FDIC seizes First City

Depositors see little effect, retain fund access

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency Friday closed 20 national banks owned by First City Bancorporation of Texas, including First City, Texas — Midland.

All of the banks were placed under the control of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., according to FDIC reports, with bridge banks established to handle the affairs of the banks until they can be placed into private ownership.

"It will still be business as usual Monday," said Chuck Cowell, executive vice president and senior operating officer of First City — Midland. "No merchant should hesitate to accept any First City check this weekend, because come Monday morning we will all be here doing our job."

Cowell also said that all deposits of First City — Midland are 100 percent insured regardless of the size, saying that it was an indication of how healthy the bank was.

Depositors at all 20 of the banks will have access to their accounts by check or automated-teller machine over the weekend, according to FDIC officials. Loan customers should continue to make payments according to the terms and conditions of the loan agreements, they said.

The FDIC seizure at closing time Friday came as a shock to employees of First City — Midland, because the local bank had remained financially healthy through the hardest of times and was on the verge of being purchased by a group of local investors.

Bill Franklin, president of First City — Midland and leader of the local investor group bidding for the bank, said he was "shocked and disgusted" at the action of FDIC, because the local group was very close to finaliz-

Growth spurts

WASHINGTON — Babies grow in spurts, sometimes up to a half-inch in 24 hours, and will often turn fretful and irritable just before it happens, according to a study published Friday in the journal Science. Researchers report that measurements of 31 infants during their first 21 months of life show that babies may have no growth for a number of days and then suddenly sprout up to a half-inch in length within a short period./6C

On blood pressure

WASHINGTON — Saying great strides have been made in lowering deaths and disability from high blood pressure over the last 20 years, federal health officials called Friday for a vigorous new effort to prevent Americans from developing the condition in the first place. In two sweeping reports, the officials set forth a new way to classify high blood pressure; challenged the food industry to substantially lower the amount of salt and calories in processed foods, and recommended more public education programs.

Grateful Dead arise

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — The Grateful Dead on Friday announced plans to play nine shows in December, their first since they canceled more than 20 concerts when lead guitarist and singer Jerry Garcia fell ill. The Dead in August scrapped shows in Oregon and California and their East Coast fall tour, saying Garcia, 50, was suffering from exhaustion and other health problems. It was announced last month that Garcia would return to the stage tonight in Oakland, Calif., with his Jerry Garcia Band. According to a new recording Friday on the Grateful Dead telephone hotline, the Dead will play Dec. 2 and 3 in Denver, Dec. 5 and 6 near Tempe, Ariz., and five shows in mid-December in Oakland.

'92 race turns white-knuckle, 'going to wire'

■ President Bush's 11th-hour burst of momentum injects element of suspense.

By Dave Montgomery and Ron Hutcheson
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In a fitting end to an election season marked by surprise twists and unexpected comebacks, the 1992 presidential campaign is hurtling toward a white-knuckle finish in a frenetic blur of last-minute rallies, hard-hitting ads and contradictory polls.

Spurred into overdrive by signs that the race is tightening, the three leading candidates are planning to spend the weekend in an all-out scramble for late support. President Bush, employing old-style tactics of an earlier era, planned a "whistle-stop" train trip through Wisconsin today while Democrat Bill Clinton scheduled a grueling day starting in Georgia and ending in Milwaukee.

Even Ross Perot, who has generally shunned the campaign trail, planned a weekend coast-to-coast roadshow. The Texas billionaire was attending rallies in

Released notes contradict Bush on Iran-Contra

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new indictment of former Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger on Friday contradicted President Bush's claim he never knew that arms were being traded for hostages in the Iran-Contra affair or that two Cabinet members were opposed to the deal.

Bush claimed there was nothing new in the indictment, the timing of which he called "peculiar." Aides noted that it was revealed four days before the presidential election.

Democrat Bill Clinton said the indictment showed Bush "has not been telling the truth" about what he knew of the Iran-Contra affair.

Men at work: More make family priority

By Rick Gladstone
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — When Brandon Tartikoff quit as head of Paramount Pictures Corp. to spend time with his injured daughter, he did something that once would have been inconceivable but now reflects an important fact of American life.

The decision by one of Hollywood's most creative executives to put family ahead of career is a high-profile example of powerful forces in the workplace that are reshaping how men view their professional vs. private lives.

"I think there's a better understanding that men have these responsibilities," said Dana Friedman, co-president of the Families and Work Institute, a New York-based research group that evaluates how companies handle family issues. "It used to be that work was everything."

'The adrenalin-driven, career-driven focused guy is no longer our hero.'

— Felice Schwartz, consulting firm president

Tartikoff, 42, abruptly announced Thursday his resignation as Paramount chairman after only 15 months on the job. He said it was impossible to spend the time required to run a movie studio while his 9-year-old daughter was recuperating from a serious car-crash injury.

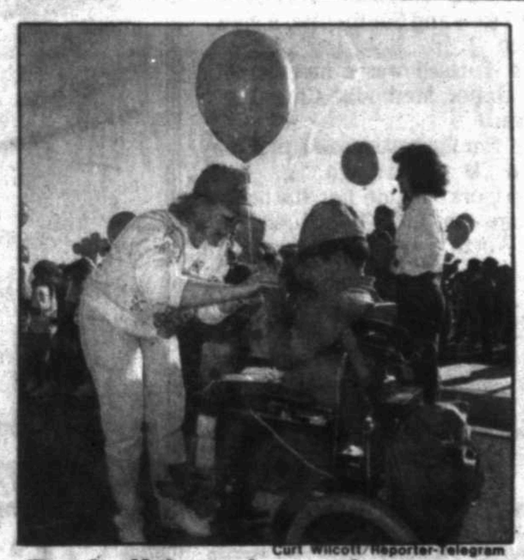

"Personally, I have learned the hard way that it is one grand illusion if you start believing you can be totally dedicated to the demands of your job without shortchanging your pressing responsibilities to your family," he said in a statement.

While colleagues in the entertainment industry may have been stunned, it's not the first time a high-level male executive or top official had resigned in recent times because family-related demands.

A notable example is Peter Lynch, former head of the Fidelity Magellan Fund, the nation's largest and one of the most successful stock mutual funds. After 13 years of 80-hour weeks, Lynch resigned in 1990 at age 46 to spend more time with his family. His successor Morris Smith burned out after only two years at age 34 and moved to Israel with his family.

Earlier this year, Lee Brown, the New York City police commissioner,

Catholic Church is about to rehabilitate Galileo

By Alan Cowell
N.Y. Times News Service

ROME — More than 350 years after the Roman Catholic Church condemned Galileo for teaching that the Earth moved around the Sun, Pope John Paul II is poised to rectify one of the Inquisition's most infamous wrongs.

With a formal statement at the Pontifical Academy of Sciences today, Vatican officials said the pope will formally close a 13-year investigation into the church's condemnation of Galileo in 1633.

The condemnation, which forced the astronomer and physicist to recant his discoveries, led to Galileo's house arrest for eight years before his death in 1642 at the age of 77.

The dispute between the church and Galileo has long stood as one of history's great emblems of conflict between reason and dogma, science and faith. The Vatican's formal acknowledgement of an error, moreover, is a rarity in an institution built over centuries on the belief that the church is the final arbiter of matters of faith.

At the time of his condemnation, Galileo had won fame and the patronage of leading Italian powers like the Medicis and Barberinis for discoveries he had made with the astronomical telescope, which he had built.

But when his observations led him to proof of the Copernican theory of the solar system, in which the Sun and not the Earth is the center, and which the church regarded as heresy, Galileo was summoned to Rome by the Inquisition.

By the end of his trial, Galileo was forced to recant his own scientific findings as "abjured, cursed and detested," a renunciation that caused him great personal anguish but which saved him from being burned at the stake.

Since then, the church has taken various steps to reverse its opposition to Galileo's conclusions.

In 1757, Galileo's "Dialogue Concerning the Two Chief World Systems" was removed from the Index, a former list of publications banned by the church. When the latest investigation, conducted by a panel of scientists, theologians and historians, made a preliminary report in 1984, it said that Galileo had been wrongfully condemned. More recently, Pope John Paul II himself has said that the scientist was "imprudently opposed."

"We today know that Galileo was right in adopting the Copernican astronomical theory," Cardinal Paul Poupard, the head of the current investigation, said in an interview published this week.

This theory had been presented in a book published in 1543 by the Polish scientist Nicolaus Copernicus in opposition to the prevailing theory, advanced by the second-century astronomer Ptolemy, that the Sun and the rest of the cosmos orbited the Earth.

But the contest between the two models was purely on theoretic and theological grounds until Galileo made the first observations of the four largest moons of Jupiter, exploding the Ptolemaic notion that all heavenly bodies must orbit the Earth.

In 1616, the Copernican view was declared heretical because it refuted a strict biblical teaching of the Creation that "God fixed the Earth upon its foundation, not to be moved forever."

But Galileo obtained the permission of Pope Urban VIII, a Barberini and a friend, to continue research into both the Ptolemaic and the Copernican views of the world, provided that his findings drew no definitive conclusions and acknowledged divine omnipotence.

New book sheds light on politics, religion turning point

By Peter Steinfels
N.Y. Times News Service

What better moment than the eve of a presidential election for a fresh revelation about a critical moment 32 years ago in the religious and political life of the United States?

On Aug. 18, 1960, according to a new book, about 25 leaders of American Protestantism met privately in Montreux, Switzerland, and discussed how they could block the election of John F. Kennedy. The host was the Rev. Billy Graham; the most prominent guest was the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

The meeting has never been divulged. It is not mentioned in any of the major Graham biographies, and it has never been publicly discussed by any of the participants. It was unearthed only recently by a historian writing a biography of the 94-year old Peale.

The events that followed it were painfully public, however, and probably constituted a turning point in the relationship between religion and presidential elections.

Prof. Carol V. George, who teaches at Hobart and William Smith Colleges in Geneva, N.Y., came upon the meeting while examining the private papers of Peale.

She also tells, for the first time, about the meeting in Switzerland, quoting this letter from Peale's wife, Ruth Stafford Peale, to a friend in Connecticutt on Aug. 19, 1960:"Norman had a conference yesterday at Montreux, Switzerland, with Billy Graham and about 25 church leaders from the United States. They were unanimous in feeling that the Protestants in America must be aroused in some way, or the solid block Catholic voting, plus money, will take this election."

20-year-old murder suspect eludes police

Staff report

ODESSA — A 20-year-old murder suspect eluded police Friday and remains at-large following an intense county-wide manhunt, Ector County Sheriff's officials said.

James Robert Garcia is wanted for the murder of Noe Perez, whose skeletal remains were identified earlier Friday. Garcia and another man suspected in the case, Christopher Ramirez, face capital murder charges. Ramirez is serving time in the Texas Department of Corrections on an aggravated assault charge, Ector County jail officials said.

Perez was 19 when he was last seen in March 1990. His remains were found Oct. 14 near Antigua Street in south Ector County, six miles south of Odessa. He had been shot once in the head, according to Sparks Veasey, Ector County Medical Examiner.

"Through the course of the original missing persons report, filed about two years ago, information obtained in the investigation connected these two men," said Lt. Carl Rogers, of the Ector County Sheriff's Department Major Crimes Division. "But nothing could be done because there had to be some evidence of a crime."

Perez's remains were positively identified through dental records.

Mattress fire causes smoke damage

Staff report

Firefighters responded to a mattress fire Friday morning that caused moderate smoke damage to a central Midland house.

No one was at the 1805 Culver Drive home about 10:45 a.m. when fire units were summoned to the address by a neighbor who saw smoke pouring from the windows, fire officials said.

The fire — on a mattress in a front bedroom — was doused in less than 15 minutes. The room sustained minor fire damage.

Look for sunny skies, 80s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the mid-80s and west wind at 15 to 25 mph. Tonight should be pleasant with a low in the upper 40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Sunday should be mostly sunny with a high in the mid-70s.

After an overnight low of 49, Friday's high reached 81 compared to the record high for that date of 88 set in 1987. The record low for that date is 26 set in 1991.

STATE

Rain fell over parts of North and South Texas Friday, while mostly sunny skies prevailed over West Texas.

Afternoon showers and thunderstorms were scattered over the coastal plains and the southeast. Skies were partly to mostly cloudy as unseasonably warm and moist air remained over South Texas.

Low clouds, fog and patches of light rain dominated the weather across North Texas in the cool air mass north of a weak stationary front. The front extended from Texarkana to Waco to Abilene and into the Texas Panhandle.

By mid-afternoon, skies had become mostly sunny except for patches of low clouds.

Thunderstorms also were indicated by radar to the south and east of Lufkin.

The West Texas forecast calls for generally fair nights and sunny to mostly sunny days through Sunday with some windy conditions over northern sections today. Lows should be in the 40s and 50s, with highs in the 70s and 80s.

NATION

The season's first major storm lingered in the West on Friday, dumping snow, rain and sleet high in the Sierra Nevada and northern Plains.

Clouds shrouded much of the East and record cold gripped Alaska. Skies were sunny and warm over Texas and Florida.

More than 2 feet of snow fell on high peaks at Lake Tahoe in western Nevada.

Snow also covered high ranges of the Sierra in California and the Cascade Mountains of Oregon. Up to 6 inches blanketed the Salt River range in western Wyoming and 2 inches fell in Williston, N.D.

A snow advisory was in effect above 5,000 feet in parts of Idaho, and a winter storm watch was posted for Utah's mountains.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

BANK: Depositors to have access to accounts

(From 1A)

ing its bid for the bank and returning it to local ownership.

"The Midland bank was and is in very good shape, and has been financially sound for the past 90 years," Cowell said. According to the Comptroller of Currency the bank had $314 million in assets as of Sept. 30, 1992.

"As far as we know, the Midland bank is still for sale, only now we will be dealing with the FDIC." He said it would be sometime before the final disposition of the bank would be known, but he was hopeful it would be by the end of the year. The FDIC said Friday it hopes to have all the First City banks released to private ownership by the end of January 1993.

The Midland bank and 12 others, representing one-third of the assets of First City Bancorp of Texas, were put up for sale in August of this year as part of a recapitalization plan designed to help it remain independent and bring its capitalization levels into compliance with regulatory guidelines. Last week, First City announced it had found buyers for seven of the banks, including Midland.

Cowell said the banks probably were closed when it became apparent that losses by First City Bancorp would exceed revenues realized by the sale of the banks. It was hoped the sale of the 13 banks would bring in $210 million to recapitalize the remaining banks.

When the company put the banks up for sale in August, Franklin told the Reporter-Telegram: "I have some feelings about First City being split up, but I feel it's the best resolution for all of us. The bank has been operating under the same charter since 1902, and whoever buys it will do all that's necessary to keep it operating as it always has."

First City — Midland, then known as Midland National Bank, was one of the first companies to join the holding company in 1972.

First City was the largest bank still owned by Texans after hundreds of failures in the late 1980s. It received nearly $1 billion in government assistance in 1988 and boomed for two years before being hurt by more bad loans and sagging real estate values.

One of the largest troubled bank companies in the nation, First City had been racing against a Dec. 19 federal deadline requiring regulators to begin seizing ailing banks, and was scrambling to raise $400 million in new capital.

In August, First City reported its eighth consecutive quarterly loss, $18.5 million for the second quarter.

Last month, the holding company said it had cleared one hurdle toward solvency when 87 percent of its shareholders agreed to let it postpone a principal payment. The shareholders agreed to receive their payments Dec. 15 or upon consummation of the recapitalization plan.

The plan proposes full payment of the notes, which have a principal value of $21.8 million.

First City operates 20 banks in 85 locations. The other 19 banks closed are located at: Houston, Austin, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Aransas Pass, Lake Jackson, Alice, San Angelo, Orange, Lufkin, Tyler, Corpus Christi, Beaumont, Bryan, Madisonville, Kountze, Graham and Sour Lake.

Houston was the largest of the banks with assest of $2.933 billion. Midland was the eighth-largest with assets of $332 billion. Depositors at all the banks, except Houston, Austin, Dallas and San Antonio, are fully protected. Depositors at those banks will have their insured deposits covered in full, but will receive only 80 cents on the dollar for uninsured balances, according to Andrew C. Hove, Jr. acting chairman FDIC.

About 5,000 acounts at those four banks — the most seriously under-capitalized — that had balances above the $100,000 limit were not transferred to the FDIC bridge banks and will be handled by FDIC claims agents.

The FDIC reported that banks with weekend hours except for those four will be open for business as usual Saturday and that all banks would be open Monday.

Hove said a bridge bank allows a failed bank to continue to operate until a buyer can be found.

CAMPAIGN: Candidates scramble for late support

(From 1A)

Tampa, Fla., and Kansas City, Mo., today before heading to California Sunday.

All three candidates also were carpet-bombing prospective voters with a television ad blitz expected to intensify before Tuesday's election. In addition to regular commercials, Perot has purchased time for two half-hour broadcasts and a one-hour appeal on election eve. Clinton will take to the airwaves with half-hour spots on all three networks Monday night.

And Bush, who once dismissed MTV as a forum for "teeny-boppers," was scheduled to appear on the cable network in a taped 15-minute interview this evening.

Political handicappers over the weekend were still giving the edge to Clinton. But Bush's 11th-hour burst of momentum raised the possibility of an Election Day stunner and injected a final element of suspense into a presidential campaign that has persistently defied conventional wisdom.

"This is the most volatile election year in our lifetime," said White House political director Ron Kaufman. "Every single battleground state is in play now."

The president, all but written off just a week ago, is looking for a stunning comeback that would put him in the history books alongside Democrat Harry Truman, who pulled out a come-from-behind victory in 1948 against Thomas E. Dewey. Bouyed by enthusiastic crowds and scattered polls showing him gaining on the frontrunner, Bush stepped up his attacks on Clinton and his running mate, Sen. Al Gore of Tennessee.

Clinton, the self-described "Comeback Kid" who defied the pundits in winning his party's nomination, fought to maintain his lead by continuing to stress his economic themes.

Perot, the wild card in one of the wildest campaigns in political history, faced the most difficult task: convincing voters that he can become the nation's first third-party candidate to win the White House.

The roller-coaster finish left many voters queasier than ever about a ballot choice dominated by a known incumbent, an unproven advocate of change and an unconventional political outsider.

Libertarian candidate Andre Marrou is also on the ballot in all 50 states. And voters in some parts of the country will face even more ballot choices, ranging from John Hagelin of the Natural Law Party to Howard Phillips of the Taxpayer's Party.

"The more I listen to them the more confused I get," said Jim Hickner, 52, an unemployed Detroit construction worker.

Milan Stojanovich, 35, showed up at a Clinton rally in New Jersey late last week hoping that a first-hand look at the candidate would help decide his vote. "I'm making a last-minute decision," said Stojanovich, who is torn between Clinton and Perot. "It's going down to the wire."

Hickner, Sojanovich and millions of other undecided voters loomed as the main target for the candidates as they narrowed their focus to a handful of key battleground states.

With Clinton thought to have a lock on the two most populous states, New York and California, his rivals looked for a winning combination in smaller, toss-up states that could supply the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

The outlook in Texas, the third most populous state with 32 electoral votes and home for both Bush and Perot, remained uncertain. All three candidates plan to visit the state the day before the election.

Bush will travel to Houston — with a stopover in Dallas — to wait out the election results in the city where the former Texas oilman started his political career more than two decades ago.

Perot, a Dallas computer magnate who also has a high political profile throughout the state, plans a rally Monday in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Clinton, the Arkansas governor who has emphasized his neighboring state credentials, is expected to attend a late-night, election-eve rally in McAllen, a traditional end to Democratic presidential campaigns.

Strategists say Bush, who is leading in only a handful of states, has to carry Texas, while Clinton can put together enough electoral votes elsewhere to win the presidency without it.

Consequently, the main battleground in the closing days has shifted to other toss-up states where Bush and Clinton both see a chance for victory. The prime targets include Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Missouri and Georgia.

Twenty months ago, when Bush has an approval rating in the polls of more than 90 percent after the allied victory in the Persian Gulf War, the idea that he would be a struggling underdog in the closing days of the election season seemed inconceivable.

But little has gone according to plan in this campaign. Bush plunged from record high voter approval to near-record lows. Perot got in, got out, and got back in. Clinton brushed with political destruction, was dismissed as another Democratic loser, and then ended up the candidate to beat.

The ups and downs of the candidates were played out against a backdrop of voter anger, a stubborn and painful recession, and the emergence of the TV talk show as a vital campaign forum.

Even before Perot's debut, other unorthodox candidates tried to reap political benefits from the season of protest. Bush faced challenges within his own party from a surprisingly strong Pat Buchanan, a conservative television commentator, and David Duke of Louisiana, a former Ku Klux Klan leader.

Former Gov. Jerry Brown of California, enlivening the Democratic field, introduced the 1-800 telephone number to presidential politics in campaigning as the ultimate outsider.

But more than anything, the 1992 campaign has been a referendum on George Bush and his stewardship of the nation's economy. Whether he wins or loses, the current race marks his last hurrah in a two-decade political career, which started as Harris County Republican chairman in the 1960s and went on to include two terms as Ronald Reagan's vice president.

As polls began suggesting all-but-inevitable defeat, there were times when Bush seemed dispirited, as though he knew he might lose. But the president has shown renewed vigor and optimism since the race tightened, crowing about a comeback while attacking his Democratic adversaries as "bozos."

Clinton, meanwhile, is fighting to maintain a lead that seemed well beyond his grasp in February, when his campaign nearly collapsed because of allegations of womanizing and disclosures about his draft history. Although Clinton declared himself the "Comeback Kid" for his second-place finish in the New Hampshire primary, some political experts dismissed him as mortally wounded when the primary campaign moved to the South.

NOTES: New indictment contradicts Bush's claim

(From 1A)

"This is the smoking gun," said Clinton's running mate, Sen. Al Gore.

But Bush said, "If there is a smoking gun out there, I'd have been hauled up by one of those Senate committees" or the Iran-Contra prosecutors long before. Prosecutors, however, discovered the notes only last year, long after the congressional inquiries ended.

"I have told the truth," Bush insisted on CNN's "Larry King Live."

The indictment was based on Weinberger's handwritten notes of a Jan. 7, 1986, meeting in which President Reagan, then-Vice President Bush, Cabinet members and presidential aides discussed a straight swap of arms for hostages with Iran.

The indictment, obtained by the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra scandal, maintained that Bush knew from that meeting that Weinberger and former Secretary of State George Shultz opposed the Iranian arms sales.

Weinberger's note said:

"Met with president, Shultz, Poindexter, Bill Casey, Ed Meese, in Oval Office. President decided to go with Israeli-Iranian offer to release our 5 hostages in return for sale of 4000 TOWs to Iran by Israel — George Shultz + I opposed — Bill Casey, Ed Meese + VP favored — as did Poindexter."

TOWs are antitank missiles.

Bush has said he knew the White House was sending arms to Iran and that some hostages were being freed from Lebanon.

But he said, on ABC-TV's Nightline on June 9, 1988, it "never became clear to me" that there was an arms-for-hostages swap until he was briefed in December 1986 — a month after the operation became public — by the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

He reiterated that Friday.

In a television interview in Racine, Wis., hours after the indictment was announced, Bush said, "There's nothing contradictory in there of what I've said ... I know nothing contradicts what I've said under oath. So it's a little flurry here."

Casey was CIA director, Meese the attorney general and John Poindexter the national security adviser at the time.

Bush told The Washington Post on Aug. 6, 1987: "If I'd have sat there and heard George Shultz and Cap express it (opposition) strongly, maybe I would have had a stronger view. But when you don't know something, it's hard to react. ... We were not in the loop."

And in his own 1987 autobiography, "Looking Forward," Bush wrote: "As it turned out, George Shultz and Cap Weinberger had serious doubts, too. If I had known that and asked the president to call a meeting of the NSC, he might have seen the project in a different light, as a gamble doomed to fail." The NSC is the National Security Council.

SHIFT: More men change

abruptly quit the nation's largest police force to care for his ill wife.

The desire by men to become more active fathers and husbands extends to all levels of the work force, not just the highly-paid. A broad range of research suggests men are actively seeking ways to keep work from consuming all their time.

A 1991 internal study by Du Pont, for example, showed 56 percent of the chemical company's male employees favor flexible work schedules, up from 37 percent five years earlier. The study also showed 40 percent of Du Pont men have thought about quitting to take more flexible jobs.

At American Telephone & Telegraph Co., men now account for one of every 50 employees taking family leave, vs. one in 400 a decade ago. At the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, nearly half the employees using child care benefits are men.

To a large extent, the explosive growth of two-income families and single-parent housholds has helped redefine the role of the man as the financial provider and the woman as the primary caregiver at home. As a result, many men don't feel that a career is a sex symbol or sacred male domain.

"The adrenalin-driven, career-driven focused guy is no longer our hero," said Felice Schwartz, the president of Catalyst, a New York consulting firm on workplace equality issues.

"The ideal is a man with a more balanced life, and he's not a wimp or a sissy if he gets involved with his kids," she said. "He's really a good father."

Others say men want to spend more time with their families simply because the pressure of working has become so intense in recent years. Part of the reason is the economic slowdown, marked by layoffs and cutbacks that have increased stress and vastly enlarged the workload requirements of many employees, male and female.

"When you combine downsizing with having both parents working, the amount of time parents get to spend with their children is so reduced," said Michael Rosow, executive vice president of Work In America Institute Inc., a nonprofit research group in Eastchester. "Some people feel they're lucky to spend a half hour a night with their kids."

Rev. Dr. Fenhagen speaks at annual Episcopal diocese convention in city

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

"Three areas are points of entry into the culture where gospel values can be put to work on behalf of the common good," the Rev. Dr. James C. Fenhagen told the 34th annual Diocesan Convention for the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas Friday.

In his sermon, delivered at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Fenhagen spoke about trust, saying "There can be no democracy without trust."

He also addressed "the need to restore our sense of connectedness with one another and the earth God has given us, and the need to deepen our roots as a people."

About 300 delegates, church wardens, clergy and visitors from throughout the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas are attending the annual convention at the Midland Hilton this weekend.

Conducting the business meetings will be the Rt. Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, Bishop of Northwest Texas. Other speakers, workshop leaders and guests include Barbara Braver, the presiding bishop's press officer and liaison between the Diocese of Northwest Texas and the Episcopal Church Center, also from New York; the Rev. C. Scott May, long-time rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Marietta, Ga.; Midlander Kathy Wurster of Holy Trinity; and Dawson Orr, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Pampa.

In addition, the Rev. Allen Whitman, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, the host church for the convention, will preach at the eucharistic service at 8 a.m. Sunday at Holy Trinity Presbyterian Church, Louisiana Avenue at Andrews Highway.

The sermons are being given at Holy Trinity Presbyterian Church because the church has more seating space than is available at the host church.

Theme for the convention is "The Stewardship of Creation," which will emphasize and introduce the diocesan program on the environment.

Fenhagen, who recently retired as president and dean of General Theological Seminary, New York, will speak again at 9 a.m. today. His talk will center on developing a theology of creation.

"I will call for us to recover our sense of stewardship for the earth," Fenhagen said Friday.

"We affirm that the destruction of the earth's ecological system must be seen as the result of human sin, and, therefore, at the heart of Jesus' work of redemption," Fenhagen said. "We can't talk about redemption without talking about our stewardship of the earth.

"The entire created order is interconnected. We affirm that God created humankind and gave us dominion over his creation. Dominion means to nurture not to ravage.

"And we affirm that creation is not an object to be manipulated, but a gift to be treasured."

Fenhagen said he would end his talk by giving practical examples of the actions man needs to take.

"All of us will have to work at changing our lifestyles," said Fenhagen. "As we begin to respond to the challenges of the environment, it will mean rethinking the way we live. It will affect all of us."

Government workers did unauthorized work for VIPs, report says

By Kim I. Mills
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Federal workers routinely provided unauthorized motorcade and security services to VIPs visiting New York, and even drove officials to sporting events and Republican fund-raisers, says an investigative report released Friday.

The federal report documented 129 instances between June 1988 and December 1991 when General Services Administration employees provided transportation, communication, escort services and protection to dignitaries ranging from top Bush administration officials to a Vatican representative.

The GSA manages the federal government's real estate, and the workers involved guard federal buildings.

"Taxpayer money was being wasted on these trips, and GSA is primarily responsible for letting it go on as long as it did," said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who released the investigation by the GSA's inspector general. The practices have been stopped, Glenn said.

Glenn has also asked GSA Administrator Richard G. Austin to calculate the precise cost of such unauthorized practices.

GSA spokeswoman Katherine Gaddy said no laws were broken.

"It's a perception problem more than anything," she said. However, she added, the agency has stopped providing drivers but still supplies VIPs with cars and communications equipment, such as phones and beepers.

"And if they feel they need security, they provide their own security," she said.

The inspector general found that the GSA had no established policy regarding such work. But the agency's general counsel advised investigators that the GSA's Federal Protective Services Division "can only provide transportation and communication services to government officials while in the conduct of official government business. ... FPSD has no authority to provide security and protection services to government officials while off GSA-controlled real property."

The practice of using GSA employees as VIP chauffeurs and bodyguards came to light in June 1991 when The New York Times reported that then-White House chief of staff John Sununu availed himself of their services during trips to New York.

Government inspectors found that Sununu had used GSA security details eight to 10 times, including a trip to the Meadowlands for a Giants football game and another to a stamp auction at Christie's. At the latter event, a GSA employee waited in the car for seven hours "monitoring the telephone," according to the report.

At the time, President Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, defended Sununu's use of government cars and drivers on trips to New York as "totally appropriate," and said that many Cabinet and administration officials used that service.

Indeed they did, according to the report.

Those who used GSA details included: then-Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher; Education Secretary Lamar Alexander; Energy Secretary James Watkins; Housing Secretary Jack Kemp; Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan; Labor Secretary Lynn Martin; President Bush; Vice President Dan Quayle, and first lady Barbara Bush.

GSA employees also told investigators that they had transported several administration officials, including Kemp and Sununu, to GOP fund-raisers.

Rep. Gary Ackerman, D-N.Y., had a uniformed GSA guard for almost two months at his district office, which was not on agency-controlled property, the report found. Ackerman's life had been threatened around that time.

In releasing the report, Glenn noted that some $50,000 had been reimbursed to GSA by agencies and individuals who "took advantage of GSA's one-stop advance and logistical team."

U.S. immigration deports record number of aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record 35,390 aliens were deported in the last 12 months, nearly half of them because of criminal and drug convictions, Immigration and Naturalization Service officials said Friday.

Another 1,068,882 aliens were removed from the United States in the fiscal 1991-92 year that ended Sept. 30 after they waived their rights to deportation hearings, INS officials said.

Criminal deportations after formal proceedings totaled 16,841, an increase of nearly 30 percent over the previous year and double the level two years ago, the agency said.

The increase reflects a growing effort, particularly in California, Texas and Florida, over the past four years to hold deportation hearings for convicted felons while they are still in prison, said Duke Austin, an INS spokesman.

More than two-thirds of the aliens deported because of criminal and drug convictions were returned to Mexico.

San Diego accounted for the most criminal deportations, 4,673, followed by Phoenix with 2,745, Los Angeles with 1,592, San Francisco with 1,149 and New Orleans with 1,096.

Astronauts fire shuttle jets; trip winds down

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts, nearing the end of their 1½-week mission, fired the space shuttle jets Friday and photographed the resulting glow around the tail of the ship.

Canadian astronaut Steven MacLean beamed down videotaped images of the bright flashes against a starry night sky.

Researchers believe the glow is the result of residual jet fuel and the impact of atomic oxygen on shuttle surfaces. The tests should determine whether the glow hampers optical measurements taken from the spaceship.

Before conducting the experiment, the astronauts lowered Columbia's orbit from 180 miles to 131 miles, where there is more atomic oxygen.

Shuttles normally don't fly this low — this is the lowest circular orbit ever flown by a shuttle — because of the increased atmospheric drag. But with landing scheduled for Sunday at Kennedy Space Center, there is more than enough time for Columbia to stay put and avoid slipping through the atmosphere, said flight director Bob Castle.

In a related test, the astronauts used the shuttle crane to lift an aluminum panel from the cargo bay and hang it over the side of the orbiter. The glow around the 8-by-4-foot panel was photographed for analysis after the flight.

The crew of five men and one woman again tested a robotic vision system by moving the dotted panel on the end of the arm in triangle and diamond patterns.

The final test of the vision system, set for today, involves tracking the panel after it is released from Columbia and drifts away.

Big cities try to put out Halloween infernos

Associated Press

Call it "Mischief Night" or "Devil's Night." It's a fiery Halloween Eve tradition in Detroit and Camden, N.J., and thousands of police, firefighters and residents were determined to put a damper on it Friday night.

Camden had its worst arson spree last Oct. 30. Instead of tossing eggs or soaping windows, as they used to do, Mischief Night pranksters set 133 fires.

Using 600 volunteers, along with extra police and firefighters, the impoverished city of 87,000 hopes to thwart vandals from torching buildings. The goal this year: Reduce the number of fires by 25 percent.

"Our plan is complete. We're definitely ready," Mayor Aaron A. Thompson said.

The program is modeled on one in Detroit, where 36,000 volunteers watched over vacant buildings on Devil's Night last year and the number of arson fires fell 44 percent.

Detroit is repeating the program this year. City workers and tens of thousands of volunteers banded together to patrol neighborhoods and keep watch on the most vulnerable target — vacant buildings.

"With all these people on the street, if there are fires, they're spotted a lot quicker before they develop into some kind of holocaust," said Senior Batallion Chief Jerry Smith.

Devil's Night in Detroit took on its unreal aspect about a decade ago. Last year, however, rain and tens of thousand of volunteers helped cut the number of blazes to 62, down from a peak of 297 fires in 1984.

Detroit officials said they expected up to 30,000 volunteers to take to the streets Friday night.

FBI investigating U.S. Treasurer in influence-peddling probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The woman whose name appears on all U.S. currency is under investigation in an alleged influence-peddling scheme involving a Georgia telecommunications company she once helped run.

U.S. Treasurer Catalina Vasquez Villalpando — who has been in and out of the Reagan and Bush administrations three times in 12 years — was placed on administrative leave Thursday at her request.

The firm, Communications International Inc., enjoyed phenomenal growth because of federal contracts over the last decade. With White House approval, Villalpando retained her stock in the company when she became treasurer.

Largely ceremonial, the treasurer's job pays $112,300.

On Wednesday, the FBI conducted five searches: three residences, including Villalpando's; a commercial storage locker, and a suite of company offices in Norcross, Ga.

Villalpando, 52, had been a partner and a senior vice president at Communications International before President Bush nominated her for the treasurer's post in 1989.

In 1980, she directed Hispanic voter recruitment for Bush's unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

The treasurer's job is one of the oldest in Washington, established in 1777. The treasurer's office supervises the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the Savings Bond Division and the Mint.

The FBI is probing whether Villalpando, as treasurer, accepted travel, lodging and other benefits from Communications International, said sources familiar with the probe who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The search warrants allege fraud, racketeering, bribery of public officials, conspiracy to defraud the government and making false statements, said Frank Scafidi, a spokesman in the Washington field office of the FBI.

It is a misdemeanor for a senior federal official to accept compensation or benefits from a former employer.

One FBI search was the home of Ernest Olivas, who has been working for the Bush-Quayle re-election campaign. Olivas took leave from one of Communications International's two Washington offices to become director of Hispanic outreach for the Bush-Quayle campaign.

Another Communications International executive, George Armstrong, who runs the company's operations in Los Angeles, was associate personnel director in the Reagan White House. The FBI searches did not involve the West Coast operation.

FBI agents mentioned possible influence peddling when they searched a suite of offices at Communications International, the firm's founder, former Atlanta Falcons' running back Joe Profit, told Atlanta television station WSB-TV.

The firm had $143,000 in sales in 1982. But by 1988, it was working on a $16 million Navy contract to lay more than 100 miles of fiber optic cable in Jacksonville, Fla., said the Atlanta Business Chronicle.

Profit has had financial problems over the years. In 1984, a federal judge ordered him to repay more than $639,000, plus interest, lent to him by the Small Business Administration for a restaurant in Atlanta that Profit had sold. The case was settled in 1988.

Military copter crash in Utah kills 12 airmen

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) — An Air Force helicopter crashed into the Great Salt Lake during rough weather, killing 12 people, authorities said Friday. The only other person aboard was rescued from the water.

A storm, with snow at high elevations, hampered rescue efforts but all 12 bodies were recovered, said Hill Air Force Base spokesman Dave Kendziora.

The MH-60G Pave Hawk helicopter was on a training mission when it went down Thursday night in northern Utah's inland sea, about 100 yards off the northern tip of Antelope Island and about 15 miles west of Hill Air Force Base.

Kendziora said crews in search helicopters spotted debris and bodies in deeper water northwest of the crash, apparently pushed there by high wind. They were recovered by crews in boats.

One survivor was pulled from the water and was in serious condition at the University of Utah Health Sciences Center with cuts on his right leg and over his left eye.

The helicopter was assigned to the 1st Special Operations Wing headquartered at Hurlburt Field at Eglin Air Force Base outside Pensacola, Fla., said George Grimes, spokesman for the U.S. Special Operations Command at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla.

It may have been stationed with squadrons elsewhere in Florida, he said.

The only squadron that flies the Pave Hawk is the 55th Special Operations Squadron at Eglin.

The helicopter was on a joint Army-Air Force exercise, and those aboard could have included Army personnel, Grimes said.

Rebel, government clashes bring fears of war

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Widespread fighting reportedly broke out Friday between government forces and former UNITA rebels, claiming more than a dozen lives and threatening a fragile peace accord.

In New York, the U.N. Security Council demanded an end to the hostilities and warned that any government imposed by force would not be recognized. Western diplomats said economic sanctions would be imposed if the UNITA rebels imposed a government.

In a binding resolution adopted unanimously, the 15-member council said any party that failed to abide by the peace accords "will be rejected by the international community."

The reports from news media and witnesses heightened fears of a return to civil war between the ruling MPLA party and the former rebels, who appeared to have ended their 16-year battle in peace accords last year.

The United States, which together with South Africa had supported the rebels during the civil war, expressed concern Friday over the reports of UNITA military moves

"If true, this would represent a major breach of the peace accords, which we would condemn," State Department spokesman Joseph Snyder said in Washington.

The heaviest fighting was reported in the central city of Huambo, where civilian and military casualties were reported. The fighting there ended Friday evening and both sides opened talks, mediated by United Nations monitors, Gen. Higino Carneiro told reporters in Luanda.

Government and UNITA officials also met in Luanda, the capital, for talks aimed at reaching a political solution to the crisis in the southern African nation.

The official Radio Nacional de Angola reported that UNITA — the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola — had seized Huambo's main hospital, radio station and police headquarters. Fierce fighting also was reported around the television station and governor's residence.

Witnesses said at least 15 people died Friday morning in an hour-long firefight near Luanda's international airport.

A U.N. helicopter was hit by ground fire as it tried to land in Huambo, according to a Portuguese official on an international commission monitoring the ceasefire. He spoke on condition of anonymity, and said he had no information on casualties.

"We already have war," Rui Mingas, Angola's ambassador to Portugal, told Lisbon's TSF radio. "It's not declared but, in practice, that's what it is."

The civil war that broke out on the eve of Angola's independence from Portugal in November 1975 claimed at least 350,000 lives.

Tension has been mounting since UNITA chief Jonas Savimbi complained of fraud in Angola's first multiparty elections, which gave the formerly Marxist MPLA — Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola — a parliamentary majority.

The Sept. 29-30 elections resulted from the accords last year. The United Nations declared them generally free and fair, and U.S. officials have criticized Savimbi for rejecting the election results.

The Security Council resolution urged rebel and government leaders to begin talking immediately to pave the way for a second round of presidential elections.

U.N. observer Gen. Edward Unimna confirmed government claims Wednesday that UNITA troops were moving in the highlands around Huambo. A U.N.-mediated truce halted clashes in Huambo Thursday, but fighting flared again at 4 a.m., news reports said.

Adalberto da Costa Junior, a UNITA spokesman in Lisbon, said his group had no plans to resume war and called the clashes at Luanda airport an "uncontrolled exchange of fire."

The capital was reported quiet late Friday, but security was tight.

Muslims accuse Croat president of cutting ammunition to troops

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A top official in Bosnia's Muslim-led government accused Croatia's president Friday of cutting ammunition supplies to defenders of a government stronghold that has fallen to Serb rebels.

The accusation, denied by Croatian President Franjo Tudjman, was further evidence of the crumbling Muslim-Croat front against the Serbs.

The Serb advance sent residents fleeing the town of Jajce, 60 miles northwest of Sarajevo, and relief officials braced to prepare for the refugees.

Ejup Ganic, a Bosnian presidency member, said Tudjman cut the supplies to the beleaguered defenders of Jajce, forcing them to retreat when they ran out of ammunition.

He accused Tudjman of stopping munitions shipments after Bosnia had already paid 2½ times the commercial price for them and promised to give half the munitions to the Croats.

"He is the one who is in control. He cut the supply of ammunition," Ganic said.

Tudjman, speaking on Croatian radio, dismissed the accusations as "astonishing" and accused "extreme" Muslims of being responsible for Muslim-Croat feuding.

Jajce fell Thursday, according to Croatian reports. Bosnia's army command said its troops recaptured a sector in a counterattack Friday.

The Belgrade-based Tanjug news agency reported that about 20,000 refugees from Jajce were stopped by Muslim-Croat fighting near Turbe. The town is a few miles south of Travnik, where Muslim and Croat fighters clashed last week.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees sent 10 trucks with 50 tons of food and blankets to Vitez, southwest of Jajce, in anticipation of the refugees' arrival, spokesman Ron Redmond said in Geneva. The UNHCR was to send 14 more trucks Saturday.

Iraq helps track missing scuds, U.N. says

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq has provided U.N. weapons experts with information that could help them locate missing Scuds and determine whether the military can still make the missiles, a U.N. official said Friday.

The United Nations has set up a special commission that is charged with scrapping Iraq's weapons of mass destruction under the terms of the Gulf War cease-fire.

Western intelligence reports have indicated Iraq is hiding up to 200 Scuds, the type of missile Iraq fired at Saudi Arabia and Israel during the war.

Nikita Smidovich of Russia, the leader of a 50-member inspection team that completed a two-week visit to Iraq on Friday, said the information his experts collected will help determine the number of missing Scuds.

"It would, and many other things as well on the understanding of the Iraqi missile program," he said upon arriving in Bahrain, the regional headquarters of the special U.N. commission.

"And in fact, we hope the result of that inspection will help the chairman make a decision on whether the Iraqis have complied with Resolution 687."

That is the U.N. Security Council resolution requiring elimination of Iraq's weapons. Commission chairman Rolf Ekeus is empowered to recommend to the council lifting international sanctions against Iraq if it has complied with the resolution.

Smidovich said Ekeus will visit Baghdad soon. Among his tasks, Smidovich said, will be to press Iraq to cooperate on a plan to monitor Iraqi industry to ensure it does not revive production of weapons of mass destruction.

Smidovich said his team — including nuclear, chemical and biological weapons experts — inspected more than 50 sites and had intensive talks with Iraqi authorities.

Quake hits in Morocco, injures 45

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — An earthquake registering 5.4 on the Richter scale shook southeastern Morocco on Friday, injuring 45 people, toppling walls and cutting power to some communities, the government news agency MAP reported.

It was the second temblor to hit the area in a week. On Oct. 23, a woman and her daughter were killed when a quake measuring 5.2 on the Richter scale struck.

Friday's earthquake lasted three seconds and opened cracks in the ground in some places. Its epicenter was between the towns of Rissani and Erfoud, 250 miles southeast of Casablanca.

Police charge salesman with Brit bombings

LONDON (AP) — A salesman was charged Friday with bombings and possessing plastic explosives, in a case that newspapers had linked to IRA bombings in London.

Vincent James Wood, 29, appeared in London's heavily guarded Bow Street Magistrate's Court and was ordered held in custody until Thursday.

His lawyer complained during the brief hearing about newspaper reports linking Wood's arrest with 14 Irish Republican Army bombings in London since Oct. 7. One man has been killed.

Lawyer Ben Emmerson said Wood denied the charges, calling them "no more than unproven and disputed allegations against a man of good character."

Police announced Thursday they had found about 70 pounds of Semtex plastic explosives and other bomb-making equipment after a tip from a shopkeeper who was asked to store a box by a friend.

Four people missing after tidal wave

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A tidal wave hit a coastal province in southern Vietnam, sweeping away hundreds of houses and leaving four people missing, the official Vietnam News Agency reported Friday.

Recent storms have caused considerable damage throughout Vietnam.

Several thousand people in two districts of Soc Trang province, 186 miles south of Ho Chi Minh City, were left homeless by the tidal wave, which struck early Monday morning, the agency said in a dispatch received Friday in Bangkok.

Initial reports also indicated that thousands of acres of rice, orchards, and shrimp and salt ponds suffered serious damage, the news agency said. It said irrigation systems in the area were destroyed.

■ Midland High's Michael Gilbert becomes Midland High's first single game 100-yard rusher of the season in the Bulldogs' 35-7 loss to San Angelo.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

The San Angelo Bobcats, owning the state's No. 1 ranked offense, got their usual yardage (474 yards) and their usual 35 points in a 35-7 win over Midland High Friday night, but the Bulldogs showed some bite to go with their bark.

San Angelo, heading to the state playoffs for the third consecutive year, went about business in climbing to 6-3 record overall and 4-1 in District 4-5A play while moving into position to claim a share of the 4-5A title against Odessa Permian at home next week.

Bobcat quarterback Ben Montgomery threw for 233 yards and three touchdowns and rushed for 86 yards and another TD to lead the awesome San Angelo attack as usual. In fact, thing went pretty much as usual for the Orange and Blue.

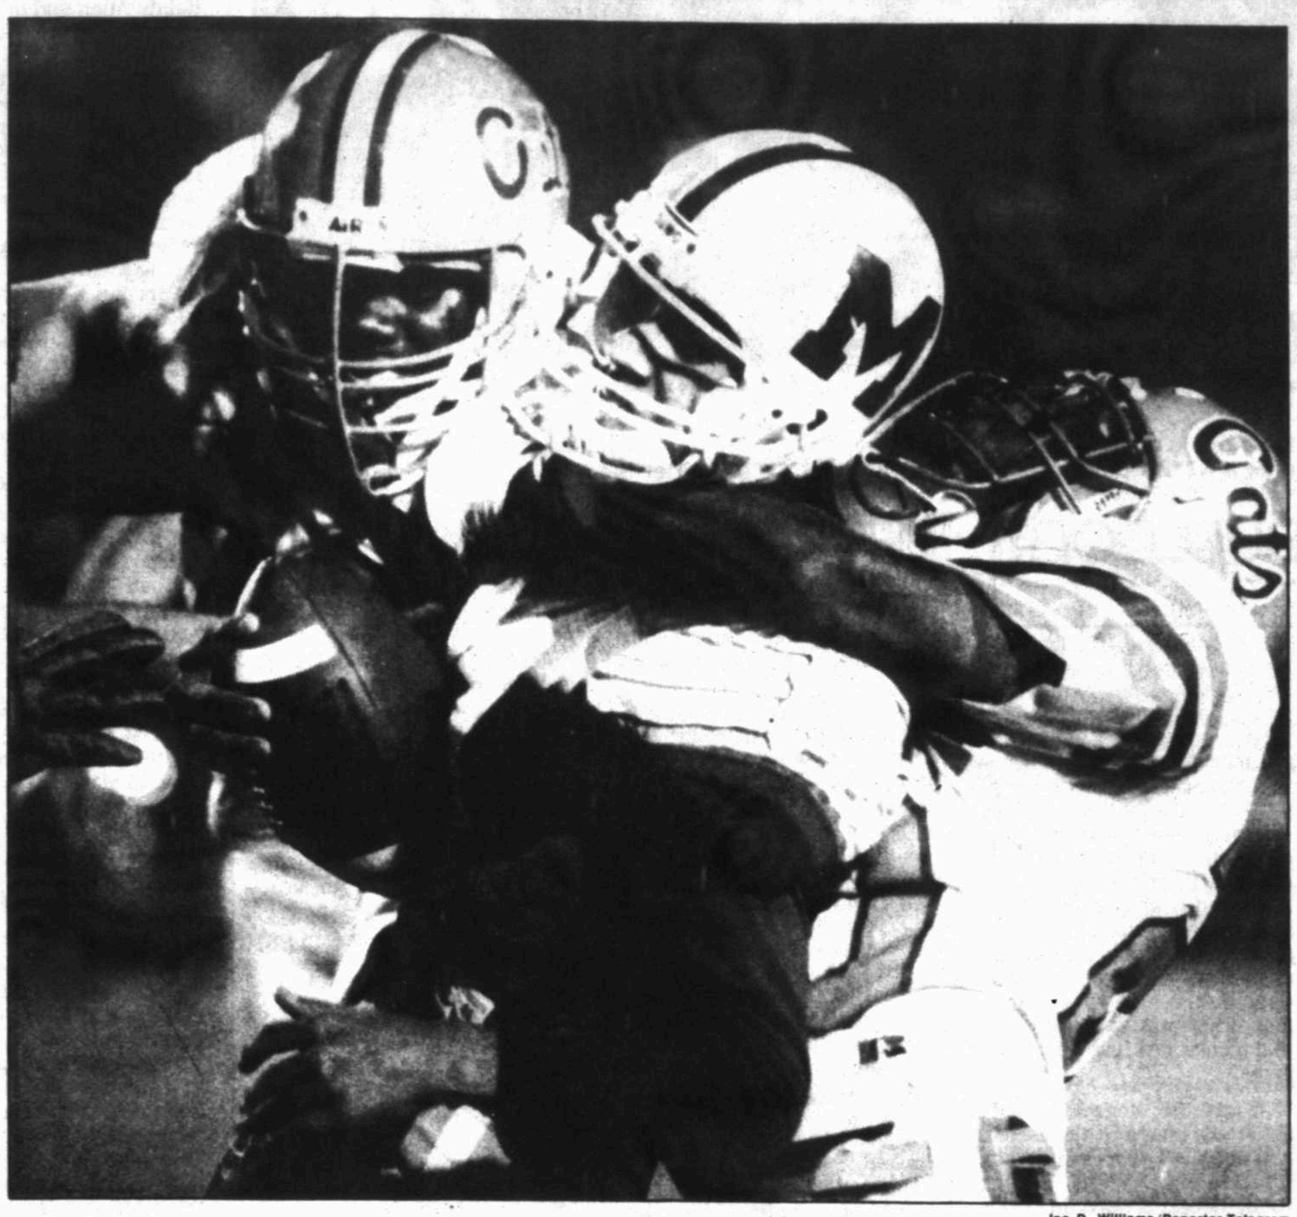

But the big news for Midland High was running back Michael Gilbert, who rushed for 141 yards on 25 carries. It was the first time since the 1990 season that MHS has had a back to gain more than 100 yards rushing in a single game.

"Micheal did a good job for us," Ronnie Reeger, MHS coach, said. "That was a big positive for us. That's a good hurdle for us to get over because our offense has not had many big nights."

Gilbert broke the 100-yard barrier in the third quarter when he busted loose on a 45-yard romp.

San Angelo put the game in its hip pocket early, scoring on three of its first four possessions with Montgomery figuring in all three assaults on the Bulldog

Andrews returns to Class 4A playoffs

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

ANDREWS — If the Andrews faithful had it their way, they would put their Mustangs on the presidential ballot after the Mustangs landslided past the Monahans Lobos 17-7 in a campaign for the District 3-4A title here Friday night.

Moreover, the candidates for the White House may want to pick up some tips for a winning formula from the 9-0, 5-0, Mustangs, who clinched their second straight playoff berth with the victory. The Mustangs, open next Friday, can finish no worse than in second place in 3-4A when they visit Sweetwater Nov. 13 in the league finale.

For example, independent Ross Perot who talks a good game, should witness how the Mustangs talk and back up what they say.

The Mustang defense, held the Lobos, 5-2-1, 2-1-1, scoreless in the first half and contained the Lobo running attack to 84 yards through the first 24 minutes.

Panthers eke past Cooper

■ Third-ranked Odessa Permain survives an Abilene Cooper rally in a 31-30 squeaker.

By Bill Price

ODESSA — Go for the tie? NOT!

Abilene Cooper was playing for the District 4-5A championship.

The Cougars proved they could run with the big dogs here Friday night at Ratliff Stadium by coming back from a 31-17 deficit and scoring two touchdowns in the last minute and half against third-ranked Odessa Permian.

But ultimately it was the Panther defense that rose to the occasion, as the familiar trio of Michael Comer, Sam Brooks and Scott Cherry stuffed Cooper running back Mike Rose on a two-point conversion try with 14 seconds left in the game, salvaging a 31-30 Permian win.

"You couldn't ask for a better game. It was me and Brooks and Cherry. We knew they were going to do it. That's the way they scored the first time," said Comer, the Panther middle linebacker who helped stop Rose at the line of District 4-5A competition at 2 p.m. today, when they host Dallas Jesuit at Memorial Stadium.

The Rebels finish their season next Friday at playoff bound Abilene Cooper.

Jesuit, a member of the Texas Christian Interscholastic League, is the defending Class 4A champion of that conference. The TCIL, however, is not 4-5A, and Jesuit's 1992 team has not been able to duplicate last season's 9-0-1 record.

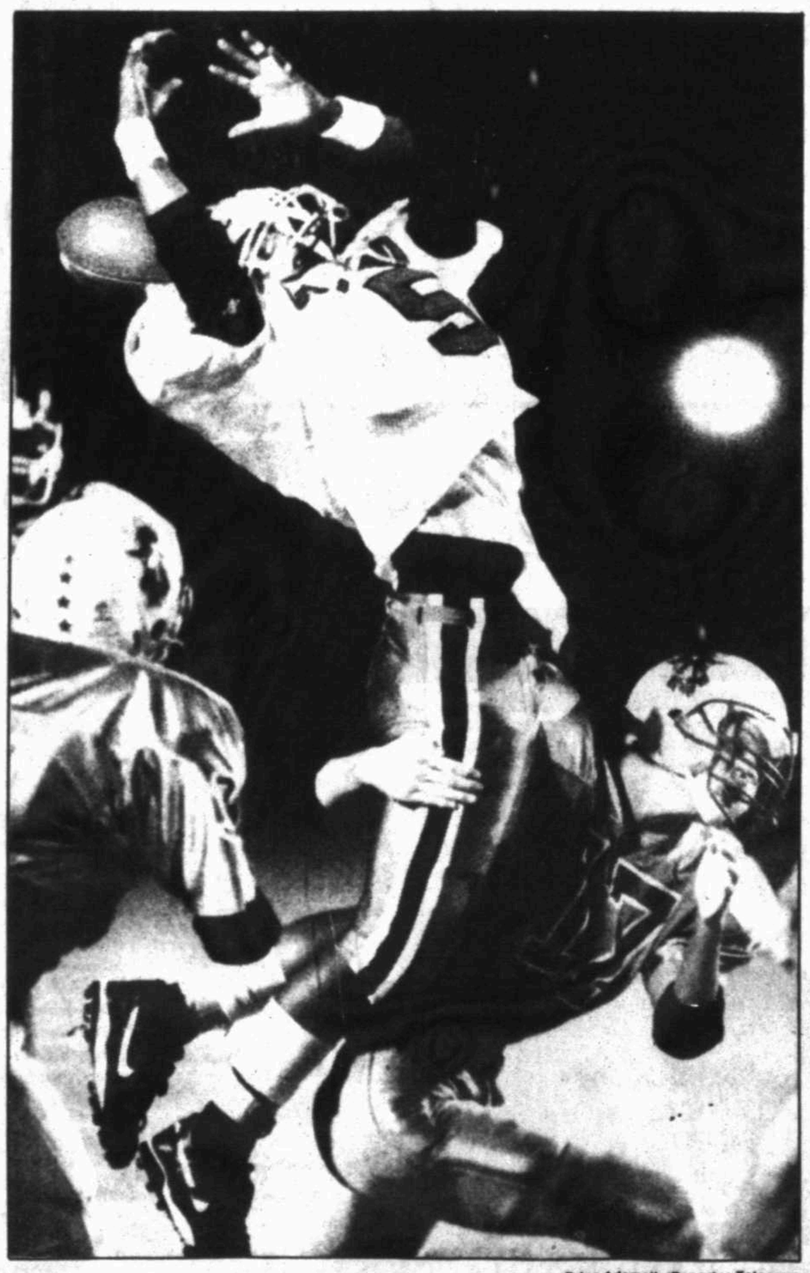

The Rangers are 3-4 for the season and 1-1 in league play.

Lee (5-3 overall), fell to 2-3 in district play after last week's 21-14 loss to third-ranked and intense rival Odessa Permian. According to Lee head coach Earl Miller, the Rebels must find a way to rebound from that loss, which left Lee in the playoff cold after nine straight postseason appearances.

"I'm sure we'll have some kind of letdown," Miller said. "We played a good game against Permian and there's bound to be some disappointment. I just hope by game time they have the pride to live up to the reputation and play well."

And it's not as if Lee hasn't seen the kind of schemes Jesuit runs. The Rang-

Wink topples Garden City

GARDEN CITY — Yogi Berra could never have known that he was describing Wink's meeting with the Garden City Bearkats when he said, "It's deja vu all over again."

Quarterback Shae Scott, who earned all-state honors in helping lead the Bearkats to the regional finals just one year ago, was back on the turf here Friday night to engineer yet another victory.

But this one was a triumph for the Wildcats, 39-27, and it put a rather large kink in Garden City's postseason plans.

San Angelo running back Bennie Jones creates a wake through Midland High defenders on a touchdown march Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

defense. He hit Marc Menchaca with a four-yard scoring toss, Ryan King with a 9-yard pass and scored on a three-yard run for a 21-0 lead at the half. King ended the game with nine catches for 152 yards.

"We just went out and took care of business early and got it over with," Dan Gandy, San Angelo coach, said. "But Midland High had a respectable night and we are pleased to win the game. They didn't quit and stopped us on two more scoring opportunities in the second half. That was the one thing that concerned me about the game."

In fact, San Angelo had only a 14-7 advantage in the second half and the Bulldogs missed on three scoring thrusts, moving to the Bobcat 27-yard line twice and to the seven-yard line another time.

But MHS did score early in the fourth quarter when wide receiver Greg O'Neal hit Justin Duffield with a 30-yard scoring bomb, a play in which Duffield had to make a catch while on the ground in the end zone.

"The ball was a little underthrown, but the ball hit my shoulder pads while I was on the way down and I was able to hang on," Duffield said of the catch. "I have to give O'Neal credit for the pass. It was a little short, but he knew what he was doing."

Montgomery went into the game having been intercepted only once in district play this year, but Marc Atnipp and Roy Ratliff both came up with pickoffs against Montgomery and missed two others when linebacker Pete Rodriquez had his hands on the ball twice before letting it get away.

Atnipp and Ratliff had different reactions to picking off Montgomery.

"We just had good pass coverage and the ball came to us," Ratliff said, but Atnipp said, "I just got lucky. I slipped on the play and when I got up, the ball just came to me."

Atnipp's interception was at the three-yard line, halting a Bobcat scoring drive.

Midland High's losing streak climbed 18 with the loss, matching last year's loss total, but Reeger was smiling after the game.

"We gave up a lot of yardage, but I don't care," Reeger said. "I know we are at the tail-end of the season, but we are getting closer. We played a good, hard game and I'll bet they know they were in a game. We had another good scheme and did some positive things."

And positive is where the Bulldogs need to be right now. Both MHS and Abilene High stand at 0-5 in the league race and meet Friday at Memorial Stadium. It is a game the Bulldogs feel they can win.

"I think we have a good chance to beat them," Duffield said.

Reeger added, "That's one to look forward to. It's been a long road."

MHS assistant James Johnson said, "Coach (Buster) Barnes and I have our own personal motivation for next week. We both coached with (Abilene High's Carlous) Stone in the past. We would like to beat him."

It has been a long season for the Bulldogs, but it was easy to see Friday that the 1992 finale with Abilene High is much more than just playing out the string.

scrimmage on the conversion run up the middle.

"They thought we'd open up for the run because they had been doing all that passing. But we thought they were going to run and went back to our basic run defense," said defensive tackle Brooks.

"We came here to win, not tie. It was a great game between two outstanding teams and it came down to one play," Cooper coach Randy Allen said of his decision to attempt the two-pointer instead of a kick.

With both teams, along with San Angelo, already having sewn up playoff berths, the only thing riding on the game was Cooper's inferiority compiex against Permian — the Cougars entered the contest having lost 19 of their last 20 games to Mojo — and, of course, the 4-5A title.

Permian (7-1 overall, 5-0 in district) clinched no worse than a tie for that championship with the win. The Panthers play San Angelo (6-3, 4-1) in the regular season finale next Friday for sole possession of the district bell, while Cooper (7-2, 4-1) hosts Midland Lee with a shot at a co-championship.

And if Cooper plays next week the way it did Friday, Lee better watch out. Because if Permian football connoisseurs were surprised by the final score, they were aghast at the sight of the scoreboard at the end of the first quarter. 17-0, Cooper in front.

The Cougars swept the plastic grass at Ratliff like wildfire, taking their first possession 83 yards in eight plays. Rose's five-yard run up the gut capped the drive.

Cooper then capitalized on two un-Permian-like Panther miscues. Tyree Ephriam was stripped of the ball by Demetrius Gandy and Eric Gibson at the Permian 33-yard line. One play later, Coog quarterback Deric Neal hit a streaking Jason King down the right sideline for a 30-yard TD pass and Cooper was ahead 14-0 with just under two minutes remianing in the quarter.

On Permian's next snap, running back John Williams bobbled a wobbly pitch from quarterback Dennis Graham, Kobie Clay recovered for Cooper at the Mojo 22, and the Cougars wound up with 34-yard Chris Plummer field goal with 25 second left in the quarter, stunning the Ratliff crowd of about 16,000.

Williams, who carried 29 times for 187 yards, made amends for his fumble, though. He topped off a 64-yard Permian drive with a one-yard TD 4½ minutes into the second quarter, putting the score at its 17-7 mark.

The third quarter belonged to Permian, as Cooper stayed bottled up inside its 20 for virtually the whole period. Meanwhile, Allen Strambler scored on a four-yard run on the Panthers' first possesion of the second half, and Shane Wells nailed a 45-yard field goal to end the next one and tie the game 17-17.

The next time Mojo got the ball, Williams broke loose on a 46-yard scoring run to give Permian its first lead of the game at 24-17 with :44 left in the third quarter.

Ephriam's 49-yard TD run with 4:48 to play in the game looked to lock the game up for the Panthers, but Cooper wouldn't hear of it.

Cooper launched an 80-yard drive that culminated with Tony Tate bringing down a six-yard Neal pass to cut the margin to 31-24 with 1:15 remaining. When Cougar Tim Willis recovered the onside kick that everybody knew was coming, the Cooper fans exploded.

Working the ball from Permian's 44-yard line, Neal passed his way to the Panther 21. From there he threw over the middle to Zac Allen, who improvised his way into the end zone with 14 ticks to go. Then Cooper tried for two points.

"It was a 'smash mouth' play, and that's a lot of what we do," Allen said. "They just stopped us."

"When we got up 31-17, we relaxed a little bit and we shouldn't have. But Cooper is a great ball team and they kept fighting to the very end. I respect them for that," Williams said.

LEE: Miller likes Saturday games

(From 1B)

ers utilize a Wing-T offense and a 4-3 defense, just like Permian.

"Yea, we know something about it," Miller said. "They run the same plays Permian uses but they rely on the ground game more. They pass some, but they're short passes. The defense is the same thing we saw last week.

"In their last six ball games the most yardage they have given up is 137 yards, though the only team that was a real test for them was Corsicana (TCIL foe Beaumont Kelly also defeated Jesuit last week, 14-6). We've never played before and I'm sure they're excited about playing us.

"They have a real big offensive line, they have a big strong side. Their smallest offensive lineman is 210 pounds."

With nothing but pride riding on the game, Miller said he will likely use a number of players. That scenario, though, will come if Lee has a significant lead.

The Rebel offense deviated from the wishbone norm last week, as quarterback Courtney Turner passed for 214 yards (738 for the season), connecting with Undra Graves five times for 152 yards.

Since the game is a Saturday afternoon affair, it will also be the closest Lee comes to a playoff atmosphere this season.

"If anything it should perk our players up," Miller said. "I always liked Saturday games because it brings me back to my college days, and to the playoffs. Being at home, it shouldn't have an affect at all."

Odessa High ends season with victory

Staff report

ABILENE — Odessa High ended its 1992 football season here Friday night, struggling to a 12-0 win over Abilene High.

OHS ends the season with a 5-5 overall mark and a 3-3 campaign in District 4-5A. Abilene High, who ends its season against Midland High next weekend, stands at 2-7 and 0-5.

But the Bronchos had a tough time getting on the scoreboard against the beleagured Eagles. Thomas Henderson scored two second half touchdowns on runs of one and three yards to give OHS the win after the teams fought to a 0-0 deadlock in the first half.

OHS quarterback Erik Hartman rushed for 90 yards and completed 10 of 17 passes for 117 yards. Abilene High's Anthony Washington had 78 yards rushing while quarterback Rusty Oglesby passed for 89.

Odessa High, who drew District 4-5A's last open date, can now pack the bags after an up-and-down season that included an upset win over Midland Lee to help end Lee's nine-year playoff streak.

Dunn, Rangers hammer Wolves

By Pete Herndon
MRT Correspondent

GREENWOOD — Greenwood coach Bob Purser is going to spend a few extra hours this week watching game film.

It won't be the game film of Friday's 42-8 win over Colorado City that Purser will study. It will be the film of an earlier 17-17 tie with Sonora.

If Greenwood (3-5-1, 1-2-1) can beat Kermit (3-5, 2-2) this week, there is a strong possibility that Sonora (5-2-1, 1-2-1) and Greenwood will tie for District 6-3A runner-up. Crane (2-6, 2-2) would have to lose to Sonora.

Reagan County (9-0, 4-0) has clinched the district championship and closes league play with Colorado City (4-5, 1-3).

The first tie-breaker for a possible playoff berth is penetrations in head-to-head competition. The second tie-breaker is first downs.

Sonora and Greenwood had three penetrations in their tie. Sonora led in first downs 11-8.

"You know how that is," Purser said after watching his quarterback, Jeff Dunn, run for four touchdowns and 102 yards in less than three quarters against the Wolves. "We're going to take another look at the film in case something was missed."

It's been that kind of season for Purser and the Rangers, though — one of missed opportunities.

Greenwood lost to Crane, 7-6, on a missed extra point and a fumble late in the fourth quarter. Turnovers also played a key role in the tie with Sonora.

There was nothing missing against Colorado City.

Dunn scored on runs of 46, 6, 53 and 46 yards. Michael S. Smith added a 62-yard touchdown run en route to 136 yards on nine carries.

Twice the Greenwood defense thwarted Colorado City when the Wolves had driven inside the Rangers' 20.

Several of the Rangers' senior linemen, playing their last home game, were rewarded for the effort.

On Greenwood's last possession, tackle Chris Cornwell was inserted at running back and carried one time for four yards. On the next play, Brandon Riedel lined up as the other running back in the wishbone and carried for two yards.

Both players, a backfield tandem only two pounds shy of 500 pounds, left the field before the next play to a standing ovation.

"We always try to let the linemen run with the ball somewhere near the end of the season," Purser said. "Some years we can't do it because the games are too close ... but these guys have spent their whole careers blocking for someone. We like to let them carry it once."

GARDEN CITY: Bradford's 299 not enough

the Bearkat helm, completed nine passes for 167 yards — all in the first half — as Wink downed the Bearkats in a pivotal District 8-A contest.

"It was kind of tough to play against all my old friends. It was tough the whole game, but this takes us one step closer to the playoffs," Shae Scott said after the Wildcats moved to 5-3 for the season and 2-1 in the league with just Sanderson and Grandfalls — two of the loop's weaker members — left in the regular season.

Garden City, which twice overcame 13-point deficits in the first half to lead 27-25 at the intermission, felt the Wink defense stiffen in the second half, dropping to 5-3 overall and also finding itself 2-1 in league play.

Now, if Garden City is going to make the playoffs, the Bearkats will need to win both their remaining games, including a win of no fewer than eight points in the season finale with Rankin, which moved to 3-0 Friday with a big 45-0 win over Sanderson.

Bearkat workhorse Jody Bradford rambled for 299 yards and four touchdowns on 43 carries to bring his season total to 1,836 yards, but 207 of those yards and all four of the scores came in the wild first half.

Wink tightened the chin straps in the second half and held the Bearkats out of the end zone.

"They really started playing me hard on the outside and we when we tried moving to some inside plays the second half they just shut us down," Bradford said. "But we'll go 'til we drop and now we know we need to win both our games and beat Rankin by eight points."

Eight points was like nothing in the first half as the both teams drove for TDs on their first drives. Scott ignited the Wink offense with passes of 38, 19 and 10 yards, setting up a quarterback sneak from the one that opened the scoring.

Bradford and company came right back for a one-yard TD of their own, rattling off seven plays that covered 72 yards, including a key 33-yard completion from Brent Seidenberger to Andy Lopez on a third and long.

The scoring spree was on.

"It was kind of like a track meet. We were fortunate to get enough breaks in the second half to get the job done," said Sam Scott, who took over a Wink program that went winless in 1991.

"This was a situation where you hate for anybody to lose," Scott said. "Especially with the way my situation is, coming back here to play after coaching these kids for so many years."

Wink bolted to a 19-6 advantage on Jeffrey Watts' 61-yard interception return for a TD and when Shane Haynes rabbled across the line from seven yards out.

But Bradford scored on runs of 16, 58 and 3 yards as the 'Kats took the two-point halftime lead. But they never score in the second half.

"They (Wildcats) have a good football team," Garden City coach Dennis Bryant said. "We knew they were good. We just couldn't stop them."

The 'Kats reached well into Wink territory to start the second half, but stalled on a fourth down at the 17 yard line.

When Mike Miranda, who led Wink with 143 rushing yards, bolted 59 yards on first down, the Wildcats needed just three more plays to take a 33-27 lead they never relinquished.

ANDREWS: Mustangs return to playoffs

(From 1B)

That forced Monahans to pass and it cost them dearly, as three Monahans passes were intercepted. The Andrews' kicking game also pinned the Lobos deep repeatedly.

"Whenever you can continuosly force a Monahans team to start deep in their own end of the field, you've done something, and our kids did that tonight," said Andrews coach W.T. Stapler.

The Monahans defense also kept Andrews in check up until the end of the first half when Eric Langhenning booted a 19-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

In this year's campaign the issue of character has hounded Democratic hopeful Bill Clinton.

Clinton can learn something from Andrews quarterback Bryan Lepard who displayed an enormous amount of courage. Earlier in the day, the youngster was informed that his mother was diagnosed with a malignet tumor.

"It took a lot for him to go onto that field tonight. He was under tremondous preasure and he played a heck of a game," said Stapler.

In the second quarter, Lepard's 18-yard run set up the Langehenning field goal. But it was his 39 yard scoring run in the fourth quarter that put away any hopes of a Monahans comeback.

Before the touchdown, the Lobos marched 80-yards on nine plays to cut the Andrews lead to 10-7.

"That was definitely a big play," said Monahans mentor Bren Holland. "Before that score, our kids were ready to take control of the game and we had the momentum," he added.

As for President Bush, he may want to ask the Mustangs how to overcome obstacles.

The answer is easy: avoid them as much as possible and hope for a break or two. Andrews entered the game with key injuries which could have affected its running game.

Andrews only had 71 yards on the ground in the first half. But they turned on the afterburners in the final two periods gaining 219 yards from the rush.

Kevin Lawrence got 59 of those yards at the 2:15 mark of the third quarter when he eluded and escaped several Monahans tacklers for a TD.

Was it poor Lobo tackling?, according to Stapler he does this kind of thing in practice all the time.

"Lawerence is deceptive, he's stronger than he looks," Stapler said.

As for turnovers, the Mustangs had none, while Monahans couldn't help but throw the ball to an Andrews defender.

Monahans also had a chance late in the game, Andrews fumbled the ball deep in its own territory, only to see the ball bounce back into the arms of a Mustang tailback. It was that kind of night.

As for the run at the Whitehouse, Stapler would rather leave that to the big three, he has enough on his hands in 3-4A.

Houston Davis ties national loss record

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Davis Panthers lost their 72nd straight high school football game Friday night, tying a national record. They fell to Houston Kashmere, 40-0.

Davis (0-8), which hasn't won since 1985, could break its tie with Iberia, Mo., on Thursday in its season finale against Houston Worthing, which was 6-2 for the season going into this week's contests.

Kashmere (4-5) outgained Davis 314-149, with 274 of its yards coming through the air. Davis threw for 84 yards and rushed for 65.

The Panthers dropped this season into Class 4A from Class 5A, Texas' largest enrollment classification. They have been outscored 320-34.

Iberia's futility streak ran from 1965-74.

Stanton closes year with loss

WALL — Cory Braden and Chad Box combined for four touchdowns as Wall defeated Stanton, 28-6, in the Buffaloes' season finale.

With the loss, Stanton closes the season with a 3-6 overall mark, 1-5 in District 6-2A.

Wall upped its mark to 5-0 in league play.

Braden scored on runs of 44 and 30 yards, while Box scored on a run of 16 yards, as well as a 12 yard scoring pass to Bobby Ullrich.

Stanton's lone score came when J.J. Ortiz threw a 55 yard pass to Michael Martinez. The Buffs' attempt at the two-point conversion failed.

Wall outgained the Buffs' 383-311 in total offensive yards, but both teams finished even at 16 in the first down category.

Wall was penalized eight times for 80 yards.

SNYDER — Lamesa came from behind to defeat Snyder, 23-14, in a District 2-4A game Friday night.

The Golden Tors, down 14-10 in the third quarter, scored the game's last two TDs for the win. Tony Brown scored on a three yard run as Lamesa iced the win in the fourth quarter.

The win upped Lamesa's season mark to 6-3, and it's 2-4A record to an even 2-2. Snyder fell to 5-4, 1-3.

Snyder led early when Gilbert Orosco scored on a seven yard run, but Lamesa found itself with the lead at halftime after a 24 yard run by Cole Adams, and a Edward Fernandez 31-yard field goal.

Snyder regained the lead in the third on a 21 yard pass from Matt Cave to Chris Stansell.

Red Raiders get final shot at proving mettle

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

Texas Tech's moment of truth finally has come.

The hot-and-cold Red Raiders must make a four-game run, beginning Saturday against the Texas Longhorns, to finish with a winning season and have a chance for a coveted bowl invitation.

"For us to have any aspirations of playing 12 games this season, we have to win this game," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "It's a big time operation and our kids are looking forward to it."

It's a big game for the Longhorns (4-2) too. They have a four-game winning streak, a newly acquired No. 25 ranking in The Associated Press poll and a 2-0 record in SWC games.

SWC Roundup

They're hoping to still be unbeaten when they face the No. 5 Texas Aggies on Thanksgiving Day in Austin. The Aggies (7-0) play at Southern Methodist Saturday and Houston hosts Texas Christian.

Rice and Baylor have open dates.

Texas coach John Mackovic and Texas A&M's R.C. Slocum are far more concerned about Saturday's foes than they are their season finale in Memorial Stadium.

"This is the best team (Coach Tom) Rossley has had at SMU," Slocum said.

"They are a team that's getting better and since there have been comments that this is their bowl game, we know we'll get their best shot."

Mackovic isn't fooled by the Red Raiders' misfires after high promise in preseason.

"Their offense probably will give us a good test," Mackovic said. "It will be more like Syracuse, coming at you in different directions and they have the speed receiver."

Texas (4-2, 2-0) is a 2½-point favorite over the Red Raiders (3-4, 2-1); Texas A&M (7-0, 3-0) ranks a 23-point favorite over SMU (3-4, 1-3) and Houston (2-4, 0-2) has a 24-point edge over TCU (1-5-1, 0-3).

Tech coach Spike Dykes expects quarterback Robert Hall and safety Tracy Saul to be ready for the Longhorns. Both had to leave last week's victory over SMU because of injuries.

■ More Sports/8B

Saul has intercepted 24 passes for 425 yards in returns in his collegiate career. His interceptions rank No. 4 on the NCAA all-time list and his return yards are No. 6.

Dykes says he's impressed with Texas' emerging offense under senior quarterback Peter Gardere.

"I've always been a Peter Gardere fan," Dykes said. "He took them to the Cotton Bowl two years ago. Offensively, they are prolific. They're averaging 400 yards a game and they've won four in a row."

Jimmy Klingler will start at quarterback for Houston ahead of co-starter Donald Douglas, hobbled by strained arches in his feet. Klingler will direct the nation's No. 1 passing attack against the Horned Frogs defense, which ranked 102nd in the nation in pass defense.

"It will be one of those deals," Houston coach John Jenkins said. "With TCU being one of the top teams in the country in rushing defense might force us to throw the ball more than we would have liked," Jenkins joked.

TCU coach Pat Sullivan says the Horned Frogs have a chance to win but injuries have eroded team depth.

"We are running out of depth," Sullivan said. "But I like the way our kids have fought and scratched. We just have to get our kids ready to play to the best of their ability."

Title implications on line in Houston, Pittsburgh game

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Finally, the Houston Oilers can kick in the door.

Back in the 1978 season, former coach Bum Phillips promised the Oilers were through knocking on the door and would "kick it in" the next time they played the then-Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Oilers got their chance — again — the following season, but the Steelers beat them — again — in the American Conference title game. Both teams began to downslide after that, and they've never met in the AFC championship game since.

Sunday's Oilers-Steelers game at Three Rivers Stadium isn't a championship game, but it's the biggest game the two rivals have played in Pittsburgh in years — probably since 1979.

There are championship implications, with the two teams tied for the AFC Central Division lead with 5-2 records, and an unusual number of similarities to the classic Oilers-Steelers games of the late '70s.

First, Bum Phillips won't have to kick the door down; his press pass as a member of the Oilers' radio broadcast crew will earn him a hassle-free entrance through Three Rivers Stadium Gate A.

Just like 1979, one of the teams is a certifiable NFL power, the other is a wannabe. One team has a premier quarterback and some of the league's top defensive talent. One has been a playoff threat for years, the other has been mostly missing in playoff inaction. One team has an exceptional running back, the other throws to win. One team has a recently hired, popular coach who has quickly endeared himself to players and fans.

There's just one difference. In 1979, the Steelers were the dominant team, en route to their fourth Super Bowl in six years with a Hall of Fame cast of characters: Terry Bradshaw, Franco Harris, Jack Lambert, Mean Joe Greene.

This time, it's the Oilers that are the power. The Steelers are the team on the rise. The Oilers have the blockbuster names — Warren Moon, Haywood Jeffires — and the high-output passing attack. The mostly no-name Steelers have a new running back star in Barry Foster, but nobody's comparing Neil O'Donnell to Terry Bradshaw.

In 1979, the Oilers were the team trying to knock off the king of the hill, the team fueled by emotion and youthful enthusiasm. This time it's the Steelers who will try to topple the team that was supposed to cruise to a division title, and, perhaps, the Super Bowl.

"This game had better get our attention, because Pittsburgh looks great," defensive end William Fuller said. "We have to play a near-perfect game to beat them, because Pittsburgh is going to be sky high."

You don't hear the Oilers throwing around words like "embarrassed," which Ray Childress used to describe his feelings after the Steelers upset the Oilers 29-24 on Sept. 6 in the Astrodome.

That was before the Steelers — predicted by some to finish 2-14 or 4-12 after a dreadful 0-2 preseason start — sprinted to their best start since 1984 (9-2) behind a Franco-like running back and a defense that's allowed a league-low 77 points.

"Their secondary is the best in the league," Jeffires said. "There is no doubt in my mind. ... They really crushed Kansas City (27-3 Sunday). They couldn't have played any better. The defense played magnificent. They were the old Pittsburgh Steelers."

And this will be just like an Oilers-Steelers game of old, even if there aren't any old, familiar names from the '70s still in the starting lineup.

"There is no question what's at stake," Steelers coach Bill Cowher said. "There is no question about the importance of this game."

Big 8 game a contrast in offense

Associated Press

Because voters in The Associated Press college football poll were unable to separate Colorado and Nebraska in the balloting this week, those teams will try to do it on the field.

The Big Eight rivals had 1,046 points in this week's balloting, and are tied for eighth place in the Top 25. Ironically, the schedule sends them against each other Saturday at Nebraska.

The game is a study in offensive philosophies. Nebraska's punishing ground game leads the country with an average of 347 yards. Colorado prefers to travel through the air and averages 334 yards that way, fourth best in the nation.

Nebraska's ground game is handled by I-backs Calvin Jones and Derek Brown, both averaging over 100 yards. The twin runners leave Colorado coach Bill McCartney envious.

"They're both great players," he said. "They're both going to have to get the flu."

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne might have the same feelings about McCartney's passers — Kordell Stewart and Koy Detmer, brother of the former BYU Heisman Trophy winner.

Osborne thinks its wrong, though, to focus on the formidible attacks of these two teams. "There will be many other factors in winning or losing this ballgame besides running and throwing the football," he said.

In other Top 25 games, it's West Virginia at No. 1 Miami; No. 15 Stanford at No. 2 Washington; No. 3 Michigan is at Purdue; No. 5 Texas A&M at Southern Methodist; No. 6 Florida State at No. 23 Virginia; No. 7 Georgia vs. No. 20 Florida at Jacksonville, Fla.; No. 10 Notre Dame vs. Navy at East Rutherford, N.J.; Temple at No. 11 Boston College; Pittsburgh at No. 12 Syracuse; No. 13 Southern Cal at Arizona State; No. 14 Penn State at Brigham Young; No. 16 Tennessee at South Carolina; New Mexico State at No. 17 Arizona; Oklahoma State at No. 18 Kansas; Oregon at No. 19 Washington State; No. 22 North Carolina at Maryland; No. 24 Mississippi State at Kentucky; and No. 25 Texas at Texas Tech.

No. 4 Alabama and No. 21 North Carolina State don't play this week.

After surviving its own schedule crisis with close wins in consecutive weeks over Arizona, Florida State and Penn State, No. 1 Miami is sitting back, waiting to see how No. 2 Washington does with its own back-to-back burden — No. 15 Stanford on Saturday, No. 17 Arizona next week.

The Hurricanes are one point ahead of the Huskies at the top of the poll and involved in the Big East part of their schedule, hosting West Virginia. They can expect the Mountaineers to be in a less-than-cheerful mood after consecutive last-minute losses to Syracuse and Penn State.

"They're groping for a way to win," West Virginia coach Don Nehlen said of his team. "When you play your heart out and you lose and you play your heart out again and you lose, it's not easy. Your kids start to wonder what they've got to do to win."

They may have come to the wrong place to solve the problem. Miami, with a current 25-game winning streak, is unbeaten at the Orange Bowl in 49 games dating back to 1985.

Speaking of streaks, Washington has won 21 in a row, 13 against Pac-10 opponents and eight straight against Stanford. Huskies coach Don James figures the Cardinal offers a substantial threat to those neat numbers.

"As I look at them defensively, I think they are the strongest defense we've had to go against up to this point," James said. "They've just played really well. They're very physical. They get to the football and they're very aggressive."

James was matter-of-fact about dropping one point behind of Miami in the poll.

"I don't know that anyone deserves to be No. 1 more than us, but I don't know if we've done anything to show that we're a whole lot better than anybody else," he said. "There's some pretty good teams out there. Alabama's really good and Miami's really good. But there's a lot more games to be played."

Sunday games highlight NFC East rivalries

Associated Press

The NFC East, considered by many the best division in the NFL, has a showdown of sorts scheduled for Sunday.

It's only the halfway point of the season, but the Philadelphia-at-Dallas and New York Giants-at-Washington matchups could provide a good indication of what's ahead in the division.

In the game of the day, the first-place Cowboys (6-1) will try to avenge their 31-7 loss to the Eagles (5-2) on Oct. 5 at Philadelphia.

The Cowboys think they can beat the Eagles this time if they can execute on the ground just a little better.

"We've got to run the ball some, but we've got to understand we're not going to be getting nine and 10 yards runs but three and four yard runs," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "It will be tough but we've got to do it."

The Eagles have a record of 53 consecutive games without a runner gaining 100 or more yards against them. Gerald Riggs was the last to do it in 1988 for Washington.

Philadelphia hasn't allowed a rushing touchdown this year. Phoenix came the closest. The Cardinals had seven shots inside the 3-yard line last week and couldn't score.

Philadelphia has held an opponent under 100 yards rushing for 15 straight games.

"They have the best defense in the NFL," Johnson said. "There are some Hall of Famers on that defense.

"They've had success against everybody, not just us. We're getting better but we're not to Philadelphia's level yet."

Emmitt Smith, who led the NFL in rushing last year and is second so far this season with 733 yards, had 75 yards against the Eagles in 1991. That's been his best against Philadelphia.

"It's tough, real tough, getting yards on them," Smith said. "They are hard to block. There aren't many holes to hit."

Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham is 8-0 against the Cowboys while Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman has never defeated the Eagles. He's 0-6 against them and was intercepted three times earlier this year.

"It's hard to put a finger on why Randall has such success against the Cowboys," Philadelphia coach Rich Kotite said. "I'm just glad he does."

The struggling Giants (3-4) need a victory against the Redskins (5-2) to regain their confidence. The Giants' offense has sputtered this season and they will need a big game from running back Rodney Hampton to beat the Redskins.

"You have to make sure you don't overplay it, rush too far into the backfield," Redskins defensive tackle Tim Johnson said. "You do that, that opens up holes, he cuts back and he's gone."

Hampton is averaging 4.5 yards per carry and has already gained 558 yards. He also has the Giants' longest run from scrimmage this season — a 63-yard touchdown against Phoenix.

But he also works well because of fullback Jarrod Bunch. Just when a defense gets used to Hampton's cutbacks, the Giants will send the 6-foot-2, 248-pound Bunch up the middle to do his best Jim Taylor impression. Bunch has only carried the ball 50 times to Hampton's 124 attempts, but the fullback's 290 yards give him an impressive average of 5.8 yards per carry.

Elsewhere in the NFL on Sunday it will be Green Bay at Detroit, Houston at Pittsburgh, the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta, Miami at the New York Jets, New England at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at New Orleans, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Indianapolis at San Diego and San Francisco at Phoenix. On Monday night, Minnesota visits Chicago in a key NFC Central matchup.

Cincinnati names Tony Perez as newest manager

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Marge Schott has what she wants: a manager who knows the Cincinnati Reds and will tolerate her dog. And it doesn't hurt that his nickname is Doggie.

Batting instructor Tony Perez, who has never managed, was given a one-year contract Friday that underscored the team's hesitance to make a long-term commitment. Former manager Lou Piniella got a three-year contract in 1990.

"It gives the manager the opportunity, if he does really well, to be able to get more money down the road," general manager Jim Bowden said. "By the same token, for the club, it gives us a chance to evaluate him."

Cincinnati now has the youngest general manager in the major leagues — Bowden is 31 — and one of the most inexperienced managers. Perez, 50, has spent the last six years as first-base coach and batting instructor.

He had three things in his favor: Schott's affection, his knowledge of the organization and his popularity in Cincinnati, where he was a key player in the Big Red Machine's 1975-76 World Series titles.

He also showed a willingness to get along with team mascot Schottzie 02, whose pre-game romps on the field have irritated players and kept the grounds crew busy cleaning up afterwards. The seven managerial candidates were asked during their interviews how they felt about the dog.

"I said the same thing I've said before: The dog is the owner's dog," Perez said. "We'll have to figure out how we can get the dog on the field and not interfere with the players."

That was the right answer.

"I'm so glad we named Doggie," Schott said. "Schottzie 02 isn't hurt now."

The hiring of Perez is the latest development in the Reds' bizarre offseason. In short, she has cleaned house after a 90-win season.

She failed to renew the contract of general manager Bob Quinn and let Piniella walk away just two seasons after they led the team to a shocking sweep of the Oakland Athletics in the World Series.

Both were left dangling as their contacts were in the process of expiring. Schott wound up picking a fight with Piniella after he left.

"The two parties had previously agreed that contract negotiations would take place at the completion of the Reds' season because of the club's involvement in the pennant race," she said earlier this month.

Piniella bristled at the statement.

"That's not true," he said emphatically. "I don't know what to say. The two of us never agreed on anything. Ever.

"My contract was up at the end of the year. Nobody came to me. I got tired of answering questions in the media about it. If the club had valued my performance, they would have come to me sooner."

Schott's statement also said that Piniella cited embarrassment over media speculation when he told her he was leaving.

"Mr. Piniella said that several newspaper articles about the Reds just prior to the end of the season were uncalled for and upsetting," her statement said.

"That's not true," Piniella responded. "You know what? It was only embarrassing because the club let it get that far."

Perez's promotion wasn't the only surprise Friday. The Reds also named a coaching staff short on major-league experience to help him.

The Reds also named former pitcher Don Gullett as their bullpen coach.

Brett to play one more year

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — George Brett, who got his 3,000th hit with a dramatic 4-for-5 day in the final week of the season, will return to play a 20th season with the Kansas City Royals, his agent said Friday.

"As of today, he says he's ready to come back and play," Dennis Gilbert said.

Gilbert said he was told by Kansas City general manager Herk Robinson that the Royals would exercise their option on Brett for next season. It is the second of two option years tacked on to a five-year contract.

Brett will earn $2.5 million in base pay with incentive clauses that could pay him another $600,000. Kansas City could have bought out the contract for $1 million.

Incentives include $60,000 for 550 plate appearances, $90,000 for 600 plate appearances and $100,000 for 625 plate appearances. There are also award incentives.

Brett has often been injured in his career but stayed healthy last year as he settled into the role of designated hitter. He batted 672 times and hit .285.

Brett, who turns 40 in May, made $3.1 million last year.

The player most identified with the Royals since the team began play as an expansion team in 1969, Brett started slowly again last year before raising his average to a respectable level. He is a career .308 hitter.

Brett, the only player to win batting titles in each of three decades, got his 3,000th hit before friends and family in his home state of California on Sept. 30 against the Angels.

He had left Kansas City following the last game of the season saying he would talk with friends, relatives and other ballplayers before deciding whether to play another year.

Brett married last February and his first child is due in March. Brett and his wife, Leslie, are renovating a large home in a Kansas City suburb.

Franco to be left unprotected in baseball's expansion draft

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Julio Franco, the 1991 American League batting champion, will be available to the Colorado Rockies and Florida Marlins during baseball's upcoming expansion, a newspaper reported Friday.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted sources as saying that the Rangers are willing to gamble that Franco's sore knee, his $2.75 million salary and the fact that he will be a free agent at the end of the season will keep him from being selected.

The team will have to turn in their list of unprotected players by Nov. 9 for the Nov. 17 draft.

Franco batted .341 in 1991, but a deep bruise on his right kneecap at patella tendinitis kept him on the disabled list for much of the past season. He batted .234 in only 107 at-bats.

The newspaper said the Rangers will protect pitchers Kevin Brown, Terry Burrows, Hector Fajardo, Roger Pavlik, Nolan Ryan, Kenny Rogers, Dan Smith and Dan Whiteside. They also will protect Jose Canseco, Juan Gonzalez, David Hulse, Jose Oliva, Rafael Palmeiro, Dean Palmer and Ivan Rodriguez.

In addition to Franco, other players left unprotected included pitchers Brian Bohanon and Scott Chiamparino. Others left off the protected list will be Monty Farriss, Jeff Frye, Jeff Huson, Rob Maurer, Geno Petralli and Kevin Reimer, according to the newspaper.

DeOssie possession case settled

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — New York Giants linebacker Steve DeOssie has agreed to a bond forfeiture, disposing of a misdemeanor charge of illegal possession of drug paraphernalia, according to his attorney.

DeOssie's forfeiture of $175 to the Grapevine Municipal Court Thursday effectively ends the case without a criminal judgment being rendered, said attorney Mark Deubner.

The linebacker, who underwent alcohol rehabilitation in the past year, was arrested on Sept. 30, 1991 at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport in possession of less than a gram of what police said was marijuana.

DeOssie was charged with a Class C misdemeanor, which carries a maximum $200 fine.

Under NFL rules, a player who commits a crime involving drugs can be suspended for four games. Deubner did not think DeOssie would be suspended.

"It is our contention that the NFL will not impose sanctions," the attorney said. "There is no clear finding of guilt. Without that, it would be capricious of them to do anything."

Jay Moyer, the overseer of the league's drug policy, planned to review the case, NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said.

Perot: Protesters prolonged conflict

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot said Friday that Vietnam War protesters were responsible for prolonging the conflict, but he "won't make hay on that" against Bill Clinton.

Perot was asked if he agreed with his running mate, Adm. James Stockdale, who said earlier in the week that war protesters were responsible for extending the imprisonment of American POWs and causing additional loss of life.

"Did the protesters prolong the war? Of course they did. Of course they did," Perot said on the program "Talking with David Frost" on PBS.

Earlier Friday, Clinton said he still felt that "the people who opposed the war were right," and took issue with Stockdale's claim that they prolonged the conflict.

Perot also prepared his final campaign commercials Friday. He has bought 3½ hours of network time on Sunday and Monday.

Perot this weekend will also make the most ambitious tour of his campaign, with stops in Tampa, Kansas City, Los Angeles and Santa Clara, Calif.

The Dallas billionaire remains a distant third in national polls, with support in the high teens. But spokeswoman Sharon Holman said aides have been encouraged by polls in several states in the West and New England that show Perot within the margin of error for second place.

Perot for several days has said he aims to win all 50 states, but aides said they no specific electoral strategy.

"The strategy will continue to be the same as what's been all along and that is for Ross Perot speaking to the people and get his message across on the programs," Holman said.

Perot told Frost he "won't make hay" against Clinton's Vietnam War positions a campaign issue because "it's not productive."

Perot said he understood the personal feelings of Stockdale, who was a Vietnam POW for 8 years.

Stockdale said earlier this week that protesters prolonged the war at cost of an extra 10,000 to 20,000 American lives, and "that blood is on your hands, you war protesters. You strung it out. You didn't stop it a minute."

Stockdale said "Every time in prison, we would hear that they had one of these big galas of the sort that Clinton was arranging here and there in the world. 'Huh,' we'd say. 'Another year in this place. We're not going to get out of here until we bomb Hanoi.' And they couldn't do that until they beat that opposition down."

The United States bombed Hanoi for two weeks beginning in December 1972 to bring North Vietnam to peace talks. After the peace accord was signed, the last U.S. forces left South Vietnam in 1975, and South Vietnam surrendered to the communists.

Clinton, asked about Stockdale's remarks on ABC's "Good Morning America," said "I really respect him, but I disagree with him. We never had a commitment to win that war. The only way we could have won it, since we didn't back a side that could win it, was just go in and blow the other side away, which would have been no victory.

School bus crash kills 1, injures 9

BLUE RIDGE (AP) — Nine students and a bus driver suffered minor injuries Friday when their school bus was struck by a pickup in northeast Collin County, authorities said.

The driver of the pickup, Larry Dean Sonntag, 38, of Blue Ridge died of injuries suffered in the accident, the Department of Public Safety said.

He was trapped in the vehicle for some time after those in the school bus had been taken to a hospital, DPS Trooper Baker Johnson said.

Authorities said the bus was traveling east on FM 545 and was in the process of a turn onto southbound FM 1377. As the bus turned, the pickup struck the school bus in the front.

The students on board the Blue Ridge school bus were taken to the North Texas Medical Center in McKinney after the accident, which occurred about 4 p.m. at Farm-to-Market roads 545 and 1377.

Linda Sutton, a hospital spokeswoman, said injuries ranged from bruises to fractures. All the injured were in stable condition, she said.

Blue Ridge school Superintendent Mark Weisner told the DPS that 32 to 35 students were on the bus.

Authorities said the bus was traveling east on FM 545 and was in the process of a turn onto southbound FM 1377. As the bus turned, the pickup struck the school bus in the right front, the DPS said.

An investigation is continuing.

Ms. Sutton identified the injured as: Crystal Riddle, 13; Amanda Crane, 11; Nicole Smith, 15; Jennie Ragsdale, 12; Luke Ragsdale, 9; Brandon Stowe, 9; Egan Pond, 11; Mindy Pond, 14; Julie Telatnyk, 10; and bus driver Leo Taylor.

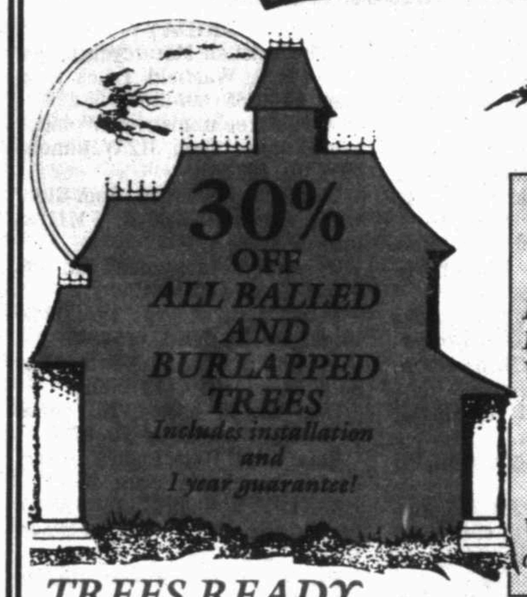

Blue Ridge is about 30 miles northeast of Dallas.

SARASOTA, Fla. — A neighbor called her son a bastard. A farmer blamed her for the death of a half-dozen head of cattle. A man accused her when a cat leapt through his open window and clawed at his throat. He gave a name to his fear.

Witch.

On July 19, 70-year-old Susannah North Martin was hanged from the gallows.

That was in 1692, but it is an injustice that still haunts one of her descendants.

"In Loving Memory of Susannah North Martin, who died by hanging 300 years ago today, July 19, 1692, from her great, great, great, great, great, great, great grandchildren," read the memorial published last July by Jone Barlow Weist in the obituary section of the Sarasota Herald-Tribune.

Weist's ancestor was one of 14 women and five men hanged in Salem, Mass., between June and September 1692. Martha Carrier, the ancestor of two Englewood women, also was tried as a witch and hanged. Scores more were named as witches and imprisoned.

Those who "confessed" to witchcraft lost their land but saved their lives. Those who maintained their innocence were hanged, but their families held on to the land. Finally, in October, the governor of Massachusetts ordered a halt to the hysteria; his wife had been among the accused.

For Weist, the rise of the witch hunt hysteria can be summed up in one word — fear.

"They singled out people that were different," she said. "What Susannah was guilty of was a salty tongue and standing up for what she believed in."

Seated on the floor of her condominium, Weist pulls "The Encyclopedia of Witchcraft and Demonology," "The Devil in Massachusetts" and "The Visionary Girls: Witchcraft in Salem Village," among other books, from a shelf in search of references to Martin. "I don't have any interest in witchcraft," she said. "But I'm fascinated by people who were victims of witch hysteria."

Weist describes her ancestor's grisly death with such indignation, it is as if Martin had been killed yesterday.

"Imagine someone grabbing your grandmother from her condo on Longboat Key, throwing her in jail, hanging her in the center of town and then leaving her body to rot."

Witchcraft was a tough rap to beat. During the winter of 1691-92, a few Salem girls, like 9-year-old Elizabeth Parris and 11-year-old Abigail Williams, listened to stories, possibly voodoo tales, told by a West Indian slave named Tituba.

Soon they were inventing their own stories.

Scholars have attributed the Salem witch hunt to property disputes, local feuds and even a fungus that grows on rye in cold climates with the same hallucinogenic effect as LSD. Recently, academics have started researching one obvious fact about the persecuted in Salem — most were women.

"All she had to do was admit she was a witch and she would have been set free," said Weist. "But she didn't. Susannah fought them every step of the way. She quoted the Bible to dispute their charges."

On May 2, 1692, when Susannah Martin had her day in court, she found it impossible to defend herself against the charges. Several witnesses writhed on the floor when Martin entered the courtroom. Some claimed that she was sending demons to harm them.

"What do you laugh at?" a judge asked Martin, according to a transcript of the trial in Weist's possession.

"Well I may at such folly," Martin answered.

"Is this folly? The hurt of these persons?" said the judge.

"I never hurt man, woman or child ... I have no hand in witchcraft," Martin said. For Weist, a visit to Salem — she has been there three times — is akin to a pilgrimage. One place she returns to each visit is a playground, formerly known as Gallow's Hill.

It's the site where Martin was hanged. As Weist describes Salem, she fondles an odd keepsake, a black granite rock from Gallow's Hill. She brings the rock to family reunions. Her nieces and nephews hold it as as she tells them tales of "Grandma Susannah."

For two other area residents, learning their ancestor was tried and hanged for witchcraft was, initially, rather unsettling.

"We have an Aunt Edith who kept on saying we came from royalty," said Doris Martin. "And then we discovered we didn't come from royalty, but a witch. It was quite a shock."

Martha Carrier, an ancestor of Doris and her niece Diane Grafe, was the first resident of Andover, near Salem Village, to be charged as a witch during the witch hunt of 1692. While some townsfolk coveted Carrier's land, others blamed her for an outbreak of smallpox. If motivations were murky, the results of the trial were not. Carrier was hanged Aug. 19, 1692.

Grafe and Martin don't dispute the charge. They're convinced Carrier was a witch.

"There are good witches and bad witches," said Grafe, a preschool teacher. "Martha was a good witch, like Glenda."

Residents of Salem, however, made few such distinctions.

At Carrier's trial, Allan Toothaker testified that several of his cattle died after she had cast spells on them. Mary Lacy, accused of witchcraft herself, told the court that Carrier forced her and her children to sign the devil book.

But the charge that sealed Carrier's fate was uttered by her own children. The devil promised to make our mother "Queen of Hell," Richard and Andrew Carrier told the court, after the young men were hog tied and ordered to confess.

For Grafe, it's as if Carrier's story is straight out of the Stephen King novels that thrill her. A figurine of a beaded witch dangles from Grafe's car rearview mirror. "It's for good luck," she said.

Seated at her kitchen table, Grafe excitedly rattles off a list of odd similarities between her family and Carrier.

Growing up outside Boston, Grafe spent summers with her family in Salem. Two of her sisters live on land once owned by Allan Toothaker, the man who testified against Carrier for using witchcraft to kill his cattle.

Fortunately for Grafe, today an animal's death doesn't provoke a charge of witchcraft. Cindy, her great dane, died of cancer. Mushroom, her black cat, ran away. Dum Dum, a parakeet, was left in his cage too close to the stove and was scalded to death by a steaming kettle.

Young boy runs as write-in candidate

By John Enders
Associated Press Writer

FELTON, Calif. — Jason Darnell is running a bootstraps political campaign for Santa Cruz County Supervisor. No matter that the boots are worn by a 60-pound fourth-grader.

With help and encouragement from mom and dad, 9-year-old Jason is running a write-in campaign for the supervisor's job from his kitchen in Felton, a redwoods community 25 miles west of San Jose.

His campaign manager and father, Larry, a film and video producer, said his son is clearly superior to others running for office this year:

— He's never had an affair. In fact, Jason thinks sex is disgusting, his father said.

— He's a big fan of carpooling. He's carpooled all his life, never driven a car and likes trains.

— He believes in recycling and parks.

— He likes broccoli.

And, says his mother, Judy, "He loves the attention."

It all started out as a joke. As Jason and his parents tried to figure out a neat costume for Halloween, they discussed the idea of dressing up as a candidate. Could I really be one? Jason asked, and the idea was born.

Now, Jason is taking his campaign seriously.

He's handing out pamphlets at the grocery story along with buttons that say, "Write In Jason."

And his handlers are presenting him as a more positive alternative in what some observers have described as a mudslinging race between the two official candidates, incumbent supervisor Fred Keeley and challenger Pat Dugan.

"People are pretty much fed up with Keeley and Dugan yelling at each other," Jason said in a recent interview at home in this town of 5,700 in the mountains between San Jose and Santa Cruz.

If he wins, he'll use his big new paychecks to buy a few things, including a Batmobile and a new bike.

Keeley said he admires what Jason is doing. And even though the race between Keeley and Dugan is a close one, Keeley isn't afraid of his youngest challenger.

"I really admire him for his spunk," Keeley said, noting he even has an autographed "Write In Jason" poster in his campaign headquarters.

Universalist Church to show video featuring exploration of Indonesia

■ More religion/8C

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Midland will present a forum featuring a videotape presentation entitled "Ring of Fire: Dance of the Warriors" at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

Robinson

The videotape show Lorne and Lawrence Blair's exploration of Indonesia. On the island of Sumba, the Blairs witnessed a veiled form of human sacrifice by equestrian warriors. Master weavers of magical textiles, the Sumbaese still live by ancient beliefs, ritually keeping the balance between the Merapu gods of the sky above and Nyali, the sea goddess of the world below.

Also, the Rev. John H. Robinson Jr. is the guest speaker at the UU Church Sunday. He will speak on the meaning of randomness.

Robinson is a 1962 graduate of Meadville Theological School, Chicago. He has served churches in Chicago and Wausau, Wis. For the past 19 years, he has been minister of Eliot Unitarian Chapel, Kirkwood, Mo.

Sunday School for children meets at the same time as the forum, from 9:45 to 11 a.m.

In addition, the church is hosting an Adult Religious Education videotape program and discussion on "The Transformation of Myth Through Time" series by Joseph Campbell, volumes 2 and 3, at 7 p.m. Mondays through Dec. 13.

This week's program and discussion will be "The Way to Enlightenment: Buddhism."

The public is invited to attend any of these programs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A confident, positive attitude will take you where you want to go. Your sense of humor persuades someone to work with you. Make the most of your special talents and a promotion will follow. Changing your schedule in early 1993 will help you make more efficient use of your time. Delegate routine tasks in order to focus on creative work. A love relationship that looks shaky in the spring could be stronger than ever by next September.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: TV journalists Jane Pauley and Dan Rather, actor John Candy, actress Dale Evans.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Devoting more time to a favorite hobby or cause gives you a feeling of deep satisfaction. Romance has its ups and downs. Dress elegantly if going out this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friends figure prominently in today's plan. A candid talk gives you a whole new perspective. Leave nothing to chance when arranging a trip. A slip of the tongue could alienate a potential ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): On or off the job, a co-worker is a fun companion. Entertaining influential people buoys your spirits and may have business benefits. Romance is so good that you want to settle down!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Now is not the time to be shy. Step into the public eye and let everyone see what you can do. Your interest in music, dance or sports attracts a new mentor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Flying solo holds few benefits compared to what you can gain through teamwork. Financial assistance comes from an unexpected quarter. Not hearing from someone could be a blessing in disguise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If a case of the blues sets in, make phone calls, invite someone to your home or visit a loving friend. A romance can be both intellectually and emotionally satisfying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You ponder a choice for some time, then end up following your instincts. Excellent! Your intuition is right on target. Spend a fun evening with your loved ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Mingling with optimistic, ambitious people today will help you decide what you want to try next. Get an agreement in writing for your own protection.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your many obligations could make this a very busy day. Try to find time for your own interests while juggling domestic and work responsibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19): Your thoughts could be racing a mile a minute. Slow down and enjoy a pleasant get-together with congenial companions. Stretch your financial resources to cover operating expenses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you feel the urge to break with past restrictions, go ahead and make your move. You could be lucky. It is worth the gamble. Withholding certain information may be wise now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Step off the financial treadmill by thinking carefully before creating any long-term debts. Impulsive credit card purchases will keep that dream home or vacation from becoming reality.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are very interested in the mysteries of life and death. Count on them to enjoy both scary stories and outdoor adventures. Headstrong and determined, these Scorpios usually get what they are after. Urge them to be more diplomatic when suggesting sweeping changes. As students, these Scorpios will be attracted to courses that require independent research or scientific experiments. They insist on making their own decisions. A career in biological science, anthropology or medicine could prove especially rewarding.

Simple question about dignity takes Poitier back to childhood

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — It was a simple question from a teacher of mostly poor, black children, the last question to actor Sidney Poitier during his tribute at the Virginia Festival of American Film.

Poitier

The answer brought Poitier back to his boyhood, and the audience to its feet when he finished answering Thursday night.

"Where does that dignity come from?" asked the teacher who did not identify herself.

Poitier, 65, said it didn't come from this country.

"I grew up in the Caribbean and had a chance to develop a sense of self before the onslaught," Poitier said, referring to the racial prejudice he encountered when coming to America in 1944 as a 16-year-old.

His parents were farmers in a place where blacks were in the majority.

"I had the circumstance to develop a feeling of self without having to deal with racism that early," he said. "I felt good about myself, so I was able to survive without too much damage."

If he had been raised in this country, where people of his age and race were constantly told by society that they were inferior, "I don't know if I would have had the strength to succeed."

The work necessary to "undo" the wounds of racism is enormous, said Poitier, who won an Academy Award for "Lilies of the Field."

SEATTLE — Sergei Khrushchev, son of the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, has taken the first step toward applying for permanent U.S. residency.

"Our countries are not enemies any longer. We are on the same side now," Khrushchev, 57, said in a telephone interview. "I decided to change my life, and I think it will be easier and more convenient for me to do this if I were to have permanent resident status."

Khrushchev filed an application for permanent residency with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, his Seattle-based attorney, Dan Danilov, said Thursday.

Khrushchev, a rocket engineer and computer scientist, is on a two-year exchange program as a senior research fellow at Brown University's Center for Foreign Policy Development in Providence, R.I., where he has been living since last year. He is studying ways to turn Russia's centralized economy into a free-market system.

Khrushchev is perhaps best known for his two books about his father, who was premier during some of the most tense moments of the Cold War, including the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. Nikita Khrushchev was deposed in 1964 and died in 1971.

DENVER — Bob and Anne Burford have been granted a divorce, ending the nearly 10-year marriage of the former political heavyweights.

The couple married on Feb. 20, 1983, in Washington, D.C. They separated April 20, 1991. A judge granted the divorce Thursday.

The Burfords served together in the Colorado Legislature and later held top government jobs in Washington.

During the first two years of the Reagan administration, Anne Burford headed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Bob Burford was the director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management for eight years.

They moved back to Colorado in 1989, settling in southeast Denver.

LOS ANGELES — Sylvester Stallone and his father have written letters disassociating themselves from a man who has allegedly taken the family name and claims he's the actor's brother.

Stallone

Stallone wrote in an Oct. 21 letter that a man calling himself "Sal Stallone" is not a relative.

The actor's father, Frank Stallone Sr., also wrote in a separate document: "The man, as referenced above, is a charlatan. He has no connection with the Stallone family that is so well known to the public."

The letters, distributed to the news media on Thursday, were drafted because a man unknown by them has been using the family name in an effort to influence the entertainment industry, said Stallone spokesman Paul Bloch.

The alleged impostor currently lives in the Nashville area, but Bloch said he has operated in several other cities, including Philadelphia and Detroit.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — John Tesh, a musician and co-host of TV's "Entertainment Tonight," has added a song to an updated version of the perennial album "The Stars Come Out for Christmas."

Tesh plays piano on his original song, "In a Child's Eyes."

The album, being released for the fourth year, also includes songs by Kenny Loggins, Jose Feliciano, Willie Nelson, the Commodores and others.
