Mrs. M. P. Ruffin, Longtime County Resident, Dies

Mrs. M. P. Ruffin, who for many years lived in the Lutie community, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday, April 19, at 10 p.m. She had been hospitalized since she broke one hip in a fall February 13.

With her family, Mrs. Ruffin came to the Lutie community in 1927 from Purcell, Okla. In 1947, she and her husband moved to California, where they remained until his death January 22, 1955. At that time she returned to Wellington.

Funeral services were conducted Friday, April 22, at 2 p.m. at First Baptist Church, by the Rev. Glenn Hickey, pastor, and the Rev. Virrel Leeper, pastor of Lutie Baptist Church.

Pall bearers were Frank Gulley, W. L. Green, Kenneth Colwell, Kenneth Hodge, Jerry Ivy and Tom Wilkins.

Burial was in West Wellington Cemetery by Kelso Funeral Home.

Mrs. Ruffin was the former Hattie Mae Ward, and was born at Paris August 4, 1882. While still a girl, she moved with her family to Oklahoma and was married to Mr. Ruffin April 10, 1910, at Boswell, Okla. They lived there until moving to Purcell, a year before they came here.

She has been a member of the Baptist Church since 1933, with membership at the Lutie Baptist Church.

Surviving are five daughters: Mrs. W. O. Denman, Purcell, Okla.; Mrs. Vernon Crossland, Oklahoma City; Mrs. C. O. Hartless, El Paso; Mrs. S. T. Hollingsworth and Mrs. John L. Simpson of Wellington.

There are 13 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren.

Junior High Football Game Set for May 3

The annual spring junior high inter-squad football game will be held Tuesday, May 3 at Powell Field when future Rockets vie with each other for the grid spotlight.

Coach Harvey Millsap pointed out that these games pay for the junior high football equipment. Last year the game was not held, and the young football players are unusually short of equipment this year.

Game time is 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale and may be had from Millsap, Coach Frank Lindsey or Jack Ford.

Assisting Lindsey and Millsap are seven high school boys, Herman Childress, Bill Estes, Gary West, Ralph Coburn, Richard Mauldin, Rommie Forbis and Leo Russell.

Some of these boys have real ability—they play the kind of football that will make them outstanding Rockets.

And as to variety—it's there. In size, the boys range from 190 pounds down to 70, and from a towering six feet down to four-feet-something.

The game will be two hours long, with quarters being approximately 11 minutes actual playing time.

Boys slated to play are:

NORWOOD GIRL IN VETERANS HOSPITAL FOR THERAPY

A young Samnorwood woman who served four years with the Marine Corps, and who is almost completely paralyzed following an attack of encephalitis, entered the Veterans Administration Hospital in Dallas Sunday, April 24, for treatment doctors hope will lessen the paralysis.

She is Miss Shirley Montgomery, the daughter of Mrs. Jennie Montgomery of Samnorwood, and a sister of Mrs. Donald Coleman of that community, with whom she has stayed for the last seven weeks.

Doctors at the VA Hospital told the family they are optimistic that water therapy, begun Monday, will help.

Only 24 years old, she was working at the Farmers and Merchants State Bank in Shamrock when she became ill early in the winter with encephalitis, commonly known as "sleeping sickness."

For two weeks it was almost impossible to waken her. Then that phase of the disease had run its course, but the paralysis had set in. She was hospitalized in Amarillo from Nov. 10 to March 1, and there was little change in her condition, Mrs. Coleman said.

Miss Montgomery did not go into a coma, as sometimes occurs in this illness, and she has remained gay and cheerful.

"Shirley has a little use of her hands, and we are hopeful," Mrs. Coleman said.

Miss Montgomery entered the Marine Corps in 1954 and was in service until 1958.

Arrest of 4 Youths Solves 7 Burglaries

Four boys, 12 to 16 years of age, were arrested by officers last week, clearing up seven burglaries that date back as far as January.

The 12-year-old, who entered Tindall's Gin office Monday night, April 18 and took 50 pennes but missed $5, returned on Wednesday night for the five and made the error that led to his arrest Thursday, Police Chief Troy Marsh said.

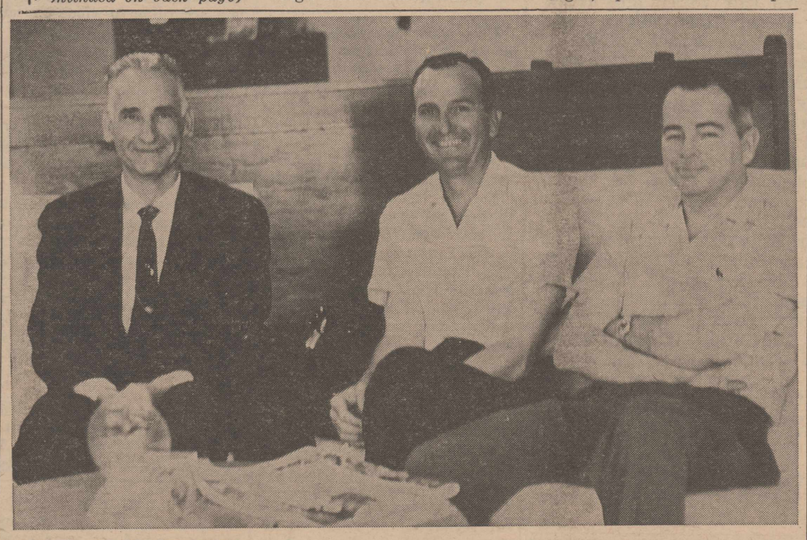

The youngster also admitted entering Singley Mill and Elevator and Warrick Feed Store during the preceding week. He told officers he drank a pop at Warrick's, but took nothing at Singley's, Marsh said.

Officers then arrested the other three, whom they said entered Westside Grocery three times, the first in January. One of the youths was 13, the other 15 and 16.

The boys, two from Quail and one from Wellington, entered the building through a back window on which the latch was broken, Marsh said. As they took items in small quantities, such as cigarettes, .22 shells, pigskin work gloves and candy, the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Haswell Manuel did not at first realize the store was burglarized, and when they did, they nailed down the windows and had no further trouble.

The four boys were tried before Judge C. C. Bishop, sitting as juvenile judge, and were probated to their parents pending good behavior.

Two other boys, one from out of the county, were brought before Judge Bishop, who talked to them about their behavior, but they were not charged in juvenile court, County Attorney Paul Spillman said.

Youth's Lack of Knowledge of Geography Is Dangerous

The ignorance of the world's geography, and even of United States geography, among American college students is not only deeply disturbing; it is outrageous..

A test given 5000 college students by North American Newspaper Alliance showed that our young people are abysmally uninformed about their own country and the world.

In the words of Dr. Samuel Van Walkenburg, who prepared the test, "It is incredible to find that intelligent college students should have such fantastic misinformation."

On the world geography part of the test, the composite score was 25 out of a possible 100. The students knew little more about their own country.

As brought out in the three-part series of articles in The Houston Chronicle, less than 50 per cent had even the vaguest notion of this country's population. Only 4 per cent could give the world's approximate population.

Among the most amazing things the test uncovered:

Two-thirds of the students listed Cuba and Puerto Rico as trust territories of this country under the U.N. trusteeship council.

Only 65 per cent knew that U.N. is the abbreviation for the United Nations.

Only 19 per cent could name four European satellites of Russia.

Only 39 per cent knew that Spanish and Portugese are the two principal languages of Latin America.

Only 9 per cent named the two Middle Eastern countries without a predominantly Moslem population (Israel and Lebanon.)

On the world's population the guesses ranged from ten million to 500 billion.

Dr. Benjamin Fine, author of the series, comments that our college students know about as much about world geography "as a well-read 10-year-old."

College students of 30 or 40 years ago certainly would have made a better score on a test based on the world as it was then. So would sixth graders in grammar school.

The reason? Geography has virtually disappeared from the curricula of high schools and colleges. In too many grammar schools it is taught not as a separate course but in a mishmash called "social studies."

The test proves the undesirability of grouping smatterings of history, economics, geography and perhaps other subjects into study courses labeled "world affairs" or some such name.

Among recommendations Dr. Fine makes are: Restore geography courses in high schools and colleges; train teachers to make the courses more interesting; use visual aids and contemporary publications, and encourage the production of new and better geography text books.

In this shrunken world in which this country has so many commitments about the globe and in this era of cold war it is positively dangerous for American youth, our future leaders, to know so little about their own country and the world.

Year's Biggest Story

The biggest story of the new year, as far as Texas is concerned, says the Dallas Morning News, could well be that report about Freeport on the Gulf Coast: A conversion plant can turn salt water into fresh water at a cost of only $1.00 per 1,000 gallons. Only a few years ago the experimental cost was $4.00.

This is astonishing progress. It's a stupendous step toward the day when inexhaustible supplies of fresh water from the Gulf may offset periodic and killing drouths which always have plagued the Southwest.

In view of the rapid progress of recent years, it is obvious that science is approaching the point where it will be able to produce fresh water from ocean water at commercial prices.

Out of the desaltination of water may come the most significant development of the next generation. And out of it may come also a solution of one of the greatest problems facing the world.

To much of the earth's surface is too arid to maintain any but the sparsest population. If desalting of water arrives at a point where it is negligible in cost, and nuclear power is developed to run the pumps, it is not beyond the imagination that, in a relatively few years, the entire surface of the earth will have enough water to support a heavy population.

Maybe this seems a fantastic speculation but in recent years we have seen ever more fantastic things come to pass.—Fredericksburg Standard.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

Seems like everybody is talking about religion getting mixed up in the Presidential race, and mostly deploring this howde-do.

And now apparently the only way to prove that you are not a bigot is to vote for Mr. Kennedy, whether you want him for President or not.

But my intermittent Christian neighbor says the reason more people are thinking about religion in this race is on account of they have examined all of the visible candidates and have got busy praying for the country.

I see where some college people claim Washington is trying to regulate citizens' beliefs by refusing to loan money to a student if he believes the government ought to be overthrown.

My fogbound neighbor says not just the book-proud but everybody, has got a right to cherish his own little personal beliefs, even if he gets them in a box of popcorn.

But says a man can sure waste a heap of time nursing futile convictions, such as the belief that his taxes are too high.

I note that pretty near every community has now got, or is begging Washington for some dams to make more lakes around where the Lord neglected to install same.

My pro-dam neighbor says he is not blaming the Creator for scrimping on lakes, on account of He naturally didn't realize we would ever get this lousy with boats.

Says he is personally having a hard time conforming to high life in the 60's though, because when he was about three years old his mamma broke him of playing in water.

I see where a committee of Democrat grand viziers recommends that the U.S. finance the education of half a million foreign students each year in our colleges.

My tax-stripped neighbor says the people in Washington giving birth to such expensive ideas is what has kept him so broke he can't send his own kids to college.

But says he guesses this plan is sensible, on account of if we are going to give the country to the foreigners, they will need to be educated so they can run it.

I see where the experts are mightily afraid some people this year may vote for President according to which churches the candidates belong to.

But my sectless neighbor says he may try religion this time as a guide in picking out the man to vote for, being as he hasn't done too well in the past, going by party or platform or voting opposite to his wife.

Says after all, he feels like it is better to vote for a candidate because you favor his religion than for no reason at all.

I see where some citizens of Uganda here a while back uprose and beat three of their chiefs to death, and otherwise displayed annoyance over a tax increase.

My understanding neighbor says he can't criticize these people, on account of it could be they are just born with less tax endurance than us Americans. Or more backbone.

Or they may have been overprovocated by some back-breaking straw, such as having to pay the government another four cents to carry the check to its own revenuers' nest.

CHEVROLET

OVER BACK-COUNTRY ROADS AT 45 WITH A SKY-HIGH LOAD OF TIMBER

Chevy middleweight shows the big rigs how it's done!

That's a 6303 medium-duty Chevrolet powered by a 283-cu.-in. V8. But there's sure nothing medium-duty about the load. Mr. J. E. Blankinship, Arkansas logging contractor, says both of his torsion-spring 6303's "move along at 40 to 50 miles per hour with 55,000 pounds gross weight and maintain a 5-trip-a-day schedule with no trouble at all." Figure the money you save when you've got a medium-duty truck that can cover 30,000 back-country miles a year with a high-tonnage load!

We've never seen anything like the amount of praise truck owners are heaping on Chevy's new torsion spring suspension. Owners like the fact the truck handles a whole lot easier, can move faster off the road without beating the driver to death and shaking loose all the sheet metal. They like the idea of extra thousands of miles before trade-in! . . . Drive a '60 Chevy just once. It's a whole new experience.

Chevy middleweight averages 200 miles of back roads a day dogging timber out of the woods and delivering it to the mill at Crossett, Arkansas.

EX-STUDENTS NEWS

• By Donald Curry

Your board of directors met last week to start the planning of our tenth annual reunion. As 1960 will be the 50th anniversary of our first (1910) graduating class, this reunion will be known as our Golden Anniversary Reunion. The dates will be the 5th and 6th of August.

We, your board of directors, are fairly well pleased with the 1959 registration and very, very pleased with the reception you gave our efforts. We have had larger registrations but have also certainly had smaller. In fact, the 331 registered this year was eight more than last. There were registrants from 12 states: Louisiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, Washington, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, California, Colorado and Texas.

We have been asked time and time again why we charge the 50 cents registration fee. We would like to answer this way: First, this is a self-supporting organization and will remain an active organization only as long as this is true. The actual cost of putting on this last reunion was $2.03 for each person registered. The cost of postage alone was 50½ cents for each registrant. You can see how important each bit of income is. Our income this year was $2.17 for each one registered, but at that we operated a bit in the red as we had to put a little into permanent office furniture.

We have selected the permanent name for this column. It will remain the "Wellington Ex-Student News." This suggestion was sent in by Mary Armstrong of Lubbock. We have so many ex-students write us and talk to us about the column and all referred to it as the ex-student news we thought it impractical to change the name.

She received her higher education at West Texas State College, University of Colorado, University of Oregon, Denver University, and the University of Minnesota. Two in Finals

Tennis Players High In Regional Meet

Wellington tennis players went into the finals of two of the four events of the regional Interscholastic League tournament in Lubbock Friday, April 22, and a doubles team went to the semi-finals, Coach E. W. Clement announced.

The surprise player, both locally and in the tournament, was Jackie Daves, a sophomore playing his first year of tennis. Daves won second in the boys singles, losing in the finals to a player from Fort Stockton. He had defeated players from Anson and Floydada. He is the son of Mrs. Louella Daves.

Sharon Campbell lost in the finals to an Alpine girl, after winning from Winters and Abernathy players. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbelll.

Robert Weir and Butch White making up the boys doubles team, won over the team from Tulia, then lost to the Crane team, which went on to win the tournament. Weir is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Frank Weir, and White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peck White.

The Perryton girls doubles team, representing this district, won in their division.

"We feel that our players did exceptionally well — and needless to say, we're proud of them," Clement said.

The region, larger than the state of Oklahoma, includes Texas from the Panhandle to the Big Bend, and east to a point approximately 50 miles west of Fort Worth.

Water Stored Under Ground Has High Value

Water valued at $1,320,000 was stored underground through the recharge well at the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfay in one week.

Dr. T. C. Longnecker, foundation director, placed this value on the 22 acre feet recharged from the 25 acre playa lake following recent rains which totaled 3.85 inches. The estimated value was based upon the additional yield obtained when one acre foot of irrigation water is applied to cotton.

The intake rate of 800 gallons per minute was maintained for the entire week. Every 24 hours during the week the pump was operated for 30 to 40 minutes and the well backflushed to dislodge any siltation. This was done to prevent clogging the underground water formation.

Approximately 150 acre feet of irrigation water is used annually on the quarter section of land where the recharge well is located. The 22 acre feet of water recharged from the 3 days of rain would thus represent 15% of the annual irrigation water requirements for this quarter section.

The 25 acre lake bottom will be planted in grain sorghum as a part of the lake land reclamation research at the foundation.

Texas Tourist Crop Drops

AUSTIN. — The 1959 Texas Tourist Industry report released by the State Highway Department recently shows a 100-million-dollar drop in tourist expenditures in the past two years.

In 1959, Highway Department surveys indicate 9.6 million visitors spent $341 million in Texas, as compared to 1957 estimates of 10.3 million visitors and $531 million spent.

Fertilize Fish Ponds and Tanks

AUSTIN.—"In recent years, in America, the idea of fertilization has been transferred to the raising of fish," state Lou Guerra in an article, "Fish Pond Fertilization," in the current issue of Texas Game and Fish. "The object here has not been specifically to increase the yield of water to produce the additional food but to cause the production of greater quantities of sport fish to improve the lot of the sport fisherman."

Water fertilization encourages microscopic algae growth. Zooplankton feed on this algae and then become choice food for insects and young fish. The insects and small fish become the nourishment of still larger fish, which in the end are targets for sportsmen who usually catch and eat these larger ones.

Makers of Trousers Biggest User of Cotton

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—For the second year in a row, men's and boys' trousers occupied the number one spot among the largest end uses of cotton in 1958.

Preliminary consumption figures for 1958, compiled by the National Cotton Council's market research section, show the production of men's and boys' trousers consumed more cotton than any other end use, accounting for 723,000 bales.

The 1959 edition of "Cotton Counts Its Customers" reveals the next four largest end uses in order were: men's and boys' shirts, 620,000 bales; sheets, 443,000 bales; towels and toweling, 372,000 bales; and drapery and upholstery fabrics, 347,000 bales.

Cotton scored competitive gains during 1958 in apparel and industrial uses and maintained its previous year's share of the household market, according to the report. Nearly 7.7 million bales were consumed in approximately 400 end uses covered.

During 1958, a recession period for all textiles, utilization of cotton was only one per cent below 1957 consumption. By contrast, use of competing fibers and materials, measured in terms of cotton, declined seven per cent for the end uses covered.

Cotton increased its share of the apparel market from 60 per cent in 1957 to 61 per cent in 1958. In addition, the number of bales going into apparel uses showed a gain.

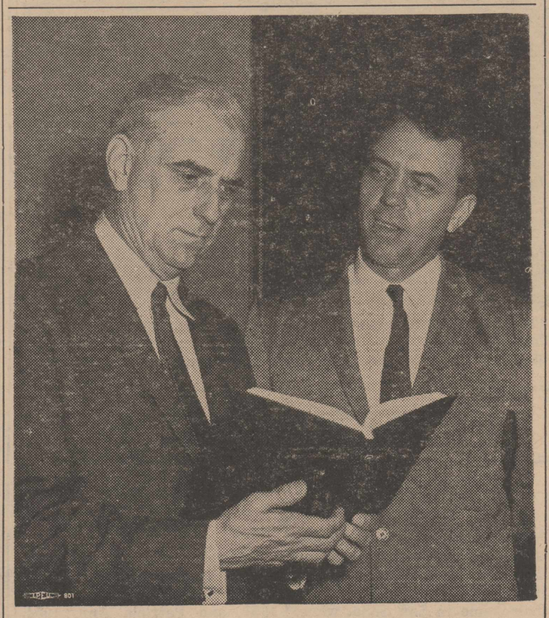

Although household uses consumed about 11,000 bales less cotton in 1958 than in 1957, cotton's share of the market remained at 50 per cent in both years. Cotton consumption decreased more in industrial markets than in the other two major classifications, but its competitive share in industrial uses rose from 25 per cent to 26 per cent between the two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ball were in Wichita Falls over the week end visiting their son, T/Sgt. and Mrs. Howard Ball. T/Sgt. and Mrs. Ball will leave this week for assignment at Vandenburg Air Force Base, California.

SOCCER POPULAR

Baseball, cricket and bullfighting rank as national sports in some countries, but the most popular game in the world is probably soccer, sometimes known as association football.

It differs from American football in that all use of the hands is forbidden and the ball is propelled forward by kicking or striking it with the body.

Beware, It's Snake Season

AUSTIN.—Beware of snakes. This is the report coming in from game wardens all over the state, according to the director of law enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission. With the advent of warm weather, the snake movement has begun throughout the state.

There are four kinds of poisonous snakes in Texas. They are the moccasin, copperhead, coral snake and the rattler. Naturally the moccasins are found around water; the copperheads like cool places around old rock piles, barns and stacks of old lumber; coral snakes also are found around old tree stumps, under vines and shrubs; the rattler will likely be found most any place. Many of them are killed crossing highways.

Because there are so many non-poisonous snakes many persons may take a chance. For instance, near Rockport recently a group of school children found a snake swimming along the beach. They stuffed it in a bag, believing it to be a harmless hognose. Later, however, it developed the snake was a massasauga rattler.

Many of the harmless snakes have value as mice catchers and should not be molested. In fact, the director warns, it is best to leave all snakes alone, except to kill off the poisonous ones.

Ceremony Sunday United Miss Ellen Messer and Jack Neeley

An early spring wedding which took place Sunday, April 23 at West Avenue Church of Christ, united a popular young Quail couple, Miss Virginia Ellen Messer and Jack R. Neeley.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Messer, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Z. J. Neeley Sr.

Minister John Gay performed the double ring ceremony at five o'clock in the evening, before a background of foliage and lighted tapers in branched candelabra.

Traditional wedding selections were by a choir singing a capella.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of dull lustre satin, which she designed and which her mother made. It featured a fitted bodice, with a pleated front inset and a draped neckline, held at the front by a satin rose. Rosebuds accented the elbow-length sleeves. In the center was a 48-year-old locket belonging to her maternal grandmother. The floor-length skirt had a shirred front panel, and side gores had draped satin panniers gathered up at the hipline by clusters of satin roses. A larger cluster of satin roses was at the center-back.

A coronet of satin roses and leaves held her elbow length veil, and she carried an orchid surrounded by feathered carnations, atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Billy Hill of Clarendon, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Z. J. Neeley Jr. of Amarillo, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John Alf Thomas of Shamrock. They wore street-length dresses of blue cotton satin, designed with shawl collars and gathered skirts. They carried blue carnations on white fans.

Glen Harris of Quail was best man, while groomsmen were Gano Wilson of Quail and Benton Wauer of Wellington.

Lighting the candles were Ann Messer, sister of the bride, and David Handley of Amarillo, nephew of the bridegroom. Angela Messer of Hedley was the flower girl and Jackie Brock, another nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

For her daughters' wedding, Mrs. Messer wore a blue lace dress with white accessories, while Mrs. Neeley chose a navy dress with black accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Brock of Wellington were hosts at the wedding reception. Mrs. Ronald Kersten served the wedding cake and Mrs. Troy Marsh was at the punch service. The table was laid with a white lace cloth with crystal appointments.

As the couple left on their wedding trip, the bride wore a black sheath with a black and white checked jacket and white accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Quail high school in 1957 and from Clarendon Junior College in 1959. At the latter she was a member of Phi Theta Kappa. Before her marriage, she was secretary in the radiology department of Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene.

The bridegroom, who also graduated from Quail high school and Clarendon Junior College, is employed at the Wellington State Bank.

The couple will live in Wellington.

Rogers Supports Ben Ramsey for Lt. Governor

State Senator Andy Rogers of Childress, who has announced his support of Lieutenant Governor Ben Ramsey of San Augustine in the primary election Saturday, May 7, said today Ramsey's re-election is of far-reaching importance to the 30th district and West Texas.

"Redistricting—which will determine how many votes the rural areas will have and how many votes the big cities will have in the legislature for years to come—is of major importance to this district and to West Texas. Ben Ramsey, coming from a rural area himself, will not be subjected to the big city pressure for more representation at the expense of the rural areas as would his opponent who lives in Houston, the biggest city in the state," Senator Rogers said.

The Senator noted that the 15-county district he serves in the Senate could be affected and that voting power of West Texas rural areas in the House of Representatives could be reduced by the outcome of redistricting at the next session of the legislature. Rogers pointed out that at present the 30th district has what amounts to three representative places, whereas the Houston, Harris county, district alone has eight votes in the House of Representatives in the House.

"We cannot afford," Senator Rogers said, "to turn the important office of Lieutenant Governor over to Houston and risk losing some of our votes in the House to the big cities."

FERTILIZE POND

The fastest and best method for growing large fish in the farm pond is to stock the pond with the proper kind or kinds of fish and at the right rates and fertilize. According to Ed Cooper, evtension wildlife specialist, farm ponds in the Rio Grande Valley can be fertilized from January to June and other sections of the state from March until June. Proper fertilization, small amounts at intervals during the late winter and spring, will usually shade-out troublesome plant growth.

First Water Conservation Stamp on Sale

The world's first water conservation stamp, issued April 18 in Washington, D.C., honors rural and urban organizations engaged in small watershed conservation activities, according to Fred Squyres, work unit conservationist of Salt Fork Soil Conservation Service.

The new 4-cent stamp went on sale at the post office here April 19, the day following its issuance at the Seventh National Watershed Congress in the nation's capital.

The Salt Fork Soil Conservation District and the Collingsworth County Water Control and Improvement District are among the local groups honored by the issuance of the stamp.

"The local groups are attacking water problems where they begin—on the farm land where the water first falls, and along the small creeks and brooks that join to form our major rivers," Squyres said.

He pointed out that virtually every community in the country has a water problem of some sort—too much (periodic floods), too little (droughts) or too poor (polluted).

A QUESTION OF NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

Informed sources in Washington report that there will be a move in this session of Congress to nullify the provisions of the Connally Amendment which protects the sovereignty of the United States against actions of the World Court of the United Nations.

The report is that measures have been introduced in the Senate and House which would give the World Court jurisdiction over purely internal affairs in certain types of litigation in the United States.

Before his untimely death Senator Robert A. Taft said: "I cannot conceive of a responsible American statesman willing to subject the great principles we have developed in this country to destruction by an alien majority. . . Anyone who suggests such a plan is proposing an end to that liberty which has produced in this country the greatest happiness, the greatest production, the highest standard of living the world has ever seen."

Created by U. N.

The World Court is composed of 15 judges elected by the United Nations General Assembly and Security Council. The United States can have only one judge on the Court. Most of the judges are from Socialist and Communist nations. Nine judges constitute a quorum for the Court, and a majority of the quorum is enough for a decision, from which there is no appeal. Five judges thus could render decisions detrimental to the interest of the United States—if the protection of the Connally Amendment were to be destroyed.

The World Court was established along with the United Nations. But the U.S. Congress had to ratify America's participation in it and acceptance of its decisions. Senator Wayne Morse introduced the World Court resolution in the Senate and Christian Herter, now Secretary of State, introduced it in the House in 1946.

Power to Decide

The resolution said, in part, ". . . the Congress . . . consents to the deposit by the President of the United States with the Secretary General of the United Nations of a declaration . . recognizing as compulsory . . . the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice in all legal disputes hereafter arising concerning (a) the interpretation of a treaty; (b) any question of international law; (c) the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation; (d) the nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation . . . providing that such declaration shall not apply to . . . disputes with regard to matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States."

Senator Tom Connally of Texas asked the Senate to tack onto this last provision these six words — "as determined by the United States." In other words instead of the World Court itself deciding whether a litigation was within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States, our own government would reserve this right of decision unto itself. The Connally Amendment was passed by a vote of 62 for, 2 against. But this was in 1946. Today there is a substantial move under way to repeal it.

Protection Needed

Capable legal authorities advise me that cancelling out of the Connally Amendment would cancel out a part of the sovereignty of our nation and its people and hand it over to a World Court and that it could lead to crippling acts against our nation. Certainly there is enough at stake in this move to strike out the Connally Amendment provisions to cause every citizen to look carefully into its ramifications.

Some high government officials favor knocking out the Connally Amendment. They say it would make their job in international diplomacy easier. They say the U.N. appointed judges on the World Court would not usurp the powers of our Government. But who can be sure, with Communists and Socialists wielding great power in the U.N. and with their judges on the World Court bench? The chance is too great.

The Connally Amendment is needed.

Suit Filed on Cattle Loss

A suit has been filed in district court in which Barney Glenn is asking $5,817.75 damages from Texaco, Inc.

In the suit, Glenn claims that he had ten head of cattle to die and others that were sick after they drank water that had collected in pits dug for mixing drilling mud at the site of a gas well in section 82, block 12, drilled by the defendant.

This occurred in 1958, according to information filed in the office of Mrs. Lora Lowrie, district clerk.

Brazil occupies 47 per cent of the entire South American continent.

Coughran, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Biggerstaff, Rebecca, Steven and Debbie, and Mrs. Howard Rosenbaum, all of Abilene.

Weed Killers can Harm Vegetables

COLLEGE STATION—Weed killers, which annually save Texas farmers many thousands of dollars in weeding crops, can cause much damage to vegetable crops growing in the same area if improperly used, says Clyde C. Singletary, extension horticulturist.

The principal offenders are the hormone type weed killers —2, 4-D and 2, 4, 5-T, he said. Nearly all vegetable crops can be damaged at some stage in their life cycle by their drift or vapor. The more susceptible crops are tomtatoes, peppers, snap beans, cucumbers, melons, lettuce and many others which can be injured by very small concentrations of 2, 4-D. Sweet corn and potatoes are less susceptible, he notes.

Mrs. J. C. Scott and her son, Pink Scott, were in the Odell-Vernon area to visit communities where Mrs. Scott formerly lived, and her former home. It had been more than 45 years since she had lived there.

Whole House Air Conditioning Getting Cheaper

Central air-conditioning for new homes is getting cheaper, report the editors of Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine. In the last five years, the cost of equipping a new home with complete air conditioning has been cut from about 10 per cent of the price of the house to as little as five per cent, the editors report.

Equipment manufacturers are preparing to market integrated heating and cooling units for $1,000 or less. Completely air-conditioned homes can then be bought for $10,000. And a figure of $10 a month is a future possibility for heating and cooling the average house anywhere in the country.

Cost of installing an air cooling unit in a new house is considerably less than in an old one. If the house was designed to accommodate cooling later, installation is comparatively inexpensive. In older homes, however, adaption is an expensive proposition. The addition of a new furnace, changing the ducts systems and outlets will add to the cost.

You can count on an extra $125 to $275 for each ton of cooling capacity if you are installing air conditioning in an older house. To get a rough idea, allow $225 to $375 a ton for air conditioning installed during construction, and $400 to $500 to install a unit in an older house.

The editors report that a well designed and insulated house requires one ton of cooling for every 600 feet of floor area. Therefore, a house with 1,500 feet of floor space needs a two and a half ton air cooling unit.

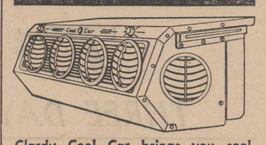

Operating costs vary widely because of variations in construction, insulation, shading, and geographical location. For example, in Haddonfield, N. J., costs ranged from $12.86 to $55.10. Whereas in Tulsa, Okla., costs ran from $52.30 to $108. As a rule of thumb, the editors say you should add ten per cent to your home budget for the cost of owning and operating an air conditioning system.

Storm Cellars Can Be Death Traps, Too

STILLWATER.— A tornado shelter can save your life or take it, says Dr. DeWitt Hunt, Oklahoma State University safety specialist.

It all depends on how and where you build it, light and heat it and get to and from it, Hunt says.

In one recent year—1956—there were as many persons killed in or about tornado shelters as were killed by twisters, he says—six in each category.

Three were asphyxiated in storm cellars piped for gas and three others were killed going to or leaving shelters located away from the house—one by a falling limb, one by electrocution from a fallen high line, and a third when struck on the head when the wind blew the big storm cellar door shut on him.

"The tornado shelter should be under a portion of the residence or under the patio or garage," Hunt says.

"The entire structure should be built of reinforced concrete with strong concrete roof to withstand fire or collapse of a structure above."

The OSU safety specialist says a stairway should lead from the interior of the house to the shelter, and an escape stairway should lead from the shelter to outside. Also a protective fire door should be between the house and shelter.

"Ventilation ducts should be placed on outside walls of the storm shelter," he says, "and only electric heat should be used within."

The storm shelter, equipped with two three-deck bunk beds, need not be more than eight feet square to accommodate six or more persons, Hunt says.

Since tornado warnings extend over relatively short periods of time, the shelter needs little or no food storage other than fresh water.

"Electric heat and light will add to the comfort of the occupants," he says. "In case the electricity is cut off by the storm, blankets should be kept available at all times to offset the cold, and flashlights can be used for emergency light."

Hunt points out the death rate from tornadoes is relatively slight in Oklahoma in most years.

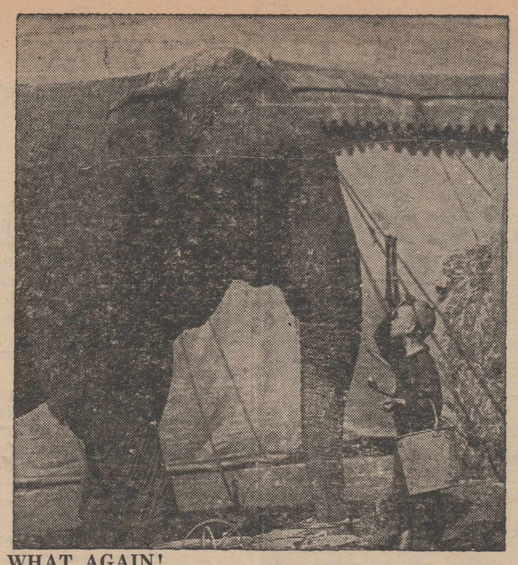

Omitting the two severe tornado years—1945 when 97 persons were killed and 1947 when 117 died—the average number of fatalities per year from twisters in Oklahoma is about eight.

Including 1945 and 1947, the Oklahoma average per year for the past 17 years is about 21.

Quail Hunting Depends Upon Work Done Now

AUSTIN.— Landowners who expect to harvest a quail crop for the 1960 hunting season will do well to begin work immediately, according to the assistant executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"To have a good quail crop plenty of cover and feed are required," he said. "This can be developed, along with other crops. Many landowners planted multiflora roses last fall. Others will provide food crops along the fence rows or suitable cover on their pasture lands."

WHAT AGAIN!

Lots of jokes have been passed down about Watering the Elephants from Grandpa's day. Although a modern show like the Carson & Barnes Wild Animal circus has lightened the work on the small boy with tank trucks, it takes a lot of water for their herd of elephants. The show will be here Saturday, May 7.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A Public Service Feature by the State Bar of Texas

LAW AND BELIEF

Our laws have their roots deep within our beliefs.

And the laws shift as our beliefs change. Thus working backwards, you can find a people's deepest beliefs by discovering their notions of justice—about adults, children, nature, animals, and other things.

Until this century, the laws held children fully responsible for crimes. Like adults, they faced trial and punishment—often prison or death. Today we seek mainly to reform child offenders, rather than to punish them.

Some primitive people hold inanimate things like stones or rivers guilty of offenses.

For centuries the laws held animals morally responsible for their acts, and therefore tryable in courts.

"And if an ox gore a man or woman to death," Exodus XXI says, "the ox shall be surely stoned."

Says Plato in "The Laws": "If a beast of burden or any other animal shall kill anyone, except while the animal is competing in the public games, the deceased's kinfolks shall prosecute it for murder."

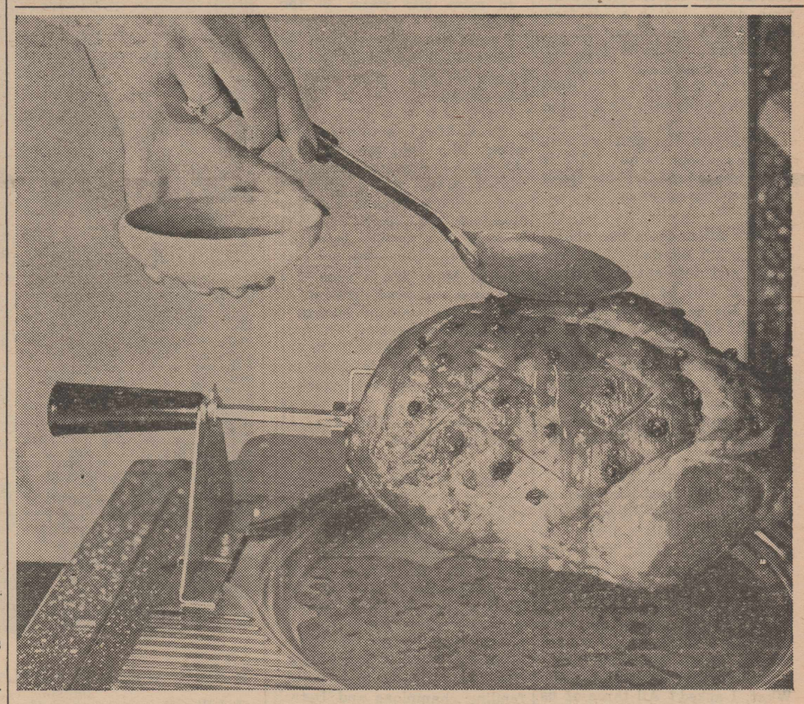

Courts in the Middle Ages duly summoned animals to appear. As late as 1750, a French court tried a she-donkey and condemned her to death, but it later pardoned her because of "good character."

The philosophers Descartes and LaMettre taught that animals were automatons, highly complex machines without feelings.

As a result the laws came for a time to allow much cruelty to animals.

But in recent years, the laws have changed back again to protect animals from abuse. We have evidently changed our minds about the nature of animals.

A lot of live people we know are A-1 cowards: they won't take a chance on the highway.

I want to respectfully ask you for your vote and support for the office of County Attorney for a second term. I want to be your County Attorney.

PAUL SPILLMAN.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Many people seem surprised that the election is such a short time away—just a week from this coming Saturday. If you are going to be out of town, you can vote absentee up to May 3 but after that date you must go to the polls in order to vote. Furthermore, no Democrat can take part in the precinct conventions unless he has voted in the primary and has his ticket stamped "Democratic."

Two other dates are about to slip up on us — Mothers Day and Graduation. After that it will be a long wait until the ex-students reunion in August and the Collingsworth county fair in September. The ex-students seem to have their plans for a big 50th anniversary celebration going smoothly. It is not too early to start working on the fair either.

There was some comment on my column last week and even my ever-loving wife had a remark to make about improving our house. (She is taking a group of boys to Denver this week end.) She said: If we ever get the money to build that extra room we have been talking about for five years I know exactly what will happen. What, I asked? All three of us will get the notion to take a trip, she said.

I do not regret any of the money I have spent taking trips with Diane and Henry, but the trip to Alaska and its expense was a fiasco as far as I am concerned. Outside of the two exciting days of salmon fishing, I did not enjoy the trip nearly as much as many others and the two days of fishing was not worth the cost. I should have taken John Coleman's word about Alaska, but no, I had to go and see for myself.

John Sherman planned his landscape and it is something to see and admire for he knew what he was doing from the first. My recipe is exactly the opposite. About thirty-three years ago I started the practice of planting any new shrub or tree wherever our one and only garden hose might be at that time. I figured that since I had to dig the hole anyway there was no need to go to the extra trouble of moving the hose to another location. As a result I have spent as much money digging up trees and shrubs as I have in planting them. If you have a new yard to landscape, ask John Sherman and not this writer. He is a professional and I am an improviser.

Bo Yates is quite a comfort to me. He claims that Dr. Dale Watkins has wasted more city water in ten years than I have in thirty. I could not believe it, but Bo said: Well at least you do turn off the water when it is raining.

F. A. Hatch wants to know about the weather in May. About the same as always, Mr. Hatch—storm clouds, rain, hail and maybe a tornado. Get your livestock on high ground friends. The pattern is historical and the big rains are coming in May. The reason I do not miss my predictions as often as the weather bureau or the radio announcers in Amarillo and Wichita Falls is that I do not predict as often. But I do repeat: Get your stock on high ground and your poultry well housed in May—the big rains are coming.

Lindy McDaniel of Dodson went in as a relief hurler in the Cardinal-Dodger game last Sunday and allowed no hits to give his team a 7 to 2 victory over the world champions of 1959. He is considered the best relief pitcher the Cardinals have at this time. The baseball season is not starting out exactly as predicted. The Cardinals won a three game sweep over the defending champions and Detroit had not lost a single game up to Sunday.

Note to John Trew: That mocking bird that was singing in the snow in February was still singing last Sunday morning at six o'clock.

Vu-More to Add One Channel

Hurshel Tyler announced this week that the Vumore Company had been granted permission to install microwave for one more channel. This will be channel 7, an ABC station. At the present time Vumore brings television from NBC and CBS stations.

Mr. Tyler said that equipment for the additional channel should be installed in 60 days.

Politics and the Unit Road System

The undersigned believers in the Unit Road System deplore the use of County Road Equipment and Road Work to in any way influence the May 7th election for any particular candidate in any commissioner race.

The Unit System was installed by the people of Collingsworth County to build roads, NOT TO INFLUENCE ELECTIONS WITH COUNTY ROAD MONEY . . . that is exactly what all we're trying to get away from.

To play politics in such a matter is to break faith with the people who created the Unit System and whose money operates it.

As supporters of the Unit System we don't appreciate such sort of abuse and we don't think the Precinct voters will either.

Road work is needed through the year, not just before election time as was the case for so long. Let us not return to those conditions.
