Mighty, humble mourn beside body

Pope Paul VI lies in state

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Faithful mighty and humble mourned beside the body of Pope Paul VI today and the Roman Catholic Church readied the ancient machinery of succession to elect a new pontiff for its 550 million members.

The body, clad in red robes, white miter and red shoes, was put on view in a marble-floored salon at the papal summer palace in Castel Gandolfo, in the Alban Hills south of Rome where he died Sunday night after a reign of 15 years.

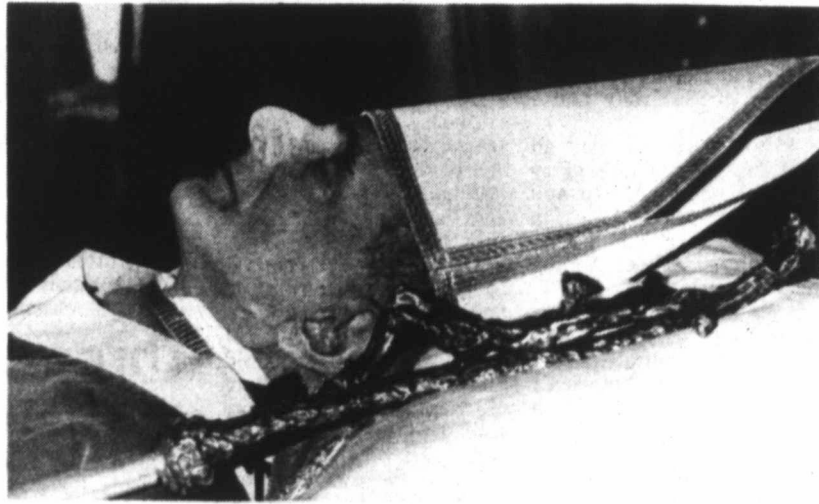

It lay on a slanted platform covered in green velvet, his head on three white pillows, hands crossed and a rosary entwined around the fingers.

Italy's President Sandro Pertini was the first to pay his respects, followed by the mayor of Castel Gandolfo, the pope's relatives and finally the public. Hundreds outside sang hymns as they waited to enter.

"Look at his sweet face," said Sister Maria Luisa Sicaletti of the Sisters of San Giuseppe from nearby Albano. "He looks so holy. He almost seems as if he is in deep and serene sleep."

By late afternoon, more than 10,000 had filed past the bier.

The body will be brought to the Vatican Wednesday and will lie in state in St. Peter's Basilica until the solemn funeral Mass and burial

POPE DIES — Pope Paul VI lies in state, wearing his red robes and a white miter, with a processional silver cross close to him, as he was put on display for the visit of pilgrims and dignitaries, in a room of the papal summer residence.

Saturday. It will be enclosed in a triple coffin and placed in the crypt below the basilica.

A special nine-day mourning period will begin Saturday and end with the opening of the conclave of cardinals, probably Aug. 20, to elect a successor to Paul.

Each day of the mourning period a cardinal or ranking prelate will say a special Mass for the late pope in St. Peter's Basilica. On the last day, the cardinals will join in a special rite of prayers to the Holy Spirit and then withdraw for the conclave.

The 115 cardinals under the age of 80 will then begin voting in the secret gathering in the Sistine Chapel, beneath its resplendent frescoes by Michelangelo. Fifteen of the church's 130 cardinals cannot vote because they are 80 or older.

Six cardinals were most frequently mentioned as possible candidates. Three are Italians: Giovanni Benelli, believed to have been Pope Paul's choice, Sergio Pignedoli and Sebastiano Baggio. The three non-Italians are Johannes Willebrands of the Netherlands, Eduardo Pironio, an Argentine of Italian descent, and Franz Koenig of Austria.

Bible fund is inching ahead

Donations to The Bible Fund over the weekend picked up a little, but the campaign is still far short of its $10,000 goal.

The total is now $1,238.50, which means only a little more than one-tenth of the money needed to underwrite the expense of Bible courses at high schools in Big Spring, Forsan and Coahoma has been raised.

Checks should be made out to The Bible Fund and forwarded either to the Herald or to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who coordinates the drives for the sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Alliance.

DEMONSTRATOR DRAGGED AWAY — San Luis Obispo Sheriff's deputies drag a screaming protestor away from the entrance to the Diablo Canyon Nuclear power plant early today after she and 23 others were arrested for trying to block the entrance to the plant. They were hoping to block workers from entering the construction site as part of an ongoing anti-nuclear demonstration.

ARCHBISHOP FRANCISCO CRUCES (LEFT) Confers with Father Bernard Guiley

Concelebrated mass will be held at church here

Because the death of Pope Paul VI coincided with the visit to Big Spring of a dignitary in the Catholic church, a concelebrated mass will be held at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church at 7 p.m., Tuesday.

Father Bernard Guiley, pastor of the local church, will combine with Archbishop Francisco Cruces of Zamboanga, Philippine Islands, for the mass.

The archbishop is making missionary appeals to help support seminarians in his archdiocese. The archdiocese has persons applying to become priests who do not have enough money to support their education.

Archbishop Cruces is speaking in four churches in the diocese of San Angelo. He spoke during the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church service here Sunday, shortly after news of the death of the pope arrived. Cruces will remain here through Wednesday.

A concelebrated mass occurs when two or more church officials participate in a mass.

The general public is invited to attend the Tuesday evening ritual.

Flood waters from Brazos continue to rise in Graham

Flood waters from the Brazos River continued to rise in the city of Graham today, lapping to within a block of the Young County courthouse. Residents and businessmen had ample time to evacuate the area.

The Brazos flooding resulted in no missing persons or deaths and was the last in a week-long series of floods that left a total of 25 Texans dead in the Central Texas Hill Country and the area around Albany in West Texas.

Sunday, the Brazos was rising at the rate of about an inch an hour, but slowed to a half-inch an hour this morning.

"I think everyone's been evacuated that will be up to this point," said Graham police Sgt. Bee McCormack. Utilities were out for most of the city of 7,500, about 60 miles south of Wichita Falls.

"We just don't know how long it's going to take for this stuff to go away, but all our city operation is under water," said Police Chief William Paul. "We're out of water and electricity."

A pair of highways remained open to Graham, easing the isolation and allowing access for emergency workers.

Authorities said at least 150 houses and 20 businesses were damaged in Graham.

No more rain fell on the flood ravaged state today, but body searches continued this morning in Central Texas and around Albany.

Sunday, searchers recovered four more bodies in Bandera County. Of the 25 victims found, 20 were discovered in the Hill Country and the rest around Albany.

Emergency assistance centers were to be opened today at the Albany Youth Center and at the Corral

Final hearing is scheduled

The final public hearing prior to City Council approval of a $1.5 million fund application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development will be held in conjunction with the Council's 9 a.m. meeting Tuesday.

The hearing will be the final chance for citizens to express their opinions and have input into the application, which is being made for funds to operate a rehabilitation program for the city's north side for the next two years.

"The public hearing last week was attended by about 30 individuals, the highest citizen participation we have had since the first hearing in 1975," said Paul Feazelle, director of the Big Spring Office of Housing and Community Development. "We are very encouraged by the participation and feel that the project now has the potential to be a true 'community' project in the full sense of the word. Any additional comments will be welcome."

Other items on the city council agenda include:

- Final reading and consideration of an ordinance adopting the 1978-79 budget.
- Final reading and consideration of rate revisions of the city's sewer and water system.
- Final reading of an ordinance to revise charges and rules for interment in the city in the city cemetery.
- Consideration of a request from Tony Fierro for a permit to install a mobile home at 406 NW 5th.

Stray dogs pose serious problem

Residents in the 500 block of E. 15th Street have expressed grave concern over packs of stray dogs, some of them vicious, frequenting the neighborhood.

At least three packs of dogs have appeared in the neighborhood in the past two weeks. Some of them threatened to maul a four-year-old boy who had gone out to play. Only quick work by adults may have saved him serious injury.

One woman who said she had been instructed by her doctor to walk each day complained she was afraid to leave her house for fear of being attacked.

She added that calls to Code Enforcement at City Hall had failed to produce any results, that the dogs are still roving free.

The dogs apparently have no masters and likely have assembled in the area from other parts of town.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Protection

Q. Because I find it inconvenient to shop on foot regularly, I often use mail-order catalogues to purchase the things I need. It disturbs me to think some people experience trouble with some of the mail-order companies. Are there laws to protect the consumer when problems come up with orders placed by mail?

A. There are. The Federal Trade Commission, which governs interstate commerce, says that mail orders must be shipped within 30 days or the time specified in a company ad. If it is not, the seller is required to offer a refund or an opportunity to cancel the order. If reimbursement is requested, the seller must mail it within seven business days of cancellation. Write to the company if the rules are violated. If that does not produce results, send a letter with copies of all pertinent information to the Bureau of Consumer Protection (MO-P), Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C., 20580.

Offbeat: Tick's junky house

CLEVELAND (AP) — C. Harry Tick is trying to prove that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

Tick is building a new home and to beat inflated construction costs, he's using discarded junk for the six-room, two-story structure.

Tick, 53, a former part-time salvage collector, says he "decided to make usable junk usable in a usable building."

The walls are made of bricks salvaged from old buildings. Part of the roof is the top of a scrapped Greyhound bus. The front door is from a now-demolished tavern.

With gables from an old church and arches found in scrap yards, the building is taking on the look of a castle.

Now a truck driver, Tick works on the house in his spare time. He estimates it will take four more years to complete it.

He says the new home will cost about $10,000.

Best on TV: Baseball, Columbo

Columbo picks a worthy foe in his story tonight, scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m., over NBC. Nicol Williamson runs an organization for 'Life Control' and he is an icy individual who decides to kill his partner, probably because he was his late wife's lover. Some vicious Dobermans turn hand-licking puppies when Columbo (Peter Falk) wins them over. Baseball lovers will watch either Cincinnati and Atlanta or Kansas City and the Chicago White Sox, starting at 7 p.m.

Guilty of killing teen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of three Mexican-American youths accused in an attack on two high school sweethearts that fired racial tension in this small Ventura County town has been convicted of murder, rape and attempted murder.

Bruce Kinness, the attorney for 17-year-old Ruben Torres, said after the verdict was announced Saturday that he would seek a new trial.

Torres was ordered by Superior Court Judge Nancy Watson to return Sept. 20 for a probation and sentencing hearing.

Torres was found guilty of second-degree murder in the fatal bludgeoning of Paul Yenney Jr., 17, and guilty of the rape and attempted murder of Linda Plene, 18, in the attack last Oct. 14.

The jury of six men and six women reached its verdict in a special weekend session following a week of deliberations.

New homestead exemptions?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House and Senate negotiators came close to agreement today on new homestead exemptions for Texas taxpayers but locked horns again over spending limits and statewide property appraisals.

Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Paris, head of the Senate conferees, said the Senate would present a complete proposed compromise of the $500 million tax relief measure at a 1 p.m. meeting of the conferees.

"Let's just see who will sign it and who won't," said Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Merit Wells.

Aikin said he considered the 10-member conference committee "pretty close" on residential homestead exemptions and "possibly close" on reimbursement of schools districts for any tax losses.

"But we're not going to have anything to do with the other two (spending limits and statewide appraisals of property)."

Policeman shot, killed

HARKER HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — Harker Heights policeman Carl Levin was shot to death while questioning a man early today in this Killen suburb.

Police spokeswoman Connie Warford said Levin had been with the force about 18 months.

She said a man in his 20s was being sought in the case.

Levin, 31, was pronounced dead at the scene of the shooting.

For the record

An article in Tuesday's Herald incorrectly reported Billy D. Clark, accident victim, as ineligible for veteran benefits. Clark is receiving medical care from the Veteran's Administration, but is ineligible for Veteran's Disability.

The hardship on the family is a result of the latter, since Clark is unable to work and requires constant care so that his wife is unable to leave the home and take a job.

"We are very grateful for the assistance of the Veteran's Administration in picking up the medical expenses," said Mrs. Clark.

"Our major financial problem has been the difficulty of living for seven months — with more to come — without any income to feed and clothe the family." The Herald regrets any misunderstanding caused by the error.

Deputies find stolen items

Howard County deputies recovered today $180 worth of items reported stolen Thursday.

The items, a woman's watch valued at $100 and a pair of glasses valued at $80, were recovered by deputy Eddie Owens and returned to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. McCain, Rt. 1, Box 694.

According to the sheriff's office, the theft involved several very young juveniles, making the possibility of an arrest unlikely.

Americans may be paying too much Life insurance info skimpy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because consumers generally are kept in the dark about the true cost of their life insurance, costs for similar coverage vary by more than 100 percent, a Federal Trade Commission official said today.

"Consumers may lose billions of dollars as the result of uninformed purchase decisions. The central cause of this extraordinary consumer loss is their lack of adequate and meaningful information," Albert H. Kramer, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, told a House panel.

For example, Kramer, said a 25-year-old man could save about $2,500 over 20 years by buying a low-cost rather than a high-cost $25,000 whole life policy.

Whole-life combines death benefits with savings features. Term life insurance, which is less profitable and less aggressively sold by the industry, contains little or no savings value and is less expensive to consumers.

Kramer said insurance firms usually do not reveal the rate of return on the savings portion of whole life policies, rates that often are only 2 to 3 percent. That is far less than the rate of return on money deposited in a bank or a savings and loan association.

"The potential for loss can be staggering. A person who invests $1,000 each year at 3 percent will have, at the end of 30 years, approximately $48,000. One who invests the same amount at 6 percent will have $84,000 at the end of 30 years," Kramer testified to the House Commerce investigations subcommittee.

"The industry competes in many areas — for agents and in designing unique policies that are often little more than sales tools. But the industry rarely competes on the basis of price because it doesn't have to," Kramer continued.

"We submit that without meaningful cost disclosure, price competition in the life insurance industry is impossible," he said.

David Fix, the FTC staff officer who is conducting the investigation, said in a weekend interview that "two people could be paying the identical amount in premiums and one might have twice as much value as the other. And neither one is likely to know it."

Even where premiums are similar, the "cash value" of policies varies widely, he said in an interview. The "cash value" is the investment feature that allows policy holders to borrow against a policy or get back money at the policy's maturity or when they drop the coverage.

Fix said the cash value depends on rate of return for the invested money and it is this that seldom is revealed by life insurance salesmen. "You can't tell the value of a policy by how much the premium is. The insurance industry has been very reluctant to let people know the rates of return on the savings portion of policies," he said.

Fix said the staff investigation expects to recommend to the five-member commission around the end of the year what types of disclosures it wants made by insurance companies.

Weather Flash flood alerts issued in state

By the Associated Press

Fresh thunderstorms dumped more heavy rains into Texas' already overflowing rivers today, prompting the issuance of flash flood warnings and the evacuation of more residents. The death toll climbed to 25 when searchers discovered four more bodies in Bandera County.

But Texas is out of the path of Tropical Storm Bess, which picked up speed during the night and churned toward the coast of Mexico. Packing winds of up to 45 mph, it presented no immediate threat to southern Texas.

Bess was borne out of a disturbance that meandered across the Caribbean last week, turning into the second tropical storm of the 1978 hurricane season.

A tropical storm becomes a hurricane if its winds reach sustained speeds of 74 mph or more.

Flash flood watches were issued for parts of Arizona, the southeastern California desert regions and northern Georgia, where heavy rains of from 2 to 6 inches fell.

Three area men added to Clements' team

Three Big Spring area residents have added their names to a list of more than 200 citizens on the Statewide Steering Committee of Democrats and Independents supporting Bill Clements for Governor of Texas. Included on the committee are James R. Campbell of Colorado City, Roger Mize of Snyder and Dr. Thomas Miller of Stanton.

In making the announcement, Clements said, "They see in me a proven businessman who will manage the State efficiently and in the best interests of all Texans, regardless of their traditional party ties."

David Dean, former campaign treasurer and legal counsel for Gov. Dolph Briscoe, is the director of Democrats and Independents for Clements.

Dean said, "The early groundswell of support Bill is finding among Democrats and Independents in this state is absolutely unprecedented for a Republican gubernatorial candidate in the history of Texas politics."

He also said, "It evidences the strong dissatisfaction and distrust that traditional Democrats and Independents sense in the Democratic gubernatorial nominee. In the past, many of these Democrats and Independents have locked arms and rallied behind the Democratic nominee. But this time, when they see a Democratic nominee, so out of step with their traditional conservative philosophy, they will vote for the best candidate on the ballot and this year that man is Bill Clements."

The statewide committee includes former key campaign workers for Gov. Dolph Briscoe; mayors from several Texas cities and towns; members of the boards of regents of the University of Texas at Austin, Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, Stephen F.

Houston judge censured

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Commission on Judicial Conduct has censured a Houston judge for removing 212 handguns from official court storage and for improper courtroom procedures.

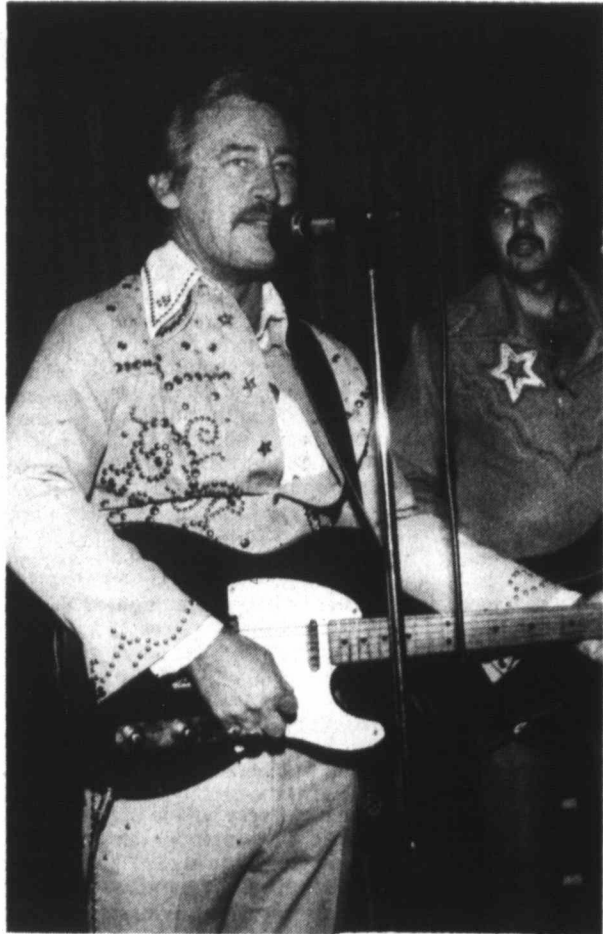

The commission voted unanimously July 21 to discipline Judge Jimmie Duncan of Harris County Criminal Court-at-Law No. 3 after an investigation's findings were made last month.

Duncan has raised defendants' bonds without justification and also has required them to stand trial on their first day in court after an arrest, the commission said.

"The practices... have the effect of coercing defendants into pleading guilty without adequate official notice of their constitutional rights," the commission report said.

"Further, the commission finds that Judge Duncan has periodically and systematically removed at least 212 handguns which had been received in evidence in his court from official court storage" and taken them home, the report said.

When the commission first began investigating the handguns, Duncan did not tell the panel he was taking them home, the report said.

Black fights black in Rhodesia

BALLA BALLA, Rhodesia (AP) — When the Rhodesian army goes into combat against black nationalist guerrillas, it is generally black who fights black.

While it is commanded mostly by white officers, the Rhodesian army is 80 percent black, and even though guerrilla leaders talk confidently of victory and have a growing force, the army also is having no trouble getting more black recruits.

At this regimental base for the Rhodesian African Rifles, for example, 600 trained black soldiers are turned out every six months.

The pay is comparatively good; food, lodging, clothing and medical care are free — and for many it is a job when times are hard.

But fight fellow blacks? "I fight for Rhodesia or Zimbabwe. I don't mind," said recruit Denica Mpala, 21. "What I mind about is that I get enough for me and my future family and the family at our home."

Zimbabwe is what Rhodesia will be called when a biracial interim government hands the reins to the nation's black majority by Jan. 1.

The Rhodesian army has been fighting over the past six years against Communist-trained insurgent forces of Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo.

Though black-majority rule is imminent for Rhodesia, there is no cease-fire in sight and a real possibility exists for a black civil war in the future. Thus the dilemma of black troops would seem acute.

But at this training depot in the sparsely populated southwest, 50 miles from Rhodesia's second largest city of Bulawayo, there is little concern expressed about the possibility of civil war.

The Rhodesian African Rifles has no difficulty getting recruits to train under a stepped up program at Balla Balla, a white boys private school until three years ago.

For the men who head here rather than become guerrillas, the need for a job is clearly a prime motive. Unemployment, always chronic, is getting worse among the 6.7 million black majority.

Soldiering is relatively lucrative. Recruits earn $960 a year, with free board, uniforms and medical care. The money is about a third of the basic pay of recruits in the army's only white regular battalion, the Rhodesia Light Infantry, but five times the average black income.

There is a pay parity between whites and blacks in senior non-commissioned and commissioned ranks.

A financial motive was evident in interviews with recruits here.

Recruit Mpala has an 11th-grade education — some four years more than most other recruits. He says he wanted to be a clerk but could not get a job or training, so he joined the police and then the army.

Jordan Sibanda, 32, who has two soldier brothers, says he stayed home in his reservation while some friends left to become guerrillas.

"Terrorists tried in 1973 to kill all my family," said Sibanda. "They said, 'Why do your brothers join the army?' I want only to live in my country. I have joined to serve my country."

Black members of the army and the predominantly black police force account for about half the 548 security force casualties of the war.

Blacks have shown courage in combat, including risking their lives for white comrades.

Danger reaches off the battlefield, too, with records showing 104 soldiers on leave were slain by guerrillas.

Energy County economy boosted

The multi-billion dollar boost that oil and gas industry operations gave to the Texas economy in 1977 was shared by the citizens of Howard County.

The marketed value of petroleum production in the county has been calculated at $140.8-million in an economic activity profile of the state's top producing counties prepared by the Dallas-based Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

"Texas' oil and gas industry remains the cornerstone of the economy of the state and of many of its counties," said the Association's president, H. B. (Hank) Harkins, Alice, independent producer and drilling company executive.

"It is imperative that the state maintain taxing and regulatory policies which will encourage the growth of the industry."

Howard was one of 201 counties last year which produced petroleum with a marketed value of $100,000 or more. The county ranked 32nd in the estimated total value of petroleum produced. The Association has computed that some 134.1-million came from the production of 14.8-million barrels of crude oil, with approximately $6.7-million attributed to an output of 7.4-million MCF of natural gas. Payments last year to owners of royalty in the county were calculated at $17.6-million.

While paying local, county and state property taxes, producers in the county also helped support state government through production tax payments estimated at $6.7-million. This included $6.2-million from crude oil output, $504,400 from natural gas.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, during 1977 some 878 employees worked for the industry in the county. The reported payroll amounted to an estimated $10.7-million.

The search for additional petroleum continued in Howard County last year. Oil and gas developers spent an estimated $28.3-million in the drilling of 164 wells, including 11 classified as wildcats. Some $7-million of that amount was lost in 23 dry holes. The 141 strikes all were oil wells.

Processing also contributed to the county's petroleum-related economy through the operation of one refinery with a daily capacity of 6,500 barrels; two carbon black plants, one petrochemical plant, and one natural gasoline processing plant with a daily capacity of 48.5-million cubic feet.

BS exploration merging with midland oil firm

MGF Oil Corporation has announced that it has signed a letter of intent with Big Spring Exploration Inc., Big Spring, and Casper, Wyo., to acquire the latter firm through a tax-free exchange of MGF's common stock for the common stock of Big Spring Exploration.

R. O. (Jack) Major, president of the Midland-based oil and gas company, said that Big Spring Exploration and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Roden Drilling Co., currently has interests in several oil and gas drilling rigs operating out of Casper, Wyo.

Major said that Big Spring Exploration would be acquired on an exchange basis of one share of MGF for each 4.819 shares of BSE. BSE currently has 850,405 shares outstanding. Big Spring is a public company with approximately 700 shareholders.

Major noted that this will mark MGF's first exposure to oil and gas exploration in the Rocky Mountains and that he expects MGF to begin an aggressive oil and gas exploration and development program in the area.

MGF recently announced that its 1978 drilling program budget is about $18 million, a portion of which will be used in the Rocky Mountains.

Major also stated that MGF is presently evaluating the possibility of moving one or more of its 22 rigs into the Rocky Mountains. MGF operates those 22 rigs in West and South Texas, along the Gulf Coast of Texas and Louisiana, with depth capabilities of up to 20,000 feet.

The acquisition is subject to a number of conditions, including approval by the board of directors of the two companies, regulatory approval by the board of directors of the two companies, regulatory approval and the acceptance of the offer by Big Spring shareholders.

MGF maintains corporate offices on the seventh floor of the Vaughn Building in Midland.

Forsan grad named to leadership unit

ALPINE — Marka Highley, May graduate of Forsan High School, is one of 20 incoming freshmen to be named to Sul Ross State University's Freshman Leadership Program by the Student Life Office.

According to Sharon Bass, assistant dean of Student Life, "The program is designed to get incoming freshmen involved in a variety of campus activities and also involved in university planning. We hope these students, in turn, will become the future leaders of the student body."

Students selected for the Freshman Leadership Program receive a $150 scholarship for each semester of their freshman year.

Ms. Highley, daughter of Mrs. Darel Highley of Big Spring, served as editor of the Forsan High yearbook this past year. She was an active participant in UIL literary contests and was named to the All-Star Cast in regional one act play competition. She was also a cheerleader and a member of the girls' basketball squad.

Hitting the Russians where they hurt

It's doubtful the Baltimore Sun or New York Times have much circulation anywhere in Russia, whether it be Moscow or Omsk.

Yet that was the basis on which a Russian court found recently that reporters from those two publications were guilty of having "slandered" Soviet television officials, and ordered them to pay costs of $1647 each and to publish retractions of what the court found to be "offensive" material in both Soviet and American newspapers.

A spokesman for the USSR State Committee for Television and Radio said the American correspondents "wanted to do moral damage to Vremya (a news program) and the whole of Soviet television." He said the Times was available in many kiosks and hotels for foreigners, and that the Baltimore Sun was received by subscribers in Russia. The circulation figures for the publications in Russia were not cited, for what seems obvious reasons.

The genesis of the trial arose from reports filed by Craig Whitney, of the Times, and Harold Piper, of the Sun. They had quoted Georgian dissident sources as saying the televised "confession" of human rights activist Zviad Gamasakhourdia was fabricated. Gamasakhourdia, in a surprise appearance at the trial — not attended by the two American correspondents — testified that his televised confession to anti-Soviet agitation was authentic.

THE PRACTICAL QUESTION for the Times and the Sun is whether they want to get their correspondents back on the job, pay the fines and publish the retractions. Certainly, covering the news from Moscow is a difficult chore for Western correspondents, what with the Kremlin's paranoid penchant for harassment of those newsmen.

There was talk in Washington that the White House, in retaliation for the verdict against Whitney and Piper, might expel five Soviet reporters based in this nation's capital.

Such an action would be ill-advised. That's simply playing the Soviet game. It would be much better if the United States were to say, in effect: You, the Russians, fear honest reporting of your governmental activities, while we in the United States are an open society. Let Tass and Pravda have free access and perhaps then there may be shown the beneficial results of open, untrammelled coverage of each nation's activities. For to take the opposite tack — a news blackout — is to foster suspicions about each other that may not be warranted.

Help needed

Around the rim

Carla Walker

Big Spring has something that no other city its size can lay claim to — a top-notch rehabilitation center for the physically handicapped.

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center does a world of good for children and adults with physical handicaps and speech impediments, in addition to other services, but the center needs community support to survive.

—If something is worth having, it is going to have a price tag, and although the tag on the cost of operating the center may seem high, when compared to the services it provides, the rate becomes reasonable — even cheap.

THOSE WHO HAVE known or been personally involved with a handicapped person who benefitted from services provided at the center — and those persons number very high in Big Spring — realize the worth of the center to our community and area.

Many times, however, the persons who most need the services are least able to afford them. Equipment is expensive, and speech and physical therapists must be paid as well as other therapy assistants, administrative and daily operation costs.

But, rather than deny the service to persons who need it but cannot afford it, the center charges on a "sliding scale," forgiving the part of the bill that a patient cannot afford to pay.

In speech therapy and physical therapy for the month of June, 1978, approximately 60 percent of the charges were forgiven. At normal charges for the services, the center would have billed for $4,071 in physical therapy and $1,936 in speech therapy.

Actual billing was in the amount of $1,602.75 in physical therapy and $781.20 in speech therapy. Of that amount, the center — by past financial history, can expect to collect roughly 70 to 80 percent.

This fact alone places the center on a somewhat shaky financial basis. According to center director Larry Bristo, the center would need a minimum annual budget of $160,000 to survive at its present status. With just over $18,000 coming from the Dora Roberts endowment fund interest, and approximately the same amount from the United Way, the center can expect some $93,000 from all regularly budgeted sources. Those also include service charges and $10,000 which comes from the city and county governments for grounds maintenance.

That leaves $67,000 — approximately 42 percent of the $160,000 to come from memorials, private individuals and other generally small donor sources.

"We cannot afford to cut down our staff of therapists if we are to keep offering the same level of services," says Bristo, "yet we could treat 30 to 50 percent more patients without increasing the staff."

Bristo explained that the speech and physical therapists are necessary to offer the services, but that there is not enough patient referrals to occupy all of the time of the therapists.

By statistics, the approximate 100,000 population area served by the center — a circle bounded by Stanton, Colorado City, Lamesa and Sterling City — there should be some 15,000 persons with some handicap.

Of that, if only 10 percent needed therapy, the patient load of the center would be around 1,500. Bristo feels that there is no reason that the center shouldn't be treating 300 to 400 different people at any given time.

"WE NEED the cooperation of doctors in getting patient referrals, and that alone would greatly supplement our income because we could take on many more patients at no additional cost — utilities and number of employees would not change for a 30 to 50 percent increase in patient load," Bristo said.

Bristo says that there are several areas of the center that need to be expanded, but cannot be without better financial standing. Among the things he lists are the addition of an occupational therapist to the staff, a medical consultant for special problems, a program for high risk babies from birth to three years old and a transportation program to bring patients to the center.

Inefficiency hasn't been a reason for the financial problems. Over 70 cents out of every dollar — based on the 1978-79 budget proposal — will go directly to patient services with less than 30 cents per dollar used to pay administration, office supplies, bookkeeping, office staff, the salary of a receptionist and other operational costs.

The problems, rather, have resulted because the local center hasn't had a steady source of community support.

Funding of other centers is accomplished by tennathons, auctions, fish fries, barbecues, danceathons, concerts, and other benefit functions where someone outside the center organizes the affair and donates the profits to the center.

All donations of any kind are tax deductible, and most benefit affairs can be staged at no cost to the organizer.

Big Spring needs to support our Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. It is a tremendous asset to the community, and it provides services close to home for our handicapped. I cannot understand having the center if the community cannot work hand-in-hand with it to provide the best and most complete services possible. It is sad to watch a beneficial, humanitarian service struggle on alone without support from the total community.

If we won't support it, we just don't deserve it.

Letelier, Pinochet

William F. Buckley Jr.

Concerning the Letelier indictments, a few observations:

1) The auspices of the assassination of Orlando Letelier are — barring a conspiracy so comprehensive as to defy the licensed limits of the imagination — on the record. It was a Chilean operation, period. That is to say, the idea of killing Letelier originated in Chile, in the government of General Pinochet. Understandably, one meditates on the extent to which our attitude towards General Pinochet is affected by these revelations.

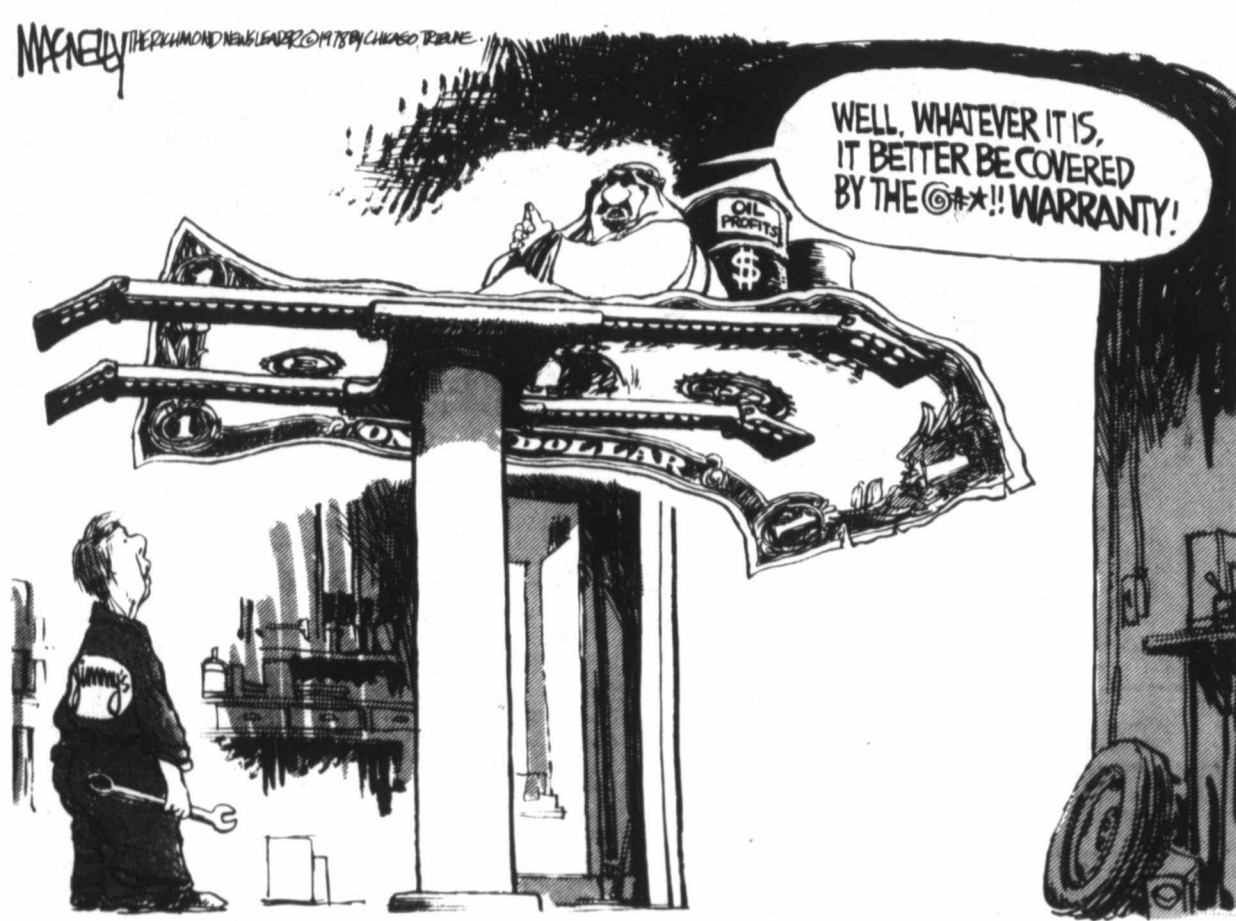

2) General Pinochet, from the beginning, vociferously denounced the assassination of Letelier and insisted that his government had nothing to do with it. He was half right. If one calls Pinochet a dictator, which it is reasonable to do, then he is for all intents and purposes "the government." But there are highly reasonable, indeed compelling grounds, for doubting that Pinochet had anything to do with the assassination; indeed, that he knew anything about it. When the President of Venezuela indirectly accused Chile of responsibility for the crime — on the occasion of memorial services for Letelier in Caracas — in October of 1976 — Pinochet publicly accused his Venezuelan counterpart of "ligeraza," a disparagement only barely on the safe side of protocol in exchanges between chiefs of state. Pinochet is too crafty to have spoken so provocatively about the innocence of Chile, if he had not believed it requested Chile to extradite the three

BUT MOST IMPORTANT, what we know about the killing of Letelier we know not merely thanks to the sleuthing of our FBI. There was a critical moment: when the United States government requested Pinochet to extradite Michael Townley, an American citizen resident in Chile. Townley was ushered out of Chile — on Pinochet's instructions. Townley was indispensable to the case, having proved to be the only talkative link to Chile. The trigger man, Suarez, was the Gordon Liddy in the affair. Although he was promised immunity from prosecution, he clammed up and spent eleven months in jail in Florida, getting out only when the grand jury's life expired. Now he is a fugitive from justice. It was certainly a cosmopolitan enterprise. The man who planted the bomb was an American. The man who detonated the bomb was a Cuban. The men who initiated the enterprise were Chilean.

3) What is General Pinochet now expected to do? It will come as something of a shock to many Americans that the Chilean judiciary is by no means entirely a creature of Pinochet, notwithstanding that Pinochet can in most situations be called "the government" of Chile. The Chilean court has overruled decisions of the executive before, and the executive has yielded.

The United States government has requested Chile to extradite the three relevant Chileans, including a former head of Chilean intelligence, DINA. Now the probability that any government anywhere would permit the extradition to another country of the present or former head of its intelligence agency, is, quite simply, remote. I doubt that we would extradite Admiral Turner to, say, Mexico, even if he were held responsible for the eruption of Popocatepetl.

But the political question aside, there is a serious legal question. Under the relevant treaty, which dates back to 1900, a Chilean is extraditable for the offense of murder, but not if the act was "political." Clearly the murder of Letelier was political. But the non-discriminatory Townley planted a bomb that murdered not only Letelier, who was driving the car, but his American secretary sitting in the front seat.

Joggers: Check out your equipment

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There are several of us in our early 50s who would appreciate your advice on this. We have read of people older than we are who have taken up jogging. One of the reasons we hesitate to start is because of our legs and feet. Mine are bothered by varicose veins and my husband has heel spurs. Would jogging be harmful? — Mrs. H. H.

Yours is a timely letter. Dr. Joseph R. Ordile, president of the American Podiatry Association, suggests Americans get "reacquainted" with their feet before launching into heavy fitness routines. "Corns, blisters, bunions or calluses can become aggravated after sudden periods of activity — such as long walks and jogging — and can stop you right in your tracks," he writes. Feet, he says, are the "basic equipment" that must be put in shape before fitness programs can begin.

I agree. Unwise jogging may have cost more in feet problems in recent years than it has paid off in general fitness. Most of us treat feet like poor relations (out of sight and out of mind). Jogging is fine. I always must say that or I get protests from jogging enthusiasts in my next mail. However, if you or your husband and friends plan on beginning it, start as a beginner should — by checking out the "basic equipment." Be fitted for good, substantial running shoes or sneakers. Buy some good athletic socks for absorption of perspiration and for providing a snug support for the ankles. While you're at it, check out another bit of equipment — your heart.

According to Dr. Ordile, many podiatrists are specializing in foot care for professional athletes. If professional athletes see the need for special foot care, certainly the amateur athlete (the jogger) needs to pay at least some attention to the problem. Your husband's heel spurs and your varicose veins would seem to rule out such exercise. Try an exercise bicycle.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You will probably consider this too silly a question to answer, but here goes. I understand that of the woman's two ovaries one produces eggs for male children and the other eggs for female children. Is this true? — Mrs. P. W.

Not silly, but not true. Nor is it true of the male sex glands (gonads). Experience tells me that would be the next question. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been getting injections of B complex, with vitamin C and calcium for the past 20 years, all together in one shot. This gives me a lift and helps my digestion. Today, I went to another doctor and told him about it. He said to stop them as the calcium could give me stones, and that I don't need this particular shot if I eat the right food. Please let me know what your advice is. — J. D.

Sounds like you got some good advice. Heed it.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager who accepted Christ recently. I think I might like to be a missionary so I can serve Christ. Do you think this is a good idea? — K. S.

DEAR K. S.: I believe every Christian should ask very sincerely what God wants him to do in his life. God wants all of us to be faithful in our everyday lives, but there are some whom God would call to be missionaries. This is a high calling, and there is still a need for people who are completely committed to Christ, and who will go to other parts of the world to share Christ.

How do you know if God is calling you to be a missionary? First, let me suggest that you need to be a student of the Word of God, and especially look at it to see what God wants to do in this world. Then you need to pray and commit your whole future to the will of God. This is not always easy, because we sometimes put our own selfish plans in the way. But yield yourself and your future to Him as sincerely as you know how. Also, find out as much as you can about the mission field. Your pastor may be able to help by suggesting some reading. You will find that it takes a special kind of person to do this sort of work, and you may not have been given the physical and emotional resources necessary for some kinds of mission work.

Your question makes me think that you have the idea that you can only serve God if you are on the mission field or involved in evangelism. This is not necessarily the case. God needs people everywhere who will live for Him. He needs people who are politicians, doctors, housewives, prison guards, assembly line workers, farmers — you name it. God can use all of us. Seek to be faithful right now where you are. I don't know if God wants you to go to the mission field, but I do know He wants you to be a witness for Him right where you are — in your school, your home, your summer job.

Yen for past

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Just about four of every 10 American families watch television nowadays on sets stamped "Made in Japan." This avalanche of Japanese TV sets has knocked most U.S. television manufacturers out of business and battered the dollar until it can no longer stand up against the yen.

In less than a decade, an astounding 22 of 28 American television makers have either failed or been taken over by bigger firms, some of them Japanese. For instance, Motorola was acquired by Matsushita, and Magnavox was taken over by a firm with ties to the same Japanese television giant.

JAPANESE IMPORTS reached a peak of 2.8 million color TV sets last year, plus most of the black-and-white sets. This not only devastated U.S. companies but cost workers in this country at least 70,000 jobs.

An insider described the situation as "an economic Pearl Harbor." There is growing evidence, indeed, that the sneak attack on the U.S. television industry was accomplished through illegal means. Federal investigators found that some Japanese firms paid kickbacks to American importers and falsified their records to avoid being found guilty of "dumping" sets wholesale on the U.S. market.

By law, foreign manufacturers are not allowed to dump their products in this country for less than they charge in their own country. Yet our sources tell us that through the use of rebates, sometimes running to $50 a set, color TVs selling in Japan for $525 are being peddled to American buyers for less than $300. Involved in the rebate investigation are such big importers as J.C. Penney, Montgomery Ward, General Electric and Sears, Roebuck.

TREASURY AND TARIFF Commission officials were strangely reluctant to take permissible action against the Japanese encroachment for seven years. Then last March, Treasury finally moved to slap the Japanese makers with $400 million in anti-dumping penalties, but a flurry of diplomatic protests forced Washington to back-pedal.

In the face of stiff Tokyo pressures on both the State and Treasury Departments, the fines were scaled back to $46 million. Investigation also shows a disturbing pattern of high-echeon former government officials who were involved in the TV decision making but are now working for private law firms with high-paying Japanese clients.

Here's what we have found out about the Mikado Connection:

—David Macdonald was a partner in the law firm of Baker and Mackenzie, which represents Mitsubishi and other Japanese clients. When he became assistant treasury secretary in 1974, he promised not to make any decisions affecting his former clients. Yet he ruled against imposing U.S. duties on Japanese electronics products, a decision that greatly benefited Mitsubishi. Macdonald, who has now rejoined his former law firm, insisted there was no conflict in his decision. "I didn't know Mitsubishi had an economic stake in that decision," he told our reporters Howie Kurtz and Vicki Warren. Macdonald also stressed that he doesn't handle the firm's Japanese clients.

—Peter Suchman was a high Treasury official involved in the TV case until last year. He is now affiliated with a law firm that represents Sanyo. "I just called them as I saw them," recalled Suchman, who insisted he does not handle Sanyo's affairs for his firm.

—Bruce Clubb joined Baker and Mackenzie after working for the U.S. Tariff Commission. At the law firm, he wrote a letter assuring Magnavox that it "can accept the rebate payments... without violating U.S. law..." The practice has been going on a long time and the Japanese government has made little effort to stop it. Clubb also saw no conflict in this. "I handle some interests of our Japanese clients but very little," he said.

—Matthew Marks was a top Treasury honcho until last year, when he joined a law firm representing the Japanese TV maker Sharp. "I'm disqualified now," he told us. "I have nothing to do" with Sharp's Treasury dealings.

—Donald Ritger was a top level official at Treasury who now toils for a law firm which handles Hitachi and other Japanese clients. "Everyone knows I can't get involved in the case," he said.

THEY WANT TO SCALE WORLD'S 10TH TALLEST PEAK — Led by Arlene Blum, second from left, an adventurous band of women leave San Francisco on Sunday for far-off Nepal on the first leg of a journey they hope will end at the icy top of towering Annapurna, the world's 10th tallest peak. Digby-Harper clan together at last

A family is never too large to hold a reunion. After 28 years, the Digby-Harper clan finally succeeded in getting together for a two-day reunion, July 29 and 30, at the Howard County Fair Barn.

The reunion was attended by 117 members of the families of Lillie Digby, 85, and Lula Harper, 92. The matriarchs are sister-in-laws, having married each other's brother, the late Ed Digby and Will Harper.

Mrs. Digby settled in Howard County in 1914 where she reared six children. All of her children were present at the reunion. They are W. W. and Raynell Patterson, Goshen, Calif.; R. L. and Irene Myrick, Big Spring; O. T. and Nollie Teague, Big Spring; Mrs. Allen (Ollie) Battle, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Digby, Odessa; and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Digby, Kingsville.

Five generations of Digby's were represented by Lillie Digby's daughter Mrs. R. L. Myrick, granddaughter

MANGLED MONEY — Doris Hanford, standing, watches Ada Grant, seated, piece together damaged money recently in Washington. Egyptian belly dancers best paid in Mid East

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The belly dancer snakes over to the table of Arab tourists in from the Gulf, seat pouring down her cleavage as he wriggles and writhes.

Suddenly, an Arab sheik darts up to the dancer and slaps a 20-pound note ($30 U.S.) to her damp body as his friends cheer.

The dancer rushes backstage, gives a quick wipe with a towel, dives into a taxicab and rides 200 yards to the next nightclub, where the scene is re-acted.

Business is frantic but booming for Egypt's belly dancers, regarded as the best and highest paid in the Middle East. Some appear in as many as five cabarets a night, and top stars earn $150,000 a year, far more than any other Arab women and more than 15 times what President Anwar Sadat makes.

with nightclubs, all showcasing at least one belly dancer a night. These nightspots are the main lure, attracting Arab tourists in droves and with them about $300 million a year in foreign exchange.

Egypt draws many Arabs from oil rich Gulf states, who escape to Cairo from their crowded, desert societies. They are the best customers the Cairo nightspots have, and, along with the basic belly dancers, Saudi and Gulf songs are always offered.

"A novice will have to give it everything she's got for $15 a night. But for a select handful of top names, just one appearance is worth $150," says Wagih Dawond, a nightclub manager. In Egypt, the average working man brings home no more than $250 a year.

However, a belly dancer has to be her own business manager. She must scour Cairo for a good back-up band, and hire assistants to keep track of her hundreds of costumes and help her with split second changes.

The working schedule is a six or seven nights a week marathon. A good dancer gives two half-hour stints at each nightclub, and dashes from the first one at midnight to as many as five more before the sun comes up. There are occasional television appearances, too. To fit the modest TV code standards, however, everything between the bra and ankles must be covered including, ironically, the belly.

No Egyptian wedding is ever complete without a belly dancer, and good dancers are usually booked for at least a couple every weekend.

It is a common boast here that every Egyptian woman can wiggle her body well, a pride that can be traced to the days of the pharaohs and their god of dancing, Bes.

"It's in our blood," says Zizi Mustafa, a leading Cairo dancer. It is usually enough to drum some oriental tunes to have an Egyptian woman start shaking.

"Find me one good dancer who says someone taught her, and I'll call her a liar," says Zizi. Her belief is shared by most of her colleagues.

"I can't teach, it's impossible," says the nubile dancer Hanan. "I can't just stop and tell someone what to do and then move to the next step," she explained.

Despite its profits, belly dancing can be a hazardous business. Dancing one night at the posh Meridian Hotel, Hanan was just getting warmed up. She danced up to a table where a dozen foreign businessmen sat, and was bending her whole body backwards over the table when her hair suddenly caught fire from a candle. Hanan ignored it till one gentleman put the fire out for her, and she gracefully finished her dance.

TwEEN 12 and 20 — Why not smoke?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dear Doctor:
I am 19 and enjoy smoking. I started smoking when I was 16 and I now smoke about a pack a day.

I know smoking is supposed to be bad for you, but I would like to know if there are any facts regarding smoking and health. I'm aware of the other bad aspects such as the cost, air pollution, smell, yellow teeth and fingers, etc.

Jason Albrecht, El Centro, Calif.

Dear Jason:
The American Cancer Society has recently published the following facts about cigarette smoking:

1. The greatest single cause of preventable death in the United States today is cigarette smoking!
2. The death rate from lung cancer for cigarette smokers is 10 times that of non-smokers!
3. On the average, a non-smoker will live 6 1/2 years longer than a smoker who smokes a pack a day.

This is just the start, the list goes on and on. Smoking is no longer considered a reasonable gamble. They are now said to be lethal — "nuff said!"

father give you away. It appears to me that there would be a little less hurt this way.

Dear Doctor:
I need some advice. I was going out with this guy for some time and I considered us pretty serious, but he broke up with me. I still like him a lot and we still do go places together, but he acts like we're just friends. Don't tell me to forget him, because I can't. He's always on my mind.

Please tell me what to do to get him to have more feelings for me.

Kim, Lodi, Calif.

Dear Kim:
There is nothing you can do to get him to have more feelings for you.

Continue to see him and when you do, just be yourself. Sooner or later he will rediscover that you are his one and only, or he will stop seeing you altogether.

Be prepared either way!

WEIGHT WATCHERS The Authority.

DEAR READERS: A few months ago I urged my readers to donate their organs after death by writing to The Living Bank for a donor card. The response was overwhelming!

I want to share a few of the heartwarming letters received by The Living Bank:

DEAR SIR: I wish to leave any part of my body that will help someone to see, or hear, or to make their kidneys function normally. I am living a healthy, normal life, but I know there are many people who aren't, so if I can donate my healthy organs after I die to someone less fortunate, it would give my life more meaning.

Please send me a donor card to carry in case God calls me home unexpectedly in an accident. I am only 14, but I know I will feel the same way when I am 18, because I have felt this way since I was 10.

CYNTHIA C.

DEAR SIR: Please send me a Living Bank donor's card to fill out. My brother, Buddy, was killed instantly in a motorcycle accident two years ago. He was 18 and healthy, and such a sweet and generous kid. I'm sure he would have willed his eyes and kidneys—and any other parts that could have been used for transplants—had he only known how to do it.

What a pity my brother's death couldn't have meant life to two people who were waiting for kidney transplants, and sight to two blind people who needed cornea transplants. I think to bury perfectly good organs is a terrible waste.

TOM G.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I think Dear Abby's column about donating one's organs should be printed in every newspaper in the world. She has changed my mind about any "organ bank."

I am a Catholic, and now I realize that God wants only my soul. I want to give the rest of me to anyone who needs it.

Please send me a dozen organ donor cards, so I can give them to others who feel as I do.

God bless all you people involved in this wonderful cause!

MRS. JOYCE F. ABBY

Dear Doctor:
I have never written to a newspaper before, but this is a problem I just can't find a solution to.

My parents are divorced and both have remarried. I live with my mother and stepfather, and see my father and his wife every other Sunday.

My boyfriend and I are planning to be wed in the summer. The problem is, I don't know who I want to give me away at the wedding. I love both my father and stepfather very much and I don't want to hurt either one.

Any help would be greatly appreciated!

Mary, Valparaiso, Ind.

Dear Mary:
It's wonderful that you have an excellent relationship with both your stepfather and your father. My advice would be to have your

Mangled money takes joy out of puzzles

WASHINGTON (AP) — "No," says Doris Hanford emphatically, she does not do jigsaw puzzles as a hobby. "I did like them at one time," she admits, but she has lost the taste in 27 years of piecing together torn, burned, mangled and mutilated money.

You see, the government replaces damaged money — dollar for dollar — as long as you have at least half of each bill.

And it's Mrs. Hanford's job, as manager of the examining branch of the mutilated currency division of the Division of Currency Claims, to verify how much money should be replaced when damaged bills are brought in.

For example, one man arrived carrying a package of money pieces and asked for a replacement.

He had hid the money in a shotgun, forgot it was there and — you guessed it — blasted fragments of federal reserve notes all over a field.

Mrs. Hanford began piecing the bits together, sent the man back to the field to search for more fragments and eventually reconstructed more than half of most of the bills.

If an individual with currency fragments, or Mrs. Hanford and her staff, cannot reconstruct more than half of a bill, then there is no reimbursement.

"We receive money that has been burned, buried, laundered, bleached, subjected to natural disasters, contaminated by chemicals, or otherwise," Mrs. Hanford commented.

Need sodium

Persons who do vigorous physical work or play and sweat profusely may need added sodium — the body loses about 1,000 grams of sodium in one quart of sweat, reports Frances Reasnovner, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

On hot days with especially hard work or play, up to seven or eight quarts of sweat can be lost per day, she adds.

Walton courted

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The line has begun to form for National Basketball Association clubs to obtain the valuable services of departing Portland Trail Blazers center Bill Walton.

Coach Willis Reid of the New York Knicks was to arrive in Portland today to woo Walton and advisers Jack Scott and John Bassett.

On Sunday, Gene Shue, newly named coach of the yet-to-be named San Diego team, paid a visit. And Scott says somebody else — he won't say who — is waiting to have a crack at getting the services of the NBA's most valuable player for 1977-78. Not only will the hiring team have to come to terms with Walton, but it also will have to make arrangements with the Blazers.

Walton, irked at the handling of his injured foot, wants to be traded from the Blazers, whom he led to the 1977 NBA championship. The story burst on Blazer-maniacal Portland Friday when somebody leaked it to reporters. The team confirmed the rumors with a terse, one-sentence announcement saying they would try to accommodate him.

Two-run homer gets Gray a major win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Gary Gray was unhappy when he walked into the clubhouse of the Tucson Toros a couple of weeks ago and noticed his name was missing from the starting lineup of the Class AAA Pacific Coast League team.

Then manager Rich Donnelly gave him the explanation: he was being called up to the major leagues. Donnelly gave him a parting shout: "Don't come back!"

Gray made a big move in that regard Sunday night, slamming a two-run homer high against the left-field foul pole in the ninth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians and a sweep of the three-game series.

Mike Hargrove, who had singled with two outs, scored ahead of him.

"So far, it's my biggest thrill," an excited Gray said later. After five years of hitting above .300 in the minors, this has been Gray's first real chance in the big leagues. John Matlack, who evened his pitching record at 9-9, shared the ecstasy.

"He loved it. He was like a 10-year-old kid, jumping all over me," Gray said of Matlack, who has one of the best earned run averages in the major leagues but has lost a number of decisions this year because of lack of runs by his teammates.

Locals win Snyder toumey

SNYDER — Howard Stewart and Royce Cox of Big Spring teamed up to finish third in the championship flight of the 2nd annual Western Texas College Golf Partnership Tournament here Sunday.

Cox and Stewart shot a low-ball score of 133, which left them three shots back of the co-leaders, Britt Lindsey-Mike Wallace and Miller Scott-Lee Baird.

Waller sunk a 40-foot putt to end the sudden death match with Scott and Baird.

Braves, too, have Astros number down

ATLANTA (AP) — One of these days, Larry McWilliams may finish something he starts.

But after notching his fourth victory without a loss with a 3-2 win over Houston Sunday, the Atlanta Braves rookie lefthander wasn't complaining.

"Oh, I guess everyone has the goal of finishing the game, and I'm sure I will finish one eventually," McWilliams said. "You just go out and throw as hard as you can."

McWilliams gave up just four hits before being lifted in the sixth inning for relief ace Gene Garber, who recorded his 16th save of the season. Garber has now saved all four of McWilliams' victories.

The McWilliams-Garber team combined to end Pete Rose's 44-game hitting streak last week.

Houston starter J.R. Richard, 11-10, was tagged with the loss despite an impressive seven-inning stint in which he allowed just five hits while striking out 11.

"Both pitchers pitched well," observed Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "Richard has pitched several good games that he lost. He kept us in the game today and that's all you can ask of a pitcher."

Houston took an early lead when Bob Watson led off the second with his 12th home run of the year, extending his hitting streak to 15 games. But the Braves quickly tied the score in their half when Jeff Burroughs led off with a triple down the right field line and scored on a single by rookie Bob Horner, who celebrated his 21st birthday Sunday.

Atlanta's Rowland Office doubled and scored with two out in the third on a single by Gary Matthews. The Braves went ahead by two in the sixth, when Office led off with a double and later scored on Horner's sacrifice fly. The Astros scored in the eighth on Julio Gonzalez' first homer of the year.

Returns to winning ways

Mahaffey hangs tough

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — John Mahaffey, who's known personal and playing woes on the pro golf tour, talked of new life after his sudden-death triumph in the PGA Championship.

"It's been a long road back with lots of disappointments, but this makes up for every bit of it," he said after his 12-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole Sunday gave him victory over Jerry Pate and Tom Watson.

"I really think I deserve it. I've worked hard," added the 30-year-old Texan, who early Sunday was 7 strokes behind the front-running, seemingly secure Watson.

The victory, just the second of Mahaffey's eight-year pro career, brought him $50,000, a 10-year exemption from qualifying for PGA tour events, and hugs and kisses from his new wife, Susie.

game deteriorated," he said.

"But now I'm healthy. And I've got a more than healthy marriage," he said as his second wife sat nearby with an armful of yellow roses.

"I've got a wife that works me. She won't let me home from practice until it gets dark, and I really think it's paid off."

Mahaffey spent long hours early last week on the practice tee. But the pretournament talk was of Jack Nicklaus, four-time PGA champion.

As it turned out, Nicklaus didn't make the cut after two rounds, and Watson took command, shooting 67-69-67 to drop 10-under par and take a 5-stroke lead into Sunday's final holes.

Watson led by 7 strokes after he birdied the fourth hole Sunday to drop 11-under-par overall.

But after an eagle on the ninth hole, he three-putted the 10th to begin a slide that left him at 8-under 276 after 72 holes. His final round 73 left him in a deadlock with the Pate, who shot a 68, and Mahaffey, who had a 66.

Pate, who began the day at 5-under, missed a 4-foot putt on the 18th hole that would have won it.

Mahaffey, who had a 75 in the first round Thursday, took the lead at 9-under-par with a birdie on the 14th hole Sunday. But he bogeyed the 16th to drop back into a tie and remind himself of his previous U.S. Open collapses.

The first three-way playoff in the 60-year history of the PGA Championship followed.

All three players parred the first hole. Then came Mahaffey's winning birdie on the second.

The $50,000 top prize raised his tour earnings for the year to $91,764, nearly BASEBALL'S OLD AND NEW — Burleigh Grimes, 85, former Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher from 1918 to 1926, autograph's a baseball for Gregory Munzel, 2, from Chicago Sunday. Grimes was inducted in the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1964.

But don't get the impression pro golf has been all green grass and glory for Mahaffey, who leaped into the air with elation while his winning putt was still inches from the hole.

In 1975, he lost the U.S. Open in a playoff with Lou Graham. A year later, he had a cozy lead in the same championship before Pate, then a rookie sensation, overtook him with a birdie on the last hole.

Then came a divorce from his first wife, a drinking problem, an elbow injury sustained during an swing, a broken hand sustained in a fall from a ladder and the collapse of a career that had earned him over $300,000 in three years.

"I really don't want to talk about the past. There were a lot of personal problems. There were injuries. And all of it culminated in one thing — my

Seeking money, tournaments-won records Lopez wins her eighth

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Mickey Wright's 15-year-old record of 13 tournament wins in a single year is in danger — Nancy Lopez has her eyes on it.

Lopez, the wonder girl of modern golf, has two ambitions. One is to break Wright's record and the other is to be the first girl to win $200,000 in a single year. Judy Rankin held the record with $150,734 won in 1976, but Lopez already has beaten that by picking up $15,000 for winning the European women's championships at Sunningdale Sunday.

And although this is Lopez's first year as a professional, the two ambitions do not seem farfetched.

The Sunningdale win brought her tally so far this year to eight and there are around 13 more tournaments still to go.

"It's going to be hard to beat Mickey's record," said Lopez. "I've got to get a move on."

"And I'd like to be the first to win $200,000 in a year. It can be done — I've got through a bad patch and my confidence is coming right back to me. You feel like a champion when you can go out on top and stay there. It makes me feel good."

Lopez sliced through the field of 80 consistently after shooting an opening-round 1-over-par 73, good for eighth place. She followed that with a 71 and a 72 and went into the final round Sunday in the lead, 6-under par.

She putted her way to victory, not the slightest bit bothered by sudden and unexpected surges through the field by Mary Dwyer and Joann Carner, both of whom were pressing her hard midway through the round.

Dwyer, Carner and Sally Little of South Africa — who had led for the first two rounds — all finished with 4-under-par 292s for the 6,174-yard par-74 course, three strokes behind Lopez.

Undeterred by a couple of bogeys which brought her down to 5-under and even with her main rivals, Lopez kept her head and got back to 7-under with Carner and Dwyer both back in the clubhouse and only Little, who was playing in the same group with her, to worry about.

"I knew after I birdied the 14th that all I needed were pars on the last four holes. So I concentrated on keeping the ball down the middle and made it," she said after her victory.

During the tournament's four rounds, only Lopez and Little were consistent. First Laura Baugh, then Vivian Brownlee, then Betsy King burst through to challenge for the lead. But all faded.

A stroke behind Little, Carner and Dwyer came Barbara Barrow, Pat Bradley, Hollis Stacey and Jerilyn Britz, with King and Shelly Hamlin at 2-under. These, together with Jan Stephenson of Australia, and Debbie Massey, were the only ones to crack the four-round par-296.

Three join immortals at Cooperstown today

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Mathews waited 10 years for today.

Five of those years made up the required time after retirement before a ballplayer can be considered for the Hall of Fame. The others were spent in anxious anticipation and, until last January, with the same results.

"I anticipated it each year, especially last year," said Mathews, who was inducted today into the Hall of Fame along with the late Larry MacPhail and Addie Joss. "I was disappointed when I missed. This year I fought it, used reverse psychology. I didn't want to get my hopes up again and not make it."

Mathews easily made the Hall this year, collecting 310 votes out of 379 cast, 25 more than the 75 percent required for election. In 1977, the slugging third baseman with the Braves in Boston, Milwaukee and Atlanta, and later a Houston Astro and Detroit Tiger, trailed only Ernie Banks, the only selectee that year.

"Ernie and I are the only infielders to hit over 500 homers," said Mathews, who is tied with Banks for ninth on the all-time home run list with 512. "I thought when Ernie got in, so would I."

"But I would have waited another 10 years if I had to."

Mathews, who played 17 years in the majors, with a .271 lifetime average, holds the major league record for most home runs by a third baseman, the National League record for most consecutive seasons with 30 or more home runs (nine, 1953-1961), the NL mark for most games played at third base (2,154) and the most homers in a season by an NL third baseman (47 in 1953).

He also managed the Braves from Aug. 7, 1972, through July 21, 1974.

MacPhail, the "Barnum of Baseball," was the game's first great innovator and was responsible for major league night games, a pension plan, Old Timers' Day, airplane travel by ball clubs and many other newfangled notions that are accepted as part of the game today.

Joss, who hurled nine years for Cleveland from 1902-1910, hurled a perfect game, another no-hitter, seven career one-hitters and had a 1.88 lifetime earned run average. The veterans' committee waived the 10 years of major league service rule to induct Joss.

Grin and Berra it

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dale Berra, hitless in seven games with the Pirates, says he doesn't plan to change his batting style.

"The longer you go without a hit, the easier it is to take," he said Sunday after failing to reach base for the 23rd time since being called up from the Columbus Clippers.

Berra was asked if he felt mounting pressure to produce a hit.

"It's like Willie Stargell said the other day," he said, "if a guy gets 3,000 hits, he's got to get up to bat about 10,000 times to do it."

Berra, son of New York Yankees coach Yogi Berra, batted .280 in 99 games in the International League.

He appeared in 17 games with the Pirates last year after being called up when second baseman Rennie Stennett broke his ankle and batted .175 in 40 at bats.

Hot dogs on the raceway

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — An 18-year-old hot dog stand vendor was killed Sunday night after being hit by race cars as he attempted to cross the back straightaway of the Toledo Speedway track.

The victim was Timothy P. Downs of Utica, Mich., who was pronounced dead at the scene by a Lucas County coroner's investigator.

Police said Downs was attempting to cross the track to reach his car and obtain more supplies for his concession stand when he was hit. They said he was decapitated and his body was knocked 171 feet from the point of impact.

At least three cars collided and skidded into the infield while trying to avoid the body, but there were no injuries reported to the drivers. The rest of the racing card was called off after Downs was pronounced dead.

Top dog ringer hits 84%

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Walter R. Williams Jr. of Chino, Calif., has won men's World Horseshoe Pitching Championship, registering a 34-1 record for the six-day event.

The student at Chaffey Junior College in Alta Loma, Calif., also had the top ringer percentage in the competition at 84.8.

Williams came into the final seven-game round Sunday with a 28-0 mark. He was two games ahead of 1977 runnerup Glen Henton of Maquoketa and three ahead of defending champion Elmer Hohl of Ontario, Canada, a six-time world champ.

The young Californian won his first four games while Henton lost his first three, leaving Hohl, who won his first four, as the only competitor with a chance to stop the young Californian.

Williams, down 45-44 to Hohl after being behind most of the fifth game, scored the next six points to win 50-45 and clinch the title. He then lost his next game to Henton, 50-28, and won his final contest.

Texas topped by Okie rodeo?

HURON, S.D. (AP) — Oklahoma captured the 30th National High School Rodeo Finals team title Sunday with 2,824.51 points.

Texas, the 1976-77 team champion, was second with 2,380.51 points.

Kathy Fletcher, 18, of Dayton, Wash., collected the most individual points with 887.14 for the national All-around girls title.

She was the national pole-bending champion last year and repeated that win as well as placing third in barrel racing.

Freshman sister Kelli placed fourth in cow cutting to help boost Washington to third in the team points.

"Four-cylinder crybaby" restrained from fight

Houstonian Foyt wins Texas Prix

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Battling A.J. Foyt silenced any "over-the-hill" whispers Sunday with a brilliant victory in the Texas Grand Prix and then slapped a fellow race car driver who was unhappy with the four-time Indianapolis 500 winner.

"This was a very important victory for me because it's been a tough year," said the 43-year-old Foyt, who averaged 156.5 miles an hour in his red Coyote V-8. "I plan to go two more years if I don't get hurt or crippled up."

Foyt said "My crew worked like it was supposed to" in the yellow-flag marred 200-mile Indy car race. "They finally forgot what heroes they were."

Foyt, of Houston, hadn't won a U.S. Auto Club race this year and things looked dark Sunday when his crew discovered a radiator support had snapped just 10 minutes before the race at the Texas World Speedway.

Quick work got Foyt on the track just in time.

"The crew was finally on the ball," said Foyt, who took the lead to stay just 25 laps before the checkered flag.

Foyt said, "I was nervous I might run out of gas but I was ready to burn a valve if I had to."

He outdueled fellow Texan Johnny Rutherford for his 60th championship car victory.

Foyt was involved in an incident with fellow driver Steve Krisloff.

Foyt said, "I slapped him because he was giving me some smart mouth...I'm not listening to that from anybody."

The incident occurred in the winners' circle after Foyt said Krisloff had accused him of blocking out.

"He said I cost him a lot of time and I just reached out and popped him one," said Foyt. "I would have done more than that if I could."

Tiant scattered eight hits as the Boston Red Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-0 and Hunter hurled a five-hitter to pace the New York Yankees to a 3-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

In 1968, I blew smoke by everybody. I threw twice as hard as anybody and I was the best starting pitcher in the big leagues," said Tiant, 8-4, after recording his first victory since June 24.

"Now I think pitching more, and I've been pitching just as good as in '68," he added, referring to the season he won 21 games.

Hunter, who didn't retire a batter and gave up six first-inning runs against Cleveland 11 days ago, pitched his first shutout and complete game of the season as the Yankees took two of three games from the Orioles this weekend.

Hunter struck out six and walked one in extending his scoreless streak to 17 consecutive innings. The 32-year-old veteran blanked Texas on three hits for eight innings in his last start.

Chris Chambliss gave Hunter everything else he wanted — runs — when he delivered a bases-loaded two-run single in the first.

Graig Nettles added an RBI single in the sixth to close out the scoring.

In other American League action, Detroit blanked Chicago 8-0, Kansas City routed Toronto 12-5, Oakland swept a doubleheader from Seattle by identical 4-3 scores, California edged Minnesota 4-3 and Texas nipped Cleveland 3-2.

Red Sox 4, Brewers 0 — Rick Burleson's RBI single capped a three-run second inning as Boston handed Milwaukee its ninth loss in the last 13 games.

"We're still in second place, and that's great," Brewer Manager George Bamberger said.

Angels 4, Twins 3 — Carney Lansford's one-out ninth-inning single scored Ken Landreaux from second base as California defeated Minnesota and rolled to its fifth victory in the past six games.

Don Baylor's home run, his 24th of the season, off Twins' starter Geoff Zahn tied the game 3-3 in the eighth inning.

California's starter Nolan Ryan struck out 10 to regain the AL strikeout lead from New York's Ron Guidry, 174 to 173.

East coast, west coast, all around the town...

Old hates flame in S.F., L.A.

Since moving to the West Coast in the late 1960s, the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants haven't had too many glowing moments reminiscent of their flaming baseball rivalry in New York.

This season, however, is different.

As they once did at Ebbets Field and the Polo Grounds, the Dodgers and Giants are getting the best out of their association — and the crowds are loving each competitive moment.

On Sunday, 54,723 showed up at Candlestick Park in San Francisco to watch the Dodgers beat the Giants 5-1 and put more of a squeeze on the hot National League West race.

The defeat knocked the Giants out of first place for the first time since June 8, allowing Cincinnati to move into the top spot by percentage points with a 3-1 victory over San Diego. The Dodgers remained in third place, 2½ games back.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies took a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and 5-0, the Montreal

Expos stopped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping the nightcap 4-3, the Atlanta Braves defeated the Houston Astros 3-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the New York Mets 3-1.

Hooton pitched a four-hitter and Reggie Smith drove in three runs in the Dodger victory. Smith drove in the Dodgers' first two runs with a double in the first inning and Lee Lacy also belted a two-run double off San Francisco starter Bob Knepper, who retired only one batter before leaving.

Smith's 21st home run for the season, off Charlie Williams in the fifth, gave the Dodgers their final run. Hooton beat the Giants a fifth straight time, giving up a run in the sixth on Jim Dwyer's RBI single.

Reds 3, Padres 1 — Johnny Bench's tie-breaking sacrifice fly in a three-run seventh inning led Cincinnati over San Diego. Prior to Bench's game-winning RBI, Randy Jones had permitted only one fly ball, handcuffing the Reds with low-breaking sinkers.

Fred Norman, recently demoted to the bullpen after struggling as a starter, got the victory in relief of Bill Bonham. Norman, 10-6, struck out five of the six batters he faced. Doug Bair pitched the last two innings to record his 21st save.

Phillies 3-5, Pirates 2-0 — Larry Berra singled home two runs in the fourth inning to lead Philadelphia over Pittsburgh in the first game of their doubleheader as the Pirates' Willie Stargell set an all-time major league strikeout record.

Dick Ruthven gave up three hits and struck out eight batters, including Stargell's record-breaking in the ninth. It was the 1,711th time that Stargell has fanned in his career and sent him past Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees in that category.

Steve Carlton pitched a three-hitter, drove in a run and scored once to pace the Phillies to their second-game victory.

Ridin' fence

Shame on you with Marj Carpenter
Times change and so do styles and different people have upset different people in different decades.
For instance, in the '40s during World War II, I was college age. We wore bright red lipstick and wouldn't be caught dead without it. We wore short skirts, which was patriotic because of the war years and we were saving on material.
But only "bad girls" wore mascara and eye makeup. Or, so we believed.
When my own girls left for college in the late '60s, everybody who was anybody wore eye shadow. And again they wore short skirts.
But only "bad girls" wore heavy dark red lipstick. Or so they believed.
Pecos High School, where they graduated, had skirt length requirements and so to get the wardrobe ready for college, I had to sit around and take up hems to make the skirts short enough.
Back in the '30s, when Jean Harlowe first came out as a blonde, peroxide became popular. Everybody whispered about the girls who were nery enough to peroxide their hair.
Later, in the late '30s and early '40s, henna became popular and suddenly there was a rash of red heads. Nobody was quite sure, but

Texas screwworms cases

MISSION - Additional pressure was put on Texas livestock producers and on the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) screwworm eradication program the first 11 days of July, says Dr. James Wommack.
In the first 11 days of July, six counties recorded their first 1978 screwworm cases and the Texas count climbed from 121 to 173 cases. Wommack, Southwest Regional Director for Veterinary Services of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), says 41 Texas counties have talked screwworm cases this year.
Area counties reporting screwworm cases not their first for the year included Howard, Glasscock, Mitchell and Borden counties.
In Howard County, L. E. Hamlin of Big Spring found a single screwworm case in a cattle dehorning wound. Jack Berry, also of Big Spring, reported the Buses will leave the Civic Center for a tour of various crop demonstrations carried out during the year.

No charge will be made for the tour, according to Bob Benson, Mitchell County Agriculture Agent.
Those wishing to attend a noon luncheon at the Civic Center will pay $3.50. The lunch will be catered.
Upwards to 225 people are expected to participate in the tour.

Noah the boad's disappearance exaggerated

CHICAGO (AP) - The reports of Noah the boad's disappearance were greatly exaggerated, Greg Ellis now says, and he told the story only in the belief police might work harder to find his stolen car.
Ellis, 24, a student at Kent College of Law, reported his car was stolen Wednesday night while he was at work as a high school security guard.
Along with the car, he said, the thieves acquired his pet boad constrictor which was asleep under the car's front seat.
Police found the car undamaged Friday in Rosehill Cemetery not far from the scene of the crime. But alas, no Noah.
Ellis conceded to police that the snake story was a fabrication which he had told news media in the belief it might help recovery of his car sooner.
No charges were filed against Ellis, because a false report never was filed with police.

Average family income last year: $19,200

WASHINGTON (AP) - For every $1 earned at farming after subtracting expenses, farm families earned $1.52 from income sources away from the farm, new Agriculture Department statistics show.
In 1977, pay from other jobs and sources such as Social Security accounted for almost 61 percent of farmers' incomes - the highest percentage in the 44 years the department has been keeping the records.
Farm earnings became the dominant source of income for the farm population in 1967, when it accounted for 51.4 percent, compared to 40 percent just seven years earlier.
Since then, only during the boom years for grain farmers in 1973 and 1974 did farming take the lead again as the principal way of making a living.
In 1975, off-farm income accounted for 56.6 percent of farmers' net income, with the proportion rising to 59 percent in 1976, the same level as in 1971.
Net farm income last year was $20.1 billion, a drop of $1

A small star or a brown spot pasted on the cheekbone was supposed to accent the beauty of the rest of your face.
And then the hairdos. When I was a little girl, Shirley Temple was a little girl too and curls were definitely in. I had long straight hair or braids and hated them.
By the time, my girls came up through the years and I was still busy trying to curl their hair, I discovered they

Hustle 3 Annual retreat shapes
This is a busy time here at the Chamber (the staff says - when isn't it busy?) Well it's an especially busy time and an especially important time.
Many of you know that plans are being made for the annual retreat which will be held by the Chamber Board and the Committee Chairmen later this month.
What you may not know is that the meeting will be of considerable importance to the entire Big Spring Area - based on the response from you - our citizens. That response from you, in the form of ideas and suggestions written on stationery, paper towels or even an old paper sack, will form the framework for our 1979 Program of Action. All response will be considered - so your idea will be just as good as the next one or maybe even better.
This is your Community! What do you want your Chamber to do in 1979?
By the way - a retreat is held at a place away from home in order to minimize distraction and to provide an opportunity to concentrate on problems and work out solutions and develop programs in an uninterrupted atmosphere. Attendees pay their own expense.
Another activity that is of vital importance is the forthcoming election of Chamber Directors. Each year we elect 5 of the 15 directors, who will serve for 3 years on the board. You should know that these men and women are necessarily of the very top leadership in our community. They represent the membership in its entirety and not just a group or fraction of the people. They devote a considerable amount of time, effort and some expense to be a part of the action team that sets the policy for the Chamber and directs the efforts of organization.
The members of the nominating committee are
