Transfer Of Eight Officers Shakes Up Viet Armed Forces

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A transfer of eight high officers Saturday shook up South Viet Nam's regular armed forces, which are turning increasingly from combat to pacification work under their numerical eclipse by American military might in Viet Nam.

U.S. infantrymen engaged in light fire fights with Viet Cong in Zone C, U.S. destroyers shelled North Vietnamese targets just above the border, and U.S. pilots pursued their storm-hampered air campaign as Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government announced the changes.

The biggest switch was a shift in the command of the 4th Corps area and its rice-rich, guerrilla-infested Mekong Delta, a stalemated theater of war where relatively few of the 358,000 U.S. servicemen in the country have been assigned.

CONG SQUAD BLASTED

Lt. Gen. Dang Van Quang, who has been quoted as opposing the use of American infantry in the delta, gave up the 4th Corps for a Cabinet job in Saigon — a newly created Ministry of Planning and Development. Brig. Gen. Van Manh succeeded him. Manh has commanded the Vietnamese 25th Division. American officials declined comment.

The Zone C fighting, punctuated by two more saturation bombings from Guam-based B52 jets, developed north of the city of Tay Ninh, 65 miles northwest of Saigon.

A mechanized company of the 25th Division shot up a Viet Cong squad. A spokesman said 11 guerrillas had been killed, while the Americans suffered no casualties.

A mile away another mechanized company engaged an entrenched platoon of about 30 men in a clash that continued into the night.

The armored troops are among 30,000 Americans trying in Operation Attleboro, launched Oct. 15, to wipe out the Viet Cong's 9th Division, originally estimated at 6,000 men.

Spokesmen said the Americans had counted 1,064 enemy dead. There was no estimate of the wounded, ordinarily three or four times greater than the number killed in combat. Though some American units have been hit hard, over-all losses are called light.

Inventories of arms and other booty seized and damage wrought in the sweep over nine base camps and other enemy holdings were set forth by the U.S. command in a two-page list. The haul of enemy rice, 2,366 tons, was the largest of the war.

RADAR SITE SHELLED

Briefing officers reported on other facets of the war: The U.S. destroyers Hamner and John R. Craig shelled a Communist island radar site two miles north of the border, setting several fires. Then they attacked a dozen North Vietnamese cargo boats, destroying three and heavily damaging three others.

For the ninth straight day, monsoon rains and low ceilings restricted U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam's military storage centers and supply lines. Only 32 missions were flown Friday, and the most northerly of the targets was only 45 miles above the border.

Vietnamese authorities charged that 50 Cambodian troops had raided the farming community of Thanh Tri, 500 yards inside the frontier, kidnaped a civilian, stolen 14 cattle and withdrawn into Cambodia after a short fight with militiamen. Cambodia, which claims to be neutral, often has accused American and South Vietnamese forces of attacking its border settlements.

Big Spring Man Crash Victim

A young Big Spring man, en route to Mason for a deer hunt, was killed, two other local men gravely injured and a third less seriously hurt early Saturday. The tragedy, involving the van in which the local men were traveling, and a car driven by a San Angelo college student, occurred five miles east of Wall at 5:30 a.m.

RONALD McCUISTION

Dead is Ronald Alfred McCuistion, 29, of 2108 Cecilia.

In a San Angelo hospital and reported gravely hurt are Tommy Lee Blevins, 15, and Carol Blevins, 39. Also hospitalized in the accident was Charlie McCuistion, father of Ronald. His condition is said to be satisfactory.

MONDAY SERVICES

One passenger in the other car, Joe Ovcarik, 25, was also injured severely and is in the San Angelo hospital. Driver of the second car in the crash was identified as Sylvester Schwertner, a student at Angelo State College.

Funeral services for Mr. McCuistion, who was an employe of Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., will be at 2 p.m. Monday at the 14th and Main Street Church of Christ, Perry Cotham will officiate. Burial will be in the City Cemetery. Nalley - Pickle Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

BIG SPRING NATIVE

Mr. McCuistion was born in Big Spring on April 5, 1937. He attended schools here and served with the U.S. Navy from 1954-58. He worked for a time in his father's body shop and then joined Cosden in 1959 as a tester in the laboratory. Two weeks ago he transferred to the electrical department as a helper.

He was married to Dolores Cooke, Jan. 19, 1955, in Wichita Falls. They have two sons, Rustie and Ronnie. Also surviving are his parents, who live on the Snyder highway, a sister, Mrs. Ronnie Richardson, and a grandmother, Mrs. Geneva Pickle, all of Big Spring.

He was a member of the Church of Christ.

For the past two and a half years, he has been a member of the Big Spring police reserve.

Crash Claims Nine Airmen

HAYWARD, Wis. (AP) — There is no possibility any of the nine airmen aboard a B52 Strategic Air Command bomber survived the apparent explosion and crash into remote woods.

That was the conclusion late Saturday of Col. Fred Sherman, head of an investigating board and vice commander of the 410th Bomb Wing at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base, Mich.

Witnesses said the eight-engine aircraft appeared to explode in flight Friday evening before disintegrating as it slammed into timber four miles from the nearest road in northwestern Wisconsin.

The huge aircraft was on a training mission for the 2nd Bomb Wing at Barksdale AFB, La., and was commanded by Capt. Curtis E. Robertson, Schuyler, Va.

Sherman said there was no indication any of the men aboard had a chance to parachute from the plane. Bits of debris were strewn over an area about one mile in length, a spokesman said.

He added that there was no association with a refueling operation that took place quite a while prior to the crash. The Air Force declined to say what the interval was.

The Sawyer base is the closest SAC field to the crash site. A team of investigators from there was transported by helicopter out of search headquarters at Duluth AFB, Minn. The crash site is some 90 miles southeast of Duluth.

Warm Welcome In Warm Sun

LBJ In Texas To Recuperate, Map '67 Plans

Tax Bite Due?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson flew home to Texas on Saturday and found the sunshine his doctors have recommended for his recuperation from his twin operations on Wednesday.

Despite scattered clouds, there was a bright sun and 78-degree temperature as Johnson's big jet touched down at Bergstrom Air Force Base here.

Johnson, first off the plane, walked down the ramp with no apparent distress from his incisional hernia operation.

RANCH LIFE

The President plans to spend most of the time from now until the first of the year at his LBJ Ranch near Johnson City. While full recovery from his surgery of last Wednesday will be a main concern he expects to get in considerable work, too.

Foremost among the tasks he faces is preparation of the budget for fiscal 1968 starting next July 1—and along with it a decision on whether he must ask an income tax increase to help meet the mounting costs of the Viet Nam war.

Another major job will be preparation of his state-of-the-Union message which goes to the new, 90th Congress shortly after it convenes Jan. 10.

U.S. Helping Thai Units Battle Reds

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. helicopters and advisers — without getting involved in actual fighting — are helping Thai government units battle Communist forces operating within Thailand, reliable informants said Saturday.

The informants indicated that U.S. support to the Thai counterinsurgency forces had been going on for some time. They added that there were Americans in the field serving as battalion advisers. The informants added these advisers sometimes went out on operations with the Thai battalions chasing the roving Communist bands notably active in the country's underdeveloped northeast.

The advisers serve with the Thai army, navy, air force and police. Their number however, is not known.

COPTERS UNARMED

Also, the informants said, a group of 365 U.S. Special Forces — Green Berets — arrived in Thailand nearly a month ago and are now headquartered at Lop Buri, 75 miles north of here. Their mission, the informants explained, is to train the Thai regional and border police as well as the army on counterinsurgency tactics.

The sources said American-piloted helicopter companies based at Udorn and Nakhon Phanomare were airlifting Thai counterinsurgency units to operational zones to fight the Communists.

The sources, however, reported that these helicopters were unarmed and so far there were no reports that any of these choppers had been hit by Communist fire.

American helicopter companies based at Udorn and Nakhon Phanoms are also engaged in rescue operations to recover American pilots downed over North Viet Nam.

Most of Thailand's northeast has a common border with Laos, where the Communist Pathet Lao and their North Vietnamese allies operate at ease.

Catholic Bishops Rap Racial Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Roman Catholic bishops, in a major pronouncement on race relations, called Saturday night for dropping the bars that keep Negroes from living in many of the nation's expanding suburbs.

Urgently they recommended "a true sense of neighborliness, based upon a religiously inspired conviction that all men are equal before God and that all should be welcomed in our midst."

The bishops also called for stepped-up attacks on poverty and on inadequate eduaction, and for strong implementation of laws against racial discrimination and against denial of the vote.

This was one of the pronouncements drafted at this week's path- breaking session of the newly named and reorganized National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

At a news conference Friday night, bishops speaking for the conclave noted that J. Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles — scene of the bloody Watts riots — had moved the adoption of the "splendid statement" and had called for its endorsement "most cordially." It was approved unanimously by the more than 200 bishops present.

'BLACK POWER'

The statement advised an end of sloganeering. It did not mention any specific slogan, such as the "black power" cry of some Negroes or the "your home is your castle, protect it" motto with which George P. Mahoney vainly sought the governorship of Maryland.

"We note with sorrow," the statement said, "that civil strife is an ever-present danger. There have been riots in our cities. Racial antagonism has been fostered under many emotionally charged and irrational slogans. Moreover we are still confronted with the depressing problems of poverty, joblessness, and urban and rural slums.

"As American citizens we deplore the fact that such conditions exist in a nation so endowed with wealth. As Christian leaders, we must repeat the constant refrain of recent Popes, and of Vatican Council II, that material goods are held in stewardship for the welfare of all men. Destitution, and degrading, avoidable poverty hurt family life, blight the promise of youth, and lead to a bitter harvest of sickness, delinquency and crime."

FAIR HOUSING

On the score of housing, the bishops made no mention of the open housing legislation, which was lost in the recent session of Congress.

But they said: "As our nation becomes increasingly suburban, industry and service occupations are expanding far more rapidly in the suburbs than in our inner cities. We cannot hope to solve the problem of joblessness in our cities if men and women are denied the opportunity of living near possible places where work is available.

"While the issue of fair housing has been the source of grave tensions in some parts of our nation, conditions have noticeably improved in certain areas.

"We urge support for sound programs to assure equal housing opportunities for all, without discrimination based on race, creed or color. Here is a unique chance for responsible dialogue, for learning from successes and failures, and thus constructing harmonious communities in every part of our nation."

WELFARE

On the subject of welfare, the bishops came out against the policy followed in some areas of denying aid to needy families if there is an able-bodied man in the house.

"Where welfare relief is necessary," they said, "it should be given in a context that favors family stability and respects the human dignity of those who cannot earn their living.

"Such programs should help maintain the father in the home and be joined, where need be, with training facilities to enable the unemployed to secure gainful work."

The statement was the next to the last one adopted by the bishops this week. Another, on peace, is ready for publication Monday.

The five-day conference dealt with a mass of work, including new powers devolving on it from the Vatican Council (1962-1965). Among other things it:

—Elected a president for the first time, Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit.

—Abolished the mandatory rule against eating meat on Friday.

FEDERAL PRESSURE

—Accused federal agencies of pressuring the poor to practice birth control, a charge quickly denied by the federal agencies involved and by private organizations promoting birth control.

—Proposed important liturgical changes, subject to Rome's approval, including one that the entire canon of the Mass — the focal point — be recited in English. Already in this country, other parts of the Mass are generally celebrated in the vernacular.

Crucial Week For UF Drive

This is a crucial week for concluding the Howard County United Fund.

Saturday the UF, on which more than a dozen agencies depend for their finances, stood just $107 short of the $100,000 mark.

More money was in sight, but just how much more depends in a large measure to the response of volunteers to take and work a few prospect cards this week. Dick Ream, campaign chairman, urged all who have helped so far to go a second mile for this quick wind-up of the annual community appeal.

EXTRA EFFORT

"This little extra effort will mean a lot to the agencies," he said.

All divisions had reported $99,893.40.

Yet there are scores of unworked cards. For instance, in one division there were 70, and 30 of these had a record of giving last year. There are also many cards on new prospects who have never been called on. If these cards are worked, UF officials said that possibly another $5,000 could be added to the campaign total.

Some few employe groups are gathering in the remnants, and one division, the area (outside Big Spring), has just kicked off.

99 PER CENT

At Webb AFB where the military is 99 per cent of goal, the civilian (which got a later start) is pressing to catch up. On base, DCO led all major complexes with 106 per cent. DCM's record showed 86 per cent, and Air Base Group 85 per cent. The Hospital was 113 per cent of goal. Among tenant units, M.E.D's 184 per cent topped the list. Others included 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron, 105 per cent; FTC, 101 per cent; WARRC, 100 per cent; Weather, 88 per cent; Communications, 64 per cent.

Among the civilian groups, those at base exchange were first to report 100 per cent. 1st Lt. Charles Anderson, project officer, said that efforts would be continued to give Webb a 100 per cent record.

Reviewing The

Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

It's not the kind of story which makes a lot of noise, but the biggest thing going on right now is the cotton harvest. Gin yards everywhere are glutted. Farmers are using anything with wheels to get cotton out of the fields to gins. At this rate, the harvest will be over the hump by mid-December. Meantime, most farmers are not taking chances on losing moisture, are turning under skip rows now and the cotton rows as rapidly as strippers skin the stalks.

For the second consecutive Saturday, there was big doings in Big Spring with more than 50 high school bands here for marching competition. You just had to be on hand around Memorial Stadium to get the impact of what was going on. A tremendous production. We hope that directors and students alike were happy with their visit here.

Official canvass of the Nov. 8 general election vote changed few figures from the unofficial totals and no results, although in the close one, Ray Nichols, commissioner of Precinct 2, maintained his eight-vote lead over Winston Wrinkle. Both lost exactly 10 votes, Wrinkle asked for poll lists to take a closer look.

Poor Malta Is Seeking Rich Uncle

VALETTA, Malta (AP) — Malta is looking for a rich uncle to help it out of financial difficulties.

One of the most visible candidates, in the eyes of the Maltese, is America. The powerful ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet anchored offshore bespeak security and dollars. The sailors alone spend $6 million a year on liberty in Malta.

Ever since 2,000 B.C., when the Phoenecians moved in, Malta has been occupied by one strong power after another, for it lies at the narrow waistline of the Mediterranean between Europe and Africa, a very important place for an island to be.

WHO'S NEXT?

After the Phoenecians came the Carthaginians, the Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, and a succession of European powers, the latest being the British, in 1800. Now the British are pulling out.

Who is coming next?

In a general sense it will be tourists. There are both sandy and rocky beaches, and the water is so clear that fish and old cannon balls from ancient battles can be seen 60 feet down. Handsome new hotels are going up under Hilton and Sheraton management, while a yacht harbor is already bringing in the rich and the leisurely.

But the situation calls for more than tourists. Two years ago the Maltese Islands, with 317,000 population, accepted the status of an independent country within the British Commonwealth. But becoming self-supporting is a slow process. Malta has almost no natural resources except geography.

For 166 years the British have picked up Maltese deficits, while at the same time the naval dockyards and troop installations were the biggest single source of employment. Now British support is being cut away steadily, and will end in ten years, with the Maltese getting $15 million a year during that period to help industrialize. It is not nearly enough to meet the island's needs. Thus, the eye on America.

BLACK BOX BANS BAD FEELINGS

Mind Control No Longer A Dream

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

Control of the mind—of mood, behavior and learning — is no dream of the future, no mere concoction of science fiction.

It is here. It is not easily, nor lightly done. Methods are drastic. But it is done — to individuals — now.

A troubled man in New Orleans went about his daily business, met and talked with other people, lived a seemingly normal life.

He wore a cap to hide the tiny electrical sockets planted in his skull, wires that reached deep into his brain. When bad feelings threatened to sweep over him, he simply reached to his waist and pushed his favorite button on a small black box. Instantly, the bad feelings vanished. He smiled. All was right with the world.

AWARE OF WORLD

Another — a deeply withdrawn mental patient, unable to talk with other people — received a small electrical signal to her brain, and suddenly she spoke and became aware of the world.

Another — an epileptic woman so deeply depressed she talked of joining her dead father, received a small injection of a nerve chemical through a tube to the depths of her brain. Suddenly she felt well, and couldn't understand why.

These instances from scientific reports show how fast a pace brain research has taken, how wide a road it travels. Many scientists warn that it holds for man a greater power to do good or evil than he ever dreamed of before.

AWESOME POWER

Indeed, the power comes from a new electrical and chemical understanding of the mind—not complete yet, but even now capable of fantastic effects. They make man's efforts at brainwashing and social control seem like child's toys in a game that could be as disastrous as it could be rewarding. As did the atomic bomb, it poses a question —deep, lingering and probably unanswerable: Should we, or shouldn't we?

It is an awesome power. It could overcome mental illness, retrain damaged minds, help the retarded learn, enhance normal intelligence to undreamed of heights, and free humans from their most harmful emotions. But it could also fashion a prison for mankind, and standardize behavior to the point of slavery.

REQUIRE SURGERY

Most methods of brain control now are temporary in effect. Some implanted electrodes might be effective up to three years. Most methods require major surgery, some operations lasting nine hours. But some researchers look ahead to chemical methods, matching the effectiveness of electrical control. The potential here is enormous. With chemistry, these researchers warn, whole nations could be controlled against their will. Or helped.

There is good reason now to ask what the future holds for the human brain: Something to help a man remember, something to help him forget, something to sharpen his wits, something to deepen his sleep, something to control his mood, something to make a dead limb move, something to make sightless eyes "see", something lodged in his brain to take over when emotions go awry.

CHANGES MOOD

So far some 58 persons, most of them mental patients, have been implanted temporarily with the hair-like, deep-brain electrodes at Tulane University. Four were equipped with portable devices for selfcontrol, but none of these is in service now.

The object: To read out the electrical activity in the deep brain, and, when desired, to stimulate the same areas with electricity to change mood and behavior.

A man, deeply withdrawn, his head slumping on his chest, sits in a daze. The wires leading from his brain can deliver brief amounts of electricity to an area of the brain called the septal region. The button is pushed. The patient raises his head and smiles.

'IT FEELS GOOD'

Asked what it feels like, he says, "I feel like something is coming on. I'm awake now. It feels good."

The feeling, he says, seems to swell up in his chest.

Another man, this one with periodic spells of uncontrollable anger, felt the familiar dark feelings coming on several days ago. Then early this morning he felt his head and face were coming off. He felt bad, felt like "breaking up stuff. I heard voices. I wanted to hurt myself."

He was unaware that a split-second dose of electricity was streaking to a target area in his brain. Then, suddenly, he too smiled.

"I just started feeling good. I don't know why," he says.

Later, equipped with his own button to stimulate the brain, he explains, "When I get mad or something, I push it and immediately I feel better."

Why does he push the button so often?

PAIN VANISHES

"It feels good, so I just keep it up. That's a real good button. If I could buy one, I'd take it home with me."

A woman, operated on for cancer, is in deep pain. It is all she has felt for days. Morphine hasn't helped. Now the electrodes are in her brain. An electrical dose is triggered through them.

Her face seems to relax slightly. "I feel better," she says. How much better?

"I feel I could get up and clean the whole hospital. The pain isn't there anymore."

Specifically what has been done to these people?

Dr. Robert Heath, head of the Department of Psychiatry and Neurology at Tulane, says the studies show that the septal region — an area about two inches in from the middle of the nose — is the pleasure center of the brain. Electrical stimulation creates a good feeling. If it does not erase pain, it at least drowns it out with pleasure, and increases alertness.

REMOTE CONTROL

At Yale University, Dr. Jose Delgado has also had some electrode implant patients. He uses a remote control device to send a radio signal to a miniaturized receiver worn by the patient. The signal triggers an electrical dose to the brain.

Withdrawn patients begin talking. A young woman who was composed and reserved becomes suddenly flirtatious.

In a dramatic demonstration of this ability, Delgado once entered a bullring with an animal that had electrodes sunk in its brain.

He stood there with a matador's cape in the path of the charging bull. The bull rushed closer. Delgado triggered a remote control signal to the animal's brain. He stopped the beast in its tracks, just feet away.

At Tulane's Delta Primate Center, Dr. Lawrence Pinneo works with deeply anesthetized animals — with the aim of controlling their behavior without the active cooperation of their brains. By this, he hopes to understand behavior by reproducing it — everything from a monkey's facial expression to its climbing, grasping movements.

BRAIN FED

Dr. Pinneo says he has dissected the electrical meaning of movement — and can now produce movement, including the wag of a tail, with the proper sequence of electrical shots to the proper targets in the brain stem area.

One day, he says, this work may provide a computerized black box that could make a paralyzed man walk by firing instructions to his brain, or make a blind man "see" by reproducing vision in the electrical language the brain understands. Why, he asks, couldn't the blind man of the future carry a television eye and a black box that converts the picture into electrical nerve signals to be fed into his brain?

Behavior is made up of integrated, simple responses to brain messages, Pinneo explains. Some 30 muscles need at least 30 separate instructions to merely flex the arm.

His study requires long periods of monkey-watching, analysis of even a simple act like getting a drink of water, equations of motion, angles of limbs to each other in relation to time.

Cotton Volume Shows Spurt

LAMESA — A rapid build up of samples occurred this week according to J. U. Dedear, officer in charge of the Consumer and Marketing Service's Lamesa Classing Office.

The USDA office classed 23,165 samples this week to bring the season total to 43,500 samples classed. This compares with 29,700 at this time last season. Six classers are on duty at the present time. Approximately 13,000 samples were unclassed Friday afternoon.

The majority of the cotton this week was classed as light spotted. A breakdown of grades shows the following: middling light spotted (32) 63 per cent; strict low middling light spotted (42) 19 per cent; middling (31) 5 per cent; and strict low middling (41) 8 per cent.

Staple this week fell in the following categories: 29-32 inch (29) 6 per cent; 15-16 inch (30) 68 per cent; and 31-32 inch (31) 20 per cent.

The micronaire readings this week were: 2.7-2.9, 3 per cent; 3.0-3.2, 19 per cent; 3.3-3.4, 14 per cent and 3.5-4.9, 60 per cent.

Prices quoted on the Lubbock spot market this week were: middling 15-16 inch 20.10 compared with 19.55 for the CCC Loan; middling light spotted 15-16 inch 18.75 compared to the CCC Loan 18.20.

Mural Depicts Good Old Days Of 'Saloon'

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Were it not for movies and television, Texas kids would never know the meaning of the word "saloon."

But until prohibition, saloons held a large place in American life. They were clubs for the males, often the only source of music and song except for hymnals. The variety of their furnishings and entertainment was endless.

Now it is against Texas law to call a place a "saloon." Places which sell alcoholic beverages are not allowed to use that term in their names.

Although some saloons were as discreet as a mortuary, others were as wild as the owner and the law enforcement officers allowed.

The wild places gave the name "saloon" a bad meaning in many minds, hence it may not be used in naming a lounge today.

A pictorial segment of the days when saloons were often respectable remains in San Angelo, although it is in danger of damage.

22 IN ANGELO

It is a mural covering the wall of the JJ Army Surplus Store in a building once occupied by the Arc Light Saloon which began business about 1890. At that time, San Angelo had 22 saloons. The building itself was built about 1870.

The Arc Light became very popular particularly for businessmen, and deals in cattle, sheep, real estate and insurance were made there daily.

The building has two stories. Drinking and gambling were carried on at street level, while above were pool tables or prostitutes, depending on which oldtimer recalls what.

After the Prohibition Amendment passed, the place became the Arc Light Drug Store and in 1940 Theo Alexander bought it and made it an extension of his cafe in the adjoining building.

M. C. Ragsdale was San Angelo's No. 1 photographer in the early days, and he gave Alexander an old tintype showing the bar and suggesting that a mural be painted.

Alexander commissioned an artist, his name no longer recalled here, to do the mural.

CONTRACEPTIVES BAN LIFTED

Turkish Women Tackle Population Problems

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Slowly, almost shyly, the neighborhood women filed into the tiny coffee house, usually the exclusive domain of the Turkish male.

Some wore modern dress, others baggy shalvar trousers and veils.

A middle-aged, smartly dressed woman began speaking, occasionally illustrating her remarks with diagrams. The speaker was a gynecologist and she was explaining modern birth control methods.

Such a meeting was impossible in Turkey less than two years ago.

AMAZED

"We are frankly amazed at the spontaneous enthusiasm of the women," said one Turkish medical official.

Women have trekked miles to wait for hours to hear details of family planning, as the program is called.

So far, more than 27,000 have received intra-uterine loops and thousands more have begun to practice some kind of contraception.

The United States has given Turkey a long-term, low interest loan of about $3.6 million for the purchase of 1,450 Jeeps and education equipment for the program.

BIRTH CONTROL

Turkey's population woes began after World War II. A sharp increase in marriages coincided with a drop in the mortality rate brought about by antibiotics and eradication of malaria.

By 1965, the growth rate had hit three per cent, promising to double by 1988 the present population of 32 million. Government planners saw dangers for Turkey's economic expansion.

In April, 1965, Parliament lifted a ban on the use of contraceptives. Leaders of the Justice party, which inherited the program when it assumed power a year ago, feared birth control propaganda would stir up the religious peasantry from whom they draw major support.

SHARP REACTION

There was sharp reaction from the villages, but the opposite of what some politicians feared. Village women, attracted by word of mouth advertising, bulletin board notices — and sometimes announcements over mosque loudspeakers — flocked around doctors carrying the word.

Tax Clinic Gets Good Response

Registration for the Small Business Tax Clinic for owners and managers of small businesses in the Big Spring area is proceeding steadily, according to Chamber of Commerce reports, and anyone interested in attending should let the Chamber know as soon as possible. Twenty have signed so far.

The tax clinic is sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, in cooperation with the Chamber and the Small Business Administration.

Purpose of the all-day session, which is slated for Tuesday, Nov. 29, is to provide the owners and managers of small businesses with a better understanding of the Federal Tax Laws affecting business. Enrollment fee is $5. The Cosden Country Club will be the meeting place.

The program will open at 8:30 with registration, and the speakers will lead off at 9 a.m. with R. L. Tollett and "The Importance of Tax Planning for the Small Business." Other morning speakers include Neil G. Hilliard, "Small Business Corporations," and George Thorburn, "Travel and Entertainment."

The noon luncheon will be followed by a talk by Royce Scott, "Depreciation and Investment Credits"; R. Clyde Hollingsworth, "Deferred Profit Sharing Plans"; and Maxwell D. Green, "Capital Gains and Losses."

The moderator, J. Worth Fullingim, is the assistant city attorney of Lubbock and serves on the regional council of CPAs. Tollett is president of Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., Hilliard has been a practicing CPA for 20 years and Thorburn has been in public accounting for nine years. Scott and Hollingsworth are both long-time CPAs, and Green is comptroller for Kasch Brothers, Inc.

Council May Press Fund Requests

Board members of the Buffalo Trail Council have accepted in principle a concerted sustaining membership appeal next February in communities where chest allocations fell short of requests.

Judge Perry Pickett, Midland, told the board in session Thursday at Midland, that the council would face a serious financial crisis before the year is out unless steps are taken to bridge the gap.

Carl McKeehan, council executive, confronted the board with figures which showed a probability of $93,000 from chests and United Funds, an additional $19,250 from independent campaigns in smaller communities. This would leave around $44,000 needed to reach the projected budget for the year. Some $12,000 of this is already pledged by existing sustaining members.

"The potential is here," said Judge Pickett. "The money is here when people understand the need. And the need is helping boys."

Annual meeting of the council has been set for Jan. 17 in Permian High School at Odessa. There will be no guest speaker again this year, the meeting being devoted chiefly to recognitions.

Wroe Lynch, Odessa, said that 12 boys had been signed for the World Jamboree, and there is a waiting list. Some additional places may become available.

Judge Pickett anpounced the establishment of a Carl Campbell Memorial Fund in honor of the recently deceased veteran scouter and council vice president from Big Spring.

District Picks Sarah Oakes

COAHOMA (SC) — Sarah Oakes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Oakes, has been elected district sweetheart of the Future Farmers of America.

She will compete for the honor of being named Area II sweetheart in contests next spring in San Angelo.

Sarah was chosen at the district parley in Odessa Thursday. In the meeting the senior conducting team placed fourth as did the radio team. The junior chapter conducting team rated fifth. Attending with boys from Coahoma were Supt. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson, Olive Cauble, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Denton, Gerald Oakes, vocational agriculture instructor, and Mrs. Oakes. Terry Denton, Coahoma, district president, was in charge of the business meeting.

Returned Pilot Had Part In Historic Hanoi Raid

By SAM BLACKBURN

Where the mission was launched is classified information.

Where the mission went and what it did when it got there is known all over the world.

The date was June 29. The target was Hanoi in North Viet Nam. The object was to destroy the oil supplies and petroleum reserves of the Viet Cong to stop the flow of men, supplies and weapons into South Viet Nam.

One of the fliers who made this famous raid, which was publicized by the press, radio and television of the world, is now a member of the 331st Fighter Interceptor squadron here. The Hanoi episode was one of the 111 bomber missions he flew in the brief span of five months in the Viet Nam war.

GET THEM OVER

He is Capt. George Ball, 34, originally from Askov, Minn., but for 16 years a member of the USAF. He arrived here Halloween and on Nov. 1 was establishing himself and his family at Webb Village.

"You fly 100 missions before you come home from over there," he said. "The idea most of the fellows have is to get those missions over as soon as possible. I got in 111 from April 27 through Oct. 3. Less than a week after that I was on my way back to the states."

All of the missions are rough and tough, but the captain's memory stays sharpest with the renowned hit at the Hanoi oil base.

He particularly remembers it because of the wise guidance of his commander — and personal friend—Lt. Col. James R. Hopkins, Norman, Okla.

"It was the colonel's baby," said Ball. "He planned it, directed it, took part in it and saw that we got back home safely. If it had flopped he would have been the goat. But nothing did go wrong and it was mostly because of his leadership."

BLAST CONG TARGET

The Cong, he said, had built the huge oil depot in the suburbs of Hanoi. The instructions given the bombers was to keep their fire on the target and not to blast any civilian areas.

"We accomplished just what they told us to do," says Capt. Ball proudly. "We destroyed 80 per cent of the Cong oil setup, and our hits were rated as the most accurate in bombing raids."

Civilian casualties among the Hanoi residents were exceptionally few.

The oil depot was heavily guarded with anti aircraft guns, and the flak was tremendously heavy. Despite the heavy fire from the ground, only one of the bombers making the raid was lost. The pilot of that plane is now a captive of the Cong.

PLANE HIT

Ball's F-105 stopped a lot of shrapnel including one shot which put his plane's hydraulic system on the blink. The F-105 was badly damaged and Ball realized he was in serious difficulty.

CAPT. GEORGE BALL

"I didn't know," he said, "if the ship would hold together to get back to the home base."

That's where Col. Hopkins came into the picture.

"I reported my trouble," he said. "The colonel checked me out and informed me on the apparent damage I had sustained. Then he rode on my wing all of the way back home. Every time I glanced out I saw his ship right alongside. I felt a lot better, believe me, because he was there."

Capt. Ball's other missions were the usual day-in-day-out runs that Air Force planes are making round the clock over Viet Cong military targets. Pilots, he said, are on call daily. The weather can get bad and perhaps the pilot get a little rest; but if things are right, the flights go on daily.

"That's how you can chalk up 100 missions in so short a time," he explained.

He came home with his colonel and with Maj. Don Campbell, another of the pilots who flew the Hanoi oil depot run.

Right now Capt. Ball is brushing up on the operation of F-104's—the planes flown by the 331st. He officially soloed last Tuesday.

Capt. Ball is an enlisted man who passed the tests and qualified for training as an Air Force pilot. Being back in Big Spring is something like coming home for him.

TRAINED AT ANGELO

"I soloed as a cadet at Goodfellow AFB in San Angelo," he recalls, "flying a T-6 back in 1953."

He hasn't had a chance to go to San Angelo since checking in at Webb but plans to do so soon.

Ball is married to a Glendale, Calif., girl. Her name is Lois and they have three children, David, 8, Sandra, 6, and Kathryn, 1½ years old.

His memories of Viet Nam and its war are vivid.

"We flew low and over all kinds of jungle terrain," he said. "It was a day-in-day-out job. The enemy was everywhere, and it was our job to rout him."

Hybrids, Fertilizers Boost Output In Dawson Tests

LAMESA — Results of grain sorghum demonstrations here in Dawson County this year suggest management practices that can boost yields and returns here in the southern part of the High Plains region.

Four demonstrations recently tabulated by County Agent Lee Roy Colgan show the advantage of matching fertilization to available moisture and of careful selection of grain sorghum varieties.

Two grain sorghum variety tests indicate medium - length maturity hybrids are well suited to the limited irrigated conditions in this area, according to the agent.

HIGH HYBRID YIELD

The importance of variety selection was shown on the Albert Lebstein farm, located nine miles south of Lamesa, where Colgan's figures show the top-yielding hybrid produced $33 more grain per acre than the poorest performer. Yet, no single variety consistently gives the highest yield.

Another pair of tests conducted on the Dale Merrick farm, located one mile north of Lamesa, show the advantage of balancing fertilizer and water.

Colgan said many local farmers believe a pre-plant irrigation on grain sorghum will not be justified by increased yields, but on the Merrick farm, moderate fertilization gave preplant irrigated grain sorghum a significant yield boost.

Forty pounds of nitrogen increased yields over an unfertilized plot by more than 1,00[illegible] pounds per acre, Colgan said. Both plots received a six inch preplant irrigation.

BOOSTS OUTPUT

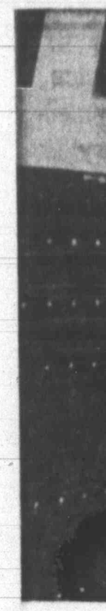

Yield on the check plot was 1,912 pounds per acre while yield on the fertilizer plot was 2,943 pounds per acre.

In a similar test on the same farm, 60 pounds of nitrogen and a six inch preplant irrigation produces 4,041 pounds of grain sorghum per acre.

Exceptional rains this season are credited for part of the yield response in these tests.

Colgan said the fertilizer rates which would consistently give the best return in the county would probably be less than 60 pounds of nitrogen per acre where only a preplant irrigation is made. A soil test recommendation based on the moisture conditions would be the best fertilizer guide, he said.

Detailed results of the demonstrations will be published early in 1967 after cotton tests are harvested and tabulated.

Pilot's Skill Gains Praise

FORT WORTH (AP) — Pilot J. D. Irwin set down the giant plane, missing one wheel, so gently Friday night that passengers hardly felt a bump, they related after the emergency landing.

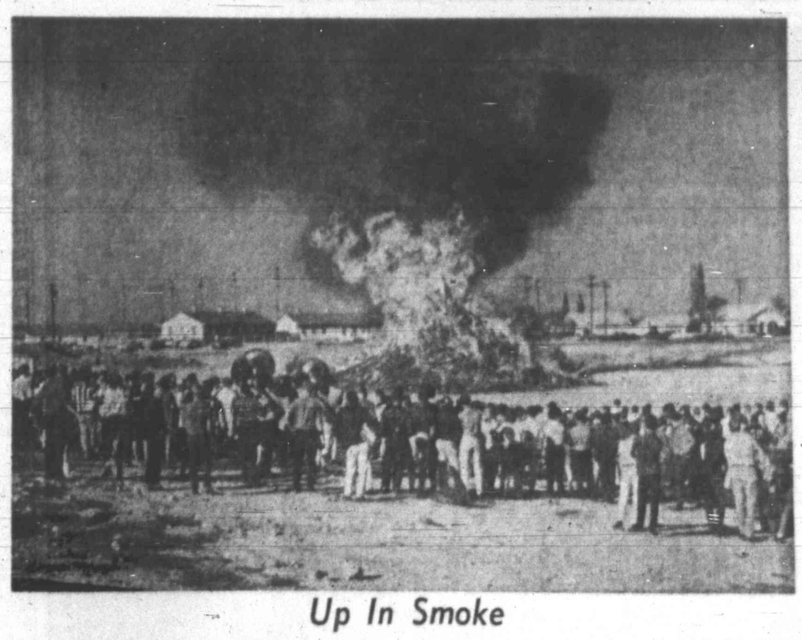

The plane carried 94 persons, including the crew of six and was en route from New York to Houston via Atlanta.

Approaching Houston, Irwin noted that his right landing gear remained up. Fog was closing in rapidly at Houston.

The plane was diverted to Carswell Air Force Base here, where the 12,000-foot runway was coated with fire-killing foam and emergency vehicles stood by.

Irwin brought the Delta Airlines plane in on the left landing gear and the nose wheel, delicately balancing it until momentum finally brought the right engine pod down and sparks flew for 1,000 yards along the route.

The plane was a four-engine Convair 880 jet.

Up In Smoke

The bonfire, center of attraction at a big pep rally Friday afternoon before the Big Spring-San Angelo football game, goes up in smoke. Later, so did Big Spring's hopes on the football field. Students had experienced hard luck with their bonfire, too, having had one pile go up in flames when someone touched it off in the early morning hours Thursday. Everyone pitched in and built a bigger one. (Photo by Frank Brandon)

Jupiter And Venus At Celestial Fantasy

Well, sort of. It's really actress Joey Heatherton and actor Darren McGavin costumed as those old gods at the Artists and Models Ball in New York. The affair was billed as a "celestial fantasy." Many of the more than 1,000 persons attending wore the outlandish costumes associated with the event. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Tax Increase Decision Expected In December

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is on the threshold of resolving the biggest economic uncertainty of the year—whether the American taxpayer should yield more of his earnings to help fight the Viet Nam war.

The outcome still is anybody's guess but a decision could come within the next three weeks.

Some government economists say at this point that the decision could go either way — a 50-50 chance.

The decision, of course, is President Johnson's and his economic advisers have urged him to reach and announce it early in December, by the 10th of the month if possible, to relieve the uncertainty.

THREE UNKNOWN

At that time, these three presently unknown but essential quantities should be available:

— The anticipated rate of business investment next year. The booming investment in plant and equipment this year was viewed as a big factor in inflation.

— Cuts which the administration thinks can be made in non-defense spending.

—The expected cost of continuing the Viet Nam war through the current fiscal year which ends June 30. A request for extra money could exceed $10 billion.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, pointing up the uncertainty of the tax question, has scrupulously avoided any speculation on it.

The secretary met during the week with the President at the nearby Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital only one day after the chief executive had undergone double surgery.

THE ARTS

Oil Is Best Of Show In Webb's Art Exhibition

Mrs. Arthur Violette's contemporary boat scene, done in oils, was judged Best of Show in the art exhibit at John H. Lees center at Webb AFB Thursday. Her painting was top in the competition for AF dependents. First Lt. Charles E. Anderson all but swept the military division, winning firsts in pencil portraits, pastel portraits and water colors. He took second in oil painting. Airman 2.C. Kiernan Doherty captured first in oils and second in water colors. His clay figure took first in that category, and Sgt. Charles Aggen's coat hanger plaster figure took second. Mrs. Robert Radar won second in oils in 'he dependents' division. Honorable mention went to Mrs. J. M. Carleton for her water color entry. Mary Jean Byrd and William Lewis, art instructors at Big Spring High, and Mrs. La Rue DeViney, art instructor at Goliad, were judges.

First Methodist Church is making a great effort to share its new Reuter organ with people in the Big Spring area, and another treat is in store this evening. At 5 o'clock, Richard Bouchet, organist for the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York, will be at the console for a concert. The public is urged to hear this outstanding artist, who is a native of Swetwater. When Bouchet was eight years old, he began playing the organ and has studied extensively since. He holds the coveted artist's diploma from Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

The Culture Committee of the Chamber of Commerce is depending on you for ideas for an insigne to be used on all community activities in the field of arts here. This contest is open to anyone, and you don't have to be an artist. Just sketch your idea and send it to the chamber this week.

Only one week remains in which to see the collection of paintings and etchings by artists of the French impressionist period now on display at the Museum of the Southwest in Midland. The exhibit features work of some 30 artists, including Toulouse-Lautrec. BAVARIANS VOTE TODAY

Neo-Nazism On Rise?

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The rightist National Democratic party predicted Saturday it would win eight to 10 seats in Sunday's Bavarian state legislative election. Such a result would touch off a new wave of concern at home and abroad that neo-Nazism was on the rise.

Party leaders, though preaching a nationalist line with Nazi echoes, have denied allegations that the party was a Nazi successor organization. No secret has been made, however, of the former Nazis in party ranks.

The Bavarian election comes just two weeks after the National Democrats showed surprising strength in the Hesse state election, polling 7.9 per cent of the vote and winning its first seats in a state legislature.

Adolf von Thadden, the party's deputy national chairman, told a newsman the party was confident of winning six to seven per cent of the total Bavarian vote and of clearing the 10 per cent hurdle in two of Bavaria's seven election districts. The rightists are expected to gain chiefly of the expense of the smaller parties in Bavaria.

Under Bavaria's complicated election system, a party must obtain 10 per cent of the vote in at least one district to be represented in the legislature.

The National Democratic party is expected to run well in Nuernberg, once a Nazi citadel, and Bayreuth, home of Hitler's favorite composer, Richard Wagner.

The election in Bavaria, West Germany's largest state in area and second in population, will gauge how much popularity the national government in crisis-torn Bonn.

Polls will be open in Bavaria from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., with 6.8 million persons eligible to vote. They will be choosing 204 members of the legislature from among 920 candidates.

Going into the election, the Christian Social Union was in firm control of the legislature with 110 seats. The Socialists have 79, the Free Democrats 10, and the Bavarian party five.

EX-NAZI PICKED

The Christian Social Union is the Bavarian wing of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party, and its chairman is ex-Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss.

Strauss himself is not a candidate, but a setback to his party could weaken his influence in Bonn.

He gained a reputation as a kingmaker when ex-Nazi Kurt Georg Kiesinger was picked by the Christian Democrats as their candidate to succeed Erhard. Kiesinger's selection came after he had received strong endorsement from Strauss' wing.

Kiesinger, minister-president or governor of the neighboring southern state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, has offered to make Strauss a minister in a new government. Strauss, a controversial figure, favors closer West German ties to France and reappraisal of Bonn's relations with the United States.

The main opponent facing Strauss' party in Bavaria is the Social Democratic party, whose national chairman, West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, is hopeful of making gains in Bavaria's election.

Fabulous Yields Reported On County's Cotton Crop

A fifth of Howard County's remarkable and surprising 1966 cotton crop has already been ginned.

Through Friday noon, more than 11,000 bales had been handled by the gins and the yards were jammed with filled cotton trailers.

A spot check of most of the gins was made Friday morning. All were on 24-hour schedule and said that there was no let-up in sight in the flood of unginned cotton moving in.

Fairview gin, with 3,245 bales ginned and 500 waiting attention, seemed to lead the pace.

Cotton in that area, and north toward Knott, is producing in record quantities.

"It's getting so," said one ginner, "if the farmer doesn't get a bale and a half or better, he cusses the crop."

TWO BALES

Some fields in the area, it was said, have produced two bales an acre and a few patches have exceeded that.

"That's even better than irrigated," said one ginner. "A lot of the irrigated cotton won't make a bale."

The quality of the cotton is classing good. Stripping is proving exceptionally efficient this year. While price is not what the growers would like, it is regarded as fairly good by most farmers.

Gins could not be reached at a number of places.

COTTON PILES UP WAITING FOR GINS TO CATCH UP
Strippers harvest crop far faster than it can be processed

The ginners, apparently, were too busy to answer their phones. This was the case at Luther, where a heavy harvest of cotton is under way. No report was available from the Vincent gin.

Lomax gin is pushing ahead and is No. 2 in number of bales handled. At noon Friday, the gin had handled 1,655 bales. Plenty of work remained for it to do. This is a new gin, built this year.

LATE STARTER

Here in Big Spring, Big Spring Cooperative has ginned 1,578 bales; Guitar 377 and Planters 1,281.

At Coahoma, the Acuff Gin, which has been rebuilding, was scheduled to gin its first cotton Friday afternoon. A backlog of bales awaited the initial operation.

The Guitar gin at Coahoma had handled 450 bales and began night runs Friday night.

Only one gin could be reached for a report in Knott. The Coop there had ginned 1,125 bales and was buried in cotton waiting to be processed.

Weather continues ideal for the cotton strippers. The warm days and rainless nights have been of great help in speeding up the work.

BIG CROP

Most observers are clinging to an estimate of better than 40,000 bales and perhaps as much as 45,000 for the year. The county has less acreage than in 1965 and in order to reach 45,000 an average of better than a bale to the acre will have to be maintained across the county.

Evidence of the harvest is not only seen in the smoking burr burners and humming gins but in the many fields, which 10 days ago were white with cotton but now are bare, plowed areas.

Probably 99 per cent of the cotton is being stripped. If there are any pickers working in fields, no one seems to have heard of them.

Woman Survives Pipe Thru Chest

BOSTON (AP) — Judith Parrott, 24, has lived to describe how her car rammed a wire fence, and the top fence rail of 1½ inch pipe came through the windshield, and plunged through her chest, pinning her to the seat.

Mrs. Parrott had swerved to avoid a child who ran into the path of her car Thursday.

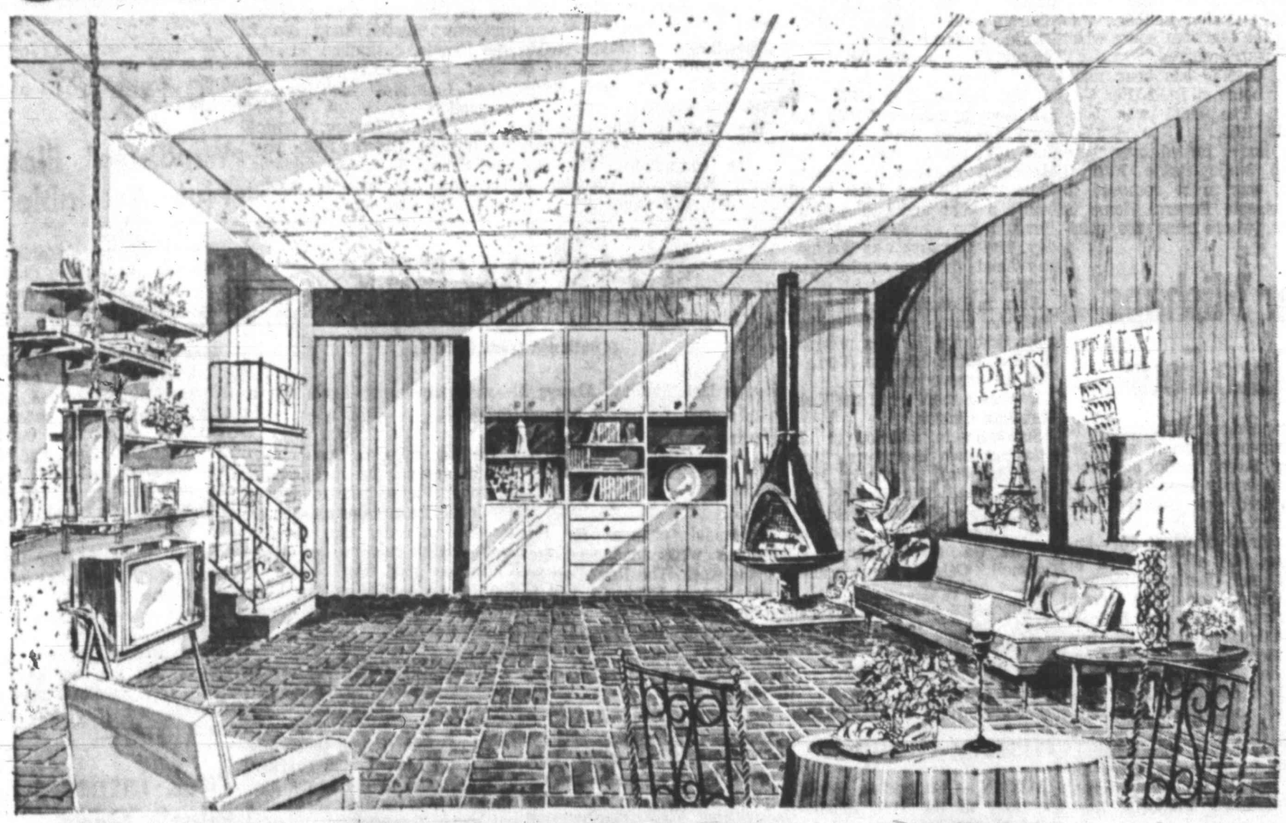

"I knew the pipe had gone through me," she said Friday at the hospital. "I told the children — Stephen, 7, Cathy, 3½— to get out of the car because I thought I was going to die."

A police rescue team sawed the pipe, front and back, and freed her from the car. The pipe had gone through the seat, too.

Doctors said the pipe didn't cut any arteries.

5,000 Band Members Strut In Big Spring

Fifty-two high school bands comprising 5,000 young musicians from nearly half a hundred towns, accompanied by another 5,000 teachers, well wishers, parents and friends, swept into Big Spring Saturday for the annual UIL Region VI marching contest.

The bands competed in a day-long event in Memorial Stadium at Howard County Junior College. At the same time, twirlers demonstrated their adeptness with the baton in the HCJC gym.

Bill Bradley, Big Spring, who was contest director, said the event moved with exceptional smoothness and that the finest cooperation was accorded by all participating schools.

Judges for the marching bands were Bill Woods, Levelland; J. W. King, Hale Center; and O. T. Ryan, Plainview. Judges for the competition were Eris Ritchie, Cisco; and Fred Staffey, Dalhart; and Pat Dunn White, Garland.

'A GOOD SHOW'

Big Spring band, in Class AAAA won high praise, according to Bradley, for its skillful performance in the competition. It rated I along with Odessa, Odessa Permian, Abilene Cooper, Midland and Midland Lee. Abilene, the only other AAAA band competing rated II.

Bradley proudly displayed the complimentary comments written by the judges. Bill Woods termed the Big Spring band . . . "a good show—excellent precision . . ." King praised the balance and the fanfare. Ryan classed the band as "excellent" and said the school has "good cause to be proud of the group."

Eight bands competed in the Class B competition. Imperial, (Buena Vista), Jayton, and Borden County rated I; Bronte and Grandfalls, II; Marathon and Robert Lee, III and Trent, IV.

13 IN CLASS A

Thirteen bands were entered in Class A. Seagraves, Roscoe, and Plains rated I; Coahoma, Rankin, Rotan, O'Donnell, Merkel, Wink, Iraan and Sanderson, II. Tahoka and Abilene (Wylie) Classed III.

Class AA had 11 competing bands. Hamlin, Marfa, Big Lake, McCamey, Colorado City, Crane and Stamford, placed I; Post, Denver City, Winters placed II; Anson, and Alpine III.

There were 11 Class AAA entries. Sweetwater, Monahans, Snyder, Fort Stockton, Andrews, Kermit, Pecos and Odessa Ector all placed I; Lamesa, Brownfield and Seminole placed II.

Attendance at the competition was good despite the chill which prevailed earlier in the day.

The twirling competition attracted many spectators.

A larger-than-usual crowd, including civil and military dignitaries, was on hand to welcome Johnson back to Texas.

Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, walked from the plane to shake hands with dozens of the several hundred people who were kept behind a chain wire fence.

From the air base, Johnson boarded a smaller plane for the flight of about 60 miles to the LBJ Ranch near Johnson City. Johnson told well-wishers that he's feeling fine.

Car Crushes Snyder Tot

An 18-months-old boy, Alex Castillo Jr., Snyder, suffered what is believed by investigators to have been almost instaneous death at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, when an automobile backed over him 4½ miles west of the Elbow community.

The victim was playing about the yard of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Martinez, when the tragedy occurred.

Driver of the vehicle was the child's uncle, Margarito Martinez, 17, also of Snyder, who was leaving the farm house to come to Big Spring.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Martinez told Howard County Sheriff A. N. Standard and Texas highway patrolman Jack White that he was not aware the child was in the yard until he heard something hit the bumper.

A wheel of the vehicle passed over the victim's neck and chest. The grandfather picked up the baby and rushed him to Cowper's Hospital here, where the Castillo infant was pronounced dead.

Justice of Peace Walter Grice issued a verdict of death by a broken neck through accidental causes.

DAD DIED RECENTLY

Father of the baby died only two months ago. Only immediate survivor of the child is Mrs. Rosita Castillo, mother, who was in the Martinez house when the mishap occurred.

Mrs. Castillo has been making her home at Rt. 2, Box 5-A, Snyder. The child was born Feb. 16, 1965.

The body, turned over here to the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, was to be removed to the Belseale Funeral Home in Snyder, where rites are pending.

Car Mishaps Injure Four

Four persons were taken to hospitals on Saturday as a result of three traffic accidents within the city limits. None of the injured was believed seriously hurt.

The first accident of importance was at 8:24 a.m. at Fourth and Benton. Imogene Wills, Odessa, one of the drivers was taken to the Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital in the fire department stretcher wagon. The other driver was Richard Delgado of 1301 Mesquite.

At 1:48 p.m. at 17th and Johnson, a collision sent the drivers of both cars to the hospital. Roy Burden Jr. was taken to Webb and Karen Lee Highes to Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital.

At 4:28 p.m. in the 1200 block West 3rd, Melvin Guy Walton was removed to Webb AFB Hospital, after a collision in which his and two other vehicles were reported involved. Doris Jo Walling was identified by police as one of the drivers. The third vehicle—a pickup—had left the scene when officers arrived...

Big Spring Native Killed In Smashup

Darrell Royce Gaskins, 31, a native of Big Spring, recently making his home in El Paso, was instantly killed early Saturday in a one-car accident near Clint.

An air conditioning mechanic, Gaskins had moved from Big Spring to El Paso about three years ago.

The body has been returned to River-Welch Funeral Home here where services are pending.

Mr. Gaskins was born in Big Spring and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gaskins, Rt. 2, Big Spring.

In addition to his parents he is survived by one son, Darrell Gaskins Jr., one brother, John W. Gaskins, now with the Army in Germany; and one sister, Mrs. Merberth Yeager, Midland.

R. L. Trapnell Rites Monday

Services for R. L. Trapnell, 63, of 1212 East 16th Street will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with burial in Trinity Memorial Park. The Rev. John Black Jr., pastor of the First Christian Church, will officiate. Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Trapnell, who had lived in Big Spring since 1932 and had been a mechanic with the Ford agencies here for more than 30 years, died at the Methodist Hospital in Houston Thursday. He had been in ill health a year and had gone to Houston for surgery last Sunday. The operation was Wednesday and he succumbed on Thursday.

He was a member of the First Christian Church.

Kiwanian Chili Supper Success

Members of the Big Spring Kiwanis Club and the Circle K Club, Kiwanian sponsored college group, will not be craving chili for sometime to come.

"I'm still digging out from the stuff today," said one Kiwanian, who assisted in the successful chili supper served Friday night by the two organizations. The supper, at which more than 700 guests were served, was in the Howard County Junior College Student Union Building just ahead of the Big Spring-San Angelo football game.

Pete Hull, one of the Kiwanis chefs who prepared the chili, said the original supply was exhausted and additional chili had to be provided.

He and Harvey Clay were cooks for the supper.

The Circle K Club shares equally with the Kiwanians in any profits that may derive from the supper.

The Kiwanis Club uses the profits for boys and girls work in the community. The club meets Wednesday instead of Thursday, this week.

Union Rejected By Pioneer Gas Employe Vote

AMARILLO — In a vote of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company Transmission employes completed after two days polling system-wide, the National Labor Relations Board count showed only 34 for the International Union of Operating Engineers out of a total of 126 eligible voters.

The Operating Engineers petitioned for representation of a portion of the transmission system which the company claimed is not an appropriate unit.

Previous rulings by the board were that "System-wide," including all operating employes, was the appropriate unit.

awards last Tuesday. Always it takes a long, persistent and outstanding record to earn this award, so congratulations are in order.

* * *

Personnel changes for two churches were announced during the week. The Rev. Dan Sebesta, now at Eldorado, will be coming as pastor at St. Paul's Presbyterian. The Rev. J. William Arnett, veteran minister in this area, resigned as Stadium Baptist pastor.

* * *

There's more church news in the making, for today Coahoma's First Baptist observes its 75th birthday. A week from today the First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring will mark its Diamond Jubilee. This reminds us of our debt to pioneers, also that our towns are growing up.

* * *

When awards were presented to Continental Trailways drivers here last week for safe driving, seven qualified, having 5¼ million miles to their credit. Somebody has to convert this to times around the earth—so here it is: 525 times.

* * *

Almost inevitably we have tragic news, and toward the end of the week it came. Ronnie McCuistion, en route to a deer hunt, was killed in a car wreck outside of San Angelo. Earlier in the week, Norman S. Spencer Sr., 69, Snyder, twice a resident of Big Spring and dean at Sul Ross College, died as he drove along a lateral road near Vincent. In another highway mishap, Lloyd A. Lindsey miraculously escaped death when his car plummeted off the IS 20 overpass onto Birdwell Lane below. This is the second such mishap in recent days.

* * *

Those who got up early Thursday saw a spectacular cellestial show. The meteors, thought to be connected with the constellation Leo, showered down like the tail end of a fireworks display. The orange streaks streamed down the heavens like water down the sides of a translucent dome. At earliest, this won't occur again for 33 years—and maybe not again for a hundred.

Do you have any used playthings around the house—dolls or toys? Please take to any of the local fire stations as soon as possible in order that firemen can begin repairs as their Christmas good turn — also so the women, headed by Mrs. J. E. Hogan, can begin making dresses for the dolls.

* * *

Packets of Christmas seals were mailed to thousands of patrons here last week. Please respond as soon and as generously as possible. If you think this work isn't needed, just hearken to the report to the board last week—five cases discovered and put under treatment.

Our neighbors in Colorado City are considering two major projects. For one thing, the bid of $419,366 by H. G. Counts for 126 blocks of paving was accepted. For another, the city got a price tag of $365,000 on the Root Memorial Hospital and convalescent home properties, which it may consider buying in order to maintain top medical protection for the city and Mitchell County.

* * *

San Angelo showed power and speed and not much mercy when it overwhelmed Big Spring on the gridiron here Friday night. Smarting from an upset the week before by Permian, San Angelo took spite out on the out-manned Steers. Our lads couldn't contain the off tackle thrusts and wide sweeps. In the early stages, when the Steers took the short tosses instead of going for the bomb, they made it interesting. Anyhow it was a long night that climaxed a long season.

Wick Fowler, veteran Texas newspaperman, has gone into the chili business (Caliente Chili, Austin, Texas), manufacturing the seasoning for his famous Two-Alarm chili. Wick sent us a sample, and chili aficionados who like character in their bowl of red will find it a lively delight. As for us, we wonder if Bro. Fowler knows how to count when it comes to alarms. But you can ease up on the ingredients and make it milder.

City Art Show Giant Success

Leaders of the Big Spring Art Association were elated at the initial day's interest in their local artists show in the mall at the Highland South Shopping Center. The show, which opened Saturday, is free to the public. It will continue today starting at 9 a.m.

More than 30 artists from Big Spring and Howard County have pictures on display and most of the artists have others for sale in the "flea market" being carried on as a feature of the show. At the market, the artists offer their works at bargain prices.

The officials in charge said a score of paintings had been sold by midafternoon Saturday and that visitors, who were numerous, were asking many questions about the paintings offered for sale.

This is a different type of show from the exhibits the association has featured in the past. In this show, no prizes will be posted. Everyone who paints was invited to show his work. The officials said that the invitation brought out a number of painters who have not heretofore taken part in the association's activities.

Webb artists were well represented.

The entire east wall of the mall in the shopping center was almost covered with the pictures.

Windbreak Plants Now Available

Tree seedlings, suitable for windbreak plantings in Central, South and West Texas, can be ordered now from the Texas Forest Service, College Station.

Windbreak species this year include: black locust, catalpa, Chinese elm, cottonwood, mulberry, osage orange, redcedar, sycamore, euonymus, buffaloberry, rose multiflora, and Austrian, loblolly, ponderosa, shortleaf, and slash pine. Stratified black walnut seed is also available.

Orders must be for 100 or more trees in multiples of 50. Cost of seedlings and seed is $1.50 per hundred plus state sales tax. All orders will be shipped prepaid between mid-January and the first week of March, 1967. Seedlings may not be resold nor used for ornamental purposes.

Pack Inspects Pilot's Gear

COAHOMA (SC) — Awards went to two dens and two boys at the meeting of Cub Pack 45 at Coahoma Presbyterian Church on Thursday.

James Renfro, cubmaster, made attendance awards to Dens 2 and 3 for having over 50 per cent of boys present during the summer. Ricky Patterson and David Firenza received stars on ranks.

Capt. Joe Tate of Webb AFB wore a pilot's togs and showed boys how they protect the pilot. He also demonstrated how a parachute opens. Fifty-one boys, parents and guests attended. The December meeting, Dec. 22, will develop the theme, "Yuletide Everywhere."

We are here to... SERVE YOU.

MR. R. L. TRAPNELL, age 63. Passed away Thursday at Houston. Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in Rosewood Chapel with interment in Trinity Memorial Park.

RONALD A. McCUISTION, age 29, passed away Saturday at San Angelo. Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in 14th & Main Church of Christ with interment in City Cemetery.

Lack Of Moisture Beginning To Cause Concern In Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—The weather has been beautiful for harvesting but the lack of soil moisture is causing concern in almost every section of Texas.

John E. Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, reported this week that the harvesting of all major crops has now shifted to western and northwestern sections and is rapidly being completed in these areas.

Livestock generally is good and dry grass is still providing good grazing in most areas, but small grain growth has about stopped and grazing from this source is now limited.

District agricultural agents in their midweek reports to Hutchison described the situation in this manner:

HARVEST ROLLING

W. W. Grisham Jr. from Amarillo said moisture is short over the Panhandle and dryland wheat needs moisture now.

The South Plains cotton harvest is really rolling, reported Billy Gunter from Lubbock, with the peak this week. Grain sorghum harvest is over and the soybean harvest is near completion.

Moisture is needed throughout the Rolling Plains district and small grain growth is very slow, said James Simmons from Vernon. The cotton harvest is moving at a fast pace; all small grain is planted.

Soil moisture in North Central Texas is becoming more critical and much of the small grain will not come up until it rains, advised Ted Martin from Denton. Small grain is making very little growth.

PLENTY OF HAY

Moisture is needed in Northeast Texas but livestock are in good condition, reported R. S. Loftis from Mt. Pleasant. He said an ample supply of hay was in storage and that grain sorghum yields from the completed harvest were good.

The dry and cool weather has been excellent for harvesting cotton and grain sorghum in far West Texas, said Ray Siegmund from Fort Stockton. Ranges are in good condition; livestock are going into the winter in excellent condition.

The entire West Central district is dry but the cotton harvest is in full swing, reported Roy Huckabee from San Angelo. Small grain needs rain and though there is plenty of dry grass, rain is needed to get winter weeds and grasses growing.

Cool season grasses and small grains in Central Texas are in critical condition from the lack of moisture, advised John Burleson from Stephenville. Small grain grazing is very limited but dry grass is available. Livestock are in good condition. The pecan crop will be light.

SURVIVAL

Soil moisture is a bit spotted in East Texas where the range is from adequate to short, said Tommy Hollmig from Nacogdoches. That section's pecan crop will be about average.

Soil moisture continues spotted in the southeast and upper Gulf Coast district.

Governor Calls For Salary Hikes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. John Connally recommended Saturday a $75 million program to boost salaries of the 40,000 state employes an average of 20 per cent.

Connally said it was the first of his 1967-69 budget recommendations. Other sections will be issued between now and Dec. 15 rather than released in one document as in the past.

There was no news conference on the salary plan. Budget director Bill Cobb said Connally was not feeling well and that the first release was self-explanatory.

The salary plan would cost $75 million during the 1967-69 fiscal period, including $26 million from the general revenue fund, which gets most sales tax receipts.

Examples of raises it provides for employes in step three of the position classification plan include:

Highway patrolmen, from $5,808 to $7,056; Texas Rangers, from $6,624 to $8,232; highway department engineers I, $8,076 to $10,368; prison guards, $4,464 to $5,184, and stenographers II, from $3,660 to $4,116.

Connally proposed to raise the state's lowest salary from $2,338 to $3,024 per year, and the highest salary under the classification plan would rise from $12,830 to $17,784. The minimum salary is now provided for more than 6,000 jobs.

The governor justified raises in the highest classification by saying they will "enable the state to attract and retain competent talent in the top scientific and management jobs which represent only two per cent of state employment and which are responsible for the productivity of the state's thousands of other employes."

Zale-Levine Merger Gets Shareholder Approval

DALLAS — Shareholders of Zale Corporation and Levine's, Inc., both of Dallas, have approved the plan of merger by which Zale will acquire the business and assets of Levine's, pending favorable rulings by the Internal Revenue Service, it was announced jointly by Ben A. Lipshy, president of Zale, and William Levine and Morris Levine, chairman and president, respectively, of Levine's.

Both firms have requested rulings from the Internal Revenue Service to the effect that, for federal income tax purposes, the merger be considered a tax-free transaction. Lipshy told Zale shareholders that it is hoped such a ruling will be forthcoming before the end of December.

Zale shareholders also approved an increase in the size of the board of directors from 12 to 14 and elected William Levine and Morris Levine to fill the two new posts as of the effective date of the merger.

Levine's shareholders, meeting in the morning, approved the merger plan with an affirmative vote in excess of 92 per cent. In the afternoon, Zale shareholders voted in excess of 85 per cent of the common shares in favor of the merger and 98 per cent of the Class B common stock in the affirmative. Texas law requires a minimum of four-fifths of the eligible shares outstanding for passage of such mergers.

When effective, the merger will be handled under the pooling of interests accounting concept. As a result, pro forma sales for the fiscal year ended in 1966 (March 31 for Zale and Jan. 31 for Levine's) totaled $176,991,076 and net earnings amounted to $9,520,459. The combined firm had total shareholders' equity of $62,057,237 on a pro forma basis, using Zale data as of June 30, 1966, and Levine's data on July 31, 1966.

By their action, Zale shareholders authorized the issuance of 200,000 shares of new cumulative convertible preferred voting stock, par value $25 per share. Under terms of the merger, each 100 shares of the Levine's common stock will be converted into 28 shares of Zale's new preferred stock and 50 shares of Zale's common stock. Zale will issue an aggregate of 354,514 shares of its common stock and 198,528 shares of its preferred stock in the merger.

Powell's Seat In Congress Under Challenge In Court

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a hearing next Tuesday on whether Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., is entitled to retain his seat in Congress.

The Harlem congressman won election easily over three opponents in the Nov. 8 election.

Judge Thomas F. Croake Friday set the hearing date to consider a charge made by Lassen L. Walsh, the Republican candidate who opposed Powell's bid for a 12th term, that Powell was not a bona-fide inhabitant of New York.

The suit contends that the last time Powell slept in his apartment was about a year and a half ago. The congressman lists the Harlem apartment as his voting address and also maintains living quarters in Bimini, in the Bahamas.

The court action is one more in a series of court troubles for the chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

On Thursday, State Supreme Court Justice Matthew M. Levy issued an order directing Powell to surrender next Wednesday to begin serving a 30-day jail sentence for criminal contempt of court. Levy found Powell guilty on two counts of contempt for willful failure four times to answer a court directive in a $164,000 libel judgment against him.

Powell has avoided all arrest orders by staying out of the state while Congress is not in session, when his constitutional immunity from arrest in civil cases does not apply. The arrest orders also cannot be served on Sundays. In past weeks, Powell has appeared on the Sabbath in New York to deliver sermons as minister of the Abyssinian Baptist church.

Reds Stress More Science

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today ordered a series of reforms in public schools to put further stress on science and technology.

All central newspapers carried a full page of what was officially described as "measures to improve further the standard of secondary schools."

"The level of education of secondary schools does not yet correspond to the increased demands of life," the statement said.

Among measures ordered:

Introductory courses in the natural sciences — biology, chemistry, physics — to be started in the fourth grade, the class for 10 years olds.

Establishment of secondary schools and classes concentrating on studies in a specific direction. Cited in this context were mathematcis and computing techniques, physics and radio electronics, chemistry, biology and the humanities. This program is designed for the ninth and 10th grades, students 16 to 17.

Increase of the compulsory school program from eight years to 10 years throughout the country.

An end to the practice of using school children in jobs unrelated to their studies, such as harvesting crops on labor-short collective farms.

X15 Hangs Up New Record

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Air Force Maj. William Knight has set a new speed record in the X15 rocket plane, streaking to 4,159 miles an hour on a nine-minute flight.

His record speed, achieved after firing the plane's rocket engine for 135 seconds Friday, broke the old record of 4,104 miles an hour set in 1962 by the late Joseph A. Walker.

Knight's record flight began at 45,000 feet, when the X15 was dropped from under the wing of a B52 bomber over Mud Lake, Nev.

The craft also carried experimental patches of a material that melts and sloughs off at high speed, eliminating heat that would otherwise build up beyond the 1,200-degree Fahrenheit temperature limit.

Knight said the flight had been without problems. But he explained that as the craft's metal skin expanded and contracted with heating and cooling, it emitted a "banging and popping." He called the noise "disturbing."

"A commotion like that in your car might make you think the jalopy is coming apart," he said, adding: "Nothing came apart on the X15."

Spartans, Irish Play 10-10 Tie

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Notre Dame and Michigan State battled to a galling 10-10 tie that failed to decide which should wear the national title Saturday and left a puzzled football world asking:

Why didn't Notre Dame, the No. 1 team, go for victory in the fading seconds, instead of playing for a tie?

Ara Parseghian, coach of the favored Fighting Irish, refused to apologize for the conservative tactics which he dictated from the bench in the bizarre climax of the nationally televised contest.

"I didn't want to blow the game," he said. "I didn't want to lose the ball. After the boys had made such a fine comeback and played 59½ minutes of great ball, I didn't want to see them lose it in the last half minute."

He said he didn't want to risk the same mistake that happened when the second-ranked Spartans, deep in their own territory in the last period, gambled with the long pass which was intercepted by Tom Schoen.

Shortly after the interception, Notre Dame's Joe Azzaro missed a 41-yard field goal attempt that apparently would have won the game.

"Their kicker, Dick Kenney, is a strong kicker and has plenty of range," Parseghian said. "We didn't want to give him this chance."

With 1:43 left on the clock and Notre Dame in possession at its own 30, Coley O'Brien, with plays called from the bench, sneaked three times and gave the ball to Bob Bleier and Larry Conjar for plunges into the line with a first down intrespersed.

The game ended on the bizarre note of the offensive team, Notre Dame, trying to kill the clock and the defensive team, Michigan State, calling desperate time outs in hopes of getting the ball.

"We wanted the ball," Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State coach, said. "I don't want to comment on what Parseghian did. It's his business."

The top-ranked Fighting Irish, their ace quarterback Terry Hanratty lost by injury in the first quarter, and playing entirely without their game-breaker halfback Nick Eddy, struck back after trailing 10-0 to deadlock the game with a 28-yard field goal by Joe Azzaro on the first play of the last period.

The Irish missed winning by a few agonizing yards when Azzaro failed on a field goal try from the Spartan 31 with less than five minutes remaining.

Azzaro's pressure kick slithered to the right of the goal posts. That wasted big break came after Irish safety Tom Schoen plucked a Michigan State pass out of the air at midfield and raced to the Spartan 18.

It was then that Michigan State's fighting defensive unit, headed by 283-pound Bubba Smith, threw the Irish back to the 24.

The hopes of Notre Dame supporters in the record Spartan Stadium crowd of 80,011 died. The Irish were running straight power plays into the line when the game ended.

The second-ranked Big Ten champions of Michigan State, seeking their second straight perfect 10-0 record and their 20th regular season victory in a row, scored in the second minute of the second quarter on a four-yard run by fullback Regis Cavender which was set up by a 42-yard pass from quarterback Jimmy Raye to fleet Gene Washington.

Moments later, the Spartans were on the move again, driving from their own 18 under the expert signal calling and occasional running of the slender Raye to the Notre Dame 20.

Dickinson Leads Palmer By One

HOUSTON (AP) — Skinny Gardner Dickinson Jr., birdied the last two holes for a two-under-par 69 that carried him to a stroke lead over charging Arnold Palmer at the 54-hole mark of the $110,000 Houston Champions International Golf Tournament Saturday.

Dickinson, a gaunt-faced 5-foot-11, 130-pounder from Lost Tree Village, Fla., fired a 35-34 round to go with his 69 and 67 for 205, eight strokes under par for the 7,118-yard 36-35—71 Cypress Creek course of the Champions Golf Club.

Palmer unreeled his second straight 68, although he complained over poor putting, for 206.

Just two strokes off the pace in the drive for the $21,000 first money were Bob Goalby, with a 69, and Al Geiberger, another lean belter, with a 69 for 207.

Tommy Bolt, mellowed, 48-year-old golf course proprietor from Sarasota, Fla., uncorked a 33-35—68 for 208 and a tie with Dick Crawford, a 27-year-old former college champion from the University of Houston.

GALE SAYERS THREAT TO FOE'S DEFENSE

Angry Packers, Bears Vie In NFL Encounter Today

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The first time the Chicago Bears caught Green Bay on the rebound this season they burned their paws. The Bears will be hungrier the second time around . . . but the Packers will be angrier.

Green Bay, upset by Minnesota two weeks ago and idle last week, entertains the Bears Sunday in a pivotal National Football League game. The Packers share first place in the Western Division with the Baltimore Colts, who play at Detroit Sunday.

Six weeks ago, San Francisco handed the Packers their only other setback. The following Sunday, Green Bay bounced back at Chicago, stymieing breakaway runner Gale Sayers and drubbing the Bears 17-0.

Sayers has come on strong since being held to 26 rushing yards by Green Bay and quarterback Rudy Bukich finally has the Bears' attack on the move. But Chicago, 3-4-2, is out of the running in the West while the Packers, led by NFL passing leader Bart Starr, are shooting for their second straight Western title.

Sayers added 85 yards to his rushing total and Bukich threw two touchdown passes in the Bears' 30-30 standoff with the 49ers last week. Bukich will be up against the league's best pass defense Sunday, however, and the Packers are solid favorites.

St. Louis, the Eastern Division leader, draws a bye Sunday but the runner-up Dallas Cowboys can tie for the lead by getting past Pittsburgh, upset winner over the Cardinals and the Cleveland Browns the past two weeks. The Browns host Washington, Philadelphia is at San Francisco, Minnesota at Los Angeles and Atlanta at New York in other games.

Johnny Unitas, Baltimore's master passer, figures to outgun Karl Sweetan, the rookie Detroit quarterback, but the Lions may be able to counter Lou Michaels' place-kicking with the footwork of Garo Yepremian, the surprising Cypriot, whose six field goals against Minnesota last week set an NFL record.

Unitas fired four touchdown passes as the Colts drubbed Detroit 45-14 the first time they met this season. Michaels leads NFL scorers with 82 points.

The surging Steelers, playing their final home game, promise to give Dallas a stiffer test than in their first meeting, won by the Cowboys 52-21 as Don Meredith flipped four TD passes.

OVER BAYLOR BEARS, 24-22

Breathless Comeback Gives Ponies Win

DALLAS (AP) — Dennis Partee kicked a 20-yard field goal with 18 seconds left Saturday to gvie Southern Methodist a 24-22 victory over Baylor and shoot the Methodists into first place in the Southwest Conference football race.

The fall of Arkansas 21-16 at the the hands of Texas Tech brought this startling turn of events. Southern Methodist can win the title and he Coton Bowl host spot by beating Texas Christian next week.

Minutes before Partee's clutch kick—it was the second time this season for him to win games in the final seconds with field goals—Bob Purvis had booted one for Baylor for 44 yards and that had the Bears in front 22-21 with 2:37 left.

The Southern Methodists, led by the running and passing of Mike Livingston, stepping in for the injured Mac White, rolled to glory. A 26-yard pass to Levias set it up and Livingston ran 18 yards to the three. Then on fourth down, he had Partee kick the field goal for victory.

Levias had put SMU out of what seemed Baylor's reach with a 100-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

Terry Southall, the mighty Baylor bomber, then went to work. He broke the Southwest Conference pass completion record for a single game with 28 for 330 yards and carried the Bears to three touchdowns and a field goal. He passed for two of them, set up another and his throwing set up the winning field goal.

SMU BACK GAINS

Southern Methodist drove 80 yards for its first touchdown with Livingston running for 36 yards and Mike Richardson 31. Livingston scored on a four-yard end run.

Pat Gibson intercepted a Southall pass and ran it back 40 yards for a touchdown in the second period, and in the third quarter there came Levias' run that was the ninth 100-yard dash with a kickoff in conference history.

Arkansas has finished the season with a 5-2 record in conference play. SMU is 5-1 and has Texas Christian at Fort Worth next Saturday to close out the schedule.

Texas and Texas A&M play at College Station Thursday and the winner will have a 5-2 record.

If Southern Methodist should lose to Texas Christian, it would be tied for the championship by Arkansas and either Texas or Texas A&M. In that event Arkansas would get the Cotton Bowl spot since it beat SMU, Texas and Texas A&M during the season.

Blue Bonnet Bowl scouts were here Saturday to look SMU over. However, the Methodists aren't likely to get a bid from the Bluebonnet now since they still are in the Cotton Bowl picture.

Tech Springs Massive Upset, Topples Hogs

By MIKE COCHRAN

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Texas Tech stunned sixth-ranked Arkansas 21-16 Saturday, dimming Razorback hopes for a third consecutive Southwest Conference football championship and a trip to the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas only needed to beat the Red Raiders to clinch the title and get the post-season bowl trip. The season-ending loss was its second in seven conference games.

Southern Methodist, beaten a week ago by Arkansas, can take all honors by defeating Texas Christian next week.

Tech quarterback John Scovell directed the conference's biggest upset of the season. He scored one touchdown and passed for another, then watched from the sidelines as tackle Gene Darr stole an Arkansas pass and ran 20 yards for the clinching score.

The Raiders overcame a 10-7 Arkansas lead with two third-quarter touchdowns, permitted Arkansas to score once in the final period and then clung to its lead in the closing minutes.

Arkansas constructed a 10-point lead in the first quarter, then fell to a furious Tech defense until it managed its final touchdown with 12 minutes remaining in the game.

Trailing 10-7, Texas Tech cranked up for a 70-yard scoring thrust midway through the third period, covering the distance in 11 plays.

Scovell, shaken up earlier, returned and threw a 20-yard scoring pass to Larry Gilbert.

The desperate Razorbacks, operating deep in their own territory, committed a fatal error with seconds remaining in the third period.

Quarterback Jon Brittenum passed low over the merging lines and Darr, a 221-pound junior, pulled in the ball at the 20 and shuffled into the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Ken Vinyard's third straight conversion hiked the score to 21-10.

Brittenum kept alive Arkansas hopes as he drove the Razorbacks 77 yards for a touchdown, darting the final five steps himself.

Bob White's 21-yard field goal and a 9-yard scamper by Jim Whisenhunt provided the earlier Arkansas points.

The loss was only the second for Arkansas this season, and was its first ever to Tech in 11 meetings.

The Razorbacks were favored by as much as three touchdowns.

Troy Shocked By Uclans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Norm Dow, filling in for the injured Gary Beban, led UCLA to an upset 14-7 victory over Southern California Saturday, putting the Bruins in strong contention for their second straight trip to the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Dow had played very little until Beban was put out of action with a broken leg bone against Stanford last week. He scored one touchdown and engineered the second to break a tie in the fourth quarter.

The triumph left No. 8-ranked UCLA with a record of 9-1 and 3-1 in the Pacific - 8 conference.

UCLA scored early in the third quarter after kicking off and holding the Trojans on the first series.

The Bruins traveled 42 yards in seven plays, ignited by Dow's 18-yard ramble to the Trojan 20. Five plays later Dow skirted right end for the final five yards. Kurt Zimmerman kicked the first of two conversions, running his string for the season to 33 straight.

Eagles Batter Foe, 42 To 7, For Mitchell

DENTON, Tex. (AP)—North Texas State University handed retiring coach Odus Mitchell the perfect going-away gift Saturday, a 42-7 victory over the University of Chattanooga.

The victory gave North Texas an 8-2 record, Mitchell's best since 1959 and his third best in 21 years as head coach here. The 42 points scored equalled the total years Mitchell has been a head football coach.

The Eagle victory assured them of a share of the Missouri Valley Conference crown, since Tulsa lost to Louisville 29-18. Tulsa must defeat Wichita University at Wichita next week to share the title.

It was a day of records for the Eagles. The team closed out the year with 17 season records, five of them set or tied Saturday.

Pass snagging John Love grabbed off four of the records. His three touchdown passes Saturday equalled his previous mark against Wichita this year, his 220 yards gained on 12 receptions is a new school record, his year's total yardage on passes of 1,130 is a new mark, and he wound up the season with 10 scoring passes for another record.

The Eagles passed for 414 yards another school record.

Defensive back Billy Woods started North Texas on the victory path with an 80-yard punt return in the second quarter. The Eagles struck for two quick third quarter tallies on a three-yard run by Ronnie Bell and a 15-yard pass from Corkey Boland to Love.

In the fourth quarter, Love scored on a 21-yard pass from Boland, Willie Cherry crashed over from the four and Love tallied again on a 25-yard toss from Boland.

Chattanooga scored with 1:24 left in the game on a five-yard pass from Roger Catarino to Angelo Napolitano. Before that 94-yard drive the Moccasins got no deeper than the North Texas 41 and past the 50 only twice in the game.

Battle To Tie

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas and Texas A&M battled to a 17-17 tie in a Southwest Conference freshman football game as Barney Harris of the Fish and Pat Sheehan of the Shorthorns each scored two touchdowns.

San Angelo used a plain vanilla offense and a rock-ribbed defense to chew up Big Spring before the season's largest local crowd—estimated at better than 8,000—here Friday night, 41-0.

The outcome became evident the first time San Angelo got the ball. The Bobcats, smarting from a 12-6 defeat handed them the previous week by Odessa Permian at home, moved the ball 66 yards in nine plays for their first score. Fullback Terry Collins, a boy who runs close to the ground because he's built close to the ground, carried the ball on eight of those occasions and finally lugged it in from two yards away with 5:05 remaining in the period.

NO SCORE IN FOURTH

The Felines, who won the right to represent the conference in the playoffs in the bargain, scored two touchdowns in each of the first three periods and then let the rinkydinks take over. The rinkydinks did well, too, hacking out yardage as if they thought coach Emory Bellard had been playing the wrong team.

Big Spring could never do much about defending the trap play up the middle and when it did move in to pinch off the power thrusts quarterback Gary Mullins would take the ball and run wide on the provincials, usually for a score.

San Angelo didn't particularly impress, despite the one-sided score. A team with a line that has heft and can move laterally with ease (Amarillo Tascosa, maybe?) figures to give them a lot of bad moments.

The Bobcats simply were using their massive people up front to move the Steers out of the way and let Collins sail on through. Terry picked up 170 yards net in 23 carries for a 7.4-yard average.

Mullins accounted for the Cats' second score on a wide play with 1:19 left in the initial canto, after Mark Dove had intercepted a Big Spring pass at his own 25 and returned it to the Steer 19. Mullins scrambled over from the three. Kenneth Newman kicked PAT'S on five of six attempts during the evening, missing only the fourth one.

OVER AGAIN

Mullins went over again on a sweep from the three with 3:49 left in the second quarter at the end of a 74-yard drive that required ten plays. Collins was again a big factor in the march.

San Angelo had time to get the ball and score again before the period ran out and Mullins once again did the honors on the same time of maneuver, again from the three. Tony Wallace put the drive in motion by intercepting a pass at the San Angelo 41. The visitors receipted for five interceptions during the long evening.

San Angelo's fourth tally came with just one minute left to play in the half.

The invaders went back to work in the third, Collins climaxing a 63-yard march with a 20-yard ramble up the middle for the score. There was 9:04 left in the period at the time.

As the third period ran out, Mike Phelps picked off a Big Spring pass at the San Angelo 31, waited patiently for his blockers to form and then scooted 69 yards to the payoff window without being touched.

EARLY DRIVE

Big Spring had mounted a drive earlier in the round, after Wayne Kennedy had recovered a San Angelo bobble at the Cat 31.

The Longhorns chugged on down to the three, where coach Bellard returned his entire first unit back in action and stopped the drive.

This was Big Spring's worst defeat since 1960, when Permian blasted the locals, 43-0, in the final game of the season.

The Steers thus ended their season with a 4-6 record, first time since '60 they have failed to win half their games. In 2-AAAA standings, they were 2-5, good for sixth place.

San Angelo tied Cooper for first place in the standings, each with a 6-1 record and won the right to appear in the playoffs by virtue of having beaten the Cougars.

Three State Champs Are On Sidelines

By The Associated Press

Three defending state champions are in the discard following Friday night's play in the Texas Interscholastic League.

Brownwood, the Class AAA king, took it on the chin from undefeated, untied Vernon 28-15 Friday night. That gave Vernon the district championship and a ticket to the division playoffs starting next week.

Wills Point, the Class A champion, was knocked out in the opening round of the playoffs, falling to Paul Pewitt 31-19.

Odessa Permian, the Class AAAA champion, never got out of the district.

Plano, the defending titlist of Class AA, plays Mexia at Waco tonight in the bi-district round.

All district champions but one were determined Friday night in Classes AAAA and AAA, while most first round games were played in the Class AA and A playoffs.

Other district champions are Ysleta Bel Air, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Fort Worth Eastern Hills, Dallas Bryan Adams, Carrollton, Marshall, Houston Waltrip, Spring Branch, Port Arthur, Brazosport, Austin McCallum, Alice, San Antonio MacArthur and San Antonio Harlandale.

San Angelo, which was rated No. 1 until this week, made it to the playoffs by crushing Big Spring 41-0.

Wichita Falls is back in the playoffs after a five-year lapse. The Coyotes beat Wichita Falls Rider 24-6 to get there.

Wichita Falls, if it should win the state championship, would tie Abilene for the most titles in the history of the Interscholastic League. Abilene has won six, Wichita Falls five.

In the first round of the playoffs next week Bel Air meets San Angelo, Amarillo Tascosa meets Wichita Falls, Eastern Hills clashes with Dallas Bryan Adams, Carrollton takes on Marshall, Waltrip plays Spring Branch, Port Arthur engages Brazosport, McCallum meets Alice and MacArthur tackles Harlandale.

In the first round of the Class AAA playoffs Dumas plays Monahans, Littlefield takes on Vernon, Mineral Wells tackles McKinney, Nacogdoches plays Ennis, Bridge City moves against Conroe, Lamar Consolidated plays Clear Creek, San Marcos plays Robstown and Fredericksburg meets Raymondville.

The No. 1 teams of Class AA and A made it through the first round but Sweeney, the Class AA topper, had trouble a plenty. It was able to beat Edna only 6-0.

Forney, ranked No. 1 in Class A, slashed Glen Rose 35-6.

Post, Stamford, Granbury, Decatur, Daingerfield, Mineola, Cameron, Bastrop, Sweeny, Kenedy, San Antonio Randolph and Freer won bi-district games in Class AA. Four more are scheduled tonight when Phillips clashes with Iowa Park, Plano plays Mexia, Rusk engages Buna and Hardin-Jefferson rolls against Dayton.

Abilene Cooper Shades Flock To Clinch Tie

ABILENE — Abilene Cooper clinched a tie for first place in District 2-AAAA by defeating Abilene High, 14-9, here Friday night.

Touchdowns in the second and fourth periods offset a second period Abilene six-pointer and a fourth period field goal.

Kenny Stephens put Cooper out in front in Round Two with a 33-yard run. Dana Beck booted the PAT.

Bill Catlett tallied for Abilene later in the quarter on a six-yard bolt.

Early in the fourth, Randy Clarke kicked a 29-yard field goal for Abilene but Cooper came back to regain the lead when Stephens went in from the one. Beck again converted.

Abilene thus ended play with a 4-2-1 conference record, good for fourth place, while Cooper's win was its sixth in seven 2-AAAA outing.

Cooper gained 183 yards on the ground and 60 through the air while Abilene had 199 yards on the ground and only seven through the air.

Each team made 14 first downs.

The Cougars thus, for the first time in history, won a share of the 2-AAAA championship but yielded the right to appear in the playoffs to San Angelo.

Permian Wins Final Game

ODESSA — Odessa Permian blanked Odessa High, 13-0, here Friday night to wind up another successful season.

The Panthers, winners over San Angelo last week, scored the first time they got possession of the ball, David Routh going 15 yards in the opening period. David Byerly booted the PAT.

The Permian club added the clincher in the fourth round by driving 70 yards to the pay window. Byerly got the score from the four but missed for the try for point.

The Panthers finished conference play with a 5-1-1 record, which left them a half game on the pace set by Abilene Cooper and San Angelo.

Odessa wound up with a 3-4 conference record and is 5-4-1 for the year. Permian's over-all mark is 7-2-1.

Permian made 239 yards rushing and 23 passing while Odessa gained 91 paces rushing and 52 through the air. Odessa had nine first downs to 13 for Permian.

Stamford Tips Alpine, 15-14

ANDREWS — Stamford beat Alpine, 15-14, in Class AA bi-district competition here Friday night.

The victory sends Stamford against Granbury in Regional competition next week.

Alpine used a mighty aerial air to make a game of it down to the wire.

The difference in the score was a two-point conversion, which came on a pass from Jack Harkins to Jody Selman.

The play followed a pass interception and a 26-yard run-back for a touchdown by Stamford's Mike Matthews in the fourth period.

Dawson not only bagged a ten-pound buck but killed a javalina hog as well.

ARTHRITIS BENCHES SUPERB SANDY

Koufax Hangs Up Glove, Dodgers' Future Shaky

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A tremendous question mark hovers over the future of the National League champion Dodgers. Sandy Koufax has retired.

Superb Sandy, acclaimed as perhaps the greatest left hand pitcher in baseball history and certainly the finest in the major leagues today, made official Friday what had long been rumored.

At 30, after his winningest season, Koufax is quitting rather than pitch another season with the pain of his chronically arthritic left elbow.

"I feel I can't risk the chance of completely disabling myself," the handsome dark-haired bachelor told a news conference in Beverly Hills.

"I was told that if I kept on pitching I could do a good job of permanent damage.

"I've got a lot of years to live after baseball and I want to be sure of the complete use of my body."

Koufax earned a reported $125,000 in 1966 with the Los Angeles club, and could have commanded much more for 1967.

But money comes a poor second to a bad arm and, said Sandy, the Dodgers couldn't offer enough to make him continue to play—or change his mind about retiring.

"My decision is irrevocable."

ON RETIRED LIST

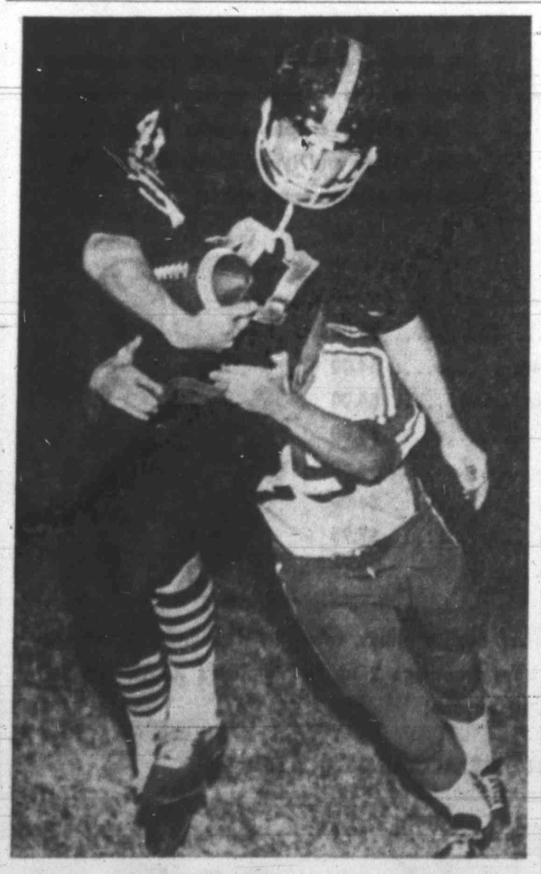

Technically, Sandy asked to be placed on the club's voluntary retired list, which, said Dodger vice president E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, makes the Koufax retirement automatic.

Bavasi did not attend the Koufax-called press conference and was indeed sharply critical because Sandy declined to wait to make the announcement until Dodger president Walter F. O'Malley returns home from Japan Sunday.

"I think he owed Walter the courtesy of waiting," said Bavasi. "What was three more days?

"After all," Bavasi exclaimed, "Walter made it possible for Sandy to retire at the age of 30."

Advised of Bavasi's reaction, Koufax said he had wanted to make the disclosure before Bavasi left for a two-week vacation in Hawaii, but Buzzie persuaded him not to. Bavasi felt he could make a better deal—with Sandy still on the roster—at the league meetings in December.

Clanton Slowed

Ex-Rider Pleased To Still Be Here

EL PASO — Is former rider Benny Roller superstitious? Not really, he just isn't making any more predictions on Friday the 13th.

The story begins two years ago. It was a delightful Indian summer afternoon. A ladies day crowd of some 2,000 were in the stands and many more were in the forecourt enjoying the warm rays of the autumn sun.

The date — Friday, Nov. 13.

In the saddling paddock, jockey Benny Roller walked up to his life - long friend, trainer Jim Curry, and made what was to be the post prophetic statement of his life.

"Jimmy," he quipped, "I wish your filly hadn't drawn the one hole, you'll probably have to bury me or send me home in an ambulance."

Roller was noted for his practical jokes and quick wit and Curry ignored the remark. He boosted Roller into the saddle and with a wink said, "Hurry back Benny."

Moments later starter Dean Turpitt sprung the starting gate latch and the field of maiden quarter horse thundered down the stretch.

As customary in quarter horse races, the riders immediately went to their whips. Roller a natural right hander took, two, three, four whacks at the filly's hindquarters.

Later, Roller explained, "I saw those horses on the outside of me in front and I wanted to get to them in a hurry."

The filly began to lug in badly from Roller's slashing whip and she was heading straight for the inside rail.

"I saw it coming," Roller recalls, "it all happened in a split second. I wanted to get her off the fence so I reached up to take another cross to straighten her up but my hand missed the reigns. I don't think she ever saw the rail — anyway it was too late."

The filly crashed into the fence and Roller was catapulted into the infield. He landed with shattering impact and lay motionless.

His battered body was rushed to Providence Hospital where physicians described his condition as critical. Roller remained under intensive care for two weeks and attendants frankly admitted that they didn't expect him to survive.

His chief physician, Dr. Mario Palafox said that by all laws of medical science Roller should not have survived.

"Only his youth and faith kept him alive," said the specialist, "He had a serious pelvis wound that only nature could heal. When it became apparent we would have to amputate his left arm he developed severe heart failure. Next his kidneys failed and then it was a blood clot on his lungs. Benny died every night for six nights, it was truly a miracle that he survived."

Steer Swimmers Prep For Debut

The first Big Spring High School swim team in history begins its season with a meet at the YMCA here at 4 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, against Odessa Permian.

BILL LEWIS

Bill Lewis is coach of the Steers. Lewis holds a BA degree in Physical Education, Art and Park Management and a Master's Degree in Education. He currently is doing research toward his Ph.D. He teaches Art and Health in high school here.

Eleven boys and six girls have answered the call for practice. Among them are some athletes who have already made names for themselves in summer swimming programs around the state.

Boys who are working out regularly include seniors Larry Ethun, Bruce Bunn, Frank Horn, Chuck Stone and Bob Tyldesley, juniors Bob Bell, Bill Bortner, Jim Devore and Charles Lacy and sophomores Johnny Arquello and Pat Gray. Jim Sokolewicz is manager of the team.

Girls in the midst of preparations for the upcoming season include Kathryn Crenshaw, Laura Fulbright, Pam Hendricks, Vicki Morrow, Linda Tyldesley and Ann Johnson. Barbara Crenshaw serves as student manager.

The Steers will compete for the 2-AAAA championship March 3-4 at Odessa Permian and will engage in numerous dual meets and relays over the season. The swimmers got through a series of condition drills in preparing for their roles in the water, using weights, pulley machines and exercises that stress flexibility.

Lewis attended Texas Tech on a swimming scholarship and was active there from 1955 through the 1960 seasons. He was one of the first to represent the school in Southwest Conference competition.

FEM RECORD IS BROKEN

Ida Mae Powell's trip to Big Spring Friday proved to be a memorable one.

She paused to play a round of golf at the Big Spring Country Club and broke the women's course record there, then stayed over to watch San Angelo High take the Big Spring Steers over the hurdles in football, 41-0.

Mrs. Powell, one of West Texas' best known women linksters, toured the golf course in 73 strokes — one under women's par.

In achieving the 73, she beat Billie Dillon's old course record by two strokes. Mrs. Dillon had set the record in 1962.

Playing with Mrs. Powell were Red Cleveland, Lou Eubanks and a Mr. McGarr.

Steelers Try For 3rd Big Upset Today

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers shoot Sunday for what might be some kind of a National Football League record — a third major upset in a row.

They tangle with the title-minded Dallas Cowboys who are only one-half game behind St. Louis in the NFL Eastern Conference.

The surprising Steelers upset St. Louis 30-9 last Sunday, and the week before pulled off a 16-6 triumph over Cleveland, another contender.

The Cowboys, who pounded Pittsburgh 52-12 in the first meeting of the two clubs this year, are a 10-point favorite.

But Steeler Coach Bill Austin, undismayed by past performances over Dallas' offensive and defensive powers, said, "I never live in the past."

The Cowboys lead the NFL in four vital categories — total offense, passing offense, total defense and rushing defense.

The Steelers will be at near full strength with the return of defensive end John Baker. He's been out of action several weeks with a torn leg muscle. The only Steeler regular who won't see action is quarterback Bill Nelsen who's hobbled with a knee injury.

At quarterback for Pittsburgh will be Ron Smith, a lanky second year man who has performed capably since being given the starting job a few weeks ago.

Pittsburgh's defense was a key part of the St. Louis and Cleveland upsets. St. Louis got its nine points on field goals, thus Pittsburgh defenders limited opponents to only one touchdown in two weeks.

If the weather is fair, a crowd of some 40,000 is expected for the game at Pitt Stadium.

Wink Is Ousted By Sonora Club

SONORA — Sonora began to look around for new worlds to conquer after defeating Wink, 47-14, in a Class A bi-district game here Friday night.

Sonora will meet representatives of Seagraves Sunday to arrange a playoff site and date for their second round contest.

Ed Renfro, Laney Cook and Mike Gosney were the outstanding performers for Sonora. Renfro ran 89 yards for one touchdown.

Sonora scored all its points in the first half but keeping Wink away from the double stripes.

Houston Oilers Face Buffalo In Big One

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The American Football League's Eastern Division leaders, the Buffalo Bills, have an appointment with a young and hungry team Sunday, a fresh-faced crew of Houston Oilers eager to turn spoilers.

Buffalo comes to Houston with a one-half game lead over Boston. While the Bills try to strengthen their hold on the top spot Sunday, the Patriots will be battling the Western Division leaders, the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Bills' defense is supposed to be the best in the league—a tough test for the transfusion of young bloods coach Wally Lemm has ordered off the bench to save Houston's name.

Earlier this fall, the Bills beat the Oilers 27-20 on a last-moment interception by Hagood Clarke. George Blanda, who threw that pass and four others that went awry that day, has since been demoted to place-kicking chores.

The new Oilers quarterback is Don Trull, the Baylor whiz, who gave the Patriots a time last week, completing 23 of 45 passes for 329 yards and three touchdowns. Boston didn't intercept a one, and it was Trull's best Sunday out of three starts.

In all, there will be eight Oilers starters who weren't in the lineup the last time Houston played at home, a month ago.

Flanker Larry Elkins caught six of Trull's passes in the Boston game, and tight end Bob Poole is expected to be one of Trull's prime pass targets Sunday. Charlie Frazier is the league's No. 2 receiver.

The Bills' sturdy starters are old faces, like quarterback Jack Kemp, who got rid of a 3-0 New York Jet lead last week with a scoring pass to flanker Elbert Dubenion.

Jumbo (297 pounds) Jim Dunaway later blocked a field goal attempt and took the ball 72 yards for the touchdown that set the final score at 14-3 against the Jets.

Bills running backs Bobby Burnett and Wray Carlton are in the league's top ten.

The Bills have won six, lost three and tied San Diego this season, and the Oilers have a 3-7 season record and go into Sunday's game leading the series 7-6.

Tom Chorn ran for both Hermleigh scores, going 65 and 63 yards.

Loraine rallied in the fourth period to salvage the tie.

Terry Brewer raced 13 yards for Loraine's first TD in the third and came back for the second Bulldog tally on a 13-yard sprint in the fourth. Tommy Finley converted for Loraine after Brewer's second touchdown.

Hermleigh thus ended its season with a 4-5-1 record while Loraine finished at 3-6-1.

Rebels Fall By 8-7 Tab

MIDLAND — Midland Lee, which has never beaten Midland High in football, will have to wait at least another year for the chance.

Midland High staged a mild upset by edging the Rebels, 8-7, here Friday night. Lee failed to win in seven District 2-AAAA starts. The win was the first for Midland High, compared to six league defeats.

Lee outgained the Bulldogs, both on the ground and in the air, but the Bulldogs were tough in close.

Lee counted in the opening period when Rodger Camp went over from the three. Gregg Frazier added the extra point on a kick.

Midland High scored in the third when Charlie Wright boomed over from the one. Paul Lyons added the vital two points on a run.

The Bulldogs thus wound up with an overall record of 3-7 while Midland Lee finished at 1-9.

Vols Likely Bound For Jacksonville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sharp-shooting Dewey Warren nailed down a bowl berth for Tennessee Saturday, tossing four touchdown passes which pushed the Vols to a 28-19 conquest of explosive Kentucky.

The Tennessee quarterback threw a pair of scoring strikes to fleet Richmond Flowers Jr., hit Austin Denney with another and then clinched the triumph in the fourth quarter with a 72-yard touchdown toss to Johnny Mills.

The regionally-televised Southeastern Conference football battle was watched by representatives of the Gator Bowl, with Tennessee expected to be offered a bowl bid next Monday.

Kentucky, which closed out its campaign with a 3-6-1 season record and a 2-4 league mark, threw a scare into the favored Vols with a pair of long plays in the first half.

Dickey Lyons made up for an early fumble in the 62nd meeting of the traditional rivals with a twisting 72-yard touchdown on a punt return, and halfback Larry Seiple took a pass from Terry Beadles 78 yards to set up Beadles' one-yard scoring plunge.

Boilermakers Slaughter Indiana Hoosiers, 51-6

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue gave Indiana one chance and then blasted the Hoosiers 51-6 Saturday on the passing of Bob Griese and the versatility of Leroy Keyes before a Ross-Ade Stadium record crowd of 62,197.

Griese completed 11 of 21 passes for 255 yards and three touchdowns for the Rose Bowl-bound Boilermakers. He scored 21 points on two touchdowns, a 24-yard field goal and six of seven extra point kicks.

It was the biggest margin in the series between the Old Oaken Bucket rivals since a '64-0 Purdue triumph in 1893.

Keyes, a defensive back playing both ways in the football battle for the bucket, ran for one touchdown, passed for another, broke up a pass that was Indiana's best touchdown bid in the first half, and intercepted a pass that set up one of Purdue's seven six-pointers.

Jim Beirne caught two touchdown passes, one from Keyes and one from Griese, and threw the last block that let Jim Finley go 80 yards for Purdue's first touchdown — on a pass from Griese.

Sophomore fullback Perry Williams provided the punch in Purdue's running game, racking up 87 yards in 19 carries.

Lions Wallop Pitt, 48-24

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tom Sherman passed for three touchdowns and Bob Campbell scored three times as Penn State walloped Pitt 48-24 Saturday in the season's final game for both teams.

Three long kick returns by Mike Irwin and two pass interceptions set up State for its first five touchdowns on short drives engineered by Sherman.

Penn State, finishing the season 5-5, and keeping alive its record of not having a losing season since 1938, jumped to a 27-0 halftime lead against the outmanned Panthers.

Pitt finished with a 1-9 record, its worst in 63 years.

Vernon thus earned the right to oppose Littlefield of 3-AAA in bi-district competition.

Brownwood won the battle of statistics, gaining a total of 349 yards against the Lions, but Vernon moved out in front early and stayed there.

Michigan Tips Bucks, 17-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jim Detwiler, a slashing halfback who leads the Big Ten in scoring, smacked through and around Ohio State's beefy line Saturday while leading Michigan to a 17-3 football conquest of the Buckeyes before 83,403 fans.

Detwiler, a 6-foot-3, 215-pound senior from Toledo, Ohio, piled up more than 100 yards rushing in a first half demonstration of power running. That paced a versatile Wolverine attack.

Detwiler gave Michigan the go-ahead score with only 1:11 remaining in the first half when he darted untouched around right end for a seven-yard touchdown run and a 10-3 halftime lead.

The TD climaxed a 66-yard drive in nine plays, highlighted by Dick Vidmer's 34-yard pass completion to Jack Clancy, the nation's top pass receiver.

The Wolves got on the scoreboard first when Dick Sygar booted a 24-yard field goal with 2:57 left in the first quarter.

Ohio State, its offense sputtering all season, got off a 56-yard march late in the first half but stalled on the Wolves' seven. Gary Cairns then kicked a 26-yard field goal to tie the score, but Michigan stormed back and took the lead for good before intermission.

Big Ten Upset Is Executed By Wildcats

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Bill Melzer, Northwestern's walkon quarterback, passed for two touchdowns and set up two more with his aerials to fire the Wildcats to a 35-7 upset victory over Illinois Saturday in a Big Ten football finale.

The 20-year-old junior from Clintonville, Wis., who wasn't recruited, poured it on favored Illini by completing 12 of 20 passes for 241 yards including a 55-yard touchdown strike to Chico Kurzaswki which broke up a 7-7 tie and opened up the rout.

Northwestern finished the season with a 3-6-1 record, including a 2-4-1 Big Ten mark, while Illinois ended with 4-6-0 and 4-3-0 in the conference.

Illinois took the opening kickoff and moved with ridiculous ease on a 71-yard scoring march capped by Bill Huston's seven-yard gallop.

Early in the second quarter, Melzer moved Northwestern 66 yards for a tying touchdown as he completed five passes for 49 yards, including a pair to his favorite target, Roger Murphy. Bob McKelvey scored from the 7.

ACC Lashes Rams, 28-18

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—Quarterback Charles Reynolds, setting two school records, sparked Abilene Christian to a 28-18 victory over Angelo State here Saturday.

Reynolds completed 13 of 17 passes for 249 yards, an ACC school mark. Although he lost six yards rushing, his total offense of 243 yards was also a new school mark.

He put ACC ahead on touchdown pass plays of 9 and 71 yards to Trent Lancaster. Jacky Roland ran 13 yards for another tally and Tim Drachenberg kicked the extra points to give ACC a 21-0 halftime advantage.

James Rodrique scored on a 2-yard run for an Angelo touchdown. James Truelove passed 34 yards to Don Burrel and Larry Hudson went over from the 3 for the other Angelo tallies.

Ken Smith went 2 yards for ACC's final touchdown with Drachenberg converting.

Dad-Son Meet Slated Today

A Father-Son Golf tournament for members of the Big Spring Golf Association will be held at the Muny course today, starting at 2 p.m.

The meet was scheduled several weeks ago but was moved back due to a scarcity of players.

Tournament director Charley Bailey said that the meet was scheduled late enough so that entries could watch the pro football games on TV and still get to the course. The winning tandem will be determined over nine rather than 18 holes, Bailey stated.

Entry fee is $1 per team and teams will be shooting for merchandise awards.

Those BSGA members without sons can "borrow" one for the meet, Bailey stated.

Lamesa Winner Over Cayuses

SWEETWATER — Joe Harper scored the lone touchdown of the game as Lamesa edged Sweetwater, 7-0, in the final District 3-AAA game of the season for both teams here Friday night.

Harper went over in the final quarter from five yards away, added the PAT on a kick.

Sweetwater won only once in ten starts this year, the lone victory coming at the expense of Snyder. Lamesa finished with an 8-2 record and wound up one game off Littlefield's winning pace in 3-AAA.

Monahans Gains Spot In Playoff

MONAHANS —Monahans clinched a spot in the Class AAA playoffs by defeating Pecos, 28-15, here Friday night.

Both Monahans and Odessa Ector wound up with 5-1 district records but Monahans beat Ector in the regular season, 10-8.

Monahans ran up 239 yards on the ground to 182 for Pecos and gained 70 passing to 37 for the Eagles.

The Monahans club will meet Dumas next week.

TCU Victim As Owls End 7-Game Streak

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Defensive tackle Harlon Dearing raced 23 yards with a blocked kick to put Rice ahead in the first quarter and the Owls went on to defeat Texas Christian 21-10 in a Southwest Conference football game Saturday.

The victory broke a seven game losing streak for the Owls. Both teams are now 2-7 for the season. All the scoring occurred in the first half.

Rice was trailing 7-6 when TCU's Donnie Gibbs' punt was blocked by tackle Gene Auldridge. Dearing scooped it up and ran it in for the score and the Owls never trailed again.

The Owls' first touchdown also was the result of a break. TCU quarterback Larry Peel, playing the entire game for the Horned Frogs, fumbled and Dearing again was the Rice man of the hour as he pounced on it at the TCU 28.

Robert Hailey, one of three Rice quarterbacks playing in the game, hit Glen Hine with a touchdown pass on the next play.

A pass interception by Chuck Latourette set up another Rice touchdown that covered 58 yards in 12 plays with Lester Lehman in his first varsity game, guided the Owls in this drive.

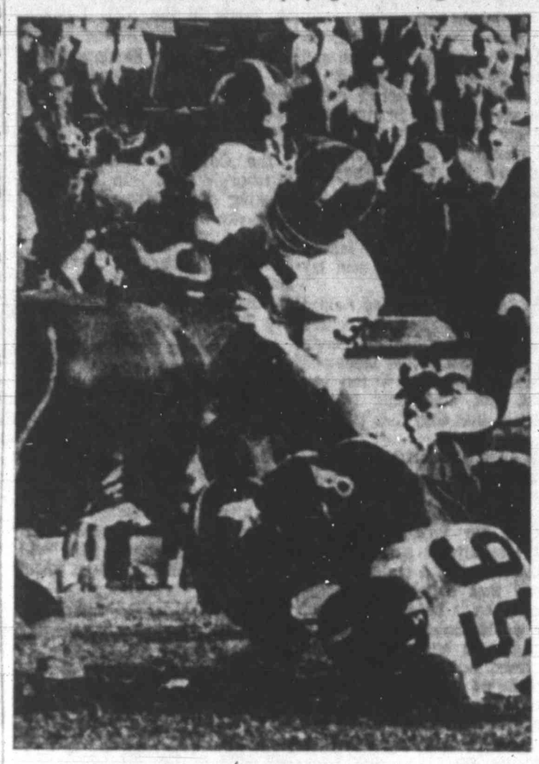

TCU scored the second time it got its hands on the ball going 81 yards in three plays and all but one yard in two tries.

After a running play gained only a yard at TCU's own 19, Peel hit Sonny Campbell with a pass that covered 59 yards to the Rice 21. On the next play Ross Montgomery went over tackle and into the end zone.

The 59-yard pass play was TCU's longest offensive play of the season.

In addition to Doolen and Hailey Rice also used Robby Shelton at quarterback briefly. Shelton, although slowed by a wrenched knee, ran over Rice's points after its second touchdown.

Latourette had a 40.5 kicking average for the game including one for 78 yards that rolled dead at the TCU one yard line.

No Place To Go

T.C.U.'s Ross Montgomery (35), halfback, had the ball in the second quarter of action, and obviously had no place to go. His carry into the Rice University line in Houston was for no gain. The Rice players making it a point that Montgomery got no yardage are, Jay Collins (85), defensive end Gene Auldridge (78), defensive tackle; and Barry Richardson (31), defensive back. The T.C.U. player on the bottom of the heap is Gene Mayes, (56), end. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Haskins' View From Top: Road Fraught With Peril

EL PASO—Don't look now but the calendar on the wall and the noise on the floor at Memorial Gym indicates that soon the Texas Miners will open defense of their national basketball championship.

Coach Don Haskins' thumpthumpers swing into action for the first time Dec. 1 by hosting Sam Houston State and two days later they will entertain Abilene Christian.

Although Haskins has five of the seven players returning he used against Kentucky last March while going for the championship, the Miner ring master is apprehensive.

"We no more look like defending champions than Jayne Mansfield looks like Tom Sawyer," Haskins says. "We have a long way to go and little time to get there."

Talking to Haskins leaves one blue. After all, he has built an impressive 108-26 record in five years at the helm of the Miners and should know what he is talking about.

One of the things which keeps Haskins and his assistant Jerry Hale edgy is the fact that Bobby Joe Hill, the little Detroit dandy, reported back to camp with entirely too much weight. He has scaled down to some degree but Haskins insists he continue to trim the excess baggage.

Injuries have cropped up fast. Willie Cager, the 6-5 do-everything guy, is limping with a sore ankle; Willie Worsley, the 5-6¼ guard with enough speed to count the spokes of a runaway motor bike, lost a tooth and suffered an injury to his nose after catching an elbow in the wrong place and Nevil (The Shadow) Shed has been hampered with a hip pointer.

And, of course, there are always the usual three B's (bumps, bruises and blisters).

On the bright side, however, David Lattin, the 6-7, 240-pound giant, has come on fast. The big Houston native has displayed much more desire than at this point a year ago.

Bel Air Faces Cats Next Week

EL PASO — Ysleta Bel Air won the right to meet San Angelo in bi-district competition by defeating El Paso Coronado on penetrations after the two teams had played to a 3-3 deadlock.

Bel Air outgained the Coronado team in rushing plays, 275 yards to 171, but Coronado had an edge in the air, 48 to 22.

Bisons Slam Broncs, 30-7

CANYON, Tex. (AP)—Quarterback Hank Washington led West Texas State to a 30-7 intersectional victory over Western Michigan of the Mid-American Conference Saturday.

Washington entered the game as the nation's total offense leader with an injured throwing arm. Although his arm was severely reinjured in the third quarter, he completed 15 of 20 passes for 164 yards and a touchdown, rushed for 64 yards and another score, and ended the season with 2,180 yards of total offense.

West Texas grabbed an early lead on a 4-yard run by Gene Morris. Washington scored the next touchdown when he slammed into the end zone from 6 yards out.

The Broncos from Michigan scored their only touchdown with 2:05 left in the first half. Jim Boreland hit Ken Woodside on a 22-yard scoring pass.

Washington was injured after picking up eight yards on a quarterback sneak and Buffalo offense stalled, settling for 39-yard field goal by Tommy Fambrough. Washington returned, barely able to lob the ball, but led the Buffs to another score, hitting freshman Charles Henderson of Dallas on 16-yard touchdown strike.

Bronte Triumphs Over Robert Lee

Doug McCutchen scored three touchdowns and added an extra point for the unbeaten Longhorns. Davis Corley and Randy Barber were others counting six-pointers for the winners.

THIS FAMILY IS GOING PLACES
The Hubert Kennedy family, 402 Westover

Military Duty Scatters This Family Over Globe

By JERRY MONSON

A potpourri of ideas stemming from nearly 50 years combined military service is commonplace at the Hubert Kennedy household, 402 Westover.

"They all have different ideas about things — you can imagine," says Mrs. Kennedy. "Each branch of the service has brought something different into our household."

Kennedy, a master sergeant in the Air Force, two sons, Ernest Kurtz and Bob Kurtz, Navy petty officer and Marine Pfc., and a son-in-law, Maurice Brewer, an Air Force staff sergeant, command most of the attention around the Kennedy home — when they're all able to be home together.

NEW ASSIGNMENT

M. Sgt. Kennedy, a 25-year veteran in July, is no stranger to the Big Spring area, for he was born and reared in Cisco. This is the first time he's been stationed near home — he has been at Webb AFB for the past two years — but will leave Thanksgiving Day for an 18 months' tour at Clark AFB, Philippines.

An instruments specialist, he joined the service in Houston in 1941, and over more than two decades he has been stationed in Florida, Illinois, Missouri, North Carolina, New Jersey, Oregon, Washington, Colorado and Texas, here in the states, and had a tour overseas in Alaska, Goose Bay, Labrador and England.

Twenty-six-year-old Ernest is a petty officer first class now stationed in San Salvador but is leaving soon for the Aleutians. He graduated from Wayne Memorial High School, Wayne, Mich., in 1959, and after boot camp at Great Lakes, toured Key West, Fla. Long Beach and Ferndale, Calif. He is married to the former Hilda Therrell of Harrisville, Miss., and they have two children, Veronica and Allison. She is in Okoe, Fla., awaiting his transfer. Kurtz plans on a career in the Navy and already has eight years under his belt.

The only serviceman of the family not determined to make a career out of the military is 20-year-old Bob, who joined the Marines in February of this year. He was graduated from Bay County High School, Panama City, Fla., and after boot training at San Diego, Calif., he was sent to Camp Pendleton for infantry training and Camp Lejeune, N. C., for engineering school. He came home on leave Nov. 11 and will leave again Dec. 5 for a 13 months' tour in Viet Nam. While in Big Spring he worked for Shorty Thompson's garage as a mechanic.

Maurice Brewer, the Kennedys' son-in-law, is from Holten, Maine, and was married to their daughter, Martha Ann, while the Kennedys were in Panama City. He has served at Glen Haven, Fla., Tinker AFB, Okla., and in Japan. The family is now at Robbins AFB, Ga., after Brewer's return from a remote tour to Alaska. The Brewers have two children, Teresa Ann and Dawn Annette.

"LITTLEST" MEMBER

The littlest member of the group is a long - haired lass named Bonnie, who is 14 and attends the eighth grade at Goliad where she is active in the choir. She has attended six different schools already.

"I don't think it's presented any particular problems for me," she said, "although you always hate to leave your friends."

"I think it's good to live in different places," Bob said, "but I think we've all been happiest right here — in Big Spring."

With such a traveling brood, Mrs. Kennedy has her hands full most of the time just trying to keep track of where members of the family are. She and Bonnie will remain here during Kennedy's tour in the Philippines. A native of Birmingham, Ala., she now works part time for Mode O'Day in the Highland Shopping Center.

You can tell by visiting with the Kennedys that they're all a little apprehensive right now—Bob going to Viet Nam and Kennedy off to the Philippines.

"The things that keep you going are the good things," Mrs. Kennedy said. "We have to concentrate on the good — on the times we have together. It's just become a way of life for us."

MoPac Boosts Its Capital Budget

ST. LOUIS — The Missouri Pacific System has announced the budgeting of an additional $20-million for physical improvements in 1967, raising its proposed 1967 capital improvements program to $50-million.

Earlier, Downing B. Jenks, MoPac president, announced the outlay by the railroad of nearly $30-million in 1967 for the purchase of 1,228 new freight cars, 20 new locomotives and the rebuilding of 1,805 freight cars.

The additional $20-million will be spent on physical improvements to track and structures and for the purchase of work equipment.

Jenks noted that the proposed $50-million capital expenditure program for 1967 would fall short of the estimated $75.5-million that MoPac spent in 1966 when several terminals were built.

DIABETES

There are too many unknowing diabetics, so this week is set aside to urge every susceptible person to make a safety check. Because there are no discomfort pains at the onset of diabetes, this disease can cause serious harm before normal discovery.

If there is a history of any diabetics in the family and especially if overweight, diabetes is a hazard. About one out of every 50 has it. A quick easy test is to dip a strip of testing paper in the urine. If there is a color change showing sugar, a more positive test by a physician is a "must." We stock this testing paper in our very complete Diabetic-Aids section.

Dog Ownership Talked, Obedience Trials Slated

Members of the Big Spring Kennel Club got some insights Thursday on responsibilities and privileges of dog ownership.

Walton S. Morrison, attorney and a club member, discussed hypothetical situations involving dogs and humans which might result in legal action. Reports were heard from area shows that had been attended (Oklahoma City, Norman, Okla., Wichita Falls, and Ft. Worth). Wins at these shows resulted in the following dogs returning to Big Spring with coveted titles:

Ch. Warhaven's Eighth Day, Collie, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tubb completed A.K.C. Championship; Draftsman's Dandy Delight, C.D., a Dachshund, owned and shown by Miss Kay Sevey, received qualifying scores in three A.K.C. obedience trials, to earn the companion dog degree; also two dogs, owned by Capt. and Mrs. Roy O. Linn, — Tucker Hill's Quesa, C.D., a German Shepherd, and Ch. Penshire's Trademark, C.D., a Welsh Corgi.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party, to be held Dec. 15 in the Pioneer Natural Gas' Flame Room. Plans also were completed, for the graduation obedience trial, for the current B.S.K.C. novice obedience class. Graduation exercises are to be held, at the College Park Shopping Center (extreme northeast corner) Tuesday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to this exhibition of obedience exercises, culminating the 10-week course, for trainees and their dogs.

Eighteen members and four guests, including Mr. Lou Bolton, prominent Cocker spaniel breeder of Odessa, and Mrs. Herbert Ward, Big Spring, attended the meeting in TESCO's Reddy Room.

KENNETH B. CURRY

About a year ago Kenneth B. Curry was helping bring on stream Big Spring Refinery's newest addition, the Hydeal unit. He is an Operator No. 1 at that facility.

He has had varied experience in operations. The range includes the Dubbs, poly plant and a chemicals specialty unit.

Curry is a native Abilenian who has called Big Spring home for the past 25 years. He is a graduate of BSHS and studied for two years at Schreiner Institute. He married a Midland girl, Patsy Blansett, on October 12, 1951, and eleven days later commenced his Cosden career.

The Curry home at 1400 East 14th Street boasts four children. Kenneth Jr., 14, and Margaret Helen, 12, attend ninth and seventh grades respectively at Goliad Junior High. Connye Ann, 10, is a fifth grader at Washington Place. Prentice Jeff is 5.

THE DRAMA OF THE FIRST THANKSGIVING, with its story of conflict and compassion, is being presented this week in schools all over the nation by youngsters who have never known hardship or hunger. In colorful costumes, they enact the legend — and learn of sympathy and sharing. This scene is played by third grade students of Mrs. R. O. Browder at Marcy Elementary School. From left, are Lisa Eiland, Melodie Deming, Dan Ervin and Susan Kemper.

PRETTY PRINCESS POCAHONTAS is Marcia Tidwell, and Joe Max Carpenter becomes Chief Red Cloud as Mrs. Faye Newman's first grade class at Cedar Crest Elementary School combine a colorful contest with their history lesson. Art class time was used to decorate the room with an Indian teepee and bright cutouts of traditional symbols of the holiday.

"Father, We Thank Thee"

PERHAPS THE POSTER says it best — "God is great, God is good, Let us thank Him for this food." Students at the Farrar Private School practiced their printing and painting this week by putting the prayer on paper to take home to their parents. The story was emphasized with a skit with two of the characters being Mike Sorensen and Melody Dabney, both first graders.

Photos By Frank Brandon

"SPECIAL EDUCATION" denotes something a little extra, and students in the local school learn to give of themselves and their possessions to the less fortunate by bringing food and filling a basket to share with other people. Standing are Leroy Coleman and two teachers at the school, Mrs. Maurice Koger and Mrs. Dorothy Humphreys. Those seated are Susan Menchaca, Judy Shafer and Gwen Johnson.

TURKEY TOMS ARE PRETTY FUNNY FELLOWS, and fun to make, when you let imagination have its way with paper and paints. This gobbler was created by Mrs. Lyndon Gladden's first grade class at College Heights Elementary School, with Dennis Jack Whirley, right, getting credit for most of the art work. The turkey tail is a fan of men's neckties. Admiring the work with their teacher are Allen Ray Young, Sara Heinze and Lori Broughton.

A LOVELIER YOU

Join Passing Parade By Combing Hair Well

By MARY SUE MILLER

Will Rogers had this to say about the ladies: "They're wonderful! All pretty from the front but from the back . . . it's a different story. When will they learn that they can't go on meeting people face to face? Some day they are going to have to pass somebody."

Mr. Rogers had a point. The view from the rear is too often left to chance, particularly in the hair department. How long locks do straggle and short locks do fray!

For improving the scene, the next best thing to eyes in the back of your head is a make-up mirror. Notion counters provide several kinds.

To facilitate hair arrangements, flashback mirrors bring rear views into sharp focus: A dandy little flashlight sits atop a swivel mirror on a stand. To free your hands for action, the mirror can be hung around your neck at the desired angle via an attached band. Thus you get a reflection that leads to flawless results.

And there are numerous other aids that help a hairdo meet inspection. For instance: Bobpins in nylon "jackets" that are impervious to rust or stain from sprays and lotions . . . Comblifts with three prongs, designed to raise flattened sections without redoing the entire head . . . Weeny barretinis for controlling limp or heavy sections.

Just so, your hair joins the passing parade!

TEEN TRESSES, MODEL TYPE

Is your hair a problem, Miss Teen? Then send for my leaflet, "Teen Tresses, Model Type." It tells how to correct such ailments as oily hair and flaky scalp; fly-away, unmanageable, lackluster locks. Included, too, are styling tips and model grooming quickies. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of The Herald, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin.

Save Time In Cleaning

If a homemaker is going around in circles with her many cleaning chores, she can be saving time and energy.

Time and motion studies indicate that continuous circular movements are easier and faster than jerking, back-and-forth strokes. The housekeeping chores' analysis, which is intended to benefit maintenance men and professional housekeepers, applies to all mopping and wiping tasks.

Expending the least energy and doing the maximum amount of work in the least possible time is best accomplished with sweeping S-shaped motions.

Once mopping is begun, don't stop. The scientific studies of cleaning motions show that momentum (keeping the mop going after the initial push) takes less energy than one new stroke after another.

Mothers' Club Plans Christmas Activities

Christmas entertainment for the children of Immaculate Heart of Mary School was planned at the Mothers Club meeting Thursday in the parish hall. The children will be treated to a movie in the auditorium, the morning of Dec. 22. Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute gifts, and school is scheduled to be dismissed for the holidays at noon.

Presiding was Mrs. Luis Casillas. Committee reports were presented by Mrs. Luis Puga of the school-home committee, Mrs. Royal Mills of the health committee and Mrs. Patrick Broyles of the library committee. The membership voted to donate $150 to the library fund toward purchase of new books.

Mrs. Douglas Hattenbach, spiritual development chairman, spoke briefly of St. Gerad, the patron of mothers and children. She also discussed the use of the Advent Wreath which has become a family custom and is the symbol of preparation for the coming of the Christ-child at Christmas. The Rev. Francis Beazley reminded those mothers with second graders that these students will receive First Holy Communion on Dec. 8 at the 7 p.m. mass.

Guests included Mrs. L. D. Jenkins, local chairman for the National Catholic Community Services - Veterans Administration, who urged the women to participate as volunteers at the Veterans Administration Hospital. Mrs. Dan Maesta, president of the Altar Society, invited all to attend the Christmas Bazaar-Italian Supper which is scheduled for Dec. 3 at the church hall.

Entertainment was provided by Sister Mary Michael's "Tiny Tots" who presented "Thanksgiving in Autumn" in verse and song. Mrs. Sylvester Sulak, program chairman, announced that Lt. Charles Hasting of the 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Webb AFB will be guest speaker for the Dec. 17 meeting. The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Jean Domingue.

Ornamental Tiebacks Add Glamor

Backing the "return to elegance" trend in interiors, four new designs to its line of decorative drapery tiebacks and holdbacks are on the market.

The circular castings of heavy solid brass are richly ornamented, highly polished and lacquered for lasting beauty. Classic and baroque in style, their three and three-fourths inches diameter size gives them added importance when used with festoons, swags or in the standard side-draped position.

Other circular tieback designs and wreath and floral design holdbacks are also included in the popular Kirsch line of crafted brass decorative accessories. Six recently introduced chain link patterns of anodized gold aluminum have also proved extremely fast selling items.

The new tiebacks are visual-packed in two-color window boxes for easy merchandising and customer selection. Each package contains two holders and threaded stems.

Mrs. G. Hodnett Goes To Lovington

FORSAN (SC) — Mrs. Gordon Hodnett is in Lovington, N. M., with her father, B. Bishop, and will remain several days. Mrs. Bishop died last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Craig are in Andrews for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Baker and their children. They will also visit in Odessa with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kelley and Carolyn.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kubecka are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dunn of Odessa and the L. W. Moores of Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosemard Bridges of Anaheim, Calif., have been visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy. They are en route to Tyler with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neill who are former Forsan residents.

Different Flavor For Fish Fillets

A new flavor for fish fillets comes from cooking them in melted butter with a little orange juice, salt and a dash of nutmeg, then topping with sliced blanched almonds and chopped parisey.

Women's Views Shape House Construction

Even if a woman thinks "shingles" and "shakes" are medical problems, she is no one's straightman in and about the interiors of new homes.

Women—and wives in particular—see new homes differently than men do. The feminine perusal eyes a home as a possible place for comfortable, convenient and companionable group living while her husband concentrates his attention on concrete slab levels, plaster coatings and joints.

It is the woman who is most interested in, and influential about, floor plans, kitchen size and placement of appliances, closets and storage space. And it is she who has dictated the major changes in home construction that will show in 1966 homes.

Gains made by women for their dream homes include attractive foyers with closets, quarry tile floors, rich-looking wall surfaces and good lighting; plentiful closets, with "walk-in" type in bedrooms; the separate dining room and a full bath for the master bedroom (the bath-and-a-half house is now passe).

Perhaps the hardest job in shopping for a new home is visualizing the expensively furnished model without its trimmings. And this difficult task apparently is best left to the woman.

Will Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Parnell, 3202 Cornell, have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Carla Duanne, to Marlin Marcum, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Coy Marcum of Cisco. The couple plans to be married at 8 p.m., Dec. 3, in the Primitive Baptist Church at Cisco with Rev. Marcum performing the ceremony.

Home Basements Take On Brighter Luster

The basement provides extra space that is often wasted. Even if the builder left it with bare walls and concrete floors, the opportunity to let your creativity off the leash is even greater.

Mechanical equipment for running the house can be screened off by a false wall of easily installed fiber board. Concrete floors can be painted a bright color with an outdoor paint, and a rugged looking rug in a splashy color will provide warmth.

If the ceiling is crisscrossed with ugly pipes or rafters a coat of very dark paint will hide them almost completely. Lighting should be good where it is needed for reading or hobbies.

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

Are there certain Thanksgiving Days that you remember that are very special? Can you remember one that you spent with your grandparents at their farm home that you reached by going through the woods? On that particular morning the snow started to falling just about the time you departed your home with your parents and the other members of the family? Perhaps you arrived at just the time when your elderly grandmother was taking the pumpkin pies from the oven of the wood range?

I can't ever remember one like that because I'm a true West Texan and so far as I know we never have had a snow on Thanksgiving Day. That is, during my lifetime, which is considerable.

But there is one of the festive days that I remember. It isn't a typical one for our part of the country but it nevertheless happened on a Thanksgiving Day many years ago . . . and I was going to my grandparent's home for the day. It just happened that my parents, my younger sister and I were driving to Lubbock for the day.

The day started out on a bitter note because Big Spring was playing Lamesa in the last football game of the season and I had to decline an invitation to go to the game. I had to go to Lubbock while my older sister had the great pleasure of joining her friends for the game.

Our car at that time was a Buick touring car . . . the type that the top could be folded back and make a right snappy conveyance to breeze about in during the spring and autumn days. We started our journey with the top up as it was getting late in the season. We passed through Lamesa with me in sullen silence, envisioning the fun everyone but I was to have later on in the day.

A little tinge of orange soon became visible on the northern horizon and misgiving rose in all of our hearts. You see the four of us, even little sister, had been through a number of days that started pretty but were blighted later on by that tinge on the horizon. As we went further the wind came and with the wind the most remarkable sandstorm one could imagine.

The top of the car began to do strange things, like rise to its fullest then suck back down practically on our heads. The straps at the corners of the windshield began to pull hard and finally one of them snapped. Papa, at the wheel shouted instructions to Mama to grab the strap on her 'shotgun' side, and she held it down with all the strength she could muster. Then his side gave way and he tried to keep the car going and hold the top down at the same time.

Needless to say the football game faded into oblivion because Eleanor and I by that time were tussling with the mid-straps as the top was rising and falling with alarming indecision. From Tahoka into Lubbock we stretched and strained until we felt like spaghettina . . . and we were all the color of red sand.

We finally arrived at our grandparent's house about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, wind tossed and sand blasted . . . but you know, when we got around to having our Thanksgiving meal with all the folks it was just about the best meal we ever had . . . we felt like we had earned it!

Mrs. Bob Galbraith and Marvin M. Miller seem pleased to have close contact with a diamond ring valued at $57,500, which was one of the show pieces of a million-dollar display of precious jewels presented Thursday evening at the Cosden Country Club by Zale's Jewelers. With a center stone of more than 11 carats, the ring, with side stones, represented about 13 carats. The Zale display in Big Spring was the first of a series the company plans over the system. A number of people viewed the fabulous collection.

MR. AND MRS. JON R. MATTHEWS, "COORS" AND "TOSCA"

Newcomers To Enter Dogs In Competition

Mr. and Mrs. Jon R. Matthews and their two handsome show dogs, "Coors" and "Tosca," are newcomers to the city who are making their home at 608 W. 18th. Socially the Matthews are getting acquainted with their neighbors and co-workers, but so far, all the German Shepherds know of their new habitat is what they can surmise from their back-yard view.

Matthews is the assistant personnel officer at the Veterans Administration Hospital, and his wife, Phyllis, is employed in nursing service there.

Matthews is a native of Louisiana, born in Ruston and reared there as well as in Texas and New Mexico. He is the son of a Methodist minister, the late Rev. Frank A. Matthews, and his mother is now teaching school in Santa Fe, N.M. He has three brothers, one an editor of a New Iberia, La., newspaper, another a professor at Northern Arizona University at Tucson and the third a career man in the Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews met at the United States Naval Hospital at San Diego, Calif., in 1955 when he was a Navy hospital corpsman and she was a Navy nurse. They were married in 1956 at Ruidoso, N.M., where his mother resided at that time. A short time later, he was transferred to Adak while his wife remained in California. Both were discharged in 1958 and moved to Dallas where she worked in the Veterans Administration Hospital while he attended Southern Methodist University, earning his BA degree in Personnel Management in 1961.

During 1962-63, Matthews attended West Texas State University night classes while his wife worked at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Amarillo. Then came six months of training for him at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oklahoma City, Okla., before the couple moved here to join the local hospital staff.

Mrs. Matthews was born in Atlantic City, N. J., but was reared in Miami, Fla., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Giralo, still reside. She was graduated from the Jackson Memorial Hospital School of Nursing at Miami, and afterward, attended the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Fla. She became a Navy nurse in 1955 and served until 1958.

Matthews holds membership in Delta Sigma Pi, a business fraternity, and while in Amarillo and Oklahoma City, was active and intensely interested in the "Big Brothers of America," an organization dedicated to helping underprivileged boys. He recently joined the Big Spring Personnel Managers Association. Both he and his wife are members of the American Kennel Club and the German Shepherd Dog Club of America.

They play a 'little' golf — and take a lot of pictures — mainly of their dogs.

The dogs have been shown extensively throughout the Southwest and have won many ribbons. They travel with their owners in a station wagon and even share their rooms at well-known inns while they are on the road. "Coors" is a three-year-old male, and "Tosca" is a two-year-old female. Not show in the picture is a newer addition, "Ingre" who is a four-month-old female.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews attend the Methodist Church.

Don't Pull Live Cords

Many people have the bad habit of yanking on the cord instead of the plug when they unplug an appliance from an electric outlet. This puts a strain on the connection that can separate the cord from the plug.

To prevent accidents, if you have a cord yanker in the house, fold the cord back over the plug and run a piece of electrical tape securely a couple of times around both plug and cord to hold it in place.

Stains Go When Using Detergents

One of the most commonly asked questions regarding laundry is: Why do wash and wear garments show grease stains?

If grease stains show up after washing, it means they weren't pretreated. For wash and wear garments, use moderate temperature water, don't overload the washer and use a light agitation action, according to Emma Jordre, clothing instructor at the University of Wisconsin.

Pretreat grease stains on wash and wear and permanent press garments with a liquid heavy duty detergent. Rub the detergent into the dampened spot and soak a few minutes before washing.

Garments made from the polyester fabric have an affinity for grease. Pretreat the neckline which has a tendency to collect oils from the to wash these fabrics often.

New Powder Has Staying Power

New in beauty aids is a "no color" blotting powder especially for oily skins.

The maker says the powder will give a very oily skin a matte-like finish all day long. An average oily skin can use it over a foundation to help oil from seeping through. And a normal or combination oily-dry skin will use it for touch-ups on the oily zones of nose, cheeks, the brow, chin or forehead.

Elegance Goes To Casual Jumpers

Both alluring and elegant, this jacket and dress, both with the pie-cut neckline. Simple dart fitting gives the newer, closer-to-the-body silhouette. No. 3118 comes in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 42, 44, 46. Size 14 takes only 3⅜ yards of 44-inch fabric.

Roof Leaks Attract Do-It-Yourselfers

One of the secrets of fixing things is to know what you should attempt yourself and what should be left to a professional. A chore that falls into this area of decision is the repair of a slanted roof.

For those who are competent, minor repairs to roof flashing can be handled without too much trouble. (Flashing is the sheet or strip of metal placed at strategic points to make joints water-proof. These points are wherever one angle meets another, or around chimneys and vents and at edges.)

When cracks or other openings occur in the jointed areas, water seeps through, even in a light rain.

Fortunately, nearly all minor repairs to flashing can be handled by application of roofing cement, which effectively seals breaks and holes in the metal. It is inexpensive and should be applied in a very thick coat in any suspected leak sections.

But for larger breaks, you should consult a roofing man unless you are sure you know how to proceed.

Dear Gals:

At one time or another, all of us have something spilled on our rugs.

What do you do about it? Just stand there, stare at it, and wish the spot would go away?

Next time it happens, give your rug first-aid treatment 'til the ambulance (rug cleaner's truck) can be called to give it professional care, if it is necessary.

HELOISE

If you spill anything (this doesn't mean ink or paint!) on your carpet, immediately sop up all the moisture you can with a white bath towel, to keep the liquid from soaking down into the fibers of the rug.

Get another dry towel (from the laundry hamper, if possible), place it over the spot, and with your bare foot, start doing the "twist" on the towel. As one section of the towel becomes damp, change to a dry part of towel.

When you've gotten up all the moisture you possibly can, put a clean, dry, folded, white bath towel over the spot, and stack some books on top of it.

Check every six hours or so to see if the towel is damp. If it is, replace it with a dry one. Keep doing this until the towel no longer becomes damp. (Even if no other cleaning procedures are used, a large portion of the stain will be removed.)

This may take two or three days, but perhaps you will have saved yourself a rug cleaning bill or permanent damage on your carpet. . . Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

For an extra good banana cream pie; rather than cut slices of banana onto crust, I take ripe bananas and dice them small.

I add this to the cream mixture and beat with mixer or egg beater.

This sends banana flavor through the whole pie. If wanted, slices can also be put on bottom as usual. . . Ruth

MRS. JOE K. CONNALLY

Mrs. Joe K. Connally has, thus far, spent her entire lifetime in Howard County and sees no reason to change her accustomed habitat in the future.

She is the former Ruth Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Overton, Rt. 1, Big Spring, and was graduated from Forsan High School in 1948. Her education did not stop there for she has completed several American Institute of Banking courses at Howard County Junior College and has received her Standard Certificate.

Mrs. Connally was first employed by the First National Bank in June of 1949 and recalls that her first duties included filing checks. Later she became a bookkeeper, proof operator and teller. She now has the title of Supervisor of the Installment Loan Department.

Besides membership in the American Institute of Banking, Mrs. Connally is a member of the Big Spring Credit Women's Club, which she served as treasurer, and she attends services at the Baptist Temple where she teaches the Primary One girls' Sunday school class.

The Connallys were married Feb. 16, 1952, and are parents of a three-month-old daughter, Traci Cale, who was adopted Sept. 3, 1967. Connally is chief engineer at KWAB-TV.

When its time to relax, the Connallys do it best by joining their friends for an eevning of square dancing. They participate in the Big Spring Squares, for which Connally is caller, and Mrs. Connally also assists her husband in teaching square dance lessons at the YMCA from time to time.

Miss Musick Wins Contest

PATRICIA MUSICK

Miss Patricia Musick was selected as "Miss Insurance of Big Spring" for the 1966-67 term when the Insurance Women of Big Spring met Thursday for their monthly luncheon at Coker's Restaurant. Miss Musick will participate in local civic activities as a representative of the club.

Miss Musick, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Musick, 1321 Mulberry, and is a senior in the local high school. She is secretary of the Vocational Office Education Club and, under that program, is employed at Smith and Coleman Oil Company. Her other memberships include the Future Homemakers of America and Future Teachers of America.

Mrs. Frank Morphis presided and introduced the guests, Mrs. Charles Brantley, Mrs. Pete Jenkins, Mrs. Lloyd Nalls and Mrs. Ray Null. Mrs. Bob Bradford was welcomed as a new member.

An invitation to a dinner in Midland honoring Mrs. C. P. Capanella, the state president, and Mrs. C. E. Grant, the state corresponding secretary, was extended to the local club.

Mrs. Tommy Harvell was recognized for her election as state second vice president during the Federation of Insurance Women convention held in Brownsville during October.

Plans were completed for the club's annual sale of candy with proceeds going to the welfare project, the Buck-A-Month Club at Big Spring State Hospital.

The meeting date has been changed to the third Thursday of the month, making the next meeting Dec. 15 at Coker's Restaurant.

Local Girl In Sorority At Stephens

Miss Pamela Lurting, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Lurting, No. 3 Highland Cove, a freshman at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., has pledged Zeta Phi Delta social sorority at Stephens.

Formal pledging for new members of the five local social sororities at Stephens was held recently as the climax of fall rushing activities.

Social service through community and campus service projects is one of the principal objectives of the sororities at Stephens, although members also take part in a program of social activities throughout the year. Highlight of the social season is the formal "Greek Gardens" dance each spring, the sororities' inaugural ball at which new officers are presented.

Cedar Boards Change Carports

For an eyesore carport that is open on two sides, try paneling with western red cedar siding. Resawn cedar boards can be installed without extra finish needed and they resist exposure to weather.

Doors of the storage closets for lawn furniture and equipment can be built of the same material to blend into the wall.

Aviation Cadets Tell Of Different Customs

Aviation cadets from foreign countries, who are students at Webb Air Force Base, were guest speakers Thursday when Mrs. Tom Barber was hostess to the 1905 Hyperion Club in her ranch home south of Coahoma.

The speakers were Mahmood Mahmoodi and Homayoun Shoogi, both of Iraan, and Tor Tingberg of Norway. The men are in training at Webb AFB under the Miliitary Assistance Program and told of life in their homelands as compared with customs in the Unifed States.

Mrs. R. J. Ream served as moderator for the panel discussion, and the men answered questions from the club members during the informal session.

Mrs. J. C. Pickle presided as the club donated $10 to the state hospital for its Christmas activities. She urged the group to donate time to assist with gift wrapping at the hospital.

Mrs. Norman Read and Mrs. Hayes Stripling were appointed to choose books to be donated to the Howard County Free Library in memory of J. E. Hardesty, father of Mrs. J. D. Elliot, and Mrs. G. W. Tate, mother of Mrs. Clyde Angel.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with an ecru cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of fall flowers. Silver appointments were used.

The Dec. 15 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. W. A. Hunt, 626 Tulane, with Mrs. Glenn Faison as cohostess.

Sagebrush Christmas Portrayed At Coffee

"Sagebrush Christmas" was the theme of the Hi and Bye coffee hosted by wives of Class 68-C at the Officers Open Mess Thursday morning at Webb Air Force Base.

Setting the decor was a decorated Christmas tree on the stage with gaily - wrapped gifts around it. Poinsettias and a snowman were decorations on the piano. Adding to the seasonal setting was a fireplace with stockings hanging from the mantel, an old fashioned rocking chair with a candy wreath hung over the back and a churn that held branches of holly.

A red cloth covered the refreshment table from which coffee and hot cider were served. Doughnuts were served from a bar that was lighted by tall floor candles and decorated with poinsettias.

The entryway was through swinging doors decorated in red and centered with large Christmas wreaths. A sign above the doors read, "Sagebrush Christmas—68-C."

Goodbyes were said to Class 67-D wives who were Mrs. D. E. Zastrow, Mrs. E. A. Manning, Mrs. K. J. Rider, Mrs. B. D. Walker, Mrs. J. W. Jacobs, Mrs. R. L. Renselman, Mrs. W. F. Spitzer, Mrs. H. W. Happalarnen, Mrs. J. L. Reeves, Mrs. K. P. True, Mrs. M. J. Carroll, Mrs. R. L. Cole Jr., Mrs. D. P. Mott and Mrs. G. M. Brower.

Guests were Jill Allard, Mrs. Martin Luze and Mrs. J. B. Sudtelgte.

Special guests introduced were Mrs. Chester J. Butcher, Mrs. George Franks, Mrs. Thomas Rowland and Mrs. R. B. Butler. Also, Mrs. J. W. Van Pelt, wife of the new executive officer of the base commander.

Welcomed as a new member of the permanent party was Mrs. N. D. Farmer, and farewells were said to Mrs. R. W. Hunter, a permanent party member who will soon be leaving Webb.

Prizes were won by Mrs. J. R. Mumphrey, Mrs. Luze, Mrs. Sudtelgte and Mrs. M. A. O'Conner.

'WHEN UNCLE SAM WANTS HIM'

Face These Facts On Your 'New' Income!

EDITOR'S NOTE: First in a four-part series by Marie Ryckman, Staff writer for the Dayton Journal, giving information of vital interest to hundreds of couples across the country with military service clearly written in their future. Very early in their young married lives many young men and their wives are facing what may be their first serious problem as wedded couples —answering Uncle Sam's call. This may bring about separation, or new living surroundings, and very possibly, financial hardships. However, there are trained people, military and civilian organizations, and even laws to make things easier.

By MARIE RYCKMAN
Dayton Journal Herald Staff Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The wives of childless husbands facing the draft invariably wonder how they are going to manage financially. What will their husbands' pay be? Will the government make special provisions for them? How will the family meet its monthly installment debts?

A check of the Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force recruiting offices turned up that all services pay the same amount of money and make the same allotments.

Upon entering the service as a draftee or enlisted man, each man has the grade of E1 (Enlisted man 1). After boot camp, he will be graded E2. Normally, at the end of six months, he will reach E3. After 15 months in the service, most of the draftees attain the grade of E4. This is usually a draftee's limit in grade, since he will have only nine months left in the service.

E1: pay, $87.10; quarters allowance, $55.20.

E2: pay, after four months in service, $97.50; quarters $55.20.

E3: pay, $117.90; quarters, $55.20.

E4: pay, $163.50; quarters, $83.10.

After a man has made formal claim to the proper authorities of his wife as a dependent, $40 is deducted from his pay each month and, with the quarter's allowance, is sent to the wife. This is true in all four above grades.

OFF BASE

If the draftee lives off the base with his wife, he receives an additional $1.05 a day subsistence allowance.

After six months in the service, the draftee receives $4.20 each month as a clothing allowance to take care of the repair and replacement of clothing issued to him by the government.

When a man is sent to a combat zone, such as Viet Nam, he is given a $55 per month combat pay increase in regular pay.

The serviceman's base pay only is subject to income tax. His housing, subsistence and clothing allotments are not. Social Security deductions are also made, based on base pay.

It may be 60 days or more from the time the husband enters the service before his wife receives her first allotment check.

Monthly payments on today's easily gained installment purchased articles which yesterday seemed to budget so well raise near-panic fears in the face of tomorrow's sudden drop in income when the bread-winner goes off to war.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, originally passed in 1940 and since then many times amended, now incorporated in the Universal Military Training Act, protects all servicemen from unfair foreclosures, evictions, cancellation of insurance policies, and enforcement of civil obligations they would be unable to meet by reason of military service.

NO REPOSSESSIONS

No repossessions can be made without a court order and the draftee and his dependents must be shown to be completely uncooperative before the court would grant the repossession right.

This act does not create a general mandatory moratoruim on servicemen's debts and other civil obligations, nor does it abolish the debt. The serviceman and his wife are expected to be honest in meeting such obligations if possible and, where it is not possible to make payments on the principal, keep up the interest payments.

Men about to enter the service should contact those to whom they normally make installment payments, explain their situation and arrange payments satisfactory to both parties concerned.

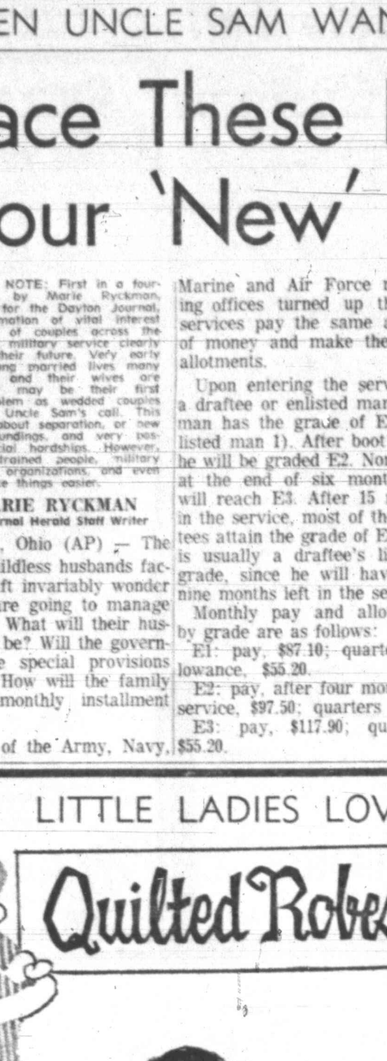

A spokesman for General Motors Acceptance Corporation, one of the largest holders of liens on automobiles, indicated that, in most cases, interest and token principal payments alone could keep property from being repossessed. He added, however, that, should the draftee prefer to be relieved of the obligation of paying for a late model car, even though payments were deferred until after his service when the car would have depreciated greatly in value, amicable repossession can be arranged.

A draftee who had made a considerable down payment on such a car might be entitled to a refund of some of his money.

Banks throughout the nation, he said, will give every consideration possible in helping the draftee and his wife adjust payments of loans incurred before being called to service and on which at least one installment payment was made prior to 30 days before entering the service.

Wallpaper Turns To Bright Tones

Most major wallpaper manufacturers bring out new wallpaper books in the fall. If you haven't shopped for wallpaper lately, there's a preview of what you'll find.

Stripes are most colorful and unusual. Florals are more brilliantly colored with many new designs in larger scale. Paisley and flocked patterns are much more in evidence this year.

Tells Plans

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. White, Sterling City Rt., are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Emmalee, to Donnie Michael Wiggins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wiggins, 1501 Chickasaw. The couple is planning a Dec. 20 wedding.

Drape Ears With Large Earrings

The fashion rule right now seems to be: The shorter the skirt the longer the earrings. With the miniskirts and everything else in their wardrobes, fashionable women are wearing long, long earrings.

Hoops, plain or fancy, range in size from a quarter - inch or two and a half inches. Fancy dangle earrings can be as long as three inches. There are lucite and catalin plastic balls in all colors. While some are as large as golf balls all are lightweight enough for the most delicate lobes.

Introduce Small Ones To Financial Matters

You can tell a lot about a family, psychologists say, if you know how they handle their money.

Family finance problems begin early — about kindergarten age when the children first "go out into the world." It is then that parents must make the policies they will follow throughout their offsprings' growing years.

Experts recommend a liberal approach—so that children may discover from experience how to make sense with their dollars.

When a youngster has freedom to make his own monetary decisions he learns—often from mistakes — how to handle a budget.

Philathea Class Has Thanksgiving Dinner

Members of the Philathea Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church met at 7 o'clock Thursday evening in the Fellowship Hall for a dinner at which the Rev. and Mrs. Leo K. Gee were the guests of honor.

Rev. Gee gave the invocation, and hostesses were Miss Gladys Burnham, Mrs. S. R. Nobles, Mrs. Rogers Hefley, Mrs. J. B. Apple, Mrs. Ann Maude Smith and Mrs. Cass Hill.

The Thanksgiving motif was stressed in decorations for the dining room. Orange and brown streamers ran the length of the white linen - covered tables and accents were fruits, vegetables and nuts. A cornucopia, overflowing with fruits and vegetables, was the centerpiece for the guest table.

After dinner, the group convened in the church parlor for the program and business session. Mrs. H. M. Rowe presented the devotion, "Witnessing for God," and Mrs. L. B. Maulden gave excerpts from writings concerning Thanksgiving.

Members brought food to the meeting and will deliver it to needy families on the holiday. The class Christmas dinner will be held at the church Dec. 15.

Babysitter Needs List

All mothers hire a babysitter once in awhile, and I am sure we all write down important numbers for her — such as the doctor, fire station, police, ambulance, etc. How many of us remember to put our own house number on the list?

Many times a baby - sitter knows where you live — without a doubt — but doesn't have the faintest idea of your house number.

None Knows Who Lies In Lonely Prairie Graves

By SAM BLACKBURN

Lonely graves beside the road or deep in pastures are not uncommon in West Texas. In the pioneer days, when death struck early day travelers, their survivors had no alternative than to bury them where they had died.

Disease, Indians, sometimes starvation and exposure, wild beasts, and accidents brought frequent death to those hardy folk who defied the dangers of a primitive land.

Some of the graves in this part of Texas are marked. Stones may identify the man, woman or child who is buried. Sometimes the engraving is crude and hard to read. Someone tried, as best he might, to leave a record.

Others are unmarked and no one knows today who lies in the lonely burial spots.

Perhaps Howard County has a number of such graves.

LONG, LONG TIME

There are two, however, which have been known to early day settlers for three-quarters of a century. But no one knows the names or identity of the persons buried in these graves.

These two graves, which are enclosed in a fence built by Standard Oil Company workers, are located 19 miles east and south of Big Spring. They are about 2½ miles southeast of the East Howard County Road intersection on IS 20.

These two burials date back to the days before Howard County was settled. There is an unconfirmed legend a woman and her young daughter are buried in the graves. This legend tells of an early day wagon train creeping across the trackless wastes on its long journey west. Illness struck — or perhaps even Indians — and death ensued.

The victims were buried near where they died. Rough stones were raised to mark the spots. Probably more stones were laid over the top to discourage varmints.

WORKERS TAKE OVER

Time passed and the original markers fell over but the place had been noted and the graves remembered.

Standard Oil Company workers entered the picture in the early 1920's. A lease on the A. M. Bell ranch, on which the two graves are located, was developed.

"I do not know how soon after Standard took over that our men began to take care of the graves," said Mairle McFaul, superintendent for Standard.

"We built a sucker rod fence around the graves and, from time to time, we chop down the weeds. We have replaced the stones which marked the head and foot of the burial places."

He said no one worker is assigned to the upkeep of the graves but that a crew moves in from time to time and does a little housekeeping at the site.

"I have heard a lot of stories about the burials," he said. "A geologist with our company became interested in the matter some years ago and did a lot of research, but about all he ever came up with was legend."

NEAR WAGON TRAIN

McFaul points out that there are places in the vicinity of the graves where the ruts of an old wagon train route can still be seen. The route is headed, in general, toward the historic "big spring" which was a widely known watering place for the early day travelers.

"I have heard talk from time to time," he said, "of plans to open the graves and see what's there but such plans have always been discouraged."

A couple of miles to the west of the graves is the site of an old spring where Texas Rangers camped nearly 90 years ago. The rangers were in this part of the country to protect the westward bound travelers against hostile Comanches and equally savage outlaws. It is possible that the ranger camp was selected because of its proximity to the wagon route toward the big spring. Perhaps the rangers (one of whom left his name cut deep in a rock over the now dry spring) may have known who the persons are buried in the lonely graves.

Burrell Cramer, now superintendent of the Big Spring State Park, spent his boyhood a hundred yards or so from this old ranger camp and often visited the lonely graves two miles to the east.

He recalls one summer day when he and a youthful companion devised a plan to go to the burial site and "dig up them Indians." He said the youngsters of that date were convinced the two graves were Indian burial grounds.

"We loaded ourselves with shovels and other tools and set out," he said. "We had just reached the place and were planning our operations when my Dad rode up on a horse.

" 'What are you kids up to?' he asked.

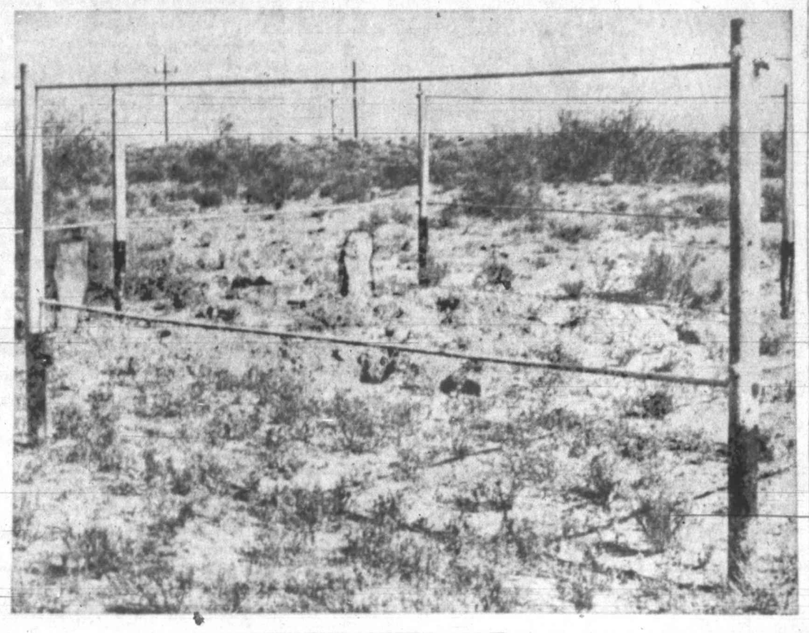

"We told him and he replied:

" 'I don't think you'd better do that, boys. These are not Indian burial spots. These are white folk.' "

The expedition closed forthwith.

It is pointed out that the graves are in the traditional position of Christian burials — with the headstone to the west and the footstone to the east.

"No one will ever know, probably," said McFaul, "who is buried there. As long as my company has the lease, I suppose we will try to keep the place looking as decent as possible."

Defendant In Robbery Case Due Examination

Donald Beekman Jr., under indictment for robbery by assault, will be examined by a psychiatrist on Dec. 2.

Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, granted a motion by Dick Milstead, attorney for Beekman, ordering the examination.

The defendant will be examined by Dr. Ed Grice, psychiatrist, in his offices at Odessa on Dec. 2 at 3 p.m.

Beekman and Larry G. Wallace were jointly indicted by the last grand jury for allegedly having held up Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ellison, of Aspermont, last Sept. 13. The two men, the state alleges, were given a ride by the Ellisons, and a few miles west of Big Spring, forced their hosts out of their pickup, then robbed them and left them tied to the vehicle.

Both men are being held in the county jail.

The mental examination order does not apply to Wallace.

New Educational Film Deals With High Court

"They've put the Negroes in the schools and now they've driven God out!" said one critic when the Supreme Court of the United States banned prayer in public school.

"Are we to become godless like Russia?" asked another.

"Fluoridate Earl Warren," read California bumper stickers.

Waves of strong public feeling, pro and con, have developed in recent years from the far reaching decisions of the Supreme Court. What has the Court done?

In a comparatively short time, it has revamped our whole criminal prosecution system. It has taken state-sanctioned prayers out of public schools. It has entered "the political thicket" to update voting apportionment. And it has implemented integration across the country.

How has the Court decided its key cases? What are the results so far? And what do the Court's friends and enemies say?

These are questions dealt with in "This Honorable Court: The Supreme Court of the United States," Part II, one in a series of sound filmstrips on contemporary issues to be distributed by this newspaper next month to high schools in the area.

This filmstrip is fourth in the SPECIAL REPORT series, produced by The Associated Press, the world's largest news gathering organization, and by Guidance Associates. Designed for social studies, civics and history classes, each filmstrip has a spoken commentary and a full teacher's guide to help stimulate classroom discussion. The series is being made available to area schools by The Herald.

"This Honorable Court" takes students into rooms most citizens never see—the honeycomb of Justices' offices behind the "Golden Gates," private conference chambers and the main courtroom where cases are heard.

The filmstrip brings great men in history to life—Thomas Jefferson, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Oliver Wendell Holmes. And it introduces students to the men who make history today. In an exclusive interview, Justice Bryon White tells what it's like to be a member of the court.

a gathering at the spring

Excerpted from "Big Spring" by Shine Philips

"I don't reckon anybody knows how long this "Big Spring" has been attracting humans, but the spring itself is a right historic spot. A good while before the Texas and Pacific Railroad came along, it was a stopping place on the Comanche War Trail. The Indian tribes scrapped over it. Yep, the Indians drank water too. Most folks never heard of an Indian doing anything but scalping a White Man, but from what I've heard tell, the Indians were at all times in as much danger of the White Man scalping them. Anyhow, the Indians were always scalping each other over Big Spring and a few coyotes to boot. There were just a few waterholes in this whole country—Moss Spring and Big Spring being the only two in a radius of sixty miles — so it was easy to see why men and beasts fought for their rights when it came to a showdown about a waterhole."

A Devotional For The Day

The blessings of your father are mighty beyond the blessings of the eternal mountains, the bounties of the everlasting hills. (Genesis 49:26, RSV)

PRAYER: O heavenly Father, forgive us of the sins of ingratitude. Help us to say "Thank you, Lord" for all our blessings, even though some are in disguise. Guide us, that we may be obedient to Thee and be worthy of Thy blessings. In the Savior's name we pray. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Be Thankful

This year, for the first time, the Union Thanksgiving services for Big Spring will be held in the chapel at Webb AFB.

Always we plead for good attendance as one means of giving real significance to this day. The day has been dedicated and set apart for the spirit—not the stomach. While one can radiate a spirit of thanksgiving anywhere, there is something especially meaningful about pulling aside and joining with others in prayers and hymns of thankfulness to Almighty God.

This Thursday's service can be still more meaningful, too, because it in effect strengthens the bonds of fellowship and spirituality between two communities — the town and the base.

We earnestly hope that the chapel will be filled to overflowing with people of all faiths who, if they have the one faith that counts, have a capacity for gratitude.

An Appeal For Help

The United Fund is down in the short, short rows.

What it needs for a few days this week is manpower.

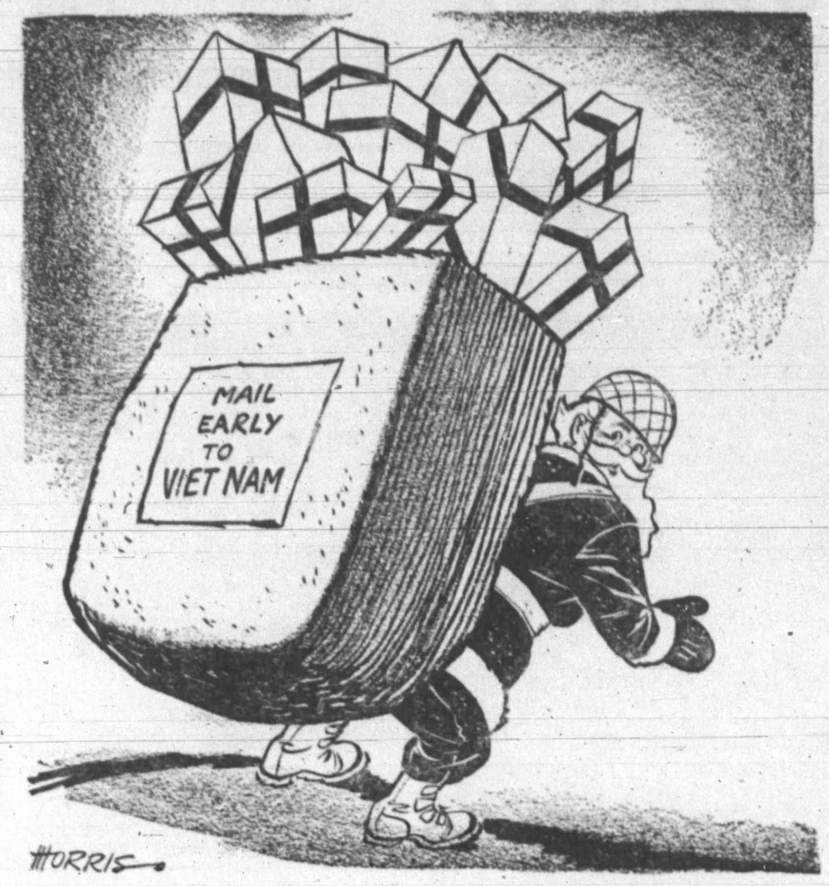

There are scores of cards on individuals and firms which have not been worked. Many of these have record of good gifts last year. All of them must be considered prospects until proven otherwise.

Human nature being what it is, contacts must be made—and generally made in person—in order to obtain gifts.

At stake is the program of more than a dozen agencies dedicated to humanitarian and welfare service, character and health building in youth, and other things which make a community desirable and livable.

Right now the immediate objective is to attain at least 75 per cent of the over-all budget of the United Fund —a budget which reflected the askings of the various agencies. If, however, men with a conscience respond by taking and working a few cards (or by giving if on the other end of the contact), we conceivably could reach 80 per cent of that goal. While this isn't near ideal, it will be better than we have ever done before.

Thus, the appeal is directly to you —and you—and you to take a couple of cards Monday and follow through promptly and sincerely on the contacts. It's a second mile—but the second mile attitude is what sets one community apart from another.

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT!

The Second Table

Come Thursday, thanks to American tradition and a benign Providence, most of us will be eating bountifully, and probably in more volume than is good for our waistlines.

As far as I can tell, from a distant perch, even the smallest of the kids get to sit right up to the table, and get their plates filled along with everybody else. Or they even have a special table, and fond Mamas who see that they get served off the top of the dishes.

WELL, AS I keep telling you, times change. When I was a punkinhead kid, there was plenty for the younguns from the Thanksgiving board, but it does seem from memory that it was mighty late in the day before they were called in to the "second table," and left to scrounge for less appetizing pieces of the festive bird, the less juicy remains of the dressing, and gravy that had begun to thicken.

Not that there was any complaint. This simply was the order of the day.

HAZY recollection has it that on several Thanksgiving holidays it was the custom of my family to have for dinner the preacher and his tribe. Now when the preacher came, it took a lot of extra work, even beyond the call of the customary Thanksgiving dinner.

There was this point: if the preacher had a passle of kids himself, they, along with the home tribe, were shooed out in the yard, and told to play while their elders reveled in their feast. They would be called in due time.

KIDS GET hungry, you know, and it wasn't unusual for the brats to run around to the dining room window, and look in longingly and cravenly, while Papa went through the motions of carving the big bird, overloading the plates, and passing them around.

If our mouths were watering, it ought to be understandable. They may have watered so much that we made noises of despair, so that the elders noticed us and chased us away from the window with further orders to "play." Who can play when he is absolutely, literally and desperately starving to death?

THERE WAS another thing about the preacher. He was the one asked to say grace, and it did rightly seem that his invocations to the Lord droned on for an inordinately long time.

The prayer said, it also seemed a tragic fact that grown folks could eat more slowly than humans had a right to eat. Surely two hours would have passed before the last bites of pumpkin pie had been consumed, the table cleared, and the call came for the kids.

BY THAT time of day, of course turkey wings and necks tasted good, as did the dry dressing and cold gravy. After all, it was Thanksgiving, and every one of us had something to be thankful for. After a few days of turkey hash, we would be back to corn bread and turnip greens, but we could eat them at the first table.

Goldwater Back To The Senate?

WASHINGTON — The happiest time in Barry Goldwater's life was not the climactic moment when he was nominated for the presidency before his wildly cheering admirers in San Francisco. He was happiest in the cozy atmosphere of the Senate when he could skirmish with the wicked liberals and then forget it all in the relaxed mood of the cloakroom.

THE STAGE was set in the recent election for Barry's return to his old love. The Republicans swept Arizona. They not only elected to the governorship Jack Williams, a radio-television commentator and a columnist on the Arizona Republic, but for the first time in the history of the state they carried both houses of the legislature. This is the base from which he can be appointed to a vacancy and then presumably elected at a special election.

BUT THERE is one obstacle standing stubbornly in the way. Sen. Carl Hayden is nearing the end of his seventh term in the Senate and with each day that he serves his record for the longest continuing service in the history of that body is enlarged. Although he was 89 years old on Oct. 2, his friends are saying that as of now they see no reason why he should not run for an eighth term in 1968.

What is more, if Hayden decides to run again in 1968 he would have an excellent chance to win an eighth term. For Arizona he is a precious relic of the pioneer past. And while Goldwater and the conservatives inveigh against the evils of federal spending they have time and again joined with Hayden in getting the biggest possible slice of federal money for water and power in arid Arizona.

HAYDEN'S CAREER covers an extraordinary span. He first ran for public office in 1902. Five days after Arizona achieved statehood in 1912 Hayden won a seat in the House. Serving in seven succeeding Congresses he was elected to the Senate in 1926.

Not only is his the longest service ever in the Senate, but he might also establish claim to being the most silent man in the long history of that talkative body. By a kind of inverse ratio the longer he serves the less he says. At the same time, however, his power has steadily increased by reason of seniority and also because he learned so well how to manipulate the levers of power from the vantage point he had won.

WHILE HAYDEN is no longer in line of succession to the presidency, he still wields great authority. As chairman of Appropriations he holds one of the two or three most powerful posts in the Congress. Keeping a foothold in Interior and Insular Affairs he is also No. 2 on rules which is the quiet steering committee determining the fate of most legislation.

This would be for Goldwater an ideal moment to return to the Senate. In the House the coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans can curtail if not block any domestic program the President sends up. The setback to the Johnson administration gives Goldwater, as an old Indian fighter in the tradition of the wide-open spaces, unlimited opportunity for the type of skirmishing he is best at.

WHILE HE spent four of the last eight days of his presidential campaign in Arizona Goldwater carried his native state by only 4,900 votes. Yet so strong was the Republican showing in the recent election that, despite doubts by some of his fellow Arizonans, he could probably win handily in a Senate race if it were not for the determined presence of that veteran of veterans, Carl Hayden.

More Signs Of Slowdown Are Evident

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

- Construction rate declines for seventh straight month
- Inventory rates off, automotive sales down 5 per cent
- G. N. P. expansion rate drops within tolerable limits
- Industrial production up slightly, steel output up
- President to give his tax hike decision by Dec. 10

NEW YORK (AP) — Signs of a business slowdown cropped up during the week.

Construction outlays declined in October for the seventh consecutive month, September inventories of all businesses grew by the smallest margin since January, and automobile sales fell in the first 10 days of November.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said government economic policy has achieved "a cooling off without a recessionary dip in business."

The Department of Commerce announced the new statistics on construction and inventories.

BUILDING OFF

October construction spending was estimated at $71,804,000,000 annual rate, down from the $72,528,000,000 annual rate of September and the lowest level since the almost identical $71,802,000,000 of October, 1965.

Analysts said the physical volume of construction activity was even weaker, running about five per cent below the year-earlier level.

The Commerce Department estimated the actual current volume of construction put in place in October at $6,671,000,000 down one per cent from a month before and a year before against an average year-to-year gain of six per cent in the first 10 months of this year.

Inventories of all businesses grew by $700 million in September to a rate of $130.74 billion. The increase was substantially below the $1.33 - billion August advance and was the slimmest gain since last January, when the increase was also $700 million. Increases in the intervening months have ranged between about $1 billion and $1.4 billion.

New car sales in early November trailed their 1965 pace by 5.6 per cent. Deliveries totaled 251,012 units, down from 265,765 a year earlier.

Ford's sales were off 10.7 per cent, American Motors' seven per cent, General Motors' 3.6 per cent and Chrysler's 2.4 per cent.

However, the automakers apparently weren't dismayed.

"Nobody is singing the blues around here. Things are still pretty good," said Lee A. Iacocca, group vice president of Ford Motor Co.

"We know full well we are running behind the industry's 1965 sales record but this still winds up as the second-best year in automotive history and there is nothing to get alarmed about," he added.

GNP SLACKENS

Fowler cited the reported reduced growth rate of the gross national product — total of all goods and services — in the third quarter as demonstrating the return to "a more sustainable pace, one that can be maintained for the long pull."

The "generally smooth and steady expansion" of about $11 billion quarterly in the annual rate of the GNP jumped to about $16 billion quarterly following President Johnson's July, 1965 decision to expand the Viet Nam war effort, Fowler noted. This absorbed much unused production capacity and brought "inflationary pressures to bear on the economy," he said.

But economic policies have more recently been switched to restraint, Fowler said, so that the GNP gained by only $12.3 billion in the third quarter and $11.1 in the second quarter.

INDUSTRY GROWS

Other statistics announced during the week showed that industrial output rose modestly in October and that personal income advanced steadily.

The Federal Reserve Board said its index of industrial production rose to a record 158.6 per cent of the 1957-59 average from September's 158.1.

The Commerce Department reported personal income reached a record annual rate of $594.6 billion in October, a gain of $4.6 billion from September.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Fowler and Budget Director Charles Schultze recommended in a report to President Johnson that Johnson make known his decision on an income tax increase by Dec. 10.

Automobile production for the week declined to an estimated 204,000 passenger cars from 215,953 a yedr earlier but was ahead of the 194,250 assembled the previous week.

Steel production during the week increased 0.5 per cent to 2.56 million tons from 2,546,000 tons the previous week.

Divorce–Alabama Style

WASHINGTON — The editor of the Adirondack Daily Enterprise has just presented me with a terrible thought. He wondered what would happen if Lurleen Wallace, the governor-elect of Alabama, would suddenly decide to divorce her husband, George.

It couldn't happen, of course, because I understand they're very happy together—but let's just say for argument's sake it did.

THERE IS nothing in the Alabama Constitution that makes provision for the governor of the state to divorce her husband, so they would have to talk it over to reach an amicable settlement.

"George, I have something to tell you. I want to get a divorce."

"But, Governor, why?" Mr. Wallace says.

"Ever since I was elected to this office we've been drifting apart. You've been bouncing all over the United States saying you want to run for President, and you've left me at home to work over a hot desk vetoing bills, making out the budget and segregating the schools."

"BUT, HONEY, I'm doing it for you," Mr. Wallace protests.

"Don't call me Honey."

Mr. Wallace says, "We can't get a divorce. Think of our political futures. The scandal would rock the white citizens councils all over America."

"I'm not interested in a political future, George. All I want is a husband who will be there when I come home at night so I can discuss my problems with him. If a governor can't talk to her husband, who can she talk to?"

"YOU KNOW what I think, Lurleen? This job has gone to your head. You were a nice, sweet, simple girl when I made you governor, and now you're starting to believe the things the white backlash are saying about you."

"You didn't make me governor of Alabama. The people did. When I ran for this office I said I would not be beholden to any man, and that includes you, George."

"That's what I call gratitude. You were my creation. No one heard of you before I started building you up. It was my name that got you elected. How many votes do you think you would have got if your name was Lurleen Carmichael?"

"THERE IS no sense discussing this any further. I think we should start talking about a property settlement. I would like to keep the governor's mansion and have custody of the National Guard. You can have visiting rights to the guard on week ends and two weeks during the summer."

"How could you do that when you know what the National Guard means to me? They need a father."

"The courts will be on my side," Mrs. Wallace says. "I also want Montgomery, Birmingham and Mobile. You can have Lowndes County and Selma."

"IT ISN'T fair," Mr. Wallace cries. "I worked hard for Montgomery, Birmingham and Mobile."

"Louis Nizer, my attorney, says I don't have to even give you Selma. But I'd like to remain friends with you."

"What about the University of Alabama?

"It's mine, George, but Louis Nizer says that any time you want to you can stand in the door."

Billy Graham

Our pastor preached a sermon on the miracles of Jesus, and he said that God never breaks natural law, and therefore the miracles of the New Testament are "allegorical" and untrue. Do you believe this? S.F.W.

Science is discovering new laws in the physical universe, and our reason tells us that there must be divine laws which supercede the laws of nature known to man. As the Bible says, "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts your thoughts." (Isa. 55:9). According to this, God has ways and means of doing things, which seem miraculous to us, but with Him it is simply operating within laws that are beyond our knowing.

Someone has written: "Every moment of this strange and lovely life from dawn to dusk is a miracle. Somewhere, always, a rose is opening its petals to the dawn. Somewhere, always, a flower is fading in the dusk. The incense rises with the sun, and the scents that die in the dark are all gathered sooner or later into the solitary fragrance that is God. Faintly, elusively, this fragrance lingers over all the earth."

Life is, from the cradle to the grave, a thing of constant wonder. The unbeliever calls these wonders an accident; the believer calls them "God." The Bible tells us that "believers" are rewarded: in this life and the one to come. It also says, ". . . the unbelieving . . . shall be lost." Unbelief has few rewards: in this life or the next.

Post-Castro Spanish

MIAMI (AP) — Some words have taken on new meanings under Fidel Castro's Cuban Communist regime.

For example, gusano. That's Spanish for worm, according to dictionaries. In Castro's language, as heard in Miami over Havana radio, it means a non-Communist.

Gorila is Spanish for gorilla, except that in neo-Cuban it means a non-Communist army officer.

A gorilazo is a military coup by such officers.

Imperialistas, in Castro's language, means Americans.

The dictator's opponents have a word for him too—Caballo—which means horse.

An Old False Belief About Blood

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Relative to blood transfusions, there is a belief by some people that the patient acquires some characteristics of the donor.

If so, is it possible for a criminal donor to pass on his tendencies? Please explain how blood tends to fuse into the body and brain of the patient receiving it. — L. V.

I've answered this question briefly before, but it still seems to bother so many readers that perhaps it needs a more emphatic answer.

First of all, the permanent characteristics of a person are determined by the chromosomes, and the thousands or perhaps millions of genes contained in the original cell, half from the mother, half from the father.

True, the developing fetus may be damaged (as in birth defects) but this is DAMAGE, and not a change in fundamentals. Color of hair and eyes, shape of face and body, inherited strengths and weaknesses, are controlled by genes — not in any way by blood.

It has been customary to speak of "blood lines," a term which was used long before we had the faintest idea of what the genes are and how they behave, but that old expression still gives rise to a lot of false beliefs.

Blood — the fluid, and the cells in it — serves important purposes in the body. Mostly the blood is a "delivery service," carrying oxygen, sugar and other nutrients throughout the body, and carrying away debris and waste matter. The blood carries oxygen from the loungs; it carries carbon dioxide back to the lungs to be exhaled. It does a similar service with food. It also carries antibodies to fight off infections.

When you have a need for blood and require a transfusion, you don't keep that blood permanently. In a matter of three months or less, all of the transfused blood cells will have died off and been discarded by the body — that's the way the human system acts.

Gradually new cells will have replaced the old ones, and the new ones will be your own, created in the marrow of your bones.

Phrases about "blood lines," or "a taint in the blood" should be abolished from the language, because blood has nothing to do with the kind of people we are.

True, it is necessary to cross-match blood before a transfusion, because if the transfused blood is of a different type from that of the recipient, a chemical conflict results but this again has nothing to do with heredity or characteristics. There are only four main blood types — A, B, AB and O and everybody in the world is of one of these four types.

You cannot and do not acquire any characteristics of the donar by a blood transfusion.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that coffee is harmful to those with high blood pressure or weakness of the heart. Is this true? If so, how much coffee would be harmful? — A.D.G.

Coffee is a stimulant and hence can be harmful to some people with high blood pressure or severe heart disease, but it is not possible to lay down a general rule that will suit everyone. Except in severe cases, one or two cups a day will not ordinarily be harmful. Using a de-caffeinized beverage would be an added precaution.

A New Alliance Needed

WASHINGTON — The time has come for the United States to make a move that can bring about the end of the fighting in Viet Nam. This calls for the formation of a new alliance comprising as many allies as the United States can line up on its side to guarantee that a peace agreement will be honored, and to be ready, if a violation occurs, to take military action to halt any new aggression.

UP TO NOW, the American government has been begging for peace and has been expecting neutral nations to act as intermediaries to bring about negotiations. But the North Viet Nam regime, sponsored as it is by the governments in Peiping and Moscow, evidently believes that it can prolong the war and eventually get the equivalent of a victory. It is apparent that peace is not going to be obtained by President Johnson merely through the pleas of neutral powers.

Obviously America is making considerable headway in its military strategy and is imposing heavy punishment on the North Vietnamese. But, while the United States has a large force in Viet Nam, an alliance representing an even greater military potential could unquestionably play a decisive part in requiring the Hanoi government to begin negotiations for an armistice and a settlement.

THE FAILURE of the United Nations to intervene and bring peace in Viet Nam is one of the most tragic developments of the century. The reason for U.N. inaction unquestionably is the increasing number of smaller nations whose governments are afraid to take a position that might antagonize some of the larger powers. Most governments have not been willing to delegate to the U.N. the power to make war or to intervene by force in the internal or external affairs of the member states.

The United Nations charter, however, recognizes the principle of "collective security," and Article 51 states:

"NOTHING IN the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security."

IT IS OBVIOUS, therefore, that an alliance of states has to be created to take over the entire Viet Nam problem and force a solution. An effective alliance could be formed, for example, by the United States with Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, The Philippines, Japan, South Korea, Thailand, Italy, Austria, Greece, Turkey, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands, the West German Republic and several countries in Latin America. Each member of the alliance would pledge itself to send troops, if necessary, to join with the United States in bringing peace in Viet Nam.

AT FIRST GLANCE, many of these countries would wish to refrain from becoming involved. But sooner or later, their peoples would come to understand that, unless some means is provided to stop aggression in the world, no country will be safe in the future.

Plainly the task of preserving peace in the world is not an obligation of the United States alone but of other nations as well. The recent meeting in Manila indicated clearly that Southeast Asia is a danger area and that the troubles there could precipitate an intercontinental war. Hence, the formation of a new alliance to take collective action to insure peace is a logical step in the establishment of a common defense not only for Asia but for Europe.

LETTER

Concurs In Statement

TO THE EDITOR:

I read Mr. Erven Fisher's statement in The Herald Nov. 16 and I agree wholeheartedly with him on his complaint against the schools as to their parental disregard as to what time the pupil can enter a school building and get in out of the weather.

Some principals and teachers seem to regard themselves as the only people who work for a living. It has even been said by one principal of our public school system "that most women send their children to school early with their father because the wife likes to sleep late." There are numerous reasons why children come early and what right has a principal to say when the children enter the building to get in out of the weather?

My husband and I both work and must be on the job at 8 o'clock in the morning — thus forcing our son to go "early" to school by riding with his father.

There is another pet peeve of mine. It is the bus situation. On Birdwell Lane almost every morning there are two buses that meet just off FM 700 and sit there until time to drive up to the bus stop on 25th street while children are standing at the bus stop in all kinds of weather. There are no shelters for the children to wait in, so why can't the drivers pull up to the bus stop and let the children on the bus early? They also have been known to leave bus stops five or 10 minutes ahead of schedule. We tried the bus but found it unsatisfactory.

DEAR ABBY

Problem Is 'Boyological'

DEAR ABBY: A girl telephoned and asked me if I would take her out on Saturday night to make her boy friend jealous. This girl is 18 and is very, very good looking. Long blonde hair, terrific figure and the works! I had nothing better to do and thought it might be fun so I said yes.

I am 21 years old, have a new car and am not exactly a creep. Well, Abby, I fell for this girl, knowing all along that she was only using me. Is there something the matter with me?

FELL HARD

DEAR FELL: If by "fell" you mean you became physically attracted to her, there is nothing wrong with you. You were only following your "boyological" urge—(more "boy" than logical). You'll recover.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of those mini skirts?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: They're all right if the girl doesn't have magna legs.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a mother who allows herself to be used by her daughter as an unpaid servant, and then turns around and complains to all her relatives?

The woman happens to be my mother, and it is getting on my nerves. When my sister asks her to sit with her children for an evening, afternoon, or for weeks at a time while she and her husband go off on vacations, "Good Old Mom" can't get there fast enough. Then she complains to all the relatives about how hard the kids are to handle, and how dirty Sis' house was before she dug in and cleaned it up.

And worse yet, she says, "Never again!" But just let Sis ask her, and "Good Old Mom" is over there working like a horse. Any suggestions?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Tell "Good Old Mom" that if she wants to sit, stand, or roll over for her daughter, it's all right with you. But you'd rather not hear any complaints about it.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NOT UNDERSTOOD:" From your letter I would suggest that you thank your lucky stars that your wife doesn't understand you. If she did, you'd be in more trouble than you are now.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Peace Prayer Day Asked By Bishop

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — West Virginia Methodist Bishop Fred G. Holloway has asked members of his denomination to set aside Sunday, Nov. 27, as a day of prayer for peace in Viet Nam.

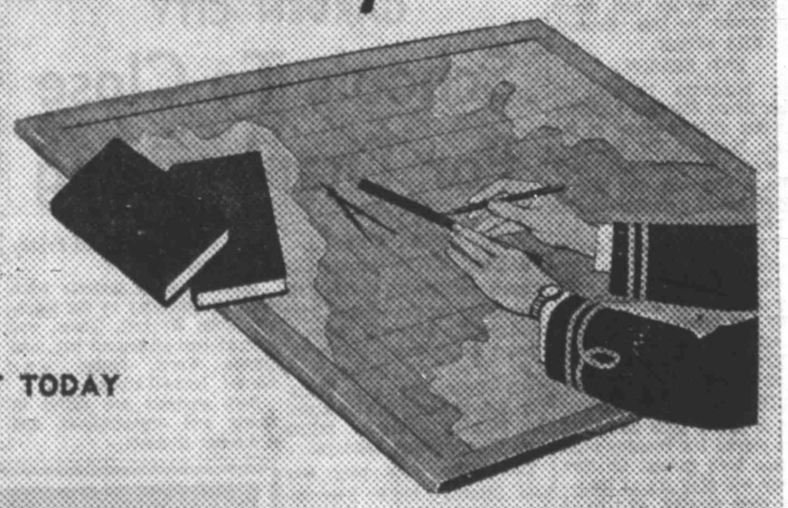

Boys Ranch Sets Program

The annual Christmas program at West Texas Boys Ranch is planned for Sunday, Dec. 18, in the Ranch All-Faiths Chapel. This program is the highlight of the year for the boys and much enthusiasm goes into the planning of the event. Each year a San Angelo Sunday school class prepares cookies and refreshments to serve in the ranch dining hall. The Rev. Fred Hamner, ranch chaplain, is preparing a special Christmas message. The boys' Drama Club is in the middle of rehearsals directed by Angelo State College student Roger Richards. The Gibson Memorial All-Faiths Chapel is filled to capacity each year for the Christmas program. Over 200 area residents visit West Texas Boys Ranch on US 87, 18 miles west of San Angelo, to take part in the holiday event.

This year's program will be dedicated to Mr. Dan Gibson of Snyder, West Texas Boys Ranch director and vice president for many years, who died in February of this year. Mr. Gibson was responsible for the building of the All-Faiths Chapel and Sunday school rooms, and one of the 32 boy dormitories at the ranch. The public is invited to attend the program.

YOUTH JURY

Students Plan 'Jury Of Peers'

"Studies in other towns have shown that a youth jury helps to cut down the number of juvenile violators," says Debbie Douglass, one of several Big Spring High School students who are trying to initiate a youth jury in Big Spring.

The students recently visited Abilene Corporation Court with Big Spring Corporation Court Judge W. A. Eyssen to see a youth jury in action.

In Abilene, the six youthful jurors serve two week terms, three being elected each week. In this way each jury will have three experienced members.

Each juryman is usually responsible for his or her replacement. Students will be able to sign up for duty on the jury. Duty is strictly on a voluntary basis.

The jury will only sit in on cases involving minors and only if they are asked to do so by the minor involved. Parents will have to accompany any minor whether he appears in court or merely pays a fine.

Many times the students are not penalized with fines. Abilene has a traffic safety program which lasts six hours and consists of lectures and films. Youths are often sentenced to take part in this program rather than to pay a fine.

"Youth juries cut down on the number of habitual violators and also helps to educate the students serving on the jury," said Miss Douglass.

When a man gives thanks he is recognizing how small a part he himself has contributed to this world's abundance.

When a man gives thanks he is expressing his affection for and his dependence on those who constantly share the experiences of his life.

When a man gives thanks he is laying aside his discontentments to rejoice in the more numerous and more meaningful satisfactions that have marked each passing day.

When a man gives thanks he is escaping from the webs of pride, greed and self-addition that could otherwise imprison his soul.

When a man gives thanks he is meeting God on God's own ground. For God is God! And we are His children.

When a man gives thanks he is discovering his greater need. For all that God has provided is but the threshold to all that God promises.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Arkin Under Alias

NEW YORK (AP) — One of off - Broadway's new hits afforded Alan Arkin, comedian, a chance at directing debut under an alias.

When the play, "Eh?," opened, the staging was credited to Roger Short. When investigation revealed no one of that name was a member of the directors' guild, Arkin acknowledged he used the pseudonym after being hurriedly summoned in replacement of two other directors.

'THE SLENDER THREAD'
Sidney Poitier and Anne Bancroft

Suspense Drama Based On An Actual Incident

The daring new suspense drama, "The Slender Thread," starring Sidney Poitier, Anne Bancroft, Telly - Savalas and Steven Hill, which opens Sunday at the Jet Theatre, has as its central setting the famous Crisis Clinic of Seattle, Wash.

Based on actual events, the film was suggested by an article about a tormented Seattle housewife who called for help before attempting suicide.

Although the Crisis Clinic was founded shortly after the harrowing incident by prominent citizens, including the housewife herself, "The Slender Thread" utilizes the Clinic's now celebrated facilities and operating techniques in unfolding its intense and powerful story.

The Clinic, an assistance center for people in trouble, has a volunteer staff that handles an average of seven serious emergencies a day. The volunteers respond immediately to calls that range from persons who are emotionally disturbed, in despair, or on the verge of violence, to people who simply need somebody to talk to.

The motion picture concentrates on an agonizing hour during a routine night at the Clinic. On this night, a woman named Inga Dyson, superbly portrayed by Miss Bancroft, calls in to reveal that she has just taken a lethal dose of sleeping pills.

Volunteer worker Alan Newell, a penetrating characterization by Poitier, holds her in a life-and-death conversation while he rallies all the forces of a city to find the woman and save her. The telephone line becomes 'the slender thread' that is her last contact with life.

The Clinic and its devoted staff members are depicted in thoroughly honest fashion. In a sharp and moving portrait of the doctor in charge, Savalas adds authenticity to the inner workings of the Clinic which habitually holds some person's life in the balance.

Hill gives a sensitive performance as the woman's husband, who fails to understand his wife's desperate needs until the Clinic's rescue effort makes him aware of her profound problems.

Elvis Is Back With Beauties In 'Spinout'

Producer Joe Pasternak cornered the Hollywood market on pulchritude for Elvis Presley's new picture, "Spinout," and you never saw so many beautiful girls swinging to the catchy rhythms of Elvis' songs as are on display in this romping, action-filled and laugh-loaded entertainment in Panavision and color.

Elvis really gets the works in a film that spells fun all the way. This time, he has not one leading lady but — count 'em— four glamour queens, Shelley Fabares, Diane McBain, Deborah Walley and Dodie Marshall, chasing pell-mell after the world's most elusive bachelor.

Shelley is the pert, spoiled daughter of a millionaire auto manufacturer, who always gets what she wants, and she wants Elvis, leader of a touring combo. Diane is best-selling author, researching her next book, "The Perfect American Male," and when she meets Elvis, she decides she has found her subject. Deborah is the cute drummer in Elvis' band, whose heart is drumming for the boss. While Dodie Marshall ends up as the latest beauty to try to corral Elvis into matrimony.

In a series of song-filled situations, our hero manages to eat his cake and have it, too. Does he marry any of these man-hungry beauties? He marries 'em all. How's that again? Well, you'll have to see "Spinout" to find out how Elvis pulls that trick.

Along with the story's romantic involvements, there's a highlight climactic sequence in which Elvis comes out the winner in as suspenseful and exciting an auto race over mountain roads and turns as you have seen on the screen in some time.

As always in a Presley film, the star introduces a flock of happy songs, and "Spinout" offers such attractive melodies as "Stop, Look, Listen," "I'll Be Back," "All That I Am," "Never Say Yes," "Am I Ready" and the catchy title song.

Together with the bevy of leading ladies, the large cast costars Jack Mullaney, Will Hutchins, Warren Berlinger, Jimmy Hawkins, Una Merkel, Cecil Kellaway and Carl Betz.

Fiery Raccoon Spreads Blazes

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — A raccoon, his fur coat ablaze, strung a ring of fire around the nearby Enterprise Baptist Church, burning the small building to the ground.

Deputy Sheriff Carl C. Coneley said the raccoon leaped out of a trash barrel Friday with his coat on fire a few minutes after a cleaning woman dumped burning debris into the container.

He said the animal ran through grass surrounding the building, setting the grass on fire. The blaze spread to the church.

Dublin Plays

DUBLIN (AP)—Three recently produced American plays are included in the annual Dublin Theater Festival.

Eugene O'Neill's "Hughie" and Sidney Michael's "Dylan," which both premiered on Broadway during the 1964-'65 season, are being done, plus last season's off-Broadway hit, "Hogan's Goat" by William Alfred.

'THE SWINGER'

Ann-Margret Stars In 'The Swinger'

In today's vernacular, what exactly is a swinger?

You may be able to come up with more intellectual definitions, but it's doubtful if you'll ever be able to find a definer better equipped for the task than Ann-Margret.

The spectacularly assembled Swedish star, whose latest film, "The Swinger," in Technicolor, opens today at the Ritz Theatre, spells out "swinger" everytime she takes a step.

"Everyone has his own definition of swinger," she tried to tell un interviewer, whose attempts at surreptitious ogling were failing miserably. "But, as for me, I think it means nonconformist.

"I don't conform and I won't conform, but it's not because I'm rebellious. I just pursue my own life and my own ideas as honestly and as quietly as possible.

"It's strange," she continued, "but in most people's minds, it is perfectly all right for a man to be a swinger, but not for a girl.

"But a girl can be a swinger and a lady at the same time," she insisted. "The idea of what a swinger is exists mostly in the eyes of the beholder, rarely in the mind of the swinger herself. I may be regarded as a swinger, but I consider myself as a woman first and as an actress second. And that means that I value my character and reputation as a female more than I value my career."

In "The Swinger," Ann-Margret stars in the title role, a part which calls on her to portray a drunk, a prostitute, a playgirl, a stripper and a gambler, among other types, just the sort of well-rounded career girl people like to think of as a swinger's swinger.

The hilarious situations of "The Swinger" could easily startle some people if Ann-Margret did not always have the proper air of playfulness and good humor with which she invests her performance. She is that rare type of actress who can be sexy yet never vulgar, seductive yet innocent, and appeal to men without offending women.

"No," she laughed, "I don't identify with the character at all, not according to that description."

A dedicated observer of active young womanhood might credit such superficialities as her clinging purple pants, her gold leaf electric golf cart, her skill on a motorcycle and her appropriate outfits and her name as aids in establishing her swinger-hood.

But most of all, at least in the case of Ann-Margret, it's a stylish combination of the without (and she is loaded with physical attributes) and the within (she generates excitement just being there). The trimmings merely augment what is already there.

"The Swinger" stars Ann-Margret, Tony Franciosa and Robert Coote.

Italian Beauty Makes Debut

Newest addition to the current ranks of Italian beauties threatening Sophia Loren's reign as filmdom's number one "sex bomb" is blonde Laura Antonelli who makes her movie debut in "Dr. Goldfoot and the Girl Bombs," coming Friday to the Ritz Theatre.

Naturally, Laura is cast as the principal girl bomb in the color and scope farce thriller in which she co-stars with Vincent Price and Fabian. The curvaceous Naples - born actress makes her initial film appearance extra memorable by displaying her ample 38-24-36 figure in negligee for all but four minutes of her on-screen time in the principal feminine role, thus making a strong bid for Hollywood's unofficial title of "Lingerie Girl."

Laura won her starring role in "Dr. Goldfoot and the Girl Bombs" over two hundred other Roman beauties hailing from almost every country on the continent. In addition to her looks and figure, Laura's excellent English, fair complexion and light-colored hair made her the number one candidate for director Mario Bava's specification of "an American - looking girl."

A qualified physical education teacher, she was in Rome to seek "fame and fortune" on the spur of unexpectedly winning a Naples beauty contest. It was Laura's first trip away from her home town and, during production of the film, she visited her parents almost every weekend.
