President Appoints Warren Top Justice

Nomination Due To Go To Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 —UP— President Eisenhower Wednesday chose Gov. Earl Warren of California to be chief justice of the United States.

The tall, handsome Californian, at age 62, becomes the 14th man in U. S. history to occupy the nation's highest judicial position.

Warren succeeds Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky, who died of a heart attack Sept. 8.

Mr. Eisenhower announced the recess appointment at a news conference, his first formal meeting with reporters since July 22.

Warren's formal nomination will be sent to the Senate when Congress reconvenes in January.

Confident of Success

Mr. Eisenhower told the crowded news conference he is confident Warren will make a great chief justice.

He said he expects Warren in Washington for the opening next Monday of the 1953-54 term of the high tribunal.

Mr. Eisenhower said he had been thinking about Warren for the job since Vinson died.

He said the reason he selected Warren was that he is a man of integrity, honesty, possessed of a middle-of-the-road philosophy and experienced in the law as well as the operation of government.

After a secret face-to-face talk with Warren in California Sunday, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., submitted his formal recommendation for filling the vacant chief justiceship to the President Tuesday.

Merely a Formality

This action, however, was merely a formality, Mr. Eisenhower, according to high administration sources, had settled on Warren before he went through the motions of receiving Brownell's recommendation.

Warren's appointment marks the first time a Republican chief executive has named a man to the Supreme Court since President Hoover appointed Benjamin Carozo of New York an associate justice in March, 1932.

Mr. Eisenhower and Brownell were in consultation over the appointment ever since Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson died Sept. 8.

Mr. Eisenhower will submit the California Republican's name to the Senate soon after Congress convenes in January. Republican leaders anticipate no difficulty in getting confirmation.

Warren was understood to have

TO PLAN STRATEGY

Churchill To Ask Big Three Meet

PARIS, Sept. 30 —UP—Prime Minister Winston Churchill has decided to ask for a meeting soon with President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel, reliable diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

The sources said the purpose of the Big Three meeting to be proposed by Churchill would be to co-ordinate western strategy and seek a Big Four conference with Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov.

Churchill returns home Wednesday amid reports that he is undismayed over the latest Soviet cold shoulder to a Big Four meeting. He was also said to be convinced Britain must do everything possible to make the European army project a reality.

Churchill's decision to accept the ties between Britain and the six-nation European Defense Community would go far toward meeting demands of the French national assembly. French deputies have been holding off approval of the revolutionary plan for obtaining a controlled German rearmament.

British sources say Churchill is at least warmer to the idea of the EDC than he has been and has approved steps worked out by both British and French technicians for linking London to the army project.

Although Churchill is still unwilling to consider British membership in EDC, he is said to have approved plans to have Britain sit in on the European army council in matters concerning her.

Britain would also maintain the closest possible liaison between her troops and the 1.5 million-member force of the six continental nations, informed sources said.

Engineer Sees Need For New Water Sources

DALLAS, Sept. 30—UP—A United States Geological Survey engineer said that by 1970, Dallas, Fort Worth and the cities between must clean up the Trinity River and share the water if they are to have enough to meet their demands.

Trigg Twitchell, water resources engineer for the survey, told the Technical Club of Dallas Tuesday that the average daily flow of the Trinity in the Dallas-Fort Worth area in 1951 was more than the daily use of water in New York.

Twitchell said present reservoirs will probably provide enough water for Fort Worth and Dallas until 1970. But after that, he said, some new source must be found.

If Red River water is added to Dallas water, he said, the water bill for each resident will go up $25 to $50 a year—because of either the need for municipal water softening equipment, the cost of which would be added on to water bills, or because of the cost of added soap and more frequent replacement of plumbing that will be required if no such municipal equipment is installed.

He said the use of West Fork water, properly treated, would be cheaper than Red River water and just as safe.

Twitchell also proposed that an electric utility be persuaded to use sewage from Dallas or Fort Worth in a steam generating plant. This would mean that the sewage would be returned from the electric plant partly purified and then could be treated to make it safe for human consumption again.

Californian Has 40 Years Of Law

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 30—UP—Earl Warren has had nearly 40 years of training for the nation's top judicial job — that of chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court.

For almost all of his adult life, he has lived with law books, helped make laws or administer them.

Although he has never served as a judge, he has been a lawyer, district attorney, state attorney general and governor.

Philosophy Hard To Define

Like the late Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, Warren comes from a family of modest means. He was born the son of a Norwegian railroad brakeman in Los Angeles on March 19, 1891.

Warren has a hard-to-define political philosophy which he says is based on the belief the people want "social progress but are dead set against socialism."

It's a political outlook which has won him some enemies within his own Republican party in California and, from time to time, has irritated such organizations as the American Medical Association and the Chamber of Commerce. But it's a political philosophy which has never failed to attract the voters of both major parties in California.

An Able Administrator

Even his critics admit Warren has been an able administrator and is a man of high personal integrity.

While he has reached the age where many men are thinking about retiring, Warren shows no signs of slowing up and appears to be as active and robust as ever. He is fond of fishing and hunting and enjoys those sports as often as his public duties permit.

The new chief justice also is an avid baseball fan and whenever possible during football season he attends games at his alma mater, the University of California.

Sick Three Times

Warren has been sick only three times in the 11 years he was governor.

Probe Asked On Food Price Deal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 —UP— Congress was urged Wednesday to make its own investigation of the "spread" between food prices paid by the public and prices received by farmers.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), back from a tour of Minnesota farm areas, said he will ask the Senate agriculture committee to look into the "exorbitant" difference between farm and retail food costs.

Calling the retail farm price spread a "national scandal," he said the farmer's share of the food dollar is fast declining and an investigation is "long overdue."

Humphrey said such an inquiry should include a study of freight rates, processing and handling costs, and profits by meat packers.

Begin 'Middleman' Probe

The Agriculture Department announced last Saturday it has begun an investigation of the middleman's profit in meat.

Administration farm policies, meanwhile, were under attack by Democrats on two fronts Wednesday.

Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) accused the administration of "ham-stringing" Democratic farm programs and threatening to "throw the farmer on the mercy of the market place." He said Democrats intend to "force the farm issue" in Congress next year, and will demand support of farm prices at 100 per cent of the "fair price" parity level. Present law provides props on seven basic crops at 90 per cent of parity.

To Ask Special Session

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said he will ask President Eisenhower to call a special session of Congress if the Agriculture Department does not provide relief for drouth - stricken Missouri farmers. He said if the department does not act soon half the cattle farmers in his state will go bankrupt.

On the market side of the food picture, meat continued to pour into markets in record quantities. The Agriculture Department said 388,000,000 ponds of meat were produced under federal inspection last week, 1 per cent more than the previous week and 25 per cent above last year.

Distraught Father Awaits Word On Kidnaped Youngster

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30—UP—Millionaire auto dealer Robert Greenlease sat by the telephone in his suburban mansion Wednesday waiting for word from the kidnaper who took his brown-eyed six-year-old son from a convent school two days ago.

The 71-year-old father, near collapse after two days of anxious waiting, offered a "blank check" to the kidnapers if they would return his son, Bobby, alive.

But Kansas City detectives reported there had been no word from the red-haired woman who posed as Bobby's aunt Monday to spirit him away from the fashionable Institute of Notre Dame de Sion, where he was a first grader.

The most significant tip Tuesday led police to a dead end. A truck driver in Johnson county, Kansas, across the state line from Kansas City, Mo., told authorities he had seen a pickup truck occupied by a man, a woman and a child dressed in clothing similar to that worn by Bobby. He said he thought the woman was trying to hide the child.

Sheriff Normal Williams of Johnson county said his deputies worked for hours trying to trace the truck, but with no success.

Greenlease, whose wealth stems from Cadillac auto dealerships, said he was ready to "do anything" to get the boy back.

Speculation was growing strong the abduction was not aimed at collecting ransom. Police point out ransom kidnapers usually are quick to make their demands for money.

This left the possibility Bobby was stolen by a deranged woman with an overpowering desire to possess a child.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was reported to be taking part in the cautious investigation of the kidnaping, but FBI agent-in-charge James H. Robey answered all questions with a "no comment." The investigation was being handled with extreme care lest the boy's life be endangered.

Kansas City banks Tuesday offered to open their vaults at any hour of the day or night to supply the currency that might be needed to meet a ransom demand.

'Iron Stomach' Due To Retire

OPELIKA, Ala., Sept. 30 —UP—Doctors removed two pounds of broken glass, old razor blades and carpet tacks from the stomach of Robert E. Reed when he complained of a tummy ache.

Reed, "The Man With the Iron Stomach" in a carnival, said he will look for a new job when he gets out of the hospital.

Police Seeking Bicycle Owner

Somewhere in Pampa there is a boy who has lost his bicycle and now is walking instead of riding.

However, if he will go to the Pampa police station he will find his bike.

Chief of Police Jim Conner said today that he is holding a boy's bicycle, which was found several days ago on the lawn of the First Christian church, E. Kingsmill and Starkweather, and brought to the station.

It is a black and orange Schwinn bike that is locked at the fork above the front wheel. The owner can have the bike by proving ownership.

Prowler Scared By Barking Dog

A dog scared off a prowler at 602 N. Starkweather Tuesday night about 10 o'clock, according to a report received by Pampa police.

No one saw the prowler, Chief of Police Jim Conner said, but it was thought he possibly was the "Peeping Tom" who has been seen on a number of occasions in that vicinity.

Police were told that a dog owned by the occupants of the Starkweather address chased the prowler away.

If it comes from a hardware store, we have it, Lewis Hardware. Adv.

New Applications Required For Emergency Drouth Feed

Activity in the emergency feed allotment program was at a standstill today, awaiting further orders before accepting applications for drouth emergency feed.

Miss Evelyn Mason, manager of the Gray County Production and Marketing association office, said that a telegram was received Tuesday from the state drouth committee by Clyde Carruth, county committee chairman, advising the local committee to disregard all old applications and new applications accepted from producers. "Do not accept any new applications until additional instructions are received," the telegram added.

Reports from Austin indicated that cattlemen may once again renew their requests for feed for pastureless cattle. However, Miss Mason pointed out that her office could take no new applications at this time.

"We will have to wait until we receive further instructions from the state committee before taking any new requests," she said. It should be only a matter of a few days, however, before the instructions are received, she added.

Bug 'Invasion' Reported Here

There was quite a bit of discussion along the main stem today in regard to the millions of little green bugs which were seen Tuesday night flitting around porch lights, street lights and downtown show windows.

The minute green bugs, apparently brought out by the continued warm weather, were believed to be some sort of aphid.

County Officials Prepare Tax Rolls

Though Thursday is supposed to be the first day that Gray County residents can pay their taxes, it will probably be about 10 days before they can do so.

The 1953 tax roll should be made up and approved by the comptroller in Austin by Oct. 10, according to Jack Back, chief deput in the county tax office.

Office employes have been working steadily—even nights—the last few weeks to get the tax roll ready for the estimated 10,000 persons on the books, Back said today.

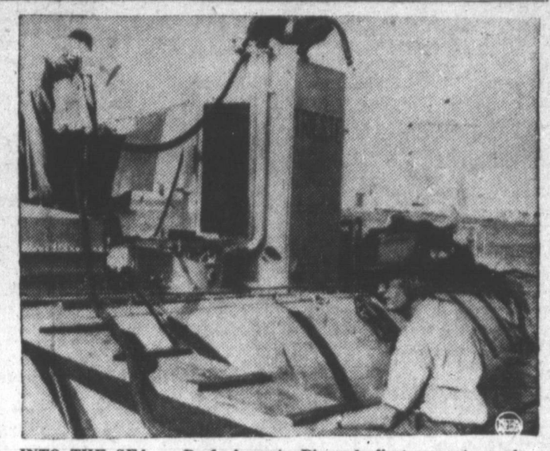

Although residents have till Jan. 31 to pay their taxes, they receive small-percentage cuts if they pay early: three per cent in October; two percent, November; and one per cent, December. If they wait till after Jan. 31, however, there are penalties 1½ per cent each month till July 1 when they're hit for penalty, interest and costs.

One thing, though, will get underway Thursday. Residents can pay their $1.75 poll tax anytime up till Jan. 31.

INTO THE SEA — Prof. Auguste Piccard, first man to explore the stratosphere more than 10 miles above the earth, has gone the other way. Today he descended almost two miles into the sea to set a new depth record. Piccard and his son, Jacques, dived 10,334 feet in a strange, banana-shaped undersea craft that the 69-year-old Swiss-born scientist invented for exploring the ocean depths. Previous record was 6,890 feet, almost a mile's difference. Plunge was made—in the bathysphere "Trieste"—to the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Ponza, Italy. Piccard and his son remained in the ship two hours and 18 minutes before releasing ballast and ascending to the surface. (NEA Telephoto)

U.S. Dollars To France

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 —UP— The United States and France announced Wednesday the administration has agreed to give France another $385 million to help "break and destroy" Communist forces in Indo-China.

The joint announcement said the money would be provided some time before the end of 1954.

The communique said the French government is determined "to make every effort to break and destroy the regular enemy forces in Indo-China" and intends to do everything possible to increase military forces of the three associated states — Cambodia, Laos, and Viet Nam.

Communiques Issued

"The additional United States aid is designed to help make it possible to achieve these objectives with maximum speed and effectiveness," the two nations said on a communique released here and in Paris.

The agreement to provide up to $385 million in additional aid followed a recent recommendation of the U.S. National Security Council. The new funds would be in addition to some $400 million which the United States is making available for the Indo-China campaign this fiscal year.

The communique did not say so, but officials have made it clear they will need congressional approval of the plan to get the necessary additional funds.

Struggle for Eight Years

The communique said France and the associated states of Indo-China have been engaged for eight years "in a bitter struggle to prevent the engulfment of southeast Asia by the forces of international communism." It said the "heroic efforts and sacrifices" of France and the three states "has earned the admiration and support of the free world."

In recognition of the French effort, it said, the United States in the past has furnished various kinds of aid to bring the lengthy struggle to an early and victorious conclusion.

The communique added that France is firmly resolved to carry out its declaration of giving the Indo-Chinese states full independence.

Mrs. Patton Killed In Riding Accident

HAMILTON, Mass., Sept. 30 —UP— Mrs. George S. Patton, widow of the famed general of World War II, was killed Wednesday when thrown from her horse while riding at the Myopia Hunt Club.

Mrs. Patton, 67, was tossed from her horse, a thoroughbred chestnut gelding, and apparently landed on her head.

She was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Peter Johnson.

The accident occurred while Mrs. Patton was on a so-called "drag" hunt in which an anise-scented form is pulled along the ground by a man on horseback.

Mrs. Patton, a native of Lowell, Mass., was in a party of 25 riding behind two fox hounds.

Her husband, who shunned a society life for an Army career, also was accidentally killed. He died Dec. 21, 1945, of injuries received in an automobile crash at Mannheim, Germany, Dec. 9, that year.

Speed Pays Off In Gas Well Fire

Quick response by the Pampa City Fire department held damage to a minimum late Tuesday afternoon when they extinguished a gas well fire on the H. T. Benson lease about six miles northwest of the city.

Firemen, who received the call about 7:30 o'clock, said workmen were using a cleanout maching in the process of cleaning out the well when a light bulb exploded, igniting escaping gas.

The fire ignited a belt shed nearby, which was charred badly, but not destroyed, firemen said. Water was poured on the blaze from the city's booster truck until the flames were smothered.

While this group of city firemen were fighting the gas well fire other members of the department extinguished a trash fire at 500 W. Brown. No damage resulted from this blaze.

Airport Manager Due Thursday

Thursday is the day for the new Perry LeFors field manager, M. W. Alford, to take over his duties.

Manager of the Littlefield airport for the last two years, Alford was hired some time ago to replace Horace Tarver.

At the time he was hired, Alford was given till Oct. 1 to wind up his affairs in Littlefield.

Won't Withdraw PW Ground Rules

PANMUNJOM, Sept. 30 —UP— The Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission refused Wednesday to withdraw "ground rules" under which explainers from both sides will try to persuade recalcitrant prisoners of war to be repatriated.

"There is no appeal from the commission ruling," said Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya.

Thimayaa said the ground rules, bitterly protested by the United Nations as a "sell-out" were adopted by a unanimous vote of the five-nation commission.

Includes Poland, India

The commission includes Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Switzerland and India.

UN officials had charged the principle of voluntary repatriation "has been murdered" by the rules, which require every prisoner to attend counter-brainwashing sessions even if he does not want to.

They voiced their sentiments shortly after the NNRC handed down their 23-point set of rules which permit the Reds to interview 22,000 anti-Communist prisoners individually and as often as they desire.

Irked By Criticism

Thimayaa, obviously irked at UN ciriticism, spoke publicly for the first time on the controversial statement distributed and broadcast to all prisoners in Indian custody last February.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for Gen. Mark Clark said the UN commander is studying the ground rules but declined to comment further.

The UN objected particularly to three of the rules:

1. Explainers may interview prisoners individually in repeated interviews. Prisoners must attend the sessions. (The UN has insisted that no prisoner can be forced to attend and no more than one interview is necessary).

2. Each explaining site shall

MAKING A TIGHT LEFT TURN—Pedestrians seemed to be enjoying themselves, but it was a difficult job for the skilled workers who had to measure tight corners before moving this 80-ton, 102-foot fractionating tower across London, England's narrow streets. From the steelworks at Greenwich, the tower was moved via the Lambeth Bridge and North Circular Road to an oil company refinery at Coryton, Essex.

Pampa Sergeant Asks Letters For Platoon

An urgent plea for local residents, especially unmarried girls, to write to men of his platoon to bolster their morale was made in a letter to The Pampa Daily News from a Pampa sergeant stationed in Korea.

The request was from Sgt. Franklin G. Ledford, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ledford, 926 E. Malone. A former student at Pampa High School, Sgt. Ledford, 20, has been in the Army three years.

Date-lined Korea, the letter said:

This may not be the way to start a business-type letter but it has been a long time for mee.

I am a platoon Sgt. in Co. "D" of the 21st Inf. Regt. and the morale of my platoon is pretty low. I thought it was my job to do something about it. So I decided to do this.

I am sending a list of the men in my platoon to your paper. You see, the biggest trouble is mail. The men whose names I'm sending are all unmarried and most of them don't even have girl friends to write them. Their ages are from 18 to 23 and are really a nice bunch of guys. I'll put them beside any platoon of any outfit in the Army and they will come out on top. They're my boys all the way.

Here is what I would like to do. Please run the names in the paper and ask the folks in good old Pampa to write them. Being from Pampa myself I know you won't let us down.

You know how GIs are about mail. It doesn't matter who writes if it is a letter from the good old U.S.A. they enjoy it. They enjoy them more if they are from girls.

My men know nothing of this letter so I ask that my name be withheld from any letter to them. But I get very little mail myself and will be gratified for all mail received. Both by my men and myself.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Sgt. Franklin G. Ledford

PS: If there is any charge for running the article please let me know and I will gladly pay it.

Here is the list of men named in the letter all of whom should be addressed: Co. "D", 21st Inf. Regt., APO 24, c-o PM, San Francisco, Calif. (The serial number of each man should follow his name on all mail):

No Foul Play Seen In Death

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 —UP— Frank W. Campbell, father of the late Natalia Campbell Baxter of Las Cruces, N. M., said Wednesday there was no indication of foul play in her recent death on the Spanish Mediterranean island of Mallorca.

Campbell, an 83-year-old retired sea captain, said his daughter had been sick for several years, but he did not disclose her ailment.

He said his daughter had planned to return to the United States, but he received a cable from her doctor Friday saying she had died that morning.

Campbell said he travelled through Europe with his daughter for 18 months before returning to New York this month.

The father denied she carried large sums of money with her or that she wore many jewels. Her brother had said he believed she carried about $100,000 in jewels, but her father said they were in a safe deposit box in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Double-Talk Of Russians No Surprise

BY PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst

The world by now should be used to the devious twists and turns of the Soviet mind, even if it can't always understand them.

Therefore, the double-talk contained in the latest Russian note to Washington, Paris and London should occasion no surprise. It contained roughly nine pages of Communist propaganda, and one of not-too-clearly defined proposals, to wit:

A five-power conference, including China, to study international tensions.

A four-power conference — the United States, Britain, France and Russia—on Germany.

It stressed the fact both conferences should be held at the foreign minister level — and not "heads of state" as has been proposed previously by the Russians themselves and by others, including British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

This could mean the Russians themselves now believe nothing could be gained by such a meeting, or the "collectivized" new Russian government does not trust Premier Georgi Malenkov yet to carry on such negotiations alone.

Which, in turn, could mean Russian foreign policy at the moment is, in fact, guided by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, one-time confidant of Stalin and advocate of a "hard" policy toward the West.

The United States reply is apt to be delayed but may be guessed.

The U. S. consistently has demanded of the Soviets "deeds not words" in the striving for world peace.

Further, if the Reds really wish to prove good intent, the still-stalled Korean political conference would seem the first and easiest place to do it.

Warren's Climb Within GOP Interesting Political History

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—UP—Gov. Earl Warren began his sure progress toward the Supreme Court in the sweaty sessions of the 1952 Republican national convention.

It is one of the better stories of inside politics.

The chance death of Fred M. Vinson opened the chief justiceship to Warren and that could not have been foreseen.

But from the moment of President Eisenhower's first ballot nomination in Chicago on July 11, 1952, the word from the Republican GHQ was this:

"Warren can have anything he wants."

Chances Were Excellent

He wanted to be an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court. With four Republican years to go, his chances were excellent.

Warren and his California delegation to the Republican national convention made no political hay with the Eisenhower forces on the ballot which nominated the party's candidate for president in 1952.

California cast its solid 70 votes for Earl Warren. When the roll call ended with Mr. Eisenhower just short of victory there was a flurry of excited switches which put him over the top.

Sit Out Bandwagon

The Californians sat stolidly through that while others were scrambling for the tail gate of the Eisenhower band wagon. The official record of that first ballot lists California's 70 votes as among those on the short end of the 845 to 361 score by which Mr. Eisenhower won.

The mighty deeds which made Warren eligible for the greatest office a president can bestow were done in the angry dispute over seating contested convention delegates from southern states.

The crucial vote was on contested delegates from Georgia. Taft-controlled majorities of the Republican national committee and of the convention credentials committee had found in favor of George delegates pledged to the nomination of the late senator.

Join Floor Rebellion

All but eight of California's 70 delegates joined the rebellion on the convention floor which rejected the committee report and seated delegates of the Eisenhower clan. That was the beginning of the end.

The vital Texas delegate contest went the way of Georgia without even a record vote. Taft's candidacy had been fatally wounded. Had California voted the other way the Taft delegates would have been in, the Eisenhower delegates, out.

California member Gordon X. Richmond of the credentials committee made the speech which started Warren toward the bench. Second speaker on the third convention day when the Georgia debate began, Richmond said the Eisenhower delegates should be seated.

That was sweet music to Mr. Eisenhower back there in July of 1952. The echo of Richmond's words must be sounding sweetly in the ears of Governor Warren today.

Broadway Has Video Script

BY JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—UP—The Broadway stage is about to get its first major American script contribution from television.

Players shuttle back and fourth between the two mediums with great rapidity, but so far the script situation has been a one-way affair, with TV using stage material and returning nothing.

The ice will be broken by "The Trip to Bountiful" by Horton Foote, due Nov. 3 at the Henry Miller Theater under the co-production banner of the Theater Guild and Fred Coe. Lilian Gish is the star.

Coe is the young fellow many in TV regard as the No. 1 drama man. He's been directing and producing for the air ever since television began to walk instead of crawl right after World War II, and his programs have been top-rated year in and year out.

Currently he is the producer of the Philco and Goodyear Playhouse programs, which alternate Sundays on NBC with hour-long dramas. He is the executive producer of two new family-type half hour series — "Bonino," with Ezio Pinza, on NBC and "Jamie," with Brandon De Wilde and Ernest Truex, on ABC. In short, he keeps busy.

Foote has had two plays produced unsuccessfully on Broadway in the past 10 years. For a couple of years now he has been writing regularly for Coe's TV programs.

"Foote had some notes and material he showed me for a new stage play he planned to write," Coe said. "This was 'The Trip to Bountiful.' I persuaded him that it would fit neatly into an hour TV play, so he did that instead of writing a stage drama.

"We did the show on Goodyear last March 1, with Miss Gish in the leading role. It was one of the most successful we ever did. As a fellow who's never gotten the stage out of his system, I immediately began planning to transfer it to the theater. Foote, of course, had to rewrite the TV script, expanding it considerably, but all of the essential situations and characters were in the TV version."

"Television is getting some good writing from a few dramatists who haven't yet made their mark in the theater," Coe said. "It's understandable that a man who has been able to establish himself in TV may not want to tackle the harder work and experience the greater heartaches of writing for the stage, but I hope there will be more of an exchange in the future.

"If we can bring this one off successfully, I'm sure it will be a major encouragement for TV writers to tackle the stage."

Killing To Be Investigated

HOUSTON, Sept. 29 —UP—The Harris county grand jury planned Tuesday to reopen an investigation into the Sept. 16 slaying of oilfield roughneck David Dies Peevy, 48. His wife, Mrs. Jewel Garner Pevvy said she hit Peevy with a hammer after he threatened her, and a verdict of justifiable homicide was returned. But the dead man's mother, Mrs. Della Peevy requested a new probe.

Southwest Cool Front Ended

By UNITED PRESS

Temperatures were a few degrees cooler over the Southwest Wednesday, but most of the state forecasts called for warmer readings again by Thursday.

The cool front that lowered some temperatures slightly reached a line early Wednesday extending from Fort Smith, Ark., to Dallas and Lubbock, Tex. But the weatherman said it had just about died a natural death. It just couldn't buck the hot air that far south.

There was no mention of showers in the forecasts, which called for fair or clear to partly cloudy skies over the Southwest.

State highs Tuesday included 101 degrees at Ardmore, Okla., and at Presidio and Mineral Wells, Tex. It was 94 degrees at Hobbs, N.M.; 82 at Pueblo, La Junta and Lamar, Colo.; and 73 at Casper and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Nation's Crude Oil Output Increases

TULSA, Sept. 30 —UP—The nation's crude oil production rose 6,350 barrels a day during the week ending last Saturday, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Wednesday.

Daily average output for the week was 6,458,850 barrels, the Journal said.

Kansas showed the biggest increase, 7,700 barrels a day. Other states with gains included Arkansas, 850; Colorado, 1,400; Kentucky, 300; Louisiana, 50; Mississippi, 150; Montana, 400; Utah, 200, and Wyoming, 2,100.

PRESIDENT

had some sort of commitment from the Eisenhower administration before Vinson died. Presumably he was promised a court appointment when a vacancy occurred and on the strength of this announced he would not seek re-election as governor.

The new justice will face a docket of some 300 petitions for review filed during the summer, to say nothing of 35 or 40 cases accepted last spring and ready for argument. Since the court grants review when only four justices vote for it, Warren's examination of all the petitions would not necessarily be required at the outset.

Vinson's three law clerks are still working in the chief justice's office and will be available to help Warren get abreast of the court's business. He will also have to acquaint himself with the large amount of administrative detail by which the chief justice controls the flow of cases through the court during the term.

Constitutional Headache

The biggest constitutional headache waiting for the California governor is racial segregation in public schools. The high court examined the question carefully last term but decided to hear more arguments before ruling on an issue with such far-reaching social consequences. Five test cases are now set for argument the week of Dec. 7. Brownell has not yet revealed the position the Eisenhower administration will take as a "friend of the court" in the arguments.

Another case of wide public interest is a challenge to the "reserve clause" contracts which form the backbone of organized baseball. Three cases that will determine whether baseball is subject to the anti-trust laws are up for argument the week of Oct. 12.

An issue put up to the high bench only last week deals with a situation highly familiar to the Californian—tidelands oil. Alabama has asked permission to file a complaint directly in the Supreme Court against Texas, Louisiana, Florida and California contesting the federal act giving ownership of offshore lands to the states.

Two British Ships Collide; 32 Injured

LONDON, Sept. 30 —UP—Two British warships darkened for night operations in NATO naval maneuvers collided Tuesday night off Southern Iceland, injuring 32 men, the Admiralty announced Wednesday.

The light cruiser Swiftsure and the heavy destroyer Diamond remained afloat and seaworthy following the collision at 11 p.m. (4 p.m. Tuesday cst) 80 miles south of Iceland.

No deaths were reported and none of the injured was in serious condition, the Admiralty said.

Fire apparently broke out aboard the Swiftsure following the impact with the 2,610-ton Diamond but was brought under control quickly, the Admiralty said.

Hershey Predicts Bigger Draft Calls

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 —UP—Draft director Lewis B. Hershey, predicting bigger draft calls and fewer deferments next year, said Wednesday the armed services must find a way to cut down on rejections.

Even with larger draft calls and fewer deferments, he said, the nation may be "out of manpower" in the next two or three years if present standards remain.

Hershey said 1.7 million men out of 4 million examined have been rejected as unfit for service. He said the "United States cannot afford to reject 1.7 million young men out of those who are in their late teens or early 20s."

"If we are going to utilize our manpower to the maximum, a very large number of this group must be found acceptable by the armed forces," he said. He observed that the armed forces, not selective service, set the standards for acceptance of draftees.

'Rhee Was Right'

A UN spokesman said "we are dissatisfied" with the ground rules and Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme allied commander in the Far East, would file a protest with the commission.

"I hate to say it," a high allied officer remarked, "but Syngman Rhee was right."

The South Korean president insisted repeatedly throughout the armistice negotiations the Indian-controlled commission would show sympathy toward the Communists in handling the prisoners.

Fun Night Set At Baker School

Plans for Fun Night, to be held at the B. M. Baker school Oct. 30, were discussed at a meeting of the executive board of the B. M. Baker school Parent-Teachers association Monday afternoon.

A meeting of room mothers will be held Monday at 2:30 p.m. in the school auditorium, it was announced at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Maher were chosen as delegates to the state PTA convention to be held in San Antonio Nov. 17 to 20. Alternates named were John Evans, principal, and Mrs. B. E. Tidwell.

Teamwork Crashes

ANOKA, Minn., Sept. 30 —UP—Teamwork failed when two 10-year-old boys decided to take an automobile and go for a joy ride.

Neither was big enough to drive unassisted, so one lad knelt on the floorboards and worked the accelerator and clutch, while the other steered and shifted gears.

They rode 75 feet before they smashed into a parked car.

The boy on the floor said he forgot all about the brake.

Fire Week Chairman Is Selected

Chris Walsh, Pampa insurance agent, today was named general chairman for the observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 through 10.

Walsh was named at a meeting of the Fire Prevention committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce this morning in the chamber office. Kirk Duncan, chairman of the committee, presided.

Chairmen for other phases of the observance were selected as follows: Duncan, finance chairman; Bert Nuckols, county school superintendent, coordinator of school activities; Fire Chief Ernest Winborne, coordinator of fire drills at local schools and newspaper and radio publicity, assisted by the chamber office; Jim Perkins, display arrangements featuring winning posters from each school, and John Campbell, speakers at civic clubs and schools.

Chief Winborne also will handle the distribution of posters and leaflets.

As in the past, a boy and girl from each room in the first three grades will be given rides on a fire truck on Friday of Fire Prevention week, it was announced at the meeting.

Other plans for the week's observance include the following: A poster contest for students in grades 4 through 7. Cash prizes for the best posters in each school will be awarded and these will be displayed in downtown show windows.

Students in grades 8 through 12 will compete for cash prizes in an essay contest. Fire drills will be held at unannounced times during the week in each school, the fire chief said.

Boy Scout Film Due On Television

Beginning Oct. 11 there will be a Boy Scout film shown each Sunday afternoon for 14 weeks on KGNC-TV.

Jointly sponsored by the Adobe Walls Council and the Llano Estacado Council (Amarillo), the 15-minute films will be on television screens at 2:15 p.m. according to Paul Beisenherz, council Scout executive.

On Amarillo's other television station, KFDA-TV, will be various Scout spot announcements from time to time, Beisenherz said, pointing out that they'll consist of specific events and general information on the Adobe Walls Council.

"This is the first time that this type of thing has been done in the Southwest," the executive said this morning in making the announcement. The films are professionally-made and come out of the National Boy Scout headquarters.

Clothing Drive To End This Week

The third annual clothing drive conducted by the Pampa Elks is expected to be wrapped up by the end of the week with the accumulation of some 5,000 articles of clothing.

According to Joe Tooley, past Exalted Ruler of the Pampa lodge, the drive "is coming along nicely" and is at the half-way mark.

Designated as the Frank Leder Clothing Drive, it has been going on officially for the last week, though preliminary preparations were underway several weeks before.

Distribution of the clothing will be in the Pampa area, Tooley said, adding that the local churches are helping in that respect. Any clothes left over will probably be sent to Korea, he concluded.

Clothing can be brought to the Elks Club or will be picked up by any member of the Elks.

Hewitt Assigned to Far East

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 —UP—The Army Tuesday announced the assignment of Brig. Gen. Hobart Hewett, assistant commandant of the anti-aircraft and guided missile branch of the artillery school at Fort Bliss, Tex., to Army forces in the Far East.

Gas Rate Hearing Recessed By City

It will be six more days before Pampans know whether their gas rate will be raised.

Mayor Tom Rose Tuesday afternoon recessed the 3½-hour hearing with Empire Southern Gas Company officials, receiving permission to wait till Tuesday when the Pampa City Commission meets to give a final answer.

Recess of the hearing came after testimony from James A. Davis, Fort Worth, Empire president; Erwin Thompson, local company manager; and Jimmy Sells, accountant who appraised the gas properties, before City Attorney Bob Gordon and commission members.

In answer to a question on whether the company could wait for the commission's decision on the rate hike a few days more, Davis said, "We needed it May 28. We still need it. We can wait another week."

It only cost the city $26 extra to make City Director of Public Works James Cowan and Streets Superintendent Russell Cartwright happy.

City commissioners decided to purchase for $11,526 a "caterpillar" maintainer from the West Texas Equipment Company, Amarillo, "a machine equipped the way we want it." Lowest bid was $11,500 for a "galleon" machine from Texas Machinery Company, Amarillo. But commission members figured it was "more advantageous for the city" to accept the higher bid.

Cowan and Cartwright earlier in the day had told commissioners what they wanted the new motorgrader to have. Time warrants will account for the $10,000 of the maintainer's cost.

Ivy Duncan, co-owner of the fire-gutted East Kingsmill building, has a permit to rebuild. Following a short discussion on the Pampa building code (rewritten in 1947), commissioners granted the permit.

Jay Nichols, owner of the Pampa City Bus Company, was given permission to cease operating the city buses. Announcing Saturday that he was giving up operation, Nichols said he would run the last bus at 6 p.m. today.

Other action included the payment of $21,409.55 to Ernest Loyd who did summer street work in Pampa.

Bandits Rob Night Club

DALLAS, Sept. 30 —UP—Three bandits robbed the Long Horn Ranch, a night club, of $3,20 early Wednesday after forcing 20 persons to lie face down on the floor.

The club manager and owner, Hyman Fader, said he was preparing to leave the club with his wife about 1:10 a. m. when a man walked up to his car and ordered him back inside.

When Fader entered the club, a pistol at his back, he saw two other bandits. They had ordered 20 persons including eight members of the Buddy Morrow band to lie down on the floor of the checkroom.

Fader was ordered to open the safe. One of the bandits scooped up $3,200 in cash and with his companions fled after ordering Fader not to attempt to notify authorities for 10 minutes.

The bandits, each armed, had cut telephone wires to the night spot.

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

The play was a Broadway hit, and when I tried to purchase tickets for out-of-town friends, I found that good ones were only available three weeks in advance.

So a day or so later I was surprised when a 17-year-old acquaintance of mine announced she'd seen the play the previous evening. "The Englishman who played the butler was darling," Joan enthused to me. "Callie and I are crazy about him."

I asked, "How did you get tickets, Joan?"

Joan stared at me. "Oh, we didn't have any," she assured me. "Callie and I crashed the show."

"'Crashed' it?" I echoed.

"Sure," Joan told me briskly. "Callie and I crash shows all the time. We hang around until intermission when we mix with the lobby crowd. . . ."

As she concluded describing her technique for "crashing," she added, "Callie and I are pretty good at it. We know just what shows to go for and when."

I am not Joan's mother, so I didn't suggest that her community expects her to control impulses to take what she hasn't earned. I did not, however, applaud her "smartness." It struck me as highly unintelligent.

Joan is no longer a child whose realization of others' rights is limited by inexperience and mental incapacity. She is approacing womanhood. Her casual assumption that she's entitled to see a play free that the rest of us pay to see is an emotionally retarded one.

As the performance she enjoyed without effort represents others' livelihood, it means that Joan regards herself as someone privileged to receive without return.

She confuses herself with princesses in fairy tales. Like those magically privileged characters who wave wands when they want golden coaches, Joan has only to wish to see a play to see it.

Wands realize wishes only in Fairyland. In this dull world, work realizes them. To smile indulgently on this teen-ager's disdain for commonplace effort is cruel to her.

One day she may find jobs and housekeeping as contemptible as paying for theater tickets. She'll develop unrealistic expectations from the rest of us. And unlike her parents, we will say "No" to her demands for special privileges.

So ahead there may be conflict between us and Joan. That's inevitable when children are trained only for adjustment to Fairyland.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend,

We are having a money problem, and a vague solution has presented itself. Perhaps you can elaborate upon it and give us some needed information if the solution is a probable one.

We have heard that there are medical schools, laboratories, etc. that will pay a sum of money if one should agree to allow them to have one's body after death.

This is the full extent of our knowledge on this subject, but it does sound interesting.

Is this just a foundless rumor, or is it factual? If it should be true, whom should one contact?

My husband has an average paying position, but would like to further his possibilities by attending college and working toward an engineering degree.

His present position will allow him to attend school, but, unless we can get some debts paid, and purchase a few necessary items, school will be out of the question.

I would work, but we have three youngsters, ages three years, two years, and five months, and I feel my job of raising good, happy people is a full-time one. (And it's so much fun, too.)

Anyway, we hope you can enlighten us some on the subject in question and I might add that I enjoy your column very much. I only wish it were published on Saturdays, too, but then everyone needs some time out.

Thanking you in advance,

L. N.

Dear L.N.

Medical schools and laboratories are supplied with unclaimed bodies in most instances. In addition some people leave their bodies for research purposes. The supply more than equals the demand.

RUTH MILLETT

"He's always criticizing," a woman reader says of her husband.

Well, what do you do about his criticisms? Lump them all together as evidence of how difficult he is to live with, resent them all, and then discredit them?

Or have you really stopped to analyze his criticisms to study them carefully.

You really should, you know. A criticism doesn't have to start a fight, be dismissed as lack of appreciation, or be resented.

If you'll pay some real attention you may learn something about yourself.

For instance, if your husband says you spoil the children: You can resent criticism, or you can ask yourself, "Is it true? Am I really too easy on the children? Are they well-behaved, happy, and self-reliant, or are they spoiled, selfish, hard to get along with?"

If you are certain the children show no evidence of being spoiled, then you may be safe in dismissing the criticism. But if your honest answer is that they are selfish and hard to live with, then there's truth in your husband's criticism.

There is reason why a husband should criticize his wife. A great many women believe, however, a good husband should act as though his wife is perfect.

And certainly the wife who listens to criticism with an open mind isn't nearly as likely to have a husband who criticizes constantly.

Americans are famous as a dessert-loving people. It is up to the badgered homemaker to keep these desserts varied and appealing.

Here's a new recipe to add to your dessert recipe collection. Every accomplished homemaker will be quick to notice that it has these check-points:

It is inexpensive, as both rice and honey cost little. The pecans can be eliminated from the recipe, although they will add that important finishing touch that brings compliments.

It provides for left-over cake or cookie crumbs, which often are a headache for the truly prudent homemaker who cannot bear to throw them away.

It can be made far ahead of serving time, thus taking a load off the rush dinner hours. For party fare, make this dessert the day before guests arrive. Or if you are expecting weekend company, keep this dessert ready in your ice cube tray.

The recipe is easily divided or multiplied to suit the exact number of persons you are serving.

Honey and rice make surprisingly good companions. Rice gives the body, honey gives the sweetness so essential to every good dessert.

RICE AND HONEY FREEZE

2½ cups slightly warm cooked rice
¾ cup honey
½ pint whipping cream
1 cup chocolate cake or cookie crumbs

Preparing the Fluffy White Rice: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover saucepan with a lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Turn off the heat.

NOTE: Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

Method: Mix together the rice, honey and pecans. Whip the cream and fold into the rice, honey and pecan mixture. The cream will be partially melted by the warm rice. Sprinkle half of the chocolate crumbs over the bottoms of two ice cube trays. Pour the rice and whipped cream mixture into the two trays. Sprinkle the rest of the chocolate crumbs over the top. Freeze until firm. If dessert is kept for several days, remove tray from freezing compartment and place in coldest part of the refrigerator several hours before the dessert is served if a softer texture is desired.

This recipe makes 10 servings.

Senator Succeeds Deceased Governor

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 29 —UP—Charley Johns, president of the state senate, takes control as acting governor of Florida Tuesday succeeding Democrat Gov. Dan McCarthy who died Monday night.

Johns called for official mourning for the popular young governor who was elected by the biggest vote ever given a candidate for chief executive of the state.

Johns, a railroad conductor, insurance man and ice company owner, supported McCarty for governor but fought him in the legislature on several issues.

McCarty, 41, a scholarly looking but robust six-footer, died at a hospital at 8:55 p.m., est, of a heart disturbance complicated by pneumonia.

Physicians, friends and members of his family, including his wife, two brothers and a sister, were at McCarty's bedside when he died following apparent improvement.

A close friend said McCarty commented, "You know, for a while I didn't think I was going to make it," then cried out and complained he hurt all over. He gave a long sigh and died.

In the lobby of the hospital Dr. G. H. Garmny announced the news in a shaky voice.

Faces House-Painting Job . . .

Duchess Says Her Skirts Will Remain Long For The Present

By HENRY McLEMORE

News Item: The Duchess of Windsor said today her skirts will stay long for the present.

She said, however, that she might change her mind after her new house is painted.

Offhand, a man would be inclined to say that if the Duchess is ever going to shorten her skirts, house-painting time is the time. What with open buckets of paint all around, and the infernal litter on the floors, knee-length skirts would appear to be just the thing.

But when the Duchess' statement is given the serious thought that it deserves, one is bound to see that she is right—that just before painting a house is no time to have a pressing problem on one's mind.

I don't know for sure, but it would be my guess that this house at Gif - Sur - Yvette, just opposite Paris, is the first house the Duke and Duchess have had to paint all by their lonesome.

Oh, I know they once pitched in and helped Woolworth Donohoe do the polo pony stables at his villa in Ouef-Ouef-La Pins, and I too saw the newsreel shots when they each grabbed a brush when the late Lady Mendl was doing over Elsa Maxwell. But this is probably the first time they have been faced with doing the whole job themselves.

As I figure it, the Duchess is wise in not definitely deciding on what length skirts to wear until she has tried out various lengths while painting. What might be just the right length for a fish fry at Biarritz or Capri, might be another kettle of fish, altogether, for doing a living room ceiling.

It would be a crashing bore, to say the least, and one couldn't blame the Duke for getting livid with rage, if the Duchess ordered an entire house-painting wardrobe from Balmain or Dior only to find that a great many of the garments were totally unsuited for painting a house.

For example, a jewel-toned dinner dress of barathea, with a narrow silhouette, would be ideal for painting baseboards, window sills, and other near-the-floor parts of the house. But would it be anywhere near as practical for climbing ladders as a mink-collared, scoop-necked job, with kick pleats?

Until she tries them, how could the Duchess possibly know whether she would be more comfortable sanding floors in a tweed suit with tucks to give it width at the shoulders, or a dramatic, flowered cocktail dress of silk, which closes in a low "V" at the back?

I know how these things bother women. I can remember just as if it were yesterday how my sisters used to work at the sewing machine for weeks before we repainted our house, and how they could hardly eat or talk for the pins they had in their mouths.

I can hear my sister, Beppie, saying as she tried on a skirt: "I wouldn't be caught painting the kitchen closet with this thing on."

The Duchess didn't say anything about it, but there is the problem of the Duke's clothes, too. Is a Norfolk jacket tres chic when mixing paint for the ballroom walls? Or would it be more fitting for him to wear a dressing gown with a shawl collar?

But they must decide for themselves. Just as they did once before, years ago.

Oklahoma Oil Allowable Cut

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30 —UP—Heavy foreign imports and a failure of summer sales to meet expectations were blamed Wednesday for an Oklahoma Corporation Commission order cutting allowed oil production 14 per cent in Oklahoma next month.

The commission, on recommendation of conservation officer Walker T. Pound, reduced the monthly allowable from 519,260 barrels daily in August and September to 485,000 in October.

However, Pound said the cut actually will be much greater because production has exceeded the allowable and averaged about 546,000 barrels daily. This occurred because production ran above estimates in unallocated pools.

Raises Production Estimate

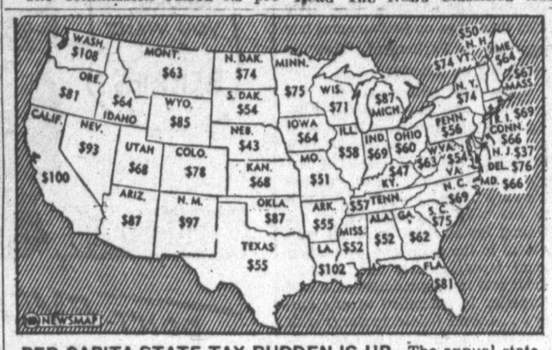

The commission raised its production estimate in unallocated fields from 242,000 to 293,000 barrels, a more realistied figure, but cut the maximum per-well production from 65 barrels to 30. Most of the unallocated wells are strippers and produce an average of about five barrels per day and will be unaffected by the order.

Production in allocated fields, over which the commisson has greater control, was reduced from 277,000 barrels to 192,000.

Emily Post's TELEPHONE TIPS

A young lady writes: "People tell me I'm hard to understand over the telephone. Is there anything I can do to improve my voice and speech?"

There probably is. The first step—and possibly the most important one—is a cheerful and considerate attitude toward whoever it may be who is calling you. A smile in your telephone voice is every bit as attractive as a smile on your lips when you're talking face to face. Watch the speed of your speech. If you talk too fast your words run together. Drawl, and your words sound disconnected. Reading aloud will help you find the right speed for clear, understandable speech. Talk directly into the mouthpiece, with your lips an inch away. Don't shout. Don't whisper or mumble. Your natural tone of voice is best. Let your voice be friendly and ready to be helpful—the voice with a smile.

A reader says: "Thank you for correcting a bad telephone habit I used to have. After reading your comments on the unnecessary use of 'Information,' I've made it a practice to look for numbers in the telephone book first. I might add that I was surprised how few times I really need to call 'Information'."

I think there is little I can add to this thoughtful note of thanks. You will find most of the telephone numbers you need to call in the directory. It is always better to consult the telephone book first. If the number is not listed there, then is the time to call "Information."

A correspondent complains: "A few people I know are careless about hanging up the receiver after finishing a telephone conversation. Don't they realize that slamming the receiver down makes an unpleasant noise in the other telephone?"

Slamming the receiver is as discourteous as slamming the door. Always hang up gently as a parting, thoughtful gesture. And when you hang up be careful to replace the receiver securely in its proper place. A receiver off the hook means that no calls can get through to your telephone.

Mail Call In Korea

The shooting is over in Korea — temporarily, at least — but the job of the GI is far from being done. Not by a long shot. Countless thousands of American boys will sweat out another cold winter in that far-away peninsula.

Most of the kids in Korea really don't know why they are there. Few, if any, mature minds can make sense out of the action. But that's not the issue in this case. They are there, period. However, their hearts are back home with mom and dad and the girl across the street.

News from home is the most important event in the daily life of any soldier stationed overseas. Everybody drops everything to make a bee-line for the postoffice when "Mail Call" is shouted in an Army camp. But a large majority of the men overseas don't get much mail and as a consequence their morale drops a notch each time they fail to hear from home.

Elsewhere in The News is published a letter datelined Korea from Sgt. Franklin G. Ledford, a local boy, who asks that Pampa residents, especially unmarried girls, write to men of his platoon.

The sergeant said in part in the letter:

"Please run the names in the paper and ask the folks in good old Pampa to write them. Being from Pampa myself, I know you won't let us down."

We suggest that you read the sergeant's letter, then sit down and write a newsy note to one of the men in his platoon. It would take so little effort and would mean so much to a lonely boy far away from home.

Nine Questions

Question and answer problems being an important part of the American scene, we are presenting today a series of nine questions so that readers may determine for themselves "where they stand."

The original list of questions is not ours, but that of the Congress of Freedom, an organization now in process of being formed.

The obvious purpose of the questions is to separate the left from the right. It is clear that there are many other questions that might be asked before a clear conception of the politico-economic thinking of the individual is given. But the following questions should provide some sort of basis for "placing" a person's beliefs without setting him in any one specific political or economic category.

Merely as a guide to those who might be interested in filling out the questionnaire, The News is providing at the bottom its own answers to the questions. The advantage of such a questionnaire is that it gives a direct yes or no, without equivocation.

Here are the questions:

1. Do you favor the Bricker amendment, limiting treaty making powers of the Executive? Yes.... No....
2. Do you favor a Constitutional Amendment limiting the power of the Federal Government to levy income taxes at a rate of more than 25%? Yes.... No....
3. Do you favor repeal of the Sixteenth Amendment (income tax)? Yes.... No....
4. Are you opposed to Federal aid to education? Yes.... No....
5. Do you favor laws prohibiting Federal Government from competing with private industry? Yes.... No....
6. Do you favor withdrawal of the U. S. from the UN? Yes.... No....
7. Do you favor disposal of federal corporations to private industry? Yes.... No....
8. Are you in favor of terminating federal aid to foreign countries? Yes.... No....
9. Are you opposed to peace-time conscription? Yes.... No....

Here are the News' answers to the questions:

1. Yes. 2. Yes. 3. Yes. 4. Yes. 5. Yes. 6. Yes. 7. Yes. 8. Yes. 9. Yes.

Readers of this column familiar with the viewpoints of The News will realize that the above answers are not the sole views on the questions asked. Number 4, for instance, regarding federal aid to education, is not the whole story although we are opposed to federal aid to education. By the same token, and for the same reasons that we oppose federal aid we are also in opposition to state aid to education and believe that the education of our youth would be better if there were no governmental agencies, at whatever level, involved.

Similarly there are other questions to which The News as answered "Yes" but we would go further in our opposition than is implied in the questions answered by a straight "Yes."

It is our feeling that if a reader can't honestly answer "Yes" to the above nine questions he can hardly be considered a "right of center" advocate. It would be interesting to The News to have readers send in answers to the questions, signed or unsigned. If a sufficient number of readers are interested in the welfare of their nation to give serious consideration to the questions and supply us with their answers, a compilation of the results will be tabulated and reported in a later edition.

"Our Founding Fathers And The Natural Law"

II

I want to continue to quote from Clarence Manion's tract on "The Founding Fathers and the Natural Law." A copy of this can be had for 15 cents from the Ave Maria Press, Notre Dame, Indiana.

Under the sub-heading of "Early American Lawyers Believed in Natural Law" he explains the difference between the beliefs of English lawyers and American lawyers. He observes that after 1688 there was no fundamental law superior to Parliament. Then he continues as follows:

"It is most unfortunate that the romantic and psychological sidelights of the American Revolution have lured historians away from the logical and legal aspects of that epochal struggle. Taxes, parliamentary representation and finally the very independence of the United States itself were all incidental to the main and controlling legal issue, namely the enforcement and implementation of a law 'superior in obligation to any other . . . coeval (contemporary) with mankind and dictated by God Himself.' This controlling issue was made crystal clear by the Declaration of Independence but for some reason modern historians seem reluctant to take the great Declaration at its word. There is a subtle but unmistakable effort to edit this document out of our jurisprudential system and to regard its categorical postulates as eccentric extravagances tansposed on the spot from a variety of foreign philosophical dreamers in order to make, a rallying cry for a rather desperate American cause. The fact is that the Declaration is the best possible condensation of the natural law-common law doctrines as they were developed and expounded in England and America for hundreds of years prior to the American Revolution. By pushing and pursuing the principle of parliamentary absolutism it was England and not America who abandoned the ancient traditions of English liberty. In 1776 the British Government was insisting that 'the law of the land' and 'the immemorial rights of English subjects' were exclusively and precisely what the British Parliament from time to time declared them to be. This claim for parliamentary absolutism was at variance with all the great traditions of the natural law and common law as recorded through the centuries from Bracton to Blackstone. By abandoning their ingrained concepts of the natural law, the colonists undoubtedly could have made a comfortable settlement of their tax and navigation difficulties with England, but they chose the alternatives so well and so logically described in the Declaration of Independence.

Founding Fathers Did Not Invent New Theory of Law

"The inference that the principles of the Declaration were extravagant improvisations is refuted by the testimony of the times. Nearly half a century after the Declaration was adopted, one Timothy Pickering wrote to John Adams calling attention to the commonplace character of pronouncements contained in the great document and manifesting surprise at the acclaim and reverence accorded to it."

Then the author goes on to quote a letter Jefferson wrote to Madison in 1823 in regard to a statement Adams had made to Timothy Pickering. In this letter Jefferson wrote:

"Pickering's observations and Mr. Adams' in addition, that it (the Declaration) contained no new ideas, that it is a commonplace compilation, its sentiments hackneyed in Congress for two years before, and its essence contained in Otis' pamphlet may all be true. Of that I am not to be the judge. Richard Henry Lee charged it as copied from Locke's treatise on government, Otis' pamphlet I never saw, and whether I gathered my ideas from reading or reflection I do not know. I know only that I turned to neither book nor pamphlet while writing it. I did not consider it as any part of my charge to invent new ideas altogether, and to offer no sentiment which had ever been expressed before . . .

". . Timothy (Pickering) thinks . . . that the Declaration, as being a libel on the government of England, composed in times of passion, should now be buried in utter oblivion, to spare the feeling of our English friends and anglo-man fellow citizens. But it is not to wound them that we wish to keep it in mind: but to cherish the principles of the instrument in the bosoms of our own citizens . . . In opposition, however, to Mr. Pickering, I pray God that these principles may be eternal . . ."

Locke's Philosophy Inconsistent With Declaration of Independence

I believe I have quoted in this column that Isabel Paterson said that if it had not been for John Locke we would never have had our form of government. I think Isabel Paterson was mistaken in this opinion and I was mistaken in repeating it. This idea that Locke was the originator of the Declaration of Independence is refuted by his statement that:

"When any number of men have consented to make one community or government they are thereby presently incorporated and make one body politic wherein the majority have the right to conclude the rest."

Then Mr. Manion continues his pamphlet by saying:

"Locke thus implies that once government is installed by the consent of the governed the rights of individuals and minorities are completely and absolutely subject to its directions. This doctrine is inconsistent with the natural law and natural rights philosophy of the Declaration of Independence. It is at variance with the essays, pamphlets and correspondence that circulated so freely in American Revolutionary times and thereafter. This theory was certainly not that of Thomas Jefferson. For instance on June 7, 1816, Jefferson wrote to Francis Gilmer that:

" 'Our legislators are not sufficiently appraised of the rightful limits of their power; that their true office is to declare and enforce only our natural rights and duties and to take none of them from us. No man has a natural right to commit aggression on the equal rights of another and this is all from which the law ought to restrain him . . . When the laws have declared and enforced all this, they have fulfilled their functions and the idea is quite unfounded that on entering into society we give up any natural right.' "

Our coercive schools (tax supported) are obliged of course to deny that there are any natural rights. They are operated under the theory that the local boards of education and the state boards of education and the National Education Association are superior to inalienable, natural rights. No wonder our country is rapidly losing its freedom and adopting the social philosophy of England when the youth of our land are so indoctrinated.

Russell Picked To Unite Split Between North-South Demos

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Sen. Richard Brevard Russell of Georgia has emerged as the man who may be able to heal the soreness between the Northern and Southern wings of the Democratic Party that contributed so heavily to President Eisenhower's victory last year and still harasses the opposition.

He has been picked for the task by Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, and presumably on the advice of ex-President Truman, and Adlai E. Stevenson.

He has peculiar qualifications for the assignment. He is recognized as one of the ablest and most popular members of the Senate. Even when the Byrd-Byrnes faction was lambasting Truman, he managed to keep on friendly terms with them and the White House without any compromise of principles. He is one of Capitol Hill's diverse problems as agriculture and national defense.

PRAISED MITCHELL'S APPOINTMENTS — Although he did not campaign actively for Stevenson, he gave no comfort to Eisenhower Democrats in Dixie, as did so many of his colleagues. He has urged a fair hearing for Mitchell's attempt to settle the dispute over the so-called "loyalty oath" that embittered the Southerners.

He has praised Michell's first two appointments to the committee that will undertake the job—Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh and Sam Rayburn, Democratic floor leader of the House. Russell is already convinced that the difficult problem will be solved or sidetracked before the 1956 convention.

RUSSELL FAVORS SUPPORT OF NATO — Russell never indulges in bitter or personal attacks. But he has expressed deep concern over the Eisenhower administration's delay in formulating a farm program and the cutbacks in national defense expenditures.

As former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, he is not satisfied that the United States can obtain a stronger defense position with less money. He also favors all - out support of NATO.

Thus, and without any conscious, active or deliberate attempt to do so, the quiet - spoken and handsome Georgian, who is also one of the Capital's most eligible bachelors, has become a possible solvent of Democratic dissension.

HIS SHOWING AT 1952 CONVENTION — The recognition accorded Russell's party eminence at the 1952 convention led Stevenson, Truman and Mitchell to turn to him in their present extremity. They see no chance of 1956 success unless they can win back the South.

The Georgian rolled up 268 ballots on the first roll call, only five less than Stevenson's. What was not generally appreciated at the time was that he and Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, two Southerners, had a combined vote of 628 on the first tally, or 15 more than was necessary for the nomination.

SIGNIFICANT SUPPORT — But the significant fact about Russell's support was that it came from many sections of the country, including several farm states. He was not a mere regional entry. Between the first and third ballot, when Stevenson obtained a majority, Russell lost only seven votes. Kefauver lost 60½.

During the convention Russell surprised his supporters by suggesting that he might favor repeal or radical revision of the Taft-Hartley Act, which he had always supported. It indicated that "Dick" was really serious in his attempt to become the first man from Dixie to gain a major presidential nomination since the Civil War. The suspicion still persists that the 56-year-old senator entertains this ambition.

KEFAUVER'S STOCK DROPS — Kefauver's political stock has dropped out of sight, in view of the lack of substantial results from his famous crime investigation. The only statute passed on the basis of his expose—the licensing and taxing of gamblers—has proved worthless. It costs more to enforce than it collects. And it has not checked racketeering or criminality.

So, if Russell should pick up some of Kefauver's vanished vote, as well as the meaningless, complimentary ballot given to such also-rans as Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas and Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, he would be a real contender. This fact, no doubt, strengthens his desire for a united Democratic party.

BID FOR A SMILE

A farmer in Iowa was very interested in seeing a prize bull at the state fair, so he loaded his wife and 13 children into the wagon and set off. Upon arrival, he was informed that admission price to see the champion bull was 50 cents a head.

Indignant, he explained that he had come 100 miles but he was damned if he would pay $7.50 for his family to look at the animal.

The doorkeeper conferred a moment with the fair manager, then came back to the farmer.

Doorkeeper — O. K. come on in and bring the family it's free.

Farmer — Well, now, that's right nice, but I'm willing pay you something.

Doorkeeper — Forget it, mister—we want the bull to see you.

Seen in a country paper:

"The man who picked up my wallet on Main Street was recognized. He is requested to return it."

The next issue carried this reply:

"The recognized man who picked up your wallet requests the loser to call and get it."

Her car stalled at the corner and the traffic light changed red, yellow, green, red, yellow, green, etc. The polite policeman stepped beside her car and said: "What's matter, lady, ain't we got any colors you like?"

Pegler Says He Doesn't Plan To Read Memoirs Of Truman

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
(Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

I have not planned to spend any precious man-hours reading Harry Truman's memoirs because much as I should enjoy a frank account of the most primitive and pugnacious President of our time, I know that he will not tell the truth.

There is in Truman's personal background a plain explanation of his written threat to a man who had written an honest appraisal of his daughter's singing.

He comes of rough stock and was raised on a frontier. Kicking a man to maim him was consistent with the morals and methods of the badmen of Independence long after Harry was born.

His threat, therefore, was but the expression of his ethics and character. He had chivalry for his pretext, but his own gross affront to Mrs. Strom Thurmond, the wife of the defeated Dixiecrat candidate, in the inaugural parade of 1949, discounts that. A gangster resents an affront to his moll, but that does not make him a cavalier.

So I resort to a version written by George Creel, an old neighbor of the Trumans in Independence, who in a forgotten chapter of an unappreciated memoir, tells us that Truman's Uncle Jim Crow Chiles was a formidable killer and a town scourge until he and his son, Lije went down in a fight with the town marshal and his son.

In 1947, Creel turned out his autobiography entitled, "Rebel At Large," the story of a spindling, irrepressible turbulence who walked with and over many of the great of three generations, his own and the ones just before and after. Creel's family lived in the "Southern" country of Missouri and suffered persecutions common to the dark and bloody ground of a front where Southern families were "herded into the highways by bayonets as the torch set fire to houses and barns."

Chapter 2 is headed "Harry Truman's Town." Creel's father had tried cattling in southeastern Missouri, where even in George's adult years, "The houses still had earth floors and people borrowed a shovel of hot coals from a neighbor when the fire went out."

"A primitive region," he tells us, "and yet from it came Sally Rand, the fan dancer, and Zoe Akins, the very sophisticated playwright."

Having gone broke on cattle, Creel's father moved to Independence where his mother took boarders in a crowded cottage. Independence was "super - Southern" and when Frank James surrendered after Jesse had been shot Col. Elijah Magoffin took George to the jail to meet "the poor victim of Northern hate." Frank James patted George on the head and he recalls that his acquittal "took some of the sting out of Appomattox."

This was Southern country, but the native land of the mugwump who sat on the fence with his mug pointed one way and his wump another and wheeled about from day to day. There is no developed literature on the Trumans, but Harry's mother has been depicted as a woman of indomitable Southern prejudices. It was only after she died that her son, as President, became a political agent of Americans for Democratic Action and their "civil rights" agitation.

"Colonels," Creel says, "rocked on every porch, held forth in the court-house yard on summer afternoons, delivered all Fourth of July orations and gave the town its thrills and laughter. Fat colonels, lean colonels, blustery colonels, quiet colonels with faces like nicked sword blades, and swashbuckling colonels, eager for a quarrel—living in a past that they refused to put behind them," and all Southern veterans.

"The most notorious was Jim Crow Chiles, one of Harry Truman's uncles, having married a sister of the President's mother. He became the town's 'badman,' terrorizing the entire community by his violent temper and ready revolver. Not the least of his many lawlessnesses was his threat to kill 'any nigger that gets to windward of me.' Several poor wretches were careless enough to forget the warning. One particularly cold-blooded murder, that of a colored boy, was witnessed by two men from a second-floor window, whereupon Jim Crow gave them 24 hours to leave town. Parker, a dentist, had the courage to refuse. The other, St. John by name, skedaddled to Kansas where he rose to be governor. Finally, the people put in Jim Peacock, also a veteran, as an assistant to the town marshal. Chiles took this as a personal affront and said he would slap Peacock's face on sight.

"The chance came on a quiet Sunday morning. Accompanied by his young son, Lije, Jim Crow marched into the drug store on the square where Peacock made his unofficial headquarters and swaggered out again when told that the marshal was sunning himself across the way. Charlie Peacock, Jim's son, happened to be in the store and followed close, after borrowing a revolver.

"As they came together, Jim Crow gave the slap that he had promised. Peacock threw Chiles to the ground and Lije Chiles pumped a bullet into Peacock's back. Before he could shoot again Charlie Peacock let loose a volley, sending Lije down with mortal wounds. Rushing to his father's aid, however, Charlie Peacock snagged the revolver in his own pants and a shot in the leg put him out of the fight, along with young Lije.

"Jim Peacock, spouting blood from a hole in his back, struggled to make Chiles a prisoner, but when Jim Crow reached for his gun, he pulled his own. A bullet through the head from ear to ear ended the bloody struggle and there was nothing to do but cart away the bodies."

Mr. Creel says the outcome was "Highly satisfactory" to the community because with Truman's uncle and cousin obliterated, the rest of the gunmen disarmed or left town. Peacock held office until he died of old age.

I would not look for this incident in Mr. Truman's life story.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

It is easy to become overly concerned, as does the writer of today's first letter, about some report or laboratory test which is not well understood.

Q—Is one's blood sugar variable from day to day? Mrs. J.C.

A—The amount of recognizable sugar in the blood will not only vary from day to day, but from one time of day to another. It rises rather quickly following a meal, and tends to drop off slowly thereafter. If above a certain level, depending on the relationship to meals, it is suspicious of diabetes, and, if below a certain level, of a condition known as hypoglycemia. The interpretation of the figures for blood sugar, however, should rest in the hands of the physician and the patient should never be too much concerned about variations in blood-sugar levels.

Q—Is the frequent use of coffee likely to hasten or cause hardening of the arteries? Is cold coffee worse than hot coffee? L.M.K.

A—So far as is known, coffee neither hastens nor causes hardening of the arteries. This being the case, there is no difference between cold and hot coffee as far as the arteries are concerned.

Q—I am worried about my grandson. After he sleeps a few hours he starts to cry and shakes all over as though having a nightmare. Some people say to slap his face and some say just pick him up. What should we do: J.K.

A—The little boy, from the description, probably is having a nightmare. If so, he cannot help it and slapping would seem to be a little rough and cruel. Keep him as calm and happy as possible, both when you wake him from a nightmare and during the rest of the time, particularly before he goes to bed at night.

Q—Three of us have long been troubled with polyps of the nose. If this condition is brought about through lack of some vitamin, we should be pleased to follow your advice. A. J.

A—The cause of nasal polyps is unknown and the only treatment is to remove them surgically. Unfortunately, they tend to grow back, so surgical removal may have to be repeated. There is no reason to believe that lack of any vitamin plays a part in the development of nasal polyps.

Q—Please give me your opinion about the use of ozone generators. I have been told that they purify the blood, cure fibroid tumors, cancer and tuberculosis. Mrs. M.

A—I have a low opinion of them. I do not know of any scientific reason why they should cure the conditions mentioned.

Mothers who prepare lunch boxes for their school-age children ought to know something about the most healthful foods to put into these lunches. It is assumed also, of course, that breakfast and supper are well balanced meals containing adequate quantities of nutritious foods.

Milk always should be included in a thermos bottle if it is not purchased regularly at school separately from the home-packed lunch. A growing youngster should drink at least a quart of milk a day as it may be difficult to get this at other times.

In addition to milk the noon meals should supply some protein which can be given easily in the form of boiled eggs or egg sandwich, meat sandwich, or ought also to be included. Lettuce cheese. Fruits and vegetables and tomato either as salad or in the form of a sandwich can be used.

Carrots or any fruit like apple, pear, peach or orange, can be included in a lunch box and they are all easy to eat at school. These fruits and vegetables supply many desirable vitamins.

A school lunch should be as attractive as possible, so that just the right amount of the proper foods are included each day to supply an active youngster with energy and other foods needed to help in doing the best school work.

Dudley, Flynn Are PHS Co-Captains

Choices Made Tuesday In Team Meeting

Halfback Ed Dudley and guard Alton Flynn have been named co-captains for the Fighting Harvesters for the 1953 campaign.

These selections were made at a team meeting yesterday. As has been customary in the past, the players themselves pick their own co-captains for the year.

Both Dudley and Flynn are returning lettermen and both were regulars last season. They will commence their co-captain duties Friday night when the Harvesters journey to Fort Worth to meet the Paschal Panthers.

Dudley and Flynn succeed Buddy Cockrell, Tommy Sells and Bill Pippen as the Harvester captains. All three of last year's leaders graduated last spring.

In the meantime, Coach Tom Tipps and his aids were sending the Harvesters through their final workout this afternoon before departing tomorrow for the scene of the Cowtown clash. The Green and Golders will embark by bus at noon tomorrow.

The Harvesters were sent through another rigid workout yesterday as they continued preparations for the Paschal clash. Much of the attention was centered around the second stringers running Paschal plays against the first line Harvester defense.

No injuries were reported following the workout. The Harvesters have gone through their two toughest workouts of the year the past two days. Coach Tipps, not fully satisfied with the showing of the Harvesters in last week's game with Big Spring, has been attempting to iron out the weak spots that came to light in the Big Spring game.

Paschal will be bouncing back this week following its heart-breaking 14-6 loss to Amarillo last week. The Panthers literally fumbled away their chances for victory against the Sandies. One of the fumbles was over the Sandie goal line which was recovered by a Sandie for an automatic touchback. Amarillo led only 7-6 at the time.

The Sandies didn't score their second touchdown until the last minute and half of play.

For the second week in a row, the Harvester will be out-weighed. The Panthers can field a starting line that will average 196 pounds per man. The Harvester forward wall averages 172 pounds.

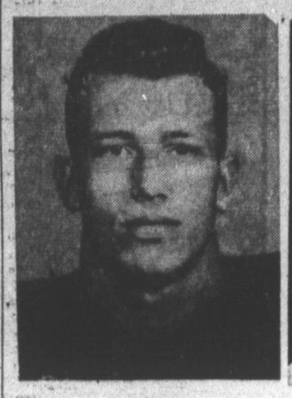

In some portions of the state, the Panthers are being given the favorites role. In addition to the Amarillo game, Paschal has one other game under its belt, a 21-12 win over Graham. Graham is ranked the No. 3 team in the Triple-A division.

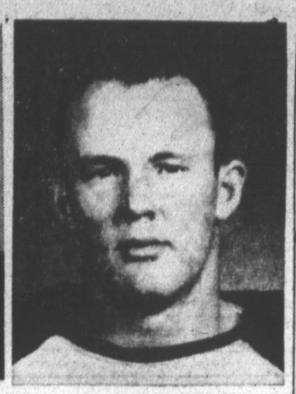

Prior to the Harvesters' departure tomorrow, a student pep-rally will be held at the high school.

The Harvester band, along with a huge delegation of students, will follow the team to Fort Worth Friday.

Local fans planning to attend the game are reminded that tickets to the game are not available here. Paschal didn't send any ducats in advance here but promised the Pampa fans they will be assured of getting some good seats upon arrival in Fort Worth. The game will be played in spacious Farrington Field which seats close to 20,000 fans.

Friday's game will be the final tuneup for the Harvesters before swinging into District 1-AAAA action. The Amarillo Golden Sandies will invade Harvester Stadium a week from Friday for the first 1-4A tilt for the Harvesters.

Odessa Bronchos Rank High In State Although They Are Winless Thus Far

ODESSA'S BRONCHOS ARE PROVING that you don't always have to win a game to get recognition.

With the September schedule having been played, the Broncs are rated third in the state by the Williamson system and sixth in the state by the United Press. And the Broncs haven't crashed the victory column yet.

The catch is, of course, that the Odessans have taken on two of possibly the toughest teams of the state—Port Arthur and Waco. The Broncs did manage a tie in one of the games (13-13 in the Port Arthur tilt). Then the Broncs fought Waco to almost a standstill before bowing, 12-13.

Waco is ranked second in the state by both the Williamson System and UP and Port Arthur is fourth in both selections.

IF YOU HAPPEN TO WANDER OUT to the Harvester practice session this afternoon, don't be surprised if you see head coach Tom Tipps suited out in grid regalia. That is if he recovers in time from yesterday's workout.

The hard-working Tipps took over the quarterbacking duties for the drill on the Paschal Panther plays which was run by the Harvester reserves against the regular defensive lineup. The drill lasted more than an hour.

No, there wasn't any horseplay going on during the workout. Tipps quite often does the quarterbacking for the team running opponent plays against the Green and Gold regular defensive unit.

A lot was accomplished in the workouts the past two days. Tipps and his aides are going all out to get their charges ready for Friday night's rugged battle with Paschal.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE TWO newly appointed Harvester co-captains, halfback Ed Dudley and guard Alton Flynn. Picked by their teammates in a meeting of the squad yesterday, the players certainly made a wise choice in choosing their leaders for the year.

Several others, of course, would have been good selections for captains but none possibly has better leadership ability than Dudley and Flynn.

One thing that was gratifying about the co-captain selections was that of naming a lineman for one of the posts. Game in and game out the backfielders receive the most glory since they are the ones that carry the ball.

But the hard working linemen are the ones that make good ball carriers. Regardless of how good a back may be, he can't succeed without help from the men up front.

We have often wondered why someone doesn't work out some system of keeping statistics on linemen. The system could cover how many tackles a player makes, the number of successful blocks made, etc.

It would take a full staff of statisticians to keep up with these statistics but it would be well worth while to bring them to light.

Maybe we'll figure out something before too long on this matter. If anyone has any suggestions on a simple form for keeping linemen statistics, we would be glad to hear from you.

PERHAPS YOU HAVE NOTICED the Pampa Oilers' popular first baseman, Doug Lewis, around town this week. Lewis, who says he is through with his vacation following the gruelling baseball season, reports that he is ready to go to work. He said he would like to land a job here since he wants to winter here. If anyone knows of anything, either contact him or yours truly.

Lewis adds to a growing list of Oilers spending the winter here. Others wintering here are Manager Porky Pawelek, centerfielder Deck Woldt, pitcher Max Molberg and second baseman Ben Felder.

The fans here certainly did well during the baseball season in showing appreciation for the Oiler players. This act of kindness is one reason that a lot of the players desired to spend the winter months here.

Some who didn't stay told us before they left town that they would like to winter here. Among this group was Jake Henson and Sad Sam Williams.

LaStarza Still Top Contender

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—UP—Roland LaStarza kept the top heavyweight contenders' post in Wednesday's latest Ring Magazine ratings despite his 11th - round knockout last Thursday by Champion Rocky Marciano.

Editor Nat Fleischer explained there were two reasons why Roland retained the number one ranking: (1) "The splendid battle LaStarza put up for six rounds against Marciano," and (2) The defeats ex-Champion Ezzard Charles suffered recently by Nino Valdes and Harold Johnson.

However, Charles remained in second position because "his overall record for the year is far better than that of his conquerors."

Lightweight Ralph Dupas, the 17-year-old "whiz kid" from New Orleans, made the biggest jump of all. He leaped from 10th among 135-pound contenders to third. Decisions over Brian Kelly, Rocky Brisebois and previously top-rated Johnny Gonsalves provided the spring.

The Ring Magazine's latest ratings:

Larry Isbell Added To Baylor Staff

By UNITED PRESS

Baylor added former star quarterback Larry Isbell to its coaching staff Wednesday as the Bears prepared for an intersectional clash Saturday with the University of Miami.

Isbell aided with coaching at Baylor last fall, but played baseball with the Louisville club of the American Association during the summer, and batted .317.

Baylor polished its passing game and reviewed defensive assignments Tuesday. Coach George Sauer said 39 players would leave by plane for Miami Thursday morning.

SMU's Mustangs prepared for their season opener against Georgia Tech Saturday with an afternoon of pass plays and defensive strategy. The No. 1 squad operated against the second team, before they switched and ran plays against the freshmen.

The Texas Aggies scheduled an offensive scrimmage Wednesday. The Cadets scrimmaged defensively Tuesday against freshmen who ran Georgia plays. Coach Ray George said center Cooper Robbins and end Donald Robbins were injured and probably won't see action Saturday against Georgia.

Arkansas Coach Bowden Wyatt said his Razorbacks "should give TCU a run for their money" in Fayetteville Saturday if the Hogs can keep from fumbling and can have only a few penalties. It was fumbles and penalties that cost the Hogs their opening 7 to 6 loss last week to Oklahoma A&M. The squad worked on defense Tuesday and Wyatt said he was pleased.

The Texas Longhorns had a lengthy scrimmage session yesterday to correct mistakes discovered in their victory over Villanova last Saturday. Later the squad worked in groups of backs, linemen and ends in preparation for Saturday's clash against the University of Houston in Austin.

Missouri's Don Faurot Named UP's 'College Coach Of Week'

BY NORMAN MILLER

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—UP—He's as "Missouri" as the fabled old mule, but he's as yielding as they come when the time calls for a change in football coaching techniques.

When the colleges began platooning in the early '40's, he did it with the best of them. And now they've gone back to platoonless football, he's made the readjustment in his customary efficient fashion.

He's Don Faurot, whose Missouri Tigers engineered a major upset in beating Purdue's 1952 Big Ten co-champions, 14 to 7, last Saturday and thus earned him the accolade of United Press Coach of the Week.

Genuine Son of Missouri

Faurot, born 51 years ago in Mountain Grove, Mo., and now in his 16th year as head coach of the Tigers, is a genuine son of Missouri. A graduate of the University in the class of '25, Faurot this year was voted into Missouri's Sports Hall of Fame, where he joined such notables as Casey Stengel, Carl Hubbell and Dr. Forrest (Phog) Allen.

It seems appropriate, therefore, in last Saturday's big victory over Purdue, all 26 players employed by Faurot were native Missourians.

Faurot is a strong advocate of platoon-less football because "it gives the game back to the boys."

Up to the Boys Again

"We joke a lot in football about character building, but one-platoon football will help develop initiative, resourcefulness and judgment in the players — where the old rules didn't," Faurot maintains.

"The coach no longer is able to substitute freely and thus call the offensive and defensive maneuvers from the bench. Once more it's up to the boys to make decisions on the field and that's as it should be."

Prospects looked dim for Missouri this season when it lost the opener to Maryland, 20 to 6. But once again Faurot improvised. He started six new players against Purdue and was rewarded by an inspired performance.

Was 150th Victory

"We just learned a lot of football in losing to Maryland the week before," Faurot said. "We concentrated on the errors we made against Maryland and were able to correct them against Purdue. Our line played awfully good and forced Purdue into a passing game, which turned out well for us."

The victory was the 150th in the slender Missouri coach's 25 - year coaching career.

Next weekend Missouri opens its Big Seven conference campaign against Colorado.

And the odds are that resourceful Faurot will dream up something good for that one, just as he did for his first 150 triumphs.

CHOOSING UP SIDES—The 1953 World Series is the fifth between the Dodgers and Yankees and Pee Wee Reese, left, and Phil Rizzuto have opposed each other in all of them. They're the only veterans from the 1941 show, and from the looks of things choosing up sides is old hat to the star shortstops. (NEA)

Browns' Franchise Moves To Baltimore

BY CARL LUNDQUIST

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—UP—The Baltimore Orioles, a proud old baseball dynasty which gave the game such heroes as Babe Ruth, John McGraw, and Wee Willie Keeler, came back to the major leagues Wednesday after a 50-year absence with high hopes and a last place franchise.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro and the new boss of the ball club, attorney Clarence Miles, said an immediate rebuilding program would begin with an aim to repeating the fabulous success story of Milwaukee this season with its transplanted Boston Braves.

Park Seats 52,000

There were reasons to believe they would succeed — even with the rag - bag Brownies. For the completely rebuilt park — Babe Ruth Stadium — which originally was a football field, will seat upwards of 52,000 when construction is finished next April, whereas Milwaukee's new plant seats 33,000.

"Maybe we won't fill it up every day, but we'll come close, judging by the enthusiasm of the town which is on fire for baseball," said D'Alesandro. "As mayor, I am sure the people of our great city will support major league baseball and our next big aim is to bring a World Series to Baltimore and win it."

Miles, who said the club paid $2,475,000 to Bill Veeck of St. Louis and his group of stockholders for the franchise and the ball club, emphasized "this is just the beginning."

Want A Winner

"We realize we took over a last-place team and we want a winner. We're out to buy some players and that costs money, too. We also, of course, must settle with the International League for taking over its franchise."

Whether Veeck, who was openly opposed by several club officials, notably Del Webb of the Yankees, would be taken into the new organization was a question to be settled. Manager Marty Marion and farm director Bill DeWitt both retained contracts which run through next season for Marion and through the 1956 season for DeWitt.

Formerly named Hot Springs, a town in New Mexico now bears the name of Truth or Consequences.

Made His Break

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 30—UP—Calvin Haligan, a 21-year-old truant at the Nebraska Reformatory, dutifully reported to authorities the escape of a fellow prisoner.

Haligan was sent to his quarters while a search was started for the escapee.

When the authorities returned they discovered Haligan was gone too.

Garlic Shortage Okay With Scribe

BY HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—UP—It doesn't hurt me a whit to learn there is a shortage of garlic.

I know, as they say, a little garlic goes a long way, but for my watered two-cents worth it can go the way of all other smells.

With garlic, there is no middle road. You either like it or you hate it. And even a little bit, when applied to a good steak or meatballs, still can be tasted the next day.

Also, the breath it gives a man is enough to discourage the ladies.

Slowed Down Book Lugger

I'll never forget the first date I had. My lovely Mom had cooked up a batch of liver and instead of using onions, which are hardly offensive to anyone, she "garnished" the spider full of hog liver with garlic.

My date, Dorothy, was a lively girl, but thereafter I didn't get a chance to lug her books home until the odor wore off, which was longer than I wanted to wait, being an ambitious book-lugger at the time.

I have done a little research on garlic.

The British, according to one source, always have hated garlic because it "has a flavor." I am on Britain's side. Spaniards, according to my friend and coworker Manuel Casares of Spain, tend to use garlic on everything from chicken with rice to roast mutton.

Garlic Respectable

Much as I like my friend, Manuel, I'll take my mutton without the smell, Manuel, by the way, is on my anti-garlic team.

Garlic was not used widely in America until the coming of the Southern and Eastern Europeans. Somebody should have been shot dead right there.

"Garlic," one writer says, "has become respectable."

That's fine, but you always find some stinker who says "make mine plain," and then runs about the grounds holding his snout.

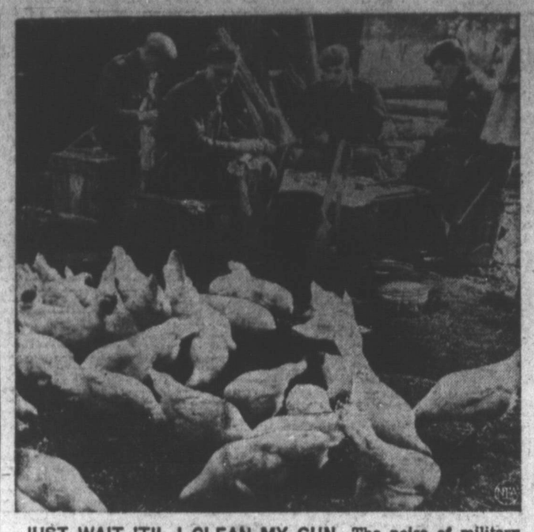

Another fellow who ought to have to eat a whole bulb of garlic without benefit of meatballs said "the spaghetti house and the chili parlor have made its delights familiar to everyone."

You can make that read "almost everyone."

World's largest power dam is said to be that on the Dnieper river in Soviet Russia. It was built by American engineers.

GARDEN OF EDAM—A Danish miss sits in a Copenhagen garden loaded with rich cheeses in all shapes and colors. The edible garden is one of the features of the National Dairy Show, held every five years under the auspices of the Federation of Danish Dairy Associations. Over 1200 samples of butter and 1000 cheeses are on display at the show.

JUST WAIT 'TIL I CLEAN MY GUN—The noise of military maneuvers and the threat of Dutch soldiers cleaning their guns doesn't seem to faze the chickens grubbing around in a Delmenhorst, Germany, back yard, but the riflemen have that "Oh, boy, chicken!" look. The soldiers are part of the 432nd Battalion, Limburge, taking part in "Exercise Grand Repulse."

Terry Moore In College

BY ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30—UP—Students at UCLA have a movie queen in their classrooms today—Terry Moore put on a weater and went back to college.

With fall and football in the air, the three R's bug bites the film folks, too.

Terry registered as a sophomore and two nights a week she gives up rumbaing at Macombo and other Cinema City spots to trudge to school with her books under her arm.

It's the 3-D and wide-screen revolution that got her back before the professors, she explained.

"My studio, 20th Century Fox, is closing for three months (to reconvert to Cinemascope production)," said Terry. "So I had the free time. I've always wanted to go back to school.

"I quit five years ago when I started getting starring roles and took a contract at Columbia, now I can finish up."

Terry is studying, among other things, television. She's bowing up on the technical side of TV.

"I'm allowed to do some TV appearances now, and we'll be doing more. Eventually it will be the thing," she said.

"I'm also studying the history of the theater. None of us knows the beginnings of the theater, and we should. Some people say that's nothing I can use before a movie camera, but I think it helps. I'm reading Euripides and Sophocles now and did you know drama began 4,000 years before Christ?"

Terry registered at the University of California at Los Angeles as Helen Koford, her real name, "and I hoped nobody would know I was an actress."

"I didn't think the students did until we went after class to buy books and I bought second-hand ones," she grinned.

"They said why was I buying those with my money? I was so embarrassed. I told them they probably have more than I do."

One night, movies interfered with school. Terry had to go to the premiere of "The Robe" so her mother went to class for her to take notes.

"I told the studio I had to go to school but they didn't understand," she sighed.

Texans Honored By H-D Awards

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Sept. 30—UP—The Distinguished Service Award of the National County Home Demonstration Agents Association will go to four Texans this year.

The association makes the presentations annually. Agents are selected on tenure or service and record of work by state and national committees.

Each agent to receive the national award will attend the convention, Mrs. Marrs said. Others representing the Texas association who will attend include:

Pruitt, Jefferson county; Mrs. Ione Reisch, Anderson county; Ezelle Johnson, Hudspeth and Culberson counties; Sue Hawthorn, Holan county; Orene McClellan, Dallas county, and Mrs. Beatrice E. Rubenstein, who is vice president of the national association, from Brazoria county.

Al Capone's Brother Arrested

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Sept. 30—UP— John Capone, younger brother of late Al Capone, Wednesday was held on suspicion of robbery because police said he could not give a satisfactory accounting for $5,362 cash found in his possession.

Peggy Lee Asks Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Sept. 30—UP—Blonde singer Peggy Lee Wednesday will file for a divorce from her actor husband, Brad Dexter, according to her attorney, Edward J. O'Connor. O'Connor said Miss Lee will seek the divorce on charges of mental cruelty.

Meeting Requested On Texas Roads

AUSTIN, Sept. 30—UP—Gov. Allan Shivers Wednesday was urged to call a meeting aimed at developing "a united approach" and a "Texas-sized answer to a Texas-sized worry" on road and street financing.

Mayor Jim Wright of Weatherford, president of the League of Texas Municipalities, asked Shivers to call a meeting of highway officials, leaders of interested organizations, legislators and taxpayers.

He said "the need is not for further fact-finding commissions, but for a group which can plan a coordinated program of action and direct its execution. We are all aware of the facts."

Wright, who warned three traffic crises face the state, said "the needs will multiply annually until Texas has provided a Texas-sized answer to a Texas-wide worry."

He said cities do not have sufficient sources of revenue to provide adequate streets, and county maintenance costs have risen in meeting the need for better school bus routes.

Wright, a former state legislator, said a third problem is "the need for additional state money to rebuild the primary highway system into four-lane, divided highways which we all know will cut our shocking toll of traffic deaths and ease the task of getting from city to city.

Overcrowded Truck

DETROIT, Sept. 30—UP— Officers searching for a young fugitive from Boys Republic, a training school, got some unexpected help from a well-armed volunteer.

The runaway boy abandoned a stolen truck Sunday and dashed into a nearby field. He soon was captured.

Police discovered the stolen truck was occupied by a skunk.

Locomotive Engineers to Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 28—UP—The annual Southwestern meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Oct. 5-6 at San Antonio is expected to draw 1,200 persons from Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Harrison Hobart, new assistant secretary of labor, will be a speaker.

Crooner Selects New Theme Song

BY ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30—UP—When Bing Crosby returned to radio for the 22nd year this season, one "star" of his show—his trademark—was missing.

Bing's theme song, "Where the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day," will never be heard on his program again.

The most famous crooner of them all revealed Tuesday he's retired the famous tune.

"I began thinking about it when I was up on the ranch in Nevada last summer," Bing explained. "I was getting pretty tired of the blue of the night meeting the gold of the day, and I figured the public was tired of it, too.

"I decided it was high time I had a new theme song for my new radio show. It has a slightly different format, more songs."

Crosby said he had no particular number in mind, and didn't discover his new theme until one day at Paramount Studio he heard composer Al Newman playing a catchy melody on a piano.

"I asked him what it was, and he said it was just a little thing he was toying around with. I told him to toy around with it some more because I was looking for a new theme song.

"Newman did just that, and sent me the song. I liked it, and we decided to use it on the show."

The tune is called simply, "Bing's theme." It doesn't have a true title, or even any lyrics. Bing said he doesn't plan to sing it. It will be played by the orchestra on the program as was his old theme song ever since he started crooning into a radio microphone in 1931.

"Where the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day" was written by Ray Turk and Fred Ahlert. Crosby made it famous in a Mack Sennett short movie of the same name that featured him in the early '30's. The song became Bing's trademark, and he's been it's steady singer ever since.

Cantor Collects Clothing
