Oil companies to support Petroleum Academy

Warren: District already has several applicants for teacher spot

By Tessa Duvall
tduvall@mrt.com

The support Midland ISD needs to make its high school Petroleum Academy a reality for the spring semester is coming together.

Superintendent Ryder Warren said several oil companies — Concho Resources, Pioneer Natural Resources, Apache Corp., Chevron and Henry Resources — and Warren Equipment Co. are throwing their support behind the district's initiative.

The companies are helping not only in shaping the curriculum but in providing the compensation to find a qualified teacher for the introductory course, which is set to launch at the freshman schools this spring, Warren said at a parent interest meeting at Midland College's Advanced Technology Center on Thursday evening.

Finding the right teachers to move forward with the program will be the biggest challenge, he said. The district needs one teacher for the spring but will add additional teachers as the academy grows and students progress through the course offerings.

"We're trying to reverse the process," Warren said. "Instead of our teachers going into the oil field because they can make more money, we're trying to get the oil field into the classrooms."

Warren after the meeting declined to say how much financial support, which will likely be given in the form of a stipend to the teacher, the companies are providing. The district has not yet hired a teacher.

Hotel Fuel developers secure financing

■ Project contingent on city's move on parking

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Developers of an upscale, boutique hotel have secured financing for the project, overcoming one of its longest standing hurdles and moving it one step closer to completion.

Hotel Fuel is now awaiting action from the city of Midland for the project to move forward.

The $10 million hotel project, set to replace the vacant Western United Life Building at 301 W. Texas Ave., was publicly announced in July 2013, but financial negotiating and a tangle with City Council regarding parking held it back. The hotel was originally planned to open in December or early 2015, according to previous reports.

"It just takes the first person. We'll be the first person. And, later on when the hotel is built, people will come, the small retail outlets will come and possibly another hotel will come. But we want to change downtown because there's so much demand already."

Sagar Kumar, manager of PNK 1 Group Investments LLC

Developers and the city had an agreement in which the latter receives the Building of the Southwest, west of the Hotel Fuel site. In exchange, the city creates parking spaces for the hotel after developers prove it has a financing plan.

But in April this year, council members did not grant developers a third agreement extension, as the developers did not have the financing in place. Also, despite the non-renewal of the agreement, the city kept possession of the Building of the Southwest and is still the owner of the property as of Thursday.

Sagar Kumar, manager of PNK 1 Group Investments LLC, said the project's financing was approved three weeks ago and has updated the city of the news.

"Now, we are just waiting for (the city of Midland) to either give us the Building (of the Southwest) back or provide us with a nearby area for parking," Kumar said.

In the meantime, developers have performed soft demolition, or removal of indoor components, of the Western

Homicide suspects held on $1M bonds

■ 3 men arrested in Big Spring await extradition to Midland, wanted in connection with drug-related Nov. 10 shooting

By Rye Druzin
rdruzin@mrt.com

BIG SPRING — Three Big Spring men were arrested Thursday in connection with the shooting death of a Midland man earlier this month. They are being held on $1 million bonds, according to a press release from the city of Midland spokeswoman.

Cruz Gutierrez Jr., 21, Michael Anthony Gomez, 22, and Tysone Demetrius Barker, 23, were arrested in Big Spring and are being held in Howard County Jail awaiting extradition to Midland County, Sara Bustilloz said.

They were sought in connection with the Nov. 10 shooting death of Humberto Joshua Ramos, who was found at 3:47 a.m. at the 500 block of South Carver Street with multiple gunshot wounds. He died during surgery at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Bustilloz said the shooting may have been drug-related, according to a previous Reporter-Telegram article.

The men were arrested without incident, according to the press release. Midland Police Department worked with the U.S. Marshal's Office, Department of Public Safety, Big Spring Police Department and the Howard County Sheriff's office SWAT Team.

Ramos' death is the sixth homicide investigation this year within Midland County.

The previous homicide occurred Oct. 9 when a Midland County Sheriff's Office sergeant was shot and killed while serving an arrest warrant, according to Reporter-Telegram records.

Alicia Harris Madry

Alicia Harris Madry went to be with her Lord and Savior on Wednesday, November 19, 2014. Memorial services will be held at 2:00 p.m. Friday, November 21, 2014 at the Shaffer Funeral Home's Pioneer Chapel located at 8009 Hwy. 87 North. Services are under the direction of Shaffer Funeral Home/Grape Creek.

Alicia was born on November 4, 1984 in Abilene, Texas to Teddy Wayne Harris and Emma Louise Appling Harris. She loved her parents very much and always enjoyed spending time and visiting with them.

Alicia was a care giver at heart and spent many years working in home health care. She not only was a care giver to people but to animals as well. It seems that all of the animals in the neighborhood that were hurt knew to come to her home to be nursed back to health. Alicia loved all of these animals and enjoyed caring for them.

Alicia also had a food catering service when she lived in Midland. She will always be remembered for her wonderful cooking abilities.

Any spare time that Alicia had you could find her sitting down on the bank of the river with fishing pole in hand. Where most people would complain if the fish weren't biting she didn't seem to notice and was simply content sitting and waiting.

She was preceded in death by both of her parents.

Alicia is survived by her loving husband of 14 years, Randy Madry of Grape Creek; brother, Wayne Harris (Hank) wife, Sandra and Tom Harris and wife, Alicia all of San Marcos; sister, Sandy Burkhart, husband Charlie of Midland; three grandchildren whom she adored, Shawn Madry and Cheyanne Madry both of Midland and Levi Madry of Grape Creek.

She is also survived by one aunt, Jane Appling of Stanford and a host of friends.

Online condolences may be made at www.singletonfuneral.com.

Bettye married Theodore Harris in 1960, who preceded her in death. She is also preceded in death by her parents, Tom and Helen Alexander, and her sisters, Etta Ruth Thurman and Dorothy Richardson.

She leaves behind a host of nieces, nephews, cousins, and many dear friends who will cherish her memory.

Bettye, affectionately known as Jo Jo, Wo Wo and Jo, had a large and generous heart. She loved visiting, cooking, baking, playing cards, puzzles, and being with her loved ones. Bettye Jo worked at Mr. M's Grocery Store 22 years cooking, baking, and running the delicatessen with her two sisters. Bettye also worked for the Gilkerson Family for over 20 years until her health began to fail.

Artist gets probation for Prada Marfa vandalism

A Waco-based artist has been assessed probation after pleading guilty to reduced charges in the vandalism of the Prada Marfa public art installation in West Texas.

Joseph Magnano pleaded guilty Nov. 7 in Fort Davis to two misdemeanor criminal mischief counts, reduced from felony criminal mischief. His attorney, Bill Johnston of Waco, says the 32-year-old defendant must serve two years of probation and pay a $1,000 fine and $10,700 in restitution to repair the damage he caused.

The Jeff Davis County Sheriff's Office said the building near Valentine, about 35 miles northwest of Marfa, was found plastered with paint and posters on March 11. The site opened in 2005 designed to appear like a retailer of expensive Prada shoes and handbags. Since then, vandals have targeted it numerous times.

CRIME BRIEFS

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Man accused of choking house member

A Midland man was arrested Wednesday for allegedly choking a member of his household on Sunday, according to court documents.

Rodriguez

Sergio Rodriguez Sr., 32, was released Thursday on a $10,000 bond for a third-degree felony of assault on a family or house member impeding breathing.

A Midland Police Department officer responded to a disturbance call at a residence on the 1100 block of South Loraine St. When the officer arrived, he found several articles of men's clothing on the front porch. He made contact with the alleged victim, who was crying profusely. The officer helped the alleged victim calm down, after which the person said that the alleged assailant, Rodriguez, had left the scene with a friend.

The alleged victim, according to documents, said she and Rodriguez got into an argument, during which Rodriguez called her derogatory names. At that point, the alleged victim went to the closet and threw some of Rodriguez's clothes out the front door and onto the porch. The alleged victim then proceeded to the bedroom when Rodriguez allegedly pushed her against the wall, grabbing her by the neck with both of his hands. She claimed that she was unable to breathe or move and that Rodriguez stopped choking her because one of the other occupants of the home called 911.

The officer observed deep redness around the front of the alleged victim's neck and took pictures.

If convicted, Rodriguez faces up to 10 years in prison for the third-degree felony charge.

Woman accused of child abuse

A 49-year-old Midland resident was arrested Wednesday for allegedly injuring a child, according to court documents.

Virginia Stanfill was being held Thursday on a $7,500 bond for a state jail felony charge of injury to a child from criminal negligence.

The charge stems from a case that was reported Oct. 9. Deputies responded to a local school and made contact with a school administrator. The administrator reported that a teenager had claimed to have been abused.

The alleged victim, according to documents, was interviewed that afternoon at the Midland Rape Crisis and Children's Advocacy Center and alleged that on the morning of Oct. 4, Stanfill had grabbed the alleged victim by the hair and threw the teenager to the ground. Stanfill then allegedly slammed the alleged victim's head into a metal bed frame and ripped some of the alleged victim's hair out. Stanfill then allegedly began kicking the alleged victim in the back of the neck and ribs.

If convicted, Stanfill faces up to two years in jail for the state jail felony.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Nov. 21, the 325th day of 2014. There are 40 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1973, President Richard Nixon's attorney, J. Fred Buzhardt, revealed the existence of an 18 1/2-minute gap in one of the White House tape recordings related to Watergate.

One year ago: Sweeping aside a century of precedent, Democrats took a chunk out of the Senate's hallowed filibuster tradition, clearing the way for speedy confirmation of controversial appointments made by President Barack Obama.

Obama unveils expansive immigration orders

By Julie Pace
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Spurning furious Republicans, President Barack Obama unveiled expansive executive actions on immigration Thursday night to spare nearly 5 million people in the U.S. illegally from deportation and refocus enforcement efforts on "felons, not families."

The moves, affecting mostly parents and young people, marked the most sweeping changes to the nation's fractured immigration laws in nearly three decades and set off a fierce fight with Republicans over the limits of presidential powers.

In a televised address to the nation, Obama defended the legality of his actions and challenged GOP lawmakers to focus their energy not on blocking his actions, but on approving long-stalled legislation to take its place.

"To those members of Congress who question my authority to make our immigration system work better, or question the wisdom of me acting where Congress has failed, I have one answer: Pass a bill," Obama said, flexing his presidential powers just two weeks after his political standing was challenged in the midterm elections.

As Obama addressed the nation from the White House, immigration supporters with American flags draped over their shoulders marched on the street outside carrying signs that read, "Gracias, Presidente Obama."

Despite Obama's challenge to Republicans to pass a broader immigration bill, his actions and the angry GOP response could largely stamp out prospects for Congress passing comprehensive legislation under the current administration, ensuring that the contentious debate will carry on into the 2016 presidential campaign.

Republicans, emboldened by their sweeping victories in the midterms, are weighing responses to the president's actions that include lawsuits, a government shutdown, and in rare instances, even impeachment.

"The president will come to regret the chapter history writes if he does move forward," Sen. Mitch McConnell, the Kentucky Republican who is soon to become the Senate majority leader, said before Obama's address.

House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, who has refused to have his members vote on broad immigration legislation passed by the Senate last year, said Obama's decision to go it alone "cemented his legacy of lawlessness and squandered what little credibility he had left."

The president spent months trying to gain a House vote on the Senate bill, frustrating immigration advocates and some Democrats who wanted him to instead take action on his own. While Obama had long insisted that his powers to halt deportations were limited, the White House began seriously exploring options for unilateral action.

Still, that process has been beset by delays, especially Obama's decision to hold off on announcing the executive orders until after the midterms. Some Democrats had feared that thrusting the immigration debate to the forefront of the campaign would hurt their chances of keeping control of the Senate, though the White House's delay ultimately did little to stem their defeats.

While Obama's measures are sweeping in scope, they still leave more than half of the 11 million people living in the U.S. illegally in limbo. The president announced new deportation priorities that would compel law enforcement to focus its efforts on tracking down serious criminals and people who have recently crossed the border, while specifically placing a low priority on those who have been in the U.S. for more than 10 years.

He insisted that his actions did not amount to amnesty.

"Amnesty is the immigration system we have today — millions of people who live here without paying their taxes or playing by the rules, while politicians use the issue to scare people and whip up votes at election time," he said.

The main beneficiaries of the president's actions are immigrants who have been in the U.S. illegally for more than five years but whose children are citizens or lawful permanent residents. After passing background checks and paying fees, those individuals can now be granted relief from deportation for three years and get work permits. The administration expects about 4.1 million people to qualify.

Obama is also broadening his 2012 directive that deferred deportation for some young immigrants who entered the country illegally. Obama will expand eligibility to people who arrived in the U.S. as minors before 2010, instead of the current cutoff of 2007, and will lift the requirement that applicants be under 31. The expansion is expected to affect about 300,000 people.

Applications for the new deportation deferrals will begin in the spring. Those who qualify would be granted deportation deferrals for three years.

Immigration-rights activists gathered at watch parties around the country to listen to the president announce actions they have sought for years.

"This is a great day for farmworkers. It's been worth the pain and sacrifice," said Jesus Zuniga, a 40-year-old who picks tomatoes in California's Central Valley and watched the speech at a union gathering in Fresno.

In New York City, however, a couple of protesters held "no amnesty" signs outside a New York union office where advocates of the president's plan were gathering to watch him and celebrate.

"We have a lot of unemployed Americans right now, and I don't understand why unemployed Americans can't be hired to do the jobs these illegals are doing," said John Wilson, who works in contract management.

The White House insists Obama has the legal authority to halt deportations for parents and for people who came to the U.S. as children, primarily on humanitarian grounds. Officials also cited precedents set by previous immigration executive actions by Democratic and Republican presidents dating back to Dwight Eisenhower.

A senior administration official said the decision to protect parents of citizens or lawful permanent residents is in line with an existing law that allows adult citizens to sponsor their parents for immigration. Obama's plan goes a step further because the sponsoring citizen doesn't have to be an adult.

Reaction to the president's immigration plan

Mitch McConnell, Senate Republican leader: "I think the president will come to regret the chapter history writes if he does move forward. Because the plan he's presenting is more than just, as the president himself has acknowledged, an overreach — it's also unfair."

Harry Reid, D-Nev., Senate Majority Leader: "The president's decision is not a political victory. It's a victory for families. We know well that this decision is not a permanent solution. It is a first step. If we had it our way, President Obama would be signing a comprehensive immigration bill into law instead of an executive action, but can't sit idly by waiting for Republicans to act while homes are being broken up all across this nation."

John Boehner, R-Ohio, House Speaker: "Instead of working together to fix our broken immigration system, the president says he's acting on his own. That's just not how our democracy works. The president has said before that 'he's not king' and he's 'not an emperor,' but he's sure acting like one."

Bob Goodlatte, R-Va., House Judiciary Committee Chairman: "It's both perplexing and alarming that President Obama has decided to move forward with executive actions that he once said he didn't have the constitutional power to take. The president's decision to recklessly forge ahead with a plan to unilaterally change our immigration laws ignores the will of the American people and flouts the Constitution."

Richard Trumka, AFL-CIO president: "The administration is operating within its authority to advance the moral and economic interests of our country, and while we stand ready to defend this program, we must also be clear that it is only a first step. Unfortunately, more than half of those who currently lack legal protections will remain vulnerable to wage theft, retaliation and other forms of exploitation. In addition, we are concerned by the president's concession to corporate demands for even greater access to temporary visas that will allow the continued suppression of wages in the tech sector."

Ali Noorani, executive director of the National Immigration Forum: "Although we still need action from Congress, executive action will help millions of people. It will also boost the economy, keep us secure and keep families together."

Roy Beck, president of NumbersUSA, an immigration control group: "President Obama's unconstitutional plan to reward millions of law-breaking foreign citizens with work permits is especially outrageous at a time of labor surplus and sustained wage depression for American workers and legal immigrants already here."

The main elements of Obama's actions on immigration

Associated Press

The main presidential actions on immigration under President Barack Obama's plan, according to those briefed on it:

Parents

Protect from deportation and make eligible for work permits approximately 4.1 million people who are in the U.S. illegally but whose children are U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents, regardless of whether the children are minors. To be eligible, the parents would have to have lived in the U.S. for five years.

Children

Expand the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program, which Obama launched in 2012. It shields from deportation those minors who were brought to the U.S. illegally as children. Obama will extend the program to minors who arrived before 2010, instead of the current cutoff of 2007, and lift the requirement that applicants be under 31 to be eligible. Upward of 250,000 could be affected.

Prioritizing deportations

Lower the deportation priority for parents of U.S. citizens or legal permanent residents who have been in the U.S. for less than five years, and for other immigrants who have been here illegally for more than 10 years. A new policy will emphasize deportation for recent arrivals and for criminals.

Law enforcement

Replace the Secure Communities program, which hands over people booked for local crimes to federal immigration authorities. The new program will be called the "Priority Enforcement Program" and will set up different priority levels based on the conduct for which immigrants are detained.

Business programs

Make other immigration changes sought by businesses, such as a parole-in-place program that could affect another several hundred thousand people.

Green cards

Loosen eligibility requirements for a waiver program for people seeking green cards. People who entered the U.S. illegally must leave the country for as much as 10 years before getting in line for a green card unless they get a waiver.

Telethons, hotlines set up for immigrants

By Juan Carlos Llorca
Associated Press

EL PASO — Attorneys and immigration groups in Texas are setting up telethons and hotlines to serve immigrants who may qualify under a new White House plan to protect them from deportation.

Groups in Houston, Dallas, El Paso, San Antonio, Austin and elsewhere also organized gatherings to watch President Barack Obama's speech Thursday night. He announced a plan that grants work permits to millions of immigrants living illegally in the United States and to protect them from deportation.

The announcement got a tepid reception at the El Paso offices of the Border Network for Human Rights. There activists and immigrants gathered to hear the simultaneous translation of Obama's speech on Univision.

"I am a mother of DREAMERS (children benefited by the Deferred Action on Childhood Arrivals program), they are not citizens. It was a great disappointment to hear I won't benefit from it. It's bland, he gave us a little taste but it had no taste," said Rosa Mèjia, a native of Mexico who has been living in the United States illegally since 1999. She said she hoped the measure would not only be limited to parents of U.S. citizens.

Some said that the government is asking too much by requiring personal information from people who have lived in the shadows for years without giving a pathway to citizenship or permanent residency.

In San Antonio, the legal services group Raices was setting up hotlines so immigrants can talk to attorneys about what to expect from Obama's executive action. The Texas Organizing Project set up phone hotlines and a text service in which people can text "alivio," which means "relief," and someone will help answer their questions.

Meanwhile, the Catholic Charities of Dallas will host information sessions to let people who might be covered under the new immigration policy know whether they can apply for it and what documents to gather.

Jenna Carl, the group's deputy director of immigration and legal services, said she didn't know yet how many people would qualify under Obama's plan. But she said she told her staff to prepare, because the number of immigrants seeking their services could likely be "huge."

There are an estimated 11 million immigrants living in the United States illegally. Obama announced plans that shield as many as 5 million immigrants from deportation. The broadest action stemming from his executive authority could extends to parents of U.S. citizens, as long as those parents have been in the country for five years. Republicans plan to fight the actions. GOP leaders, including Texas Gov. Rick Perry, have threatened litigation.

Attorney General Greg Abbott pledged to challenge the executive order in court.

"Following tonight's pronouncement, I am prepared to immediately challenge President Obama in court, securing our state's sovereignty and guaranteeing the rule of law as it was intended under the Constitution," Abbot said in a statement Thursday night.

Does Obama have authority for immigration changes?

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama's announcement of sweeping changes to the nation's immigration system is likely to lead to a battle over their legality. Is he on solid legal ground?

For months the White House and Obama's supporters have insisted that he has the authority to direct immigration authorities to exercise discretion in deciding which immigrants in the country illegally will face deportation and which won't.

"The actions I'm taking are not only lawful, they're the kinds of actions taken by every single Republican president and every Democratic president for the past half century," Obama said Thursday night.

But Republicans in Congress disagree with the White House view. They're calling Obama's plan an unconstitutional power grab.

"The president seems intent on provoking a constitutional crisis by adopting policies that he previously said were illegal," Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, said.

Among those being protected from deportation under Obama's plan are the parents of U.S. citizens and legal permanent residents, roughly 4.1 million people.

At issue is how far Obama can go on his own to shield from deportation immigrants who are in the country illegally. The administration and its supporters have argued that the use of prosecutorial discretion — the ability to decide which cases will be pursued by prosecutors — allows the president to decide which groups of immigrants should be a priority. Obama has argued that he can go one step further and use a provision in immigration law called "deferred action" to formally protect particular immigrants from deportation.

What the president can't do is halt all deportations, or permanently change the immigration status of any specific group of immigrants. Only Congress has that power.

TxDOT approves $69 million for area roads

From staff reports

The Texas Transportation Commission, the board that governs the Texas Department of Transportation, approved $69 million for Midland-Odessa region roads Thursday.

TxDOT received approval for $402 million from vehicle registration fees for energy-sector area projects in October. The Odessa District, which includes Ector, Midland, Martin, Upton and other area counties, received approval for seven projects.

The commission also approved $60,263 that will be used for a dedicated left turn lane on Farm-to-Market Road 715 under the Interstate 20 overpass.

The Odessa District projects approved in Midland and Ector counties are:

- FM 1788 in Midland County from the Interstate 20 south frontage road to FM 1787: Project will rehabilitate existing pavement and add shoulders to improve deteriorating pavement conditions and widen a narrow roadway to improve safety. Estimate: $13.2 million.
- Interstate 20 at FM 1882 interchange in Ector County: Project will realign ramps to mitigate congestion at the ramps and the service road intersections and will also enhance safety. The project will also build auxiliary lanes and rehabilitate pavement. Estimate: $7.7 million.
- Interstate 20 at East Loop 338 interchange in Ector County: Project will realign ramps to mitigate congestion at the ramps and the service road intersections and will also enhance safety. Estimate: $8.6 million.

Also approved was State Highway 349 in Upton County from the Midland County line to FM 2401: Project will rehabilitate existing pavement and add passing lanes to improve deteriorating pavement, increase passing opportunities and enhance safety. Estimate: $9.2 million.

Academy

but Warren said there have been several applicants, a couple of whom he considers to be "very good ones."

Leslie Vashler, mother of Lee Freshman High School student and prospective petroleum academy student Briana Vashler, said she is encouraged to hear that oil companies are financially supporting the academy. To be successful, the MISD program will need people who know the industry, and they may have to be lured away from the oil field, she said.

The more-than-60 parents and students at the meeting had the opportunity to ask administrators questions about the academy. Here are some of those questions and answers:

Q: How does a student get into the academy?

Current freshmen must submit an application, which will then be reviewed and validated by the district, said Kim Evans, director of career and technical education. Students who get in can anticipate a schedule change to include the principles of oil and gas class.

Executive Director of Secondary Education Jeff Horner said the district expects to offer two sections at each freshman campus for a total of 48 students at each school. Warren said the district hopes to receive at least that many applications at both schools but will allow some flexibility if slightly more than that apply. The district will be as accommodating as reasonably possible, he said.

Evans said eighth-graders will select their endorsement under House Bill 5 and apply for the Petroleum Academy if interested in the spring.

Q: Is this program available for students of Early College High School?

No; this program is only available to students who attend Midland and Lee high schools, Warren said. ECHS is a separate program that allows students to earn an associate degree while still in high school.

Q: Will this program be eliminated if there's a bust?

Warren said he doesn't foresee any reason for canceling the Petroleum Academy. Pioneer, which has $800 million in taxable values in Midland ISD, just built a multi-million dollar facility in Midland — the only facility they don't lease, Warren said.

"We really think this is going to be Midland for a long time," he said of the booming oil economy.

Evans, who visited Chevron's headquarters in Houston last week, said business leaders told her Midland is the company's hot spot.

"That's where we need people," she said she was told. "We're just begging to get skilled labor in Midland."

Q: How will this program help students after high school?

No matter what a student chooses — career or college path — the academy is intended to provide them a one-up on everyone else, Warren said.

On the career path, some students will be able to work in the field as soon as the Monday after graduation, he said. Some employers, like Chevron, at least require an associate degree, but the potential for dual-credit courses in the academy could help some students achieve that faster, he said.

For college-oriented students, the academy could also be an advantage, although there aren't set admissions policies granting better chances of getting in. Horner said grade point average will remain one of the most important factors for colleges with competitive programs.

Q: Are there prerequisites for the academy?

There are no set pre-requisites for grade point average at this time, Warren said. He expects all the courses to be rigorous, although the career-oriented and college-focused tracks will have slightly different focuses.

Q: Will there be more parent interest meetings?

Warren said the district will continue to hold meetings about the Petroleum Academy, though the dates and times have not yet been set.

Hotel Fuel will feature 145 hotel rooms, all of which will have kitchenettes Kumar said. He added that the hotel will be mixed use, as office space will be featured on each floor.

"We're trying to cater to the executive or corporate traveler," Kumar said.

The first floor plan entails the lobby with the reception desk and a restaurant. Kumar said a coffee shop is also being considered for the first floor.

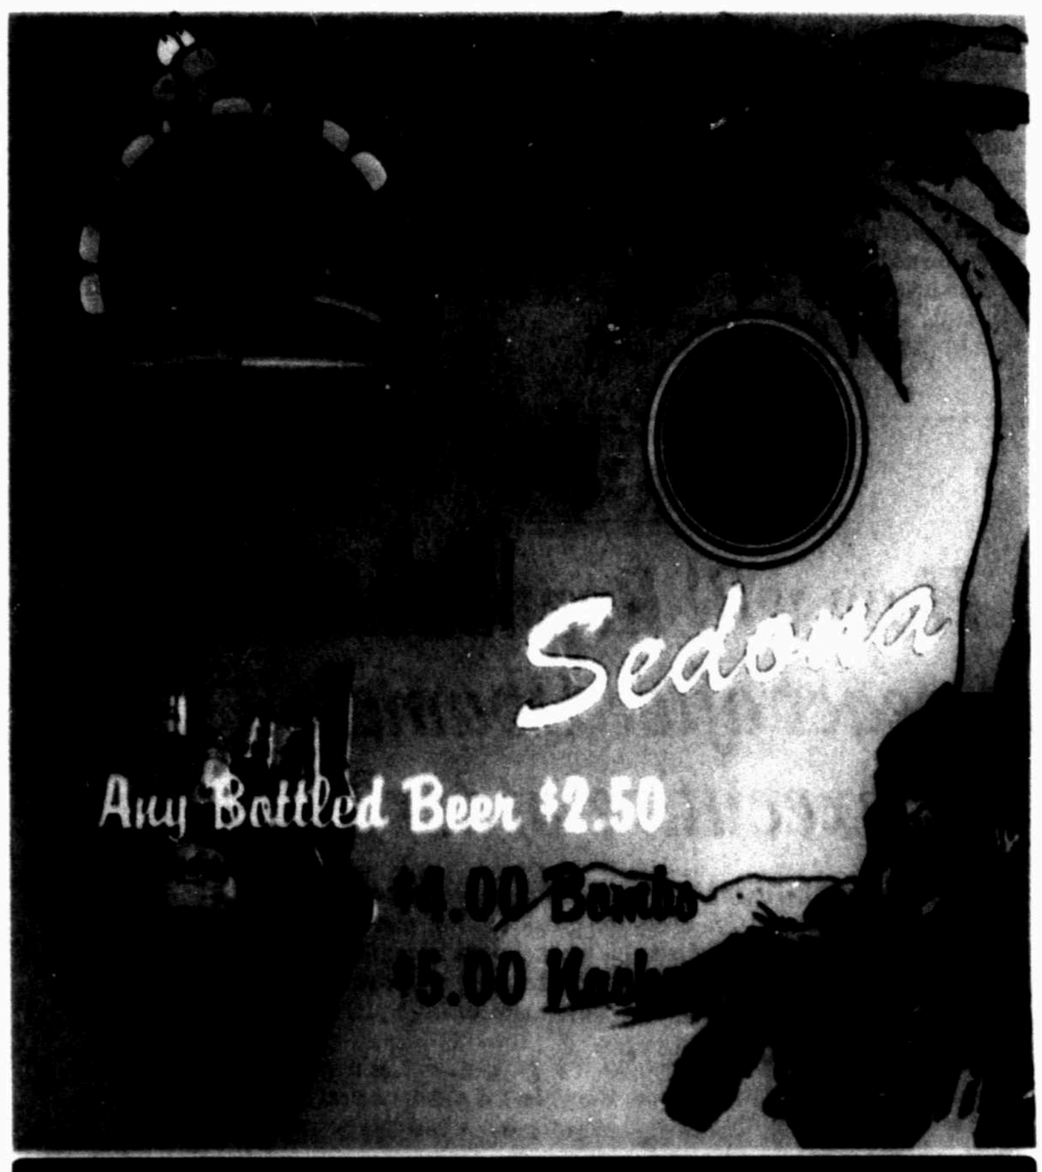

When asked why Hotel Fuel is being built downtown as opposed to the west side near the Scharbauer Sports Complex, Kumar said that no one has taken the first step to bring people downtown.

"It just takes the first person," Kumar said. "We'll be the first person. And, later on when the hotel is built, people will come, the small retail outlets will come and possibly another hotel will come. But we want to change downtown because there's so much demand already."

If built, Hotel Fuel will join Wall Street Lofts as the first entirely new structures to be built downtown in years.

OPINION

Don't be impressed with Obama's climate pact

■ It's a swindle, and the only country impacted with it will be the United States

CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER
Washington Post Writers Group

Historic. Such is the ubiquitous description of the climate agreement recently announced in Beijing between Barack Obama and Xi Jinping in which China promised for the first time to cap carbon emissions.

If this were a real breakthrough, I'd be an enthusiastic supporter. I have long advocated for a tangible global agreement to curb carbon. I do remain skeptical about the arrogant, ignorant claim that climate science is "settled," that it can predict with accuracy future "global warming" effects and that therefore we must cut emissions radically, immediately and unilaterally if necessary, even at potentially ruinous economic and social cost.

Nonetheless believe (and have written since 1988) that pumping increasing amounts of CO_2 into the atmosphere cannot be a good thing. We don't know nearly enough about the planet's homeostatic mechanisms for dealing with it, but prudence would dictate reducing CO_2 emissions when and where we can.

However, anything beyond that, especially the radical unilateralism advocated by climate alarmists, would be not just economic suicide but economic suicide without purpose. It would do nothing to reduce atmospheric CO_2 as long as China, India and the other developing nations more than make up for our cuts with their huge and increasing carbon emissions.

China alone is firing up a new coal plant every eight to 10 days. We could close every coal mine in Kentucky and West Virginia and achieve absolutely nothing except devastating Appalachia and, in effect, shipping its economic lifeblood to China.

The only way forward on greenhouse gases is global reduction by global agreement. A pact with China would be a good start.

Unfortunately, the Obama-Xi agreement is nothing of the sort. It is a fraud of Gruberian (as in Jonathan) proportions. Its main plank commits China to begin cutting carbon emissions 16 years from now. On the other hand, the United States must double its current rate of carbon cutting to meet a new, more restrictive goal by 2025, in return for which China will keep increasing its carbon emissions year after year throughout that period — and for five years beyond.

If this sounds like the most one-sided deal since Manhattan sold for $24 in 1626, you heard right. It becomes even more absurd when you realize that, according to the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, China was on track to plateau its carbon emissions around 2030 anyway because of a projected slowdown in urbanization, population growth and heavy industry production. We cut, they coast.

The carbon-emission graph is stark. China's line is nearly vertical; America's is already inflected and headed downward. The Obama-Xi agreement simply ratifies U.S. unilateralism — the U.S. line declines even more steeply, while China's continues rocketing upward unmolested.

Proponents of the Obama-Xi deal will then point to a second provision: China's promise to produce 20 percent of its energy from non-carbon sources by 2030. But China had already been planning to begin substituting for its immense use of fossil fuels (mainly by using nuclear power) because Chinese cities are being choked to death by their traditional pollutants — sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxide, mercury compounds, particulates, etc.

These are serious health hazards. CO_2 is not. Whatever its atmospheric effects, CO_2 does not poison the air. So in return for yet another Chinese transition that has nothing to do with CO_2, Obama has committed the U.S. to drastic CO_2 cuts.

Moreover, beyond substance, there is process. Or more accurately, its absence. What's the structure to sustain and verify the agreement? Where are the benchmarks? What are the enforcement mechanisms? This is just a verbal promise. Nothing more. Sixteen years from now, China is supposed to remind the world of its commitments and begin cutting?

I repeat: I would unequivocally support a real agreement with China where they cut contemporaneously and commensurately with the U.S. and where there is built-in reporting and independent verification. Such a bilateral agreement would need to be internationalized by bringing in such rising powers as India, Brazil, Indonesia, etc. This would be a breakthrough.

Climate enthusiasts will say that I refuse to take yes for an answer. Of course I would take yes for an answer. But the Obama-Xi agreement is not yes. It is "check back with me in 16 years." Aren't the people advocating this deal the same garment-rending climate apocalypticists who've been warning of irreversible planetary changes beginning now, and the supreme imperative of acting immediately?

Except, you see, for China, the world's No. 1 carbon polluter. It gets a 16-year pass.

OUR VIEW

How will Republicans react after Obama's executive order?

Obama has his executive order on immigration. Now what? That is the question everyone is asking. But more specifically, they should be asking, what should Republicans do?

There will be cries for impeachment because, of course to some, this is the president's latest in a series of high crimes and misdemeanors.

Maybe budgets can be de-funded, and government, if necessary, can be shut down. That will show Republicans mean business this time and would certainly make an impression, albeit the wrong impression.

In our view, Republicans should resist the bait the president is using. His executive order is for political gains, plain and simple. There is little doubt about that. Why else would he have waited until after the elections to make it happen?

But we warn Republicans about what they say. In this case, as many people will be watching not the president's action but the GOP's reaction.

Do Republicans come across as anti-Hispanic? Do they come across as the party of no?

While many people see this as a time for Republicans to come out with all guns firing, we prefer a different tact. Let's see Republicans come up with their own immigration plan. Craft this plan with the help of the most popular political figures across the country — the Republican governors — and tell the president that the new Congress will vote on it when the new members take over next year. It should come across to many people, including Hispanics, as a plan Americans should get behind, not some Washington solution that neither identifies the problem nor comes up with a proper solution.

More importantly, it puts the president on the spot as the person getting in the way of progress. If he approves the bill, Republicans get credit for coming up with a solution and the bill replaces his executive order. If he vetoes the item, he is seen as a roadblock to a sensible solution, and his party pays the price in 2016.

Usually, it is not the action but the reaction that gets people in the most trouble. Republicans should fear that this will be the case with the executive order. The outcry won't be seen as a president acting beyond his limits or for political gain but as a party that fears something.

We believe Republicans have too much to lose than to give Hispanics another reason to vote Democrat. And while some would say the party would be catering to one group, all Americans win with a sensible immigration package. And Republicans benefit from showing all Americans that they have a place in the Grand Old Party.

Cooperation remains elusive concept

■ Did American: call for Obama to be stopped or government to work together?

CARL LEUBSDORF
The Dallas Morning News

In the two weeks since President Barack Obama and top Republican congressional leaders vowed to seek common ground following GOP election victories, that goal has remained elusive.

On issue after issue, the two sides are taking positions and threatening fights that renew the battles that have marked much of the Obama presidency.

A big reason is that, behind their promises of cooperation is a basic disagreement about the election's meaning. Republicans interpreted it as a repudiation of Obama and everything he stands for, while Democrats saw it as a vote against bipartisan gridlock and a plea to get something done.

As a result, legislative confrontations loom in at least four major cases where GOP lawmakers remain determined to keep blocking Obama's priorities: immigration, climate change, a nuclear agreement with Iran and the Affordable Care Act. And in a fifth area — the Keystone pipeline — it's the Republicans who want action and the president who is resisting.

Here is what's involved:

■ Keystone pipeline. The conservative-dominated House GOP last week passed legislation to build the controversial project the Obama White House has stalled for several years, pending a State Department study of environmental concerns.

Politics is behind the flurry of action: House Republicans scheduled last week's vote to boost GOP Rep. Bill Cassidy in his Dec. 6 Louisiana Senate runoff against Democratic Sen. Mary Landrieu.

Tuesday's Senate vote was scheduled so Landrieu could show her clout, but the measure missed the required 60 votes by one.

In any case, Obama signaled he'd probably veto it by questioning the economic benefit of a project that would mainly bring Canadian oil through the United States for overseas export. And in Louisiana, polls show Cassidy well ahead.

■ Immigration. Nearly 17 months after a bipartisan Senate majority passed a compromise immigration bill, the White House has gotten tired of waiting for Speaker John Boehner to fulfill repeated promises of House action. Now, Obama plans to use his executive authority to put portions into effect, allowing up to 5 million illegal entrants to remain legally in the United States.

He is proceeding despite increasingly fervent GOP warnings against unilateral action. Incoming Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell likens it to "waving a red flag in front of a bull," while Boehner vows that, if Obama acts, House Republicans will fight him "tooth and nail," something they've already been doing.

This issue is especially important to Democrats. Obama damaged himself with Hispanic leaders by delaying action last summer in a futile effort to save several embattled Democratic senators. Now, he needs to fulfill his promise to act and probably won't mind if Republicans once more oppose a top Hispanic priority.

■ Climate change. Last week, Obama reached a ground-breaking agreement with China on climate control, the first time the Chinese have been willing to curb greenhouse gas emissions.

Republicans promptly denounced it, and some hope to amend the year-end funding bill to deny funds for carrying out this pact and the EPA's decision to curb emissions at home. That might produce a veto — and a government shutdown.

■ Iran nuclear agreement. Even before the U.S. concludes talks with Iran on a potentially groundbreaking agreement curbing its nuclear program, Republicans and pro-Israel Democrats are warning they might oppose it.

■ Obamacare. Though McConnell has backed off his campaign pledge "to pull it out root and branch," other Republicans still want to stop funding the Affordable Care Act, possibly by amending the year-end funding bill or a subsequent measure; that too could bring a presidential veto shutting down the government.

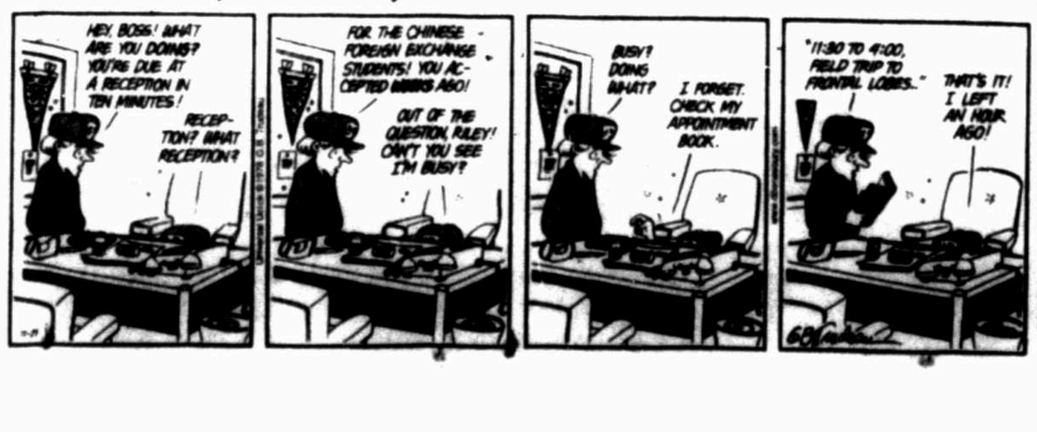

Given all this, it's hard to see where compromises can be reached, short of one side or the other abandoning its position.

Even if Obama delayed the effective date of his immigration executive orders to June 30, there is no evidence the House would act, meaning the same conflict would recur then.

The most likely compromises are in areas where legislation has not yet been written, such as tax reform. But what you see this week is probably what you're going to get for the next two years.

Ferguson officer: charges seem unlikely

Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — The suburban St. Louis police officer who fatally shot Michael Brown seems confident that he will not face criminal charges from a grand jury that has been investigating the case for several months, a police union official said Thursday.

Jeff Roorda, business manager for the St. Louis Police Officers' Association, said he met Thursday with Ferguson officer Darren Wilson, who has remained secluded from the public eye since the Aug. 9 shooting that sparked tense and occasionally violent protests and drew national attention.

Wilson has been under a lot of pressure and stress but appeared confident in the outcome of the grand jury investigation, Roorda said.

"It's fair to say that neither he nor his defense team expect an indictment," Roorda said, offering his impression of the situation based on the meeting with Wilson.

One of Wilson's attorneys, who also attended Thursday's meeting, said there was no specific discussion of expectations.

"We have absolutely no idea — no more than anyone else — what may or may not happen," attorney Neil Bruntrager said. "The only expectation that we would have is that the grand jury would be thorough and fair."

If he is indicted, Wilson will immediately turn himself in to authorities, Bruntrager said.

Wilson has been on paid administrative leave since the shooting.

A 12-person St. Louis County grand jury has been hearing evidence in the case as it weighs whether to issue charges against the white officer for the black 18-year-old's death. A decision could come soon, though authorities have not publicized any specific date for an announcement.

Roorda said St. Louis city police have been notified that they are switching to 12-hour shifts starting Saturday, a preparation for a potential uptick in protests.

The St. Louis County Police Department has not yet decided whether to switch to longer work shifts, spokesman Brian Schellman said.

For weeks, local and state police have been preparing for a grand jury announcement in anticipation that it will result in renewed protests. Earlier this week, Gov. Jay Nixon declared a state of emergency and activated the National Guard to help with security.

Thanksgiving getaway: 46.3 million to hit the road

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The good news for Thanksgiving travelers: the price of gas is at five-year lows. The bad news: a lot more people will be on the road.

During the long holiday weekend, 46.3 million Americans are expected to go 50 miles or more from home, the highest number since 2007, according to travel agency and car lobbying group AAA. That would be a 4.2 percent increase over last year.

While promising for the travel industry, the figure is still 8.5 percent short of the 50.6 million high point reached in 2007, just before the recession.

Like on every other holiday, the overwhelming majority of travelers — almost 90 percent — will be driving.

The numbers on the gas station signs will be much kinder this year. AAA says the average retail price for gasoline is $2.85 per gallon, 43 cents cheaper than Thanksgiving Day last year. With the average car getting 18.5 miles per gallon, that means a family driving 300 miles will save $6.97 in fuel this holiday.

Those flying won't be so lucky. Average airfares are $307.52, up 1.1 from last year, according to the Airlines Reporting Corp., which processes ticket transactions for airlines and travel agencies. That figure doesn't include an average of $51 in additional taxes and fees that passengers pay.

Travelers walk under a sign reading "Happy Thanksgiving" at LaGuardia Airport in New York on Nov. 26, 2013. There will be 12.3 million roundtrip passengers, globally, on U.S. airlines during the 2014 holiday travel period, up 1.5 percent from 2013, according to the industry's lobbying group, Airlines for America.

There will be 12.3 million roundtrip passengers, globally, on U.S. airlines during the holiday travel period, up 1.5 percent from last year, according to the industry's lobbying group, Airlines for America. (AAA's forecast shows fewer numbers of fliers because it looks at a five-day period while the airline group looks at the 12 days surrounding Thanksgiving.)

Those travelers staying at hotels will also spend more than last year. The average room rate so far this year is $115.85, up 4.6 percent from the same prior last year, according to travel research firm STR.

If you're among the Thanksgiving travelers driving to your destination, Wednesday's getaway traffic produces the gnarliest snarls from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in most areas, according to analysis of the roads in 21 major U.S. cities by Google Inc. The Internet company drew its conclusions by following the locations of smartphones that used its Android operating system and popular mapping service during the week of Thanksgiving in 2012 and last year.

For those driving on Thanksgiving day, the most congestion crops up from noon to 2 p.m., according to Google.

The worst time to drive back home typically is the Saturday after Thanksgiving when Google concluded the average traffic is about 40 percent higher than on the Sunday after the holiday. Pittsburgh was the city among the 21 studied by Google where the traffic was slightly heavier on the Sunday after Thanksgiving than on the Saturday.

Last year's biggest Thanksgiving-week traffic spikes occurred in Philadelphia, Austin, Washington D.C. and Dallas, according to Google. Denver, Boston, Providence, Rhode Island and Seattle registered the smallest changes in traffic.

Even if you aren't leaving of town, expect long lines when stocking up on food and drink on the day before Thanksgiving. Google says the most searched categories on its mapping service during the past two years have been "ham shop," "pie shop" and "liquor store."

Once Thanksgiving dinner is done, people turn their attention to the next big holiday. The Friday after Thanksgiving ranks among the busiest shopping days of the year as gift-givers seek out bargains. And one of the top terms entered into Google's maps that day is "Christmas tree farm."

Officials downplay debates over Ebola aid response

Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. officials on Thursday acknowledged disagreements over coordinating the international response to the Ebola epidemic in Liberia, but they say most issues are being worked out and the overall fight against the disease there seems to be succeeding.

In a call with reporters, the officials said disputes have erupted over matters like where to build new treatment centers and getting U.S. military helicopters to transport patients and blood samples from remote areas.

But they also minimized the debates, characterizing them as a natural and fleeting part of an intense and complicated battle against the largest Ebola epidemic in world history.

"The proof in the pudding is they get resolved. And we have seen progress in Liberia," said Jeremy Konyndyk, director of USAID's Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance.

CHILDREN'S VIEWS OF GRIEF

Rays of Hope recognizes National Blue Day

By Steve Kuhlmann
skuhlmann@mrt.com

Rays of Hope Children's Grief Centre observed National Children's Grief Awareness Day — also known as National Blue Day — Thursday with an art exhibit titled "Grief Through the Eyes of a Child" featuring art by the center's clients.

"It's very touching to be able to look into the lives of these families who have been impacted by loss," said Kelsee Jones, program director at Rays of Hope. "It's powerful in the sense that you can really recognize their grief, but you can also see the hope that they have in healing. We feel like it's very touching and impactful for people to come in and see and it really speaks to the work that we want to try to do."

Jones said the art project is an assignment of a program that aims to help clients and their families create a visual representation of their grief. She hopes the exhibit was able to remind the community that "we're surrounded by children who are grieving due to losses and changes in their lives and that we do have the power to support them."

National Children's Grief Awareness Day was created in 2008 and is recognized on the third Thursday of November because the holiday season can be an especially difficult time for children who have suffered a loss, according to the National Children's Grief Awareness Day's website.

"This day really provides an opportunity to raise awareness about the impact that the loss of a loved one has in the life of a child or a teenager," Jones said. "We want to tell bereaved children that they are not forgotten, that we are here to support them and that there is healing and hope to be found. That's what the day is all about."

Local retailer partners with church to help homeless

By Steve Kuhlmann
skuhlmann@mrt.com

Despite the economic boom currently impacting the city, Midland's homeless population tops 400 individuals. With the colder months approaching, Ivy Cottage is partnering with the Church Under the Bridge to provide blankets and other necessities to help these Midlanders to survive the winter.

"Just because Midland has become known as one of the richest cities in the United States doesn't mean that we don't need to take care of our problems that (the money) has created as a reaction," said Beverly Vaughn, CEO of Ivy Cottage. "We certainly don't want anyone else (to) lose their life to the elements."

The home décor store is currently seeking donated items, as well as monetary donations to be used toward the purchase of either blankets or items that comprise a "survival kit."

Vaughn said the store is offering the community an incentive to donate, entering each donor into a drawing for one of three gift certificates to the store.

"We're doing a promotion that for every blanket someone brings in, they get entered to win a gift certificate from Ivy Cottage for the amount of $1,000, $500 or $250," said Vaughn, adding that for every $100 in monetary donations, the donor will be entered six times into the drawing for the gift certificates.

The store plans to conduct the drawing for the gift certificates once it has reached its goal of 450 blankets.

Ivy Cottage is partnering with Church Under the Bridge to provide blankets and other necessities to homeless Midlanders as the weather gets colder.

Vaughn said there have been nearly 200 blankets donated in the last month in addition to the monetary donations that have come in.

While the drawing will occur once the store's goal has been reached, Vaughn said she hopes to continue to support CUTB's mission throughout the rest of the winter and for years to come.

"We plan on accepting donations all the way through the colder months, probably through February and then we'll try to start meeting other needs," Vaughn said. While they are focusing on blankets, she added that other items would be welcome as well. "Tarps, bedrolls, coats, anything like that which

Local group seeks donations for 23rd annual book drive

By Steve Kuhlmann
skuhlmann@mrt.com

The Midland chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma International Society for Key Women Educators is again seeking to provide every first-grader in Midland and Greenwood with a book during the 23rd annual A Storybook Christmas Project.

"You'd be surprised how thrilling it is to a child to open that book and have a label in there where they're able to write their name," said Carolyn McGaha, a member of the local Delta Kappa Gamma group. "It's a thrill. They always ask if they can take it home. Some kids have never had that thrill before, more than we'd like to think."

While the organization used to accept class sets of the chosen book as donations, McGaha and fellow Delta Kappa Gamma member Patricia Adams said they now request only monetary donations so they can ensure every student receives the same book.

McGaha said each year's chosen book is selected by local elementary school librarians who ensure the book is both appropriate for the first-grade age group and also has editions available in Spanish.

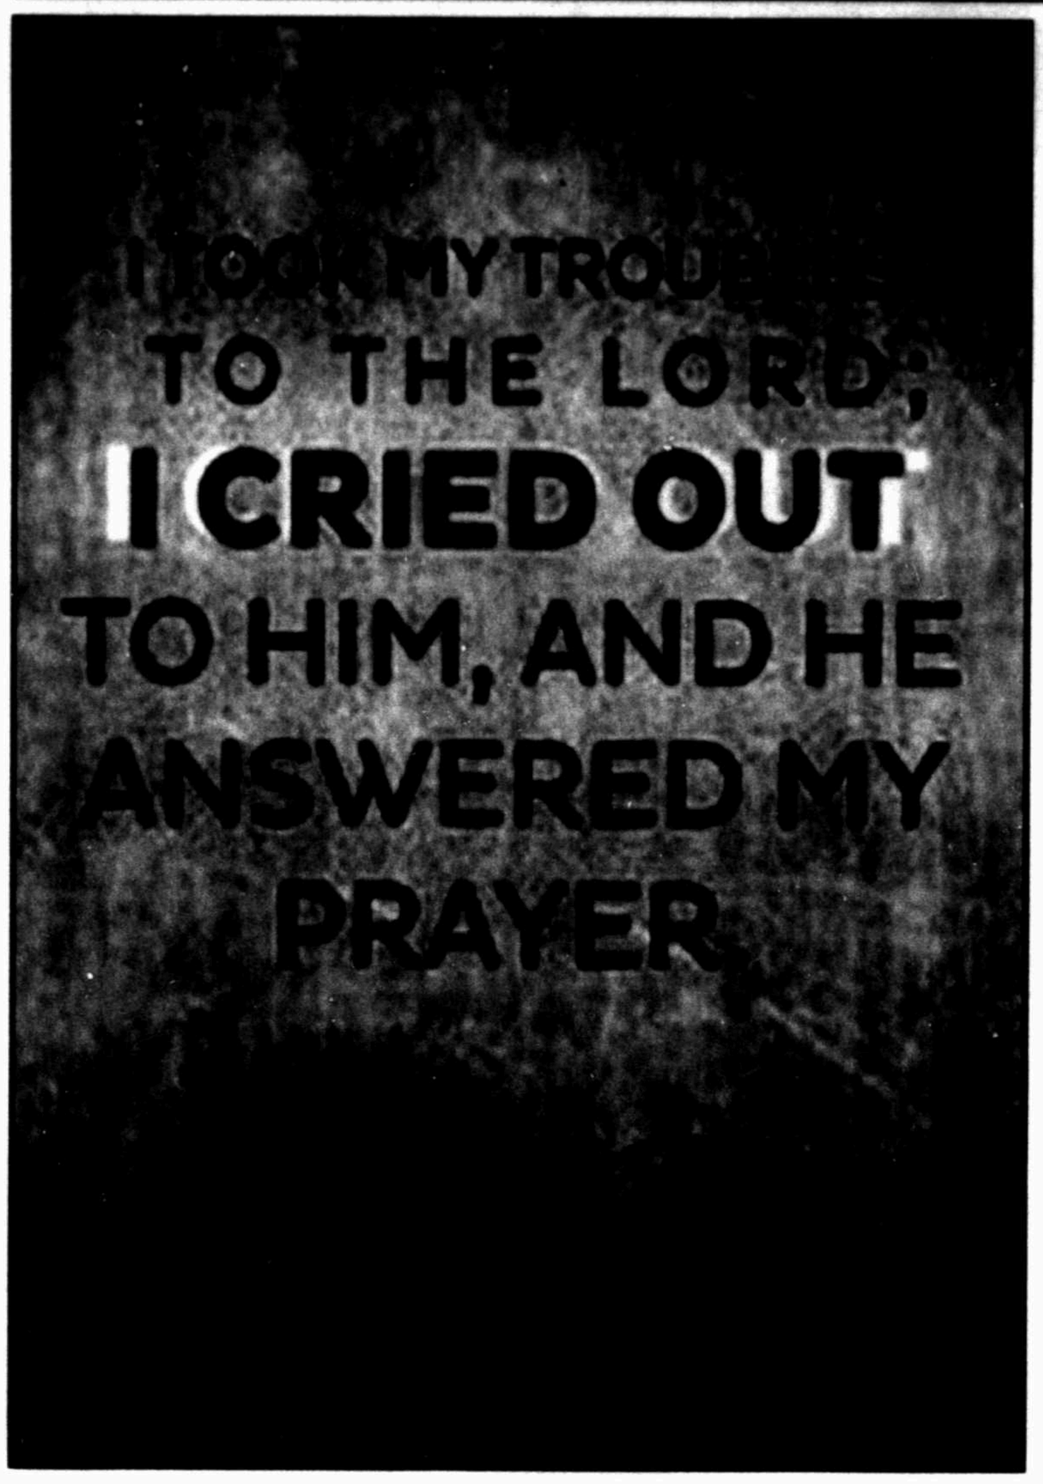

This year's selection is "Rufus Goes to School" by Kim Griswell and Gorbachev Valeri. It's the story of a pig named Rufus Leroy Williams III who is intent on going to school so he can learn to read his favorite book.

"I think that message is great because a lot of these kids would rather be home playing," Adams said.

Last year, the Storybook Christmas Project delivered 2,300 books to local first-graders and, with the ever-expanding population, McGaha said she expects this year to be even larger.

Over the years, McGaha said that, along with the

FAITH&PHILANTHROPYBRIEFS

FROM WIRE REPORTS

VATICAN CITY

Papal official tempers point about accused bishops

The head of Pope Francis' commission to fight clerical sex abuse is tempering his remarks about accountability for bishops accused of covering up for abusive priests, saying they deserve a fair hearing, too.

Cardinal Sean O'Malley, archbishop of Boston, told "60 Minutes" news program last week that the Vatican must "urgently" address the situation of Kansas City Bishop Robert Finn, the highest-ranking church official in the U.S. to be convicted of failing to take action in response to abuse allegations.

In a comment posted Wednesday on thebostonpilot.com, the website of the archdiocesan newspaper of Boston, O'Malley said that while bishops must be held accountable, they must be spared "crowd-based condemnations."

"We need clear protocols that will replace the improvisation and inertia that has often been the response in these matters," he wrote. "Bishops also deserve due process that allows them to have an opportunity for a fair hearing."

His remarks reflected some concerns expressed by clerics that the Vatican in recent years has gone too far in ousting accused pedophile priests, and may go down the same path as it turns its attention to holding their bishops and superiors accountable.

IOWA

Former church to be couple's new home

BARNUM — A church has been moved about three-quarters of a mile to a farm where it will be transformed into a home.

The former Calvary Presbyterian Church will be the new home of Brian and Katie Norine, the Fort Dodge Messenger reported. The structure was delivered to Katie Norine's family farm on Wednesday.

"It was my great-grandfather's farm," Norine's mother, Linda Martin, said. "My mom grew up there and my grandfather built the barn."

The barn is still on the family's property.

Before the church was rolled away to its new foundation, the family gathered for a picture.

"We want to get a Christmas card photo," said Kim Martin, Norine's father.

Brian Norine said he found a few occupants in the old building's walls.

"There were a few snakes and mice," he said. "Not very many dead ones either."

Norine said he expects it will take several years to finish all of the work on their new home.

could help would be great."

While the store is offering the gift certificates to entice donations, Vaughn said they hardly had to promote the offer and "people are giving from their heart and their pocketbooks."

"There is a lot of need and it's only getting worse in Midland," Vaughn said. "We're so blessed to have so many fortunate people who have the resources to help us do this. They've been so generous, everyone is willing to help somebody get back on their feet."

Church Under the Bridge's goal is to reach out to those experiencing homelessness or extreme poverty by providing them with a spiritual home and seeking to assist with meeting some of the physical needs they face.

GRIEF
From 1B

As a community outreach of Hospice Midland, Rays of Hope serves children between the ages of 4 to 18 dealing with the impact of loss and helping them to "do the work of grief" by providing a "safe, neutral environment for them to be able to express their feelings in age appropriate ways and to learn that they are not alone in dealing with the tough circumstances that life sometimes brings," said Jones.

"We focus on the creative arts — art, music, drama — to help these kids try to learn how to get those inside feelings out and learn healthy coping skills," Jones said. "Helping the kids to actually do the work instead of just sitting back and listening can actually help them to buy into it and move forward in their journey."

Offering their services free to the community, Jones said the nonprofit is always on the lookout for more volunteers who would like help children in the community recover from the emotional loss they have suffered.

"We have gotten a lot more participation from the community as the years have gone on," Jones said. "We hope to get even more traffic because we function off of volunteers, so volunteers, facilitators and support groups are really the reason why we get to do what we do. The more people that learn about our work, the more participation that we can have."

Lawsuit: Crosiers hid priest's past, created nuisance

By Amy Forliti
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — A lawsuit filed Thursday by four men who say they were molested by a priest in the 1970s claims a Catholic order created a public nuisance when it failed to warn families that the priest could pose a risk.

It was one of two lawsuits filed Thursday in Minnesota against the Crosier Fathers and Brothers and the Rev. Gerald Funcheon, who worked in suburban Minneapolis, among other places, and has admitted to abusing minors. The lawsuit alleges the Crosiers are putting the public in danger by concealing the histories of accused priests, and it seeks the full disclosure of accused priests' files.

A similar public nuisance claim against the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis has led to the unprecedented disclosure of tens of thousands of church documents and the names of dozens of accused priests. That lawsuit was recently settled in an agreement that outlines protocols to keep children safe.

Mike Finnegan, an attorney for the plaintiffs, says the Crosiers have shown some willingness to disclose information on their own and as part of a prior settlement in 2009. The hope, he said, is that they will decide to release the files voluntarily.

In a statement Thursday, the Crosiers said they take the claims seriously.

"The Crosiers do not tolerate any forms of sexual misconduct, and we are profoundly sorry for actions committed by Gerald Funcheon while he was a member of our Order," said the Rev. Thomas Enneking, prior provincial of the Crosier Fathers and Brothers.

Funcheon's attorney didn't return a message seeking comment.

Finnegan said Funcheon has served in eight states: Minnesota, Nebraska, Indiana, Florida, Hawaii, California, Missouri and Texas; and had more than a dozen assignments. Funcheon was never charged but has been the subject of prior lawsuits, and his ministry was restricted in 1993.

Finnegan said Funcheon admitted in 1992 that he might have as many as 50 victims. During a sworn deposition on Sept. 18, 2012, which Finnegan's law firm edited and posted on YouTube, Funcheon admitted to far having less. At first he estimated he abused a dozen kids, and when pressed, he said: "I couldn't count them up. I don't know — I'll go to 18."

In the latest lawsuit, the four men claim they were 11 to 14 years old when they were molested by Funcheon at St. Odilia Catholic Church and School in Shoreview between 1970 and 1974. The claim alleges the Crosiers should have known Funcheon molested at least one child at a camp in Syracuse, Indiana, in 1965.

It also says the religious order failed to tell law enforcement, allowing Funcheon to avoid prosecution and continue abusing kids.

In the other lawsuit filed Thursday, one man alleges Funcheon abused him in 1985, when he was a student at Palma High school in Salinas, California. That lawsuit alleges the Crosiers knew Funcheon was a danger and repeatedly moved him from place to place because of complaints.

growing population, the project has faced several obstacles including rising costs, changes in school protocol and not being the only organization to provide books to local students.

One point of pride, said Adams, is that donations to the project are exclusively used to purchase the books and that the Delta Kappa Gamma members use their membership dues to pay for all other costs.

"Any money that we collect on this from the community will be used for the books," Adams said. "Our membership to (Delta Kappa Gamma) has to pay for all of the postage and supplies."

The organization will host a book packing event at DeZavala Elementary's library at 1 p.m. Dec. 5 and a Storybook Christmas Brunch the following day at 9:30 a.m., also at the school's library.

All of the books will be delivered to their specified schools and classrooms by Dec. 19 when the first school lets out for the holiday break.

"It's really fun, it's like playing Santa Claus," McGaha said. "It's something that we're proud of and we work hard to keep it going."

MCS line has swagger back in time for Bishop Dunne

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

There are differing opinions on how different the Midland Christian offensive line is from the start of the season to now.

Heck, the players say they are different now than they were three weeks ago.

But make no mistake, the Mustangs offensive front seems to have a little bit of the swagger back that has defined it the last few years.

The personnel is a little different than last year as the right side of the line didn't start on the varsity last season. But the group of players that includes, senior left tackle Johnny Wilson, junior left guard Bryson Breeding, senior center Jacob Tucker, junior right guard Corey Joe Potter and freshman right tackle Luke Fisher, have found some chemistry recently that has them playing with confidence this week.

The Mustangs will take that confidence into a TAPPS Division I state quarterfinal against Dallas Bishop Dunne at 7:30 p.m. today at Earl Hayes Stadium in Dallas.

"We are a lot more confident, and it's just a whole different vibe," said Wilson, the Oklahoma State commit who is in his third year at left tackle. "Some of them were iffy about the season and everyone is on board again."

The Mustangs' front has certainly had its struggles this season.

Big Spring vs. Andrews: Round 2

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

Big Spring offensive linemen from left, Nick Conner, Nick Dehoyos, Nick Sotelo, Charlie Boling and Bryson Burt are hoping to help the Steers offense and lead them to a big win over rival Andrews today.

Steers' offensive line paving way for offense

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Charlie Boling flashes a big smile when asked about what it's like blocking for the Big Spring offense.

"It's great!" said the senior left guard without hesitation.

It's hard to not get excited about the offense the Steers have this season. Big Spring (8-2) is averaging a little more than 448 yards and 39 points per game heading into tonight's highly-anticipated rematch against Andrews (10-1) in a Class 4A Division I area round playoff game at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

While explosive playmakers quarterback Tobyn Tannehill and running back Hunter Hill may get many of the headlines, they have both acknowledged that the offensive line — made up of Boling, senior center Nick Sotelo, senior left tackle Nick Conner, senior right guard Nick Dehoyos and junior right tackle Bryson Burt — has been critical to their success.

"They have just meshed well as a unit and we wouldn't be where we are today without those guys," said Big Spring coach Phlip Ritchey about the offensive line. "There are kids who get a lot of press but you can't do anything without those guys up front. They've done a great job and have worked really hard. I'm very proud of them with the way they've been playing."

Mustang DB Cordell showing leadership as well as skill

By Oscar LeRoy

There have been times this season that Andrews coach Ralph Mason has seen Jace Cordell display the determination, drive and willingness to do whatever it takes to make a play and help the Mustangs be successful.

Cordell

That's the kind of player the senior wide receiver and safety has grown into this season and he embodies the attitude and the mindset this 10-1 Mustang team seems to have.

"He's one of our good leaders, one of our captains," said Mason, whose team will play rival Big Spring (8-2) in an anticipated Class 4A Division I area round playoff game at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium tonight. "He's a committed individual and hates to lose."

Lady Chaps upset No. 1 Trinity Valley

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Mary Savoy knew that if her Midland College women's basketball team was going to knock off No. 1-ranked Trinity Valley Community College on Thursday, the Lady Chaparrals had to believe they could do it.

While things didn't look good when MC trailed 32-20 at the intermission, the Lady Chaparrals rallied in the second half to upset the Lady Cardinals, 65-59, in the first round of the Women's National Invitational Tournament at Chaparral Center.

"What kept us going was making a change in our minds that we really wanted this," said Savoy, who had 10 of her 15 points in the second half. "We all wanted this so we put in the effort, got down on defense, made good decisions with the ball, and went ahead and played basketball."

Lady Chaparrals	65
No. 1 Lady Cardinals	59

The win over the Lady Cardinals (3-1) was the second game of the tournament that saw a nationally ranked team fall to an opponent from the Western Junior College Athletic Conference. Earlier in the afternoon, Odessa College defeated No. 7 College of Southern Idaho, 66-63.

The first half saw the Lady Chaparrals (6-3) struggle in several areas as they shot just 24.1 percent and turned the ball over 10 times.

"I don't think it was struggling but we had to get our heads straight," Savoy said. "As soon as we started playing and started getting a feel for things, I wouldn't say it became easy but it became a lot smoother for us."

The Lady Chaps started the second half stronger thanks to a 9-2 run.

That spurt gave MC the momentum and Trinity Valley began to struggle from the floor as they only shot 28.6 percent in the second half.

LADY CHAPS

From 1C

"We made some shots and they missed some shots right beside the basket, and we got a little bit lucky," MC coach Ron Jones said. "The main thing is that we kept fighting. We still have got a long ways to go but I'm proud of the way they fought because I thought they got down in the last five or six minutes of the first half and they looked like they were starting to cash in a little bit."

MC also got a boost in the second half from the three sophomores on the team. Savoy not only had 15 points but added 10 rebounds in the game. Marielka Garate added 10 points and 11 rebounds, and Tajanay Veiga chipped in with 11 points.

It was Veiga, who gave MC its first lead of the second half, 45-44, on a layup with 6:51 left in the game.

Freshman and Midland Christian grad Morgan Ashton added 10 points, including two free throws to push MC's lead to 61-54 with 1:02 remaining.

Midland College next plays McLennan Community College at 7 p.m. today in the tournament, and Jones told his team to enjoy the win for two hours because he knows they still have work to do this weekend.

However, the Lady Chaps can't deny that this was huge win for a young team against an opponent that was coming off three consecutive NJCAA national titles

"I think by winning tonight, it has definitely given us a boost of confidence for the rest of the season," Savoy said. "We are going to have our downs, but other than that, we're going to have our confidence right behind us because we won this game. This was a big game for us tonight."

Stars score 3 in 3rd period to rally past Coyotes

Associated Press

DALLAS — John Klingberg, Cody Eakin and Jason Spezza all scored in the third period, rallying the Dallas Stars to a 3-1 victory over the Arizona Coyotes on Thursday night.

Ales Hemsky had two assists as Dallas ended a seven-game home losing streak (0-5-2), winning for just the second time in 11 home games (2-5-4).

Arizona has lost its last five games in Dallas.

Klingberg and Eakin scored 33 seconds apart in the opening minute of the third period. Klingberg's goal from the slot was his first in the NHL in his sixth game, and tied the score 19 seconds into the period. Eakin tipped Trevor Daley's shot from the blue line over Arizona goalie Mike Smith at 52 seconds.

Stars	3
Coyotes	1

Spezza made it 3-1 with 4:18 remaining as he skated behind the net, came out on the left side and shot into the net.

Lauri Korpikoski scored for the Coyotes with 5:39 left in the first period. He put in a rebound of Sam Gagner's shot off Stars goalie Kari Lehtonen's pads.

Smith and Lehtonen both had 24 saves.

The Coyotes dominated the early play. When Korpikoski scored on the power play, the Coyotes had outshot Dallas 9-4. The Stars put the final five shots on goal to finish the period 9-9.

Dallas appeared to tie the score with 5:22 left in the second, when Eakin redirected a pass from Travis Moen past Smith. However, the referees ruled that Brenden Dillon had remained in the blue area in front of the net too long.

The score remained 1-0 after the second period, when the Coyotes outshot the Stars 10-9.

NOTES: The Stars started players from five countries — Dillon and Spezza (Canada), Lehtonen (Finland), Klingberg (Sweden), Hemsky (Czech Republic) and Antoine Roussel (France). ... RW Patrick Eaves returned after missing three games because of a foot injury. ... C Ryan Garbutt (upper-body injury) is expected to be out for a week. Garbutt scored the winning goal, short-handed, in Dallas' 4-3 victory Nov. 11 at Arizona. ... Coyotes C Martin Hanzal (lower body) missed his second game.

Andrews vs. Big Spring at a glance

CLASS 4A DIVISION I AREA ANDREWS VS. BIG SPRING

When/where: 7 p.m., Ratliff Stadium, Odessa

On the air: KBEST FM (95.7), KBYG FM (106.3), Big Spring; KACT FM (105.5), KACT AM (1360), Andrews

Records: Andrews 10-1; Big Spring 8-2

Last game: Andrews 61, Borger 20; Big Spring 35, Gainesville 17

Last meeting/series: Andrews defeated Big Spring 43-42 on Oct. 3 but Big Spring leads the all-time series 20-17-1

Weather forecast: Partly cloudy with a 5 percent chance of rain and a temperature of 59 at kickoff, getting down to the mid-50s at the end of the game.

Five things you need to know

■ Andrews used a 41-point second quarter to spark the blowout victory over Borger last week. QB Jase Hammack threw for 364 yards and had all of his five TDs in that second quarter.

"I feel good about our team, no reason not to feel good," coach Ralph Mason said. "The kids are continuing to focus and work hard, which are things you've got to have at this point. A lot of teams at this point are different. Some may be tired and some are motivated and I think we're on the motivated side right now."

■ Mason said it's going to be critical to avoid mistakes against Big Spring.

"Offensively, execution is key and we have to avoid turnovers," Mason said. "Defensively, we got to do our jobs. We talk about doing our one-eleventh all the time. That's what we've got to do. We've got to do our jobs and tackle well."

■ Big Spring got three total touchdowns from Hunter Hill, while QB Tobyn Tannehill added 128 yards passing and two TDs in the win over Big Spring. Coach Phillip Ritchey said it was a good all-around performance from his team.

"The defense played really strong against a good offense in Gainesville," Ritchey said. "They tried to drive it down our throats and our guys played real well, probably the best game of the year for us. Offensively, their defense had only given up 19 points a game. They were real physical, real strong and we moved the ball well for most of the night. We felt like we left a couple of touchdowns on the field we should have gotten, but that's football."

■ Ritchey said the Mustangs always present a big challenge.

"They are a very experienced team, they're playing really well and they're blowing everybody out that they've played since we played them," he said. "They're offense is hard to defend, and they're sound in every area. They can run the ball if you empty the box too much and they can throw it wherever they want to and can score a lot of points. We try to do pretty much the same thing, although we do run the ball a lot more. We're just trying to take what they give us. You can't miss tackles and you can't leave wide open zones in your defense. You also have to put pressure on (Hammack)."

■ Mason said his team is as healthy as its been all season, while Ritchey said S Allen Ryle (ankle) and CB Anthony Goodwin (knee) are questionable to play in this game.

LOOKING BACK AT THE LAST MEETING
ANDREWS 43, BIG SPRING 42

Andrews came back from a 42-28 deficit early in the fourth quarter to beat Big Spring, 43-42, at Big Spring's Memorial Stadium on Oct. 3.

With Andrews trailing, 42-35, quarterback Jase Hammack found Le'Vaun Lewis for a 14-yard touchdown pass with 3:27 left in the game. After Big Spring was called for being offside on the PAT attempt, the Mustangs went for the two-point conversion and Tajh Kelly converted it jumped over his offensive line.

Big Spring still had a chance to win the game with one final drive, but the Andrews defense stopped quarterback Tobyn Tannehill just short of a first down. That forced the Steers to attempt a 23-yard field goal with 25.6 seconds left, but Tannehill's kick went wide right.

Hammack finished the game with 416 yards and five touchdowns and no interceptions on 26-of-31 passing.

Tannehill led the Steers with 185 yards rushing on 25 carries, to go with 273 yards on 16-of-27 passing with four touchdowns and two interceptions.

Added Boling, "I think we play as one and it shows on the field. We can move the ball real well and we can throw and pass the ball real well. We've had no real protection issues and if they just hand it off to Hunter, he'll just run behind the holes."

That offensive line helped the Steers defeat a Gainesville team that was much better than the record indicated, 35-17, in last week's bi-district round as the Steers had a balanced offense with 158 yards rushing and 128 yards passing.

"This is one of the best offenses in the state, and to know that we're part of it and we're one of the reasons for it, it's a great feeling," Sotelo said.

Like most offensive lines, these Steers have formed a tight unit and it has been helped by three players who have been in the Big Spring trenches for the last three years in Boling, Sotelo and Conner.

"We have performed very well, I guess a lot better than people thought we would," Sotelo said. "Myself, Charlie and Nick Conner returned from last year. We had a great year last year and we've had an even better season this year. Adding Nick Dehoyos in his first year to start and then adding junior Bryson Burt in his first year on the line as well, I think we've done very well."

Having that experience return for the Steers up front has paid big dividends this season, especially going 3-1 in an ultra-competitive District 3-4A Division II, that included Abilene Wylie, Stephenville, Brownwood and Snyder.

"We've got those three guys who have played for three years and they've seen some of the best defensive fronts in the state, and our district is full of them," Ritchey said. "They've seen some tough competition and they have still allowed us to have success, minus one game against Abilene Wylie."

Added Boling about having that experience: "We know what to look for and we know how to make the adjustments. When you're used to everything, you can just play to the best of your ability without having to worry about something going wrong. You just know what to do in those situations."

The offensive line will look to lead the Steers' high potent offense again tonight as they face an Andrews team that can also put up plenty of points.

The teams met in a non-district game at Big Spring's Memorial Stadium on Oct. 3 and the Mustangs escaped with a 43-42 come-from-behind victory during the Steers' homecoming night.

Sotelo said that loss has served as motivation for his team.

"This time we're ready for them," he said. "We're going to come out even harder for this game. We want to take back our homecoming game."

Boling agreed.

"We've been looking forward to it for a while," he said. "We figured we would meet them in the playoffs again."

Tonight, both teams will get their wish for the rematch.

CORDELL

during the last two years on varsity. He said last season, he was just trying to learn his role and not mess up. This year, however, he has become someone his teammates can trust and look to for guidance.

"This year I'm a captain, I feel like I've been a real leader on the team and people look up to me for leadership," he said. "They don't question me, they follow me because they know from my playing that I keep my word and I will do what I say."

What Cordell has also done this season is become a key contributor on both sides of the ball. That's in addition to being a great student as Mason said Cordell ranks number one in a senior class of 223 students.

At receiver, Cordell has helped the Mustang offense continue to put up big numbers, including averaging more than 40 points per game. He's caught 23 passes for 335 yards and seven touchdowns, including a TD catch in the 61-20 victory over Borger in last week's bi-district round.

"We've had this offense for a while now, and with (quarterback) Jase (Hammack) and Coach Mason I would say it's unstoppable," Cordell said. "The only thing that could stop us is by our own mistakes. It's great to have an offense like this, to know that you're going to put up points no matter what. It really relieves some stress on the defensive side of the ball."

Cordell has also helped the Mustangs mature and improve from last year in Don Long's first season as defensive coordinator. Mason said Cordell is like a quarterback in the secondary as he gets everybody in the right place and helps to communicate calls from the sidelines. This season he has recorded 42 total tackles and three interceptions, including one against Borger.

"I couldn't do my job unless the other 10 people on the field did theirs, so I attribute a lot of my success to the team, and also to the offseason where we worked our butts off to get to where we are right now," Cordell said. "As you can see our success is no coincidence.

"This year with the experience of the last two years and playing together, we know that we can trust one another," Cordell added. "Coach Long always tells us to do our one-eleventh. If each of us do our one-eleventh we will be successful."

And the Mustangs have been very successful as the program is enjoying its best season in seven years. They also rolled through District 2-4A Division I for their first district title since the 2003 season and have continued to play very well, winning their last six games heading into tonight's showdown with the Steers.

In addition to playing well together, Cordell said that this year's team has a unique bond.

"We're feeling really good right now," he said." I think we've grown a lot as a team. We trust each other and we know that the person right next to you is going to do their job so you can take care of your job and we just need to keep doing what we need to do."

With the way the Mustangs have been playing, they also have the confidence of knowing that they can beat the Steers, thanks to a 43-42 thrilling victory in Big Spring on Oct. 3. That was the first win over the Steers in the last six meetings.

"I think after last time everyone can see that they're not unbeatable and that we can beat them," Cordell said. "But that was a long time ago. In the games since then we have improved a lot, so I have a really good feeling about this game."

Central looks to carry momentum from win through playoffs

By Chris Hummer
chummer@mrt.com

San Angelo Central's season was missing nothing but the final curtain call last Friday night.

Down 21 points with 11 minutes remaining to an extraordinarily athletic and talented Arlington Bowie team, the remaining time in the fourth quarter appeared to be nothing more than a final good-bye for the Bobcat seniors in their home stadium.

But then Central sparked, somehow managing 21 straight points to send the game into overtime. Eventually, the Bobcats escaped with a 55-52 win in the second extra frame. The explanation for the comeback is complicated in a lot of ways — it involved the offense awaking and the defense returning to status quo — but San Angelo Central head coach Brent Davis summed up his team's accomplishment in one word.

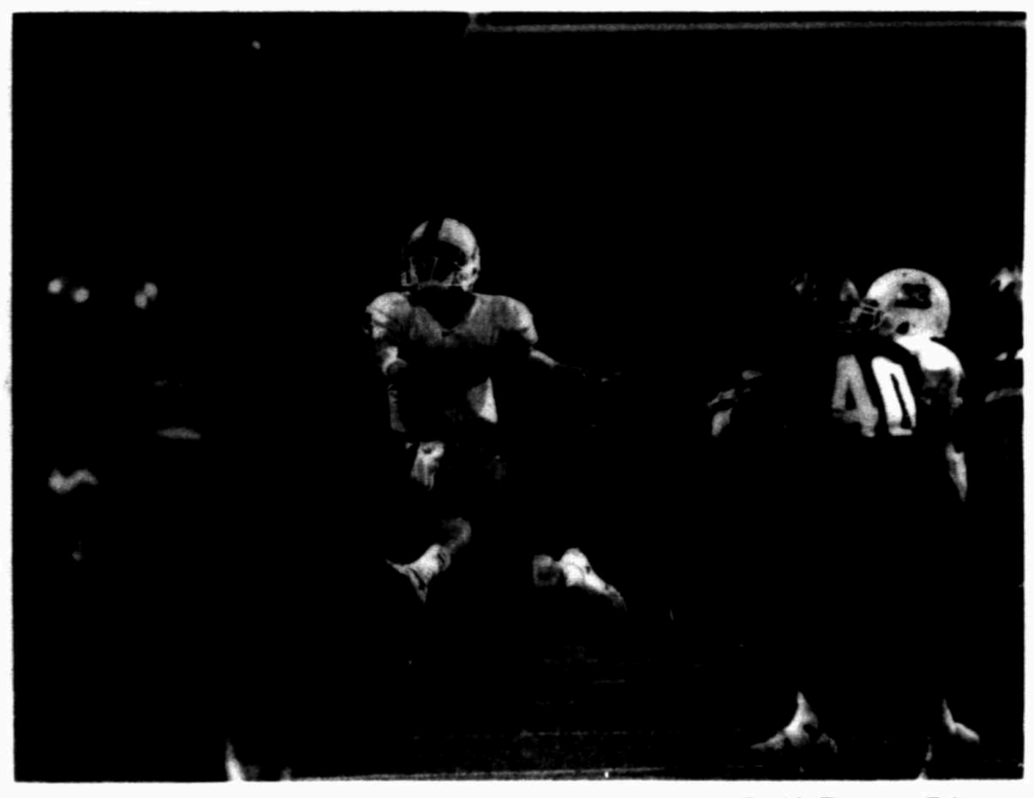

"Heart," Davis said.

The Bobcats were actually down by 21 points twice in the contest — the first time in 2014 they were faced with a deficit that large. But the front-runners that Central had been didn't panic. Instead, Davis said he saw a team that was firmly committed to riding what's been a great season for all its worth.

"We've got a veteran football team that's invested a ton into Friday nights," Davis said. "And they never quit."

The comeback allowed Central to advance to the second round of the playoffs, where it will face Lubbock Monterey tonight at 7 p.m., at Grande Communications Stadium in a Class 6A Division II area round game.

Davis preaches one game at a time to his team, but neither he nor his players can deny the win over Bowie held scope. Not only did Central storm back from a big deficit for the first time in 2014, it also broke what has been a long string of frustration against Metroplex schools in the postseason.

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

San Angelo Central quarterback Braden Hucks throws during an Oct. 17 game Midland High at Grande Communications Stadium.

Since 1991, the Bobcats had played Dallas-area teams eight times in the playoffs and had come away with one win, against Arlington Sam Houston in 1991.

"We've struggled with Metroplex teams in the playoffs and we finally got over that hump," Davis said. "It makes us know we can play with anybody."

Quarterback Braden Hucks echoed his coach's sentiments. He said he considers Bowie one of the most talented teams in the state, and said he believes if the Bobcats can come back against them, they can do so against anyone.

But Hucks said just being in the close game in a playoff environment might be bigger than anything for the team.

"The farther that we go in playoffs the more difficult it's going to be," Hucks said. "Us having a close game like that in the first round showed us it won't be easy in the playoffs."

The second-round game for Central may not be as strenuous, however. The Bobcats play Lubbock Monterey (5-6), a team that entered the playoffs two games under .500 and with just one district win.

But the Plainsmen do present a challenge offensively. Led by University of New Mexico commit Vincent Johnson their running game is explosive, pacing a unit that averages 33 points per game.

"We have to stop the run," Davis said. "Their running back is really good. We have to stop him if we're going to have any success at all."

Johnson presents some issues for Central, but the team will at least be comfortable at Grande. It's a place the Bobcats have already won this season, and a favorite of the Central players and coaching staff.

"We love playing at Grande," Davis said. "In my opinion, besides our home stadium, it's our favorite place to play in West Texas. Every chance we get I schedule a game here."

For the Bobcats, today's game is a chance to do something at Central that hasn't been done in 11 years — advance to the third round of the playoffs. The focus is tight on the objective, but Hucks admits he and his teammates can't resist dreaming a little bigger.

"We can't help but dream big," Hucks said. "If we have gone this far we need to keep going and make a run at the title."

Midland Christian went from a pass-heavy spread team in 2013 to a team that was relying more on balance and running the football this season.

The line, and the offense overall, spent the early part of the season trying to find their identity. Plus, the team was playing in the brutal TAPPS Division I, District 1 where they faced stout defensive lines and front sevens nearly every week.

It was a weekly challenge for both coaches and players, but it was something they looked forward to every week, even if they weren't seeing the kind of results they wanted.

"The games are quicker, and the players are more agile," Jacob Tucker said. "They have a lot more speed to them and it's a lot different. I feel like a little bit early we might have come out testing a little bit and testing what it's like. Now we come out as hard as we can and be aggressive."

The possible low point for the team and the offensive line was on Oct. 31 when the Mustangs lost to Bishop Dunne, 24-14 in Dallas. That night, the Mustangs mustered only 49 rushing yards.

It was by far the lowest rushing total of the season as the Mustangs are averaging just under 250 yards rushing a game.

"I think it's a mental thing," Wilson said. "You can say a team has Darrion Daniels (of Bishop Dunne), and they are all good athletes. But you have to be confident in yourself that you can do it."

It was sort of a wake-up call for the squad, and since the team has rushed for 238 and 277 yards in consecutive games.

Offensive line coach Ryan Tucker said both coaches and players have had to make some adjustments this season, and they've had to change and realize that some of the things they could get away with in previous years they can't now.

But Tucker said the offensive line is blocking as well as it has all season, that the unit's attitude has not changed.

"There are better players, and blocking schemes have to change up a little bit," Tucker said. "We've all had to come full circle, and I've had a lot of help with Cooper Schoolcraft, (coach Greg Mclendon) and even (offensive coach Dub Huckabee), it's just not me. We are trying to come together and right now we've had as good of a game plan as we've had."

Now, the squad will take that confidence back to a place where they struggled so much. And are looking to see if the changes they made both mentally and schematically will work, and help them to advance one more round in the playoffs.

"We've got to come out and attack the field and be aggressive," Potter said. "We have to play every play, and not let our heads drop. It's being very aggressive."

Five things you need to know

■ The Mustangs' first playoff game in eight years in a venue that wasn't a neutral site or their home field resulted in a resounding victory last week. The Mustangs rushed for 227 yards and had 360 for the game as the second half had a running clock. It was the fifth straight year the Mustangs had won their first round game.

■ The Falcons received a bye in the first round for winning the District 1 title, and Bishop Dunne coach Michael Johnson said the team took last week to clean up mistakes it made in a loss to Addison Trinity Christian and heal up some players.

■ The Falcons opened up a 21-3 lead on Addison Trinity Christian last week but the Trojans came back for the 52-33 victory to vault them into the playoffs.

"Our kids played pretty well, but it was a learning lesson and our kids really needed a wake up call," Johnson said. "We played a not perfect game, and I still believe we haven't played our best game yet. Once we do that, who knows what happens."

■ Falcons quarterback Micah Simon has thrown for 1,712 yards this season and 23 touchdowns to five interceptions. His top target is wide receiver and Illinois commit A.D. Miller, who has 920 yards and 15 TDs this season. On defense, the Falcons have defensive tackle Darrion Daniels anchoring the line. Daniels is a four-star recruit by Rivals.com.

■ Midland Christian's defense held the Buttons to 67 total yards last week, which was the lowest total of the season.

Last meeting: Happy beat Grady, 69-61, in 2013 Six-Man Division I area round in only meeting between the two teams
Weather forecast: A temperature of 50 degrees with light southeast winds and no chance of precipitation

Three things you need to know

■ This is a rematch of Class A Regional round game in 2013 when Happy scored late to beat the Wildcats and end their season.

■ Grady coach Chris Kuykendall said Happy is almost a mirror image of District 4-A Division I foe Borden County. He said the Cowboys like to run the ball and play a physical game. "The only difference is they wear black and gold and not Columbia blue and red," Kuykendall said.

■ Grady running back E.J. Rodriguez had 355 rushing yards in last week's victory against Ropes. Kuykendall said that the Wildcats have to do the little things right to succeed, and added "if we change that, there is no telling what we could do."

CLASS A DIVISION I REGIONAL
GARDEN CITY VS. IRA
When/where: 7:30 p.m. Griffith Stadium, Robert Lee
Records: Garden City 8-3, Ira 11-0
Last game: Garden City 64, Sterling City 16; Ira 58, Knox City 8
Last meeting: Ira 40, Garden City 38 in 2013 playoffs. Ira leads the overall series 5-3
Weather forecast: A temperature of 61 degrees at game time with slight winds and a slight chance of precipitation

Three things you need to know

■ Garden City is making its second straight appearance in the regional round of the playoffs. A year ago, the Bearkats were also eliminated by Ira in the regional round. Tonight's meeting will be the fourth meeting between the two teams since 2012, and the Bulldogs have won the three previous games.

■ Ira jumped out to a 44-0 lead at halftime against Knox City in its bi-district game last week, and won 58-8.

■ The Bearkats rushed for 449 yards in their victory against Garden City as Ismael Ramirez had 169 yards and Angel Zuniga 189. The two runners combined for five touchdowns.

Next: Winner vs. Crowell-Water Valley, TBA, Class A Division I Regional, TBA

ABILENE HIGH VS. WOLFFORTH FRENSHIP
When/Where: 7 p.m., Friday, Nov. 21, Lowery Field, Lubbock
On the air: KZQQ (1560 AM) Abilene.
Weather Forecast: High of 61 with a 20 percent chance of rain
Records: Abilene High 8-3, Frenship 8-3
Last Game: Abilene High 31, Arlington Lamar 13; Frenship 52, El Paso Eastwood 21
Last meeting/series: This is the first meeting between the schools

Three things you need to know

■ The Eagles have had trouble this season rushing the ball since star running back Abram Smith tore up his knee in the middle of district season. But Friday against Arlington Lamar, Abilene High found its edge on the ground again. It did so in an unconventional way, however, with quarterback Derek Scott and wide receiver Reese Childress combining for 32 of the Eagles' 36 carriers. Both were effective too, with Scott rushing for 112 yards and two touchdowns while Childress added 91 yards and two touchdowns of his own.

■ With the commitment to running the ball, Abilene High only threw seven passes in the win. But Childress and Scott still managed to be effective, as they combined for all 63 yards of Scott's passing on the night.

■ Frenship and Abilene High have not met this season — or any other year — but the two schools do have a pair of common opponents in 2014.

San Angelo Central handled the Tigers easily in a 36-14 game. But Frenship did shut down Odessa High, 38-13. The Bronchos being the team that upset the Eagles in their final game of the season. Frenship, for its part, went undefeated in District 2-6A play to earn the district title.

Next: Winner will play McKinney Boyd-Cedar Hill, Class 6A Division II regional, TBA

Raiders snap 16-game skid with win vs. KC

By Josh Dubow
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Derek Carr threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to James Jones with 1:42 remaining and the Oakland Raiders snapped a 16-game losing streak with a 24-20 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs on Thursday night.

Oakland's Latavius Murray ran for two touchdowns on four carries before leaving the game with a concussion.

The Raiders (1-10) built a 14-point lead, but needed a 17-play, 80-yard drive led by Carr to secure its first win since beating Houston on Nov. 17, 2013.

Alex Smith threw two TD passes for the Chiefs (7-4), who had won five in a row. They fell a half-game behind Denver in the AFC West.

No. 10 Texas beats Iowa, 71-57, in 2K Classic semis

By Brian Mahoney
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jonathan Holmes scored 17 of his 19 points in the second half, Isaiah Taylor added 15 and No. 10 Texas beat Iowa 71-57 on Thursday night in the 2K Classic.

The Longhorns trailed by 12 points in the first half but outscored Iowa 47-27 in the final 20 minutes to advance to the championship game Friday at Madison Square Garden against No. 23 Syracuse or California.

Texas (3-0) didn't take its first lead until early in the second half following Holmes' blistering start out of intermission. Holmes and Taylor helped the Longhorns keep the tempo up and put it away a little over midway through the half.

Aaron White scored 23 for Iowa (2-1), which shot just 29.6 percent.

The Hawkeyes led 30-24 at halftime, but Holmes opened the second with a dunk, then later had a 3-pointer and a three-point play in a 16-second span to tie it at 32.

It was 43-all when Holmes and Taylor combined for the final four baskets in a 13-0 surge that provided the Longhorns a 56-43 cushion with 8:04 remaining.

In its fifth 2K Classic appearance, the Longhorns will have a chance for their first title. They lost to Pittsburgh in the 2010 championship game.

TIP-INS

Iowa: Gabriel Olaseni was ejected after being called for a flagrant foul 2 on Taylor with 2:06 left. ... Iowa reached the final of this event here in its only other appearance, beating defending national champion and No. 1 Connecticut in 1999 before losing to Stanford when it was known as the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic. ... The Hawkeyes also reached the championship game of the 2013 NIT here, falling to Baylor.

Texas: Holmes had only one basket in the first half, when he crashed hard into the press table behind the baseline. ... Texas scored 85 points in each of its first two games. ... The Longhorns are making the first of two trips in two weeks to the East Coast.

Parts of Buffalo, New York, have received more than 7 feet of snow in the past few days, but Midland continues to be snow-free. However, rain is in the forecast.

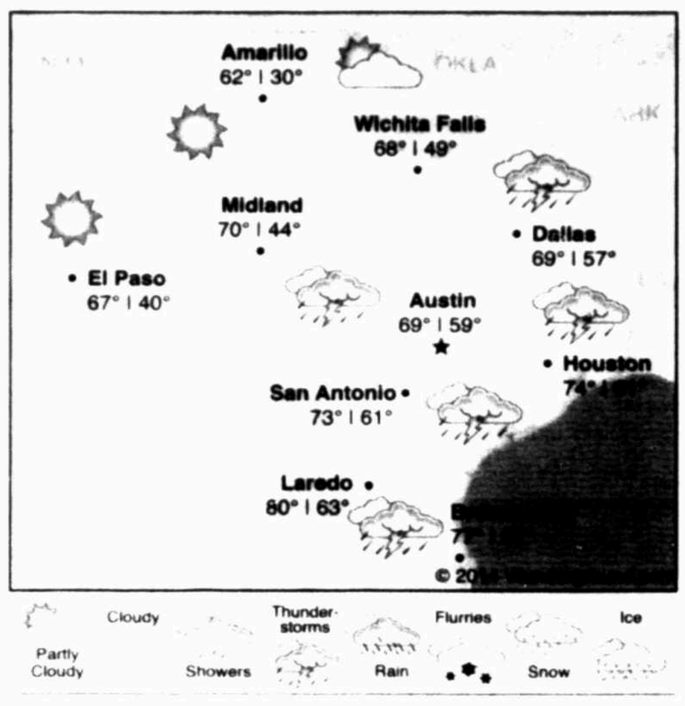

Expect a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight and Saturday. Otherwise expect weekend highs in the upper 60s and lower 70s. More cooler-than-normal high temperatures begin Monday.

The high on Thursday reached 67 while the low dropped to 30. The record high for Nov. 20 is 87 set in 1996. The record low is 18 set in 1987.

Weather Why

Q: Do lunar rainbows occur more frequently in certain locations?

Yes, Brent McRoberts of Texas A&M University said. "It is said Cumberland Falls in Kentucky produces more lunar rainbows than any place else because the conditions are perfect with the falling water during full moons," he said. "Also, Yosemite National Park is a frequent producer of lunar rainbows because of the geysers and waterfalls in the area. We know lunar rainbows have been observed for thousands of years, at least since the time of Aristotle."

Son's sex life is exposed by unlucky coincidence

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: How much interest in an adult child's sex life is normal? My mother seems obsessed.

I hooked up with a girl a couple of months ago on a Friday. She spent most of the weekend with me. We both knew it wouldn't go further than that.

It turns out she works with my mom, who by chance found out about the weekend. Mom has been interrogating her for every detail every chance she gets, and she likes to drop details into my daily life to embarrass me.

How much interest is a parent supposed to show? Mine knows my favorite position and intimate interests. — EXPOSED IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR EXPOSED: It seems your mother is not only nosy, but also has a sadistic sense of humor. She's getting a kick out of embarrassing you.

Tell her to lay off because what she's doing is inappropriate, and it's making you uncomfortable. If she can't respect your wishes, then realize it's time you put some distance between you and Mama. And to prevent this from happening in the future, find out more about the chicks you hook up with because this last one sings like a bird.

DEAR ABBY: The holidays will soon be here, and so will something that may seem petty, but really irks me. My friends have a large home with plenty of room, so they usually host the holiday dinners. We the guests — supply a few side dishes to accompany the meal. I usually bring several "sides" because I like to cook and I enjoy variety.

My problem is presentation. I bring my sides in nice casserole dishes and do my best to make them look appealing. Because I'm not particularly artistic, it takes some effort. When I arrive with the food, my hosts unceremoniously dump it into disposable aluminum containers, wash my dishes and put them aside.

I hope I don't sound picky, but even when I have asked that the items be served in the dishes I brought, the hosts say, "Oh, this is easier." I have said I don't mind bringing home dirty dishes, but my wishes are ignored. Am I being petty? — FRUSTRATED GUEST IN NEW YORK

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I don't think your feelings are petty. Having put as much effort as you have into making the food you're preparing look as appetizing as possible, it's understandable. However, because this is a recurring annoyance, consider preparing this year's contributions in disposable aluminum pans. That way, your creations won't be "dumped."

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a neatnik who always finds extra or unexpected things to do before meeting me at the car, in the TV room, etc. It means I always must wait for her before going anyplace.

I have asked her a thousand times to avoid doing "one last thing" before coming to meet me. How can I appeal to her better nature to avoid tending to every tiny detail before joining me? Or am I being too impatient? — WAITING FOR YOUR ANSWER

DEAR WAITING: I'm sorry, but I can't give you an unbiased answer because I am guilty of the same thing, and it makes my husband crazy, too. (I suspect your wife and I are not the only women who do this.)

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1NT	2♡	3♡	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

Thanks to Knut Kjaernsrød, of Norway, for today's deal. South was Jorn Arild Ringseth, a young Norwegian expert. We're not sure what North's three-heart bid means in Norwegian, but North-South arrived at their best contract.

Ringseth won the opening spade lead with dummy's queen and led a low club, won by East with the jack. South won the heart shift with the ace and ducked another club into East. With no more hearts to play, East tried the jack of spades, and was allowed to hold the trick. Another spade was won by declarer, who cashed the king of hearts and then had an excellent count of the hand. West was known to have started with four spades, seven hearts, and one club, leaving him with a singleton diamond.

At this point, Ringseth simply cashed the ace of clubs and continued with another club, putting East on lead and forcing a diamond return. East's low diamond ran to West's queen and dummy's ace, before declarer confidently led the 10 of diamonds for a finesse of the jack. That was nine tricks — two spades, two hearts, three diamonds, and two clubs. Well done! This deal helped Ringseth lead his team to victory in this important national event.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Nov. 21, 2014:

This year you express your seemingly endless creativity. You also might decide to express some of this energy through a talent or hobby of yours. You could be a budding artist before you know it! Professional advancement seems likely. If you are single, you meet people easily because you ooze desirability and magnetism. The issue will be choosing who will work best for you. If you are attached, avoid squabbling with your sweetie. You both will be happier with more understanding and openness. SCORPIO can be suspiciously quiet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ You might discover that a loved one seems to have blinders on, which prevents him or her from seeing others' perspectives. Push a project to the finish line; you'll want to free yourself up to enjoy the next few days. Tonight: Now the weekend begins. Christen it well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Others will be seeking you out to share their thoughts. Play devil's advocate, and go along as much as you can. You might be unusually busy or too focused on something else. A friend or loved one could become demanding; avoid this person for now. Tonight: Enjoy the evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ The best intentions could disappear as you become engrossed in what you consider to be a significant task. Know that, even with your superb gift of gab, you might not be able to convince anyone that your way is the right way. Tonight: Step on the brakes. Slow down!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You could be obsessing about a new flame or perhaps a new job. With all the thoughts that keep entering your head, you might not be getting as much perspective on a situation as you would like. Find a friend who will be honest with you. Tonight: Let the fun begin.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You might want to reconsider a personal matter with someone who has a long-term vision. You could bat around several ideas until you feel comfortable enough to act on one. Your positive attitude will help, no matter what you are up to. Tonight: Happiest at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You could be unusually quick to give someone a response. You might want to defer to others for now, especially if you are unsure about whether your reaction is likely to make any difference at all. A child or loved one could be easily irritated. Tonight: Playtime!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Curb any possessiveness. You could be pushing others — or one person in particular — away. Try to break this pattern, but at the same time, do whatever is needed to build yourself up. As a result, you could start rethinking your reactions more carefully. Tonight: Treat a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Your ear-to-ear smile could be the result of clearing the air. You have an excellent presence, and others will let you know they are impressed. You will receive your just rewards, which could include a pay raise or promotion. Tonight: Go for what you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Read between the lines with a loved one. Your instincts are likely to serve you well with a domestic issue. Avoid making excuses for spending more on a special item. Ask yourself whether your budget really can handle this purchase. Tonight: Be a little mysterious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Others will deliver what you want. As of now, you are clear about who your supporters are. Be aware of your observations when dealing with those in authority. A loved one will support you in a loving manner. Tonight: Just ask, and you shall receive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Others often follow your lead, and today is no exception. Use care when loaning money or signing any financial agreements, as there could be a catch. Know that if someone hides important information from you, your anger is likely to emerge. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

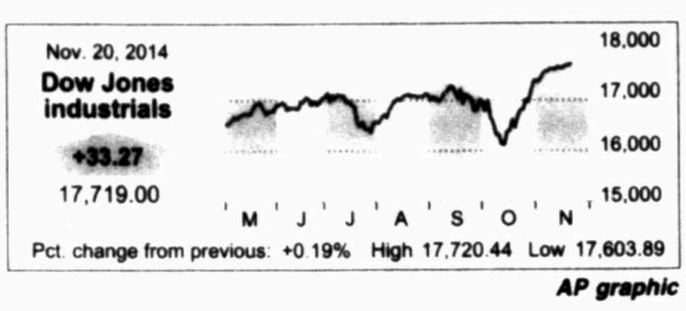

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You might want to reach out to someone at a distance. Your motivation probably involves a need to clear the air with this person. What do you have to lose? Timing will be important. Look to later in the day, when you are more relaxed. Tonight: Let your imagination speak.

Country of origin label for meat cuts endangered

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Package labels on fresh cuts of meat that identify where animals were born, raised and slaughtered face an uncertain future after successful trade challenges from Canada and Mexico.

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack says the U.S. is running out of options for the meat labels, which are required under a 2008 law. A label might say, for example, that the animal was "born in Canada, raised and slaughtered in the United States" or "born, raised and slaughtered in the United States."

The World Trade Organization has agreed more than once with Canada and Mexico that the labels on steaks, ribs and other cuts of fresh meat give the U.S. livestock industry an unfair advantage. In its most recent ruling Oct. 20, the WTO said the labeling requirement forced meatpackers to segregate and keep detailed records on imported livestock, giving them an incentive to favor U.S. livestock.

The trade organization ruled in 2011 and upheld in 2012 that an earlier version of the labels was discriminatory.

A spokesman for U.S. Trade Representative Michael Froman said the United States has not decided whether it will appeal the latest WTO decision. If the October ruling stands, Canada and Mexico could retaliate against the United States with other trade sanctions if the labels aren't changed or scrapped.

Vilsack said he believes Congress either needs to change the law or Mexico and Canada need to negotiate a settlement with the United States.

"There is no apparent regulatory solution available that could make this rule compliant with the WTO's recent decision and also uphold the law Congress passed," Vilsack said in a statement.

Canada and Mexico need to tell the U.S. "more clearly and more specifically, what, if any, variation of this will work for them," the agriculture secretary said last week at an event in Kansas City, Missouri.

The embattled labeling rules have support from consumer groups and some farm groups. U.S. ranchers who raise cattle near the northern border and compete with Canadian ranchers have pushed hardest for the labeling law, which Congress originally wrote in 2002 and revised in 2008 after years of haggling with the meat industry. Ranchers and meatpackers in the Southwest who do a lot of business with Mexico have traditionally opposed it.

It's unclear what lawmakers will do. But the new Republican Congress is expected to be friendly to the meat industry, which has called for repeal of the country-of-origin labeling law, saying it is burdensome. Meatpackers have sued the government to block it, so far unsuccessfully.

Farm-state lawmakers said earlier this year that they didn't have the votes for repeal. But Rep. Mike Conaway, R-Texas, the incoming chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., expected to head the Senate agriculture panel, are both from cattle-heavy states and have championed the meat industry.

After the ruling was issued, more than 100 meat, agriculture and food industry groups concerned about sanctions down the road called on Congress to immediately repeal parts of the rule.

"Given the negative impact on the U.S. manufacturing and agriculture economies, we respectfully submit that it would be intolerable for the United States to maintain, even briefly, a rule that has been deemed non-compliant by the WTO," the industry groups wrote.

Best Buy 3Q sales surprise bodes well for holiday

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Best Buy's third-quarter sales gain is a positive sign for the electronics retailer as the holiday season kicks off.

Both revenue and earnings per share beat expectations, and Best Buy stock rose almost 8 percent in midday trading.

The two-month holiday shopping season is crucial since it accounts for about 20 percent of the retail industry's annual sales. Best Buy CEO Hubert Joly said he expects competition for shoppers to be "intense" this year. Best Buy plans to offer more gifts under $100 but be disciplined about markdowns and promotions, which helps protect profit margins.

But in a call with investors, Joly said the limited supply of some hot products and possible labor strife on the West Coast could hinder sales. He forecast flat revenue for the fourth quarter.

Best Buy is introducing so-called "Black Friday" sales starting this week and rolling out more deals as Black Friday, the busy shopping day after Thanksgiving, nears. The company plans to offer more gifts under $25, $50 and $100 in its stores. And Joly says its deals will be more "balanced and targeted" this year in order to be "thoughtful in terms of return on investment."

Dow, S&P 500 edge back up to record highs

U.S. stocks rebounded Thursday, sending the Dow Jones industrial average and Standard & Poor's 500 index back into record territory.

It was the second record-high close for the Dow this week and the third for the S&P 500. The modest gains erased losses from the day before, pushing the three major stock indexes further ahead for the week.

Good news on housing, the job market and another dash of strong corporate earnings helped drive stocks higher, reversing a decline earlier in the day. Energy stocks led the gainers in the S&P 500 as oil prices rose.

Discouraging economic data out of Europe and China stoked worries of a global economic slowdown and sent stocks lower in early trading. But investors shrugged off those concerns, reassured by a batch of positive U.S. economic reports.

"Housing was good, leading indicators were good, manufacturing was good," said Doug Cote, chief market strategist at Voya Investment Management.

Traders also drew encouragement from retailers including Best Buy, Dollar Tree and Kirkland's, which reported better-than-expected earnings. Third-quarter earnings for companies in the S&P 500 are at an all-time high.

"That's a signal for investors that the fundamentals are solid behind this market," Cote said.

The Bottom Line

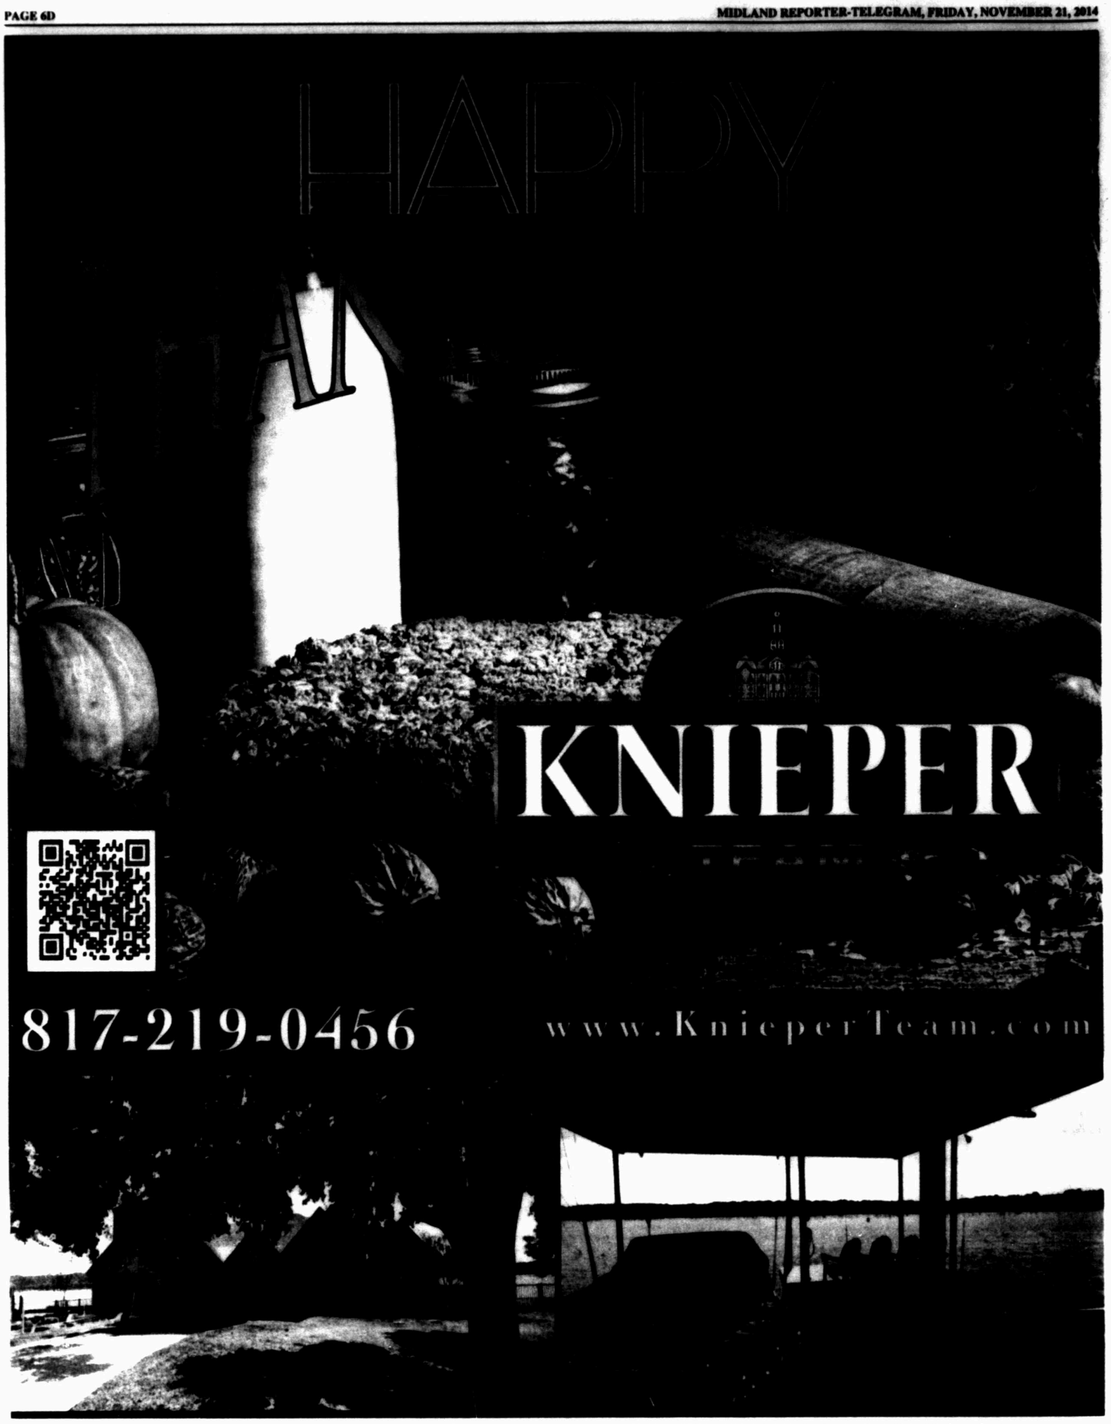

Newspaper sections provide advertisers with unique targeting opportunities

Newspaper readers are consumers that advertisers most want to reach. They're active in their households, income, influence and more job responsibility. Nationally, more than 58 million newspapers are sold daily, with an average of 2.1 readers per copy. And on Sunday, more than 50 million newspapers are sold, with an average of 3.1 readers per copy. That's mass coverage.

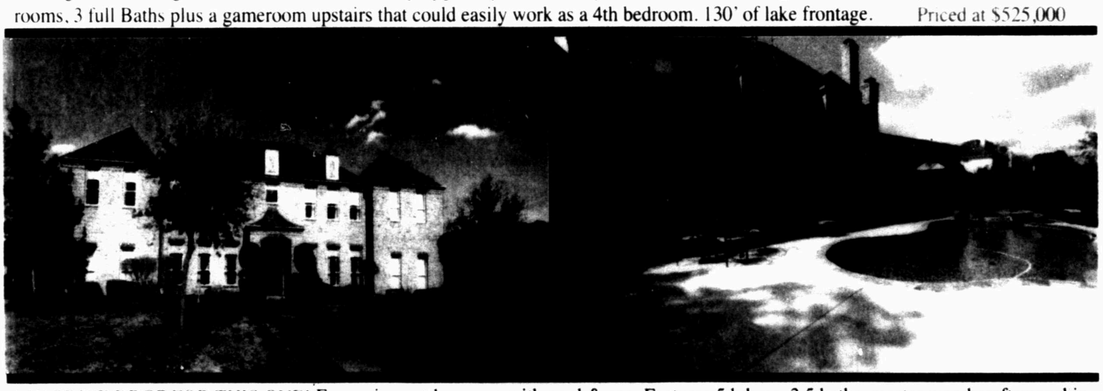

So put your message where they will be seen, read, clipped and acted upon – in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.
