SHS 'Dream Team' bags a baker's dozen

Standing ovation; Alejandro top actor

AUSTIN — When Jerry Worsham beams, "We got past a dozen," he's not talking doughnuts.

He's talking state titles.

Snyder High School won a unprecedented 13th State UIL One-Act Play Contest championship here Friday evening, made even more impressive by a packed Bass Concert Hall and a standing ovation.

"We're very excited," understated Worsham, SHS drama director, who has led the program to 26 of its 28 appearances at state

Snyder's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," due to start about 8:30 Friday evening, was delayed until playgoers could get seated.

"There was a large group of Snyder people there and also a number of ex-drama department students," said Worsham. "It was quite a sight."

Snyder High's Kevin Alejandro took home the top Class 4A acting award, the Samuel French Award as best actor. Mark Bullard was named to the All-Star Cast.

"They (the judges) were skimpy in handing out awards, but we got the main one," Worsham said of Alejandro's recognition.

It was a solid day for Alejandro, who Friday morning advanced from the poetry preliminaries in UIL academic competition here. Another "Midsummer Night's Dream" cast member, Katie Thornton, advanced to the finals in prose. Those finals were to be held Saturday.

Others set to compete in academic contests Saturday were Michelle Martin, Sterling Cave and Ellen Strayhorn in accounting; and Tiffany Jones in spelling and vocabulary.

'DREAM TEAM' — Members of Snyder High School's state-winning "Midsummer Night's Dream" troupe are, left to right, front row, Jennifer Hancock, Jannica Northerns, Steve Taylor, Amy Patterson and Michael McQuerry; middle row, Matt Parker, Katie Thornton, Buddy Hilburn, Amanda Carter, Kevin Alejandro, Jiletta Kubena, Josh Palmer, Marc Sparlin, Emily Zeck and Mark Bullard; and third row, Valerie Sanchez, Jennifer Lathem, Robert Nitsch, Ryan Landes, Jared Dennis, John Michel, Greg Jones, Marichka Trach, Gina Bark and Melanie Gibson. Second in the one-act play contest was Hallsville with "Into the Woods." Dallas Wilson's "The UBU Plays" was third.

Snyder drama students were to hear the judge's critique at 10 a.m. Saturday. Parents and others were also being allowed to attend, said Worsham.

Area gets needed rain; Dunn hammered

From local and AP sources

While most of Scurry County welcomed a good rain Friday, Mother Nature got a little out-of-hand in Dunn.

Residents there reported that golf ball-sized hail knocked out windows on the west side of residences and other buildings, damaging roofs, antennas and satellite dishes. The Dunn Baptist Church had 35 window panes broken in a storm residents said lasted about 25 minutes.

Most of the windows which were broken had been boarded up with plywood by early Saturday morning.

Local dispatchers reported numerous 9-1-1 calls which were apparently caused by the thunderstorms. DPS troopers responded to several weather-related accidents.

With the inconvenience and damages came some much-needed rainfall. Dunn received 2 inches, Snyder 1.22, and other areas of the county reported from an inch to 2½ inches.

It was the most significant rain of the year thus far.

The rain is a major benefit to farmers and ranchers, who need moisture to plant cotton and to help resupply stock tanks. Most producers are hoping for another 1½ to 2½.

The National Weather Service has forecast a 50 percent chance of rain for Scurry County on Saturday and a 30 percent chance Sunday. Some storms could be severe and winds are expected to reach 25 miles per hour.

In North Texas, a flash-flood warning was in effect Saturday after thunderstorms dumped 3 to 5 inches of rain Friday night over a large part of the area, including the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

At least eight people were killed in the flash flooding unleashed by the vicious storm.

Thunderstorms continued through daybreak Saturday in parts of West Texas, prompting severe thunderstorm warnings for areas west of Wichita Falls and between Fort Worth and Abilene.

Youth Center work day needs volunteers Sunday

If you weren't able to help during the Snyder Neighbors Sharing work day recently, or maybe you still have the "lend-a-hand" fever, there's a project you might want to look into Sunday.

Scurry Youth Center is in need of volunteers to help paint the interior of the building. All the materials will be provided. Volunteers just need to wear some old clothes.

"We think we can complete the interior in one day if we can get enough help," said Lannie Lee, police chief and youth center board president.

The work effort will begin at 2 p.m. at the center, located at 30th Street and Avenue B.

Scurry Youth Center board formed more than a year ago for purpose of providing a youth center for teen-agers of Scurry County. A few months ago, the group rented property owned by St. Elizabeth Catholic Church. Now, work is being done to the old school building to get it ready for a proposed June opening.

Lee said that sometime in the near future, the board will begin selling memberships to teen-agers. Sponsor memberships will also be sold to adults who wish to support the center, and to businesses.

Anyone interested in the work-day project is invited to participate Sunday. Those interested in memberships or other information concerning the center, should contact Chief Lee.

Thursday at museum...

Button exhibit to open here

Remember playing a fame called "Button, button, who's got the button?"

Everyone uses buttons and some people collect them. Scurry County museum will be exhibiting such a collection beginning Thursday. The traveling exhibit will be on display through June 23.

"Buttons As Art" is the title of the exhibit, on loan from the McHenry Museum in Modesto, Calif. The collection was begin in the 1930s by Hazel R. Doten, a New York fashion designer who also designed some of the pieces.

Buttons in the collection date from 1785 to the 1990s. There are more than 5,000 bottons in 45 framed panels, each with from 45 to 40 buttons. There are also dozens of buttons inspired by paintings, each displayed with a print of the art work.

Clinic lease on commissioners' agenda

Scurry County commissioners will hear a request Monday from St. Mary of the Plains Hospital administrators to lease clinic space at the local medical complex.

Monday's meeting is set for 10 a.m.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of directors approved the lease on April 27 but it cannot be finalized until the commissioners court agrees since the clinic is owned by the county.

St. Mary of the Plains will be renting clinic buildings at 5301 Trinity and 5303 Trinity under a five-year agreement.

The hospital expects some $59,000 yearly from the lease.

In other business, the court will hear a request from Justice of the Peace Charlie Reynolds for an addition part-time employee in his office, consider a request from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce to use Towle Park for the Senior Olympics on May 12 and 13 and for the annual July 4 festivities and reconsider a grant from the state for use at the county health unit.

The court will also consider line item transfers.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Saying what we think provides more conversation than saying what we know."

You may still have time to splurge. We apologize for not getting the word out sooner, but Saturday, May 6, was declared as "International No Diet Day."

The folks at the Dairy Queen won't mind if you're a day late in ordering a banana split with extra topping.

Queen-size for a day may not have the universal appeal of Earth Day or the greeting card or floral support of Mother's Day, but a coalition of size-esteem groups declared May 6 as "International No Diet Day."

The observance was conceived as a protest against weight discrimination, eating disorders and the $40 billion diet industry.

The protest against thin was conceived in England in 1992. U.S. coordinator of the event is a Dallas gal who is publisher of Rump Parliament, a bi-monthly magazine geared toward size-rights activism.

She proclaims that a person's "worth is not inversely proportional to waistline."

The group has even offered some suggestions on how to enjoy the no-diet day.

--Give away all your too-small clothes that you're planning to wear someday when you're thin again.

--Skip diet drinks and diet food. Eat only stuff that tastes sinful.

--Order a large pizza, and don't share.

--Make a fresh batch of chocolate chip cookies while you're waiting for the freezer of ice cream to get hard.

--If you're going to have to do without something, shed guilt.

In order to help soothe the conscious for the ostentatious indulgence, don't drive, but walk to your local DQ.

Base closing personnel eye four Air Logistics Centers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A published report says the base closure commission likely will add Tinker Air Force Base and the four other Air Logistics Centers to its closure list.

"I'd say the probability is 90 percent" that all five bases will be added, Paul Roberson, who heads the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce's drive to protect its area bases, told The Daily Oklahoman.

San Antonio has a base with an Air Logistics Center, as do Warner-Robins, Georgia; Sacramento, Calif.; and Ogden, Utah.

Nickles also said there was speculation the commission will add some of the Undergraduate Pilot Training Centers to its closure list, which could make Vance Air Force Base in Enid vulnerable.

A source close to the delegation said there are widespread expectations that Tinker will be added to the list but that the chances of Vance being added are only "50-50."

Honorary event will benefit scholars, says Barrientos

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos says he's not that excited about being named "governor for a day," but the honor will mean a lot to about 40 Central Texas students.

When Barrientos, D-Austin, is honored Saturday, lobbyists will foot the bill for the event. But much of the money will go to scholarships for 40 Central Texas high school seniors.

"The best thing I can do in the short time that I 'serve' as governor is to plant a few seeds for the future," said Barrientos, who recalled when he arrived at the University of Texas in the 1960s. He said he had three strikes against him: he was poor, his first name was Gonzalo, and he was poor.

"I just remember when I first came here from Bastrop how much a little help would have been appreciated," Barrientos said. "The main obstacle to a young person continuing their college education is money.

Crops team wins state again

They have done it again!

Snyder Future Farmers of America (FFA) crops team has won the state FFA contest held recently at Texas Tech University. This win marks the team's second consecutive first place.

Team members Amanda Wells, Brady Collier, Melissa Cole and Chris Thomas, outdistanced the second place team by 400 points.

Wells was the high individual in the state contest followed by Thomas, third; Collier, fourth; and Cole, seventh.

These same four repeated last year's undefeated season by placing first at West Texas A&M University and Clarendon College and by winning the district, area and state contests.

Team coaches are David Frazier and Bob Hand, agricultural science teachers.

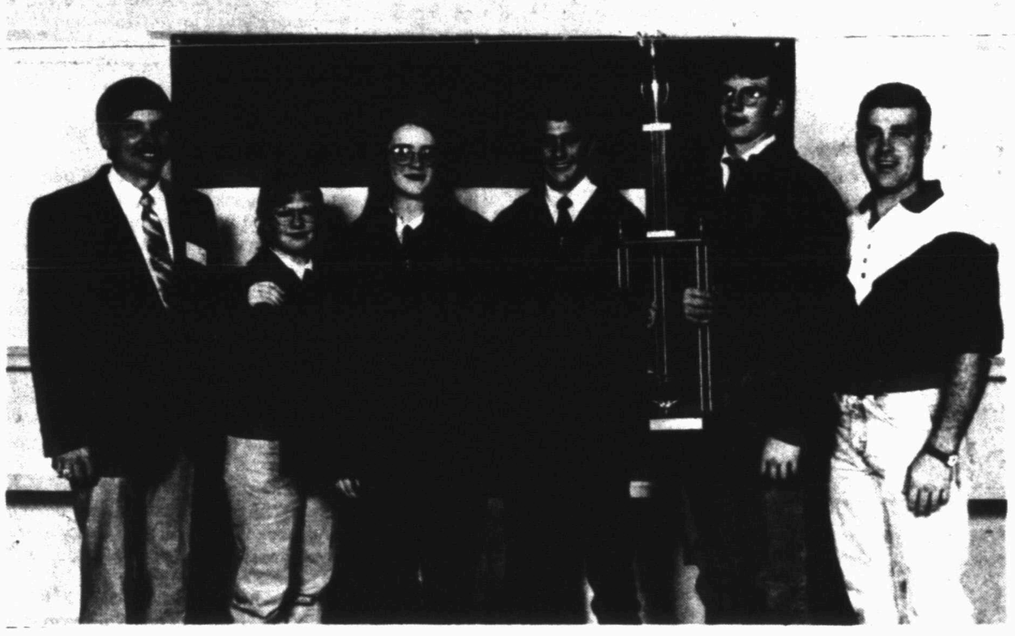

Also competing and placing in the state contest was the entomology team of Clark Church, Shayla Jeter, Mark Cave, Melissa Myers and Paul Cooley, alternate.

This team finished their season by placing first in the district, sixth in area and ninth in the state contest. Church was the 12th high individual in the state meet.

The horse team — Kerry Nachlinger, Shelley York, Shawn Purcell and Shelly Englert — finished another successful season as the 10th place team in the state.

Their other honors include first in district and area and third at Texas Tech University.

These four will next compete in the World Paint Horse Show in Reno, Nev. this summer.

Can remove referendum

AUSTIN (AP) — The author of a bill to allow Texans to carry concealed handguns says he has enough support to remove a provision that would give voters a say in the matter.

Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, said Friday he expects he will have no problem removing the referendum when a conference committee meets to work out differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill.

"We have the votes to take it out, and that's the right thing to do," Patterson said.

The bill, which would allow Texans to obtain licenses to carry concealed guns, was overwhelmingly approved by the Senate in March. But the House, in passing the measure Monday, made several changes, including adding the nonbinding referendum.

The statewide referendum would not affect the bill's implementation and would be held on Nov. 7, even though the bill is scheduled to take effect on Sept. 1 if approved by the Legislature.

However, some have suggested that lawmakers would have no choice but to overturn the law if voters were to reject the gun bill in such a referendum.

Patterson said just two legislators on the 10-member conference committee favor the referendum, and another is neutral.

Dole asked to allow Senate vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole should "heed the just and reasonable voices" of other Republicans and allow the full Senate to vote on surgeon general nominee Henry Foster, Dole's Democratic counterpart said Friday.

"If some special-interest groups want to oppose Dr. Foster, so be it. If some senators agree with this view, that is their right. The Constitution gives the Senate the final say on this matter, and we are prepared to accept its verdict," Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle wrote to Dole, in a letter also signed by Foster supporter Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash.

"But that verdict should have the opportunity to be rendered. A man with his career and dedication to public service deserves no less."

Dole, who is running for president, has suggested he might not call the nomination up for a vote even if the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee gives Foster a favorable recommendation.

Gladewater official found guilty

GILMER (AP) — A member of the Gladewater City Council was convicted of kidnapping on Friday, despite the contention he was trying to prevent a crime.

Jay Finley and fellow Gladewater resident James Wayne McKinely, both 35, were accused of abducting of Louis Towery on July 10. McKinley has yet to be tried.

Prosecutors said Finley and McKinley forced Towery into their car and took him to the Union Grove cemetery, where they tied him to a tree. Police later found and freed him.

Awards presented to Central students

Central Elementary students recently received awards during an all school assembly. Awards included poster contest, Positive Action Super Kids and Unit Recognition Awards. The Unit-VI theme was "Improving Yourself Continually Using Positive Actions."

Positive action classrooms were also named for April. Classrooms must earn four or more tokens to qualify.

Entertainment was provided by students in Molly Kattes' and Betty Thompson's classes. The program was entitled, "Salute to the United States of America." Primary characters were Alexander Hamilton played by Blake Grimmett; George Washington, Bryan Huddleston; James Madison, Jeremy Mey; and Dr. Johnson, Austin McCormack.

The closing number was "This Is America."

The following Junior Olympics poster winners received the Principal's Award Certificates: Peter Perez, third grade winner; and Dustin Orsak, overall winner for the second and third grade.

Classrooms receiving tokens for April include June Holcomb, Paula Bowden, Josefina Velasquez, Deborah Judah, Florence Lewis, Judy Moss, Betty Thompson, Judy Barkowsky, Stanley Cozart, Ann Cross, Kathy Moore and Kathy Spoor.

Third grade Super Kids include Cesar Rodriguez, Tanner Reed, Kyle Bryan, Kelby Drum, Dillon McElvaine, Corey Longorio, Ty Collier, Hollie Lammert, Ashley Frederick, Candance Gordon, Thomas Baldwin, Gretchen Hollis and Kristel Fitts.

Unit Recognition Awards were presented to Roxy Scott, Gloria Benitez and Joseph McGough, all kindergarten; and Tonya Robles, Monica Capetillo and Noe Ruiz, all first graders.

Jobless increase raises recession fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp rise in unemployment in April and the first decline in new jobs in more than two years are sparking fears of recession.

The Clinton administration and private analysts said the deteriorating labor picture was cause for concern, although few predicted the economy was headed for a tailspin.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the nation's jobless rate jumped from 5.5 percent in March to 5.8 percent last month, pushing unemployment back to where it was in September.

The number of payroll jobs fell by 9,000, the first decline since a 52,000 decrease in March 1993.

"The Federal Reserve should immediately reduce interest rates by at least one-half percent to counter the growing rise of stagnation, or worse, another recession," said Lawrence Chimerine of the Economic Strategy Institute, a think tank here.

"The report shows the economy is slowing. It's premature to talk about a recession," said Carl Palash of MCM Moneywatch, a New York City forecasting service.

The labor figures caught analysts by surprise and rattled Wall Street.

The Dow Jones industrial average plunged 30 points in early trading, recovered and then headed down again. The Dow Jones industrial average was off about 15 points in midafternoon.

Bond traders were gleeful, as the Treasury's benchmark 30-year bond soared and sent its yield down to a 13-month low of 7.01 percent by early afternoon. It was the biggest one-day rally in the bond market in nine months, fueled by investors convinced inflation is in check.

The Federal Reserve has raised a key short-term interest rate seven times to slow last year's robust growth and squelch inflation. The goal is a "soft landing" to forestall the boom from turning into a bust.

"The job market is cooling off considerably," said economist Norman Robertson of Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. "Unfortunately, a soft landing in an economy of this size and complexity is not an easy task to accomplish."

The April labor picture was muddied by special factors. There had been unusual job gains in March due to unusually mild weather, making April's job growth appear weaker than normal.

Also, the Labor Department measured employment over a four-week period last month, instead of a five-week interval that has applied in the last three Aprils. And a supermarket strike in Northern California took about 25,000 workers off the rolls.

"It's obviously disappointing," said Labor Secretary Robert Reich. "I'm concerned but not distraught. If you're an unemployed worker or tottering on the brink, this is bad news. We cannot be complacent about it."

The Labor Department also said that job growth in March was less robust than an earlier estimate. It revised its figure to show 177,000 new jobs were created instead of 203,000.

Most analysts had expected the April job picture to duplicate March's performance. The increase in the jobless rate was the largest since January.

1995 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Astro-graph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, May 7, 1995

In the year ahead, you can utilize many of the lessons you've learned from painful past experiences. Your new wisdom will contribute to your success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your enthusiasm will be contagious today and you will find others prepared to go along with your ideas, provided they are not too self-serving. Do not try to sell them on things that won't benefit them. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a moment of compassion today, you might agree to do something for a friend, only to decide that it's too much trouble later. Keep any promises you make today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are in need of financial or business advice today, don't go to a friend who will tell you what he/she thinks you want to hear. You need an honest opinion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you fail to equally share the rewards of something you're involved in with others, it could turn your allies into enemies. Resist any greedy impulses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Just because you might experience some lucky breaks, it would be foolish to reject functional plans. A reverse trend could develop from these changes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is one of those times when it might be better to do business with strangers than with friends. Pals could make you feel guilty if you drive a hard bargain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might repeat a past mistake if you follow the advice of a counselor who advised you poorly in the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might not have much luck in competitive developments today because of your lack of focus on what you're doing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you want to take financial chances today, that's okay. You mustn't bring others into the picture, however and encourage them to risk their money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) No matter how nice you try to be to certain individuals today, you're not apt to evoke respect or a grateful response. Don't knock yourself out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a very thin line today between constructive criticism and just plain old criticism. Unfortunately, you might not be able to tell which is which.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might find it much easier to spend money than to save it today. Unfortunately, this will produce a few regrets later.

1995 by NEA Inc.

Your Birthday

Monday, May 8, 1995

Several unimpressive situations might come together in the year ahead to produce a significant source of income for you. Never underestimate the power of combinations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to make important decisions in either haste or anger today. Both of these culprits could distort your judgment and cause complications. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to remain flexible in your thinking today, especially with co-workers. There is a possibility you may provoke someone who has equally rigid views.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're contemplating a large purchase today, make sure it's something you positively cannot get along without. You might suffer buyer's remorse later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even persons who like you might be reluctant to support you today if you demand things rather than remembering to ask politely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your problems could be compounded today if you try to blame others for your shortcomings. Strive to create amicable relationships instead of seeking scapegoats.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Spell out what everyone's contribution should be if coordinating a new activity with friends today. It will prove the best way to avoid hard feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Other people's selfish thinking could prove a stumbling block today. You aren't likely to find anyone willing to cooperate without offering substantial rewards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Prepare to make prompt adjustments in your plans today if they don't work out as you anticipated. Responding to early signals could cut your losses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid exposing your ideas to an individual today who has previously picked your concepts apart. For a fair evaluation, seek someone without an ax to grind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely careful delegating authority today. Do not bring someone in as a decision maker if you know from experience that his/her judgment is questionable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It could prove counterproductive today to let an old grudge influence the way you behave. The past is the past, and you'd be better off erasing the slate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Resist the temptation to go deeper into debt today if you have a choice between buying something new or paying off an old obligation.

Delagates urge saving SS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegates to the White House Conference on Aging exhorted Congress on Friday to keep an old contract — the one America made with its seniors decades ago in Social Security and Medicare.

The meeting dominated by Democrat-picked delegates emphasized preserving the country's social safety net, not just for America's 37 million seniors, "but for all generations to come."

They demanded that Medicaid, the health system for the poor, be preserved as an entitlement, not converted into block grants of money to the states, until Congress enacts "a universal health care plan which includes long-term care."

And they rallied behind the Older Americans Act, the 30-year-old program that provides Meals on Wheels, home services and a host of other help for the elderly.

Their top priority, backed by 1,595 of the 2,200 delegates who cast ballots, was "keeping social Security sound, now and for the future," and avoiding any means test for benefits.

Almost 1,200 delegates endorsed an AFL-CIO-backed resolution to "oppose massive cuts soon to be considered in Congress" in Medicare and Medicaid. Hundreds came from unions and seniors' organizations.

Financial Focus

I recently received a call from an investor who wanted to know how the stock market's current performance was affecting his investments. After I learned that his investments were insured tax-free bonds, I asked some specific questions: Do you still receive the regular income checks that you were promised? Yes. Have your investment objectives changed? No. Do you want to sell your bonds and stop receiving this regular income? No.

Even though the daily fluctuations of the stock market were small, the investor panicked at every movement. On top of that, he did not understand that bonds are affected by interest rate fluctuations, not the stock market. When the media reported a decrease in the market, this investor was afraid that soon his investment and its income would disappear.

Unfortunately, many investors are unnecessarily plagued by similar concerns. If anything negative occurs in the markets or the economy, they want to sell their securities and move the money to what may appear to be safer (and often more popular) ground. Louis Rukeyser calls such investors "butterflies," flitting to the flower of the moment.

However, to achieve success, investors might be better off following the example of the turtle, which doesn't move around very much but generally manages to live a long life through all kinds of weather.

Individuals who identify their objectives and carefully select a diversity of investments can avoid having to move money around in response to changing conditions. Of course, a major change in financial objectives--for example, moving from your working years to retirement--can be good cause for restructuring.

The late Paul Cabot, co-founder of State Street Investment Corp., the nation's second-oldest mutual fund, was a proponent of long-term investing. He believed that focusing on long-term trends, not short-term speculation, was the only way to give individual investors a fair chance.

State Street Investment Corp. faced turbulent times in its early years--the 1929 stock market crash, the Great Depression, World War II and more. Yet no investor who held shares of the fund for 10 years ever lost money--a remarkable testament to long-term investing.

Securities markets move up and down, interest rates fluctuate, economies go through cycles--and investment performance changes, too. As long as the companies and agencies underlying your investments remain sound, and your financial objectives stay the same, short-term fluctuations should not alter your investment strategy.

"Butterflies" who flit from one hot investment to another often wind up getting cooked. Turtles, on the other hand, are patient, steady and not so sensitive to changing conditions--a good lesson for successful investing.

Fund-raising letter's content is 'unfortunate' officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic fund-raising committee letter that accused House Speaker Newt Gingrich of embracing terrorist policies was "unfortunate and inappropriate," a committee spokeswoman acknowledges.

On Friday, Gingrich rebuked the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee's chairman, Rep. Martin Frost of Texas, for the letter and requested an apology.

The letter, signed by Frost, referred to Gingrich as "one of the most dangerous figures to emerge in American politics during our lifetime."

In a later section, Frost wrote of Gingrich: "He calls himself a revolutionary but he promotes the policies of a terrorist by backing legislation that will eliminate anti-drug programs for America's youth."

Gingrich penned his own letter in response, asking President Clinton to tell Frost to refrain from similar "hateful speech" in the future.

In the aftermath of the April 19 Oklahoma City bombing, Clinton denounced the "purveyors of hatred and division" who sow discontent and paranoia in society.

In his letter to Clinton, Gingrich wrote: "In light of your comments encouraging an end to hateful speech ... claiming that I 'promote the policies of a terrorist' clearly goes against your publicly stated intentions."

Gingrich termed the terrorist accusation "not only completely false, but highly irresponsible and inappropriate."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said Clinton had not been aware of Frost's letter.

"We're going to find out more about it, we're looking into the circumstances," McCurry said. "But it strikes the president as the sort of thing that we ought to tone down as we move into a campaign year."

Frost, who became chairman of the House Democrats' main fund-raising committee last December, was out of town and not available for comment, said DCCC spokeswoman Tricia Primrose. She said she was not aware whether Frost intended to apologize for the letter, which first went out three weeks before the bombing.

House adopts amendment for prayer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has added a school-prayer amendment to the state education overhaul bill.

Supporters of the amendment, tacked onto the bill late Friday, hope to assure students a right to pray aloud in public schools, even in groups, as long as the prayer does not disrupt school activities.

In another late-night action, the House also endorsed a proposal to require school districts to provide for a period of silence at the beginning of the first class of each school day during which a student may reflect or meditate. The period could not exceed one minute.

As brought to the House, the bill would have specified that students have a constitutional right to "individually, voluntarily and silently" pray or meditate.

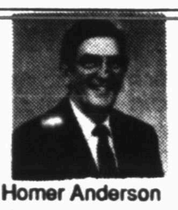

Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, amended the bill, with Sadler's support, to delete the words "individually, voluntarily and silently."

The bill also originally said a person may not "require, encourage or coerce" a student to engage in, or refrain from, such prayer or meditation during any school activity. Ogden's amendment removed the word "encourage."

Ogden said he wanted to make sure students who want to pray together out loud are afforded that right.

Rep. Ted Kamel, R-Tyler, was among those who voiced support for Ogden's proposal, asking whether two students who chose to read the Bible aloud outside during the lunch break could be prevented from doing so under the bill's original language.

THE WAY OF TRUTH

Homer Anderson

Paul teaches us that all scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works (2 Tim. 3:16-17). He warns that the time will come when men "will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Tim. 4:3-4).

So long as we follow Christ and His teaching, we will be walking in the way of truth. Let us abandon the creeds of men, for fallible men cannot give us the truth. Only Christ can reveal unto us the "faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints (Jude 3). To live successfully I must conform my life to His truth. I must know it and let it guide me in everything I do. I must not depend upon my own ideas or wishes for direction, but upon His truth.

Senate GOP proposes stripped down plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans proposed a stripped-down compromise Friday after their failure to get a final vote on far-reaching legislation to overhaul the civil legal system.

The GOP failed in two successive votes Thursday to cut off debate on the legislation, which would limit punitive damage awards in all civil lawsuits and establish a nationwide system of liability laws. They wound up 13 votes short of the 60 they needed.

The compromise was proposed by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, whose amendment to limit punitive damages in all civil litigation greatly broadened the original product-liability bill, and by Sen. Paul Coverdell, R-Ga. A vote was planned for Monday or Tuesday.

President Clinton threatened Thursday to veto the expanded legislation.

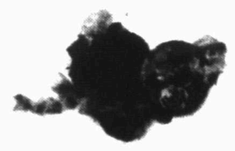

"The reality is that we cannot bring this debate to a close without bipartisan support," Dole said on the Senate floor. "Reform won't happen unless the Democrats put the interests of the American people ahead of the interests of the trial lawyers."

Spokesmen for Sens. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., authors of the original product-liability bill, didn't immediately return telephone calls seeking comment.

Rockets stay alive with 123-106 win over Jazz

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets tricked the Utah Jazz again.

Luring the Jazz into an uptempo game for the second time, Hakeem Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler became the third teammates in NBA playoff history to each score at least 40 points in a game as the Rockets won 123-106 Friday night, tying the series 2-2.

Drexler scored 27 of his 41 points in the second half and Olajuwon had 27 of his 40 in the first half as the Rockets avoided the embarrassment of being the first defending champion to be eliminated in the first round since 1984.

"Hakeem told me we should each score 50," Drexler said. "I said we should just win the game."

Houston also used a big offensive game for a 140-126 victory in Game 2.

Olajuwon had 18 first-quarter points that put the Rockets in command and they never allowed the Jazz to get into the game. Drexler had 12 second-quarter points and continued the shooting assault in the second half.

Now it comes down to one game on Sunday to see who advances to the Western Conference semifinals against the Phoenix Suns. If the Rockets win, it will be a rematch of last year's semifinals.

"Game 5 will be very interesting," Olajuwon said. "We have the experience, we have the confidence. Nothing is guaranteed but we are in a good position. We still have to go to it and we have to show patience and maturity.

"They cannot stop us if we do what we're supposed to do. This is the kind of game I like to play."

Houston shot 70.4 percent in the first half and finished at 57 percent. They hit their first 11 free throws, were 15-for-16 at halftime and finished 38-for-47 at the line.

"Those guys were really rolling," Utah forward Antoine Carr said. "When a team passes the ball like that and every shot is falling we realized it's a problem.

"I don't think our intensity was high enough. Our fans will be pumped on Sunday and we'll have to do a much better job defensively. You can't give 80 points to two players and expect to win."

Olajuwon put on a show in the first half, hitting jumpers, turnarounds and a jump hook. Drexler had only two points in the first quarter before warming to the shooting display.

"We had two guys with great games but this was a total team win," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "We attacked the basket a lot more today than we did the last game. Forty-seven free throws showed how well we went to the basket."

Houston led 67-51 at halftime and held a 99-78 lead at the start of the fourth quarter.

Karl Malone led the Jazz with 31 points and John Stockton added 26 points and 11 assists.

It was the second double-40 game for Olajuwon, who scored 41 as Sleepy Floyd scored 42 against Dallas in 1988. In the only other double-40, Elgin Baylor had 45 and Jerry West 41 for the Los Angeles Lakers in 1962.

The Rockets maintained a reputation as a comeback team. The victory gives them a 6-1 record in elimination games over the past three seasons, including 3-0 in last season's title run.

"They just scored a lot of points," Malone said. "I didn't see any change that they did to us. That's why we're not going to change anything. As a player, you can't change what you are doing.

"I've been doing the same thing for 10 years and I'm not going to let one game change the way I play on Sunday."

Krone looks to make mark at Derby

Timber Country and Serena's Song are early favorites at 121st running

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Julie Krone has the patience of Pat Day, the instincts of Mike Smith and the horse of Nick Zito.

And Zito says that gives her the best chance for victory of any of the other three women who have ridden in the Kentucky Derby.

"She's very intelligent. She knows everything that's going on in a race," Zito said. "She rides distances very well because of that intelligence. She keeps a horse out of trouble.

"She is a lot like Pat Day or Mike Smith. If you had to compare styles, it'd be with those two, I think."

Zito goes for his third Derby victory in five years today with the team of Suave Prospect and Krone. The Derby is Krone's second. She rode Ecstatic Ride to a 14th-place finish in 1992.

This horse is different.

"I galloped him this morning," Krone said Friday, "and he's a horse sitting on a win, I'm sure of that. And since Nick already has won two Derbies, I feel even better."

The other women riders in the Derby were Diane Crump in 1970 (15th on Fathom), Patricia Cooksey in 1984 (11th on So Vague) and Andrea Seefeldt in 1991 (16th on Forty Something).

Krone actually was Zito's third choice to ride Suave Prospect. Earlier in the spring, Zito decided that whoever rode the horse in the Blue Grass on April 15 would ride in the Derby. Suave Prospect's regular jockey, Jerry Bailey, was committed to another horse in another race that day, and Chris Antley, who also rides regularly for Zito, was in California.

So, Zito turned to Krone, who has been riding for him off and on since 1987, and she rode Suave Prospect to a second-place finish behind Wild Syn at Keeneland.

"It makes me feel special to ride this horse," Krone said, "but I know I wasn't the first choice."

Zito said he began riding Krone on some of his horses as soon as she came to New York from Monmouth and the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

"I put her on quite a few horses right off the bat, and we got lucky right away," Zito said.

Nineteen horses were entered for the Derby, including the favored entry of 1994 2-year-old champion Timber Country and the filly Serena's Song, both trained by D. Wayne Lukas. Lukas has a third horse in the race, Thunder Gulch, who also has a chance.

Others among the top contenders were Wood Memorial winner Talkin Man, a Canadian-bred; Afternoon Deelites, undefeated until finishing second in the Santa Anita Derby; the English-bred Jumron, a hard-charging third in the Santa Anita Derby; and Eltish, second in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile here last Nov. 5 to Timber Country.

Zito's first Derby winner was Strike the Gold in 1991, and he won again last year with Go for Gin. A third win in five years would equal a feat accomplished only by Hall of Famer Ben Jones, who did it in 1948 with Citation, 1949 with Ponder and 1952 with Hill Gail.

While her other Derby mount didn't come close to winning, Krone does have experience in the Triple Crown winner's circle. She won the Belmont Stakes in 1993 with Colonial Affair, and she likes the idea of teaming with Zito at the Derby.

"I can't think of anybody better to go to the Derby with than Nick Zito," she said.

"Nick is quite a character. He puts everybody at ease with his remarks. It's very refreshing to me. He's got a wonderful sense of humor and a wonderful way with people."

State tournament begins Monday for Lady Tigers

AUSTIN — One of the goals at the top of the Snyder Lady Tiger golf teams list was to beat Andrews this season.

The Lady Tigers accomplished that goal last week at the regional meet, as they beat the Lady Mustangs by 13 strokes to advance to the state tournament to be held Monday and Tuesday at the Jimmy Clay golf course.

Now, Snyder must repeat its performance at the state level.

Andrews earned its latest trip to the state tournament via a second place finish at regionals. Going into the regional meet, held at the Riverside Golf Club in San Angelo, the Lady Mustangs had won regionals 11 of the previous 13 times.

After winning the region, Snyder head coach Matt Glenn said that beating Andrews was one of the sweetest feelings in the world.

If the Lady Tigers can beat them a second time, it could prove to be an even better feeling.

The Snyder girls golf team is slated to Monday. Teammembers include Brooke Kubena, Kelli Lacik, Kayla Drain, Brooke Lowrance and Daysha Weaver.

C'City Basketball Tournament

Colorado City Project Celebration, coinciding with high school graduation, has scheduled a basketball tournament May 13.

The team admission fee, which is due on the day of the tournament, is $50. Up to 10 players are allowed per team.

Teams must register by May 10.

For more information call 728-2984 or 728-3259.

Rangers top A's, 9-4

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Bob Tewksbury won for the first time with Texas, and Mickey Tettleton and Benji Gil homered as the Rangers beat the Oakland Athletics 9-4 Friday night in baseball's return to the site of the final game before the strike.

The A's, offering children's tickets for $1 all season, drew 35,132 to their home opener, the first game at the Coliseum since Aug. 11. Oakland played Seattle that night in the final game before the eight-month labor dispute that wiped out the rest of last season. Last season's home opener drew 40,551.

Apparently, the crowd was in a forgiving mood, at least during pregame introductions when the players drew mostly cheers. Some A's players were stationed at gates to welcome incoming fans, calendars were handed out and there was a post-game fireworks show.

There was a brief delay in the bottom of the fifth when some fans in the left field seats threw paper airplanes and toilet paper on the field. The littering stopped after a warning by the public address announcer and play resumed within five minutes.

Tewksbury (1-0), who joined Texas as a free agent after spending the previous six seasons with St. Louis, became the first Rangers starter to record a victory this season. He allowed six hits and two runs — one earned — in seven innings while walking none and striking out one.

Tettleton put the Rangers up 7-1 with his fourth homer of the year, a fifth-inning shot into the right field seats that chased starter Steve Ontiveros. Tettleton's drive was preceded by Jeff Frye's single and Rusty Greer's double.

Ontiveros (1-1), last year's AL ERA leader, was tagged for seven runs on 11 hits in four-plus innings.

Gil homered to start the third and contributed an RBI single during a three-run burst in the fourth.

Tettleton began the third with a single, took third on Dean Palmer's single and scored on a double-play grounder by Ivan Rodriguez. Mike Pagliarulo then doubled and scored on on a single by Mark McLemore, who took second on the throw. He scored when Gil followed with a single.

Oakland scored in the fourth when Rodriguez dropped Mark McGwire's popup in front of the plate for an error, allowing Ruben Sierra to score from second base.

IRA ATHLETIC ABANQUET — Ira held its annual athletic awards banquet recently. Among those awarded for their performances on the field were boys Most Valuable Players, from left, Scott Strong (Football), Heath Mathis (Basketball and Baseball), Ociel Castelan (Powerlifting) and Todd Collom (Track). Girls MVP awards went to Rikki Wilkes (Track) and Jennifer Northcott (Basketball). Gale Northcott was named Ira Fan of the Year and Eddie Brasuel and Jennifer Rankin were the Hero and Sweetheart recipients. (Photos by Becky Hudgins)

Top New Mexico recruit, Smith, signs with Western Texas College

HOBBS, N.M. — One of the top prep baskeball players in New Mexico, Adrienne "Toot" Smith, has signed a national letter of intent to play basketball for the Western Texas College Lady Westerners.

Smith, who will graduate from Hobbs High School at the end of the month, is one of the players WTC head coach Brenda Welch-Nichols has had her eye on for a long time.

"Toot is quite an exciting young lady both to watch play basketball and to know," Nichols said. "I'm really looking forward to having her aboard."

Smith has distinguished herself as an outstanding student and a blue chip basketball player.

Among her long list of basketball accomplishments is her selection to the New Mexico North/South All-Star team, a place on the All-State team and a spot on the BCI All-Star team in Phoenix, Ariz. (along with fellow recruit Stacy Hinson). Smith was also a first team All-District pick and a member of several all-tournament teams.

As a senior, she averaged 22 points, 14 rebounds and three steals for coaches Fred Salgado and Pam Knight.

She joins Hobbs teammate Angelica Brooks on Coach Nichols' growing list of recruits.

Smith has compiled a list of academic accolades, as well. She was in the top 10 percent of New Mexico high school students and competed on her district's All-Academic team.

"Toot will help elevate the spirit and game of basketball at WTC to a new level," Nichols said. "Look for her to bring a new meaning to Lady Westerner basketball."

Smith is the daughter of Margie Henry and R.L. Smith of Hobbs, N.M. and plans to pursue a law degree.

Williams commits to play at HSU

ABILENE — In an attempt to solidify her team's post position, which was hit hard due to graduation, Hardin-Simmons University head basketball coach Julie Goodenough was hunting for a few good players.

She seems to have found what she was looking for in Snyder's Vanessa Williams.

Williams, a 6-0 senior forward, orally committed recently to play basketball for Coach Goodenough and the Cowgirls.

"We are graduating a big senior class," Goodenough said. "We needed a post replacement who wouldn't be afraid to bang down low. Plus, Vanessa is a good shooter."

Coach Goodenough, who played basketball at Western Texas College as Julie Roewe from 1987-89, said she is looking forward to having a Snyderite on the team.

"Anytime you can bring a local player into the program, it can only be a plus," Goodenough said. "Of course, it doesn't hurt when that player has the kind of talent Vanessa has."

Vanessa Williams

As a senior, Williams averaged six points and five rebounds per game for the Lady Tigers.

"I think Vanessa can develop into a really good college player if given the right chance," Snyder head coach Steve Qualls said. "She has the tools it takes to become a solid contributor. I think that playing for a new coach in a new environment will be a positive change. She'll have the opportunity to concentrate on basketball and school and nothing else."

Williams received the Snyder Fighting Tigers Award for the 1994-95 basketball season.

She joins a program that has experienced nothing but success recently. In each of the last three seasons, the Cowgirls have won the conference crown. The last two years, Hardin-Simmons has reached the NAIA national tournament, finishing fifth two years ago and 23rd last season.

Vanessa is the daughter of Danny Ray and Vicky Williams of Snyder.

Hobbs guard brings leadership skills to Western Texas College

HOBBS, N.M. — In her attempt to lure the top basketball players in the region to Western Texas College, Head Coach Brenda Welch-Nichols announced recently that Angelica "Gela" Brooks has signed on with the Lady Westerners.

Brooks, a 5-8 guard, inked a national letter of intent to begin her college basketball career in Snyder at WTC.

"Gela will bring great excitement to both the Lady Westerner team and its fans," Nichols said. "She is an outstanding passer. We look for her to dish out assists left and right. She can really create in the open court."

As a senior at Hobbs High School, Brooks averaged 10.7 points, four rebounds and four assists per contest for coaches Fred Salgado and Pam Knight.

Brooks' list of honors includes being selected to several all tournament teams.

She was an academic national merit scholar in english, as well.

Brooks is the daughter of Billy and Donna Baker of Hobbs, N.M. and plans to major in pharmacy.

Card Of Thanks

Thank You

The family of Bruce Beall wish to express their sincere gratitude to all the firemen and friends who showed their love through cards, food, flowers, and prayers in our time of need.

Deborah, Jack, Melissa, Tara & Hailey Beall, Brent Beall, and Dorothy Lavender

Thanks

We want to take this opportunity to thank all the wonderful people that are helping us through our loss of Tom Ed. A very special thank you goes to Dr. Dillaha. God bless you all.

The Wilson Family

Thank You

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends and relatives and a special thanks to the employees of Snyder Oaks Care Center who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement and also thank them for the beautiful floral offerings.

The Family of Leora Partain

Busy 24 hours for law officers

Dispatchers at the sheriff's office had a busy day Friday as they answered numerous 9-1-1 calls that were apparently caused by the thunderstorms that moved through the county Friday afternoon.

Sixteen-year-old Stacey Renee Taylor was involved in a one-vehicle accident that was investigated by the DPS at 7:38 a.m. Friday. The accident occurred some 11.7 miles west of Snyder on FM 1606 in which the 1982 GMC pickup which Taylor was driving overturned. She was not injured in the accident.

Troopers also investigated a one-vehicle accident at 2:28 p.m. Friday some six miles west of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84.

Involved was a 1994 White truck/tractor driven by 37-year-old Guillermo Buiton of Corpus Christi. There were no injuries reported.

DPS troopers investigated an early morning wreck Saturday that occurred near the Scurry-Garza county line on U.S. Highway 84 at 4:52 a.m.

Involved was a 1981 Chevrolet driven by George Deleon, 18, of Crosbyton. Deleon was northbound on the highway when he ran off the road and hit a culvert. He was transported to Cogdell Hospital by EMS where he was being treated in the emergency room for his injuries at 9:30 Saturday morning. He was not expected to be hospitalized.

DPS troopers also investigated a report from the Colorado City police department of a car washed off the road near Dunn at 2:53 p.m. Friday. The DPS reported electic lines down some two miles north of Dunn at 3:20 p.m. Also, DPS troopers assisted the occupants of two vehicles who were stuck off the road some two miles easts of Dunn on U.S. Highway 84 around 3:25 p.m.

City officers investigated two accidents within the city limits Friday and assisted a motorist in a stalled vehicle who was in the underpass near Wilson Motors at 3:13 p.m. Friday.

In other activity Friday, deputies were called to the Inadale Community Center at 9:38 a.m. in reference to a person sleeping outside the center.

A woman notified deputies at 11:30 a.m. Friday in reference to someone stealing items from her residence on County Road 4126.

A woman called the police department at 12:34 p.m. Friday in reference to someone stealing a typewriter from the Pal-O-Mar Motel. A report of Class B theft was submitted.

Officers responded to a 9-1-1 hang up call from a residence in the 3100 block of Avenue T at 4:45 p.m. The caller later said he was programming numbers into a phone and wanted to see if it worked.

Officers responded to a reported theft at 6:54 p.m. from an automobile in the 2900 block of Avenue T.

Officers were called to Skinny's on 37th Street at 10:17 p.m. Friday in reference to a possible fight. No assault had occurred but an offense report for Class B criminal mischief was reported.

Officers were called to the IGA parking lot at 11:23 p.m. Saturday in reference to an harassment report.

A report for Class B assault was submitted at 12:23 Saturday morning in reference to a landlord assaulting a renter.

One arrest was made early Saturday as an 18-year-old man was arrested on U.S. Highway 84 shortly after 5 a.m. Saturday and charged with misdemeanor driving while intoxicated.

Lotto winner claims check

AUSTIN (AP) — A Denton man has claimed the first installment in a half share of the $36,861,726.74 Lotto Texas jackpot won from a May 3 draying.

Bill Wilson, the general manager of the "5395 Partners Ltd.," collected a $922,363.37 check Friday from the Texas Lottery Commission. The ticket was purchased at a 7-Eleven store in Denton.

Each ticket is worth $36,861,726.74, to be split into equal annual installments over the next 20 years.

A second winning ticket was bought at a Big Diamond store in San Antonio. A group of players is expected to present the ticket for validation in Austin Monday morning.

Each of the retailers is entitled to receive a 1 percent winning ticket bonus, equalling $184,308.63 for each store.

Two not found

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Shattered and ugly, the bombed-out federal building will stand for a while as a monument to the two women whose bodies could not be removed from the rubble.

Christi Rosas and Virginia Thompson were the newest employees of a credit union on the third floor of the Alfred P. Murrah building. Of the 29 people working in the office the day of the bombing, 18 — all of them women — did not survive.

"They found all of my girls but two," said Florence Rogers, their boss at the Federal Employees Credit Union.

Rogers herself barely survived the April 19 blast. When she regained consciousness, she found herself on an 18-inch ledge, all that remained of her office. The seven employees who had gathered for a meeting were gone. All were later found dead.

Lower blood fat levels for good health

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is hyperlipidemia? Is there a cure for this condition or can it be controlled?

DEAR READER: There are two major blood fats: cholesterol and triglycerides. Hyperlipidemia simply means that these fats are elevated. Experts recommend that cholesterol not exceed about 200 milligrams per deciliter; the upper range of normal for triglycerides is 150 mg/dL.

There are many causes of hyperlipidemia; the most common is a genetic predisposition. Nonetheless, diet plays a large role, too. In addition, diseases such as diabetes can raise the blood fats.

A high cholesterol level is associated with increased risk of heart attack. Excess triglycerides are less important but can lead to inflammation of the pancreas.

In general, most people can lower their blood-fat levels by adhering to a prudent diet that contains less fat than Americans are in the habit of eating. Regular, strenuous exercise will also reduce fat levels, as will discontinuation of alcohol consumption.

For people whose blood fats continue to be excessive despite dietary modifications and lifestyle changes, doctors often prescribe fat-lowering drugs, such as Lopid or Mevacor.

Because hyperlipidemia may lead to serious health consequences, individuals with this disorder should be under the care of physicians.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Cholesterol" and "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: About a year ago I took Accutane for acne. Since that time, I've been experiencing side effects that haven't gone away. Will they clear up in time?

DEAR READER: Accutane, which is related to vitamin A, acts by an unknown mechanism to reduce the skin eruptions of acne. Although it is an effective — and generally safe — treatment for this skin disorder, the drug can produce side effects, such as increased pressure in the brain, increased blood fats (including cholesterol), low-grade liver inflammation, cataracts, decreased night vision, and others. Pregnant women should not be prescribed the medicine because of the risk of fetal damage.

The side effects of most drugs disappear within a few days when the medication is discontinued and Accutane is no exception. However, the manufacturer warns that several complications of Accutane therapy may persist after the medication has been stopped: in particular, bone pain, chest pain and rash.

You don't mention what side effects you experienced. Possibly, these could be permanent consequences of Accutane therapy. Ask your dermatologist about this.

Bail for ex-Texas pathologist Erdmann said set at $100,000

SEATTLE (AP) — A judge on Friday set bail at $100,000 cash for former Texas pathologist and convicted felon Ralph Erdmann, arrested after a stash of guns was found at his suburban Redmond home.

King County prosecutors have until Monday to file charges against Erdmann, who gained notoriety in west Texas for falsifying autopsies.

Erdmann, 68, was arrested Wednesday by Redmond police for investigation of being a felon in possession of firearms. Police went to his home on an unrelated matter and discovered his gun collection.

In all, police seized 122 firearms, from hunting-style rifles to handguns to an M-16 assault rifle.

All the weapons — except the M-16 assault rifle, an automatic weapon banned by federal law — would have been legal to own except that Erdmann was a felon, police said.

Redmond police spokesman Ed Billington said Erdmann had likely collected the guns as a hobby and was not connected to any militia groups.

Once the topic of a "60 Minutes" segment, Erdmann pleaded no contest in 1992 to seven felonies tied to falsified evidence and botched autopsies in Lubbock, Texas, and two Texas counties.

He surrendered his medical license and was sentenced to 10 years probation and 200 hours of community service. He also was ordered to repay nearly $17,000 in autopsy fees.

Erdmann moved to Washington state with his wife and children about 2½ years ago. He was hired by the Lake Washington School District in September 1994 as a substitute teacher's assistant for special education.

The district was aware of Erdmann's past, spokesman Dan Youmans said.

"He told us he was on parole," Youmans said. "He did not say, 'I am a convicted felon.' We found out from a background check what the nature of his crime was."

GOP leaders predict House OK of budget with big cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top House Republicans predict passage of a plan to balance the budget by 2002, but GOP lawmakers remain at odds over precisely what savings their package will contain.

Republican House members ended a three-day strategy retreat in nearby Leesburg, Va., on Friday, where leaders presented a blueprint for eliminating the deficit in seven years. It included savings from Medicare and Medicaid, elimination of three Cabinet departments and the closing of numerous tax loopholes.

Afterward, Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and other leaders said the GOP-run House would approve the measure in two weeks. The House Budget Committee debates the bill next Wednesday.

"The support for passing a balanced budget the week after next is overwhelming," Gingrich told reporters.

But participants in the retreat, several speaking on condition of anonymity, said there were disputes over precisely which programs should be cut, and by how much. Some of the toughest sticking points included Medicare, agriculture and civil servants, they said.

"Some real fierce battles between Republicans and Republicans have already erupted," said Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, R-Md.

Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, and others said details of the GOP plan could change before it is presented publicly, perhaps on Tuesday.

The leaders refused to discuss details, but some lawmakers said the plan would freeze defense spending at current levels and phase out funds for public broadcasting and aid to the arts and humanities — all favorite targets of conservatives.

And documents obtained by The Associated Press showed that the budget committee also presented possible cuts that included eliminating support for the long-term unemployed; increasing veterans' costs for health benefits; phasing out aid to Amtrak; trimming assistance to the former Soviet republics and other foreign aid; and eliminating funds for the Goals 2000 education reform program.

Gingrich and other GOP leaders said savings from Medicare, the health insurance program for the elderly and disabled, would be a key part of their plan for eliminating the deficit. Medicare has become the center of the budget battleground, with Republicans arguing they are trying to save a program that will otherwise go broke, and Democrats saying Republicans want to cut it to pay for tax cuts.

GOP leaders said they would propose a specific amount to be saved from the program — which others said would be about $280 billion over seven years — and several options for achieving those savings. But Gingrich said Republicans would make no final decisions on precisely where the Medicare reductions would come from until later this year.

Poll bashes New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Never mind that New York City played host to 25 million tourists last year.

Never mind that it's the nation's No. 1 destination for international travelers, and consistently ranks among the top 10 places Americans most want to go.

There are still some Big Apple-bashers out there who equate New York with a war zone, like the Balkans or parts of the Mideast.

The evidence: A new survey by Fodor's Travel Publications ranks New York City with Bosnia and Iraq as the places people least want to go on vacation.

New York was picked as the least-desirable getaway spot by 7 percent of the 600 Americans surveyed. War-torn Bosnia fared a little better, named least desirable by just 2 percent, and Iraq and Iran were named least desirable by 9 percent.

"I wouldn't agree with the poll," said 20-year-old Jeremy Goldsmith of San Diego, visiting the city Friday with his parents and sister. "It's so exciting. There's just a lot going on."

"New York is a very exciting city — the most exciting city in the world after London," said Steve Pelecanos, an Australian tourist who has been around the world as a merchant seaman.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani acknowledges that the city has had image problems related to crime, cost and size. But he says those perceptions are dated, noting that New York is now down to 47th on the list of high-crime cities in the country.

Simpson's blood vial still focus of testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A top crime lab chemist remained confident of his work during five days of testimony and unrelenting questions from an O.J. Simpson attorney trying to cast doubt on the prosecution's blood evidence.

By the end of court Friday, Gregory Matheson was accused of purposely misreading test results and was confronted with documents that showed some of the blood taken from Simpson was missing.

Outside the jury's presence, defense attorney Robert Blasier disclosed that FBI reports seem to support the presence of a blood preservative that could be indicative of police evidence tampering — a point central to Simpson's defense.

Matheson, assistant director of the police crime lab, adamantly denied that he skewed blood analysis in favor of the prosecution. Asked if he was violating ethics by choosing an interpretation favoring his employer, Matheson flushed and declared hotly: "I am not!"

"Greg Matheson was an excellent witness for the prosecution, very confident, able to admit where mistakes were made and yet not come across as defensive," said Timothy Perrin, a Pepperdine University law professor and expert on scientific evidence.

But the prosecution still needs to account for all of the missing blood, Perrin said.

In another development, the family of Ronald Goldman, who was murdered along with Simpson's ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson, has filed a wrongful death lawsuit against Simpson.

Goldman's father, Fred, and sister, Kimberly, seek punitive damages and reimbursement for funeral and burial expenses.

"It doesn't have anything to do with money," Ms. Goldman said Friday. "If we can make him feel a quarter of the pain we feel, it's worth it."

In court, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito chastised attorneys for asking repetitive questions that caused jurors to be "rolling their eyes."

He refused to allow questioning of Matheson about whether FBI tests on two key blood samples turned up signs of a preservative used in police storage of a vial of Simpson's blood.

Blasier suggested to jurors earlier in the week that the presence of the preservative EDTA would prove a sinister plot to frame Simpson for the June 12, 1994, murders by deliberately placing his blood on evidence.

Outside the jurors' presence Friday, he told the judge EDTA was found by the FBI in blood taken from a sock in Simpson's bedroom and a back gate to his slain ex-wife's condominium.

"Our experts have looked at the FBI results and have said it's present," Blasier told Ito.

Prosecutor Hank Goldberg said the tests showed the opposite, but he lost a bid to drop hints about the preservative through hypothetical questions.

"What's the good faith basis of your offer, Mr. Goldberg, that there's no EDTA," the judge asked.

"The good faith basis of my offer is that in reading the FBI report that's what it says," Goldberg replied.

EDTA is a chemical preservative often used to protect blood samples that are taken from victims and suspects and compared to crime-scene evidence. It prevents the blood from coagulating in test tubes.

Gramm supports abortion restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking to build social conservative support for his White House run, Sen. Phil Gramm promised Saturday to support state restrictions on abortion and "work toward the day when every unborn child is welcomed into life."

Gramm, in a speech prepared for delivery Saturday, also vowed if elected president to overturn President Clinton's "destructive and unworkable policy on gays in the military."

The Texas Republican has been criticized by many social and religious conservative leaders for his reluctance to discuss abortion and other cultural issues as part of his presidential campaign. Their disappointment has hurt Gramm's early organizing, and helped rival Pat Buchanan's efforts.

So Gramm agreed to deliver the commencement address — and make his overture to cultural conservatives — at Liberty University, the Lynchburg, Va., college founded by former Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell.

"Let's demand that our government treat its people with respect, and guarantee their right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said in his prepared remarks. "I am pro-life, and for those of us who believe that there is a spark of life in every human life, let us work toward the day when every unborn child is welcomed into life and loved when they get here."

Going further, Gramm pledged to reverse Clinton administration legal policy on the issue and offer federal help to states defending court challenges to abortion restrictions. He specifically pledged to support laws requiring parental notification before minors can have abortions, and laws prohibiting "sex selection abortions."

YOUTH MINISTER — Brian Frank has been the youth minister at Colonial Hill Baptist Church since December of 1992. In addition to organizing youth activities for his church, Brian is also one of four local youth ministers involved with the Youth Ministerial Alliance. (Contributed Photo)

Brian Frank enjoying role as Colonial Hill youth minister

What began as a part-time volunteer committment has long since turned into a full-time career for Brian Frank, youth minister at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

In 1989, Brian, a native of Oklahoma, occasionally helped a friend who worked with youth at the First Baptist Church in Edmond. Brian also helped sponsor youth activities.

He said he felt the first stirrings toward becoming a youth minister "when God spoke to me during a Super Summer Camp in Oklahoma." A year later, at the same camp, Brian said God told him "to work with youth."

And that is just what he set out to do. Graduating from Central State University (now University of Central Oklahoma), Brian attended the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

He has served as youth minister at Colonial Hill since moving to Snyder from St. Jo, Tex. in December of 1992. Snyder is Brian's first full-time position as youth minister. One of the enjoyments he receives from his work with youth is "to share Christ with them so they will get to know Him better," he said. He believes that is an important means "through which they can grow as Christians."

"Sometimes youth make bad decisions that hurt, but it helps them to grow as Christians," Brian continued.

"Every young person has different needs," he explained. "Some need a listener, while others look to me for permission."

In his capacity as youth minister, Brian often has to switch roles from friend or parent to teacher or another adult. Mainly youth need a "listening ear," he said.

"Sometimes I give them advice, even if they do not want it," he said.

As youth minister, he coordinates Bible studies for grades 7 through 12 on Sunday mornings. In addition, the church also has Wednesday night "Prime Time"

Youth Ministerial Alliance sponsors wholesome events

Young people wanting to have fun without the prospect of getting into trouble may not need to look any further than the Youth Ministerial Alliance of Snyder, which coordinates a variety of wholesome off-campus events and activities throughout the year.

Four local youth ministers have pooled their talents and committment and the resources of their respective churches to give local youth a healthy outlet for fun and a chance to meet like-minded peers.

Besides Brian Frank, youth minister at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, the other YMA members are Michael Cox, First United Methodist Church; Virgil Feinsod, Trinity United Methodist Church: Steve Highfield, Calvary Baptist Church, and Bobby Hobbs, First Baptist Church.

It's been more than two years since the YMA got started "in earnest," and all four agree that the organization has a positive influence on youth in Snyder. Brian added, though, that "there is always room for growth."

The bulk of the activities occur during the nine-month school year. They include a Wednesday night Bible study and off-campus events usually held on the last Wednesday of each month. The site rotates from church to church as well as other community locations.

An annual event is "See You At the Poles," a national day set aside for student prayer. Interested youth gather at the flag pole of their school to pray for "their school, teachers and friends who do not yet know Christ," Brian explained.

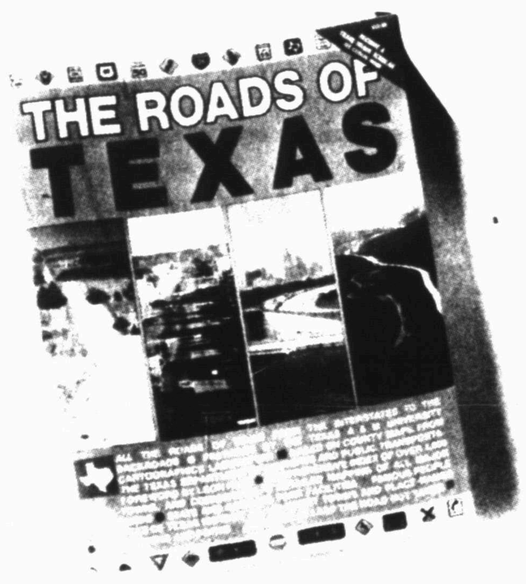

This school year, some 325 high school and junior high school students gathered together for the celebration, which is now observed throughout the world.

Another project is local participation in the national "True Love Waits" campaign, which encourages teen-agers to pledge to remain sexually pure until marriage, Brian explained.

Earlier this school year, a big rally was held in Washington D.C., attended by many youth throughout the nation who

Timesaving tools for cooking

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
For AP Special Features

A sharp paring knife will take you far, but for some cooking tasks, tools made especially for the job can save you time and frustration. This list of kitchen gadgets spotlights the ones we think are handiest to have. If you can't find these utensils in the supermarket cookware section, check out a gourmet cookware shop.

Shrimp Cleaner: Bearing some resemblance to a letter opener, this gadget peels and deveins shrimp with one quick motion. Starting from the head end of the shrimp, insert the narrow tip of the tool between the shell and meat. Push the whole blade through the vein cavity. The shell pops off and the shrimp is deveined.

Butter Curler: Jazz up rolls and bread with elegant butter curls. For showy curls, draw the scalloped, hooked end of the butter curler down the long side of a slightly softened stick of butter or margarine.

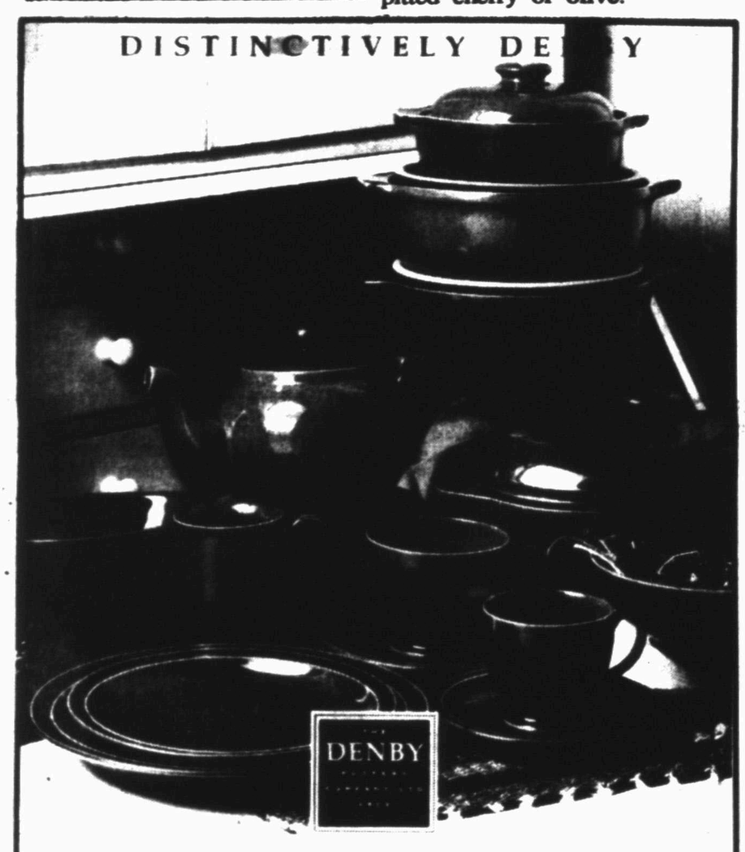

Citrus Zester-Stripper: This handy citrus gizmo does double duty. For thin strips of citrus peel (called zest) pull the scalloped edge, with multiple holes, along the fruit. For thick citrus strips, run the single-holed, curved blade along the fruit.

Apple Corer: After coring apples and pears with a knife, you'll welcome a sturdy, easy-to-use corer. Center the round, scalloped end of the corer over the fruit's core and push the tool into the fruit. Twist to loosen the whole core, then pull the core and corer out.

Tomato-Berry Corer: Snatch the cores from tomatoes or the green caps from strawberries by inserting the spiked end of the small, round, saw-toothed tomato corer into the tomato core, or just below each strawberry cap, then twist.

Cherry-Olive Pitter: For cherry and olive enthusiasts, this tool is a must. Pop a cherry or olive (pit in) into the little cup, squeeze the handles and the pit falls out of the hole in the cup, leaving a perfectly pitted cherry or olive.

Bible study for the same grades.

Though the participation count varies, Brian said some 108 youth attend Sunday School.

Other youth activities include a summer mission trip and junior high and high school choir tours. Last year they went to the Houston area Branson, Mo., will be the site for this year's tour. They also participate in a "Super Summer" evangelism camp every year.

Brian is active in the Youth Ministerial Alliance. (See related story.)

Perhaps one of the youth activities he is most proud of is the Youth Appreciation Banquet Colonial Hill hosted last month at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

To help offset the negativity so often associated with today's youth, church members planned and arranged a special banquet just for church youth and their guests.

Brian, Teresa Love and Jeanie Rice planned and coordinated the April 22 event. They were ably assisted by some 40 parent volunteers who did a little of everything, including serving the meal, making decorations, valet parking, taking pictures and videos, and setting up the hall and final clean-up.

A church member arranged for limousine transportation for four. A drawing determined the winners, two at the high school level and two for junior high.

The special evening began at 6:30 with "Twilight Time." Besides listening to music and drinking soft drinks, the youth could have their pictures taken.

Jerald Garner, minister of music, acted as DJ for a special show recapping all of the important events of the years 1976-1982, including the best song for each year. Billboard provided the facts.

A video was also shown featuring past youth activities. For longtime youth members, that meant seeing themselves "grow up" on film.

Illusionist Don Nix of Lubbock, vice president of the West Texas Fellowship of Christian Musicians, provided table magic. A cappella singers, the Concord from Abilene Christian University, described as "wonderful" by Brian, provided additional entertainment.

Alan Wartes, offensive coordinator for the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboys football team, presented an inspirational message, "How To Succeed In Life."

He spoke on 1st Corinthians, Chapter 9, verses 24-27, reminding his audience that "they were special."

Following the theme, "A Night of Stars: Youth Are Stars In Our Eyes," a banner on one board read, "A Star Is Born" and featured stars with the birthdate of each youth attending.

Youth also received the red carpet treatment as they entered the room by walking on a red runner with lights on each side. Cloths, featuring black overlays, covered the tables which were adorned with star cutouts, top hats courtesy of the Ritz Theatre, balloons, and roses made of Hershey's Kisses. The Ritz also let the church borrow their back drop for the stage.

Invitations were also sent. Those who were members of the church did not have to pay, but their guests did.

Some 103 youth and 45 adults were served.

Brian said a survey taken the next day was 99 percent positive. The event was so successful, that he added that the church would like to do something similar every few years.

Banquet plans began as early as January. Originally planned for February, he explained that they had to bump it to April because of conflicting activities.

Originally from Stillwater, Okla., Brian was reared in nearby Edmond.

He and his wife, Debbie, have one son, Nathan, who is seven months old.

Deals with "halo effect"

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP) — No halo, no crown.

Miss America runner-up Cullen Johnson says the "halo effect" — the contestant who has overcome the biggest obstacle will win — is the only reason Heather Whitestone won the pageant.

Whitestone, who is deaf, is the first Miss America with a disability.

"We were warned about that before we even got there (about) the so-called halo effect," Johnson told The Free Lance-Star newspaper last week.

"It has been very difficult for me to sort of come down after that pageant. I still deal with it daily," said the 24-year-old Miss Virginia.

A New Year's Eve bash has been held at First Baptist Church the past two years. Both years, activities included music, guest speaker and games, including bowling. A pizza meal rounded out the evening.

The YMA has also arranged for PFR (Pray For Rain) concerts twice a year at Scurry County Coliseum. They are considered a "top Christian pop/rock group," Brian said.

Jeremiah People, a Christian drama group espousing positive family values, has also appeared in Snyder. Brian said their performances are always "enjoyed very much."

In May, the alliance arranges for water war games at Towle Park. Everyone gets a chance to "act goofy and crazy" Brian explained.

The YMA plans activities for both junior high and high school students. Both age groups get together in the beginning, but later break up into separate groups, Brian added.

Even though these four churches are the only ones presently involved in the YMA, any church or its youth may participate. Brian said he and the others are already "getting geared up for the next school year."

They want to expand, Brian explained, because "we want to do more than just be a Wednesday night group."

Adults may also attend the off-campus activities, but they have to "sit in the back", Brian said, "because the emphasis is on the youth."

Brian said the Youth Ministerial Alliance is important because "youth know of us even if they do not participate."

He thinks the off-campus activities are great because they give local teens a chance to meet other Christian youth.

He said it is a priority among the youth ministers to continue the YMA.

Michael Cox of First Methodist thinks the YMA "is a great opportunity for all of us to get together and share concerns and prayer requests." It's especially valuable because the four of them represent four different churches.

The off-campus activities also give teen-agers the chance to spend time and have fun with their peers, who attend different churches.

From Abernathy, Michael Cox has been youth minister at FUMC for about 1½ years.

Bobby Hobbs has served as youth minister at First Baptist for some 3½ years. He likes the YMA because it involves "sharing with other youth ministers about students in Snyder."

The organization helps to expand "each church's ministry." The combined resources of the four churches allows the YMA to "bring in talent from around the nation," he added.

Steve Highfield of Calvary has been here two years. This is his first youth minister's position since graduating from college in 1993.

He said the off-campus activities help the youth as well as the community because they offer a chance to "have fun without getting into trouble."

Virgil Feinsod of Trinity values the YMA because it arranges for off-campus activities which are open to youth from all denominations.

"It's an opportunity for young people to get together without worrying about whether they are doing something according to a certain denomination's way. They can worship Jesus and learn how to walk with Him better and maintain their committment regardless of what the world is telling them.

"The biggest reason YMA is important is because we show young people that who you follow is much more important than where you go to church," Feinsod added.

Year-end BSP awards

On April 22, Xi Alpha Alpha Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at Nathalie's Tea Room for brunch and to observe Founder's Day. The chapter, together with 12,500 chapters of 250,000 members throughout the world celebrated their Founder's Day. The founder, Walter Ross, is remembered each year by the largest Greek letter sorority in the world.

Throughout the 64 years of history, members of Beta Sigma Phi have enjoyed programs for cultural studies and numerous social events, and devoted much of their time and effort to service. They recently raised over $300,000 for sorority sisters who suffered losses due to natural disasters and are funding a breast cancer research project.

Basic to Beta Sigma Phi are the socials for its members, Founder's Day is one of the most important. The Snyder Xi Alpha Alpha chapter chairman of the celebration was Jackie Buckland. Mistress of ceremonies was Marie Boone, president. Carla Allen was selected to present the special message from the International Executive Council of BSP. Other members taking part were Carolyn House, presenting the Pam Fowler Memorial Scholarships to Lee Idom, Brooke Lowrance and John Worthen, and Patricia Warren who read the Founder's Day Pledge.

Brenda Hedges recognized outstanding members. She presented service pins to Buckland, 15 years; Barbara Bills, 25 years; Mary Lou Scott, 35 years; and perfect attendance pins went to Loretta Worthen and to Boone.

Other special awards included Carla Allen, Valentine Queen; Dena Ellis, program of the year; Debbie Harrington, pledge of the year; Loretta Worthen, Mrs. Congeniality; Brenda Hedges, president's award; and Marie Boone, woman of the year. Worthen presented Boone with the president's pin and the scrapbook.

Mickey Baird will serve as president for 1995-96. Other officers are Brenda Hedges, first vice president; Patricia Warren, second vice president; Jacalyn Lowrance, recording secretary; Norma Cumbie, corresponding secretary; and Lois Cave, extension officer.

Logic or mathematics?

By Phillip Alder

In "Through the Looking Glass," Lewis Carroll wrote: "Contrariwise," continued Tweedledee, "if it was so, it might be; and if it were so, it would be; but as it isn't, it ain't. That's logic."

Bridge is a logical game, and sometimes the logic points you in the right direction — as in today's deal.

With only three losers, South might have opened with a stronger bid. North's three-spade response was a limit raise showing at least four-card support and some 11 total points. South used Blackwood before bidding seven. He hoped that if his partner didn't have a minor-suit king, all dummy's diamond losers could be discarded on his heart winners.

South won the first trick with the diamond ace, unblocked the club ace and correctly played a trump to dummy's ace, revealing the 4-0 break. Now South, faced with a diamond loser, had two choices. He could hope that East held either a minimum of three hearts or that East had the club king and at least two hearts. The mathematics say that playing on hearts is right. However, if West is short in both majors, he is long in the minors. Yet, despite his diamond honors and the favorable vulnerability, he hadn't bid. South felt sure this meant East had the club king.

At trick four, South called for the club queen. Even though East played low smoothly, South discarded his diamond loser. And a moment later, having finessed twice in spades through East, declarer claimed his contract.

One piece of bridge logic is worth any number of mathematical tables.

Phillip Alder's new book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 169, Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0169.

Guy captures awards

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Buddy Guy picked his way past them all to capture three W.C. Handy Awards for blues music, including entertainer of the year.

Guy first made his reputation as a guitarist in Chicago in the late 1950s. He emerged in the 1960s as a solo artist on Chess Records, recording classics like "Stone Crazy" and "My Time After Awhile."

Georgian homemaker's spicy chicken recipe wins contest

Mary Louise Lever of Rome, Georgia won $25,000 for her recipe "Baked Spicy Pineapple Balinese Chicken" at the 41st National Chicken Cooking contest at Atlanta's Merchandise Mart. Cooks from each of the 50 states plus the district of Columbia competed by cooking their special chicken dish for a panel of food editor judges from leading magazines and newspapers.

Second place in the contest went to Diane Lentz of Nicholasville, Kentucky for her recipe "Gingered Jamaican Jerk Chicken." She received $5,000.

Third place was Jeanne Holt of Mendota Heights, Minnesota for "Jalepeno Tex-Mex Chicken Salad." She received $3,000.

Edwina Ruth Gadsby of Great Falls, Montana won $2,000 for "Key Lime Thai Chicken" and Gloria Pleasants of Williamsburg, Virginia won $1,000 for "Thai Thigh Kabobs."

Lever is a former school teacher who had previously cooked in the finals of the contest in Hershey, Pennsylvania in 1990.

The winning dish was developed specifically to compete in the contest. The recipe features skinless, boneless chicken breast halves brushed with mustard and coated with gingersnap crumbs. After baking, the chicken is covered with a spicy pineapple sauce.

All five winning dishes followed recent trends toward spicy ethnic recipes. The 1993 winning recipe was Caribbean Chicken Drums developed by Rosemarie Berger of North Carolina.

BAKED SPICY PINEAPPLE BALINESE CHICKEN

4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1/2 cup gingersnap crumbs
Spicy Pineapple Sauce: recipe follows
red bell pepper strips
basil sprigs

Between two sheets plastic wrap, place chicken and gently pound to uniform thickness; brush with mustard. In shallow dish, place gingersnap crumbs. Add chicken, 1 piece at a time, dredging to coat. In non-stick sprayed shallow baking dish, place chicken and refrigerate 20 minutes. Place chicken in 350 degree oven and bake about 20 minutes or until juices run clear and a fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. On 4 individual plates, spoon 1/4 of Spicy Pineapple Sauce, and top each with a chicken breast half. Garnish with pepper strips and basil sprigs. Makes 4 servings.

Spicy Pineapple Sauce: In frypan, place 1 tablespoon peanut oil and heat to medium temperature. Add 1 minced garlic clove and 1 red onion, chopped. Saute about 2 minutes. Stir in 1/4 cup seasoned rice vinegar and 1 can crushed pineapple, juice included. Add 1/4 teaspoon allspice, 1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes and 2-1/2 teaspoons Dijon mustard. Heat, stirring, about 4 minutes or until bubbly and slightly thickened. In blender container, place pineapple mixture and puree until smooth; keep warm. Just before serving, stir in 2 tablespoons finely chopped basil and 1/4 cup diced red bell pepper.

The Chinese pistache tree, a superstar shade tree

Which characteristics are most important when choosing a tree to shade and beautify your home? First, to realize the "Earth-kind" goal of attractive, productive plants, with minimum effort but maximum protection for the environment, an enlighted selection of plant materials is crucial.

Secondly, with the specter of oak wilt threatening live and red oaks in many areas of Texas, there is an urgent need for more diversity in tree species being planted in our state.

So what is the best medium-size shade tree for most areas of Texas? The name is unusual but the performance is outstanding; it's called the Chinese Pistache, botanically known as Pistacia Chinenis.

It has been highly recommended for many years by horticultural experts at Texas A&M, Oklahoma State and Kansas State Universities, this native of China possesses a number of special advantages.

It is regarded by many knowlegable horticulturists as one of the most beautiful, pest free and easily maintained shade trees for the Southwest and Gulf Coast regions.

The Chinese Pistache is winter hardy to central Kansas, and forms a spreading, umbrella-like canopy which at maturity is 40-50 feet high with a width of 30 feet. This is an ideal size to provide shade and background for single story homes.

It has medium to fine textured foliage that creates a light textured shade pattern.

The foliage remains an attractive, deep green color during the growing season, even in the rocky, highly alkaline, horribly abused soils common to many new home sites across Texas.

It has spectacular fall color in shades of orange, red-orange and even crimson, often rivaling the show of sugar maples in the Northeast. In addition to its brilliance, this tree is also one of the most dependable sources of fall color in the lower South.

It has a very acceptable growth rate for such a long-lived species, with two to three feet of growth possible each year with good management.

This is the first shade tree to receive the coveted "Earth-kind" designation from the Texas Agricultural Extension service for its high levels of genetic resistance to insect and disease problems.

It has extremely hard, durable wood, which is also very decay resistant, and helps protect the tree from wind, ice and vandal injury.

Adapted to all areas of Texas except the Rio Grande Valley, it is superior drought, heat and wind tolerant once the tree is established (that is, after two or three growing seasons). It has outstanding adaptability.

It is an extremely tough, durable medium-size tree which is tolerant of both urban and rural conditions. The fruit is set, only on female trees, consisting of clusters of small, round green berries which turn red to reddish-purple in the fall. The fruit clusters make excellant table decorations. And, while inedible for humans, the fruit is relished by birds.

Although considered by many experts to be near perfect for this area of the U.S., the Chinese Pistache does have a couple of minor faults. Pistache in five-gallon containers are often rather awkward in appearance. Rest assured that after five to six years of tender loving care in your landscape, this "ugly duckling" will have been magically transformed into a most "beautiful swan" when its canopy develops and begins to mature.

Secondly, shaping and pruning your trees when it's young may be necessary to encourage proper branch spacing and structure and for best crown development. Even without such pruning, however, the vast majority of Pistache trees will eventually make very nicely shaped trees on their own. Six to eight feet in height, with trunk diameter of 1/5 inches, are probably the ideal size for most homeowners to purchase.

Select a planting site in full sun, and at least 15 feet from your home to provide sufficient room for future growth.

Pistache trees will not tolerate "wet feet." So battling heavy clay soil which doesn't drain well, it will be best to construct and plant in a raised bed six inches, four feet in diameter. With your fingertip, check moisture of the root ball weekly. Water only when top inch is dry.

Mulch immediately after planting. Beginning early in the spring, make light but frequent applications of fertilizer.

Let me leave you with this thought, "God does not deduct from man's alloted time those hours spent gardening. Good Gardening until next week, from Dr. Ted Brice, The Garden Editor."

Comic becomes movie

MURRELL'S INLET, S.C. (AP) — After sleeping longer than Rip Van Winkle, Mike Danger is once again ready to fight crime.

The comic book detective created by Mickey Spillane is headed for the movie screen 50 years after being shelved when Spillane left for World War II duty.

The 77-year-old writer says Bruce Willis is being considered for the title role as the 1950s detective who wakes up in the 2050s. He said he cut a movie deal with Miramax, the maker of "Pulp Fiction," when he was in New York last week for a mystery writer's award.

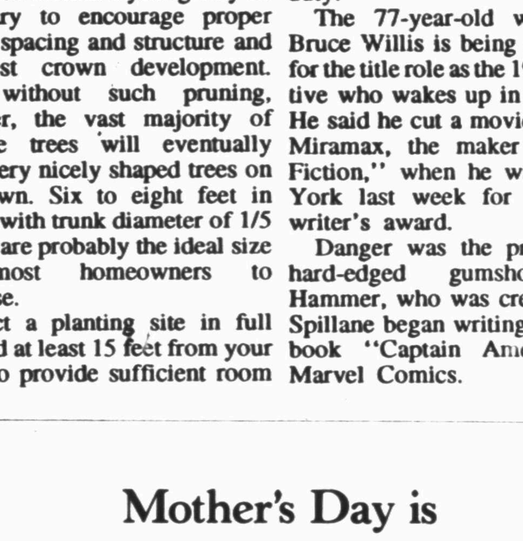

Danger was the precursor to hard-edged gumshoe Mike Hammer, who was created when Spillane began writing the comic book "Captain America" for Marvel Comics.

G-rated comedy

By George R. Plagenz

The emcee at the comedy club came out on the stage and said to the audience, "Did you hear the one about the wife who phoned her husband at the office and said, 'Honey, I have good news and bad news. The good news is that the air bag works.'"

It brought the house down. Anyone waiting to hear an off-color punchline was in the wrong pew. This is the kind of jokes they are telling these days at church comedy clubs on the West Coast. Now the fad for clean is spreading eastward to Dallas and Chicago.

The crowds that show up for these G-rated comedy acts are sending the message that people like to laugh but they are tired of raunchy.

Ready for another knee-slapper that carries the church's seal of approval?

"You know you are getting old when you bend over to tie your shoe and you look around to see if there is something else you can do while you are already down there."

That one is from "The Treasury of Clean Senior Adult Jokes (In Large Type)" by the late Rev. Tal Bonham. It was as a boy in his native Oklahoma, sitting around in Claude Chandler's appliance store listening to Claude tell jokes, that Bonham discovered he had a talent for telling jokes himself.

"The apartment where I live is so small," Tal would tell Claude, "that we had to teach our dog Lucky to wag his tail up and down."

Years later Bonham came home to visit. He went to call on Claude, who was dying. "After we finished praying and reading the Bible," Bonham recalled, "Claude sat up and said, 'Heard the one about the three old men walking down the street?'" Bonham said he hadn't.

"One of them said, 'Windy, isn't it?' Another said, 'No, I think it's Thursday.' The third man said, 'I am too. Let's go get a cold drink.'"

Tal and Claude had a good laugh at that. It was the last time the two old friends saw one another. The next week, Claude died.

While recuperating from a heart attack a few years later, Bonham and his wife were taking a walk in the mall near their house, where they were appalled to see gross, tasteless and otherwise-offensive joke books on the best-seller racks.

The next year, the jovial, fun-loving Southern Baptist minister put out his first paperback joke book, "The Treasury of Clean Jokes" (Broadman Press, Nashville).

Finding there was a market for clean jokes, Bonham published a sequel. Eventually there came to be nine volumes in all, including "The Treasury of Clean Teenage Jokes," "Clean Business Jokes," "Clean Country Jokes," "Clean Children's Jokes" and "Clean Sports Jokes."

Did Jesus tell jokes? In a survey of 5,000 Lutherans, three out of four said no. The report explained that jokes and laughter are not associated with divinity in the minds of most Lutherans.

(Actually, there are only three passages in the Bible where God is described as laughing. In all three instances, it is a laugh of derision, not a happy laugh.)

On the other hand, a pro-laugh group known as the Fellowship of Merry Christians Inc. is distributing reproductions of a color painting of a laughing, happy, risen Jesus. The portrait, used by many churches as the cover for their Easter church bulletins, is said to be enjoying a "phenomenal grassroots popularity."

Some people like to think of God as a happy, smiling deity. Their favorite story is of the visitor who went to church one Sunday and mingled with the parishioners, patting them on the back, talking loudly and laughing. The people were shocked and asked him to leave.

On his way out, the man was approached by God, who said, "Cheer up. I've been trying to get into that church myself for years."

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

In a recent addition of the SDN, the good people who work so hard for the United Way were quoted as saying they were convinced they would be able to meet their financial goal this year, and that things were off to a great start.

I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but I'm afraid all those people are just plain nuts.

It seems that in the April issue of the Harvard Mental Health letter, a professor of psychology from Temple University, Dr. Lauren B. Alloy, made a provocative case that, to put it in its most simplistic terms: when you are depressed, you are realistic, and when you are upbeat, positive, and optimistic, you are suffering from delusional thinking, what she refers to as a "construct of illusions."

In her introductory paragraph, Dr. Alloy quotes the nineteenth-century American writer, Ambrose Pierce, who defined a pessimist as "a person who sees the world as it is." According to her lab experiments with college kids, Dr. Alloy thinks that this Pierce guy is not only right, but that optimistic people are "highly vulnerable to illusions, including...overestimation of themselves and an exaggerated sense of their capacity to control events."

Depressed people, she says, are "better than average at predicting events in their own lives, especially misfortune."

So...let me get this straight, Doc. If the United Way people had been quoted in the paper as saying, "This is a lousy year. Everybody's broke. Nobody's gonna give us any dough. We'll never make our goals. It's hopeless." — Then real events would go on to prove them right, right? There would be a better than average chance that they would not make their goals, and all the social services and organizations who are helped by them would be forced to make dramatic cuts in their budgets to compensate, and the people who were being helped by them would, well, get depressed. Oh, excuse me. I mean they would get real.

But Dr. Allen made a few discoveries in her experiments that she sort of stuck on to her article as an afterthought, to be taken as of no consequence. In one sadistic experiment, they gave their subjects unsolvable problems, (sounds like math to me), in an effort to stress them out and make them get depressed...with interesting results.

Those "realistic" people, she found, were much more likely to think the problems were unsolvable because they were incapable of solving them. In other words, they blamed circumstances beyond their control on themselves.

Those crazy optimists simply "adapted" themselves to the problem. They didn't blame themselves for it. "We have also found that people with a strong optimistic bias are less vulnerable to depression under stress," she said. And what about those problems they were able to solve? Well, the optimists gave themselves credit. They let themselves feel good about it and went on to the next challenge.

The pessimists, you know, the same guys, always believed that a good outcome had nothing to do with themselves. It just happened. However, as I pointed out earlier, they were much more able to predict misfortune.

It never occurred to the doc to question that finding, or probe deeper. Could it be... that when we predict misfortune, we actually draw it to ourselves? Bad things happen because we expect them to?

And on the other hand, what about those nutcase optimists? What if they predict good fortune? Wouldn't the same law apply? That they draw good fortune to themselves by their own thinking processes and attitudes?

There was one more little point the shrink made about optimists, buried in a final paragraph. It seems that "a sense of well-being apparently constitutes a self-perpetuating adaptive system." She goes on to point out that this so-called adaptive system gives the optimist "resilience under stress, heightened capacity for persistence, and decreased vulnerability to illness."

So I guess all us nutcases out here, including the United Way volunteers, are going to manage challenges well, hang in there until we reach our goals, and not get sick while we're doing it. We'll adapt ourselves to the problems we encounter and when we overcome them, we'll pat ourselves on the back. We will expect a good outcome, and a good outcome will likely result. The United Way will reach its goal, just as they predicted.

I don't know about you guys, but this insanity thing works for me.

Immigration: The next big problem

By William A. Rusher

As if this country didn't have enough big problems on its plate, here comes another one — one, what's more, that's getting worse and bigger every day.

For forcibly calling our attention to it, we have Peter Brimelow to thank. Brimelow wrote a long and thoughtful article on the subject for the National Review a couple of years ago, and has now followed that up with a whole volume: "Alien Nation," published by Random House. It is a book not to be missed.

It is a piquant but irrelevant fact that Brimelow himself was born in Britain and became an American citizen only recently. But Alexander Hamilton was born in the British West Indies, spent his first 18 years there, and didn't set foot in Britian's North American colonies until just four years before the Declaration of Independence; yet he turned out to be quite an American patriot.

Brimelow's concern reaches far beyond illegal immigration, the costs of which — in welfare, education, Medicare, etc. — triggered last November's Proposition 187 in California. Under 187, which is now being contested in the courts, illegal aliens would no longer qualify for all sorts of benefits that the government of the United States insists must be sprayed benignly over citizens, legal immigrants and illegal aliens alike.

(It is said that two-thirds of all the babies born in the hospitals of Los Angeles are born to illegal alien mothers at the expense of California taxpayers — with the babies, of course, becoming U.S. citizens at birth.)

But Brimelow warns that legal immigration is a major part of the problem, too.

What are the figures? About 2 or 3 million people (nobody knows for sure how many) enter the United States illegally every year. And while some large number of these leave again, the Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates that net illegal immigration runs from 300,000 to 500,000 annually. That's on top of about a million people (including refugees and applicants for political asylum) who immigrate to the United States legally every year.

Is a million and a half immigrants per year a lot? Well, it's bigger than the number that entered in either 1907 or 1914, which were the two peak years in what is called "The First Great Wave" of immigration, from 1848 to 1920.

But that isn't even half the story. The First Great Wave was followed by a Great Lull, from 1920 to about 1970, during which America "digested" the previous high influx of immigrants.

It was the 1965 Immigration Act (sponsored, wouldn't you know, by Sen. Ted Kennedy) that, kicking in about 1970, sent immigration statistics soaring again. What's more, whereas the earlier immigrant flood had been largely European, the 1965 Act favored immigrants from Asia and Latin America — and immigrants from these areas have incomparably higher birth rates than that of the basic American population.

Unless something is done to halt the tide, the U.S. population by 2050, according to one estimate, will be 391 million — and 139 million, or 36 percent, will be post-1970 immigrants and their descendants.

Can this country possibly absorb, let along "digest," such an influx, either culturally or economically? I am a great admirer of the performance of (for example) certain Asian immigrant categories, and believe they make, and will continue to make, a trememdous contribution to our society. But it is also true (as Brimelow demonstrates) that other immigrant categories merely tend to displace native-born Americans — notably blacks — from desperately needed jobs, and is some cases have carved out neat footholds for themselves in the American criminal underworld.

There is far more to "Alien Nation" and to the problem it highlights, that I can possibly do justice to here. But every American citizen owes a debt of gratitude to Peter Brimelow for sounding the alarm.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks, SNS

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank everyone who helped from Snyder Neighbors Sharing in fixing my home. Everyone was so nice.
Mrs. Ammie Braziel
Snyder

A success!

Dear Editor:
Scurry County citizens:
One more year, the American Cancer Society of Scurry County has had a successful fund-raising called the Spring Crusade.

Mary Jimm Floyd and I called and asked people from every community to serve as chairpersons. They, in turn, chose walkers to come to your door and again you responded with your concerns and funds. Thank you all.

I want to personally thank Mary Jimm, Mr. Cargile and Sheila McCormick, who helped to receive the money and deposit it in West Texas State Bank. I want to thank Snyder Cablevision and Snyder Daily News for the spotlight public announcements.

Thanks again to all the citizens of Scurry County.
Sincerely,
Georgene Galloway
Chairman

Speaking for 1,800

Dear Editor:
In response to the proposed economical restructuring; such as, eliminating the kitchen staff at the sennior center by WTC Management:

They have saved almost enough money between the salary of our past director to pay the salary of our present director and our kitchen staff.

If they can't make it on students' tuition and our WTC taxes, it is time to cut the fat. They could cut one of their staff members which will save enough to pay the entire senior kitchen staff.

If the college takes over the kitchen operation, do they have enough volunteers at the college for home-delivered meals, serve the disabled, operate the serving line, and wash the dishes?

As taxpayers who support the college, we don't think that when their income shrinks that they should start biting the hands that feed them. They should cut their fat before they start cutting our most important workers.

Signed by representatives of 1,800 seniors.
Cecil Z. Lankford
Emmett Askins
Pat Johnston

Thanks, volunteers

Dear Editor:
On behalf of the Snyder Neighbors Sharing Board of Directors, we would like to say a huge thank you to the people of Snyder who helped with our work day on April 29. Due to their direct efforts, nine homes were repaired here in our community, bringing us to somewhere over 120 homes that have been done in the past seven years.

It certainly could not have been done without the good folks in Snyder and the great cooperation we get from the businesses. We appreciate the time and effort it takes for everyone to give one day each year to help us with this project. We look forward to working with everyone next year on this program.

Thanks again to Snyder for a wonderful turnout and a fantastic job and start making your plans now to join us next year on April 27, 1996.
Sincerely,
Thomas Fogleman
President
Snyder Neighbors Sharing

Letters policy

Letters to the editor must be signed and must give the address of the writer. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the newspaper does reserve the right to refuse letters if they contain libelous material or information deemed in poor taste.

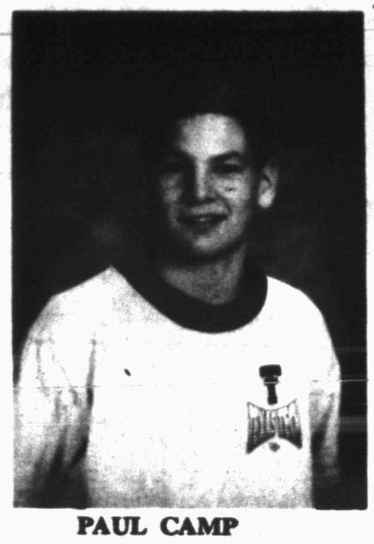

Following a long-standing policy and practice, Snyder Daily News does not publish letters pertaining to a candidate or issue once an election has been called.

Opinions in favor or opposition to an issue or candidate may be published in paid political adveristments.

Letters to be published in the weekend edition must be submitted no later than noon Friday.

BRAD GRIMMETT

PAUL CAMP

RAD EICKE

3 SJHS students recognized

Three Snyder Junior High School students have received recognition from the United States Achievement Academy.

The latest student to be named an All-American Scholar is Brad Grimmett, who was nominated by Mike Holmes.

Students receiving National Awards include Paul Camp and Rad Eicke. Nominated by Coach Charles Bollinger, Camp received his award for football.

Eicke received two National Awards — one in mathematics and one in history and government. Nominating teachers include Theresa Vest and Darlene Robbins.

Grimmett will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally. All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average.

Both Eicke and Camp will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate Yearbook, which is published nationally.

Less than 10 percent of American junior high and high school students receive National Awards.

Eicke is the son of Johnny and Fairy Eicke and the grandson of Bill and Lewana Graham of Rotan and J.N. Eicke and the late Wanda Koonsman Eicke of Snyder.

Grimmett is the son of Steve and Susan Grimmett and the grandson of Jacky and D'Ann Grimmett, Cliff and Nancy Smith and Lou Voss, all of Snyder.

Camp is the son of Stephen and Paula Camp and the grandson of Dwain and Pat Camp, all of Snyder. He is also the grandson of Emogene Sterling of Ira.

Large cache of ammo seized

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Federal agents on Thursday began moving their biggest haul of ammunition ever, nearly 75 million rounds they said was illegally imported from China and Russia.

The 7.62-caliber ammunition — usable in legal semiautomatic guns and illegal assault weapons — could fill eight to 10 railroad cars, agents said.

Moving all the ammo out of a warehouse where it was confiscated Wednesday will take a couple of days, said Customs Special Agent Rollin B. Klink.

"It's the largest seizure of ammunition ever in the U.S.," he said as tractor-trailer rigs began hauling the ammo away.

Customs agents would not disclose where they were taking the ammunition.

The bullets were seized at Eagle Exim Inc. of Santa Clara, about 40 miles south of San Francisco. The company says it imports ammunition and sells it to distributors, who in turn sell it to retailers.

Import documents said the bullets were made in Russia and imported legally from that country.

But Customs agents believe some of the bullets actually came from China; imports of Chinese ammo were banned last year, Klink said. And those rounds that came from Russia also were illegal because Eagle Exim's import license expired in February, he said.

Klink said at least 10 million rounds came from Russia and agents were still examining the ammo. "We're still trying to unravel this," he said.

Mother's Day program set at Senior Citizens Center

The Senior Citizens Center will be honoring mothers with a Mother's Day program starting at 11:15 a.m. Friday. The Sunshine Choir will be leading the observance.

Bridge will be the feature of Monday's Game Day in the center. Play will begin at 9:30 a.m. Senior citizens who prefer other games are invited to arrange those game at the same time.

All visitors to the center are encouraged to participate in a daily modified exercise class which begins at 11 a.m. An aerobics class for women meets at 2:30 p.m. on Monday and Thursday. Senior citizens who enjoy walking for exercise can walk in the gymnasium adjacent to the center during morning hours.

Representatives from the Social Security Administration will be in the center Tuesday from 10 a.m. to noon and again from 1-2 p.m.

Betty Watts will present a program of piano music in the center's dining room at 11:15 a.m. Thursday. The Kitchen Band will go to Snyder Oaks Care Center for a program at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The Senior Center provides a variety of activities for county residents 60 and older and a nutritious meal is served at noon Monday through Friday.

Senior citizens who need transportation to the center or to run essential errands around town can make arrangements by calling the office at 573-4035.

Dr. Mike to wed

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Next season, Jane Seymour will be "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" — and wife.

Her character, Dr. Michaela Quinn, will take vows with rugged, long-haired mountain man Byron Sully on the CBS series' May 20 episode.

Joe Lando, a real-life bachelor who plays Sully, says planning a TV wedding is as much work as the real thing. His on-screen bride even has wedding day jitters.

"She's been nervous, I can tell. It's like she's actually getting married," Lando says in the May 6 issue of TV Guide.

Seymour found the fabric for her character's wedding dress in London last Christmas, but the pearl-encrusted material had to be ordered from India for $2,000.

"I like it better than my own wedding dress," she says.

"Family Focus"

By James C. Dobson, Ph.D.

QUESTION: My son is not athletically inclined. How can I, as a parent, decide what skills my son should develop? Shouldn't that choice be left to him?

DR. DOBSON: Many parents feel they do not have the right to force a choice of this nature on their children. They sit back in the hopes that he will make it for himself.

However, most children lack self-discipline. It is always difficult to learn a new skill--particularly during the initial stages. There is no fun to be derived from total failure, which is the typical feeling in the beginning. Thus, the child never learns those important skills which he will need so badly later on.

I recommend that you, his parent, make a careful assessment of his areas of strength. Then select a skill where you believe the greatest possibilities for success lie. Once this selection is made, see to it that he gets through the first stage. Reward him, push him, threaten him, beg him--bribe him, if necessary--but make him learn it.

If you discover later that you've made a mistake, back up and start over on something else. But don't let inertia keep you from teaching something emotionally useful to your offspring!

Does this form of coercion impinge upon the freedom of the child to choose for himself? Perhaps, but so does making him eat properly, keep himself clean, and go to bed at a reasonable hour. It is, as they say, in the child's best interest.

QUESTION: What happens when a child is so different from the group that he cannot compete, no matter how hard he tries?

DR. DOBSON: That dead-end street is most often responsible for attempts at self-destruction.

I am reminded of a sad little girl named Lily, an eighth-grader who was referred to me for psychological counseling. She opened the door to my office and stood with eyes cast down. Underneath several layers of powder and make-up, her face was completely aglow with infected acne.

Lily had done her best to bury the inflammation, but she had not been successful. She weighed about 85 pounds and was a physical wreck from head to toe. She sat down without raising her eyes to mine, lacking the confidence to face me.

I didn't need to ask what was troubling her. Life had dealt her a devastating blow, and she was bitter, angry, broken and deeply hurt.

The teen-ager who reaches this point of despair can see no tomorrow. He has no hope. He can't think of anything else. He knows he is repulsive and disgusting. He would like to crawl in a hole, but there is no place to hide. Running away won't help, nor will crying change anything. Too often he chooses suicide as the only way out.

Lily gave me little time to work. The following morning she staggered into the school office and announced that she had internalized everything in the family medicine cabinet. We labored feverishly to retrieve the medication and finally succeeded on the way to the hospital.

Lily survived physically, but her self-esteem and confidence had died years earlier. The scars on her sad face symbolized the wounds on her adolescent heart.

Obviously, the inability to gain social acceptance is not merely an uncomfortable feeling among the young; such lack of self-esteem can actually extinguish the desire to go on living. Parents and teachers must be taught to recognize the early symptoms of personal despair during the tender, pliable years of childhood, and more importantly, what they can do about it.

QUESTION: I am hurt because my teen-ager seems to be ashamed to be seen with me. I gave birth to him and have nourished and devoted my entire life to him. Now, he's suddenly embarrassed to be seen with me, especially when his friends are around. Is this normal? Should I resist or accept it?

DR. DOBSON: You should understand that teenagers are engulfed by a tremendous desire to be adults, and they resent anything which implies that they are children.

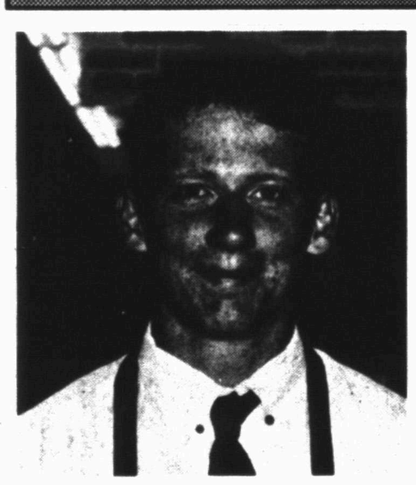

When they are seen with their "Mommy and Daddy" on a Friday night, for example, their humiliation is almost unbearable. They are not really ashamed of their parents; they are embarrassed by the adult-baby role that was more appropriate in prior years.

Though it is difficult for you now, you would do well to accept this healthy aspect of growing up without becoming defensive about it. Your love relationship with your child will be reestablished in a few years, although it will never be a parent-child phenomenon again.

YOUR DOCTOR IS GETTING A SECOND OPINION.

And a third. And a fourth.

At the Southwest Cancer Center at UMC our patients don't just have one doctor, they have a team of experts focusing on their medical care. Every week at a multi-disciplinary conference, each patient's condition is reviewed by a team of doctors with specialties in several areas of cancer treatment.

Patients are the top priority at the Southwest Cancer Center at UMC. That's why we've expanded our facility to provide all of our services under one roof.

We've added patient treatment areas with an additional linear accelerator and still have the region's only Bone Marrow Transplant Unit.

In the simplest terms, we give people diagnosed with cancer hope. By staying close to home with our team of experts, cancer patients can focus on treatment and recovery rather than travel and expense.

THE Southwest Cancer Center AT UMC

THE CENTER FOR EXCELLENCE

Texas Senate approves DWI checkpoints throughout state

AUSTIN (AP) — Police checkpoints would be used on Texas roads to stop drunken drivers under a bill given approval by the state Senate.

"The fear of arrest is the most effective deterrent to drunk driving," said Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, sponsor of the bill. "I hope the possibility of being stopped at a checkpoint will convince people to change their behavior."

The Senate voted 31-0 Thursday in favor of the measure after senators received assurances from Sibley that the bill wouldn't allow police to harass drivers. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

"It is not the intent of this bill to be carte blanche for an officer to stop someone and say, 'Let's see what's in your trunk?' or 'What's under the blanket in the back seat?' " Sibley said.

"But if they stop a car and see a dead body in there, I would hope they would be curious enough to check out what's going on."

Sibley said the checkpoints have been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court, alleviating fears of Sen. Gregory Luna, D-San Antonio, who said, "There's going to be federal objections."

The bill is strongly supported by Mothers Against Drunk Driving and law enforcement groups.

Under the measure, vehicles would be stopped according to a predetermined selection process, such as every third car. Cars couldn't be stopped on a random basis.

An officer could conduct a field sobriety test only if there was reasonable suspicion or probable cause to believe the driver had committed an offense.

Drivers couldn't be stopped for more than two minutes, and the total time to pass through a checkpoint could not be longer than 10 minutes, according to the bill.

Checkpoints couldn't be operated in one location for more than four hours at a time and not more than twice at the same location within a seven-day period.

Authorities would be required to make a reasonable effort to publicize the checkpoint, but would not be required to disclose the precise date, time, location or purpose of the checkpoint.

Sibley said the bill wouldn't create an offense for evading a checkpoint. He said, for example, a driver who came upon a checkpoint and made a legal U-turn or pulled into a driveway and turned around to avoid going through the checkpoint wouldn't be stopped by police.

"Now if someone comes up on a checkpoint and goes through a guardrail to turn around, that's not evading a checkpoint, but it is another traffic violation that police could stop them for," Sibley said.

An amendment by Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, would require the operation of checkpoints to be videotaped and a study to be conducted on the effectiveness of the roadblocks no later than Feb. 1, 1997.

Making ends meet common worry for many Americans

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty percent of Americans always worry about making ends meet and 35 percent say they sometimes worry, according to a poll reported Thursday.

That 55 percent would translate into 52 million American households with concerns about getting by, said Lee Miringoff, head of the Marist College Institute for Public Opinion.

"This all adds up to a lot of Americans juggling to make ends meet," Miringoff said.

Of the remainder of the 1,025 adults surveyed nationwide by Marist, 25 percent said they seldom worry about having enough family income to pay the bills and 20 percent said they never worry about it.

It was the first poll on the issue by Marist, Miringoff said. A June 1990 poll by the Gallup Organization found 46 percent of respondents worried about their ability to meet all of their financial responsibilities. That poll covered 1,058 households in a random sample and an additional 600 with incomes of at least $50,000.

In the new poll, 36 percent said they always or sometimes had difficulty paying for housing costs during the past year. Thirty-one percent said they had trouble with medical bills, 27 percent said buying clothes was a problem, and 17 percent cited food costs.

In all, 41 percent of those questioned said they had difficulty affording at least one of the basic necessities in the past year.

Industry: bill would boost rates for cellular phones

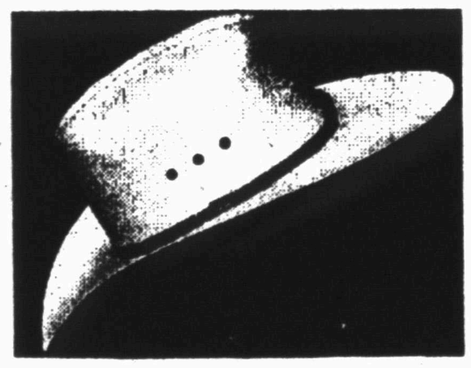

AUSTIN (AP) — The tab for cellular telephones could rise by up to $11 a month under pending legislation to bring competition to local phone service, a cellular industry official says.

The bill also could cause pay telephone users to pay more for calls, due to a provision that would allow pay phone companies to charge an additional 25 cents for calls longer than five minutes, or a total of 50 cents. The current limit is 25 cents.

Kurt Maass, vice president of McCaw Communications, which operates a cellular company, said monthly cellular bills would rise about $8, an estimate based on a projection of $170 million a year that the cellular telephone industry would pay into a proposed regulatory transition fund.

Aunt Objects to Niece's Formal Wedding a Second Time Around

DEAR ABBY: When my sister's daughter, "Doreen," was married, everyone in the family attended her shower and large formal wedding, and gave gifts.

Now, less than two years later, she is marrying again. This will be the young man's first marriage, and his mother wants to throw a shower and invite everyone. Doreen wants to wear another long white gown and veil, which all her goofy young friends tell her is perfectly OK.

Is any of this proper? How many times is one expected to attend a wedding, a shower, and buy gifts for the same girl?

Just sign me ...

CURIOUS AND FURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: My wedding experts tell me that many women who marry for the second time now wear traditional white wedding gowns. Veils and trains are not appropriate, however, nor is a shower for a second-time bride, although other kinds of parties may be given.

A wedding gift is intended to symbolize your blessing of the union, so if you bless it, buy one.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the expression, "I could care less." One dictionary cites it as substandard, and I agree, but it is still correct. One can justify it in two ways:

First, it can be regarded as a figure of speech called "verbal irony," in which you say the opposite of what you mean. For example, many people will say "Great!" when they really mean, "How awful!" Or, "That was a fine thing to do," when they really mean it was a bad thing to do.

A second possibility is another figure of speech called "ellipsis," in which you leave something out. In effect, you are saying, "I could care less, but it wouldn't be easy."

Of course, figures of speech are dangerous. Someone might take you literally.

Abby, your suggestion to substitute "I don't give a hoot" is bad advice. It would not be suitable in formal speech or writing, whereas "I couldn't care less" is always proper. (If you were kidding, remember what I just said about figures of speech.)

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, my husband of 22 years announced that he wanted a divorce and was moving out.

Our 18-year-old son and I were crushed. I was in shock and didn't know what to do. Being a Christian, I began to pray and asked my friends to pray for my husband.

Two months later, my doorbell rang, and there stood my husband wanting to talk! We both sat down and cried like babies. He asked me to forgive him for the hurt he had caused me — he had realized the grass was not greener on the other side of the fence.

I was able to forgive him, and we started our marriage all over again without going through the finality of divorce.

My advice to "Dying Inside in Missouri" and others going through the same situation is: If you still love him, don't give up. Pray instead. It really works.

BEEN THERE IN BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR BEEN THERE: The lesson to be learned here is: Never underestimate the power of prayer.

DEAR READERS: Some time ago, I asked readers to send me names of people whose occupations (or professions) suited their names. Did I get a bushel and a peck! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In high school, our librarian was named Miss Story and my band teacher was Ray Musicker. There is a dentist on Long Island named Scaler, and a pediatrician named Needles. But our favorite was a podiatrist in a Detroit suburb named Dr. Smelsey.

CHUCK AND SADIE SODIKOFF, MERRICK, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I love telling people that the doctors who delivered my sons were Dr. Miracle and Dr. Blessing.

LOUISE SKYLER, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Realtor and my name is Sandi Lott. I know another Realtor in Palos Verdes, Calif., named Dusty Rhodes. Also, I used a dentist named Dr. Socket, and my obgyn was Dr. Peeke.

S.L., KIMBALL, NEB.

DEAR ABBY: Re people's names fitting their occupations: Three members of my church are named Angel, Harp and Saint.

NORMA WINDSOR, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Sir Russell Brain and Sir Henry Head were two prominent neurologists in Great Britain in the 1930s.

DR. EUGENE KAPLAN, COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: My dentist in San Francisco is named Les Plack.

BETH KUPER, OAKLAND, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: In Valdosta, Ga., 12 years ago, I bought a car from someone named Swindle and insured it with the Bill Crook Insurance Agency. (Like "Smuckers," I figured with names like those, they had to be good!)

VIRGINIA T. LOVE, WINONA, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: When my father was a patient in the hospital in Palm Springs, Calif., his dietitian was Miss Hunger. I give you my word.

JUDGE HENRY LOBIE, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: Add these to your collection: Joe Yawn, manager of a sleep disorder clinic in Jonesboro, Ark.; a Texas psychiatrist named Paul Looney; a fire inspector in Everett, Wash., named Warren Burns; Ralph Watts, a power official in Des Moines, Iowa; L.R. Speedy, of the State Highway Patrol, Canfield, Ohio; and Joe Pigeon, a Key West, Fla., bird dealer. There is also a chiropractor named Bonebreak, a minister named Lord, a dentist named Brush and an undertaker named Dye.

ED MESERVE, STOUGHTON, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: There is a reputable banker in my hometown named Don Crook, and Paul Kradel is a popular obstetrician. P.S. I own a travel agency!

SUZANNE B. TRIPP, FORT SMITH, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: Among the people I have known in my lifetime are a bank teller named Mr. Outlaw, a minister named Reverend Paradise, a rabbi named Angel, a hairdresser named Mrs. Brunetti — and let us not forget the coordinator of the People for Perot Campaign in 1992, Orson Swindle.

DEAR ABBY: My all-time favorite is Joe Boozer, of Hereford, Texas, who operates — you guessed it — a liquor store.

CTF sets open meeting for prevention program

Snyder/Scurry County is one of 15 sites in Texas selected by the Children's Trust Fund of Texas Council (CTF) for its new funding initiative, Family PRIDE. A Family PRIDE Community Council (FPCC) has been organized locally and will be establishing priorities for prevention program needs in the community based on the values of Family PRIDE: Principles, Responsibility, Integrity, Discipline and Education.

A community meeting has been scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. in the St. Elizabeth's Hall, 3005 Ave. A, and is open to the public. Everyone is encouraged to attend and to provide input to the FBC council for prioritizing prevention program needs. Information will also be available on how to receive a Request For Proposal to be released May 15.

As a Family PRIDE community, this area will be eligible for CTF funding for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1. Based on the community's priorities and CTF criteria, community agencies/organizations will submit proposals for prevention programs or activities to the FPCC by June 30. The Children's Trust Fund will review the FPCC's recommendations for funding and awarding grants.

Children's Trust Fund of Texas was established in 1985 by the Texas Legislature to support community-based programs to prevent child abuse and neglect. Revenue comes from a portion of each marriage license fee, the federal prevention grant and donations. The goal of CTF, a state agency, is to promote and provide opportunities so that Texas children can grow to responsible and productive adulthood free of threats to their dignity, physical safety and emotional well-being.

For more information about Family PRIDE or the community meeting, contact Zola Schlegel or Rollin Swanson.

Collins debuts

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Against all odds, Phil Collins made his Puerto Rican debut.

Collins was two hours late for the show Saturday night after he and his crew were detained in Caracas, Venezuela. The concert's promoters apparently had failed to pay production taxes after a show there, a radio station reported.

The San Juan crowd of 17,000 didn't seem to mind the delay as Collins performed "Against All Odds" and "In the Air Tonight" in a set of more than 20 songs.

The concert was the last leg of a Latin American tour that included Puerto Rico, Venezuela, Argentina and Peru.
