers face the now-Los Angeles Raiders in an American Football Conference semifinal playoff Sunday. Then again, he may not, a continuing victim of the sore arm that was operated upon in last year's offseason and limited him to exactly one-plus quarter of action this year.

In fact, it will be close to game time — 2 p.m. Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum — before Steeler Coach Chuck Noll decides whether his quarterback is Bradshaw; Cliff Stoudt, who quarterbacked the team for most of the season, or third-stringer Mark Malone.

"If he hasn't practiced before the game, he won't play," Noll says of Bradshaw.

"It's somewhat of a problem, preparing for three quarterbacks, because they're all a little bit different," said Raider Coach Tom Flores. But he adds that it would be more a problem of "adapting to tendencies" rather than changing a game plan to fit the opposing quarterback.

The Raider-Steelers game will wind up a full weekend of quarterfinal games that will eventually provide the two Super Bowl teams.

TODAY, the Seattle Seahawks will be at the AFC East champion Miami Dolphins and the NFC Central champion Detroit Lions will visit the San Francisco 49ers, winners of the West. The Los Angeles Rams at the NFC East champion Washington Redskins will precede the Steelers and Raiders on Sunday.

From 1972 through 1976, the Steelers and Raiders met five times in the playoffs, with the Steelers winning three and the Raiders two. The most memorable was the first game, known forever for the Immaculate Reception — Franco Harris' scoop of a desperation pass from Bradshaw that deflected off the Raiders' Jack Tatum and Pittsburgh's Frenchy Fuqua and gave the Steelers a 13-7 win.

Harris is still around, but most of the other names have changed — on both teams.

Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" of Joe Greene, L.C. Greenwood et. al. has given way to a relative faceless aggregation that was still strong enough to finish second in the AFC in defense. The Raiders have moved to Los Angeles and Daryle Lamonica and Marv Hubbard have given way to Jim Plunkett and Marcus Allen.

But that doesn't change the rivalry in Flores' mind.

"We expect a typical Raider-Steeler game," he says. "Both teams are very physical. Nothing's really changed since we played them last time in the playoffs, even though the personnel on both teams has turned over. The styles and philosophies are still the same."

THE RAMS-Redskins game is a matchup of upstart and champion, the upstart, of course, being the Rams, who upset the Dallas Cowboys 24-17 in the NFC wild-card game last Monday.

But Joe Gibbs, coach of the Super Bowl champion Redskins, is taking nothing for granted. He says he's worried about the versatility of the Rams, who can strike on the ground with rookie Eric Dickerson, the NFL rushing leader, and through the air, via Vince Ferragamo, who had three touchdown passes against the Cowboys.

"Some teams beat you running it down your throat, while others go for the big play," Gibbs says. "The Rams have the capability to go both ways."

Detroit goes into San Francisco with a backup quarterback, Gary Danielson, replacing the injured Eric Hipple. But 49er Coach Bill Walsh points out that facing the 32-year-old Danielson, an eight-year NFL veteran, isn't like going against your normal backup.

"If the backup was a rookie," says Walsh, "then we as oaches might say 'Ah-ha, he hasn't played; it's a playoff game and we've got it made.' But Danielson has played, he's a vet. Gary is capable, with his poise and his background, of inspiring his team."

IN MIAMI, the Dolphins are a heavy favorite over the Seahawks, who beat the Denver Broncos 31-7 last week in the AFC wild-card game. It was the first playoff game ever for Seattle. But wide reciever Steve Largent has a one-word answer for those who suggest the Seahawks should be glad just to get into the playoffs.

"Baloney," says Largent, who has been with Seattle for the entire eight years of its existence.

"This is just as important a game for us as it is for them. If we lose, we get knocked out of the playoffs. We're going into the game with one idea — to win. Don't let anyone tell you differently."

Celts defeat Mavs, 114-109

DALLAS (AP) — The Boston Celtics, led by Larry Bird's 36 points, erased a six-point deficit in the final 2:40 of regulation then outscored the Dallas Mavericks 11-6 in overtime to take a 114-109 NBA win Friday night.

After Boston guard Dennis Johnson hit two free throws with seven seconds left to send the game into overtime at 103-103, he hit the first of two Boston buckets that gave the Celtics an early 107-103 overtime edge.

Cedric Maxwell converted a three-point play to push it to 110-105 and Bird, with 36 seconds left, sealed the win with layup that made it 112-107.

Center Robert Parrish had 18 points for Boston, which raised its record to 24-8 and kept its record over the fourth-year Mavericks perfect at 7-0.

Dallas got 32 points from Rolando Blackman and played the final 8:50 of the game without top scorer Mark Aguirre, who fouled out with 22 points.

Bulls' streak snapped

PONTIAC, Mich. — Bill Laimbeer scored 28 points as the Detroit Pistons defeated the Chicago Bulls, 103-96 in the NBA Friday, snapping a seven-game Chicago winning streak.

Kelly Tripucka, who finished with 20 points, scored 14 in the first quarter, as the Pistons moved out to a 36-23 lead and Detroit built a 59-45 halftime lead. Chicago was led by Quintin Dailey with 23 points. Woolridge finished with 21.

Birdsong paces NJ Nets

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Otis Birdsong scored 32 points, hitting on 14 of 18 shots, and Buck Williams added 17 points and 18 rebounds to power the New Jersey Nets to a 118-106 victory over the Indiana Pacers Friday.

Darryl Dawkins added 19 points and Mike O'Koren a season-high 16 as the Nets snapped a four-game losing streak and boosted their record to 14-17. The victory overshadowed the play of Indiana rookie center Steve Stipanovich, who poured in a season-high 29 points. Indiana fell to 7-21.

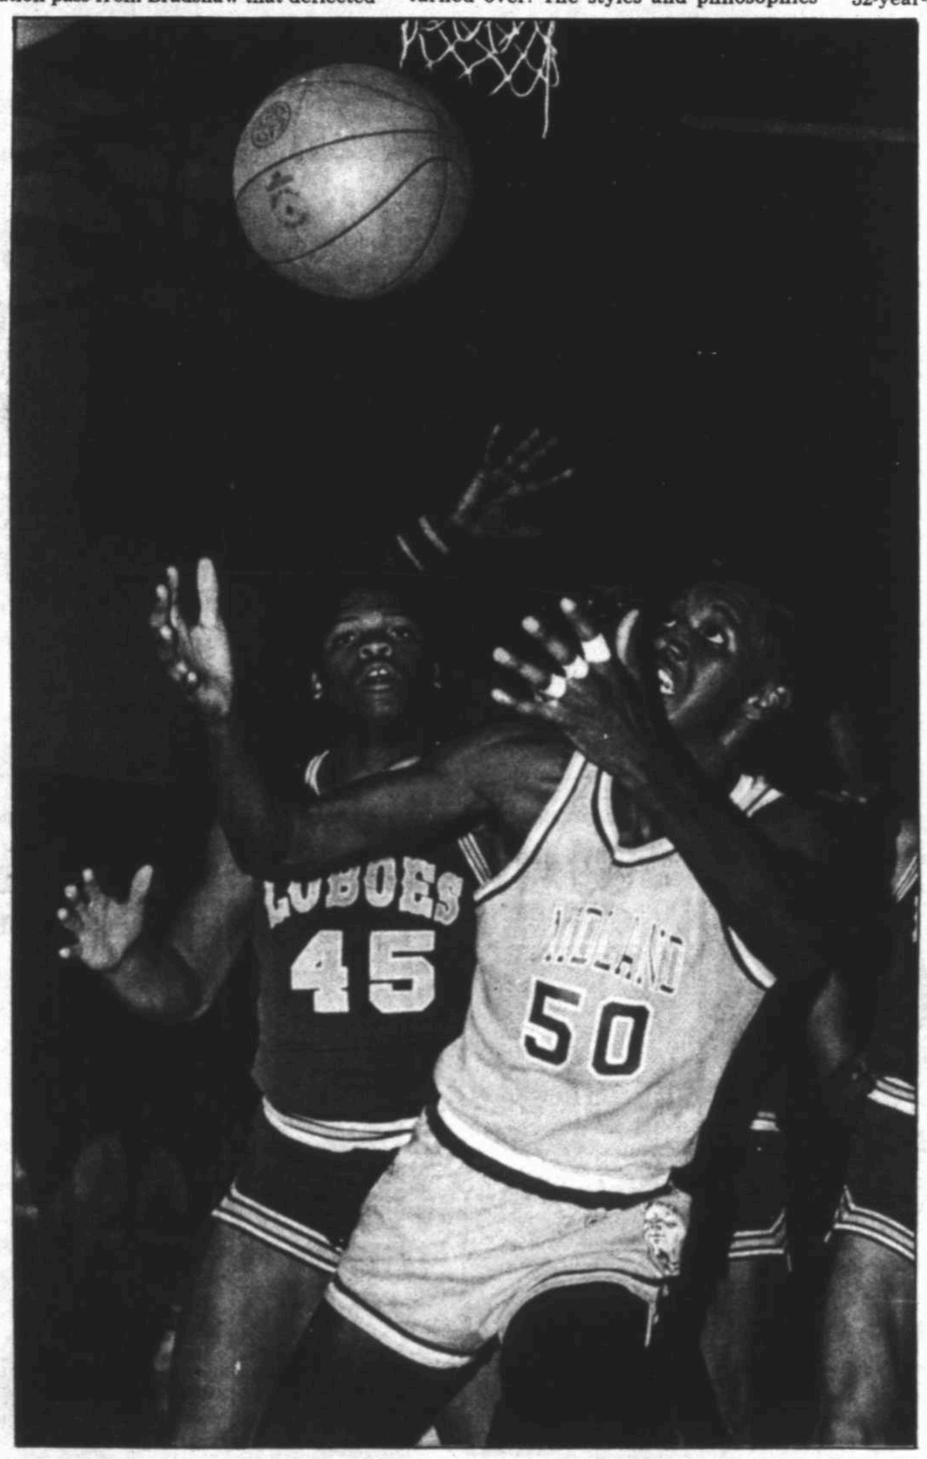

Bullets drills Knicks, 91-86

LANDOVER, Md. — Greg Ballard scored 25 points and Ricky Sobers added 24 to lead the Washington Bullets to a 91-86 victory over the New York.

Hawks avenge loss to Cavs

ATLANTA — Johnny Davis scored a season high 26 points as the Atlanta Hawks overcame an early deficit and defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 109-98.

Atlanta, now 15-3 at home and 16-15 overall, avenged an 88-77 loss to the 9-22 Cavaliers in Cleveland on Thursday.

Dogs raise mark to 17-3

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

With the beginning of the district 4-5A schedule only four days away, Midland High's Boys basketball team got just the right tune-up against the outmanned Monahans Loboes.

When the wreckage had been sorted out, MHS had grabbed a school-record 67 rebounds in dealing Monahans a 79-49 setback and upping the Bulldog mark to 17-3. That is one of the fastest starts in school history as well, and when the book is written on this edition of the Bulldogs, Chris Rooker will have a prominent chapter.

Rooker was again on the mark, and scored a game high 19 points. The Bulldogs were a bit slow to start against Monahans, but still got off to a big lead early in the game and the Loboes never had a chance. Rooker and Fred Franklin got the ball rolling, but everybody had a chance to shine against the Loboes, who suited up only nine players for the game, three of them fouling out.

"It was just about what we needed and what I wanted to see," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson of the easy win. "It was a good win for us. We had to get ready for district play so I substituted more frequently than I probably will Tuesday."

WHAT THAT meant was that Stephenson had time to run all 16 players on his bench into the game, and most of them got several minutes of playing time. Consequently, there were many outstanding efforts turned in by the Bulldogs.

Fred Franklin got the 'Dogs headed firmly in the proper direction early. He scored twice and drew fouls within the first two minutes, converting one of the opportunities for five quick points and an 8-0 lead that the loboes never recovered from.

Franklin was on his way to eleven points, Kenneth Johnson chipped in 14, everyone else swarmed the boards and the 'Dogs prepared for the district opener against Permian in style.

"We did start slow," conceded Stephenson, "When you play somebody you know you should beat, sometimes your concentration is a little off."

BESIDES JOHNSON, Stephenson lauded Willis Ratliff. The two big men along with massive Darrell Davis overpowered the Loboes around the rack, and by halftime the game was hardly in doubt.

The first quarter ended 19-6, and the second frame wound up 40-20. Stephenson used his regulars for most of the third quarter, and entering the fourth MHS had a quite comfortable 57-29 advantage.

After that it was garbage time. MHS' second and third five came in and with their entrance came works. The final quarter was a shootout, but MHS had too much for Monahans and the Loboes dropped to 5-9 on the year.

Tuesday, Stephenson's crew plays for keeps when the district season opens against the Panthers, comnsidered one of the league's better teams. Game time is 8:00 p.m. at Chaparral Center Tuesday night.

Rick Sample's Junior varsity closed to within a game of the .500 mark with a 68-44 blowout of the Monahans JV. Mark Lyons scored 18 for the Pups, while Elvin Mackey added a dozen and Jason Fuller broke into double figures with 10.

The JV's are 8-9.

Greenwood sweeps Permian

Greenwood scored a four-game sweep over Odessa Permian in basketball Friday night as the boys defeated the Permian JV, 73-65, to raise their record to 8-3, while the girls defeated the Permian Varsity, 52-44. That gives the Rangerettes a 12-3 record for the season.

In JV action, Greenwood's boys won over the Permian sophomores, 44-43, and Greenwood's girls took a 45-41 win over the Permian JV.

Gators devour Hawkeyes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Neal Anderson's one-yard touchdown run capped an 87-yard drive in the first quarter and Doug Drew recovered a fumbled snap by Iowa's punter for a second-period score as No. 11 Florida held on to defeat the 10th-ranked Hawkeyes 14-6 in a chilly Gator Bowl Friday night.

The victory enabled Florida to equal the school record of nine victories in a season, accomplished four times previously. The Gators' 9-2-1 mark is their best since 1969 and may have assured Florida the first Top Ten finish in its football history.

The Hawkeyes, who were bidding to become the first Iowa team to win 10 games, wound up 9-3.

Iowa's Chuck Long, the NCAA's No. 2-ranked passer and ringleader of the nation's third best offense, was intercepted four times after throwing only eight interceptions in 236 passes all season.

The Gators turned the first interception, one of two thefts by free safety Tony Lilly, into their 87-yard touchdown drive. Anderson started it with a 47-yard burst and finished it by taking a pitchout for the final yard and a 7-0 lead at 14:20 of the opening period.

An interception by Florida linebacker Mark Korff at his 23-yard line stalled an Iowa drive on the Hawkeyes' next possession. But Tom Nichol's 32-yard field goal after an 88-yard march made it 7-3 with 5:45 remaining in the first half.

Bowls tough to forecast

Post-season bowl games are the worst kind for forecasters.

A month's layoff can rust a delicately-tuned machine, and one can never be sure what kind of motivation a team will bring into these holiday sprees.

You'd think playing an Alabama would be all the incentive necessary to bring out the best in an SMU, so how do you explain a 28-7 humbling. The Mustangs were definitely disappointed in not landing a major New Year's Day invite, but SMU didn't convince any bowl promoters they had made a mistake by their performance against the Tide.

The Peach Bowl is a good example of what can happen when reputation is awarded priority over performance. North Carolina wasn't even the best team in its home state and the Peach people probably would have gotten better fan support and a more entertaining game if they had invited East Carolina, which lost to Florida State, by a point in a 90-plus point binge earlier in the season.

Notre Dame, so the records claimed, had no business in a bowl game, let alone beating Boston College, but it happened, in what probably has been the best of the post-season games to date. The 19-18 Irish win proved that the foot isn't necessarily back in the football.

In view of the foregoing, only an idiot would attempt to forecast post-season action contests...

THE bowls....

Oklahoma State minus one over Baylor-If Cowboys play like they did against Nebraska, one point should prove no handicap.

Georgia plus 7½ over Texas—Both teams emphasize defense, so it should be low scoring, unless Akers goes to McIvor at quarterback and he performs like the Bulldogs were the Aggies.

Illinois minus 4 against UCLA—Last time these teams met in the Rose Bowl was back in the 1940s. The Illini won 47-14. If UCLA plays like its record for the season, it could be about the same this time.

Pitt plus three over Ohio State—This amounts to a neighborhood battle in far away Tempe, Ariz.

Auburn minus 4 over Michigan—Auburn has dreams of No. 1, if both Texas and Nebraska lose.

Nebraska minus 10½ over Miami—That's a lot of points and the Cornhuskers may not be able to win that emphatically. Still, they have a lot at stake.

THE PROS, for anyone that still cares after Monday's leftdown...

Miami minus 7½ over Seattle—Seahawks have done more than expected in coming this far.

San Francisco minus 6½ over Detroit—What's Detroit doing in the playoffs, anyway?

Redskins minus nine over Rams—After what Rams did to the Cowboys, Redskins will be waiting.

Raiders minus 6½ over Steelers—If Bradshaw were healthy, sure I'd take the points.

Classic matchup

HOUSTON (AP) — It will be Oklahoma State's defensive strength against Baylor's offensive might in the 25th annual Bluebonnet Bowl New Year's Eve in the Astrodome.

Or will it?

"Everybody is saying their offense is outstanding and our defense is strong so either our offense or their defense will make the difference in the game," Oklahoma State offensive guard Kevin Igo said.

Baylor's offense led the Southwest Conference and ranked 20th nationally in total offense, averaging 25.9 points per game. Oklahoma State's defense was fifth nationally in rushing defense and third in the nation in turnover margin.

The Bears have offensive weapons that include tiny receiver Gerald McNeil, freshman quarterback Cody Carlson, fourth in the nation in passing efficiency and multi-talented running back Alfred Anderson.

Bluebonnet

The Cowboy's defensive stars include safety Adams Hinds, tied for fourth in the nation with seven interceptions, linebacker Matt Monger, who led the team with 136 tackles and tackle Leslie O'Neal, who has 14 tackles for 82 yards in losses.

The Cowboys intercepted 26 passes.

But Cowboys' flanker Jamie Harris, the team's leading receiver with 42 catches and six touchdowns, would like to speak for the offense.

"Right now I don't think the offense has the respect that it should have," Harris said. "We have to go out Saturday and prove ourselves. We have to go in early in the game and establish ourselves as the best offense on the field."

Leiding recovers okay after bash

DALLAS (AP) — Texas linebacker Jeff Leiding is expected to be at full speed for the Cotton Bowl Jan. 2 although he got hit in the head with a beer bottle at a nightclub this week.

"I bumped into a guy and he just turned around and hit me in the head with a beer bottle," Leiding said.

Leiding said,"I pushed him down."

Police asked Leiding if he wanted to press charges and he said he didn't.

Leiding's forehead cut wasn't serious in the Tuesday night incident.

"It wasn't a deep cut and I'm a bleeder anyway," Leiding said.

Leiding missed Wednesday's practice but was back on the field Thursday and Friday. Texas officials told the media Leiding was ill but later Leiding revealed exactly what happened.

Texas Coach Fred Akers was in a forgiving mood, saying,"Jeff just tried to get the guy away from him. The reports of everybody there verify that."

Marino, Krieg surprises

MIAMI (AP) — Neither Dan Marino nor Dave Krieg was supposed to be his team's top quarterback when the National Football League season began. Yet both will be calling the signals Saturday when Marino's Miami Dolphins meet Krieg and the Seattle Seahawks in the playoffs.

They're the American Conference's top two quarterbacks, and the winner will go to the AFC championship game next week.

Marino, returning to action after a four-week layoff with a sprained knee, was touted as the Dolphins' quarterback of the future when Miami drafted him out of Pittsburgh in the first round. But Coach Don Shula benched David Woodley after his team got out to a 3-2 start, making Marino the quarterback of the present. He led the Dolphins to seven victories in nine outings as a starter.

"Dan has exceeded everybody's expectations. Nobody expected a rookie quarterback to come and do the things he's done," Shula said Friday.

Krieg was the guy "nobody wanted" until Coach Chuck Knox made the unpopular decision to yank Jim Zorn.

"It was one of the most difficult decisions I have ever had to make," Knox said. "But we were down 24-0 against Pittsburgh and Dave came in and brought the team back. We lost 27-21, but he put us in a position to win.

"I started him the next week and he beat the Raiders. He has done much more than we expected."

The Seahawks, 9-7 and winners of last week's playoff game against Denver, are in the American Football Conference playoffs for the first time in the franchise's eight-year history.

Krieg finished the season with 18 touchdowns and 2,139 yards, rated second in the AFC behind Marino, who had 20 TDs and 2,210 yards.

"In the last few weeks, he's been excellent," Shula said Friday. "He hasn't made any mistakes."

Marino, 22, the first rookie QB ever voted to start a Pro Bowl, will become the youngest quarterback ever to start an NFL playoff game. Woodley was the youngest at 23 when he started against San Diego two years ago.

Saturday's 12:30 p.m. EST game also features the AFC's top two rookies in Marino and ex-Penn State star Curt Warner, who was the conference's top rusher with 335 carries for 1,449 yards.

"He puts a lot of the pressure on the defense and takes a lot of pressure off our other people," Knox said, noting that his back could run, catch passes and even is "an excellent blocker."

Defensively, Miami allowed fewer points — 15.6 points per game — than any other NFL team and was ranked seventh overall. Seattle was 27th in yardage allowed and gave up nearly 25 points a game.

Shula said safety Lyle Blackwood, who hurt his ankle two weeks ago against the New York Jets, is healthy enough to play and that Marino has had two good weeks of practice. The quarterback will play in a knee brace.

The Seahawks' 31-7 victory over the Broncos last week made Knox the first NFL coach to win a playoff game with three different teams.

Art Schlichter set to return

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If allowed to return to pro football, suspended Baltimore Colts quarterback Art Schlichter says he is ready to face the pressure from fans and league officials who would wonder about his confessed gambling compulsion.

"Yes, I do (want to play)," Schlichter said Friday.

"I think the worst is behind me. It's been a long, tough haul for me. I would say the only thing I can do is just take one day at a time and live by the rule."

He has estimated losing $1 million, including nearly $400,000 in the weeks before he went to FBI agents in Columbus and turned in four Maryland men with whom he had been placing heavy bets.

Monday TV ratings tumble

NEW YORK — ABC's Monday Night Football TV ratings fell about 10 percent during the regular NFL season, according to the final Nielsen ratings. But it closed the season well, with its best rating of the year for the final game.

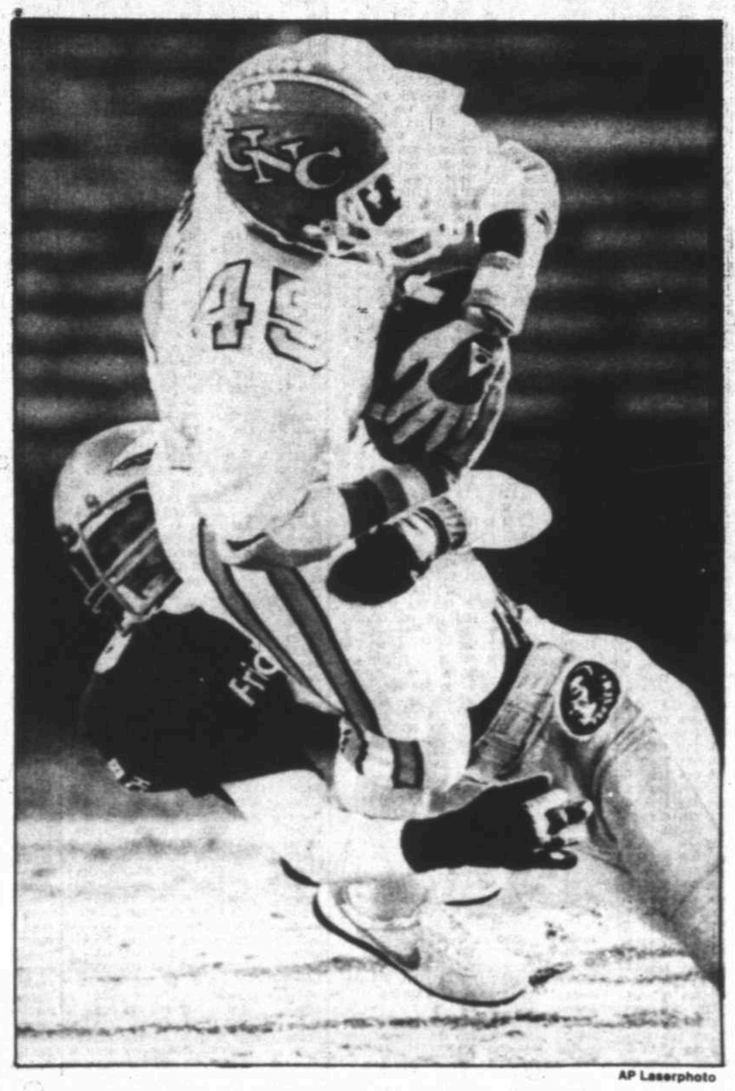

The ratings gave the show a rating of 18.1 and a share of 31 for the full season, compared to 20.6 and a 34 share for the strike-marred, nine-game 1982 regular season. In 1981, the last previous full season, the rating was 21.7, with a 36 share.

Each rating point reflects a percentage of sets in the nation tuned to a particular program; a share reflects the percentage of sets in use turned to that show.

Pirates give up on Gossage

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Pirates gave up their bid to acquire free agent relief pitcher Rich "Goose" Gossage.

"We're out of it," Chuck Tanner said, leaving Atlanta, Toronto and San Diego in the running for the 32-year-old Gossage, who pitched for the New York Yankees last season.

Seminoles pillage Carolina

ATLANTA (AP) — Florida State Bobby Bowden called Friday's 28-3 Peach Bowl victory over North Carolina a "great win" but still not enough to erase the Seminoles' debacle against arch-rival Florida.

Florida State sophomore quarterback Eric Thomas, making his first collegiate start, tossed a pair of first-quarter touchdown passes to Weegie Thompson and ran for another score.

"This was a great win for us, but there's no way we could have redeemed ourselves from that Florida game (a 53-14 loss in the final regular season game)," said Bowden.

A disappointed North Carolina Coach Dick Crum said he was not surprised by Florida State's defense, which had allowed 311 points during the regular season.

"They have outstanding personnel. They've had some injuries and that hurt them, I know," he said.

"In the first half, we just self-destructed. In the second half, we had opportunities, but we didn't take advantage of them," he said.

Thomas hit Thompson on an 18-yard toss in the end zone to cap a 69-yard drive in nine plays following the opening kickoff. He then connected with Thompson on a 15-yard score less than four minutes later.

Florida State made it 21-0 at the half when Roosevelt Snipes dove into the end zone from the 1-yard line following a fumbled punt that was recovered by the Seminoles on the North Carolina 16.

North Carolina's only scoring came on a 36-yard field goal by Brooks Barwick early in the fourth quarter after the Tar Heels marched 71 yards to Florida State's 20 before stalling.

Thomas closed out the scoring by sneaking over from the 1 with only 31 seconds remaining in the game.

Florida State, an independent, had finished its season 7-5.

North Carolina, 8-4, penetrated beyond the 50-yard line only once in the opening half.

Thomas of Valdosta, Ga., who was named the game's most valuable offensive player, completed seven of 13 passes for 99 yards and rushed 13 times for 41 yards.

Baptists won't play Catholics

IRVING (AP) — A Baptist school in East Texas has canceled its basketball games with Cistercian Preparatory School in Irving after learning that the suburban Dallas school is Catholic.

"We thought they were merely a private school," Stan Kiefer, the basketball coach at Longview Christian Academy, said Thursday.

"We didn't know they were Catholic," he said. "We played them when we had a broader philosophy. Now we are just going to play Baptist schools."

Father Bernard Marton, headmaster of the Catholic school, told the Dallas Morning News that he was shocked by the cancellation.

"They contacted our coach and said they had not researched our school properly and learned we are Catholic," Marton said. "Ten days before the game, they said they were canceling our schedule becuase we had philosophical differences.

"When I heard it, I thought, what kind of a world are we living in?"

Officials at the Longview academy, an independent Baptist school, had already informed Cistercian coach Robert Haaser this year of strict rules for cheerleaders performing at the academy.

Marton said when he heard of rules that he told Haaser not to take the school's cheerleaders to Longview.

Sims' IQ remark brings reprimand

BAYTOWN (AP) — A 23-year-old assistant general manager of the new Houston franchise in the USFL says running back Billy Sims, currently subject of lawsuits involving the Gamblers and the NFL Detroit Lions, "doesn't have one of your better IQs."

"He wears his IQ on his jersey," Bret Lerner told a Kiwanis Club meeting in Baytown, east of Houston. Sims wears No. 20 for the Lions.

When questioned later about the statement, Lerner, who is the nephew of Gamblers chief executive officer Bernard Lerner, told the Baytown Sun: "I thought it was an informal atmosphere. I was there to try to represent our team the best way I know how. I was just trying to meet people and sell some season tickets.

"What I said about Billy was totally uncalled for."

"Obviously, that's not representative of our thinking," Bernard Lerner said Friday. "It's terrible. He just drove down there so someone would be there."

Lerner said his nephew never before had given a speech but was assigned to the appearance by the club's speaker bureau when the scheduled team representative, offensive coordinator Darrel Davis, was unable to attend.

"He's going to get us in trouble," Steve Garish, a club spokesman said. "Comments like that are going to kill us."

Jim Finley, vice president of the Kiwanis Club, presided over the meeting and said the reaction of members seemed to be one of bewilderment.

"I just didn't believe what I was hearing," Finley said Friday. "We are a fun-type organization with a lot of joking and putting each other down. But I think he went a little too far. "I would think bewilderment would be the crowd's reaction. There was a lot of conversation afterward that it was a little different from what we are used to."

Skins sharpen tomahawks for LA

WASHINGTON (AP) — If they play like they practice, the Washington Redskins are preparing to punish the Los Angeles Rams come Sunday.

Practices this week have been spirited, marked by shoving matches and faceoffs between offensive and defensive players.

"The guys are getting a little feisty, getting their game face on a little earlier than ususal," said assistant coach Richie Petitbon. "We have been telling them all week that the team that hits harder and plays more aggressively will win."

The Rams and Redskins meet Sunday in a National Conference semifinal matchup. The winner advances to the conference championship Jan.8 against the winner of Saturday's Detroit-San Francisco game.

The Redskins, who finished with the conference's best regular season record, 14-2, would play host to the conference championship if they win Sunday. The Rams, who entered the playoffs as a wild-card entry after compiling a 9-7 record, could not be the host team for the title game, even if they beat Washington.

Rams-Skins

While the Redskins remain confident of victory, a confidence built on a current nine-game winning streak and a record of 29-3 over the last two years, they realize they will have their hands full trying to stop the Rams' Eric Dickerson, the league's leading rusher.

"He's capable of scoring from any area," said Petitbon. "Dickerson will bounce off tacklers, cut back or veer. You can't overplay him because he can change direction on you that quickly."

Petitbon described the Redskins' defensive game plan as being "disciplined and structured, but with abandon."

"To stop Dickerson we will have to strip his blocking and then gang tackle. It will take 11 guys doing their job to stop the Ram running game."

The Redskins did just that in earlier this season when they beat the Rams 42-20. In that game, Dickerson was held to a season-low 37 yards on a dozen carries.

"I never seemed to get on track against them," Dickerson said. "They are a big, powerful team who never let me get started."

A key to the Redskins' success is Darryl Grant, a defensive tackle who is often overshadowed by Dexter Manley, the team leader in sacks, and Dave Butz, the 300-pound, 6-foot-5 Pro Bowler who mans the left side of the defensive line. Playing on a defense that ranks No. 1 against the run, Grant leads all Redskin linemen in tackles with 57 and leads the team in tackles behind the line of scrimmage with seven.

It will be his job to help stop Dickerson on first and second downs, the plays the Rams must be successful on if they are to keep the ball out of the hands of the high-powered Redskin offense.

"Unless the Rams can pick up yardage on first and second down running against Darryl and Dave (Butz) up front, keeping away from having to throw on third down, they are in for a long afternoon," Petitbon said.

Some of fun and laughter gone with jaunty Jimmy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

A little fun and laughter have gone out of golf with the passing of Jimmy Demaret.

He brought a blithe spirit to the professional tour over the struggling period sandwiching World War II. He gave the circuit style. He downplayed the grim and competitive aspects of the game and accented the bright and the beautiful. He gave it a sense of humor.

Jimmy must have had a quip on his lips when he collapsed from an apparent heart attack Wednesday on his cart at the Champions Club which he and pal Jack Burke, Jr., conceived and ran with such grace in the Houston suburbs.

That's the way golf's perennial "Laughing Boy" would have wanted to go — surrounded by the foliage, lush greens and immaculate traps which had been his outdoor home for most of his 73 years.

Demaret was one of a litter of Texans who burst upon the golf scene in the late 1930s and dominated it for two decades. The par-wrecking corps, all of whose ages were just two or three years apart, included Ralph Guldahl, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum and Harold (Jug) McSpaden.

Jimmy was the court jester. He won his share — and more — but he left the cold statistical exploits to his peers.

Guldahl won consecutive U. S. Opens in 1937-38 and then saw his game collapse to a point he couldn't break 80. Nelson won the Open in 1939, the PGA in 1940 and a couple of Masters. In 1945, he won 19 tour events, 11 in a row, setting a record that probably never will be duplicated. Mangrum came out of World War II to win the 1946 Open. Then there was Hogan.

Plagued by a hook that threatened his career and once on the verge of giving up the game, Bantam Ben, as they erroneously named him on the sports pages, rallied to become a links immortal. He won four U. S. Opens, two PGA's and two Masters plus the British Open in his only try and became the only pro ever to win three majors — the Masters, U. S. and British Opens — in a single year.

Only Sam Snead, the sweet-swing hillbilly from Virginia, managed effectively to blunt this Texas golfing juggernaut.

Nelson and McSpaden, both 4F — disqualfied for physical reasons — and unable to serve in the military, were known as "The Gold Dust Twins" because of their sweeps during World War II. Demaret, nine months younger than Hogan, seemed to be the only golfer able to pierce the frigid facade of the man Scotsmen dubbed "The Wee Ice Mon."

They were close friends and golfing partners — Demaret, son of a Houston house painter, and Hogan, son of the Dublin, Texas, village blacksmith — yet two men of markedly contrasting personalities.

Hogan was a grim, tight-lipped machine who dissected golf courses like a gifted surgeon. His white cap pulled low over his Sphinx-like face, he never looked to the right or left. He played his round and headed quickly for the locker room, avoiding well-wishers and autograph-seekers.

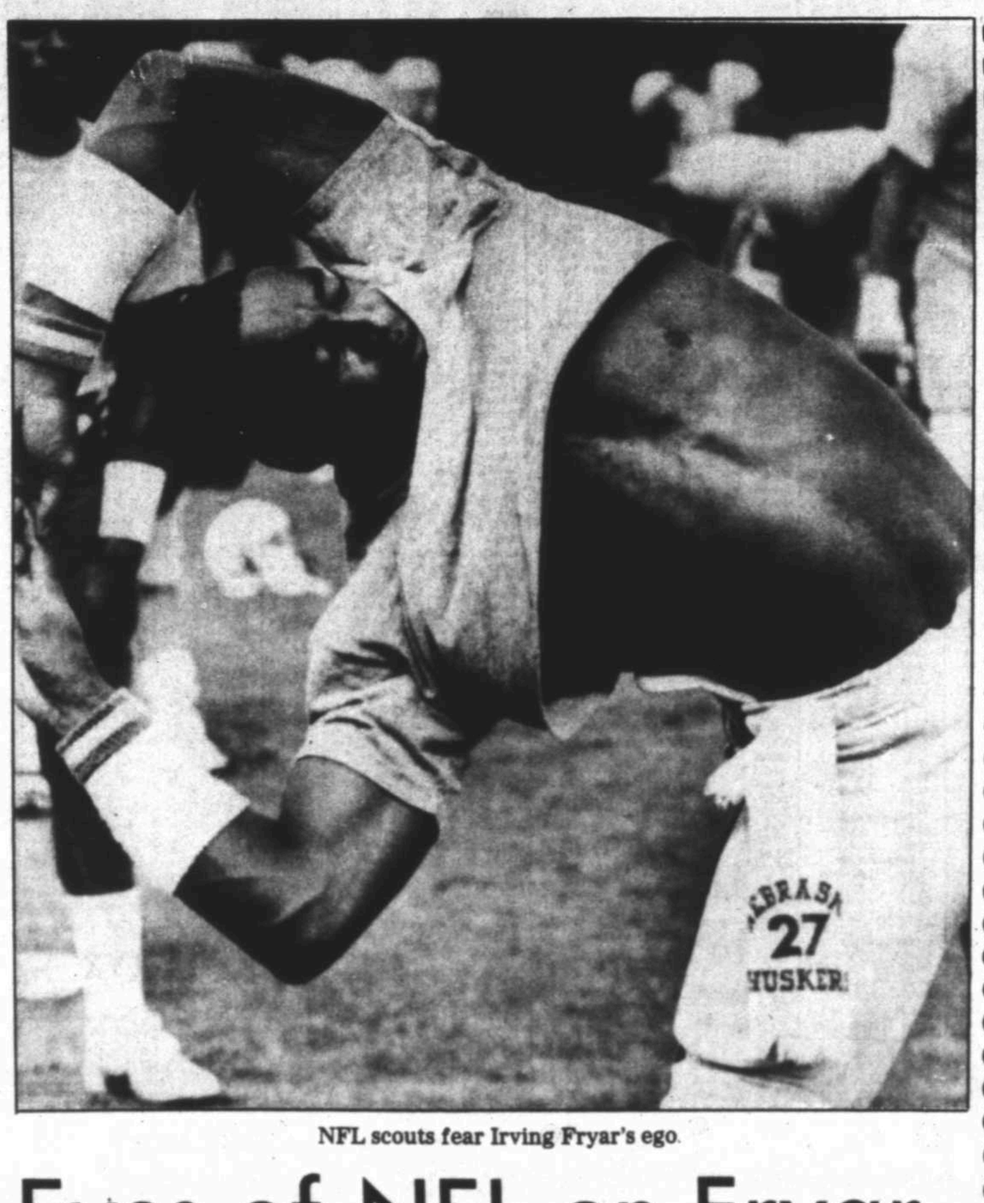

A handsome man with boyish dimpled features and a shock of curly hair, he was the game's first sex symbol. While his companions walked the course in drab slacks and sweaters, Demaret flaunted the colors of a peacock.

Finishing second to Hogan in the U. S. Open at Los Angeles' Riviera Club in 1948, he stunned the gallery by appearing in scarlet trousers, green cap, flowered shirt and two-tone shoes.

He won 32 tour events, once was leading money winner and was the first to win three Masters. His trophy room would have been further engulfed if he had taken the game more seriously. Greatly gifted, he found golf a lark.

He nicknamed Hogan "Blue Blades" and once, when asked if his renowned Texas pal was as reclusive and silent as pictured, replied:

"I don't understand why they say Ben never talks. When we're paired, he talks to me on every hole. He says, 'You're away.' "

NFL scouts fear Irving Fryar's ego.

Eyes of NFL on Fryar

By JERRY MAGEE
Copley News Service

MIAMI — Standing 18 hands, trim through the withers, deep of chest, head held high, the thoroughbred standing at Tropical Park had the look of a champion.

"Like an arrogant race horse," one scout said.

Irving Fryar. Nebraska had concluded practice for its Monday Orange Bowl game against Miami, and Fryar paused for a few moments of conversation. Observing him, sleek, well-muscled, obviously built for speed, one could understand why he is widely considered the prize in this year's NFL draft.

One of Fryar's teammates, running back Mike Rozier, won the Heisman Trophy, but it is Fryar whom most NFL clubs covet. "A big Johnny Rodgers," they say of the 6-0, 200-pound receiver. "No negatives," many of the teams say.

"ONE NEGATIVE," one scout countered. "The kid's ego. He also prides himself in being an individualist. If everyone is wearing red sweats, he's going to be wearing blue. But he has super speed, super jumping ability and a super body. His hands are good, but not great. For running after the catch, though, he's great."

Receiving, running reverses from scrimmage and returning kicks, Fryar carried the football 83 times in the 1983 season. His average: 15.3 yards.

"I would expect he may be as fast as anybody in the country in a football suit," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne. "We timed him under 4.3 seconds (for the 40)."

Watching when the Huskers worked this week were, among others, Mike Holovak, Houston's talent chief, and the San Diego Chargers' Ernie Zampese. The Oilers possess the draft's second choice, San Diego the sixth. But Fryar, as tempting as he is, may not be there when the Chargers choose, or when Houston picks, or when any NFL club makes its first selection.

It is being whispered that Fryar, a native of Mount Holly, N.J., near Philadelphia, already has agreed to sign with Donald Trump's New Jersey Generals of the USFL. If these reports are accurate, Fryar would receive $4 million spread across five years.

Fryar declined to address the specifics of his professional future. "It doesn't make any difference where I play ball," he said. "Professional football is professional football. The USFL? If that comes about, so be it. My ears are wide open right now."

The order of the draft is Cincinnati, Houston, New York Giants, Philadelphia (which has expressed interest in Fryar), Kansas City and San Diego. The Chiefs, if Fryar lasts that long, likely would take him as a running back.

THE GREAT players on Osborne's teams, and there are a few, aren't merely specialists. "Irving is a great blocker," the coach noted. "We use him as a tight end many times. He's a real contact player."

Fryar and Rozier aren't spared from playing on Nebraska's special teams. If Miami kicks off in the Orange Bowl game, those two will handle the returns.

"I think that when the other players see Rozier and Fryar — Irving also covers punts, makes tackles — it means something to them, and they work harder," says Osborne.

But even Fryar cannot be perfect. "Sometimes I sing off key," he admitted. Musically, he is as adaptable as he is on a football field; he plays five instruments — trombone, drums, bass guitar, lead guitar and piano. And his favorite NFL team is the Los Angeles Raiders.

"I like the black and silver uniforms," he said.

Fryar's mother may have been responsible for his presence in Lincoln. On his recruiting visits, he indicated he preferred the atmosphere at such schools as Pitt, Maryland, Arizona, Minnesota and Grambling to that in the Nebraska capital. So how did his No. 6 visit turn into his No. 1 choice? The best Fryar can figure it, he signed with Nebraska a little bit out of spite for his mother, who insisted he go to college somewhere.

"I wanted to join the Marines and fly airplanes," Fryar recalled. "She wanted me to get a degree for free."

Fryar admitted that he got so lonesome in his first year that he wept.

"My mom had to fight me to get me on the plane to Nebraska," he said. "And the first time I went home for Thanksgiving, they had to fight me to get me back on that plane again."

High court receives some unusual queries

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the Supreme Court, not all the tough queries arrive in legal documents. The nation's highest court and each of its nine members get hundreds of letters from inquisitive citizens each week.

"Are you having fun, or is (the job) too complicated?" asked one third grader recently.

Some other queries: "How much do you get paid per case? What is God's last name? Do you think all politicians are crooks, thieves, cheats and liars?"

Obviously, judicious replies may be required.

Letters recently received by individual justices or by the court as an institution were shown to The Associated Press on the condition that neither the writer nor recipient would be identified by name.

Some came from souvenir seekers. "I would like to have an item that you no longer need, in other words a piece of your trash," one correspondent requested of a justice.

But most sought information.

"I learned recently that the Supreme Court has the power to declare laws unconstitutional," one high school junior said. "I have been looking in the Constitution and I cannot find the passage anywhere that allows this."

A prankster might have been tempted to further confound the puzzled youngster by referring him also to those portions of the Constitution spelling out the right of privacy, the right to travel and the public's right to know — they don't exist either.

Instead, the student was told about the Supreme Court's landmark 1803 decision in Marbury vs. Madison that found such power of review for itself and helped establish the judiciary as an equal branch of government.

An eighth grade class from Missouri wrote to ask a justice for a favorite prayer. That, the students were told, was a matter between the justice and God — "and not subject to public dissemination."

It was hard to tell whether one Illinois youth was seeking frightening legal help or just trying to drive home an anti-abortion point.

"My little brother is only 2 years old and he keeps me awake at night," his neatly written letter said. "He cries and bothers me all the time. Can you please change the law so I can kill him. I heard you said it was OK up till nine months."

Mysteriously, one writer asked the court for "any information on Sweden" it might have.

Some seek help in legal matters. A man imprisoned for killing his psychiatrist asked the court to point out any helpful precedents.

An eighth grader facing an imminent test needed quick help: "Would you please send me the latest interpretation of the Constitution?"

The student no doubt would have been surprised to discover the court's edicts on the Constitution's meaning fill hundreds of volumes.

"We try to be helpful but we are working with a limited staff and a limited budget," said Toni House, the court's public information officer.

Bicyclists in Peking kings of the road

PEKING (AP) — It's against the law to smoke or eat while driving a car in Peking, or to ride a bicycle without a warning bell and license plate.

But by far the most hazardous regulation, at least for foreigners in this city of 9 million people, is the rule that only parking lights can be used while driving at night in congested areas. This is so that car headlights will not dazzle cyclists and other traffic.

Locals refer to the capital as "Zixingche Guo" (Bicycle Kingdom), because there are 4.1 million bicycles and just 210,000 motor vehicles. Half the work force commutes by two-wheeler.

Spotting dark-clothed cyclists after dark is tricky on Peking's murkily lit streets, and bicycles were involved in nearly 40 percent of the 5,840 traffic accidents with casualties in the first 10 months of this year, including 375 fatalities.

But there is no plan to relax the headlight ban.

"Because Peking has so many bicycles, we allow only parking lights in traffic," said Zhao Jiaying, a deputy traffic division chief at the Public Security Bureau.

"If we allowed headlights, it could easily dazzle the eyes of cyclists."

One foreigner, obeying the headlight ban, failed to see a mule cart crossing in front of the portrait of Mao Tse-tung in Tiananmen Square in 1981. The mule was flattened and the foreigner was fined 300 yuan ($150).

Authorities later banned peasant farmers from entering the world's largest public square with their animals, but flocks of sheep still are driven through parts of the central city to market or new pastures in the early hours.

Many cyclists have a cavalier approach to the larger conveyances on the road and seldom give signals. This disguises how precious a bicycle is here. Private car ownership is denied ordinary Chinese and would in any case be prohibitively expensive, since the average wage is 800 yuan ($400) a year.

Essential as they are to the nation's economy, bicycles are rationed and purchasers need authorization from their Danwei, or work unit. Even foreigners must comply with a letter from their Danwei, the Diplomatic Services Bureau.

To buy a coveted Shanghai Fenghuang (Phoenix) or Yongjiu (Eternal) model bicycle costs about 180 yuan ($90). Rush hour becomes a cacophony of warning bells as bicycle lanes fill with pedaling commuters, many doing 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) or more a day.

Dodging cyclists is no problem on major thoroughfares such as Changan Ave. which widens to 400 feet at Tiananmen Square. But in shopping districts, where it costs two fen (one cent) to park a bike, cars and buses slow to a crawl.

Two children climb into a fire ladder from a cable car on 6500-foot Mount Tamaro in Switzerland. Rescuers Friday freed 120 people who were trapped for up to 12 hours in 30 cars on the tramway.

Mountain climbers rescue passengers trapped in cable cars

BELLINZONA, Switzerland (AP) — Mountain climbers descending ropes from helicopters Friday rescued 120 passengers trapped overnight in stalled cable cars above a mountain slope.

The passengers — skiers, tourists and many children — were on their way down from 6,500-foot Mount Tamaro, a popular peak in the Ticino region of southern Switzerland, when the motor-driven cable moving the 30 cars stalled at 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

Darkness and gusting winds hampered the rescuers, but police said none of the passengers was hurt and that there was no panic. Some people were trapped for 12 hours in enclosed cabins hanging as much as 30 feet above the ground. Temperatures dropped to 28 degreees Fahrenheit.

Members of the Swiss Alpine Club used ropes to let themselves down from helicopters or climbed up supporting pylons and hoisted themselves from car to car. Some passengers were lowered to the ground in rescue nets, and fire ladders were used in evacuating the cabins closest to the ground.

Eighty policemen, mountaineers and other rescue workers responded to the alert.

The last passengers were freed at 4:30 a.m.

A crowd cheered each time the names of rescued passengers were announced over a public address system at the ground station of Rivera.

"This is my second holiday in the Ticino," said an English tourist from Bristol who was waiting for his three children to be freed. "Last year, I broke my leg and now we've got into trouble again. But I still plan on coming back in 1984."

A French woman said, "It was not that bad. You just had to be patient."

Several children talked excitedly about what they seemed to regard as an adventure. "This gives me a lot to write about in my next essay in school," said a boy of about 12.

But there were other passengers who vowed never to make such an aerial ride again.

Authorities began an investigation into the accident. Egidio Cattaneo, the director of the company operating the cable cars, told a radio interviewer the cars stalled because of a defective ball bearing, which he blamed on insufficient lubrication.

Earlier, rescue officials criticized Cattaneo for waiting three hours before alerting police.

Cattaneo said he did not call for help earlier because he had hoped he could get the system going again with a spare engine. He said he suspected sabotage, but did not explain how insufficient lubrication could be caused by sabotage.

Israeli Cabinet gets down to work on austerity plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Cabinet began work Friday on a politically explosive austerity program designed to prevent a breakdown of the economy as the government released a new batch of grim economic indicators.

Finance Minister Yigal Cohen-Orgad said he was seeking across-the-board cuts from all areas of government, including defense and West Bank settlement plans. He reportedly demanded a 1984 budget of at least $1 billion below the level for 1983.

The financial year runs from April to April, and the last budget was for $21.5 billion. The new budget is expected to be set in mid-January.

Factions within the ruling coalition have threatened to quit Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's conservative government unless their interests are protected. A walkout by any faction would endanger the three-month-old government.

But the finance chief said in a television interview, "All the ministers know that this time we have to cut public spending significantly," and he appealed to the public to "make the effort today so that we won't face a crisis tomorrow."

He warned that failure to take tough action could leave Israel without funds next year to buy essential oil and raw materials.

Cohen-Orgad denied published accounts that he wanted a year-long freeze on new Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, but said settlement activity must be curtailed along with most other programs.

"To cut back in every area, we also have to cut back on settlements," he said. "In any case, the settlement process will continue."

The Cabinet was to continue discussion Sunday of a general framework before mapping where to cut. Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai said the Cabinet would have about two weeks to prepare a detailed budget for presentation to the legislature.

Former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, now in the Labor opposition, said the economic crunch should cause the government to rethink other policies, including the occupation of southern Lebanon, which costs $1 million a day, and the $500 million annual outlay for settlements.

Jewish, Arab extremists wage underground war in West Bank

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Two booby-trapped grenades, apparently planted by Jewish extremists, exploded in mosques in the West Bank town of Hebron on Friday. A bomb found on a Jerusalem bus was believed to be the work of Palestinian radicals.

The incidents signaled there has been no letup in the clandestine war being waged by underground Jewish and Arab organizations in Jerusalem and the West Bank.

In Hebron, one of the grenades slightly injured a Palestinian worshiper on the Moslem sabbath, and the two mosques were slightly damaged in the interior. More than 50 Israeli soldiers and one armored vehicle were seen patroling Hebron at noon. But traffic in the streets was normal and the central market was crowded with shoppers a few hours after the explosions.

Israel radio said it received several calls — mostly from cranks — claiming responsibility. But the first call came before police knew of the explosions and took responsibility on behalf of Hebron's Jewish suburb of Kiryat Arba.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HAPPINESS IS....

As for Philip, an angel of the Lord said to him, "Go over to the road that runs from Jerusalem through the Gaza Desert. So he did, and who should be coming down the road but the Treasurer of Ethiopia, a eunuch of great authority under Candace the queen. He had gone to Jerusalem to worship at the Temple, and was now returning in his chariot, reading aloud from the book of the prophet Isaiah.

The Holy Spirit said to Philip, "Go over and walk along beside the chariot!" Philip ran over and heard what he was reading and asked, "Do you understand it?"

"Of course not!" the man replied. "How can I when there is no one to instruct me?" And he begged Philip to come up into the chariot and sit with him! The passage of Scripture he had been reading from was this: "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb is silent before the shearers, so He opened not his mouth; in his humiliation, justice was denied him; and who can express the wickedness of the people of His generation? For His life is taken from the earth."

The eunuch asked Philip, "Was Isaiah talking about himself or someone else?"

So Philip began with this same Scripture and then used many others to tell him about Jesus. As they rode along, they came to a small body of water, and the eunuch said, "Look! Water! Why can't I be baptized?"

"You can," Philip answered, "if you believe with all your heart." And the eunuch replied, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

He stopped the chariot, and they went down into the water and Philip baptized him. And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, and the eunuch never saw him again, but went on his way rejoicing.

Priest says analysis indicates shroud authentic

CHICAGO (AP) — A researcher says he's encouraged by a computer analysis providing evidence that the Shroud of Turin, believed by some to be Jesus Christ's burial sheet, dates from the time of the Crucifixion — but others remain doubtful.

The "most significant" evidence yet for tracing the linen cloth's date came in the six-month analysis of photos showing what may be the imprint of a coin placed over Christ's eye, said the Rev. Francis Filas.

The Loyola University theology professor, who has been researching the Shroud of Turin for three decades, said the analysis suggested imprints on the cloth may fit six Greek letters of a Pontius Pilate coin dated by experts as being from the year 29 A.D., shortly before the Crucifixion.

Filas said the analysis, conducted over six months, found images corresponding to two new letters — O and C — on the coin and confirmed four others — UCAI — he discovered in earlier research.

The chief subject of the analysis was the right eye area of the image of the cloth, Filas said. Filas says earlier studies have proven that coins were placed on the eyes, although some scientists disagree.

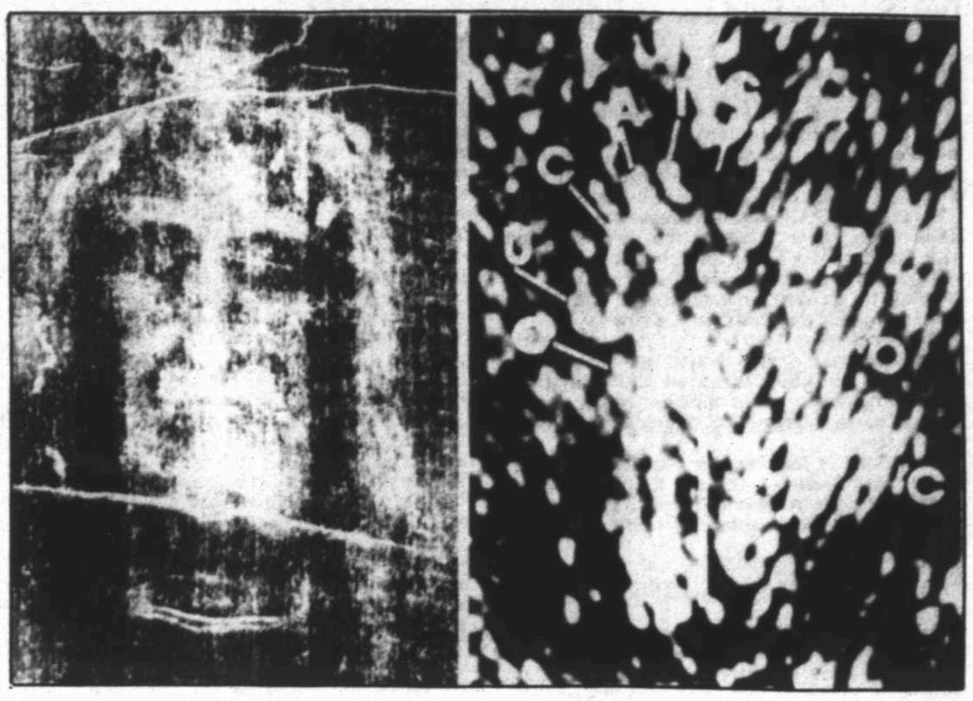

The analysis, conducted at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, was directed by Robert M. Haralick.

Haralick said his research only shows there is evidence to suggest the pattern on the coin is similar to the pattern on the right eye of the shroud. He said his work doesn't conclusively say there is a coin.

The shroud, debated and studied for decades, is an ancient linen cloth kept at Turin, Italy. While some believe it is imprinted with the image of Christ, some scientists have challenged its authenticity.

Among those is Dr. Walter C. McCrone, a microscopist, who has said he found on the sheet traces of iron-ore pigment like that used by artists in the paint called red ochre.

Though McCrone hasn't seen the analysis of the coin image, he said he doesn't even believe the resolution of the cloth is sharp enough to determine if a coin is there. "I don't care what kind of computer they use," he said.

AP Laserphoto

A new computer analysis, right, of the Shroud of Turin, left, regarded by some as the burial sheet of Jesus Christ, offers highly significant evidence linking the cloth to the time of the Crucifixion, according to Loyola University Theology professor Rev. Francis Filas.

The analysis, which Filas said breaks up photos of the shroud into more than 250 grades of lightness and darkness, also found the face of the shroud image is similar to the face on an icon of Jesus dating from the 6th century.

Filas also said the analysis presented two findings which are interesting but don't necessarily add evidence of the shroud's authenticity:

—A band appearing to surround the head nas a white, rectangular area in the middle of the forehead. Some scholars have speculated that a phylactery — a small container for Biblical texts — was placed on the forehead, Filas said.

—A dark rectangular shape in the lower waist-to-knees area covering the genital organs on the frontal image may be evidence of a "modesty cloth."

The $20,000 analysis was financed by private donations.

Churches, U.S. administration move apart in 1983

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

RELIGION

Divided churches got closer together in 1983, but they and the U.S. administration got further apart in the conflicting stands they took on major issues.

It was a two-way time — of convergence within the religious realm, but of its divergence from some political policies. Similar cross-currents were evident overseas.

Summarizing a list of such contrasting trends, the Rev. Edgar R. Trexler of Philadelphia, editor of the denominational biweekly The Lutheran, said:

"Churches with long histories of separation seemed to grow closer, but churches and governments... tended to move apart."

He said such developments signal "a decrease in tensions between denominations" but an "increase in tensions between church and state, both at home and overseas."

Among the points of controversy, U.S. Roman Catholic bishops and most major Protestant and Jewish bodies challenged various aspects of administration policy on nuclear arms, calling for a nuclear freeze, among other arms-control steps.

American religious bodies predominantly also objected to outside intervention in Central America, opposing U. S. military aid to the El Salvador regime and to guerrillas attacking the Nicaraguan regime.

A number of congregations across the United States began harboring Salvadoran and other refugees of the conflict there, in defiance of U.S. immigration laws.

Strong criticisms also were widely registred by religious organizations of federal economic policies, seen as cutting aid to the poor while spending more on arms.

On the other hand, there were numerous moves for tightening religious ranks.

U.S. Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians reached basic agreement on the main issue that had divided their churches 462 years ago — the Lutheran contention that salvation comes only by faith in God's mercy, not by human works.

Celebrations of the 500th anniversary of the birth of Protestant reformer Martin Luther brought Christians of various kinds together on many occasions, with Roman Catholic participation.

For the first time a pope — John Paul II — preached at a Lutheran church service, and heads of two major U.S. Lutheran denominations had private audiences with him.

U.S. Presbyterians, divided since the Civil War, reunited into one denomination. U.S. Reformed, Presbyterian and Lutheran theologians reached an accord on the Lord's Supper, calling for inter-communion.

Episcopalians and Lutherans began celebrating shared communion.

At the World Council of Churches assembly in Vancouver, British Columbia, about 3,000 participants joined in a new liturgy based on an agreement reached by representatives of Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches on baptism, eucharist and ministry.

Overseas, religious expansion continued in China, with about 2,000 churches now open. But in many places, conflicts with governments intensified.

In Ethiopia, where church and state once were closely allied, the new Marxist government stiffened harassment of churches. Egypt ordered the Coptic Orthodox Church, its pope in detention, to elect a new one.

The Baha'i movement was ordered to disband its organizations in Iran where more than 150 of its members and leaders have been executed. In Turkey, the Eastern Orthodox patriarchate remained under heavy oppression.

In the Philippines, Roman Catholic Cardinal Jaime Sin sharply criticized the Marcos regime after the assassination of a political rival. Bishops in Chile criticized the military government and urged a return to democracy.

Two Swedes held for smuggling 'insulting' material into Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Two Swedish citizens have been arrested for attempting to smuggle into Poland printing equipment and materials and books "insulting" to the Communist government, the official Polish news agency said.

The agency, PAP, said G.O. Jakobson and L.N. Holm were under investigation in connection with the discovery of the materials last month in a shipment of aid from a Swedish church in Linkoeping to a charity committee of the Polish Roman Catholic episcopate in Krakow.

The two Swedes, who were on the truck carrying the material, at first denied knowledge of it, PAP said. But they admitted the smuggling attempt during a news conference for Polish journalists in Warsaw on Thursday, the news agency said.

An official at the Swedish consulate in Szczecin, on the Baltic coast, said Friday that the Swedes would be released after paying bail equivalent to about $5,000 apiece. He refused to give more details.

New herpes gel developed

JERUSALEM (AP) — Scientists at Hebrew University have developed a new medication for herpes that is more effective and less painful than those now on the market, the university said Friday.

The new gel contains the same anti-viral drug used in other herpes medications, but doesn't sting and has achieved better results, university spokesman Benny Mushkin said in a telephone interview.

Herpes, which causes sores on the mouth and genitals, is caused by infectious viruses. There is no cure, although medications already approved for use in the United States can ease the symptoms. Those medications contain the anti-viral drug Acyclovir.

The new gel has been successfully used on patients suffering from oral herpes — cold sores. It resists water and does not taste bad, Mushkin said.The gel is being tested on patients with genital herpes, but no conclusive results have been obtained, he said.

Reagan noted by Yugoslavs

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslav citizens found President Reagan the world's most noted personality in 1983, according to a poll carried Friday by weekly magazine reported Friday. PLO chairman Yasser Arafat was runnerup.

"Which foreign personalities from all walks of life particularly attracted your attention in a positive or negative sense in 1983?" the magazine Osmica asked in its survey.

Reagan was named by 38.1 percent of those polled, and Arafat, the embattled chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was picked by 24.3 percent, Osmica said. Third place went to France's Socialist president, Francois Mitterrand, and fourth place went to President Yuri V. Andropov of the Soviet Union, who has not been seen in public since August.

Panamanian cargo ship sinks

TOKYO (AP) — A Panamanian cargo ship sank in seas off western Japan on Friday, and its 20 South Korean crewmen were rescued, a spokesman for Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said.

Shultz, Gromyko to meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will confer in Stockholm on Jan. 18 in the first high-level U.S.-Soviet meeting since the United States began deploying medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe, the State Department said Friday.

The confirmation of the meeting came after weeks of speculation that the two leaders would use an East-West European disarmament conference in neutral Sweden to renew their dialogue.

"We do regard this as a positive element in that it will continue the dialogue we have had with the Soviets," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes, with President Reagan in Palm Springs, Calif.

"The president is pleased that this meeting will take place," Speakes said.

Alan Romberg, the State Department's deputy spokesman, said that the meeting had been agreed to in "diplomatic channels" but refused to give any other details.

Other U.S. officials are known to view the meeting as a step forward, a chance to renew frayed contacts between the two nuclear superpowers and as an event likely to be encouraging to West European leaders.

These leaders made no secret of their desire for renewed US-Soviet consultations during a Shultz mission to Europe earlier this month.

The meeting in Stockholm will take place during a conference of the 35 signers of the Helsinki accords on East-West relations.

Diplomatic sources have said that the foreign ministers of Warsaw pact nations plan to attend the session. The Foreign Ministers of NATO nations already have said they will be present at the conference.

West Germany offers to scrap missiles if Soviets reciprocate

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Western Europe's first Pershing 2 nuclear missiles are ready to be fired on command, but will be "immediately destroyed" if the Soviet Union scraps its own medium-range missiles, the West German Defense Ministry said Friday.

The U.S. Army refused to confirm or deny the Defense Ministry's report.

In Mutlangen, where the missiles are deployed 30 miles east of Stuttgart, police dragged away 10 to 20 protesters who tried to block the main gate of the U.S. Army airfield.No major protests were reported.

Peter Kurt Wuerzbach, the Defense Ministry's No. 2 man, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview: "The first American battery of nine Pershing 2 rockets is ready for action in West Germany."

Wuerzbach said the U.S.-built missiles "would be immediately dismantled and destroyed if the Soviet Union agreed to a verifiable and comparable step in arms negotiations."

Military sources previously have said deployment was proceeding according to NATO's decision in 1979 to have the first of the Pershing 2s ready for firing if necessary by the end of 1983 unless significant progress was made in arms talks with the Soviets.

NATO began deploying 572 Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe this fall, and the Soviets suspended the arms talks last month in Geneva, Switzerland. Separate talks on limiting both long-range nuclear weapons had been under way but no new session of those talks has been scheduled.

Officials of NATO say deployment can be halted and missiles dismantled if there is an arms agreement with the Soviets. But Moscow refuses to resume talks unless the Western alliance first gives up its new missiles.

NATO decided the new arsenal was needed to counter a recent Soviet buildup of more than 350 SS-20 rockets able to strike the European continent.

The faster, more accurate and more mobile Pershing 2s are replacing 108 Pershing 1As in West Germany one-for-one.

Well-informed sources in Bonn indicated that more Pershing 2 components are expected to arrive in early January.

Over the next five years, NATO plans to deploy 464 Tomahawk cruise missiles in Western Europe: 160 in Britain, 112 in Italy, 96 in West Germany, and 48 each in Belgium and the Netherlands.

Angola claims South Africa increasing strength of forces

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Angola on Friday claimed that South Africa has increased the strength of its forces involved in a major air and ground offensive into southern Angola.

The official Angolan news agency Angop said in a report received here that three South African motorized brigades, 100 aircraft and artillery units using 140mm and 155mm guns were engaged in fierce fighting in three southern Angolan provinces. No estimate was given of the number of soldiers in the brigades.

It challenged South African claims that the drive is directed against Angolan bases of the South-West African People's Organization — SWAPO — and said the South Africans were attacking Angolan forces.

SWAPO is the the black nationalist guerrilla movement fighting for control of South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

"Since Dec. 12, artillery units and groups of between 4 and 18 planes have been attacking civilians and defensive positions in the provinces of Huila, Cunene and Cuando-Cubango," the agency said.

Meese's free egg supply not threatened by remark

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III's comments that some people eat in soup kitchens just because it's free won't keep a congressman's wife from continuing his supply of free eggs.

"I'd just like to point out that Mr. Meese is eating our eggs," said Rep. James McClure Clarke, D-N.C.

Clarke said Thursday that it began when his wife, Elspeth, began arranging White House tours for home folks visiting Washington, and gave some eggs from the family estate at Fairview to the woman who runs the tours.

Clarke said the young woman, Cindy Hickman, was appreciative. "She said, 'Oh, I live with my uncle and aunt and I'm sure they'll enjoy the eggs,' " Clarke said.

After two more egg deliveries — welcomed by such as comments as "My Uncle Ed just loved those eggs." — Mrs. Clarke inquired and learned that Meese was Miss Hickman's uncle.

Gorilla celebrates 53rd birthday

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Massa, the world's oldest known gorilla, celebrated his 53rd birthday Friday, still the star attraction at the Philadelphia Zoo even though he is thinner, his hair is graying and he's down to three teeth.

Like many elderly mammals, Massa suffers from hardening arteries, arthritis and worsening eyesight. But the popular primate still draws crowds to America's first zoo.

"Massa is really special," said Rebecca Barlow, 5, of Philadelphia. "He's old but I like him."

About 150 people gathered in front of Massa's decorated glass-enclosed tile cage and sang "Happy Birthday" to the stooped lowland gorilla born in western Africa and brought here in 1935.

Unimpressed, Massa turned his back and licked his fingers while munching on a banana and grapes from a birthday cake.

"COMPROMISE HAS NEVER BEEN MY STYLE..."

"...So when I moved to Midland, Oakridge Apartments was the only logical choice. As far as I'm concerned, there's not a better community around. Oakridge is brand-new. It's in an ideal location. It's very well-managed. Plus, it has the extras other communities don't. I love the indoor spa and sauna, and the community clubhouse and pool. And the custom kitchens with built-in microwaves, woodburning fireplaces and great storage are features I simply don't want to be without. The quality, of course, is uncompromising. Like me!"

1- and 2- bedroom and 2-bedroom studio apartment homes are available now. Take Loop 250 to N. Holiday Hill Road and look for the giant American flag.
