Girl Scouting In The West Texas Council

The West Texas Girl Scout Council was chartered in 1946 with the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. Girl Scouting had existed earlier, of course, in this area, but these troops before 1946 were Lone Troops and had no affiliation with any council.

The council's jurisdiction was defined by the original charter as 13 West Texas counties, Taylor, Jones, Nolan, Scurry, Coke, Fisher, Mitchell, Sterling, Glasscock, Howard, Borden, Dawson, and Martin. This remained unchanged until January of 1962, when the Council Delegates voted to add 3 counties to the north — Haskell, Stonewall, and Kent — which had previously been in no council.

The council's operation is financed by Community Chests, United Funds, and local Girl Scout fund-raising drives. Once a year a Cookie Sale is held. Proceeds from this sale are used for Capital Improvement — while the income from the fund drives is for Operational Expenses. The Cookie Sale funds are also used for the maintenance of the council's large capital expenditure — Camp Boothe Oaks near Sweetwater.

The established camp, Boothe Oaks, is built entirely from the proceeds of the annual Cookie Sales, which have been in effect for 12 years. Cookie money has brought the land 40 acres — covered with live-oak trees, built the buildings and swimming pool, purchased the tents and tent platforms for the units, and provides for repair and maintenance of the camp year around. Much of the labor that went into the building of the permanent structures (Gates Dining Hall, craft lodge, infirmary, caretaker's home, and troop lodge) was volunteered by labor unions in Abilene and Sweetwater; the camp has four permanent unit sites and 2 shower houses between the unit areas besides the 3 permanent buildings and swimming pool. The approximate value of the total acreage and buildings is $102,750.00 — all this built by Girl Scout cookies!

From 150 - 300 Girl Scouts attend camp for one or two weeks each summer, at Boothe Oaks, and the site is used for Troop Camping and special camp events by all troops in the council during the rest of the year.

Besides the established Camping and Troop Camping, many girls participate in the Day Camps near their homes each summer. Brownie Scouts may attend Day Camp, which lasts from six to eight hours a day for five or six days. The girls go to the camp site in the morning and return to their homes in the evening so it is not a resident - type camp. All Scouts may attend Day Camp, but many Brownie Scouts have their very first experience in camping in their local Day Camps.

Here in the West Texas Girl Scout Council there are 244 troops. These troops are led by trained volunteer personnel; the Girl Scouts are proud of the superior leadership that has made this organization offer a stimulating and effective program. Leadership training has always been basic to Girl Scouting. All leaders receive thorough training, not only in organization and management of a troop, but in program activities and skills.

Of the 244 troops in this council there are 45 Brownie Troops, 88 Intermediate Troops, and 11 senior Troops. There are a total of 833 adults — both men and women — registered with troops. A Board of Directors is elected by the adult membership of the council to see that the Girl Scout program is properly administered within the 16 counties of the council's jurisdiction. These Board members, like all adults in Girl Scouting, must subscribe to the Girl Scout Promise and Laws. Since the founding of Girl Scouting fifty - one years ago, nearly 18 million girls and adult members have pledged to "do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times. . . ."

Both girls and adults are encouraged to apply this Promise not only in their Scouting relationships but in their everyday lives. The president of the West Texas Girl Scout Council is Mr. Johnnie Ammons of Baby; Mrs. J. R. Howard of Abilene is the Executive Director. District Advisers are Mrs. D. M. Costlow of Stanton and Misses Fane Downs and Harriet Redwine of Abilene. "Have fun while you learn" might be the Girl Scouts' unofficial slogan. It applies both to the girls and to their adult leaders. Half the secret of an inform-educational program such as that of the Girl Scouts is the enjoyment and excitement of learning new things together and sharing responsibilities as a team. Perhaps this is why 1 out of every 7 girls in the United States is a member of the Girl Scouts!

Stanfield P-TA Meet Held Monday

The Stanfield Parent - Teachers Association held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening at 7:30. The executive committee met at 7 o'clock in the school library. Mr. Gene Green, president, presided at both meetings.

Mr. Green gave the devotional and treasurer's report due to the illness of Mrs. Dietrick, treasurer and the devotional chairman.

Minutes of the previous meeting and the executive meeting were given by Mr. Bill Byers, who was substituting for Mrs. Royal Hagerty, secretary, who was ill.

Mrs. Rex Nall's room won room count.

The nominating committee presented a slate of officers for the 1963 - 64 season, with no nominations from the floor, the following officers were elected; Mrs. Joyce Talbott, president; Mrs. Jack Longbottom, vice president; Mrs. LaRue Watkins, secretary; and Miss Madelle Burns, treasurer.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Evelyn Alexander, program chairman. She gave a short description of the American Field Service program and then introduced Miss Martha Burly, Snyder's exchange student from Salvador, Brazil.

Miss Burly charmed the group with her youthful personality in presenting a short talk on her reaction to the program, and some information concerning Brazil. Her Brazilian comments were illustrated with slides.

Refreshments were served to approximately 80 persons.

Party Potatoes

If you'd like to add a special touch to baked potatoes for a dinner party, try this most - pleasing hot blue cheese - chive sauce. Combine 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1/2 cup (about 3 ounces) crumbled American blue cheese, and 2 tablespoons chopped chives. Cook over low heat until the cheese melts, and spoon into steaming - hot baked potatoes. Sprinkle a few cut chives on top to garnish.

LENTEN LUNCHEON DISH—Macaroni and cheese baked in custard cups to be served with or without tomato sauce.

Macaroni And Cheese For Lent

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor.
When I was a little girl nothing seemed more elegant to me than when — invited to luncheon — I was served a timbale. The timbales I remember were customary preparations holding lobster or chicken, and they were always made in individual drum-shaped molds.

When I came home after one of these soirees and complained that I never had these glamorous dishes at our table, my mother — a practical and energetic woman — didn't let the lack of timbale molds faze her. She used custard cups.

But the lobster and chicken creations, rich with cream and egg yolks, and accompanied by an even richer mushroom sauce, were company fare. For everyday life, we were content to have our favorite macaroni and cheese baked in the little cups.

Perhaps your children would enjoy the latter, and if so you might:

like to try the following recipe. This rule does not produce yesterday's timbale that had more custard than main ingredient, but it makes a dish with robust cheese flavor that's fine for lunch.

MACARONI CHEESE TIMBALES
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
1 1/2 cups (6 ounces) elbow macaroni
2 large eggs (slightly beaten)
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon soft butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups grated cheddar cheese

Add salt to rapidly boiling water; add macaroni gradually so water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally until tender. Drain in colander. Beat together the eggs, milk, butter, salt, pepper and cheese. Mix in cooked drained macaroni; turn into 6 to 8 ounce size buttered custard cups. Place cups in shallow pan of hot water; cover pan with foil. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until set, about 30 minutes. Unmold.

WHAT'S GOING ON

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Minor, Mrs. Ben Thompson and Mrs. C. E. Walker visited their niece, Mrs. A. A. Michel of Odessa Sunday.

Carolyn Harty Becomes Bride Of Cecil Fincher

Carolyn Ann Degeberg Harty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Harty, Arab Route, became the bride of Mr. Cecil Ray Fincher, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Morris, Lamesa Highway, on Saturday evening, March 2.

Rev. Murray Kay, pastor of the Union Baptist Church read the ceremony in the church at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Ronnie Baker of Brownfield attended her cousin as matron of honor, and Ronnie Autrey attended as cousin as best man.

Brenda Sellars presented the traditional wedding music.

Vickie Allman and Beth Calhoun were candlelighters.

The complex brothers, John Harty and Butch Morris were ushers. Branched candelabra holding white tapers and baskets of white and orchid carnations decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white pure silk suit, white satin pill box hat and white accessories. Her bridal bouque was a white magnolia surrounded by white Frenched carnations, atop a white Bible.

For something borrowed, The Bible, belonging to Mrs. Burton Moore, blue, a garter made by Mrs. Bert Sellars.

A reception followed in fellowship hall. The table was laid with an orchid cloth with net overlay, centered with a miniature bride and groom on stylized base surrounded with white and purple orchids. Mrs. Floyd Allman served the traditional three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and Mrs. Alle Gault, grandmother of the bride, served punch. Mr. Howard Franklin and Brenda Sellars presided at the groom's table. Vickie Allman and Beth Calhoun registered guests.

Mrs. Ronnie Baker served coffee.

The couple are at home at 2604 1/2 Avenue K. The bride is attending Jesse's Beauty College, and the groom is employed by McAllister Van Lines.

American Woman Making No Progress, Foreigners Say

BY INEZ ROBB

There are no two ways about it — the American woman is now, and has been for years, Mass International Typoid Mary.

What is incredible is that the United States Information Agency spent good tax money in 1962 on a redundant poll to confirm what everyone, both at home and abroad has known for years.

In September, 1962, the USA, having nothing better to do with its time and tax money, asked our ever-lovin' allies in Europe for their opinion of American women.

"In the interest of national security," the results of the poll have only now been made public. To one's surprise, we are still the woman on the loose and getting lower every day.

The old, stock possession, filled with the old stock charges, could have been written in Washington by any USA novice on a dull day and saved Uncle Sam's dough. For, as usual, our admirers in Britain, France, West Germany and Italy have not changed their opinion that my sex in the USA is "lax, oversexed, domineering, frivolous and lacking in good taste."

By golly, there's this to be said for our critics at home and abroad: they're consistent, and intact, thus permitting the victor to claim the spoils without the usual, bona fide kiss of death. We are undoubtedly the world's worst, besides which the man — Now if man can invent a bomb that only kills people, it is a cinch that he can teach this weapon to distinguish between the sexes. It is only a matter of time until scientists have perfected a neutron bomb that will preserve all real estate and all members of the male sex while killing only women. That will be a big solution to the problem while writing "finis" to the international scourge, the American female.

We American women are simply awful. There are no other words for us. Everyone says so, especially our own countrymen. So it must be so. We are the world's worst and our days are numbered. Goodbye, Mom! Goodbye, Baby Jane! Goodbye, Scarlett! Farewell, Letitia! We were good while we had it, but we haven't had it for decades.

It would be interesting to know, in 1963, Europeans were asked their opinion of American men. If so, it could be that it is "in the interests of national security" the policy which guides the release of USA polls to the public not to reveal such information. Or it could be that USA Director Edward R. Murrow is too modest to reveal how much beloved, admired and pitied the American male is in other lands.

It would only confirm my domineering nature to write that I am bitterly resentful of my tax money being spent uselessly on a poll to defame me and my sex. Because, at heart, I know how ornery and no-account we are. So in the short time allotted me before I am dispatched by the sex-bep neutron bomb, I shall scatter ashes on my bowed head at regular intervals.

Characters Observed At Lunch Time

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The custom of bringing one's lunch to work is no longer confined to the blue collar class.

As a matter of fact the average blue collar worker is so busy earning overtime, he can hardly afford to waste his youth in eating.

The white collar employee is quite another matter. He can hardly afford to live unless he brings his lunch to work. There was a time when his white collar was a status symbol. Now it is just a badge of indolent serfdom.

Anyway, for one reason or another, the average office locker room is crowded now at lunch time with foddier chompers. Among them you are sure to find these typical characters:

The Inheritor—All he ever has to eat is what is left over in the refrigerator from the day before. If it's a lamb stew he warms it up by carrying it to work in a plastic bag in his pocket.

The Classicist—On Monday, Wednesday and Friday he brings in banana sandwiches, Tuesday and Thursday he brings in liverwurst sandwiches. The male members of his family have subsided on this midday fare since the invention of bread.

The Intellectual—He nips on canapes his wife saved from the last literary to-do, and sips from a small carafe of cheap but adequate red wine from a small but sensitive vineyard on the north slope of a name vineyard in Burgundy where an unknown poet once died. After finishing up, between bites and sips, he reads from a volume of Proust in the original French.

The Trader—This nomad of the locker room wanders the area offering to exchange an extra slab of his mother-in-law's meat loaf for any dessert you have, particularly if it is chocolate.

The Mechanical Gourmet—He has a slot machine appetite. He eats whatever his nickels and dimes will fetch—chocolate milk, canned soup, candy bars. At the end of the luncheon hour he is seeing everyone in sight to give him change for a half buck so he can play the machines some more. He can't eat what comes out, he ligas it up and smokes it.

The Sanitary Aristocrat—He brings a lunch in a picnic hamper that would feed a starving troop of G.I.s. After finishing up the savior, he dips his hands in the water fountain before going on to the fried chicken.

The Wall—'I got up so late this morning my wife didn't have time to fix me anything,' he murmurs as he strolls from table to table, borrowing a piece of corned beef sandwich here, half an apple core there. Actually, he's putting his lunch money into common stocks and hopes to be able to retire by the age of 50.

Junior Editors Quiz on THE UNDERWATER WORLD

ANSWER: Experts say the ocean is filled with an immense amount of food and minerals useful to man. These riches, of course, have been there all the time. What's new is that in the last few years man has made tremendous strides in learning how to dive safely under the surface to study what's there and to begin work toward harvesting the products of the sea in a really big way. We illustrate some of the exciting developments (1, 2, 3, 4). Our deep water pioneers are probing the depths and laying plans for larger installations which will not be lowered into the sea later on.

What can we expect from this kind of development? It may be possible to set up fish farms underwater. Whales may be branded the way cattle are in the west—only the whales will be carried by submarines! Small subs may be used to haul huge nets below the surface. Permanent research stations to study marine life will probably be established. Minerals will be sucked off the ocean floor by vacuum cleaner-like machines, and oil rigs will work underwater. These are just a few ways in which we will benefit from the new frontier under the sea.

FOR YOU TO DO: It's fun to dream up inventions and good for the imagination. Make a sketch of some new underwater idea and pin it up on your wall. Who knows, you might read about it being tried out some day!

(Steven Regier, of Newton, Kan., wins the weekly grand prize of a set of Britannica Junior Encyclopedias for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper and you may win a set too, or the daily prize of $10.)

Railroads, Unions Appear Far Apart

By EARL AYKROID
CHICAGO (AP)—Railroad management and union representatives appeared to be far apart in ground rules for negotiations today as they meet in a new attempt to reach agreement in their long and crucial dispute over work rules.

Each said it is hopeful of agreement on the issues but neither would go so far as to predict a successful outcome of the talks.

The principal issue confronting the negotiators is the jobs of some 65,000 trainmen and yard workers—including 40,000 firemen—which the railroads seek to eliminate as unnecessary.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, one of five unions involved in the work rules dispute, said success of the negotiations will depend on whether the carriers engage in "real collective bargaining."

"The prospect that fruitful negotiations will begin and continue squarely with management," he said, "is not bright. Management has discarded its inflexible attitude and is now ready to start hard bargaining."

James E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the railroads, said he, too, is hopeful an agreement can be reached.

"But," he added, "I would hesitate to make any prediction about the outcome until we have a more definite idea of the attitude of the railroads. If they are prepared to dispose of the firemen issue, as one of their leaders indicated they would, that issue might be disposed of expeditiously."

Wolfe said he is certain an agreement can be reached quickly if the brotherhood negotiates on the basis of recommendations made by a presidential commission a year ago.

The railroads propose to overhaul long-standing work rules which they say provide unnecessary work a practice known as featherbedding. Thus, the railroads claim, costs the industry $600 million a year.

About 200,000 workers—engineers, firemen, trainmen, brakemen and switchmen—are involved in the work rules dispute which started in 1959.

A commission appointed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower investigated the dispute and on Feb. 28, 1962, made recommendations for its solution.

The commission recommended the elimination of 40,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service. This is about one-fifth of the membership of the five operating unions.

The railroads say the firemen are not needed on diesel locomotives.

Under the commission's recommendations 13,000 firemen with less than 10 years seniority would be dismissed with 3 to 12 months notice and with severance pay. The other 27,000 firemen with 10 or more years of service would be kept on the payroll until they are eliminated through resignations, retirement or death.

The brotherhoods said their proposals to modernize the wage and rules structure were ignored.

"They carried the dispute to the courts in an effort to prevent the railroads from putting into effect sweeping rule changes without agreement of the brotherhoods. On March 4 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the railroads have a right to overhaul the work rules.

The brotherhoods have warned the carriers of possible strikes if they act without an agreement.

While a number of issues are involved in the rules dispute, the railroads insist on disposing of the firemen issue before taking up the other questions.

Bishop Oxnam Dies; Rites Set Thursday

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, retired Methodist bishop, died Tuesday night.

He was 71.

Bishop Oxnam, who held posts in Washington, New York, Boston and Omaha, was one of the first presidents of the World Council of Churches. He died at the Burke Rehabilitation Foundation here.

Bishop Oxnam also was president of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., prior to his election as bishop in 1938.

Death followed complications from surgery last December, a spokesman for the Methodist church said.

Bishop Oxnam was bishop of the Omaha area from 1938-39; of the Boston area which includes almost all of New England, from 1939-44; of the New York area from 1944-52, and of the Washington area from 1952 to 1961, when he retired.

From 1948-54 he was one of six presidents of the World Council of Churches.

During the period that he was bishop of the New York area, he was president of the former Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which was incorporated into the present National Council of Churches in 1958.

Bishop Oxnam was born in Sonoma, Calif., on Aug. 14, 1891.

He had been living at 187 Garth Road in nearby Scarsdale, N.Y.

There will be a service Thursday for his immediate family and a memorial service is planned later, the church spokesman said.

Following cremation, his ashes will be buried at Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass.

Surviving are his widow, the former Ruth Fisher, whom he met at the University of Southern California where he was a football player; two sons, Robert F., the dean, president of Drew University, Madison, N.J., and former president of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn; and Philip H. Oxnam of Kenwood, N.Y., near Buffalo, 15 daughters. Mrs. Robert McCormack of Scarsdale, and eight grandchildren.

Senate Panel Rejects Open Meeting Bill

AUSTIN (AP)—A Senate committee rejected Tuesday a bill to prohibit closed meetings of legislators.

The Constitutional Amendments Committee killed the measure, sponsored by Sen. As B. Schwartz of Galveston, by a 6-9 vote.

Most legislative proceedings are open. The Senate meets in secret session when considering government appointments, and some investigating committee meetings are closed. Sessions of the Senate Nominating Committee also are closed.

The bill was supported by W. R. Beaumont of Lufkin, president of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, and W. P. Hobby Jr., managing editor of the Houston Post.

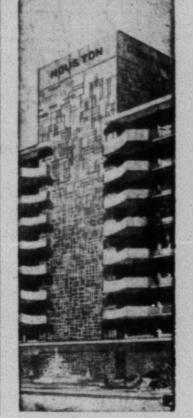

"The people's best defense against the unwise and capricious use of power of any sort is the right to scrutinize the actions of those who exercise that power," Hobby said.

He said the basic question is "whether it is morally right to conduct public business behind a veil of secrecy."

Beaumont presented the committee with a resolution, passed at the association's recent convention in Houston opposing closed meetings or secret recesses.

Press Competition Hearing Launched

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House subcommittee, eyeing the decline of "muck-blow" newspaper competition in U.S. cities, begins a month of hearings today aimed at finding out the cause.

More than 40 witnesses, representing the government, publishers, editors, business managers, advertising executives and unions will be called during the inquiry, the most intensive study of news media congress has ever undertaken.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., subcommittee chairman, ordered the inquiry more than a year ago after two papers in Los Angeles folded. Its scope has since expanded to take in radio and television as well.

Celler has sought to reassure the newspaper community that the subcommittee is not concerned with the news or editorial content of any paper.

"Our concern is the proper application of the antitrust laws to the preservation of newspaper competition and our free press," he said in remarks prepared for the opening session today.

Celler said his concern was caused by "the steady erosion in the number of metropolitan daily newspapers, and the even more striking drop in newspaper competition."

He gave as examples:

- Only 52 cities have separately owned and published, editorially independent, daily newspapers. Fifty years ago there were 608.
- In only 28 states are there cities "where local, two-to-two daily newspaper competition still survive."
- In 1920 only 153 daily newspapers were owned by chains. Today the number is 560, almost half the total number of dailies.

Meaning, he said, newspaper circulation has grown at an even faster rate than the population.

Celler said there are six basic questions for which the subcommittee hopes to find answers:

They are:

- Is newspaper concentration good, bad, or of no consequence? Is it inevitable under existing conditions? What are those conditions and can they be changed? Do some practices result in unreasonable restraint of trade? If so, should such practices be exempted from the antitrust laws? Does newspaper concentration limit the choice of rates, format and readers for advertisers? Celler's investigators have re-

Judge Not Satisfied With Audit

LONGVIEW (AP)—An audit of Gregg County books, in the hands of the county commissioners court today, showed no evidence of misappropriations of funds, county officials said.

But County Judge R. E. Peppy Blount said he was not convinced.

The audit was presented Tuesday to the court by Arthur Young and Co. of Fort Worth. It covered a two-year period ending Sept. 30, 1962.

The audit was authorized in September at the request of Blount.

While several county officials said Tuesday night the report should end the speculation that funds have been misappropriated, Blount said he is not convinced.

He said he had asked the district attorney's office to call the grand jury into session today "to hear evidence" to the contrary.

Blount said the district attorney's office said it would be unable to get the group together until Monday.

Blount quoted a representative of the district attorney's office as saying, Monday "a subpoena will be issued for your Blount's appearance" before the jury.

"The district attorney need not summon me; I am ready and prepared to appear," Blount said.

The report said the audit made two recommendations in connection with issues which recently have come to the surface in the dispute between the judge and court members.

The report said disbursements are made in a proper manner.

"We do not dispute place of delivery of materials, supplies or services, or in most cases the specific use of materials or services," Blount said the audit in no way whitewashes the financial affairs of Gregg County.

Substitutes For Character Rapped

FORT WORTH (AP)—A Baptist minister says people are using substitutes for character to avoid the "demand of Christlikeness."

"Church attendance has become a substitute for many," said the Rev. Ross Coggins of Nashville, Tenn.

"Regular church attendance may be commendable, but it is not a substitute for character," he said.

In another area, he said, "we have become so statistics conscious that we have failed to get across the message of the church. The successful pastor is more of ten than characterized by his organizational ability."

The Rev. Mr. Coggins delivered a paper Tuesday to the seventh annual workshop sponsored by the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

"Sincerity" he added, "is another substitute for character. It doesn't matter what you believe so long as you are sincere. Always be sincere even if you don't mean it."

The "sincerity cult" has done much to create the moral problems of today, he contended.

The associate of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission pointed to "orthodoxy" and "institutionalism" as other substitutes for Christian character.

Some of these substitutes, he said, "we use to avoid the demand of Christlikeness."

The Rev. Mr. Coggins substituted for Dr. E. S. James, editor of the Baptist Standard, who was prevented from appearing because of illness.

"Our old answers, attitudes and actions obviously are not getting the job done," said the Rev. Donald Anderson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Kingsville.

"We need to change our approach in dealing with the social drinker."

Clothing expenditures have risen steadily for two decades. For women and children it averaged $150 in 1960, for men and boys over five, $50.

If you want a truck that does its work without yelling for attention all the time, buy a "new reliable" Chevrolet.

You have to take care of it; it's a machine. But it isn't a full-time activity. The clear idea is that the truck works for you, not vice versa.

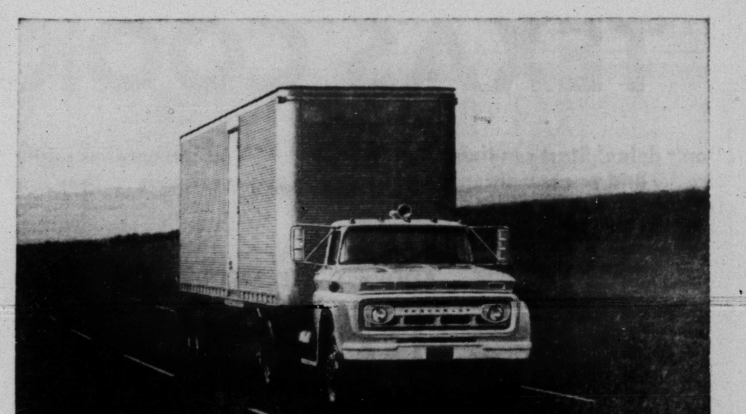

The way to build such a truck is to put more quality into it. For example, Chevrolet doesn't build one type of suspension system for all sizes of trucks. Chevrolet designs suspension systems to fit your need. The light-duty type is strong on comfort. Another kind for heavier trucks stiffens up as you increase your load and vice versa. Make sense!

Conventional pickups have double-wall construction in cabs, doors, lower side panels. Roofs are insulated. Body floors are select wood, not metal. Tailgate chains are wrapped in rubber. If you'd like to examine or drive a new '63 Chevrolet truck, just call us. We'll be right over.
