On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

Colorado City had a 30 million dollar gift dropped in her lap last week when Texas Electric Service Company announced it will increase the capacity of its electric generating plant located at Morgan Creek Lake. The company owns the Morgan Creek Lake and the Champion Creek Lake.

Construction is scheduled to start on the new project in September with completion date in 1967. Approximately 200 men will be employed on the construction job.

Colorado City is experiencing a letdown in business since the highway went around the city according to some reports, and needs a shot in the arm. The new plant should give it that shot.

Loraine will benefit from the expansion program too, though it may not be as pronounced here as it will be in Colorado City. It is doubtful whether Colorado City can furnish housing for all the workers needed for construction and it is a pity that Loraine is not prepared to care for the overflow, not much of it anyway.

If Loraine could have gotten the low rent housing project through and finished our town could take care of several additional families. As it is now there are few rent houses available.

The housing project is one of the main projects the city council is concerned with at this time. It should not be long before plans for the project are complete.

The nursing home to be constructed here will be under construction before long unless something unforeseen comes up. This project alone will create a need for additional houses in Loraine to say nothing of the multimillion dollar project of the Texas Electric Service Company only 12 miles away.

These two projects should lend emphasis to an advertisement the Lions Club is running in The News this week seeking new businesses for Loraine.

THE NEWS IS LATE

The Mitchell County News is coming to you late this week because of electric motor trouble on their Linotype. The motor quit Monday morning and it was afternoon Wednesday before any type could be set for the paper. Hope the delay will not inconvenience anyone too much.

ELEMENTARY STUDENTS ADMINISTERED TESTS

The fourth, sixth, and eighth grades are being administered comprehensive achievement tests this week and next as a part of the annual testing program in the Loraine Public Schools. The students spend part of three days in taking the tests which are designed to measure the accomplishment made by students in the areas of work study skills, reading, language arts, and arithmetic. These test measure out-of-school learning as well as in-school learning.

After the tests have been scored individual profile charts will be prepared to show the pupil's strengths and weaknesses. These charts will be discussed with the pupils and the teachers and the parents.

This program will help teachers, counselors, and administrators to find out how well each pupil has mastered basic skills, learn in what areas pupils need the most help, identify the gifted pupils, and guide curriculum planning to meet educational objectives.

A record of the achievement tests is placed in the pupil's cumulative record folder for use by school personnel. The pupil is given a copy of his profile in order that his parents may know about his accomplishments.
