Raun Stoltz brought by a clipping from the military services newspaper, Stars and Stripes, of the Associated Press Story about Russian engineers who spent several weeks here at the American Magnesium plant.

The clipping came from the Stars and Stripes edition distributed in Germany. It was one of the stories written by Mike Cochran, the AP correspondent who came here to interview the Russians, all of whom are now back in their homeland. The story got a good spread in the servicemen's newspaper.

Several motorists who were literally trapped here during the atrocious weather of the past week had some nice things to say about Snyder. Probably the most enthusiastic, however, was Bob Brinkley of Corpus Christi. He was en route home when the ice storm overtook him in Snyder and he had to remain here several days. He declared that he could not have picked a better spot in which to be stranded. In fact, just about everything about Snyder impressed him, but possibly drawing the most comment was the concern for birds and wildlife exhibited by some local residents. Brinkley said he was especially impressed by feeding of birds by personnel at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where even a covey of quail came up for daily rations.

As the weather spell neared an end there was speculation over the course various schools would follow in making up for days lost during the icy spell.

There was one report that the Texas Education Agency might knock a few days off the 180-day requirement since so many schools in the state were affected. But this turned out to be wishful thinking, so far as could be determined late in the week.

Western Texas College fired up its oil burners to heat buildings for registration after its natural gas supplies were cut off during the icy weather. The WTC contract with Lone Star Gas Co. provides that its service may be reduced during periods of great demand. The college selected this type of contract, which also provides a more attractive rate during normal conditions, and had oil burning equipment installed as a safeguard. The past week was the first time oil had been used to fire the WTC boilers, and it apparently worked well.—WACIL McNAIR.

KISSINGER FLIES TO FLORIDA

Talks Progress Indicated

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho met for 7½ hours today in their longest meeting of the week. Kissinger prepared to fly to Florida to report to President Nixon soon after the meeting ended.

There was no official confirmation of rumors that the two top negotiators may have achieved a breakthrough in their nearly four-year-old secret peace talks. Nor was there any immediate indication whether or when they would meet again.

At Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is spending the weekend, a spokesman said Kissinger will consult with the President on what was described as six days of "serious negotiations."

U.S. officials, asked at the Florida White House whether Kissinger had tentatively initialed a Vietnam peace agreement, replied that had not happened. They refused to discuss substance of the negotiations.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said lower-level technical talks between the United States and North Vietnam will continue on Monday.

Ziegler would not say if or when Kissinger would return to Paris.

The spokesman said Kissinger is due to arrive at Homestead Air Force Base near Miami about 1 a.m. Sunday and will meet "at least briefly" with Nixon immediately after his arrival, and again later Sunday.

What seemed to be a crucial final meeting in their current session was attended by more than a score of aides and advisers. Some met separately on technical details in the same American-owned villa in suburban St. Nom la Breteche.

Half-way through the meeting, Kissinger summoned a U.S. Embassy photographer, presumably to take official pictures of the two delegations. That could indicate the desireto record an important event.

Some observers recalled that last-minute difficulties blocked agreement a month ago, when Kissinger's special plane was already standing by at Orly Airport.

The plane was standing by again tonight. Airport officials said Kissinger's departure was expected at 7:30 p.m. or 1:30 p.m. EST.

The White House said Kissinger would fly directly to Homestead Air Force Base near Miami and go from there to see Nixon at Key Biscayne, Fla.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, declined to indicate whether the negotiations have made any progress or whether the presence of the embassy photographer held any significance. But he drew attention to the length of the sessions this week.

Kissinger and Tho have since Monday conferred for more than 30 hours. Their technical aides have met almost daily for two weeks on protocols detailing operations of any agreement.

Some reports said Nixon's top foreign-policy adviser and the Hanoi Politburo member had made definite progress. But North Vietnam said Nixon's strategy to negotiate from a position of strength had been defeated.

Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme, who met for 90 minutes Friday with North Vietnamese delegate Xuan Thuy, told newsmen today, "It is not at all certain that there will be an agreement." He declined to elaborate or to disclose details of his talk with Thuy.

"I am disappointed that there is no peace already," Palme said. "But the talks must go on. There is a great opportunity of achieving results since the two sides were so close in October."

Palme, one of the most severe critics of U.S. policy in Vietnam, is in Paris for a meeting of the Socialist International.

GETTING SITUATED--Hani Morshed, a sophomore from Iran, gets situated in a Western Texas College Dormitory here Saturday after transferring to WTC from South Plains College. Things around the dormitory were pretty much as they were when the holidays began and one of the first things Morshed picked up was a Dec. 19 issue of The Snyder Daily News, the date WTC shut down for the holidays. Over 350 students registered Friday for the spring term and registeration was continuing Saturday on a schedule delayed by weather conditions.

IN STATE GOVERNMENT

Texas Gets New Look Tuesday

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas gets a new look in state government Tuesday with the inauguration of Gov.-elect Dolph Briscoe and Lt.Gov.-elect Bill Hobby.

And what trend the new administration plans to take will be revealed Wednesday when Briscoe makes his first address to the new legislature.

Gone will be the controversial four-year administrations of Gov. Preston Smith and Lt.Gov. Ben Barnes, who were never directly connected to Speaker Gus Mutscher and the insurance stock scandal, but who suffered political defeat by association.

The changing of the guard has already occurred in the Texas House where Rep. Price Daniel Jr., who ran a reform campaign designed to wipe out all Mutscher influences, was elected speaker. A number of rule changes he advocated already have been adopted.

Daniel's committee assignments Friday generally placed House power in new hands.

Senate committees will not be assigned until after Hobby takes office.

Inaugural festivities begin Monday night at a "Democratic Inaugural Dinner" honoring Briscoe and Hobby in Austin Municipal Auditorium. Dinner will cost $25 a plate with proceeds earmarked for the state Democratic party deficit. One of the main speakers will be Robert Strauss, Dallas, recently named chairman of the national Democratic party.

Inaugural day opens with a 7:30 a.m. prayer breakfast. Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys will be the speaker.

The inaugural ceremony begins at noon Tuesday on the south steps of the Capitol with officials seated in long rows on a special wooden platform draped with flags and bunting.

Hobby takes the oath of office first, and makes his inaugural address.

Then Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court will swear in the Uvalde rancher and banker as Texas' 41st governor. Briscoe's inaugural address is expected to deal generally with his administration plans, saving the specifics for the Wednesday speech.

After the swearing-in ceremony, Gov. and Mrs. Briscoe, and their immediate family, will observe an old tradition by taking their first meal in the executive mansion—a lunch prepared and left for them by the outgoing governor and Mrs. Smith.

The inaugural parade will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. down Congress Avenue with Briscoe and Hobby in the reviewing stand.

Afterwards, Briscoe and Hobby will shake hands with as many Texans as possible in a public receptioniin the Capitol rotunda.

Briscoe and Hobby, with their wives, will lead the grand march at a formal black tie affair—$20 per couple—at Municipal Auditorium. The new state officials will visit three informal dances, a country music dance at the city coliseum, a dance particularly for younger Texans at Gregory Gymnasium at the University of Texas, and a fourth dance at an Austin hotel.

Briscoe will make his first adress to the 63rd legislature at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Schools Set To Re-Open Monday

Snyder Public Schools were preparing to resume operations in the wake of a full week of inactivity caused by weather conditions.

A revised schedule for the coming week was mapped out Friday afternoon on a "weather permitting" basis. However, forecasts Saturday indicated that weather conditions would be suitable for normal operations, and it appeared that local schools definitely would reopen.

The schedule for the coming week:

Monday, review for tests.

Tuesday, tests during regular class periods.

Wednesday, tests during regular class periods.

Thursday, tests during regular class periods.

Friday, review tests, or begin second semester's work.

Saturday, teachers will report at 9 a.m. to complete their semester records. From 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., teachers will report to departmental, or grade level meetings in preapration for the second semester.

The second semester will officially begin on Monday, Jan. 22, a full week behind the previously adopted school calendar.

School officals have tentatively proposed that additional make-up days for classes be set for Saturday, Feb. 3, and Saturday, Feb. 17.

Parents and teachers are requested to cooperate in making up the necessary days of instruction to comply with the state requirement of 180 days each school year.

Lee Service At Hermleigh

Funeral for Wyn Guile Lee, 83, of Hermleigh, will be held at 3 p.m. today (Sunday) in the Hermleigh United Methodist Church with the Rev. Claude Nixon officiating, assisted by the Rev. Loran Gardner. Burial will follow in Hermleigh Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. He died at 7:30 a.m. Friday in Shannon Hospital in San Angelo.

Born Feb. 12, 1889, in Mount Pleasant, Ark., Mr. Lee married Vertna Hudson, Jan. 19, 1923, in Roscoe. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

Surviving are the wife of the home; one son, R.H. Lee of San Angelo; two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Lou McQuaid and Miss Zue Velle Lee, both of Hermleigh; one brother, Robert E. Lee, also of Hermleigh; and five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Nine-Day Freeze Ends

Clearing skies Friday sent the thermometer above the freezing mark in Snyder for the first time in nine days, as a general thaw began to erase a prolonged ice and snow seige.

The official thermometer reached a high of 46 degrees Friday. Prior to that, the first time it had been above 32 degrees was on Jan. 3, when a high of 54 degeees was recorded.

In the intervening period, the readings in Snyder were mostly in the teens and low twenties, but dipped to zero for a brief period Thursday night before the warm-up began.

Here's how the temperature range went during the long cold spell: Thursday, Jan. 4, high 32 degrees, low 28 degrees; Friday, Jan. 5, high 31 degrees, low 25 degrees; Saturday, Jan. 6, high 27 degrees, low 22 degrees; Sunday, Jan. 7, high 24 degrees, low 17 degrees; Monday, Jan. 8, high 22 degrees, low 11 degrees; Tuesday, Jan. 9, high 14 degrees, low, 11 degrees; Wednesday, Jan. 10, high 20 degrees, low 10 degrees; Thursday, Jan. 12, high 27 degrees, low 0 degrees.

B52s Strike At Supply Areas

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Nearly 80 U.S. B52 bombers saturated sections of a Communist supply corridor stretching more than 150 miles from the North Vietnamese port of Vinh across the demilitarized zone into the northern tip of South Vietnam, U.S. officials reported today.

The command said the B52s, which dropped up to 2,400 tons of explosives in the latest raids, were striking at supply areas and troop positions in efforts to block war materiel and replacements from reaching battlefields in South Vietnam.

While a bombing halt has been in effect above the 20th parallel since Dec. 30 while peace talks continue in Paris, heavy strikes have been carried out in North Vietnam daily below the line.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry repeated charges that the B52s were "carpet-bombing" populated areas in the four provinces below the 20th parallel and reconnaissance missions have been conducted above the line "in preparation for new acts of war" against the Hanoi-Haiphong heartland.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported that four North Vietnamese tanks, spotted closer to Saigon than any such armor ever before, were knocked out by South Vietnamese bombers at rubber plantations 40 miles northwest of the capital.

Allied spokesmen also reported that heavy U.S. bombing in the region, where a North Vietnamese buildup was reported under way, set off secondary explosions indicating hits on ammunition caches. South Vietnamese troops found similar caches.

A series of small skirmishes was reported Friday along the Saigon River corridor between the Michelin and Lai Khe rubber plantations, 35 to 40 miles northwest of the capital, in the region where the tanks and trucks were reported destroyed.

The Saigon River corridor is a traditional infiltration route toward the capital, and military sources estimate there is a North Vietnamese regiment of as many as 1,000 troops between Michelin and Lai Khe with war materiel stockpiled there.

Fighting also was reported on the northern front south of Da Nang, in Kontum Province in the central highlands and in Chuong Thien Province in the lower Mekong Delta more than 100 miles south of Saigon.

Security Tightened On Meir

PARIS (AP) — Student demonstrators burned Golda Meir in effigy today less than three blocks from where the Israeli premier was attending a meeting of international Socialist leaders.

Students shouted "Golda murderer" as they marched down the Boulevard St. Germain carrying aloft Palestinian flags and the portrait of a Palestinian leader who died here Tuesday.

The demonstrators, about 300, appeared to be moving away from the Palais du Luxembourg, headquarters of the French Senate, where the Socialist meeting was under way.

Riot police cordoned off the narrow streets leading to the Senate building. The French government, which had objected to the conference being held, banned all demonstrations in Paris this weekend.

Socialist leaders from 18 countries, including five prime ministers, attended the controversial gathering.

Mrs. Meir's presence prompted the heaviest security precautions seen in Paris in recent years.

Officials said 7,000 policemen had been deployed throughout Paris to provide security. Outside the Senate building, where the conference is being held, 25 police trucks and vans brought in scores of riot police armed with tear gas grenade launchers and automatic weapons.

Police with guard dogs patroled outside the ornate entrance of the Senate, while other police with walkie-talkie radios and submachine guns were posted on the roofs of nearby buildings.

Watergate Trial In Closed-Door Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — More guilty pleas may be brewing in the Watergate trial, according to reports, with defendants and attorneys conferring over the weekend after a mysterious closed-door court session.

It was understood that four of the defendants were feeling pressure Friday to plead guilty and avoid further trial, as did former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt, Jr.

Two defendants, G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord Jr., were reported holding out for a full trial that may take many weeks. It resumes Monday in open session.

No public business was conducted Friday in the trial of the six remaining persons charged in connection with the break-in and alleged bugging last June 17 of Democratic National headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex.

After government prosecutors argued peripheral motions in the U.S. Court of Appeals in the morning, U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica moved into a surprise closed-door session in the afternoon with only the defendants, their lawyers, and a hastily summoned Spanish interpreter present.

Henry B. Rothblatt, New York lawyer defending four Miami defendants was questioned about reports that the group might replace him with an attorney who would agree to plead guilty.

"This could happen. An attorney can be dismissed at any time," Rothblatt replied.

Asked if there was a possibility of guilty pleas being offered, Rothblatt said, "Not by me."

Meanwhile, reports persisted that the Miami defendants, all with Cuban backgrounds, may plead guilty.

Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, reported that the four had been promised $1,000 each for every month they spend in jail and an undisclosed lump sum when they get out of prison if they plead guilty.

The paper said sources close to the defendants identified the group promising the cash only as "friends from Miami," including, the paper said, a prominent figure in the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion.

Asked about the Newsday report, Rothblatt said there were "a lot of rumors floating around." But he denied this one.

Hunt, a former White House consultant, pleaded guilty Thursday to all six of the counts against him after Sirica refused to accept the plea to only three of the counts. Sirica set a stiff $100,000 bond for Hunt, but it was put up quickly. Hunt is now awaiting sentencing which could add up to as much as 50 years in prison.

The Miami defendants are Bernard L. Barker, a real estate executive, and three of his associates, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Birgilio R. Gonzalez.

All of the defendants except Liddy, who was once with the FBI, have past connections with the Central Intelligence Agency.

The seven were indicted on counts charging them variously with offenses from burglary to wiretapping. McCord, Barker, Martinez, Sturgis and Gonzalez were captured at gunpoint last June 17 inside the Watergate complex.

Engineers To Hear Nikias

P.A. Nikias, Unit Superintendent of the SACROC Unit, Chevron Oil Co., Snyder, will speak on "The Role of Engineers in Management" at the regular AIME meeting Tuesday at the Snyder Country Club.

Nikias graduated from the University of Illinois with a B.S. Degree in Mechanical Engineering and from Stanford University with an M.S. Degree in Petroleum Engineering. Since graduation Nikias has been employed in various departments of Chevron Oil Co. and moved to Snyder, in August, 1972, from Taft, Calif., where he served as District Engineer in 1970 and Area Production Supervisor in 1971.

Members and guests are invited to a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

There were two motor vehicle mishaps in Snyder Friday and early Saturday morning, and both of them were caused by icy highways.

Police said Jimmy Logan Daniel of Fort Worth lost control of his 1969 Model Pontiac half a mile south of Huffman Avenue on U.S. 84 at 3:35 p.m. Friday. The vehicle skidded on the ice, turned around, and slid into a metal reflector.

The other mishap occurred in the 1700 block of Avenue N at 2:10 a.m. Saturday. Officers said Arturo Samora, Jr. of Coahoma apparently lost control of his 1968 Model Ford when it slid on the ice. It struck a fire hydrant.

LETTER TO EDITOR

To The Daily News:

Could anyone spare another dime, or perhaps even $1?

When I was working with the United Fund (as we called it then) the goal was always too high for the number of agencies to be benefitted. But now, with 13 agencies and the goal set at $38,000 it seems to me that we should reach that goal for sure.

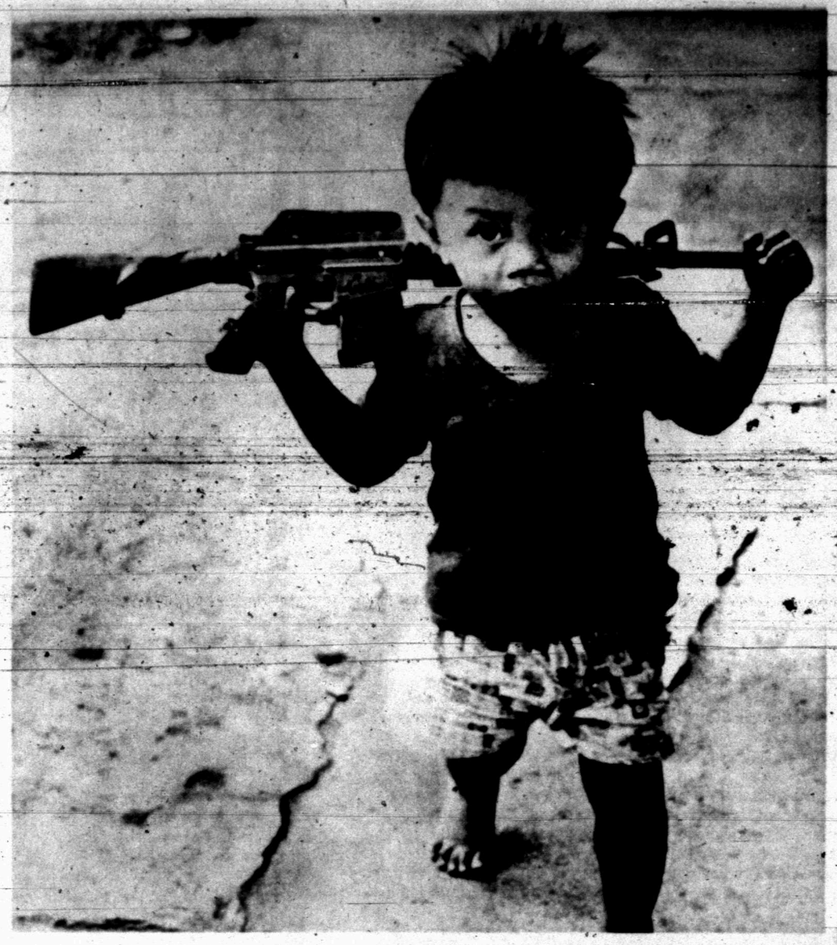

Those people who do not believe in the United Fund, or "United Way," never will. So, it is left up to us who have already donated to reach the goal.

Some of the agencies we do not care to donate to, either, but one can be sure that if one specifies which ones their money goes to, it will go there.

Won't you please join me in making the goal complete for this year?

I understand that if we will all together contribute about $2,500 more that each agency will receive its budgeted amount. Do we have to rely on tax dollars to do what is our responsibility? I don't believe that is what you and I want. I would challenge you to join me in mailing a contribution today to The United Way, P.O. Box CC, Snyder, Texas.

Nixon Says Big Game Is Toss-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, the nation's No. 1 football fan, says it's a toss-up between the Washington Redskins and the Miami Dolphins for the National Football League championship in Sunday's Superbowl.

"The two teams are so evenly matched it'll be a game of the breaks," Nixon said Friday.

The President said he'll be watching the game on television from Key Biscayne, Fla., and added: "I'll pull for the Redskins; but, if Miami wins, I'll be generous."

Nixon made the remarks in a brief chat with reporters.

Second 'Papers' Jury Is Chosen

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Our fate is in their hands," says Daniel Ellsberg of the jury chosen to judge him and Anthony Russo in the Pentagon Papers trial. "I think to a large extent the liberties of all of us are in their hands."

Ellsberg and Russo appeared jubilant after the final designation Friday of 10 women and two men, including a Vietnam war veteran, as the jury. They are the second set of jurors chosen in the case.

Last summer, another panel was sworn; but, after a four-month trial delay for appeals, that group was dismissed. The defense had contended the panel had been influenced by publicity in the interim.

"I'm in love with this jury," Russo told newsmen. "I think it's a great jury."

The key factor apparently weighed by both defense and prosecution attorneys in exercising challenges to potential jurors was their view of the Vietnam war. The government used most of its challenges to remove persons with strong antiwar views, while the defense eliminated those with hawkish opinions.

Ellsberg, 41, and Russo, 35, former researchers on government projects, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media in 1971 of top-secret documents detailing origins of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

Both outspoken opponents of the war, Ellsberg and Russo admit their roles in releasing the Pentagon Papers but say they did it to help end the war. They contend they broke no law because the information rightfully belonged to the American public. The government says the defendants violated classification laws by releasing material relating to national defense.

War views of the jurors vary — from the ex-Marine who declared, "I pray for peace," to the woman electronic assembler who said, "I just stand behind my country."

Most members of the panel agreed that the war should end soon.

In 1927, naturalists estimated that house mice in one section of Kern County, Calif., averaged 17 to the square yard or 82,000 per acre.

O'Neill Wants Binding Budgetary Powers

By EDMOND Le Breton
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, the newly installed House majority leader, believes Congress should write into law this year binding requirements that President Nixon spend the money the House and Senate appropriate for specific programs.

The President has frozen funds voted by Congress for an array of programs, including water pollution control passed over his veto.

O'Neill predicted that Congress will cut off funds for the war in Indochina if the fighting doesn't end within three months. He accused the President of refusing to discuss the war with congressional leaders.

Here are questions asked of O'Neill, and his answers, in an interview with Associated Press newsmen:

Q—Congressman, there has been a lot of talk about Congress recapturing its independent authority. How can you get back some of the eroded power?

A—Well, there's been so much talk about eroded power around here, and probably it's true to a degree. Concerning budgetary affairs, there is too much power in the office of budget management at the present time. We've got to have them be more responsive to Congress. I've had an independent group up in Massachusetts of people from the academic area who are concerned with this problem, and they're making a study for me and have in part given me a report. We've got to have more facilities around here. For example, as I understand it, in the Bureau of the Budget there are about 900 employes, while in our Appropriations Committee we have 90. So they outman us 10 to 1. Anytime there's been expenditures on Congress, the press has been tremendously critical of us. And I think the press is now turning around and talking of Congress and saying 'yes, the Congress needs more help, needs more modern equipment,' and when we do this, I think we'll probably solve the problem.

Q—What can you do when the President says we're not going to spend the money you appropriate, like for the environmental program.

A—The only way that I know we can do it is to spell into the law that this money shall be spent. Now, I don't know of any other way. We've got to be more firm, We've got to put in 'this money shall be spent.' I was at the White House the other day, and (White House Director of Communications Hebert) Klein was trying to explain why they had cut back the money that we had authorized with respect to ecology. He said it would be impossible for the White House to be able to spend that much money within the allotted time and they thought they were cutting it back right. I don't know whether they were just trying to justify their own actions or not, but nevertheless we should make a firm study and put the word 'shall' in there and make it mandatory for the President. I think that's going to be the answer.

Q—Do you think that would hold up in court?

A—Well, if he signs legislation and it's directed in the law, then I believe it would hold up in court. If it's loosely drawn, I would say it would be at the discretion of the President, but if it's written into the law that it shall not be at the discretion of the President, then the President is mandated to spend it, and I presume he would have to do it.

Q—What do you think about the proposal to have a vote in the Democratic caucus on selection of committee chairmen?

A—The Republicans have been doing that in their caucus for years. In my opinion the Hansen proposal (for caucus votes on chairmen) is going to pass. The Committee on Committees will recommend chairmen, and there must be a vote. It seems to be fair, and I think it's going to pass without any difficulty.

Q—Do you think any chairmen will be in trouble this year?

A—We've talked this around; that's a hard thing to say. One or two names have been bruited about but I can't conceive of anybody being turned down.

Q—Even if no chairmen actually get turned down, do you think this proposal will make chairmen more inclined to cooperate?

A—Yes, I very definitely do. It will make them aware that they have to come up every two years for re-election to the chairmanship. I don't think they do it intentionally, but there are times when chairmen trample on the rights of members of committees.

Bank Adds 2 Officers

Two new assistant cashiers, Bobby Beard and Carroll Brush, were added to the slate of officials of the West Texas State Bank at its annual meeting of stockholders.

All directors and all other officers of the bank were re-elected.

In his report to stockholders, President H.W. Cargile indicated that 1972 was an exceptionally fine year for West Texas State Bank.

"As a result of recent expansion, our facilities are much more convenient for patrons," said Cargile.

Officers and directors of West Texas State Bank said they were "very optimistic" over the economy of the Snyder and Scurry County area.

Beard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Haskell O. Beard, is a graduate of Snyder High School and has a degree in business administration from Texas Tech University. He will be in the credit department at the bank.

Brush, the son of Mrs. May Brush, also is a Snyder High School graduate and attended Hardin-Simmons University. He will be in charge of the book keeping department of the bank.

Washington Is 2 Point Favorite

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Super Bowl VII's cold war, the psychological jockeying between unbeaten Miami and ageless Washington, now is fading and the showdown for pro football's world championship takes place Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The Redskins, 13-3, are two-point favorites to slash the dreams of the 16-0 Dolphins of becoming the first National Football League team ever to go through the regular season and playoffs without scar of defeat.

Kickoff is at 3:30 p.m., EST.

More than 90,000 spectators will crowd into the Coliseum, while an estimated 75 million watch the game on television.

"Miami is the best team in history," said George Allen, Washington's controversial coach, who would scheme for the edge in a crocheting contest with his grandmother. Allen has attempted all week to set up the Dolphins with such words of glory.

"I don't know how the odd-smakers favor us," he cried.

It's a second chance in the Super Bowl for Miami, champion of the American Football Conference, and a third for Coach Don Shula. His Baltimore Colts lost to the New York Jets in 1969 and the Dolphins wilted before Dallas 24-3 last January at New Orleans.

Super Bowl VII has been painted as a conflict of coaching geniuses, although neither Shula nor Allen ever has won the big one. Allen never got this far before, despite a career record of 69-24-5.

Only Shula's 105-30-5 record is superior to Allen's in the NFL.

Money is one of the motivators. Sunday's winners get an average of $25,000, while the losers go weeping away with $17,500. But, for the biggest names, the side benefits of being Super Bowl champion can be even more financially rewarding.

"Our only goal since losing to the Cowboys in last year's Super Bowl has been to win this thing at the very next opportunity," said Shula, a 43-year-old former NFL defensive back.

Miami's offense will be directed by cold, skillful Bob Griese at quarterback, although the major weapon is the running skills of Larry Csonka, Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick. The 235-pound Csonka bulled his way to 1,117 yards and Morris darted for 1,000, the first time an NFL team ever produced two 1,000-yard runners in the same backfield.

Klick became unhappy as Morris' backup, but still rumbled for 521 yards as the Dolphins shattered the NFL's all-time ground gaining record with 2,960 yards.

"Miami has the finest three-man rushing bunch ever," said Allen, continuing his obvious setup of the Dolphins. Shula countered such sugary comments with, "I'm honored George thinks so much of our team. I'm sure he's sincere and not just setting us up."

Shula's tongue almost poked through his cheek.

Allen has a magnificent running game on his side, too, led by Larry Brown, who gained 1,216 yards despite sitting out the final two games. Brown, a 196-pound blend of power and finese, scored eight touchdowns and averaged 4.3 yards per carry with a workhorse average of 23 carries a game.

Charlie Harraway serves mainly as Brown's blocker, but the steady seven-year veteran gained 567 yards himself and scored six times. Herb MulKey, the non-collegian with the self-imposed hyphen, could see action for occasional breakway value.

Both Shula and Allen admit the game probably will be decided by the defense. "I see a hard-fought, low-scoring game," said Allen. "It's a matchup of Miami defenders, who were ranked No. 1 in the NFL against a battalion of Redskin graybeards who were best in the National Conference.

Middle linebacker and the safety positions are the areas to watch in Miami's defense. Dallas turned the 1972 Super Bowl into a romp when it contained middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti. The Dolphin safties—Dick Anderson and Jake Scott — are among the finest in the game.

"Dallas kept me going the wrong way, but it's not going to happen again," said Buoniconti, an 11-year pro. Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer has promised, however, that the Redskins will be gunning for Buoniconti.

"If you move Nick, you can can beat Miami," said Kilmer.

Kilmer is expected to pick at Miami cornerbacks Lloyd Mumphord and Curtis Johnson with his short passing game, especially the 165-pound Mumphord who was shoved into the starting role because of Tim Foley's shoulder separation in the American Conference championship game at Pittsburgh.

"The corner guys get a lot of help from Scott and Anderson, who are just tremendous," said Kilmer, a 33-year-old who is among the happiest of the recycled veterans of Allen's team.

"I think both of Miami's safetyman are All-Pro. They scare you they're so good."

Some of Allen's build 'em up, knock 'em down tactics seem to have rubbed off on his troops. The Redskins have been nothing but complimentary of their opponents.

Up front, Miami has an underrated pass rusher in 6-foot-6, 255-pound Vern Den Herder. He could be the surprise of the game.

Shula thinks he has been at least the equal of his All-Pro partner at end, 260 pound Bill Stanfill.

They call the Dolphins' defense the "No-Namers," but that can't really be accurate after two years of exposure in the Super Bowl. The 250-pound Manny Fernandez is recognized as a tremendous defensive tackle.

The heart of Allen's "The Future Is Now" declaration was his defense, a collection of skilled, highly paid, well-traveled veterans who could produce instant success for the Redskins.

Linebacker Jack Pardee is 36. Myron Pottios and Chris Hanburger, the other linebackers, are 34 and 31. Cornerbacks Rosey Taylor and Pat Fischer are 34 and 31, respectively. This is not only the NFL's oldest defense, but Allen believes it's the best.

The hope of Washington's offense was laid on Kilmer's shoulders the past two season when veteran Sonny Jurgensen suffered injuries. Kilmer took over at mid-season this time and completed 120 of 225 passes for 1,648 yards and 19 touchdowns.

His premier catcher was veteran Charley Taylor, with 49 for a 13.7-yard average and seven scores. But the most feared long distance threat is speedy Roy Jefferson, who averaged 16 yards on 35 receptions.

Miami has the unique boast of two All-Pro quarterbacks, Griese, who attained the honor in 1971, and 38-year-old Earl Morrall, who was named recently to The Associated Press honor unit.

Morrall, the last of the NFL crewcuts, quarterbacked Shula teams at Baltimore during periods of injury for the great John Unitas. He even took the Colts to Super Bowl III, only to be beaten by Joe Namath and the Jets.

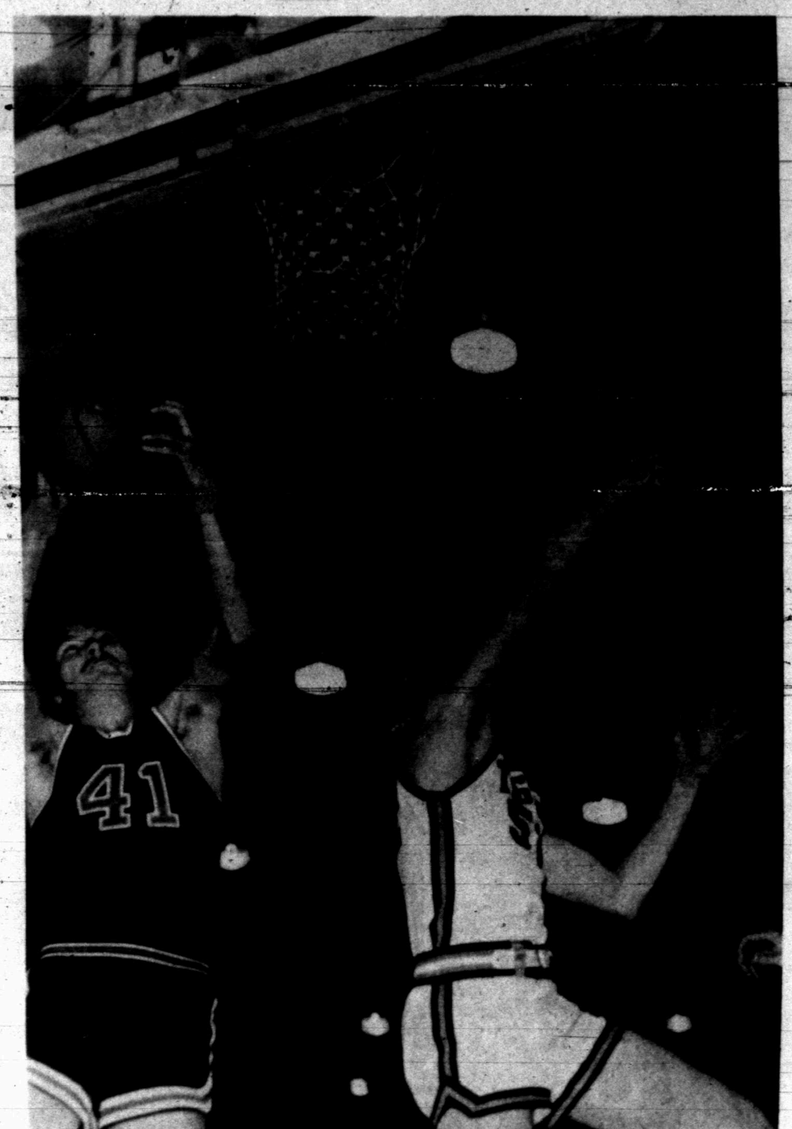

Morrall had a miserable preseason, but Shula refused to fire him. Admittedly, "It was mostly due to sentiment and my long memory of what Earl did for me at Baltimore," said the Miami coach.

Then, in the season's fifth game, Griese was buried under a rush by Deacon Jones and Ron East of the San Diego Chargers. His leg was snapped, his ankle dislocated. Griese was finished for some time.

Morrall popped off the bench and led the Dolphins to 11 straight victories through the Dec. 24 playoff success against the Cleveland Browns. But, when he failed to make Miami go against Pittsburgh in the AFC title game, Shula sent in Griese. Bob hit for two touchdowns in a 21-17 victory.

Paul Warfield remains, perhaps, the most feared receiver in pro football. His statistics aren't the best, but he has deceptive speed, silky moves and smooth hands.

Miami and Washington have been in Southern California for a week, undergoing the countdown to the greatest one-day event in sports. The battle of words, the canny pre-game psychology is past now. It comes down to who's got it on the 5,000 square yards of grass in the Coliseum built for the 1932 Olympics.

GRABS REBOUND—Morton High School's Mike Gilliam (41) leaps high to grab a rebound during the thrilling basketball tilt with Snyder High School here Friday night. The Tigers' Kevin Jones contests for the ball. Jones claimed 12 rebounds during the contest. Snyder won 60-53.

Cold Spell Kills Fish

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The recent cold spell across Texas appears to have killed large numbers of fish along the Gulf Coast, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said Friday.

Largest reported kills have been of sand trout near Texas City and redfish and speckled trout in Galveston Harbor.

They said that it is not illegal to harvest the fish for food purposes, but warned that they should be checked carefully before being eaten.

Boehnke's Blinn team went 10-0 for the first perfect season in the school's history en route to the Texas Junior College Football Federation championship. They won the Wool Bowl and finished third in the nation in the National Junior College Athletic Association final poll.

It was Boehnke's first year as head coach after nine years as an assistant.

Boehnke compiled a top-heavy 544 points from the members of the TSWA, including 60 first-place ballots.

Other finishers included Tyler basketball Coach Floyd Wagstaff with 455 points, baseball coach Bragg Stockton of San Jacinto 402 points; football coach Don Duncan of Navarro, 367 points; track coach George Roach of Odessa, 207 points; and tennis coach Herschel Stephens of Navarro, 211 points.

Snyder's Tigers Rip Morton 60-53

Snyder's Tigers defeated defending state Class AA champion Morton 60-53 here Friday night in a hard-fought non-district basketball clash. The victory boosted the Tiger record to 15-7 as they await for the district opener here next Friday against Lubbock High.

It was a weird game in many respects. The visiting Indians took an early lead, but Snyder went ahead without much difficulty, and led 20-10. Then Morton put on a rally and pulled within two points at 22-20. Then, the Tigers went to work and scored 15 straight points to lead 37-20. Then, in the third quarter, Morton outscored Snyder 18-8 to pull within six points at 48-42. Early in the fourth period, the Indians continued to rally and pulled within two points again at 48-46 with 5:54 remaining in the contest. Threatened again, the Tigers went to work and increased the lead on two baskets by Gary Brooks and Moell Blalock. Kevin Jones grabbed some crucial rebounds late in the fourth quarter and Fred Liner and Welton Cobb made some timely steals. It seemed like every time the Tigers were seriously threatened, they began playing better ball and boosted their margin.

The Tigers hit only 12 of 35 for 34 per cent from the field in the first half. They put in 16 of 25 from the line for 64 per cent. Morton connected on only 8 of 24 for 33 per cent from the floor in the first half and 8 of 12 for 67 per cent at the line. In the second half, Snyder hit a dismal 26 per cent from the floor, sinking 9 of 34. The Tigers also hit 2 of 5 from the line in the second half. Morton shot better in the second half, sinking 13 of 29 for 44 per cent from the field and 3 of 6 from the line.

Snyder won the game at the free throw line as both teams had 21 field goals.

Gary Brooks and Moell Blalock led the Tiger attack with 16 points apiece. Welton Cobb contributed 9, Kevin Jones added 7, and Jimmy Don Dyess pitched in 6. Jerry Brooks and Fred Liner each collected 3 points.

For Morton, Jerry Silhan was high point man with 16 points. Jimmy Harven meshed 14, and Larry Thompson posted 12.

Snyder [illegible] boards, 50 to 33. Kevin Jones and Moell Blalock each claimed 12 rebounds and Welton Cobb grabbed 9.

The Snyder junior varsity fought off a late rally by Morton to win the JV tilt, 65-63. Snyder led 8-5 after one period, 37-22 at halftime, and 50-37 after three quarters.

Roy Lee Carter led the JV attack with 17 points while Larry Johns contributed 13 points. Larry Mosier, V.T. Roberson and Robert Alderete each pitched in 8 points. For Morton, Norman was outstanding, scoring 36 points. He was the only one in double figures for the visitors.

Bucks Blast Kings 117-98

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One good way to destroy a basketball player's confidence is to miss a couple of shots. Another is to be guarded by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Rookie Mike Ratliff of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings made both those bad scenes Friday night.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 14 of his 38 points in the third period when the Milwaukee Bucks widened a 13-point halftime lead to 83-59 and they went on to a 117-98 rout of the Kings.

The losers played without regular center Sam Lacey, who has an ankle injury, and Nate Archibald, the NBA's leading scorer, was held to 19 points by Lucius Allen, nearly 15 below his average.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles defeated Chicago 109-97, Golden State nipped Phoenix 108-107, Boston walloped Atlanta 133-109, New York edged Houston 104-103, Seattle downed Detroit 113-104, Buffalo blistered Portland 120-100 and Cleveland shaded Philadelphia 113-109 in double overtime.

American Basketball Association scores: Virginia 103, New York 93; Carolina 129, Dallas 106; Kentucky 104, Memphis 101; Denver 128, Indiana 119.

TALENTED DUO--Howard Rand, Sr. (left), and his son, Howard Rand, Jr. will see action in the Scurry County Coliseum Tuesday night when the Harlem Jokers basketball team meets the Snyder Coaches Dunkers for the benefit of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Rand, Sr. is a graduate of Los Angeles State and has over 20 years experience in baketball. He makes his home in Columbis, Ohio. Rand, Sr. lives at Gary, Indiana. Both stand 6-3.

Dunkers, Jokers Tangle Tuesday

The Snyder Coaches Dunkers will meet the Harlem Jokers basketball team at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Scurry County Coliseum. Advance tickets cost $1 for students and $1.50 for adults. At the door, they will cost $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

You can get tickets from any member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Huddle or Cuddle groups. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is sponsoring the game, and proceeds will be used for FCA projects.

The Jokers was formed in 1967 by Thornton Bracko of Chicago, Illinois and Howard Rand, Sr., a graduate of Los Angeles State College, who now lives in Columbus, Ohio.

The Jokers feel they are on a par with many professional teams, and their record bears them out. They have won 604 games and lost only 11. The first game was held in Woodstock, Ontario, Canada.

"The Jokers are a team we are proud to display to the public," said spokesmen of the team. "They are men who enjoy traveling and meeting people from all parts of the country. They derive satisfaction from knowing that they are able to give and share a little laughter with people."

Of the seven original players, five still remain with the team. Two men have a combined total of 53 years experience in basketball. The players are dedicated and the coaching staff desires to field a team which is second to none.

The roster includes Don Pressly, a graduate of San Mateo College; Fred (Goose) Jackson, a graduate of Houston-Tillotson College; Wylie Mitchell, a graduate of Navarro Jr. College; Jim (Flash) Whitehead, a graduate of Johnson C. Smith College; Howard (Rookie) Rand, Jr. of Gary, Indiana; James (Jumping Jack) Knighten of Mississippi Valley College; Gerald (Apollo) Lockett of Arkansas AM&N, and Howard Rand, Sr., a graduate of Los Angeles State.

Lockett is the tallest man on the squad at 6-7. Pressly is the next tallest at 6-5.

Whitehead set records in scoring and assists at Johnson C. Smith University at Charlotte, North Carolina during his freshman year as a first string guard. His flashy passing and dribbling make him a natural for the Harlem Jokers. A soft jump shot and left-handed hook are his best tools. He uses them well.

Jackson signed with the Jokers after graduating from Huston-Tillotson College. Now going into his second season, he is regarded as a "clown of the court." His constant comedy routine has caused pleasure to basketball fans from coast to coast.

Lockett is a versatile young player with a variety of shots who is a flashy passer. He's sure to become a favorite with the fans.

Knighten was leading rebounder in the Southwest Conference for three years, and is now in his second season with the Harlem Jokers. He provides the much needed rebounding for the Jokers.

Indoor Meet Has Fine Performances

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — As the first major event of the season, and with the 1976 Olympics a long way off, the National Invitational Indoor Track Meet produced some fine performances.

Steve Smith, one of a couple dozen former Olympians competing, broke the American indoor pole vaulting record by clearing 17 feet, 8½ inches Friday night. Then he narrowly missed toppling the world mark before being injured.

Bob Wheeler, finely tuned and confident in his first race since September, scored a 10-yard victory while falling just short of cracking the four-minute mile, finishing in 4:00.5.

Two Olympic champions from the 1972 games at Munich were upset, as four meet records were broken and two others were tied.

Smith, named the meet's outstanding performer, broke the old American indoor mark of 17-7 set two years ago by Jan Johnson. Then, at 18 feet, ¼ inch, he ticked the bar on the way down as the crowd of 8,614 in the University of Maryland's Cole Field House groaned.

The end of the bar cut a gash in Smith's right thigh as he tumbled to the mat, and he never made a third try to top the world mark of 17 10½ set by Sweden's Kjell Isaksson last year. Instead, Smith headed for a nearby hospital to have stitches sewn in his leg.

Isaksson, who arrived in the United States after a 16-hour flight Thursday, said he was satisfied with his second-place tie at 16-6, and vowed to be in top shape at Los Angeles two weeks hence.

Olympic shot put champion, Wladyslaw Komar of Poland, finished a distant fourth at 62-9. But he also claimed satisfaction, in view of not yet adjusting to the time change since his arrival two days ago.

George Woods, who lost the gold medal to Komar at Munich by one-half inch, won the shot with a meet record 68-11, and said it was especially gratifying since he defeated old rival Al Feuerbach—the runner-up at 67-10.

The other Olympic champion to fall was hurdler Rod Milburn, who was beaten by 18-year-old Louisiana State freshman, Larry Shipp. While being timed in seven seconds flat for the 60-yard hurdles, Shipp also defeated two other Olympians, Tom Hill and Willie Davenport.

Grid Season Ends Jan. 21

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — To the utter relief of thousands of America's "football widows" and to the equal grief of the nation's hard corps football nuts, the football season officially ends Jan. 21 in Texas Stadium when the National and American Football Conferences tangle in the pro bowl.

The National Football League All-Stars, chosen in a vote by the coaches, worked out briefly Saturday under National Conference Coach Tom Landry of Dallas and American Conference Coach Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh.

The All-Stars will watch the Super Bowl Sunday on television. All-Stars from the Washington and Miami teams will drift into town Monday and Tuesday.

Dallas fans, stricken with a case of the football blahs after the Cowboys failed to reach the Super Bowl for the first time in three years, weren't expected to fill the capacity 65,000 Texas Stadium. A crowd of 50,000 fans was in prospect.

It's the first time the game hasn't been played in the Los Angeles Mermorial Coliseum.

Since the merger, the AFC and NFC each own a victory with the AFC winning 26-13 last year under former Baltimore Coach Don McCafferty and the NFC winning 27-6 in 1971 with Dick Nolan of San Francisco at the helm.

There were 20 Pro Bowl games between the NFL All-Stars before the merger. The AFL All-Stars played nine times among themselves.

Joe Namath of the AFC New York Jets and Bill Kilmer of NFC Washington are the scheduled starting quarterbacks. The starting lineups are determined by which player gets the most votes from the coaches.

There has been only one reported roster change for the nationally televised 3 p.m. CST kickoff. Wide receiver Chip Myers of Cincinnati will replace Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff, who is recovering from rib injuries.

The winning players get $2,000 and the losers $1,500.

Landry is 1-1 in the Pro Bowl while Noll is coaching in the event for the first time.

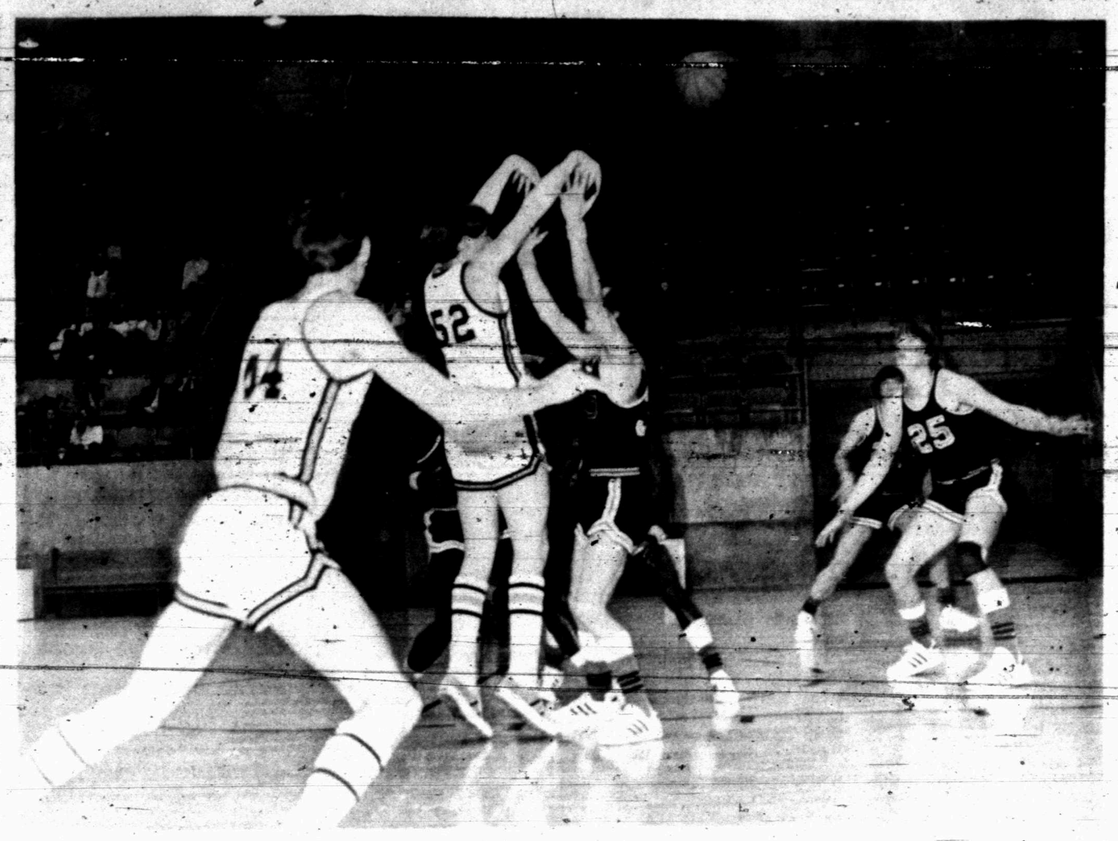

The losing coaches from the two conference title games automatically gets tabbed to be the mentors in the Pro Bowl which contributes money to the players' pension fund.

"After you've been to the Super Bowl twice, you don't exactly relish the job, but it's an honor to be in the position," says Landry, who must take time out preparing for the Jan. 30 player draft to coach in the game. "The players are proud people and will do their best. They don't want to look bad on national television. They have a little pride."

Mrs. Philip Cudone of Myrtle Beach, S.C., has won five straight senior women's amateur golf championships.

Permian Leads All-State Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Champion Odessa Permian placed five players on the Texas Sportswriters Association Class 4A All-State Schoolboy football first team honor roll, including 5-foot-8 Joe Bizzell, the smallest man on the dream team who was the leading vote getter.

The 148-pound Bizzell, a mighty mite defensive back, polled 78 points to repeat again as an All-stater. The only other repeater was San Antonio Lee quarterback Tommy Kramer, who led his team to the semi-finals before bowing to 4A runnerup Baytown Sterling 21-20.

Kramer polled 73 points. The leading offensive vote getter with 74 points.

The other three first team Panther stars included running back David Shipman, offensive guard Greg Davis and linebacker Grady Wilkerson.

Another mini-rocket that captured the fancy of the voters on the mythical team was San Antonio Lee's Pat Rockett, who moved up from the second team to land berths on both the first offensive and defensive team as a wide receiver and a defensive back.

Jeff Bergeron, Port Neches-Groves' highly sought running back also moved up from a second-team berth a year ago, edged Shipman as the leading vote-getter among the running backs.

Longview, Brazoswood and Port Neches-Groves were the only other schools with more than one first team honoree.

Longview placed tackle Mike Cooksey on the offensive unit and linebacker Larry Wilkins on the defensive team. Brazoswood had center Matt Freeman and guard James Dean on the offensive team and Dean, like Rockett, was a dual selection as a defensive interior lineman.

Brad Burnett, an end, made the defensive team for Port Neches-Groves.

Schafer Discusses Nutrition

HOUSTON (AP) — Damage done to children during their first months by malnutrition cannot be corrected in later years, a leading researcher on the subject said here.

Dr. Arnold E. Schaefer, widely known for his long service as a nutrition surveillance specialist for the World Health Organization, said Friday:

"A recent study in Denver, Colo., proved what we've known was true for the poorer nations for a long time—and that is that any children who suffer nutrition insults in fetal or early life just cannot make up for lost time later on.

"In other words, the neurological and mental damage has been done and it cannot be corrected," Schaefer told the opening session of the Application of Nutrition in the Health Sciences symposium.

As would be expected, he said, children from poor families suffer the worst due to improper nutrition. But he said there is an increasing number of people in more affluent, better educated environments who follow quack diets—or practice terrible eating habits.

"I'm really concerned about the effects of pregnant women's diets in the last trimester of pregnancy because that's when they need the best nutrition possible," he said.

Schaefer said he believes a three-pronged attack on the problem is essential, leading on with federal and state regulation of food processing to make sure that all foods—even snack foods—contain necessary nutrients.

Physicians and other health professionals also must take more time to advise patients on good eating habits, he said.

"The medical profession needs to take a vigorous stand against quakery—misleading advertising, phony diets, imbalanced organic food claims and such...and physicians need to strongly support food supplements to the poor."

More information about nutrition should be given in the schools, he added.

DES Rule Abandoned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is formally abandoning a year-old requirement that livestock shippers must certify their animals had not been fed DES at least seven days before slaughter.

After today, Dec. 13, the department says such certification "no longer will be necessary." The reason: The Food and Drug Administration banned DES—diethylstilbestrol-from livestock feed Jan. 1, two weeks before the certification rule officially was cancelled.

Pellets of DES are still allowed to be implanted in animals but that method is under review to see if absorbtion of the growth-boosting chemical leaves chemical residues in animal products after slaughter.

Also, USDA said, meat inspectors will continue monitoring cattle and sheep to see if DES residues show up.

Last year, DES residues were found in 104 livers among 5,116 random samples, a rate of about two per cent. None was found in red meat tissue, only in livers.

Hate Slogans Found On Essex's Walls

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Slogans forming a virtual litany of hate covered the walls of an apartment rented by the sniper who was killed after six persons died at a downtown hotel here last weekend.

"My destiny lies in the bloody death of all racist pigs," said one slogan sprayed on the wall from a can of red paint.

"The quest for freedom is death — then by death I shall escape to freedom," read another.

"Hate white people, beast of the earth," was written in another place. And scribbled in pencil on a doorframe: "Dare to struggle, dare to win."

Police confirmed Friday that the dirty, two-room apartment was rented by Mark J. Essex, 23, who was killed by police bullets atop the Howard Johnson's hotel after three policemen, a hotel employe and two hotel guests had died from a sniper's bullets.

Essex had listed three other addresses with various agencies in New Orleans. However, police said, they determined that the disheveled apartment where the grafiti was found was the last one rented by Essex.

Mrs. Bertha Morgan, who rented the apartment to Essex for landlord Roman Hayes, said police traced him there through a utility bill.

There was no assurance that Essex painted the slogans, but Mrs. Morgan said the walls were freshly painted when he moved in Nov. 1 and she and other neighbors said they never saw anyone else enter the apartment.

VICTOR ALESSANDRO

SAN ANTONIO SYMPHONY CONDUCTOR

Alessandro's Study Is His Year-Round Haven

A pot of coffee on one side. An overflowing ashtay on the other. Hundreds of music books, opera books, reference books, sheet music, a tape recorder, mementoes of his career.

It is Victor Alecsandro at work in his study—a year-round haven for thinking, planning, creating.

Each year, out of the imaginative mind and personality come the varied programming, the endless parade of international artists which make the San Antonio Symphony one of the 28 major orchestras in the United States.

The results are all in keeping with Alessandro's goal of making San Antonio "the most musical city in the world." By this, explains the Mastero, he means "a city that either has a population interested in her music or proud that they have it." Victor Alessandro firmly believes "A Symphony reflects the type of city you live in."

To give his city the best Symphony orchestra possible requires that the man behind the baton be a master of many things: the planning of the subscription concerts and an opera season; the overseeing of the hundreds of student concerts; the seeking out of fresh talent; the introduction of new compositions; the out-of-town tours that take music to a huge area; the constant perfection of every facet that goes into the making of a successful orchestra.

In addition, new musical areas must be explored. For example, in the last few years, the Alamo City has heard free public concerts; bilingual Kinder Koncerts for pre-school tots; church concerts; mall concerts; and expansion of area concerts. The goals are high, the effort is big. Surrounded by competent music men in every area, Alessandro is fast making San Antonio a national center for musical arts.

The love of music and musicmaking began in Alessandro's earliest years. His late father was one of the organizers of the Houston Symphony and a noted musical pedagogue for over 50 years. At the age of five, as little Victor conducted a Baby Band; John Philip Sousa listened. He predicted a brilliant career for the tiny maestro.

The path of success continued for the young man of Italian heritage who was born in Waco. His musical training, on scholarship, was at the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester, the Santa Cecilia Academy in Rome and the Salzburg Mozarteum.

Fate stepped in when, at 19, Alessandro conducted the New York City Civic Orchestra. That night, board members of the Oklahoma City Symphony listened to the budding genius, and, a few years later, sought Alessandro out and persuaded him to become permanent conductor of the city's orchestra.

For 13 years, Alessandro molded, improved and encouraged the Oklahoma City orchestra. Then, once again, fate took a hand. Max Reiter, founder of the San Antonio Symphony, was near death. One of his last requests was for San Antonians to bring the Oklahoma maestro to San Antonio.

It was done. And the rest of the story continues to be written as Alessandro enters his 22nd year as Musical Director.

Outstanding recognition has come from many quarters. Twice, Alessandro has been cited by the National Association of American Composers for "outstanding service to American Music," and in 1964 he was commended by the National Music Council.

Western Texas College's Fine Arts Series will bring to Snyder the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday,

Banks' Discount Rate Boosted

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has decided to boost the rate it charges member banks for borrowing money for the first time in a year, but says it shouldn't lead to another increase in interest rates across the nation.

The board announced Friday that, effective Monday, the discount rate that it charges member banks for borrowing will go from 4.5 per cents to 5 per cent.

While most other short-term interest rates usually scaled upward from the discount rate, the Federal Reserve has not used the discount rate, as it is called, in setting the nation's monetary policy in recent years.

The board described its action as a "passive adjustment" to keep the discount rate in line with other short-term rates. It believed the discount rate was too low in comparison with the prime lending rate, now around 6 per cent. The prime lending rate is the interest rate that the nation's commercial banks charge their biggest and best customers.

The board likes to keep the discount rate about one per cent below the prime rate. Because of the bigger gap, it said, borrowings from the Federal Reserve system had nearly doubled in the past four weeks.

The announcement noted that the discount rate is now where it stood on Aug. 15, 1971, when President Nixon announced his wage-price-rent freeze. The board dropped the rate to 4.5 per cent in December 1971.

Interest rates are not, nor have they ever been, under President Nixon's wage-price controls. Controlling them might dry up funds for lending, the administration feels.

Arrest 4 In Willis Robbery

WILLIS, Tex. (AP) — Four persons are in custody today and a fifth is supposed to surrender after radio-equipped robbers hit the Willis State Bank here Friday, then got trapped by snow.

FBI agents said the men would be charged Monday in Houston with bank robbery.

A 23-year-old Arlington man and a 23-year-old Dallas man were arrested without incident as they walked out of a forrest here Friday. Two Conroe brothers, 25 and 21, were arrested Friday night at their apartment.

Officers said the two men arrested in the woods, equipped with walkie-talkie radios to stay in touch with their accomplices, hit the Willis bank about 12:30 p.m. Friday, ordered everyone on the floor, scooped up some $18,000 and fled in bank president George Dunson's car.

A couple witnessed the robbery from the bank's drive-in window and gave chase but lost the robbers only after two shots were fired at them.

Officers found Dunson's car abandoned in a ditch about seven miles away with tracks in the snow leading into a nearby forrest.

While some officers tracked the men other circled about and arrested them as they came out of the woods on the other side. The two men told FBI agents that they had missed the road in which an accomplice in a getaway car was waiting.

About 100 county, state and federal officers, a Department of Public Safety Helicopter, a Conroe city airplane and dogs from the Texas Department of Corrections were involved in the search for the robbers.

Officers said they found more walkie-talkies and radios equipped to pick up police frequencies in Fort Bend, Harris and Montgomery counties in a car and a van belonging to the four men.

Papers Wage Own Super Bowl

WASHINGTON (AP) — "For the Redskins, Los Angeles Coliseum will be Wounded Knee, '73" said a full-page ad in the Washington Star-News, a home-town daily to the Washington Redskins.

"Get out your hankies, Miami—You'll need 'em," said an ad in The Miami Herald, a home-town daily to the Miami Dolphins.

While the two professional football teams are getting ready to do battle in Sunday's Super Bowl in Los Angeles, the two newspapers are waging a Super Bowl of their own.

The Star-News published the ad from the Herald on Friday, and the Herald published the Star-News ad today "in the interests of good, clean rivalry."

"Last year when we were in the Super Bowl, the Dallas Times-Herald suggested the swap," said Dick Klund, advertising and promotion coordinator for the Herald. "We enjoyed it so much we did it this year with the Cleveland Plain-Dealer for the Cleveland Browns-Miami playoff game."

Klund said he thinks by now Miami fans have gotten used to the media rivalry, but when the ads started, the reaction was mostly bad.

"It got so bad we had to run a news story with both ads and explain that the whole thing was a joke," he said.

Alan Schrader, director of promotion for the Star-News agrees that "it's just kind of a fun thing."

But he sounded deadly serious when he added, "I just hope to hell we'll have the opportunity to do it again next year."

Temps Up In Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Light south breezes lent impetus to a warmup Saturday as Texas struggled back to normal after nearly a week of crippling snow or ice.

Skies were clear throughout the state and expected to stay that way the next several days.

Although temperatures again slid to freezing or below at nearly all points, the early morning marks were as much as 30 degrees above those flirting with zero in places the day before.

Growers kept cautious watch on their multi-million-dollar citrus crop, however, in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. In that section the mercury eased down to 28 near dawn—only two degrees above damaging cold if it lingers as long as four hours.

While the overnight chill refroze some of the water and slush left by Friday's thaw, there was vastly less ice than the treacherous cover on miles of streets and highways the day before.

Aside from the Lower Rio Grande Valley, temperatures in early morning ranged from 17 degrees at Childress and 18 at Lufkin up to 33 at Galveston. It was coldest in Southeast Texas, where the mercury failed to reach the 40s Friday.

Readings at other points included College station, Longview and Wichita Falls 21, Mineral Wells 22, Beaumont-Port Arthur, Lubbock and San Antonio 23, Amarillo and Tyler 24.

MAY TOTE THEIR MAIL IN SHORTS--Leonard Weems, Farmington mailman, models walking shorts similar to attire that will be permitted worn by mailmen in the Detroit area this summer. The Bermuda-type shorts, however, must be worn only with black, knee length socks, officials revealed. The order becomes effective April 1. Rules were relaxed in December on wearing caps, hats and helmets because of long hair being worn by both men and women. (AP Wirephoto)

Laird Issues StrictGuidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to meet complaints by black servicemen that they receive harsher punishments for minor offenses than whites, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has issued strict guidelines designed to insure equal treatment.

From now on, Laird directed Friday, servicemen whose punishments are handled by their commanding officers must have legal advice available.

Each serviceman must be adivsed of his right to appeal even minor punishments and those punishments must not be imposed pending action on any appeal.

And, Laird said, a man who agrees to have his case considered by his commander must be given "the opportunity for full presentation ... to include, but not limited to, the right to call witnesses, present evidence and be accompanied by a person to speak on his or her behalf."

Laird said also that such proceedings must be opened to the public when the accused requests it, "except in those instances where military exigencies or security interests preclude public disclosure."

Servicemen accused of non court-martial offenses may either have their cases handled by their commanders or may refuse and request a court martial. Any punishment meted out by the commander, however, does not appear in a man's permanent service record as does that handed down by a court martial.

King Begins Religious Festival

BIERUT, Lebanon (AP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, clad in the same simple, seamless white garments as the pilgrims, began the world's largest religious festival by washing the Kaaba, Islam's holiest shrine.

An estimated two million pilgrims from 64 countries chanted "La Ilah illa Allah" — There is no God but Allah — as the 67-year-old monarch performed the ritual Thursday in the courtyard of Mecca's Great Mosque.

As prince of the believers and guardian of the holy place of Islam, a religion that claims more than 500 million adherents, it is King Faisal's exclusive privilege to wash the Kaaba. The shrine contains the Black Stone, said to be handed down by the angel Gabriel.

The ceremony followed the annual address to the pilgrms in which Faisal called anew for a holy war against Israel.

CRMWD Continues To Work On Water Quality

Colorado River Municipal Water District, a pioneer in water pollution abatement in this area, will continue its search for means of still better quality water in 1973.

Directors of the district meeting in Big Spring Friday authorized the expenditure of $5,000 in an effort to pin down the source of chlorides in Beal's Creek which drains natural playa lakes west of Big Spring. O.H. Ivie, general manager, reported that the creek currently is flowing at the rate of 230 gallons per minute through Big Spring, and the water contains 11,000 parts per million chlorides.

He said that plans are to drill some 40 test holes parallel to the channel to determine the water table and quality. The first task is to pin down the source, then several corrective measures may be undertaken, he told the board.

CRMWD began more than a decade ago trying to clean up the Colorado River watershed in anticipation of constructing the Lake E.V. Spence dam. In addition, it expended $1,500,000 to construct a diversion works and side storage facility above Colorado City. Last year some 10,000 tons of salt were thus intercepted and diverted.

The district directors also exercised an option for the second year of a three-year contract with Atmospherics, Inc. for weather modification services during the normal rain season in this area. The cost is $66,500 per annum. Ivie said he was seeking to get the Texas Water Development Board to evaluate the project. Atmospherics has flown two seasons, first in a trial program and last year as the first of a three year optional program.

The recreation committee was authorized to terminate 21 leases on lots at Lake Thomas unless they are paid up, and to clear the lots within reasonable time.

The board agreed to permit Monsanto to tap district lines adjacent to the Monsanto plant for the purpose of establishing a standby supply for fire protection only. Monsanto will pay a monthly standby charge. American Magnesium was permitted to take water under a reduced contract quantity until July 1, 1973, pending completion of construction of its Scurry County extraction plant.

A right-of-way easement was granted to Mapco, Inc. for a pipeline below the Lake Thomas dam. Mapco has been paralleling an existing pipeline.

Hollingsworth, Wilson, Lee & Reynolds, CPA's of Big Spring, were named to conduct the annual and semi-annual audit of the district.

Year-end transfers of $154,386 from the Reserve Fund and $21,822 from the Contingency Fund into the Interest and Sinking Fund were authorized, as were inter-fund trust fund accounts.

The City of El Paso, which had applied for the District to underwrite 25 per cent of its sanitary sewer expansion, on a reimbursable basis, withdrew its request when its federal grant was increased. Ivie said he doubted the district would receive further underwriting requests.

W.P. Odom, assistant general manager, reported that the mid-winter maintenance program has been launched in order to be ready for the spring and summer peak demands.

The board also established water rates to member cities. If the cities use the same amount of water in 1973 as they used last year, Odessa will pay 28.74 cents per thousand gallons, Big Spring 22.52 cents and Snyder 21.26 cents. Directors applied $312,000 (plus 35 per cent coverage) of bond funds and $1,750,000 of other revenue to make this possible. Otherwise, Odessa's rate would be 45.33 cents, Big Spring 36.84, and Snyder 36.26. Midland's rate will be the same as last year's Odessa rate of 28.54 cents, plus 3.227 cents per thousand.

Stanton's rate is the same.

STILL MORE FACTS about prescription drugs
① In the past ten years, wholesale prices for all commodities went up 20%, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In the same period, prices of specialty drugs did not go up at all.
② Most modern drugs go down in price after sales and production increase. Salk vaccine, penicillin, and streptomycin are typical examples.

Miss Richey, Wolfe Pledge Double Ring Wedding Vows

Peggy Sue Richey and Dennis Charles Wolfe exchanged double ring wedding vows at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Crescent Park Church of Christ of Littlefield. Bob Wear, minister of the church, officiated.

The church was centered by a bridal arch of camillia foliage and lavender pom pom mums flanked by two spiral candle trees of English ivy and lavender pom pom mums.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richey of Littlefield and Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Wolfe of Snyder.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of peau de soie and silk organza featuring an organza flounce with a beaded Alencon lace border. The bodice was of beaded Alencon lace with a sheer organza yoke ending with a wedding ring collar. Bishop sleeves were of sheer organza with beaded lace petal point cuffs. She wore a beaded Juliet cap wiith a full length tulle veil and carried a cascading bouquet of candlelight sweetheart roses with a removable glamelia corsage with lily of the valley.

Billie Ruth Richey, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor and bridesmatrons were Mrs. Pamela Richey of Arlington, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Phyllis House of Paducah, sister of the groom. They wore formal empire waisted gowns of deep purple velvet featuring scoop necklines and short gathered sleeves. Their headpieces were Juliet caps and carried nosegays of mums and violets.

Best man was Guy Mabee of Lubbock and groomsmen were Steve Taylor of Lubbock and Wayne House of Paducah, brother-in-law of the groom.

Candles were lit by Patti and Paula Wolfe, sisters of the groom, and flower girl was Penny Wolfe, also a sister of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Richey chose a street-length dress of lavender doeskin with purple accessories. The groom's mother wore an embroidered rose pink street-length dress with matching accessories.

A group from Lubbock Christian College presented wedding music and Alvin Jones of Littlefield was soloist.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Susan Faires.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Serving at the bride's table were Mmes. Dallana Loper and Helen Mabee, both of Lubbock. Presiding at the groom's table were Misses Terry Walker and Susan Dudley.

For a wedding trip to El Paso and Mexico, the bride chose a cranberry and beige suit which featured a short jacket. She wore black suede accessories.

The bride, a 1970 graduate of Littlefield High School, is a junior education major at Lubbock Christian College. She is a member of the CD Social Club, Meistersinger Chorus and Goodtime Singers. Her husband, is a 1970 graduate of Snyder High School and attended LCC for two years. While there he was a member of the Aggie Organization. He is presently employed by 2X4 in Lubbock.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Richey of Austin, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Beddo of Sweetwater, grandparents of the groom.

Couple Recites Vows In Austria

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Mott of 3765 Sunset announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Kathleen, to Dr. Reinhard Kaun of Ottensheim, Austria. Dr. Kaun is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilheom Kaun of Ottensheim. The ceremony was attended by the groom's parents and close friends of the couple.

Mrs. Kaun is under contract to the Linz Opera Theater and has appeared this season in the operas, "Land des Lachens" and "Nabucco." In February she will appear in concert in Vienna where she coaches with Prof. Kolo.

Dr. Kaun, a veterinarian, is employed by a large meat packing firm under whose auspices he travels and lectures extensively throughout Austria and Germany. Dr. Kaun was a visitor in the Mott home this past summer and enjoyed consulting with the farmers and veterinarians in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Mott plan to visit the Kauns in the early part of the summer.

Quotable Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I think it's important to consider what your husband's best interests are. You have to discipline yourself. I have some time at my disposal, but my life as my husband's wife must take priority." Carolyn Barrow, American-born wife of the prime minister of Barbados.

"Women find it easier to talk to women detectives, and so far they have been very responsive." Lt. Julia Tucker, speaking about collecting data from a precinct officer for her Rape Analysis and Investigation Section, in an all-female unit designed to help combat the city's (New York) rising rape statistics.

"I feel like I've lost a hundred fat pounds, getting rid of a ton of clutter that was messing up my life. All this fancy stuff doesn't appeal to me any more ... So I put this big ad in the paper: I said I was selling everything but the children." Barbara Howar, speaking about a garage sale she had billed as "the intact contents of a Georgetown house."

"Given a free rein, advertisers know no bounds. They must be checked by the FCC. As long as selling remains the main purpose in programming, the industry will attempt to hold a child's attention by the surest means—violence." Rosemary Galli, speaking for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL-CIO, at a Federal Communications Commission hearing.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The role of insulation in providing comfort within a house has gained importance with the increasing popularity of air conditioning. For insulation not only keeps heat inside during cold weather, it keeps it outside during hot weather. Furnaces and air conditioners thus operate more efficiently, reducing heating and cooling costs.

Insulation comes in four basic types — flexible, reflective, loose fill and semirigid. Within each category, many varieties are available. But, in general, flexible insulation comes in blankets or batts; reflective is made with aluminum foil; loose fill is poured from bags, and semirigid consists of boards or panels.

Blankets and batts are similar in appearance, a material, such as mineral wool, being sandwiched between layers of paper. In most types, one side has a vapor barrier — a special paper or foil through which vapor cannot pass. In installing blankets or batts (blankets come in longer rolls) between studs or joints, it is important that the vapor barrier side be placed so that it faces the heated part of the house. This prevents moisture from reaching the underside of the exterior walls, a common cause of blistering and peeling paint.

Many houses which are otherwise well-insulated do not have any insulation in the attic. When the attic is to be finished, either immediately or in the near future, insulation should be placed between the rafters. When the attic is not to be finished, insulation is best placed between the floor joints. In this case, it usually is easiest to pour loose fill insulation in place, although there are some instances where it might be handier to use batts. Insulation between the floor joists keeps heat from going through the downstairs ceiling and warming an unoccupied area. When the attic is to be used, placing insulation between the rafters helps to keep heat inside during cold weather and outside during hot weather. Insulation also may be placed between the studs behind knee walls.

Loose fill insulation is often used in old houses which have no insulation behind the walls. Since it would be difficult to place any other type of insulation there, loose fill is blown into the walls with special equipment. It usually works well, but provides no vapor barrier and tends to settle over a period of years.

How much insulation a house needs depends on where it is located. The Federal Housing Administration and other government agencies which insure mortgages have established insulation standards for particular areas of the country. If you are having a house built, it would be wise to see that the insulation procedures meet or better such standards even if you are obtaining a conventional mortgage.

Contract Inked

COVENTRY, England (AP) — Mrs. Audrey Braddock believes in paying for what she gets.

She makes a two-mile round trip to collect canal water for her goldfish, which, she believes, thrive on it.

But she felt she should pay for the jugful she takes twice a week. So the British Waterways Board drew up a special four-year's contract, and Mrs. Braddock paid the full fee of one pound — that's around $2.40 — in advance.

Said Mrs. Braddock: "Nothing in life is free. It's only right that I should pay for the water and I was pleased to sign the contract. My goldfish are happier in canal water than that out of a tap."

Exercise And Good Eating Habits Can Retard Aging

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature Writer

Senility can't be reversed, but people can be helped to avoid the traps of aging. That's the message from Dr. William Goldwag, who is working on the problem.

Goldwag gave up a 17-year family medical practice in Ossining, N.Y., where his elderly patients provided him with the impetus to pursue his interest in aging. He has done research in Europe and for 18 months has been associated with the revitalization therapies of Dr. Ivan Popov, medical director of Renaissance at Nassau, who is well-known abroad.

There is a big difference between chronological science and physiological genetics, Goldwag observed. The psychology of aging also is important because how you visualize yourself determines many things in a society that regards aging as horrible. Eighty-year-olds who ignore the calendar can function like 40-year-olds, but he has observed 40-year-olds who act like octogenarians.

Many aspects of aging are elusive to medical science, including the big one — what really causes aging — but great inroads are being made and you can stay younger far beyond your chronological years with knowledge elicited in recent years.

What are the things that can keep us from aging prematurely?

Eating living foods, exercising to stress muscles, learning new things to sharpen our memories, avoiding stresses and ultra-violet raye of the sun, and developing an inner something (they can't pin it down) that involves optimism, hope and faith puts one in control of his body. Dr. Goldwag says:

"In observing the elderly in nursing homes, I saw brilliant minds of engineers, lawyers, others, vegetating within a short time, even though the people were in their prime. Society persuades people they are finished at a certain point ... and they are psyched into believing it, a tremendous waste of brain power and creative thinking. Young people cannot replace them because a great benefit of age is experience and the ability to apply what has been learned to new things.

"Nursing homes concentrate on distracting patients from the fact they are slowly dying. It is sad because it isn't necessary that our memories deteriorate. Recent memories suffer when new things aren't being learned. The normal thing should be to look forward to new activity at retirement and to consider ourselves functional to the end."

The whole system needs changing, he comments, but where do you start? In addition to having their lifelines cut, the indigent can bankrupt young people. Then, too, millions are spent by governments to regenerate the elderly; whereas the money might be spent on preventive medicine. It should begin in one's prime, preferably by age 30, but it is never too late to begin.

Here are some ideas you might put into practice in your own life, he advises:

...Eat living foods — yeast, fruits, vegetables, meat, fish, poultry, cheese. Eat young forms of life that are still developing and have growth substances in them. As soon as you sever the source of life, the food begins to die. Fish can be eaten fresher than meat, which often is eaten long after it has begun to deteriorate. If one can't get fresh vegetables one should grow some at home in pots — radishes, onions, etc.

Choose whole foods rather than segments. Whole wheat is preferable to white flour, which discards the wheat germ.

"It is conceit to feel we can extract out of a plant or anything else what nature provided in the entirety," Goldwag commented. Medical science has even gone back to using the whole plant rather than the extract for digitalis.

Natural foods should be preferred to vitamin pills unless they are medically prescribed, he observed. Present the body with natural substances and it will throw off what it doesn't want. Load it with vitamin pills and it may be forced to accept what it doesn't need. If one were to eat the large amount of food represented by the concentration in the pill, one might be warned by becoming ill.

The cheapest yeast food is bread, he pointed out. A cake of yeast (the kind used for baking) is the best natural source of vitamins, in his opinion. (For palatability Renaissance puts it in beer.) Keep it in the refrigerator and chip off a piece a couple of times a week.

Vitamin C and E foods are thought to be antistress and antitoxicant and may play a definite role in slowing the aging process, he explained.

"C" foods include citrus fruits, peppers, turnip greens, broccoli, kale. Raw fruit is a good source because cooking destroys some of the vitamin.

"E" is in green lettuce, other green leaves, wheat germ, the oils of seeds (corn, etc.)

Our aim should be to improve the body's ability to resist stress that we are exposed to physically, mentally, bacterially. Smoke pollution, radiation, food additives increase the rate of oxidation reactions creating stress on our bodies. Over the years he has often noticed that the faces of heavy smokers are deeply wrinkled.

...Avoid ultra-violet radiation, which is aging, by avoiding sun between 10 and 3 in climates where the sun is strong, unless you are completely covered or coated with a sun screen substance which will help filter the rays.

...Discover your inner powers. Goldwag is not religious but he commented "we are using the bare minimum of our capacities." He has seen great physical disability overcome "by plain people" who have ascribed the healing to God. He believes they have called upon a capacity within themselves that everybody has.

"Doctors are trying to tape it electronically, teaching people how to control inner functions — heart rate, intestinal activity, blood pressure. Almost anybody can do this, but we don't even know how to train people to find the answers."

...Exercise each day to keep your body from deteriorating. Walking is the simplest form. Vigorous exercise is a tranquilizer ... people who relax best "have the most control of their muscles."

"Exercise carries waste materials out of the body with water ... it improves the quality of skin, a fantastic organ which is always perspiring, by letting it function as a waste disposer along with the kidneys.

"The trick is to make every part of your body function at its peak all the time. You don't single out one segment to treat," he advises.

At Renaissance many biological methods are used for therapeutic effects. Sleep therapy helps break the tranquilizer habit; sea therapy — plasma has the same relative composition as sea water — is combined with underwater massage. They make external use of sea mud taken from below sea level "where waste materials have accumulated for thousands of years becoming compressed," he explains.

"We are not trying to create young people out of old people. We are trying to keep them functional to the end of their lives. I'd like to go further, creating a diagnostic center with treatment that can be done in one's home," he explained. Meanwhile, one can put some of his ideas into effect in the home.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — I read some instructions on how to refinish wooden floors. They said to be sure to sand with the grain of the wood on the final sanding. What do I do with my parquet floor, where the grain runs in different directions?

A — There is no magic solution. You must use nothing except sandpaper with very fine grits. That means you must go over the floor quite a few times to remove the old finish.

Q — I expect to paint the outside of our house in a few months. In looking it over the other day, I noticed that the sides of the house are fairly clean but the area under the eaves is quite dirty. Why is this so and what can I do about it before I paint?

A — The entire outside of your house picks up dirt from the air. Rain and wind help to clean the vertical surfaces. The underside of the eaves does not get this cleaning. Before painting, rub the area under the eaves with a detergent solution and allow to dry throughly.

Q — The toilet tank in our bathroom continually sweats. I have been told that warm water must be allowed to go into the tank if this condition is to be corrected. How is this done?

A — The tank sweats because there usually is warm, moist air in the bathroom which condenses when it settles on the cold tank. It can be eliminated by connecting a hot-water pipe to the underside of the tank, joining it to the intake pipe and using a mixing valve. You'll need a plumber for this.

There are several other ways to eliminate the condensation. One is an exhaust fan in the bathroom to remove some of the moisture at periodic intervals. Another is to line the inside of the tank walls with foam rubber held in place with waterproof cement. Some persons are able to halt the condensation simply by covering the outside of the tank with a decorative, absorbent material. These covers can be purchased ready-made.

Q — I'm installing a couple of doors in our attic. How much clearance should there be at the top and bottom?

A — About one-sixteenth of an inch at the top and three-eighths at the bottom. But you'll have to leave more clearance than that at the bottom if the door will have to clear something like a thick shag rug. Make your own test.

Robin Comes South On Wheels

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Flip the robin came south on wheels instead of wings, but he seemed happy with the arrangement.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Joy of Addision, Maine, brought the robin in their trailer as they traveled to Jacksonville to visit their son Merle and his family.

Mrs. Joy said the bird, his wing injured, was floundering in a bad ice and snow storm at Addison in mid-December when her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Purington took him in. They nursed him back to health but weren't sure what to do with him.

"We were headed south and we agreed to take the bird with us," Mrs. Joy said.

The Joys' granddaughters, Doris, 10, and Katrina, 7, released Flip Thursday morning, the day after he arrived.

"He sat in an apple tree in their yard for some time, about an hour I guess," Mrs. Joy said. "The other birds — somebody said they were mockingbirds — came around and looked him over. Then he flew away."

Mom Keeping Son's Pet Snake

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Mrs. Alfred Parent is more than usually anxious for her Marine sergeant son Richard to pay her a visit. She wants him to pick up his pet boa constrictor.

The son came home from his Norfolk, Va., base for a visit early last month; and, the day before he left, his pet slithered off and disappeared.

Every spare moment, she, her daughter and another son crawled through the house cautiously peering under furniture, behind closet doors and into drawers, Mrs. Parent said.

Three weeks later, the boa turned up coiled behind the bathtub.

Mrs. Parent said she hasn't been able to coax the snake to eat anything.

American Wives Find Saigon 'Hardship Post'

EDITOR'S NOTE — The woman followed her husband to war and hasn't washed a dish or made a bed since arriving in Saigon. She has golf courses, swimming pools and tennis courts at her disposal. Yet she can't wait to get out. She's learned why Saigon is classified "a hardship post."

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — "My first impression" of this seedy war capital," said Pat Marzolf, "was, oh my, what am I letting myself in for?"

The first jolt came, she said, when the plane landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport and taxied down the runway past rows of green-and brown-camouflaged warplanes, protected by steel and cement antirocket walls.

And she had mixed feelings, she said, about that first drive from the airport into Saigon, past scores of tin-roofed shacks jutting out over a sewage canal, the barbed-wire coils stretched along the sidewalks, the sandbag bunkers that are as numerous on street corners here as stop signs in America.

Like most of the 148 American women who live in Vietnam with their government-employed husbands, 28-year-old Mrs. Marzolf of New York found that after the initial shock, the privileges that go with her husband's job with the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) make her living seem almost easy.

Because Vietnam has the potential of being a low morale post — the State Department classifies it a "hardship area" — the women often go out of their way to keep busy.

"It's a hardship post in the sense that you don't really know what those noises at night will mean," explained Mrs. Josiah W. Bennett, wife of an embassy political official. "For some people it's harder than others."

"My definition of a hardship post is how much more worry, how much more danger there is than at a normal post. Here, for people who bring their children, it has to be a real personal decision."

However, the most pervasive disadvantage of life for American women in Vietnam is not the threat of sudden fiery death. It is a host of little difficulties that accompany every venture outside the U.S.-made shell.

The woman who leaves that shell must steel herself against hostilities that range from subdued dark glances to open attacks, against shopkeepers and cab drivers who consider it a right to bilk an American for all they can.

"We're not exactly treated like when we entered Paris in 1945," one American said.

For Mrs. Bennett, a Chinese-American who was born in Peking, life in Vietnam "is almost like home. I speak Chinese and that makes it easier to meet Vietnamese."

The Bennetts live in a large, two-story villa surrounded by flowering bushes and towering palm trees. The door to their living room opens onto a patio and one of the three swimming pools reserved for Saigon's official American community.

"In all posts, life is made easier for higher positions than lower ones," Mrs. Bennett said. "This is the first post since we joined the foreign service in 1946 that I haven't had the children around to keep me busy.

"Here, since we're supposed to keep a low profile, it seems like a marvelous occasion to sit home and practice the recorder and learn typing and shorthand." Mrs. Bennett said she also takes Chinese shadow-boxing lessons three times a week.

Mrs. Thomas Thorsen, whose husband works for USAID, has been in Vietnam for the last 13 months of her 16 years as a foreign service wife. She has no time, she said, to sit around brooding about the war.

Mrs. Thorsen said that like many of her colleagues, her days are scheduled between the American Red Cross, meetings of the American Woman's Association and Chinese brush painting lessons. She said she also does volunteer work in orphanages and a hospital for burned children.

Unlike Mrs. Thorsen, however, some of the dozen women interviewed said they find work in the hospitals and refugee centers upsetting.

Recreational activities — golf, swimming, tennis, riding and bridge — are readily accessible to families of U.S. government employes. Many of the American women said they have free time for such activities because servants are inexpensive by American standards, between $20 and $40 a month. That's more, however, than a junior officer in the Vietnamese army makes.

"What we lack in consumer goods — dishwashers, blenders and vacuum cleaners — we make up with personal servants," one woman said.

In Saigon there is no clean, quiet grassy place like that to which most folks in the United States can repair. The only place a family can approximate a middle-class American life is in the enclave.

And for many, Saigon's in-town country club, the Cercle Sportif, offers a tranquil oasis where the only reminder of war is an occasional military helicopter overhead.

"The conversation often runs from the price of jade to the problems of getting reliable servants," one American explained, "but it is an escape. And here, you need it."

The high, whitewashed walls that surround the pools, villas and clubs provide only tentative escape, however. But once an American ventures outside the cloistered havens to a meeting, to shop, or even to meet a friend for lunch, the hassle begins all over again.

In the central market places, for example, one must take precautions against theft.

"I like the central market," said Carolyn Meuller of Port Angeles, Wash., whose husband works for USAID. "But I know to take off my watch, not carry a handbag and wear covered shoes."

And even in the most expensive restaurants, their hearts and handbags are not safe from the 4-and-5-year-olds who sneak in to beg, carrying naked babies in their arms.

"I see little children begging in the streets and restaurants, and I want to give them something," said Juanita Cunningham of San Francisco, whose husband works for the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. "But if you do, 10 more rob you from behind.

The wife of an American journalist who has spent two years in Vietnam said she is often harassed when she walks through the streets. Children poke at her and pull her blonde hair. An old man once beat her with a cane.

"I came over here with such a great outlook," she said. "I've really tried to get to know the people, volunteer work and all that. But I've had it.

"My husband tells me not to go out on the street, but I can't do that. I'd go bananas. Sometimes I go into my shell and stay in the apartment for a week, sewing and cooking, but you go crazy.

"In a way, we've never had it so good. I haven't washed a dish or made a bed in two years. We've collected porcelain and I wouldn't trade the art we've bought for anything.

"But it's also been a rough experience. The tough times have been very tough. When our tour is up, I'll be glad to get out of here."

Junior Editors' Quiz on DR. LIVINGSTONE

QUESTION: Who was Dr. Livingstone?

* * *

ANSWER: Dr. David Livingstone was a Scottish medical missionary connected with the London Missionary Society. He was sent to Africa in 1840 to convert the peoples of Africa to Christianity and also to stop the slave trade. He combined missionary work with exploration. His journals also gave valuable information on the geography of Africa. Before his time, Africa was called the "dark continent" because people knew very little about it. Traders in slaves and other goods were familiar with the coastal areas, but knew nothing about the interior.

After a number of expeditions, Livingstone pushed into the interior of the Lake Tanganyika region and was unheard from for some time. In 1869, the New York Herald sent Henry M. Stanley, a correspondent, to find him. After suffering many hardships, Stanley reached Dr. Livingstone in 1871 and his remark "Dr. Livingstone, I presume", has become famous. After Livingstone's death in 1874, Stanley went back to Africa to continue the work of exploring the interior. Both men contributed a great deal to opening Africa for future colonization.

'Perry Mason' Loses Own Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Raymond Burr, television's Perry Mason, has lost his own case in Superior Court because he failed to prosecute within the five-year time limit.

Superior Court Judge Norman R. Dowds dismissed the suit against attorney Donald E. Leon Thursday.

Burr, acting as his own attorney, filed the suit in 1967 claiming Leon breached an oral contract by giving him bad legal advice on a piece of property. Burr had asked $95,000 damages, citing legal fees to Leon and other attorneys and embarrassment by a wage garnishment in 1967.

Gas Shortage Reports Only The Beginning

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The rash of oil and gas shortages now being reported across the nation could be only the beginning.

A recently completed three-year study of the nation's energy outlook says the domestic supply situation will only worsen in the years ahead unless corrective actions are taken.

The National Petroleum Council study reports that authoritative estimates indicate domestic reserves remaining to be discovered exceed 300 billion barrels of oil and 1,100 trillion cubic feet of gas.

With corrective actions, the study projects, domestic petroleum liquids production could be increased to 15.5 million barrels a day in 1985 compared with 11.3 million in 1970 and that natural gas output could climb to 30.6 trillion cubic feet a year compared with 22.3 trillion in 1970.

Should current adverse trends in domestic explorations continue, however, the projections indicate oil production will decline to 10.4 million barrels a day and gas production to 15 trillion cubic feet a year by 1985.

The reference to adverse trends in domestic explorations can be traced to a June 7, 1954, Supreme Court ruling in a 5-4 decision that the Federal Power Commission was obligated under the National Gas Act to regulate interstate sales by natural gas producers.

The FPC wrangled with the problem more than a decade before adopting an area formula for controlling the wellhead prices of gas sold into interstate commerce.

Two industry-backed bills clarifying the FPC's authority got as far as the White House only to be vetoed. President Harry S. Truman vetoed a 1950 bill designed to head off a Supreme Court cause, saying it was not to the nation's interest. President Dwight D. Eisenhower favored a 1956 bill but vetoed it with an explanation there had been arrogant lobbying by a small segment of the gas industry.

The industry still is trying to recover from a prolonged drilling and exploration slump that began shortly after the 1954 court ruling. A record 58,160 wells were drilled in 1956 but only 27,835 were drilled in 1971. A preliminary estimate of 27,900 for 1972 would give the industry only its fifth 12-month increase since 1956.

Domestic oil production in 1957 exceeded additions to reserves the first time since the end of World War II.

The Petroleum Council, an advisory body to the Interior Department, does not trace the background of federal controls but states that "federal regulation has substantially reduced exploration incentives and encouraged artificial expansion of natural gas demand."

"Despite its superior characteristics, natural gas currently is priced less than alternative fuels because of price controls," the study states.

"This results in a paradoxical situation. At the wellhead, domestic natural gas prices are held to a fraction of substitutable fuel prices in the face of present and prospective major supply shortages."

The proper solution to the problem, the study contends, would be to permit the normal interplay of economic forces in the marketplace to establish proper value.

"The Federal Power Commission has now apparently recognized the fallacy of holding the field prices of natural gas at artificially low levels," the study states.

Union Chiefs Move Up

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: My dad has been sending me your columns while I am in service. The one about the professions being unionized got me to thinking. I will be back in the States soon and it occurs to me that there could be good opportunities in the labor union field. Is it best to work your way up from union membership, or is there a special college major that is preferred? -- T.O.R., San Diego

Labor authorities with whom I checked say that union chiefs and their top aides almost always come to power by moving up through the ranks membership. Some leaders (from shop stewarts up) continue their education – while working – by taking courses in labor education at colleges and universities.

But the route to real leadership emphasizes experience within the labor movement rather than through college study. If you can arrange to have relatives or friends in influential union positions, so much the better.

AN APPROACH used by some successful leaders involves organizing nonunion workers and bringing the new group into a larger established union. The new group is used as a base for advancement.

A number of colleges and universities offer programs in industrial and labor relations, or labor education. Most of their graduates (who were not in the labor movement to start with) go to work for business and industry, or government agencies, rather than for labor unions. College directories, such as "Lovejoy's College Guide" and "College Blue Book," list these programs.

LABOR UNIONS also employ staff workers in such areas as pensions, economic research, publications, education and legal counsel. Training in a specialist field could be an entry gate to a good paying labor union job, although probably not to top leader positions.

A NEW SURVEY which gives the most detailed picture yet available on the makeup and strength of unions may interest you. "Selected Earnings and Demographic Characteristics of Union Members, 1970" (Report 417) is a free publication of the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics (Washington, D.C. 20212). Among the survey's major findings:

* Total union membership – 17.2 million – amounts to about 20 percent of the 84 million wage and salary workers in this country. (Note: The new "Directory of National Unions and Employee Associations in the U.S." gives the 1970 union membership total as 19.4 million. The difference in the directory statistics are supplied by unions themselves, and sometimes include retirees, unemployed members, and individuals in the Armed Forces.)

* Men outnumber women by nearly 4 to 1 in unions.

* Seven of every 10 union members are blue-collar workers; about 40 percent of all blue-collar workers are organized. Less than 10 percent of white-collar workers, and barely 11 percent of service workers belong to unions.

* About 70 percent of union members are employed in the construction, manufacturing, and transportation and public utilities industries.

* Median earnings of union workers exceeded those of COMPARABLE nonunion workers in 1970 by an average of $1,157 ($8,609 to $7,452).

The new survey is free from the Labor Department as long as supplies last.

SHE'LL TRY HER WINGS--Lt. (j.g.) Judith Ann Neuffer of Wooster, Ohio, is named the first woman to enter the Navy flight training program. With her at the Pentagon is Navy Secretary John W. Navy Project Site May Be Shifted To Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy may shift to Texas the site for a controversial planned system which will maintain constant communications with missile-firing submarines.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird made an offer to the Navy Friday to shift the site of the program from Wisconsin, where it has been opposed by Wisconsin members of Congress for years on grounds that it might harm plant and animal life.

A Texas location for the project, known as Sanguine, has not been announced. Final decision on whether to build the system may not be made for another three years, Laird said.

The Navy has said its research has emphasized ecological and biological studies "to assure that Sanguine would harm neither human, animal not plant life."

Laird, formerly a representative from Wisconsin, stopped short of approving construction of the Sanguine system, which would transmit messages to submarines-submerged or afloat—over extremely low frequencies through a network of underground transmitters.

Laird authorized the Navy to push ahead with further research and development work on the project, as approved by Congress which voted about $10 million for that purpose.

For planning purposes, Laird told the Navy it should assume that the initial operational Sanguine, if built, would be in Texas.

Laird instructed that tests be continued at the present site at Clam Lake, Wis., "but no further major installations would be made at the site or elsewhere within Wisconsin."

Each subsequent phase of the program, Laird directed, will be reviewed by the Secretary of Defense and Congress, meaning further decisions would be put into the hands of Elliot Richardson, who is due to succeed Laird in about a week.

The Navy says the project is needed "to provide assured command and control of our strategic forces, particularly ballistic missile submaries, deployed worldwide, despite enemy attack or jamming."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said he has no objection to locating the project in Texas.

"Local geologic considerations are of primary importance in operation of such an antenna," Tower said. "I have been assured by the Defense Department that any placement of such an antenna would be beneath the ground surface and would not constitute any ecological hazard."

The Navy has said that only a system operating in the extremely low frequency spectrum can penetrate sea water to sufficient depths to maintain constant communication with the submarines.

Unfinished Jetport Used For Practicing

EDITOR'S NOTE — Three years ago, construction of a giant jetport in the Florida Everglades was brought to a halt after conservationists claimed it would harm the great swamp and its inhabitants. Today, weather permitting, planes land and take off at the site at the rate of one per minute. They're only practicing, say officials.

By NICK TATRO
Associated Press Writer

THE EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — A bird flapped out of a thicket as a 727 jetliner roared out of the clouds to land on a two-mile-long strip carved in the sawgrass sea of the Everglades.

The concrete runway is among the remnants of a grand plan to build a giant jetport in the lush swamp. Construction was halted by government officials after conservationists claimed it would harm the Everglades and its creatures.

Yet, the 727 was one of nearly 100,000 planes that landed or took off from the unfinished airport last year. Unfinished, but not abandoned. Commercial, military and private pilots use the 34-square-mile site as a training field.

They practice takeoffs and landings around the clock at the rate of one per minute, weather permitting. These operations amount to almost a third of the volume of Miami International Airport, some 45 miles to the east, and equal the daily air traffic at Nashville, Tenn.

But the activity has gone virtually unnoticed since the dream of a futuristic $2 billion jetport was put to rest after environmentalists argued that the heavy air traffic and side effects of fuel dumps, hotels and restaurants would fatally unbalance the fragile ecosystem that is unique in nature.

"Hardly anyone knows we're here," says Ben Williams, an air controller in the glass tower built at the edge of the runway.

Below the tower sits a trailer filled with sophisticated air pollution monitoring equipment installed last March and operated by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Egrets and other wading birds have laid claim to a mudhole behind the trailer and strut about with apparent unconcern for their steel-winged aerial competitors.

An occasional alligator, wild hog or deer dares a journey across the asphalt and concrete.

But the impact the training facility is having on this expanse of wilderness is something of a mystery.

John T. Brown, coordinator of the South Florida Environmental Project for the U.S. Department of the Interior, heads a multiagency program to monitor air, water and noise pollution at the site.

Brown said noise pollution equipment was not installed until Dec. 17 and the raw data available has not been analyzed.

Water pollution samples have been taken for two years at the site, with no discernible adverse affect on the swamplands, he said.

Air pollution tests are available only for a six-month period, between March and August 1972.

"We are still getting somewhat of a high reading now and then, but we're still looking into the reason why," Brown said.

Ozone, a key element in the smog that plagues Los Angeles, is the only pollutant exceeding standards, Brown said, but it can't be positively traced yet to air traffic.

Brown's monitoring program was set up as an environmental safeguard under the Jetport Pact signed Jan. 16, 1970, by Dade County, federal and state officials.

The pact expires in January 1973 and must be renewed for airlines to continue using the site for training.

Signers specified that the existing $13-million concrete runway and control tower could be used as a training ground as long as it posed no threat to the wildlife.

Dade County officials were anxious to have such a training facility to relieve the overcrowded runways at Miami International Airport.

Brown said the Departments of Interior and Transportation have recommended renewal of the Jetport Pact until Jan. 16 1975. Dade County also has agreed.

"Renewal of the pact is not really contingent on these pollution results," Brown said. "But if there is harm to the environment, if an adverse impact can be shown, a shutdown of the training facility may be sought and the operations stopped."

Brown said the "ultimate goal of the jetport pact is to move the training facility to another site."

But first a new site has to be approved.

Either way, one of the prime objects of the original jetport plan has been accomplished. Richard Judy, director of the Dade County Port Authority, says the Everglades site has helped reduce traffic at Miami International Airport from 400,000 takeoffs and landings three years ago to 280,000 in 1972.

He added that the threat of a crash in a populated area is also reduced.

Cares For 54 Disabled Children

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "I'll walk by one of these children and all of a sudden he'll look up at me and smile," said Mrs. Stacy Smith, 76. "That little smile makes it worth all the trouble and long hours and scratching to meet the bills."

Mrs. Smith — a cheerful, gray-haired woman — was talking about the home she runs for children with birth defects. She cares for 54 children without public or foundation funds, handling 12 of them as charity cases and charging the parents of the others a small boarding fee.

Churches and civic groups contribute occasional volunteer help, but most of the work is done by Mrs. Smith and a dozen nonprofessionals — friends and neighbors. The children, born with cerebral palsy, blindness or brain damage, are housed dormitory style in Mrs. Smith's big brick home and two adjoining buildings.

Mrs. Smith, a registered nurse, took in her first child more than 40 years ago — shortly after encephalitis left her adopted son severely retarded.

"That gave me a special feeling about these children," said Mrs. Smith, recently honored by local civic clubs as 1972 Woman of the Year. "People think that they can't be happy. But if you love them and show them that you do, they'll begin to respond and smile at you with their eyes."

The children range in age from a few months to late teens. One boy lived with Mrs. Smith for 24 years before dying just before Christmas 1971. Mrs. Smith was at his bedside when he died — "I promised myself a long time ago that I'd never let a baby die alone."

Battery Brings Kin Together

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Two brothers who lived within blocks of each other without knowing it after being separated by adoption 15 years ago will be reunited in Korea — all because of a dead car battery.

Carl P. Ladd, 20, and Michael C. Graham, 21, were among six children taken from their parents' custody by juvenile authorities and placed in foster homes when they were just starting school.

Their paths crossed many times as they grew up, but they never realized they were related.

It wasn't until Sue Graham, the wife of the youths' older brother, Tim, experienced trouble with her car battery that the relationship of the two became known.

Last week, Mrs. Donald Ladd, seeking volunteers for a popcorn sale to benefit a school in nearby Burton, telephoned Mrs. Graham, who said she would be glad to assist but that her car had a dead battery. Mrs. Ladd said she would pick up Mrs. Graham.

While en route to the sale, the women, who live within a few blocks of each other in Burton and have worked together for several months for the school, started talking about their families.

Mrs. Ladd casually mentioned her son's name had been Graham when she and her husband adopted him in 1959 and that often in those days he had cried himself to sleep while repeating the name of his brother, Michael.

Mrs. Graham then asked Mrs. Ladd what her son's first name was. When Mrs. Ladd replied, "Carl," Mrs. Graham began to cry. And in a moment both women realized long searches were over.

Although the paths of Carl and Michael crossed many times in Flint, they never recognized each other, Mrs. Ladd and Mrs. Graham said.

Last summer, both joined the Army and Specs. 4 Michael Graham and Carl Ladd are now stationed in Korea — Graham at Camp Casey and Ladd at Camp Hovey, about a mile apart.

Tim Casey said he has wired Michael that his brother is stationed nearby, but the families do not know whether the brothers have been in contact as yet.

New Controls In Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — The radical restructuring of the nation's wage and price control structure proposed by President Nixon dwarfed a variety of other significant events in business the past week.

While the proposed changeover to a mainly voluntary system of price-wage restraints captured the biggest headlines, a major rise in wholesale prices and a worsening of the fuel oil shortage were developments that in most weeks would have been central topics of conversation.

Fears of inflation were rekindled by news Tuesday that wholesale prices in December had risen at a 19.2 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate. Food prices were galloping upward at a 62.4 per cent annual rate.

Those fears were further aggravated among some economists by the Nixon administration's move Thursday in easing the formal price control structure.

Paul Samuelson, a Nobel Prize-winning economist, said he now expected inflation to exceed 4 per cent in 1973. Paul Heller, chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy administration, said his earlier forecast of a 3.33-3.50 per cent inflation rate might have to be revised upward.

The stock market greeted the easing of controls with an upsurge that tacked five points onto the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks. And some corporations said they were looking forward to a better profit picture.

While Thursday's news was warming up Wall Street, parts of the country were shivering because of a fuel oil shortage which was reaching emergency proportions.

Texaco announced Wednesday it was rationing fuel oil to customers in some areas east of the Rocky Mountains. It would not say exactly what areas were involved or how big the cutbacks were.

TWA and American Airlines revealed that some of their flights were being forced into unscheduled stops because of a fuel shortage at major New York airports. And in Denver, schools were closed part time for lack of heating oil.

The federal government reacted to the shortage by preparing to ease import quotas, and starting the wheels in motion for possible fuel oil imports from the Soviet Union this year.

Aye, there's a rub in the business scheme

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my brother went into a new venture and he's doing a terrific business. It is a massage parlor. He has girls do the massaging, and the customers are all men. I think you get the idea.

Well, my brother asked my husband to manage the place. I was against it from the start. My brother takes in about $4,000 to $5,000 a month. My husband is a salesman, and if he clears $150 a week he is lucky.

My brother told my husband if he would manage the massage parlor he would pay him $1,000 a month, plus at the end of the year my husband could buy the business from him, and my brother would open another parlor.

My husband wants to accept. All that is holding him back is me. I don't want my husband in a business like this.

Do I have a right to come between him and the money? Also, my husband being around those willing young girls all day is something else to consider.

We have three children. Would they be proud of their dad in this kind of a business?

Everybody says I am wrong. What do you say?

HOLDING TIGHT

DEAR HOLDING: I say you're right. [But don't rub it in.]

DEAR ABBY: Three weeks ago, Jimmy and I met on a blind date neither one of us wanted to go on, but we went to get our friends off our backs. I am 22 and Jimmy is 24.

We hit it off perfectly. He took me to dinner. We danced and laughed and joked and found we had a lot in common. When he brought me home neither one of us wanted to say good night, so I invited him in [I have my own apartment] and we talked until 5 a. m. He kissed me only once and that's the truth. I let him sleep on my couch and the next morning we went to church together as it was Sunday. This may sound crazy, but I'm telling it like it is.

Jimmy is so sweet and clean and wonderful. I've never felt this way about anybody in my life and neither has Jimmy. We've spent every possible moment together since we met and he's never laid a hand on me and neither has anybody else. [This took a lot of self-control as we are very much in love]! Jimmy wants to marry me as soon as possible, but Abby, this all happened so fast, I can't believe it.

Our friends say Jimmy and I should live together first to find out if we are sexually compatible, but Abby, I have always wanted to save myself until after marriage. Jimmy says it's up to me. Should I or shouldn't I? Please be honest.

IN LOVE IN TAMPA

DEAR IN LOVE: Compatibility is based on loving, caring, sharing, unselfishness, and mutual consideration and respect, and from your letter, I'd say you and Jimmy have it. Feeling as you do—for which you are to be commended—the guilt you would experience from premarital sex would damage your self-respect. Since you've waited this long, wait to catch that golden ring. God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: Before my husband and I met, he got a married woman pregnant and she had his child—a boy.

My husband and I have a daughter. How is our daughter related to that boy my husband fathered?

Would you recommend the offspring be told they have the same father? They go to the same school, and are now teen-agers, and there is a possibility of a budding romance.

All the relations know about this mess.

OMAHA MIXUP

DEAR OMAHA: They are half brother and sister, which is closer than the law allows for marriage. I wouldn't tell them they have the same father unless I felt it were positively necessary. The "forbidden" aspect of such a romance might enhance it.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks a million for publishing the address of WAIF, the International Service office thru which one may adopt a Vietnamese orphan.

I am a single serviceman who spent 18 months in Saigon and I adopted two boys from an orphanage there. One I brought back with me last January and the other came in March. [He was only 11 years old and flew 10,000 miles by himself].

It's a lot easier to adopt them if you are over there, but it is possible to adopt them thru WAIF. The only Vietnamese law about it is that you must be 20 years older than the child you adopt.

R. V. IN JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR R. V.: Thanks for giving me another opportunity to repeat the address. It's WAIF, 345 E. 46th St., New York.

Plans Scrapped

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — City fathers have scrapped plans to change the names of two city streets that appear on the Monopoly game board.

The five-member City Commission voted unanimously Thursday against changing Baltic Avenue to Fairmont Avenue and Mediterranean Avenue to Melrose Avenue.

Public Works Commissioner Arthur Ponzio had proposed the name changes because Baltic and Mediterranean are merely continuations of the other two avenues.

He told the commission he had received mail opposing the change from scores of individuals and groups, including the Monopoly Players of Canada and the U.S. Monopoly Association.

Monopoly was invented by Charles Darrow, a Philadelphian who vacationed here often and decided to reward the city for the enjoyment it had given him by naming all the streets on the game board after streets in the city.

Gonzalez Says Mexicans Used

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Although it promised to reward its Mexican-American supporters, the Nixon administration is replacing high Spanish-surnamed officials and freezing programs which help the poor, U.S. Rep. Henry Gonzalez says.

The San Antonio Democrat indicated Friday in remarks to a board meeting here of Project SER that the future of SER, a Labor Department manpower training program, is cloudy itself.

Gonzalez said the election "has come and gone, and estimates are that Nixon got 31 per cent of the Mexicano vote—much more than at any other time a Republican was running."

What has happened after the elections?" he asked.

"First there have been the firings. Carlos Villareal was fired. This man ran the Urban Mass Transit Administration. He was no politico, but he was competent and he did a good job," said Gonzalez.

After mentioning other departures, Gonzalez said Nixon official Tony Rodriguez remains.

Rodriguez, Gonzalez claimed, "holds a nameless job in one of the White House cubbyholes, with no known function other than to come out and tell the natives how lucky we are, because he is in a soft job."

Gonzalez predicted Gil Pompa, a former San Antonio resident who is a Community Relations Service official, will soon be seen "on the streets," jobless.

SER, a job-generating agency, signed a contract with Nixon before the election which provided for a 50 per increase program increase, Gonzalez said.

"But on Monday, you got a telegram telling you not to take any new trainees, not to hire any staff, not to buy equipment, not to make unnecessary phone calls, and not to make unnecessary trips.

"In fact, you were told not to have this board meeting, because it would involve unnecessary travel. What will happen next, nobody knows," said Gonzalez.

"But I will tell you this. You have been used and you have been deceived and you have been lied to."

He scoffed at the Nixon appointment of Romana Banuelos as U.S. Treasurer.

"She may be permitted to sign the dollar bills for a while. But that's not the point.

"The point is, how many actions are being taken to get us some of the dollar bill?" said Gonzalez.

Bad Checks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Losses to retailers from bad checks are rapidly approaching $1 billion annually, which is several times the losses from bank robberies, according to Lee Ault III, president of Telecredit Inc., a computerized check verification service.

Eiffel Tower Part Of Paris

PARIS(AP) — Paris without the Eiffel Tower?

"Impossible," said a visitor lining up for a climb to the top.

"Outrageous," exclaimed another.

"Why, it would be like Paris without sex," said a bachelor from Madrid.

He needn't fear. Sex is in Paris to stay, as far as anyone can tell. And officials who run the Eiffel Tower maintain it also will stay despite reports that rust is gnawing at the beams and it would be cheaper to tear it down than repair it.

The widely circulated reports were said to be based on a government study. To knock them down, custodians of the 84-year-old tower produced an avalanche of figures to show the tower is in good health, physically and financially.

For an expenditure of $3 million last year, the Societe de la Tour Eiffel—which has a concession from the city to operate the tower until 1979—reported a net profit of $84,577.

Because the tower is made of iron and not steel, its beams do not rust internally. Very few outward signs of corrosion have been spotted during periodic checks, the company said.

Officials said the tower, nearly as high as the Empire State Building, will last for another century once a five-year, $5.8 million maintenance program is completed.

Andre Garroux, a Societe de la Tour Eiffel director who has been involved in running the tower for 20 years, issues these statistics:

Although it weighs 7,000 tons and stands 1,049 feet high, the tower exerts a pressure on the ground equal to that of an average man sitting in a chair.

A scale model, one foot high would weigh less than an air mail letter, and the tower itself weighs the same as a column of air of the same height and base—all of which is a tribute to the engineering genuis of Gustave Eiffel.

The fuss about the tower's durability is ironical, since it was never meant to last in the first place.

Eiffel—who also designed the interior trusswork in the Statue of Liberty—conceived the tower only to draw visitors to the Paris Exhibition in 1889. The general assumption was that it would be torn down, like a ferris wheel, once the exhibition was over.

Eiffel obtained a long-term concession on the tower. In the first year, almost two million people visited it and he recovered the construction cost of 7½ million gold francs within six months.

The tower now belongs to the city of Paris and is insured for $50 million against total loss.

About 60 million visitors from France and practically every country in the world have visited it. Last year a record 2.9 million persons climbed to the top for a view of Paris and surrounding countryside.

Muskogee To Keep Batfish

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — The Muskogee Port Authority said Friday it would issue revenue bonds if necessary to assure that as a tourist attraction, the USS Batfish remains in Muskogee.

The World War II submarine has been closed since mid-December at the order of the state Tourism and Recreation Commission because the state Maritime Advisory Board, which oversees the submarine, incurred a $385,000 debt.

The Maritime board was authorized to incur a debt of $200,000 but the commission also was miffed when it learned the board was planning a $1.5-million naval park as a site for the submarine.

'Extra' Seagulls Live High

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — Forty seagulls that landed jobs as extras in a movie being filmed here are living high. They dine on horsemeat stew and sleep in a barn equipped with heat lamps and sandy floors.

And the movie's two stars — also seagulls — have it even better. They stay at the local Holiday Inn in a room with a fine view of the ocean and all the furniture covered with sheets.

The movie is "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," based on Richard Bach's best-selling book on how courage and will power can surmount all obstacles.

Since there are no humans in the cast, a narrator's voice will tell the story and supply the dialogue.

To cast the film, producer Hall Bartlett had to get a permit from the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and agree to capture and release the gulls on a rotating basis, so on one bird would be in captivity too long. Most auditions were held at local garbage dumps, where seagulls tend to congregate.

"They are the most pampered seagulls I've ever seen," reported Charles Strigling, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent who visited the birds. "If they don't release them after three or four days, they get lazy and fat and won't fly like wild gulls any more."

John Knowles Novel Now A Paramount Film

Paramount Pictures' motion picture of "A Separate Peace," based on the celebrated novel by John Knowles, will open on Wednesday at the Cinema I theatre.

Director Larry Peerce teamed with producer Robert A. Goldston to film the novel, from a screenplay by Fred Segal, on location in Exeter, New Hampshire.

Veteran Broadway performer William Roerick joins with eight teen-agers making their motion picture debuts in leading roles of "A Separate Peace."

Portraying students at a private prep school called Devon, the eight are Parker Stevenson, John Heyl, Peter Brush, Victor Bevine, Scott Bradbury, John Mackenzie, Mark Trefethon and Frank Wilich, Jr. Except for Stevenson, all were cast on the campus of Phillips Exeter Academy, in Exeter, where "A Separate Peace" was filmed.

Long on the reading curriculum of schools and colleges throughout the country, "A Separate Peace" has more than 3,500,000 paperback copies in print. It remains a perennial favorite of youth and adults, alike.

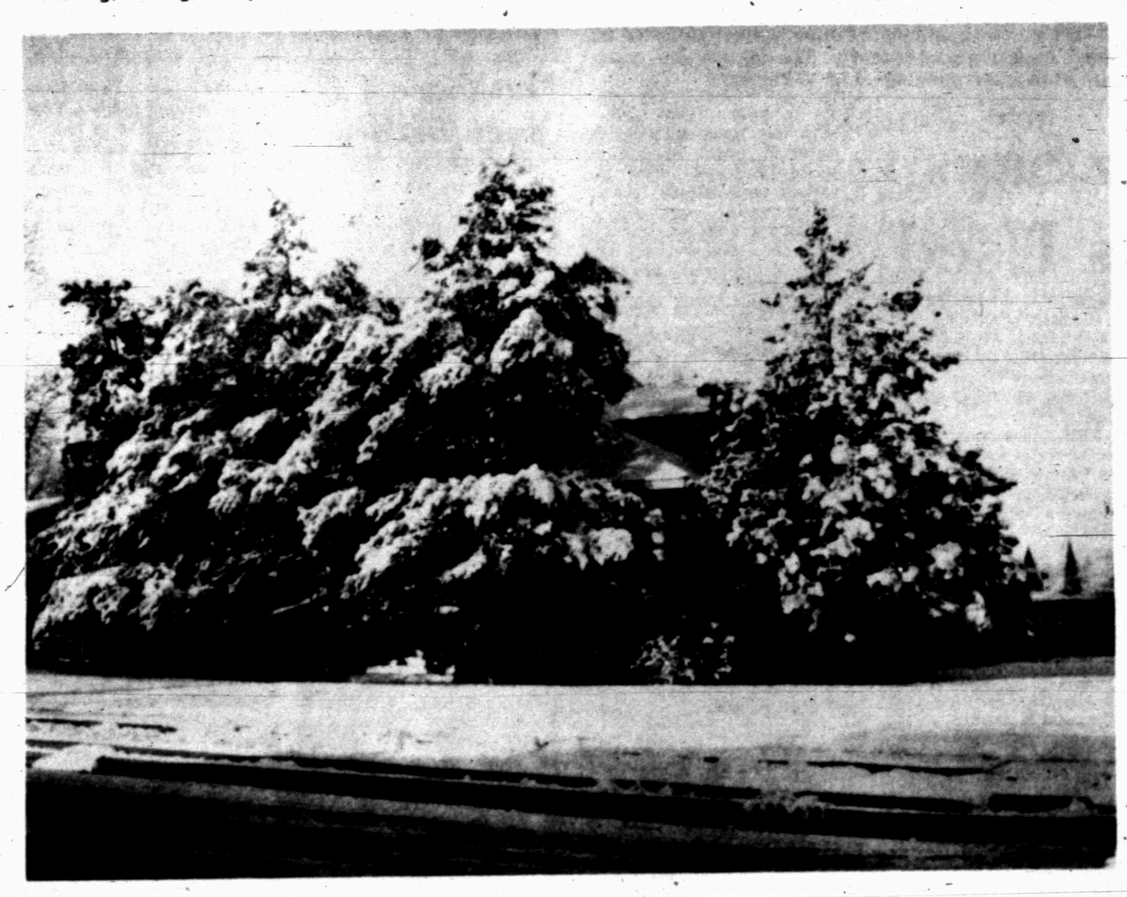

Hangover From A Week Of Ice And Snow

A PLAYGROUND was nearly anywhere, as skating, skiing, or just plain sliding was easy during the big freeze of the past week.

WINDSHIELD SCRAPING became an art which was practiced several times daily, as new surges of sleet and snow kept cars covered.

SCENERY WAS ENHANCED by the snow, however, as trees and shrubbery were transformed into the proverbial winter wonderland.

Agriculture Losses Heavy This Winter

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said Friday this winter has been as severe on Texas farms and ranches as any in recent years.

White said cattle losses are averaging 10 per cent in the High Plains and Panhandle areas, compared with normal winter losses of 1 or 2 per cent.

"Any way you look at it, this winter already has been as severe on Texas agricluture as any in the past several years," he said.

The High Plains cotton crop, still a quarter unharvested, will be hurt because of downgrading of the staple due to ice. Several thousand acres of grain sorghum are in doubt in the plains area, White said; normally the crop would have been harvested weeks ago.

Despite sub-freezing temperatures, damage to citrus and vegetables in the lower Rio Grande valley will be minimal, the commissioner said.

The fireman preferred not to disclose his identity.

OTHER OUTDOOR WORK AT STANDSTILL

Ice Storm Increases Cattle Feeding In Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — The worst ice storm of the winter season slowed farm activities throughout much of the state during the past week, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, said.

Farmers and ranchers were mainly concerned with providing hay and supplemental feed for livestock while other outdoor work was at a virtual standstill, Hutchison said.

A good portion of the cotton crop on the Texas plains is still in the field, he said. About 25 per cent of the crop remains to be harvested in the South Plains.

Small grains and winter pastures needing warm weather and sunshine to make growth for grazing livestock got little relief, and cattle feedrng increased throughout the state. Cattle in many areas are losing flesh due to adverse weather conditions.

Agriculture agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Snow and ice hampered harvest operations. Most of the grain sorghum crop is in but about 40 per cent of the cotton and sugar beets still remain to be harvested. Supplmemental feeding is active due to the snow cover. Wheat is making little growth. Moderate to heavy death losses are being reported in light weight cattle.

South Plains: About 25 per cent of the cotton crop is still in the field. Most gins in the area are waiting for the harvest to resume. Little grazing is available to livestock. Supplemental feeding of livestock is active.

Rolling Plains: About 25 per cent of the cotton crop remains to be harvested. Small grain growth has been stowed. Supplemental feeding is active with some shrinkage of livestock.

North Central: A few fields of cotton remain to be harvested. Some vegetable harvesting was still active in Tarrant County. Pastures and range conditions are generally below average. Livestock feeding is heavy. Calving is proceeding at a normal pace.

Northeast: Cold weather hampered growth of wheat, oats and barley. Some small grains are being top dressed with nitrogen where fields are not too wet. Greenhouse vegetable production is active. A portion of the soybean crop still awaits harvest. Livestock feeding is heavy with some hay shortage being reported.

Far West: Some cotton remains to be harvested in Andrews, Martin, Midland and Glasscock counties. Livestock feeding is increasing. But ranges are providing adequate forage for grazing. Sheep losses due to coyotes have been reported in Crane County.

West Central: A few counties still have cotton to be harvested. Cold weather slowed small grain growth and boosted livestock feeding. Adverse weather has contributed to some livestock losses. Some livestock are being sprayed for lice and ticks.

Central: Cold, wet weather slowed small grain growth and boosted livestock feeding. Increased feeding brought on higher feed costs as well as a shortage of protein supplements in some counties.

East: Small grains are making little growth. Wet fields are hampering grazing in some counties. Pastures and ranges are providing little grazing. Livestock feeding is increasing. There is some weight loss in cattle.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Cold, wet weather added to reduced grazing conditions. Oats are making little growth due. Livestock feeding increased with cattle in generally good condition.

South Central: Small grains made little growth. Livestock feeding has increased.

Southwest: Harvesting of onions, spinach, kale, cabbage, lettuce, carrots and citrus was active in Frio, Dimmit and Zavala counties before the icy weather. Range conditions are declining but small grain pastures are providing some grazing. Livestock are in fair to good condition with some supplemental feeding.

South: Rain and cold weather has slowed vegetable and citrus harvesting in the Rio Grande Valley. Sizing of citrus continued to be a problem in some groves. Pasture and range conditions are generally average with livestock in good shape.
