Beef cattle group to meet

Beef Cattle production is one of the two major agricultural enterprises in Mitchell County. Along with cotton, beef cattle generates over 80 per cent of the total income received by agricultural producers in the county. Although 80 per cent of the 30 million dollars received in 1991 is a lot of money, many cattle producers still do not get top market prices for their livestock.

Cattle raisers in Mitchell County produce registered, purebred animals as well as quality crossbred livestock. In many cases these animals should receive high bids from buyers who purchase the cattle for breeding purposes, stocking pastures or slaughter. But there are several factors that weigh heavy on why the top dollar is not collected.

Some factors are uncontrollable, such as weather, some government regulations and supply and demand. But some factors can be controlled by the local producer.

These controllable factors are why beef cattle producers in Mitchell County need to attend a special meeting on October 15, 1992. The prospects of forming a beef cattle improvement group will be discussed by Dr. Steve Hammack. Dr. Hammack is a beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Stephenville.

The meeting will be on Thursday October 15, 1992 in the C.C. Thompson Room at the City National Bank and will start at 7 p.m.

So if you're a cattle raiser and interested in improving your herd for either profit or pleasure, you need to attend this meeting. Door prizes provided by Syntex Animal Health will be given away.

Garden club invites local citizens to native plant seminar Tuesday

Steve Lewis, owner of Native Ornamentals Nursery in Merton, will be the featured speaker at the 1992 Native Plant Program presented as a public service by the Colorado City Garden Club. The program will be held at 7:00 p.m., Tuesday, October 13, 1992, in the C.C. Thompson Room at City National bank. There will be no charge for the meeting.

Anyone who wishes to learn about landscaping with native plants is invited to attend. Native plants use much less water, need no fertilizer and are more resistant to insects and disease than other plants. Mr. Lewis specializes in mountain and desert plants of West Texas, which includes many plants other than cactus. He has the largest selection of native plants in the state of Texas. Mr. Lewis will discuss how landscaping with native plants will make a home more attractive, will save money and will preserve our West Texas heritage. Those attending will learn how to successfully transplant and maintain these native shrubs, trees and flowers.

There will be a number of displays: Plants from the Lewis' nursery, a Garden Club booth, a recycling booth, a display on gardening without chemicals and one on Buffalo Grass lawns. Door prizes of native plants will be awarded to three lucky individuals.

MITCHELL COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT YOUTH CENTER: A large crowd attended the ribbon-cutting ceremonies for the Mitchell County Sheriff's Department Youth Center Saturday morning. Travis Turner

Travis Turner re-elected to SWCD board

Travis Turner of Colorado City was recently re-elected to the Mitchell SWCD board of directors October 1, 1992. Turner represents Zone 4 of the district.

The purpose of the Mitchell SWCD, with headquarters in Colorado City is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on farm and ranch lands within the district and to serve as a voice for farmers and ranchers on conservation matters.

The board of directors coordinates the conservation efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations and has authority to enter into working agreements with these governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

As one of five individuals serving on the districts board of directors, Turner will be responsible for district policies and procedures for carrying out the district program within the framework of the Texas Soil Conservation district law.

In Texas there are 211 soil and water conservation districts. Each is a legal subdivision of state government organized by local agricultural landowners with the assistance of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board. Unlike most other legal subdivisions of state government, SWCD's do not have the powers of taxation or eminent domain. All conservation programs managed by the districts are of a voluntary nature to the landowners or operator or other potential users of the SWCD's program.

Lease holder meeting Monday

With deer hunting season rapidly approaching, the lease holder education meeting scheduled Monday takes on added importance according to Jay McCollum of the Chamber. A good crowd is expected for this informative meeting and it will feature several speakers knowledgeable in this field.

The meeting is to be at 7 pm in the Civic Center.

This program is designed to provide the basics for a good relationship between the hunter and those whose land he is hunting on.

- Among items to be discussed are:
- * how to write a lease agreement
 - * how to obtain the proper insurance
 - * what license a lease-holder must have
 - * what kind of records a lease-holder must keep

* how to develop CRP land for hunting

Among those scheduled to speak at the meeting are: T. L. Rees, attorney; Dr. Dale Rollins, Extension Wildlife Specialist; Jerry Wilbourn, Farm Bureau; and Randy Bullard, Game Warden.

Bullard said this is an important meeting from the lease-holders' standpoint because the majority of the problems on a lease is not having everything completely understood between both parties at the beginning of the lease period.

The Chamber currently has available a list of hunting leases for Mitchell County. This list includes the type of game, the acreage, length of lease and who to contact regarding the lease. If you would like to have one, please contact the office at 728-3403.

Collier assumes duties as manager

Beverly Collier

It has not been many years since female executives were scarcer than hen's teeth - especially in our part of the world. Many people thought women belonged at home, in the kitchen.

Beverly Collier, Colorado City's newest female executive, felt that way herself at one time.

"When I walked into Lone Wolf Electric, back in 1976, I had a purpose," she said. "I wanted a job because we were in a farming operation and we needed money. I intended only to work long enough to help us over our current financial obstacles, then I planned on putting my apron back on and getting back into my kitchen."

Collier, who says she never wanted to be anything besides a wife, mother and homemaker, has just been named manager of the Lone Wolf Division of Cap Rock Electric, headquartered in Stanton. The Colorado City - based division office has 15 employees.

Soon after taking a job as a receptionist at Lone Wolf, however, Collier changed her mind about what she wanted to do with her life.

"I really liked the work," Collier said. "I saw it as an opportunity." All her training and experience were gained right there at Lone Wolf - it is the only place she has ever worked. "I truly am a case of a person who started at the bottom, knowing nothing," she says.

A big influence on Collier's career was Kenneth Rogers, Lone Wolf's General Manager, who retired last August. "Kenneth had a big influence on every Lone Wolf employee," says Collier. "He had a way of making us believe we could anything we wanted to do. I developed a real determination and I've always taken pride in the fact that I would try to do a good job of anything that was asked of me. Kenneth really gave me a chance to try my wings."

The 1991 combination of the cooperative with Cap Rock Electric no doubt changed the make-up of the organization Collier will manage in her new position. "The fact that we are now a part of a larger, stronger organization changes every job position at Lone Wolf, not just that of the manager," says Collier. "I have been able to find absolutely no down-side in this combination, for customer-members or employees in either division."

Among the things that have changed for Lone Wolf is the advanced technology available through Cap Rock. "Things like the SCADA monitoring system would not have been possible for us before this merger," says Collier. "This will offer us much greater reliability. Without this combination, we would not have had available to us the engineering, computer and financial experts on the Stanton Division staff."

Collier says that sharing of equipment will also make a big difference. "For instance, a pressure digger was sent by the Lone Wolf Division to the Stanton Division service area to work for some time. Trenching equipment that division has sent over here will make a big difference in the miles of underground line we will be able to construct," she said.

On a personal level, Collier sees great support and assistance for her in the Stanton Division management staff. "I am very fortunate to have the support and skills of the staff in Stanton available to me. People like David Pruitt, CEO, and Ulen North, Director of Administrative Services & Operations, are real pros. They have had many years in the utility business and have taught me much."

The Lone Wolf Division has an office staff and a field staff. All members of the field staff are male. When asked if she had experienced problems from male employees suddenly finding themselves working with female executive, she replied she had not.

"The employees are an excellent team," said Collier. "Alfred Lynch is our line superintendent and he is knowledgeable and efficient. Though he reports to me, the power line system is his responsibility. We are no different than other utilities in that sense," she said. Collier says she could not have asked for more complete loyalty and support than that she has received by the division employees.

Collier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Doyle, live in Loraine. Collier says her mother is still surprised that she chose a career over homemaking. She also worries about the long hours Collier puts in at the office.

"I do put in a lot of hours," Collier says, "but these are hours I choose to spend at the office, after hours, when I can learn more of the intricacies of this new job. I have to read a lot of technical material, and that's not always possible in the midst of a busy business day."

The Colliers recently moved from Roscoe to Colorado City. "I miss the wonderful people of the community of Roscoe," says Collier, "but we are very happy with our new home in Colorado City." She admits eliminating 200 miles of driving per week gives her more time to devote to both her home and her job.

Chester Collier works as a driver for Stemple Manufacturing of Coleman. The couple have one son, Jimmy, who is a college student in Stephenville. Jimmy's wife, Jodi, teaches special education classes in the Dublin School District.

There have been several strong influences in Beverly Collier's life. She lists two of them as Billie Ruth Tart and Iris Preston, teachers she had in high school. "You just knew these two ladies really cared about what happened to you after you left school," said Collier. "They were two of the first persons I wanted to inform when I received this promotion. I wanted them to know their efforts had not been wasted."

Collier looks forward to the future. She says the customer-members of the Lone Wolf Division also have a reason to look forward. "We have not yet had time to feel a real effect of our combination with Cap Rock - at least not yet on the customer level," she says. "But I can promise you that you won't be disappointed. The employees of our organization have become part of a team that aggressively strives for the highest level of customer service. You can expect to experience this superior customer service in the future."

ELECT GEORGE

Republican Candidate for
MITCHELL COUNTY SHERIFF

Service above & beyond the call of duty.

EXPERIENCE	GOALS
From May 1978 to December 1985, I worked in law enforcement, beginning in communications and advancing to patrol officer. After being a patrolman for three years, I was promoted to corporal and named Field Training officer. My duties were to train new officers and evaluate their performances. I was an investigator for the Colleyville Police Department in 1985. From January 1986 to December 1989, I was employed with a corporation management consultant firm. Commuting between Fort Worth and New York, I was part of a team reviewing companies' budgets to eliminate waste, improve efficiency and utilize personnel for maximum productivity. From January 1990 to Present, I have been serving on the Colorado City police force. As a member of the police force, I've been involved in Patrol, Investigation along with working with the citizens of our community to make this a better and safer place to live.	As your sheriff, my goals are to use my knowledge of law enforcement along with my business management skills to effectively operate the Sheriff's Department. This will include effectively utilizing personnel within the department efficiently without wasting taxpayers' money. Also, maintaining 24 hour coverage throughout the county. Deputies would be proportionally stationed in county controlled areas. Thereby, if an emergency arises, a deputy will be near. I feel strongly that a deputy should know the people and be familiar with the areas he patrols. It would be my first duty as your sheriff to assign deputies to live in Loraine, Westbrook and Lake Colorado City. The function of the department is to serve and protect the citizens of Mitchell County in a professional manner. The citizens will know the Sheriff's Office is there for them no matter what problem arises. I will be actively involved in patrol, answering radio calls and investigations. I feel the department is not large enough to have a full time administrative sheriff.

Fraser releases get tough policy on drug dealers

Troy Fraser, Republican candidate for State Senate District 25, in Colorado City Friday said it's time to get tough with drug dealers selling drugs to our children and released his plan to create drug free zones around Texas' schools. The plan would double prison sentences with no chance for probation for individuals selling drugs in or around schools, playgrounds or other places that children gather.

"We need to send a strong message to drug dealers that if they sell drugs around our schools they are going to spend time in jail," Fraser said. "Current Texas law provides too many loopholes to allow these criminals back on the street in no time," he said.

"Our children already have enough peer pressure in school," Fraser said. "We owe it to these kids to provide an environment free of drugs and violence," he said. "This law will help do that."

Fraser's bill would double the normal prison sentence of felony convictions for selling drugs within restricted areas or "drug free zones." The bill would also prohibit probation sentences, force prisoners to serve their entire sentence without "good time" credit and require a minimum sentence of no less than five years in prison. Restricted areas are within 1,000 feet of a public or private school, a school bus stop or an institution of higher education as well as within 100 feet of a playground, youth center, public pool or video arcade.

"These drug dealers are ruining the lives many kids and all too often are serving as little as one month for every year sentence they are given," Fraser said. "This bill will make sure if they do the crime, they do the time."

Fraser said the bill originated from recommendations of area law enforcement officials who had difficulty stopping drug operations near schools because of loopholes which allow drug dealers back on the street. Officials wanted state penalties to equal those available to federal authorities. Federal law contains provisions for enhanced penalties and no probation.

FINANCIAL AID SEARCH: Ray Pope, CHS counselor and Marion Bullock, of Bullock Computer Services, examining a computer program that searches for financial aid for college bound students. She will be at CHS on Monday from 12:35 till 1:25 to explain the system to parents and students.

Seniors need to apply now for financial aid

The traditional advice of high school counselors has never been more true than today, according to Ray Pope, Colorado High School counselor. Seniors should write or call the financial aid officer at the college or university that they are interested in. Millions of dollars in various grants and scholarships await qualified applicants.

Mr. Pope has been extensively involved in pursuing financial aid for Colorado High School students. He has visited with officers of nearby institutions of higher learning. Seniors have received free student guides from the U. S. Department of Education and some of them recently attended a college night at Western Texas College in Snyder. Mr. Pope is planning another college night in January especially for C.H.S. students.

Marion Bullock, who represents Bullock Computer Services, is offering an inexpensive, personalized way for seniors to become aware of financial assistance that is designed especially for them. Marion will have a booth at Colorado High School on Monday, October 12, from 12:35 to 1:25. She will explain the possibilities of her local computer search program to interested students and parents.
