Another Iranian official slain by bomb

By SCHEHEREZADE FARAMARZI
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's general revolutionary prosecutor was assassinated in his Tehran office Saturday by a firebomb explosion so powerful it knocked the balcony off the building, officials said. He was the fourth senior official in Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime slain in a week.

Tehran Radio also said a gunman was wounded in a shootout in front of Iran's parliament, and a spokesman for the Iranian revolutionary police command said an investigation into a suspected coup plot was under way.

Pars said the revolutionary prosecutor, Hojatoleslam Ali Qodussi, died in Tehran's Martyrs Hospital 5½ hours after he was rushed there from his bombed-out office.

A spokesman for the hospital, reached by telephone from The Associated Press office in Beirut, said Qodussi's legs were burned, "but he died from brain damage he suffered" in the blast. The spokesman declined to be named.

The explosion rocked Qodussi's office near north Tehran's Qasr Prison at 8:40 a.m. — 1:10 a.m. EDT.

Tehran Radio, monitored in Beirut, said the bomb appeared to have been planted in the library room directly below Qodussi's second-floor office. The broadcast said the blast injured another man at the prosecutor's office.

Pars quoted the head of the military's Islamic revolutionary courts, Hojatoleslam Mohammad Reyshahri, as saying he was 20 yards from the building when the bomb exploded. "I saw the terrace of the second floor collapse," Reyshahri said.

The state radio in its evening broadcast said the Supreme Judicial Council appointed Hojatoleslam Hussein Musavi Tabrizi, head of the revolutionary court in northern Iran's East Azerbaijan Province, to succeed Qodussi.

The council accused the United States of complicity in the latest assassination. The radio quoted a council statement as saying, "Once more the hands of American fifth column has come out of the sleeves of the hypocrites," which is the term used to describe the underground Mujahedeen Khalq.

Tehran Radio said the shootout outside the parliament building started when guards opened fire on a speeding taxi whose driver failed to heed orders to stop.

"One passenger returned fire and he was wounded. The cab driver and the rest of the passengers were arrested. None of the guards was injured," the state-run radio said.

Parliament is in recess until Sept. 20, and it was not known if the shootout and the assassination of Qodussi were connected.

However, a police spokesman, who requested anonymity, told The AP in Beirut the suspected plot was hatched by the Mujahedeen Khalq, the main underground leftist organization involved in a 10-week-old anti-government campaign of bombings and assassinations.

"This particular plot followed a series of recent clashes we have had with armed political organizations such as the Mujahedeen, the Peykar and the Fedayeen Khalq," the spokesman said.

He was answering a question about a report that the Islamic fundamentalist regime had broken a coup attempt and arrested 30 people, most of them army officers purged for alleged loyalties to the monarchy which was overthrown in 1979 by Khomeini's revolution.

The spokesman said arrests were made in connection with the suspected leftist plot, but he refused to disclose how many.

The latest explosion came two days after interim Prime Minister Ayatollah Mohammad Reza Kani pledged to try to bring an early end to anti-government assassinations.

Capping student comsumption

Scotch and school don't mix, but opinions on the new state law raising the legal age for drinking to 19 are varied. Some students think it will help keep bottles out of the lockers, some think it's impossible and others don't care.

Will students skip the drinks?

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

The first major issue facing high school students when they started back to school last week possibly was not where the classrooms were located or when the first big quiz will be given. It could have been that the 18-year-olds were stripped of their rights to legally drink alcoholic beverages.

On Tuesday, a new law passed by the State Legislature became effective in which the legal drinking age was raised to 19.

The reasons for that move could be the basis for this "quiz" testing the knowledge and awareness of the new law among high school students.

Take, for example, the first question on the list.

Question 1 — In order to be employed in a restaraunt that sells alcoholic beverages you must be: a) 18; b) 19; c) 21; d) They'll never know. Answer: 19.

Question 2 — The new law will effectively decrease drinking among high school students: a) of course, it's the law; b) slightly; c) Maybe d) c'mon, no way. Answer: Maybe.

Question 3 — How did you purchase alcohol last year: a) what's alcohol; b) never touched the stuff; c) fake identification card ordered from the back of Rolling Stone magazine d) older friends. Answer: Older friends.

Question 4 — How will you purchase alcohol now: a) I won't; b) fake ID; c) older friends; d) I never get carded. Answer: Older friends.

Question 5 — Where do you do most of your "partying:" a) I don't party; b) L Street; c) Tierra del Sol parking lot; d) Odessa. Answer: Tierra del Sol parking lot.

Question 6 — After the first weekend with the law in effect, how do you feel about it?: a) the same; b) frustrated; c) mad; d)have a "hang over." Answer: The same.

If a student circled any of the answers at all, he probably showed greater initiative and awareness than many people. The views on the new law are various, ranging from ignorance to anger.

According to the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, routine enforcement of the law will continue and no extra agents will be assigned to check local drinking establishments. The number of minors caught drinking a month is not expected to change.

Nation's school systems on the skids

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported Saturday that America's classrooms will hold 870,000 fewer children this fall, and a teachers group predicts that tight budgets and the skid in enrollment will cost 55,000 teachers their jobs.

From kindergarten through college, the nation's school bill for 1981-82 will reach $198.3 billion, up about 10 percent from the 1980-81 tab of $181 billion, according to estimates from the National Center for Education Statistics.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell said total enrollment will slip from 58.4 million to 57.6 million, a 1.5 percent drop. Elementary and secondary schools will lose 870,000 pupils, declining to 45.4 million, while colleges and other post-secondary schools will gain 20,000 to 12.1 million.

The center estimated the number of elementary and secondary school teachers will drop by 23,000, to 2.4 million. But the two major teacher unions foresee far sharper retrenchments.

The 1.7 million-member National Education Association estimates 55,000 teachers are being laid off, "the largest one-year drop in history." Its rival, the American Federation of Teachers, estimates the layoffs at 44,000, with Massachusetts the hardest hit.

"The 1981-82 school year is going to be substantially different in America than any in recent decades," NEA President William McGuire said in an interview.

He said cuts in federal and state aid will mean fewer teachers and larger class sizes in many places.

McGuire also predicted cuts in special school programs for the poor, the handicapped and non-English speaking students as well as in music, art and other programs outside the core curriculum.

Parents also will find their children asking for more money to pay for school lunches and milk because ofReagan administration cuts, McGuire said.

Bell noted that school enrollment is down 6 percent from the record of 61.3 million reached in 1975.

He said that counting the 3.3 million classroom teachers — including 840,000 at the college level — and 300,000 superintendents and other staff, "Education in the fall of 1981 will be the primary activity of 61 million Americans," or 27 percent of the entire population.

The center, in its annual "back-to-school" forecast, said the federal government will pay $20 billion, or 10 percent, of the nation's school bill; states $77 billion, or 39 percent; local governments $50 billion or 25 percent; and the rest, $51 million or 26 percent, from tuition, fees, endowments, grants and private gifts.

The NEA's McGuire said the actual number of teachers laid off will not be known until later this year.

Other statistics from the government include:

—Elementary school enrollment will drop from 31.4 million to 31 million, continuing a slide that began in 1969, five years after the baby boom ended. But elementary enrollment is expected to pick up again in the mid-1980s.

—High school enrollment will fall to 14.4 million from 14.9 million. It peaked in 1976 and is expected to drop throughout the 1980s.

—Post-secondary enrollment will exceed last fall's record of 12.1 million by 20,000, but is expected to start dropping next year and for the rest of the decade due to the dwindling number of 18-to 24-year-olds.

—The school bill will be divided into $127 billion for elementary and secondary schools and $71 billion for colleges and universities. Public schools and colleges will spend $161 billion and private institutions $37 billion in 1981-82.

Labor looks to the future

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

HEARST

NEW YORK — Our national Labor Day holiday is a salute to the working men and women of this country and a time for all of us this year to take stock of what's in store ahead. Never in our history have so many been gainfully employed but, let's face it, current joblessness also is steep.

Celebration of this Labor Day is somewhat marred by the air controllers' strike. Thirteen thousand highly skilled people challenged their government by demanding higher pay and walking off their jobs to make their point. In so doing, they violated a solemn federal oath which President Reagan was quick to point out. After giving 48 hours warning of his intention to fire them for breaking their oath of office, and incidentally the law, several thousand of them returned.

The rest remain defiant and the president is unmoved by strike leaders anxious to get a deal. A new training program is in the works for recruited controllers and supervisory help has long been summoned to help keep the vast volume of commercial air traffic flowing. All told, the president appears to have won a clear-cut victory. As an old-time union member, he didn't seek this confrontation and his reaction was applauded nationally, including many working folks.

In this context we should recall that the air controllers were among the first to endorse President Reagan during his campaign for office. They wanted a tough but fair-minded man — and got one. Sadly, it may follow that all organized labor could lose something from the strike although it has been careful to stay aloof thus far from the controversy.

In a philosophic turn, Lane Kirkland, head of the AFL-CIO who succeeded the late trade unionist giant, George Meany, reflected that the labor movement had been destroyed frequently but survived. Why? "We fulfill a basic human need," observed the soft-spoken Kirkland.

Labor ready to show solidarity

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top union leaders are looking past Labor Day to an even bigger event, a mass march aimed at venting organized workers' anger over Reagan administration economic and regulatory policies.

The 15-million-member AFL-CIO is organizing the Sept. 19 rally and protest demonstration here, which federation officials say may rival or even exceed the impact of the Poor People's March on Washington in 1963, led by the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Infuriated by President Reagan's deep cuts in social programs, the scaling back of regulations ranging from worker safety to affirmative action and tax cut program, the AFL-CIO and its 102 member unions began laying plans for the march several weeks ago.

That was before Reagan fired some 12,000 striking air traffic controllers — a move AFL-CIO leaders contend gave great impetus to the event. It has been named "Solidarity Day" in homage to the trade union movement in communist Poland.

Although labor unions are organizing the Solidarity Day protest, the participants will run the gamut of the social spectrum — civil rights activists, environmentalists, women's rights advocates and others.

Federation officials at first considered holding the rally over the Labor Day weekend, but then decided the timing would be wrong since members of Congress would still be on their summer recess.

The disaffected groups argue strenuously with contentions by Reagan administration officials that the president's actions were demanded by the voters who elected Reagan — that the chief executive has a mandate for rolling back costly social programs and rewriting government regulations.

"Mr. Reagan has thrown down the gauntlet," AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland told the federation's general board in Chicago early last month.

By resting his case on a declared mandate, Kirkland said of the president, "He claims his victims as his allies. He would make working people accomplices in his assault on their interests.

"I do not believe we can quietly turn our backs and walk away from this challenge and still be true to our mandate," the AFL-CIO chief said. "The mandate of the trade union movement imposes special obligations."

Relations between the AFL-CIO and the White House are at their lowest point in years.

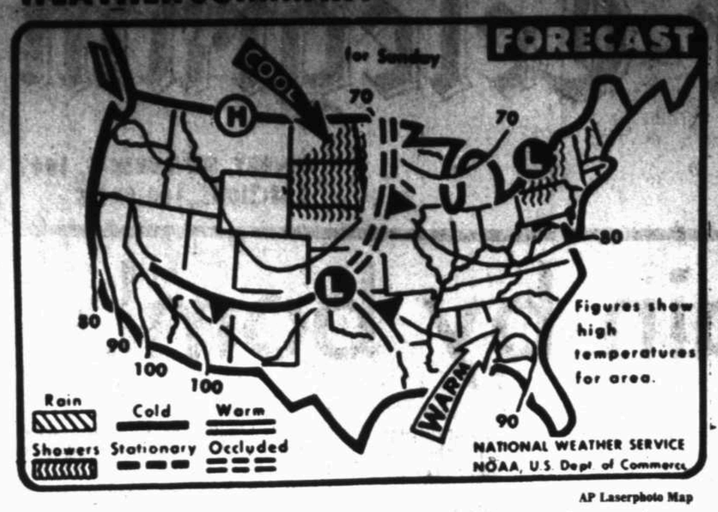

Both Reagan and Kirkland will be in New York City on Monday, but each will be going his own way. The president will be delivering a check for $85 million as the first federal installment on construction of the $2 billion Westway highway project, which is of great interest to local union leaders.

Kirkland, at the same time will, be serving as grand marshal for the city's first Labor Day parade in 13 years.

In Washington, AFL-CIO will be girding for Solidarity Day, helping union locals and other organizations arrange travel and other accommodations for participants in the protest march.

Top federation officials are reluctant to say how many will turn out for the Sept. 19 rally, though they do say it likely will exceed the some 100,000 participants in the 1963 demonstration.

Khomeini remains firmly entrenched

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Bomb and assassination squads have shaken the foundations of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution in Iran, but the revolutionary godfather appears to remain firmly entrenched and seemingly unconcerned about being overthrown.

The 82-year-old Shiite Moslem clergyman captured the nation's imagination when he aroused the populace to overthrow the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's dynasty in February 1979.

For many Iranians, he remains a symbol of nationalism and patriotism and the underground opposition has made no known attempt to assassinate him.

The target of the anti-regime terror campaign has been the clergy-led Islamic Republican Party and allied groups such as the fanatic Hezbollahis, whose black-shirted, anti-sin squads patrol the streets of the capital on motorcycles.

IRP founder Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti and 71 other party leaders and supporters were killed in a bomb blast that wrecked the party headquarters in Tehran on June 28.

President Mohammad Ali Rajai and Prime Minister Javad Bahonar died in a similar blast in the prime ministry one week ago, and a firebomb Saturday killed Hojatoleslam Ali Qodussi, the nation's general revolutionary prosecutor.

Hit-and-run machine gun attacks have picked off lower-ranking clergymen, provincial officials and politicians.

Iran-watchers believe the campaign has disrupted the IRP's ability to govern and to formulate domestic and foreign policy. But the party has moved quickly to fill the vacant posts with new faces.

Led by clergymen who fervently seek to establish a theocracy that will serve as a pan-Islamic model, the party remains basically homogeneous and Khomeini officials have insisted changes in personalities will not alter their course.

Travelers from Iran say that the population of 36 million remains largely apathetic, unwilling to risk involvement in the bloody war of attrition that has claimed the lives of about 200 clergymen and pro-Khomeini officials and about 800 dissidents since the ouster of ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr on June 22.

"The people are relatively unsophisticated politically and worry most about living day to day," said one young Iranian professional who arrived here recently.

Led by the leftist Mujahedeen Khalq which has allied with Bani-Sadr in exile in Paris, the underground guerrillas have burned food harvests, planted bombs in railway stations and fought gun battles with pro-Khomeini revolutionary guards in the streets.

The government forces have responded with late-night stop-and-search roadblocks in the capital and an increase in the numbers of arrests, summary trials by revolutionary guards and executions by firing squads.

Flocks of bodyguards surround prominent figures and the new prime minister, Ayatollah Mohammad Reza Mahdavi Kani, has made security his government's No. 1 priority.

The daily life of most Iranians has been largely unaffected by all this, say the travelers. Many Iranians instead grapple with the long-term effects of upheaval — double-digit inflation and unemployment that now includes an estimated 5 million Iranians.

The opposition in Iran remains fragmented despite the alliance of the Mujahedeen Khalq with Bani-Sadr. Efforts to mount massive street demonstrations last June when Bani-Sadr was impeached withered in the face of larger crowds turned out by the IRP's organizers.

Opposition groups are varied, running the spectrum from monarchists to Marxists. Some parties, such as those of the autonomy-seeking Kurds in northwestern Iran, are limited to one geographic area and have avoided ties with other anti-government movements.

"Unless there is a cohesive alliance of opposition forces, then it is unlikely that the masses can be mobilized or Khomeini's regime brought down soon," said one Western diplomat who declined to be identified.

The army is preoccupied with its attempt to regain territory lost to Iraqi forces in their almost one-year-old war. It also has been weakened by repeated purges.

Khomeini forces have organized their own palace guard — a well-equipped and battle-hardened corps of revolutionary guards numbering 75,000 who could be used to counter any moves by the regular army.

The terror strikes have nonetheless preoccupied Khomeini's clergy and their focus has been increasingly inward-looking, costing the Islamic republic support from abroad. Iran's supporters in the Arab world — Libya, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization — all have shown signs in recent weeks of loosening their ties with Khomeini's regime and seeking rapprochement with Iraq.

"Despite their early promises of support for various causes, the Iranian government has been too involved with its own problems to worry about anybody else," said one Asian diplomat based in Tehran.

Holiday wrecks take 20 lives

By The Associated Press

Four people were killed in a three-vehicle crash in McAllen early Saturday, and two College Station residents perished in a grinding two-car wreck near Lincoln, raising the state's Labor Day traffic death toll to 20, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported.

The DPS has estimated 48 people will die on Texas roads between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Tuesday.

Killed in the 1 a.m. crash near McAllen were 29-year-old Jose Reyna of Houston, 24-year-old Martha Aguilar Garcia and 55-year-old Carmen Aguilar, both of McAllen. Sylvia Ruth Garcia, 27, of McAllen, died later at a local hospital.

Conrad Alan Cayting Sr., of College Station, and his wife, Phyllis, both 47, died in a three-vehicle wreck about 9:40 a.m. Saturday. The accident took place on Texas 21 about three miles east of Lincoln.

Three Houston residents died in accidents within the city limits late Friday and early Saturday, the DPS said.

Helen Todd, 63, died in a two-car collision Friday night and Rosie Gomez, 24, died early Saturday when her car struck the back of a parked tractor-trailer rig.

Marvin Waind Hill, 37, died when his motorcycle struck an automobile about 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the DPS said.

Another three-vehicle crash killed 68-year-old David Raymond Swift of Mabank Friday night. The 9:30 p.m. accident was on FM 90 near Gunbarrel City.

Three head-on collisions left three people dead late Friday and early Saturday. Mary Beth Welch, 24, of Wimberley, died in a crash on FM 306 12 miles north of New Braunfels at 12:45 a.m., and Mexican national Pedro Montes, 28, of Houston, died in a head-on two miles north of Hebbronville on Texas Highway 16 at 10:55 p.m.

A Fort Sill, Okla., man was killed near Spring Branch on U.S. Highway 281 at 12:50 a.m. Dead was 2nd Lt. David Michael Rudnick, 24.

Three pedestrians also were killed in the first day of the DPS traffic watch. Three-month-old Thomas Hernandez was struck by a vehicle at 3:25 a.m. Saturday as he was being held by his father next to their disabled car on Interstate 35 in Fort Worth.

Pedestrian Francisco Valdez, 16, was struck and killed by a vehicle in his hometown of Dallas at 1:12 a.m.

And Arthur Medina Alvarez, 28, of Charlotte, was struck by a passing vehicle a mile west of Jourdanton on Texas Highway 97 at 3 a.m.

A tractor-trailer accident on U.S. Highway 90 in Harris County left 52-year-old James Miller of Houston dead at 9 p.m.

Jerry R. Smith, 24, of Ingram, was thrown from the vehicle he was driving after it ran off U.S. Highway 377 about 10 miles south of Rock Springs.

Showers forecast for Midland

Midlanders who favor late summer cloudbursts have an off-chance of getting soaked if they stay outdoors and if the weatherman's forecast of showers or thunderstorms today, tonight and possibly into Labor Day pans out.

But the weatherman's odds for rain are only one in five.

Late Saturday night, thunder was prowling the Midland-area skies and offered omens of rains.

About 6 p.m. Friday, a streak of lightning caused an Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. oil tank northeast of Midland and in Martin County to explode.

A Midland fire-fighting unit and Battalion Chief George Woody answered the fire call, shut off the well, and, at the request of Adobe, let the oil burn. The tank contained about 500 barrels of crude oil.

A trail of black smoke could be viewed from at least 10 miles from the burning tank, according to reports.

Aside from the chance of holiday rain, the weatherman with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting highs near 90 today and Monday and lows in the mid-60s.

Winds are to be southerly to southeasterly at 10 to 15 mph today.

Saturday's high temperature of 87 degrees was nowhere near the record high of 104 degrees for the date in 1948. The overnight low of 70 degrees was closer to the record low of 68 degrees for the date in 1962.

Legal drinking age changed dent said. "It used to be 18 was the big year. Now it's 16 you get to drive, 17 you can move out of the house, 18 you can vote and get drafted and 19 just happens to come after that."

"I'm not even 18 and it's not going to stop me from drinking," one girl chimed in, giggling.

Another student said, "It's not going to change anything. We'll still be drinking anyway and so will everyone else."

Jack Stone, principal of Midland High School, said students haven't been talking much about the new law. Since they (the high schools) gave everyone enough warning in advance, he noted, the students had time to get used to the law. "Nobody likes surprises," he said.

And the lounges don't expect to have problems with the change in drinking age.

According to an employee at Cowboys, 3920 W. Wall St., the management is continuing to restrict minors from the club by checking driver's licenses. He said that no ABC officials have been in to check on the enforcement of the new law as far as he knew.

"They're probably going to give us a little time to get used to it (the new law)," he said.

The manager of Sidewinders in the Holiday Inn Country Villa said they never have trouble with minors. "We just won't let them in," she said. "We don't want to lose our jobs or have to pay a big fine." She said they also check ID's regularly.

At the Stardust, 1008 S. Midkiff, according to one employee, they never have to worry about minors coming in for a drink.

"We have mostly an older crowd in here."

Demonstration against WIPP held

CARLSBAD, New Mexico (AP) — About 35 people carried signs and performed skits in front of the Department of Energy office here Saturday to protest construction nearby of the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

The demonstrators were members of the Coalition for Direct Action At WIPP. They said they planned a civil disobedience action Monday at the WIPP site.

The coalition expects up to 200 people at the nuclear repository site, about 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad, at 6 a.m. Monday and has set up a "Stop WIPP Camp" at a park east of Loving.

Nation's oldest school system faces rough year

BOSTON (AP) — As classes begin this week, the nation's oldest public school system faces another year of crises — budget problems, layoffs and the threat of a teachers' strike.

The 5,000 members of the Boston Teachers Union meet Monday — two days before classes are to resume — to vote on their leaders' recommendation that they strike.

The strike call is a response to layoffs of nearly 1,000 teachers and the decision — provoked by Proposition 2½, the state's property tax cutting law — that a 7.5 percent salary hike will not be paid.

The teachers staged a six-day strike in 1975 over contract negotiations. A strike call in 1978 was rejected by the membership.

"My gut feeling is there won't be a strike," says School Committee President John O'Bryant. "The issue they're striking on is not an issue they can win. We simply have no money to hire back the teachers."

Superintendent Robert Spillane came to Boston a month ago after serving as New York's assistant education commissioner. The threatened strike leads a list of troubles he faces.

Even if the strike is averted, the school system that serves 62,000 students must learn to live with a shrinking budget, fewer schools and a public attitude unsympathetic to public education.

"Public education in Boston does not have a great amount of support," says Ed Doherty, a vice president of the teachers union. "The public doesn't understand the consequences if public education fails."

Sporadic violence in the schools began six years ago with the start of court-ordered busing. Last year, problems between white and black students were overshadowed by a school bus drivers' strike at the start of the academic year and the threat of bankruptcy and a school shutdown at the end of the year.

The year also saw two members of the city's school committee indicted on extortion charges. Gerald O'Leary pleaded guilty to charges of trying to extort $650,000 from a school bus company; the other committee member, John J. McDonough, is awaiting trial.

The schools still face financial woes that threatened to shut down classes last April. It took a state judge's order to keep the schools open after Mayor Kevin H. White refused a request for a $20 million supplemental budget.

The schools will operate with a $210 million budget this year, $18 million less than last year. Tight money has meant layoffs of 960 teachers and 500 other staff members and the closing of 27 schools.

The union believes school officials "are laying off far more people than they have to," says Doherty. "We are saying the schools, in order to implement the contract and keep the comprehensive programs going, are going to need more money from the mayor."

The mayor's view that the schools are poorly run is backed by a Boston Municipal Research Bureau study. The bureau, a private foundation supported by businessmen, said education costs in Boston were "excessive by virtually every comparative measure."

The report cited a 51 percent increase in administrative costs and a 58 percent rise in instructional costs over the past decade and noted that this occurred despite a decline in enrollment by 33,000 during the period.

"You compare Boston with other school systems ... and find $210 million should be sufficent to do the job," says Samuel Tyler of the bureau, who blames "poor leadership on the part of the school committee and lack of good personnel within the system."

Emily stalls, but Floyd gets stronger

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Emily stalled over chilly North Atlantic waters Saturday but Tropical Storm Floyd was building strength on a march through the Caribbean toward the Bahamas, the National Hurricane Center said.

Floyd built to winds of 70 mph on Saturday — 4 mph shy of hurricane strength. Hurricane Center Director Neil Frank predicted the storm would continue to build and could become a hurricane Saturday night.

Located about 230 miles north of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and heading northwest at 10 mph, Floyd's center was at latitude 21.6 north, longitude 66.9 west at noon EDT on Saturday.

Emily, the season's second hurricane, was centered near latitude 39.1 north and longitude 60.8 west at noon Saturday, about 485 miles south-southeast of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Forecaster Bob Sheets said Emily was "nearly stationary" in the face of a high pressure area building to the north.

Frank said Floyd's course would take the storm east of the Bahamas, but any drift to the west would threaten the islands. Fishermen and other boaters were advised to monitor weather reports.

Floyd formed as tropical depression late Thursday north of the Virgin Islands and became the sixth storm of the season on Friday.

An Air Force reconnaissance aircraft flew over Emily on Saturday and reported winds at 90 mph. Forecasters said they expected Emily to retain hurricane strength most of the day Saturday.

The storm "is about as strong as it is going to get," said Sheets. "It's moving slowly northward but isn't expected to go anywhere very fast."

Saved from back taxes

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — To borrow Mark Twain's phrase, reports of effects of the State ad valorem tax on taxpayers, should that tax for college construction be restored by the courts, appear to be greatly exaggerated.

At least, it appears that the average homeowner won't be hit for thousands of dollars in back taxes — although some residences could face several hundred dollars in additional taxes, and that's hardly welcome news.

During both the regular and special sessions of the Legislature this year, efforts were made to pass a constitutional amendment to repeal the State property tax which has been used to finance constrution at colleges outside the Permanent University Fund.

In 1979, the Legislature dropped the assessment ratio for that tax to 0.0001 percent — effectively abolishing it.

However, that action came under challenge by Midwestern State University, which contends that the Legislature can't alter the tax, which is contained in the Texas constitution, merely by a statutory enactment.

Sam Houston State University, Angelo State University, Southwest Texas State University and Sul Ross State University also havve become involved in the lawsuit origially filed by two Midwestern regents and a former student body president.

Texas Southern University has "conditionally" approved joining the suit.

Gov. Bill Clements said passage of a constitutional amendment to abolish the property tax was a top priority of his to provide "tax relief" for Texans, but the House and Senate were unable to agree in the two sessions in 1981 on whether to simply repeal the tax, or to use it (at a lower level) or some other source to finance college construction.

Clements reported that the tax would cost Texans some $1 billion over the next biennium.

Jim Robinson, State Property Tax Board, notes that the tax was last collected during 1979 — with the "gross levies" (i.e., without discounts for early payment) coming to $600 million.

Based on a change to 100 percent of market value, as now required by Texas law, and taking into acciount reappraisals, the amounts would be $125 million for 1980 (if collection of back taxes should be ordered), with $300 million for 1981, and $450 million for 1982.

That would come to $47 a year on a $50,000 home for 1982 — based on the 10 cents per $100 tax rate, with the $3,000 homestead exemption provided for State property taxes, Robinson explains.

For a $75,000 house, the 1982 taxes would be $72.

For the three-year period — assuming the values stayed the same — the taxes would work out to $141 for the first house, and $216 for the second.

The impact would be considerable greater on some business properties, Robinson notes.

Meanwhile, there is no indication when the lawsuit may be heard by the district court.

Attorney General Mark White's office reports that while the lawsuit was delayed to allow Midwestern to join the tax assessors throughout Texas as parties, they hav received no notification that the plaintiffs have even sought that authority — indicating that the case will not be heard anytime soon.

The case had been set to go to trial Aug. 24, but was delayed.

Clements told reporters at the end of th special session that he had been told the lawsuit could be postponed long enough for the Legislature to be back in session — which would be January, 1983, unless the governor calls them back sooner — to deal with the matter.

Even if the universities win their case, as they are expected to do, appeals and other challenges could prevent collection of the taxes for some time.

So it appears taxpayers may escape that additional tax bite for at least a bit longer — a bite that may be painful, but apparently won't be fatal.

Hearing on rising incidence of sexually transmitted diseases

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Subcommittee on Public Health has tentatively scheduled a public hearing on sexually transmitted diseases for Nov. 20 in the Midland-Odessa area.

The Midland-Odessa area has experienced a "skyrocketing incidence" of reported cases of such diseases, said Glen H. Wallace, research coordinator for the subcommittee. However, Wallace said much of the increase in reported cases could be the result of factors, such as the opening of new public health clinics, increased reporting by private physicians and a highly transient population.

The Midland-Odessa hearing is one of several planned across the state as part of the subcommittee's longterm Plan of Study.

No time or place for the hearing have been set, said Wallace.

Liability insurance mandatory

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Department of Public Safety official predicts there will be a surge in the number of Texans with auto insurance shortly after the new mandatory insurance law takes effect Jan. 1.

Winston Johnson, manager of the DPS' safety responsibility section, said 76 percent of the drivers who are involved in accidents carry liability insurance.

"We anticipate it is going to increase as soon as HB197 (the mandatory insurance law) becomes effective. How much, we do not know. We feel it will go up 15 percentage points — hopefully," Johnson said.

He said the DPS and local officers will play a big part in the success of the new law.

"It's going to be determined by enforcement, how people react to it," Johnson said.

The law says that after New Year's Day, all drivers must have insurance that will pay $5,000 for property damage and up to $20,000 for medical bills and funeral expenses resulting from accidents that are their fault.

A driver faces a minimum $75 fine on first offense and $200 on subsequent convictions for not having insurance.

If a motorist has an accident and produces a policy, the DPS will ask the insurance company if it is still valid.

The DPS expects to issue guidelines around Oct. 1 telling what kind of proof of coverage motorists must carry and when DPS troopers will ask for it. Local police and sheriffs' officers also will be requiring drivers to prove they have insurance.

Capt. John Cowan of the DPS' Traffic Law Enforcement Division is working on the guidelines and said they should be issued at least 90 days before the law takes effect because "we need all the publicity we can get."

Proof of coverage might be anything from the policy itself to a letter from the insurer to a special card insurance companies might be asked to issue, he said.

Some companies already issue cards to their policyholders, but Johnson said most do not.

One troublesome question is when should drivers be asked to prove coverage.

"We're looking at the whole gauntlet from any time he is stopped for any reason such as a driver license check to when he is cited for a violation. I don't know if we could go a whole lot further out than that. If you wait until he has an accident, the horse is out," Cowan said.

Johnson said he doubts many tickets will be issued by DPS troopers in the first three months of mandatory insurance because "it is the policy of the department in the first 90 days of any new legislation to warn people."

But he predicted the potential revenue from mandatory fines will motivate cities to insist that their officers check for insurance each time they make a stop.

Johnson suggested that insurance companies might prefer a special card or a letter as proof of coverage instead of requiring drivers to carry their complete policies.

Grand jury targets firms in bid-rigging

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating bid-rigging has targeted a number of specialty paving firms and company officials and could return its first series of indictments early next month, the Austin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying up to 20 "target letters" have been sent out by antitrust prosecutor Leonard Senerote to companies specializing in seal-coat applications on Texas highways.

"The target letters don't mean, necessarily, that they will be indicted," said an unnamed attorney. He said the letter was a notice that prosecutors were "zeroing in" on a company and suggests that officials cooperate.

Most of the companies operate in West Texas, but four companies based in central and eastern parts of the state were among nine named by one source, the newspaper said.

The federal grand jury began its investigation last October into alleged collusion among paving companies bidding on state highway contracts. Officials and documents from more than 40 paving and subcontracting companies have been subpoenaed by the jury.

The grand jury is scheduled to reconvene Sept. 30 for a three-day session. Several major contractors have been subpoenaed to appear during the session, an indication that the investigation is not complete, the paper said.

86-year-old woman dies in whirlpool

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Police and the Texas attorney general's office are investigating the death of an 86-year-old nursing home patient who was found submerged in a whirlpool bath at a local health care center.

Susan Welch died shortly after 3 p.m. Friday.

Investigator Jack Kopacz of the Travis County Medical Examiner's Office said Mrs. Welch was being given a bath when the "two people giving her the bath got into an argument and went into the hall to settle it."

When they noticed water running from under the door of the whirlpool room, they returned and found Mrs. Welch submerged, Kopacz said. An autopsy was scheduled.

The woman's son, L. Wilson Welch of Austin, said his mother was "99.9 percent invalid....She was so bad she couldn't reach the button to call a nurse."

Jury recommends life imprisonment

DALLAS (AP) — Jurors have recommended that a jewelry salesman be sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of used car salesman Ray Buyher.

The jury Friday recommended the sentence for Barry Emmett, whom they found guilty of murder earlier in the day.

Buyher, 28, was killed by six bullets fired into his brain July 15, 1980. He was found dead in his burning house, which had been robbed of some property, police said.

Two other men accused in the slaying who were granted immunity from prosecution testified Emmett killed Buyler because Buyler sold him some poor quality cocaine.

Man sentenced for abduction, rape

DALLAS (AP) — A 20-year-old man has been sentenced to three consecutive prison terms for the abduction and rape of a 7-year-old girl.

Vincent Edward Bates was formally sentenced by State District Judge Richard Mays Friday to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for raping a child and a life sentence for aggravated kidnapping.

Mays also had sentenced Bates to five years in prison for violating the terms of his probation on a 1979 felony theft conviction.

Bates was found guilty of kidnapping the girl from a babysitter's house and then raping and sexually abusing her. The girl was found tied to a tree in a vacant field.

Fort Worth property taxes raised

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The City Council Friday voted to raise Fort Worth's property tax rate 8½ cents at full market value and to hike the garbage collection fee $1 a month.

Council members rejected a proposal to raise bus fares from 60 cents to 75 cents.

The 9 percent boost will raise the property tax rate from 81.9 cents to 90.4 cents per $100 valuation. A state law specifies that taxes must be assessed beginning this year at actual market value.

Plan to test for lead contamination

DALLAS (AP) — City officials have announced a lead-screening plan for residents who live near near two smelters.

The tests will focus on children, who are most susceptible to lead contamination, officials said.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency earlier this year found widespread lead contamination in the two miles surrounding the smelters.

SMU Students may be disciplined

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University officials are considering disciplinary action against 22 freshman band members who caused $2,500 worth of damage to sculptures in the school's private collection.

Irene Martin, director of the Meadows Museum, said the students draped the sculpures with plastic and sheets and caused several scratches and nicks.

Woman found guilty of attempted murder

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Jurors took only 45 minutes after resuming deliberations Saturday to find a woman guilty of attempted murder by lacing her husband's food and coffee with cyanide-laden rat poison.

State District Judge Brunson Moore ordered the jury back in court Friday to consider a punishment for 35-year-old Natividad Campos. She faces from two to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Jurors deliberated more than five hours Friday without reaching a verdict for Mrs. Campos, who was accused of trying to kill 41-year-old Enrique Campos Marquez to collect a $7,000 life insurance policy.

The defendant denied that she slipped small amounts of poison into her husband's food in late 1979 and 1980 and her attorneys contended Campos could have inhaled cyanide fumes from working near welders at Utility Trailer.

But prosecutors pointed out that Campos recovered once he moved out of his family's Fabens home in July 1980 and that none of his co-workers became ill.

Testimony revealed that Campos, who is 5-foot-6, dropped from a weight of about 124 pounds to 81 pounds during the period he allegedly was poisoned.

An examination in July 1980 showed he had many of the symptoms of chronic cyanide poisoning and blood tests revealed inordinately high amounts of the deadly poison.

Hughes' cousins' claims swept aside

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A trial that awarded half of Howard Hughes' estate to three cousins closed another chapter in the bitter fight for the late tycoon's fortune, but opened some old wounds for one attorney.

George Parnham, who represented Hughes aide Noah Dietrich in a 1977 attempt to probate the now-discredited "Mormon Will," agreed two months ago to represent about 400 distant cousins trying to discredit the bloodline of three first cousins seeking a share in the estate, worth up to $2 billion.

But six jurors Friday swept away the distant cousins' claims as well as the claims of about 100 other second, third and fourth cousins who had attempted to prove the late Elspeth Hughes Lapp was not the true daughter of Hughes' paternal uncle, Rupert.

The jury's unanimous decision upheld the bloodline of Rupert's three granddaughters — Barbara Cameron, Elspeth DePould and Agnes Roberts — and solidified the claims by his two stepchildren which now only require the approval of Probate Judge Pat Gregory.

For Parnham, the 10-day proceeding to determine the paternal heirs brought back some unpleasant memories as lawyers for the first cousins charged he "defended" the Mormon Will that surfaced shortly after Hughes died April 5, 1976.

Declared a forgery by a Nevada jury after a seven-month trial, the purported will named Dietrich as executor of Hughes' estate and left a substantial share to the Mormon Church and a gas station attendant named Melvin Dummar, who said he picked up Hughes in a Nevada desert in 1968 and gave him a lift into Las Vegas.

The accusation drew an angry response from the bearded lawyer.

"You bet I'm still sensitive about it. I didn't 'defend' anyone and I don't like anyone suggesting that because I represented someone in what has become known as the 'Dummar Will' that I'll represent any claim," said Parnham, adding he is "not inclined" to represent the 400 distant cousins if they appeal Friday's verdict.

Parnham said his connection cost him "a lot in terms of self esteem."

"I put two years of my life into that, and I came back devastated. I didn't do anything for six months — just sat around and moped," he said. "Howard Hughes became my whole life. What was a big case became my alter ego. I was a Hughes-aholic.

"I think we did a good job with what we had," Parnham said after hearing Friday's verdict. "We agreed to take the case based on evidence submitted and then realized that what we were told was there wasn't. But I decided that win, lose or draw, this time I'd come out a winner."

Texas considered for waste disposal

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Department of Energy official has told the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council that stable geological formations in Nevada and Washington are being considered as the most feasible sites for high-level radioactive waste disposal, but salt formations in East and West Texas have not been ruled out as potential disposal sites.

Dr. Cullen Heath, director of the DOE's Office of Waste Isolation, said stable geological formations appear to the "most effective method of disposal for radioactive wastes."

Heath said disposal in such formations would be made at depths of half a mile, and the site would be permanently sealed after wastes are injected.

DOE is presently looking at sites on the federal Hansford Reservation in Washington and the nuclear weapons underground testing site in Nevada to begin testing this disposal method.

Heath said exploratory shafts probably would be started in 1983, with completion by 1985. The DOE plans to seek a disposal license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1988, with the licensing process expected to take four years.

With a six-to-10-year construction time, a disposal facility would not be in operation until the end of the century, Heath said.

Other formations being considered for underground disposal of radioactive waste include salt beds and salt domes, and Heath said two sites in Texas have not been ruled out of consideration.

In East Texas, the Oakwood Salt Dome has been selected as one of four potential sites for salt dome disposal. Other sites are located in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Heath said budgetary restraints probably would result in the DOE conducting its testing and disposal operations in the Mississippi or Louisiana sites, since the Texas site is ranked fourth among the salt domes chosen.

A more likely disposal site in Texas would be the salt beds in the Palo Duro Basin in West Texas, and is being considered by the DOE, said Heath.

A decision should be made by 1983 whether to carry out salt bed testing at that site or in the Paradox Basin of Utah.

TENRAC passed a resolution calling on the DOE to provide the council with reports of its activities as a condition for continued cooperation of the State of Texas. Those reports are to include detailed schedules for the accomplishment of studies, test drillings and other activities.

Other conditions include informing the governor of any pending key decisions and providing the state with technical reports drafted for the project.

Reagan differs with allies on foreign policy issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. veto of a United Nations resolution condemning South Africa's raid into Angola is only the latest in a series of actions where the Reagan administration has parted company from its allies on key foreign policy issues.

The mounting differences, especially over the approach toward the Soviet Union, have led many to conclude the post-war Western Alliance is badly frayed. If so, it would be ironic for a president who had pledged to strengthen U.S. alliances.

No other member of the U.N. Security Council supported the U.S. veto Monday. France, Japan, Ireland and Spain all voted to condemn South Africa and Britain abstained.

Other examples of disagreement include trade issues, defense spending, El Salvador, arms control talks with the Soviets and the neutron warhead. In one way or another all the disagreements stem from differences over how to deal with the Soviet Union, with the administration advocating a strategy of toughness.

Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a former high State Department official in the Nixon and Ford administrations, said in an interview, "At the moment, I would say there are a lot of problems and quite severe challenges because of the differences in public attitudes, and that probably, all told, those challenges are as complex and severe as any faced in a long time."

The administration has expressed displeasure over plans by West Germany to help finance a $10 billion natural gas pipeline from Siberia to Western Europe, but Germany is going ahead anyway.

The major U.S. allies have never agreed with the administration's position that El Salvador is an East-West conflict, pitting Communist-backed troops against a beleaguered friendly government. France jolted the administration last week when it joined Mexico in recognizing the rebels as a legitimate political force and called for negotiations to end the fighting.

Under intense European pressure, the administration has agreed to begin talks with the Soviet Union later this year on restraining medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, but with such reluctance that the allies appear to have little expectation of meaningful results.

The administration's controversial decision to manufacture neutron weapons was done without consulting the European allies, who likely would have counseled caution, although none has openly condemned the decision.

In Africa, the administration has criticized the presence of Soviet advisers and Cuban troops in Angola, but without much apparent sympathy outside of South Africa itself. The United States is one of the very few nations which doesn't recognize the Angolan government.

In Europe, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is under considerable pressure from within his own party because of his support for the deployment of medium-range missiles on German soil, a decision made in the Carter administration. Reagan's decision to manufacture neutron weapons is thought to have worsened Schmidt's plight.

An additional grievance is that Germany, Britain, Japan and other friendly nations have not increased defense spending as much as the administration thought they should to help confront a Soviet military buildup.

One senior U.S. official objected privately that the pressure was so intense on Japan it could have caused the Japanese government to fall.

During his campaign, President Reagan promised that U.S. alliances would be "cemented by unity of purpose and mutual respect." Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. early on stressed the need for consultations between the U.S. and its allies.

Task force established to prevent food-stamp fraud

WASHINGTON — A federal law enforcement task force is being set up at the direction of Attorney General William French Smith to coordinate and intensify efforts to prevent fraud in the multibillion-dollar food stamp program.

Smith disclosed formation of the task force during an interview on the ABC News television show "20-20" Thursday night, which alleged that much of the food stamp fraud, which is estimated at as much as $1.5 billion nationwide, involves the use of stolen or forged "authorizations to participate" slips sent to persons eligible to receive food stamps.

The report said that in many instances organized crime is involved in the theft of the authorization slips, a point corroborated Friday by John V. Graziano, inspector general at the Department of Agriculture.

Graziano's office apparently will continue to play the lead role in the federal anti-fraud effort, but will have additional muscle from other agencies at Attorney General Smith's direction. "Our cases will be addressed with more speed because we will have more people involved," Graziano said.

During the ABC interview, Smith said, "We now have very strong indications that fraud of the worst kind has permeated the food stamp program and we are going to use every effort as quickly as possible to identify those responsible, to prosecute them and put them behind bars."

In reality, Smith's disclosure was not news. Scores of indictments following investigations by the USDA inspector general's agents during the last two years have depicted a clear pattern of criminal abuse and fraud with food stamps.

The new angle, according to Graziano and other USDA officials, is that for the first time, an attorney general has given a specific order to concentrate federal law-enforcement power on food stamp abusers.

$2 million bond set

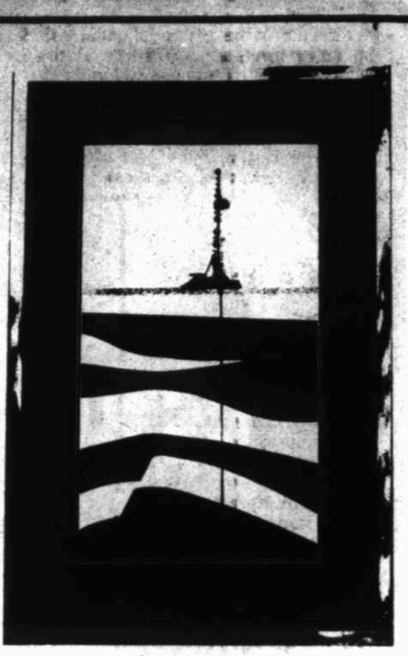

CHICAGO (AP) — Bond of $2 million was set Saturday by a federal magistrate for a California man accused of selling heroin to undercover federal agents.

The sale followed "hundreds of meetings with them all over the world," said Mort Edelstein, a spokesman for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

John Raya, 32, of Seal Beach, Calif., and Joseph Skaff, 31, of Chicago, were charged Friday with sale and possession of heroin with intent to deliver it after a DEA agent bought 2.2 pounds of Asian heroin for $150,000 in a motel parking lot, Edelstein said.

Both are alleged to be operatives of an international heroin ring that operated from Afghanistan, Iran and Pakistan, the spokesman said.

Skaff's bond was set at $10,000 and was later posted, Edelstein said.

Amtrak derails; two people hurt

HATFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Ten cars of the Amtrak Montrealer passenger train jumped the tracks here early Saturday, slightly injuring two passengers, and officials blamed a faulty switch.

Police said 328 passengers were aboard the train bound from Montreal to Washington when it derailed at 2:30 a.m. in this small western Massachusetts community about 20 miles north of Springfield.

Two people were treated for minor injuries and released at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in nearby Northampton. They were identified as Mildred Belsey, 72, of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Rolland Lemieux, 53, of Montreal.

The other passengers, who groped through the darkness into the 40-degree morning air, waited about three hours before they were transported by seven buses to Springfield to catch another train.

"Thankfully, in terms of injuries, it's going to be a relatively minor incident," said Jim Stiner, a spokesman for Amtrak in Washington.

Stiner said the train apparently was traveling at a slow rate of speed when it derailed.

William Furey, a supervisor for B&M Railroad, which manages the track, said a faulty switch at the intersection of Dwight and Bridge streets was tentativeley listed as the cause of the accident.

Cut in commuter trains

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of trains were to be eliminated on several commuter rail lines today under planned cutbacks by the financially troubled Regional Transportation Authority.

The cuts were scheduled for the Chicago & North Western, the Illinois Central Gulf, the Rock Island and the Burlington Northern railroads.

Most service cuts will take place on trains that run during evening, mid-day and weekend hours.

A week from today, riders on the Chicago Transit Authority will lose seven bus routes and service will be reduced on 56 others.

On Friday, the staff of the Chicago Transit Authority proposed a second round of cuts, including reductions on two rail lines and 24 bus routes.

MATERIALS SUPPLY AND PLANT MAINTENANCE PROFESSIONALS

Enjoy a more challenging career and get paid up to 40 percent more. Join Aramco in Saudi Arabia.

Aramco, the principal oil company helping Saudi Arabia develop its energy resources, is constantly expanding oil sources and developing new fields.

You can make a personal contribution to this effort—and be well rewarded for it.

We have immediate openings in jobs which offer opportunities for rapid professional advancement in the areas of materials supply and oil and gas project maintenance.

Materials Supply

The materials supply organization supports the multibillion-dollar construction program of Aramco. Its widely dispersed operating facilities provide purchasing, traffic, inventory management, and warehouse services worldwide.

If you have the qualifications, we have the following openings now.

System Designer Required: 8 years of diversified materials experience and a degree in Economics, Business Administration or Engineering.

Traffic Planner Required: 8 years' experience in traffic or transportation and a degree in Traffic Management, Economics or Business Administration.

Buyers Required: 5-7years' purchasing experience and a bachelor's degree.

Construction Material Specialist Required: 5 years' diversified materials experience (i.e., procurement, handling, inventory control, traffic forecasting or scheduling) and a bachelor's degree.

Project Material Specialist Required: 5 to 8 years' diversified materials experience and a degree in Engineering.

Project Purchasing Representatives Required: 8 years' experience in project purchasing, project engineering or construction.

Materials Supply Controlman Required: 3 to 5 years' experience working with a variety of materials.

Standardization Engineer Required: 8 years' experience in Engineering Design, Materials or Maintenance Engineering and a bachelor's in Engineering.

Materials Handling Engineer Required: 5 years' experience performing design and/or industrial engineering and a degree in Engineering, preferably mechanical or industrial.

Standardization Analyst Required: 10 to 12 years' experience as a skilled craftsman (electrical, mechanical or instrument), preferably with an oil-producing, refining or petrochemical company.

Plant Maintenance

We require experienced maintenance engineers and technical support specialists. You will help implement large-scale overhaul and repair programs for vast oil and gas processing facilities and the various support systems—for this reason the following openings require an oil and gas background.

Rotating Equipment Engineers—Required: 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Gas Turbine Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Contracts Engineers—Required: 5 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Vocational Analysts—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Long-Range Planners—Required: 10 to 15 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Materials Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Area Maintenance Engineers—Required: 7 to 10 years' experience and a bachelor's degree.

Repair Shop Personnel—This includes engineers, supervising technicians and machinists.

Required: Engineers need a degree and 5 to 10 years' experience. Technicians need a high school diploma or its equivalent and at least 5 years' experience.

Competitive compensation and benefits

Aramco pays a competitive base salary and a cost-of-living differential that equalizes living expenses between Saudi Arabia and the United States. In addition, Aramco pays an after-tax expatriate premium of 40 percent on the first $30,000 of base salary and a 20 percent premium on the next $20,000. And there is an outstanding combination of benefits: Long vacations, comfortable housing, abundant recreation and an excellent school system.

Saudi Arabia bonus and new voluntary "bachelor" status for married employees

Newly hired North Americans for Aramco in Saudi Arabia receive a special bonus. After taxes, it equals 10 percent of your annual base salary, up to $5,000.

All of the attractive compensation and benefits are available for married employees who may want to work overseas on a temporary "bachelor" status for the first year. This program includes three free repatriation trips by air during this one-year period, and the option to request family status during that same year.

Survival rate of cancer patients improved in 10 years

CHICAGO (AP) — The five-year survival rate for patients with the 10 most common forms of cancer showed a marked improvement between 1969 and 197 in the United States, an American College of Surgeons study says.

The study found an even more striking improvement in survival rates of less-common cancers such as leukemia and Hodgkin's disease.

"This is good news," said Dr. Charles Smart, director of the college's cancer department and clinical professor of surgery at the University of Utah. "I think it's encouraging."

Improved therapy and earlier diagnoses were the two main factors leading to the improved survival rates, he said.

"The results of the new study indicate we are making good strides against common cancers and excellent progress against the rarer ones," Smart said in the current Bulletin of the American College of Surgeons.

"Survival rates are more sensitive than mortality rates in gauging improvements," he said. "I think that what we are seeing is that better treatment means better survival."

Physicians generally consider a patient who is free of cancer for five years to be cured.

The study, conducted by the college's Commission on Cancer, analyzed treatment and results on 468,288 patients. Only patients whose cancers were diagnosed after 1972 were included in order to evaluate recent advances in treatment methods.

The survival rates were compared to rates found in a similar study by the National Cancer Institute for the period 1965 through 1969.

The changes in five-year survival rates were:

Breast cancer, 73 percent survival, up from 65 percent in 1969; lung cancer, 11 percent, up from 9 percent; colon cancer, 50 percent, up from 46; prostate cancer, 68 percent, up from 57; uterine cancer, 84 percent, up from 73.

Also, bladder cancer, 70 percent, up from 62; rectal cancer, 49 percent, up from 42; stomach cancer, 15 percent, up from 13; invasive cervic cancer, 65 percent, up from 57; pancreatic cancer, 3 percent, up from 2 percent.

In the less-common cancers, the change in survival rates was more dramatic, Smart noted, particularly among children.

The five-year survival rate for patients with acute leukemia rose from 3 percent in 1969 to 18 percent in 1979, and the survival rate for chronic leukemia patients rose from 32 percent to 40 percent.

The five-year survival rate for patients with Hodgkin's disease rose from 54 percent to 72 percent, the study showed.

House believed haunted

LEE, Mass. (AP) — Lui Passetto Jr. says he decided the demons had the upper hand after he was chased by a stuffed dog, his wife was clawed by a hump-backed apparition and furniture started flying all over the place.

The 29-year-old paper factory worker and his wife and two children, ages 11 and 14, have abandoned their two-story yellow frame house for the fourth time in six months.

This time they say they're not going back until an exorcist gets rid of its present spook tenants.

Passetto, reached Friday night at his parents home where he has taken refuge, described attacks on his 36-year-old wife, Dale, by a "demonic spirit" and told of decapitated religious statues, smashed furniture, levitating beds, and a butcher knife stuck ominously in a kitchen table.

Until last Friday, the Catholic family had lived for two years in the house Passetto's grandparents built 58 years ago in this quiet little town. Then, on March 9, Passetto says, the "white image" showed up.

It appeared to be a boy about 8 years old dressed in white, he said.

"We saw it many times," he said. "My wife and I."

So, on June 3, he called in a priest, a friend who performed a Mass in the house to exorcise the unwanted guest.

"After that, things started to happen in the house," Passetto said. "They got a lot worse."

That's when the "black image" came calling, a shadowy hooded figure Passetto describes as 5½-to-6-feet tall, hunched over, with what appears to be a big bubble on its back.

The apparition also has very big feet, Passetto says.

"Since that time, my wife's been thrown out of bed, thrown across the room," he said. "The bed was levitated two feet off the floor...It threw a thousand-pound bookcase with books and all across the room."

A china closet was knocked to the floor four times, smashing the dishes, he said.

A butcher's knife was stuck in the middle of the kitchen table, the refrigerator moved three feet, heads were cut off religious statues, a crucifix was hurled down a staircase and Passetto was conked on the head by a levitating coffee pot.

"My wife's been clawed on the face many times, on the back, on the breast," he said.

"My daughter had a big stuffed dog that chased both my wife and I through my daughter's bedroom."

About a month ago, psychic researchers Edward and Lorraine Warren of Monroe, Conn., began investigating the goings-on at the Passetto home. They had worked on the case of a supposedly haunted house on New York's Long Island, a case that became the subject of the late Jay Anson's best seller, the "The Amityville Horror."

Warren said "all hell broke loose" at the Passetto house last Tuesday when he and his wife confronted the "spirit" with holy water, high church incense and a relic of a saint.

"The room became icy cold, and luminescent lights, the size of a half dollar, took on a ghostly form near the stairs and the room became colder," Warren said.

Layoff of Philadelphia teachers upheld

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The layoffs of 3,500 city teachers have been upheld in Common Pleas Court.

In a 33-page ruling Friday, Judge Harry A. Takiff dismissed a suit filed by the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers that alleged the layoffs constituted a breach of the teachers' contract. He ruled that the school board was within its rights when it approved the layoffs.

The ruling was a victory for Mayor William Green, who has said teachers must be willing to negotiate contract changes to reduce the school system's deficit. He said concessions should include layoffs and foregoing of a promised 10 percent wage hike this year.

The city's 13,000 teachers have threatened to strike Tuesday, two days before classes resume, if the dispute is not settled.

Weapons seized at Seattle airport

SEATTLE (AP) — Eleven boxes containing enough weapons to "equip a small army" were seized from a plane by police at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, authorities said.

The weapons — including grenades, ammunition, military-type semi-automatic weapons and parts to convert them to automatic firearms — were discovered Friday after a gun barrel was spotted by baggage handlers unloading a Northwest Airlines flight from Atlanta.

Port police opened the boxes, repackaged them and waited. A Tacoma man arrived to claim the boxes and was taken into custody, then released, police said.

Port police and federal authorities are investigating the incident.

Innocent pleas to vandalism charges

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Four men have pleaded innocent to charges stemming from vandalism to Newark's water supply system that cost the city millions of dollars.

Entering pleas Friday to charges of criminal mischief and conspiracy were John Stringer, 19, James Conn, 18, Stephen Black, 18, and Christopher Legiec, 19, all of Pequannock. Trial was set for Nov. 2

The four were arrested July 10, three days after a safety air valve at the Pompton Plains reservoir was vandalized. Forty million gallons of water poured out of the reservoir, causing extensive damage.

The defendants each face a maximum of five years in prison and a fine of $7,500 if convicted of the third-degree criminal charges.

Guardian Angels charged with theft

RICHMOND, R.I. (AP) — Three members of the Rhode Island Guardian Angels have been charged with a New York City car theft, police said.

The men, all from Providence, were wearing the group's uniform of red berets and black T-shirts when they were arrested Friday following a chase on Interstate 95 in southern Rhode Island.

The men belong to a 45-member Providence street patrol group, authorities said. But Guardian Angels founder Curtis Sliwa of New York said the Rhode Island group was never authorized as a chapter of his crime-fighting organization and had no right to use the name.

Saulio A. Reyes, 24, and Polivio Vega, 23, were charged with conspiracy to steal a car. Felipe A. Estrado, 18, was charged with receiving stolen goods worth more than $500.

Five people die in two-car crash

STURGEON BAY, Wis. (AP) — Five people died Saturday in a two-car crash on Wisconsin's rural Door County peninsula, authorities said.

Julie Severin, 22, of Sturgeon Bay, was behind the wheel of one car and four men were riding in the other car when the vehicles collided on a county road eight miles south of Sturgeon Bay about 1 a.m., Door County sheriff's officers said.

In addition to Ms. Severin, authorities identified the victims as Joseph Wierer, 23, Gerald Tidler, 28, Patrick Kuehl, 25, and Dale Schlies, 30, all of Kewaunee.

National Guard gun championships

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — National Guard members from Arkansas, Mississippi and Vermont have won in the annual rifle, pistol and machine-gun championships at Camp Robinson.

Staff Sgt. Fred Little of Richmond, Vt., won the individual pistol championship, scoring 3,477 points out of a possible 3,600. He defeated Joe Pascarella, a member of the Texas National Guard. Pascarella has won the national title the past six years.

Sgt. Jerry Different of Mendenhall, Miss., won the national military championship, scoring 1,258 points out of a possible 1,400 with an M-14 rifle.

The Arkansas National Guard service pistol team edged out Vermont and Connecticut teams with a score of 1,092 out of a possible 1,200. The figure included 26 bullseyes.

Vermont had 1,091 and Connecticut 1,090.

Rockwell, NASA blamed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Rockwell International and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are to blame for the deaths last spring of two space shuttle workers, federal investigators say.

The two Rockwell technicians were asphyxiated when they entered a nitrogen-filled compartment of the space shuttle Colombia during a practice countdown for the shuttle's maiden flight.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration fined Rockwell $420 for failing to "prevent employees from entering the aft access compartment...during a gaseous nitrogen purge."

NASA was cited for opening Pad 39A "for normal work while a purge was being conducted." NASA wasn't fined because it is a branch of the federal government, said William Demery, Tampa OSHA director.

Demery said citations from OHSA were delivered to Rockwell and NASA on July 10, but weren't made public until Friday.

Nancy Cole, whose husband Forrest, of Merritt Island, was one of those killed, expressed dismay when told of the fine on Friday.

"How much? You've got to be kidding," she asked. Breaking into tears, she said: "Money's not going to replace anything, though."

OSHA originally recommended a $700 penalty against Rockwell, but reduced it to $420, Demery said.

"The penalty is not important. Rockwell rewrote its procedures and they are excellent at this stage. We feel they took immediate steps to prevent an accident of this type from happening again."

Also killed was John Bjornstad of Titusville. He and Cole were among a team of workers given an erroneous "all clear" signal to enter the shuttle compartment while nitrogen circulated in the spaceship.

Both widows filed damage suits against NASA last June. Orlando attorney Karl O. Koepke, representing Barbara Bjornstad, said the OSHA findings will support the women's suits.

"When any official group like OSHA comes out finding NASA and Rockwell with failure to follow safety guidelines, yes, it will help," he said.

Kimball underwent surgery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball underwent successful surgery Saturday to remove fluid and scar tissue from under his skull, a church spokesman said.

Kimball, 86, will remain hospitalized for two weeks following the operation to remove an epidural hematoma, said Jerry Cahill, a spokesman for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The surgery was the third for Kimball this year.

Cahill said Kimball was conscious and in good spirits as he was wheeled from the operating room at LDS Hospital.

The operation took about 2½ hours, but the church leader was in the operating and recovery room for about 3½ hours. He will remain in the intensive care unit for up to 72 hours, Cahill said.

"Dr. Bruce F. Sorensen performed the surgery. He said he found an accumulation of blood in scar tissue in a minimal residual membrane," Cahill said.

Hospital spokesman Don LeFevre said Kimball was admitted Friday to LDS Hospital after experiencing several days of weakness.

In 1979, Kimball underwent two similar operations for removal of subdural hematomas.

Brady returns home

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady went home Saturday for the first time since he was gravely wounded during the attempted assassination of President Reagan more than five months ago.

Several friends and neighbors gathered at Brady's home in the suburb of Arlington, Va., to welcome him during his brief furlough from the hospital. A banner stretched over the front door said, "Welcome Home, Bear."

"Bear" is the nickname given the portly press secretary by his wife Sarah and adopted by Brady himself and virtually all his friends and colleagues. Even the president refers to him as "the Bear."

Cards placed on the front lawn by his neighbors spelled out, "Jim Brady lives here."

Brady's deputy, Larry Speakes, said the press secretary was released from George Washington University Hospital to spend the day with his wife and 2-year-old son, Scott, before returning to the hospital Saturday night.

Brady, who has undergone four operations since he was shot in head March 30, left the hospital shortly before noon, riding in a wheelchair and wearing an orange cap. He waved and gave an optimistic "thumbs-up" to passersby before heading for home in a van with a friend.

"He seemed to be in pretty good spirits," said Doug Durcanin, an American University student who watched Brady's departure. He said there was little fanfare as Brady left.

"I gave him a 'thumbs-up' sign, you know, and he gave me one back. He seemed real optimistic," Durcanin said.

Saturday's trip was Brady's first excursion outside the hospital since his most recent surgery Aug. 20, when doctors patched a persistent leak of spinal fluid that had complicated his recovery for several weeks.

Previously, Brady left the hospita to go to a French-Vietnamese restaurant with his wife to celebrate their eighth wedding anniversary, and he later spent an evening at the home of friends. He also went to the White House during the capital's Fourth of July celebration.

DOE warned to cut nuclear fuels program

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Department of Energy will have to cut back its nuclear fuels program severely if its overseas sales continue to drop, a Tennessee Valley Authority report warns.

The report predicts the department will have to halt construction of a new $6 billion plant or cut production at its three plants in Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio.

The new plant, also in Portsmouth, is scheduled for partial operation in 1988 and features technology that would use only 4 percent of the electricity burned at the other plants.

Wayne Range, an Energy Department spokesman in Oak Ridge, declined to comment on the TVA report, which was made public last week.

TVA in July laid off 6,300 workers in Tennessee and Mississippi, stopped construction of one nuclear reactor and postponed the operating dates of three other reactors.

The report predicted a continuing decline in the sales of nuclear fuels overseas.

"Under present circumstances," the report said, "it appears that DOE is not likely to increase its foreign sales through the mid-1990s and is more likely to lose sales in this period as DOE customers bring their commitments in line with their needs."

Sales to foreign nations, the report said, account for 40 percent of the demand for services at the Energy Department.

The United States was the sole source of uranium enrichment services outside the Soviet Union until the mid-1970s when foreign nations entered the field.

The Energy Department's role, the report said, also suffered under a policy of then-President Jimmy Carter to demand foreign customers to follow American guidelines for using enriched uranium only for peaceful means.

Now, the report noted, uranium enrichment services are available in Holland and France and have been researched in South Africa, South America and the Middle East.

The agency has contracts through the year 2000 to enrich uranium for several nations, the report said, adding many of the nations "have contract commitments in excess of their needs."

ATT may expand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision by a federal judge may speed the restructuring of the U.S. communications industry by opening new paths of expansion for the giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Vincent P. Biunno of New Jersey removes a bar to AT&T's plans to follow guidelines approved by the Federal Communications Commission and offer "enhanced services" starting next March 1.

By enhanced services, the FCC refers to the sale of switchboards, phones, other advanced equipment and the provision of data processing and information services via telephone lines, without regulating rates.

The ruling's implications are complicated.

There has been speculation that the FCC plan for introducing competition in the telephone industry, outlined last year in what is known as the Computer 2 decision, would be tied up in the courts so long Congress would have to set the guidelines.

That may yet happen. But Biunno's Friday ruling, coupled with the fact that no court has yet blocked the Computer 2 decision, means AT&T may enter the new fields before Congress acts.

"This was probably the major stumbling block to Computer 2 becoming effective," said Thomas J. Casey, a private attorney who was deputy chief of the FCC's common carrier bureau when the decision was adopted. "With this out of the way, I think it takes pressure off Congress. And AT&T will also lose some of its impetus for compromising on the Hill to get some type of deregulation."

In his ruling, Biunno said the FCC hadn't exceeded the bounds of a 1956 consent decree when it ruled in Computer 2 that AT&T could enter new communication markets where it would be regulated by competition and not directly by the FCC.

The Justice Department argued that the 1956 decree, which it signed with AT&T to settle an antitrust suit, barred AT&T from entering any unregulated market.

Biunno accepted the FCC's conclusion in Computer 2 that technological advances had so blurred the definition of "communications" that the 1956 decree could not be used to limit FCC flexibility.

The major premise underlying Computer 2 is that the dividing line between communications — which are regulated — and computer activities like data processing — which aren't — can no longer be precisely drawn.

The FCC said only that basic phone service should be regulated and said it would completely deregulate terminal equipment and seek to spur long-distance competition for AT&T. It also said AT&T could join its competitors and sell terminal equipment and enhanced services without regulation, as long as it established a new, separate subsidiary to do so.

The theory behind the latter restriction was that revenues from basic service should not be used by AT&T to finance its entry into competitive arenas.

Congress, meanwhile, is still grappling with the issue. There are major differences between Computer 2 and the latest legislative version, which has passed the Senate Commerce Committee

Prison guards' protest spread

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — As a walkout by guards spread to the state's top-security prison on Saturday, a dozen guards returned to work at the prison where the protest of working conditions began, officials said.

State troopers patrolled the maximum-security Tennessee State Prison in Nashville after about 36 of the 65 guards scheduled to work Saturday morning stayed off the job, corrections officials said. Half of the 70 guards scheduled for afternoon shifts reported for duty.

"Everything is normal. It's just like a regular day," said James Vandever, associate warden for security.

About a dozen guards abandoned their walkout Saturday at the medium-security Turney Center prison in Only, where the protest began Friday. Twenty guards stayed off the job at the prison, which has 650 inmates.

When the protest began, Corrections Commissioner Harold Bradley told Turney Center guards they would be fired if they remained off the job for three days.

Officials said the guards returned to work after they were told their "absent without leave" days would be counted as vacation time or annual leave if they reported as scheduled Saturday.

The walkout was provoked by the death of a Turney Center guard who was stabbed last week by an inmate. The guards want authority to carry blackjacks, better security procedures and hazardous duty pay.

"I value my life more than I do going behind the walls," said Michael Banines, one of the striking guards. "I fear for my life every day. You just have to be careful and watch out for yourself."

Fourteen state troopers on 12-hour shifts manned the towers at the Nashville prison. Nonstriking guards worked overtime inside the walls along with correction department personnel.

Warden Jim Rose said all posts were manned and officials said it was quiet inside the prison, where one of the 2,600 inmates is James Earl Ray, the assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Turney Center Warden Seth Garrington said troopers and corrections personnel were supplementing the guard detail. On Friday night, 10 troopers manned towers and 32 officials took inside guard duty.

Visiting day proceeded as scheduled Saturday at both institutions.

About 40 protesting guards gathered peacefully in front of the Nashville prison. A few had driven an hour from rural Turney Center.

Prison officials said Turney Center guard Ronald W. Moore, 21, of Linden, died of stab wounds inflicted by an inmate wielding a homemade knife. Like all guards, Moore was armed only with a can of Mace, a paralyzing chemical.

South Africa walks out of U.N.

UNITED NATIONS — The General Assembly voted 113 to 24 Friday to bar South Africa from speaking at the beginning of a special session on Namibia. The United States and its Western allies voted against the move.

After the vote, South African Ambassador Jacobus A. Eksteen walked out of the hall and in a news conference denounced the majority action. Referring to the efforts of the world body to negotiate the independence of Namibia, a former German colony governed by South Africa since World War I, Eksteen said:

"The reality of the situation is that nothing can be achieved with regard to South-West Africa-Namibia without South Africa's consent and participation. Action such as that taken today is surely going to aggravate matters and will make it even more difficult to find an equitable solution."

Eksteen said he was leaving for Pretoria immediately to report to his government both on the Assembly vote and on the Security Council meeting Monday in which only a U.S. veto blocked a condemnation of South Africa for its military expedition into Angola. The South Africans said they were attacking sanctuaries of guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization, a Namibian nationalist group.

Asked how Friday's events at the General Assembly will affect the efforts of the United States and the four other Western nations that have sought since 1977 to negotiate the independence ofNamibia, Eksteen observed that South Africa has had responsibility for the territory for 60 years.

He said he would not say it will take that much longer to resolve the problem, but added, "If we carry on with the situation as we had it this morning, it isn't going far."

Delegates at the special session were supposed to begin debate Thursday, but the appearance of the South African delegation — originally ejected from the General Assembly in 1974 on the grounds that South Africa's white government does not represent the country's black majority — brought a demand by Algeria for adjournment. Assembly President Rudiger von Wechmar of West Germany closed the session and the Assembly Credentials Committee then voted 6 to 1, with the United States alone opposing, to reject the credentials of South Africa.

When Von Wechmar reconvened the 154-member body Friday morning and called for the credentials report, Eksteen was at the usually vacant seat reserved for his delegation and made a point of order. Von Wechmar cited Rule 29 of the Assembly rules which he said required him to give the floor to Eksteen.

As the South African began to speak, however, Von Wechmar recognized Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Bedjaoui, current leader of the African group, who also called for a point of order. Bedjaoui was given the floor and launched an attack on South Africa which Von Wechmar interpreted as a challenge to his ruling that South Africa could speak. As a challenge, he said, the issue demanded an immediate vote, which brought a heavy majority against his ruling.

Immediately afterward, British Ambassador Sir Anthony Parsons, speaking for the 10-nation European Community, condemned the ejection of the South Africans.

Deputy U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Adelman, substituting for Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, who is sick, protested that the original expulsion of South Africa violated the U.N. Charter. Only the Security Council, he said, can legally expel a member state.

"The passing of time has not given the assembly a better legal basis for doing in 1981 what it did improperly in 1974," Adelman said. "No one has shown that South Africa's credentials fail to meet the requirements of the rules."

Vatican denies conspiracy reports

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican on Saturday denied reports that it suspects the Soviet secret police, the KGB, was involved in the shooting of Pope John Paul II.

"The Holy See has never made any declarations or advanced any hypotheses regarding any group or country as possible culprits in the attack," the Rev. Pierfranco Pastore, a Vatican spokesman, said in a statement.

Other Vatican officials also rejected as "fantastic," "absurd" and "in poor taste" a British television report that the Vatican and Italian security services believe the Soviet KGB encouraged the assassination attempt because of the Polish-born pontiff's support for Poland's independent labor movement.

The report was broadcast Thursday on the "TV Eye" program on Thames Television Ltd.

At least two British newspapers, including the London Times, also said Western intelligence experts believe there are "reasonable grounds" for suspecting KGB involvement in the shooting in St. Peter"s Square May 13.

Pastore and a top Vatican prelate said the Holy See has no intelligence apparatus or anyone assigned to intelligence work.

Italian police have been unable to determine where Mehmet Ali Agca, a Turkish terrorist convicted of shooting the pope on May 13 in St. Peter's Square, got his gun and false passport.

The police believe, however, he had to have help from individuals or groups.

South Africa creating a buffer zone

LUANDA, Angola — South Africa apparently is trying to create a rebel-controlled buffer zone in southern Angola to be able to maintain a government of its liking in neighboring Namibia.

According to a number of Western diplomats, that seems to be the underlying reason for the deep penetration into Angola by South African troops last week. It is certainly the view of the Angolan government.

Despite its effort to normalize relations with the United States, Angola increasingly is blaming Washington for Pretoria's military actions. Meeting after Monday's U.S. veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning South Africa for its invasion, the Angolan Cabinet said it "condemns energetically the shameful connivance of the Reagan administration" with South Africa.

Even before the invasion, Luis de Almeida, a senior Angolan diplomat, said in an interview: "The United States is quietly encouraging the South Africans to attack to force Angolan concessions. The South Africans have changed completely since the Reagan administration — they are much more arrogant."

South Africa says its troops have almost completed their withdrawal from Angola, but Luanda says the invaders still control six towns up to 100 miles inside the country.

Pretoria's forces have regularly crossed into southern Angola for years, ostensibly to chase guerrillas of the Southwest Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), which is fighting for independence for South African-controlled Namibia (Southwest Africa).

However, in the last year or so the pattern of some of the attacks has changed. The South African troops disrupt communications, prevent local food distribution, kill or drive away cattle and poison wells to impoverish the area, government officials have told Western diplomats. The purpose, they say, is to create discontent with the Luanda government and help gain control of the area for a Pretoria-backed Angolan guerrilla group, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

Skies are fair game for spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — So far this year, U.S. jets have intercepted 134 Soviet military aircraft off Greenland, Iceland, Alaska and the continental United States. It's hardly the stuff of headlines.

There has been no gunfire. No missiles launched. No angry rhetoric.

It is a fact of international life: The skies are fair game for superpower snooping, and international etiquette provides an invisible right to tease national airspace without fear of being blasted from the skies.

Between unfriendly nations, of course, the etiquette sometimes crumbles.

The United States was testing Libya's liberal interpretation of its boundaries on Aug. 19 when a Libyan pilot began a fatal dogfight with U.S. Navy jets.

A week later, the United States charged North Korea with firing a missile at a high-flying U.S. reconnaisance jet. The Koreans denied the attack and drew an angry protest but no return fire.

Planes have been the backbone of U.S. reconnaissance since World War II, but spy satellites and other advanced equipment are eliminating the need to fly over hostile territory — and reducing the risks.

The successes, like most of the failures, remain cloaked in secrecy, but at least one major accomplishment is well-known: the U.S. Tactical Air Command's photographic evidence in 1962 that the Russians were placing missiles in Cuba.

Aerial rivalry has set off bitter diplomatic fights with the Soviets, but already there are fewer because of the so-called "Chicken of the Sea" agreement in 1972 and progress in modern detection methods that make close-in snooping less needed.

Still, U.S. jets last year intercepted 174 Soviet military aircraft and this year the rate of intercepts is slightly higher. An intercept is a mid-air buzzing that reminds an inquiring nation its flights are getting too close for comfort — and risking an incident.

In two years of 300-plus intercepts, no incidents have occurred.

A risk remains, however, that reconnaissance will touch off a shooting war.

Reagan to offer Begin credit in exchange for silence

BY JOHN P. WALLACH
Foreign Affairs Editor
Hearst Feature Service

Washington -- President Reagan will politely--but firmly--explain to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin this week that an extra $600 million offered Israel in military credits last spring may be jeopardized if the AWACs spy plane package Reagan wants to sell Saudi Arabia is vetoed by Congress.

The AWACs sale, which will be presented to Congress on Wednesday (the same day Begin is officially received at the White House), "is a vital element of our security relationships in the (Persian) Gulf and in Southwest Asia and we would hope to get a sympathetic hearing," a senior U.S. official said.

The high-ranking State Department policymaker added that "what the (Israeli) Prime Minister does or does not do in public is something for him to decide" but the clear Reagan hope is that Begin will mute his public opposition to the AWACs sale in exchange for new commitments of American military aid.

"Some months ago we had some preliminary discussions with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir on some measures which we might take which could help their budgetary problems as well as diminish their concerns on the impact of the AWACs," the official said.

The Reagan administration is prepared to sell Israel an additional squadron of F-15 jetfighters and offer the Jewish nation "time" on an American spy satellite monitoring troop deployments in the Middle East provided Israel mutes its propaganda fight against the AWACs.

In fact, Israel in March was offered an additional $300 million in arms aid for 1983 and for 1984 over and beyond the $2.2 billion the Jewish nation now annually receives from the United States. The official, however, now is saying that $600 million always was dependent on completion of the Saudi sale.

That, from the Israeli viewpoint, involves what could be termed "Indian-giving." Israel thought it had won the $600 million in extra credits when it muted its opposition to the Reagan sale of enhancement weapons for the F-15s sold Saudi Arabia last year.

Now Israel is being told nothing doing -- you only get the $600 million if you signal the American Jewish community and its allies in Congress to call off the campaign against the AWACs.

The Israeli government has attacked the proposed sale of the AWACs together with range-extending fuel tanks and advanced bomb racks and missiles for Saudi F-15s as a threat to Israel's security. But Begin has hinted that he will soft-pedal the issue in his first meetings with the Reagan team.

Under a 1974 law, majorities of both houses of Congress must vote against an arms transfer, such as the AWACs sale, in order to block it. Administration officials concede that the House probably will defeat the sale but expect the Senate battle to be very close.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R.-Ore., an opponent of the Saudi package, said Friday he thought 44 or 45 of the 100 Senators were firm in opposition, that 37 or 38 would support the administration, and the rest were "a toss up." Fifty-one Senators would have to oppose the sale in order to defeat it.

"I am told the president will be putting on a full court press," Packwood said. "He'll be inviting members to Camp David or for cocktails at the White House (and asking) is there anything you need in your state?" Those tactics will be effective in light of Reagan's enhanced prestige on Capital Hill.

Meanwhile, an administration spokesman made clear broader security concerns would be raised with the Israeli leader but that Reagan was not eager at this juncture to take up Begin's offer of logistic facilities in Israel for U.S. troops.

Begin told newsmen before departing for the United States that Israel can help forge the "strategic anti-communist consensus" in the Middle East by making available areas for stockpiling U.S. weapons.

Mitterand slipping in polls

PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand's rating as a leader has slipped nine points in the last month, largely because of his losing battle against unemployment and inflation, according to a poll published Saturday in the conservative newspaper Le Figaro.

The Socialist president was viewed as an effective leader by 62 percent of those polled, down from 71 percent the previous month. The number who thought Mitterrand was a poor leader increased from 24 percent to 32 percent.

The survey was taken by Sofres, a respected French polling agency, of 1,000 people between Aug. 21-27, one month after a similiar poll was conducted for Le Figaro.

The poll showed that 53 percent of those surveyed thought unemployment was the biggest problem facing France while inflation was ranked second by 28 percent.

Since Mitterrand's election May 10, the number of unemployed among France's 55 million people increased from 1.6 million to 1.8 million and inflation rose by 1 percent to a 13.5 percent rate.

Mitterrand made unemployment a prime campaign issue in his battle to defeat Valery Giscard d'Estaing, and has proposed creating some 200,000 civil service jobs.

The public, however, has lost confidence in Mitterrand's ability to deal with unemployment and inflation. The poll indicated 66 percent of the respondents thought the government's unemployment program would be

Fall of Flores Tapia makes corruption an issue in Mexico

The Los Angeles Times

SALTILLO, Mexico — In Mexico, where governors rule like medieval barons, the fall of Gov. Oscar Flores Tapia of Coahuila is making corruption a fashionable political issue.

The 68-year-old politician, a former senator and friend of ex-President Luis Echeverria, resigned from office early in August after being accused of amassing a fortune of $33 million to $80 million during almost six years as governor.

Ever since the 16th century, when Hernan Cortes ruled, getting rich in public office has been a way of life in former Spanish colonies. But Flores Tapia apparently went too far.

"His crime was that he was too greedy and too ostentatious," said Armando Castilla, a powerful Saltillo newspaper publisher whose accusations led to the governor's downfall.

The unprecedented spectacle of an important Mexican politician coming to ruin because of a newspaper investigation has led some to believe that Mexico is finally taking corruption seriously.

But many more remain skeptical.

"The first time a corrupt governor was routed from office, I thought, aha! This time they are really cracking down," said a European who has lived in Mexico through several administrations.

"Then things went back to normal. The Mordida (bribe) will never disappear. So I don't pay much attention to things like this Flores Tapia scandal. It won't make much difference."

But even if Flores Tapia is never prosecuted — the question has not been settled — the case illuminates the practice of corruption in Mexico.

A city of about 400,000 people, Saltillo is the capital of the vast state of Coahuila, an arid expanse of mountains and deserts bordering Texas. It is one of the poorest states of Mexico.

Flores Tapia became governor on Dec. 1, 1975. Before the month was out, he had created an organization called the State Housing Institute, the ostensible purpose of which was to provide low-cost housing to the many poor of Coahuila.

"But in reality, what he was doing was obtaining low-cost public loans to build expensive houses, which he then resold to bureaucrats, friends, politicians, anyone he liked," Castilla charged.

Among those who reportedly became owners of property that had been bought by the state agency were a host of state officials and prominent businessmen, including the president of the state Chamber of Commerce.

Another Flores Tapia maneuver, according to charges compiled by the Mexican attorney general, involved making trips, 107 of them over five years, on a state-chartered jet to the United States and back to Mexico without going through customs. In a country with a highly restrictive import policy, contraband is sold at a premium and such trips are potentially lucrative.

On one occasion, in May 1979, Flores Tapia was temporarily detained for bringing a large quantity of clothing dyes into the country without an import peermit. The dyes presumably were to be used at his clothing factory in Coahuila, and he was allowed to keep them.

All of this, according to Castilla, who publishes the five most influential newspapers in Coahuila, was creating a scandal across the state.

"His family owned 60 to 70 cars. They all owned luxurious houses, and Flores Tapia himself owned several country homes," Castilla charged.

"The point is that he was stealing too much. People were getting very offended."

According to other sources in Saltillo, Castilla was offended because he and Flores Tapia had once been friends, but came to a falling out over a business deal involving one of the publisher's brothers. In any case, Castilla began to publish a series of articles accusing Flores Tapia of looting the public treasury.

According to Castilla, Flores Tapia came to control a fortune the publisher estimated at $80 million by placing the holdings in the names of friends or relative . A smaller estimate of $33 million was used by the attorney general.

The newspaper articles did little to diminish Flores Tapia's power. But Castilla went a step further by taking advantage of a little-used law enacted a year ago by the administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo.

The law declares that any public official who becomes "unexplainably rich" while in office can be called to account for his sudden wealth by any citizen.

"No one had ever taken advantage of this law before," Castilla boasted.

The publisher traveled to Mexico City May 6 to file his charges at the attorney general's office. For three months, the case languished while Flores Tapia's friends in the Congress maneuvered to have it buried.

On Aug. 6, apparently on a signal from Lopez Portillo, the Congress decided to call Flores Tapia before a special committee to investigate his new found wealth.

It was the first time that an office-holder of gubernatorial stature and a member of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) had been called to account for his riches.

On Aug. 10, Flores Tapia resigned, thus halting the congressional inquiry and throwing his case into the run-of-the-mill criminal justice system from which it may never emerge.

"The thing to keep in mind is that this is the first time that a governor has ever fallen because of pressure from below," Castilla said.

In the past, he said, politicians have been forced to resign because of pressure from above. "This time, a newspaper brought the villain down," Castilla said.

Armando Ayala, the editor of a monthly magazine called Contenido, who has long decried corruption, believes people are at long last beginning to listen.

Situated in the middle of a stress environment are air traffic controllers who were part of the bargaining unit, but chose not to participate in the illegal strike at Midland Regional Airport. The argument continues over whether or not that job is more stressful than others, and controllers who went on strike were demanding more money to compensate for the stress.

Stress: Do controllers get more than share?

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Stress: "Forcibly exerted influence; pressure. Stress may be either physical or phychologic, or both. Just as a bridge is structurally capable of adjusting to certain physical stresses, the human body and mind are normally able to adapt to the stresses of new situations. However, this ability has definite limits beyond which continued stress may cause a breakdown, although this limit varies from person to person." (Encyclopedia and Dictionary of Medicine, Nursing and Allied Health)

The name of the game is "stress."

While many occupations, such as law enforcement, firefighting and even journalism expose workers to huge doses of stress, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers' Organization contends its stress factor is debilitating and the pressures cause job burn out at an early age.

The object: To reach normal retirement age — without a medical disability.

The equipment: One air traffic control tower, PATCO union members, sophisticated radar equipment and several aircraft requesting take-offs and landings at the same time.

"Controllers like to be in charge. When I work a (trouble) situation out, I might get kind of scared, but at the same time I get a personal high out of it.... But, then again the same situation that may give me personal satisfaction might also scare the hell out of me — that's stress."

The rules: Each player must recognize his limit of stress.

The game is not only one of skill and knowledge, but also of individual tolerance to different stressful situations.

The onset of the PATCO nationwide walkout on Aug. 3, deemed illegal by President Reagan, brought public attention to the air traffic controllers.

Because the control towers were left short-handed, many commercial airline passengers felt the inconvenience of the reduction and cancellation of flights. Regardless, some of these people nationwide and locally were not aware of the air traffic controller's duties.

"ALL I KNOW is that I can't get my kids back to their father. Who the hell is PATCO, anyway," one distraught woman at Midland Regional Airport said shortly after the strike began.

This woman was obviously feeling stress, but as soon as her needs were accommodated, theoretically the stress would subside.

Similarly, in stressful occupations, once a task is completed, pressures are alleviated. But, PATCO members claim the predominance of stress in their jobs causes them to be victims of jumbled nerves, hypertension and ulcers which lead these controllers to an early burn out.

According to Mark Weaver, public affairs officer at the Federal Aviation Administration's Mike Monroney Aeronautical Center in Oklahoma City, potential air traffic controllers are tested in simulated laboratory environments to withstand the alleged pressures.

"The average wash-out rate (at the controller school) is 25 percent," Weaver said. "Some of them just don't make it, like in any other testing situation."

Contrary to PATCO's estimate that 89 percent of the controllers do not reach retirement age because of the burn-out syndrome, Weaver said FAA and other outside studies have found that although the job is "somewhat stressful, it is no more so than the average job."

HOWEVER, WEAVER added that in high density areas there is a "certain amount of high blood pressure, but that is found in any job."

Accordingly, Midland FAA control tower chief Bill Hill, a former controller and instructor, said the laboratory environment gives an "early look-see at the individual's ability to cope" with the job consequences.

Hill said air traffic control school has not changed much since he was an instructor in 1968-69. Students work simulated aircraft with other students and instructors acting as pilots. The class situations "become increasingly complex and each student is graded on individual performance." He added that simulations range from simple traffic procedures to actually seeing what controllers term an "aluminum shower," or aircraft collision.

"And that's the only place for them (collisions)," Hill emphasized.

He explained air traffic controllers must recognize whether they are suited for this kind of career. Some who do not make it will "throw in the towel" and others "must be removed."

"The live traffic environment makes the difference," Hill said. "Some people literally eat it up. I'd like to have a houseful of those — it is a joy to see these people come through (the tower)."

Controllers, as a group, have common characteristics, according to an FAA flight surgeon who asked not to be identified.

"They are very intelligent people as a class, but they are also obsessive and compulsive people. People who like the challenge of complicated things are drawn to this type of occupation," he said.

COMPLICATIONS OF an air traffic controller's job were outlined in an Aug. 17, 1981, article in Newsweek:

"The duties — and pressures — vary. At smaller airports controllers may handle only a few flights per hour tracked by their own eyes — "visual flight rules," in FAA parlance. At larger facilities they may work in vast windowless rooms, juggling 30 aircraft at a time, each appearing only as blips and a computer-generated set of numbers on radar scopes. The job can demand split-second timing and constant concentration."

And the name of the game is "stress."

But, according to Randall R. Owen, staff psychologist at the Permian Basin Community Center for Mental Health and Mental Retardation, the stress is not unique to only the air traffic controller.

"Each individual will have a different threshold for tolerating stress," Owen said. "An important factor for anybody is recognizing when they're under stress, and at what point that stress is debilitating."

Owen made a comparison to "the guy downtown spending $1 million for drilling a well" with an air traffic controller.

Despite the fact that the situation and pressures are different, he concluded that although the stress may "not involve a life or death situation, the oil man may experience constant pressure to

The lighter side of police work: 'But officer...'

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Police work isn't all blood, sweat and fear. The job has its lighter moments — like the time two officers put the fear of God in a perennial inebriate.

The gentleman in question had a habit of making nightly trips to check the time on the clock at a large financial institution. One evening, however, two officers were parked in a nearby alley. Seeing the man coming, one of them got on the public address system of the squad car and said: "Jiggs? Oh, Jiggs?"

The man stopped abruptly, a surprised look on his face. Again the ominous voice boomed out in the darkness: "Jiggs? I'm talking to you, Jiggs."

"Who is that?" came the slurred reply.

"Jiggs, this is God."

With that, Jiggs turned and hurriedly stumbled off. He wasn't seen after dark again for the better part of a year.

IN THE MOOD for a little humorous inservice training one night, two officers attached a string to a couple of 8-foot fluorescent light tubes they had found earlier. They placed the tubes on the window ledge of a business establishment and tied the string to a pole across the alley.

They then got on the radio and called a particular rookie — one who had a healthy respect for danger — and told him they thought they had a burglar trapped in the building. Would he drive through the alley and cover the rear?

The string had been strung antenna-high, and when the tubes crashed to the ground, they exploded like gunshots. The rookie departed, leaving twin rooster tails of dust and gravel.

Humor is a recognized way of relieving tension. Maybe that's why police can't help but smile when they recall some of the more amusing incidents they've encountered on the streets.

There was the time officers responded to a disturbance call at a residence and found a Mexican male holding a towel to his bloody neck.

Asked what happened, the man replied, "He choot me." Asked what he'd been shot with, the man replied: "He choot me with a sweetchblade."

The victim declined to press charges, saying he and his family would take care of the "chooter" themselves.

THEN THERE WAS the night an officer stopped a tipsy driver who wouldn't emerge from his car. After being told to get out or risk going to jail, the man begrudingly complied.

It was then that the reason for his reluctance became apparent: He was attired in a suit coat, tie and snap brim hat, but he wasn't wearing any trousers. It seems he'd been asleep and forgot to put on his pants when he left the house.

There's the story of the time police approached a parked car, the sole occupant of which was a man in the back seat and who'd had too much to drink.

Asked if anything was wrong, he said he wanted to report a theft. When the officers wanted to know what had been taken, the man said in all seriousness: "Somebody stole my steering wheel."

Lame excuses also provide police with a source of entertainment. A burglary suspect caught in the act one night told arresting officers he'd seen someone break into the store and had merely gone in to see what was going on. His attempts to sway a jury with that tale were unsuccessful.

Officers say they'll arrive at the scene of a bar disturbance and invariably be told by everyone present that they were all in the bathroom and didn't see a thing.

Equally without fail is this protest from drivers who find themselves unable to navigate even the straightest of streets: "But I only had two beers."

According to Desmond Morris in his book "The Naked Ape," the best way to enhance your chances of receiving a warning instead of a ticket is to get out of your vehicle and approach the squad car.

POLICE NOT ONLY feel more at ease when they have a full view of potential trouble, Morris says their egos are boosted — however unconsciously — when you leave your domain in deference to theirs.

While that ploy may work occasionally, it depends on the officer. Some of them may instinctively realize they're being conned, or they may feel there's something in your car you don't want them to see.

The best way to avoid accentuating problems with the police, officers agree, is to be as polite to them as you'd like them to be with you. Arguing is the worst thing you can do because it is in effect calling the cop a liar. And excuses only insult an officer's intelligence.

"Ninety-nine percent of us believe we're right when we stop someone," said a veteran officer. "If we're wrong, that's what the courts are for."

And, police note, judges aren't as inclined to believe cops as they once were.

Graphotherapists study is not 'sleight of hand'

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

"Graphology — the study of handwriting, esp. as a clue to character, attitudes, etc." — Webster's New World Dictionary

Sure. And while you're at it, get out the Tarot cards, the crystal ball, the mood ring, and also check today's horoscope.

But wait a minute.

It is very unlikely that a company uses Tarot cards when hiring potential employees.

And it's difficult to imagine Racehorse Haynes gazing into a crystal ball during jury selection.

But many companies and lawyers utilize the handwriting analysis ability of Dr. Ray Walker.

According to Walker, who is recognized as one of the top 10 graphotherapists in the nation, handwriting accurately reflects the person's character and emotions.

SOME OF THE TRAITS he can detect from a person's handwriting are self-image, sensitivity to criticism, desire for responsibility, open-mindedness, secretiveness, honesty, leadership, organization, fears, intuitiveness, dominance and deceit.

Southwest Airlines had Walker analyze the handwriting on applicants seeking employment with them. Muse Air had Walker study their logo before painting it on their planes. Other companies go to him when they have problems with placement of their employees.

Walker likes to tell the story of a man in charge of a juvenile home who had a problem child on his hands. The boy wasn't dangerous, just uncontrollable. He was making so much trouble they were going to send him to an institution.

After studying the boy's handwriting, Walker saw there was an extreme desire for responsibility. He asked the man what job they had the boy doing.

"He's on the weed clearing crew," the man replied.

Walker told the man to tell the boy that he wouldn't be able to supervise the next day and was going to depend on the boy to make sure the job was done. A month or two later he saw the man and asked him how the boy was doing. The man said he was fine.

Then Walker asked him how his weeds were doing.

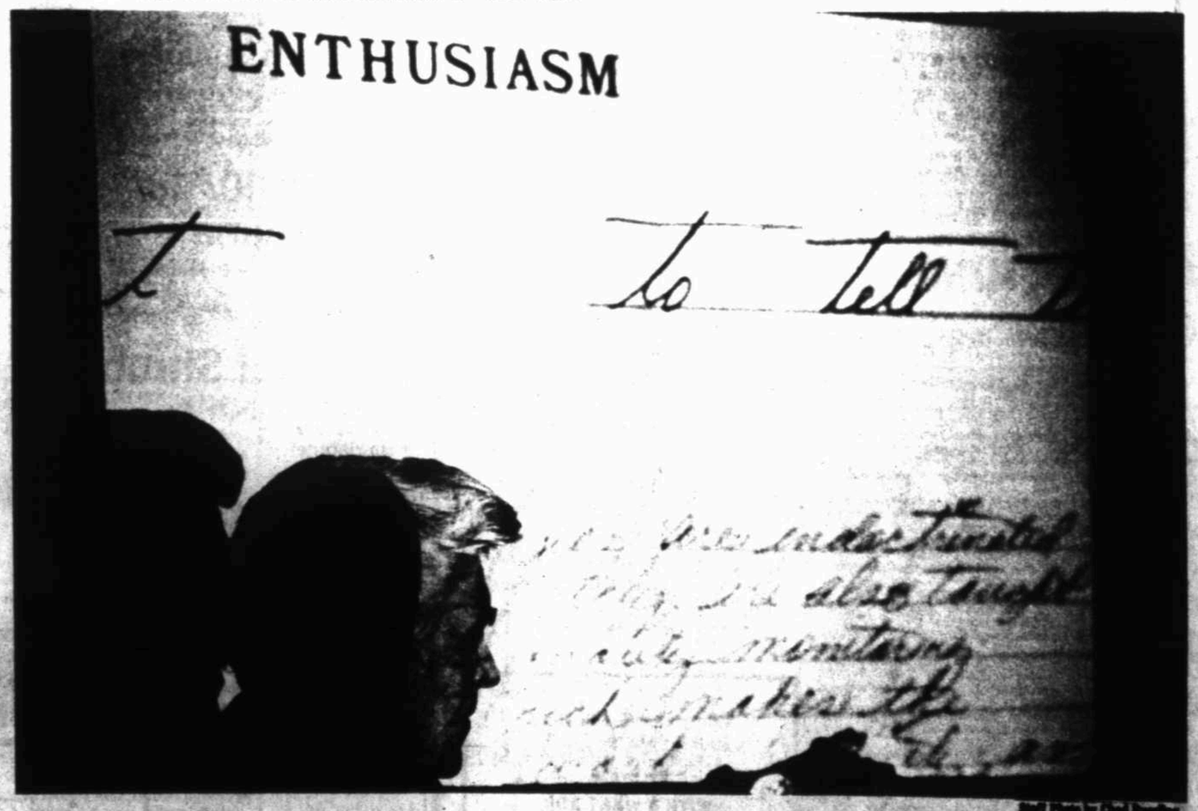

"What weeds?" the man asked with a grin. "I don't have any weeds."

WALKER SAID many companies have come to him with that same problem. If an employee has that desire for responsibility, he tells the employer to give it to him. In other words, get the person off the factory line and into the role of a supervisor.

"He'll either lead for you or against you," Walker said he has told many businessmen. "He's going to lead."

Attorneys hire Walker to analyze information cards filled out by prospective jurors in order to

Dr. Ray Walker, recognized as one of the top ten graphotherapists in the nation, explains that a long bar crossing the stem of a "t" usually reflects enthusiasm in a person. Walker will conduct a training seminar in handwriting analysis for sales and management personnel Saturday in Odessa.

Gail Hamula and Frank Sweiding, United States Silver Medalist winners in the 1978 Olympics, will be among those on ice Sept. 29, when the Ice Capades opens at Ector County Coliseum in Odessa. The Ice Capades will run for eight shows, closing Oct. 4. Tickets, priced from $6-$8, may be purchased at Ector County Coliseum or Midland Park Mall. For more information call 563-1210.

—Consider a resolution accepting the review and comment of the Regional Development Review Committee on the grant application from the city of Midland for Midland Regional Airport Improvements.

—Consider a resolution accepting the review and comment of the Regional Development Review Committee on the grant application from the city of Midland for Midland Air Park improvements.

—Consider a resolution accepting the review and comment of the Human Resource Advisory Committee on the grant application from West Texas Opportunities for continuation funding of their Head Start program.

Divorce workshop to begin

ODESSA — A six-week workshop on how to adjust to life after divorce will begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 16, in the Odessa College Counseling Center, located on the second floor of the Student Union Building.

Registration for "Learning to Live Again" is $15 per person. Registrants may sign up at any of the class meetings held on Wednesday nights through Oct. 21.

The first session, "Where Am I Going from Here," will explore the emotions and reactions that persons who have gone through a divorce mmay feel as they react to the world.

The second session, "The White Knight and Other People," will explain the kinds of relationships which can be expected after a divorce. On the third night's session the participants will learn how to take steps to reach their goals in "Getting What You Want from Life."

Other topics are "I'm So Mad I Want to Hurt...Myself," "Friends are Where You Find Them" and "This is a Dishwasher and other Practical Considerations."

For more information, contact the Adult and Continuing Education office in Deaderick Hall on the OC campus.

Caverns announce fall hours

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Fall and winter visitor hours will go into effect at Carlsbad Caverns National Park on Tuesday, the National Park Service has announced.

The park will continue to be open seven days a week, with complete walk-in tours available anytime between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. (MDT), and Big Room trips available continuously from 8:15 a.m. until 3:15 p.m. The visitor center will be open from 7:30 a.m. until after the evening bat flight programs through the month of September. Beginning in October, the center will close at 5 p.m.

The evening bat flight programs are held at the entrance to the Cavern starting around sunset which is usually around 6:30 (MDT) this time of the year.

Guided lantern trips through primitive New Cave in the Slaughter Canyon area will be offered on a reservation basis each Saturday and Sunday after Labor Day, with two trips scheduled each weekend day at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Reservations for the New Cave trips may be made by calling (505) 785-2233.

The park entrance fee remains $3 per carload for private non-commercial vehicles and $1 per person for commercial bus passengers on a daily basis, with annual Golden Eagle or lifetime Golden Age and Golden Access Passports also available and honored.

Roy and Emma are not bland cotton producers

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Roy and Emma Bland hooked up with cotton sacks, backed up a generation and last week pulled off what will turn out to be the first bale of Upland cotton produced in Midland County in 1981.

They were delighted to be the first in the gin line.

"We hand picked it, and we even made the cotton sacks," said Mrs. Bland, who, like her husband, comes from a family of cotton farmers in the South Plains of Texas. No one in their families had ever brought in the first bale.

Bland, 65, mated his pickup to his cotton-laden cattle trailer, and hauled in 1,763 pounds of seed cotton from his 10-acre farm northeast of Midland to the Midland Farmers Co-operative Cotton Gin.

"IT'LL MAKE A GOOD (500-pound) bale," figured Hoot Leonard, who runs the gin and farm store.

Leonard expects the Bland load to be the first of the makings of 12,000 to 14,000 bales of cotton to be processed at Midland County's only gin when the machinery gets cranked up in October.

All told, though, an optimistic 30,000 bales of cotton may be reaped off the 42,600 acres of planted cotton in the county and will be ginned at Midland, Midkiff and Stanton.

The Bland bale was hand-pulled from 2½ acres of dryland cotton that was planted April 29.

"I told Roy," Mrs. Bland said, "that he (her father) would have been proud" of that first bale of the harvest. Her father, Marcus Pearce, was ginner-farmer at O'Donnell. Bland's father, Robert E. Bland, farmed at Tahoka.

UNTIL LAST WEEK, it had been about 25 years since Roy and Emma Bland had pulled a cotton sack and picked cotton bolls. Tractor-driven cotton-strippers virtually ended the need for human cotton pickers and the familiar sack.

Those sacks for pulling the cotton along the rows weren't easy to come by, noted Mrs. Bland, a Union Oil Co. accountant who searched for the ducking in fabric and farm stores, came up with none, and settled on cotton ticking to make the sacks.

She made six sacks. Then she and her husband and their youngest son, Royce, 21, of No-trees pulled the first 1,-260 pounds.

"It was his first experience in pulling cotton," said Mrs. Bland. "He found out what his father and grandpas did for a living years ago."

The Blands spent parts of four days pulling bolls.

"They hand picked most of it," noted Co-op cotton clerk Darlene Jones, "and the neighbors got to feeling sorry for them and helped them out." ("They sure did," agreed Mrs. Bland.)

Like Leonard, Mrs. Jones readily took note that the Bland cotton was clean, far cleaner than machine-stripped cotton, which is soiled by dirt and dust and invaded by left-over leaves, small pebbles, bugs, burs and other debris.

Roughly, about 2,400 pounds of machine-stripped cotton are required to make a standard 480-pound bale after the seeds are removed. About 1,800 pounds of hand-pulled cotton would make a bale, and even far fewer pounds of hand-picked cotton would be needed to make a bale.

THIS SEASON'S cotton crop should be productive but may not be as fruitful as the crop in 1979, when almost 40,000 bales were harvested off Midland County farmland. And the market price for cotton was unusually high — about 70 cents a pound — for a bumper year.

"Had we had a rain on the 20th of July," speculated Bland, "we would have had a bumper crop (in 1981)."

"You've got to have a July rain to do any good," said Leonard.

The spring planting rain was timely. "Yeah," said Bland, "If we hadn't got that, we sure wouldn't have made it."

The crop-saving rain came late, about mid-August, and, noted Midland County Agent Charlie Green, "It really saved the day."

Though the 1981 yield will be far above the paltry yield of 1980, when crops were beset by a drought and untimely late rains, the market price likely will be at the break-even point.

"The demand is down some, jobs are scarce, and everybody is out of work except in Midland, and they (consumers) are just not buying cotton," said Green.

Green figures that cotton, such as that picked by the Blands, will be priced into the high 40 cents per pound if the market holds steady. Last year, however, economists were predicting a "fairly strong market" in 1981. They were mistaken.

"The poor economists are worse than the weathermen," Green quipped wryly. "You could lay every one of them end to end and they'd never reach a conclusion."

IN A PRACTICAL SENSE, Bland won't have to fret over any economic "conclusion" affecting the price of cotton. An upturn or a downswing would neither make him prosperous or broke due to his limited acreage.

Bland, who was born in 1915, grew up on the farm and worked on it until he was drafted in World War II. During that time he served as an electronic technician in the U.S. Army Air Forces and later in the U.S. Air Force. After retiring from the military in 1965, he once again took up farming on the South Plains and moved to Midland in 1973.

Before all of that, he was a cowboy.

"I cowboyed a bunch in my early days," Bland reflected. "I found some (broncos) that could throw me, but none I couldn't ever break."

Most places closed Labor Day

Schools and banks, along with city, county and federal offices, will be closed Monday in observance of Labor Day. Most postal operations will also cease for the day.

However, special delivery and express mail service will be provided. The delivery of perishables and holiday mail collections will also remain intact.

A self-service postal unit located in the lobby of the downtown post office is open 24 hours a day for customer convenience.

Gifted class nominations reopened

Nominations for the Gifted and Talented Program have been reopened to accommodate new Midland Independent School District students and will be accepted through Sept. 18.

The program is designed to serve fourth, fifth and sixth grade students whose abilities and achievement put them within the upper 5 percent of their respective class groupings.

Nomination forms, available at each elementary building or through Patricia Alexander, coordinator for the program, must be endorsed by two or more persons such as parents, teachers, administrators, peers and the nominated students.

Students nominated last year do not need to submit a new nomination form.

Letters will be mailed to parents of nominated students on Sept. 28, inviting their children to participate in a testing program on Oct. 12-14. Parents will be notified of the results of the selection process on Nov. 6.

The coordinator for the program will be available to parents for conferences to discuss any aspect of the nomination, testing and selection process.

Is work stress seen as factor in air traffic controllers strike make major financial decisions; therefore, the stress response can be similar."

Owen added that stress occurs from not having any clear-cut answers. And, while controllers must be right in their decisions, so must the oil man also be right.

"TO HIM (oil man) this stress can be the same," Owen said.

However, Owen contends that the air traffic controller should be able to "turn off his stress easier" than the oil man.

"Because the controller's decisions are made during his shift at work, he can't do anything about it at home," Owen commented. "A decision he (controller) makes at home won't affect what he does on the job the next day — it's a new set of circumstances. On the other hand, the guy at the office may go home, get a call and find out after beginning drilling on a well that a decision must be made — affecting the next day's work situation."

Assuming the controller works a two-hour shift, which is in accordance to PATCO's previous contract, Owen noted while the stress during this "peak performance" may not be physically debilitating, it can be accumulated over a period of time. Therefore, Owen recommended the controller be aware of his own tolerance and incorporate a "relaxation training" procedure in his daily routine.

"If they don't, stress toleration is lowered and the individual can't perform as efficiently," Owen said.

In contrast, Owen added, "moderate amounts of stress actually increase performance."

According to the Aug. 17 issue of Time magazine, medical research concludes that stress for many people in work or recreation "can be equivalent of an addictive drug" because of the "hormonal response it produces."

Owen agreed, but emphasized if the individual is constantly under stress it may become physically debilitating, resulting in headaches, stomach disorders, rapid heart beat or high blood pressure. This is when burn out occurs.

"JOB BURN OUT for the controller is similar with the policeman and fireman," Owen said. "Burn out would occur when an individual passes his threshold for handling stress, and he must withdraw from the situation or experience the result of physical or pyschological deterioration."

During the interview with Hill, he played a tape-recorded message from a spokesman with the FAA Public Affairs Southwest Region in FortWorth on the topic of burn out.

The spokesman, quoting from a medical study done in Boston, said the burn-out syndrome is a "self-fulfilling prophecy caused by the belief that it will occur."

"They (controllers) don't spend eight hours a day chained to radar scopes making one life decision after another — that would be in violation of the PATCO contract," the FAA spokesman said.

Article 37 Section I of this contract states:

"Consistent with operational requirements, employees shall not be required to spend more than two consecutive hours at the same control position. This shall apply regardless of whether or not positions of operations are combined."

Hill interjected that this section was "placed in there (contract) in recognition of the need to change the controllers' work environment in a systematic way."

The FAA spokesman said an FAA study on the burn out rate for a one-year period ending June 30, 1981, resulted in 360 controllers retiring. Out of these, 214 retired under normal circumstances and 146 retired with medical disabilities. He added that the 214 figure represents 1.6 percent of the journeyman workforce.

Hill, in agreement with Owens, concluded that the stress factor of the controller is an individual situation.

"EVEN THE MOST solid of controllers is going to experience a high level of stress depending on what is going on at any given time," Hill said.

But, Tommy Urps, Midland's PATCO local 428 secretary-treasurer, said "the only people who recognize we (controllers) have stress are controllers — once you become a supervisor, you seem to forget."

He conceeded that Midland Regional Airport may not be as busy as other airports, but insisted that Midland's PATCO members experienced stressful conditions. Urps added that there is no other job like a controller's.

"I heard stress on our job being compared to a teacher's job — that's a joke as far as I'm concerned," he said.

In response to characteristics of controllers in general and the stress factor, Urps explained the people who take on the pressures of a job like the excitement.

"Controllers like to be in charge. When I work a (trouble) situation out, I might get kind of scared, but at the same time I get a personal high out of it. I get a lot of satisfaction out of what I used to do," Urps said. "But, then again the same situation that may give me personal satisfaction might also scare the hell out of me — that's stress," he added.

And so the name of the game is "stress." And the winner depends on the individual, according to psychologists, FAA authorities and supervisors and medical studies.

Economic impact of air controllers strike diminishing as flight schedules stabilize

By JOHN M. BERRY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The economic fallout from the air-traffic controllers' walkout is turning out to be surprisingly light.

Travel agents, concessionaires at airports, and hotel and motel officials have felt the pinch of a sudden, reduction in the number of flights and daily airline passengers — who probably numbered 100,000 during August. But now that the chaos has diminished and flight schedules are more certain, the economic impact is diminishing.

Reagan administration economists took a look at the situation and quickly concluded that it "is not statistically significant" in terms of the entire economy. In other words, it won't cause even a blip in the gross national product.

However, the strike and the indefinite reduction in flights certainly produced a blip in the August accounts of many businesses directly involved with serving the airlines and their passengers. For travel agents, airport concessionaires and taxi drivers, the blip may be much longer-lasting. On the other hand, a check of several major hotel and motel chains indicates their occupancy rates are climbing back to prestrike levels.

Travel agents, who normally book about 60 percent of all domestic airline reservations, have had two problems. First, they have had to rebook many flights, which has meant doing double the work for each commission. Second, they have had a flood of cancellations. The loss has averaged 60,000 commissions a day. Since each loss equals an average of about 10 percent of the ticket cost, the total has been several million dollars daily.

Virginia Rudick, manager of an Ask Mr. Foster Travel Service office in Washington, is afraid the strike is going to have a lingering effect on business, not because of the reduced number of flights,but because of the publicity concerning whether it is safe to fly — an issue raised repeatedly by the controllers union.

"I think it is going to take a long time to restore the confidence of the public in flying," said Rudick, who has had customers canceling flights for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and is waiting to see what happens in the next several weeks before filling two vacancies in her office.

In New York City, a spokeswoman for the American Society of Travel Agents professed nevertheless to see a hint of a silver lining. "In the long run," she said, "it may be beneficial, because people will realize the value of travel agents" in getting flights in uncertain and confused situations.

Initially, many hotels, especially those located near airports, were hit by a rash of canceled reservations. The Sheraton chain, for instance, had about a 10 percent cancellation rate immediately after the strike began. And, of course, there was an immediate and continuing loss of business throughout the country because fewer airline crews had to find overnight accommodations.

Now, asserts a Sheraton spokeswoman, "There is little if any impact" from the reduced flights. The Sheraton on in Arlington, Va., not far from Washington's National Airport, had a record August, she noted.

Essentially the same system-wide story is told by officials at Marriott, Hilton and Holiday Inns: some declines in business, with operations again approaching normal levels for this time of year, which is far from busy to begin with. (However, "normal" for 1981 was already depressed compared with the two previous years, with occupancy rates for the first eight months of the year down to 67 percent from 72 percent in 1980.) Hotels in a few locations, such as Chicago's O'Hare Airport, have been harder hit.

Albert E. Kudrle, director of public relations for the American Hotel and Motel Association, says that in the association's spot checks, which have included numerous resorts, "most properties are reporting business as usual.... I don't see there is going to be a tremendous loss...."

Elsewhere, Albert Rankin of Marriott Corp. said its inflight food service business is off "about 10 percent." Marriott has laid off about 500 persons as a result, he said.

Other firms that distribute products — including fuel — to the airlines are experiencing or expect to experience similar declines.

Meanwhile, the number of complaints about noise from low-flying jets near National dropped to half the usual daily average of 15 to 20, Hess said.

Your Future Is Our Objectiv

Your Chamber is an organization of the future. It exists to help the community grow and to improve the quality of life in Midland in the years ahead.

The Chamber of Commerce is the hub for such programs as the Objectives for Midland — The Eighties. Their participation in the Objectives programs during the 70's helped Midland secure Regional Airport renovations and improved air service, Midland College, the Midland Center, economic diversification, improved medical facilities and much more.

Now, as the 80's begin, Chamber goals include assistance with planning and development for:

- The Design of the City
- Health and Welfare
- Culture
- Housing
- Local Government
- Spiritual Life
- Education
- Recreation Entertainment
- The Economy

Your Chamber is always at work for Midland. Your membership and support of the Chamber is a worthwhile investment in your own future.

Regulation reductions requested

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Executives from major airlines and aircraft manufacturing firms asked for wide-ranging reductions in certification and safety regulations during a closed-door meeting two months ago with Federal Aviation Administration chief Lynn Helms, a transcript of the meeting shows.

In general, the executives argued that the regulations do not improve safety levels but raise costs significantly.

Helms said he wanted to "stop the ever-expanding regulation. In fact, we need to accelerate the effort of deregulation," he said, according to the transcript. He also stressed that safety is the FAA's prime concern but said attention also should be given to the economic implications of FAA decisions.

The meeting was held on June 30 in the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel in Washington.

E.H. Boullioun, president of Boeing Commercial Airplane Co., the nation's largest manufacturer of commercial aircraft, called for simplification of the lengthy process by which aircraft are certified as airworthy.

City Council to consider Taylor Park

Midland City Council will be faced with a decision on whether or not to let a portion of Taylor Park in the south part of the city go over to the county when the panel meets at 10 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

The County Commissioners have asked previously for a decision to let them lease a portion of that park to construct a day care center with federal money from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. But the council decided to study it first.

Their considerations, the council said at that time, were that the park is being used by several sports groups and that the voters would have to decide in a referendum if the park could be leased.

In other action, the council is expected to announce the establishment of a City-County Joint Liaison Committee to dually address problems, such as housing, associated with the community's rapid growth. That committee should include Mayor G. Thane Akins and County Judge Bill Ahders, along with other community leaders.

Contracts with farmers wanting to use secondary-treated effluent for irrigation will be reviewed by the council. At the Aug. 25 meeting, the council decided to try a disposal method that would involve farmers taking 6 million gallons per day of the effluent while the city would use the remaining effluent for irrigating its farm land.

The council also will look at annexing a 651-acre tract of land northeast of Green Tree Country Club. The last annexation was completed in late spring 1980, and included a strip of land north of the city limits from Holiday Hill Road to Lamesa Highway.

To fit the revenues adopted in the budget for 1981-82, the council will consider ordinances raising the water, sewer and garbage rates. Those hikes had been called for in the new budget, which becomes effective Oct. 1.

A City of Midland Industrial Development Corporation could be created by the council as an instrument of the city.

The council will consider requests for water service outside the city limits to Midland Farmer's Co-op and property owners along Garden City Highway. And the panel will look at the city code dealing with customary home occupations as it might pertain to baking or cooking in the home and selling these foods through a retail store.

MISD Board of Trustees

Midland Board of Trustees will meet Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Midland Independent School District Administration Building at 702 N. N St.

Trustees are expected to take action on bids for air conditioning units for the Midland High School Industrial Arts area, look at recommendations for the revision of personnel policies, accept a gift from the Bowie PTA, review the architect's schedule for the design and construction of school facilities, and approve personnel appointments, resignations and leaves of absence.

They will also receive reports on the progress of implementing the Gifted and Talented Program and the enrollments and school loadings.

Andrews school trustees to consider varied agenda items

The Andrews Independent School District trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school administration building.

They are expected to take action on approval of employment of a new teacher; purchase of building trade lots; encumbrance of funds for the band, athletic and vocational departments; and board policies on probationary contract, sick leaves, retirement and bilingual education.

They are also expected to consider borrowing operating funds, an increase in building insurance, a resolution to invoke three-quarter rule in selection of members of Andrews County Appraisal District Board of Directors, a resolution to appoint members to serve as board of directors of the Andrews County Appraisal District and an investment of bond funds.

The board will also hear the final review of architect's drawings and set the bid opening date as Oct. 22 at 2 p.m.

Soil, water appraisal available

The most comprehensive appraisal ever conducted of the nation's soil and water resources is now available for reference in the Midland office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in the George Mahon Federal Building.

The appraisal, which was called for by the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA), reveals that soil erosion is critical in many important farming areas of the United States, said Dick Hagelstein, SCS district conservationist for Midland County.

If continued, those high erosion rates will reduce the future ability of the country to produce food and fiber. Upstream flood damage and other resource losses also are likely to increase if current trends continue.

All-risk crop insurance offered

COLLEGE STATION — Texas farmers can study the All-Risk Crop Insurance Program for wheat and barley between now and Sept. 30 to decide how it can fit into their 1982 plans.

"Basically, the program works the same as before," said Ben A. Jordan Jr., regional director of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. (FCIC). "The producer signs up for protection now. After the crop is planted, they file a report of planted acres which becomes the basis for their protection.

"If the crop is damaged by an unavoidable natural hazard at any time during the growing season, an indemnity is paid on the difference between the producer's guarantee and the actual or appraised production," said Jordan. "Payment of premiums is not required until after the harvest."

The program is set up so that every producer can work out an insurance plan which fits his needs and budget. For wheat and barley, the producer selects a guarantee in bushels per acre from one of three levels which reflect about 50, 65 and 75 percent of their average yield. The producer also selects one of three price options: $2.50, $3.50 and $4.50 per bushel on wheat, and $2, $2.25 and $2.60 per bushel on barley.

The government will pay up to 30 percent of the premium, and the rest is tax deductible.

Experiment station holding field day

LUBBOCK — Farmers will have a chance to "see and hear about latest production research results" in the 72nd annual field day at the Texas Agricultural Experimment Station (TAES) at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

The station is three miles north of Lubbock International Airport and is off FM 1294.

Highlight of the field day will include weed control, cotton bollworm research, drought tolerance in cotton and grain sorghum, cotton breeding and grape research.

A&M reports advances in 'Cattlex'

COLLEGE STATION — "Cattlex," the computerized cattle marketing system launched by Texas A&M University last fall, is now bigger and better, said Dr. Ernie Davis, livestock marketing specialist and an initiator of the system.

At present, there are 29 cooperators in the state: 11 feedyards, 13 auction markets, four order buyer-firms and one producer market corporation.

In addition to handling an increased volume of cattle, Cattlex should operate more effectively in the future. Graders, who are the "eyes" of the system, are certified at Texas A&M and the number to date is 55.

Cattlex is in operations in Abilene, Amarillo, Athens, Beeville, Bowie, Buffalo, Dalhart, Dumas, Eagle Pass, Fort Worth, Friona, Gruver, Houston, Lometa, Lubbock, Marlin, Paris, San Angleo, San Antonio, San Marcos, Sealy, Stephenville, Texarkana, Wichita Falls and Clovis, N.M.

Cotton yields up, but prices down

LUBBOCK — Thanks to nature's favor, cotton yields from the 1981 harvest should be up from last year, but the price farmers will be getting for the lint will be down about 20 percent.

Production from the High Plains "should be more than 3½ million bales...if we get good weather," said Texas Tech University agricultural economist Billy Freeman. Production cost has increased about 8 percent over last year.

Cotton was planted on approximately 4.1 million acres in the High Plains.

Agronomist joins extension service

COLLEGE STATION — Cloyce Coffman, a new agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be giving leadership to statewide educational programs in corn and sorghum production and will be working closely with county agents and county program building committee.

A native of Iowa, Coffman taught agronomy at Missouri Western State College for seven years and was an agronomist with the Missouri Extension Service for two years.

He is working toward the Ph.D. degree in soil fertility from Iowa State University.

Agriculture tours scheduled in area during September

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

Two tours that will focus on agricultural resources of Midland County are scheduled in September.

A County Pecan Tour, sponsored by Midland Pecan Grower's Association begins at 2 p.m. Saturdayand concludes with a barbecue at 6 p.m.

Six stops have been arranged by the planning committee to focus on management and production practices that have been successful in small to large orchards. Irrigation systems fertility practices, insect and disease control, weed control and pruning practices will be observed.

Visits will be made to the following orchards: Marijo Collins, Butler Estate, an orchard in the Gardendale area in neighboring Ector County, M.S. Davis and Semple Orchard. A brief stop of historical interest at the High Lonesome Ranch, J.E. Hill Estate will show what is thought to be the oldest planting of pecans in Midland County. These trees were planted around a windmill overflow tank sometime after the turn of the century.

The tour will depart the parking area of Midland Farmer's Cooperative, South Fairgrounds Road, at 2 p.m. Transporation will be by private vehicle. The tour will end at the Semple Orchard following a catered barbecue.

The tour is open to both members and non-members of the association. The barecue will be $2 per person. Anyone desiring to attend should contact Marge Shaw at 682-0315 or the County Exension Office, 682-9481, ext. 433 by Thursday to make reserations.

THE ANNUAL MIDLAND County-Farm and Ranch Tour sponsored by the Farm and Ranch Committee, Midland Chamber of Commerce and arranged and coordinated by the County Extension Office and Soil Conservation Service will be Thursday, September 17.

This year's tour will focus on the rangeland and livestock resources of Midland County. Approximately 475,000 of Midland's 600,000 acres are operated by ranchers producing livestock utilizing native rangelands.

The tour will include one stop to observe crop production which is also important to the county. Cotton, which occupies about 60,000 acres of the county's agricultural land, historically accounts for about 50 percent of the annual gross agricultural income.

The March Traweek farming operation in Greenwood will be the site of a stop to observe cotton variety trials, fertility trials and a discussion of the Integrated Pest Managment program, newly organized by Midland cotton producer's to help minimize damage from crop pests.

From the Greenwood area the tour will move to the west portion of Midland County. At the Braun Ranch, a comprehensive small plot brush control demonstration will show several treatments, both new and old, that can be used to control brush species that compete with the more valuable grass and forbs for moisture and nutrients.

An innovative new grazing system that in two years of testing has significantly increased stocking capacity, while at the same time allowing range improvement, will be seen at the Faudree ranch. Known as the Savory System, developed by a man of that name in Rhodesia, the system involves fencing of large pastures into small cells where livestock is concentrated and rotated on 5 to 7 day grazing cycles. This allows the livestock to take the most nutritious forage and gives rest to any given area within the system of around 300 days per year.

While on the Faudree ranch we will observe livestock and see and hear about their program of producing and training horses.

Lunch will be served at noon at the headquarters ranch residence.

The tour will depart the parking area adjacent to Cub Stadium, Hogan Park, at 8 a.m. and conclude with the buses back at Cub Stadium by 1:30 p.m.

The tour is open to the public and interested persons should contact the Chamber of Commerce, 683-3381, for reservations.

Taking a strong financial stand in Midland.

On July 3rd, 1903, Midland National opened its doors in the old Llano Hotel, on the northwest corner of Wall and Main.

We were just starting out, but we already had an unwavering commitment to sound, healthy growth. And we were eager to lead the way, searching for new territory to explore.

For thirty years, we kept pace with Midland's ranching, agricultural and mercantile interests; as they grew, so did we.

With the discovery of oil here, our pace quickened. We took strides to introduce new banking services. We were the first bank in the Permian Basin to add a petroleum engineer to our staff.

Today, our Oil and Gas Division is staffed entirely by petroleum bankers who are also petroleum engineers; bankers who personally analyze collateral, using our in-house computer and the latest petroleum evaluation techniques.

Our Commercial Loan Officers are highly trained professionals who can give quick answers on short-term working capital loans, lines of credit or term loans for a growing business.

Our Trust Department specializes in personal trusts and estate planning, and also in setting up corporate profit sharing and pension plans.

Today, Midland has come of age, and so have we. We have $11 billion in assets behind us. And ahead of us is a future dedicated to helping Midland reach her full potential.

Whatever your financial needs, bring them to Midland National. Contact us at (915) 685-5000.

Grow stronger with us.

The management at the apartment complex where I live has raised the rent $80 in the last two months. I understand from friends that this is happening at the apartments they live in. The reason given has been the increase in the cost of maintenance.

Is there anything a tenant can do about these increases in rent? There have not been any improvements in maintenance. The swimming pool needs cleaning all the time, etc. - J.K.

ANSWER: The subject of rent controls was discussed in a recent meeting of the Midland City Council, and there was no action taken. There is no form of rent control in Midland.

The West Texas Legal Services office has received numerous calls about this situation in recent weeks. You might contact them at 563-3709 for more information.

If I find my youngster playing with a bottle of medicine or some household product, how can I tell if he has swallowed some and will become ill? — Mrs. H.T.

ANSWER: The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says reactions vary, depending on the product.

In some instances, the child may vomit. In others, he may appear to be drowsy or sluggish for no apparent reason; you may notice that the contents have been reduced; you may notice some of the residue (if it were a liquid, for example) around his mouth and teeth.

It is important to get medical advice even if you only suspect that he has swallowed a potentially hazardous product. You should know the telephone numbers of your physician, nearest poison control center and the hospital.

There is a business in Midland which frequently advertises certain specials on products, but by the time I get to the store, which is right away, it is out of the advertised specials.

Could this be referred to as false advertisng?

Also, is there anything I can do about it? It doesn't do any good to complain to the management. — Mrs. V.B.

ANSWER: The Federal Trade Commission reports it receives numerous letters and calls from consumers and consumer groups complaining about the unavailability of advertised specials.

In response to these complaints, the FTC has issued a rule stating that stores ought to have advertised sales specials available at the advertised price during the advertised sales period. Branch stores which will not have the item must be listed in the ad.

Many stores issue rain checks if the merchandise which has been advertised is out of stock. The FTC advises making sure the merchant indicates on the rain check the date, the time it will be in and the sale price. Sometimes the stores do misjudge the popularity of an item and it is sold out. However, if this happens time and again, the store may be breaking the FTC rule. Complain to the store manager, state or local consumer protection office and to the FTC.

The nearest consumer protection office for Midland is in Lubbock. The address is 806 Broadway St., Lubbock 79401. The telephone number is 806 747-5238.

My husband keeps putting off making a will.

If he should die leaving only an insurance policy that names me as his beneficiary, will I have to wait to receive that money until his estate is settled? — Mrs. H.J.

ANSWER: The American Council of Insurance says your husband almost certainly should have a will, and he should take care of it immediately.

But don't worry about having to wait for the insurance money. Insurance benefits are paid directly to the beneficiary as soon as the insurance company receives proof of death. Insurance policies are not considered part of the deceased person's personal property and need not go through probate.

Enrollment record appears certain for fall semester at Midland College

With seven days remaining for late registration to attend Midland College's fall semester, an enrollment record seems certain.

By Friday morning, Midland College registrar Dee Windsor reported that 2,707 students had signed up for credit courses. This already exceeds the 2,699 who enrolled last fall when MC had its all-time record. The count Friday was 245 ahead of the same period last year.

"It is getting very late for fulltime students to register, since classes have been going for a week and incoming students have trouble catching up in four or five classes," noted Dr. Don Hunt, academic vice president.

"However, there are a number of classes that students may take that still have openings and the chances of success are very good if the student is only taking one or two courses."

MC will be closed on Monday for Labor Day. Late registration will resume Tuesday, the last day for fulltime students to register. Late registration will continue through Wednesday, Sept. 16, for students wishing to take three courses or less.

For more information, call 684-7851, ext. 166.

Bulldog Booster Club to see game film

The Midland Bulldog Booster Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Midland High Youth Center. The film of the MHS-Amarillo Tascosa game will be shown.

All parents and interested persons are urged to attend.

Goldsmith firemen to hold barbecue

GOLDSMITH — The Goldsmith Volunteer Fire Department will hold its 22nd annual Firemen's Barbecue Saturday to raise funds to support the VFD.

The barbecue, which Fire Chief Clifford W. White bills as a "gala event," will be held in the Goldsmith Community Center.

"Nowhere else in the Permian Basin can you get a first-rate barbecue dinner with all the trimmings for the low price of $3.75 for adults and $2.50 for children," said White.

Frills at the feed will include a band, an auction of baked goods and hand-crafted items.

Firemen are hoping to raise $3,000 toward the purchase of a heart monitor-defibrillator to "round out the advance life-support equipment needed for our ambulance," the fire chief said.

Dawson County Fair begins soon

LAMESA — The annual Dawson County Fair on Sept. 15-19 will feature "some of the finest area agriculture products, crafts and local talent."

Barn doors will open Sept. 15 for livestock, crops, crafts and other entries. The fair will open to the public at 10 a.m. Sept. 16.

The fair's annual pet show will be held at 5 p.m. Sept. 16, and the ladies' slipper-kicking contest will be held at 6 p.m.

Swine judging will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 16.

Events lined up for Sept. 17 include judging poultry, pigeons and rabbits at 5 p.m. and a turtle race and frog-jumping contest at 6 p.m. The capon show begins at 7 p.m.

A baby contest is scheduled for 5 p.m. on Sept. 18. The "World Championship Goat Show" will be held at 8 p.m.

On the fair's final day, sheep and cattle will be judged. Sheep judging begins at 9 a.m., and cattle judging, 2 p.m.

A special chili cook-off will be judged at 11 a.m. that day.

The fair grounds are near Forrest Park in south Lamesa.

Labor Day Celebration Monday

ODESSA — The 24th annual Labor Day Celebration here Monday will feature a Texas senator, the state comptroller and a farmer as principal speakers.

The celebration will begin at noon in Floyd Gwin Park at West 10th Street and West County Road.

The Labor Day speakers will be:

—State Comptroller Bob Bullock who has been Texas' chief tax administrator and fiscal officer since 1975.

—Texas Farmers Union President Mike Moeller of Waco.

—State Sen. Peyton McKnight, who is also a Tyler oil operator.

The public-invited event will include a barbecue, turtle races, fiddling contest and speeches, according to D.L. Willis, president of the Odessa Central Labor Day Union, AFL-CIO.

Investigator joins sheriff's staff

ANDREWS — Veteran accident investigator Luther Clemons has joined the Andrews County Sheriff's Department.

"We're very pleased to be moving to Andrews," said Clemons, "(but) just tell me where to find a good house."

Clemons and his wife Patricia are living in a mobile home until they can locate permanent housing.

The deputy sheriff was a safety division supervisor in the U.S. Air Force prior to his retirement from service.

Clemons is a graduate of the Galveston Sheriff's Academy.

Pastoral training program planned

BIG SPRING — Big Spring State Hospital's Chaplaincy Services will offer a Clinical Pastoral Training program beginning Sept. 17 and continuing each Thursday through Nov. 19.

Ministers in the area are invited to the no-charge training. Those interested in the program may contact Lee Butler, director of Chaplaincy Services, by dialing 915/267-8216, Extension 262.

4-H Horse Club seeks new members

The Midland County 4-H Horse Club will enroll new members at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the 4-H Club House near the Midland County Exhibit Building off U.S. Highway 80 East.

The club provides an opportunity for youngsters to participate in horse judging events, craft sessions, showing and grooming clincs and to improve their horsemanship.

Youths aged 9 through 19 are eligible to attend the 4-H meeting, according to Willie Stumberg, Midland County extension agent for agriculture.

All-breed horse show set Saturday

BIG SPRING — The Howard County Youth Horseman Club will host an open all-breed horse show at 10 a.m. Saturday in the HCYH's Arena off the Garden City Highway and U.S. Highway 87 south of Big Spring.

Registation will begin at 9 a.m.

Dinner slated to honor Langford

An appreciation dinner honoring Dr. Al G. Langford, president of Midland College from its founding in 1969 until his retirement last month, will be Sept. 15.

"Al Langford has performed a tremendous service for Midland College and for this community. This dinner will be a tribute to the efforts he made in the creation and development of Midland College into a place of prominence in community college education," said Reagan H. Legg, Midland College trustee and chairman of the appreciation dinner arrangements committee.

Legg said the program will be brief, with several speakers talking about Langford's many contributions to Midland, to Midland College and to the advancement of community college education.

Tickets for the event, which is sponsored by the Midland College Board of Trustees and the Midland College Foundation, are on sale at the Midland College Chaparral Center, Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland National Bank, Texas National Bank, Commercial Bank and Western State Bank. Price is $15 per person.

Deadline for purchasing tickets is Friday. No tickets will be sold at the door. The dinner will be preceded by a social hour from 7 to 7:45 p.m. with dinner starting at 8 p.m. in Chaparral Center. The dinner will be catered by The Midland Hilton.

select a jury.

When Cullen Davis's lawyers asked him to help them during jury selection in the Fort Worth millionaire's murder-for-hire trial in Houston a couple of years ago, Walker said he analyzed 75 four-page information sheets. And his job didn't end there.

Racehorse Haynes had Walker analyze handwriting of the prosecuting attorneys. Walker said he saw that one of them was brilliant, close to a genius and very impatient with slower minds.

During the trial, Haynes, after stalling and repeating himself in a long drawl, so infuriated the prosecutor that the man ended up throwing a briefcase across the courtroom, Walker recalled.

But it was an ethical piece of strategy, according to Walker, because the prosecutors had hired one of Walker's former handwriting analysis students to work for them.

As director of the Universal Mind Spa in Dallas, Walker uses a person's handwriting as a therapeutic tool. Psychologists tell people that their physical actions can change their attitude about themselves. For example, psychologists contend that if people stand with their shoulders back, they will feel more confident than when slouching.

Walker said a person's change in attitude and emotion are reflected in his handwriting. Therefore, a person's handwriting can be changed to show his attitudes or emotions. By changing negative handwriting traits into positive ones, a person can develop a better attitude about himself.

According to Walker, the handwriting's slant reveals much about the writer's character. If the handwriting slants to the left, the person tends to be introverted.

ON THE OTHER HAND, if it slants to the extreme right, the person tends to be very emotional. This person will more likely be prejudiced; he will stick to something because he is usually involved in it with his heart instead of his mind.

If a person slants his handwriting slightly to the right, he is probably a middle-of-the-roader. This is the style taught in American schools.

If he writes straight up and down, the person is practical and rarely emotional. Walker said that love doesn't enter the mind of this person. Instead, he is more apt to think about what is best for him.

Walker noted that none of our astronauts wrote slanted to the left or straight up and down. He attributed this to the fact that astronauts need to react with their feelings.

If a person crosses the letter "t" low, this denotes a low self-esteem, Walker explained. If the cross is at the top of the stem of the "t", the person is saying he likes himself. This person usually plans for the future.

If the "t" is crossed two-thirds of the way up the stem, as students are taught in school, the person is usually practical.

If the letter is crossed above and not touching the stem, that person is usually a dreamer. Walker said he originally thought this meant failure. But that theory proved untrue when he analyzed the handwriting of eight self-made millionaires and found that they all crossed their "t's" above the stem.

Walker said that if the cross on the letter is long it reflects excitement and enthusiasm. If the cross is heavy and blunt on the end it shows a positive feeling, will-power and strength.

If the end of the cross is sharp or pointed, it denotes sarcasm, which is a defense. If a person exhibits a sarcastic characteristic, he most likely feels threatened or challenged.

ANOTHER DEFENSE is seen in the crossing of the "t" to the right of the stem. Walker said this trait shows a temper. If a person does not know how to handle a situation, he will lose his temper as a means of defense.

If a person crosses his "t" to the left of the stem, he better be wary of filling out an application for a job or a loan. This characteristic means procrastination. This person will likely be late in making his payments. This is also a type of defense. Many people procrastinate as their way of saying "maybe it will just go away."

The list is endless.

"As life changes, we change," Walker said. Our handwriting reflects our different thought patterns. Walker explained that through our knowledge of our handwriting, we can improve ourselves.

He will conduct an all-day training seminar in handwriting anaysis on Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Coachroom of the Inn of the Golden West in Odessa.

The seminar is designed primarily for salespeople and management personnel and will focus on how to recognize failure, loyalty, honesty and high achievement potential in an employee, determine the correct sales approach and to hire the right employees.

Cost for the seminar, which includes lunch, Walker's training manual, "Handwriting Analysis for Salesmen and Managers" and two cassette tapes is $150 per person. Registration will take place in the Coachroom at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Walker holds a degree from the Ethical Hypnosis Training Center in South Orange, N.J., a degree as certified graphoanalytical psychologist from the International Handwriting Institute, Los Angeles, Calif. and a degree from the American Handwriting Institute in New York.

He completed general and masters courses, involving three years of training with the International Graphoanalysis Society in Chicago, Ill. He obtained a teaching certificate after completion of the course in forensic scriptotechniques at Scriptology Institute in Colton, Cal.

Walker also has written "Modern Therapy Through Handwriting Analysis," "Jury Selection Through Handwriting Analysis" and "Psychology and Handwriting Analysis."

Leukemia drive begins

Residential fund-raising campaigns throughout Midland for the Leukemia Society of America, Inc., begin this month.

Midland volunteers will go door-to-door seeking contributions. Melinda Leaseburg, local board member, said a $3,500 goal has been set.

The Leukemia Society of America, Inc., is a national voluntary health agency dedicated solely to seeking the cause and eventual cure of leukemia and allied diseases. It also assists in patient-aid and conducts programs of professional and public education.

Use of sonar keeps pace with times

Ultrasonography now medical tool

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Sonar, a device to time the echo of sound waves in water, detected enemy submarines during World War II.

Today, sonar is utilized by the medical world as a diagnostic tool.

Ultrasonography is a technique that allows the physician a bird's eye view of the abdominal cavity.

Using a scanner that bounces ultrasound waves, not heard by the human ear, off body tissue, doctors are able to get a cross-sectional "photograph" that shows details of the various abdominal organs.

Ray Meyers, director of radiology at Midland Memorial Hospital, works with these scanners.

In explaining the technical details, he said the scanner produces an ultrasound image on a small screen that resembles a television screen. When the high frequency sound waves are aimed inside the patient's body, they create echos that travel back and generate electrical signals that register on the screen as white, gray and black dots to form a picture.

"It sends out high frequency sound waves. The sound wave travels through water, or tissue, and when it strikes any interface (obstruction), you get an echo which projects an image.

"A major use of the scanner is to detect anomalies in abdominal aorta. We can detect anomalies of the gall bladder, liver, pancreas and kidneys, in addition to determining fetal abnormalities, number and age."

"It sends out high frequency sound waves. The sound wave travels through water, or tissue, and when it strikes any interface (obstruction), you get an echo which projects an image," Meyers said.

Lately, ultrasonography has been linked wth obstetrics. But according to Meyers, the technique has many other uses.

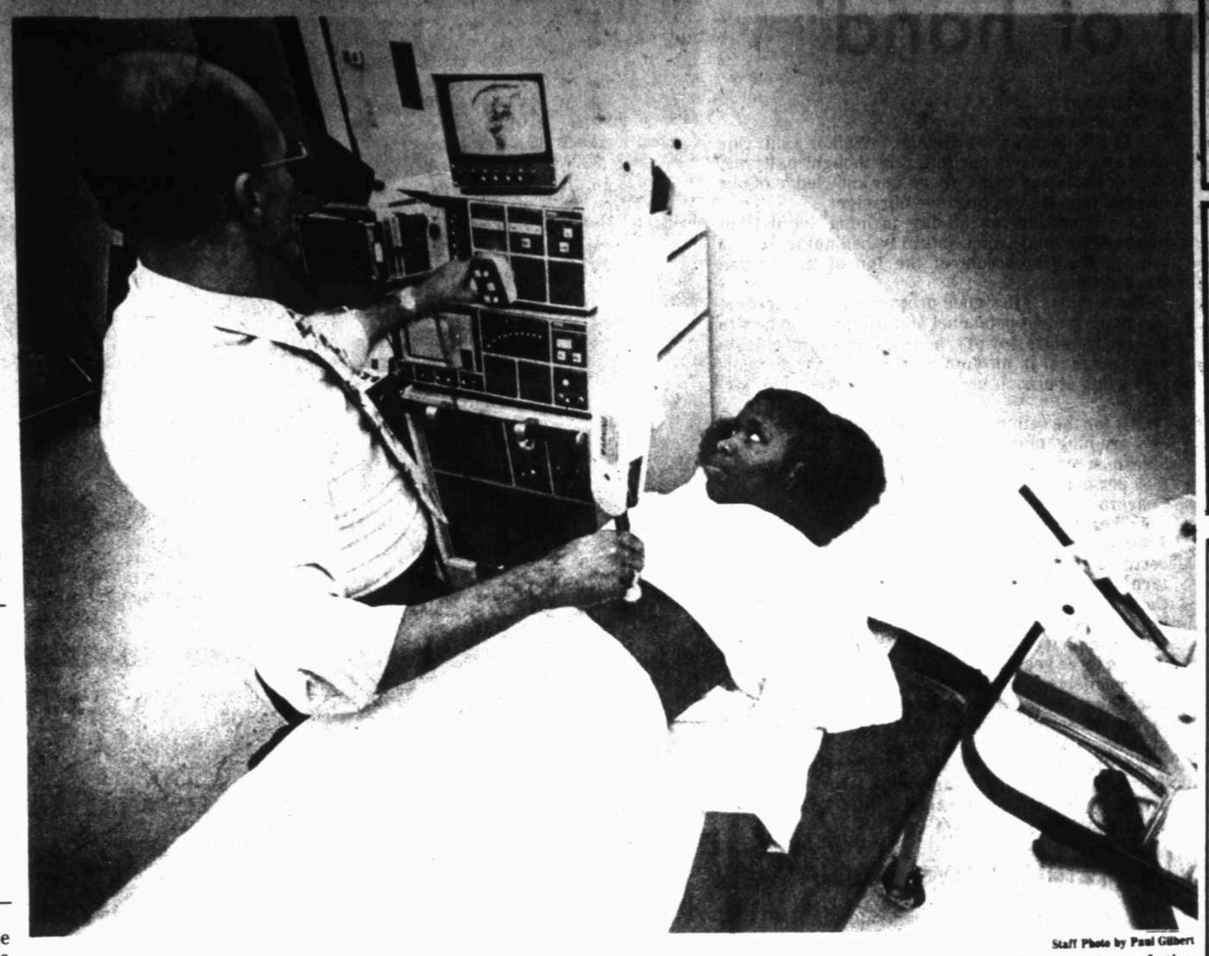

"A major use of the scanner is to detect anomalies in abdominal aorta. We can detect anomalies of the gall bladder, liver, pancreas and kidneys, in addition to determining fetal abnormalities, number and age," he said.

Meyers noted that cost-wise, the development of sonar in X-ray diagnostic equipment has saved the patient the expense of invasive techniques in which a needle or catheter is inserted into the body.

"In many instances, it is cost efficient to the patient because many invasive studies are more expensive," he said.

Meyers said there are two kinds of ultrasound scanners that are used in X-ray departments. MMH's machine is called an "Ultrasound B-Scan gray scale" scanner. In use for six years at MMH, it produces its image in eight levels of gray. He said the other device, a "real-time scanner" is faster to use because it shows movement, and one will be added to the hospital's X-ray department in the future.

Although both of these scanners are beneficial in diagnosing the patient's condition, Meyers said the gray scale, which is more time consuming, produces a better picture with greater definition and detail. Some obstetricians, he added, prefer the real-time because it also shows movement.

Parks department's fall offerings more than games

Adults who feel like mad dogs can try rugby to ease their tensions. And mad dogs can take obedience classes to straighten out their behavior problems.

Both programs — Mad Dog Rugby and dog obedience class — are being offered by the Midland Parks and Recreation Department in their fall, winter and spring schedule of activities. The season starts Monday and continues through spring.

Practice for Mad Dog Rugby is held Tuesday nights in Ulmer Park. For more information on the sport, telephone Jeff Noel, 682-0625, or Kyle Large, 697-2266.

Dog owners have four obedience classes from which to choose. The first, which already has started, runs through Oct. 21. The other three are scheduled Oct. 28-Dec. 16, Jan. 6-Feb. 24, and March 3-April 21.

This course is designed to instruct dog owners in the methods to train their dogs in basic obedience. Basic commands will include come, stay, heel, sit-stay, down-stay, stand-stay and stop. The class meets 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays and extra home practice is encouraged. Fee is $35. For more information telephone Dalton Byerly, 683-2941.

Another new event on the list of programs this fall is the Echo Blo-Bowl that is scheduled Sept. 26 and 27. This event will benefit the Texas Easter Seal Society.

According to the game plan, five-member teams will compete with hand-held power blowers and a 7-inch Nerf ball. Prizes and trophies will be awarded for the most money raised and the most games won. Advanced registration of $100 must be in the Parks and Recreation office by Sept. 14. More information is available by telephoning 683-4281, extension 280.

Square dancing is another addition to the schedule this fall. The 20-week session begins Thursday and will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. Thursdays in the Hogan Park Activity Building. Fee is $45 per couple. Instructor is Zoy Hann.

And then there's jazzercise — a new way of exercising to music. These classes will be from 6:15 to 7 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in the city gym. Fee is $2 per class session, and the course already has started.

Women can stay in shape during the winter by taking the Ladies Keep-Fit class. This consists of walking and-or jogging and exercising to maintain a high level of fitness. The class meets at 1:30 p.m. Monday and Wednesday and 9 a.m. Friday in the city gym, 300 Baldwin St. The first session starts Monday and ends Dec. 19. The second session is slated Jan. 4-April 30. Fee is $10 per session.

A beginning baton class will be held Sept. 14-Oct. 15 in the gym from 5:20 to 6:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Fee is $7.

A beginning tennis class for adults is scheduled for 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in Ulmer Park. Session 2 will be for advanced players and session 3 for beginners. Dates are pending on the last two sessions.

Men's and women's volleyball games will be played from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays through April 23 in the city gym. There is no charge.

Men's and women's basketball is scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. on Thursdays through April 20 in the city gym. Again, there is no charge.

The first of six sessions of pre-school classes begin Tuesday. Two classes are held Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 10 a.m. and 10:15 to 11:45 a.m. The program is designed for 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds and includes music, dance, reading readiness, stories and games along with directed play activity. Classes are limited to 10 and fee is $16.50 per five-week session.

The sessions run Tuesday through Oct. 8, Oct. 12-Nov. 12, Nov. 16-Dec. 17, Jan. 4-Feb. 4, Feb. 8-March 18 and March 22-April 22.

A women's swim class is slated for two sessions. This program includes land flexibility exercises, water exercises and swimming instructions. The class will meet at Alamo YMCA pool.

The first session is Monday through Dec. 22 and the fee is $10. The second session runs Jan. 4-May 28 and the fee is $13. The class will meet from 10 to 11 a.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

The Midland Women's Tennis Association will meet once a week for doubles play at Midland College beginning in September and continuing through May. There will be two league sessions and a tournament. Two awards luncheons are scheduled. Membership is $7 per year. For further information call Sandra Geiselan at 694-6140 or Dana Chandler at 694-0532.

Second Awareness session Thursday

The second session of Midland Awareness, which is a series of workshops geared for better communication, will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the First National Room of the First National Bank.

Guest speakers for this session on education will be Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of Midland Independent School District; Dr. Joe Baressi, assistant superintendent of MISD; Kay Sowders, president of the City Council Parent-Teachers Association; Nell Ferguson, chairperson for Volunteers in Public Schools; Dean Camil Dakil of Midland College; and Wanda Phillips, director of adult basic education at MC.

The seven-month series is being sponsored by the Human Relations Council. According to HRC Director Kimberly Modisett, "Purpose of this series is to acquaint Midlanders with the governmental bodies, schools, hospitals and housing boards."

The first session dealt with city and county government. Other parts of the series will cover health facilities, housing, public utilities and how to get involved.

For more information, telephone 684-5866.

TRIM offers look at economic bills

"One of the most significant votes cast by the 97th Congress this year," said Bruce Wilbanks, chairman of the Permian Basin TRIM committee, "took place last February when it approved a $50 billion increase in the temporary ceiling on the national debt. That ceiling now stands at $985 billion.

"What is ironic about that vote," Wilbanks added, "is that a majority of Republicans joined with a sufficient number of Democrats to approve the measure."

TRIM, which stands for Tax Reform Immediately, wants voters to know how Congress votes on major economic bills. The local group is one of 300 nationwide whose goal is to lower taxes through less government.

The Permian Basin committee has published a Summer 1981 Bulletin as a public service. It contains articles about the constant growth in the national debt and how it causes inflation.

Wilbanks also pointed out that the publication includes a report of how U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, who represents Midland in the 19th Congressional District, voted on five money bills.

China's leaders plan celebration for Taiwan National Day

By MICHAEL WEISSKOPF
The Washington Post

PEKING — China's communist leaders are planning for the first time to mark Taiwan's Oct. 10 National Day with a major celebration aimed at lowering Taipei's resistance to the mainland's conciliatory gestures, according to diplomatic sources here.

Chinese officials planning the festivities, diplomats said, have even considered taking down Mao Tse-tung's portrait from the entrance of Tiananmen Square and replacing it for the day with a picture of Sun Yat-sen, who led the 1911 Nationalist Chinese revolution against the last dynasty.

Diplomats said that the celebration here also might include a more balanced official re-evaluation of Chiang Kai-shek, who set up the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan after the Communists grasped control of the mainland in 1949 and forced Chiang and his Nationalist Army to escape

Peking already has sent out invitations all over the world to the relatives of important Chinese historical figures, asking them to return for the Communists' unprecedented celebration of the Nationalist Chinese revolution, according to nonofficial Chinese sources.

The Bank of China earlier this week announced plans to issue special gold and silver coins commemorating the anniversary. One side will bear a full-length etching of Sun, and the other a portrayal of a famous Nationalist Chinese Army battle during the revolutionary fighting.

The Oct. 10 National Day — called "double ten" — normally is marked by parties and parades in Taiwan and by stony silence on the mainland, which considers the Oct. 1, 1949, revolution led by Mao's Communists to be the true national day of China.

Deng is hopeful that China's peaceful overtures will eventually pay off, according to diplomats with access to top Chinese policymakers. Thus Peking adopts various diplomatic initiatives, including the upcoming Oct. 10 celebration, to entice Chiang.

During recent talks with former U.S. president Jimmy Carter who visited Peking last week, Chinese leaders emphasized their proposal for "party-to-party" talks with the Nationalist Chinese, deflating Taipei's propaganda claims that the basis for their entering negotiations is assuming the role of provincial authorities.

According to sources familiar with the Carter visit, top Chinese officials stressed their "guarantees" to Taiwan about its ability to maintain its current way of life, saying too much was at stake to trick the Nationalists.

Iranian embassy condemns attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese newspapers speculated Saturday on the identity of French Ambassador Louis Delamare's assassins, with some pointing to pro-Iranian groups and others to dissident Palestinians.

The Iranian Embassy in Beirut condemned the attack as a "grieving terrorist attack."

Delamare's wife arrived to claim his body. A French government executive jet brought Francoise Leobon Delamare and her five children to Beirut airport.

The 59-year-old ambassador was killed Friday by three gunmen who pumped 11 bullets into his body with automatic pistols and a machine gun. His body was scheduled to be flown to France on Sunday.

A Leban se police spokesman said there were no clues to the assassins' identities. The spokesman, who declined to be identified, said there was no evidence to suggest pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon were involved.

At the Iranian Embassy, Hussein Lavasani, a visiting Foreign Ministry official, told reporters that the French government should follow Iran's example in condemning terrorists instead of harboring them.

There has been speculation that fanatic Shiite Moslems loyal to Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini were trying to kidnap Delamare in order to exchange him for Iran's ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, living in exile in Paris.

Iran has demanded the extradition of Bani-Sadr and of Massoud Rajavi, the leader of the underground Mujahedeen Khalq who fled with the ousted Iranian president to Paris on July 29. The Iranian government also objected to the French government's refusal to extradite the monarchists who hijacked an Iranian gunboat last month.

Another contributor to tensions between France and Iran was the French delivery of Mirage jets early this year to Iraq, which has been at war with Iran since Sept. 22, 1980.

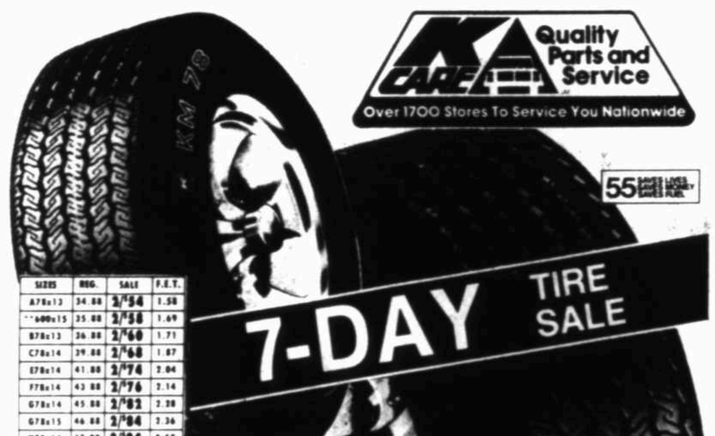

The independent Lebanese newspaper al-Anwar said Shiite Moslems, who make up the largest single sect in Lebanon, perhaps were responsible for Delamare's death.

The French Embassy in Beirut was bombed on Dec. 27. A Shiite Moslem group calling itself the Mujahedeen Saff — Holy Warrior Ranks — claimed responsibility for the attack and for blowing up a French Embassy car the same night.

Cowboys tackle new look Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new-look Washington Redskins, revamped from head coach to the color of their pants, host the Eastern Division rival Dallas Cowboys Sunday in the National Football League's season opener in the nation's capital.

The Redskins, including 22 players not with the team last year, will be guided by first-year head Coach Joe Gibbs.

"I know we have a lot of rookies (eight) and a lot of new players, but we dedicated ourselves to selecting the best 45 people," Gibbs said. "If this wasn't my first year, I couldn't sleep at night with all these (personnel) turnovers."

Gibbs, former offensive coordinator of the pass-happy San Diego Charger attack, replaced the fired Jack Pardee after a 6-10 Redskin finish in 1980. That was the team's worst record in 17 years.

The Cowboys, 12-4 last year under the only coach they have ever known, Tom Landry, are pointing toward a 16th straight playoff year while extending their opening game winning streak to a record 17 straight.

"The Cowboys have the the ability to win any time and win big," Gibbs said. "It can be scary knowing how good they are and how bad they can make you look. I just don't want to be embarrassed."

The 55,000-plus fans who are expected to jam Robert F. Kennedy Stadium for the Redskins' 108th consecutive sellout will have a hard time recognizing the home team.

On offense, Joe Washington, acquired from Baltimore in the off season, will start at halfback, John Riggins, back from a year's retirement, returns at fullback.

Former St.Louis star Terry Metcalf returns to the NFL in a Redskin uniform after a stay in Canada. Metcalf is expected to see action as a wing back and on kick returns for the injured Mike Nelms.

Quarterback Joe Theismann, in his eighth-year in the NFL, will start as will his favorite target, wide receiver Art Monk, who had 58 catches in 1980.

The starting offensive line features two of the eight rookies on the squad, No.1 pick Mark May at tackle and No.3 Russ Grimm at guard. The rookies should get some welcome from the Cowboys as they face the right side of a Dallas line that includes All-Pros Harvey Martin and Randy White.

The Redskin defense, 27th in the league against the run in 1980, must find a way to stop Cowboy runners Tony Dorsett, Ron Springs and James Jones. Each averaged better than five yards a carry during the preseason.

The Cowboys averaged more than 243 yards a game on the ground in winning two of four games. The Redskins, 3-1 in the preseason, kept opponents to 80 yards a game on the ground while holding their foes to a league-leading 49 points.

Cowboys quarterback Danny White completed 56 percent of his passes in the preseason, including five for touchdowns.

Don't tell this guy to take a flying leap or Aggies Jeff Fuller will block your punt as he does against California in action Saturday.

Lamar shocks Baylor

Bears, 18-17 Late 42-yard field goal sinks

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

WACO, Texas (AP) — Senior Mike Marlow kicked a 42-yard field goal with three seconds to play Saturday night to present the underdog Lamar Cardinals with an 18-17 non-confernce victory over the shocked Baylor Bears.

Baylor had appeared to be the winner after barefoot freshman Marty Jimmerson drilled a 41-yard field goal with 2:53 to play to hand the Bears a two-point lead.

Cardinal quarterback Fred Hessen completed a 21-yard fourth-down pass to the Baylor 49 to Howard Easley to help set up the last second dramatics. Jimmerson then worked the ball to the Baylor 20 for Marlow's last-second shot.

Hessen passed for one touchdown and sneaked a yard for another late in the fouth quarter, giving the underdog Cardinals a 15-14 lead before Jimmerson's kick.

Lamar of the Southland Conference gave Baylor two touchdowns because of poor play by its kick teams but made up the difference in the opener for both teams behind Hessen, a Navarro Junior College transfer.

Baylor, the defending Southwest Conference champion, led 14-9 at the end of the third quarter on a touchdown pass by Jay Jeffrey and his one-yard scoring run.

Hessen, who threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Herbert Harris, put the Cardinals ahead by a point with 6:59 to go on a 44-yard drive after Horace Ates fumbled to Marvin Boatman.

Baylor's only second half touchdown came after a poor punt by Mike Morley which traveled just six yards.

Baylor led only 7-3 at halftime thanks to a goof by the Cardinal kick return team.

With Lamar leading 3-0 on a 42-yard field goal by Marlow, the Bears punted to Ben Booker who fumbled and Scott Smith recovered at the Cardinal 11.

Three plays later Jeffrey hit receiver Gerald McNeil from six yards out for the touchdown. It was the first collegiate score for McNeil, a sophomore from Killeen.

Baylor wasted a golden scoring opportunity in the first quarter when it drove 89 yards to the Lamar only to see Walter Abercrombie fumble the ball away to cornerback Darryl Smith for a touchback.

Hessen completed 18 of 35 passes for 168 yards against the porous Bear secondary. The Cardinal defense held Abercrombie to just 50 yards on 16 carries as a crowd of 22,000 in Baylor Stadium groaned at the Baylor offensive misfires.

NM State tops UTEP, 14-7

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Junior quarterback Jamie McAlister passed for two touchdowns Saturday night to lead New Mexico State to a 14-7 victory over the University of Texas at El Paso.

McAlister hit Carry Locklin and Randy Swayne for touchdowns in the opener for the two schools, located 45 miles apart.

The Miners' lone touchdown came with 9:22 left in the game.

By DAVID EINSTEIN

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Texas A&M had a reputation last season of choking when the chips were down. That didn't happen Saturday, however, as the Aggies opened the 1981 football season with a 29-28 come-from-behind victory over California.

"We proved today we are not a choking team," said Aggie Coach Tom Wilson, whose club was 4-7 a year ago. "We're a good ball team."

The Aggies, trailing by 12 points at halftime, shut out the Bears in the second half and won on David Hardy's third field goal of the day, a 30-yarder with 6:15 to play.

"I just approached it like it would be my last kick of the day," said Hardy. "I did it just like I do in practice. I pretend we're one point behind."

Johnny Hector's six-yard touchdown run made the score 28-23, and Hardy brought the Aggies to within three points with a 40-yard field goal.

CALIFORNIA had taken a 28-16 lead in the first half, when speedster Floyd Eddings caught three touchdown passes, the last a 62-yarder from junior quarterback Jay Torchio.

Torchio, who entered the game in the first quarter after starter Gale Gilbert suffered a knee injury, also threw an 11-yard scoring pass to Eddings and ran four yards for a touchdown.

Gilbert opened the scoring with a 30-yard touchdown toss to Eddings.

Twice in the first half, Torchio completed passes for first downs from punt formations to keep touchdown dri% going. a fumble recovery by Kermit Foster as springboards for its first-half scoring.

Hardy kicked a 29-yard field goal in the first quarter for Texas A&M's first points, and the Aggies scored in the second period on a five-yard pass from Gary Kubiak to Jones and a two-yard run by Thomas Sanders.

Hector and Earnest Jackson rushed for 125 yards apiece to pace a no-nonsense ground game that accounted for 350 of the Aggies' 443 total yards.

Cal, unveiling its pass-oriented "run-and-shoot" offense, rolled up 348 yards through the air, with Torchio accounting for 232 of that on 14 completions of 30 attempts.

In the second half, however,the Bears collected just 56 yards — just two yards in the third quarter.

The Aggies marched 56 yards in 10 plays on their winning drive. They moved to the Cal 21-yard line on a 28-yard pass from Kubiak to Jones, and after seven running plays netted eight yards, Hardy kicked the winning field goal.

Hardy missed two other fourth-quarter field goal attempts from 30 and 42 yards.

Cooper tried a 52-yard field goal attempt for Cal with 28 seconds left. It was blocked by linebacker Will Wright.

Houston soph sparks 21-10 win

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston sophomore quarterback Audrey McMillian, who played only 41 minutes last season, scored two touchdowns and directed a potent ground game Saturday night to lead the Cougars to a season-opening 21-10 victory over New Mexico.

McMillian, the survivor of a series of UH quarterback injuries last season, ran one yard in the first quarter and nine yards in the second period to stake the Cougars to a 14-3 halftime lead.

McMillian engineered Houston's veer offense 70 yards in the first quarter and, facing fourth down at the Lobo one-yard line, plunged into the end zone.

In the second quarter, he keyed a 74-yard drive with runs of 17 and 11 yards, then rolled out to the left side for the final nine yards.

Running back Eddie Wright rammed two yards for a touchdown as time ran out in the fourth quarter. The run gave Wright an even 100 yards rushing for the game.

The Lobos got on the scoreboard in the second quarter on Pete Parks' 34-yard field goal and pulled closer in the third period on a two-yard touchdown plunge by Robin Gabriel.

Both New Mexico scores followed interceptions by safety Julius Johnson. Johnson picked off a McMillian pass at the Cougar 33 yard line in the second quarter to set up Parks' field goal.

Johnson's third-quarter interception at the Lobo 31 led to Gabriel's touchdown.

The Lobos, who opened last season with an upset victory over Brigham Young, threatened to do the same against the Cougars in the second half.

Gabriel, who completed 12 of 18 passes for 162 yards, hit key passes of 28 and 6 yards to John Lane during New Mexico's touchdown drive.

The Cougars apparently had stopped New Mexico at the two yard line when Houston's Weedy Harris tackled New Mexico's Mike Carter at the goal line. But offsetting penalties gave New Mexico a second chance and Gabriel scored from the two.

McMillian finished with 11 completions on 18 attempts for an even 100 yards passing. Wright was the game's leading rusher with 100 yards on 21 carries.

The Cougars gobbled up 239 yards on the ground to give them a total output of 339 yards for the game.

Angelo State wins, 16-10

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Junior defensive back Columbus Harris returned an interception 49 yards to set up Angelo State for the go-ahead score in the fourth quarter as the Rams took a 16-10 victory from the Alcorn State Braves Saturday in the season opener for both teams.

Harris picked off a James McFarland pass on the Angelo 40-yard line and returned it to the Alcorn 11 to set up a Jerry James 2-yard touchdown run with seven minutes left in the gaame.

Angelo state intercepted another pass early in the fourth period to stop an Alcorn drive and also recovered two Alcorn fumbles.

Freshman sparks Auburn over TCU

By KENDAL WEAVER

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Freshman fullback Ron O'Neal ran for two scores and set up a third with a 32-yard ramble as Auburn defeated Texas Christian 24-16 Saturday in a victorious debut for Auburn Coach Pat Dye.

O'Neal, a 245 pounder from Atlanta, Ga., sat out virtually all of the second half with leg cramps. But he helped stake Auburn to a 21 10 halftime lead with his bullish bursts up the middle, and Auburn held off TCU in the final quarters for victory in the opening game for both teams.

TCU's junior halfback, Marcus Gilbert, scored on runs of 80 and 13 yards to keep the Horned Frogs close. And TCU quarterback Steve Stamp teamed with flanker Stanley Washington in a brilliant aerial display throughout the game.

But Stamp was unable to push TCU across for a possible tie late in the fourth quarter, and its Southeastern Conference opponent ran out the clock on the Southwest Conference visitors.

O'Neal, who decided to go to Auburn after initially signing with Florida State University, shouldered across from one yard out to give Auburn a 7-3 lead in the first quarter. Then he shed tacklers at the line and burst up the middle for 25 yards to make it 14-3 early in the second quarter. His 32-yard run set up a Charles Thomas to Chris Woods touchdown pass for Auburn's third score in the first half.

Auburn's Al Del Greco was good on all three points after and kicked a 24-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to round out the Tigers' scoring.

TCU's Greg Porter kicked a 29-yard field goal to open the scoring in the first quarter.

After last year's 5-6 campaign, Auburn picked Dye to take over the Tigers. The TCU game marked his debut and the unveiling of Auburn's new wishbone offense.

But it also turned out to be O'Neal's debut. Playing only one half, he gained 75 yards on 11 rushes. After his one-yard score, he electrified the crowd by roaring up the middle 25 yards and giving Auburn a 14-3 lead.

Trainer John Brooks tends to Summer Encounter, one of four fillies in All-America.

Special Effort eyes Triple Crown

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Unbeaten Special Effort, the 2-year-old colt recently syndicated for $15 million, Monday gets a chance to become the first Triple Crown winner in quarter horse racing as the prohibitive favorite in the $1.5 million All-American Futurity.

In seemingly effortless fashion, the brilliant speedster has captured eight straight races in his first year on the track, including the Kansas and Rainbow futurities, which together with the All-American comprise quarter horse racing's version of the Triple Crown.

Only one other horse in the 22-year history of the race has captured the first two legs. That was Tiny's Gay in 1974, who like Special Effort went into the All-American unbeaten. But Tiny's Gay's streak was snapped when Easy Date scored a nose victory in the futurity.

And although the history of the All-American shows that more often than not the favorite has been upset, people connected with the challengers in the 10-horse field agree it will take a major change in Special Effort's form for him to lose the 440-yard race.

"I think Special Effort will have to make a bad mistake at the gate for any other horse to beat him," said jockey Jacky Martin, who will be aboard the fast-improving filly Summer Encounter.

Martin, who won the race aboard Moon Lark in 1978, said Special Effort has shown no weaknesses during his winning streak.

"I don't know if I've ever seen any horse better," said Martin. "He just doesn't make any mistakes."

After winning the Rainbow Futurity in late July, Special Effort was syndicated for $15 million, with shares sold for $100,000 each.

The first-place purse in the All-American is a record $528,000. The total purse of the All-American is $1.53 million, with a small percentage of that funneled into three consolation races for horses that did not qualify for the finals.

The 10-horse field was determined from two sets of trial races held in August that trimmed an original list of more than 200 nominees for the trials.

Special Effort had the fastest qualifying time of 21.78 seconds, followed by another colt, Viva El Seis. The latter arrived at Ruidoso Downs after winning four races in West Texas and Louisiana, then posted consecutive impressive wins in the trials to reach the All-American final.

Summer Encounter qualified despite having to run into a stiff head wind. The second half of the 14 trials last week that determined the futurity field were run into a strong wind, and the filly was the only qualifier from the last five races.

Special Effort, purchased in June by Canadian, Texas oilman Dan Urschel for $1 million, is easily the top money maker in the field with $498,723. A victory on Monday would make Special Effort the second quarter horse in history to earn more than $1 million. The first was Higheasterjet, who topped the $1 million mark last week with a win in the All-American Derby at Ruidoso Downs. Higheasterjet won the 1980 All-American Futurity as a 2-year-old.

Summer Encounter, whose trainer Jack Brooks says came out of the trials a little sore, has won four of five races this summer. Her only defeat came in the Rainbow Futurity, where she ran third behind Special Effort and stablemate Winkum. The filly has earned $58,800 for owner Jerry Wells of Purcell, Okla.

Go For Bugs, sired by the 1975 All-American winner Bugs Alive in 75, has earned $105,623 with four wins and two seconds in nine races

Some of best to miss All-American

Race of attrition

By PETE HERRERA

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — The All-American Futurity is billed as the million-dollar race for the fastest 2-year-old quarter horses in the country. But this year, because Mother Nature had an untimely change of moods, some of the summer's best runners won't answer the call for Monday's race.

To make the 10-horse field for the race that has a total purse of $1.53 million, a quarter horse had to battle his way through two sets of elimination trials over a two-week period.

In the first set of trials, the top three finishers advanced. But in the final trials, held Aug. 27, the field for the futurity was determined on the basis of time. That meant that futurity hopefuls were running against the clock, and a first-place finish did not necessarily assure a spot in the race.

And that is where Mother Nature came into play.

THROUGH THE first six of the 14 trial races, the horses running the 440-yard distance down the Ruidoso Downs stretch had a wind at their backs, improving their chances for a faster clocking.

Among the horses that qualified during that span was the unbeaten speedster Special Effort. His time of 21.78 seconds turned out to the best one of the day.

But from the seventh trial race on, the wind suddenly changed directions, and the remaining contenders found themselves running into a head wind. As a result, horses like Johnny Vittoro, Dashingly, Winkum and The Heat Is On all won trial races late in the day, but could not better the wind-aided times posted earlier in the day.

LEFT OUT OF the futurity field will be Johnny Vittoro and his winning streak of seven straight races. The colt has earned more than $133,000. Also out is the impressive California filly Dashingly, winner of five of seven races and more than $427,000.

Winkum, who trainer Jack Brooks said had a legitimate chance to stop Special Effort's winning streak, also will be on the sidelines, despite having won six of seven races this year and more than $128,000. Stable mate The Heat Is On has won eight of 11 races and more than $75,000, with victories in five of his last six starts.

Ironically, trainers prefer to run their horses late in the day when the winds in the Sacramento Mountains, where Ruidoso Downs is located, usually blow in a north to south direction.

"Unfortunately, it didn't work out that way in the trials," Brooks said. "Luck is always a big part in quarter horse racing."

Brooks did get two of his other horses into the finals, the filly Summer Encounter and the colt Greybon.

Post time for Monday's All-American Futurity is scheduled for approximately 6:49 p.m. (MDT).

MSU defeats Memphis State

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fullback Donald Ray King scored one touchdown and helped set up a field goal before leaving with an injury as 14th-ranked Mississippi State rolled to a 20-3 football victory over the Memphis State Tigers Saturday.

Sophomore quarterback John Bond led the Bulldogs to a field goal and two touchdowns on three straight possessions in the first half to seal the victory against the inexperienced but pesky Tigers in the opener for both teams.

King, a 210-pound senior, raced 27 yards to the Memphis State 38 in the first quarter as the Bulldogs scored on Dana Moore's 39-yard field goal. He then blasted three yards for a touchdown early in the second period.

But King suffered a bruised shoulder on his next carry and left the game with nine minutes left in the second quarter after running up 59 yards on nine carries.

Bond guided Mississippi State to its other second-period touchdown, directing a 71-yard, 11-play drive capped by reserve halfback George Wonsley's 10-yard scoring sweep.

Moore kicked a 51-yard field goal with 1:34 left in the game after missing third-quarter attempts of 51 and 41 yards.

SMU one, two punch floors UTA

By JOE STROOP

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Craig James rushed for 136 yards and three touchdowns while backfield running mate Eric Dickerson added 164 yards and another touchdown as Southern Methodist buried Texas-Arlington, 48-0, Saturday night.

The Mustang offense, sluggish during the first two periods, got untracked in the third quarter, notching three touchdowns on a 2-yard run by Dickerson and James scampers of 3 and 8 yards.

SMU overcame an abundance of mistakes to chalk up their ninth consecutive opening-game victory. The Mustangs lost four fumbles and gave up two interceptions, but the Mavericks could not capitalize.

The UTA offense was never able to cross the 50-yard line and its only possession in SMU territory came on one of Stacy Rayfield's two interceptions off Mustang quarterback Lance McIlhenny.

SMU opened the second half with an indication of the touchdown landslide that was to come by driving 80 yards in just eight plays to score less than four minutes into the period. Dickerson's 2-yard run was the capper.

James added a 12-yard touchdown run three plays into the fourth quarter and reserve fullback Lott McIlhenny, Lance's older brother, bulled 9 yards with 2:21 left in the game.

Safety Dwayne Anderson picked off an errant pass from reserve May quarterback Scott Lissak and returned it 39 yards for a touchdown with 49 seconds remaining to close out the scoring.

SMU punted only two times in the game, while the Mustang defense sacked UTA quarterbacks ten times and held the Mavericks to 27 yards total offense.

Tide sinks LSU, 24-7

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Ken Simon sprinted 51 yards for a touchdown with less than five minutes gone and Alabama's untested but explosive backfield came of age in a hurry as the fourth-ranked Crimson Tide opened its season by routing Louisiana State 24-7 Saturday night for Bear Bryant's 307th coaching victory.

Bryant, who will turn 68 next Friday, moved within seven games of Amos Alonzo Stagg's all-time mark of 314 college football coaching triumphs, and it was much easier than expected.

Alabama eased the legendary coach's worries about his offense as an all-new backfield of jackrabitts — quarterback Ken Coley, halfbacks Joe Carter and Jeff Fagan and fullback Simon — ran and passed LSU dizzy.

Meanwhile, the heralded Crimson Tide defense showed why it has been touted as one of the best in the nation, never letting LSU get closer than the Alabama 33-yard line until the final 3½ minutes. To put it mildly, Alabama was awesome.

The Tigers finally scored with 13 seconds remaining on a 5-yard pass from freshman quarterback Timmy Byrd to tight end Malcolm Scott.

Peter Kim kicked a 20-yard field goal at 2:21 of the second period and second-string quarterback Walter Lewis capped an 88-yard, 11-play drive by scoring from 4 yards out 7½ minutes later for a 17-0 halftime bulge.

About the only thing Alabama didn't show in the opening half was a strong punting game — because the Tide never had to punt. When they finally did, however, Malcolm Simmons unloaded a pair of 59-yarders.

Alabama stunned the Tigers, silenced a capacity mob of 78,066 — third largest in Tiger Stadium history — and wowed a national television audience by reeling off four extra-long gainers in the first half. Besides Simon's 51-yard touchdown run, Coley raced 51 yards on a keeper and hit Fagan with a 49-yard pass, while Lewis dashed 42 yards six plays before his touchdown.

And, to add insult to injury, third-string quarterback Paul Fields lofted a 44-yard touchdown pass to Mark Nix with 9:16 left to play.

Oilers encounter changed Rams

ANAHEIM (AP) — Houston's Oilers and the Los Angeles Rams, both of whom reached the National Football League playoffs last season, open their 1981 campaigns Sunday with each having made changes.

Ed Biles has taken over as coach for the Oilers while Pat Haden returns as quarterback of the Rams, a spot he lost via injury to Vince Ferragamo a year ago.

Ferragamo went to Canada and the Houston coaching change came when Bum Phillips was fired.

In the opening playoff round last year, Houston lost to Oakland and Los Angeles fell to Dallas.

In this preseason, the Rams finished 2-2 and Houston 1-3 but the Oilers now have Ken Stabler back as quarterback following a brief retirement.

When Stabler announced he didn't plan to play this season, John Reaves came as a free agent to the Houston camp and, after a year out of pro football, and took over the position.

Biggest job for the Rams will be trying to stop Earl Campbell who in three seasons has set three NFL rushing records including four games in 1980 when he ran for 200 yards or more.

A capacity crowd of 69,000 is assured for the opener as the Rams start their second season in Anaheim Stadium with the 1 p.m. PST kickoff.

Los Angeles has three players back who missed the preseason finale with injuries — running back Wendell Tyler, tackle Doug France and cornerback Rod Perry.

Houston is expected to be at full strength although linebackers Gregg Bingham and Teddy Washington each has a broken finger and cornerback J. C. Wilson has a broken thumb.

What started as a peaceful training camp for Los Angeles, erupted into some turmoil when it was announced that veteran defensive end Fred Dryer, a starter the past eight seasons, would be released. But he was eventually kept after pointing out his $220,000 cotract contained a no-cut clause.

In any event, Cody Jones will be the starter, moving over from tackle.

In the preseason, Haden hit 44 of 79 passes for 575 yards and three touchdowns. But he was intercepted 10 times. Reaves was 41 of 71 for 472 yards and one touchdown, but was intercepted just three times.

Stabler came out of his retirement just in time to see brief action in the 28-20 loss to Dallas last week. He passed only five times and completed three for 26 yards.

Bucs beat Vikes, 21-13

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Neal Colzie gambled, and it paid off.

Colzie picked off a last-ditch pass to stop Minnesota deep in Tampa Bay territory with the clock ticking off the final seconds of the Buccaneers' National Football League opener with the Vikings Saturday night.

The veteran safety raced 82 yards with the game-saving interception to guarantee the Bucs a 21-13 victory.

"You've got to anticipate the pass," said the seven-year veteran from Ohio State. "I was gambling. You've got to gamble to win games.

"They had been running that little dinky down-and-out all night."

He said he told teammate Cedric Brown that if Minnesota ran one more short pass pattern like that: "I'm going to jump on it. So I jumped on it."

Coach John McKay was a little more explicit. "Colzie got us out of the fire," he said.

Asked to sum up the opener, McKay replied: "Artistic it wasn't. A triumph it was."

Veteran quarterback Doug Williams threw 55 yards to Kevin House for a touchdown and scrambled 10 yards for another to lead the Bucs to the victory over the defending National Football Conference Central Division champions.

Colzie, a seven-year veteran from Ohio State, stopped another scoring threat earlier when he picked off Ted Brown's halfback pass at the Tampa 21. And in the third quarter, he bottled up Brown on a third-and-three situation at the Bucs seven, forcing the Vikings to settle for Danmeier's 25-yard field goal that left them trailing 7-6.

Tampa's rugged defense kept pressure on Dils all night, but Minnesota still manage to roll up 446 total yards. Tampa, meanwhile, compiled 219 total yards.

Minnesota committed two turnovers in the second quarter, but Tampa could not capitilize.

NFL kicks off another new grid season

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League's 62nd season opens in full force Sunday with four new head coaches and swirls of controversy.

Bum Phillips in New Orleans, Ed Biles in Houston, Joe Gibbs in Washington and Dan Reeves in Denver will be trying to discover or rediscover greatness for their teams.

Phillips was unceremoniously kicked out of Houston after his Oilers were unceremoniously kicked out of the playoffs by the Oakland Raiders, last season's eventual Super Bowl champions. He and the league's No.1 draft choice, running back George Rogers, have been handed the task of finding a winning combination for the Saints, a team which has never had a winning season since entering the league in 1967 and sank to a 1-15 record last year.

Biles was Phillips' defensive corrdinator in Houston. He takes over a team with one of the league's true "franchise" players, three-time rushing champion Earl Campbell, and one of the league's most controversial players, quarterback Ken Stabler.

Stabler, entering his 12th season in the league and his second with the Oilers after being traded from the Oakland Raiders, announced his retirement just before training camp opened in July. And barely a week ago and came out of retirement and signed with the Oilers.

Only last Sunday, a lengthy New York Times story chronicled what Raiders' boss Al Davis said was a connection in the late 1970s between Stabler and Nicholas Dudich, a New Jersey gambling figure. Davis also said the Raiders had contracted the league on more than a dozen occasions — a figure the NFL disputes — regarding the Stabler-Dudich relationship.

In Washington, Gibbs succeeds Jack Pardee, now an assistant in San Diego. That's where Gibbs was last year, as one of the architects of the Chargers' pass-happy offense. With the Redskins, he is expected to unleash quarterback Joe Theismann. He has a lot of other weapons at his disposal, including backs John Riggins, who sat out Washington's 1980 season in a salary dispute; Terry Metcalf, who returns to the NFL after several uninspiring seasons in Canada, and Joe Washington, Baltimore's rushing and receiving leader two years ago.

Washington, which has not been a playoff team since 1976, opens the season at home against arch-rival Dallas.

Reeves was one of Tom Landry's assistants in Dallas for 11 years. He is expected to revamp the Broncos' stagnant offense, overhauling it with the multiple-set attack made famous by the Cowboys. Denver fell to 8-8 last year after reaching the playoffs as a wild-card team in 1979. The Broncos will host Oakland.

The Raiders are not only the defending NFL champions, but are in the midst of litigation with the league. Davis is seeking to force the league to permit him to move his franchise to Los Angeles. The first trial ended in a hung jury and still more controversy and a second trial is to begin later this month.

Meanwhile, the Raiders' band of outcasts will be going about the business of trying to prove that 1980 was no fluke. And none will be trying harder that quarterback Jim Plunkett, whose remarkable comeback from the NFL ash heap culminated in his three touchdown passes against Philadelphia en route to a 27-10 triumph over the Eagles and his selection as the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player.

The Saints begin their return to respectability — they hope — in Atlanta, where the Falcons begin their first season as a defending champion. They won the National Conference's Western Division title in 1980 with a 12-4 record as quarterback Steve Bartkowski came of age in his sixth year in the league. Bartkowski ranked third in the league in passing, just behind Vince Ferragamo of the Los Angeles Rams.

Two more bomb-throwers, Cleveland's Brian Sipe and San Diego's Dan Fouts (both of whom were victimized by the Raiders in the playoffs), meet Monday night in Cleveland.

Sunday's other season-opening games are Baltimore at New England, Miami at St. Louis, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, San Francisco at Detroit, Seattle at Cincinnati, Green Bay at Chicago and the New York Jets at Buffalo.

Haas' birdie spree opens 3-stroke lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Jay Haas strung together four birdies on the last nine holes to break out of a tie with Tom Kite and Denis Watson and take a three-stroke lead after three rounds of the $275,000 B.C. Open golf tournament Saturday.

Haas shot a third round 2-under-par 69 to go into Sunday's final round with a 12-under-par 201 total for the first 54 holes. He shot a 65 Friday to take the lead after opening the tournament at the En-Joie Country Club course with a 67.

First-round leader Calvin Peete, who opened the tournament with a 6-under-par 64, ballooned to a 2-over-par 73 in the third round and fell six strokes behind the leader.

Kite looked strong early Saturday, making birdies on four of the first five holes to briefly lead the field by a stroke before making a bogey on the sixth hole. Kite finished the day with a 69, making him the closest challenger at three strokes behind Haas.

Watson, a newcomer to the tour from South Africa, bogeyed three holes on the back nine and finished with a 70, putting him four strokes behind Haas, along with Bobby Clampett.

Gary McCord moved to within one stroke of the leaders after the first nine holes Saturday, but faltered on the back nine, making a double bogey on No. 17 that left him seven strokes off the pace.

Britz takes Rail lead

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Jerilyn Britz, absent from the tour the past two weeks, fired a 67 Saturday to take the lead after the first round of the $125,000 LPGA Rail Charity Golf Classic.

The eight-year tour veteran, who has only two victories in her pro career, was alone atop a field of 101 in the 54-hole event.

She played what she called an "uneventful round" on the 6,281-yard Rail Golf Club course, with three birdies on the front nine and three on the back side en route to her total of 67, 5 under par.

Two strokes back at 69 were Dale Lundquist, Vicki Fergon, Patty Sheehan and Patty Hayes.

Another five golfers were tied at 70, including veterans JoAnne Carner and Pat Bradley, ranked second and third this year on the LPGA money list.

Defending champion Nancy Lopez-Melton, rejoining the tour after a shoulder injury, was among nine golfers at 71, 1 under par.

Lopez-Melton double-bogeyed the first hole, but birdied two of the last three to put herself back in the running.

With only three rounds on the par-72 course instead of the usual four, the golfers were wary of falling too far behind on the first day.

"If you mess up one day, you don't have time to recover," remarked Britz after finishing one of her best rounds of the year.

The Luverne, Minn., resident made headlines in 1979 when she won the LPGA Open, but admits she's fallen on hard times this season.

"It's been a little more of a struggle this year than it has been the past couple of years," Britz said.

Ashford, Ovett post wins in World track

ROME (AP) — Evelyn Ashford, United States sprinter, won the women's 100-meter dash in 11.02 seconds Saturday night and became the first double champion of the track and field World Cup, while world record holder Steve Ovett of Britain took the 1,500 in relatively slow time.

For Ashford, winner of the 200 meters Friday night, it was her second consecutive sprint double in World Cup competition. She also won the 100 and 200 at World Cup II in 1979 at Montreal.

But two disasters struck the U.S. team.

Henry Marsh, after finishing first in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, was disqualified for not clearing two of the obstacles properly. And discus thrower John Powell failed to show up.

"There goes the meet," said a U.S. team official. "That's two events where we get no points at all."

At the end of the second day, Europe led the men's standings with 107 points. East Germany had 98, the Soviet Union 91 and the United States 87.

Europe also led the women's team race with 69 points, a half-point ahead of East Germany. The Russians were third with 64 and the United States fourth with 51.

Ovett, representing Europe, won the 1,500 as expected. The track was damp and slow after heavy rain, and Ovett's time of 3:34.95 was more than 3½ seconds outside his world record of 3:31.36.

Ovett finished more than a half-second ahead of John Walker of New Zealand, a member of the Oceania team. Olaf Beyer of East Germany was third.

Braxton decisions Scott

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Dwight Braxton posted a unanimous 10-round decision over tough James Scott, with whom he used to spar when he was a fellow prisoner, in a light heavyweight fight at Rahway State Prison.

Judges Charlie Spina and Dick Burnell each gave Braxton the fight 6-3-10 while referee Larry Hazzard had the Camden, N.J., slugger ahead 5-4-1.

Scott, an inmate at the prison, was never hurt during the fight, but he threw few punches and fought mostly on the defensive.

"He proved one thing, You can get a fair decision at Rahway. Maybe more opponents will come in here now," said Scott serving concurrently a term for armed robbery and a life sentence for murder.

Braxton himself served 2½ years at Rahway, and said he was not intimidated by the prison or Scott's leering stare, which bothered Scott's previous opponents at Rahway.

"It's a good feeling coming back here as a success — a true success. I rolled up my sleeves and worked hard," said Braxton. "He's slow as molasses, it's just that he's tough. It's hard to knock a man out who doesn't commit. He could have won a track meet today." Braxton said of Scott's unaggressive performance.

Turning to walk out through the prison bars, Braxton said, "this is the last time I'm coming back here."

Ballesteros sets pace in European golf

Severiano Ballesteros shot 67 Saturday to open a four-stroke lead with a 203 after three rounds of the European Open at Hoylake, Eng. Graham Marsh of Australia and Irishman Des Smyth shared second place at 207...

Steve Ovett said he has had an outstanding season despite a relaxed training schedule, and predicted his world record in the 1,500 meters would fall easily in 1982. "I haven't worked that hard. I'm running on last year's training. I don't think I'll be the only one. I think a lot of people will do it," said after after winning the 1,500 in 3:34.95 on a damp, slow track at the World Cup track meet in Rome...

The Texas League's two first-half winners, San Antonio and Jackson won Friday's playoff openers as Orel Hershiser pitched 5 2/3 innings and Brett Wise took the save in San Antonio's 4-3 win over Amarillo. A single by Greg Shultze in the fifth scored the clincher as Mark Thurmond took the loss. In the East, Rick Ownbey struck out 14 and allowed only two hits to lead Jackson to a 1-0 win over Tulsa. Rick McMullen scored the run in the sixth after he and Marvell Wynne hit back-to-back doubles with two outs. Ron Darling took the loss for Tulsa...

Terry Baker, a Maryland school teacher, won the annual 15-mile Charleston, W.Va., Distance Run Saturday with a time of 1 hour, 15 minutes, 43 seconds. John Dotson finished second among the more than 1,500 runners with a time of 1:16:12. Bill Haviland, a three-time winner of the event, was third...

Tony Solaita hit his 39th homer of the Japanese League baseball season, leading the first-place Nippon Ham Fighters to a 10-7 victory over the Nankai Hawks Saturday. The Hankyu Braves downed the Kintetsu Buffaloes 8-6 as ex-major leaguer Wayne Cage belted a two-run homer, his 30th homer of the season. Terry Whitfield hit a three-run homer, his 21st homer of the season, helping the Seibu Lions beat the Lotte Orions 8-5... University of Oregon senior Alberto Salazar will defend his New York City Marathon title Oct. 25 when, competing in his first marathon in the 1980 New York City event, scored a stunning victory in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 41 seconds... The touring South African Springboks turned in a spectacular dress rehearsal for next week's vital third rugby test against New Zealand by whipping New Zealand's largest province, Auckland, 39-12... Trevor Francis marked his English League soccer debut with Manchester City with two goals in a 3-1 victory over previously unbeaten Stoke City... Dwight Salisbury, who never has won a major title in a more than 15 years of competition, qualified for the 27th U.S. Nationals on Saturday at 5.637 seconds — the third-fastest quarter-mile clocking in the history of drag racing...

Marino's TD strikes pace Pitt to victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Junior quarterback Dan Marino, unruffled by a shaky start, threw two touchdown passes to lead eighth-ranked Pittsburgh to a 26-6 victory over Illinois Saturday in their college football opener.

Marino hit only two of 14 passes in the first half, but one of them was a 19-yard touchdown toss to flanker Dwight Collins that gave Pitt a 14-0 lead with 1:20 left in the first quarter.

The score came one play after Illinois' Chris Sigourney shanked a 16-yard punt out of bounds.

Earlier in the first quarter, Pitt's Wayne DiBartola ran four yards for a touchdown, set up by a fumble by Illinois running back Darrell Smith at his own 11.

BYU's McMahon riddles Long Beach defenses

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon, the nation's leading passer last season, threw for 403 yards Saturday to pace 16th-ranked Brigham Young to a 31-6 non-conference football victory over Long Beach State in the 1981 opener for both teams.

McMahon completed 28 of his 45 passes and had two throws intercepted. He did not connect for any scores, however, as the BYU defense provided two touchdowns and the others came on runs.

The Cougars clinched the game with 14 points in the third quarter after leading 17-0 at halftime. Running back Waymon Hamilton scored BYU's third touchdown of the game on a 2-yard burst midway through the third period. Safety Tom Holmoe provided the next Cougar touchdown when he blocked a punt by the 49ers' Mike Horan and recovered the ball in the Long Beach end zone late in the third quarter.

BYU, the defending Western Athletic Conference champ, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when running back Scott Pettis sprinted 10 yards for a touchdown.

Miami wins on late 55-yard field goal

MIAMI (AP) — Danny Miller kicked a 55-yard field goal that hit the left upright and bounced through with 45 seconds to play Saturday to lift Miami of Florida to a 21-20 college football upset of No.17 Florida.

Miller, who created a stir last November when he kicked a field goal as time expired in a 31-7 Miami rout of the Gators, was mobbed at midfield by teammates as a season-opening crowd of 73,817 went wild.

Junior quarterback Mark Richt, who replaced injured starter Jim Kelly in the third quarter, directed the game-winning drive, which began at the Miami 36-yard line with 2:48 remaining.

A key play in the march which reached the Florida 34 was a 20-yard completion to reserve tight end Glenn Dennison. Three plays later, Miller came on in a fourth-and-14 situation and kicked the winning three-pointer.

Florida took the ensuing kickoff and drove to the Miami 42-yard line, but Brian Clark's 59-yard field goal attempt fell short as time ran out.

Florida turned two first-half interceptions into touchdowns that lifted the Gators to a 14-3 halftime lead.

Fullback James Jones ran 7 yards for a touchdown and a 7-3 Florida lead after senior defensive tackle David Galloway picked off a Kelly pass at the Miami 25 and rambled 18 yards.

Florida's second touchdown — a 37-yard scoring pass from Wayne Peace to wide receiver Spencer Jackson — came after an interception by sophomore safety Tony Lilly.

The Gators, who were 0-10-1 two years ago but 8-4 in 1980, dominated the Hurricanes in the opening 30 minutes. But Kelly engineered an 11-play, 82-yard touchdown drive in the opening five minutes of the third period for Miami, 9-3 a year ago.

Seminoles win

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Freshmen Mike Rendina, Billy Allen and Jesse Hester scored all the points Saturday night as 19th-ranked Florida State blew by Louisville 17-0 in a season-opening college football game.

Tailback Allen, discovered at a European coaching clinic playing Air Force football, broke away on a late 50-yard scoring jaunt to put the contest out of the Cardinals' reach. His touchdown with 4:56 to play ended a defensive struggle that began after Florida State posted a 10-point lead in the first quarter.

Allen was the Seminoles' leading ground threat, gaining 89 yards in eight carries.

Tigers' Petry hurls shutout at Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Right-hander Dan Petry scattered four singles to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 1-0 victory over the Texas Rangers Saturday night.

The Tigers scored the game's only run in the second inning when Kirk Gibson walked, advanced to third on Richie Hebner's single and scored on a groundout by Bill Fahey.

Petry, 8-6, struck out eight and walked only one in registering his second shutout of the season.

Losing pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, 5-8, went six innings, allowing six hits and stranding eight runners in the first four innings. Jim Kern pitched the final three innings for Texas.

Petry gave up singles in each of the first three innings and also survived a walk and an error before retiring 11 straight Rangers. Billy Sample's single broke the string in the eighth with two out.

Yanks Righetti silences Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dave Righetti retired the first 11 Kansas City hitters and Graig Nettles scored both runs Saturday as the New York Yankees slipped past Kansas City 2-1.

Righetti, 5-2, faced the minimum number of batters until George Brett doubled with two out in the fourth.

The Yankees managed only four hits off Larry Gura, 9-6, who had won five straight decisions in the second half.

Nettles walked leading off the fifth and scored two outs later when Willie Randolph doubled into left field.

The Royals, snapping a scoreless string of 19 innnings, tied it in the sixth. Willie Wilson singled leading off, when Righetti balked, stole third and scored when Amos Otis singled.

Nettles led off the seventh with a bloop double, took third on Dennis Werth's sacrifice bunt and scored on Larry Milbourne's sacrifice fly.

Slaton's no-hit bid spoiled by Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Veteran Jim Slaton no-hit Minnesota for eight complete innings before giving up three hits and three runs in the ninth, but the Milwaukee Brewers held off the Twins 5-3 Saturday.

Slaton, 5-6, had faced only one batter over the minimum entering the ninth before giving up a line-drive single to Sal Butera, the eighth batter in the Twins' order.

Pinch-hitter Kent Hrbek followed with a clean single to right and leadoff hitter Hosken Powell then drilled his first homer of the year, to right-center field.

Pirates win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Steve Nicosia and Lee Lacy delivered run-scoring singles to lift Rick Rhoden to his eighth victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the San Diego Padres 2-1 Saturday night.

Remy's four hits, Tudor relief job key Bosox win

BOSTON (AP) — Jerry Remy collected four straight hits, including a pair of bunt singles, and John Tudor hurled 5 1-3 innings of one-hit relief as the Boston Red Sox rode a weird six-run fifth inning Saturday to a 12-5 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Remy, who has 12 hits in his last 19 times at-bat in raising his average to .331, keyed the big fifth inning with a double and then set up an insurance run by beating out his 13th bunt hit of the season in the sixth. He then was forced to retire with a mild hamstring pull.

In his longest performance since June 8, Tudor, 3-3, struck out four and walked two after the Mariners had shelled starter Dennis Eckersley for eight hits and five runs in the first 3 2-3 innings.

Held to three hits and two runs, one unearned, by Seattle starter Ken Clay, 0-5, the Red Sox combined five hits, an error, a wild pitch, a passed ball and a sacrifice fly which resulted in an inning-ending double play to score six runs.

Glenn Hoffman started the inning with a single and took second on a passed ball.

Blue Jays win

CHICAGO (AP) — John Mayberry's tie-breaking pinch single in the seventh inning backed the strong pitching of Jim Clancy and led the Toronto Blue Jays to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday night.

Cleveland sweeps two

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookie pitcher Tom Brennan picked up a victory in his first major league appearance and Dan Spillner pitched 3 2-3 innings of hitless relief to pace the Cleveland Indians to a 4-2 victory over the Califorinia Angels and a sweep of their Saturday doubleheader.

The Indians won the opener 4-2 with the help of Bert Blyleven's six-hitter and a three-run fifth inning.

Phillies rally to down Reds 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose's two-run single climaxed a two-out rally by Philadelphia in the eighth inning Saturday night and gave the Phillies a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Mario Soto, 8-8, had two outs and none on in the eighth before Greg Gross walked and Manny Trillo singled. Tom Hume replaced Soto and walked Lonnie Smith to load the bases before Rose lined a single to left field.

George Foster's lead-off home run in the top of the eighth had given the Reds a 4-3 lead. Ron Reed gave up the homer, Foster's 19th, but he blanked the Reds in the ninth for his third victory in four decisions.

The Reds had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to tie the game in the sixth. Dave Collins reached first on an error by shortstop Larry Bowa before Paul Householder hit his first major league homer to end starter Steve Carlton's scoreless string at 28 2-3 innings.

Then with two outs, Foster walked, Johnny Bench singled and Ray Knight ripped an RBI single to tie the score.

Home runs lift Orioles to win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Terry Crowley hit a three-run home run in the sixth inning and John Lowenstein followed with the first of his two solo homers to rally the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday night.

Crowley, who was 0-for-16 at the plate, smacked a 2-1 pitch from Rick Langford, 8-9, into the right field bleachers for his third homer of the season. The blast came with Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray, both of whom had singled, on base and wiped out a 3-0 Oakland lead.

Lowenstein then walloped a 1-0 pitch over the right field fence for his fifth homer of the season and a 4-3 Baltimore lead. Lowenstein hit his second homer off Langford in the eighth.

Steve Stone, 4-4, last year's American League Cy Young Award winner, fell behind 1-0 in the third inning when Jeff Newman doubled off the left field wall, moved to third on Rob Picciolo's sacrifice and scored on Dwayne Murphy's single.

Dawson, Raines homer for Expos

Ray Burris beats Astros

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson cracked a two-run homer and Tim Raines added a solo blast to support the eight-hit pitching of Ray Burris as the Montreal Expos snapped a nine-game Houston winning streak with a 5-2 victory over the Astros Saturday.

Burris, 7-5, undefeated in four decisions since the baseball strike, struck out four and walked one in recording his first victory over the Astros since July 31, 1977, while with the Chicago Cubs. Burris allowed only two RBI singles to Alan Ashby, one in the second inning and another in the ninth.

Dawson staked Burris to a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his home run off from Don Sutton, 7-8, after Rodney Scott singled. It was Dawson's 20th homer of the year and came at a time when Montreal had been held to one run in their last 29 innings.

The Astros' failure to turn a double play on a bases-loaded grounder by Gary Carter enabled Montreal to extend its margin to 4-1 in the third.

Raines hammered a 2-0 pitch from Sutton for his fourth homer of the season to give Montreal a 5-1 lead in the seventh.

Valentine sparks Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Ellis Valentine drove in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly, leading the New York Mets to a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

Pat Zachry, 7-10, Mike Marshall and Neil Allen combined on a seven-hitter to beat Gaylord Perry, 6-6. It was the fifth time that Perry attempted to win the 296th game of his major league career.

Claudell Washington's third home run of the season narrowed New York's lead to 3-2 in the sixth but the Mets got the run back and knocked Perry out in the bottom half of the inning. John Stearns and Frank Taveras opened with singles but Doug Flynn hit into a double play. After pinch-hitter Mike Cubbage walked, Mookie Wilson singled to center to score the run and finish Perry.

National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 26, is less than a momth away. Thousands of sportsmen across the country are already making plans to celebrate this event which has been widely described as "having done more to ensure a healthy future for the hunting and fishing sports than any other program in existence."

For the most part, these sportsmen are the same ones who have participated in and supported NHFD since it was established in 1972.

Thousands of other sportsmen, however, have never participated and have never had the opportunity to visit an NHFD program and learn about the vital role hunters and fishermen play in conservation.

RECENT years have seen an increase in the number of people who oppose hunting. Another trend which should concern sportsmen is the continuing decline in the amount of available wildlife habitat.

If these trends continue, the future of hunting, wildlife and wilderness itself could be seriously threatened.

NHFD can help preserve these trends by increasing public awareness of the need of conservation and fostering a better public understanding of the vital contributions hunters and fishermen make to conservation.

Sportsmen can organize an almost endless variety of activities for NHFD — from sponsoring an NHF Day poster contest to organizing an "open house" to 10,000 at a sportsmen's jamboree or shopping center NHFD program.

HOW CAN IT HELP?

Nearly six out of 10 Americans are not aware of the contributions hunters make to conservation, according to a recent study conducted by the National Shooting Sports Foundation. A more ominous statistic for hunters is that 24 percent of the people in the U.S., including three out of 10 women and 47 percent of all teen-aged girls, oppose hunting.

These statistics, coupled with shrinking wildlife habitat and the activities of the anti-hunting lobbies, might seem to indicate a bleak future for hunting.

It doesn't have to happen. NHFD provides sportsmen with an opportunity to show non-hunters how hunters and fishermen are a necessary part of effective management of wildlife populations. It also provides a means of telling the public how it is important to conserve wildlife habitat for non-game as well as game species.

By making the non-sportsman aware of the hunter's role in conservation, National Hunting and Fishing Day can help foster a more positive public attitude toward hunters and hunting and greater public awareness of the need to conserve wildlife habitat.

The success of NHFD in reaching the public with three important messages depends upon sportsmen organizing activities in conjunction with NHF Day. All it takes is one sportsman.

Programs can range from an "open house" at a local conservation or sportsmen's club to a countywide sportsmen's jamboree sponsored by dozens of groups. Other activities sportsmen can play for NHFD include organizing an NHF Day poster contest or visiting their local school to show conservation oriented films and filmstrips.

Local and area bass clubs, gun clubs, conservation groups and trap and skeet clubs — this is one great opportunity to meet the challenge of teaching youngsters the appreciation of nature and its value in today's society.

Big ones in hiding at Oak Creek Lake

BY ROD N. REELE

At Oak Creek Lake, the big bass have been elusive, but from 1 1/2 pounds down, they have been a dime a dozen. The Sweetwater Bass Club tournament produced some nice catches with Ronnie Hair's five-pound, two-ouncer and 13-14 taking honors...

It's time to start baiting trotlines again for the yellow cat are starting to move. W.A. Sylvester took three yellows nine, 13 and 21 pounds. Top bass for the week when to Ronnie Parsons, Sweetwater, with a six pound, seven ouncer at Oak Creek...

MOURNING DOVE season is underway and continues through Oct. 30 in the North Zone and Nov. 2 in the South Zone. Daily bag limit is 12 with possession limit 24 and shooting hours are 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset, except today and next weekend.

White winged doves season is this weekend and next in the Rio Grande-bordering counties in North and South zones. Check with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for a map identifying the exact counties. Bag limit is 10 and possession limit 20 with shooting hours from noon to sunset today and next Saturday and Sunday for both white-winged and mourning doves.

TPWD officials remind hunters that white-winged dove sanctuaries are still in effect in Cameron, Hidalgo and Starr Counties. They are located in a narrow strip of land adjacent to the Rio Grande. Sanctuary A areas are closed on even-numbered years. "Temporary signs used since 1978 to mark the boundaries of the sanctuaries will not be set up this year," advised dove program leader Ron George. "The signs were eliminated once we felt hunters had become accustomed to the sanctuary system...

TEAL HUNT season is scheduled Sept. 12-20 and hunters are warned a $5 state waterfowl stamp is required along with a hunting license. Teal hunters in a six-county area in southeast Texas are warned they must use nontoxic steel loads in their shotguns...

Dove and quail hunters will be allowed to hunt the new Choke Canyon Wildlife Management area near Three Rivers beginning Nov. 1,. Construction of the dam and development of the area precludes opening the area prior to hunting before Nov. 1.

Mourning dove will be allowed only through Nov. 2 and will reopen Jan. 2 and continue through Jan. 17. Quail may be hunted at Choke Canyon Nov. 1 through Jan. 31 with hunts held only Monday though Thursday. during the season. Hunters will be able to get permits on a first come, first serve basis at the deparment check station at Callham, 10 miles west of Three Rivers.

McEnroe, Lloyd easy Open winners

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe and Chris Evert Lloyd, the defending champions and No. 1 seeds, advanced easily Saturday into the fourth round of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

McEnroe, who has won here the last two years, topped Pat DuPre 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, while Lloyd, going for her sixth title in seven years, crushed Wycia Moulton 6-3, 6-0.

Two of the top men's seeds, No. 3 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and No. 5 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina, struggled in their third-round matches at the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadow. Lendl beat back an upset bid by little-known Mark Vines 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, while Clerc needed five sets to eliminate Mel Purcell 6-3, 0-6, 0-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Duk Hee Lee of South Korea upset No. 9 Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-1, 4-6, 7-5, staving off five match points. Ruzici had led 5-3 in the third set when a line call caused her to lose her concentration and, eventually, the match.

In other matches, third-seeded Tracy Austin eliminated Pam Casale 6-3, 6-0; No. 5 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia stopped Great Britain's Glynis Coles 6-2, 6-1; No. 12 Bettina Bunge of West Germany defeated Leigh Ann Thompson 2-6, 7-6, 6-3, and No. 14 Kathy Jordan beat Corinne Vanier of France 6-2, 6-1.

In men's singles, No. 15 Vitas Gerulaitis ousted Harold Solomon 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

McEnroe lost his serve only once, in the seventh game of the first set, as he cruised to victory. The brash left-hander served five aces in the third set, three of them coming on second serves as he completely dominated his foe.

Lloyd also had an easy time posting her third consecutive victory. She was bothered by Moulton's big serve in the first set, but her steady baseline game was too much for her opponent.

Clerc and Purcell battled for 2 hours, 22 minutes in the nationally televised match on CBS. The right-hander from Murray, Ky., who looks smaller than his listed height of 5-foot-10, caught a tired Clerc, who had played a five setter Friday in the second round.

"I think he was physically tired from yesterday," Purcell said. But the experienced Clerc, who won four straight tournaments and 24 matches -all on clay - earlier this year, battled back after losing the second and third sets without winning a game.

"I tried to go to the net because I felt so tired," Clerc said in explaining how Purcell captured two love sets with passing shots.

"I still haven't learned how to play the big point," said Purcell. "I tried to run him, but he made some tremendous passing shots.

"He mentally overtook me. He's had the experience."

Vines, a 23-year-old left-hander from Richmond, Va., won three matches, losing only one set, to qualify for the tournament. He then beat Russell Simpson of New Zealand and Eddie Edwards of South Africa to gain his third-round meeting with Lendl.

Geiselman tops champ

Randy Geiselman defeated defending champion Craig Campbell, 4-3, to advance to the semifinals of the Midland Country Club Men's golf championship. Geiselman will meet Larry Snyder, 3-1 winner over Dr. Dean Strack, today.

The other semi matches Ted Fergeson, winner by 6-5 over Ken Sewell, against Kelly Cox, who advanced with a 5-4 win over Mike Hochman. The tournament concludes Monday.

Championship—Randy Geiselman def. Craig Campbell 4-3. Larry Snyder def. Dr. Dean Strack 3-1; Ted Fergeson def. Ken Sewell 6-5, Kelly Cox def. Mike Hochman 5-4. Consolation—Bill Hightower def. Clayton Hubbad 1-up, Charlie Ray def. Jim Cauthen 4-3, Gordon Marcum def. Mark Branum 3-1; Bill Hightower, Sr. def. Buddy Branum.

First flight—W.C. Hubbard def. Bill Chancellor 1-up, Pete Montgomery def. Bryon Jones 3-1, Richard Lamphere def. R. Moore 4-3, Buddy Redden def. Rodney Satterwhite 7-6. Consolation—Al Dillard def. Dr. G. Young 2-up, Cal Glass def. Jim Crowder 4-3; K.M. Jastrow def. Joe Gieb 3-2, Larry stapp def. Tom Garber 5-4.

Second flight—Will Hall def. Tom Withrow, Flake Tompkins def. M.Douglas 3-2, Roy Williamson def. Bill Bohannon 1-up; Fred Schmidt def. Bill Hill 3-1.

CONTINENTAL DIVIDE

He was the director, she was...

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

She was engaged, but not to him. Both were working on the same campus. He was directing his first full-length show and driving a taxi. She was working at a professional theater on the campus of the University of Virginia.

Their paths crossed frequently; each was aware of the other — both maintaining their distance.

That was in the mid-1970s.

Today, Elizabeth and Michael Spicer work as a team. Both have degrees and experience in theater.

Michael received his bachelor and master of fine arts degrees from the University of Virginia. Elizabeth earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Kentucky and her master's from the University of Virginia. Elizabeth also has a master of fine arts degree from George Washington University.

What brought Elizabeth back to the University of Virginia and graduate school was Michael.

Together, they have worked at the Sioux Falls Playhouse in South Dakota, where Michael was the artistic-managing director and Elizabeth was the artistic director for the children's theater. While at Sioux Falls, they founded and ran the Orpheum Summer Repertory Theatre, the first resident professional company in South Dakota in more than 50 years.

Their next job moved them to Florida where they were co-artistic and managing directors of the Delray Beach Playhouse, which housed a professional theater, a children's theater and a community theater under one roof.

Their newest job — children's theater directors for the Midland Community Theatre.

With acting classes set to begin this week, the Spicers have been busy.

Besides putting together a list of possible Pickwick productions for the year, they have been assessing the Pickwick program. They plan on "rebuilding" the program rather than "doing more plays.

"We feel that training is the key element this year," Michael said in a recent interview conducted at MCT with both him and Elizabeth.

One of the most rewarding elements in working with children is "channeling their energy into a performing energy.

"They have such energy anyway that can be channeled into positive energy for a performance," he said.

The Spicers hope to offer classes in voice and diction, dialetics, movement and styles in acting. "We hope to teach specific acting tools," Elizabeth said.

"Not that they all are going to go on in theater," but they will have the training and background necessary if they want to, Michael said.

Both realize that one person "can only take so many acting classes before he burns out on them."

To date, the Spicers are aware the Pickwicks have, in the past, portrayed animals and creative characters from story book tales.

"All (Pickwicks) seemed to really want to play realistic people — do some plays that have some meat to them, " Elizabeth said. "Today's youth culture is changing so fast and there is such an emphasis on relationships." The Pickwicks would "rather do something in realism and fail and have the challenge," she added.

"It's so hard when you get in the seventh and eighth grades to put that bunny suit on one more time," Michael said.

The Pickwick productions are played for several grade levels in the Midland Independent School District and also for the public.

"Lot of times the kids in the audience want to be challenged as much as the kids on the stage do," Michael said.

Some of the plays under consideration are "Noah" or "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown," "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Dark of the Moon," "Little Women" and "Ming Lee and the Magic Tree."

Besides being in charge of the children's theater at MCT, the Spicers will also offer classes for adults and direct various productions other than the Pickwick Players shows.

Some of the classes they hope to offer in the future deal with auditioning and voice and diction. Also, the first Theatre II production of the year, "LuAnn Hampton Laverty Oberlander" — a part of the "Texas Trilogy" by Preston Jones, will be directed by Michael. The show is set to go on stage Oct 2.

Having only arrived less than two weeks ago, both know they are still learning their way around. So far, the most unusual aspect of life in Midland that Elizabeth has noticed is: "This is the only place I've been in my life where there was no (newspaper) listing for apartments on Sunday."

Michael and Elizabeth Spicer, the new children's theater directors at Midland Community Theatre, take a break during registration week to talk about their lives together and their plans for the MCT's youth program. In addition to their duties with the youth classes and Pickwick Players, the two will also teach classes for adults and direct some of the adult productions.

MD telethon will have local participants

The 16th annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon Against Muscular Dystrophy will be broadcast in the Midland-Odessa area by KMID-TV, Channel 2, from 8 p.m. today until 6 p.m. Monday.

Originating from Las Vegas, Nev., the telethon is held to benefit the medical services and research programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Working to see last year's local and national fund-raising totals topped are LaDoyce Lambert, Permian Basin Telethon committee chairman; Midland Mayor Thane Akins, Odessa Mayor Bob Bryant, Big Spring Mayor Clyde Angel, and Ray Herndon, honorary vice president of MDA.

Midland-Odessa area residents last year contributed $137,291 to the national pledge total of $31,103,787.

Other local people involved in the annual event are Harrell Feldt, Tevis Herd, Parker Humes, Tom King, Eddie thomas, Dr. Al Langford, Bill Morrow and Bill Thomas, all of Midland.

A star-studded line-up of entertainers has been assembled.

Godspell tryouts to be held

Tryouts for the rock musical, "Godspell," will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the Redfern Room at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

If callbacks are necessary, they will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday. Roles are available for five men and five women, with ages ranging from late teens to mid-30s.

Rehearsals begin Friday with an Oct. 23 opening.

"Godspell," the modern musical adaptation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, is set on an almost bare stage where 10 zany people dust off the tricks of the clown's trade to act out the parables of the Bible. None of this has been found to be irreverant as the play has been acclaimed by clergy, critics, educators and audiences for its joyful message, loving spirit, youthful exuberance and simple sincerity.

It is not necessary to be an MCT member to try out for a role. Perusal copies of the libretto are available in the MCT business office. For more information contact Bachmann at 682-2544.

Mickey Gilley to perform here

Mickey Gilley and Johnny Lee will perform at Chaparral Center at 8 P.M. Sept 26.

Both performed at Chaparral Center about a year ago with Eddie Rabbitt. The concert is produced by the same promoter, K&S Productions and JAM Present.

Another event being presented at Chaparral Center shortly is the performance by the United States Marine Band, more commonly referred to as "The President's Own." The band will perform at 8 p.m. Oct. 3.

Tickets, priced at $5, may be purchased at Chaparral Center, Music Haul, Endless Horizons and Flip Side Records in Odessa.

For more information on the Gilley-Lee concert contact Chaparral Center at 684-9811.

The Hillbillies are returning

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hillbillies are coming, the Hillbillies are coming!

Not Granny. Irene Ryan died in 1973. Not Jethro. Max Baer decided not to participate. But good ole Jed Clampett — Buddy Ebsen — and his nubile daughter Elly May — Donna Douglas — will appear in "The Return of the Beverly Hillbillies," a two-hour special on CBS television Oct. 6. Also Werner Klemperer, Ray Young as a substitute Jethro and Imogene Coca as Granny's Maw.

Intellectual critics may be appalled, but the special could bring a return of the Beverly Hillbillies as a regular series.

"Could be," says Ebsen, just off an eight-year stint as Barnaby Jones. "If the response is good, we could go back to a weekly show. It all depends on the numbers (ratings). If people yell loud enough: 'Give us more!' I'd be susceptible. I never left 'The Beverly Hillbillies' voluntarily."

Indeed the series remained high in the ratings when CBS pulled the rug in an image-changing campaign in 1971. "Beverly Hillbillies" had started in 1962 and proved a ratings sensation — No. 1 for two years, with numbers that still stand as a record.

You'd think that Buddy Ebsen would want to retire to his Balboa home and yacht after the millions he has earned on the two series. But after more than a half-century of entertaining, he's ready to do more. And that includes a return as Jed Clampett.

Forrest Tucker has a good time

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

His career began over 40 years ago on the vaudeville stages. Since then, Forrest Tucker has worked countless hours in burlesque shows, motion pictures and television. And he loved it all.

He tried retirement; it didn't take. Now he's making the dinner theater circuit and working on a new television series.

Following the show's closing in Dallas, Tuck, his name of preference, opens Tuesday at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in David Deboy's "Captains Outrageous." The Squire is located east of Odessa on Highway 80.

"It's a silly little comedy, an outrageous burlesque," Tuck said in a recent telephone interview. "I started in burlesque, so I understand where I am.

"It's a nonsense evening; it's a house party," he said in an easy going manner. "Have a few drinks. Have a few laughs and maybe get lucky."

In "Captains," Tuck is "borrowing on a lot of experience I picked up 50 years ago in burlesque. I try anything and everything (onstage). I do a lot of ad libbing."

During the play, Tuck will throw in new jokes or lines. "If I do one the audience likes, we keep it. If there is not much response, we throw it back and let it grow a little," he said laughing. "None of us knows what we are going to do on any given night."

The play's cast has been touring together for some time. The other cast members are much younger. Tuck likes the opportunity "to teach these young actors and actresses a few tricks."

"We've had pretty good luck together," Tuck said, adding, "We've had a lot of repeats (return engagements).

"People go to the theater to have a good time. I've done all the other stuff (referring to his career) and now I'm trying to have a good time. We have a need for gaiety, laughter and brightness in our lives. Anything to release the pain, baby," he said.

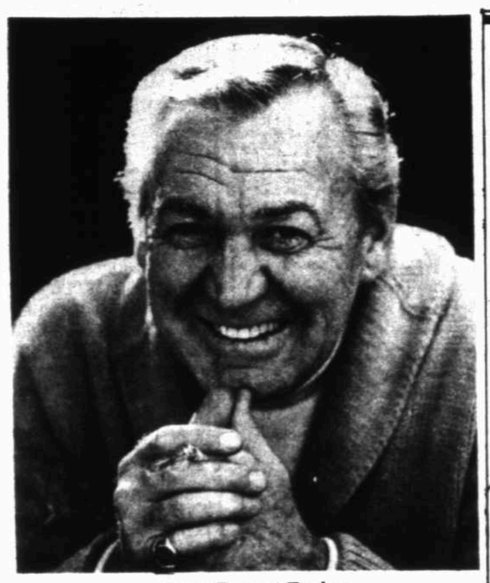

This is why he is involved in yet another television series along the same format as "F-Troop," which is one of the most successful series in terms of reruns.

"Larry (Storch) and Ken (Berry) and I have a new series we are putting together next season. It's the same type of show (as "F-Troop"). There's a great need for that today — there's not much on TV that makes you laugh. 'F-Troop' has proven that kind of humor."

An avid reader, Tuck reads "a book a day. I read it all — whatever's handy. National Geographic to Playboy and all books in between — biographies, fiction and articles. You're never too old to learn. Reading gives me a wider appreciation of life.

"I think Walter Hagen said it best, 'You've got to smell the flowers as you go through life.'"

With that, he was gone.

Brinkly 'not quitting work'

The Washington Post

Network television news lost another one of its news veterans Friday with the announcement that David Brinkley is quitting NBC News after a 38-year career with the network.

Brinkley, 61, said Friday that "the date for my retirement has not really been settled yet — we still have to sign a piece of paper" but the network announcement said it would be sometime next month.

Brinkley stressed that he's "not quitting work."

"I just wanted a change," he said, noting that he had "already received a dozen phone calls regarding possible jobs."

Although the official announcement from the network was couched in the friendliest terms, Brinkley suggested to a reporter that he was frustrated in his current assignment as anchor and managing editor of the "NBC Magazine With David Brinkley," which is scheduled to return for a second season the night of Sept. 11.

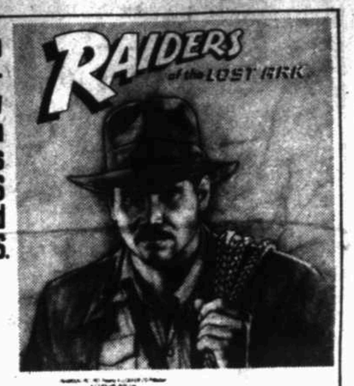

"My complaint is that I'm not now able to do what I think I am good at — to do the news in Washington and cover politics — what I've done since I was 20 years old," Brinkley said.

"As NBC is presently structured, there's no way for me to do it. It's all locked up. But I'm not bitter."

His departure from NBC follows by five months the departure of Walter Cronkite from his daily stint as anchor for CBS Evening New.

For 15 years, from 1956 until 1970, when Brinkley's co-anchor Chet Huntley retired, the nightly "Huntley-Brinkley Report" on NBC dominated the network news field.

Keeper Lou Bisconti tends to Thor, an elephant calf gored by a female elephant at San Diego Wild Animal Park. The two-week-old calf is now recuperating from surgery to repair internal injuries.

Elephant facing life-saving surgery

WINSTON, Ore. (AP) — A 5-year-old African elephant faces life-saving surgery this week after he was decked by another pachyderm and broke a leg at a commercial wildlife park here.

Officials at Wildlife Safari hope the surgery will prevent them from putting Tanga, a 1,500-pound bull elephant, to death.

"We've got a long way to go for that," says Melody Roelke, park veterinarian.

Ms. Roelke said both bones are broken in the bull's front left leg, a medical condition of "disasterous proportions."

Tanga will be trucked to the University of California at Davis, where veterinarians hope to repair the leg by skewering the bones with stainless steel pins. Prognosis for full recovery, however, is not encouraging.

On Tanga's side are his small size and his youth, which bolster chances for quick healing.

A tourist told park officials that Winkie literally knocked Tanga off his feet when she apparently got tired of his teasing ways. The leg swelled and had to be packed in ice.

Elephants usually can not tolerate traditional bone-setting surgery because wounds heal too slowly and get infected, says Ms. Roelke.

A plaster cast isn't much help, either, because the cast falls off when the swelling subsides.

To keep the leg straight and free of weight, park workers wrapped it with cotton and gauze and strapped on metal bars for support.

A strap was sewn to the bandage and slung over the animal's shoulder to keep weight off the leg.

Tanga is worth between $17,000 and $20,000, officials say.

Rocky the raccoon returned to his family

EAGLE RIVER, Wis. (AP) — Rocky the raccoon, "the little guy getting a bum rap," was sprung from custody in Wisconsin in time to spend the Labor Day weekend with the Illinois family that raised him from infancy.

Rocky was reunited with the Thomas Turner family Friday on the steps of the Vilas County Courthouse, handed over by state officials to end a loud protest over the raccoon's rights.

With a contingent of reporters on hand, Attorney General Bronson La Follette promised Rocky trouble-free passage home, calling the raccoon, "a symbol of the little guy getting a bum rap from big government."

Rocky was taken into custody by Wisconsin game wardens last month when the Turner family brought him along on a camping trip.

"The whole thing has been, at times, ridiculous," said Turner, 43, whose two chidren wore "Return Rocky" T-shirts at Friday's reunion.

Turner said he found the stray raccoon inside the walls of his home in Schaumburg, Ill., and nursed it from infancy. He said the family would continue to care for the animal until it is old enough to be set free in the wild.

"He can fight his own court battles then," Turner said, adding that the case already has cost him $1,000.

Game warden Ben Bendrick seized Rocky on Aug. 3 at a campground near Boulder Junction in Vilas County.

Chimps join fund-raising effort in face of cuts

ELLENSBURG, Wash. (AP) — Federal budget cuts threaten to muzzle the five talking chimpanzies of Central Washington University, who gained world renown for their knowledge of sign language.

But the chimps aren't taking it quietly: They've kicked in to help raise the $40,000 needed to pay for food and research materials.

Three of chimps — Dar, Tatu and Moja — went to work on some gloppy paintings which will be sold at the Ellensburg Arts Festival, as will T-shirts that feature another chimp, 16-year-old Washoe.

Fund-raising letters are being mailed by Friends of Washoe, a non-profit group "dedicated to communication research and enrichment for captive chimpanzees."

The federal funding cuts could wipe out the third year of a National Science Foundation grant to Dr. Roger Fouts, the behavioral researcher who trains and cares for the creatures.

The chimps communicate in American sign language, the language of the deaf. They know dozens of signs and can put some together in phrases. Fouts said his research concerns chimp-to-chimp and chimp-to-human interaction.

The chimps have idiosyncracies. When annoyed, Washoe runs her hand under her chin to signal the word "dirty." She taught her adopted son, Loulis, 3, all the signs he knows.

Tatu, 6, "gets along with everybody," Fouts said. Dar, 5, is rambunctious and Moja, 9, is the artist in the crowd.

Once a researcher thought a Moja painting was incomplete and asked her to finish it. Moja told him it was finished, then named it by signing the word "bird."

PRICED FOR THE AVERAGE INCOME

Anyone can build a fine home when the cost is no object. The true test of a builder is to provide a beautiful home at a reasonable price. In convenient Fairway Park Ramcon has combined low price, quality construction, very low down payments, low monthly payments and architectural styling designed to appeal to executives and modern families who want to live in Midland's newest prestige address.

If you're tired of the same, plain-looking home, come see Ramcon's dazzling new models. Each one is a bold statement, a reflection of good taste. See the rich, furniture finished cabinetry, the cozy wood-burning brick fireplaces, designer wall coverings and captivating California excitement captured in the high-soaring ceilings, sun-filled morning rooms and eye-catching exteriors with loads of street appeal. At Ramcon you can afford to be different.

VIDEO MANIA

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

They have taken over. They have invaded restaurants, bars, bowling alleys, supermarkets, convenience stores, theaters and arcades. They are video games and people of all ages are succumbing to their powers.

Video games are electronically programmed devices that allow the player to participate in simulated activity by operating various control buttons on a screen or playing table.

These games, which evolved from pinball, have been around for several years, but have really soared in popularity over the past couple of years. It all began with a game named Pong, a video version of ping pong, which first appeared nearly ten years ago. Since then the games have become increasingly complex.

There are videos to carry out nearly any theme imaginable, but the most popular seem to be those related to outer space. Space Invaders is one of the favorites. This particular game pits the player's "laser bases" against his opponent's missiles. The game ends when the player's laser bases are all hit by the invader's missiles or when the invaders overrun the base. The basic idea is to get the machine before it gets you.

Other games feature car races, basketball, football, submarines, and the list goes on and on. Most of the games have a capacity for either one or two players and cost 25 cents or 50 cents, depending on the game and where it is located.

Videos are quickly surpassing pinball in popularity and many former "pinball wizards" are turning to video games instead.

"People really enjoy live action rather than just watching a ball roll around," explained Sue Jones of Coin Craft Enterprises, a vending machine company which deals in videos, pinball and other coin-operated machines. "Video has taken over," she said. "Pinball will never again be as popular as video."

One former pinball player said he now prefers video over pinball because it is more challenging and colorful. He also noted that the price of pinball went up a couple of years ago. While a quarter used to buy two games of pinball with five balls per game, that same quarter now buys only one game with three balls. He said he feels he gets more for his money with video games.

Ms. Jones said that teen-agers and young adults are the major video players. However, she noted that there are video enthusiasts from all age groups. "We have four-year-olds all the way up to adults playing video games," she said.

Ms. Jones said that her company furnishes games to various businesses, with the business providing the location and electricity for the machines. Coin Craft usually splits the profits 50-50 with the business. She said that Coin Craft also takes care of maintenance and repair of the games.

Although this arrangement works well for many establishments, some businesses prefer to buy and maintain their own machines.

The 7-Eleven convenience store chain is one such business. According to Don Merriman, manager of a local 7-Eleven store, a video game usually costs between $2,000-$2,500. He said that a machine will usually pay for itself in 90 days. After that, it's pure profit. 7-Eleven even has its own staff of video game maintenance personnel to serve stores in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring.

Merriman said that the Southland Corportation, the owner of the 7-Eleven chain,decided to put games in the stores just over a year ago. He said that someone in the corporation projected that it would be a profitable area to be in.

"The games room is the most profitable area in the store," he noted. In his store alone, he said that each of the four video games in his store brings in between $20-$35 per day, "And we're a slow store for videos." He also said that 7-Eleven stores in this particular district (Midland, Odessa and Big Spring) make more profits from video games than any other district.

He said that his peak hours are after school and in early evening. "Businessmen come in to play the video games in the morning."

So what is the big attraction? Why do people continue to pour quarters into the machines?

Merriman said he believes people want to prove that they are smarter than the machine. He also said that it's a lot like gambling in that you can win extra time.

"It's something you can't get at home," said one video enthusiast, who appeared to be in his late teens or early 20's. He said that he has spent as much as $10 on video games at one whack.

"I like Star Castle because it's challenging," said Louis Barkley, 11. He said he sometimes uses money from his allowance to play video games, but, "I use my mom's money mostly."

"I like Space Invaders best," noted Louis' brother, David, 7.

"I like video games because they have a lot of excitement," said Rosalinda Cuellar, 9. She said that she usually spends $2 to $3 of her allowance on video games every time she plays. She says she's been playing for a little over a year.

Melinda Martinez, 11, and Ray Martinez, 12, enjoy a rousing game of video football.

Ballet Guild launches membership drive

Permian Civic Ballet Guild will host a membership and scholarship coffee Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Max Curry, No. 1 Deerfield.

The Guild, composed of approximately 130 persons, including active and patron members, is a support group for the Permian Civic Ballet Association. Organized along with the Association in the fifties, the Guild was then composed largely of mothers of ballet dancers in the association's classes, according to Harriet Motter, a longtime member.

"The Guild was reactivated in 1975 with a new sense of direction," she said. "It now appeals more to the people of the community to support the ballet instead of families of ballet members," she explained.

Its major fund-raising activity is the sponsorship of an annual art auction in November. The elegant four-day event will be held at Midland Center this year, and will include the auctioning of a Maharishi's estate in India, an Indian dinner and reception.

The Guild also sponsors workshops and artist receptions in conjunction with guest artist appearances throughout the ballet season.

"Midland is fortunate to have a civic ballet of this quality in the area, and to have people perform here regularly from throughout the country," said Sherry Fishman, publicity chairman. "It is essential to have the cooperation of the community and an active membership in order to survive. Anyone who is interested in supporting the fine arts in Midland is welcome to join the Guild and attend the coffee," she said.

Officers are Donna Gore, president; Sandra Staley, president-elect; Sonia Belcher, vice president; Betty Sumner, secretary; and Marsha Powell, treasurer. Betty Barnes is membership chairman.

Persons who are interested in attending the membership coffee will receive rides from members. For more information, call Mrs. Barnes at 684-7609 or Mrs. Sumner at 684-4038.

AAUW group to hear Lloyd Lewis

The American Association of University Women World Affairs Group will hold its first meeting of the season at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the First National Room of the First National Bank.

Lloyd A. Lewis, retired explorationist of Shell Oil Company, will discuss the history of India, emphasizing the Mogul Empire in Northern India. Slides will be shown.

Lewis is a graduate of the University of Minnesota with an engineer of mines degree. There he was elected to the honorary professional scientific fraternity,Tau Beta Pi, the society of Sigma XI and was given the Thomas F. Andrews award in recognition of individual undergraduate scientific research. Later he received a master of science degree from the California Institute of Technology. His travels have carried him to many places in the USA, Canada, Europe, Asia and Africa.

During his 38-year career with Shell, Lewis worked primarily in California, Washington, Texas, Oregon and Canada where he was the exploration manager of Shell's Calgary Division.

Other assignments included stints in the Hague Netherland and New York City. Lewis and his wife, Mona, are long time residents of Midland.

The chairman of this year's World Affairs Group is Mrs. Lloyd A. Lewis. Co-chairmen are Mrs. Stanley Levitt and Mrs. Steve Merritt. Hostesses for the September meeting are Mrs. John Bowers, Mrs. Levitt and Mrs. Merritt. The public is welcome to attend the meeting.

Her fiance is a graduate of Rising Star High School and Tarlton State in Stephensville. He is employed by Sellers Construction.

Lifestyle guidelines

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:

Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper.

Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

Vollbracht and Grace

Unbeatable combination to "star" in a Midland benefit

Grace Jones and Michael Vollbracht present an impressive image.

And they'll both be making joint appearances in Midland Sept. 14 for the annual fashion show benefitting the Midland Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP).

Mrs. Jones, who owns a world famous dress salon in Salado, Texas, is presenting designer Vollbracht in person with his fall 1981 collection.

The event is set for 11:30 a.m. at Green Tree Country Club.

Cost is $45 a person for luncheon and the show. Persons who have not received invitations and would like to attend should call 684-8212 or 682-4042.

Vollbracht, a graduate of the Parson's School of Design, worked in the field of couture design for several years, but in 1973 left design to become a fashion illustrator.

In 1975, he created the series of glamour faces that launched eight million Bloomingdale's shopping bags and, by 1977, he was known as this country's foremost fashion illustrator.

Always interested in the film world, Vollbracht also developed an extraordinary reputation as a larger-than-life portraitist of well-known faces, including Joan Crawford, Betty Ford, Bette Davis, Elizabeth Taylor, Andy Warhold and many others.

He decided to return to the world of couture fashion and designed his first collection which was introduced at an American Cancer Society benefit in the spring of 1978.

Vollbracht is unique among American designers in that he designs his own prints whih are actually dramatically colored graphic paintings which are translated onto silk, crepe de chine, cotton and other fabrics.

In the fall of 1979, he created a series of beaded coats cut from Mexican rugs he had carefully collected and his "Happy Coats" became a Vollbracht symbol along with his signature Palm print and his elaborate quilted silk print kimonos.

The flamboyant New York designer, upon his return to the fashion world, won the fashion trade's highest honor, the Coty Award. His prices are as flamboyant as his styles (from $700 for a simple tunic to $14,000 for a bugle-beaded, leopard-print gown). Newsweek Magazine has termed him a "fashion comet."

His fall 1981 collection continued his signature bold prints and innovative designs which were coupled with intricate ensembles in muted tones and simple, classic cuts.

Mrs. Jones has made several appearances in Midland. Her shop in Salado (located between Austin and Waco) by now is world-known and is on the threshold of its third decade as a place where the great, the near-great and the fashion savants of Texas and the Southwest come to buy wardrobes designed by the high priests and priestesses of couture.

She's harassed by boss

Copley News Service

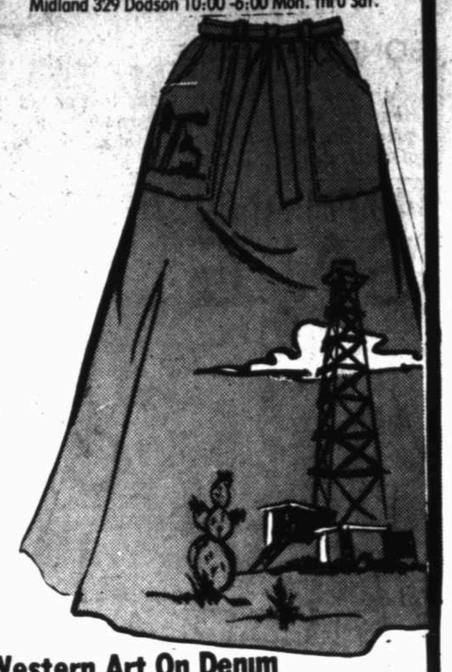

A suit in equity or one at law is available to a person whose right to be left alone is violated.

Q. My boss in a large financial company has been making sexual advances toward me for several months, and I feel sure he expects me to sleep with him if I want to keep my job. ... He is careful to do this when others are not present, so it's my word against his. Does the law offer me any defense against this man?

A. A suit in equity (Am.Jur.2d Ref. Privacy Sec.'s 1-8) holds: That a person has the right "to be let alone." A violation of that right resulting in anguish is a wrongful intrusion -- in your case, sexual advances.

The remedy is a suit in equity for an injunctive order to stop the intrusion issued by the court, if proved by clear and convincing evidnence the violation results in a contempt of court which could be a fine or jail or a common law action for wrongrul intrusion seeking money damages for the anguish suffered.

Boots marching in fashion parade

NEW YORK (AP) — Choices — that's what boots are about this fall, according to Andrea Rosen, fashion director for the Footwear Council. Bright rubber galoshes and deluxe dress-up boots are featured side by side with sleek, clean classics, detailed for drama with fringes, metallic decorations and embroidery touches.

"Fall boot fashions offer a wide variety of styles and textures to suit every taste and budget," says Ms. Rosen. "When properly fitted and cared for, your boots will wear well and feel great all season long."

This season there's a boot to complete every look in your wardrobe, she notes. Detailing is all-important for fashion boots; they feature such ornamentation as metallic studs and underlays, fancy lacing and intricate embroidery.

All-weather boots in quilted nylon, rubber or suede faced with lush fleece linings are rugged and comfortable, and come in a kaleidoscope of primary colors from traffic light reds, greens, and yellows to shiny neon blues.

Other favorite fall colors are deep lodens and olive greens, rich paprika, eggplant and russet — newcomers to the traditional neutrals family of browns, blacks and wines. Newest of all are the metallics — bronze, gunmetal and pewter, fashionble for day and evening.

Pancake-flat boots with cavalier cuffs that show off textured legwear are new for business and casual wear. For classic country fashion, riding boots are handsomely styled in deep burnished leathers with straight knee-high shafts and low, practical heels.

"Comparison shopping is the best way to select the right boots," Ms. Rosen advises. "There are good choices in all price ranges, how much you spend depends on your personal tastes and priorities as well as your budget."

Durability is an advantage of "inexpensive" ($50 and under) boots, she says. Machine-made with uppers of vinyl, polyurethane and side leather, these boots are easy to clean and will not scuff or scratch, sturdy bottoms and heels of synthetic materials or rubber ensure good wear in stormy weather.

Moderately priced boots ($50-$90) offer a wider range of colors and sizes than less expensive boots and styling similar to the more expensive designer names. Uppers are made of better-quality cowhide, kidskin or nappa leather, and lined with synthetic materials or fleece look alikes. Boots in the moderate price range are usually machine-made and wear well with proper care.

This "Texas classic" home is just one of many in the Midland Homebuilders Parade of Homes set for December in Midland. The event will benefit the Christmas in April project, a volunteer housing repair program for the elderly and handicapped.

Salisbury Co. joins Parade of Homes

The Salisbury Co. presents the first in a series of "Texas Classics" for its entry in the 1981 Midland Homebuilders Parade of Homes Dec. 12-20. Ticket sales from the event will benefit Christmas in April, Midland's volunteer housing repair program for the elderly and handicapped.

Featuring micro-zinc metal roof, the home is unique in design and age-old Mexican clay tile in the sweeping exterior patio areas and in the indoors flooring. The living area is sunken and clay tile gives way here to warmth of crpet. Outstanding features of this area include a fireplace and a cathedral ceiling that soars to 20 feet. The room is accented with natural light from a glass wall formed by patio doors below and four skylights above. Other rooms and features include a dining room, spacious kitchen, hallways, den and three bedrooms. All match the color coordination of carpet in the living area and are designed in natural light patterns.

The large arbor shading the main patio is the special feature for the living area extended outside. The construction is rough cedar.

According to the builder, the home is an original design for this particular lot and for the parade of homes.

Salisbury, along with 21 other builders, will be featured in the December event. For more information regarding the show, call 684-5866.

The parade will be located west of Midland Park Mall in the Skyline Terrace West Addition.

David Pine, chairperson for the committee, notes that a parade book will be published, featuring all of the builders. It will be ready for distribution after Thanksgiving. He added that the committee has set a goal of selling 50,000 tickets at $1 each for touring all 22 homes.

Achieve professional look in blazers

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Those special touches that make your wool blazer look its best:

Interfacing: Don't stop with interfacing just the collar and lapels. There should be bias-cut interfacing across the upper back, bias-cut strips in the sleeve and jacket hems, lightweight interfacing over the entire front, strips of interfacing along the top of pockets, and lightweight fusible interfacing on welt pocket areas.

Topstitching: If you do not use topstitching thread, use two strands of regular thread. Set the upper tension slightly loose, use a large needle and make long stitches (No. 3 works well). Topstitch in sections so that you can stitch in the right direction. Where stitching meets, stitch over two or three stitches, then pull threads to underneath side.

Buttons and buttonholes: Use keyhole buttonholes if possible on front of jacket. Buttons should not be at odds with the garment. Select buttons that complement rather than stand out.

Welt pockets. Not an easy job, no matter what the garment. Fuse lightweight interfacing to the welt-pocket area and to the welts. This prevents fraying of fabric and stretching. It will give your welt pockets that professional look.

Broken pane easily replaced

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

You can replace a broken window pane even if you have neither the skill nor the inclination to cut a piece of glass to size.

Many places, including most hardware stores, will cut the glass to your measurements, but you must be extra careful to give the correct dimensions. Once you get the size of the window opening, including the channels into which the glass rests, substract ⅛th inch from each side.

Don't tell the dealer what the measurements are; give him a piece of paper on which the sizes are written. If you don't, there is always the chance — and it does happen — that there will be some kind of misunderstanding on what you told him.

Should the old pane be only cracked, remove the putty and then the glass. Be extra careful not to dig into the wooden channel as you chip out the putty. Remember that the glass is held in place with glazier's points, small pieces of metal imbedded in the wood. Take these out with pliers.

They usually can be used again, but consider the possibility of getting a box of new points, some of which are easier to install than the old types.

Putting linseed oil or thinned paint on the channels will prevent the wood from soaking up the oil from the new putty or compound too quickly.

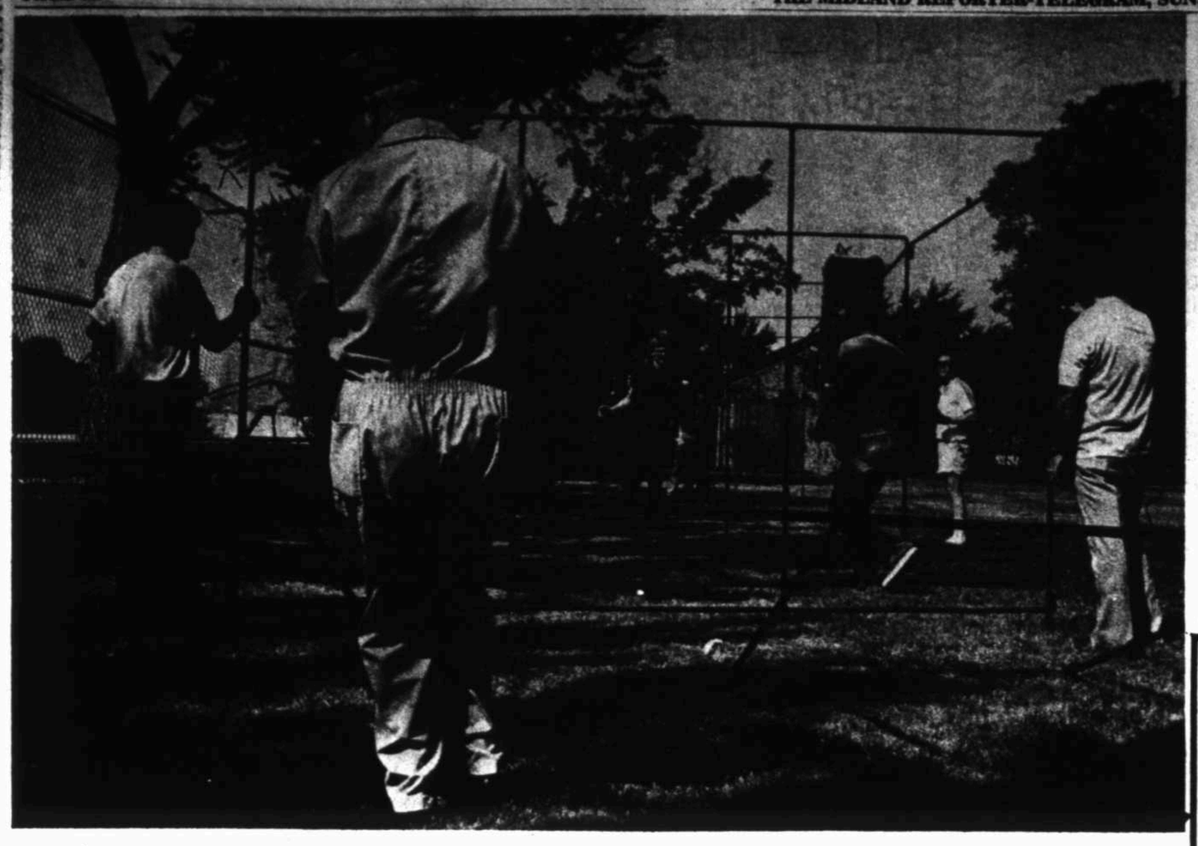

Should the old pane be shattered rather than just cracked, you will have to take out the broken pieces by hand. Be sure to use heavy work gloves for this chore. Even with the gloves, you must work very carefully to avoid being cut.

The next step is to line the window channels with putty about 1-16th inch thick, using a putty knife to press it down and spread it. Place the pane of glass into the putty gently but firmly so that it rests solidly in place. When you are sure it is neatly in place, put back the glazier's points. Use one every few inches, pressing it down with great care and leaving half the metal above the wood.

At this point, take some more putty and knead it between the palms of your hands in strips about the size of a long pencil. Press each strip against the glass and the frame, smoothing it out with the putty knife. Take your time. Work carefully. If you spot an area the putty hasn't covered completely, take a small piece, patch it and smooth it. You won't always get a perfect result with this portion of the operation, but after you have replaced a few window panes, you'll find you have the hang of it.

Over 60 juried artists

Lots of food booths

Workers above begin framing the booths for Septemberfest '81 scheduled for Sept. 12 and 13 on the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest. The event, which annually attracts over 15,000 persons, will feature more than 60 juried artists and craftsmen from throughout the nation whose works will be on exhibit and available for purchase. Benefits will go to the museum. Food booths, including beer, sangria, German sausage, tacos, homemade ice cream and soft drinks, will be plentiful. Another popular feature of the weekend is Kinderfest, which consists of 15 booths for youngsters. Pony rides, a petting zoo and a make-up booth are among these attractions. Booth will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Septemberfest is sponsored by Las Manos, a service organization of the Museum of the Southwest.

Cool carefully and help hold down your bills.

In many homes, summer air conditioning uses more electricity than all other appliances combined. To help hold down electric bills, use it sparingly. Set your thermostat at 80 degrees or higher, and use a fan to circulate the air. A fan uses considerably less electricity than air conditioning. And when no one is going to be home, make sure your air conditioning is turned off. It pays to know how to cool carefully.

DEAR ABBY

Army formal dress doesn't include earring

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am in the U.S. Air Force and have a good friend (I'll call him Duke), also in the same branch of the service. Duke decided to wear an earring in his left ear. Duke was in line for an honorable discharge shortly. Anyway, he got his ear pierced. About a week later he came to work in uniform wearing the earring (stud type) in his left ear. He was ordered by his supervisor to remove it, as it was not in accordance with military dress code. He refused. Administrative action was taken, and after a long battle, Duke was sent up for court-martial and found guilty of disobeying a lawful order. Duke was reduced in grade, fined and sentenced to six months' hard labor. He will be returned to active duty when his time is up.

Abby, why would a man want to wear an earring? I think it looks feminine. What do you think of this whole business of Duke and the earring? — P. AT YOKATO AIR BASE, JAPAN

DEAR P.: I am informed that some men wear an earring as a signal to other men, but not all men agree on what the "signal" is. If a male civilian wants to wear an earring, it's all right with me. But when a man enters the military, he is expected to conform to the rules and dress code, and if he doesn't conform, he should expect to be penalized.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her three children (ages 4, 3 and 1 1/2) are living with us while she is going through a very trying divorce. After a difficult search for someone to help with the children a few days a week, we were fortunate to find "Lucy." (My daughter works full time.)

Lucy had been with us for three weeks when a neighbor, who is also a friend of mine and a fellow Women's Club member, visited my home in my absence one afternoon and asked Lucy if she had a "friend" who would be interested in doing housework for her one day a week.

Lucy took the job herself. But the day she works for this neighbor is the day I need her most. She continues to work for us, but don't you think this neighbor should have discussed the matter with me before approaching Lucy? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Quit wondering. The answer is yes.

Story Hour, sponsored by the Midland Junior Woman's Club, will begin a new year Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the Children's Room of the Midland County Library.

Objective of Story Hour is to provide an hour of fun with a purpose each week for children ages 3 to 5, according to Mrs. Bill J. Hill, chairman.

"Through books, films, puppetry, special visitors and storybook characters, the Junior Woman's Club Story Hour committee strives to achieve a meaningful and productive hour with the children," she said. "May I encourage mothers to bring their children and their neighborhood friends to Story Hour each week to build a beneficial relationship with the Story Hour characters, the storytellers and the Midland County Library?"

Tuesday session theme is "Let's Be Friends" and is a party day featuring Jingles the Clown as a guest visitor.

Children who arrive after 10 a.m. will not be permitted to enter the session. Story Hour does accept a limited number of children from day care centers and other groups. However, these groups must make reservations through the children's library no later than Saturday prior to each Tuesday Story Hour.

Complete Story Hour guidelines and a schedule for the year are available at the library. "We are looking forward to fun-filled activities in learning with the children of Midland," said Mrs. Hill.

Gauging inflation

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Auto tires with too much or too little inflation can cost money in wasted gasoline and unnecessary tire wear.

Experts here suggest the best inflation control for tires is to check them with good quality pressure gauges which are said to be more accurate than service station air-hose meters or low-cost imported devices. Having the right amount of air in auto tires, Scovill's Schrader Group people say, can add thousands of safe miles to tire life.

AT WIT'S END

Doctor-patient communication

Be honest now. Do any of you understand one word of what your doctor tells you?

Ever since I told a crowded room I had a Bavarian cyst and not only did no one laugh, but two others in the room had the same thing, I've been convinced doctor and patient do not speak the same language.

They speak Latin. We speak Reader's Digest.

I suspect I am like most people who are intimidated by anyone who wears white all winter and washes his hands 137 times a day.

It's not that I don't pay attention. It's just that I have a feeling something more important awaits him in the next treatment room.

Somehow, I cannot see me having this conversation with my doctor.

"You say this problem is in my humorous bone? Humorous as in Woody Allen?"

"No, that's humerus."

"Would you spell that, please?"

"Of course. Give me a piece of scrap paper and I'll make a diagram and label it for you."

"Here, take the gown you gave me."

There is probably nothing more humiliating than to have a husband who always wants to know what the doctor said.

"It has something to do with my nose," I say.

"What part of your nose?" he asks.

"You know. The rect . . ."

"Try septum. What's wrong with it?"

"It's perverted."

"Deviated."

"Same thing."

I've talked with people who told me they had a Cather inserted in them for a week. (Not to be confused with novelist Willa Catheter who wrote, "Death Comes for the Archbishop.")

Another friend I know could never remember his blood pressure numbers, but said if his diabolic reading was under his golf score, he was happy.

All of us who go to doctors suffer the same disease, timidity of the tongue. We don't open our mouths and ask questions. I don't know why. I only know a lot is lost in the translation.

When my grandmother once announced she had a prostate deficiency and was told it wasn't possible, she snapped, "The way I eat, anything is possible."

Reagan request could cost billions

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT and
KAREN TUMULTY
(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration will soon ask Congress to speed removal of price controls on natural gas, a step that could add billions of dollars to utility bills for 40 million industrial, residential and commercial customers.

Despite the likelihood of a political battle in Congress, the administration decided to press its "free market" action in an effort to encourage gas exploration by granting producers higher prices for their product.

Those favoring removal of controls cite the boom in oil exploration that followed the lifting of controls on that product last January. In addition, higher prices encourage consumers to conserve on energy.

By sending the proposal to Congress soon, the administration will take advantage of a "political window" now open—a four-month span before the start of the 1982 Congressional election year. After Jan. 1 many members of Congress start campaigning for re-election and might find it embarrassing to vote for higher prices while asking the voters back home for their support.

The administration wants to abolish controls on all categories of gas by 1985. A previous plan, to remove all controls within a year, was considered this summer but rejected as threatening disastrous political consequences because it would have increased prices as much as 50 percent.

The administration's energy experts now say they believe their gradual three-year decontrol program would mean price increases of only 10 percent to 15 percent next year. "We think the political impact won't be that bad," one official said.

The Reagan administration will argue that slight discomfort now will encourage people to conserve gas and to avoid the pain of a big jump later.

Advocates of decontrol say a gradual three-year adjustment to higher prices by consumers will be less painful than the sudden jump in costs that users might suffer under current law.

Current law, the Natural Gas Policy Act, provides for gradual increases in the price of gas until 1985, when all restrictions would be removed from "new" gas — that is, gas discovered after April, 1977. "Old" gas discovered before that date would continue to be regulated by federal controls.

The prospects for passage of decontrol legislation are uncertain. Congress became bogged down in a divisive debate over gas legislation three years ago, and Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, has said repeatedly he wanted to avoid the issue entirely this year. The administration is moving ahead despite McClure's stand.

The administration wants to free both old and new gas from controls, and accelerate the price schedules in the law.

The current law would leave nearly 50 percent of natural gas, the "old" gas, under controls even after 1985. The Reagan program would permit all gas to be sold at free market levels in 1985.

Gas producers, pipeline transmission companies and gas utility distributors fought on the same side in 1978, when they feared supply shortages and said removal of controls was essential.

Today, the industry is divided. Producers say complete decontrol is necessary to stimulate exploration and encourage the most efficient use of the clean-burning fuel.

Interstate pipeline companies, with big supply cushions of old low-priced gas, see no need for a change in the law. Gas utility companies, which sell gas to homes, office buildings and factories, also see no benefit in speeding up de-regulation. Their rate of return is regulated by the state, and they would receive no extra profits if the price of gas rises.

Some pipeline companies and utilities may find themselves in an unusual alliance with labor unions and consumer groups who were on the other side of the fight in the 1978 gas battle.

Total decontrol could cost consumers $40 billion a year, says Eugene H. Luntey, president and chief executive officer of Brooklyn Union Gas Co., who is waging a vigorous personal campaign against any change in the law.

"This will be a case of the consumers against a handful of big producers," said Luntey, whose company has more than 1 million customers in Brooklyn, part of Queens and Staten Island.

The Citizen Labor Energy Coalition agrees and calls decontrol a "pipeline to disaster."

"People can either spend their money on goods and services to create jobs in their communities or they can watch that money go up the chimney in higher fuel bills," said William P. Winpisinger, president of the International Association of Machinists, who serves as coalition president.

Current law provides for gas to rise to a price level equal to the equivalent of $18 a barrel for oil, and then to be set free of all controls. The figure was calculated in 1978 when oil was much cheaper. Oil is now $36 a barrel, and could well be higher in 1985. Consumers obviously would receive a sudden tremendous jolt under the current law, if new gas prices virtually doubled to reach a competitive level with oil.

Complete decontrol would provide efficient allocation of resources, with all gas selling at its true market value, said David Foster, president of the Natural Gas Supply Association, a trade group of major and independent producers. "Everyone will get the correct economic message, and conserve according to the real value," Foster said.

He acknowledged that the effort to scrap all controls "will be a difficult and contentious issue." But, he said, "this is the best time to deal with the issue. We have plenty of gas; we're not in ashortage situation."

Any decontrol measure will contain a windfall profits tax, said Charles M. Butler III, chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which oversees the complex gas pricing mechanism of current law.

The tax could make de-control politically more palatable, with members of Congress able to tell constituents that the Treasury would take a big chunk of gas producers' new profits in taxes. The Reagan administration, concerned about budget deficits, would welcome any new source of revenues.

The decontrol plan is expected to be unveiled within the next few weeks. However, it could be delayed if worsening economic problems divert the administration's attention to a new round of budget cuts.

The helical innards of a huge calciner give a screw-like appearance to the workplace of this man at Green River, Wyo., where Tenneco Oil Company is constructing a trona mining and milling facility that is scheduled to begin production of high-purity soad ash in 1982. The calciner, or heater, is 14 feet in diameter and 110 feet long and will have a capacity of 115 tons of ore per hour.

Oil or scenery — which do we want

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — The public lands begin about a mile outside Jackson. To the north, the highwy edges the National Elk Refuge into Grand Teton National Park toward Yellowstone. To the east south and west are the 5,313 square miles of the Bridger-Teton National Forest.

Four million people a year visit Jakson and the valley to the north, Jackson Hole. The national parks, Yellowstone and Grand Teton, are the major attraction, but an increasing number of visitors are spening time n the Bridger-Teton Forest.

The Bridger-Teton is the largest national forest outside of Alaska. It is home for several months each year to parts of the largest elk herd in North America. It has 2,000 miles of hiking trails, 1,500 lakes, 40 campgrounds, thee ski areas and nearly 1,500 square miles of designated wilderness.

It also has oil and gas. As of this summer, more than 1,600 oil and gas leases in force covered 2.2 million acres of the forest's 3.4 million acres. With the exception of wilderness and proposed wilderness areas, the Bridger-Teton is essentially under lease for oil and gas develoment.

The fault lines of the Overthrust Belt, right now the hottest oil-exploration area in the 48 contiguous states, run through the Bridger-Teton Forest to within a few miles of Jackson. The boom of seismic-survey explosions on Forest Service land southast of Jackson could be heard last summer in the town square. Last summer, too, 49 tires were slashed on seismic-survey trucks parked in Jackson and plugs were loosened on the oil drains of nine of the trucks.

AT ISSUE in the Bridger-Teton are questions central to the increasingly rancorous national debate over the uses to which the nation's 737 million acres of public lands are to be put. It is a struggle that pits the users of the resources of the public lands — the energy companies, minng interests and timber cutters, principally — against a now-institutionalized environmental movement that lays claim to widespread public support.

Those lands are essential, say the resource industries, to meeting the nation's needs for oil, gas, coal, timber and other minerals and commodities, and they argue they have been unwisely excluded from too much of the public domain. They have found a receptive atmosphere this year in Reagan-administration Washington, and a champion in Interior Secretary James G. Watt.

"We have charted a course to bring balance to the use of the resources," says Watt, point man and chief flaktaker in an attempt to redirect the public lands policies of the past two decades. "We have determined that we will make decisions in the nation's inerest, the people's interest, balancing all the values."

Watt's arguments, and those of his constituency, are couched in terms of private enterprise, economic security, national defense and quality of life. Stewart Udall was secretary of interor from 1961 to 1969 in the administrations of presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. "He has a different definition of the public interest," Udall says of Watt. "I don't know any secretary in this century who ha been anti-development, but there was alway this feeling of management of resources with a responsibility to future generations."

He adds: "You're running a bank at the Interior Department. The bank is not money. It is something more important — the resources of the United States."

UDALL WAS APPOINTED by John F. Kennedy. Together they presided over the beginning of the third great wave of the American conervation movemet, as public lands historians call it.

Since 1964, for example, 80 million cres (56 million of them in Alaska) have been designated as wilderness areas, where oil leases are feasible but actual drilling or development has been, in effect, ruled out.

A welter of new laws produced a mass of new rules and regulations, many of which Watt and the resources industry find onerous and which Watt wants to change.

Much of what Watt says he wants to do can be accomplished through administrative action.

New regulations also are in the works or have ben put forth to govern oil-shale development on federal reserves, the grazing of cattle on Bureau of Lands Management lands, and the management of wild horses and control of coyotes on leased federal lands.

Watt proposed major changes for the management of national parks and says he wanted to open them to more peple by reducing restrictions on the use of vehicles and motorized rafts, a plan viewed as anathema by environmentlists.

HIS MAJOR GOAL, however, remains to increase mineral exploration and development on the pblic lands — "to lease every parcel of land tha should be leased in the public interest."

Wat's speedup of leasing of offshore federal lands for oil and gas development landed him in court in California and even some industry officials have complained that it is too much, too fast. He will have to go to Congress for other things he says he wants, including an extension — "20 or 25 years, something like that" — of the Dec. 31, 183 deadline for mineral leasing on federal wilerness lands.

The mandate of the public land management agencies was overhauled by Congress during the past two decades, culminating in 1976 with passage of the Federal Land Management and Policy Act. Sustained yield of resources and multiple use of public lands for mineral development, wildife habitat, recreation and timber harvesting were codified as the goals of public land manageent. Scenic values, solitude and other so-called "amenity vlues" wee defined as resources to be considered in land-use decisions. Long-term planning with full public participation became a congressionally defined requirement.

Congress also decided during the past 20 years to protect wilderness areas, free-flowing rivers, archaeological sites, endangered species and wild horses, all of which affected public land management. Protection of the environment became a requiement in all federal decision making, and clean air and clean water acts were passed.

With the new laws have come the rules and regulations which now grate so on the energy companies and other users of the public lands, and which Watt says he wants to change.

THE NATIONAL Environmental Policy Act of 1969 requires the federal government to analyze the impact on the human environment of all significant federal actions. When a Wyoming rancher who grazes cattle on the Bridger-Teton National Forest wants to move a drift fence, someone in the forest supervisor's office in Jackson has to make a decision about its impact on the environent. A piece of paper makes the rounds, collecting the initials of various specialists. It is called an environmental assessment.

The same rules apply to drilling an exploratory oil well or developing an oil field on public lands, but the analysis becomes much more complex and a full-scale environmental impact statement may be prepared. The first ever done on an application to drill an exploratory well on onshore federal lands is being prepaed on a request to drill in the high country south of Jackson.

After spending 20 months and $650,-00 on it, the government released a draft in August. There were restrictions and stipulations, but it recommended the aplications to drill be approved. The crucial point was a finding that the govenment cannot deny the right to dill to the holder of a lease unless there was such a stipulation in the original lease, a major victory for the oil companies. One of the drilling applications covered by the statement was for a drill site in a proposed wilderness area. The Forest Service has in the past placed such areas essntially off limits to drilling.

"It's much more complex than it was 20 or 30 years ago," says Reid Jackson, a supervisor in the Bridger-Teton Forest. "The old days are gone when a ranger or forest supervisor could make a decision unilaterally based on his knowledge of his activities in the forest.

Jackson began working for the Forest Service almost 30 years ago as a smoke jumper. He's a solid built man, with sandy brown hair and a square face. In his office he talks about the conflicting claims of the land he administers and the directions he's getting.

"You can go to any one of the ranger districts on the south end of the forest and drive almost any road on any weekend and just about every flat space is occupied by a recreational vehicle," he says.

BUDGET CUTS FORCED Jackson to reduce his seasonal ranger force this summer. And there's no money for needed work on the water-supply system in some of the Bridger-Teton campgrounds. But there have been no cutbacks in the minerals section.

"I don't feel any pressue from our outfit to do things against our better judgment," says Jackson. "At the same time, the message is loud and clear that they do not want us to throw roadblocks. They want us to be accommodating and work with the energy companies.'

Thee are many disputes between the natural resource industries and environmentalists and conservatinists about public lands practices, clear cutting of timber and grazing policies among them. The major battleground now, however, is the development of energy resources.

The oil and gas industry long has used public lands, but domestic production has been relatively stable since the mid 1950s. As demand increased, the outer continental shelf and Alaska were tapped, but for the most part, the increased demand was met by larger imports of then-cheap Middle East oil. Some energy company executives concede the industry wasn't paying all that much attention to changes in public land policy. Then came the Arab oil embargo and OPEC.

Canada, meanwhile, had been developing oil and gas on its portion of the Overthrust Belt, a series of geologic structures meandering down the western portion of the continent. It was not that the energy companies were ignoring the Overthrust Belt in the United States — they drilled more than 300 dry holes. Late in 1974, when most Americans still thought of $1-a-gallon gasoline as a scare word, the first oil well on the domestic Overthrust Belt was brought in near Coalville in northeastern Utah.

The currently producng section of the Overthrust Belt slices out of Utah into southwestern Wyoming. Fault lines run north through the Bridger-Teton Forest to within a few miles of Jackson, then cut into Idaho and north into Montana. It is a new oil province, unexplored territory the oil companies say has great potential. Thousands of square miles of it is on public land, much of it wild, remote and in some cases stunningly beautiful.

FOR SEVERAL MONTHS each year, Phil Hocker looks out the windows of the studio atop the garage of his home in Jackson and can see the elk herd that winters in Jackson Hole. He is an architect and a national director of the Sierra Club. The energy companies have gotten most of the pubic lands they want, says Hocker, and it is time to say no more.

"Mineral values have been given very strong weight in the decision making," says Hocker. "There are places where the surface values are simply irreplaceable. To sacrifice those for what is at most a transient energy supply is foolishnss for long-term national planning."

Less than a mile from Hocker's home, Cache Creek spills out of a narrow valley into Jackson Hole. It begins in the mountains southeast of Jackson near the Forest Service's proposed Gros Ventre wilderness area, 292,000 acres of snow-streaked peaks and mountain meadows. Nearly the entire area is under lease to oil companies.

Hocker argues that oil in the Gros Ventre — if it is there at all — would power the United States for only a few days. "We have to look for rational ways to change to other fuels and power," Hocker says, adding that conservation could provide an alternative to driling. "My hope is that people will pay enough attention to realize what the tradeoffs are that are at stake here."

THE VISTA is different from the 12th-flor office of A.B. "Pete" Slaybaugh who is western vice president of Conoco Inc.

The federal government owns the biggest chunk of Western land attractive to the energy companies, he says. And he sees no reason why even the most environmentally sensitive areas can't be explored and developed without destroying the land.

"I think industry can handle the cost without any problems, that they have to put the thing back as near as they can to what it was," says Saybaugh. "Knowing that they have to restore the land as near to what it was."

As to the limited amount of oil secured by punching a road into one sement of wilderness, it's worth it to the nation if there are enough in enough areas. "It takes literally hundreds and hundreds of those just to keep us going as we are now," he says.

Rig count pushing 500

The Permian Basin rotary rig count edged up on the 500-mark last week, according to a survey by Reed Rock Bit. Co. A total of 497 rigs were plying the region; an almost a 50 percent increase in drilling activity over the same week one-year ago when there were only 333 rigs active.

The International Association of Drilling Contractors reports a total of 4,194 rigs active in the nation — onshore and off — as of August 31. That's a considerable increase over the September 2, 1980 figure of 3,068.

IADC figures indicate 1,470 onshore rigs were making hole in Texas and New Mexico last week.

During the months of April through June, 18,372 oil wells, gas wells and dry holes were drilled nationally, The American Petroleum Institute reports. Of these: 8,993 were oil wells, with a total footage drilled of 35,563,-143 feet; 4,060 were gas wells, total foootage being 22,099,299 feet; and 5,319 were dry, with a total footage of 26,501,025 feet.

In the Texas Railroad Commission District 8 counties around Midland there were 527 wells drilled in the April to June quarter. Total footage was 3,236,664 feet. There were: 441 oil wells; total footage of 2,524,302 feet; 35 gas wells, total footage of 388,964 feet; and 51 dry holes, total footage of 323,398 feet.

Graduate Center slates logging course

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer "Open Hole Log Interpretation—Theory and Analysis' September 14-18, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the PBGC building, 10 W. Illinois, Midland. Jim Brock with Petro-Media will instruct.

This course is designed for geophysicists, geologists, petroleum technicians, reservoir engineers, and anyone with a basic understanding of petroleum geology or involved in evaluating wells. Topics include: introduction to log analysis: determination of water resistivity, true resistivity, and porosity; shale models; and general log analysis problems.

The Graduate Center will also offer a "Well Control School" September 14-18, and a 2 day "Well Control Refresher" September 19-20. Both classes will meet from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. in the PBGC Building.

The instructor will be from Prentice & Records Enterprises, Inc., Lafayette, LA.

Fee for the Well Control School is $500. For the Well Control Refresher it is $225.

For registration, or further information, call 563-2311.

LOGGING SOCIETY TO MEET

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society will meet Thursday, at 11:30 a.m., at the Midland Country Club, for their monthly meeting.

Guest speaker for the luncheon will be Jack Foster, Midland, a geologist with Arco Oil & Gas Company. His subject will be "Depositional model for Hanford field (San Andres), Gaines County, Texas."

Foster and Noresh Kamar, co-author of the paper, won the A.I. Levorsen memorial award from the southwest section of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in Dallas recently.

Call 682-8668 for further information.

ASSOCIATION TO MEET

The Permian Basin Purchasing Management Association will conduct its September meeting Tuesday, September 8, 1981 at the Midland Hilton at 6:30 P.M. The program will consist of a panel discussion by several prominent representatives of shippers and carriers and will focus on recent and anticipated future changes in the industry as a result of the Motor Carrier Act of 1980, and the Staggers Rail Act. Members, and other persons interested in attending, should contact Mr. Dale Crockett in Midland at 915/697-4111 for reservation information.

CLASS OFFERED

Registration is underway for "Fundamentals of Petroleum," which will be offered for the third time at Midland College beginning September 9.

The ten week course, sponsored by the Midland Desk and Derrick Club, will be held Wednesdays, 7 to 10 pm.

The course is designed to give an overall view of the industry in terms that are understandable by the layman as well as the professional.

Instructors will be: Dr. Donald P. McGookey, Geology; E.C. Woodruff, Geophysics; Harris Kerr, Land/Legal; Jerry I. Moritz, Drilling; Richard O. Williams, Production; John Ochsner, Pipelines/Processing/Refining; George Eng, Marketing; and Bernold M. Hanson, General Overview.

In other Desk and Derrick Club news, Brenda J. Machost, president of Petroleum Technicians Inc., conducted a mini-seminar on the duties of a geological assistant Wednesday in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

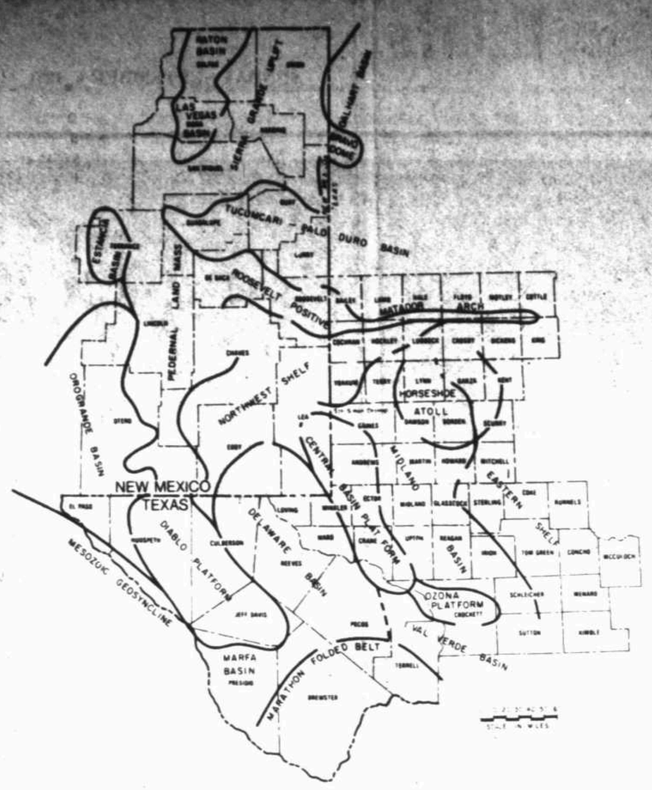

The presentation ran the gamut from explaining the use of local geological libraries to mapping information gathered and preparation of cross sections. On display were numerous publications useful to the Geo-Tech.

Machost worked for ARCO Oil & Gas and Anadarko prior to forming her own company with offices in Midland and Dallas.

The mini-seminar was the first of four to be held this month by the Midland Desk and Derrick Club. Shirley Jones, vice-chairman of the education committee, is in charge of the seminars which are open to the public without charge.

Others scheduled are: September 9 - Duties of the Engineering Assistant; 16- Regulatory Filings; and 30- Office Ettiquette and Dress.

All mini-seminars will be held at noon on Wednesdays in the Reddy Room.

Geologists predict key areas of oil and gas exploration

Vast areas of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico are yet to be explored for their oil and gas potential. These key exploratory "plays" to watch for significant discoveries in the near future are discussed in the September issue of Drill Bit magazine, a petroleum industry magazine published in Midland.

Areas described as holding particular interest to explorationists include the northern Delaware Basin in Reeves and Loving counties in Texas; the Ouachita-Marathon folded belt and the Marfa Basin in the Big Bend region; and the Laramid folded belt found in the westernmost portion of the state.

Further north, seismic crew and drilling activity is building in the Palo Duro, Tucumcari, Dalhart and Hardeman basins in Eastern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.

The expectations for possible significant finds in these geological provinces were discussed by three Midland-based geologists in a recent Drill Bit interview.

Harry Miller, independent geologist, Wayne Gibson, senior geologist with Earle M. Craig Jr. Corp. in Midland and Ray Diemer, district manager for Geomap Co., Inc., predict that improvements in seismic techniques and tools will help define these areas in terms of oil and gas potential, while each new discovery continues to renew the exploratory spirit of the area.

Economists sue, charging oil companies lied about captivity

NEW YORK (AP) — Two oil economists held prisoner in Libya last year filed a $40 million suit Friday against three oil companies, alleging the companies lied so relatives would not seek the prisoners' release.

Sid Davidoff, lawyer for Michael Price of Chicago and Roger Frey of Detroit, said the companies presented a rosy view of prison life in Libya to the families so they would not intervene on Price's and Frey's behalf.

The companies — Marathon, Conoco and Amerada Hess — wanted to protect oil deals with Libya that bring in at least $60 million in profits each year, according to Davidoff.

At the time of their arrest, Price and Frey were working for Oasis Oil Co. of Libya, Inc., also a defendant in the suit. Oasis is owned by the three oil companies and Libya, with the government controlling 51 percent.

Dave Moffitt, spokesman for Conoco, said the oil companies "worked to secure the release" of Price and Frey.

"Conoco has acted responsibly in this matter and worked in the best interests of the men during their imprisonment. And we cannot imagine any basis for a suit against us," he said.

A secretary at Amerada Hess who would not identify herself said the company's chief spokesman was on vacation and company would have no comment.

Mike Russo, spokesman for Marathon, said his company would not comment.

Barry Kingham, a lawyer for Oasis, said he "can't comment on the suit. It's a matter in litigation."

Price and Frey were arrested on Feb. 29, 1980, while Frey was taking photos on a street in Tripoli. They were questioned for three weeks and then charged with anti-government activities. They were held for 4½ months.

The suit, filed in federal court, alleges Oasis told the two men's families they were being kept in good, almost luxurious, conditions. Davidoff said the families were told: "Don't interfere, we'll take care of it."

In fact, Davidoff said, the men were beaten and starved. Both lost a lot of weight and one has suffered impaired hearing in one ear, according to Davidoff.

"It's clear in our minds," he said, that the oil companies "didn't want anyone to interfere with their arrangement" with Libya.

"I felt totally abandoned by them. I couldn't understand why they would permit this to continue," Frey said in an interview with ABC News' "World News Tonight."

The two men were released after 107 days of captivity when Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill, petitioned Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

DOE says WIPP problems institutional, not technical

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — An official with the Department of Energy said Friday that most of the problems with the Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP) near Carlsbad are institutional, not technical.

Don Schueler, assistant manager for the office of projects and energy programs in the DOE's Albuquerque office, said he includes court action against the project as part of the institutional problem.

However, court rulings have upheld the DOE in suits brought against the project by Citizens Against Radioactive Dumping (CARD), he said.

Schueler made his comments before a quarterly meeting of the Southwest Regional Energy Council in Los Alamos.

The council, made up of 50 legislators from Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas was here to discuss technical and legislative issues on disposal of low- and high-level radioactive waste.

Schueler said the drilling of the first hole for WIPP should be past 1,253 feet by this time. This would mean the borehole is about 856 feet into the salt formations. The eventual depth of the hole will be about 2,150 feet.

A second smaller hole will be drilled to provide ventilation and emergency egress. Once both holes are complete, horizontal shafts will be cut into the salt beds for analysis of the facility as a burial site for low-level radioactive waste. The drilling contract is in the amount of $10 million.

Schueler and other DOE officials stressed that WIPP is a research facility and that only weapons program related waste will be buried there.

The salt beds under that part of New Mexico were found to be a favorable site only after years of research, he said.

"If we find the facility is unsuitable we will withdraw from the area and return the site to the way it was as nearly as possible," he said.

"We are doing this to confirm to ourselves, the state and the public that this faciltiy is suitable," he said.

State officials will be kept informed of the progress and of any future decisions made on the project, he said. He pointed out the state has appointed a board of technical people to keep track of the project.

In other actions, Milton Holloway of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council discussed his state's recent legislation to develop a low-level waste disposal site.

The law, passed in January and which became effective this month, sets up a board that will have authority over the search, land acquisition, construction, operation and decommissioning of any such facility. State officials expect it will be four years before a site is selected, and six years before it goes into operation, he said.

Holloway said the law is in response to actions taken by the governors of Washington and Nevada that restrict import of nuclear waste from other states to their facilities. Further emphasis was added when one of the commercial sites in Texas was found to be "operated in sloppy manner," he said.

Burial of material from states other than Texas is banned in the law, he said. "We did this because we did not want Texas to become the fourth national dumping ground." he said.

Credit card fee planned by Texaco

NEW YORK (AP) — In a move that may mean higher prices at the gasoline pump, Texaco Inc. plans to begin charging a special fee to service station operators for sales made on credit cards, the company said Friday.

Texaco said a "processing" fee of 3 percent for each credit sale was needed to offset the rising cost of operating its credit card system, which is the largest among U.S. oil companies with estimated sales last year of $3 billion.

About 37 percent of Texaco's gasoline sales are on credit, spokesman Joseph Macrum said.

The new charge, to take effect Nov. 1, will raise station operators' cost for each gallon of gasoline sold to a credit card customer by about 4 cents, based on the current national average gasoline price of $1.34 a gallon.

It is uncertain whether dealers will pass along the added cost to their customers.

Kuwait seeks emergency meeting

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait wants an emergency meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to consider a uniform oil price, on which the cartel was unable to agree on at its meeting two weeks ago, a newspaper reported Friday.

The Kuwaiti paper Al-Rai al-Am said unidentified industry sources reported the meeting would be held during the last 10 days of this month. It said a formal announcement giving the exact date and location of the ministerial meeting would would be made in Kuwait by mid-September. The next regular meeting is scheduled for December in Abu Dhabi.

Al-Rai al-Am said Kuwait's oil minister, Sheik Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, visited Saudi Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani for talks three days ago.

The newspaper quoted the industry sources as saying the Saudis would support the call for another OPEC meeting, but would not drop their insistence on a floor price of $34 per barrel.

SPE meeting set Thursday

The SPE Reservoir Study Group will begin the 1981-82 year with a luncheon meeting Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the New American Legion Hall on Air Park Road.

W.M. Hensel and D.A. Wilson with Sun Production Co. of Richardson will present the program entitled "Core Analysis + Log Analysis = Improved Formation Evaluation in West Howard-Glasscock Unit."

The talk will be based on the SPE Paper No. 6188, which describes an orderly systematic approach to the solution of a parameter identification problem in a West Texas carbonate reservoir.

Hensel is supervisor of the core technology section of the production service laboratory of Sun Production Company and Wilson is a staff professional log analyst with the company.

GPA to meet Thursday in Andrews

The Permian Basin Chapter of the Gas Processors Association will meet Thursday at the Andrews Country Club, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Cheap, self-sufficient gasohol process found

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An economical method to make alcohol or methane fuel from agricultural wastes — everything from corn stalks to sawdust — was developed by University of Florida scientists, the school said Tuesday.

"We are now capable of converting any agricultural fiber into glucose at the rate of an 85 percent yield," said Ferdinand le Grand, an agronomist and one of the researchers.

Le Grand said the process may "provide ... a substantial amount of liquid fuel at prices competitive with gasoline from crude oil."

Lawyers for the university applied for a patent about three months ago on the energy self-sufficient process, developed by scientists at the Center for Biomass Energy Systems in the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

The developers plan to build a small-scale pilot plant to expand the research, Wayne Smith, director of the energy center, said.

In the past two years the researchers worked on converting sugar cane wastes into glucose. But the new process makes it possible for scientists to produce alcohol or methane from a wide variety of sucg agricultural waste products as hay, wood chips, even old paper.

Smith said the process involves treating plant fibers in a sequence using heat, pressure and chemicals. The fibers are converted into glucose, or sugar, and lignin, a woody residue.

The sugar is fermented into alcohol or methane gas; the wood fibers fuel the fermenting, distilling and drying operation, making the process energy self-sufficient.

IFAS spokesman Bob Thomas said the new method is especially important because energy used to fuel similar processes was too costly. Also, he said, byproducts from the new process can used to feed cattle.

Robert C. Lyon, Midland, has been named president and chief executive officer of Clajon Gas Company and Wil Gas Co., both Midland headquartered companies.

Clajon Gas Company, organized 20 years ago, is an intrastate pipeline company. Its 700-mile pipeline system currently is handling approximately 230,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day in four West Texas counties, and nine counties in southeast Texas.

Clajon has 210 employees and operates offices in Midland, Fort Stockton, San Antonio, Houston and Giddings.

Wil Gas Co. owns two gasoline plants in southeast Texas, one at LaGrange, in Fayette County, and the other near Bryan, in Burleson County. The two plants will have a total processing capability of 300,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day when current expansion is completed. Wil Gas Co. employs 40 persons.

Lyon, a graduate of New Mexico State University, with a B.S. degree in Chemical Engineering, worked 18 years for Mobil Oil Corp. He held various positions with Mobil, and when he left the company in 1976 he had basic responsibility for gas contract negotiation and administration.

Since leaving Mobil, Lyon has been a consultant to the Williams Companies.

He has been a Midland resident since 1957. He is a member of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, and a former chairman of the Chamber's M-Squad. He has been active in the United Way of Midland and is a former member of the Objectives for Midland Committee.

Lyon is a member of the Natural Gas Men of the Permian Basin and has served as a director of that organization. He also is a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

Robert A. "Tony" Marburger has joined Wil Gas Co. as gas process engineer.

Marburger

Before taking the post, Marburger was assistant manager for the West Texas area of Sid Richardson. Before that, he worked 15 years with Texaco. He was supervisor of gas processing in Texaco's Midland division from August 1978 to June 1980. He also worked with Caltex Corp. in Indonesia, and served an earlier stint with Texaco.

Marburger is a graduate of Oklahoma State University with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering.

Charles R. Moncrief has been promoted to the new position of manager, conceptual engineering for the Ortloff Corporation.

Moncrief

In his new position Moncrief will be responsible for the management of the process and plans engineering groups.

Moncrief has 26 years of management and engineering experience related to oil and gas processing, refining, and petrochemicals production. A registered professional engineer in Texas, California, Michigan, and Florida, Moncrief has also authored two technical papers related to saving energy in gas plants.

Prior to joining Ortloff in 1966, Moncrief worked with Exxon and the California Company. He received his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Texas in 1955.

Moncrief is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Texas Society of Professional Engineers, and National Society of Professional Engineers.

Lowery

Lowery began his career with ARCO in Merryville, La. July 22, 1946. He transferred to the Denton Gasoline Plant in 1953 and to the Block 31 Plant in 1965.

There was a retirement party August 13, in Crane, with approximately 125 attending.

Lowery and his wife Joycie plan to live in Crane. They have 4 sons, 3 daughters and a several grandchildren.

Williston Basin oil discovery completion announced

AMARILLO — Diamond Shamrock Corporation has announced completion of a significant oil discovery in Billings County, N.D.

The well, Cenex Fedeal No. 34-4, flowed 50.5 degree gravity oil at a rate of 866 barrels of 2.9 million cubic feet of natural gas per day through a 22/64 inch choke. Flowing tubing pressure was 1,800 pounds per square inch.

Drilled to a depth of 12,770 feet in the Ordovician Red River formation, the well was perforated for testing in the Red River "D" zone, between 12,634 to 12,646 feet. Nearest production in the Red River formation is three miles northwest of the discovery in the Bear Creek field. The oil discovery is located about 12 miles northwest of Medora, N.D. in the Williston Basin.

Diamond Shamrock, the operator, holds 50 percent working interest in the well with Apache Corporation holding 20 percent and Apaccche's 1980-1 Oil and Gas Program holding the other 30 percent. Additional drilling is planned for the area where Diamond Shamrock holds interests in some 12,000 acres.

THE WOODLANDS — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. and El Paso Exploration Co., a subsidiary of The El Paso Company, have announced the completion of an offshore Texas natural gas discovery.

The well, located on State Tract 926-S in the Mustang Island area near Corpus Christi, test-flowed at a rate of 4.1 million cubic feet of gas and 237 barrels of condensate per day.

Mitchell Energy and El Paso currently are equal partners in the well, which is on a lease acquired on a farm-in from Amoco Production Co. After payout of production costs, Mitchell Energy, El Paso and Amoco will have one-third interests in the well.

Perforations for the Frio formation test extended from 10,042 to 10,060 feet. Total depth is 10,224 feet. The test was with a 10/64 inch choke.

Flowing tubing pressure was 6,250 pounds per square inch; calculated absolute open flow was 30 million cubic feet of gas per day.

Mitchell Energy is the operator of the well. Plans for consstruction of a platform and pipeline tie-ins are being reviewed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Amoco Minerals Company and Harbert Corporation jointly announced they have reached agreement for the acquisition of Harbert's mining operations by Amoco, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Approximately 5 million shares of Standard common stock will be exchanged in the transaction, which is expected to close within approximately 30 days.

The agreement includes Harbert's coal mines in eastern Kentucky and its 50 per cent interest in a new coal export terminal now under construction in Savannah, GA. It also includes Harbert's limestone quarry in Kentucky, limestone aggregate operations in Louisiana, and barging operations on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

"This acquisition, along with our existing coal mines in Colorado and Pennsylvania, establishes Amoco in the coal mining industry with a solid base of operations," Kenneth J. Barr, president of Amoco Minerals Company, said.

"The acquisition is Amoco's latest step in building a diversified mining company of a meaningful size," Barr continued. Amoco also has mining interests in copper, molybdenum, gold, oil shale, and industrial minerals.

Harbert Corporation, a privately-held company headquartered in Birmingham, has been mining coal and limestone in central Appalachia for 13 years. Its current production of high-quality steam coal is 7 million tons annually. An expansion program is currently under way. Reserves are estimated to be sufficient to support further expansion to about 13 million tons annually.

"The new Savannah coal export terminal will be an outstanding facility for marketing to European customers," according to Chester B. Stone Jr., Amoco Minerals executive vice president in charge of the company's coal operations. "Because of the modern design of the planned facility and the large storage capacity, it will be possible to ship the coal efficiently without the customer incurring demurrage charges," Stone explained.

Harbert is retaining operations in several other areas. John M. Harbert III, chairman and chief executive officer of Harbert Corporation, said the company, "plans to expand its engineering design, construction and management services for domestic and international clients."

Harbert is also active in industrial and pipeline construction on a worldwide basis and has ventures in land development and agriculture in the United States.

Commenting on his company's plans, Harbert said, "We are also evaluting diversifications which will be an outgrowth of the company's technical capabilities and economic strengths."

SALT LAKE CITY — Commodore Resources Corporation of Salt Lake City and Denver today announced that a $650,000 to $700,000 seismic survey will be started within 10 days on approximately 19,000 acres surrounding the Ensign No. 1-16 State, remote oil and gas exploratory well in Millard County, Utah currently being production tested by the company.

David A. Sawicki, exploration vice president, emphasized that testing of the well is still continuing, with three more zones, including the primary target zone, remaining to be tested. He noted that two of the first four zones which have been tested to date produced noncommercial quantities of natural gas and the four zones produced water.

"Commodore is very encouraged by the shows of hydrocarbons and the amount of fluids produced by these lower formations," Sawicki said. "The seismic program is being initiated to delineate locations for trapping hydrocarbons in the same stratigraphic section penetrated in the Ensign No. 1-16.

"We have a large acreage block here. The area has tremendous potential and we are very excited about what we have encountered to date," Sawicki said. "Commodore will do whatever is necessary to completely evaluate the area."

FTC rejects agreement with Chrysler

By MERRILL BROWN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission has rejected an agreement signed by Chrysler Corp. and the FTC's staff that would have resulted in Chrysler paying millions of dollars to consumers for the repair of as many 38,000 cars, sources said.

The action is the first time in recent memory that the FTC has turned down an offer by a company to provide redress for consumers.

The agreement was disclosed by informed sources as the FTC issued a milder and separate consent agreement with Chrysler that requires the troubled automobile manufacturer merely to notify owners of 700,000 Japanese-made cars sold by Chrysler that special oil filters are need to avoid engine damage. No money is involved in the deal approved by the FTC.

Rejection of the other agreement — which has left key FTC staff members bitter and fearful of the agency's future direction — came July 30 after FTC economists suggested that in order for consumers to solve the engine problem, they would have had to switch from leaded to unleaded gasoline. Chrysler could have sent as much as $7 million to consumers for the repairs.

The decision is viewed by some FTC o'ficials as symbolic of the agency's continuing hesistancy to bring tough cases that would rankle the business community and the Reagan administration.

James C. Miller III, an Office of Management and Budget official and staff director of the administration's regulatory reform task force, has been nominated to become chairman of the agency later this month.

Although the rejected agreement was not disclosed because of commission confidentiality rules, former FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk dissented from the oil filter decision because of his concern about the rejected agreement.

The issue centers on early failures of balancer chains in up oo 38,000 of Chrysler's Dodge Colts and Plymouth Arrows, which are built by Mitsubishi, and were developed to cut engine vibration. The cars were sold during the 1976 and 1977 model years, Pertschuk wrote in a dissent released Wednesday with the decision.

"Chrysler failed to tell its customers of this problem after learning about it," Pertschuk wrote. Pertschuk could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

The problem deals with bal$ncer chains, a part worth $150 to $250, which are designed to reduce engine wear.

!t a meeting July 29, th3 FTC was deadlocked on the Chrysler payment plan along party lines, with Democrats Pertschuk and Paul Rand Dixon voting for acceptance of both agreements and acting Chairman David Clanton and member Patricia Bailey voting against. The next day an agreement was worked out to accept only the oil filter portion of the package.

"Though the facts are open to reasonable dispute, I think there is reason to beieve that Chrysler had a duty under the FTC act to dislcose the balancer-chain problem to its customers," Pertschuk wrote.

But Clanton and Bailey said in a joint statement that Chrysler could not propose cost-effective actions for consumer to solve the problem. "The only use and care information that the company could have communicated to current owners during that time that might have reduced the likelihood of premature balancer-chain wear was to advise them to use unleaded gasoline," Clanton and Bailey wrote.

The two members — who admmitted that the comapny was "possibly in technical violation" of the FTC act for about four months — noted that analysis by FTC economists indicates that the higher costs of purchasing unleaded gasoline would have exceeded the cost of dealing with problems with the balancer chain and that Chrysler owners therefore could not have addressed the problem.

Pertschuk disagreed. "The evidence indicates that consumers could have avoided or deferred substantial economic loss if they had been told about the balancer-chain failure in time," he wrote.

While refusing to respond to questions on the agreement signed by Chrysler, Clanton said in an interview that "from the standpoint of what our resources are, and our legal duty must be, we can't expect manufactuers to become absolute guarantors for their cars.

"Even if a company was willing to ante up," that should not determine "what our response should be," Clanton said. "We are not taking the position that any kind of defect is a law violation. Manufacturers are not automatically liable."

In the agreement released Wednesday, the FTC said Chrysler provided inaccurate information about oil filters to owners of some 1971 to 1980 Dodge Colts, Colt Hatchbacks, Challengers, and D-50 pickup trucks; and Plymouth Arrows, Sapporos and Champs. The company in required to send cards to owners of these vehicles explaining how to avoid oil filter leakage problems.

Entertainment, service make Broken Spoke a nice place

Something Bill Jones had in mind when he opened the Broken Spoke restaurant was that the people of Midland needed a nice place to go out at night and enjoy themselves. The restaurant, at 3305 W. Front, strives constantly to maintain an enjoyable atmosphere, good entertainment, careful service, and delicious food. Manager Abel Duran expresses this goal: "We want everyone to leave here full and happy - and to come back." High quality is so important that everything served at the Broken Spoke is 100 percent guaranteed.

A noon buffet is offered from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. Evening hours are 5 to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 5 p.m. to 12 midnight Friday and Saturday. The restaurant is closed on Sunday.

Two banquet rooms upstairs are well-used by members of Kiwanis, Rotary, AMBA, Homebuilders, Midland Board of Realtors, and other groups. The Longhorn Room seats 175, while the Corral Room accomodates 65. Call 697-6361 or 697-7141 to make reservations.

Abel reminds everyone to take advantage of his fall Early Bird Two Hour Special Steak Extravaganza from 5 to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday and receive discounts a bit over ⅓ off. A different cut will be featured from night to night.

Fred's island has strange but wonderful mystique

By ZAN THOMPSON
The Los Angeles Times

Fred had been through a lean winter. It had been hungry times with the day trippers home on the mainland and the sailboat and stink pot people going to the bank or the plumbing shop or the insurance office every day so they could make enough money to go back and play on Catalina Island in the summer.

Fred was not as sleek as he was in the vacation months when the pelf he wheedled from tourists on the Pleasure Pier made him a very large cat, indeed. He made his home on the pier all year round, right in back of Whitney's Hamburgers, Counter Service Only.

And on a gray day deep in February, Fred had a stroke of marvelous luck. The local fishermen and the sport fishermen began to empty their bait tanks right on the end of the pier. All Fred had to do was saunter out there and gourmandize on anchovies and several kinds of sardines.

Soon, his coat was shining, his whiskers twitched contentedly and he walked the Pleasure Pier like a gold-heavy commodore walks the br8dge. He had everything a cat could desire. A place to sleep, an inexhaustible supply of choice meals and many good friends among the local gentry who came to the pier every day and watched the sea. They came as if it were a job, every day at the same time and taking up the same elbow space on the railing, as they watched the mist burn off and the Southern California mainland come into view. They called it the Big Island.

Fred's best friend was Duane, a bartender at the Marlin Club, a saloon a couple of blocks up from the pier. Duane would talk to Fred and scratch him behind the ears and life was good.

Those of you who have read Jonathan Livingston Seagull may think that seagulls are smart birds. They are not, but after a few weeks, even the dumbest seagull had figured out that the bait was being dumped at the end of the pier.

Now, Fred had to hustle a little. If he sauntered out, the rapacious gulls would have eaten all the fish. Then he found that some days, he would have to jump on a couple of seagulls to make them understand the fish was his. Fred grew ring-wise with the big gray and white birds and regularly ran them off and all was well again.

Then, one day, Fred heard a boat engine whine through the water so he walked out from behind Whitney's and trotted out to the feast. A giant pelican was filling his beak and Fred was furious. He arose on his hind legs and cuffed the pelican upside the head, causing the pelican to grab Fred in his big pouch and fly him out to sea.

Duane cried to all the roustabouts, "My God, that pelican has poor Fred." Just then, the pelican dropped old Fred in 800 feet of water and Fred began to paddle desperately. Duane ran down the gangway, jumped in a skiff and started to row. Soon there was an entire rescue flotilla but Duane reached Fred first, just as he was rolling over on his back, intending to float for awhile. Great was the jubilatio when Duane and Fred came back aboard the pier and Duane set everybody up at the Marlin Club, including Fred, who had a scrambled egg.

Later, Fred needed some surgery and the pier fraternity took up a collection and flew Fred to the mainland where a fine veterinarian took care of him and then sent him back to his friends.

I heard about Fred and his friends from dandy Russ Pyle, who was born on Catalina Island and is a man of honor, and from Father Sylvester Ryan, chaplain at Mount Saint Marys College who also grew up on that crazy, wonderful old island. Actually, the story didn't surprise me at all. I never knew anyone on Catalina Island whose feet weren't firmly planted in midair. Sadly, normalcy is for people on the Big Island. And that's us, honey, that's us.

Cincinnati cabbies watching for crime

CINCINNATI (AP) — The saying goes, "You can never find a cab when you need one." But under a new police program here, robbers may face the prospect of finding cabs exactly when they don't want them.

Police are teaching about 300 area taxi drivers how to watch for crime in a program financed by a convenience store chain throughout the state.

Tom Bottomly — security specialist for the 7-Eleven stores, a division of Southland, Corp. — said the "Taxis On Patrol" program was started in Austin, Texas, in 1978 as a response to rising crime in convenience stores. Since then, Southland has financed similar programs in Akron, Columbus and Indianapolis.

"We can't put a price on something like this. We feel we get a good return on our investment," Bottomly said.

Sgt. Charles Horstman coordinates the program. He said drivers learn what to look for, and taxi dispatchers learn how to pass the information on to police.

When they don't have fares, drivers are encouraged to spend time in convenience store parking lots. The best tipsters win prices such as televisions, stereos and radios, and they receive free coffee at the round-the-clock stores.

Jerry Cahall, owner of Taxicabs of Cincinnati, said the program should help change the image of cab drivers.

"Most of our drivers have already been doing it (reporting crimes), via their two-way radios, he said. "They've been doing it for years. But the program will bring out the awareness and create some trust in the taxicab and its driver. We're not bums anymore," said Cahall.

"It will do wonders for driver morale," he said.

"They're being treated more like humans,. They've gone so many years with only the negatives. Now they've got someplace to go at 3 a.m.," too, Cahall said.

In the spotlight

Any actor or actress, professional or amateur, will tell you the glow of the spotlight reveals details about a person that might be overlooked under less intense light.

The spotlight has been focused more glaringly on Midland — and Odessa — in recent months because of the importance of the oil industry, the growth that industry is feeding in this area and the problems — like the extreme shortage of housing — that plague "boom" cities like these.

Because of these reasons and more, news organizations from around the nation have noticed what's happening in the Petroplex's twin cities. In the past few months representatives of such prestigious news organizations as the Associated Press, United Press International, the Tulsa Tribune, Washington Post, Dallas Morning News, Dallas Times Herald and Fort Worth Star-Telegram have visited Midland and Odessa to get an inside look at what's really going on here and to provide their versions of the "boom cities" story. The Reporter-Telegram, of course, does that on a daily basis.

From one standpoint, it's good to be in the spotlight for awhile. The public exposure likely will be beneficial and will compound Midland and Odessa's prestige with national and state leaders. The two cities, it's safe to say, have received more national attention recently than money could buy. We are becoming "known," to put it mildly.

The flip side of such exposure is that being in the spotlight puts a heavy responsibility on what the officials, the leaders and residents of Midland and Odessa do. Care must be taken to ensure that we are meeting all the obligations and responsibilities expected of those in our extraordinary situation, from adequate housing for all to financing for the arts.

Yes, the glare of the spotlight shows not only our good points, but also our shortcomings. In all aspects of life, the people of the Permian Basin should be stressing to the rest of the country that here is an area in which all people, regardless, are treated fairly and with compassion, all people are represented equally by elected officials and the good things in life are available to all.

The relentless spotlight will show if we succeed in that challenge — or if we fail.

Choosing the leaders

Leadership Midland's selection committee recently met and chose 43 nominees for the class of 1981-82 from a field of 100 applicants. It's no small task for the panel whose duty it is to narrow the number of applicants to a class size in which the program can be most effective.

Virtually all the nominees are in positions in which they can be effective future leaders of Midland. So, obviously, trimming this group in half was no simple task.

Experience during the past three years has shown that Leadership Midland has been effective in putting men and women in the forefront of civic leadership here. As such it is a vital force in the community's life and important to the future.

Congratulations to the 43 new class members. We know their Leadership Midland experience will be valuable to them and that not only they, but also Midland, will benefit from their participation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Sept. 6, the 249th day of 1981. There are 116 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 6, 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an assassin in Buffalo, New York. He died eight days later.

On this date:

In 1909, American explorer Robert Peary sent word that he had reached the North Pole five months earlier.

In 1965, India invaded West Pakistan and bombed the city of Lahore.

In 1966, South Africa's Prime Minister, Hendrik F. Verwoerd, was stabbed to death during a parliament session in Cape Town.

And in 1975, more than 2,300 people were killed in an earthquake in eastern Turkey.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon, in a Labor Day address, called on American workers to increase productivity.

Five years ago: a Russian fighter jet was flown to Japan by a Soviet Air Force lieutenant who then asked for refuge in the United States.

One year ago: tropical storm Danielle swept through southeastern Texas, dumping up to 15 inches of rain.

Today's birthday: Democratic Sen. John Melcher of Montana is 57.

Thought for today: Mediocrity knows nothing higher than itself, but talent instantly recognizes genius. — Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, British writer (1859-1930).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Report says CIA underestimated Khomeini

WASHINGTON — Western intelligence agencies have already mounted a death watch on Ayatollah Khomeini. The 81-year-old Iranian mullah is known to be in fragile health, nursing a heart condition and other debilitations of old age.

Jack Anderson

Politically, however, Khomeini is as strong as an ox. CIA analysts are convinced he will hang onto power till he draws his last breath.

In the unlikely event that Khomeini does decide to relinquish his dictatorial grip on Iran voluntarily, the experts predict that his successor will be the Ayatollah Hussein Montazeri, whom Khomeini has been grooming for leadership. Montazeri would probably step in if Khomeini were to die.

The important note in this score for the Iranian game of musical chairs is its assumption that exiled former President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr doesn't stand a chance of toppling Khomeini. But there's a sour note as well: Our intelligence experts were abysmally wrong about Khomeini and the Iranian revolution right from the start.

It was three years ago when Khomeini drew the attention of Western intelligence circles by arriving in Paris with his son Ahmed and two Muslim clergymen. French security agents tracked the ayatollah from the minute his plane touched down on Oct. 6, 1978. They obligingly gave the CIA a copy of their report on his activities during his first month in France.

My reporters Eileen O'Connor and Dale Van Atta have studied a secret CIA report based on information the agency got from French intelligence. In many ways it is a pathetic document.

The French provided some solid information on the little-known ayatollah, his associates and his background. The very fact that French intelligence devoted so much time and effort to an assessment of Khomeini should have been a clue to his importance — or at least his potential importance.

But the CIA, evidently blinded by the deceptive 'uster of the Peacock Throne and the shah it had placed there, misread the French intelligence information on Khomeini and concluded that he was merely the puppet of forces beyond his control.

The CIA summary of the French report notes that it "supplies some useful data for making an assessment of what has been going on and what forces are around the ayatollah."

When Khomeini arrived in Paris, he "was welcomed by two well-known Iranian activists of the so-called 'Marxist-Islamic' group who are also affiliated with the Iranian National Front," the secret CIA report states. It continues:

"The French police have long records on these two — Abdel Hassan Banisadr (age 45) and Sadegh Ghotbzadeh (age 40). They have been involved in an assassination attempt of a SAVAK (Iranian intelligence) officer, maintain close ties with pro-Soviet Palestinians, and have direct organizational links with the Libyans and other radical groupings."

Bani-Sadr and Ghotbzadeh, who were to be leading figures in Khomeini's revolutionary regime just a few months later, "are the men who have been handling contacts with Khomeini," the CIA's Paris office explained to Washington, adding that "French intelligence has kept a file on his contacts" — another indication that at least someone thought Khomeini was worth keeping an eye on.

"The ayatollah was informed upon arrival in Paris, according to a message from President Giscard to the Iranian ambassador, that 'his visit to France is considered touristic, his stay is provisional, and during his stay he must abstain from all political activity,'" the CIA report notes.

If the French were taking Khomeini seriously, the shah was not. "The initial official Iranian reaction to this French intent to restrain Khomeini was that Tehran was not requesting that Khomeini be muzzled," the CIA in Paris informed Washington, adding: "In fact, the Iranians specifically asked the French not to restrain Khomeini. Subsequently, however, there was a direct request from the shah to Giscard to stop the flow of vitriolic anti-Iranian propaganda from the ayatollah."

The shah, dancing on the edge of a volcano, considered Khomeini little more than a loudmouthed nuisance — an embarrassment it would be nice to have silenced. There was no hint that the shah appreciated the mortal danger Khomeini posed to his throne. It was characteristic of the shah — and his CIA buddies — that Khomeini's anti-shah pronouncements were called "anti-Iranian." As events would soon show, the ayatollah was more in tune with the Iranian people than the shah was.

The French told the CIA that Khomeini was being helped financially by both the French and Italian Communist parties. "There is, however, no way we can verify this report," the CIA informed Washington.

After providing Washington with the results of the French intelligence agents' work, the CIA in Paris added its own armchair contribution:

"We conclude that regardless of where he goes, Khomeini does not have a program or an organization, and he is being 'used' by various Iranian elements hostile to the shah, and possibly by others such as the Libyans, for their own purposes."

Almost as an afterthought, the report finally shows a faint glimmer of understanding: "Regardless of his own basic motivations, Khomeini's influence is destructive and possibly the most dangerous currently being employed against the shah."

ART BUCHWALD

AWACs deal sent Soviets a message

I know most people are having difficulty deciding whether we should give AWACs to the Saudi Arabians or not. It's one of those military decisions no one likes to make.

Art Buchwald

What's an AWAC? Well, it's nothing more than a funny-looking Boeing 707 airplane filled with all sorts of super electronic gear that goes "beep, beep, beep" when unfriendly planes attack your planes, and "ark, ark, ark" when your planes attack the other chaps' aircraft. It is so chock full of secret equipment that even telling you this much is giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Now it was never our intention to give the Saudis AWAC airplanes. We had agreed to sell them the F-15 fighter, which is a very lovely piece of military hardware with bomb racks, sidewinders and extra gas tanks; a top of the line weapon any OPEC country could be proud of.

What happened was that the Iran-Iraq war started, and we sent over a couple of American AWACs to protect the Saudis.

"What are those?" a member of the Saudi Royal Family asked a U.S. Air Force sergeant in Ryadh.

The Air Force sergeant said proudly, "Those are U.S. AWACs, which happen to be the latest thing in aerial warfare. You can fight an entire war and watch an in-flight movie at the same time.

"We'll take five," the Saudi Arabian prince said, taking out his Gucci wallet.

"They're not for sale," the Air Force sergeant said.

"I've never known a weapon the U.S. made that wasn't for sale. If we don't get our AWACs, we're upping the price of our oil two dollars a barrel, and taking all our deposits out of the Chase Manhattan Christmas fund.

The Air Force sergeant passed on the conversation to the U.S. ambassador in Saudi Arabia during a crap game, who passed it on to Washington who bucked it up to the White House.

The National Security Council debated the issue. One member said, "If we sell the Saudis the AWACs we can recycle most of the money we're paying for Saudi Arabian crude."

"But if something happens to the Royal Family," another member of the NSC warned, "then the AWACs could fall into unfriendly hands and the Soviets would know all our secrets."

A third member said, "And let's not forget the Israelis. They'll feel threatened by the AWACs and we'll have to give them 12 Stealth Bombers that aren't off the drawing boards yet."

"I think the president is going to have to decide this one."

Someone put in a call to President Reagan.

"Mr. President, how do you feel about selling the Saudi Arabians AWACs?"

"Gosh, it sounds great to me."

"Don't you want to know the options, Mr. President?"

"Heck, I'll go along with whatever you people think is best. What's an AWAC?"

"It's an airborne radar system that could affect the balance of power in the Middle East."

"Will it send a message to the Russians?" the president asked.

"In 12 different languages."

"Then let's do it. We haven't sent them a message all week."

Arizona's tough water questions reflect West's dilemma

DENVER, Colo. — One thing does lead to another. A Serbian shot an Austrian archduke in 1914 (which led to World War I, the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, a new state system in the Middle East, Israel, the Yom Kippur War, and the oil-price revolution), so now Littleton, Colo., is lowering the railbed to minimize the nuisance of the mile-long coal trains that rumble through the center of town.

George F. Will

The energy boom, the West's latest boom, is as Western as, well, Lulu City, Colo., where, long ago, property values doubled in a six-week period.

But what is today called progress is threatened by a shortage more intractable than that of energy, a shortage of a liquid more life-sustaining than oil: water.

Energy problems are, in part, water problems: Water is needed to move coal in slurry pipelines. Water is required — in perhaps prohibitive quantities — to produce oil from shale. California's water authority uses, to pump water around the state, almost as much electricity as Los Angeles uses.

Some of California's water comes from as far away as the Wind River Range in Wyoming, and is used primarily for agriculture. Only 800,000 of the 4.7 million acre-feet of the Colorado River that went to Southern California in the mid-1970s went to the coastal cities. An acre-foot is the amount — 325,851 gallons, about what a family of five uses in a year — that would cover one acre one foot deep.

Growth — urban or industrial or agricultural — requires water, and the West's great source of it, the Colorado, is "oversubscribed." It is currently allocated on the basis of its flow in an unusually wet year more than half a century ago, and now is compared to a corporation in which the stockholders own 150 percent of the stock. So the aging industrial cities of the relatively water-rich Northeast have one advantage that may soon be telling against rivals in the energy-rich but arid West.

Meanwhile, the West faces hard choices. In 1974, during a hot debate about locating a huge coal-burning (and job-producing) power plant in southern Utah, a resident of Kanab wrote to the local editor about the possible social costs of economic gain:

"Even if we have plenty left over and our school system becomes rich, will our students become better people? Will they become more grateful for what they have? What good is a new auditorium with broken windows and slashed seats? New school buses with slashed tires and sugar in the gas tank? Do we need more money? Is there anyone in our area who doesn't have the necessities? Is there anyone who doesn't have a few luxuries? We do have ball games without knifings. Dances without police present. There are very few areas left like ours."

I do not know whether the plant should have been built (it was not), but I know good questions when I hear them. And I know poignant answers, such as Arizona's answer to questions posed by water problems.

James Watt, secretary of the interior, is feuding with Rep. Mo Udall, the Tucson Democrat who chairs the House Interior Committee. Watt reportedly has threatened delay of the Central Arizona Project, which is supposed to begin delivering a million acre-feet to central Arizona in this decade. But the scarcity of water, not the excesses of Watt, is the serious problem for that project.

The Colorado is so heavily used that it ends in puddles before reaching its natural delta. And California, which has been using some of Arizona's entitlement pending completion of the project, will not cheerfully yield it back. (Next year Californians will experience a divisive referendum about a proposal to divert Sacramento River water to Southern California.)

Arizona has embraced a plan that, viewed against the backdrop of American history, is historic and a bit sad. It is a plan for removing agricultural land from production so more will be available for urban and industrial growth. (Eighty-nine percent of Arizona's current water usage is for agriculture.)

This nation's first great political argument, which survived its two great contestants and shaped 19th century politics, was between Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson. Hamilton welcomed the prospect of an industrial nation; Jefferson believed that democracy would work if, but only if, this remained a republic of rural yoemen.

Arizona's answer to the hard questions posed by water is redundant evidence that although we worship Jefferson, we live like Hamiltonians.

Bob Bullock's 'surprise packages' not complete surprise

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It came as no surprise to reporters to learn that Comptroller Bob Bullock had sent some of their colleagues boxes of cow patties the other day, in an apparent comment on the quality — in Bullock's opinion — of some journalistic efforts.

It was a gesture which, if not expected, fit in with the Bullock style.

And it was no surprise that at about the same time Bullock was packing up his "gifts" (which aides insist were not mailed at state expense or prepared during office hours), he also was taking a few swipes at a potential opponent.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, a nine-year veteran of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has reported that some folks have been talking to him about running against Bullock in next year's Democratic primary.

Bullock announced back on Nov. 3, 1980, that he'd run for re-election — saying that "My record for getting the job down is my platform."

Bullock first was elected as the chief tax collector and financial officer for Texas in 1974, with 70 per cent of the vote — and was re-elected in 1978, without an opponent in either the primary or the general election.

There had been speculation Bullock might even make a race for the governor's office — a possibility which, quite frankly, filled a number of Capitol reporters with glee, envisioning the prospects of the vitriolic Bullock and the sharp-tongued Gov. Bill Clements vying with one another in the verbal equivalent of a back-alley brawl with straight razors.

Bullock, and Clements, are "good copy" — they aren't afraid to say what's on their minds, and they say it in an interesting way — and most reporters retain enough of that small-child delight in poking anthills and rejoicing in the ensuing confusion.

Bullock's comments — in a campaign press release, rather than a Comptroller's Office press release— on Jones were typical of what can be expected (although on a scale of one to 10 based on Bullock's past performance, the comments don't get more than a five or six rating).

In eight paragraphs, Bullock manages to say or imply that Jones is attempting "political blackmail," possibly in order to get a better district from the Legislative Redistricting Board on which Bullock sits; that Jones is afraid of Bullock; that Jones has a "negative" record in the Senate and has damaged the "economic health" of Texas; and that Jones doesn't know how to fish, or smoke a pipe.

Jones, who usually appears relaxed, collected and unperturbed, indicated that that's just Bullock's way — and that he would take it for what it was worth (not saying, but implying, he didn't think it was worth much).

But if Bullock has a knack for getting his name in the papers, it's not always for the reasons he'd like.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Earlier this year, Bullock lashed out at "newspaper reporters who have become self-appointed critics of optional equipment purchases on state-owned vehicles," because of questions raised about an $11,000 truck with mag-type rally wheels, AM-FM radios with eight-track tape players, tilt steering wheel, etc.

Bullock accused reporters of being in "unholy cahoots" with an auto dealer who lost money on a bid, and managed to conclude that reporters want employees of the Comptroller's Office to be killed in car crashes.

Before that — but still this year — the Capitol press corps was being accused of a "new round of fantasy stories about state-owned airplanes," with Bullock suggesting that the press corps "wouldn't know the Capitol building collapsed if it happened before 10 o'clock in the morning."

Bullock's feuding hasn't been only with reporters, of course.

He's taken on Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle over Earle's investigation of charges that State time and State equipment was being used by some Comptroller's Office employees for private business.

That investigation ended with no charges being brought — and Bullock eventually managed to get the grand jury's report, which contained criticisms of his operations, expunged.

Over the years, Bullock has moved back and forth in curious political alliances and battles with almost every statewide elected official—and with a number of local officials, and even individual taxpayers.

Bullock shocked most Texas politicians by his address to a delighted convention of the Texas AFL-CIO in which he recommended unionization of state employees (and further horified those politicians by encouraging formation of a union at the Comptroller's Office).

But despite all the furor and ballyhoo, the Comptroller's Office has been collecting the State's taxes and apparently performing those functions which it's supposed to perform.

Whether Jones, or anyone else, could do the job as well — or better — is open to debate.

But it would seem a good bet Bullock won't have any hesitation about saying what he thinks about it — or anything else.

KINGSBURY-SMITH

Less freedom for criminals urged in report forwarded to Reagan

By JOSEPH KINGSBURY-SMITH
National Editor, The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Criminals, would-be assassins, foreign spies and subversive political organizations are going to have less freedom to operate in America under plans now being formulated by the Reagan administration

Buried deep in the voluminous attorney general's task force report on crime is a hitherto little publicized recommendation that is likely to lead to the removal of crippling restrictions imposed on the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1976.

These restrictions sharply curbed the crime preventative activities of the FBI, especially the use of informers.

Under guidelines imposed by then Attorney General Edward H. Levi in March, 1976, the FBI has to have evidence of a criminal act, or intent to commit a crime, before it can place an individual under surveillance or infiltrate a suspected criminal or politically subversive organization.

The task force recommendation calls on the Attorney General to conduct a comprehensive review of all legislation, guidelines, and regulations that impede the effective performance of federal law enforcement, and to take "whatever appropriate action is necessary within the Constitutional framework" to eliminate those impediments.

The Attorney General can rescind some of the restrictions on his own authority. Others will require Congressional legislation.

Frank G. Carrington, who, as a member of the task force, proposed the recommendation that the Attorney General act to make America less safe for criminals, spies and political subversives, told the Hearst Newspapers the recommendation has the support of Attorney General William French Smith. He predicted Smith would act quickly to implement the recommendation.

Carrington, a law enforcement adviser to the Reagan administration and personal friend of White House Counselor Edwin Meese, considers "Recommendation 31" to be a greenlight to Attorney General Smith to take whatever action is necessary to remove restrictions that make it more difficult to punish criminals and prevent crime.

Among the task force recommendations which Carrington expects the Attorney General to implement are authority to federal judges to hold "dangerous" defendants without bail, and to modify the "exclusionary rule" that prohibits the use of illegally obtained evidence at trials. The task force recommended that such evidence should be admissible if a police officer had "reasonable, good faith" belief that he was acting within the law when, for example, he talked a criminal into confession.

One of the task force's most important recommendations was that the Freedom of Information Act should be amended to curb the use of that law for criminal purposes or by foreign spies.

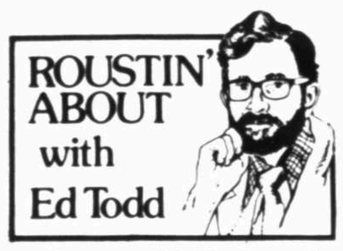

The task force report said many of the requests to the FOI agency came from persons seeking information "for improper personal advance, including convicted offenders, organized crime figures, and drug traffickers." Forty percent of the requests have come from prisoners and another 20 percent from persons not in prison but who are known by the Drug Enforcement Agency to be connected with criminal drug activities.

Foreign diplomats and agents have also used the FOIA to obtain documents with military and/or highly sophisticated technological information. Even some foreign journalists are suspected of having been used for this purpose.

The Republican-controlled Senate is expected to act next month to curb use of the FOIA. Senator Robert Dole, R-Kan., has attached to the Justice Department Appropriations bill an amendment that would exempt all FBI and Gentral Intelligence Agency records from Freedom of Information disclosure for ten years, and keep many of the intelligence community's records secret for many more years.

The Dole amendment would prohibit the release of information concerning the identity of law enforcement or intelligence agency personnel, and forbid the release of any information that the president considered a threat to national security.

Some Tall City thankfulness

It's about time for Midlanders to climb aboard the gilded bandwagon and extol the manifold blessings of their burgeoning town.

They should seek out and dwell on the positive, of which there are many. The negatives readily make themselves known.

—Oil: It's not particularly palatable, but it feeds families, builds buildings and buys cars, houses, airplanes and political favors.

—Paved Streets: Be thankful for the hundreds of miles of paved streets in the city. After all, the city charter nowhere says you'll be living in a rose garden. Merely accept the chuckholes, the narrow streets, the faded center stripes, the unsynchronized traffic lights and a piddling number of negatives in a big positive way.

—Water: Every glassful of tap water, though naturally highly mineralized, doesn't taste like store-bought mineral water. And it's not Perrier's in taste or price. But it's life-supporting water, and water is nature's No. 1 cleansing agent. Give thanks.

—Flush toilets: One flush, and the water closet again is rid of waste. Be grateful for that, and bury your complaints about the city's Big Toilet — the sewage treatment plant — over running. How would you like moving your outhouse over a few yards every five years to a fresh, clean hole? Be thankful.

—Parking: Stop griping about the downtown's shortage of automobile parking space. You probably just enjoy bellyaching about something that cannot easily be corrected or corrected at all. By choice, you drive your car to work or to shop. Walk, ride a bicycle, push or pull a cart, jog or some such. Most folks are so accustomed to a sedentary lifestyle that they prefer to sit however they travel.

—Newspaper: It's like the quality of life envisioned in the American dream: It'll improve. But don't stop griping about your newspaper. At least, it's being remembered, bought and read and used in all manner of ways.

—Taxes: Swap the vowels, and it becomes Texas. And Midland, like Texas, is embedded in taxes. But, there's plenty of Midland money to pay them.

—Restaurants: A Paris or New York epicure who happens to own a Learjet might not fly to Midland to dine. But you'll find one or more things positive in every food spot, be it a greasy-spoon place, of which there are a few, or a de luxe dining place, where real linen covers the tables.

—Leisure: Remember, the Louvre is in Paris, and that's hours or days away, depending on your mode of travel. In Midland, there are museums, bookstores, theaters, people and things to watch, game rooms, parks and your inventive self.

—Lodging: Most folks have a place to call home — from shack to mansion. Relax and work toward your goal if you're not comfortable in your present station. It takes time, effort, direction, sense and guidance, which can be had for a prayer.

—Self: It's all you've got in this lifetime. And Midland is where your "time" is now. Spend it wisely.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

● Readers are invited to submit letters to be considered for publication.

Letters may be on any subject, but should not be slanderous or defamatory. They must be signed by the writer and must bear the writer's correct mailing address and a telephone number at which the writer may be contacted during the day, either home or office.

For valid reasons, at the discretion of the editor, the name will be withheld but must be included in the original letter.

Writers should be as concise as possible and the right to condense letters is reserved.

Letters must be received by noon Thursday for Sunday publication. If necessary, the latest received may be held for publication the following Tuesday or Thursday.

They should be addressed to: Letters to the Editor, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702.

A few facts

To The Editor:

I am a patrolman with the Midland Police Department and this letter is in response to the Sunday August 30 "Equal Importance" letter. I agree with the writer that many city employees are underpaid, but I have a few facts which the writer might be interested in.

About a year ago the Midland police officers signed a petition asking for a pay raise of 20 percent, for San Angelo had just given San Angelo police officers a 20 percent raise. Our raise was refused on the grounds that to give police officers a raise and not other city employees would cause "hard feelings" with other city departments.

About two weeks ago a few police department supervisors, detectives and patrolmen went to the city council with a list of complaints, one of which was our base pay. As a result, the detectives got a pay raise in their yearly clothing allowance from $300 to $600 each October, a 100 percent raise. The complaint clerks, who only answer the telephone, were given a pay raise from $1,150 per month to $1,400 per month, a 22 percent pay raise. What did the patrol officers get? Do I need tell you? NOTHING! A patrolman with two years on the force or 20 years on the force draws a base salary of only $1,469 per month, just $69 more than a clerk. And in regards to the $22,000 per year figure mentioned by Mrs. Green, according to my arithmetic $1,469 per month figures out to be $17,628 per year. (I just wish I DID get $22,000 per year).

I wonder how much firemen, paramedics, or dog catchers were given? City managers, tell us some more about "equality" and "hard feelings." I wonder if your pep-talks will lower the attrition rate.

Artistic aid

To The Editor:

In response to a recent letter concerning the lack of support local artists receive, I am in agreement. As a working artist in Midland, I have found it difficult to establish a strong local market.

Midland is a particularly difficult market for those artists whose work is more contemporary, as contemporary art is generally not included in the collections of most area galleries.

I do believe the Museum of the Southwest could do more to help create interest in local artists. It is museum policy to exclude Midland artists from any exhibitions (other than one annual Midland Arts Association exhibition) as it is policy to exclude the same artists from Septemberfest. In my opinion no artist should be excluded because of local — decisions of exclusion or inclusion should be made on the basis of quality alone. The museum might consider occassionally featuring deserving local artists just as the committee in charge of Septemberfest might consider allotting a percentage of booths to qualified local artists.

There are a few places and organizations which support local artists by providing exhibition space but this list is small. When we do not actively support local art we are forcing Midland artists to seek markets elsewhere and we rob ourselves of the pleasure of seeing the works of many talented artists in Midland.

Robbers' roost

To The Editor:

There is a housing and apartment shortage in Midland. Now everybody knows that. And so do a lot of non-resident, out-of-state corporate apartment landlords. And there is something ugly going on. It's called rent gouging.

The tenant comes home from work and finds a "Dear Tenant" letter from the manager. "Due to increased costs," it says, "your rent will be increased to blank dollars." Trouble is, this won't be the last one. In some cases a second similar letter arrives within three to four months. The increased costs are never detailed and the services and maintenance have been negligible for three or four years. These greedy landlords are heaping huge increases upon the tenant by taking not so small bites one at a time. They know the tenant can't move. Don't blame the manager — some of them don't like it either.

Seems like the city needs a Rent Control Board before Midland becomes known as a robber's roost. If not already.

Stinking situation

To The Editor:

The city of Midland is in disgusting shape as far as the sewer situation is concerned. Raw sewage is overflowing at the intersection of Fairgrounds Road and Scharbrough Drive, also the intersection of Jackson Street and Scharbauer Drive was a flowing of waste that is creating a health hazzard. Besides the unhealthy atmosphere created by the overflow of human wastes, the smell is undescribable in polite terms. It stinks, to put it bluntly.

What is it going to take the city administration, city water and sewer department and even the city council to do something about the overloading of our sewer system? Are we the taxpayers going to let our city go down the drain, even when it is stopped up?

The sewage does not back up and overflow in the West parts of the city. In the southwest parts of the city, persons have indicated that sewer has backed up into their homes ruining carpet, and creating disasters.

It is time that something positive is done about the sewer system. Our city is growing at rapid rates and something needs to be done to prepare for the future.

Carmen Lopez
Midland

EDITOR'S NOTE: Since the sewage problem at these locations is an on-again, off-again situation, we asked Fred Baker, director of public works for the city, about it. His response is that when the bridge at Fairgrounds Road was built in the late 1950's the machinery "almost annihilated" the line. When the flow builds up, leaks occur and these are short-term repaired by applying concrete over manholes and other leak spots.

Baker said "We patrol it daily to see if new leaks are occurring. The engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper is designing an additional relief line. Once that is installed, we can take the old one out of service and repair it. The leaks and breaks are noticeable now because the line often is at capacity." Baker could give no time frame as to when permanent repair could be done.

Top treatment

To The Editor:

With reference to a letter from Arlene Barber in The Reporter-Telegram (Sunday, Aug. 23), I also would like to tell the people of Midland what great treatment and care are provided at Midland Memorial Hospital.

In the afternoon of Wednesday Aug. 12, I experienced distressing symptoms of a heart attack. My wife called the emergency phone number, 911, and in about 50 seconds the Fire Dept ambulance (stationed at Fire Station at Midland and Thomason Drives) arrived at my home. Emergency treatment was given by the paramedics in the ambulance enroute to the hospital, where the doctor and nurses (already contacted by the paramedics) took over.

Based on my experience and observation during my hospitalization at Midland Memorial Hospital, I feel that Midland citizens can be very proud of, and fortunate to have, superior emergency medical care available at all hours day and night.

Just as concerned

To The Editor:

After reading the testimony given by Paul Roth, vice president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. on August 24, before the Public Utility Commission in Austin, Texas, I am convinced the CIA, FBI, Justice Dept. and general public should not only be concerned about the Soviet Union, Cuba, Libya and OPEC, but also just as concerned about Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and their intentions.

Regarding Reese

To The Editor:

Thanks to Midland Reporter-Telegram for having articles from men like Charley Reese.

Men like Reese have to be admired for having the intestinal fortitude to say it like it really is. He exposes the corruptness of the federal government, the mockery of justice in our federal court system, the treacherousness of the IRS, the unconstitutional collection of individual income tax, the illegal and unethical collections by the IRS, the unrealistic waste of our tax dollars on worthless grants, minority causes and the graft and fraud in the food stamp and welfare programs.

Reese let us know of the violations of our constitutional and God given rights and shows the true picture of the bureaucratic destruction of our republic nation.

Reese's article on laziness brought many people to their feet who used more energy to write, criticize and condemn than they have probably used to work in a long time.

Reese's articles are plain, down to earth so anyone can understand; but above all, they present a true picture of how our government has become corrupt and how this nation is fast becoming a police state, communistic and socialistic because of the despotic corruptness of our bureaucratic politicians.

This is still the best country in which to live. But for how long?

The front line

To The Editor:

Our country's most expendable commodity seems to be human resources. Insitutions, banking, education, city, county, state, federal government, oil and gas industries, etc., seem to be more important than the people they serve. Without people — who needs them.

This letter is written in behalf of the law enforcement officers and their families who have been writing to the editor in recent weeks because they have to moonlight (work two additional jobs) to make ends meet and seldom get to see their families.

Delivery of human services or the protection of human lives is complicated and risky for the front line provider of those services. I spent the past ten years in county, state and federal programs designed to "enhance the quality of human life" as a child abuse investigator and treatment facilitator; investigative unit supervisor and in developing programs to reduce crime, destruction and waste in low-income housing projects. While never having been a law enforcement officer I worked frequently with them and understand the stress, the personal risk and the frustation they feel in regard to inadequate compensation and recognition for the services they provide.

In my opinion, front line law enforcement officers are the welders, the bricklayers, the machinists of the human service industry. They are skilled craftsmen — they produce a legitimate service necessary to maintain order in our society.

I vote for more recognition and financial compensation to our civil servants who are producing good services. I vote for eliminating waste in government. I vote for a broader base at the bottom of the bureacratic triangle, education of mid-management and upper management, costly consultants and "paper services." In essence it is time for more production and less bullshooting.

State agency will challenge ceiling on housing bonds

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Directors of the Texas Housing Agency have decided they'll challenge a determination by the U.S. Teasury Department regarding the ceiling proposed for housing bonds issued in Texas.

Treasury officials have set a ceiling at half the $1.6 billion limit voted this summer by the THA (a limit which the agency indicated it doesn't expect to be reached).

THA Executive Administrator Earline Jewett notes that limit was determined using a study based specifically on Texas issuers — and the board, she says, feels its figures are more accurate than those used by the Treasury Department.

"The regulations say we can challenge if we have more accurate date," she reports.

The THA board also went on record as saying it would like to offer testimony at Treasury hearings this November.

THA also approved its $15 million budget — of which $14 million is for interest on bonds and notes.

Service fees, agency operations, trustee fees and the like account for $1 million, Mrs. Jewell says.

She notes THA is "going on our own earnings as of Sept. 1," and not using any appropriated funds for operations — but is using those funds for starting new programs.

She notes that the administrative part of the budget — some 8.9 percent of the total — allows administration of 2,800 loans totaling $131 million in THA's portfolio.

State Board of Insurance members heard testimony for and against wind-driven rain exclusions under commercial and some residential property policies — and appointed a committee to study the matter further.

A report from that group is due back by Oct. 1.

SBI ran into opposition from the Texas Insurance Advisory Association over eliminating the exclusions — with Independent Insurance Agents of Texas supporting the change.

Policyholder pressure following Hurricane Allen in 1980 is reported as the principal reason for the agents asking for elimination of the exclusions — which resulted in some policyholders who had coverage while in a single-family home discovering they did not have coverage after they had moved into an apartment.

It's being argued by some insurance industry officials that eliminating the exclusions would turn insurance policies into maintenance contracts for repair of faulty construction — and that the change also would result in greater exposure to the companies for sleet, hail and dust storm damage in the western and northwestern areas of Texas.

The SBI committee has been asked to look specifically at wind-driven rain coverage as it relates to condominiums and townhouses not more than three stories — but there was no specific request to look at the situation as it relates to apartments.

The panel also is expected to come up with a proposed rate for the coverage, perhaps as an endorsement to existing policies.

Members of the Texas Credit Union Commission have adopted a proposed revision to Credit Union Department regulations to allow state-chartered credit unions to set their own dividend rates.

Those rates would be set in accordance with written policy of the credit union's board of directors.

The TCUC discussed whether to tie the rate-setting authority to an estimated solvency ratio for the credit union — but decided not to do so.

Credit unions under administrative sanction by the Credit Union Department would have to receive permission from Credit Union Commissioner John (Pete) Parsons before allowed to set a dividend rate.

Also approved was a new regulation relating to deposit accounts — which changes present language to provide only that such accounts are to be operated "in accordance with policies approved by the board of directors."

Both Parsons and commission members indicated the changes are an attempt to provide greater flexibility to credit unions in their operations in a quickly changing market.

Additional interpretations of HB 1228, the interest rate ceiling bill passed by the regular session of the Legislature this year, continues coming from the Office of the Consumer Credit Commissioner.

Commissioner Sam Kelley, in the latest batch of rulings, has concluded that on a secondary mortgage loan under Chap. 5 of the Consumer Credit Code, points may be charged if the loan uses simple interest — but not if the loan uses the precomputed interest rates in that chapter.

Several of the recent rulings have dealt with the computation of interest on open-ended accounts — an issue which still appears unsettled.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Yields on Treasury bills influenced in three ways

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Can you tell me what makes the yields on U.S. Treasury bills (T bills) go up or down? And how does this effect the interest rates on home mortgages?

A. The explanation has to be a three-step process: 1. How T bills are sold. 2. How banks and saving and loan associations get and pay interest on major portions of their deposits. 3. How banks and S&Ls lend money out on mortgages.

1. The U.S. Treasury Department raises billions of dollars to finance the federal debt by selling T bills at auctions. The yield on T bills at each auction is determined by the prices buyers bid to pay for that particular issue. It's a case of supply and demand. The U.S. Treasury sells T bills at "discount rates," reflecting interest rates in the marketplace. So, the yields on T bills can — and often do — change from one auction to the next.

The Treasury auctions off T bills with 13-week and 26-week maturities every Monday — Friday, if Monday is a holiday.

2. The maximum interest banks and S&Ls are allowed to pay on $10,000, 182-day savings certificates — popularly known as "money market certificates" or "MMCs" — is 0.25 percent above the discount rate on the most recent issue of 26-week T bills. If the discount rate on 26-week T bills is 15 percent at a Monday auction, banks and S&Ls can issue MMCs paying 15.25 percent interest Tuesday through the following Monday.

MMCs are a major part of total deposits at many banks and S&Ls.

3. When a bank or S&L makes a mortgage loan, it naturally wants to collect more interest on the loan than it pays in interest on deposits. As a very rough rule of thumb, a bank or S&L has to charge about 1.5 percentage points more on loans than it pays in "money costs" to meet its expenses and turn a profit.

Following these frankly, over-simplified steps, I hope you see that the ups or downs of T bill yields can raise or lower the cost of money for a bank or S&L, thus changing the interest rates at which it will make mortgages.

Q. I have purchased a condominium at a golf resort for investment and tax shelter. What is the maximum time allowed for personal use?

A. You can use that condo as much as you like. But the more time you spend there, the smaller your tax shelter. The rule on a "vacation home" is, if you've personal use of it for more than 14 days or 10 percent of the number or days it is rented, you have to allocate expenses between personal use and rental.

For that, I strongly urge you study Internal Revenue Service Publication 527 for the rules on rental property. Better yet, consult a good accountant.

Q. What is your opinion of collecting old stock and bond certificates, as a hobby and, perhaps, for a profit? Having just heard about this, I have failed to find any extensive information. Are there any books on the subject?

A. Collecting most anything as a hobby can be fun. It also can be profitable — sometimes. Just remember there is no central marketplace for "collectibles." When you want to sell, you have to look for buyers and accept the best price offered. Over the past year or so, the bottom has fallen out of the market for many collectibles.

The best source of information I know of on collecting old stock and bond certificates is the magazine "Friends of Financial History," published by R.M. Smythe & Co., Inc., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038.

Waste site considered

ATLANTA (AP) — Cherokee Indian leaders, facing high unemployment, are considering a proposal to lease part of their tribal land in the Blue Ridge Mountains to a Houston waste disposal firm, The Atlanta Constitution reported Thursday.

The newspaper said the negotiations were termed "very preliminary" by both Indian leaders and Browning-Ferris Industries Inc.

Brokerage firms may get into 'savers' market

By MARTIN BARON
The Los Angeles Times

Not content to let banks and the savings and loan associations have exclusive domain over the new tax-free "all savers" certificates, brokerage houses may also be peddling the one-year savings devices to clients of their money market funds.

The Los Angeles Times has learned that Shearson Loeb Rhoades Inc., a major brokerage house, intends to offer the tax-free certificates on Oct. 1 to the 200,000 clients of its money market fund.

Because it is not qualified to receive deposits from the tax-free certificates, Shearson confirmed to The Times Wednesday that it expects to act as an "agent" on behalf of one or one or more other companies — probably banks or savings and loan associations. Those firms would be the ultimate repository of funds received for the certificates.

Even so, the ability of brokerage houses to offer the tax-free certificates allows firms such as Shearson to keep contact with their present clients, and means they will have a better chance of luring customers back into the money market funds when the tax-free certificates expire in a year.

PBGC offering short course on stock market speculation

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer "Speculating in the Stock Market" from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Sept. 16 at the PBGC building, 105 W. Illinois Ave. Instructor will be Glenn A. Little.

This session is billed as an entertaining and informative look at what most brokers won't tell you, can't tell you or don't know. It will explore speculating in the market and provide insight into the myths of both the market and stockbrokers.

Speculating will be examined by fundamental, technical (charts) and situation analyses. Examples and discussion of successful and less-than-successful speculations in the past will be reviewed. Little also will give an insider's view of how the brokerage industry really works.

Little was a registered representative with Howard, Weil, LaBouisse, Friedrichs, Inc., both in Midland and in the home office in New Orleans, La., before starting his own Midland-based discount brokerage firm.

Prior to that, he was a credit analyst with the First National Bank of Commerce in New Orleans. He received his bachelor of science degree in business from the University of Florida and his master's degree in international management from the American Graduate School of International Management. He has done additional studies at the New York Institute of Finance.

Claiming confusion, Borger police shot the wrong man

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

BORGER, Texas (AP) — It began before daybreak. A fugitive on the run. A high-speed police chase, a shootout on a sprawling Panhandle ranch.

It ended in confusion, anger and death.

At roughly 4:30 a.m. gunshots awakened Jim Grandstaff on the final day of his life.

Through the darkness and drizzle, flashing lights bounced off the walls of his home on the vast 6666 Ranch.

What happened next was labeled by law enforcement officers as a profound and unfortunate tragedy.

"Wrongful and reckless," claimed the victim's wife.

"Murder," declared the victim's father.

THE STRANGE saga unfolded in this Hutchinson County oil mecca during the early morning hours of Aug. 11, a rainy Tuesday on the Texas High Plains.

Alerted by Oklahoma authorities, Borger police spotted a pickup truck driven by Lonnie Cox, 26, sought on a grand larceny charge filed in Sayre, Okla.

The charge stemmed from a stolen .45 pistol, and Cox had been described as armed, dangerous, violent and probably even crazy.

Later, his mother would say that Cox had no criminal record but once suffered mental disorders. She predicted the Borger ordeal could "unhinge his mind."

It was 4:19 a.m. that Tuesday when the chase began, through downtown Borger and east on Texas 152, toward Pampa.

Texas Ranger Jim Gillespie of nearby Dumas said later Cox opened fire on three pursuing police units and that the officers returned the shots.

A bullet slammed into Cox's right shoulder.

"I thought the only way to get away from those people was to cut across the pasture," District Attorney David McCoy quoted Cox as saying later.

McCoy said Cox almost overturned his truck when he swerved through a fence and bar ditch and drove onto the historic 6666 Ranch in Carson County.

AT ONE POINT, McCoy said, Cox stopped the truck, leaped out and fired on the pursuing police cars. But he apparently left the vehicle in reverse.

It rolled off, carrying "most of his firepower" — three weapons and several boxes of ammunition.

Cox disappeared in the drizzle and darkness.

Grandstaff could see the unmistakable flashing lights atop the patrol cars, parked perhaps 100 yards from the house.

He jumped into some clothes and drove to the lights. It is at this point that the story becomes confusing and contradictory and almost bizarre.

As pieced together by McCoy and Carson County grand jurors, this was the sequence of events:

THE FIVE BORGER policemen at the scene thought Cox might have commandeered the pickup and, using bullhorns, ordered the driver to identify himself.

Grandstaff assumed the police were ordering the fugitive Cox from his pickup.

He returned to his house in the pickup and told his wife:

"Hey, they got someone trapped in a pickup. Give me my rifle. I'm going to help."

Unaware of any police confusion, Grandstaff drove back to the flashing lights where the police, "tense and uptight," again ordered him to stop and identify himself.

Grandstaff did not identify himself, nor did he raise his hands to surrender. He stepped from the pickup, his hands reportedly fumbling in his waistband.

McCoy thought he might be tucking in his shirttail.

But it is possible the police thought he was reaching for a weapon. They had seen the house lights go on and off and perhaps thought Cox had taken hostages.

"One shot was fired," McCoy said. "There was a slight pause. Then a volley of gunfire. Grandstaff was hit by one shot."

The bullet struck him in the lower back.

McCoy said the officers rushed up and handcuffed him, and that he resisted, even swinging at one of the policemen.

Once they subdued him, three of the policemen drove to the ranch, where they confronted Grandstaff's wife.

"Are you okay?" one was quoted as asking.

"Yes, I'm okay. How's my husband? He drove down in the blue pickup to help," Mrs. Grandstaff reportedly replied.

McCoy said the policemen were either confused or did not "have the heart" to tell her what happened.

RETURNING TO THEIR colleagues, one of the officers, according to McCoy, blurted: "Hey, we shot the wrong man!"

Grandstaff, still struggling, was uncuffed. The officers said he was "not in good shape but alive" when an ambulance arrived. He was dead before reaching a hospital.

In the chaos at the ranch, McCoy speculated, Cox could have picked off the policemen almost at will.

But Cox indicated later he thought the police had unleashed some dogs on him and that he was prepared to kill them with two hunting knives strapped at his waist.

"He also thought he was choking to death on his own blood," McCoy said.

Cox later flagged down a patrol car on the highway and surrendered.

"I give up. Don't shoot me. I need help," he was quoted as saying.

Cox was hospitalized, later jailed and subsequently charged in Hutchinson County with aggravated assault and deadly assault on a police officer.

WITHIN HOURS OF the shooting, Grandstaff's father, J.H. Grandstaff of Borger, told a reporter: "You can headline your story 'Murder.' Borger police murdered my son. They shot him in the back."

The elder Grandstaff said at the time of the shooting, before 5 a.m., the ranch lights, the pickup lights and the lights of the patrol units were all on.

"It wasn't all that dark," he said.

He insisted the police were unnecessarily trigger-happy.

"They knew Jim. They knew his truck. It is nothing but murder," he declared.

Investigators said there was no evidence to support such a claim and denied the charges of a "coverup."

Said McCoy: "No matter what we come up with, there will be fingers pointed saying we are trying to protect our local police."

Late last month, the Carson County Grand Jury, meeting in Panhandle, issued a report witheringly critical of the Borger police action before and after the shooting.

But jurors issued no indictments against any of the officers.

The officers were not, the jurors said, "negligent to the degree that would warrant a charge of criminally negligent homicide."

ACCORDING TO McCoy, the jurors apparently know who fired the fatal bullet and also which officer triggered the slaying by firing the first shot.

The jury did not identify the officers, saying their actions, if improper, were not improper "to the degree which warrants public scrutiny or ridicule."

The district attorney indicated he believes the man who "started all that in motion" could be more culpable than the officer who actually killed Grandstaff.

"He may not have done anything necessarily wrong in his line of duty," said McCoy.

Sharon Grandstaff was the first to disagree with both McCoy and the grand jury's findings

"I was disappointed in the grand jury decision, but not surprised," she said. "I feel that my husband was murdered."

To that end, she said she had retained Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes to pursue the matter legally.

"I want everyone to know that I, by myself, retained the law firm of Haynes and Fullenweider of Houston to further investigate what I regard as the wrongful and reckless conduct of the Borger police," she said.

Jan Fox, of Haynes' office, said she could not confirm reports that Anne Phillips, owner of the vast 6666 Ranch, had given Haynes a "blank check" to enter the case.

"This case is strong enough on its own merits to get Haynes involved," she said, citing "gross misconduct" by the police.

Ms. Fox said she anticipates filing a federal lawsuit, based on civil rights statutes, against the City of Borger "at the very least."

AUTHORITIES said all the Borger policemen at the scene were "certified officers" but the most experienced had been with the department only six months.

Meanwhile, Ranger Gillespie still is seeking "specific answers" to several questions, including positive identification of the person who fired the fatal shot.

Said he: "I don't foresee...indictments, but it will depend on the answers to three or four questions, including some chemical tests."

In the wake of the shooting, Borger residents circulated a petition asking the Texas attorney general's office to enter the investigation.

They said they feared a cover-up.

While insisting he was satisfied with the grand jury investigation, McCoy did invite state authorities to conduct their own probe of the shooting.

"I want to avoid even the appearance of a cover-up," he said.

Almost forgotten in the turmoil is Cox, an Arkansas native with ties to Elk City, Okla., and Fritch, Texas, a tiny lakeside hamlet west of here.

After treatment for his shoulder wound, he was confined in the Hutchinson County jail at Stinnett.

"He's tearing up my jail," complained Sheriff Lon Blackmon early this week. "He's torn his steel bunk off the wall and torn up two mattresses.

Agenda has touchy issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Capitol Hill lieutenants, flush with a series of victories in their first encounter with Congress, say they are hoping for more success as Congress returns from its summer vacation to take up an agenda crowded with touchy issues ranging from warplanes for Arabs to Social Security cuts for Americans.

"Obviously we will be dealing with some sensitive issues," said one White House aide. "But we feel confident that...the president's program will continue on schedule."

"Things are never easy," said another. "We will endeavor to form a majority coalition as we proceed."

The White House congressional liaison staffers spoke on condition they not be quoted by name.

The House and Senate return Wednesday after a five-week recess, with some members predicting Reagan will have a more difficult time than he had getting his initial budget cuts and his tax bill approved.

A White House aide, however, said, "The tax bill was certainly no piece of cake. We will continue to work hard on future issues."

The first issue on the Senate agenda will be busing. Pending when Congress recessed was an amendment to a Justice Department spending bill that would limit court-ordered busing for racial integration of schools. Backers of the amendment will try to break a filibuster.

Meanwhile, the House is scheduled to deal with appropriation bills for the Transportation Department and the State, Justice and Commerce departments — two of 13 appropriation bills that must be passed. The House has passed five of them but only one, appropriating money for housing programs, has passed the Senate.

On the first day back, Reagan will send Congress his proposal to sell Saudi Arabia the sophisticated radar surveillance planes called AWACS, a thorny issue opposed by legislators say the planes could be used against Israel. The deal will go through unless both houses vote against by Oct. 30. A solid majority in the Democratic-controlled House, 252, are sponsoring a veto resolution. In the Republican-controlled Senate, a majority have also spoken out against the measure but the opposition is softer than in the House.

Also Wednesday, Secretary of Health and Human Services Richard Schweiker will testify before the House Budget Committee on behalf of administration proposals to cut Social Security benefits for future retirees by 10 percent. The administration wants even deeper cuts for persons who retire early, and hopes to make disability payments harder to get.

The Senate Finance Committee will begin work soon on plans to shore up the financially shaky trust fund from which Social Security benefits are paid. "I think interest rates and Social Security are the biggest problems for the president," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., committee chairman. "There is not much you can do to legislate interest rates, but we can work on Social Security."

Also on the opening day agenda is the start of hearings on Reagan's nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor to be the first female Supreme Court justice in history. Conservatives are expected to question the former Arizona legislator sharply about her votes on abortion issues, but confirmation appears assured.

Before its recess, Congress approved Reagan's proposals for a 25 percent, three-year tax cut and the biggest budget cuts in history. Now, White House aides say, he is considering further cuts in an effort to hold the federal deficit down and keep alives hopes of a balanced budget in 1984.

Your horoscope

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Pioneer heart surgeon Michael DeBakey of Houston celebrates his birthday today. Also born on this date: actor Peter Lawford. The business outlook is excellent in the months ahead—but be on guard against the deceptive practices of unscrupulous individuals. Choose your associates with care. New financial gains will help you turn the corner! Although romance plays a secondary role right now, it can still be highly rewarding. Marital relationships are especially fulfilling. You have a strong sense of duty to loved ones and go out of your way to help family members.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Enjoy an outing with old friends. Romance will progress smoothly if you play according to partner's rules! Be supportive if hoping to cement a new personal relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take advantage of your popularity to do what you want this holiday. You are able to win new freedom. A kind word could work wonders with someone who is usually difficult!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You receive welcome news from abroad. Staying at home may have tremendous appeal today. Share cooking chores so that no one person does all the work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Enjoy a carefree day at home with friends and family members. Personal relationships will be tested now. When the truth comes out, it will both answer old questions and create new ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Domestic affairs take precedence over business today. Keep expenses down. An unexpected development will make the evening both happy and memorable. Dress your best!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Family problems will be easy to resolve if you are tactful. Visit over the phone instead of taking a long trip. Participate in a sports event—you could be a winner!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Family matters, domestic responsibilities are in the spotlight. Someone may try to pull a fast one on you. Be alert and you will be able to prevent embarrassment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The key word today is "cooperation." Family get-togethers are great fun if everyone shares the chores. A new approach can save a personal relationship. Be candid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Enjoy a fun-filled day with friends and relatives. Family members who have been out of touch will bring good news. Reach beyond something that appears to be a limitation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A better day for staying at home than traveling long distances. The emphasis is on having a good time without spending a lot of money. You and loved one can become reconciled.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Curb a tendency to see people as you wish they might be instead of the way they really are. Discern subtle nuances! Keep any promises made to children.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The emphasis today is on sharing. You enjoy a relaxing family get-together and discover the meaning of true love. Romance is high on your list of priorities.

Machine reads to the blind

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Ray spends his time reading to blind children. He's helpful, even though his voice is slow and halting.

Ray is a machine.

"Hel-lo-o-o, e-ver-y-bod-y," Ray drones, sounding as alien as a science fiction movie creature. "My friends call me Ray because Raymoor the Blind invented me."

The North Dakota School for the Blind waited 18 months for the machine, one of only several hundred in existence. The computer translates printed and typed pages into the spoken word at about 200 words per minute.

"Ten years ago, it probably would have sounded incredible," said Betty Bender, media specialist for the school.

"Ray" works like a photocopier.

The message is not a tape recording — the machine actually reads. The computer recognizes letters, groups the letters into words and computes pronounciation.

Ray is temperamental, sensitive and picky about what it will read.

It muddles or refuses to read colored print, or print on paper which is not white. Handwriting or ornamental type faces are difficult, and lint, dust or fingerprints on the glass plate make Ray balk.

POSITIVE THINKING

Different thinking can change your life

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

One Sunday, some time ago, I had one of my busiest days. By nightfall I had preached four sermons, attended a luncheon, shaken hands with innumerable people, and felt that tired but healthy sensation that comes to a man who has done a real day's work. But unfortunately, I could not go home to bed. After that last sermon I had to catch a train to a town in upstate New York where I was to deliver a lecture the following day.

Actually I went to sleep in the bus going over to the Erie Railroad terminal in Hoboken, New Jersey. I found my train, and at the door of the Pullman car a porter was waiting. "How are you?" he asked pleasantly. "All set for a good night's sleep?"

"Sure am," I replied, "I've slept all the way over in the bus."

"Guess you're a real relaxer," he grinned.

He showed me to my compartment. It was the first one inside the door and right over the wheels.

"This is your bedroom," the porter said. "Sorry it's over the wheels, but look at that nice bed. Besides this roadbed is so smooth you'll sleep like a baby." He was a real positive thinker, that man.

I saw that everything was in order, the bed already made up. It was smooth and snowy white; it was immaculate and there wasn't a wrinkle in it. Right then and there I decided I was going to have a good sleep. "That' a wonderful bed," I said. "Brother, you sure know how to make a bed. I'm going to have a fine night's sleep."

"Sure you are," he said. "You'e got your mind made up." And with that he bade me good night and I went to bed, though not without a sleepy sort of pondering of his parting remark.

I usually wake up before seven in the morning. This time I slept until nine fifteen. I had some sense of guilt about this, but felt wonderfully rested and said to the porter when I went to the dining car for breakfast, "I had the most wonderful night's sleep. I really ought to ride on your train every night. I could really sleep then."

"Well," he told me, "you certainly slept better than the man in the next compartment. He got on last night after you did and he was mumbling and grumbling. He said he couldn't sleep over the wheels (and his room was farther from the wheels than yours), and he didn't like the looks of the bed, and he couldn't sleep on trains anyway. And when he got up this morning, he told me he didn't sleep. Of course he didn't! He got what he expected. "That man," the porter concluded, "preconditioned his night's sleeplessness."

There is a wisdom packed remark. There can be no doubt that you may mentally precondition what life is going to do to you and what you are going to do with life. An ancient philosopher once wrote: "The mind is the master of all fortune. In it is the cause of either misery or happiness." And whether you or I have misery or happiness very largely depends upon how we think. For by our thinking we do precondition our lives.

"Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind," the Bible tells us. This is the basic secret of preconditioning: change comes through renewal of your thought pattern. Thoughts are dynamic and creative thoughts change conditions. If habitually you have defeatist thoughts, hate thoughts, greed thoughts, you will condition your life for misery. If you cultivate victorious thoughts, loving thoughts, generous thoughts, you will condition your life for happiness. Your life can actually be transformed by the renewing of your mind; by the reconditioning of your pattern of thought.

I suggested once to a friend that he try thinking healthy thoughts for just one week and stated my belief that it would do wonders for him. He gave it a try, a real effort. He did not do it perfectly. How could he when he had practiced destructive thought habits for so long.

But even with an imperfect score, at the end of a week he reported with enthusiasm that he "wouldn't have believed the difference it made." It must have impressed him profoundly, for he readjusted his life on this basis with good results.

Mexican railway may be busy

MEXICO CITY — An old forgotten railway that rolls across Mexico's narrowest neck of land is about to turn into a busy path between the seas designed to lure traffic from the Panama Canal.

Within three months, when U.S.-built trains start hauling containers from coast to coast in less than a day, this land bridge will both be a very old dream come true and a symbol of Mexico's hopes to change rapidly from an agricultural nation into a modern industrial one.

Besides servicing Mexico's own fast-growing petrochemical and other industries spinning off the oil boom, the new corridor aims to cash in on the container trade flow between the Far East and Europe as well as traffic between the U.S. west and east coasts, much of which now passes through the canal.

The Mexican government agency organizing the rail service says that ships, by not sailing as far south as Panama and avoiding the waiting lines there, can save up to five days by using the Mexican route. The sea distance between New York and San Francisco, for example, is reduced by more than 2,000 miles.

On both sides of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, at the ports of Salina Cruz on the Pacific and Coatzacoalcos on the Gulf of Mexico, construction gear is still chipping away at new container terminals.

Giant cranes are already in place to pick containers off the ships, put them on trains and lift them back on board again on the opposite coast. The old 175-mile, one-way railroad has new sleepers and 22 bypass tracks. The government says it has invested almost $100 million and expects to recover it within five years.

Although the swampy, hot route across the isthmus is relatively dull, for centuries this narrowest point of the North American mainland has caught the imagination of dreamers, entrepreneurs and military planners wanting to connect the Atlantic and the Pacific.

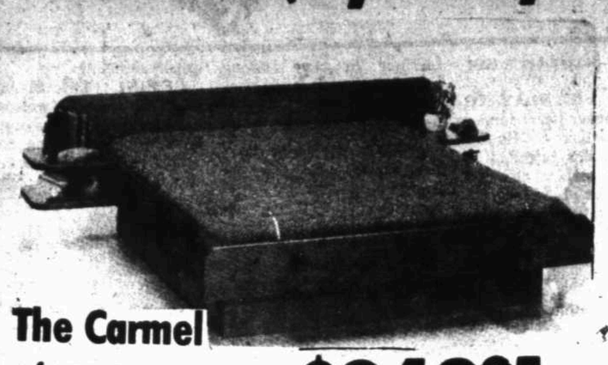

The Spanish conquerors hauled their cargo across Mexico not far from here. They unloaded their galleons coming from the Philippines at Acapulco and took their spoils to Veracruz on their way to Spain. Long before the Panama Canal construction began, the isthmus with its swollen rivers was seriously considered as the site for an interoceanic canal. One plan even involved pulling ships along a broad-gauge railway right across the land.

A British entrepreneur, Lord Cowdry, laid the railroad in 1907 and it proved to be a profitable enterprise. Yet the line's period of glory was short; seven years later the canal opened, and Mexico was in the middle of revolution.

During World War II, the U.S. military built airports on the isthmus and carved a highway across the Sierra Madre mountains. This road is coming in handy today.

But for all its modern approach, the Mexican scheme is not likely to pose a serious business threat to the aged Panama Canal, shipping experts say. Mexico plans to move 70,000 containers in the last months of this year, while the Panama Canal handles that many in three days.

RINGING THE BELL

Self-help advocated by black press

With BOB TIEUEL

Self Help vs. Racial Progress — Tony Brown, nationally known syndicated television artist and newspaper columnist, writes that the news that surfaced during the recent NAACP convention in Denver was not that Ronald Reagan is not going to save blacks with more poverty programs, but that blacks are willing to save themselves from poverty programs.

"Delicately," states Tony, "President Reagan told the five thousand NAACP delegates that they were spending their $140 billion non-productively outside of their communities, namely with white people." Adds Tony, "Someone needs to tell blacks to stop begging and help themselves. And I am glad that Ronald Reagan did so. The black leaders of racial integration are always proposing another room addition to the welfare estate and their grants from the federal government top the list.

"Moreover, the NAACP spent $3 million with whites in Denver and avoided the black neighborhood and businesses of Five Points. The civil rights group did the same thing to the black community in Liberty City in Miami last year...an overwhelming 86 percent of a television opinion poll conducted did not feel that blacks place enough emphasis on self-help and too much on racism."

Concludes Tony, "Blacks make it and they spend it. They buy Cadillac cars, more wine, more caps and hats, more cologne and mouth wash than whites do for comparable size. They're only 11 percent of the population but 20 percent of the heavy users in the rice market, 16 percent of the total market in orange juice, 20 percent of the total market in scotch. Blacks account for 32 percent of all sales in malt liquor. They account for 40 percent of record purchases of a $3.5 billion market. And they are here to stay. Fifty-six percent own their own homes...as President Reagan pointed out, they make it, but they spend it — not with blacks of course. That's why Hooks and Wilson were in Denver crying racism."

THE BLACK EXPERIENCE and the Future: For more than thirty years, this correspondent, like Tony Brown, has advocated black self-help. Having been born in one of the largest all-black towns in America more than six decades ago, we had a secret feeling that blacks could make it if they really tried. A few tried but they were a small minority. And now after some 70 odd years, it seems that the great "noble experiment" of black self-help was just a dream as a writer for the Washington Post once put it.

Boley, Okla., was founded in 1904 (Indian Territory) as a haven for oppressed black people. It met with great favor with them, and Boleyites chose to settle, purchase property, build homes, schools, churches and business places. The town once boasted of two banks, cotton gins, a brick factory, a broom factory, a carbonated drink plant and other enterprises. Today Boley is mainly a residential haven and its citizens travel to Tulsa, Oklahoma City and other points for employment.

Most of the younger generation in Boley believe that blacks must become a part of the "mainline America" and that separation is not the answer. On a recent visit "home" to Boley we did find that these young people were building beautiful homes to live in and to "retire" but that was the extent of the progress of a town that tried black enterprise and did not make it. What would be your comment, Brown? What happened?

We still believe as Tony and have said so many years, that civil rights leaders, black church leaders, social, fraternal and other black groups will march thousands of blacks into conventions in major hotels this year and next year to unload millions of dollars into the coffers of the establishment while blaming Reagan for the economic ills of black people.

And as Tony says, today's black leaders of integration have surrendered the very virtues of thrift, diligence, group cohesion and optimism that are the basic linchpins of black survival. Draw a red circle around Thursday, Sept. 17 on your calendar. It will be known as "Buy a Black Newspaper on Publication Day."

Need we remind you that the black press has for nearly two hundred years championed the aspirations and struggles of the black community.

Man collects trivia no one else wants

By JACK WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

Anybody for World War II Japanese dog tags? How about hotel soap bars? Or maybe streetcar transfer slips from the Portland, Ore., Transit Co. are more your ticket.

Edwin Binney 3rd collected them all, large and small, enough to fill the Smithsonian Institution's memorial trivia wing -- if there were such a thing.

He had the corner on the market, this young man from Fairfield, Conn. Who needed baseball cards, butterflies and box tops, anyway? And who needed the competition?

Now, several decades later, Binney is into the more exotic. He claims, in fact, to have the most extensive collection of art treasures of Ottoman Turkey outside Turkey itself.

Why Turkish art? One reason again, said Binney, in an interview, is the lack of competition. Binney started collecting early, before it was quite so chic, because of an abiding interest in Islamic, Persian and Turkish culture.

A miniature painting for which he paid $95 when he started the collection 21 years ago is worth "$4,000 or $5,000, maybe more," today, he said.

Meanwhile, the dog tags, transfer slips and soap bars have gone by the wayside. His daughter, Gail, made wastebasket covers out of the soap wrappers.

Binney's Turkish collection is especially rare because the flow of art objects from inside the country has all but been cut off since the '30s. The bulk of his buys came from auctions and dealers in Europe and the United States.

"When the former empress of Iran was known to be buying, the prices were jacked up for her," said Binney. "That was in the late '60s and early '70s.

"Serious bidding wars are going on all the time. But if I feel I need something, I will get it.

"The competition is tremendous for anything important in the artistic field because people feel it is a good hedge against inflation. Now people are trying to make money in the art market. I buy to improve a collection, not for that reason, but the prices have skyrocketed."

Example: "I sat next to a dealer who bid $125,000 for a 16th century plate, a Golden Horn. But it was sold to a buyer on the telephone for $130,000."

Did Binney submit a bid?

"No way," he said. "I was flat broke. I had just bought something else."

The most he's ever paid, he said, was $65,000 for a one-of-a-kind miniature Turkish painting.

"Some items in this collection cost less than $50," he said, "but you won't be able to single them out."

Binney, a former professor of French literature at Harvard, is as much an art historian as he is a patron of the arts. His interests range from ballet to motorcycles, from scuba diving to American quilts.

He speaks three foreign languages (French, German and Spanish). He lectures extensively, charming audiences as much with his wit and style as his knowledge, and he has been to so many different art museums throughout the world, he says he collects them, too.

Mail solicitations popular

By LINDA TRUITT
Better Business Bureau
of the Permian Basin, Inc.

"Everyday it seems I find more requests for contributions in my mailbox. Although I used to enjoy giving to worthy causes, I am now completely turned off by the letters asking for money. How do I get these solicitations to stop?"

The relatively low cost of direct mail solicitations and the high response rate has made this fund raising method very popular with nonprofit organizations. Those who have never answered a direct mail solicitation probably do not receive many requests for money, but if you give even once, even a small contribution, you will remain an active prospect for some time.

From a potential donor's point of view, the most vexing problem is the volume of multiple and duplicate solicitations. One elderly widow in failing health was reported to have received 113 appeals from 58 organizations in one week, with as many as 15 duplicates from the same group.

After an investigation the explanation to her plight became clear: She gave in response to most appeals.

While many solicitations are received from organizations who utilize blanket mailings based on telephone directories and other broadly based listings, most names get on most lists because a donation was given or a purchase was made.

A donor who has given to a campaign promoting one particular cause will remain a prime prospect for that cause in future fund raising. That same donor will be a likely prospect for other organizations which advocate similar interests.

Most organizations using the mails to raise money exchange and/or rent lists from other organizations or professional list brokers. To assemble the half million, two million or eight million names to receive a mailing, an organization may use many lists. Its own house list (list of established donors) will be supplemented by perhaps 15 or 20 other lists. The lists will have certain factors in common — those people with common characteristics who are the most likely prospects.

It is inevitable that lists which have been selected for particular characteristics will contain duplicate names. If you support a particular point of view, it is likely that others with your views may have common reading tastes (magazine subscription lists), level of education (alumni lists), vocation (membership lists of professional societies), or even residence (zip code).

To the inevitability of one name occuring on several lists add the common factor of variations in that one name appearing on the same list. In an extreme case, one week's appeals to a donor showed 22 variations of her name and address.

To compound this problem, variations and errors cannot be picked up and eliminated by computers. Even if a given list undergoes the "merge/purge" process (a computer run that flushes out duplicates), the computer cannot make adjustments for the infinite and subtle variations which appear. To the computer these are separate entities: To the recipient they're annoying duplicate solicitations.

Next week: What to do about unwanted direct mail solicitations.

Elephants could be on their way to extinction

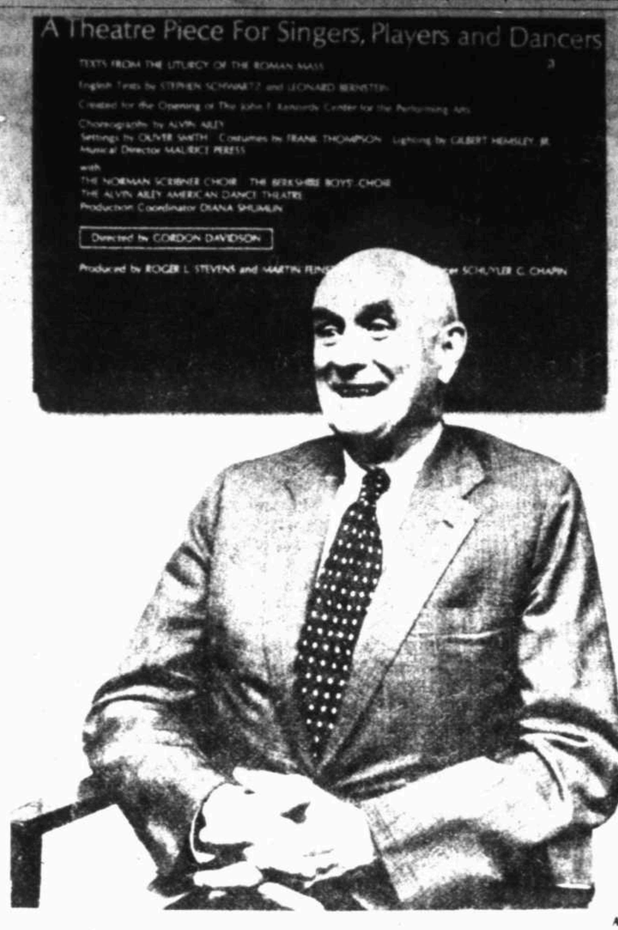

LONDON — Elephants could be extinct before the end of the century, a Cambridge University biologist warned Thursday night.

Stewart Eltringham told the British Association's annual meeting in York that there were once 23 species of elephants worldwide but now only two remained — the African and the Asian.

He said recent estimates put the number of the African species at 1,343,000 and that of the Asian species at somewhere between 28,000 and 42,000.

"Numbers are falling in 18 of the 33 countries where the African elephant still exists and the Asian elephant is everywhere in decline," Eltringham said. "The greatest threat to African's elephants is the ivory trade, which has led to widespread poaching. The Asian elephant is more at risk from habitat destruction."

Roger L. Stevens, Chairman of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, relaxes during a recent interview.

Kennedy Center has 10th birthday this week

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's cultural supermarket, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, is 10 years old this week. Prices are a bit steeper and some fancy goods may be getting hard to find, but the customers keep flocking in.

An estimated 40 million patrons and tourists have visited the great marble pavilion on the Potomac since its doors opened Sept. 8, 1971. On that evening, President Richard M. Nixon, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Mamie Eisenhower attended the world premiere of Leonard Bernstein's "Mass," written especially for the inauguration of the $77 million national cultural center.

Next Saturday, after more than 10,000 performances of music, dance and drama in the center's five theaters, a gala audience will return to the Opera House for a new, anniversary production of Bernstein's "theater piece for singers, players and dancers." It will be followed by a reception on the rooftop terrace.

"Mass" will be broadcast live from the Kennedy Center a week later, Sept. 19, over more than 200 public television stations.

Other anniversary events will include a concert salute to Lionel Hampton, who will be honored by President and Mrs. Reagan at a White House reception. There will be a concert honoring composer Aaron Copland, presentations of traditional Japanese drama, dance and music, and a performance by the National Symphony Orchestra.

In its first decade, the Kennedy Center has survived mounting labor costs and strikes, a nagging construction debt and a leaky roof which cost Congress more than $4 million to fix.

There were some memorable moments, too:

—The hush of the audience after the curtain fell on the first performance of "Mass," followed by a thunderous, half-hour standing ovation.

—Executive director Martin Feinstein's feat in bringing La Scala to the Opera House for its first American appearance during the Bicentennial in 1976, after the Italian government had canceled the visit for lack of money.

—President Nixon's arrival alone and unannounced from the White House at midevening to attend a military band concert already under way. It was not long before he resigned in disgrace in August 1974.

Cat-astrophic situation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A potentially explosive situation turned out to be a cat-astrophe for Kansas City Mayor Richard Berkley.

Police bomb experts rushed to Berkley's home Wednesday night to examine a package that had been left on the front steps.

The bomb squad was sent to the scene after an anonymous caller told the mayor's wife a "gift" had been placed on the steps.

The box was carefully opened, but nothing inside was ticking — only purring.

A healthy gray kitten and cat food were found in the box. An anonymous note praised the mayor's work and asked the Berkleys to adopt the animal.

The kitten was taken to an animal control facility.

Hottest boiler in town

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Danny Soudiere's brand new, one-ton boiler is the hottest one in town.

It was stolen from his home this week.

"Ripping off a stereo I can understand, or a wallet," he said. "But a boiler?"

On Tuesday morning, Soudiere entered the basement of the two-family house he rents to tenants here. He said he noticed the side cellar door had been removed from its hinges and leaned against the wall. Also missing was the gas boiler, valued at $2,000.

"I will say one thing for whomever did it," said Soudiere. "He was neat. There wasn't even an extra screw left lying around and nothing else was touched."

Soudiere said the thief had to dismantle the furnace to fit it through the doorway, which was not even scratched.

High school student is restoring steam engine

WEST BRANCH, Iowa (AP) — While his high school friends were tinkering with car engines in their spare time, 17-year-old Kim Graham has been restoring a steam locomotive.

The West Branch High School senior has been refurbishing his own 1925 steam locomotive that eventually will be used on a rail tourist line between West Branch and West Liberty, the brainchild of the Des Moines and Raccoon Valley Railway Museum Corp.

Steam engines have been a hobby of Graham's since he was 11 years old. His pastime was inspired by the Delta Queen steamboat, which he rode several times as a child.

"I used to build steamboats out of wood and take them to school," he said. "My friends thought I was nuts, and probably still do."

Crazy or not, Graham is dedicated to his hobby, and proved that when he decided to buy the locomotive.

He was one of the first local members of the railway museum group and, when other members started talking about the need for a steam-powered locomotive, Graham thought, "Why can't I buy one, so I did."

He said he learned the steam engine craft by "looking at pictures and figuring it out in my head." His first projects were carried out "by guess and by golly," Graham said, "But now it's more accurate than that."

Graham has rebuilt several steam-powered vehicles — including a steam tractor — but he admits this is the most challenging project he has tackled. "This will be the biggest thing I've accomplished," he said.

Graham recently purchased the locomotive from the Midwest Old Threshers Association in Mount Pleasant. He wouldn't say how much he paid for it, but he said once it is restored, it could be worth between $20,000 and $25,000.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Restricted vegetarian diet poses threat

Dear Dr. Solomon: My teen-age son has announced that he's going to be a vegetarian from now on, and, from a health standpoint, I don't know whether to be happy or sad. I've heard people say that a vegetarian diet does not provide all the nutrients a person needs, yet many vegetarians live to be a ripe old age. How can there be so many conflicting opinions about something that should be very obvious? Do vegetarians risk their health or don't they? — Mrs. V.P., Vineland, N.J.

Dear Mrs. P.: Before responding to your question specifically, I should clarify that there are various kinds of vegetarians. Pure vegetarians, or "vegans," eat only plant food, and some eat only raw plant food. "Lacto-vegetarians" eat plant foods plus dairy products, while "lacto-ovo vegetarians" eat eggs as well. Finally, some people who consider themselves vegetarians eat poultry and fish, but not red meat.

It seems clear that the more restrictive a person's diet, the greater the possibility that it will be lacking in some important nutrient; however, the fact that something may be possible does not mean it will occur.

Back in 1974, the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences indicated that meat is not essential to health. A report issued by the Board noted that a vegetarian who eats a variety of plant foods and pays attention to the critical nutrients everyone needs can be well nourished. A severely restricted diet, on the other hand, could pose a threat to health.

An individual, particularly a growing child, who practices a severe form of vegetarianism may not be getting a sufficient number of calories or other nutrients, such as vitamin D and vitamin B 12. Children, in general, may not do as well as adults on the more limited diets.

What kind of vegetarian diet will provide the variety needed for good health? The Food and Nutrition Board suggests it includes legumes, which are rich in protein, B-vitamins and iron; grains, which supply carbohydrates, proteins, thiamin, iron and trace minerals; nuts and other seeds for fat, B-vitamins, protein and iron; and liberal use of dark green, leafy vegetables to provide calcium, riboflavin and carotene. The Board also advises vegetarians to have two servings each day of high-protein foods such as legumes, nuts, peanuts, eggs and dairy products.

Most of our knowledge about the health effects of a vegetarian diet is not based on definitive studies. We know, however, that the saturated fats contained in animal products contribute to high cholesterol levels, a risk factor for heart disease. It has also been suggested that a high intake of fat may be associated with cancer of the colon. And, obviously, an excessive amount of dietary fat will lead to obesity which, in turn, is implicated in heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes. It is rare to see an obese vegetarian.

The bottom line is that while it may be more difficult for vegetarians to obtain all the nutrients they need, it is not impossible. Food combinations that have been around a long time, such as macaroni and cheese, can furnish the essential amino acids from which protein is made and which most people get from eating meat. Cereal with milk is another good protein combination. But meat, itself, is not essential to good health.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Anthony coins $2 bill: funny money

By JOHN FARINA
Copley News Service

Ten years ago, Rep. Seymour Halpern of New York suggested the United States reissue the $2 bill, with a portrait of suffragette Susan B. Anthony on it.

The idea didn't get very far, but considering the course of future events, such a bill probably wouldn't have made it across the street anyway.

Instead, the government reissued a $2 bill with Thomas Jefferson's likeness on it.

And a separate Susan B. Anthony dollar, in the form of a coin.

But you probably can't remember when you last saw a Susan B. Anthony dollar. And the $2 bill is as scarce as rain in Southern California.

About 350 million Anthony dollars are in very sluggish circulation, and another 550 million in government storage vaults with no prospects of getting out.

As for the $2 bill, about 316,824,917 are in circulation. But that's it -- production has stopped. There hasn't been a new one off the press since January 1977.

When the Treasury Department saw it was in trouble, it hired public relations firms to convince Americans to love the new coin and bill. But the romance never materialized.

Treasury even planted the thought in the minds of congressmen that if dollar bills were to be taken out of circulation, the Anthony dollar coin would be home free.

Congress, not wanting to irk the entire nation, said no.

The present outlook for the Anthony dollar? "Grim," according to John Doom of the U.S. Mint.

Are there better days ahead for the $2 bill? "Not likely," said Peter Daly of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Both officials said that the government has just about given up on the Anthony dollar, which was introduced in July 1979, and the new $2 bills.

"Just haven't had any luck with them," Daly said.

It's a realization that was long in coming, because the government had a vested interest in success of the new currencies which were meant to reduce the cost of printing dollar bills.

Of the Anthony dollar, former Mint Director Stella Hackel early on predicted: "Acceptance eventually will be good. The dollar coin is the coin of the future."

She even thought that the Anthony dollar and the $2 bill would be mutually supporting.

Bloodhounds aid jailer

Give John Hitchcock a tattered piece of cloth and he and his team of bloodhounds will find the owner two out of three times.

Hitchcock, a 12-year veteran with the Craighead County Sheriff's Department in Jonesboro, Ark., uses his nine bloodhounds to track jail escapees, search for lost children, find criminals and sniff out stolen goods.

His hounds have sniffed all over Arkansas and in Missouri.

"I'll never own a whole lot, but at least I've got my family and my bloodhounds," Hitchcock said in a recent telephone interview.

Hitchcock has been interested in hounds all his life. After seeing a bloodhound team in action at Cummins Prison Farm in 1979, he was ready to get into the business.

"That fired me up," he said. He told himself, "I just got to have some of my own."

Hitchcock, 36, erected two dog pens on his property near Jonesboro and bought a couple of dogs from a Hempstead County man.

There are now nine dogs — who consume 500 pounds of dog food in about six weeks — a telephone in the kennel and a customized van that can carry four dogs and three dog trailers and doubles as a tack room.

He spends at least two hours a day caring for the dogs. Twice a week, he spends five hours training the bloodhounds — sometimes using his 5-year-old-old daughter in a game of hide and seek.

Most of Hitchcock's work is free. With the permission of Sheriff Floyd Johnson, he is sometimes gone from his job as chief jailer for three or four days.

The city of Trumann and the White River Regional Peace Officers Association have donated money to help with feed and veterinarian bills.

Solid cherry and other fine hardwoods combined with choice cherry veneers are fashioned into this masterful desk. It is recreated from an original found in Richmond, Virginia where a family has treasured its usefulness for over 100 years. Special touches such as automatic locking drawers when the center drawer is closed. The roll top and center drawer lock with the same key. Many pigeon holes and drawer compartments as well as a built in light and other features add to the usefulness of this masterpiece.

The finish is Antiqued Cherry on cherry veneers, solids and selected hardwoods. Even the sides and back have richly figured and deeply paneled surfaces.
