DIRECTOR FOR TEXAS BUDGET BEING URGED

By United Press

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel today asked the Texas Legislature to create the office of director of the budget for Texas and to make the state auditor responsible directly to the legislature.

"I hope that the legislature will concur in my judgment that it is desirable to take action on these two pieces of legislation with the least delay, because I believe that they represent the bedrock on which we must build a reorganization in the method of handling state finance," said O'Daniel in submitting the proposal for emergency action.

The governor said he believed the legislature should determine where the taxpayers money is spent. This, he said, can be accomplished only by proper budgeting and auditing.

O'Daniel declared that a "director of the budget" responsible to the governor, was necessary to allow proper preparation of biennial state budgets.

The governor suggested that the budget director and his assistants be appointed to prepare the budget and bills necessary to put it in effect. The budget now is prepared by the state board of control, with which, O'Daniel said, he found no fault.

The board of control, he added, is responsible for spending about $57,000,000 every two years, and "certainly the department of government responsible for one of the large spending agencies is not the proper authority to prepare the budget."

A strong state budget department, the governor said, would save millions of dollars in the years to come and would improve the service of government.

O'Daniel recommended that the budget law be amended to stop evasions by local units of government.

O'Daniel Has Chart To Show Officers And Their Function

By United Press

AUSTIN, Tex.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel has in his office a chart by which he can place his finger on every state activity, trace its authority and determine which of the three branches of government control it—the executive, the judicial or the legislative.

The chart is about four feet by three feet in size. It starts with a top inscription "The People of Texas." Immediately beneath that caption is the single word "Elect." From it there runs lines to the executive, legislative and judicial departments. These in turn are the sources of lines that run to the various ramifications under each. Some have their source in cooperating work of two of the branches of government. Such inter-connection is shown, also, by the chart. The chart was prepared by the Texas planning board. Jerry D. Wilson was draftsman. Data for it were compiled in the office of the secretary of state by Ed Guinn.

Little Box May Aid Hay Fever Victims

AUSTIN, Tex.—A little box, fifteen inches square, holds the secret of perfect relief for hay-fever victims, a University of Texas graduate engineering student revealed here today.

The device fits under a partially-raised window, operates from the room's heating unit, and filters out the pollen or other membrane irritants which may be in the air. That much its designer, young Alvin Willis of Austin, claims.

He spent two years in University laboratories perfecting and testing it and claims that tests have proved its efficiency.

Once used, the air is not recirculated but is forced outside by the pressure of more incoming air. Especially designed to aid sufferers from cedar pollen, the small box is just as effective against other irritants, its inventor holds.

It can be operated from electric heaters or radiators with equal success and can be built at little manufacturing cost, Willis states.

AMERICANS TO BE EVACUATED AT BARCELONA

By United Press

HENDAYE, Spain, Jan. 23.—The United States Consulate at Barcelona today urged all Americans to evacuate the city at once as the Spanish nationalist armies pounded their way out within sight of the loyalist capital.

The cruiser Omaha and the destroyers Badger and Jacob Jones were standing nearby in the Mediterranean, ready to come to the aid of the Americans.

W. C. Thurston, charge d'affaires, prepared to ask Admiral Henry E. Lackey tonight, to bring the ships into the port of Barcelona. They will arrive probably by Wednesday.

There are about 200 Americans in Barcelona, many of whom are Puerto Ricans and Filipinos. All were urged to get out of Barcelona as soon as possible and a warning said "No assurance can be given that American warships can evacuate civilians."

It was believed some of them would be taken off by the ships. It was reported the British destroyer Devonshire, also would come to help evacuate civilians.

Barcelona was under almost constant aerial bombardment as the nationalist land forces closed in. By early afternoon there had been seven raids in which many were killed and wounded.

At one p. m. Harold Peters of the Barcelona staff of the United Press, telephoned to London to give details of the sixth air raid. He interrupted the call to say, "I must cut off now because the sirens are sounding for the next raid."

Health Program Is Being Urged By The President

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to consider carefully a proposed national health program, calling for ultimate medical aid expenditures of $850,000,000 annually after 10 years.

The president submitted to Congress the report of an inter-departmental committee that drafted a program which would place health activities on a national basis. He did not ask for outright adoption of the proposed program.

The president pointed out the expenditures proposed by the committee were considerable, but said that they would be a sound investment and predicted that increased health expenditures would operate to reduce costs of relief.

Freight Rates Cost West Texas Heavy Losses Each Year

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Tex.—West Texas loses annually $100,000,000 because of "discriminatory" freight rates, D. A. Bandeen of Abilene, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has computed.

"I know that $100,000,000 is a lot of money, and it sounds like brave talk, but let those who doubt sharpen a pencil and figure the savings that parity freight rates would bring to the 130 counties in our region," he said.

Bandeen said that a complete overhauling of freight zone policies and practices of the interstate commerce commission, with amendments to the interstate commerce act, would be necessary to remedy the situation.

MAN IS HELD IN KIDNAPING AT BROWWOOD

By United Press

BROWWOOD, Jan. 23.—Wylie Lee Voss of Couthatta, La., was held today charged with robbery and kidnapping and robbery with firearms.

Voss was arrested last night after a local drug store had been robbed of from $30 to $50 and Mr. and Mrs. Eston Wells had been kidnapped.

Two men entered the drug store at 10:30 o'clock and forced Emory Murray, the proprietor, and six customers to lie on the floor. Murray's brother, Everett Murray, was forced to open a cash register. While the men were removing the money Everett Murray notified police.

Noticing that Murray had disappeared the robbers left the store and proceeded on foot several blocks, where they intercepted the Wells as they were parking their automobile. Wells and his wife were forced to drive the men several miles south of Brownwood. Wells was robbed of his purse which contained only small change.

The automobile was abandoned without the owner or his wife being harmed, and the bandits fled on foot. Officers arrested Voss in a ravine, but the other man escaped.

Advertising Men of Southwest Rap Two Proposed Measures As Being A Restriction On Consumer Buying

DALLAS, Tex.—The advertising profession of the Southwest lined up Saturday against proposed federal and state legislation that would put a crimp in the consumer's pocketbook and just as big a one in business—and advertising. The action was taken by the Tenth (Southwestern) district, Advertising Federation of America, in session here.

Number One target of resolutions against pending legislation was the proposal of Congressman Wright Patman of Texarkana to tax chain stores out of existence. The advertisers voted to fight it, and called on clubs composing the district to take action against the bill, H. R. No. 1.

A second resolution opposed a measure in the Texas Legislature introduced under the caption of "Fair Trade Act" but described by the advertising men as a price-fixing act.

Support to a proposed Texas train to the industrial centers of the East, as far as Boston, and reaching New York on Texas Day at the World's Fair was voted in response to an outline of the project by Lowry Martin of Corsicana. The train is an incipient idea that will be taken up by the Texas Press Association when it meets in February, Mr. Martin said, and is set tentatively for May. At suggestion of the advertising men, the change of date to June may be proposed, in order to feature Texas in a thunderous way in New York when the Advertising Federation of America holds its convention there.

Constitution of the Tenth District of advertisers was re-written by the board to equalize representation by all its dozen clubs in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. The new constitution is to be submitted to active clubs for ratification.

The resolutions follow:

Against Patman Bill
Whereas, the first measure in the present Congress, introduced by Representative Wright Patman of Texas, is designed to put chain stores out of business, and

Whereas, two of the Southwestern states comprising this Tenth District Advertising Federation of America already have seen the widespread harm resulting from punitive taxation within their own borders, and

Whereas, it is shown such a discriminatory measure would seriously injure the nation's farmers through the disruption of markets; would cause a dislocation of real estate and property chain store units; would add approximately one million men and women to the ranks of the unemployed, and

Whereas, the enactment of such legislation would increase the cost of goods to the consumer and

Whereas, to destroy the chain stores would be to destroy their spending of $200,000,000 a year in advertising, at a loss of $6,200,000 in the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, and permit consequent reductions in advertising programs of many competitors who never advertised before merchandising methods began to be paced by the chain store competition; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Tenth District of the Advertising Federation of America, by action of its directors in session in Dallas, Texas in January 21, 1939, hereby goes on record as unequivocally opposed to any legislation, whether Federal, state or local, which is punitive in nature and is designed either to hamper the efficiency of or to destroy the system of large distribution, which is evolved from modern progress in retailing and is in the best interests of the consumer. And that notice of this and any other actions regarding pending or proposed measures, Federal, state or local, be sent to all representatives of all the po-

Whereas, there is a measure before the Texas legislature introduced as Senate Bill No. 40 under the caption "Fair Trade Act," and

at Face Value

Probably the best of all commentaries on the amazing Coster case is the plaintive note contributed by the publisher of Whos Who, who remarked: "Who's Who takes it for granted that a man elected president of an $87,000,000 concern is a man of good reputation and standing in his community."

Because practically everybody else follows the same rule, an imaginative swindler was able to put across one of the most fantastic hoaxes of modern times, deceive everybody from the U. S. government to Wall Street, and come to grief only because of a slip-up on a minor detail.

People probably will be drawing morals from this case for years to come. But in some ways the most striking thing about it is the way it illustrates the most universal tendency to take a man at his own valuation.

Banks have a commendable wariness in the matter of cashing checks, and most business firms want to know a little something about you before they will let you open a charge account; but beyond that you can get people to believe practically anything you say about yourself, and your history is what you say it is.

And the odd thing about it all is not that a man like Coster, or Musica, pops up once in a while to make everybody look like a sucker, but the fact that it doesn't happen oftener.

It could happen. All our business and social machinery is geared to the supposition that the average man is a decent and honorable sort—the belief that it isn't necessary to take extraordinary precautions against swindling because most men simply aren't the swindling kind. Any man who has plenty of nerve and imagination can take advantage of that set-up and get away with it for long time—as witness Coster, Ivar Kreuger, Dr. Cook, and sundry others.

But ordinary people live up to our expectations. They pan out just about as we think they will. We don't have to police every detail of our personal relationships. By and large, this really is the sort of world that our belief in the next fellow tells it is.

And that is a rather important point. For it goes back to one of the fundamentals in the existing social organization. What happens when that fundamental is discarded can be seen today, in all its pristine ugliness, in the dictator-lands overseas.

There the belief in man's innate decency and intelligence has been discarded. Because it has been discarded, laborate machinery to make men think and act as their leaders want them to think and act is required. For by an inexorable logic, once you assume that your fellow man is not to be trusted in some things you must assume that he is not to be trusted in anything. And the same logic forces you to regiment every detail of his life.

So perhaps we had better go on taking people at their face value, in spite of the Coster hoax. The only alternative is to start something we wouldn't like at all.

Auto Accidents in Texas Cost $30,000
Every Day in Year

DALLAS, Texas. — Automobile accidents in Texas cost more than $30,000 a day.

That is the cost to insurance companies alone, R. G. Waters of Austin, state casualty insurance commissioner, told a conference of insurance men here.

Waters urged insurance men to give active support to a bill to be introduced in the state legislature to put "teeth" into the driver license law.

"Too much cannot be said for the humanitarian side of the traffic safety movement," Waters said.

"The economic side, however, is one that should shock every insurance agent out of his somewhat disinterested approval into enthusiastic support."

"Fire, life and casualty insurance companies are paying $30,000 daily for losses on motor vehicle accidents in Texas alone. Think of it—almost $11,000,000 paid out annually."

"It's to your own advantage—in terms of dollars and cents if not to save your own life or that of some loved one—to let your legislators know you expect something to be done about traffic safety," he told the insurance men.

Waters urged support of a bill prepared by Sen. Rogers Kelley of Edinburg to grant the public safety department the power to suspend or revoke a driver's license

SERIAL STORY

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Janet meets an old man in the park who tells her that Lance had offered to build his house on his lot if the affair could be handled quietly.

CHAPTER XIV

JANET wondered for a moment if this weren't all some grotesque dream. She had to steady her quivering lips before she could answer, "Why—he wanted to sell you the house without the knowledge of his firm, I suppose."

"So I gathered. . . . Now my problem is this: I want that house a lot. I'm not under any obligation to Hallowell and Benton. I've already paid them for any services they had rendered. But—now you look like a smart young woman—would it be your opinion that a man who was disloyal to one employer would be any more straightforward in dealing with another?"

"No," Janet said, very low. "I'm afraid it wouldn't. . . . Not with any one."

"Well, that's just about what I decided. . . . But I did want that house."

He glanced toward the white house across the ravine.

"I don't suppose," he said reflectively, "that that one is for sale."

"I—really, I don't know," murmured Janet.

After all, did she? Could she be sure of anything after this? She got up slowly.

"I think I'll have to be running along now."

"I'm afraid I've been boring you," he said, smiling up at her. "But sometimes talking things out to someone else helps you to come to a decision. . . . My dear young lady, you look ill. I hope you haven't over-tired yourself. I have a car right out by the gate. It—"

"Thank you," Janet said hastily, "but I'm all right. Anyhow, I live just around the corner."

At first Janet thought that she could not go to the party that night—that it would be impossible to appear with Lance, laughing and acting as if her world had not fallen to pieces. But soon all the legend that her love had built up about Lance sprang to her defense.

Whatever he had tried to do, he had failed. . . . And having seen the cool scorn in the old man's eyes that afternoon, Janet had a feeling that before the matter was ended, Lance would be made to understand just why he had failed. . . . He must have been too desperate to understand exactly what he was doing, or he would never have tried. Before it was time to dress for Leslie's dinner dance, Janet had almost persuaded herself that this was true.

The sea-green gown with the jacket of sequins was delivered late that afternoon. Janet decided that she might as well wear it. There was nothing like a sense of being beautifully dressed to bolster up one's morale. Besides, she thought a little bitterly, the sea-green gown would be entirely out of style before she needed a trousseau.

Cynthia and Timothy Benton had just arrived, and were standing in the lobby of the hotel where Leslie was giving her party when Lance and Janet went in.

Timothy Benton was rather overpowering in evening dress. He was, Janet thought, as Lance had said, so ugly he was almost handsome. He carried himself with the easy poise of an athlete; but his voice, when Cynthia introduced him to Janet, was just a shade too loud, his manner a shade too hearty for perfect ease.

There was something about him that reminded Janet of a great friendly bear not entirely sure of his welcome. When he made a boisterous joke about their being cousins now, Janet saw Lance's left eyebrow lift ever so wearily. Lance, who had been trained in an expensive technical school and in Paris, and who had been taken into the business as the son of one of Mr. Hallowell's best friends, had always been humorously contemptuous of the self-made younger partner.

THEN Timothy Benton turned to Cynthia, and at something in his eyes, Janet's breath caught.

Why, he's really in love, with her, she thought. This wasn't just a fly-by-night marriage with him. He looks—kind; and Cyn's just using him. It isn't fair.

Cynthia, in ivory satin and old gold ornaments, was more radiant than Janet had ever seen her. In fact, from the beginning it was really Cynthia's evening. . . . Not that Janet cared about that. What she cared about really was that nothing in her own world was quite the same tonight as it had been only a week before. She wondered a little blankly if she ever should get it all back again—that sense of security and that clear confidence in the integrity and kindness of the world about her.

It was during the first dance after dinner that Lance said, very casually, "Oh, about the old boy I was drawing the plans for, Jan—I heard just awhile ago that his wife died suddenly in the hospital early this evening. An unexpected heart attack. Rotten luck!"

"Oh, the poor old dear!" Jane cried, remembering the old gentleman's eyes when he had spoken that afternoon of the walks he and his wife used to take in the wood.

Barney McKnight was there—very long and lanky—and tousle-headed even in the formality of tails. He was conspicuously armed with a huge notebook and pencil with which he gravely pretended to make copious notes for the morning society page.

"Put me down for ermine and emeralds, Barney," Sylvia Grant called, dancing by in rose taffeta.

"And don't forget my diamond stomacher," Leslie laughed.

JANET had hardly had time for a private word with Cynthia. Late in the evening, coming from the powder room, she saw her cousin alone through the French doors that opened on a veranda, and turned to follow.

It was dark on the veranda; but rounding a corner, Janet made out the glimmer of Cynthia's satin gown against a stone balustrade. She was about to call her name when she realized that Cynthia was not, after all, alone.

Out of the darkness Cynthia's drawl rose, clear and scornful.

"Don't you think it would be brighter," Cynthia was saying, "if you'd stop poking around in the dead ashes? After all, it is a little late in the year, isn't it? And—it may be hard for you to understand this—suddenly it makes so little difference to me what you think about me."

Oh, Barney! Janet thought impatiently. How can you make a doormat of yourself? It isn't like you.

Then all of a sudden she understood that it wasn't Barney Cynthia was speaking to. . . . Barney was much taller than the figure that stood, half in shadow, at Cynthia's shoulder.

"But, Cynthia," a man's voice said, "how could you do this insane thing? I've been half wild ever since I saw those headlines. . . . Cyn, you've always been the only one really. You must know—"

"I do seem to remember having heard that once—long ago," Cynthia's low voice stung like a whip. "But that was before Jan came home, with her stocks and bonds and that look of a sweet, kind, brave little girl. . . . You made your choice then, Lance. Well, I've made mine. And I go to God I'll manage to be a better sport about it than you've been."

Janet fled down the dark veranda. Stumbling over a chair-leg, she plunged forward against a tall figure which had just stepped out from a doorway. (To Be Continued)

Professor Declares
Milady's Lotions To Be So Much Junk

AUSTIN, Tex.—If you're expecting any more from cold creams than a face-lubrication job, you're wasting your time and money, fifty alarmed co-eds at The University of Texas this week heard a University professor of pharmacy announce.

Dr. Louis W. Schleuse, assistant professor of pharmacy at the University, spoke to members of the Home Economics Club on the value of cosmetics. With one sweep of the hand, he cleared dressing tables of rouges, face powders, cold creams and astringents.

"One face cream can be used for all purposes," he began. "The lubricating and emollient effect in supplementing nature is the only good effect that can be gained. 'You can't shrink a pore' he continued, dismissing astringents and substituting good old-fashioned alcohol, U. S. P. zinc oxide or witch hazel in their places.

"Face powder is valuable from the psychological and aesthetic point of view, but it's never worth the money paid for it," he told the amazed co-eds.

Twenty cents would buy a pound of powder that sells for $2 and $3 an ounce, he persisted. The rouge pot had nourished the roots of the family tree, he concluded—and had done so since the fourth century.

Fish off the coast of Scotland have been found undernourished. Well, that's the proper location.

NEW YORK.—Refusal of players to step along has cost 20 candidates an opportunity to qualify for National Amateur golf championship match play.

Trying to save those few important shots which puts the combatant in or out of the first match round, contestants slow down talk to themselves on the fairways. . . . second guess themselves on the greens.

Meanwhile, the tournament committee fretted about daylight left for a play-off, if any. At times, daylight has given out. . . . ties have had to play off the following morning. The shades of night had treacherous Oakmont backed into the blackness of the Alleghenies during the last play-off, despite a day of warning to speed up.

So next September at North Shore of Glen View, Ill., the second-day field is to be reduced from 150 to 130.

Participants have no one to blame but themselves. The United States Golf Association wishes an extra hour to work on. Inasmuch as the candidates would not cooperate, the time is taken from a score who otherwise could qualify.

WITH two rounds of match play on the third day, involving 84 qualifiers, it is almost imperative that all qualifiers be determined before the day's play begins. Last fall the business of reducing the original field of 170 was left to the championship committee. The reduction made was not universally popular, largely because the extent of the reduction was not determined beforehand.

The committee feels that it is leaving no room for protests by

NEW YORK.—Lou Gehrig is a fatalist in regard to batting slumps.

"You hit or you don't," says the famous Iron Man of the Yankees. Gehrig having finished under .300 for the first time in his long and brilliant career, it was suggested that perhaps an early start to Florida would be good for him.

His record shows that on those years when he went south early and obtained a jump on training he had a better season.

But Gehrig intends to spend the entire off-season at Larchmont. Columbia Lou has been spending part of the day fishing for flounders in Long Island Sound or landing a cod or two off Sheepshead Bay.

"If my better seasons followed early departures for Florida, it was just a coincidence," asserts Columbia Lou. "I've never been handicapped by lack of training."

"If I have a bad spring, such as I had last year, it's just because things turned out that way."

"No one can explain a slump," Gehrig was the highest-priced athlete in the majors last term at $39,000, and with many observers is eagerly waiting to see if the Yankees will ask him to take a cut as the result of the worst season he ever experienced.

NEW YORK.—There was nothing surprising about J. Donald Budge obtaining the jump on Ellsworth Vines in their long tennis tour. . . . virtually blasting the lanky Pasadena blond from the green canvas court in the opener at Madison Square Garden.

There was. . . . and is. . . . much in Budge's favor. . . . at the outset, at least.

He is the younger and hungrier man. Vines has collected his.

Budge has the advantage of frequent competition against varying styles. . . . American, British, Australian, French, Czech, German, Japanese, Polish, and what-not.

He has a full year of tournament play behind him during which he did a perfect job with the zest of an amateur. He still likes to play. Tennis probably is work for Vines now. Witness his golf.

Vines had been in only eight matches since June. . . . with Fred Perry, with whom he had one-night stands for the better part of a year.

Budge's game is modeled along more conservative lines, so it was quite natural that it functioned more efficiently.

VINES concentrates on speed, but must have complete control. He believes in the lowest possible trajectory in executing his rife-fire shots, and barely enough clearance of the net on his forehead drives to keep the ball in play, although, he hits them with the same blazing speed whether in mid-court or at the base line.

But Vines' strength is his weakness when he repeatedly is forced along the route.

Copping lost his legs below the knees in 1933. He was in a hospital two years. Patiently, he learned to walk on artificial limbs. He got a job as a timekeeper on a WPA project, and worked up until he became a supervising clerk.

Doctors told him he was "insane" to think he could learn to fly. But fly he did, just as he learned to walk again, go hunting, dancing and drive an automobile.

How to Ease CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

LONG AFTER sleep comes, VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—clears muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

College Plans To Have Campus Movies

Depositors In Closed Bank Will Receive Deposit Insurance

WASHINGTON.—Within a short time the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is expected to begin payments to depositors of the First State Bank, Marquez, Texas, which closed on January 16.

The bank held total deposits of approximately $50,000.00 at the time of suspension and practically the entire amount is estimated as being insured. The bank had about 500 depositors at the time of its suspension.

This was the 14th closing of an insured bank in the State of Texas since the beginning of deposit insurance on January 1, 1934.

NORTHFIELD, Minn.—Carleton College will become one of the first schools in the country to make a sound movie and one of the few even to attempt motion picture production, according to plans of the college's drama department.

Sound-on-film camera equipment will be complete in every detail. A complete group of film setlight will be used with a microphone boom and special sound track microphone for picking up the players' voices.

A camera truck, wheel-mounted, will carry the photographic devices.
