Boarding at local jail equals income

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

Overcrowding of the Midland County Jail and a recent order from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards has created a situation at the Scurry County Jail which is helping alleviate operating expenses there.

An average of 10 "medium to low risk" prisoners from Midland are now being housed here, an accomodation for which the local lockup is paid $20 per prisoner per day.

Daily operating expenses for the county jail are estimated at some $420, so boarding the 10 Midland prisoners is now providing approximately one-half of the jail's operating costs.

According to Sheriff Keith Collier, the Midland County Jail has been overcrowded for some time. Due to what was viewed as inaction to alleviate the situation, the jail commission has issued an order limiting that jail population to a maximum of 85.

As a result, Midland has been forced to seek holding facilities for numerous medium and low risk prisoners in other counties.

Scurry County has been housing an average of 10 such inmates since April 26.

Collier notes the addition of these prisoners to the local jail population does not significantly increase the daily operating costs.

Most of the $420 per day expense of running the jail involves such fixed costs as utilities, building maintenance, supplies and staff salaries.

Midland County is paying for their prisoner's transportation, clothing and medical needs, leaving meals as the only expense item for the county. This daily cost is figured at only 28 cents per prisoner.

The added inmates have boosted the daily population average here from 27 to 37. This increase does not require additional staff or utility costs, Collier said.

With the maxiumum capacity of the jail certified at 45 to 53 prisoners — depending on the mix of males, females and juveniles — the added inmates also pose no threat of overcrowding.

If a local situation generated enough inmates to cause an overcrowding situation, Midland County is required to remove their inmates from the jail.

Should Midland maintain 10 prisoners in Snyder per day for a full year, the total payment to Scurry County would be $73,000. The operating expense for the jail in 1984 was $153,205.

Although he says he welcomes the revenue, Collier does not ex-

At 4.9 percent...

Jobless barometer moves up slightly

Unemployment figures for Scurry County took a turn upward during March, rising to the 4.9 percent level.

The first three months of 1985 have seen the percentage of unemployed go from 5.1 percent in January, down to 4.3 percent in February, then back to 4.9 percent in March.

In real figures, the March estimate released by the Texas Employment Commission placed the county's civilian labor force at 10,989 individuals.

Of this figure, it was estimated 10,452 were employed, leaving 537 persons out of work.

For March one year ago, TEC figured unemployment here at 4.1 percent — an estimate based on 442 persons unemployed. The labor force at that time was estimated at 10,755 with 10,313 of these employed.

In addition, unemployment figures were released for the five other neighboring counties served through the Sweetwater-based TEC regional office.

The figures for each county were:

—Scurry County: 4.9 percent unemployment figuring 10,989 in the labor force, 10,452 with jobs and 537 without.

—Nolan County: 8.6 percent unemployment figuring 7,946 in the labor force, 7,266 with jobs and 680 without.

—Mitchell County: 5.7 percent unemployment figuring 4,649 in the labor force, 4,383 with jobs and 266 without.

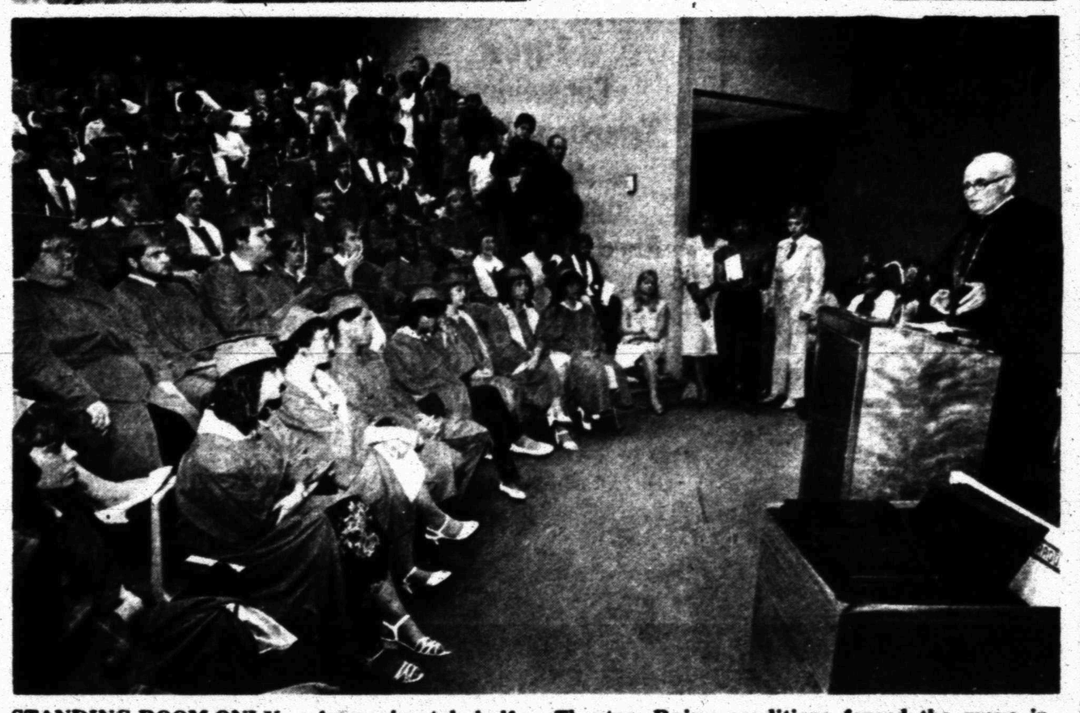

—Fisher County: 7 percent unemployment figuring 2,328 in the labor force, 2,165 with jobs and 163 without.

—Stonewall County: 3.5 percent unemployment figuring 1,149 in the labor force, 1,109 with jobs and 40 without.

—Kent County: 8.6 percent unemployment figuring 490 in the labor force, 448 with jobs and 42 without.

Clinic again offers DTP immunizations

DTP booster shots for local youngsters — temporarily suspended at the Scurry County Health Clinic — will now be given again on a weekly basis.

A shortage of the DTP vaccine statewide had prompted the temporary suspension. Regarding this, many children preregistering here for kindergarten were allowed to do so with incomplete immunization records.

The shortage occurred with the fourth and fifth DTP booste shot.

According to local health unit officials, the indication now is that the supply of DTP vaccine is adequate to resume the normal immunization schedule.

These shots are administered at the local health unit, located at 911 26th St., every Tuesday. The times of operation are from 8:30 a.m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p.m.

Lawn, garden care is topic of seminar

A lawn and garden clinic sponsored through the Scurry County Extension Office will be offered here Tuesday.

Four speakers with the Texas A&M Extension Service will be on hand to answer questions regarding both lawn care and ways to improve gardening techniques.

The clinic will begin at 7 p.m. in Room A of the coliseum.

The four speakers will include:

—Dr. Roland Roberts, extension vegetable specialist, presenting a program on varieties of vegetables that are well adapted to Scurry County.

—Dr. Michael Hickey, extension soil chemist, discussing the fertilizer needs for lawn and gardens.

—Deanna Myers, county entomologist, presenting a program on insect control.

—Dr. Robert Berry, extension plant pathologist, offering a program on disease identification and control in lawns and gardens.

Further information may be obtained by calling 573-5423.

Rain moves grads indoors

Commencement ceremonies for the Western Texas College Class of 1985 had to accomodate a series of thunder showers which moved through the area late Friday.

The end result was the 145 graduates received their diplomas in dual ceremonies, only the second indoor graduation in the history of the school.

The 92 graduates receiving the associate of arts and associate in general education degrees were moved from the central courtyard into the science lecture hall.

There, the address was given by Dr. Joe B. Rushing, chancellor of the Tarrant County Community College District.

Associate in applied sciences degrees and certificates of technology were presented to 71 vocational training graduates and cosmetology students in ceremonies held simultaneously in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Evelyn McLaughlin Davies — chairman of the local Diamond M Foundation and a patron of the associate degree in nursing and other programs at WTC — offered a commencement address for that group.

In his address, Rushing issued a three-part charge to the graduates: to accept and complete the challenges of the future, to maintain a sense of self denial and discipline; and to keep up the American spirit of volunteerism.

He told the students that the willingness to accept new and greater challenges is one of the three elements of the successful life.

3 county drug cases produce guilty pleas

Seven felony defendants — including three of 12 arrested in March on various delivery of controlled substance charges — entered guilty pleas in exchange for probated prison sentences in 132nd District Court last week.

Entering pleas to charges filed at the conclusion of an undercover investigation by Scurry County sheriff's officers and Texas Rangers were Teddy Tutor, William D. Rhoades and Sammy Ward.

Tutor — accused of delivering the drug dialaudid to an undercover officer on Jan. 28 — was assessed a five-year probated prison term for his plea to that charge.

Rhoades — charged with the delivery of methamphetamine on Feb. 28 — also received a five-year probated sentence in exchange for his plea.

Ward was charged with a less serious count of delivery of marijuana on Feb. 22 and was placed on probation for three-years after entering his plea.

Entering guilty pleas to theft related charges were Bobby Beene and Dora H. Berkley.

Beene was indicted by a grand jury in November of 1982 on a

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Happy Mother's Day."

Mothers remember that day. He came with all sorts of fanfare. He arrived quickly, after a wait that had seemed far longer than nine months.

He was hungry when he arrived. And as he grew older, his appetite only increased. On his first day of school, he came home and went directly to the refrigerator. Now Mom and Dad often half portions to avoid weight gain--the youngster eats his and any leftovers--without gaining an ounce.

Moms like to cook, especially when there are grateful young stomachs. A unscientific survey reveals the words that Moms everywhere like to hear best--"Thanks, Mom...what's for dinner?"

A high school student wrote this essay about why her mom is the greatest, and here are some reasons she listed:

M is for magic. She works magic. She knew how to make the hurt stop hurting with just a kiss.

O is for optimism. She always tells me, 'you can' when I have my doubts.

T is for her time (she spends it on me.) If I need her, she can find the time.

H is for her help. She is forever willing to help me or any friend in need.

E is for excellent...as in excellent housewife, excellent cook, excellent Christian example.

R is for remember. When I sing, when I sit down to play the piano, when I am sewing, I remember and think of her because it is she who encouraged me to do these things.

Moms are those who believe in investing in precious metals--braces for all the kids.

Ask Us

Q. — What does the Snyder Soccer Association plan to do with the money the kids raised and how much did they raise?

A. — The spring fund raiser generated some $9,400, according to association officials. The money is to be placed in interest-bearing accounts for the present until plans are finalized on how it is to be spent. Possible ideas include upgrading — to include the addition of an irrigation system — and possibly expanding the number of playing fields.

Booster vote

New officers for the Snyder Band Boosters will be elected Monday.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the high school band hall.

In addition, the group will set scholarship amounts for summer band camp applicants.

ISD meeting

The May meeting of the Snyder school board is due Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the administration building.

Trustees have also scheduled a budget session at the conclusion of regular school business.

Food day

Commodities of cheese, butter and honey will be distributed Wednesday at the Senior Center, 2603 Ave. M.

From 9 until 11:30 a.m., individuals who qualify and with last names beginning A through L will receive these goods. Those with last names M through Z should come to the center from 1 until 4 p.m.

New applicants need to bring proof of residence and personal identification. All are asked to enter through the north door and to bring paper sacks.

One-act finale

Monday will mark the final hometown performance of the Snyder one-act play "Romeo and Juliet" — this year's AAAA state winner.

It will begin at 8 p.m. in Worsham Auditorium at the high school. Ticket prices are $3 for adults and high school age students and $2 for those elementary age and younger.

Court agenda

A discussion of personnel policies is listed as an agenda item for Monday's meeting of the Scurry County commissioners court.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. Other agenda items include approval of bills and minutes from the April 6 meeting.

FDA oks experimental AIDS drug, distribution not ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — An experimental drug has been approved for test use by AIDS patients if their doctors approve, but the drug's producer says it is not ready for broad distribution.

The Food and Drug Administration on Friday released an internal advisory that it has approved a "compassionate-use" license for Newport Pharmaceuticals, a California firm, that would allow AIDS patients to get the drug, Isoprinosine, upon the request of their doctor and at cost.

The drug stimulates the immune system. Since AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, kills its victims by destroying the immune system, some scientists believe the drug may help.

The FDA said its action was not based upon any proof that the drug worked but that desperate AIDS patients are buying the drug on the black market or traveling abroad for it.

Since there is no evidence that the drug will harm people in late stages of the lethal disease, there is no reason to keep the drug from them, the agency said.

FDA spokesman Bruce Brown compared the drug to an experimental cancer treatment, explaining: "The fact that they're not perfected becomes immaterial if your life expectancy is a week or a month."

Newport officials said, however, that the FDA's permission carried restrictions that make it difficult for the company to conduct the experimental trials the FDA stipulated. It said it was negotiating with the agency but had not agreed to broad distribution of the drug.

Isoprinosine is one of about a half-dozen drugs about to undergo clinical trials to determine whether they can be used to treat AIDS.

The agency said its action was prompted in part by news reports of AIDS victims going to Mexico for the drug, where it is sold legally by a Newport licensee.

"There is no need for anyone interested in obtaining Isoprinosine to leave the country," the FDA said in the guidance paper.

Pope John Paul II visiting with people in Netherlands

VELDHOVEN, Netherlands (AP) — Pope John Paul II, on the first papal visit to the Netherlands, today warned liberal Dutch Roman Catholics not to "distance themselves from the center ... of the church."

Starting an 11-day visit to the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg, the 64-year-old pontiff faced one of the toughest challenges of his 26 overseas visits — bringing Dutch Catholics opposed to his conservative views back into the Vatican fold.

John Paul's visit here has spawned deep controversy, satire, calls for mass demonstrations and several death threats, prompting the Dutch to mount their biggest ever security operation to protect him.

A throng of 10,000 people, many waving yellow-and-white Vatican flags, greeted the pope's DC-9 as it taxied to a halt at Eindhoven Airport. Church officials acknowledged they had expected a bigger crowd.

Turbulence ahead for TWA

NEW YORK (AP) — There's serious turbulence ahead for Trans World Airlines Inc.

TWA already is bracing for a possible confrontation with some of its labor unions later this year following months of fruitless contract negotiations.

But now it has another problem that is more immediate. Carl C. Icahn, the New York financier, disclosed he owns 20.5 percent of TWA's stock and might seek control of the air carrier.

All of which TWA faces at a time when it is struggling to regain steady profitability, reduce its heavy debt load and lower its operating costs to match those of rival airlines.

Whether Icahn actually wants to run TWA or has some other goal for his investment — his filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission said several alternatives were being evaluated — his presence could have a substantial impact on the future of TWA.

C.E. Meyer Jr., TWA's president and chief executive, is only too aware of that and he quickly responded to Icahn's disclosure this past week by calling his newest passenger "uninvited and undesirable."

While Icahn did not return telephone calls seeking comment, Wall Street has bandied several courses of action he might possibly pursue.

For example, he could merge TWA into his ACF Industries Inc., which currently is largely involved in leasing railroad freight cars. Or he might swap his TWA shares for some of TWA's jets, then lease those jets back to TWA or other airlines. Of course, Icahn also could simply sell his TWA stock.

In addition, Icahn could try to take control of TWA and then divest its domestic system, which has been a perennial money loser, and concentrate on TWA's profitable trans-Atlantic service.

In the meantime, Icahn's presence — he was rumored to be aggressively buying into TWA weeks before his SEC disclosure — has clearly benefited the airline's stockholders.

The price of TWA's common stock has climbed to a 52-week high of about $17 a share from $12 several weeks ago, largely because of speculation Icahn was interested in TWA.

Schools have done better job

AUSTIN (AP) — Segregated schools have educated Texas' minority students better than desegregated schools have, a State Board of Education members said.

"When black schools are in charge of black pupils we have very good students coming out of those schools," board member Volly Bastine of Houston said Friday.

He said the board has recognized shortcomings in educating minorites, but members "still have not taken any kind of concerted effort to deal with the problems of educating the minorities of this state."

The board gathered Friday to hear a presentation on a bilingual education program in place for eight years in Michigan, an industrial state that attracts many immigrants and has a large Hispanic population.

"Basically the same problems that plague Texas are the same ones that plagued Michigan," said Laurencio Pena, an administrator in the bilingual eduction office of the Michigan Department of Education.

Pena said Michigan in 1976 approved a bilingual education program in which 14,000 students in 25 language groups are taught English as a second language and other subjects are offered in native languages.

Conference committee starts work on final budget version

AUSTIN (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee has begun work on what lawmakers expect will be a final version of the state government budget for the next two years.

The House has approved a $36.4 billion spending plan for the 1986 and 1987 fiscal years, while the Senate approved a $36.8 billion version.

The conference committee, with five members from each body, will write the final version as lawmakers struggle to avoid raising taxes.

Among the major differences between the bills is a $260 million pay raise for state employees. The House wanted to try to provide a wage hike for state workers; the Senate didn't.

Both houses also have approved separate bills to increase fees to generate additional monies for the spending plans. A conference committee to work out those differences is scheduled to begin meeting Sunday evening.

As the budget conference committee began work Friday, senators quickly questioned the approach House members took to assembling their budget.

Although several large state agencies got budget increases from House members — including prisons and mental health which are under court ordered reforms — many others received 3 percent across-the-board cuts.

"The Senate is awfully concerned about your blanket policy," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

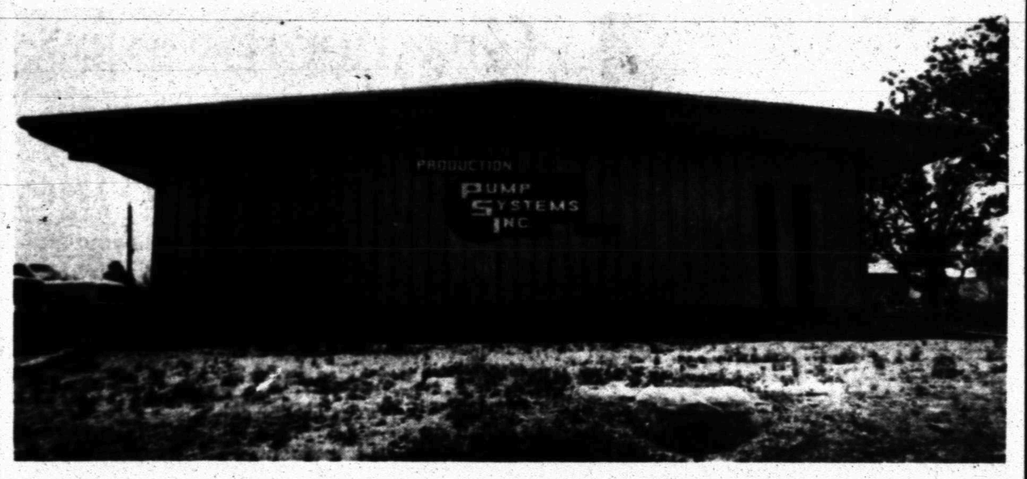

"We really got in and used the paring knives," responded Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline. "And that's the way we were able to finance the state employees' pay raise."

"So 3 percent is the 'fat' in each agency?" asked Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana.

"Some agencies got more than 3 percent," replied Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "The House felt like we had to get under the certification (level) and the 3 percent figure got us there."

Do you get upset when you read about the large increase in crimes against children?

Are you concerned about the kids down the street, who seem to be raising themselves?

Would you like to know what is being done to protect Scurry County children, and how you and your group or church could help?

Could you attend the Annual Report Meeting of the Scurry County Children's Protective Services Board, Tuesday, May 14, 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Center, 27th & Ave. M.

We will present progress reports of the past years activities of the Department of Human Resources case workers, Snyder Day Care Center, SCOOP and The Noah Project.

Two new programs will be introduced also, the C.A.V.E. series [Children's Anti-Victimization Education] that we hope to present in the schools next semester, and an outreach project that will use volunteers to call and work with lower-priority children's protection referrals. Here, trained volunteers can counsel stressed families help instruct young parents and act as child advocates in the legal system.

Please attend and see what is going on with children in Scurry County, and what volunteer opportunities exist for almost any time and talent.

WTC's Ray Robbins picked for accreditation committee

Ray Robbins, professor of law enforcement at Western Texas College, has been named to serve on a Southern Association of Colleges and Schools committee which will visit Miami-Dade Community College in Miami, Fla. later this month.

Miami-Dade is ranked first academically among community/junior colleges and has an enrollment of about 65,000 students on its three campuses, Robbins said. The college is currently undergoing reaffirmation of its accreditation by the Southern Association and the committee visit is part of that undertaking.

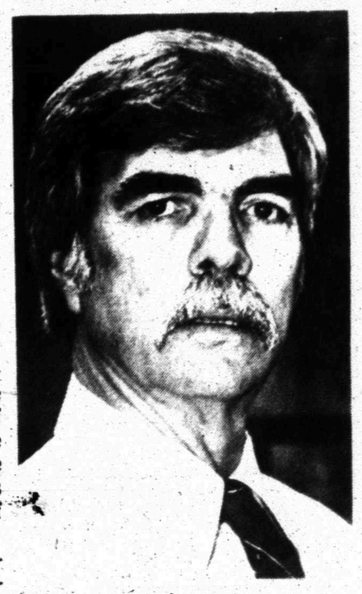

In preparation for the trip, Robbins is now reading self-study materials prepared by faculty and personnel at Miami-Dade. At the college, he will be working primarily in the area of law enforcement. Miami-Dade has a Criminal Justice Institute at its north campus and Robbins said he expects to spend most of his time there.

Dr. Richard Ernst from Northern Virginia Community College is chairman of the 35-member committee and Dr. Wallace Kay from the University of Southern Mississippi chairs the subcommittee on which Robbins is to serve.

This is the fourth time Robbins has served on a Southern Association reaccreditation committee.

"I always feel that I benefit from these visits to other colleges," Robbins commented. "I am looking forward to seeing how a school the size of Miami-Dade carries on its operations."

Expenses for Southern Association accreditation team members are paid but they are not paid for their services. Members of the Southern Association are required to cooperate by making personnel available for accreditation and reaffirmation of accreditation committees.

Filmmaker lands in Los Angeles hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Filmmaker Mervyn LeRoy, whose nearly 80 films include "The Wizard of Oz," was hospitalized briefly after becoming ill at a reception for the wife of Vice President George Bush.

LeRoy, 84, appeared to be having difficulty breathing Thursday while waiting to greet Barbara Bush at the Century Plaza Hotel, where she received the 21st annual Woman of the World Award from Childhelp USA, a non-profit group working against child abuse.

Ants To The Rescue

LANCASTER, England (AP) Scientists have determined that wood ants can play an important role in timber management.

The ants eat the herbivorous insects which can consume up to 10 percent of a tree's leaves. Such a reduction in the amount of leaf coverage can decrease a tree's timber output by 30 percent, according to the scientists.

Repeal backers appeal to White

AUSTIN (AP) — Sponsors of a bill to repeal Texas' Blue Law have sought to shore up their case by enlisting the support of Gov. Mark White, who had said he was opposed to seven-day work weeks.

"We met last night and felt if the governor didn't fully understand this and lined up on the other side, that it would spell the defeat of something that has strong support," Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

A Senate vote is pending on the House-approved bill to repeal the 1961 law banning the sale of 42 items ranging from hardware to clothing on both Saturday and Sunday. A close vote has been predicted.

On Thursday the governor — without specifically threatening a veto — said he was studying the bill to make certain seven-day work weeks aren't allowed.

"That's one of the things I've been saying all along I wanted that Legislature to consider — the fact that workers have families and they should be given time with their families," White said.

"That's one of the biggest problems we face in Texas today, in the nation. Many of the problems we have in that prison, in schools, is the fact that we have families that are not as strong a unit as they once were," the governor said.

Farabee said, "To the contrary, we feel that the nature of family structure is such that it (repeal of the Blue Law) will give greater opportunity for the family to do things like the family does — like shopping."

Farabee, who appeared at a news conference Friday with House sponsors Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, and David Cain, D-Dallas, said, "We pointed out to the governor the protections (for employees who do not want to work on a religious day) that were in this bill, and the governor was very encouraged to know of those protections."

Farabee also said a so-called compromise by two senators is anything but a compromise and is certainly not acceptable to them.

Reagan may ask for more funds for Pentagon

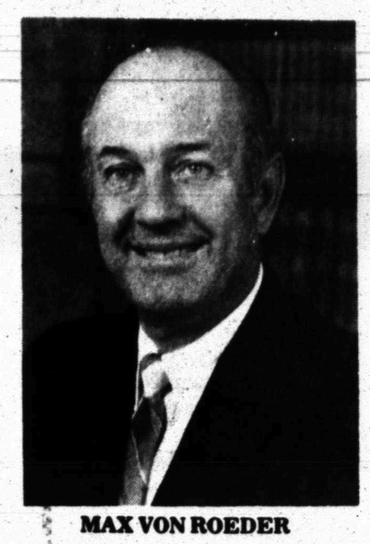

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back from a "full and challenging" trip to Europe, says he will not hesitate to ask for more money for the Pentagon if the spending restraints he agreed to endanger national security.

In a statement on the White House lawn at the end of a 10-day, four-nation European trip, Reagan exclaimed "how sweet it is" to come back from an economic summit to a Senate vote "for spending restraint and no tax increase."

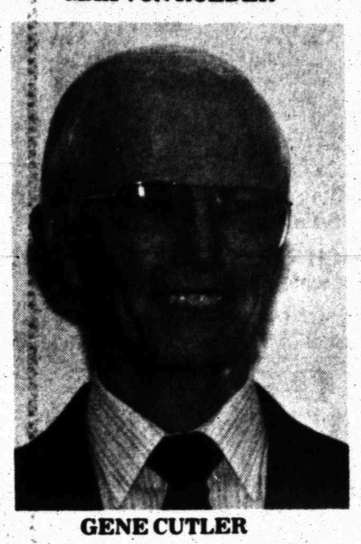

Reagan returned about 12 hours after the Senate voted 50-49, with Vice President George Bush breaking a tie, for a spending package that freezes Social Security increases and allows military spending to rise only with inflation, which is less than Reagan wanted.

"Our commitment to America's security is determined by the threat posed by our adversaries," Reagan said. "If we conclude that our national security is jeopardized, I will not hesitate to request, and the Senate leaders have assured me they will consider, supplemental funding."

Regarding his trip, which took him to France, Spain, Portugal and a summit meeting of seven major industrialized nations in Bonn, West Germany, Reagan said, "We've had a fine trip, a full and challenging trip and ... we think we're returning home mission accomplished."

Two named to Lions 2-T2 district posts

Two local Lions Club members have been named to district-wide offices for District 2-T2.

Both were elected last weekend at the Lions district convention in Plainview.

Max von Roeder was named lieutenant governor for the district. In this capacity, he will serve as the district governor for Lions during 1986-87.

In addition, Gene Cutler was named eye bank director.

Both Von Roeder and Cutler will begin their terms of office in July. Von Roeder will be installed as the district governor in July of next year at New Orleans.

Pair make restitution

Two felony indictments for criminal mischief — returned by the Scurry County grand jury Monday — were dismissed this week in light of restitution paid by the defendants.

Twenty-five year-old Richard Lee Willis of 312 35th St. and 22-year-old Samuel Willis of Rt. 2, Snyder had been indicted in connection with the April 12 vandalism of a 1979 Chevrolet owned by Martha Braziel of Snyder.

According to District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, both indictments were dismissed after the men paid restitution for this damage.

600 Block, 26th St. scene of two wrecks

Minor injuries were reported to a Hermleigh woman following a mishap Friday in the 600 Block of 26th St.

The 9:34 a.m. wreck was one of two which occurred Friday at the same location, the second reported at 5:35 p.m. Police also filed a report on a third which occurred Thursday.

Charlene Boyd Dacus of Hermleigh indicated neck pains after her 1965 Ford was involved in a collision with a 1970 Ford driven by Mattie Kimbrough of 105 34th St.

The second wreck in the 600 Block of 26th St. involved a 1976 Cadillac driven by Becki Laree Hall of Star Rt., Snyder and a 1979 Ford driven by Gregory George Augusta of 2512 Ave. M.

At 9 a.m. Friday police were called to investigate a minor accident which occurred at West Elementary School at 4:10 p.m. Thursday.

Involved in that mishap was a 1950 Ford tractor driven by Robert Aguirre of 1303 25th St. and owned by the Snyder Independent School District which had struck a parked 1984 Dodge van owned by Roy Nazworth of 408 35th St.

pect the Midland situation to last for a full year.

He said once Midland comes up with a definite plan for jail expansion, he expects the commission will lift the restrictions on the jail population.

Collier speculated the expense of boarding prisoners out-of-county will probably prompt the Midland commissioners to take action on the situation in the near future.

Midland is now boarding prisoners in Andrews, Stanton, Garden City, Big Spring and Colorado City, he said.

charge of felony theft in an amount greater than $200 and less than $10,000 in connection with the theft of a rental television set from Strickland's TV Rental.

He was given four years probation and ordered to pay restitution in connection with his plea bargain agreement.

Berkley had been indicted for the burglary of a motor vehicle occuring here in January. The indictment was in connection with the theft of a credit card from a car owned by Debbie Richardson of Snyder.

Berkley pleaded guilty to that charge in exchange for a three-year probated prison term.

Receiving a six-year probated prison term in exchange for a guilty plea was Ann Beaird.

She was indicted in June of 1984 on a charge of forgery by passing in connection with an attempt to cash a forged check at the Snyder National Bank on May 8, 1984.

Also receiving probated jail time was Mike Lopez Valadez of Snyder, who pleaded guilty to a felony DWI charge filed by police March 10.

He will now serve two years under the supervision of the county probation office.

Drug charge follows stop

A 24-year-old Snyder man was in the Scurry County Jail Saturday morning in lieu of $1,500 bond on a charge of possession of dangerous drugs filed Friday night by city police officers.

David Herrera, who listed his address as the Travel Inn Motel, was arrested on the felony drug charge following a routine traffic stop in the 300 Block of the East Highway at 12:08 a.m. Saturday.

A quantity of what police believed to be illegal drugs were found at the time of the traffic stop.

Officers are witholding any statement about what those drugs might be pending laboratory analysis of the seized substances.

A misdemeanor charge of possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia was also filed against Herrera.

Arrests made for tiller theft

Two juvenile boys were arrested by police Friday evening in connection with the theft of a tiller from a north Snyder residence.

The boys, ages 11 and 12 years, were arrested at 10:17 p.m. in connection with the tiller said stolen from the W.E. Cox residence at 2100 Huffman Ave.

Both were later released to the custody of their parents with charges to be filed later with county juvenile authorities.

In other action, city police jailed one local man for possession of illegal drug paraphernalia.

Self denial and discipline, he said, is the second key element in meeting those challenges and achieving long term goals.

The spirit of volunteerism — which has recently resulted in much publicized private efforts by individual citizens to provide famine relief for Africa — makes America unique in the world and must not be allowed to die, he said.

At Class 4A state meet...

Freeman wins discus title...

AUSTIN – Kyle Freeman became the first Snyder High School trackster to earn a first place medal at state since 1980 here Friday, throwing the discus 177-feet, 8-inches for the Class 4A crown.

Freeman, who has signed a full scholarship with Angelo State University and has been invited to compete in Korea this summer, also took third in the shot put.

It was the senior athlete's best shot throw of a stellar season. His previous best had been a 58-1, thrown a week earlier at the regional track meet. Freeman also threw his best discus mark at regionals - 185-feet.

Snyder's last athletes to win first-place medals at state were high jumper Bradley Richardson and pole vaulter Dale Jenkins in 1980.

In the women's Class 4A division, Snyder's Karlene Thompson made good on a pledge to beat her seventh-place finish of a year ago here by taking fifth. The junior, who has been suffering from an inflamed ankle and could not walk without pain Thursday, leaped 37-1¼ to nail down the fifth place spot Friday afternoon.

Her best this season, a 38-1, would have taken third place behind two-event winner Diana Wills of Jasper and Cynthia Cook of Fort Worth Carter-Riverside.

KARLENE THOMPSON

Wills, who also won the long jump, went 39-10 to win the triple jump. Cook, last year's state champion, went 39-2¼. Also competing was Andrews' Charlotte Jones. She placed sixth with a leap of 35-7½ - some two feet under her best this season.

Freeman's effort won the discus handily over Kelly Oates of Bay City, who threw a 171-5. Third was Cleburne's Al Smith with a 170-4.

"We're very excited," said Coach Kevin Wiseman. "You have to have a lot of good things happen to you all through the season to finish like this. He was the favorite going in and he had to come from behind to win it. It capped a real good season."

Oates opened the competition with his best throw of 171-5 and Freeman followed a 171-3. The Snyder athlete struggled under pressure on his second and third attempts, and fouled on his fourth before throwing the event-winning 177-8. Oates fouled on his last two throws.

"He was pressing and not relaxed and his second, third and fourth throws really weren't too good. He was trying to force it a little bit," said Wiseman. "But he came through on that fifth throw. His sixth throw was about a 168-7, so he had three pretty good throws altogether."

Duane Duncam of Austin Westlake won the shot with a heave of 61-5. Second was Dante Williams of Gainsville with a 60-5½.

In other results here, Byron Grant of Corsicana upstaged Bay City's Joe DeLoach to win the 100 meters in 10.1. DeLoach, who took second in the 100, came back to set a national high school record of 20.4 in the 200 meters.

Sweetwater's Rachelle Mulanax placed second in the girl's 3200 meters with an 11.34.9. Dallas Wilson's Audrey Cole literally ran away with first place, posting an 11.08.3.

Sweetwater also placed second in an exciting 800 meter relay. Port Arthur Lincoln won with a 1:41.8, edging the Lady Mustangs by one-tenth of a second.

In other girl's action, Jasper's Wills won the long jump with an 18-5½ and former Sweetwater standout Wanda Gardner, now residing in Desoto, won the discus with a throw of 140-8.

In addition to DeLoach's national record, Tony Allen of Jasper set a Class 4A record of 45.6 in the 400 meters.

...signs with Angelo

Kyle Freeman, 4A state discus champion, has signed a scholarship with Angelo State University.

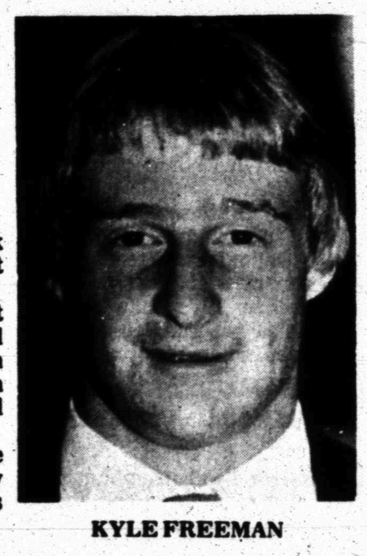

"I personally think he's the best high school shot and discus man in West Texas," said David Noble, former Snyder High School Athletic Director and now men's track coach at Angelo State University. "He's got unusual speed and quickness. If he grows a little, puts on some weight, he'll really be a hand."

Freeman has thrown the discus 185 feet and the shot put 58-10¼.

He'll join another Snyder High School ex-athlete, Ricky Vaughn.

"Ricky did a good job for us as a freshman," said Noble. "He just needs another year of gaining strength."

Angelo State has had a history of top athletes in the shot and discus, including Harold Ledet of San Angelo Central and Steve Medley of Monahans. The university boasts two all-Americans in its current weight program, Andrews' Mark Petross and DeSoto's Paul Cacciapaglia. Petross competes in the hammer throw while Cacciapaglia enters the discus and shot put.

KYLE FREEMAN

"We'll work Kyle in all three events. How much he grows will be a factor in what he competes in, but I see him in the shot and discus right now," said the coach.

Freeman is pleased with the scholarship offer.

"It is close to Snyder and I've heard a lot of nice things about the university and San Angelo," he said. "And Noble is a good track coach. I'm looking forward to it."

Freeman was Snyder Male Athlete of the Year this season. A two-sport standout, he also played linebacker and tight end in football.

He has been selected as part of a 94-member athletic team which will compete in Korea this summer. The team will be overseas from June 5 through June 14, including a two-day stop in Taiwan.

"We're really excited about all Kyle has done and is getting the opportunity to do," said SHS track coach Kevin Wiseman. "No one deserves it more."

Snyder four compete in AAU tournament

Four members of the local Steven Alcala's Tae Kwon Do classes are competing in the State AAU Tournament in Fort Worth today (Saturday).

Greg Gafford, Roy Thompson, Rusty Radican and Curtis Cox are vying in the tournament, which is being held on the Texas Christian University campus.

Gafford competes as an adult middle weight black belt, Radican as an intermediate black belt, Cox as a junior black belt and Thompson as an adult light-heavy weight yellow belt.

Black belt adults finishing first or second in their divisions will qualify for the nationals in Chicago. Juniors and below can qualify for the Junior National AAU in Florida.

Local Tae Kwon Do classes are held Tuesday and Thursday from 7 until 9 p.m. The building is located on the East Highway.

DeLoach burns a 20.4...

200 meter national mark falls

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Roy Martin of Dallas Roosevelt took aim Saturday at a national 200 meter record which was less than 24 hours old.

Bay City's Joe DeLoach broke the national high school record in the 200 meter dash Friday night at the 75th University Interscholastic League state track and field meet.

DeLoach's sizzling time of 20.4 seconds bested the national mark of 20.5 established by Dwayne Evans of South Mountain High School in Phoenix in 1976.

The previous best time in the state was 20.7 held by Wayne Johnson of Richardson and Kenneth Jackson of Sherman.

Martin was an alternate on the United States' Olympic team in Los Angeles and is capable of making an excellent run at DeLoach's new record.

Byron Grant of Corsicana, who was second in the 200 meters in 20.8, upset DeLoach in the 100 meters on Friday.

Grant was clocked in 10.1 seconds while DeLoach was timed in 10.2. Confused UIL officials had DeLoach on the winner's stand to get a first place medal in a big mixup before replacing him with Grant.

Jasper was crowned the Class 4A boys' champion on Friday night with 66 points while Fort Worth Poly earned the girls' crown with 60 points. Corsicana was second in the boys' division with 46 points while Silsbee was second in the girls' 4A conference with 51 points.

Tony Allen of Jasper set a conference record in the 400 meter dash in a time of 45.6, breaking Kevin Robinzine's year old mark of 45.8.

Other meet records included:

- Sandra Mondy of Farmersville with a triple jump of 38-8 3-4 in Class 2A. It beat the old record of 38-7 1-2 by Cynthia Jones of Frisco.

- Vernel Dunn of Natalia pushed the shot 42-11 1-4 for a 2A record, beating the old mark of 42-1 3-4 by Shirley Fischer of Salada in 1982.

This is the UIL's first event with a combined boys and girls meet.

Championships were to be decided in all the other divisions Saturday as competition began at 9 a.m. and ended at 10 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE
Finnish researchers divided couples with hypertension into three dietary groups: 1. a low-fat diet with high ratio of poly-unsaturated (vegetable) fats; 2. a low-salt diet; 3. their normal diet. Only the group of the low-fat diet experienced a reduction in blood pressure, and this improvement reversed when they returned to their usual diet.

Celtics rip Pistons, 123-113; claim NBA semifinal series

DETROIT (AP) - Great teams always find a way to win, and every disappointed Detroit Piston had to admit that the Boston Celtics are a great team.

Despite an off night by star forward Larry Bird and the screaming of a hostile sellout crowd of 21,193, the Celtics handed the Pistons a 123-113 pounding Friday night to wrap up a National Basketball Association semifinal series in six tough games.

"They did what they had to do to win," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "There aren't many upsets in a series like this."

The Celtics now advance to a best-of-seven-game series with the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Conference finals.

"I'm very happy to be there because Detroit pushed us to the brink," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said.

Bird had missed practice and didn't feel well at gametime. He had scored only eight points by halftime, so Jones sat him down and sent in Scott Wedman.

Wedman responded by scoring 17 points, 13 in the second half.

"Sitting on the bench, I realized that we needed a lift," Wedman said. "I just try to stay ready when I'm called to play."

Bird, who finished with 17 points, said he was happy that Wedman could cover for him.

"I didn't feel very good," Bird said. "My shot was off, my game was off. You just have to chalk it up and go on."

Robert Parish, who scored 14 points in the second half, was high for Boston with 24 points.

Guard Dennis Johnson, who added 22 points, hit the game's first basket and the Celtics never trailed, although the Pistons tried twice to make a run at the lead.

With 6:04 remaining in the first quarter, a basket by Johnson put Boston up by 11 points but Isiah Thomas hit four of the Pistons' next five baskets as the Pistons closed the gap.

"Tonight they were a better team," Thomas said. "They played well and we have nothing to be embarrassed about."

Thomas scored 22 of his 37 points in the second half for the Pistons, Bill Laimbeer added 21 and Kelly Tripucka 20.

Turner signs letter with Pan American

Vince Turner, a 6-7, 195-pound forward from Western Texas College has signed to play basketball for Pan American University.

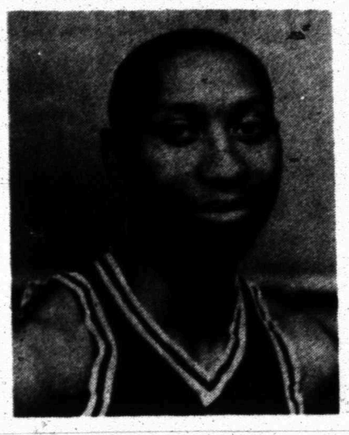

Turner averaged 4.7 points and 4 rebounds for the Westerners, who finished the season with a 20-12 record.

"During his two years here, he kept improving and got better and better. He was our most improved player this season," said WTC Coach Phil Spradling.

"His jumping ability is good. He can get up and down the floor. He's more of a finesse forward than a power forward. A lot of colleges overlooked Vince," said Spradling of the Gary, Ind. native.

Turner scored in double figures seven times during the 1984-85 season and pulled down eight or more rebounds 10 times.

Coach of the Pan American Broncos is Lon Kruger.

WTC greens topic of Tuesday talks

A meeting for persons interested in discussing the situation of the greens at the Western Texas College golf course has been set for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the pro shop. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

The bare spots are the result of an infestation of an undesirable grass, Poa Annua (Annual Bluegrass) that has hit many golf courses in this area. Steps are being taken to correct the situation, Bill Mitchell, superintendent, said.

Bumper wheat crop expected in 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another bumper wheat crop is nearly ready for harvest, adding to a supply that officials say probably will push grain prices down another notch in the coming year.

In its first major crop estimate of the season, the Agriculture Department said Friday that based on May 1 surveys, the 1985 winter wheat crop may produce 1.97 billion bushels, down 4 percent from 2.06 billion bushels in 1984.

Although the crop is smaller — because of reduced acreage — it still would rank as the fifth largest ever grown in the United States, according to USDA records. The largest was nearly 2.1 billion bushels in 1981.

"It means that the challenge of moving wheat into the export market is even greater," said Carl Schwensen, executive vice president of the National Association of Wheat Growers.

But it's going to be difficult finding markets unless the USDA pushes a "sustained and aggressive" export program, he said. Right new, Schwensen said, it looks as if farmers will see a further buildup in wheat inventories and lower prices.

The department said as much in a related report, projecting total wheat output this year at about 2.53 billion bushels, down only slightly from the total crop of 2.6 billion bushels in 1984 — the third largest on record. Winter wheat, which is planted in the fall and harvested the following summer, usually accounts for about three-fourths of the total.

With exports expected to weaken again in 1985-86, the report said wheat prices at the farm could average $3.20 to $3.40 per bushel, compared with $3.38 in 1984-85 and $3.53 in 1983-84.

Wheat prices in recent years have had little impact on food prices. Used primarily as a bread grain, there is less than a nickel's worth of wheat — based on farm prices — in a one-pound loaf of white bread.

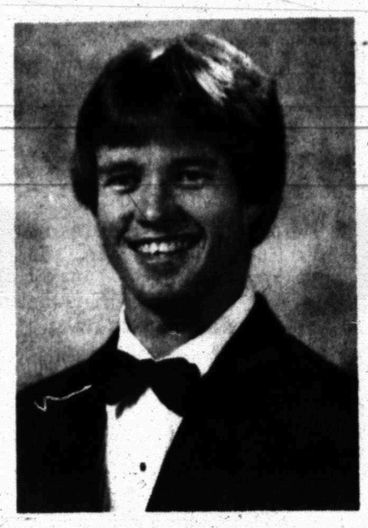

The U.S. inventory of wheat from previous crops as of June 1 is expected to be about 1.39 billion bushels, virtually unchanged from a year ago, the supply-and-demand report showed. By June 1, 1986, however, the inventory could rise to nearly 1.62 billion bushels.

In the Crop Reporting Board's report, the average winter wheat yield, based on indications as of May 1, was estimated at 40.7 bushels per acre, compared with last year's 40 bushels per harvested acre.

The Kansas winter wheat crop, normally the largest, was estimated at 464 million bushels, up from 431.2 million in 1984.

Farmers are expected to have about 48.5 million acres for harvest this year, down from 51.5 million in 1984.

No 1985 production estimates for spring wheat, corn and many other spring-planted crops were included. Those will be released by USDA later in the growing season.

Special program planned at center

Students from Snyder High School's theatre department will bring a special program to the Senior Center at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday under the direction of Jerry Worsham.

Monday's special feature will be Hermleigh Day, and all senior citizens from the Hermleigh community are invited to be special guests for the luncheon on that day.

Thursday morning the center's own Kitchen Band will entertain at 11:30 a.m., and at 11 a.m. Friday there will be an "end of school" party.

Senior citizens who are eligible to receive surplus commodities can pick these up at the center between 9-11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Swimnastics enthusiasts meet at the pool in the Western Texas College gym at 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A puff painting class, teaching techniques which can be used to personalize and decorate T shirts, meets at 1 p.m. Tuesdays.

Senior citizens who would like to participate in activities at the center are welcome to call the office at 573-4035 for information or to arrange for transportation. The center, located at 2603 Avenue M, is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each weekday.

Cosemtology has opening available

The cosmetology department at Western Texas College has an opening for one additional student in the class starting June 1 and has extended the deadline for applications, Judy Border, cosmetology instructor, said.

Anyone interested in enrolling is asked to contact Mrs. Border in the cosmetology lab (573-8511, ext. 262).

Cosmetology students receive 1,580 hours of training in a 12-month period and are then eligible to take state Board of Cosmetology examinations for licensing.

"I heard Daddy say your Teflon may be coming off. WHERE?"

Senate budget plan outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of the $965 billion budget for 1986 the Senate approved Friday. The plan calls for spending cuts of $56 billion next year and $295 billion over three years.

DEFICITS: The plan estimates deficits at $171.4 billion for 1986; $144.8 billion for 1987; and $104.3 billion for 1988.

SPENDING CUTS: The plan calls for reductions of $56 billion in 1986; $99.9 billion in 1987 and $139.3 billion in 1988.

TAX INCREASES: None.

DEFENSE: Defense spending authority would be allowed to rise with inflation, an increase of roughly 4 percent. That translates into an increase of $21.1 billion in actual spending over the estimated levels for 1985, to a total of $273.1 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY: Social Security cost-of-living benefits normally granted next Jan. 1 would be canceled. The regularly scheduled increases would resume in 1987. The one-year freeze would save $5.8 billion in 1986 and $21.9 billion over three years. There would be additional savings from imposing the same freeze on cost-of-living increases for veterans' benefits, as well as pensions for military and civilian retirees and railroad retirees.

Supplemental Security Income benefits would rise by $10 a month for individuals and $15 a month for couples.

TERMINATIONS: Programs to be killed include Conrail, which would be sold; trade adjustment assistance to firms; Appalachian development program; Economic Development Administration; Urban Development Action Grants; general revenue sharing; Export-Import Bank direct loans; community services block grant after 1986; a work-incentive program known as WIN; a rental development grant program called HODAG; so-called Section 312 rehabilitation loans; U.S. travel and tourism program; Treasury payment for most postal subsidy program.

AGRICULTURE: Farm programs would be cut by $5.5 billion over three years. But the administration has agreed to set up an export subsidy program using government stores of grain.

ENERGY: Provides a moratorium on further development of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve for oil.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION: Direct loans for businesses would be cut by 70 percent, and total cuts would amount to $2.5 billion over three years for the agency.

TRANSPORTATION: Amtrak subsidies would be retained, but cut by 12.5 percent in 1986; 25 percent in 1987 and 40 percent in 1988, for a total of $577 million. Urban mass transit operating subsidies would be cut by 20 percent, or $1.4 billion through 1988.

EDUCATION: Guaranteed student loans would be restricted to students from families with incomes of $60,000 or below. Pell grants and other student aid programs would be frozen at 1985

Members of reactionary group leave

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Authorities say most residents loosely linked to a neo-Nazi group in Arkansas have scattered, taking with them a reported threat of a race war, after a woman's murder was traced to one of the organizations.

"We just had a small splinter group here of a dozen people. Since all this (news) has been breaking, they've left town," Police Maj. Charles Trainham said Friday.

Police Chief Curtis Harrelson said the body of Sandra Jean Carrigan was found March 19 near Oklahoma City, and attention was focused on the right-wing group in the North Central Texas city.

Officers said the Wichita Falls resident had been loosely associated with the neo-Nazi group. A police intelligence memo had said the organization may be part of the Posse Comitatis.

A police intelligence memo about the right-wing group in Wichita Falls was written when police began investigating Mrs. Carrigan's disappearance, said Harrelson.

Thank You

WE THANK our many friends who helped us during the illness and death of our mother, Mattie Phillips. A special thanks to Dr. Dillaha for his patience with her during the years he was her doctor, to the nurses on 4th floor at Cogdell for their untiring care of her, and to the kitchen staff who made the pretty birthday cake for her and sang "Happy Birthday". We hope you have friends like ours when you need them.

The Family of Mattie Phillips

WE TAKE this means to express our sincere thanks to our many friends who were so kind to us in our darkest hour of sorrow (when our loved one was called away). We deeply appreciate the kind words and beautiful flowers that were sent; also, the food that was prepared. We especially want to thank Eastside Church of Christ, The Shriners, Mr. & Mrs. Jim Wilson (Sr. & Jr.),B & F Well Service, R.E. Smith, Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home, and Mr. Don Farmer.

May you have just such friends if such sorrow ever visits your home. May Heaven's richest blessings fall on each of you.

QUALITY CERTIFIED PLANTING SEED AVAILABLE

IT PAYS TO PLANT PAYMASTER COTTON

A few thoughts to consider when it's time to plant cotton...and you're tempted to save a few dollars with "caught" seed. As a cotton producer your interest is in getting as much lint as possible off every acre. As a professional seed company, our interest is to get the best seed off every acre. That means we manage our production differently. Our cotton is grown in selected fields at widely scattered sites. That way, we can minimize the problems of weather and other unfavorable growing conditions.
We use special equipment. Test every lot. Then select the best seed from the best acres. The rest is not good enough to go into that Paymaster Seeds bag. If you want to see what a difference Paymaster Certified Cottonseed on make in your production, give it a try on at least 20% to 25% of your acres. Walk the fields. Keep records. Compare the yield. The quality. The dollar returns. Most years, you'll find Paymaster Certified Cottonseed will put you out front. It will pay you back for the added seed cost...and put some extra money in your pockets to boot. Talk it over with your Paymaster Seeds Dealer. He'll show you why more and more growers are saying:
"IT PAYS TO PLANT PAYMASTER CERTIFIED COTTON."

PAYMASTER 145

Drouth tolerant, widely adapted, top quality fiber, proven high yielder

PAYMASTER 404

High yield capacity, clean harvester, added storm resistance.

LANKART

IT'S NOT JUST COTTON, IT'S A TRADITION!

PR75

Tolerant to bacteria blight, early maturing, high gin turnout

Lankart Certified Varieties Also Available.

Vote helps train

WASHINGTON (AP) — It seemed for a while that President Reagan's budget would derail Amtrak, but it now appears likely to survive as Congress shows a reluctance to leave the nation without a rail passenger system.

The Senate, rebuffing a Reagan plan to eliminate federal Amtrak subsidies, on Friday voted to reduce outlays to the rail line by just 12 percent — enough, according to Amtrak, to avoid a shutdown.

The focus now turns to the House, where the Energy and Commerce Committee plans to take up the Amtrak legislation next week. Congressional sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said it's unlikely the House panel will approve anything less than the Senate.

Hearing resumes

CHICAGO (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb's foster mother said she found it hard to believe her daughter when she said she fabricated the rape accusation that sent Gary Dotson to prison.

But Dotson's lawyer on Friday challenged Gov. James Thompson and a clemency board to "put your money where your mouth is" and grant Dotson, who has been in prison for six years, a full pardon.

"Don't worry about the 1,000-to-1 chance that he'll get picked up on something or steal a loaf of bread," Warren Lupel, Dotson's attorney, said during the second day of a clemency hearing. "The point is, he didn't rape Cathy Crowell."

Dotson, 28, was sentenced to a 25- to 50-year sentence following his 1979 conviction on charges of kidnapping and raping Mrs. Webb, now 23 and a mother of two living in Jaffrey, N.H. She came forward in March to say the rape never happened. Dotson is free on $100,000 bond while appealing his case.

At least five more witnesses were to testify today, including David Beirne, Ms. Webb's former boyfriend, now a 25-year-old serviceman in Utah. It was after sexual intercourse with Beirne, Mrs. Webb said, that she panicked about a possible pregnancy and made up the rape charge.

Budget plan is outlined levels.

JOB CORPS: Funding would be cut by 30 percent, rather than canceled as President Reagan originally proposed.

VICES BLOCK GRANT: Funding would be cut by one-third.

HEALTH: Medicare funding would be cut by $16.3 billion over three years, in part through a one-year freeze in payments to doctors and most hospitals. Premiums for Part B coverage would rise to $22.88 a month by 1988, in contrast to the current scheduled rise to $19.40 a month. Medicaid would be cut by $1.2 billion over three years, but a proposed cap on federal payments to states has been dropped. Most other health programs would receive funding beyond 1985 levels.

VETERANS: Hospital and medical care programs would be cut by $1.9 billion over three years.

FEDERAL PAY: Frozen for one year, at a savings of $5.8 billion over three years.

Scurry County Folks...

By Linda Baylor

Mrs. Don (Janna) Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Tharp, has been living in Tregucigalpa, the captiol city of Honduras, for the past seven months with her husband and son Clint. Don is a major in the Army and is serving as an exchange officer with the Honduran army.

Prior to their transfer to Honduras, they had spent three years in Panama so she was prepared for the general life style of the country.

"They have a very laid back culture with no deadlines. If you get somewhere on time, ok. If not, ok. I'm a very punctual person and this is hard, but you have to realize where you are and that this is their country and that's the way things are," said Janna, now back in Scurry County for a visit.

The Honduran people are very receptive to Americans and make the Johnsons feel at home. "The atmosphere is very relaxed there," she said, adding that due to the life style, the natives are far less prone to heart attacks and stress related diseases than Americans are. "Our structured society and deadlines are not nearly so healthy," she laughed.

Due to their jobs, they are dealing with Americans and deadlines continually, so they don't get out of practice when they come home on R&R. When they return in mid-May, they will have 18 months left to serve there.

She works part time as editor for the U.S. Embassy's publication "Mission", a newsletter which is printed for the personnel.

JANNA JOHNSON and CLINT

Both Don and Janna are members of the Running Club and the Scuba Club which now has over 100 members, according to Janna. And they attend church were the services are conducted in English.

"Socially, we are very involved because of Don's job. There's a lot of entertaining. The Honduran people are very formal and will not have dinner until 9 or 10 p.m.," she said adding that the Americans generally fall into this habit also while they are stationed there.

The country is the second poorest one in the world. Items grown or produced locally, including labor, are cheap, but most things are imported.

"We're living on the economy. This is the first time that we have lived out of the country and not on army base. I feel just as safe in our house in town as I would on a base." The country is quiet and there is no war, although there is a lot of U.S. training activity.

Janna explained that the supermarkets were very expensive because most of the items were imported. She said she expected to pay approximately $32 for a large box of disposable diapers.

"But there are large open air markets every Saturday where everything that is sold is produced locally. For example, you can get 10 tomatoes for about $1 or 30 eggs for less than $2.

"Mahogany and pine are plentiful there and since labor is so inexpensive, you can have good handmade furniture cheaply. They do excellent work, but you have to be patient," she laughed. "Remember, they have no deadlines and there's always tomorrow."

Fabric purchased locally is expensive because it has to be imported, however, the local seamstress is very reasonable. "When I can get material mailed to me from the states, my clothes are not at all expensive," explained Janna.

She finds this type of life style with the army enjoyable. "I like the Army and when Don decides to retire it will be harder on me than on him. This is the type of life you either like or you don't.

"The military beomes a substitute for your family because you are always so far away from home, but you make life-time friends too," she said.

"This is the only way to see and experience different cultures, even in the United States," she continued, noting the difference in lifestyles in the northern and the southern parts of the U.S. for example.

"My personal philosophy is that you can be happy just about anywhere. Texas is home and it always will be," she concluded leaving the impression that she would, in fact, be happy anywhere.

Fruit drinks are perfect thirst quenchers. They're easy drinks to make when you use a combination of juices, sherbet, spices and ice.

GRAPEFRUIT CRUSH

1	quart Indian River grapefruit juice
1/8	teaspoon each ground cinnamon and ground cloves
1/3	cup sugar

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and beat until sugar is completely dissolved. Pour into a 5-cup freezer container and freeze until firm.

Chop frozen mixture coarsely in an ice crusher and then spoon into glasses and sip with a straw. Mixture can also be cut into chunks and processed coarsely in a food processor. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

The long and the short of it

Pre-empting with a long suit has one main disadvantage: You inform your opponents that you are probably short in other suits. A declarer has to remember that tables of probability of distribution do not apply when one defender is known to have a long suit.

After North had responded one no-trump to South's one-spade opening, East jumped to three diamonds — a pre-emptive bid in his methods. Although the strength of the South hand would not ordinarily justify his jumping to three hearts over one no-trump, he had sufficient values to show his second suit at the three level when the three-diamond bid took away bidding room. North was happy to raise to game, even though his diamond king was poorly placed.

The defense started with two diamond tricks. Next came a club, and declarer took the ace. A spade was played to the queen in dummy and a heart back to the king. The contract was safe, but a decision needed to be made for the overtrick. Normally when declarer is missing four cards including the queen, the best chance according to probability tables is to play for the drop. When East is known to have great length in the diamond suit, the right play changes. Declarer led the heart jack and let it ride. When East showed out, South ruffed a low spade, cashed the heart ace, dropping the queen, and ruffed a club back to his hand. The spades were now established to take care of dummy's remaining club losers.

'Plug' pulled on new film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Jack Nicholson was set to begin shooting of a film sequel to "Chinatown," in which he played the Los Angeles private eye Jake Gittes, when Paramount Pictures pulled the plug on the production.

The company had already spent $1.5 million in preproduction costs on the film, "Two Jakes," starring Nicholson, 48, and with a screenplay by Robert Towne, who won an Academy Award for his script for "Chinatown."

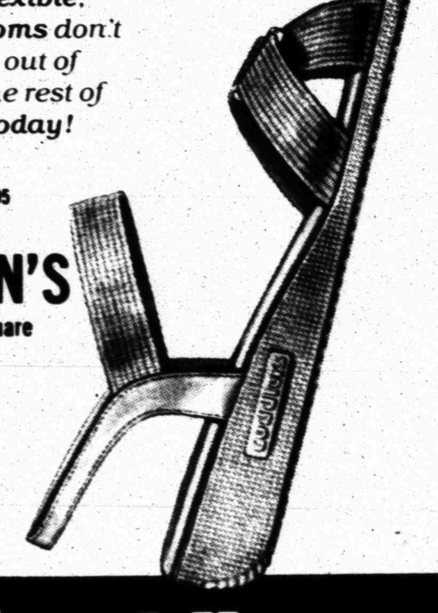

But Towne reportedly thought Robert Evans, who produced "Chinatown," was miscast as Nicholson's co-star and told the studio about his feeling.

A spokeswoman for Paramount confirmed the movie had been shelved and said "Paramount has no further comment at this time."

ENGAGEMENT — Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Sims of Corpus Christi and formerly of Snyder, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ethel Darlene of Dallas, to Vance Pernell Caudill of Mabank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Taulbert Caudill of Knox, Ind. The couple will exchange vows July 6 at the Annaville Baptist Church in Corpus Christi.

Old time Kent County get together scheduled for May 18 in Clairemont

The Old Time Kent County Get Together will be held Saturday, May 18 starting at 10 a.m. in Clairemont at the county barn and cafeteria.

There will be an arts and crafts show and sale in the show barn from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. All mediums are welcome and 15 percent of each sale will be donated to the reunion fund. There will be no judging, however an attendant will be on duty with the paintings at all times.

Folks attending the get together should bring their own food except coffee, tea and bread which will be furnished.

Aspermont Senior Citizens musical group will provide entertainment for the afternoon and a country western dance will be held Saturday night.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Victims of physical abuse may have bruises, scars and broken bones to show for it. But emotional abuse leaves no visible mark. The scars and bruises from this form of family violence lie deep within the mind.

Researchers believe that the incidence of emotional abuse or neglect may exceed the more than 800,000 cases of physical abuse reported each year. One step toward dealing with emotional abuse is to recognize it in the family.

Emotional deprivation or psychological neglect is one especially devastating form of emotional abuse. It occurs when parents withdraw and will not emotionally support their children. Cold and rejecting, such parents ignore their children when they are sad or in pain and do not share their joys either. The child must look elsewhere for someone to depend on.

Selfishness or indifference and trying circumstances such as divorce, mental illness or forced separation can all lead to emotional abuse. A University of Minnesota study found that children who were psychologically neglected were often more seriously damaged than physically abused children.

Verbal assaults such as name calling, harsh tones and sarcastic put-downs are other forms of emotional abuse. The psychological "beatings" young people suffer from the most are those given by the people they may trust and depend on. Verbal abuse crushes their self-esteem and makes them feel humiliated, worthless or unlovable.

Psychologists find that people tend to live up to other people's expectations of them. So after being called "stupid", "lazy", or "rotten" long enough, a person may indeed begin to behave that way. Verbal abuse cuts across all social and economic groups, but is more common in upper-income families.

Extreme pressure is a subtle form of emotional abuse that many child development experts say is becoming a modern-day epidemic. Some parents seem to be more concerned about a child's intellectual prowess than his or her emotional well-being. The pressure to grow up fast and achieve early in sports, academics and social interaction is stressed by middle class America.

The price we pay for this extreme pressure is an increase in stress-related illnesses and teenage suicides. If teens don't feel cared about, they can't care about anybody else - not even themselves. According to one leading psychologist, the final outcome is children who are emotional misfits.

The long-term problems that may result from emotional abuse are criminal behavior, alcoholism, drug abuse, running away, fighting or self-destructive sexual activity. Whatever their symptoms, it's crucial to reach and treat the victims of emotional abuse, for their sake and the sake of society.

Keeps recipe to himself

LaBELLE, Fla. (AP) — When Bill Gerstman mixes up a batch of "Monkey Dust" he's very careful no one is around to learn his secret — a secret he's vigorously guarded since he first put it together on a Pacific Island 40 years ago.

Even if you read the list of ingredients on the package, you'll not have the key to why this former mess sergeant's concoction is gaining national popularity without any advertising.

Actually, "Monkey Dust" is how he's dubbed his Everglades Seasoning, a mixture of spices and herbs customers use to enhance the flavor of anything from eggs, salads and soups to all kinds of meat, fish or vegetables.

"Only my wife, Lora Mae, my son-in-law and my attorney know all the ingredients," says the 68-year-old Gerstman, unlocking the small building on State Road 80 in this country town on the Caloosahatchee River 30 miles east of Fort Myers, where he makes his product.

"It's up here," he says, pointing to his head when asked where he guards the formula for Everglades Seasoning.

Born in Cullman, Ala., Gerstman learned to be a butcher in the family slaughterhouse. In 1941 when he joined what was then the U.S. Army Air Force, the military made use of his trade — first making him a butcher and finally a mess sergeant.

In 1944, he was transferred to the 714th Rescue Squadron stationed on the Pacific island of Saipan. There, army troops on the island got their supplies from the navy commissary. After providing for sailors' needs and officer mess halls, the only meat left for Gerstman's 300 GIs was lamb — the least palatable to the troops.

"When I got there, they were throwing the lamb into the ocean," recalls Gerstman. "They wouldn't eat it."

He decided to "doctor" the meat so his men would eat it. With ingenuity, he put together an assortment of condiments he gave the cooks to disguise the lamb taste.

The change was immediate.

"They didn't know what they were eating," he says with a smile, "and asked for more." Using his special seasoning, lamb was then used for hamburger, spaghetti sauce, roasts, meatloaf and stew.

Tiny hermit crab causes commotion

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP) — When Martin Z. Mollusk hits the beach, people here take notice in a big way.

A high school band, dancing girls, men on stilts, a kazoo band, and a big cake made of sand with 10 candles were on hand Thursday for the arrival of the 2-inch hermit crab, who is joining Punxsutawney Phil as an animal weather forecaster.

Because Martin saw his 3-centimeter-long shadow on the sand, beach weather will arrive sooner than usual this year.

"Martin saw his shadow; that means summer will come a week early to Ocean City," said Mark Soifer, a public relations man whose work includes the Miscellaneous Suntanning Tournament each August.

Every May, residents of this Methodist settlement just south of Atlantic City turn out to watch as Martin is placed on the beach. All hope he will see his shadow when he pokes his tiny head out of the shell.

"This was the 10th anniversary creep, so we had a lot more pomp and circumstance than usual," said Soifer.

Indians learn ABCs of successful lifestyle

By MAREN S. BINGHAM
The Mesa Tribune

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Dukepoo, a man of letters himself, was telling a young Indian audience about the C's, D's and F's of life. And he wasn't talking about grades.

Dukepoo was the keynote speaker at a recent American Indian Career Day attended by more than 200 Indian high school students at Mountain View High School.

He spoke of the three F's:feeding, fighting, fooling around.

"How we fulfill each need is what makes us, us. If we eat too much, it will affect our appearance. If we eat the wrong kinds of foods, it will affect how we feel.

"Fighting is good in a proper context. It can be good if you're fighting for yourself.

"Fooling around is not just reproduction, but loving in a real sense."

He spoke of the big D.

"Where are we as an Indian people? Who or what is our greatest enemy? The Indians' greatest enemy is the Indian. I am my own greatest enemy. You are your own greatest enemy.

"And that leads to a big D. The big D is depression, the No. 1 problem of the Indian people today. We have all the emotions. We feel envy, hate, contempt and jealousy.

"Combine that with self-pity, 'Poor me. I'm just an Indian. I have to go to school. I have no friends.' And, depending on how we deal with those emotions, we can end up with depression."

Depression and failure can be overcome by the four D's: desire, dedication, determination, discipline, he said.

"It's not enough just to have desire. You need a burning desire.

"The real Indian time in dedication is being there beforehand. If the chief says, 'Meet me at sunrise,' don't show up at noon. Be there before sunrise.

"Indians often say the key to Indian success is self-determination, which is true. I'd add this: self-determination comes through self-control. The selfcontrolled person is content. He practices the three C's: communication, caring,communion.

"We must learn to communicate both to the physical and spiritual self. Communication is an area we don't think much about. Just think how many problems are caused because people don't share with others what is in their heads and hearts.

Planning can make traveling easier

EAST AURORA, N.Y. (AP) — Car bingo, license games and sing-alongs are favorite travel pastimes with the preschool and older crowd, but what do you do on an extended journey to amuse the tinier tot?

"Certainly cumbersome blocks and large stuffed toys aren't the answer for a crowded car, bus or plane, nor are toys with pieces that can easily get lost or misplaced," says Kay Willis, who as a mother of 10 has taken dozens of family trips with several kids in tow.

Now, as a consultant for Fisher-Price Toys, Mrs. Willis is sharing her expertise in these matters to tell parents that traveling with kids doesn't have to be an ordeal.

"Traveling by car, train, bus or plane, can be extremely disorienting and sometimes disconcerting," she says. "But it is one of the best times for parents to take a fresh approach to play, trying to make it as versatile, stimulating and comforting as possible."

The choice of which toys to take along to entertain your baby is an important consideration that often gets overlooked, according to Mrs. Willis.

"When picking toys for a trip, choose multifunctional ones that perform in a variety of ways to keep your baby more actively involved and to cut down on what to carry," advises Mrs. Willis, adding that your mode of travel will determine what toys to bring.

"Toys that engage the baby by making noise or stimulating action are useful during long trips," she says. "However, when traveling in close confines with strangers, quiet toys that can't be thrown or dropped are best — such as ones that can be affixed by a suction cup to a pull-down tray, or hand puppets.

"It might be a good idea to bring along a few new toys and picture story books, or toys that your baby hasn't played with often. They'll be fresh and are likely to be interesting and stimulating."

She warns against buying travel souvenirs as playthings for babies. Souvenir items are not necessarily made with an infants special needs and could prove to be unsafe," she says.

Mrs. Willis said it is good to bring along some familiar objects and favorite toys to assist in the transition to new and unfamiliar places.

Prohibition was imposed across the United States Jan. 16, 1920.

Some people want to be frozen after death

NEW YORK (AP) — For true believers, cryonics is a deep-freeze deal for life after death, a bid for immortality on the installment plan, a longshot rage against the dying of the light.

Currently there are 11 of them — four human heads and seven whole bodies — lying frozen inside giant thermos bottles. Science knows no way to resurrect them.

But believers say that when today's impossible becomes possible — they hope within a century or two — they will be thawed, the heads will be attached to cloned bodies, and the people will be brought back to life.

This is the dream of about a hundred Americans — most in California, Michigan and Florida — who have also arranged to be frozen, or cryonically preserved, at the time of their death in hopes that someday medical technology will be able to resurrect them.

Cryonics presents many problems, not the least of which is "re-animating" people who have been dead for decades. Another hitch is that freezing can permanently alter cell structure, and that different types of cells require different freezing techniques to survive. So even if the body is thawed and the heart restarted, freezing may have caused gross damage.

But so strong is the faith of cryonicists that they talk of a future in which scientists will be able to clone organs, limbs and whole bodies, and create special repair cells that will move about inside frozen patients, fixing damaged tissues.

Cryonic preservation teams are on call at all times, prepared to rush to a person's bedside and await the doctor's pronouncement of clinical death.

"At the point of death, the person is placed on heart-lung resuscitation," says Dr. Paul E. Segall, director of biological research for Trans Time Inc., a cryonics company in Emeryville, Calif. "We inject them with anticoagulants, cool them down with ice and move them to a lab."

There, the blood is removed and replaced with a kind of antifreeze solution which is high in potassium, low in sodium and calcium, and mimics the inside of a cell, Segall says. The body is further cooled, and when it's close to zero degrees centigrade, the tissues are infiltrated with glycerol, which is thought to protect the cells from freezing damage.

The body is then immersed in an alcohol dry ice bath at minus 79 degrees centigrade to cool it further before the team moves it into a large vacuum bottle kept at minus 196 degrees centigrade by circulating liquid nitrogen.

And the long, if not endless, wait begins.

"Our motto is 'Never say die,'" says Arthur Quaife, president of Trans Time. He and other cryonicists cite recent technological advances that have allowed "dead" people to be revived after heart failure or resuscitated after apparently drowning or freezing to death.

"You're dead only when your current technology can no longer revive you," agreed Segall.

Mike Darwin, president of Alcor Life Extension Foundation, the other major cryonics company, in Fullerton, Calif., believes genetic engineering and cloning will be perfected in the next hundred years or so.

"We're going to have the ability to make trees and plants and other living things by fabricating them from scratch," he says.

However, cryobiologists — scientists who study living organisms at low temperatures — dismiss the claims of cryonicists as wishful thinking, foolishness or, as one put it, "a case of Ponce de Leon syndrome."

"They have us over a barrel here," says Dr. Harold Meryman, a cryobiologist and head of the Red Cross' Cell Tissue and Organ Preservation Lab. "No respectable scientist is going to be willing to say there's anything that cannot be done. But it's an irrelevancy today."

Freezing a whole body is a costly procedure — at least $80,000 — so Alcor also offers a bargain rate to those of infinite faith in future technology: for a mere $30,000 they'll freeze just your head.

"I could be flippant and say we'll make a new body, but that's what we hope to do," Darwin says. "Memory, personality, genetic code — they're all included in the patient's brain or head."

Neuropreservation, as it's called, only requires $60 worth of liquid nitrogen monthly, compared to $300 a month for a whole body — and "we can put 10 neuropatients in one container," he says.

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Kid Stuff-Look Back-Letters

Father's Day rolled around last June 17 and we wrote a column indicating we felt it was an observance created by merchants with items to sell.

To quote, "we can find no basis for the holiday other than somebody simply dreamed it up."

We added that being of a generation where one is both a father and a son cancels out the first in favor of the latter.

That is, on that particular day, the universal guilt we all feel for being a poor excuse of an offspring briefly overshadows the pride of having children.

This Sunday is Mother's Day. But anyone expecting to read some froggie-feeling editorial writer barbecue Mom's special day is going to have a long, long wait.

And it occurred to us here-in lies the basic difference between fathers and mothers.

For just a minute, roll the name "motherhood" around in your own private memory bank. Then across your mind's eye flash the word "fatherhood."

We suspect the little tingle and/or twinge it causes in your stomach isn't close to the same.

In fact, we had the disturbing vision of a pregnant man. Whoof! We know at least one-half of the species homo sapiens who is definitely not ready for that.

We even looked up the definition of the two words which describe parents. The explanation of "mother" includes words like "nourish," while "father" has words like "to originate."

Let's face it folks (and please remember we speak from the vantage point of being a father), when the two get into a horse race, you can't get a bet on old dad.

The truth of the matter is mothers just do a better job. They start to work earlier — even after the nine-months headstart — and they approach the task more honestly.

Dads might agree to 20 minutes worth of "Cootie" or to supervise the nightly argument called bath time, but the truth is he'd rather be somewhere else. Chopping weeds, mowing grass, fiddling with the carburetor, digging post holes, anywhere else.

Moms seem to enjoy it. Truthfully, genuinely and, we might add, amazingly.

We suspect it's not totally our fault, that nature has short-circuited some basic internal chemical reactions which would otherwise generate unselfish behavior.

These have then been directed toward more manly accomplishments like beard growing and the desire to catch footballs.

So we're not completely to blame that Father's Day draws mild applause while Mother's Day is a standing ovation.

And regarding our personal situation, we figure Dad knows we're only kidding. But no how, no way, no time would we talk to Mom that way.

John Dunnam

I don't want to infringe on the rights of parents, but kids should be allowed to name themselves when they become old enough to choose.

By the time a child is 10 or 11 he or she should be able to decide on something more suitable than whatever bit of impulsive whimsy parents are famous for. If the child can't decide by age 12, then the right-to-name could revert back to the parents. This would never happen.

Moon Unit Zappa comes to mind. You know Moon Unit. She is the daughter of Rock N' Roll innovator Frank Zappa. She had her own hit, Valley Girls, when she was about 14.

You may think Moon Unit is an extreme example. But if you have ever been at a party where people get tipsy enough to spill names as they appear on birth certificates, you realize it is not as extreme as it first seems.

My heart goes out to Moon Unit. She came into the world with a double whammy. First, her father is a spacey dude by anybody's book. I like Frank. He contributed a lot to my kind of music, but I have trouble visualizing him at a father-daughter PTA picnic.

Secondly, poor little Moon apparently never even got the benefit of a nickname. She grew up being called Moon Unit. And she seems normal. Children are amazing.

Some religions and cultures that we consider less enlightened than our own do provide for a name change at a certain point in a person's life. This coming of age ritual is of great importance and conducted with great dignity, sort of like our own Superbowl.

I find only two flaws with this custom: 1.) The young person has no say as to what the new name will be, so it is only like throwing away one poker hand and trusting to the luck of the draw all over again. 2.) The new name is invaribly as bad as the old one. Savages.

At this point I would like to pick out a few names and speculate as to what substance the parent was using at the issuance of the birth certificate. However, that could be hazardous to my health. Instead, let me issue a plea to parents-to-be; HAVE MERCY!

Some people, for professional reasons, do go through the legal rigamarole necessary to change their names. A man out in California comes to mind. He requested the name None Of The Above. He had a political career in mind and with a name such as that figured he would be a shoo-in for the office of his choice.

There are countries which have rules outlining what babies can be named. A country in Europe invoked these guidelines shortly after World War II when some of the less sophisticated citizenry displayed a propensity to label their off-spring with American sounding names that they associated with their own liberation.

Sounds as if the government was just jealous until you consider some of the selections: Marine, Yankee, and my favorite, B-52. I think B-52 is a fine name for a boy. It could replace Butch.

Besides nuts, like the one in California, there are two other groups who often change their names: Movie stars, who make a living off fantasy; and writers, who waste their lives trying to change reality.

Mark Twain began life as Samuel Clements. One woman author was having problems being published until she became George Eliot. In the entertainment field, Arnold Swartz had his own acceptance problem until he became Tony Curtis.

The list goes on and on.

I suppose it would be confusing for parents and teachers if children didn't have names. But why couldn't they be referred to as they are referred to anyway? Here is a teacher lining up the class for the march to lunch. "Stop That and Quit It get back in line. Cut It Out, leave Moon Unit alone. She can't help it."

Only a few hundred of the more than 3,000 known varieties of soft corals have been classified.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,

I would like to take a moment and give Barbara Perkins a great big thank you for her work with the Junior High Choir at the pop concert. She put many hours into this program and an endless supply of patience. I came away from the program amazed that one woman could bring out so much in our children. I feel the reason for this is her honest love for her work and a deep love for all her students.

Barbara, I know the eighth grade choir will surely miss you next year, but remember that you have given them pride in themselves and the knowledge that they can succeed at whatever they set to do. You are an asset to the Snyder Public School system and greatly appreciated by the students and parents.

Thanks again.

Schools for nannies available in America

CLEVELAND (AP) — Anne Hannan thinks being an English-style nanny for a suburban couple's child will be just her cup of tea.

Miss Hannan is one of five students in the first class at the English Nannies School, one of several such schools that have popped up stateside in recent years.

"The nanny program has always appealed to me," says the 27-year-old Miss Hannan. "A friend of mine was a nanny in England, and the stories she brought back were fascinating. It's just an opportunity that I can't pass up."

A nanny is traditionally a woman hired to live with a family to take over the day-to-day care, supervision and discipline of young children.

The English Nannies School was started by Sheilagh Roth, who along with her three sisters was cared for by a nanny during her childhood days in Sheffield, England. Two years ago, she visited friends in England who had a nanny for their young daughter.

Working couples in the United States can no longer rely on relatives or neighbors for child care, Mrs. Roth says. "The grandmother is liberated and the neighbors are all working."

Day care centers can't meet the needs of parents who do not have regular working hours, or who have to travel, she says.

Long a tradition in England, live-in nannies are still in great demand in that country and are increasingly sought after in the United States, Mrs. Roth says. She displays magazines from England with pages of ads for nanny employment agencies and from families seeking nannies.

There are 11 schools around the country registered with the American Council of Nanny Schools, headquartered at Delta College near Saginaw, Mich. Most offer a two-month training program, says Joy Shelton, director of home and family living at the college.

Dr. Judith A. Bunge, a former day care director and college instructor with a doctorate in child development, operates one such school in Columbus. Established as North American Nannies Inc., she charges $1,350 for a 12-week program.

Specialists care for stallion

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Sometimes the patient is just too tired. That's pretty easy to fix. But when a stallion is just not in the mood, it may take the talents of a Colorado team known as the "Masters and Johnson of the horse world."

Over the last 18 years, the group — affiliated with the Animal Reproduction Laboratory at Colorado State University — has gained a wide reputation for stimulating the sex life of stallions.

For thoroughbred owners the program is a godsend because their European racing association colleagues forbid such modern breeding practices as artificial insemination.

Close to the foothills of the Colorado Rockies, in the heart of a region better known for pack horses and rodeo mounts than for Triple Crown contestants, it seems an unlikely spot for such a specialty.

Ed Squires, associate professor and director of the Stallion Laboratory, says that each year, about 120 horses are brought to the reproduction lab, a collection of barns, stalls, paddocks and pastures rimmed by wooden fences and well within the Fort Collins city limits. Three of the nine horse specialists travel extensively to look at still more.

All come here, Squires says, "because they have sexual problems that somebody else can't figure out.

"Our opinion is that, in most of the horses, it's psychological, not physical. It's in the head, not the body."

Squires came to the horse reproduction program in 1976. Dr. B.W. Pickett, director of the Animal Reproduction Laboratory, and Dr. James Voss, head of the Department of Clinical Sciences at the university's veterinary teaching hospital, have been developing the program since 1967.

By the time Squires got here, the laughter had stopped. Not that it was very loud, but still, when Pickett and Voss first started, the psychology of horse sex was not what horse owners wanted to hear about.

A physical problem is easily pinpointed, easier to fix and easier for an owner to deal with, says Squires. But psychological problems "probably are a little more confusing."

Pickett got into his specialty by accident.

"We had a series of experiments that required us to collect semen from stallions over a period of a year," he recalls. "These stallions became sexually satiated...They just weren't interested in mares for any reason."

Pickett had to find out how to re-interest the stallions in breeding.

One of his findings was that a mare's color could make a difference in a stallion's interest.

Then came Deep Sun, the horse that established the program's reputation. A thoroughbred with a Denver owner, Deep Sun had the world record for 3½ furlongs. He also showed no libido during his second breeding season.

"Although a huge, powerful horse, he had no interest in mares in the second breeding season," Pickett recalls. "He acted like a gelding right straight through."

It took the experts just 14 days to figure out the problem. Loose in a pasture with four mares the year before, Deep Sun had been kicked so hard he was lame for several weeks.

Pickett and Squires are reproductive physiologists. Three of the nine who work with horse reproduction are veterinarians.

In diagnosing a horse's problems, the team talks with the humans who know the animal best. Sometimes rough handling by the people who are directing breeding operations can turn off a stallion.

"They associate breeding with that kind of handling," Squires says. "The key to turning that around is to find the right kind of stimulus. If the first doesn't work, you change the stimulus."

Pickett, Squires and Voss have written the standard reference on their subject, "Normal and Abnormal Sexual Behavior of the Equine Male."

Man wants to be frozen after death

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Bridge would like to go to the moon, become a musician, try his hand at writing and finish the 500 years of reading materials piled up in his house.

Since he doesn't think he'll be able to accomplish all this in a lifetime, he plans to be frozen when he dies.

Bridge, a 36-year-old children's librarian, believes he will be thawed and brought back to life in a century or two, giving him another go-round in the world.

"I guess I was always sort of primed for it, growing up as a kid," he said in a telephone interview from his home in Indianapolis. "As far back as I can remember, I was telling people I wanted to live to be 100 and change the world. Then I realized how difficult those goals were."

Bridge learned about cryonics around 1975 at a party, where he met Mike Darwin, president of Alcor Life Extension Foundation, based in Fullerton, Calif.

"There was this big argument going on and somehow it got turned around to cryonics," Bridge says. "Mike said, 'Well, I've actually frozen two people, and I know how it is.' And all our mouths dropped."

After that, Bridge became friendly with Darwin but was not yet convinced cryonics was for him.

Bridge made up his mind to be frozen after a three-year period in which three of his grandparents, his mother and an uncle died.

"When that happens, you start realizing just how fragile life is," he says.

Bridge has made financial arrangements with Alcor to have only his head frozen, although he has enough life insurance — over $100,000 — to freeze his entire body.

"If they're going to be able to bring me back to life, they're going to be able to make me a new body from cloning," he reasons. "Also, if I'm 85 when I die and I have cancer, it might be a lot easier to start over."

And, he said, "I'd like to be fixed up a little bit. I'd like to have straighter teeth. I'd like not to have hay fever. I'd like not to have to wear glasses."

But Bridge's main reason for gambling on cryonics is to have more time on earth to experience life.

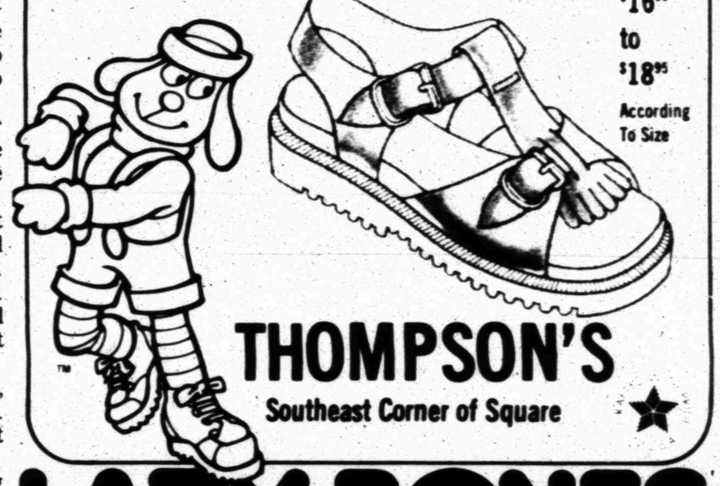

"As a librarian, I've got at least 500 years of reading piled up here in my house," he said. "I'm a very curious person. There are so many things I would like to learn about and I just don't have time.

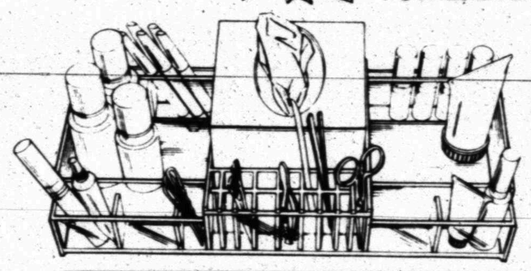

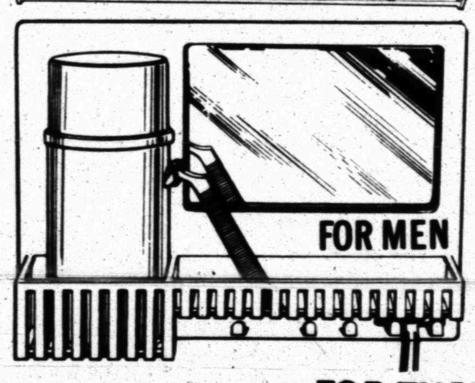

"I'd like to go to outer space, but right now, there's no chance. I wear glasses. I'm already past 36.

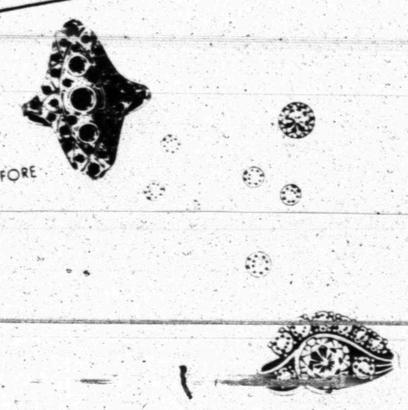

"I'd like to do something adventurous. I'd like to take up a musical career, or I'd like to be a writer, but I don't have time."

City is sixth in distress

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP) — "We can't make a living doing each other's laundry."

That aphorism, recited by Robert Densberger, the Chemung County executive, seems to fit Elmira, a one-time factory city on the Chemung River, six miles north of the Pennsylvania line.

Like cities across the nation's Rust Belt, Elmira is losing factories and the high-paying jobs they once provided.

Elmira was "the Queen City of the Southern Tier" a century ago when Mark Twain spent summers in a hilltop farmhouse near here.

(Densberger attributes his quotation about the laundry to Twain, although scholars of the author in Missouri and California have no record of it.)

Few Elmirans take in laundry for a living in 1985. But a big share are flipping hamburgers, operating cash registers and caring for patients in nursing homes.

Elmira is ranked No. 6 in the nation in economic distress. The unemployment rate in March was 9.3 percent, the highest in the state of New York.

"You're scratching for it here, believe me," says Hank Gladke, who runs an insurance agency and a dental supply business.

Nationally, through 1995, the U.S. Department of Labor says the most new jobs will be for building custodians, cashiers, secretaries, office clerks and sales clerks.

Elmira industry has fallen on hard times since Hank Gladke and the rest of Elmira Free Academy's Class of 1950 got their diplomas.

Remington Rand Corp. closed its office machine factory, once billed as the world's largest.

Elmira first gained, then lost, the nation's biggest food-processing plant: A&P's now-vacant facility in suburban Horseheads.

This summer American LaFrance is slated to be closed by its Ohio-based owner, Figgie International Inc. It was once the largest custom builder of fire engines in the United States.

Factories making milk and beer bottles, television picture tubes, engine castings and steel for bridges have either closed, moved or laid off many employees.

Since 1950, Elmira's population has fallen from nearly 50,000 to less than 35,000 as lifelong residents looked for work elsewhere.

Members of EFA's Class of '50 have dispersed to places like Topeka, Kan., Pasadena, Calif., and Castroville, Texas. Of the class's 272 members, only 110 remain in the Elmira area.

"We have not had a new dentist come to Elmira in three years," Gladke says.

Coincidentally, Chemung County had about the same number of people in 1980 as in 1960 and the same number of jobs — 33,600. But the wealth those jobs produced was not the same.

In 1960, nearly half the county's jobs were in manufacturing. The companies paid well and brought money into the area by selling to national and international markets.

By 1980, just 24 percent of the county's jobs were in manufacturing, slightly less than the national average.

Your Birthday

May 12, 1985

Three people will play important and helpful roles in your affairs in the year ahead. One will be a Capricorn, the other two will be Scorpios.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A close personal friend may have some problem he will want to discuss with you today. Make it easy for this person to be able to do so. Major changes are in store for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Success is likely today in situations where your ambitions are in harmony with your desires. Wanting something strongly will supply positive impetus.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take extra pains today to be even more considerate than usual to the special person in your life. Tenderness will nourish love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Changes initiated by someone other than yourself will work out to your ultimate benefit today where your career is concerned. Ride the tide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When dealing with others on a one-to-one basis today, charm and tact will be your two most powerful assets. Be cooperative if you want to gain cooperation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Strive to be profit-conscious today because something unique is developing that will make what you're presently involved in more lucrative than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you are a born leader, as well as a gracious diplomat. You'll be able to manage delicate situations in a manner that serves everyone's interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you might be the recipient of something that has small value to another, yet is of considerable worth to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a conversation with a close friend today, he may say something that will ignite a bright idea in your mind and embark you on a new project.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions pertaining to your financial well-being are extremely favorable today. If you have any trump cards in the hole, now is the time to play them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't bank your hopes on material things today. Instead, place your trust in something that really matters, such as true and loyal friends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A joint venture that you are presently involved in has greater scope and merit than either you or your associates may realize. Look for hidden benefits.

May 13, 1985

Inventive or original ideas that you get in the year ahead should at least be given an opportunity to prove themselves. The elements of success might be contained in one or more.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An acquaintance who is indebted to you might try to renege on his obligations today because he knows if he wiggles enough, you'll let him off the hook. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against temptations today to rely too heavily upon someone who has let you down in the past. Don't let history repeat itself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best today if you can temporarily shelve difficult and tedious tasks. However, if this can't be done, try to work in a methodical and orderly manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Disappointment is possible today if you treat something that has not yet happened as though it is already a foregone conclusion. Don't jump ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will upset domestic tranquility today if you spring unexpected changes on your spouse without first talking them over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Schedule your time sensibly today, especially if you have to run around on a number of errands. Don't be in such a rush that you drive carelessly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is one of those days when your extravagant whims could gain the upper hand. Hide your checkbook and credit cards if you're going out window shishing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You won't be able to relax and enjoy yourself today if you run off to play knowing you're neglecting your duties, particularly family obligations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unfortunately, your hunches may not be all that swift today. If you respond to them impulsively you might learn this to your dismay.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Novelties, unusual merchandise or gadgets could have a special appeal for you today. Be careful you don't buy a white elephant you'll never use.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let initial setbacks keep you from achieving an important objective today. When you run into a roadblock, look for a route to get around it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Optimism is an admirable quality. But today you could confuse it with wishful thinking and see things as you would like them to be and not as they are.

The left tooth of the male narwhal grows through his upper lip like a bowsprit, spiraling out as long as three meters — nearly 10 feet, according to National Geographic.

Some ostriches weigh up to 300 pounds. They can maintain a speed of 40 miles per hour for 15 to 20 minutes. The kick of an ostrich can deliver 500 pounds for every square inch of contact.

Victoria Principal speaks for one national foundation

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — On a bright and vibrant day, high up in her shadowed Benedict Canyon retreat, she is slow to rise. She suffers from a concussion, the unhappy result of skis hitting an icy patch of an otherwise unchallenging slope at Deer Valley, Utah.

Another chance meeting between the beautiful Victoria Principal and her age-old enemy, Vulnerability. Don't despair, fans. She'll win this one, too.

The young, lithe star of "Dallas," workout books and health commercials has faced archenemy Vulnerability almost all of her life.

She warns she may need help choosing her words because the skiing accident two weeks before has left her a trifle rattled. She is dressed in a white sweater and white slacks and confides that it is the first time in days she has dressed. She has come from bed for an interview because the subject is close to her heart.

"I realized that because I have a very healthy image — and it's an honest image because I care very much about health and exercise, the mind and body, the yin and the yang, all of that — I felt that my involvement with arthritis would have more impact.

"People would look at me and say, 'But you're so healthy, how can you worry about arthritis?'

"But quite honestly I do worry about it because the odds are stacked against me. They're certainly not in my favor, when you have a family history of arthritis on both sides."

Her mother suffers from lupus erythematosus, a rheumatic disease that affects the joints and muscles, the kidneys, skin, nervous system, lungs, heart, blood-forming organs and the immune system. They call it lupus for short.

Her father has osteoarthritis in the knees and now the spine, the result of a parachute landing in a tree which helped end his 33-year Air Force career.

These coincident encounters with Vulnerability occurred when Victoria was entering adolescence, and she talks about them now with some reluctance since her parents are very private people and shun the publicity that surrounds their daughter's life.

They are nevertheless the reason Victoria Principal is the national spokeswoman for the Arthritis Foundation.

Paavo Nurmi, the legendary "Flying Finn," not only set 22 world records during his career, he won nine Olympic Gold Medals and three silvers.

Chemist's work paved way for birth control research

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — These days 83-year-old Russell Marker passes the time quietly in the same green frame house in which he has lived for the last 40 years.

But the organic chemist, whose work revolutionized the production of steroid hormones, is still remembered by colleagues as the one who paved the way for the development of the birth control pill — a 20th century discovery that altered society.

"He was the father of the whole hormone steroid industry" from which the pill evolved, said Dr. Monroe Wall, chief scientist at Research Triangle Institute in Research Triangle Park, N.C. "My admiration for him has never ceased."

Marker's contribution to hormone research is well-known by scientists, and yet he remains relatively untouched by the enormity of his contribution.

He shuns such labels as "the grandfather of the pill" and admits to being surprised by any attention he may get.

After hitting on a chemical process and a source for the abundant production of the so called pregnancy hormone progesterone in the late 1930s and early 1940s, Marker dropped out of sight for 20 years and out of the science world for good.

Marker said he "had an idea that the sex hormones were going to be used much more than they thought" while he was conducting his research. But he never envisioned contraception as a result of his work.

The first hint of that came after a 1952 visit from Gregory Pincus, one of several researchers credited with the development of the pill.

"Pincus came to Mexico and he wanted to see whether there was a sufficient source of material. He didn't tell me what it was for," Marker recalled. "He said he may have use for a huge amount of progesterone. He wanted to know if it was available. I told him yes it could be made in Mexico, but I wasn't interested."

Marker, who never received a Ph.D. because of a curriculum dispute with his advisers, says the pill is something that is "needed," but beyond that he will make no pronouncement on the oral contraceptive.

"I was interested in the chemistry, not in the use of the thing," says Marker, now a Penn State professor emeritus of chemistry. "I'm not the grandfather, I just made the material available."

Born in a log cabin in Cave Town, Md., the son of a sharecropper, Marker left a lucrative position with the Rockefeller Institute in 1934 to take a research job, and a $2,600 pay cut, at Penn State University, where he pursued his newfound interest in steroid research.

In a campus laboratory, he proposed, contrary to existing scientific theory, a new structure for the side-chain of a steroid called sarsasapogenin, which is found in sarsaparilla root and yuccas.

In trying to find an abundant and cheap supply of progesterone to use experimentally and for medical purposes, such as treating menstrual disorders and miscarriages, Marker set out in search of other plants containing sarsasapogenin, since sarsaparilla root was available only in limited amounts.

In his search, Marker learned of research being done in Japan with a similar substance, called diosgenin. In Texas in 1941, Marker picked up an old botany book which described the growing regions of wild yams, similar to those in the Japanese experiments. And it said "they will weigh as much as 100 kilos. So I thought that would be an ideal thing to look at," Marker said.

In 1942, in Veracruz, Mexico, Marker collected a huge yam and took it back to State College. The yam proved Marker's theory correct. Later that year he returned to Mexico and collected 10 tons of the yams, from which he synthesized three kilos of the hormone.

Mothers' Nurturing Love Is Celebrated in Prayer

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: The following Mother's Day column has been requested for an annual rerun. I think it's worth repeating, and hope you agree:

DEAR ABBY: I am a long-time reader but have never written before. I am enclosing a part of your column that I have kept in my Bible for years. As you can see, it is yellowed and shredded, and half of it is missing. I don't know how many hundreds of times I have read it. It gave me such a feeling of peace and comfort. It was titled, "A Prayer for Mamma."

Will you please print it again? I would love to have another copy. Thank you.

DOROTHY L.

DEAR DOROTHY: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother passed away recently, so I called the minister and asked him for the wording of a prayer I could say for my mother. He said, "I'm too busy—and a lot of good prayer will do her now!" You see, Mamma went to church long ago, but my father never liked to go, so Mamma finally quit going. Abby, I can't believe that heaven is open only to church members.

I've called all the bookstores in town and they say there aren't any prayers for the dead in any of the prayer books they have. I've heard there are places where you send a few dollars and they pray for the dead, but I don't know their addresses. Abby, I'd be so grateful if you would print a short prayer I could say for my mother before I go to sleep. Any faith is acceptable. I can't let you send it to my home because my father looks over the mail first and I'm sure I'd never get it. Please don't turn down my odd request. It means the world to me. Thank you, and God bless you, Abby. Sign me ...

A PRAYER FOR MAMMA

DEAR PRAYER: I found this prayer in my Union Prayer Book. It is the one Jews recite on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) to honor the memory of a deceased mother:

In Memory of a Mother

"I remember thee in this solemn hour, my dear mother. I remember the days when thou didst dwell on earth, and thy tender love watched over me like a guardian angel. Thou has gone from me, but the bond which unites our souls can never be severed; thine image lives within my heart. May the merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou hast ever shown me; may he lift up the light of his countenance upon thee, and grant thee eternal peace! Amen."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it's Mother's Day again. With every passing year the holidays seem to come closer together.

Abby, I wish you'd find space in your column to remind young married women to remember their mothers-in-law—even if it's only a card. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law on Mother's Day, but I never did.

This year I sent her flowers—to the cemetery, bitterly regretting that I had never sent flowers while she was able to enjoy them.

I should have been more attentive to her, written her more about her grandchildren whom she loved so much. And most of all, I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not commit the same sins of omission as I. Abby, please print this. Next year might be too late for some.

Great-aunts said to teach author

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning author Alex Haley said he learned a thing or two about storytelling from his great-aunts, especially one who enjoyed a dip of snuff while spinning yarns.

"When she was in good form (she) could drop a lightning bug at six yards," said Haley, 64, who was honored Thursday by the state Legislature with a resolution to convert his family home in rural Henning into a museum.

Whales lessons given

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hands waving, his forehead damp with sweat, Ozzie Tollefson fights to hold the attention of hundreds of small children, waving puppets and talking in the rapid-fire parlance of the vaudevillian.

And he succeeds. The former teacher speaks of whalebone and Moby Dick and even the International Whaling Commission and manages to hold hundreds of grade school children spellbound as he teaches them about whales.

It's part of a traveling education show that the Lengby, Minn., native put together after he tired of the classroom. It's a full-time business now, with Tollefson doing about 350 school shows a year. The whale presentation is one of his most popular shows.

"You can't give them a moment to get bored," he said. "I try to strike the proper balance of Jacques Cousteau and Monty Python."

When Tollefson finished a recent presentation in Minneapolis, some members of his young audience at Cooper Elementary School were excited enough about the killing of whales to want to take action.

"There shouldn't be that many whales killed," said second-grader Shawn Knapp. "More kids should be helping ... We could make signs." Added Allison Swanson, "We could ride our bikes and tell people not to pollute."

Tollefson said his goal is to teach children "love and respect for living things.

"That's where we have to begin," he said. "If people aren't brought up to understand how fragile life is, and they don't respect it when they're young, it's hard to teach it when they're old."

The whale presentation started with a silhouetted Tollefson threatening a whale with a harpoon and spearing garbage instead. In the next hour, Tollefson used puppets, giant whale jawbones, tape recordings, student participation and equal doses of humor and grim reality to teach his environmental lesson.

Heads turned to look at the back of the auditorium as Tollefson said that a whale's tail would "knock out the back wall." A sperm whale eating 4,000 pounds of "creepy crawly slimy little things" called krill is "like you going to McDonald's and eating 16,000 quarter-pound hamburgers," he said, and the whale has a heart "as big as a Volkswagen Rabbit car."

"Do people still kill whales?" Tollefson asked. "No," several children said, and Tollefson answered, "Yes, they do, kids. As we're sitting here, one whale will be killed in this hour. That's 24 a day and 9,000 a year."

Before the lesson was over, the children in the audience had learned that the lobes of a whale's tail are called flukes and that it is water vapor, not water, that rises from the blowhole of a whale.

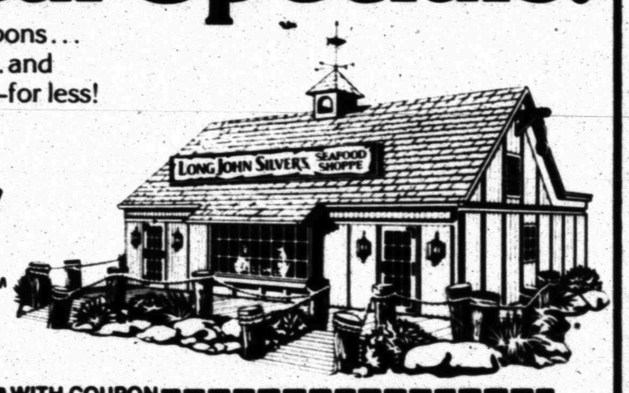

They laughed when a second-grader was dwarfed by the curved jawbone of a 35-foot humpback whale and when several students pretended to be oldtime whalers with a wood-handled harpoon. They waved their hands and shouted out the Tollefson finished by admonishing students, "We must stop polluting the ocean and air.

Abrasion results from rubbing eye

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A month ago I was watching TV and it felt like I had an eyelash in my eye. So I started to rub my eye, and it immediately started to hurt. One side of my eyeball looked like a balloon and my vision got fuzzy. The doctor said that I had a cut (like paper cut) in my cornea. I had to put medicine on it and keep it bandaged for about three days. My eye really did hurt. I had never heard of that happening to anyone. Will it happen again? I panic when I get something in my eye now. The doctor said that the mascara didn't help.

DEAR READER — Any foreign body in the eye can cause a laceration of the cornea. The condition is surprisingly common. Treatment consists of putting a patch over the eye to rest the cornea and allow it to heal.

You — and everyone else — can experience corneal abrasions or lacerations any time foreign matter lands on the front of the eyeball. Obviously, prevention is the best approach.

If something enters your eye, don't vigorously rub the eye. Wash it out with warm water or, with the help of a mirror, try gently to remove the object.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 54-year-old woman. I have not had a period in 12 years. I was told to not take estrogen because of my blood pressure and cystic breast. I've also been told to not use milk products because I have had kidneystones. My concern is osteoporosis, since I can't use estrogen or calcium. Would calcium pills cause me to form kidneystones, as using dairy products would? How do people know if they have osteoporosis?

DEAR READER — Osteoporosis affects all women after menopause. A metabolic imbalance results in a rate of calcium loss that exceeds the body's ability to incorporate new calcium into bones.

Mild osteoporosis is difficult to diagnose. However, as more and more calcium is lost from bones, they become less dense. Therefore, routine bone X-ray examinations will usually show the "washed-out" appearance characteristic of calcium loss.

As you point out, you are (excuse the pun) caught between a rock and a hard place. Depending on the kind of kidneystones you have, you may not be able to take supplementary calcium in your diet. Given the difficulties of your case, I am certain your doctor will want to refer you to an M.D. who is a specialist in metabolic diseases. Such helpful experts are available in most university hospitals.

DEAR DR. GOTT — At 62, I have only three fillings and have retained all my teeth except four wisdom teeth I had extracted in 1944 while in the service. However, during the past few years, my gums have shrunk and I have developed pockets and spaces between my teeth. I recently read an article that recommended a paste be made of bicarbonate of soda and hydrogen peroxide and worked between the teeth with a rubber massager usually found on the end of a toothbrush. The dentist maintains that this program will largely control deterioration of the gums and gum diseases. However, in the same article, not every dentist agreed, and I also read sometime that frequent use of hydrogen peroxide can be detrimental and will soften the gums. What are the facts?

DEAR READER — The treatment you describe, using peroxide and baking soda, has been useful for many patients. You will have to try it to see if it helps you. I am not aware that any gum damage will result from this simple and inexpensive method. Dentists, like doctors, often delay in accepting new treatments, particularly if the treatments appear too straightforward to "make any sense." If peroxide-soda benefits you, your dentist might be encouraged to recommend the technique to other patients. You would be providing a service, at no risk to yourself, to other people with gum disease. And you would be giving your dentist some valuable continuing medical education.

We Americans have become healthfully concerned about pure food and drink. It's about time.

In a nation characterized by concerns, this particular devotion is valid and appropriate. We simply no longer wish to ingest unnecessary chemicals that could harm us. Decent food — uncontaminated by the drug industry — and potable water are becoming a right, on a par with public education and voting enfranchisement.

However, our efforts aren't always successful; in particular, we aren't entirely consistent. Take, for example, diet cola and ethyl alcohol.

The other day, I noticed on a can of diet soda the presence of a remarkable printed warning that said, in effect, that this beverage may be harmful to health because it contains saccharine. Years age, some studies using rodents reportedly showed bladder cancer in animals that were fed this artificial sweetener. If you examine the data in the reports, you will be struck by the amount of saccharine the poor mice were force-fed. The quantities were enormous and far exceeded the level any person could consume, even if he were to drink several six-packs of diet soda a day. However, soft-drink companies are required by law to inform the public of this unlikely health hazard.

So far so good...but what happened to alcoholic beverages? I don't see any disclaimers on liquor bottles or beer cans. In spite of the perfectly valid observations that juvenile drinking is a health menace and that alcoholism itself is a national epidemic, we continue to fail in our efforts to educate ourselves.

We have "happy hours." When it's time to "relax," we reach for a beer or two, not a good book or a chess set. The wine industry, both here and abroad, is a multibillion-dollar industry, complete with its own quasi-religious rituals involving tasters and connoisseurs. In slick magazine advertisements, the beautiful people show us that to be in style and successful, we have to drink the right Scotch.

About the only useful information on booze bottles describes the contents: V.S.O.P., aged 12 years, estate bottled, premium brew.

Once upon a time, cigarettes were considered to be adjutants to good health. Fortunately, the incidence of smoking, at least in the adult population, is declining annually. I believe this to be an honest reflection of the thinking public's awareness of tobacco's effects. After years of trying, like all the king's men, to piece smokers back together again (from emphysema and lung cancer), doctors began to educate the public about cigarettes. Seemingly, these efforts are beginning to pay dividends.

Perhaps the moment is ripe to pay homage to intoxicants. If I'm going to be warned about the risks of consuming an occasional diet soda, I sure as heck have the right to hear some sort of warning from brewers, distillers and wine merchants.

If disclaimers help, I'm all for them. I suggest the following information be printed on every alcoholic-beverage container: "Warning: This beverage contains alcohol, an addictive and dangerous substance that can result in physical disability, brain deterioration and death." Now, that tells it as it is.

The next logical step would require wine and liquor manufacturers to list ingredients. That way, we could discover not only the consequences of alcohol consumption, but also the various goodies that are added to the brew. Liquor lobby, watch out!

TV actor changes scripts

By DANA TODD
The Mesa Tribune

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Why would the star of a hit television series give up fame, fortune and a promising career to preach in auditoriums and tiny churches across America?

Demond Wilson, best known for his role as Lamont Sanford in "Sanford and Son," has found a different and permanent kind of glory: presenting the gospel to a few, rather than sitcom to millions.

"I love preaching the gospel more than anything else I've ever done," Wilson said in a recent interview. "I'm so happy now. I feel honored to be chosen. Even when you've got everything — clothes, jewelry, nice house — you don't feel happy. I was like Jonah, running from the Lord.

"God took me out of the world. He refined me and took my mind out of acting. I didn't have the desire to be in it anymore."

The change to preaching was hard, though.

"On your own you can't make the transition," said Wilson, who was recently in the valley to preach at the World of Pentacost Church in Tempe. "I questioned it, too. God makes you a new person. He says, 'Just be patient — I'll show you how.'"

Born 1946 in Valdosta, Ga., Grady Demond Wilson grew up a conservative Catholic. He spent summers with his grandmother, Ada Mitchell, and attended a Pentacostal church with her for the first time. He was shocked.

"That was my first experience with jumping and shouting about the Lord, of which I'm a part of now, of which I choreograph, of which I promote!" Wilson said, then slipping easily into a new character: "Hey, ya'lls not jumpin' and shoutin' enough over there!"

Wilson said he felt called to the ministry at an early age. At the same time, he said he felt the call of the theater. Wilson's first role was a cherub in "Green Pastures." He studied drama and the arts at Hunter College in New York but dropped out after two years to make some money.

He was drafted, served in Vietnam and returned to tour with "Boys in the Band," a play with a homosexual theme. "That was the one thing my folks weren't too happy about," said Wilson.
