Rural electricity rate hike to city

A request to increase electric rates from Midwest Electric Cooperative–which serves rural customers in Scurry County–will be considered by the Snyder city council Monday at its regular September meeting.

The session will get underway at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

Midwest's request is based upon a test year survey conducted during 1985, according to documents filed along with the request.

The rate hike is estimated at 5.4 percent or approximately $544,000 based upon costs incurred by Midwest during that year. It is noted, however, that due to an expected reduction in operating costs, the rate as requested would actually equal an 8.7 percent increase or approximately $842,000.

The reduction in operating costs is credited to declines in the cost of electricity purchased by the utility from wholesale power suppliers.

The rate request is also subject to action by the Public Utility Commission, which traditionally has the final right of approval regarding such rate increases.

The city has several options in addition to denying or granting

Fumes' source found

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Smelly, acrid fumes that spread across hundreds of square miles of North Texas and sent at least 14 people to a hospital probably came from a leak in a buried pipeline near the Oklahoma border, officials said today.

The pipeline, located at an Amoco Oil Co. plant, carries condensate, a liquid removed from natural gas after it is processed, said Roger Meacham, a spokesman with the Environmental Protection Agency.

The condensate is loaded with mercaptains, a chemical compound characterized by the substitution of sulfur for oxygen and strong odors, and also contained some hydrogen sulfur, Meacham said.

An emergency management team, which was dispatched to Cooke County Sunday night, urged residents to stay indoors with their air conditioners off after complaints of nausea, breathing difficulties and headaches began pouring in to the sheriff's office.

Tom Watson, emergency management coordinator, said authorities received reports of the fumes over Cooke and Denton counties.

The pipeline was shut down as soon as the leak was discovered at about 5:30 a.m., Meacham said. Some material was running into the nearby Red River, but no harm to wildlife had been reported, he said.

A spokeswoman for Gainesville Memorial Hospital said 14 people were treated in the emergency room for poisoning symptoms and later released.

"All had preliminary symptoms that included headaches, nausea, difficulty in breathing, tightness of the chest, pain in the throat," said spokeswoman Gayla Blanton.

Watson said the affected area, including hundreds of square miles, stretched from Farm to Market Road 371 east to the Cooke-Grayson county line and from the Red River south to U.S. Highway 82.

"This is where the heaviest concentration (of gas) was and the majority of people who came in and had these symptoms," said Watson.

Ask Us

Q. — Why does Snyder High School only have its homecoming every two years?

A. — School officials say it was decided the event would take on more importance if it was conducted every two years rather than every year. Also, when Snyder High School included only the top three grades, homecoming was conducted once every three years. The change to every two years dates back to the early 1970s.

Visit in France exchanged

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

France and the United States have been enchanging visitors this summer. One such pair is Monique Miller of Snyder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Miller, and Laurence Tatoud.

Both girls took turns visiting each other. The exchange of visits was arranged through the Rotary International Youth Exchange program and local volunteers.

Miller and Charlie McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude McCormick Jr., traveled to Paris June 26. (McCormick's experience will be detailed in another issue of the Snyder Daily News).

After spending a month in France, Miller and Tatoud returned to Snyder where the French girl also stayed four weeks.

Miller has nothing but praise for her adventure. "It was wonderful. The people were wonderful and kind and generous," she said. "They have a very strong family unit."

Miller said she could speak some French, but got laughed at sometimes when she tried to speak it. "I just decided to laugh at myself too," she said.

While in France, Miller was treated to a two-day, whirlwind tour of Paris which included all the popular sights such as the Arch of Triumph, Notre Dame and the Louve Museum.

Meal times were a different experience for the Snyder girl, who soon discovered that her French hosts eat their main meals one

Entries encouraged as fair dates near

The startup of the Scurry County Fair is only days away and volunteer workers for the various events are now encouraging individuals to begin planning for their entries.

Among those soliciting competitors are individuals involved with the general agricultural exhibits and a category comparatively new for the fair, the men's division.

The fair is set for a four-day run in the coliseum Sept. 17-20.

This year's superintendents for the agricultural exhibits are Wayne Eubanks, Deanna Myers, Franklin Pruitt and Brenda Lee.

In the men's division, Carl Tefertiller is the superintendent.

The ag division is open to agricultural products grown in Scurry County and included on the premium list included in the fair book. Ribbons will be given to the first four places.

This year there are nine divisions each with several classes. They include feed grains (10 classes); cotton (four classes); sheaf grains and forage (11 classes); grains and seeds (16 classes); bales and forage (three classes); fruits (22 classes); vegetables (61 classes); miscellaneous (which includes eggs and sunflowers); and nuts (five classes).

Regarding the men's division, in its third year at the fair, Tefertiller says it is open for "anything that can be made by hand." This includes food, clothing, hand work, all type crafts to include wood and metal and painting.

Kits are acceptable also and these will be judged separately.

Entries in this division will be accepted Sept. 17 also.

Hijack survivors are welcomed back home

by The Associated Press

More than 100 passengers of Pan Am Flight 73 have returned home with stories of the ordeal they went through in the hijacking of a jumbo jet that ended in a flurry of gunfire and the deaths of 15 people.

"I actually felt a certain relief when the hijackers finally opened fire," said 48-year-old Jay Grantier when he arrived home to Colorado on Sunday night. "We knew that something had to happen."

"The hijackers were just firing randomly at us. I had never been fired at before. It seemed interminable," said Grantier, of Parker, Colo., who said he just wanted to shower, shave, and catch up on his sleep.

Families and friends crowded New York's Kennedy International Airport late Sunday to embrace 112 survivors of the ill-fated Pan Am jetliner that was seized Friday night by terrorists in Karachi, Pakistan. In addition to those killed, 127 people were wounded when the hijacking ended Saturday.

"When the shooting went off, I just tried to escape with the kids," said another survivor, Zeba Hamit, of Duncan, Okla., a mother of two.

Mohammed Tariq, of Cleveland, who was on the plane with his wife, Somina, sat in a wheelchair with his right hand and right leg bandaged.

Tariq was hurt leaping from the plane, action that he said saved his life. After the plane's lights went out, he said, passengers "were shouting and shooting, crying and yelling — and I just jumped."

"They (the terrorists) were animals. They were not human beings," said Tariq, his wife's arms around him.

Catherine Dumas, of Lafayette Township, N.J., had only one worry during the crisis — "for the people who were worrying about me."

"My father is elderly. He has a bad heart," said Mrs. Dumas. She said she was thinking, "Damn you if I go home to a father who's sick or dead."

Heminder Ahluwalia, 18, said he had hurt his elbow sliding down the escape chute. His father's briefcase was shot through, leaving a hole in a letter he was planning to mail.

Ahluwalia said his family lived in a Cleveland suburb for four years but returned to India two years ago. They were en route to visiting relatives in Westwood, N.J.

Some families were upset over the lack of information they received trying to find out the fate of loved ones.

In Huntington Beach, Calif., the family of an American shot to death by the terrorists learned Sunday evening that the man's grandmother also was dead.

Relatives of Rajesh Kumar, 29, said they were angry that they were not told for three days that Kumurben Patel, 80, also had been killed. They also were furious that she had been cremated without authorization.

"We are very upset with the way the authorities are handling the case," said Di Patel, 29, Kumar's cousin. "Somebody is hiding something from us."

A memorial service was planned today at Friends World College on Long Island, N.Y., for Syed Nesar Ahmad, another victim of the hijacking. The 44-year-old professor was a Pakistani citizen and a permanent U.S. resident.

S. Antonio mayor to participate in drug testing plan

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros said he will undergo drug testing today to set an example for police officers who may soon be subject to random, mandatory drug screenings.

"I am perfectly supportive," the mayor said Sunday of the tests. "I think we need to work together with the police chief. We need to work out the details."

Cisneros agreed to the testing after officials with the police union, the San Antonio Police Officers Association, said they favor random drug testing of officers.

Interest in drug testing of city employees followed the arrest of a police patrolman last week in connection with federal drug charges.

Other city leaders, including City Manager Lou Fox and several City Council members, have also agreed to be tested but some felt it was unnecessary.

"If this is some sort of manly challenge," Councilman Bob Thompson told the San Antonio Light, "I have nothing to hide or fear. (But) I would prefer to be independent of any kind of challenges from the police department."

Councilman Ed Harrington said he favored the tests, but feared it was some sort of publicity stunt.

"I hope it just isn't a media event," he said.

Harrington also said the tests would show the force's 1,300 officers suffer from the same rate of drug abuse as any other sample of 1,300 people.

"I would like to think they're exemplary, but I don't believe they are," he said.

Councilman Joe Webb supported the idea.

"I think that's fine," he said. "No problems at all."

Councilwoman Maria Berriozabal said although she would take the test but would have problems with mandatory random screenings for officers.

"In the military and other institutions there have been problems with faulty tests," she said. "What are we doing it for? What are we trying to find out? What do we do if they test positive? Fire the person?"

She said the tests only should be used as part of a "holistic" system to support the officers.

"Drug testing by itself really amounts to nothing," she said. "It's not a science that has been perfected that you can rely on to fire someone. There's a lot that isn't answered."

Man Says 'War' Between Sexes Began With Invasion of Privacy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR MS. VAN BUREN: You really are a funny little old lady. Both you and "Disillusioned," who lost her cool when her husband "violated her privacy" by looking through her purse, must have conveniently short memories, or else you've never lived in the real world with the rest of us.

From the year one, women have gone through men's pockets and wallets looking for something they hope will give them yet another reason to nag. And in the past two decades, women in general have been on a crusade to invade every aspect of men's privacy, from his pockets to his private club.

You broads go out of the house wearing fake faces and other kinds of fakery, and yet you have the utter gall to talk about "deception." Sometimes a man might get curious as to what's under all the sham. Does she carry it all in her purse? It's big enough!

STANLEY W. HAYNES, BOTHELL, WASH.

DEAR MR. HAYNES: If you are trying to justify a man's looking through his wife's purse — even after she has asked him not to — you'll have to do better than the above. By the way, are you married? If you're a bachelor, please stay that way. And if you have a wife, please give her my condolences.

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, but I cannot believe that I am writing to you. I am a middle-aged wife and mother. I work full time at a job that I like. I am active in church and community work and have many friends.

I am suddenly faced with a situation so bleak that I am overcome with depression. My only child will be leaving for college soon. My favorite aunt is fighting a losing battle with cancer. My mother and husband are both in poor health. My pets are elderly, and I know their days are numbered.

I know there is nothing you can do about any of this, but just unloading my feelings helps. We live in a small town and counseling is not available. The only source of help is prayer, and sometimes my faith grows weak and I become so depressed that even prayer doesn't help.

I am fine all day while I'm at work, but when I go home, depression sets in. How do others handle the loss of their children when they leave home?

Thank you for listening.

DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Every parent who raises a child must face the day when that child leaves home. Letting go is never easy, but it's essential to every child's emotional growth and ultimate independence.

During our lifetime, we all lose beloved family members, and pets, as well, but death is a natural part of everyone's life. While prayer can be comforting, your depression may be due to a chemical or hormonal imbalance. I urge you to see your family physician immediately. You need to be examined physically. There are many antidepressants available that could be enormously helpful. Don't delay. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My 30-year-old college-educated wife of eight years continually insists on using my toothbrush, knowing full well how much it disgusts and angers me.

I have begged, pleaded and yelled with no success. How can I stop her? Or is it me?

DAVID IN STATE COLLEGE, PA.

DEAR DAVID: The obvious answer would be to "give her the brush" (a little pun there), but that seems rather extreme for such a minor infraction. The other option: Buy yourself a new toothbrush, and hide it. She may bristle, but it is a solution.

Victim compensation fund defended

AUSTIN (AP) — As the latest special legislative session gets under way today, budget cutters carry with them a warning from Texas crime victims to keep their scissors away from a special victim-compensation fund.

Representatives from about 24 crime victim organizations throughout the state met Saturday at the Capitol to discuss legislation they want in the 1987 regular session.

They also scolded budget cutters who tentatively plan to cut $2 million from the Crime Victims Compensation fund, which is administered by the attorney general's office for expenses and lost wages caused by violent crimes.

The fund is financed from fines paid by people convicted of felonies.

"It is even more shameful and more horrible that the people elected to represent and protect you take the money that is set up to help you go on living your lives and bury the loved ones," Donya Witherspoon of Fort Worth told about 50 people gathered at the Capitol, most of them carrying black balloons.

"I say that fund was set up and solely supported by fines imposed on convicted criminals and there are no tax monies involved. It is strictly money from criminals," she said.

Bob Stearns of Austin, chairman of People Against Violent Crimes, said the compensation fund had paid $8.9 million to crime victimes in the past year.

Lawyers want charge nixed

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas' attorneys say they will try to convince a judge to throw out their client's confession to an ax murder in a trial that county officials complain is pointless and costly.

Lucas, who is already on Texas' death row for the 1979 murder of an unidentified hitchhicker, is accused of slaying 72-year-old Librada Apodaca at her El Paso home in May 1983.

The final round of pre-trial hearings — which attorneys say could linger up to 10 weeks because of the 350 defense and prosecution witnesses who have been subpoenaed — is scheduled to begin today.

The 50-year-old former drifter says he doesn't want anything to stop a trial, but he fears El Paso Distict Attorney Steve Simmons will dismiss the charges if he senses that the case will collapse.

"This is the most important part for me because this is my first trial after I recanted my confessions, and I feel that the truth will finally be brought forward," Lucas told the El Paso Times in a phone call from his cell in the El Paso County Jail.

"It's my hope that this trial will be a example for the rest of the country to see. ... Nobody wants to believe me because of all the lies I have told," he added. "But if they sit in the courtroom, read about it or see what comes out from other people's mouths, they'll know it's the truth."

Lucas at one time had confessed to hundreds of slayings nationwide and told El Paso police in 1984 he was guilty of Mrs. Apodaca's death.

He later recanted when it was proven he was not in a position to have committed many of the crimes. He then said he was coaxed into admitting to more than 300 murders by police departments eager to clear files of unsolved cases.

His attorneys will argue that the Apodaca confession, too, was involuntary, coerced and obtained through the use of drugs.

"This is my chance to prove to the people that this is all phony," Lucas said. "All the confessions are false."

Rod Ponton, one of Lucas' two court-appointed attorneys, said he expects jury selection in State District Judge Brunson Moore's court to take a long time because of extensive publicity focused on the one-eyed drifter.

El Paso County commissioners have complained about the futility of trying Lucas on another murder charge and the cost of the trial, which Moore estimated could be as high as $500,000.

But prosecutor Simmons said in a court document that "it is imperative to get at least one death sentence that will stand on appeal to assure that Henry Lucas be executed and never again stain the landscape of this country ... someone has to take a stand against this ruthless killing machine."

The Lucas case has languished in Moore's court for a year while Lucas changed lawyers and pursued scores of other pretrial motions. About a dozen more pretrial motions are left for the judge to consider before the trial can start.

The defense attorneys say they will argue that depositions taken over the last few months indicate that a Mexican citizen who confessed to Mrs. Apodaca's murder was dismissed as a suspect because Mexican police extracted the statement under torture.

Laboratory tests show physical samples taken from the Mexican matched those found on Mrs. Apodaca's underwear, while Lucas' did not.

Area farmers angry over grain decision

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A federal decision to allow northern farmers to store their excess grain in Texas' High Plains has got some area folks fed up.

Several Nebraskan cooperatives won permission Saturday from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to move 3.7 million bushels of grain for storage in grain elevators in the Lubbock area.

The government will even reimburse the cooperatives for transportation costs from Nebraska to the High Plains.

The arrangement, which comes just as West Texas harvests are about to begin, probably won't upset area cooperatives involved since the storage bins generate no money when empty, officials say.

But Texas Corn Growers board president Carl King said the out-of-state grain will cause trouble.

"Bringing that grain here will decrease the amount of storage space available for area farmers as harvest begins," he said. "And it depresses prices for grain because it is in competition with the local crop."

Details are still scarce on the transfer plan.

U.S. Rep. Doug Bereuter, R-Nebraska, said Saturday that grain cooperatives in Dorchester, Beatrice, Exeter, Shelby, Gresham and Greenwood would be able to ship grain to Lubbock that they can't store in Nebraska.

But the exact destination for the 3.7 million bushels was not available.

Commercial grain storage capacity from the northern Panhandle to near Midland is more than 433 million bushels. By that measure, the 3.7 million bushels of Nebraskan grain is a small amount.

But the area grain industry has been anticipating a heavy need for storage as the harvest of corn and grain sorghum edges closer in the next several days.

King said some areas of heavy grain production have acknowledged the likelihood of having to store the newly harvested grains outdoors, on the ground.

Grain from the northern states recalls a soured ordeal for the High Plains, King said.

In 1980, when President Jimmy Carter embargoed grain sales to the Soviet Union to protest the invasion of Afghanistan, about 40 million bushels that had been targeted for Russia were detoured to the Texas High Plains.

The enormous amount of northern grain stored on the High Plains caused severe price pressure for years as it competed on the local market, King said.

"I don't like it, but I don't think there's anything we can do about this one," King said.

A speedy recovery

By James Jacoby

Have you ever played with an expert partner who insisted upon using a bidding convention with which you were a little unfamiliar? That was the plight facing Ann Riggs of Boca Raton, Florida, some months ago. The convention involved was the splinter bid. North's three-spade bid said, "I have a singleton spade, four-card heart support and a very good hand." But Ann Riggs was not immediately certain of that meaning. Perhaps North held six diamonds and five spades and a good hand. To be on the safe side, she bid three no-trump.

The situation changed when North confirmed what Ann had suspected all along by bidding four hearts. Now she launched into Blackwood. Her subsequent five no-trump bid guaranteed all the aces and invited a grand slam. Expert North was happy to go all the way. Although the slam would fail if either opponent held J-10-x-x in hearts, it was a high percentage contract. Kudos to Ms. Riggs for making a strong recovery when she realized the full import of her partner's strong bidding. And maybe someday anonymous North will tell me why he responded one diamond to South's one-club opening bid.

2010 population predicted

HOUSTON (AP) — Some 5 million people will be living in the Houston metropolitan area by the year 2010, according to the predictions of a task force organized under the auspices of the Houston-Galveston Area Council.

The increase would boost the population by about 2 million over 1980 figures — an increase of more than 63 percent, says the task force, which was made up of private- and public-sector representatives from seven area counties.

"Diversification and a maturing economy will be the reason we would continue to grow at all," said HGAC data planner Carl Willeford.

Harris County is expected to recover from the current economic slump by about 1988, with about 2 percent annual growth beginning in 1990, he said.

The number of employed workers in the area also is expected to increase from 1.5 million in 1980 to almost 2.5 million by 2010.

Recently released U.S. Census Bureau estimates pegged the metropolitan area's population at the end of 1985 at 3.6 million. The task force predicts the population to be 3.59 million in 1990.

Dry lake bed still holds lure for area fishermen

BIG LAKE, Texas (AP) — Don't be fooled by that oblong-shaped patch of blue on area maps, residents say — "Big Lake" is neither big nor a lake.

"We get calls all the time from Midland people who want to bring their boats down to the lake," says Cindy Joyce, manager of the local chamber of commerce.

But then they find out that the last time the lake bed in Reagan County, 75 miles southeast of Odessa, was filled with enough rainfall runoff to support any fish was in 1977.

At Carlton's Bait Stand in this town of 3,000, owners Elbert and Moree Carlton delight in showing visitors a postcard thumbtacked to their bait shop wall.

The card displays Big Lake — now a weed-filled depression that is green only after rains — as a shimmer of Crayola-blue water. Heavy rains in 1974 filled the lake until 1977, when it dried up again, Mrs. Carlton says.

Two signs now greet passing motorists — one that reads, "Who pulled the plug on the Big Lake?" and features a drawing of a drain stopper; another features a bored fisherman near a marker indicating poor fishing conditions.

The Carltons say the closest public fishing to Big Lake is about 70 miles to the east at San Angelo or more than 150 miles south at Amistad Reservoir on the border with Mexico.

But the Carltons still sell goldfish, minnows and red wrigglers to traveling fishermen.

"We don't sell as much as we used to when (Big Lake) was full," Mrs. Carlton said. "But we've been making part of a living here. We've been here for 20 years."

Outside their shop, 11 fish heads dangle from a sign along the Garden City Highway. Victorious fisherman place the heads on the sign after making a good catch, but one head, — at least 24 inches around — arrived earlier this year unannounced.

"We don't know who put this head here," says Carlton. "It just appeared one morning. I expect it came from a catfish around 80 pounds."

He adds that the catfish, of course, were caught scores of miles away from Big Lake and are just a symbolic boast of conquest.

'Rookie' secondary to start for Cowboys against Giants

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The defending NFC East champion Dallas Cowboys will apparently be without three members of their secondary from last year against the New York Giants tonight as Monday Night Football starts its 18th season.

The Giants got some good news on Sunday when running back Joe Morris, whose agent had threatened a possible holdout from the game because of contract problems, boarded the plane for Texas.

The Cowboys, who had been a one-point favorite early in the week and is now a one-point underdog, will be sending a green secondary against New York quarterback Phil Simms.

"We'll work things out one way or the other," Dallas Coach Tom Landry, whose team lost all five of its exhibition games, said. "Nothing surprises me in this business any more."

Dallas strong safety Dextor Clinkscale never reported to training camp and will be replaced by Bill Bates. Clinkscale has been told by Landry that he will not be allowed to return to the team and will be traded.

Dennis Thurman was waived by the Cowboys, effectively breaking up "Thurman's Thieves," the nickname for the 1985 secondary. Thurman has since signed with the St. Louis Cardinals.

This week, All-Pro cornerback Everson Walls walked out in a contract dispute. If he doesn't return he will be replaced by Johnny Holloway, a rookie who was a wide receiver at Kansas last year.

Walls has asked to be traded but Cowboys President Tex Schramm isn't saying what action might be taken.

The Cowboys say they have made four offers to Walls.

There is some unhappiness on the other side of the field as well.

Morris, who is asking for a $2.5 million contract, said "The Giants should trade me if they don't want me."

Morris reported to training camp and played in the final preseason game "as a show of good faith." The Giants won three of their four preseason games.

Morris' backup is Lee Rouson, who rushed for one yard last year.

Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett was also mad in training camp after Dallas signed former United States Football League running back Herschel Walker to a five-year, $5 million contract.

However, Dorsett will start and Landry said he won't split time with Walker.

"We will use him more in a receiving capacity than we will as a basic runner in the backfield," Landry said of Walker.

Dorsett has averaged 77.6 yards in 16 games against the Giants, including seven touchdown runs.

Dallas owns a dominating 32-13-2 record over the Giants. Since the 1960s, the Giants have swept the Cowboys in their annual two-game series just once, in 1984.

The Giants dominated the Cowboys statistically last year but still lost 30-29 in New York and 28-21 in a division title showdown game in Texas Stadium, where the Giants have won just once in 10 years.

The Cowboys have the best opening-day record in NFL history, 21-4-1, and they have won 20 of the last 21 openers.

Miami mutilated; Bills crumble, too

by The Associated Press

Quarterbacks Dan Marino and Jim Kelly had a lot in common on opening day of the NFL season.

They both threw three touchdown passes. They both made a lot of money. And they both lost.

Marino, who signed a six-year, $9 million contract with Miami late last week, and Kelly, the former USFL superstar who was lured into the NFL by Buffalo's offer of $8 million for five years, saw their teams' defenses crack Sunday. The Dolphins lost 50-28 to San Diego and the Bills fell 28-24 to the New York Jets.

"The biggest thing you have to remember about Kelly is that he's only been in uniform three weeks," Bills Coach Hank Bullough said after Kelly completed 20 of 33 passes for 292 yards against the Jets. "No quarterback can learn a whole playbook in three weeks."

"They just played an incredible game and you have to give them credit," Marino said of the Chargers. "It looks like we have a long way to go before we start winning some games. We're going to have to get a lot better."

In other season-opening games, it was Atlanta 31, New Orleans 10; Detroit 13, Minnesota 10; Houston 31, Green Bay 3; Los Angeles Rams 16, St. Louis 10; Washington 41, Philadelphia 14; San Francisco 31, Tampa Bay 7; Chicago 41, Cleveland 31; Denver 38, Los Angeles Raiders 36; New England 33, Indianapolis 3; Kansas City 24, Cincinnati 14; and Seattle 30, Pittsburgh 0.

In tonight's game, the New York Giants are at Dallas.

Chargers 50, Dolphins 28

Dan Fouts threw three touchdown passes and reserve running back Buford McGee rushed for two touchdowns as San Diego rolled to the most points ever against a Don Shula-coached Miami team.

Fouts, who completed 23 of 35 passes for 293 yards, threw touchdown passes of 18 yards to Gary Anderson, seven yards to Wes Chandler and 17 yards to Pete Holohan.

Bears 41, Browns 31

Dennis Gentry returned a kickoff 91 yards for a Chicago touchdown after the instant replay official awarded Cleveland a touchdown, and Walter Payton rushed for 113 yards and scored twice for the defending Super Bowl champions.

Payton scored on a two-yard run and an 11-yard touchdown pass from Jim McMahon, and Wilber Marshall returned an intercepted pass 58 yards for another Bears touchdown.

On the third play from scrimmage, the Browns' Al Gross was credited with a touchdown after a bad snap from center by the Bears bounded into the end zone. The officials on the field did not call a safety or a touchdown until they got the word from the replay booth that it was a touchdown.

McMahon was removed from the game in the fourth quarter after suffering an injury to his right shoulder. X-rays were negative and his status for next week's game against Philadelphia is indefinite.

Oilers 31, Packers 3

Warren Moon threw two touchdown passes and ran for another and Mike Rozier added 83 yards rushing for Houston, which held Green Bay to a 26-yard field goal by Al Del Greco.

Rams 16, Cardinals 10

Eric Dickerson ran for 193 yards and two touchdowns on a career-high 38 carries, and Los Angeles held off a fourth-quarter rally by St. Louis, which was on the 1-yard-line when the game ended.

SWC off to 3-1 start; Aggies getting ready

by The Associated Press

Defending champion Texas A&M gets its 1986 Southwest Conference football season underway on Saturday night in one of the toughest spots imaginable - the Tiger's den at Baton Rouge, La.

The Aggies, who were 10-2 and Cotton Bowl conquerors of Bo Jackson and Auburn last year, will make a nationally televised (ESPN) 7 p.m. appearance against Louisiana State as the two schools renew an old rivalry.

There are seven other games, including an SWC showdown between Rice and Southern Methodist in Houston. Other night games include Texas Tech at Miami, Ole Miss at Arkansas, Louisiana Tech at Baylor, Stanford at Texas, and Texas Christian at Tulane.

The SWC got off to a 3-1 start over the weekend as Rice's Jerry Berndt and Texas Tech's David McWilliams made their SWC coaching debuts successful ones.

Berndt, who was a highly successful coach at the Ivy League's University of Pennsylvania, guided his Owls to a 28-14 victory over Ray Alborn-coached Lamar of the Southland Conference.

McWilliams, former defensive coordinator under Freddie Akers at Texas, saw his Red Raiders overcome a 7-6 halftime deficit to crush Kansas State 41-7.

The opening weekend provided a close call for the 12th-ranked Baylor Bears, one of the SWC preseason favorites. The Bears held on to outlast Wyoming 31-28 in a wild game at Laramie.

In the only other game involving an SWC team, Arizona State crushed Houston 37-3.

A rain-drenched crowd of some 10,000 watched Rice win its first opener since 1977.

"We outmanned them as we went along and that's kind of strange happening to Rice isn't it?" Berndt said.

McWilliams was delighted to the way the Red Raiders responded to his halftime pep talk.

"They didn't let the first half get 'em down," McWilliams said. "I'm proud of them. I'm just glad they weren't as nervous as I was. I have a great feeling inside. I've been waiting for this game since Dec. 5," the day he took over from the fired Jerry Moore.

McWilliams - who said he got the game ball "and I'm mighty proud to have it" - said quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver bounced back from a rough start.

"Billy Joe wouldn't get down and kept firing the ball," McWilliams said. "He showed a lot of poise."

The Red Raiders will need it next week when they go on the road to meet powerful Miami.

Baylor's defense collapsed at times against the Cowboys, but safety Thomas Everett returned an intercepted pass 40 yards for a touchdown. He also had another interception and caused a critical fumble late in the game with a big hit.

"Everett was great," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "He was definitely All-America caliber."

Teaff said the 7,200 feet altitude may have bothered his Bears more than he thought it would.

"The altitude bothered us some, but not as much as Wyoming's offense," Teaff said. "We're a better team than we were a year ago and so is Wyoming. I thought Wyoming had an excellent team."

SHS netters claim a pair of victories

Snyder ripped Lubbock Estacado and Big Spring last weekend as the Tigers prepare for the start of District 2-4A team tennis.

Snyder defeated the Matadors 14-4 and the Steers 18-4.

The Tigers are gearing for district team tennis action, which takes place in the fall this season, instead of late winter and early spring. Snyder opens the 2-4A slate at Andrews on Sept. 20.

Meanwhile, Coach Charlie Chrane was happy with the Tigers' start here last Saturday.

"Our scores looked good but we have a lot of room for improvement," said Coach Chrane. "We made a lot of unforced errors and mistakes that will cost us in closer matches. We need to hit thousands and thousands of balls. Overall, I have a good group of youngsters with most giving 100 per cent all of the time.

"Our district is going to be real tough this year," he noted. "The team appreciates all the support the community gives and invites everyone to watch our matches."

The Tigers will play at home again this Saturday, hosting Lubbock High at 9 a.m. and San Angelo Lake View at 3 p.m. They will be the final two practice matches before the district season begins.

Lady Tigers lose; try Mustangs next

Pecos' Eagles showed why they have been picked to win the District 2-4A volleyball race this season as they defeated Snyder 15-5, 15-7 here Saturday afternoon.

On the other hand, Coach Vicki Nelms wasn't about to say the Tigers put together their best effort.

"I've watched the film. In spots we did not play that badly, but we made too many mistakes on our side that killed us. I know we were scared to death of them which we shouldn't have been, but we were. I still feel like we can play with them but we've got to correct the unforced error," said Nelms this morning.

"Two things definitely hurt us. One was our setting. When we only set 52 percent and have only 38 offensive hits we can't win very many games. Right now our setters have been inconsistent. They have to be more consistent for us to win. Another thing that hurt us is serving. We can't go out and miss seven serves against a team that is picked to win district," she stressed.

Snyder will try to get back on the winning track Tuesday when the Tigers bus to Sweetwater for a 7:30 p.m. ballgame.

"It's early in the season and we're 1-1 in district play and have already beaten the team many people thought would finish second in the district (Fort Stockton)," said the coach. "We have to forget about that game (with Pecos) and prepare for Sweetwater."

SHS Game Stats

Serving- 23 of 30, 71 percent; Hitting- 34 of 38, 89 percent; Setting- 25 of 48, 52 percent; Passing- 31 of 47, 66 percent.

Serving for points- Sharnette Thompson 3, Stacy Dunk 1, Donna Clay 3, Allison Adams 1, Becky Becerra 2, Shondra Robinson 1, Monica Hinojos 1.

JV girls fall; eye future tilts

Snyder junior varsity volleyball team put up a good fight before falling to Pecos 15-12, 15-17, 3-15 here Saturday afternoon.

The loss leaves the team with a 9-4 record as the girls prepare to bus to Sweetwater on Tuesday.

"I think the first two games we played great. The second game we had six misserves which hurt us. I don't know what happened to us the third game," said Coach Patty Grimmett, candidly. "They played Pecos a lot better this time than they played them the last time. Overall, I thought they did a pretty good job."

Scoring on serves for Snyder were LaFon Williams 15, Rhonda Echols 6, Kelly Walker 5, Sandra Powell 4 and Sandra Morin 3.

Snyder's match Tuesday is scheduled for a 6:30 p.m. start. The young Tigers will host the Snyder JV Tournament on Saturday.

Lendl, Navratilova winners

NEW YORK (AP) - After all the upsets and the failure of America's best players, the U.S. Open ended as expected - with the world's best players securing their places on tennis' throne.

Martina Navratilova and Ivan Lendl, the foremost products of the prolific Czechoslovak tennis system, scored easy victories Sunday to capture the Open singles titles. Both Navratilova, who has become an American citizen, and Lendl, who lives in Greenwich, Conn. and plans to remain in this country, beat rising players from their native land.

Navratilova downed 21-year-old Helena Sukova, the daughter of her former coach, 6-3, 6-2. The one-hour match was almost directly the reverse of her epic semifinal struggle against No. 3 seed Steffi Graf of West Germany, which Navratilova won 6-1, 6-7, 7-6 on Saturday after fighting off three match points.

Lendl successfully defended his Open crown with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-0 dismantling of No. 16 Miloslav Mecir, a 22-year-old who had upset three players seeded above him to make the final.

It was the third Open title and 15th Grand Slam championship for Navratilova. Lendl, who was defending champion in the Open, has won four Grand Slams.

While Lendl and Navratilova - who also won the women's doubles with Pam Shriver but lost in the mixed doubles final - capped a masterful showing by products of the Czechoslovak tennis system, it was a depressing tournament for Americans. Shriver was the only native-born American winner.

Only one American, Tim Wilkison of Asheville, N.C., made the men's quarterfinals. Lloyd, Shriver and Bonnie Gadusek got that far in women's play, then Lloyd was the only American-born semifinalist.

Navratilova's bid for a triple crown here was thwarted when she and Peter Fleming fell in mixed doubles to the unseeded duo of Raffaella Reggi of Italy and Sergio Casal of Spain.

Motorcade of Chile's president is attacked

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The military junta declared a state of siege after guerrillas unsuccessfully tried to assassinate President Augusto Pinochet and killed five of his bodyguards. Gen. Pinochet said today he was slightly injured in the attack.

In an interview on state television from his official residence in the capital, Pinochet said he suffered cuts on his left hand during the ambush on his motorcade Sunday on a winding road in the Maipo Canyon, 18 miles southeast of Santiago.

Ten bodyguards also were injured in the ambush, the government said. It was the first officially reported attempt on Pinochet's life during his 13-year presidency.

The 70-year-old president, his voice trembling and his left hand heavily bandaged, said the guerrillas "attacked with rockets, grenades and shooting ... from all sides."

He said he dove to the floor of his beige Mercedes, covering his 10-year-old grandson, until his security detail repelled the attackers in "an extremely intense shootout."

The attack came four days before the 13th anniversary of the coup led by Pinochet, the army commander, that ousted the elected government of the late Marxist President Salvador Allende. Pinochet said the ambush would not change plans for the rally.

Interior Minister Ricardo Garcia announced that the ruling four-man military junta, meeting in emergency session, approved an immediate nationwide 90-day state of siege to combat "a state of deep internal convulsion."

The state of siege allows the government to tap telephones, open mail and hold prisoners in secret locations. It also suspends judicial review of the government's power to arrest and banish dissidents, ban public gatherings and censor the press.

Leaders of the broad-based moderate opposition condemned the attack, but some said they feared Pinochet could use his powers under the state of seige to continue blocking a transition to democratic rule.

The government's chief spokesman, Francisco Cuadra, said "a terrorist commando of at least 12 persons" staged the 6:40 p.m. attack as Pinochet returned to the capital from Melocton, his weekend home. Cuadra reported no arrests.

The president's Mercedes, shown on television, had indentations in the armored body.

Holly's original band honored in ceremony

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Fans of rock legend Buddy Holly honored members of the Crickets, the late musician's original band, in a ceremony that followed a concert to celebrate the 50th anniversary of his birth.

About 200 people gathered Saturday afternoon at Holly's statue just west of the concert site at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Original Cricket members Joe B. Mauldin, Jerry Allison and Niki Sullivan and songwriter Sonny Curtis were inducted into the Lubbock Musical Walk Of Fame.

"At the time they erected the statue (of Buddy Holly)," said Mauldin, "I sort of wondered why the Crickets were not inducted at the same time as Buddy into the Walk Of Fame because we were all an integral entity. But now, with all things said and done, I think that everything happens for a reason.

"And I feel especially gratified that my grandkids can now come visit Lubbock and see something that proves I really was from here," said Mauldin, the group's bassist.

Each artist received a plaque, which will be permanently installed on the brick wall surrounding the statue.

The Walk Of Fame, established to honor residents from Lubbock and the surrounding area, earlier honored Waylon Jennings, Mac Davis, Bobby Keys, Ralna English, Jimmy Dean, and actors G.W. Bailey and Barry Corbin.

The Crickets have just completed a European tour.

Hijackers facing the death penalty

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Four "very volatile" young Palestinians who seized a Pan Am jumbo jet could face the death penalty if convicted of the hijacking which left 15 people dead, President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq said.

"The hijackers have committed a crime on the soil of Pakistan and we will try them here. They will receive the punishment that such a crime deserves," Zia told a news conference at Karachi airport Sunday night upon returning from the non-aligned movement summit in Zimbabwe.

Pakistani courts impose death by hanging for both murder and hijacking.

Zia said the hijackers, whom he described as Palestinians ranging in age from 19 to 25, did not appear to be connected to any government. "They're youngsters, but very volatile," he said.

Zia said the gunmen, who are being held at an army camp near Karachi, would not be extradited to the United States, which issued arrest warrants for three of the hijackers on Saturday.

The hijacking began early Friday when the gunmen seized the plane at Karachi airport with nearly 400 people aboard and demanded to be flown to Cyprus, where they wanted to free jailed Palestinian terrorists.

The lights went out aboard the Boeing 747 about 17 hours later and the hijackers blasted the passengers with machine-gun fire and grenades. Pakistani commandos were in control half an hour after the shooting began.

Officials said Sunday it appeared 14 passengers, including three Americans, and a stewardess were killed in the 17-hour hijacking. Hospitals reported 127 injured. U.S. officials have said 17 Americans were wounded.

Most survivors of Flight 73 left Karachi on Sunday, some aboard a special Pan Am flight for Europe and New York and others on an Indian Airlines Airbus to Bombay.

Zia said he strongly supported the Palestinian cause, but did not see the need for actions such as hijackings. "Such incidents do leave a bad taste." The president also said he was completely satisfied with the way Pakistani security forces handled the incident.

"I'm very proud of them," Zia said. "It could have been far worse. Many more lives could have been lost."

Asked about reports that it took commandos up to 15 minutes to reach the plane after the hijackers began firing, Zia called on Jehandad Khan, the governor of Sind province.

Khan said the first commandos were at the plane within two minutes and three commando groups reached it within three minutes.

"If the allegations about 15 minutes (were) true, several hundred people (might) have died," Khan said.

The New York Times in today's editions said U.S. government officials told it the U.S. Army's special counterterrorism unit, the Delta Force, was sent to Karachi, but did not arrive until after the hijacking had ended.

The officials, who were not identified in the newspaper's report, told it the Pakistani government gave permission for the team to land at Karachi. The officials said the team's role had not been determined, and declined to say how close the team came to Pakistan or where it landed, the Times said.

Airport security officials said Sunday five security guards were suspended on suspicion of negligence because they were guarding the gate through which the hijackers, disguised as guards, drove to reach the plane.

Daniloff is linked with accused spy

MOSCOW (AP) — The government newspaper Izvestia today charged that Nicholas Daniloff was linked to a U.S. diplomat expelled last year on spying charges, and claimed the jailed American reporter was gathering intelligence on the Soviet military in Afghanistan.

Izvestia confirmed Daniloff had been formally charged with espionage under Article 65 of the Russian Federation's criminal code, which provides penalties upon conviction of from seven to 15 years in prison, exile or death.

The newspaper said a KGB investigator and a representative of the military prosecutor's office handed the indictment to Daniloff, indicating the correspondent for U.S. News & World Report might be tried by military tribunal.

Daniloff, 52, was believed to be the first foreign journalist ever formally charged with spying in the Soviet Union.

Izvestia gave no trial date. On Sunday, Daniloff called the office of his weekly news magazine from Moscow's Lefortovo Prison and a colleague, Jeff Trimble, quoted him as saying he could be held for six to nine months before a trial.

In a satellite interview today with ABC television, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said a diplomatic deal to free Daniloff "is always possible." He declined to speculate further on this.

On Sunday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes warned in Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan was on vacation, that charging Daniloff with espionage "could have serious implications for U.S.-Soviet relations if this continues. ... Daniloff is innocent."

Daniloff's wife, Ruth, has claimed her husband was framed in retaliation for the arrest of Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov in New York on Aug. 23 on an espionage charge.

Izvestia said Daniloff was detained on Aug. 30 with a package that contained a map of Afghanistan showing the location of Soviet military units, a hand-drawn diagram of military installations, and 26 black-and-white photographs of military equipment and Soviet soldiers.

Daniloff has told his wife a Soviet acquaintance gave him the package during a meeting in a Moscow park and told him it contained press clippings.

Izvestia said investigators had detained the acquaintance, named Misha, and that Misha accused Daniloff of trying to collect secret military information after they met in the Central Asian city of Frunze.

Misha was quoted as saying Daniloff asked him for lists of Soviet military units headed for Afghanistan. Misha also was quoted as saying Daniloff wanted the names and addresses of soldiers who had served in Afghanistan.

Other witnesses "convincingly demonstrated other facts of espionage activity by Daniloff," the paper said, without giving names or details.

It said investigators also had a letter allegedly given to a Soviet citizen by U.S. diplomat Paul Stombaugh, expelled in June 1985 and accused of spying.

Izvestia quoted the letter as saying, "We would like to assure you that the letter delivered by you to the journalist on January 24 got to the designated address. We highly appreciate your work."

Izvestia said Daniloff was the journalist referred to.

Mrs. Daniloff said the Izvestia article was "preposterous."

"It's absolutely crazy," she said. "It's just for domestic consumption while this case is being decided on a much higher level."

Mrs. Daniloff was granted permission to visit her husband Tuesday at Lefortovo, Doug Stanglin, another U.S. News reporter said today.

He said she was given permission during a telephone conversation with a KGB investigator and would be accompanied by Consul General Roger Daley from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

It will be her third prison visit with Daniloff since he was jailed.

In Washington, U.S. News & World Report chairman Mortimer Zuckerman said Sunday of the espionage charge against Daniloff, "I think it's an outrage ... and I suspect and believe there should be retaliatory measures if he is in fact put on trial."

Crime rate could be cut by stiffer terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime rates could be cut without large increases in already-overcrowded correctional systems if authorities consistently gave longer prison terms to career criminals, a research group said today.

The report by the National Research Council says longer prison sentences for convicted chronic offenders might result in a 5 percent to 10 percent reduction in crime, with a corresponding 10 percent to 20 percent increase in prison populations.

The panel, an organization of the National Academy of Sciences, concluded that achieving a 10 percent reduction in crime through tougher prison terms for all offenders would require doubling the number of prison inmates.

Inmate populations topped the half-million mark in state and federal prisons last year, up nearly 70 percent since 1977, according to a recent federal survey. Last year, 12.4 million major crimes were reported to authorities, according to the FBI.

The two-year study says authorities can improve their ability to identify career criminals by paying closer attention to juvenile court records and evidence of serious drug use.

"The younger an offender starts committing crimes and the more serious are his or her drug habits, the greater is the likelihood of a serious and long-continuing criminal career," said James K. Stewart, director of the National Institute of Justice, the Justice Department agency which commissioned the study.

The panel urged that juvenile court records be combined with adult records after the first adult conviction for a serious crime.

"This procedure would protect a delinquent teen-ager whose career terminates before reaching adulthood, while still providing criminal justice authorities with a more informative and accurate picture of the criminal career of young adult offenders," the study said.

The panel also said drug abuse should receive greater weight as a crime control measure. The study found that criminals who are drug abusers commit crimes at least twice as often as other offenders and may commit as many as six times more crimes during periods of heavy drug use.

The council concluded that demographic characteristics are a poor guide to identifying career criminals. Black males are about twice as likely as whites to be arrested for a crime by the time they are 18 years old and are about four times as likely for offenses involving injuries. But crime frequency rates for individual blacks and whites are about the same for the same crimes.

The report, "Criminal Careers and Career Criminals," was conducted in response to rapidly soaring prison populations and rising crime rates in the early part of this decade.

The research council panel is chaired by Alfred Blumstein of the School of Urban and Public Affairs at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Auto break-in reported here

Snyder police are investigating an auto burglary and a bicycle theft reported over the weekend.

Jay Clark of Rt. 3, Snyder reported the vehicle burglary at 2:01 a.m. Sunday.

He said his 1985 Ford had been broken into while parked at the Boy's Club Saturday night.

A number of cassette tapes and an undetermined amount of cash was said taken from the car.

Hit-and-run said cleared

Police cleared a recent hit-and-run accident complaint Sunday evening.

Officers say it is now believed vehicle damage was caused in some other way. The report involved a hit-and-run accident reported by Dotty Hart on Sept. 3.

The accident investigation was cancelled at her request shortly after 5 p.m.

In other weekend action, police arrested eight persons including two juveniles picked up for fighting Sunday afternoon.

Both were released to the custody of their parents.

Other arrests included one for driving while intoxicated, one for public intoxication, one for disorderly conduct and one for driving on a suspended license.

One man was jailed on a misdemeanor warrant issued in county court here and another on a warrants issued by the Department of Public Safety for failure to pay traffic citations.

New steps are considered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, escalating a test of wills with the Soviet Union, is reviewing steps to impress the Kremlin with the seriousness of U.S. demands for the release of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff, who is facing trial on espionage charges.

Nerve disease leads to death

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — There seem to be more and more people with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. Would you please discuss this disease?

DEAR READER — Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) is also called Lou Gehrig's Disease, after the baseball player who died of the illness. It is a progressive neurological affliction that results from a breakdown of certain nerves in the brain and spinal cord. Since these nerves supply muscles, the hallmarks of ALS are weakness and wasting of the muscles of the hands, arms and legs. The disease progresses quickly, involving the muscles of body movement and respiration, resulting in death within five years.

ALS is a disorder of unknown cause; there is no treatment. It usually begins in middle age. I am not aware that ALS is more prominent today than it was in the past. Perhaps we are simply hearing more about it, as we do about many other illnesses.

Nursing care and family support are vital resources in helping ALS victims deal with the disease, as is The ALS Association (15300 Ventura Blvd., No. 315, Sherman Oaks, CA 91403). The National Institute of Neurological Communicative Disorders and Stroke (Building 31, Room 8A08, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20892) publishes a book on ALS that you may find helpful.

DEAR DR. GOTT — You recently ran a letter advocating the use of La Pacha tea soaks for the treatment of toenail-fungus infection.

I am a registered nurse and have had great difficulty fighting such an infection. I was losing several toenails when, in desperation, I decided to try the treatment. I purchased the tea (which was called Pau d'Arco) in a health-food store, used one teaspoon per cup of water, heated it very hot, then soaked my feet once a day until the solution became cold. Within three days, the pain was gone; in two weeks, so was the infection.

It is now two months since I discontinued treatment and there is healthy, pink, new growth under my toenails. For me, this has proven to be a simple, inexpensive and effective treatment for what was a long-term nuisance. I hope you will share this information with your readers, since toenail fungus seems to be a widespread problem.

DEAR READER — Several readers have been kind enough to write their thanks. I appreciate hearing from you. Apparently the La Pacha or Pau d'Arco treatment works. Thank you for describing the method you used; I wasn't quite sure exactly how to use the tea. Your suggestions may help other readers.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had a tubal pregnancy and a miscarriage within a year of each other. My doctor says my next pregnancy has a 75 percent chance of being another tubal. I'm 21 and would like to know what could have caused these problems.

DEAR READER — There is no single cause for tubal pregnancy. Some women seem to be particularly prone to this condition. I think that you should ask your gynecologist/obstetrician about the possible causes in your case.

Farm subsidies may be target

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Congress begins looking for ways to control runaway spending next year, urban Democrats are going to remember the reports of flagrant cheating and skyrocketing costs in the government's farm subsidy program.

At an expected $30 billion this year, America's attempts to aid its farmers are costing more than ever and growing at a rate even faster than the much-criticized defense budget.

The traditional defenders of those programs, lawmakers from the nation's farming heartland, will be on the defensive as never before. Urban members of Congress will be coming at them armed with reports of huge subsidies to agribusiness and dramatic spending growth, neither of which seems to be having any immediate positive effect on U.S. farmers.

"We're facing an explosion on the farm programs," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., a member of the House Agriculture Committee. "Urban members are already talking about never voting for a farm bill again."

Panetta and others familiar with the painful budget cutting that is certain to face Congress in 1987 say they expect farm subsidies to be among the earliest and most certain targets.

"Next year, there may be some pressure not only (from urban members) to look at some of the payment structure but also, if the farm situation does not improve significantly, I think the farm members will want to make changes," said Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., the House Democratic Whip and former chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

As Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., put it: "They're going to get the bejeezus kicked out of them."

Urban members who have been a key part of the farm coalition in past years now feel betrayed. As programs for their constituents, such as mass transit and housing, have been cut, agriculture has more than soaked up the savings.

From annual levels of around $4 billion through the 1970s, farm-program spending is expected to grow this year to a record $30 billion, due largely to a new set of policies in the 1985 farm law.

The farm act seeks to restore the United States to its former dominance as a world commodity supplier. To do that, prices are slashed to make U.S. goods more attractive to foreign buyers. Farmers are protected from the cuts through direct subsidies to make up lost income.

While those who wrote and pushed the farm bill through Congress knew the costs would be large, most debate played on the widely publicized problems of Midwestern grain farmers — the so-called "family farms" romanticized and venerated by Americans.

But also participating in the farm programs this year are many large operations, farms with thousands of acres whose owners say the new lower prices are forcing them to seek shelter under the federal subsidy umbrella.

West Texas city fighting to keep railroad from leaving

LAMESA, Texas (AP) — This West Texas city could be at the end of the line if Santa Fe Railroad abandons part of its rail system, officials say.

Santa Fe, whose merger plans with the Southern Pacific system would create the nation's third-largest rail system, wants out of the city of 12,000 because it says the line between Lamesa and Slaton, a few miles southeast of Lubbock, is unprofitable.

Santa Fe has filed an abandonment petition with the Texas Railroad Commission, but has yet to submit it to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which must approve it.

Lamesa officials hope the ICC never gets to rule in the case.

"We've got to keep our railroad," said Luke Nichols, executive vice president of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce. "The important thing is that we make our case. It would just be a devastating blow to this area ... people won't even talk to you if you don't have a railroad."

About 1,600 rail cars use the track annually, an average of 31 cars shipping about 2,300 tons per week. Nichols said more than 40 percent of the cotton ginned in Dawson County is shipped by rail.

Without the rail, the city would no longer be able to maintain its large store of grain, currently more than 31,000 tons.

"We will have a railroad," Nichols said.

But Santa Fe officials don't necessarily agree.

"It is simply not making money," said Clyde Jeffus, Santa Fe's assistant general manager in Amarillo.

Death chamber gets new gurney

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas death chamber, scene of 361 electrocutions and 18 lethal injections since 1924, has a new look.

Prison officials, concerned with security, now have a custom-made steel pedestal bolted to the floor to hold the stainless steel gurney on which 18 condemned men have received a lethal combination of drugs.

The new permanent gurney — which resembles a surgical operating room table — replaces the four-wheeled gurney which has been used since lethal injections began in Texas in 1982.

For 40 years until 1964, the same room at the Texas Department of Corrections' Walls Unit housed "Old Sparky," the electric chair which is now stored a few feet away in two wooden crates.

"This is more solid and secure," assistant warden Robert Ott said of the new gurney. "It's designed for both a submissive and a combative inmate. With the wheels, it could move around quite a bit."

Ott said officials have been fortunate that none of the 18 inmates put to death by injection has fought the process.

"If the need arises, we are trained. We practice all the time," he said.

White leather belts which hold the inmate to the gurney also are being replaced. The belts secure the inmate at the ankles, knees, thighs, waist and chest. Another set is placed around his wrists.

"I changed them but because they were getting kind of worn," Ott said.

The death chamber was used three times in late August as convicted killers Randy Woolls, Larry Smith and Chester Wicker received lethal injections. The 18 executions in Texas are the most in any state since the Supreme Court allowed the death penalty to resume in the United States in 1976.

At least six inmates among the more than 230 on death row currently have execution dates. Attorney General Jim Mattox has said two of them — Donald Gene Franklin on Sept. 15 and Raymond Riles on Sept. 16 — are likely to die.

Ott said because of the recent frequency of executions, prison officials practice the death chamber routine often and go through the procedures at least twice when an execution is likely to occur.

"We're satisfied, but never completely satisfied," Ott said. "If something comes up, we want to know we can deal with it. We're very fortunate we have an excellent staff."

While the execution duty is not voluntary, a corrections officer who indicates a personal distaste for it will be reassigned, Ott said.

"Our objective is to do this as dignified as possible, with reverence, if you will. We want to avoid a circus atmosphere.

"I just call it professionalism," he said.

Sheriff bars staff from talking of loss

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Area government officials concerned by a $350,000 slander award upheld against the Montgomery County sheriff are considering implementing a policy similar to the sheriff's new rule that bars employees from talking to the media.

The policy was put in effect last week by Sheriff Joe Corley after U.S. District Judge Lynn Hughes upheld the jury award. Corley had been found personally responsible for a former chief deputy's comments to the media about a fired detective.

"It's ridiculous and dumb that we have to operate this way," Corley said of the policy. "But absolutely necessary. I'm not a rich man."

The policy prohibits all employees — except Corley and a department spokesman — from making statements to the media. The two-term sheriff oversees a department of about 200 employees.

Corley, who has no personal liability insurance, said he has been given the option of posting a $350,000 bond until the case is heard on appeal "or just letting them try to execute the judgment as they see fit."

The court, he said, could begin procedures to collect today.

The judgment prompted Montgomery County Attorney Jim Dozier to initiate a similar media policy for his office, and he sent letters to all county officials and department heads advising they do the same.

"It's got everybody worried," said Dozier, who said he will help with Corley's appeal.
