DEALERS TO HOLD TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION TUESDAY "SPEED" WALLACE AVERAGED BETTER THAN SIXTY MILES PER DAY ON RUN

ARRIVED AT BISMARCK, N. D. AT 9:21 P. M. FRIDAY, APRIL 27TH

MADE TRIP FROM PERRYTON TO NORTH CAP-ITOL IN RECORD TIME OF SEVENTEEN
DAYS THUS ESTABLISHING A CROSS COUNTRY RECORD

Irving "Speed" Wallace established a new record
or long distance running when he raced into Bismarck, the capital city of North Dakota, at exactly 9:21 on last Friday evening, after covering the distance of over 1000 miles between Perryton and Bismarck in the remarkable time of 17 days. His average for the run was a little over sixty miles per day.

Wallace was backed in this run by a group of Perryton business men.
Wallace left Perryton on Wednesday morning, April 11 and made wonderful time right from the start.
He was out to set a record and there was no question but what he did.
His average per day is from 15 to 20 miles above that of the Pyle run from Los Angeles to New York transcontinental runners. A challenge is being issued by Wallace to the runner of the Pyle race for a race
from Canada to Old Mexico.
Wallace carried letters from Mayor F. P. Rogers which were delivered to the governors of North and South Dakota and to the mayors of the larger cities which he passed through on his one man bunion
trip.

Writing from Bismarck on last Friday, "Speed" stated that Charles Kent, sprint champion of the world and known as the world's fastest human, under whose direction and rules this run was made,
had him to slow up at the end of the run. Wallace paid no heed to these suggestions and went right in and finished stronger than he started.
Wallace broadcasted a short resume of his entire trip from Bismarck
last Sunday. He will remain in Bismarck for several days repeating and devoting his time preparing a series of newspaper and magazine stories covering the trip.

Charles Kent, a student of Canterbury College, with his partner, won their fifth game of the I. A. A. meets last week when they defeated Lubbock at the Great Plains contest. On May 13, they won their college game at Denton.
This will be the closing game for the season and as yet these West Texas youths have not been defeated.

WILL MARK ALL EX- SERVICE MEN'S GRAVES

The Plains Johnson post of the American Legion of this city is very anxious to ascertain the names and place of burial of all ex-service men who have served in the World War and who are buried in any cemetery in the vicinity of Perryton. They want to get a list of all who died during the war or at any time since
and who in either the army, navy or marine corps at any time during the war.

It is the intention of the Legion to mark all graves with a permanent bronze marker upon which the deceased man's name will be engraved. The Ladies Auxiliary Unit of the local post will place a flag on the grave of every ex-service man on December Day. Any information regarding the above will be appreciated by the Legion and the Auxiliary. If you know of an ex-service man, who is buried in this locality, get in touch with C. B. Rogers, Legion post commander, or Mrs. Van W. Wooten, president of the Auxiliary Unit.

The Auxiliary also would like to have the names of all old soldiers who are buried near Perryton, as they would like to have flags on their graves on December Day.

Car Turns Over Twice

Occupants Miraculously Escape
Serious Injury When Sedan
Makes Double Flop

G. C. Smith and son, Dean; W.
O. Wood and son, Ralph; and Harry Miller narrowly escaped serious injury when the Dodge sedan, driven by Mr. Smith, blew a tire, going into the ditch and turned over twice on the highway three miles north of town on Tuesday afternoon.

They were returning to their homes in Beaver County after attending the Equity meeting and trading in this city. The car was a complete wreck. Harry Miller's injuries were more severe than any of the others. He was unconscious when picked up. Mr. Miller, Ralph Wood and Dean Smith were brought to Perryton for medical attention but all doctors here were out on calls so they were taken to Gray by W. R. Caylor where they had their wounds dressed. It is thought that none of their injuries will prove serious.

OPEN HOUSE ON MONDAY, MAY 7

ALL SCHOOLS IN PERRYTON
DISTRICT WILL WELCOME
VISITORS ON MONDAY
AFTERNOON

The schools of Perryton Independent District will be suspended Monday at noon, May 7, and a half holiday will follow. Every school will have a display of work done
this year and every person who can do so is urged to visit the schools.
The rural schools will have their own exhibits this time, rather than bringing the exhibits to town. There is to be no judging this time and this makes it possible for schools
to have exhibits "at home".

Many people have not been through the new building in Perryton and every one is invited to come and go through the entire system and visit all departments.
A recital is being arranged by Mrs. Davis for 3:00 in the Auditorium.

CONSIDERS TWO HIGHWAY PLANS

STATE TO EXAMINE BOTH OF
THE PROPOSED ROUTES
AND DECIDE ON MATTER

W. T. Fleeson representing the Perryton Chamber of Commerce appeared before the Texas State Highway commission at Austin last Tuesday and presented to the commission
two proposed routes asking for state designation.

One of the routes is known as the Uncle Sam highway from Oklahoma City to Denver. The stretch of road from the Oklahoma-Texas line just east of Higgins to Perryton and across the Oklahoma Panhandle is the only portion of the road that is not a state highway.

The other route brought before the commission was the Perryton-Booker-Follett road which is a continuation of the Perryton-Spearman highway which was recently designated as a state highway.

The commission decided to send a state highway engineer to Perryton in the near future to examine the two proposed routes.

Information was also asked the commission as to the proposed route from Perryton to Pampa and it was learned that the state would not allow a toll bridge on a state highway but that they would grant permission for the bridging of the Canadian river with a toll bridge should the route be made a county highway and maintained as such.

Mrs. J. O. Wooten left Monday in her car for Oklahoma City where she will meet Mr. Wooten. Mr.
Wooten shipped a carload of horses
from Perryton to the Kansas City market last Thursday. He returned by way of Oklahoma City where he looked after business interests.

jured While Cleaning Dress

Though still in a critical condition
it is thought she will recover.

WHEELER PLAYS BALL HERE SUN.

PERRYTON WINS FROM GOOD-WELL LAST SUNDAY BY
SCORE 8-1. "SUG"
FANS 18 MEN

The fast Wheeler baseball club
is coming to Perryton next Sunday and that means the fans will see a real ball game. The boys from Wheeler always have a good team and from the wins they have been registering this season, this years club is no exception. The Perryton club is rounding into shape and it looks as though we are going to have one of the best teams that has ever represented the town.

The game last Sunday with Good-well resulted in a victory for the locals by a score of 8-1. "Sug" Edwards, Perryton twirler, had the boys from Oklahoma at his mercy.
The final check-up showing that he had struck out 18 Mitchemson,
the Goodwell pitcher, threw a nice game, and the game would have been much closer if he had had the right kind of support. He allowed 10 hits and was credited with 7 strike outs. The Goodwell boys got 6 hits off of Edwards.

The Perryton line-up was as follows: Young, catcher; Edwards,
pitcher; Lackey, first base; Drake,
second base; Chase, shortstop; Duncan, third base; Young, left field;
Caylor, center field; Talley, right field.

WHEN OPINIONS CHANGE THE HIGH PRICE OF BOOKS AIRPLANES AND EQUALITY AN UNWISE TAX

The German and Irish fliers insert the words: "Thank God," or "By the Grace of God," in every message describing their safe landing through fog or storm across the ocean after thirty-six hours of danger.

The professional atheist, unwilling to believe anything that "has not been proved to him," would find his opinions changing, in a big earthquake, or above the ocean in a fog.

Senators denounce the high price of books.

Mr. McKellar, from Tennessee, says: "Novels worth 'two bits' can not be bought for less than $2.00."

The price of novels is not so important. But the high cost of books containing positive knowledge, that would enable uneducated millions (including many college graduates) to educate themselves, is disastrous.

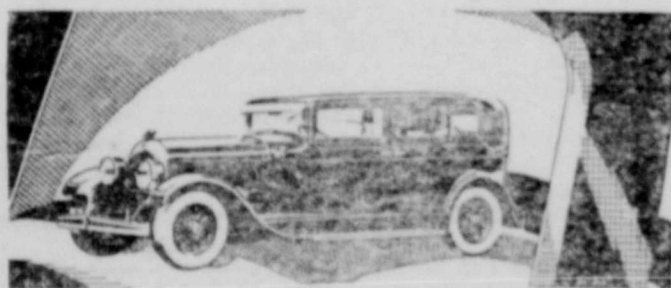

That a book should be sold for four or five times what it costs to produce it is as bad for the publisher and for the author, as for the reading public.

When will American business generally learn that big sales with small profits, as shown in the automobile industry, are most profitable.

Lindbergh took thirty-six young Pacific Coast girls up in the air, in instalments yesterday, giving those charming creatures something to talk about forever.

Women may thank the good Lord for granting the flying machine. They can fly on the average as well as any man, and the airplane is classified.

See the "72" romp away from them all

The one great outstanding fact in automobiles today is that, while practically every car that runs is patterned after Chrysler—the illustrious "72" continues to romp away from and around them all in every phase of performance that makes motoring a pleasure. Which can and does mean only one thing, of course—that since it can quickly be proven that Chrysler "72" excels every car which seeks to compete with it without a single exception, it unmistakably gives the greatest monetary and performance return which exists in the world's motor-car market today.

Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Prices—Two-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $1545; Royal Sedan, $1595; Sport Roadster (with rumble seat), $1595; Four-passenger Coupe, $1595; Town Sedan, $1695; Convertible Coupe (with rumble seat), $1745; Crown Sedan, $1795. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax. Chrysler dealers are in a position to extend the convenience of time payments.

Your Flower Garden

By Romaine B. Ware

Gardening in Limited Space

If gardening time is limited you will have to plan to get the most out of it. The success of your garden is measured by the amount of bloom you get for the time you spend upon it. And the size of the garden is also controlled by the time you can give it. It would be foolish for you to have too large a garden.

To get the greatest amount of bloom with the least time and effort takes careful planning and the selection of the right flowers. I am today suggesting a group of annuals that will give you the maximum bloom at the least outlay in both cash and care. These ten annuals are of the easiest culture, and every one of them may be depended upon to give their full quota of bloom. They may all be started from the seed and will require the minimum of care. There are many more that might be added, but these will give you a good selection for both garden display and cutting.

Here are the ten: Cosmos, Bachelor Buttons, Zinnias, Gypsophila (annual), Larkspur, Gaillardia, Nasturtiums, Poppies, Stocks and Petunias. Poppies, Stocks and Petunias of all heights, and can arrange your borders to look well with the taller ones in the rear and the shorter to the front.

In a border that is open upon both sides, plant the taller things in the center and the shorter toward the edges. Do not follow this rule too closely, as your borders do not want to have a set appearance. If you should study the effects of flowers as grown in their wild state, you will learn a great deal that will help you to make your garden a thing of beauty. The wild things have a way of their own in growing, and you can get many ideas from them that will be well worth while. Mother Nature is a wonderful teacher if you will only listen to her.

In some future article I will list ten perennials that will be permanent, and also fill the above requirements. Perennials are the backbone of the garden, and you will eventually want a goodly showing of them.

FAT

By Dr. Frank Crane

There used to be a line in a play that went, "Nobody loves a fat man." At least nowadays no woman wants to be fat.

There is just one cause of fat, however. People should remember that they never put anything on their abdomen or hips in the way of fat that does not come through their mouth in the way of food.

It is nice to talk about these things and it is less humiliating than to admit that we eat too much.

The real cause of fat is that we eat too much and live too much at ease.

If some of the ladies who complain of too much obese tissue would make a practice of taking the broom and sweeping the floor and getting down on their knees and mopping up the kitchen and doing the family wash, they would speedily recover their desire for slenderness.

The candy habit grows and grows. No better cure for an enlarged abdomen can be found than bending over a wash board and no better cure for piano-shaped legs than plenty of walking.

If we would get down to the simple life and move about more and eat less our figure would show it.

Exercise for the sake of exercise is pretty hard to take, but exercise performed in the course of one's daily duties is not so hard.

One ought to arrange one's life as much as possible to wait on one's self. The necessary action of the body in attending to one's needs will have a great effect upon one's shape.

I met a man in Paris some years ago and when I asked him on behalf of a friend where a good valet could be secured he replied that he did not know about valets, as for some years he had been trying to see how many things he could get along without and not how many things he could get.

See how much you can do without and arrange your life as much as possible so that you have to wait on yourself and you will not have much trouble with your figure.

It cost about one third of an acre to cultivate row crops of eight acres or more. Fields of 18 acres or more, one-half acre to cultivate with one-row cultivator, and a two-row cultivator, the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station find.

"BEAU GESTE" MADE ON ARIZONA DESERT

The screen version of one of the most popular romantic action novels in recent years, "Beau Geste," will make its appearance on Friday and Saturday at the American Theatre.

This thrilling story of romance, mystery and adventure in the French Foreign Legion with the theme of the devotion of three brothers powerfully depicted, has been transferred to the screen by Paramount on a scale never surpassed by any previous production.

For the filming of this novel, Di-rector Herbert Brenon led an army of 2000 men into the Great American Desert for three months during which the exterior scenes were made. The camp was built in a sand basin 30 miles from any habitation and the entire company worked straight through, without a day's rest, from 5:30 each morning till sunset.

Ronald Colman plays the title part, that of the eldest of three brothers who each leave home without telling the others, to enlist in the French Foreign Legion under assumed names in order to shield each other from the blame for the theft of a famous sapphire. Neil Hamilton and Ralph Forbes enact the other brothers.

The brave defense by forty leg-ionnaires of a lonely fort in the Sahara when it is attacked by count-ess hordes of mounted desert war-riors, Touaregs, bring the story to its climax. It also causes Noah Beery, as the brutal adjutant, "the cruelest beast and bravest soldier" in the Legion, to reach the pinnacle of his notable screen career.

Other prominent players in "Beau Geste" include Alice Joyce, Mary Brian, William Powell, Norman Trevor and Victor McLaglan.

Mrs. Letha Bartlett and her sister, Miss Betty Nelson of Good-well, Okla. visited with friends in Perryton Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Flowers and children, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cooper and Miss Ruby Keith visited with Mr. and Mrs. Noel Keith, Canadian Sun-day.

Where Will You Be At Seventy?

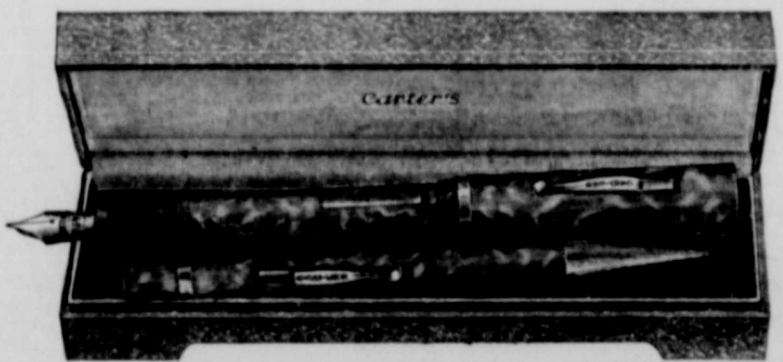

RECENT investigations have shown that a large number of persons are dependent on relatives or charity in their old age.

When the autumn of life approaches, and the leaves of youthful vim and enthusiasm fall, it is extremely difficult for any person, no matter how able, these investigations prove, to compete in the world of business and commerce.

What better insurance against dependence in old age than a savings account in a bank? One dollar will start you on the road to economic security!

INTEREST IS GROWING IN STATE CONVENTION

Reports from over the state of Texas indicate that the interest in the Amarillo State Christian Endeavor convention is growing. The convention is being financed by the investment certificate or registration plan. The investment certificate contest opened with great success, in fact there was a "stampede" for first place with five districts tying for flag number one. The sixth flag has since been won and several districts are very near to the goal. The five districts tying for first place are Austin, Beaumont, Dallas, Valley and Houston. The sixth flag was won by Midland district. Each district will march in the big parade according to the honor received in the contest.

Houston and Dallas districts are coming to Amarillo after the 1929 convention. Both districts will

GAS

Wet or Dry Gasoline?

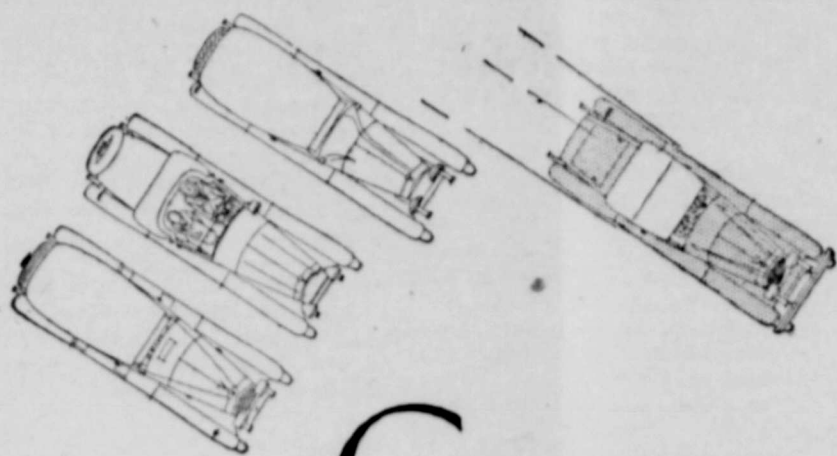

A WET gas is a mixture of gasoline vapor and fine drops of liquid gasoline. It is the cause of unequal cylinder distribution that shows itself in less-than-maximum pick-up, sluggish power and lost mileage.

A dry gas, formed by the New and Better TEXACO, is a perfect mixture of gasoline vapor and air. Dry gas equalizes cylinder distribution and gives a smooth power flow to every cylinder, hence greater mileage.

COMPRESSION

[That higher compression power you paid for in your new car demands a Gasoline designed for it—]

MANY cars of 1926-7, and still more cars of 1927-8, simply cannot give you their best results on old-style gasolines. Compression ratios are higher and piston speeds are different.

A different gasoline with a different way of acting is required if you are to get the maximum results in ease and mastery in the new set of traffic conditions that you face. To get these results, fill up with the new Texaco Gasoline which is designed to meet these new conditions.

One hundred per cent vapor at the spark!—that is how Texaco, the new and better Gasoline, feeds—and its dryness (*) gives even the oldest cars appreciably better performance. Unsuitable gasolines form a wet gas—a mixture of vapor with drops of liquid gasoline which choke the power.

Fill up with Texaco, the Gasoline that forms a dry gas. Buy it wherever you are, at the sign of the Texaco Red Star and Green T.

START TO FORM CEMETERY ASSN.

TO COMPLETE ORGANIZATION AT WILSON FUNERAL HOME ON NEXT SUNDAY, MAY SIXTH AT 2:30

At a meeting held at the Ochiltree cemetery last Sunday afternoon, preliminary steps were taken concerning the organization of a cemetery association. The meeting was presided over by Judge J. M. Bull as chairman and talks were made by Commissioner R. A. Fuller and Attorney Jack Allen.

The meeting selected a nominating committee composed of Dave Shanks, chairman; F. P. Rogers, R. A. Fuller, Geo. B. Jackson and Jack Allen, to nominate an organization committee. This organization committee is composed of the following:

W. F. Taylor, Fred Tarbox, J. M. Blodgett, J. V. Stump, H. T. Gilliam, R. A. Fuller, Tom Hoghland, G. C. Brillhart, Ernest Tindle, E. L. Whipple, E. W. Rogers, J. W. Richardson, A. L. Carter, A. F. Cutler, J. S. Talley, Geo. B. Jackson, Sibley Jines, C. E. McLarty, Carl Ellis, R. C. Allen, R. T. Correll, C. W. Callaway, G. R. Wilson, Jno. N. Stump, J. R. McMillen, F. P. Rogers, Mrs. P. H. Sebastian, Mrs. J. T. Guthrie, J. P. Bollinger, Ernest Records, Mrs. W. R. Garrett, B. B. Kent, W. B. LaMaster, J. M. North, Mrs. A. F. Stark, J. H. Norwood, Geo. M. Perry, R. C. Johnson, and Mrs. W. D. Myers.

R. C. Johnson was designated chairman of the organization committee and this committee will meet at the Wilson Funeral Home, Sunday afternoon, May 6th, promptly at 2:30 p. m. to discuss plans of perfecting the organization.

It is the general opinion that the association should be incorporated and secure a charter and operate as a corporation. This is a matter which should receive the consideration and attention of every good citizen, in fact, it is imperative that something be done immediately with a view of keeping the cemetery in better condition.

better condition. For the past few years the County has assisted financially in the up-keep of the cemetery but the court has gone on record in favor of discontinuing this aid, in fact an order has been passed to that effect. It is now up to those interested, and all should be interested, to beautify our cemetery and render all assistance possible. The cemetery is an ideal location and we should all be glad to assist in its beautification and up-keep.

GREAT PLAINS HIGHWAY MEET

MANY FROM PERRYTON AND ALONG ROUTE WILL ATTEND CONVENTION AT ABILENE

Perryton will send delegation of twenty-five to thirty representatives to the annual convention of the Great Plains Highway Association which will be held at Abilene, Texas, on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 15 and 16. Much interest is being manifested along the entire route from Regina, Canada to the Mexican border in this, the third convention of this great highway system.

Prior conventions have been one day affairs but on account of the greater interest that is now being taken in the route, it was decided to hold a two day session this year. The Abilene chamber of commerce has planned an extensive program of entertainment to supplement the business sessions of the meeting.

Delegations will be in attendance from Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota and Canada. Invitations have been extended to the Calles government to have them send representatives for the ultimate southern terminus of this great international highway is Mexico City.

AUXILIARY TO SELL POPPIES

MADE BY DISABLED SOLDIER BOYS IN GOVERNMENT HOSPITALS; MONEY GOES TO THEM

At the last meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary Unit of the Pierce Johnson American Legion post, it was decided that the Unit would sponsor the Memorial Day Poppy sale. The annual poppy sale has become a national event since it was started a few short years ago.

Poppies sold in Texas are made by the disabled ex-service men who are in the Fort Root hospital. These veterans are able to make about $12.00 a week making the poppies which carry the official sticker of the American Legion and the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary has ordered 1000 poppies and every citizen will be expected to buy one or more. Wear a poppy on Memorial Day, thus showing that you have not forgotten those that gave their lives for our country. Buy a poppy and help the poor body-wrecked boys who gave their best to make our country safe. People are prone all too soon to forget the heroes of the World War. They should visit the many government hospitals scattered throughout the United States. There are thousands of men in those hospitals who will never leave until they are carried out in a flag draped casket.

When you are asked to "Buy A Poppy", don't hesitate, go down in your pocket, buy as many as you can and pay as much as you can afford. It is for those heroes that gave their life's blood on Flanders Fields.

START TO FORM CEMETERY ASSN.

TO COMPLETE ORGANIZATION AT WILSON FUNERAL HOME ON NEXT SUNDAY, MAY SIXTH AT 2:30

At a meeting held at the Ochiltree cemetery last Sunday afternoon, preliminary steps were taken concerning the organization of a cemetery association. The meeting was presided over by Judge J. M. Bull as chairman and talks were made by Commissioner R. A. Fuller and Attorney Jack Allen.

The meeting selected a nominating committee composed of Dave Shanks, chairman; F. P. Rogers; R. A. Fuller; Geo. B. Jackson and Jack Allen, to nominate an organization committee. This organization committee is composed of the following: W. F. Taylor, Fred Tarbox, J. M. Blodgett, J. V. Stump, H. T. Gilliam, R. A. Fuller, Tom Hogland, G. C. Brillhart, Ernest Tindle, E. L. Whippo, E. W. Rogers, J. W. Richardson, A. L. Carter, A. F. Cutter, J. S. Talley, Geo. B. Jackson, Sibley Jones, C. E. McLarty, Carl Ellis, R. C. Allen, R. T. Correll, C. W. Callaway, G. R. Wilson, Jno. N. Stump, J. R. McMillen, P. P. Rogers, Mrs. P. H. Sebastian, Mrs. J. T. Guthrie, J. P. Bollinger, Ernest Records, Mrs. W. R. Garrett, B. B. Kent, W. B. LaMaster, J. M. North, Mrs. A. P. Stark, J. H. Norwood, Geo. M. Perry, E. C. Johnson, and Mrs. W. D. Myers.

R. C. Johnson was designated chairman of the organization committee and this committee will meet at the Wilson Funeral Home, Sunday afternoon, May 6th, promptly at 2:30 p. m. to discuss plans of perfecting the organization.

It is the general opinion that the association should be incorporated and secure a charter and operate as a corporation. This is a matter which should receive the consideration and attention of every good citizen, in fact, it is imperative that something be done immediately with a view of keeping the cemetery in better condition.

For the past few years the County has assisted financially in the up-keep of the cemetery but the court has gone on record in favor of discontinuing such aid, in fact an order has been passed to that effect. It is now up to those interested, and all should be interested, to beautify our cemetery and render all assistance possible. The cemetery is an ideal location and we should all be glad to assist in its beautification and up-keep.

CHAPTER VI

For two days she had had a knife. Now, in the mid-hours of the third night, she was again lying in the cabin awake.

She was thinking of a remark of Burke's several times repeated, which had assumed the significance of a threat. "Better volunteer that kiss while the volunteering's easy," he had warned, his grim good humor in the last hour or two, as she felt, growing a little thin. "For I can tell y'his: There won't be no evading the draft—once she clamps down."

What had he meant?

When Palmyra came on deck on this the fourth day of her captivity, she saw that Ponape Burke was in an ugly mood.

The man greeted her with alcoholic leer, his infantile features shocking in their age-old depravity.

When she shrank back into the companion he was amused. "Come, come, Queenie," he roared. "Are y'ready with that kiss?" He belabored with laughter. Then, when she did not advance, he changed to the quick anger of intoxication. "Have it yer way, Miss Tree—Miss Palm Tree," he said thickly. "But 'twon't be long before you're down on yer shins a-praying the Lord for just one chance t'beg me t'take the dam' kiss—and you sick with fear I won't want it."

Ponape rolled aft to the girl. "Sweetheart," he said, "I'm going t'part with you."

She did not understand. "Dam' them Japs!" he exploded, his temper taking a new direction. "Twas their man-o-war we sighted last midwatch."

So that had been the cause of the alert watch, with its brief but real excitement.

The man's suggestion of parting with her, the possibility of Japanese intervention, had brought the color of hope to her cheeks.

But he, returning now, struck at that hope with malicious perception. "Oh, safe enough in three or four days," he reassured. "They'll be gone then for a good six months. It's only in the meantime we got t'lay low. But in the meantime—ruin everything you've caught a-board."

She tried to fathom his purpose. "I'm going t'jettison you. Y'shall stop ashore."

She stared at him. Incredible hope roused again, only to fall before his expression. He had not the slightest thought of relinquishing her.

Burke was amused. "'Tis a bonny isle," he said, "and you'll have naught t'do but sit and think o' me."

The girl's spirits rose. She did not question that this would be some depot of his, a place of servile natives. But, even so, her position would be better. Surely, among them all, must be those to understand, to respond to her plea for protection.

She was eager to go. But she thought it wise to seem indifferent. She waited until Burke turned away, then scanned the sea.

As the day wore on toward its close she worked herself into a passion of suspense, apprehension. Burke was still drinking; what if night should find her aboard?

And then, when it seemed she could stand no more, she discovered that the man Olive, grinning enthusiastically, was putting water, ship's biscuit and some other stores into a boat.

In surprise, she swept the sea again—and found it blank. "Why, when do we get there?" she asked of Burke.

He smiled sardonically. "We're there now," he answered.

She was completely at a loss. He handed her his binoculars. "Hard a-starboard," he directed.

Presently she made out, through the glasses, that which might be the crest of palms. The island seemed far distant.

But the Pigeon of Noah had held to her course for no great time when her master gave the order to heave to, and lower away the boat. "But it's so far," she hesitated. Burke winked at Olive, already at the oars, then dropped over the side without reply. Palmyra, disdaining his proffered hand, followed. The savage bent to his work and they were away, under the stare of the crew.

All too soon the girl saw why she had thought the island distant. As with each stroke of the oars it rose in its stark meagerness, her heart sank. So small, so flat, its four cocoa-palms so stunted, it was well nigh invisible to the novice.

The moment her feet touched the sand she hurled herself at the white man.

"Belay there, sweetheart," he laughed, retreating. "Steady does it. Didn't I tell y'you'd have plenty o'time t'sit and think o'me?"

Y'got water and stores for six weeks or so and housekeeping'll be easy-like," grinned her despot. "Y'just set in the shade and munch y' o'time t'sit and think o'me?"

"And then, sometime, maybe you'll sight the old Pigeon loafing by. And if you're tired o'yer own company, y'can his yer hanky for a signal. And perhaps I'll be such a good kind gent as t'lay y'aboard again, me understanding what you're after is t'rush up and give me that kiss."

He turned as if to go. Then, casually in a well-considered effect, he called Olive to fetch that of which the girl had not thought in days—a pink silk parasol.

With a flourish Ponape Burke presented this gay trifle which, alone of all the world that she had known, had escaped the deluge. "For my queen," he said with mock ceremony. Fresh completed folks has a tender skin. If queenie should show up offering a kiss all blistered like a billed lobster—why, maybe that kiss wouldn't so much be wanted. And remember: 'tis a kiss, free given and free taken, pays a passage from this reef."

He sprang upon the slooping back of his fellow to be carried to the boat. He rode high, his legs on either side of the brown torso doubled, and supported by Olive's hand, under each shin, as a stirrup.

When the boat had cleared the reef, Ponape Burke rose to wave her a jaunty adieu.

When they were half way to the lagoon, the girl uttered a sob and, flinging down the parasol, ran after them until she stood in the surf. Then, slowly, she turned and came back to the palms and threw herself upon the sand—prone.

And, oddly enough, as she lay, it was not the white man's cruel humor that revolted her so much as the brown man's mirth. For Burke had a purpose, but Olive's was a mere savage delight in pain.

She had said that in the whole world she alone was alive. Now, however, across the coral clinkers a something was coming, moving eccentrically, yet approaching at an alarming speed. A something alive? It was gay with red polka-dots; it ran with the exaggeration of a toy, seeming about to stumble at each step, yet zigzagging over the clinkers in an astonishing ease and rapidity.

Unexpectedly, the girl laughed. This nursery boat would presumably be no more than a land crab.

Somewhat intimidated, however, she backed a step further up the palm. The intruder on her island—or was she not rather the intruder?—hastened toward her, claws already half extended, as a hostess with hands out to greet a belated guest.

The polka-dotted crab went "polka-doddering" on its way. It had kept her mind, for the moment, from the fact that the sun was sinking at a frightful speed.

And then, there flashed back into her mind a word Burke had taught her, a native name for the monstrous robber crab. It was ungra po—the night crab! In fright she sprang up, stared around. The very fact she had seen the one, presupposed presence of the other. To realize that her polka-dotted absurdity might now be blundering near in search of prey was sufficiently disquieting; proximity of its fierce cousin legitimately alarming. For, with claws more than a foot long, it could snap the strongest bonito line like a thread, crush the bones of a man's fingers, cripple for life the wrist of a well grown youth.

Horror returned upon her. She struggled back to her observation post. She must sight a ship instantly—now, now! now!

Olive, at the mast, grinned none

By day the lowness of the land had brought the skyline closer than she had ever imagined.

She thought of herself as the only living being in the whole world. Now she, seemed the only living being in all the universe—with the eyes of that universe centered upon her.

But, suddenly, from out the darkness, there came a hoarse cry. The girl doubled into a ball, automatically, as sometimes, one awakened by a crash of thunder.

An interval; then she sat up and laughed—janglingly but with a good courage. It had been only a bird.

As Palmyra had been caught unawares by the approach of night, she now, with the eastern skies aglow with the coming day, she was again unawares, lying deep in slumber.

The sun, at his setting, had paused to implant upon her cheek a goodnight kiss. And it was not now until he had stolen clear round the world to bestow an awakening kiss upon the other cheek, had surmounted the Chinese wall of vapor raised against him by the morning bank, that her eyes opened.

As the girl stood watching the everchanging panorama, she became aware that the waters abounded in life.

That bit of water upon which her gaze chanced to be fixed rose up into a peak and their appeared a dark round object which resembled a head.

For a long minute she covered her eyes with her hands. Then she gathered courage at last to look. The head, bobbing up and down like a cork, was coming as fast as a boat. Presently, as she stared it reached the surf at a narrow opening of the reef. A few more strokes of arms, thick and brown, and the head of an islander rose dripping from the water.

And then it was that Palmyra uttered another cry. For she saw a copper face with great square teeth clamped on a knife—a knife that did not hide the ferocious grin which had haunted her since she first saw it thus under her spotlight: the face of the brown man Olive!

When the face of the savage materialized to her view, the voice of the surf drowned that wail with which Palmyra Tree cowered back behind her screen.

The swimmer, rising from the brine, paused knee-deep to shake himself like a dog. Then he plucked the knife from between his teeth, thrust it into the leather sheath on his belt and came splashing ashore. He did not hesitate, but made direct for her hiding place, the only cover.

The girl sprang away in flight. The brown man, beaming terrifically, followed. She ran, stumbling now and again on the coral clinkers, until she reached land's end, and then on, as far as she could, along the reef a-wash. Seizing from the water a broken knob of coral, she faced the savage. When he reached the edge of the sand, she hurled it at him. Then her hand rose toward her dress where her own knife waited.

the less. Indeed, he seemed unaware of it, though it passed within a foot of his head. But it did, nevertheless, have an effect—one quite unexpected. For he sat down, cross-legged, on the sand. He broke into the animation of speech.

He stood up, and the girl's hand flew back toward her weapon. But he came no nearer. To her surprise, he turned and went strutting away toward the clump of palms. There he beckoned her to follow.

First, the savage pulled two of the half-grown coconuts. With his knife he cut through the two-inch green husk of one and exposed the lower end of the shell. From this, with three taps of the blade, he knocked a round cap. He took a big draft of the liquid within—cool, slightly acid, clear as water. Then he opened the second nut, brought it half way toward her, left it upright in the sand. She was, it seemed, invited to drink.

Turning to the clump of pandanus, he hacked out a short slim pole. This he next, with cord from her stores, lashed across the top of his uprights. Then he marched away toward the reef and, reaching out as one might to pick a kitten up by the neck, snatched a fish from a pocket in the coral. This fish, flopping vigorously, he bound to the crossbar of a dwarfed football goal.

The girl had been watching these moves breathlessly, wonder for the moment getting the better of fear. Not until he fetched the fish did she have any theory. Then it flashed into her mind that barbarous peoples always propitiated their deities with food offerings. Could this be a sort of altar. Did the savage seek to further his purpose?

But Olive gave no sign. With the last turn of the cord about the struggling fish, he strode away to the shade of the palms and, throwing himself down on his back, was almost instantly asleep.

Palmyra, crouching in the sun, stared at the figure. She was astonished. How was it physically possible for him thus to fall in slumber?

Whence had this man come, and—why? Could Ponape have sent him to terrorize her? Or had the savage . . .

She gave a shudder. She snatched the knife from her dress. She gripped its handle; she began to crawl toward that terrible figure.

But presently she hesitated, stopped. With a groan she sank down. She dropped the knife, buried her face in her hands. In resistance she could have fought like a tiger. But thus to creep upon a sleeping man?

For a time there seemed no alternative. Then she roused at the realization that, if she could not murder a sleeping man, she could at least disarm him. With Olive deprived of that knife, and her own retained, who could tell? She might have some shred of chance.

She put the blade into her dress and began again to crawl forward. She had got within a dozen feet of the savage, moving with caution, when unexpectedly, easily, almost as it seemed automatically, he opened his eyes and sat up. It was as if he had not been asleep at all;

had, from the beginning, been waiting for her to do so. The girl shrank back, her with his strange smile expanded into a joke. He settled instantly returned to his solitude, there came had not been Olive circled land and scrutiny.

Tuesday May 8 1928

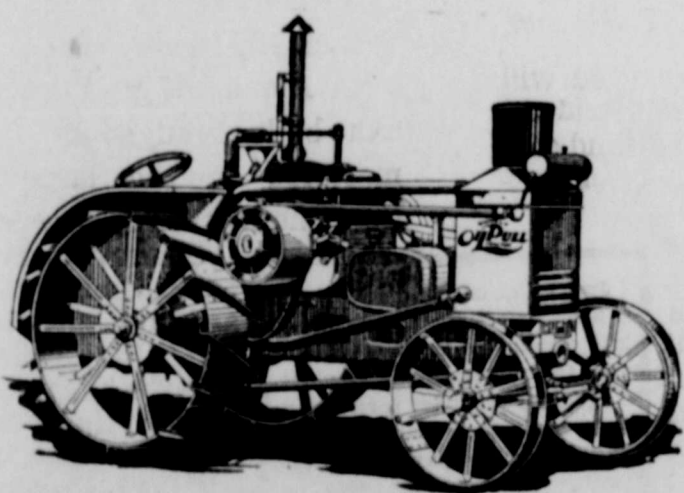

Jno. N. Stump & Company will demonstrate the 12-20 and the 18-32 Case tractors, pulling one-way plows as well as showing the new deep furrow Superior drill.

The Hobbs Motor Company will demonstrate the 17-30 Minneapolis tractor.

The White House Lumber Company will demonstrate the 15-27 John Deere tractor, pulling the 6-disc plow and the John Deere Disc Tiller.

The W. H. Douglas Grain Company will demonstrate the 20-30 Rumely and the 15-25 Emerson tractors, each pulling the Emerson 10-foot one-way plow.

Allis-Chalmers Tractors

O. C. Bell will demonstrate the 20-35 Allis-Chalmers tractor hitched to the one-way plow.

One hundred acres of ground have been devoted to this demonstration and each and every tractor will be given a tract of land to be handled in the way the demonstrator sees fit. The land has not been plowed since the 1926 wheat crop and should prove a stiff test for the various tractors.

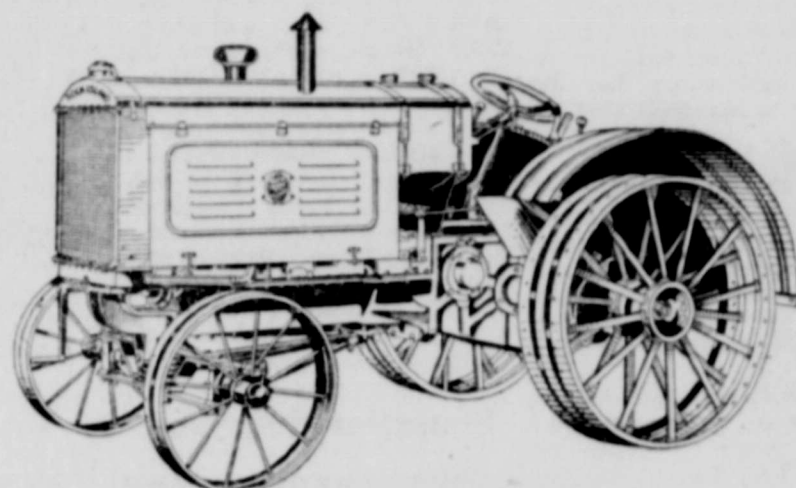

This tractor demonstration is not a competitive event. It is purely and simply a demonstration to show how each tractor will handle the work for which it is intended. A competent field manager will be in charge of the demonstration to supervise the setting of plows and checking of results.

Every one interested in tractors is extended a cordial invitation to attend the demonstration. Several of the dealers are arranging for factory experts and representatives to be here for the event. Without doubt the demonstration will prove interesting and well worth attending.

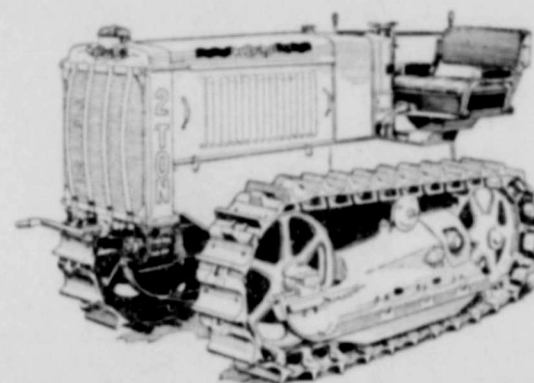

15 Tractors Demonstrated

Fifteen tractors will be demonstrated, manufactured by eleven different implement firms, namely: Case, Minneapolis, John Deere, Oil Pull, Emerson, Allis-Chalmers, Rock Island, Caterpillar, International, Hart-Parr and Twin City, all of which are handled by Perryton farm machinery dealers.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

When putting away the woollens, let us not forget that modern science teaches us several interesting things about moths.

First, that contrary to old beliefs—FLYING MOTHS DO NOT EAT WOOL. It is the tiny worms hatched from their eggs that do the damage.

Killing flying moths, then doesn't guarantee protection, for invariably, when seen flying, they have already deposited the eggs on woollens somewhere about the house.

Moth balls, cedar chests and other "smelly" compounds have no effect on the hatching of moth eggs. So the only sure way to combat them is to mothproof fabrics themselves.

This may be done by immersion in gasoline; by spraying with an odorless, colorless moth-proofing solution, or by washing in water containing an odorless moth-proofing powder that gives the same result. This treatment makes fabrics so distasteful to moth worms that they will starve rather than feed on them.

"Making Their Own"

Now and then let the children make their own candy—like we used to do. Show them how to measure and prepare this simple recipe which makes two pans of pure, delicious candy, and keeps them interested too:

2 cups granulated sugar (beet or cane), a pinch of salt, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, water to measure. Let come to a boil; add 1/4 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons sharp vinegar and a lump of butter. Cook until a firm ball forms in cold water; flavor and PULL.

Three Shortenings for Cake

Many modern recipes give us the alternative of using either butter, margarine or whipped cream in making cakes. When margarine is used for shortening, a little less is required, for it contains less water and more fat than butter. One and a half cups of whipped cream equals a half cup of butter for use in cakes.

Keeps Cut Ham Fresh

In slicing from a large ham, rub the cut side and bone with salt. This will keep the ham wholesome.

CHEVROLET ANNOUNCES NEW CONVERTIBLE SPORT MODEL

Pioneering into the low priced automobile field distinctive style features, the Chevrolet Motor Company, today, announces a new Convertible Sport Cabriolet with body by Fisher, listing at $695 f. o. b. Flint, Michigan.

Combining all closed car advantages of the sport cabriolet with the open car features of the roadster, this latest offering of the world's largest automobile producing company is ideally suited to every type of weather under all kinds of driving conditions.

Of two to four passenger capacity, the convertible cab with the top up resembles the sport cabriolet in appearance. The top, however, is fully collapsible and folds so completely out of the way that full vision ahead is possible from the rumble seat. An additional feature is the inclusion of a nickel banding around the windows which gives them rigidity and permits of raising the windows, with the top lowered, as an extra protective against the wind.

Finished in Roman red, with black body beading striped in gold, and embellished with artistic touches of polished nickel, the new model sounds a distinctive style note in the field of low cost transportation. The disc wheels are of the same brilliant color combination as the body.

The soft folding rubber fabric top is jet black in pleasing contrast to the dominant tones of the body. The body by Fisher retains the sweeping graceful lines that distinguished the former cabriolet; while other features are of the same dependable construction that is winning unprecedented numbers to the bigger and better Chevrolet.

Baldwin Combines

"Cost Less—Save More"

EVERY grain grower in this section is interested in faster, easier, less costly methods of harvesting his grain.

That's why we believe you will want to inspect the 1928 Baldwin Combine. It cuts labor, time and cost at harvest time, in a most remarkable manner.

One reason for the great efficiency of the Baldwin Combine is the manner in which the cut grain is conveyed straight from the sickle to thresher cylinder in one single, simple operation.

The famous patented Spiral Conveyor Feeder not only makes for minimum simplicity of operation, but eliminates the necessity of yards of expensive, troublesome canvases, and a multitude of heavy working parts and frame, which makes a much lighter Combine.

The Baldwin Combine is extremely easy to pull through the fields—is readily handled by the Fordson Tractor.

Equipped throughout with att New Departure and Tim roller and ball bearings; mounted French & Hecht wheels; equipped with Alemite-Zerk lubrication system; built throughout of the material, in the largest exclusive Combine factory in America.

Grain growers in every grain center of the country are now turning to the Baldwin Combine, because it is the cheapest Combine to own; the simplest Combine to operate; the most efficient Combine in the field; and the least expensive Combine to keep, requiring less power, oil and gasoline—less pair parts.

Come in, let us show you you cannot afford to pass another harvest without one—how you pay for a Baldwin in a single season—why it

COSTS LESS, FIRST AND LAST
—SAVES MORE GRAIN!

Just a line about the Baldwin. I harvested 750 acres of wheat last season, costing 20 cents per acre for operating the combine. I threshed grain for several farmers who owned other makes of combines, they paying me and leaving their machines idle, because of the superior class of work done by my Baldwin. I would not be without mine.—Rollin E. Albers, Plainview, Texas, Feb. 14, 1928.

Remember that Jesus may look with approval upon a work which even a John would forbid. We may pity and pray for those who lack the full perception of truth as we may see it, guiding those who give evidence of sincerity, but let us not expect absolute conformity either of opinion or methods.

"He that is not against us," said
Jesus, "is on our part" (v. 40). It is useless to try to stretch this statement to cover the whole reformatory system. He does not give His approval to all who are engaged in suppressing evil. He is referring to those who sincerely work in His name (cf. vs. 39, 41), which implies that they preach a salvation based upon His merits as the divine Redeemer.

Although this unattached worker had been criticized by the disciples, he should not lose his reward, for Jesus adds: "Whosoever shall give a cup of cold water to drink in my name, and because he belongs to Christ, shall not lose his reward" (v. 41). Note the two qualifications and remember that whether it is a "miracle" (v. 39) or but the giving of a "cup of COLD water" (implying that some pains have been taken to procure it). Jesus takes note of what His true servants do,

and they cannot fail to be rewarded.

Carrying on the thought of service, the lesson now takes us to chap. 10:35-45, recording the attempts of James and John to secure places of preeminence for themselves. Alas, how little had the words of Jesus sunk into their minds! These two, no doubt, had occupied a better social position than some of the others; probably they had given up more to follow Jesus. They came to Him saying:
"Grant unto us that we may sit,
one on thy right hand, and the other on the left in thy glory" (10: 37). Can it be that any of us are guilty of abusing our comradeship with Him, to ask unreasonable things?

These two were probably still under the impression that it was Jesus' intention to set up a glorious kingdom on the earth at that time. They could not grasp the words recorded in vs. 32-34. Very different were those who were soon to occupy places at His right and left. How little did they realize what they asked or what they would be called upon to suffer before they should be with Him in His kingdom!

"Can ye drink the cup that I drink of?" He asked. And they said: "We can." They forgot even to add "by Thy help." Yet, through all their ambition and blindness to the future, we cannot overlook their deep attachment to the Master.
There are still those who fervently
sing "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," without considering what may be involved. The places of honor are not for favorites but for those who are fit (v. 40).

"When the ten heard it they were much displeased with James and John" (v. 41). Jesus nipped it in the bud. He called them to Him and reminded them that ambition for power over men belongs to the world, but in His kingdom ambition is to be for ministry, not dominion.
The world may measure greatness
by pomp, but God measures it by true humility.

"Whosoever of you shall be the chiefest, shall be servant of all" (v.
44). Even the Son of man Himself cared "not to be ministered unto

but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many" (v. 45). Some declare that such doctrine is degrading, yet what wise man will care to take issue with Jesus? The greatness of lowliness and service is the greatness of Christ Himself.

Let us pause at the close of our lesson to reflect upon the teaching that He came "to give His life a Ransom." His death was not a misfortune. It was not just a confirmation of His teaching. He was just one more in the list of martyrs. It was vicarious death. He laid down a price for the souls of all who should believe and follow. This and numerous other passages, show that His death is proposed to us as the means of reconciling men to God.

Pith and Point
The man who is wrapped up in himself will freeze to death (9:35).
To sink is the way to rise; to serve is the way to rule (v. 35).
It is the child spirit which opens the gates of enduring service (v. 36).
There's many a Christian worker who delights in using the "veto" (v. 38). They especially dislike these "unattached workers."

Not all the saints valued in heaven gather around my own denominational banner (v. 39).
If you're not sure others are against Christ, don't say so (v. 40).
If you're not sure that you are on His side, you can be sure you are against Him (Mt. 12:30).

Our own faults are the ones we most condemn when we see them
in others (10:41).

Suggestive Questions
With whom is the man of Mk.
9:38 in contrast, and what was the difference in the two? (Acts 19:13-16.)
What difference do you note in the rule given in 9:40 and Mt. 12: 30? (The rule in Matthew is for judging ourselves; the one in Mark,
for judging others.)
What could Paul say about the preaching even of some whose motives he considered unworthy?
(Phil. 1:18.)
Who had right and left-hand places in relation to Christ, not long after the requests of James and John? (10:37; cf. 15:27.)
What "cup" did James drink for the Master? (V. 38; cf. Acts 12:1-2.)
What was John's "cup"? (Rev. 1: 9.)
If we would be sharers of Christ's glory, of what must we be willing to be partakers? (2 Tim. 2:12; Rom.
8:17.)

Golden Text Illustration
The Son of man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom
for many (Mk. 10:45).
Who of us has not been made to feel that the true greatness of a man's nature comes out in his humble and sympathetic service to others? When Abraham Lincoln was in Congress and was at home in Springfield, Illinois, he was going down the street one morning
when he saw a little girl standing at a gate crying. The tall congressman paused to inquire what the trouble was, and learned that she was to have taken her first trip on the cars that day and the drayman had failed to come for her trunk.
"How big is it?" Lincoln asked, at the same time pushing through the gate. She led him to her room. "O-ho!" he cried. "Wipe your eyes and come on." Before she knew what he was going to do, he had shouldered the trunk and was striding out with it. Down the street he went,
the little girl trotting along behind.
They reached the station in time and Lincoln waved to her and smiled as the train pulled out. Did it not reveal something of the meaning of Jesus' words: "He that will be greatest, let him be the servant
of all?"

AVOID THE FLY MEN-ACE THIS SUMMER
The annoyance and danger to farm health caused by swarms of flies can be avoided to a large extent this summer if proper precautions are taken this spring to clean up refuse around barns and barnyards. In addition, much valuable fertility can be added to the fields, resulting in larger yields and more profits from the year's crops.
All manure heaps and other refuse should be hauled to the field and spread evenly with a manure spreader before warm weather comes,
and if possible, before spring work commences in the fields. If there is much straw in the manure, it should be spread rather thinly if it is to be plowed under this spring in order to prevent bunches of straw being turned under and preventing passage of moisture from the subsoil to the surface, thus keeping the crop plants from obtaining sufficient moisture. Dairymen who produce high quality clean milk haul the refuse and litter from the barn every day and spread it on the fields, or else store it in covered concrete manure pits, and by so doing destroying potential breeding places for millions of flies.

MOTORISTS HINTS

By G. W. Donald

Locating Knocks

An instrument for locating knocks can be made from an old telephone receiver and an iron rod. Procure a discarded telephone receiver, remove the magnet and insert an iron rod about two or three feet long. Thread three-quarters of an inch of the end of the rod and screw a small nut all the way down on this end. Then place a piece of round fibre on this end and screw another nut on the end of the rod to hold the fibre securely. The fibre should be of sufficient diameter to hold the rod snugly in place. A fairly heavy brass spring should now be placed on the end of the rod and secured with a nut.

When the fibre and spring have been fastened in place, insert them into the receiver in the position formerly held by the magnet. Cover with tape the hole at the other end of the receiver, where the rod passes through. Next replace the diaphragm and ear-piece on the receiver and be sure that the diaphragm presses firmly against the brass spring.

Now by taking sounding at different parts of the motor with the receiver to the ear and the other end of the rod resting on the motor, the knocks in the motor will be magnified, making it very easy to locate the source of the trouble.

Repairing Cracks in Engines

Small cracks or holes in the water jackets of an engine may be closed by applying a paste composed of glycerine and litharge. Mix to a consistency slightly thinner than putty and work into the opening while the engine is warm and the cooling system is drained. The engine should not be used for a few days, or until the mixture has thoroughly hardened.

For parts which are exposed to intense heat, such as the exhaust manifold, the following mixture should be used: Fine iron filing, 40 parts; flowers of sulphur, 10 parts; sal-ammoniac, 1 part; Portland cement, 20 parts. Then add water to form a fairly heavy paste. After mixing this paste, allow it to stand for a few hours and then apply. In about two days this mixture hardens, forming a substance greatly resembling cast iron.

How to Make a Grease Gun

A very serviceable grease gun can be constructed from an old single cylinder foot pump. The lower end of the pump is sawed off just above the foot piece. Then take a fairly large sized funnel (one that is made of heavy gauge metal) and cut it off just above the spout. Solder the funnel to the bottom of the pump cylinder.

Oil or light transmission grease can be drawn into the gun by putting the end into the oil or grease and pulling on the handle. To fill with heavy grease, unscrew the cap and remove the plunger; fill the gun with grease, then replace the plunger and cap.

Mud Holes

With one wheel in a bad mud hole, the car will usually be as disabled as though both wheels were in the mud, as the action of the differential causes the one wheel to spin. To get out of such a difficulty, proceed as follows: Disconnect the emergency brake rod on the wheel which rests on solid ground. Then pull back the brake lever hard, which will lock the wheel in the mud hole. By letting in the clutch, all the power will be applied to the wheel on solid ground, which will usually drag the other wheel out of the hole.

Tuning the Horn

The pitch, or tone, of an electric horn can be raised or lowered at will by the following method. After removing and taking the horn apart, place the diaphragm, or disc, from which the sound is produced, on some smooth, hard surface. Then hammer lightly all around the edge of the disc. This raises the tension in the center, which causes a quicker and higher pitched tone. If one desires to lower the pitch, hammer a few light blows in the center of the disc.

Celluloid Curtain Lights

The best way to clean and renew celluloid curtain lights is first to use clean vinegar, applying it with a soft piece of cheese cloth or gauze. Keep the vinegar away from the curtain materials, as it might discolor it. Then, if the lights are scratched they may be renewed by applying acetone varnish, which will restore them almost to their original transparency.

Leaks in the Top

Small leaks in the top of the car can be repaired with the same rubber compound that is used for filling cuts in the tire casings. Press the compound into the hole and then trim off the excess. Allow it to stand for a few hours and then apply heated flat-irons to both sides, pressing together firmly. The heat of the irons will vulcanize the rubber in place.

Repairing a Spark Plug

When adjusting the gap of a spark plug, the outer electrode will sometimes break off, rendering the plug useless. But it is not necessary to throw the plug away. Merely bend the center electrode so that it stands close to the outer shell, setting the

When the Engine Stops Suddenly

Sometimes when out on the road the engine will stop suddenly without apparent cause. It is probably due to one of the following troubles: No gasoline supply. Spark plug broken. Electric current disconnected as some point. A broken wire. A loose terminal. Turn trouble.

To Clean the Glass

Try dipping a clean cloth in gasoline and rubbing lightly over the windshield and windows, then polishing with a dry cloth.
