Final farewell

CALCUTTA, India — India began its final farewell today to Mother Teresa, honoring the nun who dedicated her life to caring for the weak and impoverished with the pomp of a state funeral. The poor and the sick gathered with presidents and royalty to honor the tiny nun, whose funeral carriage was decorated with garlands of jasmine for its procession through Calcutta's streets.

Without Reed

ATLANTA — The Christian Coalition has $27 million to burn, nearly 400,000 dues-paying members and one of the most potent mailing lists in politics. What it doesn't have any longer is Ralph Reed. The baby-faced spokesman for right-wing activism is now a secular political consultant, leaving 900 conservatives gathered Friday for the coalition's "Road to Victory" conference wondering one thing: What now?

Heavy rain hits parts of Midland

By Rick Lopez
Staff Writer

Isolated showers in the Permian Basin caused streets to flood and vehicles to stall in areas hit by Friday's downpour, officials with the National Weather Service said.

Meteorologists with the Midland/Odessa National Weather Service said the official rain measurement was 0.09 inches.

The measurement was lower than most Midlanders expected because the official NWS rain gauge is located at Midland International Airport, meteorologist T.J. Turnage said.

Turnage said that unofficial rain gaugers in the surrounding area reported a higher measurement. One gauge in the Cottonflat area, located about five miles south of Midland, measured 2.7 inches of rain.

"Some other areas got about two inches," Turnage said. "Some volunteers in Odessa said they got more than that or equal.

"We have a network of volunteers with our cooperative observer program. They

Bush targets 2nd term in Midland visit

■ Governor says education will be his top priority should he win another term.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Texas Gov. George W. Bush is flattered that he is being frequently mentioned as a presidential candidate.

But he insists he's more interested in securing a second term as governor. In fact, he said, he came to Midland Friday to attend a private campaign fund-raiser.

He said he intends to focus on his job as governor of Texas and campaigning hard to win a second term against whoever the Democrats choose to oppose him.

"I won't take anything for granted. I've seen a fellow go from a 92 percent approval to 38 percent approval in a relatively short time," he said, referring to his father, former President Bush.

In January, he made property tax reform the top priority for the legislative session, but the radical reform he envisioned failed. But in August residents voted to approve an increase of the homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000 and to replace any lost revenues to school districts with $1 billion from a state revenue surplus.

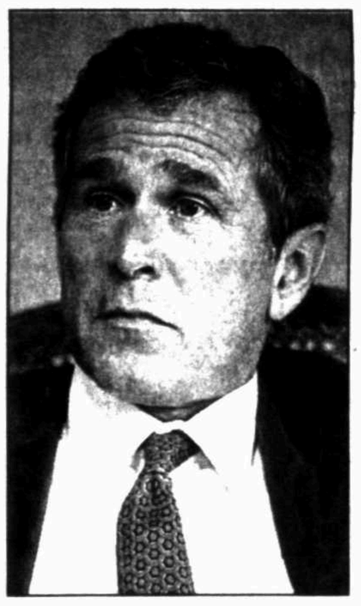
Bush said he would revisit property tax reform if he got a second term, but that the only way to get tax reform through the legislation is for the voters to clearly and loudly call for it.

The state has increased its percentage of school funding to 50 percent from about 44 percent, though true school funding equity will come only when the state provides the majority of school funding, he said.

Bush said property tax reform may lose some of its urgency because the state is doing well economically, because of the recent homestead exemption increase and because the state is providing more of the education funds.

Still, he doesn't anticipate a need for a tax increase; he thinks there may even be a tax cut in the next session. And he definitely doesn't see a need for a state income tax.

Should he win a second term — and polls indicate he is heavily favored — Bush said education would be a top priority.



'I won't take anything for granted. I've seen a fellow go from a 92 percent approval to 38 percent approval in a relatively short time.'

—Gov. George Bush, who was in Midland Friday to attend a private fund-raiser

"Education is by far the single most important thing the state must do," he said. Teachers must be given the tools to teach and maintain a safe classroom, they must be certified and follow the curriculum that the state recently adopted.

He expressed opposition to President Clinton's proposed national education test because he opposes the federal government intruding in a state matter. He described the state curriculum as a strong basic curriculum and said he feared a national test would force states into an easy "feel-good" curriculum to boost scores.

Bush favors a localized approach in several other areas. He praised efforts by leaders in both Midland and Odessa to use sales tax revenues to establish an economic development fund and

West Texas con man recalls past, pals

Editor's note: For 35 years, AP Correspondent Mike Cochran has written about Billie Sol Estes, the crafty, elusive con man who has bounced in and out of prison since the 1960s. Cochran found Estes this time in the Texas Hill Country, where he talked of his colorful past and said he may be going Hollywood.

By Mike Cochran

BRADY — Grinning like a fat, wily old fox, Billie Sol Estes confirmed what I long suspected: His pal Crooked John tried to kill me one night on a mountain road overlooking El Paso.

"Yeah, he intended to kill you," Estes said. "He was as serious as a heart attack. He even told me the oil well where he was going to throw you."

So began another encounter with my favorite con man, now 72, a former Bible-toting, big-bucks wheeler-dealer whose circle of friends once included Lyndon Johnson.

After two federal prison stints, and a couple of near misses, Estes has quietly settled into this small town on the fringe of the Texas Hill Country.

A bit plumper, his bushy graying mane and familiar horned-rim glasses remain intact and he still fractures the King's English as his mouth races to keep up with his mind.

"I don't usually talk to reporters," he said during the first of two informal meetings, first over coffee at the Club Cafe and later over ribs at Mac's Bar-B-Q.

"The young ones don't even know World War II ended ...," he grumped. "They don't know Texas history. They don't know Texas politics. They don't know nothin'.

"They don't have no Texas roots."

Being young is not among my shortcomings, but, anyway, I'd been writing about Billie Sol for so long that we'd be-

Pageant lives up to Miss Texas' expectations

By Mark Helm
Hearst News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — After more than two weeks of nearly nonstop rehearsals and preliminary competition for the Miss America Pageant, Miss Texas — Reagan Hughes — said Friday that the experience was as grueling and exciting as she had expected.

"Although things are never exactly what you make them out to be in your mind, these past few weeks have definitely been everything I thought they would be," said Hughes, a native of the Midland.

The 22-year-old Baylor University student said the biggest surprise of the past two weeks was discovering that the other contestants acted like the young college women they are.

"When I first got here, I really didn't know what to expect," said Hughes. "But what I found out was that all the girls are someone I could just hang out with and be normal."

Hughes said that because the Miss America Pageant is a glamorous event, people who have met her tend to think the contestants lead glamorous lives, something she says is far from reality.

"We're just kind of here to do a job and to try and have some fun doing it," she said. "Really, not much of the competition is glamorous besides the actual pageant night during the stage competition."

In the week before the preliminary round of the pageant began Tuesday,

Jury sentences man convicted of sexual assault to 99 years in prison

By Rick Lopez
Staff Writer

An eight-man, four-woman jury on Friday sentenced a man accused of molesting his stepdaughter, who was 6 at the time, to 99 years in a state correctional facility.

Danny Howard McAdams, 30, must serve a 99-year sentence for a prior conviction in Upton County before he begins serving his Midland County sentence, 238th District Court Judge John Hyde told the defendant and his counsel Friday.

McAdams, after receiving his punishment, turned and smiled at crying family members, then shrugged and rolled his eyes.

The Upton County case, officials said, involves the same victim.

The panel found McAdams guilty Thursday on charges of aggravated sexual assault, a first degree felony, after less than two hours of deliberation. The trial began Monday morning with Assistant District Attorney Teresa Clingman prosecuting.

Meanwhile, defense attorney Rusty Wall called several witnesses to the stand Friday to testify on McAdams' chances of rehabilitation.

"Can you guarantee that he will not re-offend?" Ms. Clingman asked witness Dr. Jarvis Wright, a forensic psychologist.

"I cannot guarantee that at all," Wright replied. "The best indicator is past behavior."

"Can you tell anyone when or if any progress can be made?" Ms. Clingman asked Wright.

He responded, "There is always a probability that progress won't be made."

The defense also called Midland County Community Supervisor Officer Carol Welch to the stand. Ms. Welch, who is assigned to sex offenders on probation, testified that she works with 46 clients, and spends about 30 to 45 minutes with them each week.

She explained to jurors about the options the agency uses to monitor sexual offenders, such as electronic ankle monitors and other kinds of surveillance. The offenders on probation, she said, must attend counseling, keep a job and report to the probation office at least once a week.

However, Ms. Welch said that offenders who are still in denial after 30 days of their conviction are not eligible for the program.

McAdams returned to the stand Friday to testify about his attempts for rehabilitation.

"I hold myself responsible," McAdams said. "I can't deny myself the fact that (my ex-wife) has responsibility in this too. For those acts that I did do, I accept responsibility. I am no longer under the control of Grace, and she can no longer tell me what to do."

When asked why he took so long to seek help, McAdams replied, "At the time, I did not understand that it was wrong. I do know this was wrong, and damaged occurred. I thought I was doing something for (the child)."

The state called its last witness before the jury went into deliberation for the sentencing.

Linda Patterson, clinical therapist, testified as an expert on sex offenders. She gave two reasons for the jury to sentence McAdams to incarceration rather than probation.

One reason, she said, was the man's current level of denial.

"I expect a certain level of denial, but you look at (McAdams) ... he says 'Grace is to blame, Grace is to blame,'" Ms. Patterson said.

Ms. Patterson suggested that the man be sent to a detention facility, where he could participate in a counseling program.

During final arguments, Wall, who shared the defense counsel with Darrell Garrett, claimed that the prosecution was seeking vengeance for the man's molestation.

"In the Good Book, the Lord tells us, 'Vengeance is mine.' It is not satisfaction in many events," Wall said. "Vengeance is always uncertain. For us human beings, it should be used with extreme caution."

Wall told jurors that punishing McAdams with probation will save taxpayers money, since restitution can be included into his probative conditions.

"You have options to take what we've got and use it for a sensible solution," Wall said. "Make him pay for financial loss."

Ms. Clingman told the panel that the state was not seeking vengeance, but instead looking for a suitable punishment.

"This little child tried giving her life up because of what Mr. McAdams did to her," Ms. Clingman said, making reference to the victim's suicide attempts.

"This is one case where you should be willing to pay tax money to keep him away from children. He is a high risk to them," Ms. Clingman said. "Every (witness) who sat up to this witness stand said there was a probability that treatment would not work."

McAdams was taken to the Midland County Detention Center after his sentencing, officials said.

Authorities find woman reported missing

A Midland woman who was reported missing Sept. 2 was located Wednesday in Washington state.

Judith Craig, 49, was not harmed, and was located through a trail of credit card receipts, Midland Police Department officials said.

Authorities said in a previous interview that the woman suffered from depression.

report to us every day even if they do not get rain."

So far, the year-to-date rainfall measurement is higher than the year-to-date average, Turnage said.

"We're 3 inches above the normal," he said, adding that this year's figure is 13.42 inches, compared to 10.28 inches. The month's total is 0.55 inches.

Meanwhile, Friday's rainfall was attributed to a high amount of moisture in the atmosphere that lingered throughout the week.

"I'd say it was definitely more humid than usual," Turnage said. "We had a tropical air mass in the area. We also had a weak upper-level disturbance is the area. It looked like what we call a surface trough — winds creating a rising motion."

A weekend forecast calls for sunny skies and dry weather, Turnage said. Weekend highs will be in the mid-90s. Temperatures should drop to the mid-60s.

After a low of 51, Friday's high was 94, compared to the record high of 101 for that day in 1930. The all-time low was 51 in 1975.

DUBIOUS: Estes says he's just lucky to be alive

come, if not friends, at least mutually tolerant.

It was in 1983 that he told me he had rooted out the cause of all his problems: compulsiveness.

"If I smoke another cigarette, I'll be hooked on nicotine," he said in a prison interview. "I'm just one drink away from being an alcoholic and just one deal away from being back in prison."

I asked him now if he recalled that diagnosis.

"Exactly," he replied.

In both our recent meetings, Estes reminisced for hours about the "good old days," comparing the Washington scandals of his era with the shenanigans of the current capitol crowd.

"Those kids up there now, they don't know nothing about fund-raising," he said, dismissing both the political fund-raising and Whitewater intrigue as bush league.

"There ain't nothing there. There's no story. Money's never been Bill Clinton's thing. He don't fly with the other ducks. He looks like a duck and quacks like a duck but nobody knows where he's at. ... Back then, people had power and used that power. They could make a decision and they could get it done.

"THEY LIVED by their own set of rules."

People like House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, Estes asserted, "could tell you behind closed doors what he could do and he'd do it. Now they can't get a creek built. They can't get anything done."

Back in his free wheeling political days, Estes indicated, they often got things done with suitcases stuffed with cash.

While branding himself as a "kind of Robin Hood," Estes sidestepped questions about his most recent legal misadventures and said he's working now on behalf of the "poor and underprivileged."

His voice dropping to a conspiratorial whisper, Estes revealed also his involvement in a movie project that he said he just couldn't fully discuss.

"It's going to bring out a lot of truth," he insisted. "... There had to be a lot of deaths before it could be done. What they're interested in is not Billie Sol. It's the history of th t era. Billie Sol was just a little b ty wheeler-dealer in Texas."

Still, he pointed out, he was "at the party" and knows what went on.

ACTUALLY, HE confessed, "I'm just lucky to be alive, knowing what I know."

Which got us back to Crooked John.

"Crooked John was bigtime in whatever he done ... bigtime more than anybody ever knew," Estes said. "If you'd really knew who you were dealing with, you would have run and hid. He had access to a lot of money, and he was good at what he did."

And just what was it that he did?

"I'm not sure what he did," Estes replied.

He said Crooked John showed up once with a body in the trunk of his car and started to explain what was going on. Aghast, Estes remembered that he quickly interrupted.

"You've done told me more about it than I want to know. Don't tell me no more."

Crooked John once disclosed that he was indebted to Billie Sol for getting him out of jail in Pecos, where Estes owned a noisy daily newspaper and amassed his early fortune.

True?

"Oh, hell yeah," Billie Sol said, grinning. "I knew the chief. I just called and told them to let him go. He wasn't bothering anybody. Back then, people in office, if they liked you, they'd help you.

"IT WAS a different world back then."

After the mountain road intrigue, Estes said he told Crooked John it wouldn't have looked all that good if, on his first night out of prison, Crook had killed a reporter on his behalf.

Crook was hardly repentant.

"He needed killing," Estes recalled him saying, "bothering you that first night out."

With what I considered unnecessary gusto, Estes recounted the episode for Mac McBee, who owns the barbecue joint.

"Crooked John was a smokin' gun, was what he was," he explained. "He had a beautiful history. He told me he never killed nobody who didn't need killing."

Pointing at me and grinning, he continued:

"Crooked John wanted to kill him. He tried to kill him. He was mean enough to kill him. And," Estes added with a great flourish, "he needed killing."

———

I first encountered Crooked John that fateful night in 1971 at the La Tuna correctional institute near El Paso, where Estes was serving a 15-year sentence for mail fraud and conspiracy. That conviction stemmed from a multimillion-dollar swindle involving phantom fertilizer tanks and federal agriculture loans.

Paroled after serving six years, Estes, to escape a media crush, was making his getaway at one minute after midnight.

ACTING ON a tip, I was camped out at the gate with Ferd Kaufman, an AP photographer from Dallas. Shortly before midnight, a big white car drove up and a big surly guy stepped out.

He wore a nasty frown and a string tie anchored by a rock larger than a golf ball.

"Get the (expletive) out of here," he said by way of greeting.

While we debated the issue, a car slipped through the gate and sped away, Estes smiling and waving from the back seat.

With Ferd at the wheel of my Mustang, we chased Estes into the Franklin Mountains above El Paso. In turn, the guy in the big white car raced after us.

As we rounded a curve, I remember glancing down the mountainside at the lights of El Paso and thinking this not only was dangerous but just a mite foolish.

Suddenly, the white car pulled alongside and attempted to force us over the cliff. Fright turned to real terror when Fearless Ferd, a typical wire-service photographer, released the steering wheel, grabbed his camera off the car seat and began snapping photos of our mysterious assailant.

Later, I would conclude that the guy was so startled by the flashing camera that he backed off.

At any rate, we survived and Estes escaped. With no interview, I wrote about the midnight getaway and the encounter with the mystery man. Ferd's photos illustrated the mountain adventure.

TWO DAYS later, totally by chance, I stumbled across the man in the string tie at a hotel coffee shop in Midland. A journalist friend was introducing me to some folks as the "guy who chased Billie Sol through the mountains above El Paso."

From a corner of the restaurant came a booming voice: "Yeah, but the son of a bitch didn't catch him!"

His name was John Ernst and his business card read "Crooked John From El Paso." He was a wonderful character and a great interview and I wrote again about Billie Sol's mystery buddy.

Back home in Fort Worth, I got a call.

"Crooked John," he said.

"Hi, Crook," I replied.

He said he'd been traveling around West Texas and discovering my Crooked John stories and pictures in most of the newspapers.

I didn't know if this was good or bad.

"I'm going to send you a little something," he said.

"Please don't," I told him.

Three days later, two misshapen rocks like those in Crook's string tie arrived by mail at my office in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. They were wrapped in toilet paper. Crook had told me to give one to my wife and keep one for myself.

OVER DINNER with friends that night, I asked my wife, as an afterthought, to get the rocks appraised. If they had any value, it was a safe bet the AP would not be amused by my windfall.

She called the next day from Haltom's jewelers to say she thought she was about to be arrested. The jeweler told her the rocks were black opals and that in 40 years he had seen nothing like them.

He appraised them at $8,000 but indicated he was just guessing.

After insuring them, we reluctantly mailed them back to Crooked John. He was insulted and furious, but eventually got over it. Before his death years later, he sent me a silver-plated telephone cover with a simple inscription:

"Crooked John From El Paso ... 915 751-7133."

I never even thought about returning it.

VISIT: Gov. Bush focuses on winning second term said the decision should be made by the local voters.

(From 1A)

Also up to the local taxpayers should be leasing jail space to private prisons or to other states. This practice has come under fire recently because of a nationally aired videotape of prisoners from Missouri allegedly being mistreated by private prison guards in Brazoria County.

"To me, allowing counties to lease space to private prisons or for out-of-state prisoners is a local taxpayer issue," he said. "Some five or six years ago the state encouraged counties to build additional beds and lease the space to the state. Then the state built a number of prisons and the counties emptied. The counties have the right to lease those beds to generate revenues and meet their bond obligations so long as basic conditions and regulations are met. It is up to local representatives to ensure that prisoners' rights are upheld and that's what happened in Brazoria County. The district attorney appropriately called in the FBI. The truth is, the responsibility is with the local district attorneys to insist that local officials meet basic prison standards and requirements."

Criminal justice, particularly juvenile crime and the relationship between the state and county jails, will be a priority during his second term, he said, along with electric deregulation and implementing welfare reform.

While the state has done a good job of moving people off the welfare roles into work, he said the state has targeted funds for job training and more funds will be needed for the more difficult welfare cases to prepare them for work.

He opposes using the military to help secure the border. He said the shooting death of Enrique Hernandez in May outside of Marfa was a tragedy.

"It's important to reinforce our border, not with the military but with more Border Patrol agents who are trained to deal with border issues. I support the proposed expansion of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and Border Patrol. It's more humane and efficient."

He said he has spent his time in office building good relations with Mexico, adding that it important to h e free t ade and open markets with Mexico.

A supporter of the North American Free Trade Agreement, he stated, "I think throwing up a wall between the U.S. and Mexico would make poverty (in the border region) worse. We must have economic growth for people to have a chance to find work and the best chance to enhance economic growth is free trade."

The main reason people are pouring across the border into the United States is to find work.

"If Mexico is encouraged to develop a middle class, it will take that pressure off the lower class and improve the quality of life of those in Mexico. I know the isolationists and protectionists want to cut off the country, but I'm opposed to that."

POLICE REPORTS

Baby's death

ODESSA — Police are probing the death of a one-week-old infant who died at his residence during predawn hours Friday.

Robert Tyler Smith was found dead at 806 N. Golder St. at 4:40 a.m. Odessa police and firefighters said the baby was not breathing when they arrived. Medical Examiner B.J. White pronounced the baby dead.

Officials said that the baby's death was suspicious. A trace of blood found on the baby's face was questionable, authorities said.

Police officials said that family members and other individuals were questioned in connection with the incident Friday.

Metro Homicide Unit detectives took the body to Lubbock Friday, where an autopsy was performed. The results are being withheld pending toxicology and a microscopic analysis of collected specimens, Metro Sgt. Snow Robertson said.

Officer arrested

A Midland police officer arrested in connection with the assault of his ex-wife will remain suspended from the police force with pay until the Internal Affairs Division conducts its own investigation into the incident, officials said Friday.

Richard Lee McKee, 27, a four-year member of the patrol division, was arrested Thursday at the Midland Police Department in connection with an Aug. 31 assault on his ex-wife. He was charged with Class B assault. The incident was reported from the Hawthorne House apartments the evening of Aug. 31.

According to a criminal complaint, investigator Rick Gilley of the MPD Crime Against Persons division is probing the incident. The complaint also alleges that the suspect struck the woman to her face with his fists.

Intoxicated assault

The owner of a local restaurant was indicted by a 142 District Court grand jury Thursday in connection with a hit-and-run incident that might have been alcohol-related, court officials said.

Alois Munzer is charged with intoxication assault — a third-degree felony — in connection with a March 30 accident. According to reports, the suspect rear-ended a vehicle driven by Tivola Fobbs as he was exiting Loop 250 at Garfield Street. The victim was said to have sustained neck damage in the incident.

Court officials explained that the suspect was initially charged with misdemeanor DWI, but the charge was upgraded by the District Attorney's Office after an investigation.

Authorities also said that the suspect refused to take a test to reveal his blood/alcohol content, which constitutes an automatic driver's license suspension. A refusal, the Texas Penal Code states, is still prosecuted as if the driver was intoxicated or under the influence of a drug.

TEXAS: Miss America contestants to let off steam before tonight's finale the contestants usually rehearsed daily from about 9 a.m. to about 9 p.m., with a short lunch break that included press interviews.

With the preliminary round of the competition over, Hughes said she wasn't worried about whether she was among the top 10 finalists who will compete Saturday night for the 77th Miss America title. The winner will get a $40,000 college scholarship and a grueling yearlong speaking tour.

"It sounds cliche, but I think that in any competition that you're in, if you can walk away saying I did the best job that I could, then that's truly all that matters," Hughes said. "And I feel like I've done that."

Miss Texas and the other 50 contestants, which include Miss District of Columbia who returns after an eight-year absence, will have a chance to let off some steam Friday night at the pageant's annual Boardwalk Parade.

For the contestants, who traditionally wear outrageous, oversized shoes that represent some aspect of their home state, the parade offers a final break before the pressure-packed finale tonight.

"I've been looking forward to this for the past two weeks," said Hughes, adding that she was planning to wear "very" large cowboy boots. "It's really the last chance we girls will have time to get together and have some fun," she said.

Poor join royalty for final farewell to Mother Teresa

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — India began its final farewell today to Mother Teresa, honoring the nun who dedicated her life to caring for the weak and impoverished with the pomp of a state funeral.

The poor and the sick gathered with presidents and royalty to honor the tiny nun, whose funeral carriage was decorated with garlands of jasmine for its procession through Calcutta's streets.

The casket bearing her body was wrapped in the Indian flag and carried by soldiers in blue caps out of the church where it had lain in state since last Sunday.

As the sun peeked through the clouds, military police in red-plumed turbans lined the streets along the three-mile route to a stadium for her funeral. A 12-piece band made up of bagpipers, buglers and drummers escorted her open casket.

One mourner said Mother Teresa inspired him to organize a group to help the poor in his town, Asansol, 130 miles east of Calcutta.

"I have learned a lot from her ways," said Sumit Ganguly, a businessman. "It is unique in the world, the way she preached love."

A cross of white flowers hung from the front of the carriage, which used in the funerals of independence leader Mohandas Gandhi in 1948 and India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, in 1964.

■ Complete coverage of Mother Teresa's funeral will be in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Thousands had lined up until the last minute Friday, in rain and 95-degree temperatures, for a chance to see and touch her glass coffin. Police turned away hundreds who came too late, but many of Calcutta's unfortunate and sick were given passes to attend the funeral.

India's Foreign Ministry said 23 countries were to be represented at the ceremonies. First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton led the U.S. delegation, with Cardinal Angelo Sodano, the Vatican's secretary of state, sent to say the funeral Mass as Pope John Paul's personal representative.

Final funeral preparations began Friday night behind the huge wooden doors of St. James' Church, where Calcutta's poorest had been able to view the body.

Mother Teresa, known here as the saint of the gutters and considered by many of the poor to be an angel, died Sept. 5 at the age of 87.

The route of the funeral procession was lengthened at the last minute to allow more of Calcutta's 12 million people — a third of them slum-dwellers — to watch her body pass by. The burial at the headquarters of her Missionaries of Charity order was to be private.

At the stadium Friday, a chorus of nuns practiced hymns and work crews erected wooden crosses ahead of today's funeral.

Sitting outside the room converted into Mother Teresa's final resting place, her successor as head of the order, Sister Nirmala, said Friday that she had no worries about the order's future.

"The Missionaries of Charity is dependent on divine providence. God will provide whatever we need," she said.

In her first news conference, she met criticism Mother Teresa herself often faced — that the order failed to address the overwhelming underdevelopment that causes poverty. She said the nuns, monks and volunteers inspired by Mother Teresa would continue to work as they always had.

"We are going to serve the poor. Why they are poor is not our concern," she said.

She said the order hoped to fulfill Mother Teresa's last dream, to work in mainland China, one day soon.

Sister Nirmala hesitated only once, when a reporter shouted a question about condoms. "It is against the law of God," she said softly after a moment.

She also said abortion was never justified, even in cases of rape.

Mother Teresa's private burial will be a simple affair, lasting "just a few minutes," she said. The body will be lowered into its grave after a prayer.

"This is the place she loved to be. This is her home," Sister Nirmala said.

Emperor loses game, massages opponent

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Akihito lost the game, and paid the price.

The emperor gave a shoulder massage to 81-year-old Toshiko Arai on Friday after losing an impromptu game of rock-paper-scissors at a nursing home.

After Arai's scissors beat his paper, Akihito rubbed her shoulders briefly while others in the room clapped and smiled.

The massage is one of several traditionally agreed-upon penalties in the game known in Japan as "jan-ken-pon." Had Arai lost, she would have had to rub Akihito's shoulders.

The emperor started the game on a lark while he and Empress Michiko were visiting "Izumino-Sono," a nursing home in Tokyo's Itabashi ward, to give encouragement to about 100 people staying there.

NATO warns against disruption of Bosnia's weekend elections

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — NATO's commander warned Friday that foreign peacekeepers will use "lethal force" to stop disruptions of Bosnia's weekend elections, considered key to peace in the region.

The warning came after Gen. Wesley Clark met senior ground commanders and international envoys, who have worked for months and spent $14 million to organize the ballot, one of the most complex ever devised by international monitors.

The elections for local governments are viewed by the international community as key to the U.S.-brokered peace accords. However, most Bosnians seem likely to vote along diehard nationalist lines, rather than on local issues or for individual politicians.

The elections "are an important milestone," NATO Secretary-General Javier Solana said. "I do think that, after the elections, the climate here in Bosnia-Herzegovina will be better."

The NATO peacekeeping force "is not a police force, it's not trained in riot control," Clark said.

"It has authority and capability to use lethal force," he added. "Should it be threatened, it will use that force, and should it use lethal force, I want to underscore that responsibility for the casualties ... rests with the perpetrators" of violence, he said.

Clark said he had delivered that message to Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic, the chief Serb power broker, who had promised a peaceful vote.

Diplomatic pressure has mounted in recent days, forcing Bosnian Serb and Croat hardliners to drop their boycott of the voting Saturday and Sunday.

Also under international pressure, Momcilo Krajisnik, the Serb member of Bosnia's joint presidency, ended a two-month boycott of the presidency's meetings Friday, showing up for a session in Muslim-dominated Sarajevo. He had been in danger of forfeiting his seat.

Krajisnik, top aide to war crimes suspect Radovan Karadzic, had boycotted the meetings since July 10, when NATO troops arrested a Serb war crimes suspect and shot to death another one who resisted arrest. Neither had been publicly indicted by the U.N. war crimes tribunal, nor has Krajisnik.

Clark made clear that violent attacks against peacekeepers, like recent confrontations by Serb mobs with U.S. and other NATO troops in northern Bosnia, have to stop, and inflammatory broadcasts will not be tolerated.

Clark declined to answer questions about three electronic warfare aircraft sent by the Pentagon to Brindisi, Italy, on Thursday for possible use in silencing anti-NATO broadcasts in Bosnia.

NATO commanders in Bosnia requested the aircraft "in response to the perceived pattern of vehement rhetoric and incitement to violence" that has been broadcast on Bosnian Serb radio and television, said Col. Richard Bridges, a Pentagon spokesman.

However, there was no indication Friday that any Serb broadcasts were jammed or altered.

In Washington, Serbian Information Minister Radmila Milentijevic criticized the United States for sending the aircraft to Bosnia, saying it was "uncalled for and hurtful."

Chinese leader announces sale of state companies

BEIJING (AP) — Chinese leader Jiang Zemin announced ambitious plans Friday for a capitalist-style sell-off of ailing state companies, but pledged not to embrace democratic reforms or weaken communist rule.

The much-anticipated sell-off, including controversial plans for a stock issue, is Jiang's attempt to leave his mark on policy following the February death of his mentor, paramount leader Deng Xiaoping.

Jiang unveiled the plans at the opening of a major Communist Party congress, his first without Deng's support. Unlike Deng, who used his stature as a veteran of the revolution to enforce his will, Jiang must rule by consensus and the congress will be a crucial test of his power.

His two-hour, 20-minute speech sought to embrace the diverse groups he relies on for support. His endorsement of bolder reforms for ailing state enterprises played to liberals, while his hard line on crime and corruption was aimed at conservatives and his threat of force against Taiwan was a bow to the military.

Jiang evoked Deng's legacy in appealing for loyalty and unveiled a proposal to enshrine Deng's pragmatic spirit in the Communist Party's constitution.

But he made no concessions to calls for the communists to share power or move to democracy.

"Only the Communist Party of China can lead the Chinese people in ... making the country prosperous and strong," he told more than 2,000 party faithful inside the Great Hall of the People.

Outside the heavily guarded hall, several people tried to petition the leaders. One tossed a thick pile of papers among a crowd gathered in a cordoned-off, thickly patrolled area of Tiananmen Square. Plainclothes police quickly snatched the papers and the man. Two others also were taken away, one a woman clutching a two-page petition titled "A Call for Justice."

How sweeping Jiang's capitalist-style reforms will be remains to be seen. He did not, for example, explain how shares would be issued or to whom, nor did he say what portion of the companies would remain in state hands.

Jiang promised the state would keep control of vital industries. But he also acknowledged the plan would increase job losses in industries already battered by large-scale layoffs. But Jiang and his allies see no other way out.

Reviving the virtually bankrupt state sector has proved the most intractable problem in China's 18-year reform drive. State industries employ over 100 million workers, and their managers are powerful players in the party hierarchy.

The enterprises have saddled state banks with crippling debts, frustrating attempts to set up the modern financial system vitally needed for future economic growth.

Layoffs are a "necessary and inevitable cost that must be borne in China's modernization drive," said Zhu Kuangyu, president of the Shanghai Textile Group Co. Ltd., one of a handful of state enterprises managers brought before the media to defend Jiang's program.

In Shanghai, Jiang's power base as the city's former mayor and party chief, 240,000 textile workers have lost their jobs in the past five years, Zhu said.

Jiang said "diverse forms of ownership" should be tried. Some large firms will be turned into corporations with less official interference and responsibility for their own profits and losses.

Albright vows no more 'treading water'

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — With little to show for her three days of shuttle diplomacy, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright declared Friday she won't return to the Mideast until Israeli and Palestinian leaders make the "hard decisions" necessary to restart peace talks.

"I'm not going to come back here to tread water," she said in Jerusalem, before proceeding to Syria on her peace mission.

Albright's shuttling between Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in Jerusalem and Yasser Arafat on the West Bank produced only an agreement to hold lower-level meetings in Washington and in New York later in the month.

"I wish this trip had produced large steps because they are needed," Albright told reporters in Jerusalem.

She then flew to Damascus, where in a 3 1/2-hour meeting — far less than the usual length — Syrian President Hafez Assad said he would like to see the negotiating track with Israel reactivated.

But Assad wants to take up where the talks left off when the Labor government that preceded Netanyahu's Likud rule all but assured Syria it could recover the Golan Heights, a strategic border area Israel captured in 1967, in exchange for acceptable peace terms.

Netanyahu has offered assurances that Israel would be "willing to take into account" the negotiating record, but this would leave Assad uncertain of the outcome. A senior U.S. official, briefing reporters, said there remained after Albright's meeting "a gap on the concept of resuming the process."

On another touchy subject, Albright asked Assad's help in countering terrorism in the region. The U.S. official said no new ground was broken.

Syria has strong ties to several militant Middle East groups and helped arrange an agreement last year that Israel and Hezbollah fighters in Lebanon would not target civilians.

Fighting has flared anew, however, and Albright is trying to make Israel more secure with assistance from Arafat and Assad.

After her session with Assad, Albright flew to Alexandria, Egypt, for a meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, arriving in the Mediterranean city at midnight. Throngs of spectators lined her motorcade route and jammed the hotel entrance and lobby.

In Jerusalem, Albright announced that Israeli and Palestinian delegations would go to Washington next week and that she would meet in New York at the end of the month with Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy and Arafat's deputy, Mahmoud Abbas. The U.S. official traveling with her said she also would meet there with Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa. The backdrop will be the annual special session of the U.N. General Assembly.

Arafat's spokesman, Marwan Kanafani, said of Albright's Mideast effort: "She got both parties pleased at times and angry at times; we'll see what can be done in Washington."

As for any future trip to the Middle East, Albright said, "I will come back here when the leaders have made hard decisions."

US Secretary of State Madeleine Albright reaches to shake the hand of President of the Palestinian Authority Yasser Arafat at the beginning of their meeting in Ramallah, Thursday. Speaking at a press conference following the meeting, Secretary Albright stressed her insistence on improved Palestinian security and criticized Israel for withholding tax monies owed to the Palestinian Authority.

Arafat: I'm doing enough to fight terrorism

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yasser Arafat insisted Friday he is devoting "100 percent" of his efforts to fighting terrorism and cannot do any more to meet a U.S. demand to crack down on Islamic militants.

A top adviser to Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, meanwhile, said Israel would not respond to the United States' request to freeze construction of Jewish settlements.

The tough words from both sides came just hours after Secretary of State Madeleine Albright concluded her first attempt at direct mediation.

Albright told CNN she felt she had made some headway with Arafat and that he was "more aware of the importance of dealing with the terrorist threat."

The Palestinian leader, however, said in an interview with Israel's Channel 2 TV that he already was doing everything he could to fight the Hamas and Islamic Jihad groups.

"One hundred percent of my effort, but no one can give you 100 percent results. Be fair," Arafat said in the interview, taped Thursday after the first of two meetings with Albright, and broadcast Friday.

The Palestinian leader accused Netanyahu of starving the Palestinians by enforcing a tight closure on the West Bank and Gaza Strip and withholding millions of dollars in tax revenues. Israel took the measures after Hamas suicide bombings July 30 and Sept. 4.

"You are making the best platform — by following this policy — for the fanatic groups," Arafat said. The Islamic militants have a network of clinics, schools and day care centers that often provide the only services for the poorest Palestinians.

Arafat urged Netanyahu to return to the peace talks, but it didn't appear to be much more than rhetoric. He has said in the past that talks could not resume unless Israel halted construction on disputed land in Jerusalem and in Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Gaza.

Arafat warned that Israel and the Palestinians were headed for "war and confusion" if the talks remained suspended much longer.

Prescriptions for diet drugs plunge following warnings

NEW YORK (AP) — Diet drug prescriptions have plunged since a Mayo Clinic study in July warned of potentially fatal side effects linked to a popular drug combination.

Prescription numbers dropped for the two drugs — used in tandem and called "fen-phen" — since Mayo researchers said the combination may cause heart valve damage, according to IMS America, a Westport, Conn., market researcher.

Prescriptions of fenfluramine — the "fen" in fen-phen — plummeted 56 percent from mid-July through the end of August, IMS reported. Sales of its companion drug phentermine fell 30 percent in the same period.

Prescriptions for the new drug Redux, not mentioned in the Mayo study but questioned by federal regulators, fell 36 percent.

The dropoff in doctors prescribing anti-obesity drugs follows a reevaluation by the medical industry and the diet centers whose doctors routinely prescribed them. The Food and Drug Administration last month ordered makers of the three drugs to warn about possible heart valve damage.

"I've had a lot of friends on fen-phen and I heard some bad things about it so I didn't want to mess with it," said Bobbie Roscoe, 42, of Ocoee, Fla.

At 5 feet, 2 inches, Ms. Roscoe has gone from 180 pounds to 143 since May while taking a combination of phentermine and the anti-depressant Prozac through Nutri/System, which stopped prescribing fen-phen last week.

Because Florida temporarily banned fen-phen this week while it evaluates guidelines for doctors, Ms. Roscoe wouldn't be able to take it now. The drug is especially popular there.

She said the drug combination helped her shed weight after she had tried a wide range of diet nostrums.

The move away from diet drugs linked to health problems has been nationwide.

> 'Most people are using it for cosmetic reasons, not for treating obesity. If you scare them with other side effects then they're not going to take it.'
> — Hemant K. Shah, independent drug industry analyst

"Pretty rapid and indiscriminate use of these drugs is probably more responsible for the negative reports than anything else, said Hemant K. Shah, an independent drug industry analyst in Warren, N.J. "Most people are using it for cosmetic reasons, not for treating obesity. If you scare them with other side effects then they're not going to take it."

In the Mayo study, 24 women appeared to develop bad valves after taking fen-phen. Estimates of the number of patients taking fen-phen range from 9 million to more than 20 million.

Fen-phen and Redux have also been linked to a rare and potentially fatal heart and lung ailment called primary pulmonary hypertension.

Redux, a drug known generically as dexfenfluramine that came on the market last year, is chemically similar to fenfluramine. The FDA said it also had learned of four cases of heart valve damage in Redux users.

After receiving his Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering from Brigham Young University, Dr. Smith went on to earn his Medical Degree in Orthopaedic Surgery from UCLA. He served his residency at the UCLA Medical Center where he also received a fellowship in spinal care. His focus on neck and back problems was the result of "the tremendous need for the care and treatment of these very critical areas," says Smith. "Back surgical techniques have advanced dramatically, allowing the successful elimination of pain in many cases. It is very satisfying to see patients who thought that they had to live with back pain smile with pleasure when they experience the results of successful back surgery," he adds. A member of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgery, Dr. Smith is excited with his recent move to Midland. "The people in West Texas are great – so different from Southern California. There's a down-home, value-oriented family feel to Midland that you don't find in many other areas. Helms says he won't give in to 'ideological extortion'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presiding over a packed Senate meeting with iron control, Sen. Jesse Helms gaveled down critics, scolded the media for creating a "circus atmosphere" and rejected any possibility of confirming William Weld as ambassador to Mexico.

"What Mr. Weld appears to be threatening is that unless his nomination to Mexico is moved, he will begin a war within the Republican Party," Helms, a staunch conservative, said Friday of Weld, a moderate Republican. "Let him try.

"I, Mr. Weld, do not yield to ideological extortion."

Weld, who had himself accused Helms of "ideological extortion" for blocking his nomination in a "battle for the soul of the Republican Party," sat smiling during the meeting of Helms' Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"I'm going to keep up with the Spanish," the former Massachusetts governor told reporters, indicating he still hoped to gain the post in Mexico City.

"The attempt by a member to show that the Senate is a despotic institution is bound ultimately to fail," said Weld, who appealed for public support. "People on Main Street are not going to understand."

Later, Weld met with President Clinton as his supporters urged the White House to work with Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., who has the power to let Weld's nomination reach the Senate floor without action by Helms' committee.

In response, Lott, who has sided with Helms all along, renewed his call for Clinton to withdraw Weld's name. He said he agrees with conservatives who contend Weld is too soft on drugs to be given the Mexico posting. Weld supports the medical use of marijuana and needle exchange programs.

"I don't believe Mr. Weld's views on drugs are shared by Main Street America," Lott said. "The challenges Mexico faces and the importance of America's relationship with Mexico demand that the president end this political charade now."

The president could appoint Weld during a congressional break without Senate approval, but Clinton revealed that Lott has threatened not to call a recess if he thinks the White House will try such a tactic.

"I have to be careful how I handle this," Clinton said. "I would never mislead Senator Lott. ... We should do this the right way. This man has been a distinguished public servant and he ought to get a hearing."

Weld didn't get it on Friday.

Helms had been forced by a bipartisan committee contingent to hold the "special meeting." But, as chairman, Helms set the agenda — and focused not on Weld but on 154 nominees who he said also hadn't gotten committee hearings over the past 10 years. The White House later said some on Helms' list had been approved.

"In the matter involving this nominee, I have a lot of company," Helms said, attacking the news media and his critics whom he said had called his refusal to hold a hearing "unprecedented." "I've never seen such a barrage of misstatements of fact or such a collections of idle speculation."

William Weld, President Clinton's choice to become ambassador to Mexico, shows off his Mexico briefing book on Capitol Hill Friday after Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. refused a hearing on the former Massachusetts governor's nomination.

Surgeon general nominee known as nonpartisan

WASHINGTON (Hearst) — Dr. David Satcher, a respected public health official chosen by President Clinton on Friday to serve as the nation's next surgeon general, has built a reputation as a physician who calls the shots based on medicine, not politics.

Satcher, head of the internationally renowned Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta since 1993, will take over as the nation's 16th surgeon general if he wins confirmation by the GOP-led Senate.

Key Republicans in the Senate welcomed Clinton's choice.

Sen. James M. Jeffords, R-Vt., chairman of the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, vowed to hold Satcher's confirmation hearing quickly, adding that the veteran public health doctor has "a distinguished professional record as a private physician, educator and public servant."

Sen. Bill Frist, R-Tenn., a heart surgeon and chairman of the labor panel's subcommittee on public health and safety, praised Satcher's skills as a "strong manager and an excellent spokesman for public health."

Frist, who practiced medicine in Nashville, Tenn., where Satcher served as president of Meharry Medical College for 11 years, called his fellow doctor a man of "scientific integrity."

Frist praised Satcher for a career in which disputes with critics were "grounded in science, not political rhetoric," adding that Satcher "has the ability to win the trust of the American people."

Satcher, the son of an African-American foundry worker, was raised with nine brothers and sisters on a small corn and peanut farm outside Anniston, Ala. He graduated from Morehouse College in 1963 and became the first black student in the history of Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland to simultaneously earn a medical degree and a doctorate of philosophy.

He decided to enter medicine after a black family physician saved his life in a near-fatal bout with whooping cough as a child.

"No one is better qualified to be America's doctor," declared Clinton in an Oval Office ceremony.

Clinton cited Satcher's leadership at the CDC for helping to raise levels of childhood immunization in America over the last five years from 55 percent to 78 percent.

But Steve Michael, a spokesperson for the AIDS activist organization ACT-UP, called Satcher "unsuitable" as surgeon general and said his leadership at the CDC has been "lackluster."

"Instead of targeting high risk populations with a hard hitting message, Satcher has wasted millions of dollars on watered down media campaigns that say nothing," Michael said.

Satcher, 56, said he would rely upon "plain, old-fashioned straight talk," adding that he wanted to "send messages of good health to our cities and our suburbs, our barrios and reservations and even our prisons." He said his highest priority would be helping the administration curb the use of tobacco products by teen-agers.

Clinton named Satcher to fill a post that has been vacant since December 1994, when the president forced the resignation of Dr. Joycelyn Elders after she told a U.N. conference that masturbation was "part of something that perhaps should be taught" in sex education classes in school.

Clinton's subsequent nomination of Dr. Henry W. Foster Jr. to replace Elders was withdrawn after a searing five-month battle with the newly elected Republican Senate that focused on questions over the number of abortions that the Nashville gynecologist had performed.

After Reed, many in Christian Coalition wondering: What now?

ATLANTA (AP) — The Christian Coalition has $27 million to burn, nearly 400,000 dues-paying members and one of the most potent mailing lists in politics. What it doesn't have any longer is Ralph Reed.

The baby-faced spokesman for right-wing activism is now a secular political consultant, leaving 900 conservatives gathered Friday for the coalition's "Road to Victory" conference wondering one thing: What now?

"We've been playing with that question ourselves," Arne Owens, spokesman for the Christian Coalition, said with a nervous half-chuckle. "We hope the answer is that we're standing on Ralph's shoulders and taking the coalition to the next level."

Reed, credited with building television evangelist Pat Robertson's band of loyalists into a political force, was being honored at a Friday night dinner. But the agenda Saturday, featuring a half-dozen GOP presidential hopefuls and conservative leaders of all stripes, belongs to the coalition's new leadership.

Don Hodel, who held two Cabinet posts under President Reagan, was named coalition president by Robertson in June. Randy Tate, a one-term Republican congressman defeated in 1996, is executive director.

The pair will share communications duties, though neither has shown Reed's media flair. Tate, 31, is the lobbyist, but ethics laws forbid him from lobbying his former congressional colleagues until January. Hodel, 62, a longtime businessman, says he will manage the shop.

Nobody expects Hodel and Tate to tinker with a successful recipe. Reed, who will remain on the board of directors, said, "My sense is the direction of the organization is not going to change in any significant way."

Three months into the job, the new team has barely made a mark. It was almost invisible in Washington until Hodel announced a fall legislative agenda.

Reflecting the new team's goals to broaden its mission beyond abortion and institutionalize Reed's success, the package denounces religious persecution, seeks tax cuts for families and embraces inner-city economic initiatives.

Tate plans to blitz talk radio, a critical conservative conduit. Under Reed, the coalition fed talk radio hosts a steady stream of faxes, but he didn't appear on many shows himself.

"Ralph simply didn't have the time," Hodel said. "We are two people doing his one-man's job."

At times, two men may not seem enough. The Federal Elections Commission is investigating whether the coalition made illegal corporate contributions to Republican candidates through its voter guides, get-out-the-vote efforts and other activities.

Hit with 'myths' about bomber, Air Force ups public relations

WHITEMAN AIR FORCE BASE, Mo. (AP) — Smarting from a volley of criticism of its B-2 stealth bomber, the Air Force fired back Friday in a public relations offensive. Target: skeptics who doubt the $2 billion warplane is worth its wings.

Reporters and TV crews were given extraordinary access to the B-2 — including a chance to sit in the two-seat cockpit, although the electric power was turned off to hide classified aspects. It was the first time reporters have been allowed in the cockpit, officials said.

"We have a capability today that nobody else has," Brig. Gen. Thomas Goslin said en route to Whiteman from Washington with a group of reporters, photographers and cameramen for an up-close look at the B-2 Spirit, which was developed in the 1970s and '80s as a super-secret Cold War project.

But Goslin and the Air Force also have a public relations problem nobody else has.

Designed to dodge enemy radar, the B-2 is attracting domestic flak. At stake is not only the plane's public image but a crucial decision in Congress whether to produce more.

"The public is being led to believe it's not ready to go," Capt. Jeff Long, a B-2 pilot, said as he stood beneath one of the odd-shaped planes whose 178-foot wings make it as wide as a conventional bomber though it is as short at a fighter. "Our whole mission is to go somewhere and not be seen. We're ready to go."

The latest criticism came from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, which reported in August that the warplanes, which can drop either nuclear or conventional bombs, must be "sheltered or exposed only to the most benign environments — low humidity, no precipitation, moderate temperatures."

Thus was born what the B-2's manufacturer, Northrop Grumman Corp., calls a myth about the world's most expensive airplane: that it's a fair weather weapon that can't get rained on.

"It's not true," said Goslin, who is commander of the 509th Bomb Wing at Whiteman, the only Air Force unit that is flying the B-2. "We know the plane is combat-ready right now. I don't worry about flying through weather to go to combat."

If it suffers at all, it is from too-high public expectations, Goslin said.

"It's like saying, 'How come my fifth grade kid can't do calculus?'" he said.

He and others acknowledged, however, that the Air Force has discovered that maintaining the B-2's stealthy qualities has proven harder than expected. Training the maintenance people also has been slower than once planned.

In a show-and-tell tour Friday, TV news cameras were positioned to film a dark gray B-2 doing "touch-and goes" on Whiteman's 12,000-foot runway, and reporters were allowed to sit in the cockpit of a B-2 in its high-tech hangar, a climate-controlled building protected by armed security guards. Members of the public normally are not allowed within 20 feet of a B-2.

Drug has benefits of estrogen but lacks side effects

CINCINNATI (AP) — A new drug could give aging women all the benefits of estrogen replacement, such as stronger bones, but have fewer side effects, according to a study released Thursday.

The study suggests the drug, an "anti-estrogen" called raloxifene, helps increase bone mass and reduce blood cholesterol levels like estrogen, said Dr. Edward Lufkin, the study's lead author.

"But unlike estrogen, it avoids certain side effects, such as stimulation of the uterus and breasts — uterine bleeding was avoided and it did not cause any breast soreness," he said.

The study did not answer the question of what effect the drug might have on breast cancer. There have been studies but no proof that estrogen treatment causes breast cancer, although many women fear that it does.

Lufkin of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, N.Y., presented the findings at the annual meeting of the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research.

Schrader on pole

LOUDON, N.H. — Ken Schrader has one part of the equation figured out at New Hampshire International Speedway.

The veteran Winston Cup racer grabbed his second pole of the season on the one-mile Loudon oval, turning a lap of 129.182 mph on an afternoon when the later qualifiers apparently had a big advantage.

Bill Elliott, the first of 46 drivers to make a qualifying attempt for Sunday's CMT 300, held the top spot with a speed of 127.295 until Bobby Hamilton — 24th in line — knocked him off with a lap of 128.363.

After that, eight other drivers went faster than Elliott, relegating last week's pole winner at Richmond to 10th.

Rusty Wallace was among the early qualifiers and, after turning a disappointing lap of 126.307, said, "Man, it was slippery out there. It really felt like I had four flat tires. It was a lot different from practice."

But, by the time Schrader went out in the late afternoon session, things were getting closer to the conditions earlier in the day.

"It wasn't that bad, but we had the advantage of listening to everybody else come in and complain about what their cars did," said Schrader, the only driver to have qualified among the top 10 in each of the six Winston Cup events run at the New Hampshire track.

El Paso Franklin shocks Lee Rebels

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

EL PASO — As the clock ran down at Coronado Stadium Friday, the Midland Lee faithful looked in horror, the players looked in disbelief and an El Paso Franklin team, which just recorded the city's biggest win in long time, looked on knowing exactly what it had just done — they got a big monkey off the back of a high school football town that long needed to.

LEE
EP Franklin . .21
Midland Lee . .14

The 21-14 upset of the Rebels was, if nothing else, the biggest win for school in its third season and a city in quite a long time.

"It is a big win any time you beat the Permian Basin, it is a big win," Franklin coach Milton Henry said. "Any time you beat the Permian Basin it helps El Paso football. A lot of coaches have been saying it, but the gap (between El Paso teams and 4-5A) is closing.

"We look at the paper and see the 57-6 score (predicted Franklin loss by the writer of the El Paso Times). We think about the gap. Everyone does."

There was a gap, and whether it dissolved Friday night is still unclear, but Odessa Permian did struggle to beat El Paso Irvin one week earlier. Those teams went to overtime. If that didn't serve as a warning for Lee, then head coach John Parchman's reminder what happened in 1990 probably should have. That was the last time Lee lost to an El Paso school (a 10-3 loss to El Paso Andress). The point had been made not to overlook Franklin no matter what the school's record was. Lee's was 39-3-1 before Friday.

And it was Parchman's first regular season loss at Lee, a streak extending 19 games.

"This is really big," Lee defensive coordinator Kelvin Ratliff said. "We have a lot of work to do. We can't beat this team and they can't beat (El Paso) Bel Air. We have to grow up. Maybe this was a stepping stone to growing up."

What will make this loss worse for Lee fans is that Midland High defeated Bel Air Friday without many worries. That is the same Bel Air team that defeated Franklin one week earlier by a 17-15 score.

So what was the problem? There really wasn't one specific thing that Lee did or didn't do, although it had 10 penalties for 60 yards, one big turnover and some mental mistakes. But it might have been that they were a step slow at times, or it might have been that Franklin played its best game.

Tied at 14-14 with the clock winding down in the third quarter, the perfect game came down to the perfect drive. Lee, which showed signs of playing Rebel football

Bulldogs dominate Bel Air, 50-6

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs ended a seven-game losing streak Friday night and saw their stock price climb in District 4-5A with a 50-6 thrashing of El Paso Bel Air at Memorial Stadium in a game that had a 42-minute delay in the first quarter due to a severe weather warning.

M
Midland High .50
EP Bel Air 6

The weather may have been nasty, but not as bad as the Bulldogs were on the Highlanders. Midland High turned a poor Bel Air punting game into four touchdowns and allowed Bel Air inside the 50-yard line only once.

Midland High was so dominant that the Bulldogs held Bel Air to a meager four first downs and a minus-58 yards rushing. Bel Air did have 106 yards passing, but they had a minus-76 yards on the punting game alone.

"As a team, this was the very best game we have played," said an elated Midland High coach David Browning. "Even the 42-minute rain delay didn't deter us. We had the killer instinct for once. We finally finished a game off and that's what we've been preaching to the kids all along. This was a whole lot better."

The Bulldogs took a 16-0 lead in the first quarter, converting all those points off of a bleak Highlander punting game. Special teams player Jimmy Williams blocked two consecutive Bel Air punts at the 17-yard line, one of which MHS converted into a two-yard touchdown by junior running back Shemond Davis and the other was blocked through the end zone for a safety.

"I just made my way through and no one ever picked me up," Williams said. "I think the blocked punts gave us some confidence and we're going to be very enthusiastic about playing Andrews next week and then on to district."

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High defenders Brandon Black (92), Devin Butts (40) and Weldon Cooks (15) bear down on El Paso Bel Air running back Pepe Cruiz. The Bulldogs defense helped crush the Highlanders, 50-6, Friday at Memorial Stadium.

A fumbled snap later in the period gave MHS another short drive as quarterback Camar Jackson hit Davis with a 23-yard touchdown. In all, Davis scored three touchdowns and had 62 yards rushing. Jackson led all rushers with 91 yards rushing, including a TD romp of 44 yards.

"With all the rain, I kind of figured that we wouldn't throw the ball much, and we really didn't need to," Jackson said. "We were killing them with the run. Our linemen were really firing off the ball tonight and our defense really did a job out there. It was really a team effort."

Even the reserves got in on the act. Sophomore running back Jimmy Smith

Rangers come up shy despite some big plays

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

GREENWOOD — When the Seminole Indians' program graduated 22 seniors this past spring, coach Army Salinas knew he had a challenge ahead of him in 1997. His young warriors are meeting that challenge with two straight season opening victories — the second one coming at the expense of the Greenwood Rangers 14-6 here Friday night.

But what made this win even more impressive was that the Indians had to do it without the services of star running back Toby Shain, who was out with a hamstring injury he sustained last week.

Shain, who rushed for just over 2,000 yards last season, believed his team would do well against the Rangers. "I am just one dimension of this offense this team has a lot of heart," he said.

They also have other talented runners who rushed for a combined 164 yards, 50 of those yards coming on the legs of Hector Condarco.

It was Condarco who was the work

Last second field goal bails out Big Spring

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — They often handled the football like a live hornets' nest, saw a potential game-tying field goal hit the left upright and looked like a team unraveling as the final minute wound down.

Of course, the Big Spring Steers won.

This is 1997, not 1996, when everything which could have gone wrong in close games did. Friday night against Ballinger, it again looked like everything was coming apart as the Bearcats took the lead in the fourth quarter and held the ball and a three-point lead with 26 seconds remaining.

That was when a kicking game which had cost the Steers dearly in the previous 47 minutes bailed them out of a defeat which would have easily been as teeth-gnashing as anything they suffered last year. Thanks to a tremendous runback of a free kick, Big Spring found itself in position to win as weird a high school game as you'll see this year as Joe Haden

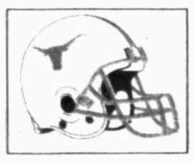
Longhorns trying to break bad habit of losing early non-conference games

By Chip Brown
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Texas hasn't won all its nonconference games since 1983, the last time the Longhorns contended for a national championship.



Over the past 13 seasons, Texas has either tied or lost a game each year in compiling a 20-22-3 record against non-league opponents.

In 1996, there were early season losses to Notre Dame and Virginia. In 1995, there was a defeat against Notre Dame and a tie with Oklahoma. In 1994, a loss to Colorado spoiled the Longhorns' September.

This year's non-league land mine is UCLA (0-2), which faces the 11th-ranked Longhorns (1-0) Saturday.

Even though the Bruins are winless, they were in position to defeat both Washington State (37-34) and Tennessee (30-24) and figure to be desperate to avoid starting the season 0-3 for the first time since 1971.

"A lot of my teammates and myself have been pointing to this game as a test to win a big game in the early part of the season," Texas nose tackle Chris Akins said.

"We haven't been able to do that since I've been here. It's not going to make or break our season, but it can springboard us to a great season."

Texas center Ryan Fiebiger said: "At the beginning of the year, I didn't know much about UCLA. But now, for some reason, the feeling I have about this game is like a Colorado or Texas A&M coming in here."

The Longhorns were less than impressive in the first half of a 48-14 victory over Rutgers last week. Texas trailed 7-0 after the first quarter, turned the ball over three times and struggled to a 13-7 lead at intermission.

Camacho fills role of fading veteran against De La Hoya

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS — Last time for Hector Camacho it was Ray Leonard, who was trying to recapture past glory. This time, it will be Oscar De La Hoya, whose best fights are thought to be in the future.

This time, Camacho is cast in the role of the fading veteran,

"I think he's slower than he used to be," said the 24-year-old De La Hoya, who will defend the WBC welterweight title against Camacho Saturday night in the Thomas & Mack Center. "My goal is to take him out, probably in the seventh round."

Fading veteran, however, is not a role the 35-year-old Camacho will willingly accept.

"He hasn't seen the Macho Man he's going to see Saturday night," said Camacho, who has not been knocked out while posting a 64-3-1 record and winning the WBC super lightweight and lightweight titles during the 1980s and holding the WBO junior welterweight title from 1989-91.

"I've got my quickness and sharpness back," Camacho said. "Last fight, I was sluggish."

In his last fight, Camacho weighed the middleweight limit of 160 pounds and fought flat-footed as he stopped Leonard in the fifth round March 1 in Atlantic City, N.J. In fact, Camacho hasn't been as low as the welterweight limit of 147 pounds that he weighed Friday since he fought a technical draw with Sal Lopez on Jan. 16, 1995, seven fights ago. De La Hoya also weighed in at 147.

Camacho looks sharp physically, but will he be faster, or at his age will the price for losing weight be too steep?

"I know Camacho will come to fight," said De La Hoya, who was frustrated by Pernell Whitaker while winning the welterweight title on a disputed decision April 12.

An attacking Camacho is the one De La Hoya hopes to see. De La Hoya, who enjoys a power-punching edge over Camacho and has good hand speed, has 21 knockouts on his 25-0 record.

LEE: Franklin stuns Rebs

in the second half, put Franklin on its 10-yard line. Franklin, however, did not panic. Unlike like a year ago when they were a bigger and stronger team than this season only to lose handily to the Rebs, this Cougar club went about its business.

There was a 19-yard completion from Brett Chamberlin to Daniel Wassem on third and 10. Then on third and seven, Chamberlin hit Tim Mooney for 37. On Lee's 30, Franklin had third and four. Chamberlin scrambled right and threw back across the field and hit Jacob Quinn on a screen that earned 19 yards. Under a heavy rush, Chamberlin then scrambled for 10 more yards to put the ball on the one-yard line where Quinn sealed the 12-play, 90-yard drive with a one-run unlike any other in El Paso high school football's recent past.

For the game, Chamberlin threw for 175 yards and two touchdowns. On that 90-yard drive, two of those converted third-down passes came right before he was drilled by a Lee defensive player.

"Ninety yards... what else could you ask for?" Henry said. "We sucked it up and got after it. It is a great job by the players and coaches. They (Lee) gave us the pass to stop the run and Brett took advantage of that. I don't know if we caught the off guard. I don't care."

Lee had one last chance. Like most of the second half, the Rebs ran the ball up the gut of Franklin's defense. Not exactly a dumb move since Lee's offensive line outweighed Franklin's defensive line by over 60 pounds (256-194). The Rebs got the ball to the six-yard line for a fourth and five, but a motion penalty moved it back five yards. The following pass attempt fell incomplete.

For the game, Lee had 252 yards rushing and 44 passing. Franklin had 103 rushing and 175 in the air. Lee's Josh Norman had 139 yards and two touchdowns. He had only 43 in the second half as Franklin really keyed in on No. 30. Stacy Jones had 83 yards and 60 in the second half when he rushed for over six yards a carry.

The madness started in the first half. Franklin had things going their way as the potential blowout turned into the realization of a Franklin upset scare as Lee made mistakes that were costly.

After a scoreless first quarter, Jones made the first big mistake with a fumble on Lee's first offensive play of the second quarter. Jones was hit on a dive up the middle and a loose ball fell into the arms of Manny Frias, who advanced the ball nine yards to Lee's 16.

The Cougars didn't take long to take advantage of the field position. On their first play after the turnover, Chamberlin hit his tight end Chris Barber down the middle for 16 yards and the first score.

Lee came back to tie the game with an 11-play, 67-yard drive that was capped by Norman's 12-yard around left end. The biggest of plays, however, came on a passing play from Jeremy Deramus to Brian Boyd. The 29-yard play on third and nine put the ball on Franklin's 12, but was one a few times Lee took advantage of Franklin through the air. Boyd had recovered a fumbled ball by Deramus earlier in the drive.

But it was a magical almost unbelievable first half for Franklin. Despite being outgained 146-97 in total yardage, Franklin made big plays, and at the same time, took advantage of Lee mistakes. And nowhere did that show up more than on a second and one from the Franklin 39. Lee had tied the ball up, the Cougars went deep as Chamberlin hit Mooney. The ball was thrown high and deep allowing Mooney to run under it and when Lee's defensive back Geraldo Diaz fell trying to defend on the play, Mooney went the last 25 yards for the score and 14-7 lead.

Lee also committed eight penalties in the first half. A few of which proved to be drive killers, negating first downs.

That is how it went for Lee. Parchman declined to talk after what he saw. Boyd, who suffered a knee injury in the third quarter which took him out of the game, could just sit and watch like the fans at the end.

He, too, like most people wearing Maroon, was speechless, because the unthinkable became reality.

Cooper rolls through Rider

WICHITA FALLS — Abilene Cooper's offense was in high gear Friday night, rolling up 477 yards and never having to punt in romping to a 42-20 victory over Wichita Falls Rider.

Rider took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter but that was the only time it would be in front. Cooper's Robbie Johnson ran for a 44-yard score later in the first quarter to give the Cougars the lead for good. Johnson spearheaded the running attack with 205 yards on 20 carries.

Cooper (2-0) rolled to a 21-3 lead in the second quarter, but Rider rallied and eventually cut the margin to 21-20 in the third quarter. But the Cougars then put the game away by scoring 21 straight points, as quarterback Brandon Stover accounted for two touchdowns, one passing and one running. Stover threw for 200 yards.

Peter Abrigg not only kicked all six extra points for Cooper, but also returned an interception 68 yards for a score.

RANGERS: Seminole holds on for win

horse in the Indians first touchdown drive of the night in the first quarter.

Condarco averaged 8.2 yards on the 60-yard scoring march with the last nine coming when he blasted into the endzone virtually untouched.

While the Indians distributed the weatlth, the Rangers relied on three big plays that came up short. In the first quarter, Greenwood used a 45-yard run by Steve McFarden to set up shop at the Seminole 25.

But the Rangers, on fourth and less than a foot at the 16, came up short and turned the ball over on downs.

The Rangers missed out on another touchdown opportunity in the second quarter when Michael Otho connected with Phil Morrison on a 35-yard pass play. The Rangers got as close at the 21 before Scott Reed nailed a 38-yard field goal and made it a 7-3 deficit.

Then late in the quarter, McFarden ripped off a 56-yard run to give the Rangers excellent field position at the Seminole 20. They got as close as the 11-yard line before Reed was called upon to kick a 27-yard field goal. And a fumble at the Seminole 23 late in the fourth quarter sealed their fate.

While the Seminoles had many questions going into this season, the same can't be said for Greenwood. The Rangers came into 1997 with a healthy rushing attack as seen by their 192 yards on the ground. Their defense and kicking game are solid.

So what's wrong with Greenwood? For one thing penalties killed them. The Rangers commited 11 penatlies for 75 yards. On at least two drives, and during two other possessions, the Rangers were staring at first and 15 and second and long.

"We met a challenge in a very good 0-2 football team," said Salinas. We learned even more tonight than we did last week."

The Indians will have to keep learning to win without Shain, who is not expected to play again this week. Greenwood, meanwhile, has another character check this week hosting Denver City.

STEERS: Haden's kick lifts Big Spring

made the most of his shot at redemption with six seconds remaining by hitting a 28-yard field goal to give the Steers an 11-9 win over Ballinger.

Following a season in which the Steers lost seven games by eight points or less, they aren't about to reject a close win which pushed them to 2-0, regardless of how they got it.

"We've been on the other end of this a bunch," Big Spring coach Dwight Butler said. "I may apologize but I won't give it back."

Another depressing ending looked inevitable with one minute, 15 seconds left in the game and the Steers trailing 9-6. Haden's 30-yard field goal attempt hit the left upright and bounced away after the Steers had marched 63 yards down the field on a churning ground attack which put Ballinger's defense on its heels. Winning this close game seemed out of the question.

"I thought it was going in," said Haden of his missed kick. "I thought it was over. I thought I blew it for the team."

If Haden thought he blew it, he had more than enough people to share blame with. Big Spring had thoroughly dominated the first half, but committed six turnovers, including five fumbles in the first half. A missed field goal coupled with a botched extra point attempt following the game's only touchdown seemed like an appropriate ending to the game.

However, Big Spring still had two timeouts left after the missed kick, and held Ballinger on downs, forcing a punt with 26 seconds left in the game. Choosing not to risk a blocked kick from their own 21-yard line, the Bearcats opted to take a safety with punter Joel Davenport taking the snap and running out of the end zone to give Big Spring two points and cut the lead to 9-8 with 21 seconds remaining. Ballinger now had a free kick and the Steers were still in a desperate situation.

Big Spring's John Lawdermilk, who fumbled a punt late in the first half which led to Ballinger's first field goal, fielded the ball at his own 32-yard line. He started up the middle of the field then broke off the left side where he found a picket line and ran deep into Ballinger territory. Lawdermilk was forced out of bounds after a 57-yard return to the Bearcats' 11.

"We set up a wall for the middle of the field but everybody (for Ballinger) went there so I just went left," Lawdermilk said. "I was just looking at the scoreboard to make sure I got out of bounds before the clock ran out."

There was plenty of time left, and Haden got that second chance he — and probably nobody else — was counting on.

"When (Lawdermilk) brought it that close I knew it was in there," said Haden, who recently moved with his family to Big Spring from Florida. "I visualized the kick on the sideline."

Haden's kick was true, and pulled a game out of the fire which Big Spring dominated statistically but could by all rights have lost.

Ballinger managed a total of only three yards and no first downs in the first half, but the Steers fumbled the ball away on their first two possessions before Antwoyne Edwards scored on a 7-yard run early in the second quarter to make it 6-0. Ballinger's Keith Boggess hit a 32-yard field goal before halftime to cut it to 6-3, then the Bearcats put together their only decent drive of the game after the second-half kickoff and tied it at 6-6 on a 22-yard kick by Boggess.

The Bearcats took their only lead of the game after Aaron Workman intercepted Big Spring's Gabe Mendoza and returned the ball to Big Spring's 13. The Steers held, forcing a 25-yard field goal by Boggess with 5:55 left in the game to make it 9-6.

had 77 yards rushing and a touchdown. Fullback Ryan Stewart had 31 yards and a TD. Junior quarterback Laynce Nix completed two of four passes for 33 yards and rushed for another 21. In all, MHS had 345 yards rushing and 72 more passing.

Defensively, MHS did nothing wrong until late in the game when Bel Air quarterback Alvaro Hernandez hit David Lopez for a 35-yard scoring toss. Outside of that, Bel Air never moved inside the MHS 50 as defensive end Nick Conder, linebacker Erik McCright and linebacker Devin Butts were all over the field of play. Joey Kindred, a junior, came up with his first varsity interception.

And this victory was surprising in most circles since Bel Air staged a huge 17-15 upset of El Paso Franklin last week. Franklin came back to defeat Midland Lee, 21-14, in El Paso Friday night.

This turn of events signals a red-hot race in District 4-5A. The stove is hot.

Rose seeks reinstatement

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose will apply for reinstatement to baseball after the World Series and before the end of the year, the lawyer for the career hits leader said Friday.

"Pete intends on having a petition filed soon, as quickly as is expedient for everyone," lawyer S. Gary Spicer said.

Rose, who agreed to a lifetime ban in August 1989 following a gambling investigation, had been waiting for a new commissioner to take office. But Bud Selig's term as acting commissioner shows no sign of ending soon, and Selig has shown no inclination of lifting the ban.

Stanford's first-year head football coach Tyrone Willingham speaks to his players during practice last week in Stanford, Calif. The Cardinal's visit to North Carolina's Kenan Stadium Saturday marks only the second time since 1958 that the Tar Heels have played a team from the opposite coast during the regular season.

UCLA seeks first win; Stanford faces 'Heels

Associated Press

The Pac-10, which lost two close home games to top-five teams last week, looks for better results Saturday when three of its schools hit the road to play nationally ranked opponents.

Last week, No. 5 Florida State edged Southern California 14-7 and No. 4 Tennessee defeated UCLA 30-24.

This week, UCLA tries to avoid its first 0-3 start since 1971 when the Bruins travel to No. 11 Texas. Also Saturday, No. 17 Stanford visits No. 7 North Carolina and Arizona State travels to No. 13 Miami.

After a season-opening 37-34 defeat to Washington State and last week's loss to Tennessee, UCLA coach Bob Toledo has tried to find positives amid the gloom. Toledo noted that UCLA opened 0-2 in 1993 and went on to finish 8-4 with a berth in the Rose Bowl.

"The last four Rose Bowls UCLA went to, they didn't win the first league game," Toledo said.

Texas players know the Bruins will come out fighting.

"For them, it's a make or break game," Texas nose tackle Chris Akins said. "Coming out 0-3 would be a hard way to start things off. This game could turn around their whole season."

In other Top 25 action Saturday, its Temple at No. 1 Penn State, San Diego State at No. 3 Washington, Maryland at No. 5 Florida State, Central Florida at No. 6 Nebraska, No. 8 Colorado at No. 14 Michigan, Bowling Green at No. 9 Ohio State, No. 10 LSU at Mississippi State.

Also, No. 12 Notre Dame at Purdue, No. 24 Arizona State at No. 13 Miami, Mississippi at No. 16 Auburn, Tulsa at No. 18 Iowa, No. 19 Clemson at North Carolina State, Ohio University at No. 20 Kansas State, Memphis at No. 21 Michigan State, Syracuse at No. 22 Virginia Tech, Washington State at No. 23 Southern California, and No. 25 Colorado State at Utah State.

On Thursday night, No. 15 Alabama beat Vanderbilt 20-0.

No. 2 Florida and No. 4 Tennessee are idle and preparing for their SEC showdown next weekend in Florida.

North Carolina has a rare regular-season matchup with a West Coast team. Stanford's visit to Kenan Stadium marks only the second time since 1958 that the Tar Heels have played a team from the opposite coast during the regular season.

While coach Mack Brown has little experience playing teams from the Pac-10, he is prepared for a fast brand of football.

"Stanford will come in here with tremendous speed," Brown said. "I was not aware of that type of skill on their team until I started watching the film on Sunday."

Stanford coach Tyrone Willingham has ridden the arm of Chad Hutchinson as the Cardinal have won their last six games. But North Carolina's defense, led by outstanding cover corners Dre' Bly and Robert Williams should provide a stiff test for Stanford's passing attack.

"I don't know if anybody has figured out where to go against their cornerbacks," Willingham said. "They don't leave you much ground."

Arizona State still is looking to replace quarterback Jake Plummer, who led the Sun Devils to a Rose Bowl berth and an 11-1 season in 1996. Ryan Kealy and Steve Campbell shared time in Arizona State's 41-10 victory over New Mexico in the season opener.

Coach Bruce Snyder denied there was any quarterback controversy and said Kealy will start but not necessarily finish against Miami.

"I will not change quarterbacks just for random causes," Snyder said. "We will do it by feel."

Report: UTEP fraud probe centers on ex-player Burks

EL PASO (AP) — A federal investigation into alleged links between past and current Texas-El Paso football players and a tax-fraud scheme centers on former player Brian Burks, the El Paso Herald-Post reported Friday.

The newspaper cited an unidentified sources within the UTEP athletic program for its report on the investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

"I can't talk to you right now," Burks said. "I don't know what's going on. I'm just hearing about it right now."

Ed Wentrcek, resident agent in charge of the IRS investigative division in the South Texas district, confirmed that his office is conducting the investigation. He would not comment on the status of the investigation or any forthcoming action.

Burks, a junior college transfer from Los Angeles, was a defensive lineman for UTEP in 1994 and 1995. He no is longer eligible to play football, but is still taking classes at the school.

ESPN News reported that a "ringleader" took a 60 percent cut after arranging for players to receive illegally inflated tax-refund checks. The ringleader was said to have an inside contact with the IRS in Burks' home state of California.

Richard Adauto, UTEP's assistant to the president, said he was informed that the investigation centers around a Californian.

"That's the way I heard it," Adauto said. "The focus is somebody that works for the IRS."

Miners coach Charlie Bailey confirmed Thursday that he had known about the investigation since July, but didn't know the seriousness of the possible allegations.

"I didn't think it was a big thing," Bailey said. "The only thing I knew was that there was some Social Security numbers that were given out. Other than that, I don't know anything."

TEXAS: Coach will name starting QB before game

(From 1B)

When asked what would happen if the Longhorns got off to a slow start this week, Akins said, "I think it could be embarrassing if we have the turnovers and let them have the easy touchdowns that we gave up to Rutgers. UCLA is a lot more explosive."

Texas might be without starting quarterback James Brown, who severely bruised his left ankle against Rutgers. Coach John Mackovic said he would decide at game time whether to start Brown or backup Richard Walton.

"We've got a little problem because we will play them a little differently," UCLA coach Bob Toledo said. "James Brown is mobile when healthy and a running threat. The other kid (Walton) is a better passer, but he's not going to hurt you running."

Toledo said UCLA would gang up to stop Texas running back Ricky Williams, who ran for 155 yards and three touchdowns against Rutgers, if Walton is in the game.

Both UCLA and Texas have yet to show they can stop opposing offenses. The Longhorns, which gave up 100 yards to 10 different backs last year, did it again last week, surrendering 109 yards to Rutgers' Jacki Crooks and 315 total yards.

Skip Hicks, UCLA's bruising 230-pound tailback, is averaging 135 yards per game.

The Bruins have given up an average of 487 yards per game so far, but UCLA quarterback Cade McNown threw for 400 yards against Tennessee, a bad sign for Texas' inexperienced secondary.

"Our secondary hasn't seen anything yet," Mackovic said. "All they will have to do is turn on the UCLA videotape from the last two weeks. It won't take long for them to realize they have their hands full."

QBs are key to Colorado-Michigan game

By Harry Atkins
AP Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — John Hessler started this season as one of the top passers in Colorado history, yet he struggled early in last week's opener.

Opening game jitters? Maybe.

The No. 8 Buffalos rallied from a 14-7 halftime deficit to beat Colorado State 31-21, as Hessler threw two touchdown passes in a span of 8:07.

Now, it's time for Michigan's Brian Griese to go through his opening game jitters. Coach Lloyd Carr can only hope Griese comes through as well as Hessler did when the 14th-ranked Wolverines entertain Colorado Saturday.

Carr didn't announce his quarterback until Tuesday. The job was supposed to be a tossup between Griese and Scott Dreisbach. But Carr indicated that sophomore Tom Brady and redshirt freshman Jason Kapsner also figured into the competition.

Griese, a fifth-year senior, is the son of NFL Hall of Famer Bob Griese. He has been a backup for most of his time at Michigan. But he looked good lifting Michigan to a season-ending upset at Ohio State last season, and Carr also liked the way Griese played in the Outback Bowl loss to Alabama.

"Brian has had an excellent fall," Carr said. "He's respected highly by his teammates. He throws the ball well. He makes good decisions, and he understands the mark of a good quarterback is getting your team into the end zone, and being able to direct them late in the game when you need to win."

Certainly, that has been the key to the last two games in this brief rivalry.

The Wolverines won the inaugural meeting 31-0 in 1974. The series resumed 20 years later and Colorado earned a 27-26 win when Michael Westbrook caught Kordell Stewart's touchdown pass as time expired. Last year, Michigan preserved a 20-13 victory at Boulder by knocking down a pass in the end zone on the final play.

"I'd love for it to go down to the last play again," Carr said. "But I hope we're on defense."

Griese has thrown for 2,090 yards, 16 touchdowns and 12 interceptions in two seasons. He was 5-4 as a starter in 1995 after replacing Dreisbach, whose season was ended by a thumb injury.

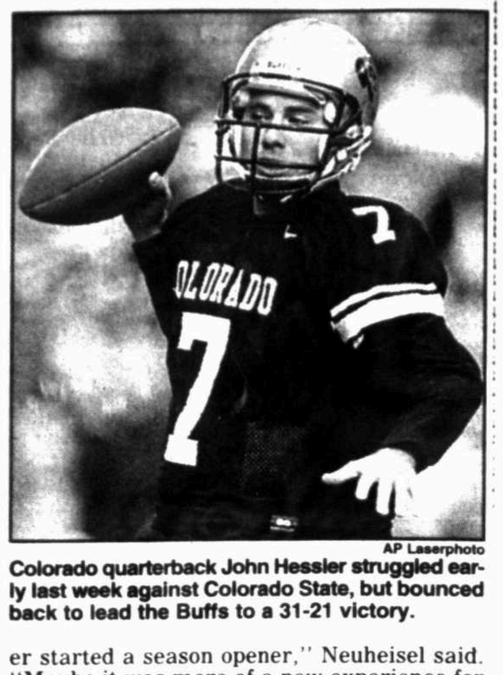
"His decision-making has improved, and he's worked hard at his leadership skills," Carr said. "There's no question he'll do a good job for us."

Hessler completed 18-of-23 for 223 yards, with the two touchdowns and one interception last week. The Buffalos also had 122 yards on the ground. Colorado coach Rick Neuheisel, a former quarterback, has spent considerable time working with Hessler this week.

"I would say John Hessler can improve measurably," Neuheisel said. "There was no question that he was a very shaky performer a lot of the game. I can't tell you why he was shaky. Maybe I thought that two years was experience enough and he would come in like an old veteran."

Hessler came into the season ranked ninth on Colorado's all-time list in passing yards with 2,310. He also was fifth in touchdown passes with 20, and 21st in total offense with 2,298 yards.

"Talking to him, I remembered he had never started a season opener," Neuheisel said. "Maybe it was more of a new experience for him than I had thought."



AP Laserphoto

Colorado quarterback John Hessler struggled early last week against Colorado State, but bounced back to lead the Buffs to a 31-21 victory.

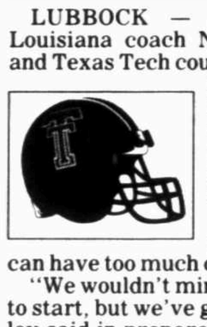
All the more reason why Carr is hoping Griese can get off to a smooth start.

"Brian won't have anybody looking over his shoulder," Carr said. "I don't want a guy to feel if he makes a bad throw or a mistake that he's coming out. Yet there's a truth there that his status is going to be marked by performance."

Raiders face easier 2nd game than Cajuns do

By Mark Babineck
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK — Southwestern Louisiana coach Nelson Stokley and Texas Tech counterpart Spike Dykes share a like mind when it comes to the virtue of playing tough teams early.



Then again, sometimes you can have too much of a good thing.

"We wouldn't mind one like that to start, but we've got four," Stokley said in preparation for Saturday's visit to Tech.

The Red Raiders did have one to start. They went to Tennessee and were drubbed 52-17 by the No. 4 Volunteers.

But they don't have four, like the Ragin' Cajuns, who opened the year losing to Pittsburgh and Oklahoma State by a combined 76-20 and will face Texas A&M after playing Tech.

Instead, the Red Raiders were off last weekend. And, after playing USL, Tech gets another lightly regarded foe in North Texas, followed by another bye week, before opening its Big 12 season on Oct. 4.

While Dykes insists the injury-riddled Cajuns could put up a fight, he also admits there's no point pretending they're in the Vols' class.

"It's hard to play a team like Tennessee one week and a team that's 0-2 the next," Dykes said.

The Red Raiders clobbered USL 56-21 last year, though tailback Byron Hanspard and his 257 yards and four touchdowns from that game are gone. That leaves freshman Ricky Williams and three other young backs to fill the void.

"We plan to see where we're at with the caliber of our freshmen," said redshirt freshman offensive tackle Jonathan Gray, the 380-pound nephew of Texas and longtime NFL star Jerry Gray. "At Tennessee, we didn't have a chance to let them put on a show."

After a week off, Tech is free of major injuries and welcomes back starting cornerback Tony Darden and linebacker Eric Butler, suspended from the opener for violating school rules.

USL, meanwhile, has four hobbled defensive linemen. Stokley also said injuries likely will prevent tight end Mark Buford and linebacker Gerald Stewart from playing.

Star receiver Brandon Stokley, the coach's son, is the Cajuns' top scoring threat. He caught eight passes for 87 yards against Tech last year and he's climbing the NCAA list of most prolific receivers.

"We're playing with a lot of youth and inexperience," Nelson Stokley said. "I think it showed up in the first couple of games for us. The goal for us is to get better each week, certainly much better than the first two we played."

Dykes agreed that things can't get much worse for USL's fledgling Division I program.

"They just haven't had any good luck this year," he said. "They've been in a situation where anything (bad) that could happen, happened."

Razorbacks concern new SMU coach Cavan

By Harry King
AP Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Southern Methodist University is a big part of University of Arkansas' football history. So is Shreveport, La., where the Razorbacks have played 31 games.

Saturday night, the mix will include all three elements.

Arkansas and SMU will play in Shreveport for the second time in history and the first time since the Mustangs won 35-31 in 1976. That year, the game was scheduled for Dallas and the Mustangs moved it.

The 1997 game was also scheduled for Dallas, but was moved after a promoter offered the Mustangs a substantial guarantee.

Even though it is a home game for SMU, Arkansas is likely to have more fans.

Arkansas coach Danny Ford said the game is more convenient for Razorback fans in the southern part of the state than a home game in Fayetteville. Plus, he said, the Razorbacks have more than a half-dozen players from Louisiana.

He pointed out that SMU moved the game and said he would much prefer to play the Mustangs in Shreveport than in Dallas.

Arkansas and SMU continued to play after Arkansas left the Southwest Conference in 1992, so the Razorbacks have played more games against the Mustangs than any team on their schedule. Last year was the 70th meeting between the teams, and SMU's 23-10 victory was the second straight for the Mustangs.

SMU opened this year with a 23-15 loss to Mississippi, a member of the Western Division of the Southeastern Conference along with Arkansas. The Razorbacks won 28-16 last week despite five turnovers and two errors on onside kicks by Northeast Louisiana.

"Offensively, Arkansas scares me to death because I think they can line up and pound us," SMU first-year coach Mike Cavan said. "I know that Danny has some new guys there, some great offensive coaches in Kay Stephenson and Joe Ferguson, and the pro-look and all that. The last time I looked, I think Danny was still the head coach and he's going to run the football. That's what he wants to do."

Arkansas had 30 running plays for 180 yards and 27 passes for 163 yards against Northeast.

The Mustangs made 252 yards against the Rebels — 128 running and 124 passing.

"Offensively, what we're trying to learn and what we're trying to do, this is really not a great time to be doing what we do," Cavan said. "But I'm not going to back away from what we do ..."

He said Arkansas' front seven on defense were extremely impressive last week. "Their noseguard (Melvin Bradley) reminds me of a guy in 1981 at Clemson University named William Perry, the Refrigerator, except at that time he was just a small refrigerator," Cavan said. "Their noseguard is an all-conference performer who causes havoc."

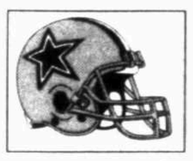
He also raved about defensive end Ken Anderson, who grew up in Shreveport.

Cavan said he told his players that playing Arkansas and Mississippi is part of an evolutionary process. "We come out of these two ball games, we're going to be tough ...," he said. "We're going to understand what it's like to play against some quality football teams."

Kickoff is 7 p.m. and Arkansas is favored by a touchdown.

Eagles' Boniol, Smith feel mixed emotions about return to Dallas

IRVING (AP) — Had the Dallas Cowboys chosen to spend their money differently, kicker Chris Boniol and linebacker Darrin Smith could be on their side for Monday night's game against the Philadelphia Eagles.



Instead, they will be playing for the visitors when the Eagles come to Texas Stadium.

Philadelphia lured both free agents away this summer by offering more than Dallas wanted to spend. The Cowboys have always been stingy about paying kickers and linebackers, preferring to spend their money on other positions.

Boniol and Smith knew all along they weren't likely to be back with the team that brought them into the NFL.

"I don't take it personally," Smith said. "It's a business. I look at life as a growing process. This is another opportunity to grow."

Smith had hoped to get a long-term deal, but he instead settled on a one-year deal with the Eagles.

In Dallas, Smith played on the weak side, which meant flopping sides of the field depending on how the offense lined up. In Philadelphia, he remains on the left side at all times.

"I have a great opportunity to be on a defense that allows the linebackers to be a little more aggressive in a type of scheme where linebackers are looked upon as leaders and as being important," he said.

"I most definitely feel that God led me here. I just felt that peace and ease when I got here. He just brought me here for another opportunity to grow."

Boniol doesn't see as much divine intervention in his move. To him, it's a bit sad.

"It's a big week for me," he said. "I can't pretend like it's just any other game, because it does mean a lot to go back there."

Boniol went to the Eagles facing more pressure than Smith. He had hit 27 straight field goals and was expected to be in top form right away.

"They want to see you at your peak day one of training camp," said Boniol, who hit his first attempt of the regular season but missed his next to end his streak at 28.

"In Dallas, I had established myself and nobody worried about me. That's part of being new. You have to show when it comes time you're going to be ready. There were points and times when I caught my heat early on."

Plummer regains starting spot with 49ers

By Dennis Georgatos
AP Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — It was a crushing stop, and a game-saving one, too, for the San Francisco 49ers.

Linebacker Gary Plummer vaulted over the middle of the line to stuff quarterback Tony Banks' sneak on a fourth-and-inches play with just over a minute left.

That tackle derailed St. Louis' last-ditch drive and the 49ers ran out the clock to preserve their 14th straight win over the Rams 15-12 last Sunday despite being without injured stars Jerry Rice and Steve Young. And the 37-year-old Plummer ran off the field at St. Louis with celebratory shouts of "They can't block me! They can't block me!"

"I just went over the top and we met helmet-to-helmet, and any time there's that type of collision between a quarterback and a linebacker, the linebacker is going to win every time," Plummer said.

Going into Sunday's game against the New Orleans Saints, Plummer is leading the 49ers in tackles with 19 and has re-established his hold on the starting inside linebacker job the 49ers took away from him during the offseason.

"The great thing about him is when he does have opportunities, he takes care of business," said defensive coordinator John Marshall, who recalled another signature stop by Plummer in December 1995, when he launched himself into Darrick Holmes and forced a goal-line fumble.

"He's probably the best inside linebacker in the league," Marshall said. "That's not to slight Kenny Norton because I'm talking about the bubble linebacker, the 'Mike' linebacker, and there isn't another guy in the league I'd rather have out there in that position than Plummer."

That is high praise for a player the 49ers intended to limit to special teams duties this season, with the idea that fourth-year pro Kevin Mitchell would take over.

But Mitchell, slowed by a shoulder injury, had problems against the run during the preseason and the 49ers gave Plummer his job back before the season opener.

Rangers' Cedeno breaks tie with Twins

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — Domingo Cedeno singled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning Friday night, sending the Texas Rangers past the Minnesota Twins 6-5.

Juan Gonzalez, who earlier hit his 35th home run, drew a one-out walk from Greg Swindell (7-4) in the eighth and Lee Stevens singled. Gonzalez moved to third on a fly out and scored when Cedeno singled off Todd Ritchie.

Julio Santana (4-5) faced only one batter, striking out pinch-hitter Paul Molitor with runners on first and second to end the eighth, and was the winner. John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his 29th save.

The Twins scored three times in the sixth for a 5-4 lead. David Ortiz and Rich Becker singled off starter John Burkett, and Pat Meares hit an RBI single off Matt Whiteside. Todd Walker's two-run double put the Twins in front.

Texas tied it with a run in the seventh. Cedeno led off with a double and scored on Jim Leyritz's pinch-single.

Gonzalez hit a solo homer in the third off Travis Miller. Bill Ripken's RBI double and Damon Buford's run-scoring single put the Rangers ahead 3-0 in the fourth.

The Twins snapped a streak of 15 consecutive scoreless innings in the fourth when Ron Coomer hit a two-run homer, his 10th. The Rangers made it 4-2 in the fifth on Buford's sacrifice fly.

Notes: Gonzalez's homer was his second in three career at-bats against Miller. ... Ivan Rodriguez's three-homer game on Thursday was the eighth in club history and the eighth by a catcher in American League history. ... Meares' fifth-inning single was his 500th career hit.

Yankees 13, Orioles 5

BALTIMORE — The New York Yankees handed Scott Erickson his first loss in eight weeks and once again pounded the Baltimore Orioles, getting four hits and two RBIs from Bernie Williams.

The Orioles' magic number to clinch the AL East title remained at 12. Baltimore has lost four of five and 11 of 17.

The Yankees trailed the Orioles by 9 1/2 games after Erickson beat them last Saturday, but the margin is now 6 1/2. The Yankees were 0-7 against Baltimore before winning 10-3 Sunday and 14-2 Thursday.

Erickson (16-6) was 5-0 in 11 starts since July 12, including last week's four-hitter against the Yankees. This time, the right-hander yielded eight runs, nine hits and four walks in 2 1-3 innings, his shortest outing in 30 starts this year.

Indians 9, White Sox 0

CHICAGO — Rookie Jaret Wright allowed three hits in seven innings and Jim Thome, Matt Williams and Manny Ramirez homered as the Cleveland Indians blanked the Chicago White Sox.

The Indians increased their AL Central lead to 6 1/2 games over Milwaukee, which lost 4-2 to Boston, and 7 1/2 games over the White Sox.

Wright (7-3) gave up a third-inning double to Ray Durham and singles in the fifth and seventh innings to Jorge Fabregas. He walked two and struck out five. Paul Shuey pitched a hitless eighth and ninth to finish the combined three-hitter.

Thome hit his career-best 39th homer to lead off the second. One out later Williams, connected for his 31st off Doug Drabek (10-11).

Red Sox 4, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Nomar Garciaparra hit two home runs, including a leadoff shot on the third pitch of the game, as the Boston Red Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers.

Troy O'Leary and Scott Hatteberg hit consecutive homers as Boston dropped the Brewers 6 1/2 games behind Cleveland in the AL Central. The Indians defeated Chicago 9-0.

Jeff Suppan (7-2) allowed four hits in five innings for first victory since beating Minnesota on Aug. 14. He walked two and struck out four coming back from a bad start seven days ago when he lasted only 1 1-3 innings in a loss to Milwaukee at Fenway Park.

Relievers John Wasdin, Ron Mahay, Jim Corsi and Tom Gordon preserved Boston's fourth win in the last five games by holding the Brewers scoreless for the final four innings. Gordon pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

Rangers' Tatis meets father

ARLINGTON (AP) — At last, Texas Rangers third baseman Fernando Tatis fulfilled his wish.

Tatis, who had not seen his father since he was a child in the Dominican Republic, finally met up with his dad prior to Friday night's game between the Rangers and Minnesota Twins.

Fernando Tatis Sr., a Sarasota, Fla., painting contractor and former minor league player and coach in the Houston Astros organization, had spoken by phone with his son on Aug. 19. The two were anxious to meet, and the Rangers brought in Tatis Sr. and his family for the weekend series against the Twins.

"It was very emotional to finally meet him," said Fernando Jr., a rookie who had been searching for his father since 1994 when he began playing baseball in the United States.

"Ever since I talked to him on the phone, I've been excited to see him. The past is past. I don't care about that. We're starting over. I care about what's going to happen in the future," he said.

Disney's Miramax plans to distribute Michael Moore's latest documentary

DETROIT — Michael Moore, who assailed General Motors in his 1989 satirical documentary "Roger & Me," is having a more pleasant time with another corporate giant.

Miramax to donate half its net profits from Michael Moore's documentary to various charities.

Miramax, a division of the Walt Disney Co., announced Thursday it will distribute Moore's latest documentary, "The Big One," and will donate half its net profits to various charities in Flint, Mich., Moore's hometown.

Miramax will immediately donate $100,000 to Flint community programs. Moore called the deal a "perfect example of what corporate America should be doing."

"The Big One," which will be released next year, was filmed during the three months Moore spent promoting "Downsize This: Random Threats from an Unarmed American," his book that disputes the notion that the United States has made an economic recovery.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Don't look for the sitcom "Ellen" to back away from exploring gay issues during the fall season — despite the skittishness of some advertisers, ABC programming chief Jamie Tarses said.

If some advertisers don't like it, there are others willing to take their place, Tarses told television executives and other members of the Hollywood Radio and TV Society on Thursday.

"We're not having trouble selling the show," she said.

The show's title character, played by Ellen DeGeneres, came out as a lesbian last season in an hour-long special that drew criticism from conservative groups. Several companies pulled commercials that had been scheduled to run during the episode.

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has survived countless trips around the world.

On Friday, he escaped injury when his limousine hit a deer on the way to the dedication of the new Melvin Laird Center at the Marshfield Clinic, named for the former defense secretary from Marshfield.

Kissinger made the rest of the trip in a pickup truck and said it was a very interesting way to see Wisconsin.

Laird was a Wisconsin congressman from 1952 to 1969 before taking the cabinet post under President Nixon. Kissinger served under both Nixon and President Ford, the scheduled keynote speaker at the dedication.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — Dutch Crown Prince Willem-Alexander — at age 30 one of Europe's most eligible royal bachelors — is in no rush to get married or become King Willem IV.

In a rare interview, the prince told his subjects he's up for the job but would prefer more time before succeeding his mother and No. 1 adviser, Queen Beatrix.

Prince Willem-Alexander is in no rush to get married.

"You can never be ready for it — it requires constant training," he said in the interview, taped last month and aired on television Thursday evening.

It was a rare chance for the Dutch to get a closer look at their royals, who usually take great pains to protect their privacy and avoid controversy. Nearly 3.1 million people tuned in to watch Willem-Alexander's second-ever interview, Dutch television reported.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Actors Judge Reinhold and Ali McGraw have asked the federal Agriculture Department to revoke the license of King Royal Circus, the owner of an elephant found dead in a trailer last month.

"It's becoming obvious to good people that these magnificent creatures do not belong in leg shackles; that they do not deserve to be beaten into submission ... so they can perform idiotic tricks for people," Reinhold said in a People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals statement.

McGraw added in a letter to the USDA, "They cannot be allowed to go back to people who have shown such obvious disregard for their welfare."

The USDA suspended King Royal's federal license for exotic animals Aug. 20 after Heather, an 8-year-old African elephant, was found dead inside a trailer near the Albuquerque airport. The city of Albuquerque was granted temporary custody of eight llamas and two other elephants that were in the trailer.

Jacobsen, Glasson tied for second-round lead

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

SUTTON, Mass. — A lot of players have lost a lot of tournaments to Tiger Woods since he turned pro. Peter Jacobsen lost his caddy.

"It's been tough getting used to a new guy," Jacobsen said Friday after shooting 65 to move to 9-under-par, tied with Bill Glasson for the second-round lead of the CVS Charity Classic.

Jacobsen was laid up at home in Portland, Ore., with a bad back when Woods was playing in the U.S. Amateur at Pumpkin Ridge. Woods asked if he could borrow Mike "Fluff" Cowan when he turned pro, then offered him full-time work.

"Mike came to me and said he had the opportunity to work for Tiger full time. I said, 'Hey, you've got to do that. He's a phenom,'" Jacobsen said. "He said 'I really appreciate it.' I said, 'I wish I had an opportunity to work for him.'"

Glasson shot a second-round 67 on the par-71, 7,110-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course to join Jacobsen in the chase for the $216,000 winner's share of the $1.2 million purse.

First-round co-leader Charlie Rymer shot 70 to move to minus-8, tied for second with Mike Bradley, Kevin Burton, John Adams and Loren Roberts. Craig Parry, Paul Claxton and Mike Reid were two strokes back at 7-under.

Even without Woods, the event boasted its best field in two decades, including four members of the U.S. Ryder Cup team as well as defending champion John Cook and crowd favorite John Daly.

But only two of the players who will compete for the Ryder Cup at the Valderrama course in Cadiz, Spain in two weeks were among the 74 players making the cut at 1-under. Jeff Maggert was 4-over and Brad Faxon was 1-over; Justin Leonard was minus-1 to just make the cut and Jim Furyk was three strokes behind the leaders at 6-under.

Thompson leads seniors

AUGUSTA, Mo. — Rocky Thompson shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Mike McCullough and David Graham after the first round of the $1.3 million Boone Valley Classic.

"I've played poorly all this year, mostly because of my irons," Thompson, 66th on the Senior PGA Tour money list, said. "I've had four different lessons in the last month from four different people and they have all helped a lot."

Norman second in Lancome

SAINT-NOM-LA-BRETECHE, France — Greg Norman shot a scrambling 66 on Friday and moved within a shot of leader Tony Johnstone after two rounds of the $1.1 million Lancome Trophy.

Norman had nine birdies and four bogeys in a brilliant imitation of vintage Ballesteros and finished two rounds at 9-under-par 133, joined by fellow Australian Peter O'Malley, who shot 68. Johnstone was at 132 after a 65 that featured six birdies on the front nine.

Rusedski breaks into top 10

Associated Press

■ Tennis Roundup

BOURNEMOUTH, England — Greg Rusedski, with a quarterfinal win Friday over Lucas Arnold of Argentina in the Samsung clay-court tournament, guaranteed himself of becoming the first British player to reach the top 10.

Rusedski, the runner-up last weekend in the U.S. Open, defeated Arnold 7-6 (7-3), 6-3. Rusedski, the No. 3 seed, will face top-seeded Carlos Moya of Spain in Saturday's semifinals. Moya beat Davide Scala of Italy 6-3, 6-4 in the quarterfinals.

The ATP Tour confirmed Friday that Rusedski will be No. 10 in next week's rankings. He's the first Brit to reach the top 10 since the ranking began in 1973.

Kafelnikov moves on

TASHKENT, Uzbekistan — Yevgeny Kafelnikov won an all-Russian matchup and Francisco Clavet outdueled a fellow Spaniard on Friday to advance to the semifinals of the President's Cup.

The No. 1-seeded Kafelnikov ended qualifier Andrei Stoliarov's unexpected run of success with a 6-4, 6-4 victory.

Spaniards advance to semis

MARBELLA, Spain — Top-seeded Albert Costa of Spain advanced to the semifinals of the Marbella Open with a 7-6 (8-6), 6-3 victory over Andrea Gaudenzi of Italy on Friday.

Another Spaniard, No. 2 seed Alberto Berasategui, rolled to a convincing 6-1, 6-2 win over countryman Julian Alonso.

Ask the doctor

By Dr. Emilio Bombay
N.Y. Times News Service

Dear Dr. Bombay: Can you recommend the most practical method of learning computer operation? I don't have any money to buy any equipment, but my local library has a room full of that. However, it is unrealistic to expect the nice young man in charge of the room to actually teach anything. — Bookworm

Dear Book: Yeah, God forbid that the nice young man actually stop playing with his card catalog, get off his rear end and help anybody. OK, maybe your library is understaffed, but when the people in charge stick sophisticated equipment out on the floor, they have the obligation to let you know how to use it or suffer the consequences. Which is a break for you.

The best, the ONLY way of learning to use a computer is to stick your hands deep into the belly of the beast and see what it feels like, which is kinda icky and gooey, with strange, indescribable lumps of something you'd rather not know about floating around in there.

So, some afternoon, wander over to the library and plop yourself down in front of a keyboard. Sure, you may not know what to do, and you may be terrified of breaking something, but so what? Poke and prod, punch all the buttons, play with the mouse.

It's important to demystify the hardware, and the best way to do that is to play with it until something stops working. Remember, if they didn't want you to break it, they'd have taught you to use it in the first place. Of course, if you do manage to goober something up, it's probably better to just sorta sneak out before anybody discovers it was you who did it. That way you can always come back and complain about why the computer hasn't been fixed yet.

While you're waiting for somebody to undo the damage, it's time to find some books that will show you what it was you weren't supposed to do. Look for titles like "The Complete and Total Imbecile's Guide to Windows" or "Computing for Inbred Half-Wits." Thumb through them and look for words you understand.

The thing you need explained before anything else is the user interface — the way you actually make the machine do something — and that's going to be either Windows or the Macintosh operating system. In either case, you need to learn how to use a mouse, how to start programs and how to use menu systems. Don't worry about what goes on behind the scenes. You'll never need to know that stuff.

Once you learn all the basics, concentrate on the specific things you want to do, like Web surfing or word processing. There are similar beginners' books for just about everything, but by now, you may not even need them. Most Mac and Windows programs operate in pretty much the same way: Point at something with a mouse, click the button, pick things from a menu. If you already know how to do all that, you can probably plunge right in and bumble your way through. It's OK to be confused at first. Remember how hard it was to figure out that new toaster oven the first time you used it?

Of course, you'll probably actually want to consult the manuals or third-party books to do the fancy, esoteric stuff. I'd also be really surprised if you couldn't find some cheap beginner courses in using a computer or a specific program at your local community college (their motto: "But We Really, Really Are So a College"). Just make sure the instructor isn't some moonlighting librarian. (Noted computerologist Dr. Emilio Bombay offers occasionally accurate advice about most things electronic.

Time clocks wind down as computers take over

By Julia Angwin
N.Y. Times News Service

Time is running out for the old mechanical time clock.

Businesses are replacing the old-fashioned system of time cards and clocks with high-tech computer systems that let employees "punch in" using a magnetic card, a palm print or even a phone call.

"The time clock is really an anachronism," said Maris Harris, spokeswoman for Kronos, the leading make of electronic devices used to track workers' hours. "We don't even call them time clocks, we call them data collection devices."

These new devices are computer-driven and cost three to 10 times as much as their mechanical cousins. But the mechanical ones couldn't add up workers' hours, calculate overtime or print out reports on tardy workers — like the new ones can.

The new machines are also tied into computerized payroll systems so there's no time card involved at all. When workers "punch in," their hours are automatically logged by the computer.

And the old ones were easy to cheat on if you knew how to work the lever that set the date and time. You've got

Infoseek prepares to unveil innovative Web-search device

By John Markoff
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The Infoseek Corp., one of the three leading Internet search engine companies, plans to announce on Monday that it has received a patent covering a new approach for decentralized searching of the World Wide Web that should provide more accurate results.

The company said it expected the patent to give it a strategic advantage in the competitive market for the Internet's most popular search sites. Currently, most Internet users routinely use one of the major Internet search sites, like Yahoo, Excite, Infoseek, Alta Vista or Lycos when they search for information on line.

But the major Internet search engine companies keep centralized indexes that are updated regularly by software programs that automatically search sites on the World Wide Web. Infoseek executives said the Web's growth was now rapidly outstripping the ability of the individual indexing programs to keep up with the explosion of new information.

"The system is starting to break down," Steve Kirsch, Infoseek chairman and founder, said. The early signs of a breakdown of the current generation of search engines are already there, he said. Most search engines have many dead

Diana changes the 'Net for the better

By Andy Grieser
N.Y. Times News Service

In death, Princess Diana has done what no congressional edict or parental pressure has been able to achieve: For a while, at least, she has changed the Internet for the better.

As news of the princess's death circled the globe, Net surfers expressed their grief, their outrage, their anger. From discussion groups to spontaneous World Wide Web pages, a death was mourned and a life celebrated.

The Holy Grail of sorts is the British Monarchy's official Web site (www.royal.gov.uk). Official condolences can be left there, but the page is so popular that it is almost impossible to reach. After hours of trying, we never even got a peek at it.

A quick way to find Web sites devoted to Diana is through the Yahoo! search engine (www.yahoo.com). A link has been created with a list of 75 memorial sites.

Many of them are similar to "A Compassionate Queen of Hearts" (www.soonet.ca/starla/heart/diana.html). This page is decorated in soft pink roses and angels, with a picture of Diana and a eulogy that is touching because it is so inexpert.

Mourners set up sites across the world, from Germany (nadir.rz.fh-heilbronn.de/schule/RMG—Heilbronn/lang/diana/diana.htm) to South Africa (www.safari-iafrica.com/diana.htm) to the United States. A company in California called Jdesign (www.jdesign.com/Diana/) will exhibit mourners' original art-

Consumers critical of online services

■ Survey finds mining for new customers not a problem for AOL, others, but image is.

By Steve Lohr
N.Y. Times News Service

The consumer marketers of cyberspace, led by America Online, have done an excellent job of attracting new customers, but they have an image problem, according to a new survey.

The survey results, to be released on Monday by Odyssey, a market research firm based in San Francisco, found that many of the nation's computer-equipped households continue to view commercial online services as often afflicted with network traffic jams, and slow and hard to use. In the six months from January to July, the percentage of people whose perception of an online service was excellent or very good had declined for all the big brand-name services — America Online; the Microsoft Network; Compuserve; a separate company mostly owned by H & R Block, and Prodigy, an IBM unit.

America Online and Microsoft Network, or MSN, did best in the Odyssey survey — both of them rated excellent or very good by 18 percent of those questioned who had computers at home and were at least aware of the services.

Nick Donatiello, president of Odyssey, said one message of the survey was that the cyberspace services had not really estab! shed powerful consumer brands. He noted that well-known brands of mainstream consumer products, like coffee or toothpaste, typically get high approval ratings from 50 or 60 percent of households in surveys similar to the one conducted by Odyssey.

"If toothpaste had the same lowly ratings as the online services, no one would be brushing their teeth," said Donatiello, whose firm specializes in consumer research on technology and new media.

Peter VanCamp, president of CompuServe Network.

But other results of the Odyssey survey apparently suggest that image problems may not be too important. After all, people are subscribing to online services in increasing numbers — with America Online and MSN attracting most of the new customers — while others surf the World Wide Web using smaller Internet service companies. Once wired, people are spending an increasing amount of time on line.

The Odyssey surveys, based on interviews with 2,500 people, have been conducted at six-month intervals going back to 1994. In the last two years, the percentage of American households on line has more than doubled to 19 percent, up from 9 percent in July 1995. Perhaps more striking, the number of hours spent on line by these wired households has nearly doubled in the last year to an average of 12.8 hours a week, up from 6.5 hours in July 1996.

WHERE HISTORY IS ALWAYS HAPPENING

African Americans used to be denied many of the basic rights and services that we all take for granted today in America. The people of the Civil Rights movement helped to change all that, making this one of the most important movements in the 20th century. Now you can learn all about the many important people and events during the 1950s and '60s by taking a virtual tour of the National Civil Rights Museum in Memphis, Tenn., at http://www.mecca.org/~crights/cyber.html Hop on a cyberbus to Tennessee and learn all about Martin Luther King Jr., the famous Montgomery Bus Boycott, the lunch counter sit-ins and the March on Washington. It's a visit well worth the trip to a place that "keeps the dream alive."

Dear Amy: My folks said we can set up a family home page. But where do we start and what do we put on it? —Beth, Boston

Dear Beth: Lots of families are putting up their home pages because members of online services like AOL and Prodigy can do it free. Non-members can use places like Geocities at http://www.geocities.com/ Start your page by posting pictures of your family and pets and your favorite URLs. The most fun is to use your home page to help organize something like a wedding or a family reunion by posting a gift registry or giving directions to the location. Afterward you can post the pictures of the event for everyone to see.

Dear Amy: I just started in the ninth grade this year. What was the name of the homework page on the Internet?—Clarence, Seattle

Dear Clarence: There are lots of homework helpers online. My favorite is Homework Help at http://www.startribune.com/stonline/html/special/homework/ It has teachers online waiting to help you. You can ask a question or read through questions others have asked. Another good site for students is Looney Bin at http://www.geocities.com/Athens/3843/ It shows you how to study for exams, write reports and take notes.

INFOSEEK: Multiple indexes used

links and outdated information, and searches are often inaccurate, returning many false matches.

The new Infoseek technique uses multiple indexes and searches across numerous data bases and Web sites throughout the Internet. Kirsch likened it to the way information is sought in conventional libraries: An individual will go first to a central card catalogue and then be directed to books, which will have their own individual indexes.

"This is like the move from mainframe to personal computing," he said. "Our industry is now seeing a significant shift to distributed search tools," which are data bases.

He acknowledged that distributed searching of multiple data bases was not a new concept. For example, Dialog Information Services, now known as Knight-Ridder Information Inc., simultaneously searches several hundred data bases and provides single retrieval listing. But the Dialog system does not rank the retrieval information and it is generally used by professional searchers.

Kirsch said the Infoseek system was able to more accurately rank the relevance of documents that may be stored on millions of computer data bases and listed in thousands of different indexes.

In the Infoseek model, each query yields a list of documents ranked correctly by how relevant they are to the search. Kirsch said the Infoseek search and retrieval method required each participating search engine server to return statistics about each query term. The system then uses the ranking systems of all of the participating servers to assemble an aggregated listing displayed in the user's Internet browser program.

CLOCKS: Automation improves jobs to be a computer hacker to outsmart many of today's time clocks.

"It gives us a report on people who are coming in tardy a tremendous amount of time," said Yolanda Baisch, human resources administrator at LoDan West, a San Carlos computer cable manufacturer.

LoDan West switched from a mechanical time clock to a badge-swiping system in 1993. Baisch said the new system has helped her uncover and fire some time card cheaters.

But most importantly, she said the new time clocks save her time by automatically adding up employees' hours worked — a task she used to do by hand.

"Looking at 250 time cards is a pain in the butt," she said.

But like all technology, there are a few glitches in the system.

Cal Poly Pomona Foundation, which runs the food service and library staff at Cal Poly University, switched to a badge-swiping system a year and a half ago. But it still doesn't work with the foundation's payroll software.

So a worker has to manually type the hours into the computer every other week. "It saves time up front," said Brenda Briggs, director of financial affairs. "But we still need to interface to our current accounting system."

Even so, the new clocks are selling like hotcakes.

"I can't remember the last time I sold (a mechanical) one," said Jim Chakos, a salesman at Timpac Inc., a Burlingame firm that sells time clocks.

DIANA: Pictures of princess plentiful

work; just submit it to the site.

A special page on the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's" Star-Text service (www.startext.net/specials/97diana/index.htm) carries the latest news — from initial reports of the crash to the controversy involving the paparazzi.

A less encouraging look at the media comes from "The Tragedy That Didn't Have to Happen" (home.interpath.net/dbailey/diana/). The site rails against the paparazzi and suggests that visitors boycott the tabloids, contact legislators to strengthen celebrity stalking laws, and donate to charities championed by the princess.

Most sites encourage giving money to Diana's favorite charities, although few of those charities have Web pages. Addresses and phone numbers for the princess's projects can be found on many of the memorial sites.

Pictures of Diana reign on many of the sites; a photo gallery on Thames Valley (www.thamesvalley.com/galleries/diana/default.html) traces the princess's life from the extravagant wedding to the last days.

Another site, which sells fake and real nude pictures of celebrities, has changed its Diana site to show a (clothed) photo of the princess with a poem called "Funeral Blues."

Of course, there is always something out there for those who nurture no values. One can easily find a picture of rescuers at the site of the wreck or participate in a host of conspiracy theories (Diana and Dodi faked their deaths and are living on a Caribbean isle).

But, mostly, the worldwide Web grieves for a woman who died too young.

Memorial Christian to host annual fund raiser Sunday

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

A hallmark of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) is to proclaim that church members "are not the only Christians, but we are Christians only."

Midland's Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, seeks to cooperate with other religious groups in ecumenical settings such as the Midland Association of Churches and the Midland Ministerial Alliance.

"We seek in God's word for guidance on who we are and what we are to do as individuals and as a congregation of God's people," said Memorial Christian minister Dr. Jim Rudd. "There is a high level of individual responsibility in interpretation of scripture, since the church does not have a set of creeds to which each one must subscribe."

These beliefs are captured in an early slogan of the denomination: "No creed but Christ; no book but the Bible."

"Like every church in the community," Dr. Rudd said, "we seek to be an open, friendly, loving and caring part of the people of God. There is an open invitation for any and all to share."

Memorial Christian has a congregation 342 strong; worship services are conducted Sundays at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. Sunday School classes are available for children age 2 years old through third grade; a youth program is available for those in 4th-12th grades.

Memorial Christian has a congregation 342 strong; worship services are conducted Sundays at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m.

Additionally, there are periodic Bible study opportunities for adults as well as occasional all-Church fellowships. A Bible study for youth and adults recently started and is conducted Thursdays at 7 p.m. In the nine months the class is conducted, each book of the Bible will be considered in survey form.

Music opportunities are also plentiful. The Sanctuary choir leads Sunday worships and is featured in special presentations throughout the year. Two handbell choirs, JuBELLation, for experienced ringers, and Genesis, for beginning ringers, are also available. Children and youth also share in handbell and voice choir opportunities, and there are two major children's musical performances each year.

One of the main outreach opportunities sponsored by Memorial Christian is the Food Pantry, which has been in operation since 1986. Eleven years after it was founded, the ministry continues to deliver food each Wednesday afternoon. Through August of 1997, Memorial Christian had provided food for 1,417 families.

This Sunday, Sept. 14, at 6:30 p.m., Memorial Christian will have its annual fundraiser for the Food pantry ministry with its "Beans 'n Jeans Dinner." Donations of canned goods and money are accepted and a Dessert Auction raises a large amount for support of this ministry.

Memorial also supports 15 local agencies with its financial outreach, and participates in various projects, such as Christmas in April.

In addition to Dr. Rudd, the church has an associate minister, Rev. Kendrick G. Crawford; a music director, Gary Hires, a secretary, and maintenance, housekeeping and nursery staffs.

An immediate future plan of the church is to institute a contemporary worship service; the first such service is scheduled for Oct. 28 at 6 p.m.

A long-range planning committee is also looking at other growth opportunities for the church.

"Part of the church's mission statement says, 'We are recipients of God's varied grace, sharing responsibility for spreading the Christian gospel gladly. In gratitude and celebration of God's blessings, we use our various gifts to improve the quality of spiritual, emotional, mental and physical life. Through the various ministries of our congregation, we strive to proclaim God's peace and love for individuals, families, our city, our nation and our world,'" according to Dr. Rudd.

Memorial Christian Church was founded in January 1954 with families commissioned out of First Christian Church. It is part of the denomination of The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), which began on the American frontier in 1832, with the merger of two groups called "Christians" and "Disciples." The denomination of the church in the United States and Canada has about 4,000 churches and just under 1,000,000 members.

1985 LAFER MP

By Tad Burness

During the past two decades, several small companies have produced —in limited numbers—a variety of replicars of different classics of the past. There have been reproductions of Cord convertibles, Duesenberg roadsters, Auburn boat-tailed speedsters, 1902 Oldsmobiles, Bugattis, Austin-Healey sports cars, Model A Ford roadsters, 1934 Ford V8 roadsters, plus many others—including MG-TD sports cars that were originally built from 1950 to early '54.

Some half-dozen companies have tried their hand at manufacturing MG replicars similar to the type illustrated. Some were unassembled skit cars" that the buyer had to complete; others were ready to drive. One of the best-selling of the MG replicars was this Lafer MP, made in Brazil for many years and exported to the United States during the 1980s.

Most replicars have relied on readily available mechanical parts from better-known makes of cars, and the Lafer MP is no exception. It used a Remanufactured" Volkswagen chassis with rear engine, the type used on the well-known VW Beetle. With engine in the rear, the long hood of the Lafer MP provided ample storage space. The hood was not the original Butterfly" type (hinged down the middle), but was hinged at one side so it swung open from the right, giving access to luggage and gear.

The top on this replicar was higher than the top on the original MG prototype, for the comfort of tall drivers.

The fiberglass body on the Lafer MP was of superior quality, and it was claimed that a grown man could stand atop the front fender and not break it!

Features of the Lafer MP included top-grain leather reclining bucket seats, AM/FM radio with stereo cassette player, Rosewood steering wheel and dashboard, three sport lights, full instrumentation in a dashboard shaped like the original, glass side windows, a fire extinguisher and other accessories.

Before deciding to enter the replicar market, the manufacturer had a long-standing reputation as one of Brazil's finest furniture manufacturers. Two business recessions in the past 11 years have wiped out several kit car and replicar producers, but others survive.

Because of current safety standards, replicars sold in the United States are required to include certain features that may not have appeared on the original classics. Replicars are usually not as valuable as the vehicles they imitate, but replicars have the advantage of modern technology and easy-to-obtain mechanical parts.

Mazda B-series trucks arrive with slick designs and new gear

By Bob Plunkett
Special to Midland Reporter-Telegram

WHIDBEY ISLAND, Wash. -- A prototype edition of the new compact pickup truck by Mazda glided over paved rural back lanes of this scenic island anchored around the mouth of Puget Sound.

The truck's chassis, reinforced with stiff boxing up front, combines with a new independent front double wishbone suspension system to produce car-like ride sensations which feel firm and react predictably in a pattern that more closely resembles one of Mazda's cars rather than a pickup.

Inside, the cabin has been enlarged to bring more room for riders, and handy features show up everywhere, creating a cozy compartment with many thoughtful touches.

The bold new shape of this truck stands out in a parking lot -- it looks long and low and downright tough.

Dressed in new sheetmetal, with a definitive new face in front and bulging side wheel blisters, Mazda's truck appears as a slick import, although it comes out of a New Jersey plant in Mazda's joint-venture with Ford.

Despite new hardware, sheetmetal and interior perks, Mazda's B-series trucks carry similar numerical names as previous issues, with numbers derived from the size of three engine choices, as expressed in liters. A base version equipped with 2.5-liter in-line 4-cylinder engine wears the tag of B2500, while one with 3.0-liter V6 becomes the B3000.

Top model -- with 4.0-liter V6 -- totes the banner of B4000.

These numbers may seem like an unconventional way of naming a truck -compared to more recognizable handles like Ranger, Sonoma or Ram -- but don't sweat this detail.

Here's the point to remember: Mazda's truck is, in a word, nice.

It steers, turns, surges and romps with tough-truck confidence, yet also applies a user-friendly attitude.

Spend time driving the truck, which is what one tester did on Whidbey Island drawing from a collection outfitted with V6 and 4-cylinder engines and either rear-wheel or 4-wheel traction, and you'll see what I mean.

Articulated fenders set it apart from other pickups, while flashy front grille and bumper contribute a smoothness to a rounded, aggressive prow.

From side view, a line of bright chrome rings windows, and the off-road edition gets special swoopy graphics.

These fine points of good looks come from Mazda's designers based in California, with the New Jersey assembly occurring with Ford Ranger, which shares underpinnings.

A personal assessment ranks Mazda's truck ahead of import competitors due to the car-like conveniences and a new athletic personality which takes on rough spots and curve sets alike while sticking fast to the road.

It flashes some muscle too.

Pick the top V6 option -- earning 160 horsepower enthused with lots of low-end torque -- and you'll get far more low-gear action than imports provide.

That torque amounts to 225 Lbs/ft at 3000 rpm.

Mazda's base powertrain consists of a 2.5-liter four, rated at 119 hp in team with 5-speed manual shifter.

The 4x4 package skips over this base plant but works on either 4.0-liter V6 or the 3.0-liter V6 that pumps 150 hp.

Also, a 4-speed automatic transmission is offered with base four and smaller V6, but for the larger V6 a slick 5-speed automatic, borrowed from Ford Explorer, installs.

Select the 4x4 option in B4000, like the model tested off-road in a gravel pit and slippery mud bath on Whidbey Island, and you'll end up with a powerful work truck that exhibits a go-anywhere spirit on pavement or dirt.

A new pulse vacuum hub-lock device sets front hubs quickly and quietly for pushbutton shifting into 4x4 mode -- and it engages while moving at speeds up to 70 mph.

Besides choices of three engines and two traction models, Mazda's B trucks arrive in two trim levels and with a regular-size cabin or the stretched Cab Plus interior plan.

Cab Plus extends the cabin wall rearward to carve out a storage bay where a jump seat, which faces to the side, mounts behind the driver's seat.

When not needed, the seat folds out of the way to keep the bay clear for cargo.

More cargo room shows up in the truck bed, of course, which measures six feet long in a space that goes further than most trucks for utility purposes by providing four cargo hooks mounted to the floor and a back lift gate which detaches easily without special tools required.

A check of dimensions reveals that Mazda's truck has a wide stance, with front track of almost five feet. This makes it more stable on the road and brings more shoulder and elbow space inside for passengers.

A strong ladder-type chassis creates a rigid platform for the truck, but then additional full box bracing was applied at the forward section to stiffen it further. Mazda's engineers estimate an improvement in frame stiffness of more than 350 percent over the previous design.

The new independent front suspension, with front long-arm arrangement, mounts to the stiffer chassis. Cushy coil springs come on 4x2 models, with torsion bars added in 4x4 versions to permit more vertical wheel travel. In back, a live axle functions with 2-stage leaf springs to deliver a smoother ride quality on 4x2 editions, but for the 4x4 a multi-leaf spring beefs up settings for rugged action.

Power rack and pinion steering, rarely used on a truck, also increases agility.

New safety systems apply, including the first use of dual airbags for import-class compact pickups. A switch with locking key permits a driver to disconnect the passengerside airbag whenever a child rides up front.

For stopping Mazda's truck, ventilated discs stand in front of back drum assisted by rear anti-lock system. Discs on all wheels and 4-wheel ABS show up on B4000.

The standard interior layout puts a bench seat with 60/40 split in both SX and SE trims, but one Cab Plus SE option includes twin buckets separated by a floor-mounted console.

Keenly competitive pricing, pegged to teen figures, signifies high value due to so many bonus features.

Luxury That Works: '97 Chevrolet K1500 Extended Cab Sportside Diesel Pickup

By Kenneth Chester, Jr.

The tagline "Like a rock" is used in Chevrolet ads depicting the ruggedness and durability of the full-size Chevrolet pickup truck. Last overhauled in 1988, the large Chevy truck is also the oldest workhorse of Detroit's truck choices. That is not to say that the product has been neglected. A redesign of the interior in the '95 model year coupled with constant improvements to the chassis has kept demand high for these mechanical wonders. Dealers and consumers alike cannot seem to get enough of them — often loaded to the gills with almost every option in the Chevrolet order book. I had the opportunity to drive a short wheelbase version of the Chevy pickup, equipped with a diesel engine. Boy, was I surprised! Here are the details:

Wheelin'&Dealin'

Field Office on Wheels

If you think a four wheel drive full size pickup truck has to be uncomfortable to be useful as a work truck — guess again! I spent a week with a Chevrolet K1500 Extended Cab 4x4, with the optional six and a half foot Sportside box, and the 141.5 inch wheelbase. Choices include: four engines, four transmissions, Fleetside or Sportside box styles, two or four wheel drive, and Cheyenne or Silverado trim levels. The truck that I drove was equipped with GM's proven 6.5L V-8 Turbo Diesel, (a $4,055 option), currently the only diesel available in a half ton pickup (along with the GMC Sierra). Bolted to a silky smooth four speed automatic, this truck was one of the most mannerable vehicles that I have ever driven! This powertrain delivered seamless power, with excellent response and drivability. With the windows up, this truck was as quiet as many luxury sedans. Displays and controls were excellent as well, with a full bank of analog gauges keeping track of the most vital engine and transmission functions. The very roomy interior included three power points in the dashboard for plugging in various electronic devices. In addition to well laid out climate controls, the dashboard contains one of the best dual cupholders that I have used. Sitting in this pickup is like having a portable office on wheels. Seating surfaces were trimmed in comfortable leather, a part of the Silverado decor package. In the rear of the cab, a neat underseat release folds the rear seat up and out of the way to yield additional storage space. If you plan to carry passengers in the rear seat on a regular basis, consider spending $420 for the Third Door option. Underhood fluids were clearly marked and easy to reach.

By the Numbers

Properly equipped, the Chevrolet K1500 Extended Cab Pickup 4x4 can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 7,500 pounds. Standard safety equipment includes: dual airbags — (with a deactivation switch for the right passenger airbag), four wheel anti-lock brakes, daytime running lamps, and steel side door beams. EPA Fuel Economy for the Chevrolet K1500 Extended Cab pickup ranges from 15 city/20 highway for the 4.3L V-6 /5-speed manual to 13 city/17 highway for the 5.7L V-8/4-speed automatic. Retail sticker prices start from $ 20,826 to $21,821 for the long wheelbase/8-foot box model. Destination charge adds $625. Supplies of this truck continue to be scarce. There are no rebates.
