Five-Day Work Stoppage Ends At Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, May 31.—(AP)—Workers at the Gulf Oil corporation's refinery reported for work today, breaking a five-day work stoppage of 5,000 employees which had completely paralyzed production at the plant.

At a meeting last night the employees voted to return to their jobs. Schedules were set up for today's shifts, but resumption of full production at the high octane gasoline plant will require several days.

Refinery employees walked out last Saturday following suspension of a pipefitter. Last night the men agreed to return to their jobs and await settlement of their dispute through regular channels.

The vote to return to work was taken at a four-hour meeting of members of local 22 of the oil workers' international union. Army navy and union officials spoke during the meeting, and urged the men to end the stoppage.

Earlier yesterday the war labor board had ordered the men to return to their jobs after Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes called on officials and workers to settle the dispute at the earliest possible moment.

"The strike on the part of the employees of your Port Arthur refinery has resulted in extremely serious losses of petroleum products vitally needed by the armed forces," Ickes said in a telegram to R. C. Faulkner, general superintendent of the refinery.

Approximately 5,000 men were involved in the work stoppage.

Jap Balloon Bomb Kills Six Persons

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—Undersecretary of War Patterson disclosed today that a mother and five of her children were killed by a bomb from one of the long-range Japanese balloons sporadically attacking the western part of this country.

Asked if he had any further information on the balloons, Patterson said he cited the incident of the woman and her children to emphasize the need for precautions.

He said the six were killed in a western state, but gave no names or other details except that the tragedy occurred during a fishing trip when one of the children began playing with an unexploded bomb dropped by one of the unmanned paper balloons. The woman's husband and one child, Patterson said, were the only survivors.

The army previously had reported that no property damage has resulted from the balloon raids.

Garner May Have Been Offered Cabinet Job

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—President Truman wrote former vice-president John N. Garner a "friendly letter" some time ago, the White House said today, but whether Garner was offered a government post was not disclosed.

Commenting on a Texas report that Garner, a close friend of the President in his senate days, had been offered any job he wanted in the government press secretary Charles G. Ross said:

"The President wrote Garner a friendly letter some time ago and told him to come around and see him."

"What he wanted to see him about I do not know."

Jap Suicide Tactics Are Threatening

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Japan threatened today to extend Kamikaze suicide tactics to all branches of the Imperial navy in an effort to halt the Allied advance on Nippon as the American flag flew over the shattered remnants of Shuri Castle, four centuries symbol of rule on Okinawa island.

In China, where Japanese armies have been reported withdrawing to meet a promised full-scale Chinese offensive, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek relinquished the premiership to devote his full energies to military affairs. Two of Chiang's southern columns tightened a squeeze on Hsiao-Luichow, remaining enemy stronghold on the broken Indo-China corridor.

Allied soldiers were reported tightening pockets on isolated groups of Japanese in jungle grown hills of the Philippines, New Guinea and Burma.

Struggling through rain and deepening mud on Okinawa, stepping stone to Japan or the China coast, U. S. ground forces cleaned out Shuri Castle and closed in from the north.

Committee Asks Army To Explain Some Discharges

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—The house military committee called today for an army explanation of some of its courts martial sentences and discharges.

Rep. Thompson (D-Texas), ranking majority member said representatives of the adjutant general's office have been asked to appear tomorrow.

Asserting that some soldiers and airmen have been given "discharges without honor," apparently after suffering nerve exhaustion from combat experiences, Thompson said he wants a "complete explanation" of war department policies in such matters.

He cited the case of one Texan whose discharge as a psychoneurotic, he said, appeared unjust. The subject had a number of instances where men have been let out with other than honorable discharges. Some of these are cases of sheer nerve exhaustion, of boys who have lived through tough air raids. And yet they may be called cowards just because of these discharges.

Sections of the GI bill of rights provide for a board of review to consider such cases.

The Texan added that the committee also will go into the subject of courts martial and of policies which permit such sentences as that given Pvt. Joseph McGee of Worcester, Mass., for hitting German prisoners.

CONFUSIN' AND AMUSIN':

MEN ADMIT THEY DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TIME IT WAS

HOUSTON, May 31.—(AP)—There was a time when you could ask Police Captain J. Davidson or Lawyer Percy Foreman what time it was and they would glance at their watch and tell you.

But not now.

They would probably ask if you meant civil, mean, solar, or war time. They might even yank out law books, legal documents, physics texts and complicated charts.

It all started when Foreman, a criminal defense lawyer, and Davidson, head of the police morals division, met head-on in a legal clash.

Big Powers' Abilities Are 'On The Line'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic News Editor

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—(AP)—Bloody fighting in Syria put to its severest test today the good neighbor policy on which the United Nations are seeking to erect a new world league to keep peace.

The outbreak in the Levant aroused new apprehensions of many delegations here over the ability of the big powers to work out their world interests in a friendly and unselfish manner.

American officials, however, are telling these small nation representatives that had the projected world organization already been in existence problems such as the Levant crisis, especially, probably would have been more easily and speedily solved.

Secretary of State Stettinius threw his influence against letting any current issues interfere with the work of the conference. Officials appeared confident that he would succeed and the league charter would be produced early in June.

Stettinius was drawn directly into the Levant situation when a group of Arab delegates protested to him against French policy in Syria and Lebanon.

The United States, Stettinius told the group, stands firmly by its support of their independence, but the whole matter is being handled by the state department at Washington. Indications were that the United States and Britain had protested French moves and are now urging both sides to stop fighting.

The United States position is that the matter must be worked out in a manner fully consistent with the independence of Syria and Lebanon.

The French explanation for having troops in the Levant is that under agreements with Syria and Lebanon France is responsible for military security in the two countries.

NEGLECT OF DUTY:

OFFICER IS DISMISSED AFTER PACKAGES BURN

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—Maj. D. C. Jernigan of Fort Worth, Tex., commanding officer of the U. S. army first base postoffice at Sutton, has been relieved on a charge of neglect of duty.

Villagers at the Warwickshire town complained that soldiers' packages from home were, on his orders, being burned by German prisoners of war.

Brig. Gen. E. F. Koenig, base commander for the United Kingdom, announced Jernigan's dismissal today, saying:

"An investigation by U. S. army officials disclosed that Maj. Jernigan had failed to follow in every detail army regulations governing the disposal of parcels that have lost their identifying wrappers, or are badly damaged in transit."

"Through lack of proper supervision, a very small number of undamaged items were burned along with articles damaged beyond any possible use or value."

Jernigan said in a statement through his headquarters last week that "only spoiled food and items damaged beyond use are burned."

Authorities Find Rations Pilfering Difficult to Stop

ANTWERP — (AP)—The United States army understands it is hard to handle food and clothing when you're hungry and shabby, but it is bending every effort to halt the pilfering of its supplies.

Thousands of French and Belgians, hired as laborers in supply depots, find it difficult to resist temptation when confronted with huge quantities of things they need so badly.

"The poor devils," said one port officer as we watched long lines of shabby workmen being searched by military police, "they haven't got anything—even enough food. Then one day they start unloading a shipload of candy bars, canned meat or cigarettes. I think under the same circumstances I'd do almost anything to get hold of a can or two to take home to the kids."

But when you multiply a can or two by thousands of workers it adds up to short supplies for American soldiers. So every possible precaution is taken to dam the holes.

Action Against War Criminals Called For

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—Lord Wright told the United Nations war crimes commission today that 22,657 individuals had been charged with war crimes by various Allied nations and the commission itself, of these, 2,524 are Germans.

"The time has now come when the mere collection of material must change over into action," said the Australian chairman of the conference, representing the United States and 15 other nations. "Action here means the trial of criminals and their conviction, sentence and punishment where appropriate."

None of the names was given. Germans in key positions listed by the war crimes commission on a general charge of "systematic terrorism" total 561.

U. S. And England Are Intervening

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill called upon Gen. De Gaulle today to withdraw French troops in Syria to their barracks. Britain has instructed her armed forces in the Middle East to intervene in the fighting between French and Syrian forces to prevent further bloodshed, Churchill said.

De Gaulle called key ministers into session in Paris immediately after he received Churchill's demand. Paris dispatches said the French government was surprised at the London announcement.

In Washington, the state department disclosed the United States last Monday had urged France to review her policy toward Syria and neighboring Lebanon.

Fighting which has staked at least 300 lives continued in Damascus, and two huge fires swept sections of the city.

Britain, with France, promised the Levant states their independence after French forces eliminated Vichy control there.

"In order to avoid a collision between British and French forces we request you immediately to order French troops to cease fire and to withdraw to their barracks," Churchill told De Gaulle.

British forces have been in Syria since 1941 when they and the Free French knocked out German control.

The action was announced in common by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden following the third emergency session of the British cabinet in 24 hours.

"Once firing has ceased and order has been restored we shall be prepared to begin tripartite discussions here in London," the message to De Gaulle continued.

Eden said the British minister in Damascus had reported a further grave deterioration of the situation in which 300 or more persons already have lost their lives in fighting between the French and Syrians, and that large fires were burning in the capital.

"We have not acted until our over-all responsibility was so serious that we simply had to act or stand by and see a situation develop which would have shamed us all," Eden told common.

Eden spoke after a French spokesman in Paris had asserted that a direct collision between France and Britain was possible, and the Syrian minister in Paris had insisted that outside intervention alone could resolve the crisis.

The Syrian minister made his statement just after talking to Jefferson Caffery, U. S. ambassador in Paris.

Churchill told De Gaulle that Britain's order to Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, British commander in the Middle East, to intervene had been issued with "profound regret."

The note said Britain's communications in the war with Japan and the security of the whole Middle East were involved in Britain's course of action.

Eden's statement was repeated by Lord Woolton in the house of lords and was cheered by that body.

Eden said Britain was in close touch with all the governments concerned, including the United States, but declined details on the ground that nothing should be said "which would make the diplomatic initiative more difficult."

Clement R. Attlee, leader of the labor opposition in Britain's forthcoming general election, told common:

Officer To Serve 90 Days in Jail

FORT WORTH, May 31.—(AP)—Max Moore, Dallas city detective, was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday following his conviction on a charge of false imprisonment.

Moore is one of four officers charged with the detention of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Holt of Fort Worth during the recovery of a diamond allegedly stolen at Temple.

Motion for a new trial was filed by Maury Hughes of Dallas, defense attorney. Hughes was fined $15 for contempt of court by Judge Willis McGreer for repeating his plea to a jury not to convict Moore, saying it would jeopardize his job.

Awaiting trial on similar charges are M. K. Tucker and T. S. Connelly, Dallas city detectives, and J. L. Riddle, Fort Worth policeman.

The Holts contended the four officers came to their home, took them to Dallas and forced them to surrender a diamond ring without a receipt.

Texan Awarded Medal of Honor For Hero Role

U. S. 3RD ARMY, Bavaria, May 31.—(AP)—Sgt. Jose M. Lopez of Brownsville, Texas, received the medal of honor today for killing dozens of Germans and enabling his company to withdraw from an apparently hopeless trap in the Ardennes campaign last winter.

Lopez was a machinegunner of the Second division's 23rd regiment when he set up his weapon last Dec. 17 in a shallow hole which afforded no protection for the upper half of his body. He killed ten Germans immediately.

An enemy tank 150 yards away started spraying machinegun bullets and 88-millimeter shells, but Lopez killed 25 more Germans following the tank.

Then the Texan played havoc with wave after wave of Germans pouring toward the company's position. A shell from the tank once landed so close that the concussion knocked him backward, blowing him gun several feet from his position. But Lopez yanked it back and resumed fire.

The sergeant poured out such a hail of bullets that ammunition bearers had to bring up box after box of cartridges to keep his machinegun fed. When the company withdrew finally, Lopez turned his weapon 100 yards to the rear and fired for ten more minutes from another defense position until his ammunition was exhausted. Then he joined his buddies.

During the seven-hour battle, Lopez fired more than 5,000 rounds.

Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Third corps commander and former football coach at the University of Florida, decorated the sergeant. Van Fleet once was assistant commander of the Second division.

Lopez had been enroute home for discharge when he received word that he had won the highest United States reward. He returned to Third corps headquarters for the ceremony.

tries. The French also argue that if they pulled out completely some other power would replace them. They have investments in the country which they say need protection. Further, they cite plans for using these troops against Japan.

Conference issues moved slowly toward final solution. The Big Five were still awaiting word from Moscow on a proposed interpretation of the veto-voting formula which would permit any state to get a hearing before the security council without the possibility that one of the big powers could gag it with a veto.

American officials contended that this interpretation should be particularly reassuring to small nations now because of the Syria-Lebanon crisis. If the council were functioning, they said, France could not, if it desired, prevent Syria and Lebanon from getting the hearing they are doing so in an appeal from the Secretary of the Navy.

Your GI Rights

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON SERVICEMEN'S PROBLEMS

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Here are some questions from GIs soon to be discharged:

Q. I lived with my sister and brother-in-law before I went into the army. It is their house and since the start of the war it has fallen into a pretty bad state of disrepair. As my share of the living expenses, I want to make a loan under the GI Bill of Rights and use the money to repair their house. Can I do this?

A. No. To get a loan guaranteed for repairs on a house the house must be in your name.

Q. My wife took advantage of the Emergency Maternity and Infant Care program when she had her baby last month. I am about to be discharged. Will the child still be able to get free medical attention when I get out?

The doctor says the baby will need her tonsils out very soon.

A. Yes, your child will be eligible for infant care under the EMIC program.

Q. We sold our home when I enlisted in the navy. My wife went to live with her parents. Since I have known I was to be discharged she has been trying to find a place for us to live but things are so crowded she can't find a thing. There are some government houses available but they tell her she can't move in because she isn't now living in a so-called "sub-standard" dwelling. Is this true? Government houses seem to be our only chance.

A. According to a recent regulation the national housing agency has declared that discharged veterans have priority on government housing regardless of whether their former abode was sub-standard.

Nazi U-Boat Sinks Carrier in Atlantic

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—A German U-boat sank an American baby flat-top, damaged an escort and then itself was sent to the bottom in an action-filled hour one year ago last Tuesday.

The navy marked the anniversary by disclosing the story of the escort carrier Block Island's final dramatic action as well as her 14-month career as a scourge of U-boats before she became the only U. S. carrier lost in the Atlantic.

Six fighter pilots out on patrol from the Block Island when the ship went down, headed for an island in the Mediterranean. Two were rescued after making water landings, but the other four never were found.

Ration Pillering

through which supplies leak into civilian homes and into the extensive black market.

The system isn't perfect. American cigarettes are peddled openly by black markets in Brussels and other cities; chocolate bars are worth more than their weight in gold; the familiar olive-drab cans of army rations are seen frequently in places far from army personnel.

Each exit of this great, rubble-strewn port is a search station. Sometimes the MPs at the gate garner a three-foot high pile of assorted goods just during the mid-day tramping of departing workmen.

"We get everything," said Sgt. Walter Borys of Enfield, Conn. "All kinds of rationed goods, food and clothing. The only thing they haven't tried to get out the gate is a liberty ship with a locomotive lashed to the deck."

"They try to smuggle out stuff under their hats, in their wooden shoes, under their armpits. They open cans of meat and stuff it in hollowed-out loaves of bread, or they cut it into sandwich filling. They hide stuff under tobacco in tobacco cans. I've caught them with stockings stuffed in every pocket."

Even so, things still disappear. One room in a huge warehouse at the Antwerp port is known as the "pillage room." In it are goods rescued from broken cartons or taken from the workmen. There's everything there from rubber heels to officers' pants.

Cartful of Cheer for Children

The wooly dog and the cart with flowers make an unusual and amusing gift for a child who has to remain in bed for a few days.

Written for NEA Service by ALAN WAYNE
Stylist of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association

There is nothing quite so forlorn and confused as a small child sentenced to bed for the removal of his tonsils. He is written all over his face as he stares blankly at the ceiling but, surprisingly, he is likely to perk up immediately when a few gay colored posies are brought into the room.

A small wooden dog cart makes a fine conveyance for the bedside tonic and a variety of blooms should be included. Use a little of this and a little of that, especially types that he may recognize and explore at length. The bright patterns of croton leaves should also intrigue him, while a single exotic flower, such as an anthurium or streptolite, is an excellent attention-getter.

The wooly dog should be easily removable for cuddling and, if I may add just one word of caution, make sure that mother or who-ever is attending him, knows the name of every single flower. It will avoid embarrassment when the questions begin to flow.

Clara Lemm Receives Bachelor's Degree From Kansas College

XAVIER, Kansas—At the fourth annual commencement exercises Wednesday evening, May 30, the Saint Mary college conferred the degree Bachelor of Science on Miss Clara Lemm, major in music education, minor in dramatics, English and education.

During her four years at Saint Mary, Miss Lemm has been active in the music club, the International Relations club, the Sodality of Our Lady and the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. She served, during her senior year, as chairman elect of the Inter American Circle and, in that capacity, as director of the successful Inter American Week at the college. Fan Interest is Soaring As Pennant Races Get Hotter

Leaders Hold Slim Margins In Both Races

By JACK HAND
AP Sports Writer

Wide open pennant scrambles in both major leagues appeared likely today as the majors passed the first quarter pole with fan interest and turnstile totals soaring toward new wartime highs.

A total of 220,294 paid customers, the largest single day crowd in years, yesterday saw six of the eight double headers end up in splits, with the league leading New York Giants retaining their five and a half game advantage over the second place Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League and the first place New York Yankees keeping their two game margin over the runner-up Detroit Tigers.

The Giants, who threatened to run away with the National League race a week ago when they enjoyed an eight-game lead over their nearest rivals, have dropped four of their last five and now are within halting distance of the rest of the loop.

The largest crowd of the season

Amazing Pep For Men 40, 60 or More

If life apparently has lost its zest, you again may be able to enjoy life as you did in your youth. If added years have slowed down your vim, vitality and youthful pleasures, here is an inexpensive method that may change your whole outlook on life. Just ask your druggist for Casella stimulating tablets (either 48 or 200, the 200 size costs much less per dose). Take as directed on label and feel the thrill of living again. Don't feel old and worn out at 40, 60 or more. Take these tablets regularly until you feel that you have regained the pleasure of living you once enjoyed. Why be discouraged? Why not try Casella tablets and regain the verve and zest of a much younger man? Women too, will find Casella tablets beneficial.

son and the largest in the Yankee stadium, since the third game of the 1913 world series, 87,816 paid, saw the Yankees and Tigers divide a twin-bill by identical scores 3-2. Skeeter Webb's squeeze bunt scored the winning run in the ninth inning of the opener to give Detroit and Stubby Overmire a victory over the Bronxites and Walter Dubiel. Jim Turner turned in a superlative relief job to save the game for the Yankees in the nightcap. He relieved Allen Gettel in the ninth, with men on second and third and none out and retired the side scoreless.

Chicago and Philadelphia divided their two games. The White Sox behind Thornton Lee took the opener 5-2 and the A's held the last game 4-2. Nevertheless, the White Sox held third place because Washington twice dumped the Browns. Victory came in the first 3-2, in 13 innings with the help of Mike Cuyler's game-winning single and the second, 5-0, behind the five-hit chucking of Marino Pieretti.

Pittsburgh's nine-game victory streak went down the drain when the Brooklyn Dodgers bounced back from a 12-5 pasting engineered by Rip Sewell, to outslug the Buccos, 14-10 in a wild nightcap.

Bill Vanele got his bumps for the third time in a row after the New York Giants had trimmed Chicago, 8-6, in the opener. The Giant's right-handed ace was belted out early by the Bruins who then breezed home, 11-2, on Bob Chipman's three-hit effort. The largest Wrigley field turnout since 1939, a crowd of 42,565, saw Mel Ott bang out a double and single for a lifetime total of 4,890 bases, two more than the former National league mark held by Honus Wagner of Pittsburgh.

Ray Sanders' two-run homer in the 12th gave the Cardinals a 4-2 shade over the Boston Braves in the first game, but Jim Tobin pushed the world champs back into the second division by scattered 11 blows for a 9-2 score in the second game.

Cincinnati was the only National league entry to take both ends as Ed Heusser blanked the Phillies, 5-0, on four blows and the Reds blasted four Phil throwers for 13 safeties and a 9-8 margin in the finale, despite homers by Vince DiMaggio, Jimmy Foxx, Coaker Triplett and Jimmy Wascall.

Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox divided in the other American league contests, with rookie Jim Steiner playing both villain and hero roles. The Sox's second sacker

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—More than half a million sports hungry fans—actually 553,389—jammed race tracks and ball parks on the Memorial day holiday, causing old marks to fall by the wayside.

Turf addicts were responsible for new records at eight of the 11 operating United States tracks and baseball followers caused the first S. R. O. sign to be hung out at the Yankee stadium since the 1943 world series.

Taking advantage of a warm sunny day, a record total of 333,195 turned out at the race tracks. They tossed $13,476,021, another new high, into the pari-mutuel machines, which resulted in betting marks being set at Jamaica, Santa Anita, Narragansett, Hawthorne, Delaware, North Randall, Beulah park and Charlesown.

A record throng of 64,537 set a new attendance and betting figure at Jamaica, pouring in $3,564,151 worth of bets. Santa Anita, in Arcadia, California, reported its top mutuel handle, $3,051,776, wagered by 76,640 clients. Narragansett reported a handle of $1,846,216. Hawthorne, $1,586,718, and Delaware, $1,480,732.

A total of 220,294 diamond devotees witnessed eight double headers in the major leagues at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

The largest crowd was at the Yankee stadium, New York, where 67,816 watched the Yankees and Tigers split a twin-bill. Other attendance reports included 42,565, Chicago's largest crowd at Wrigley field since 1939, while there were 27,029 at Pittsburgh, 25,241 at Philadelphia and 23,021 at Washington, which played a twilight-night twin-bill with St. Louis.

East Puts in Strong Bid for Derby Title With Jamaica Winners

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—The east will bid for the 71st Kentucky derby June 9 with a small but powerful contingent of three horses, including the two impressive winners of the Wood memorial at Jamaica.

Heading the trio are F. W. Hooper's Florida-owned Hoop Jr., and Col. C. V. Whitney's jeep, the three year olds who each scored by three lengths in the two divisions of the $25,000 Wood yesterday as 64,537 fans broke all attendance marks for New York and shattered the world's seven race betting mark by wagering $3,564,151.

Hoop Jr., left for Churchill Downs today. Jeep will follow Monday. The third Alexis, from Henry W. Linger's Wilmington, Del., Christiana stables will start the journey within the next few days.

Ten Teams Enter in Senior Softball Loop Actual Play May Begin Monday, June 4

Opening round of play in the men's senior softball league may start Monday providing adequate facilities and equipment are ready for use.

There are 10 teams entered in the loop, with three teams from Pampa army air field and seven from the city.

One team, the Pampa Merchants, is made up of enlisted men from PAAF but is being backed by several local firms.

Jack Baek was chosen president of the league in a meeting last week. Stueben and D. R. Brown were elected vice-presidents while Captain Edward Janney was named military representative.

It was agreed that the initial membership fee for each team would be ten dollars. This would give the league $100 to start with and if any more was needed, league members could be assessed in equal proportions.

Each team will play twice a week in the 12-week schedule under the tentative set-up.

A final schedule and details of league play will be completed in a meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the offices of the Texas Gas and Power corporation. All teams entered in the league are asked to have representatives at the meeting.

Teams entered in the league are PAAF Communications, Cargray gasoline plant, Knights of Pythias, Phillips 66, Friends, Pampa Merchants, Los Dusan, PAAF Medics, PAAF Sqdn. K and the Heiskells.

Sports Roundup

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—Although the N. C. A. A. football rules committee "unfroze" long enough to adopt several changes made popular by the pros at its latest meeting, there still are exactly 90 differences between the college code and that of the National football league—that's the situation that led one far-seeing college coach to comment recently that "where the pros are ahead of us is that they put the coaches on the rules committee—the men who really know the game."

Monday and came right back to get ready for next Saturday's game against Stout field.

Fatal Locality

It occurred to us, during the dying days of the Third Reich, that escape for many of the Nazi high officials might not have been too difficult. Not by elaborate hideaways or submarines to Japan, either. What, we thought, could be simpler than adding or subtracting whiskers and glasses, dying or shaving hair, putting on a Wehrmacht officer's uniform or nondescript clothes, and joining the anonymous thousands of bedraggled, confused, homeless soldiers and civilians?

Well, Heinrich Himmler tried it. He almost got away with it, too. The fact that he didn't can be credited partly to British army intelligence and general alertness. But another reason was that Himmler suffered to the end from a notorious fear: falling; he couldn't keep his mouth shut.

The fact that he was perhaps the most hated man in the world seems not to have been a consideration. It was a big shot, even though his big nose may lie in the fact that he seems destined to be mentioned from now on in the same breath with Adolf Hitler. So he had to end his miserable life with a bullet in the back of his head, as he was doomed, wherever he is.

PRISONERS FOR FARMS

(The New York Sun)

To increase the force of potential farm workers in this country and to relieve the housing and guarding problem in the European theater of operations, the War Department is bringing 100,000 more prisoners of war to this country. This is reported in a release from the Jersey City Quarters, the Department of the Army Service Forces, which estimates that one-third of these prisoners will be available for agricultural work and will be the total available to farmers to more than 100,000 more men during the current crop season. Last year, 5,000,000 man days of work on farms; this year it is predicted that quantity will be expanded.

Although the Army does not say so, it may be aiming to contribute through working prisoners the increase of 7,000,000 man days over 1944 production which the War Food Administration estimates as necessary if agricultural goals for 1945 are to be reached. That agency says that there was a decline of 39,000 man days of farm hands during the twelve months ended February 1, 1945. Some of these had been inducted into service, but the majority had been furloughed into high-paying war jobs. Labor authorities call the most difficult to replace, and it is for such work that prisoners of war may be most readily adaptable.

A farmer who wants prisoners must make application through his county agent. The latter, if civilian labor is not attainable, certifies that fact to the Army together with a statement of the prevailing wage. Military authorities can then enter into contract with the farmer to supply prisoners at that prevailing wage, paying each prisoner 80 cents a day in canteen scrip and turning the balance into Treasury, which last year paid $22,000,000 from this source and fed in any event, all to have them, earning wages of their keep: to know that some of them will be doing as well as consuming food.

ON THE PROGRAM

(Fort Wayne News Sentinel)

The next thing on the New Deal program for extending control over a large segment of the population is the compulsory military service plan for peacetime.

As the Senate slipped down the "work-or-fail" bill, one or both houses Congress should make short work of the military training program.

Why the New Deal and its camp followers should insist on every vicious program of totalitarian Europe, is beyond understanding.

Europe for generations has had compulsory military service programs under which children began to be indoctrinated with the theories of hate and jealousy and imperialism, and which have kept Europe in a turmoil for two centuries, and which have been primarily responsible for embroiling the world in a bloody war, twice within living memory.

There is no sound or sane argument for peacetime military training unless our leaders have a definite belief that another strong and powerful enemy must be fought with a few years after this war ends.

If they have any such fear, then the people should know about it, and the Nation should be even now preparing for it.

Administration leaders are talking about converting our economic structure back to a peacetime basis, but insist that our male population must not be reconverted, but must be kept on a wartime basis.

Another argument in favor of our plan of peacetime military training is that it takes time to train a young man to fight. Yet, for the last few months, military leaders have been giving us glowing pictures of how they train an excellent infantry fighter in 11

Common Ground

By R. C. GOULES
"Men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil."

Do We Want Asiatic Islands?

It has been reported that President Truman has swung his support behind the Navy for complete United States control, if not outright annexation of the Pacific islands have taken from the Japanese during the war.

The contention of the Navy is that we need these islands (the Carolines, Gilberts, Marshalls and several others) for the defense of the United States. If the President has sided with the Navy, he evidently has the same belief.

The question, however, is from whom are they expecting attack? Certainly if we defeat Japan she will be in no shape to attack America. Certainly we need not fear China as helpless and backward as she is.

It looks as if those who believe possession of these islands is necessary to our defense are holding out of Russia. But Russia has no navy of any consequence. While she has a large population, her people are in the direst kind of straits, and a dictator nation and no dictator nation ever made much progress. It takes a free people to develop initiative, so we need not fear Russia as far as our own land is concerned.

Even if we fear Russia then why should we have given many billions of war materials?

If we are taking these islands so that we can control Asia, that puts us in an empire status and changes our whole philosophy of government with the consent of the governed.

To defend these islands perpetually would be very, very costly. The fact that we were able to take them from the Japanese after they had spent years in fortifying them is evidence they cannot be held against combined naval and land forces of a strong power. Of what value are they if they cannot be held except to delay the advance of an enemy a few days or weeks? Would this be worth the immense cost of fortifying them?

For us to ask for these islands puts us in a very embarrassing position as far as having the proper influence in promoting world peace is concerned. If we want these islands, how can we complain against England and Russia constantly for occupying additional territory so that they can defend themselves?

What we should remember is that no matter what extra territory we take, we will always have to defend it. We will need to take more territory in order to protect the territory we have already taken. There is no end to fear if we are afraid of our neighbors.

A nation must be like an individual: if we would have life we must be willing to lose it. If we would have a nation of courage and life, we must not be afraid to live alongside other nations.

Of course when a nation has an exclusion act it feels no obligation to oppress people living in other lands. The proper moral and economic remedy for this trouble is the repeal of immigration restrictions. This does not necessarily mean that we need every individual who enters this country vote unless he can give evidence of his belief in a government with the consent of the governed.

The question is whether we will continue our belief that we must hold islands far off from our country in order to defend it, or whether we will return more nearly to the belief in a government which has no right to protect the lives and property and does not try to protect men from economic competition.

Weeks, and we can almost believe that we have been only 17 weeks' training are now whipping the best of Germany's peace-trained Nazi soldiers.

Will someone in Washington kindly explain a few of these things?

Peter Edson's Column:

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATS ARE HAPPY

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent, SAN FRANCISCO.—To say that California democratic leaders are delighted with the way things are working out in Washington puts it mildly.

President Truman's scheduled visit to San Francisco for the United Nations conference gives the whole west a chance for better acquaintance. Truman made a vice presidential campaign speech here last year, but it attracted little attention and so did he. But as the peace efforts centered on the Pacific and with three good westerners just named to the cabinet, the west is getting a political lift such as it has not had in years.

Already requests are being made to have President Truman put in a few political appearances on the side.

Older heads in the democratic organization are counseling against too much of a purely political party celebration. They realize that Truman is still in his political honeymoon and too much partisan whoop might be a bad thing. An effort will be made to have Truman see many of the party stalwarts on his western trip, but do it in such a way that no appearance will give the impression that the President is playing politics. There will be plenty of time for that later on.

Committee for Economic Development Issues Comprehensive Plan on Postwar Foreign Trade

The research committee of the Committee for Economic Development has made public recommendations stressing the importance of foreign trade in the achievement of high levels of productive postwar employment. The committee's recommendations, in the form of a policy statement on international trade, foreign investment and domestic employment, including Bretton Woods proposals, contain both specific suggestions for leveling expanded and continuing levels of foreign trade, as well as a group of principles and preconditions which it believes are necessary to the establishing of sound postwar international economic relations.

The committee's report also stressed the corollary belief that "the greatest single contribution which the United States can make to high levels of trade and employment throughout the world is to develop and maintain a high level of domestic employment, production and consumption within its own borders."

The statement, which is based on a year-long study of international trade investment and related factors by the businessmen of the CED research committee, advised by a group of distinguished economists and social scientists, calls particular attention to the fact that international commerce must play an increasingly important role in our postwar economic life. "International trade is a two-way street," states the committee, "and by freely exchanging the products which each country is best suited to produce we can achieve mutually higher standards of living."

The committee's specific recommendations for strengthening such reciprocal foreign trade after the war include:

1. First, an intensive effort by business, government, and labor to achieve quickly a high level of productive postwar employment within the United States.
2. Prompt and final settlement of war debts and other international obligations which would be sources of uncertainty and which would restrict postwar trade. These measures should include:
 - (a) Repeal of the Johnson act which forbids private loans to the governments of nations now in default.
 - (b) Prompt settlement of all net obligations arising out of wartime lend-lease operations.
 - (c) Where cancellation of any of these lend-lease obligations is the most effective method of settlement, the committee recommends:

(a) Avoiding the export of capital merely as a device for gaining temporary employment at home. Rather its purpose should be the strengthening of productivity so as to enable the United States to export goods and a higher standard of living.

(b) Utilizing the export-import bank, with its lending power strengthened if necessary, for financing the export of goods and services to nations now in default.

(c) Contributing outright to those organizations which congress may designate to help in relief and rehabilitation, but not to make gifts which are disguised as loans.

(d) In the field of finance the committee would place the international movement of capital, both public and private on an economic basis by:

- (a) Avoiding the export of capital merely as a device for gaining temporary employment at home. Rather its purpose should be the strengthening of productivity so as to enable the United States to export goods and a higher standard of living.
- (b) Utilizing the export-import bank, with its lending power strengthened if necessary, for financing the export of goods and services to nations now in default.

- (c) Contributing outright to those organizations which congress may designate to help in relief and rehabilitation, but not to make gifts which are disguised as loans.

(d) In the field of finance the committee would place the international movement of capital, both public and private on an economic basis by:

that they be cancelled, but with the understanding that the master agreements remain in force.

The committee backed up this recommendation with the declaration that "clogging the channel of international trade with such artificial barriers as tariff and the interest of the United States to conceivable payments or royalties could offset the losses in trade that would occur year after year if they are not promptly and properly settled."

(3) Reduction or elimination of purely artificial barriers to world trade whether these be tariffs, import quotas, exchange controls, or restrictive business agreements. Also similar removal of wartime controls over foreign trade at the earliest possible date, consistent with military necessity and the immediate economic after-effects of war.

Toward these same ends, the committee recommends that the protective tariff of the United States be lowered through:

(a) The strengthening of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement act by making the 50 percent limit on reductions of tariffs apply to the rates existing in 1945. And,

(b) That negotiations under the act be pressed vigorously so as to bring about substantial rate reductions.

The committee considers these steps to be important as "crucial evidence that the American people are prepared to take practical steps toward a high level of trade, high and profitable employment, and ease the economic obstacles to political peace."

As an added part of this program the committee recommends careful public relations work to dispel the elimination of restrictive monopolistic practices in international trade.

4. In the field of finance the committee would place the international movement of capital, both public and private on an economic basis by:

- (a) Avoiding the export of capital merely as a device for gaining temporary employment at home. Rather its purpose should be the strengthening of productivity so as to enable the United States to export goods and a higher standard of living.
- (b) Utilizing the export-import bank, with its lending power strengthened if necessary, for financing the export of goods and services to nations now in default.
- (c) Contributing outright to those organizations which congress may designate to help in relief and rehabilitation, but not to make gifts which are disguised as loans.

(d) In the field of finance the committee would place the international movement of capital, both public and private on an economic basis by:

(a) Avoiding the export of capital merely as a device for gaining temporary employment at home. Rather its purpose should be the strengthening of productivity so as to enable the United States to export goods and a higher standard of living.

(b) Utilizing the export-import bank, with its lending power strengthened if necessary, for financing the export of goods and services to nations now in default.

(c) Contributing outright to those organizations which congress may designate to help in relief and rehabilitation, but not to make gifts which are disguised as loans.

(a) Avoiding the export of capital merely as a device for gaining temporary employment at home. Rather its purpose should be the strengthening of productivity so as to enable the United States to export goods and a higher standard of living.

(b) Utilizing the export-import bank, with its lending power strengthened if necessary, for financing the export of goods and services to nations now in default.

(c) Contributing outright to those organizations which congress may designate to help in relief and rehabilitation, but not to make gifts which are disguised as loans.

Insofar as possible, the movement of capital should, in the committee's opinion, be carried on by private enterprise with the government acting to facilitate such private capital movements.

5. Finally, the committee urges American cooperation with other nations through membership in such official international organizations as are set up to facilitate and expand world commerce, health, education, the arts, and other elements in a higher world standard of living.

In this regard, the committee has already made public its recommendations for strengthening the Bretton Woods agreements and for their approval by the United States. In these earlier recommendations, the committee favored strengthening the bank and then approval of both the bank and the fund.

In developing its specific recommendations, the CED research committee first laid down a group of principles and prerequisites which it believes are fundamental to a healthy and expanding postwar economy. Among these:

Each nation should be free to develop its own way of life with out interference so long as its action does not interfere with the rights and abilities of the people of another nation to work with their own resources.

The United States should aim at the development of world trade which will contribute both to its own long - continued peace and stability and that of the world as a whole.

That the desirability of expanding world trade should go beyond material wants alone to include higher standards of culture and human experience.

In order to carry out these principles through either its own or other recommendations, the committee believes we must have certain prerequisites:

- (1) An effective development of world trade.
- (2) The maintenance of high levels of productive employment in the United States and in other nations.
- (3) Dependable currencies and relationships between currencies to facilitate trade among nations.
- (4) A substantial reduction in artificial restrictions to world trade.
- (5) A practical basis on which commercial relations can be established between private enterprise and state-controlled monopolies.
- (6) The progressive development of legal rules which affect commerce and travel between nations.

Let's add a comment on Harold Laski's remark that the election fight there is a clean-cut one "between private enterprise and monopoly and socialism." The cabined and censored press, but where it goes, makes all the difference in the meaning. Professor Harold Laski would, of course, put it this way: "between private enterprise and monopoly, and a socialism."

That's the old socialist condemnation of private enterprise as monopoly, although actually, monopoly is the direct opposite of private enterprise, or a cancer upon it. But for election purposes it suits the British socialists to identify the cancer with the free initiative which we all should be helping to save from monopoly-state or private.

Opposition to the British socialists includes cartels and monopolies—a plenty. But the honest defense of these freedoms which are characteristically Anglo-Saxon will equally hate and oppose monopoly, whether it be run by a socialist state or by capitalist parasites. They will welcome Prof. Laski's definition of the showdown in Britain as a fight between private enterprise and monopoly and socialism. For the British election is a clean - cut fight between private enterprise, monopoly and socialism. For state socialism is the ultimate and worst form of monopoly. Capitalist monopolies still allow the common man and consumer the opportunity to protect himself through political action—that is, government investigation, supervision and regulation. Capitalist monopolies are often a result of a kind of "letting the market place decide" us from developing all sides of our personality and opening the locked doors of adventure. But no one ever unlocked those doors without a key, and the key to the lock is a realistic plan for your marriage and for the future.

If it is not unreasonable to hope, the world planning will soon be under way, surely it is not unreasonable to chart the course for two lives.

UPTON CLOSE:

Continent Is Simply Scared Of the Soviet

Let's continue our bird's-eye survey of the state of the nations. Happenings in Britain compel us to devote another issue of this series to that corner of the world picture.

There is one further thing about this coming British election to think about. The whole continent of Europe, and the rest of Europe, and Asia, and in turn Berlin and Vienna, over to Russian troops Franklin D. Roosevelt turned Western Europe over to Russia—unless Britain and the U.S.A. make a strong stand immediately to clear the Russians out of Europe and get them back into their own country, or start an economic diplomacy that will maneuver them out. And all the half-dead nations of the continent of Europe feel that if Russia stays, and then takes over the rest of Europe—which she does not push back, they think—Britain in that event becomes a dead duck, because Britain can't survive against a closed Soviet empire in Europe—so say nothing of what will happen to Britain if she is lost and her interests in India.

This scare has hung over the San Francisco conference like a funeral pall and has turned it from a wedding into a wake. In Britain, Laborite Bevin recognizes it and makes bold to promise that a socialist government could dissipate it by some sort of further appeasement of Russia.

Nothing could be more childish. The entire history of Leninism and Stalinism is that it hates any form of socialism save itself, more bitterly than ever it hates capitalism. It inevitably sets out to destroy other socialisms.

President Truman is probably doing the only thing left to do about the Russian scare, by sending Harry Hopkins to Moscow to find out—If he can—where Big Joe is willing to lay off and for what price; and sending pro-Stalin Joe Davis to London to find out if Britain will pay the price. Everything else is shadow playing.

Let's add a comment on Harold Laski's remark that the election fight there is a clean-cut one "between private enterprise and monopoly and socialism." The cabined and censored press, but where it goes, makes all the difference in the meaning. Marriage is a Serious BUSINESS

By Randolph Ray

Grow in Understanding, Even When You Are Apart

THE hardest rule for the war brides, "Try to grow in understanding with your husband, even when you are apart," is one that we must attack the problem of easy marriage rather than that of easy divorce. If marriage is to be saved, those who enter it must be made to realize its importance beforehand.

Divorces grow, frequently, out of the inability of two people to merge into a single entity. This is usually because they are completely unlike. Naturally, that is why the Little Church Around the Corner refuses to marry people who know little of each other and who are starting marriage under a terrific handicap.

There is much talk these days about the cause and inevitability of divorce. But, paradoxically enough, the very fact that it is being talked about indicates that the standards of the people as a whole are being raised rather than lowered.

I mean by that that our ideals are so much higher than they used to be that it becomes increasingly hard to find a man or a woman to be that, when a man and woman married, the man earned the money and the woman did as he told her, spent what he allowed her, kept the home, reared the children, bore the burden of his family, without regard to her own ambitions, hopes, or ideals.

Just as we have got rid of slavery, so we have got rid of the slave wife. Both men and women are escaping from the marriage in which freedom, growth, and service cannot play a part. That is why we see so many divorces.

Marriage is not a feudal ownership of another person by a husband or wife.

MARRIAGE is for better or for worse. I tell people that they should not unduly exalt the Seventh Commandment as the only moral one of the 10. Too few people seem to understand, as a result of the fight against sex that began when the ascetic influence entered the early Church, that they still tend to make sex morality the only test of personal morality.

I am not making light of self-control in sex, but I am saying that marriage has more important elements than sex mating. It has a great deal to do with temperament, ability, with intelligence, with mutual understanding, as the prayer book says, "for better or for worse."

Infidelity is not, as a rule, a cause of trouble. It is a result of trouble—physical, emotional, even economic trouble.

PERSONALLY, while I believe in a permanent relationship, I believe that when people are too utterly unlike, it is criminal to keep them together. There are always exceptional cases for which divorce should be made more elastic.

I remember one young woman, who came to me in despair. "What shall I do?" she said. "My husband is an utter weakling. I cannot break him of his habit of drinking, and he is a most offensive person when he is drunk. My love for him is dead. My respect for him is dead. I have nothing but my marriage vow which I took for better or for worse."

"Drinking," I said, "is a weak person's escape from his own inadequacy. Does he love you?" "Yes," she said promptly. "I mean everything to him, but that is not enough to give him the strength to stop drinking. What am I to do if I cannot get a divorce which the church will recognize?"

The number of happy marriages can be increased when people plan their lives as they plan their days, knowing that they want what they must do to accomplish it, and how to go about it. Unhappiness is often the result of a lack of intelligence in daily living. Boredom and failure are often a result of a kind of mental inertia which prevents us from developing all sides of our personality and opening the locked doors of adventure. But no one ever unlocked those doors without a key, and the key to the lock is a realistic plan for your marriage and for the future.

If it is not unreasonable to hope, the world planning will soon be under way, surely it is not unreasonable to chart the course for two lives.

Why Divorces Are Increasing

A FEW years ago, the increasing divorce rate and the vogue for Paris divorces was alarming. But even then I felt that we must attack the problem of easy marriage rather than that of easy divorce. If marriage is to be saved, those who enter it must be made to realize its importance beforehand.

Divorces grow, frequently, out of the inability of two people to merge into a single entity. This is usually because they are completely unlike. Naturally, that is why the Little Church Around the Corner refuses to marry people who know little of each other and who are starting marriage under a terrific handicap.

There is much talk these days about the cause and inevitability of divorce. But, paradoxically enough, the very fact that it is being talked about indicates that the standards of the people as a whole are being raised rather than lowered.

I mean by that that our ideals are so much higher than they used to be that it becomes increasingly hard to find a man or a woman to be that, when

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Head Sees Bright Future

"The last half of this century can and should be the most resplendent economic era in human history—the era of industrialization and modernization of backward peoples. The profit to the United States should be prodigious." So declares Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. chamber of commerce, writing in the June issue of the Reader's Digest.

Industrialized countries are by far our best customers, Mr. Johnston says. Great Britain with only 47 million people, took $841,000,000 of United States exports in 1939 whereas to China, with 450 million people, our exports in the same year were only $124,000,000. With over a billion human beings—more than half the world's population—living in industrial backwardness and poverty, we have an immense, challenging new frontier for modern economic audacity and development.

In support of his contention that "almost every backward country wants to rise up out of its backwardness," the author cites the case of India's first airplane plant which ultimately employed 14,000 Indians and rivaled America's records of production per man hour.

The first need of the industrially backward nations, Mr. Johnston states, is capital, and the United States is the country to supply it. He emphasizes, however, that by capital he means neither gifts nor loans but direct investment—plants remaining substantially under American investment and operated with American skills.

The 10 billion dollars worth of such American investment abroad at the outbreak of the war can be multiplied advantageously many times in the near future, Mr. Johnston is convinced. The Chinese government alone "has projects which it believes could profitably use an investment of $4,000,000,000 in each of the ten years after the war."

But this industrial development of backward lands, Johnston warns, can happen only on one condition. "No longer can surplus capital countries invest in undeveloped countries and then suck out all the dividends. That kind of economic imperialism is everywhere either dying or already dead. The industrially backward countries resent it. What they want is a partnership of their local capital with foreign capital in the risks and profits of new enterprises on their soils."

This principle of cooperative effort, rather than mere economic exploitation of backward countries, is recognized as cardinal in the future economic development of the Americas, the author says, enumerating instances in which the principle "is already in broad action" in Colombia, Peru, Chile, Bolivia, and Mexico. Local investors are substantial stockholders in all of these enterprises, in some cases owning a stock majority. Labor is far better paid. Mr. Johnston holds that world-wide industrialization will increasingly diminish our traditional fear of imports, a fear based on cheap foreign labor, because industrialization abroad will raise foreign wages step by step toward the American level. He adds that world development, if it is to be peaceful, must be accomplished by private effort, and warns against the intrusion of governments into international investments of capital and exchanges of goods. "The world has suffered enough from power politics," Mr. Johnston states. "It could not possibly endure power economics. That road is the road to unending wars."

French Offer More Trouble in Allied European Policy

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

The French, who have invaded Italy, whose American-equipped armies broke almost entirely away from supreme Allied control during the last days of the war, who have a big row on their hands in the Middle East, have added another embarrassment to the development of Allied policy in Europe.

Luckily, the demand of France's foreign affairs committee for Allied intervention in Spanish politics is not likely to reach the point where Britain and America would have to give it formal consideration. Issued in a moment of pique at Spain's failure to turn over Pierre Laval immediately, it probably will amount to no more than an expression of opinion. But it leads to wonderment whether the French, recently liberated at the cost of thousands of American and British lives, are giving sufficient thought to the unitary road they seem to be traveling.

Spain presents one of the most delicate and complicated problems in postwar Europe, and ultimately something will have to be done. But there are good reasons for not poking a stick into this hornets nest right now. It already is too near an eruption which might re-align leftists and rightists in Europe as it did ten years ago.

Just as Spain was the test-tube for World War II, so she now contains a sample of all the elements of chaos in Europe.

Franco's falange has fostered the communist line that all Spanish republicans are communists in order to keep Franco, who has wavered at times, believing that the falange must be maintained to fight communism. The falange has sponsored acts of violence and attributed them to the communists to enhance the color of this picture.

The republican group—composed of the socialists, republicans and Spain's two greatest labor unions—are fighting both communists and falangists.

The general public is reported as afraid of communism as of the fascist falange.

The fiery Catalonians, led by the minority but extremely active syndicalists, and the more conservative Basques are fighting for autonomous states.

Franco has been urged by the army, the clergy and the Spanish upper classes to abandon the falange and organize a pure military dictatorship, with or without restoration of the monarchy, which Prince Juan and the royalists are demanding.

Here is a spot, then, where fascism, communism, a so-called liberal-republicanism and pure class selfishness are rubbing each other raw. The French, with an army just about large enough to police the portion of Germany they are insisting on occupying, may think it all right to become involved right now. It is certainly no place for anyone who already has a lot of fish which are going to spoil if not fried immediately, nor for anyone who doesn't want a communist regime, or a civil war in any spot which, for the moment, is even fairly well under control.

Texan Is Quick To Earn 'Bazooka Charlie' Title

By JAMES HUTCHESON

WITH THE 38TH DIVISION IN THE SIERRA MADRE MOUNTAINS, Luzon, May 31—(P)—A 19-year old Texan who has been in action for less than four months has earned the title "Bazooka Charlie" in the 38th division's drive toward the Marikina river's Wawa dam.

Pfc. Charles Oliver, of Wortham, Tex., earned the plaudits of his fellow doughboys for what they said was the greatest bazooka shooting they ever saw. And the old doughboys are no slouches themselves.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Oliver, formerly of 1708 Champion St., Houston, Tex. Oliver is with a platoon of the 149th regiment, formerly the Kentucky national guard, spearheading the push up the Rocky defile toward the dam. The sheer rock cliffs rise 500 feet on both sides of the gorge in which the Manila waterworks dam stands. Both walls are pocked with caves blasted out of solid rock or built into crevices forming seemingly impenetrable positions.

Fellow Texan 2nd Lt. Alford Olle, San Antonio, said he saw Oliver fire 25 bazooka rounds at the caves and only two missed.

Oliver who looks like a school boy among the unshaven doughboys merely grinned happily.

"Yeah, and he was doing it with—" out a sight leaf on his bazooka," chimed in another GI.

"He hit one cave mouth and set off an ammunition dump explosion," said Olle, "and it blasted the Jap gunner right out."

Another cave Oliver knocked out had a steel door reinforced by steel rails at the mouth. His well-placed bazooka shot blasted it.

Oliver's bazooka recipe is: "When you can, line 'em up behind the rocks. If you have to take an exposed shot, jump back quick. You can never know what those nasty Japs are liable to throw back at you."

"Bazooka Charlie" entered the army last July. This is the second time he has used a bazooka against the Japanese.

Anglo-American Unity Sought by Earl of Halifax

By NEA Service

Edward Frederick Lindlay Wood, First Earl of Halifax, First Baron Irwin, has traveled more in the United States than any other British ambassador.

The map of America on the wall in his study is studded with dozens of colored pins indicating every city, town and crossroads he has visited. Another will be added when Lord Halifax, as a member of the English delegation to the security conference, arrives in San Francisco.

The tall, distinguished 64-year-old Earl, who was educated at Eton and Oxford, entered Parliament in 1910. He fought in the first World War with the famous Yorkshire Dragoons, and at the end of the war was made undersecretary of the ministry of national service.

In 1941, Lord Halifax arrived in the United States as first ambassador to remain a member of the war cabinet. He has done much to promote Anglo-American understanding and solidarity, and is known to Americans as a good sport—literally and figuratively—who likes to spend his holidays here fishing and hunting.

Winged Shoe Club Formed in Africa

By GEORGE TUCKER

PARIS—(AP)—Two years is a long time for a fighting man to go without a boost in rank, but then Lt. Maurice Kurt (ace) Langberg of Jensen Beach, Fla., has not done much fighting in the last two years. He wandered into the scribe hotel here the other night after two years of nazi "comfort" in a big concentration camp at Sagan. He was not crying "Jennie get home" but "Jennie have some more of that war."

Long ago in the Red Sands around Kairouan and twice later in and near Tunis, he was shot down after ignoring orders not to break formation and chasing off after Germans singlehandedly. Twice he was picked up by Arabs and turned over to the Italians. The third time he was handed over to the Germans but escaped and made his way back to his outfit.

They got him again and made it stick. They took him to Italy and then to Germany where he was behind barbed wire most of the time.

"You get barbed wire neurosis if you stare at that wire too much," Langberg said. So to avoid anything like that he escaped three times. He never succeeded in getting out of Germany, however, and on the last escape was caught by the Gestapo.

When Langberg wandered into the scribe, he spied Associated Press Correspondent Wes Gallagher and made a bee line for him. They are old friends.

Up in our rooms we all wanted to know if there was anything we could do for Langberg. "Anything you want?" Gallagher said.

"Sure," Langberg replied. "I've got a winged shoe coming to me. I belong to the winged shoe club. I want to know where I can find out about it."

The winged shoe club was formed by fighter pilots in Africa. Membership is limited to pilots who were shot down and walked home under their own power.

Poage Opposed Own Salary Raise

(P) Special Washington Service

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON, May 31—(AP)—One of the few congressmen who opposed the bill to give members of the house a $2,500 pay raise was Rep. Bob Poage of Waco.

Along with virtually every other legislator he conceded the justification for the increase, which technically would be for expenses and would be exempt from income taxation, but expressed fear it would contribute to inflation.

After passing the house the bill went to the senate.

Proponents of the measure argued that the $10,000 salary isn't nearly as big as it sounds. They said that from it is deducted costs of campaigning, traveling expenses for self and family—only one round trip fare is provided each session, upkeep of two homes, and such incidentals as taking visiting constituents out for lunch.

Referring to the $2,500 expense account bill, Poage said:

"It sets an example which can only lead to a breakdown in our war time wage and price controls and ultimately to an inflationary increase in the cost of living.

"I know that inflation results from an excess of money seeking goods to buy when the goods are not available. Until the Japs are whipped, we simply can't produce all the goods the American people would like to buy.

"If we keep making more and more money available we are either going to break all price controls, or we are going to turn needed war production over to meet civilian needs. Either course would be tragic."

He called the action "punching a hole in the dike," and noted that it was followed by passage of a bill granting all postal employees a raise. Another measure expected to become law shortly is one granting a 15 percent pay raise to all government employees.

"When these measures become law," he added, "you can look for all labor unions to come in with their demands. About the only hope left to stop this trend is an end of the war."

Girl Finds GI's Coming Home a Pleasure to Meet

By HELEN CAMP

NEW YORK, May 29—(AP)—You always cry when you see the boys come home.

They're coming by the thousands now and they'll continue to come. But it doesn't matter how often you see it, it's never an old story. Because always it's new to them.

You stand at the rail of the welcome home boat that meets the transports in lower New York bay and you look across the water at the railings packed with khaki-clad figures. Five and ten deep they stand. The ones in front squat down so the ones behind can see. The ones farthest back climb on each others shoulders. All of them wave, shout, beckon—reach out as though to touch this, their first semblance of home.

You stand in the grass along the sun-warmed air strips at Bradley and Mitchell fields and you see the planes come in, circle in a final delicious swoop and roll to a stop. You see the bomb bay doors drop open and the men pile out.

You walk through the hospital corridors at Halloran hospital, Camp Shanks, and Camp Kilmer and see the wounded, the released prisoners leaning out of their bunks—see the weary faces, the splints suffering from a stab wound, its mother unconscious from three wounds, its father and another man dead.

At a hospital the mother related how the Japanese angered at the Yank advance toward Davao, stabbed the woman and child, shot the two men threw all four into the hole.

Thirty two months in foxholes, beds comprising a poncho laid on the ground, and tent cots were too much in the blood of Sgt. Adolph E. Carlson, Starbuck, Minn. The 24th division infantryman met a navy friend, Lt. D. Youngquist, Starbuck at Davao. Youngquist invited him aboard ship, promised him a mattress and sheets. In the morning Carlson was sleeping on the stateroom floor. "I tried to sleep on that mattress. I couldn't."

Col. Hugh Cort of San Antonio, Texas, tells this one on himself: His orderly acquired a pet monkey named Eleanor during the 24th division's Mindanao campaign. The monkey developed a dislike for the colonel.

The other morning Eleanor stole the colonel's upper plate. Neither the colonel nor the orderly could do anything with Eleanor. The colonel made a rush for Eleanor. Eleanor side-stepped, countered by throwing the plate at the colonel.

The orderly has promised to get rid of Eleanor.

Hershey Gives Advice For Vets' Families

CHICAGO, May 31—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, offered this advice today to families and friends of the returned, job-seeking veteran: "Don't do too much for him."

"Let him do as much for himself as he can; give him the feeling of being capable of taking care of himself, not of being helpless, and place as few hindrances as possible in the path of his self-effort," he said.

Pampa' Industrial Survey Is Making Rapid Progress

The industrial and economic survey of the city of Pampa, Gray county and Pampa's trade territory, which is being made under contract for the board of city development and chamber of commerce by Burt C. Blanton, consulting industrial engineer and business economist, Dallas, is now well underway, according to E. O. "Red" Wedgeworth, local manager.

Blanton was retained by the industrial committee, of which J. W. Garman is chairman, at a meeting held in Pampa on April 15, the date of beginning preliminary work on the survey. The project will be completed within five months, or about September 15, 1945.

The survey-report, which will be designed as a basis for post-war industrial planning and development and as a prospectus of Pampa's resources and potentialities, will be utilized by the board of city development and chamber of commerce in plans for Pampa's greater commercial and industrial expansion and development extending over a period of years. Blanton's survey-report will constitute a volume of approximately 200 to 300 pages, divided into thirty major sections with hundreds of sub-divisions and exhibits, and will be interspersed with from 40 to 50 charts, graphical computations and maps, all prepared in color, illustrative of the most essential phases of the survey-project.

The Blanton survey will portray all basic business, economic and industrial trends in the city of Pampa, Gray county and Pampa's trade territory over the period of the past fifteen years, 1930 to 1944, inclusive. The report will provide a composite index of Pampa's business activity during this period, and the cycles in commerce and industry.

The survey will present detailed analyses of Pampa's facilities, resources and possibilities, and indicate a course for the consistent development and expansion of business and industry in the city of Pampa and Pampa's trade territory, for the oncoming decade: 1946-1956.

Blanton's survey-report will provide specific recommendations for new types of manufacturing and processing industries which are suitable for location in or adjacent to the city of Pampa and Gray county predicated on a complement of manufacturing facilities, resources and raw materials. Aside from numerous other factors and recommendations, the report will depict opportunities for the investment of local capital in new enterprises.

The Pampa report will cover such major subjects as: introductory relating to the city, county and trade territory which embraces a total of 20 counties; agriculture and livestock industries; number and distribution of inhabitants; composition and characteristics of the population; occupations of the inhabitants; civic considerations; financial considerations; educational facilities; sociological considerations; climatic conditions; economic factors; labor considerations; transportation facilities; manufacturing and processing industries; retail and wholesale trade; market considerations; public utilities; manufacturing facilities of the city, Pampa's metropolitan district and Gray county; new types of manufacturing and processing industries recommended; potentialities of the area and region; Pampa's business activity; general recommendations for postwar planning and the city's future development; petroleum and natural gas industries and their respective development and future potentialities; natural resources and raw materials; real estate considerations; and numerous other subjects.

During the period of the past 22 years, Blanton has served business and industry throughout Texas and the southwest states and elsewhere in the nation. He has won recognition as a leading authority in the field of industrial engineering and business economics, having prepared more than 700 surveys and reports for members of his clientele.

Blanton has prepared, during the past two decades, industrial and economic surveys of more than 300 cities, towns, counties and regions, including such cities in Texas as: Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock, Big Spring, Sweetwater, Midland, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Port Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Corpus Christi, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Waco, Tyler, Corsicana, Temple, Palestine, Longview, Texarkana, Paris, Sherman, and many others.

"Predicated on superficial analyses Pampa affords a complement of requisite facilities for new industries, and has exceptional potentialities for further industrial development and expansion," Blanton said.

The engineer is making periodical trips to Pampa and the region embraced in the survey in connection with field work on the project.

Frisco Conference Expensive to U. S.

By JAMES MARLOW

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—(AP)—

The United Nations conference now going into its second month is costing this government $1,600,000. Congress supplied the money. It will be about all used up if the conference lasts till mid-June.

Rep. Stefan (R-Neb.) thinks the state department has done an excellent job in handling the money. He came here as a consultant to the department on its money problems.

In an interview, Stefan went into great detail to explain the headaches of the department in arranging for the conference and carrying it through.

For instance: He mentioned that the telephone switchboard at conference headquarters—connecting up delegates and committees and specialists—handles an average of 12,000 calls a day.

This is a general outline of how the money is spent:

The foreign delegates paid their own transportation to San Francisco. They pay for their hotel rooms and their food and all their personal expenses.

The army and navy have supplied buses and military cars, with drivers, to take the delegates back and forth between their hotels and conference headquarters.

But if they want to ride taxicabs, they pay their own way.

The major part of the total expense in the so-called secretariat of the conference.

This includes translators, editors, stenographers and hundreds of other special clerical help, all of whom turn out about one million words a day.

Stefan said the foreign delegates were "astounded" at the thoroughness of the arrangements provided by the state department.

It was like a Keystone comedy for a while but a Waco Negro woman didn't think it was funny.

She was sitting peacefully at home when a perfect stranger dashed in the front door and out the back door.

She hadn't regained her composure when Chief Deputy Sheriff Woodie Barron ran in the front door and out the back. The Negro woman got to her feet in perplexed surprise and peered after the men in bewilderment.

Martin (Lone Ranger) Owen another deputy, came in the front door at a trot, brushed by the woman and out the back door.

This was too much. The woman slammed the front door shut and locked it. She was Ranger Joe Thompson, several highway patrolmen and two or three city policemen were forced to detour.

But they finally caught the first man—a merchant mariner charged with burglary.

"The food we are getting these days is hardly worth fooling with," said Earl Best of Dallas. So he closed his cafe and plans to go fishing.

He denies black market pressure has anything to do with it.

Best was an arch-enemy of black marketers. Last fall he trapped a beer dealer. This spring he caused the arrest of a man alleged to be selling cigars in excess of the ceiling price.

He finally wrote a book on black markets, Jap-coddling in internment camps and other related subjects. It is due to be published soon.

Farmers in many Texas counties are using prisoners of war to alleviate the manpower shortage but so far there has not been a single application in Dallas county.

A. B. Jolley, county agent, blames it on red tape. But he said the peak of the farm labor season is due, and he predicts many will be willing to swallow red tape to get nazi muscles.
