two student directors, Dewey Yeager and Larry Rice. The band is presented here in full dress uniform and in concert formation. Director Hayes is shown at the extreme right. The band has an aggregate membership of 86 students, and every instrument of the symphonic band is represented. The Littlefield band has an instrumentation far in excess of the average high school band, and enjoys recognition among the top bands of the state. The band, in its annual formal concert, will present a varied program that should appeal to all tastes in music. In addition to music by the full band, two small ensembles will be featured on the program. A woodwind quintet and a saxophone sextet will present special numbers. These two ensembles have been invited to play in a program at Texas Tech Sunday,

March 18, which will be a part of a series of formal concerts sponsored by the college. All the patrons of the Littlefield schools and directors and band members, together with the general public, are urged to attend the concert here March 8. Tickets will be on advance sale this week and next, and can be purchased from members of the band or by calling the band hall, Phone 486-J. Tickets also may be purchased at the door the night of the concert. The admission charge will be 25 cents for students and 75 cents for adults. The proceeds from the March 8 concert will be used to purchase needed equipment for the band in its future activities.

Friends Gather for House Warming at New Pink Johnson Home

Pictures by Taylor

Thursday night of last week was a very eventful and happy time in the lives of W. P. (Pink) Johnson, his recent bride and two step-daughters. Pink's buddies of the American Legion, the VFW and the DAV and friends of the former Mrs. Agnes Hess turned out en masse to help the disabled former Marine sergeant warm his new home and to wish him well both with words and a shower of beautiful and appropriate personal gifts and gifts for the home. Gifts to Pink included a lifetime paid-up membership card in the Littlefield post of the Veterans of Foreign War, a paid-up membership card in the American Legion here and a paid-up card in the Lubbock DAV post. The VFW also presented the Johnsons with a beautiful large mantel mirror, the Legion a pair of matching end tables and the

DAVs a potted decorative vine. Other gifts which nearly overflowed a guest room in the new home included silverware, dishes, a lamp, an electric coffee maker, an electric iron, a toaster, framed paintings, numerous personal gifts and other articles for the home. Harry Crowley, commander of the Legion, represented his organization in a short presentation ceremony; Bill Street, past commander of the Vets, made the presentation for the VFW in the illness of Commander Odell Matthews, and A. L. Jones acted for the Lubbock DAVs. Mr. Crowley and Mr. Street, together with Mrs. Vernon Hofacket, president of the Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. W. D. T. Storey, acting for the auxiliary; Mrs. J. W. Watson, a firm friend of the Johnson family; Mrs. Lyle Brandon, executive secretary of the Lamb County Chapter of the Red Cross, and Amos Ward, representing the business men of the community, took the leading part in arranging for the reception and housewarming. The brief ceremony with Mrs. Brandon as program chairman included talks, "Here We Are," by Commander Crowley; "Your Friends," by Mr. Street; "Home," by Mrs. Storey; a talk by Bob Kirk and a humorous talk by Jimmie Zed Robinson, "How The Lady Got The Feather In Her Hat." Mrs. Hugo Beyer of the Legion Auxiliary was in charge of registration. More than 75 signed the registration book and it was estimated that again as many visitors failed to leave their autographs. Mrs. Audrey Brown served sandwiches and cakes to the callers and Mrs. Frances Ray presided at the tea and coffee service. Mrs.

Why Federal Actions Come

The individual states most blame themselves—with Texas apparently more at fault than any other—if congress should enact into law a bill introduced by Rep. Manuel Celler, of New York.

Mr. Celler's measure would empower the federal government to attend to congressional redistricting in the individual states after each U. S. census if the state fail to attend to the job themselves.

Congressional redistricting is a responsibility and duty many states have neglected. In Texas, which Mr. Celler cited as a horrible example, new district boundaries have not been established since the 1930 census. The result is that one Texas district now contains only about 220,000 people. Another, centering around Houston, has more than 800,000. Celler proposes to enact a law which would provide that Districts be established containing a minimum of 200,000 and a maximum of 400,000 people. Such an arrangement would give the people something reasonably close to the equal representation to which they are entitled in the Lower House of Congress, and which many of them do not have now.

The prospects for the passage of the Celler bill, into the affairs of individual states, would set up and the further federal intrusion it would authorize new districts of approximately equal population.

But if the legislatures continue to stall in their discharge of this duty, Congress properly should take whatever steps are necessary to give people of the nation the equal representation they should have in the House of Representatives.—Lubbock Avalanche

BULL LAKE PHILOSOPHER HAS DIFFERENT IDEA OF LIMITING EXPENDITURES OF CANDIDATES

Editor's note: The Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Bull Lake has wrong-end view of a vital matter this week. His letter reveals.

Dear editor:

I picked up a copy of the Amarillo Times which my neighbor had half-covered up with his plow. I tell you reckless plowin like that is wasteful, believe I'd just as soon rest under a tree as run the risk of buying good readin matter or any kind or readin matter, includin that paper, and shook the dirt off, that is, the dirt my neighbor had put on it with his plow, not the dirt that was printed and took it home and sat down in a protected spot south of the barn, which is a spot protected from the wind and my wife's voice, and read where there is some more agitation for pottin stricter limits on the amount of money a candidate can spend to get elected.

As I understand it, the law limits the amount of money a man can spend to get elected, but it's so full of loopholes a man can spend about all he or his office-hungry friends can lay hands on. It twice as much gettin elected as seems like it ain't nothin to spend the office pays, which ain't so preposterous to me, as many a year I've worked twice as hard on my Johnson grass farm as I got paid, until I caught on and learned if I wasn't gonna make anything anyway I might as well do it comfortably.

But spendin big money to get elected, accordin to the thinkers, is bad, and the Legislature ought to clamp down with stricter laws. Now I take a different view of this. It seems to me they've got the cart before the horse.

What we need ain't so much a law says how much a man can spend before he's elected, it's after he's elected that counts. That's where the real damage comes from.

I say, turn em loose before they're elected, but clamp down with all you've got after they're elected.

I will appreciate you takin this up with Congressman Mahon or Senator Corbin and see what can be done about it. They'll probably be home this week-end. That is, Wednesday afternoon.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Health Talks

BY STATE MEDICAL ASSN.

Hemorrhage is commonly considered to stand for any excessive bleeding but actually means any escape, excessive or slight, of the blood from the tube-like vessels it flows in. It may always be considered a sign that something isn't going right; how wrong things are will depend upon the source of the bleeding to a large extent.

A nosebleed, for instance, may be very slight affair resulting from the rupture of those small varicose veins in the lower front part of the nose. It may come from insulating from the rupture of those small varicose veins in the lower front part of the nose. It may come from injuries to the noses such as squeezing the nose too hard or picking the nose or it may originate from the inside as a result of high blood pressure.

A small piece of cotton or gauze placed in the nose will usually stop the bleeding unless the source is higher up and back in the nose, in which case it may be necessary for the doctor to pack the whole nasal cavity to stop the flow before he can discover the source.

The spitting of blood is usually a sign of irregularity in the respiratory tract, any place from the mouth on down to the lungs. Blood spit out will nearly always be accompanied by sputum which may be only slightly tinged or may be a decided frothy pink. Swallowing hard or rough objects which may scrape the wet lining of the respiratory tract or cause inflammation by their lodging in the tract may lead to blood-tinged spit. Fractured ribs or injuries to the chest may cause a puncture of some of those blood vessels lining the respiratory tract and bring blood to the mouth.

High blood pressure and hardened arterial NSLI dividend to be paid in 1951?

A—No. The policy must have been in force at least three months between its anniversary date in 1948 and the date in 1951. Your policy was not in force for three months during that period.

Q—I was discharged from the Navy in 1946, and I was recalled to active duty in the naval reserves for six weeks in February and March, 1947. May I count those six weeks in computing my entitlement for GI Bill education?

A—Yes. All members of the organized reserve called back to active duty for 30 days or more on or before July 25, 1947 (official termination of World War II for GI Bill purposes) may count that duty in computing GI Bill entitlement.

Q—I am taking full-time on-the-job training under the GI Bill, and I am required to take a correspondence course along with my job training. Will that correspondence course be charged against my entitlement?

A—No. Veterans in full-time training required to take correspondence courses as well, will not be charged additional entitlement.

Teeth Care Program to Be Broadcast Here

The American system of free enterprise has been credited with another contribution to the community improved dental health among hundreds of school children.

This story will be broadcast in detail on KVOW, Littlefield, Tuesday, February 27th at 2:45 p.m., as part of "Your Business Reporter" program of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The story began in 1948 in the typical New England community of Walpole, Mass. Four hundred school children began brushing their teeth once daily in the classroom so that scientists could study the cavity-stopping power of Dento-cillin, toothpowder containing penicillin.

After two years, the study ended and the scientists concluded that penicillin in toothpowder curbs tooth decay by 55 per cent. But the Walpole children, their parents, and school officials wanted the in-classroom toothbrushing to continue because it was resulting in strong healthy teeth for the youngsters.

When the town's education budget fell short of financing the in-classroom brushings, the Andrew Jergens Company, of Cincinnati, O., decided that sound teeth for the Walpole children were well worth the $2,000 a year needed for the program. The Cincinnati firm furnished the money and today, the NAM radio program concludes, the children of Walpole, Mass., enjoy top dental health, courtesy Free Enterprise, U. S. A.

ing of the arteries may be general diseases which would cause the spitting of blood. Tuberculosis is notorious for the amount of blood spit out with coughing. Any swelling or sores that develop along the respiratory tract, whether single instances or as the result of certain diseases, may lead to this sign or disorder.

The vomiting of blood is a different matter. The source of bloody vomit is considered to lie within the digestive tract, usually in the upper part. Sometimes the vomiting of blood is not distinctly red and bloody, it may appear more like coffee grounds in the material brought up.

Blood from the bowels is also considered an intestinal tract irregularity. Hemorrhoids or tears in the wall of the rectum will usually account for bright red blood in the stools whereas darker blood is generally considered to arise from disorders in the large intestines. Black, sticky stools are frequently a sign of intestinal hemorrhage; black stools may result from medicines containing iron or bismuth but are generally not sticky like the black stools of hemorrhage.

Peptic ulcer is the most common cause of intestinal hemorrhage, either bloody vomiting or bloody stools. There are many other possible causes of this disorder, though, with cancer as one possibility, so the presence of bloody discharge not only from the intestines, but from any other part of the body should be considered a signal deserving medical attention. One or an occasional slight nosebleed is perhaps an exception; persistent nosebleed or a heavy nosebleed that resists staunching the flow should serve as a warning.

The body has wonderful defenses to stop the flow of blood the amount of blood lost and keep to one particular spot, build back the blood circulating to other places that are not endangered. But these defenses can be overworked by the constant abnormal loss of blood and the organs that function in the defense set-up may require outside help. If no help arrives, the sudden rapid loss of blood may cause death. If the loss is slow over a period of time and no help is given those defenses, it may lead to that state known as secondary shock.

Treasury Plan For Maturing Series "E" Savings Bonds Is Explained

When legislation is finally passed Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder recently asked Congress to enact enabling legislation so that the Treasury could put into effect a plan for handling maturing Series E Savings Bonds, beginning May 1, 1951. Under this plan, the holder of a Series E bond would have the choice, as the bond matures, of:

- a. accepting cash, if he so desires. Bonds are cashable at any time; or
- b. continuing to hold his present bond, with an automatic interest-bearing extension. Owners who exercise this extension privilege will receive 2 1/2 per cent simple interest for all or any part of the next 7 1/2 years; interest during the final 2 1/2 years of the extension will bring the total interest to 2.9 per cent compounded; or
- c. exchanging his maturing bond for a current income Savings Bond of Series G. The House in Congress has passed this legislation. As of this date (Feb. 16, 1951), the Senate must yet approve it, and is expected to do so in its regular order of business.

The plan will apply to Series E Savings Bonds only, including both those sold during the past and those to be sold in the future. The interest-bearing extension is for ten years only. Congress and signed by the President, the plan will go into effect on May 1, 1951, which is the tenth anniversary of the beginning of Series E sales. (Savings Bonds sold prior to May 1, 1941, were of a series other than E.)

There are several distinct advantages in the plan to people holding Series E bonds and who want to reinvest the proceeds. First, the plan makes it unnecessary for the bond holders to cash in their maturing bonds buy new ones; they can buy the old bonds and the interest they accrue automatically another 10 years. This is a Savings Bonds plan receive 75 per cent more original investment by the bond to maturity and the full advantage of his privilege for another 10 years. This means that the Bond buyer has the opportunity to receive $133.33 for the originally purchased bond, the 2 1/2 per cent during the earlier years. This is a somewhat turn than for a new bond.

The Treasury emphasizes two things: (1) Holders of maturing Series E Bonds in at any time, and holder of maturing E Bonds for all or any part of 10 years, but he is under no obligation to do so.

Unsanitary Condition in Brooder House Causes High Mortality Rate in Chicks

In the interest of poultry raisers, W. W. Hall, Vocational Agricultural teacher, Littlefield High School, has prepared the following news item, which will be of interest to many of the Leader's readers:

"Are we prepared to properly care for those baby chicks that we are planning on getting for the production of broilers or laying hens? Too often our housing is unsatisfactory, our feeding is unsanitary and irregular, and unsanitary conditions exist in our brooder house and on the grounds. These and other factors cause a high mortality rate among young chicks, especially during the first 10 days.

"A brooder house should meet certain specifications. It should approach the square in shape for economy and for even distribution of heat. Common sizes are 8 x 12, 10 x 12, and 12 x 14 feet, with provision for the maximum amount sunlight and for ventilation. One square foot of floor space will accommodate a maximum of 4 chicks.

When chicks are first placed in the brooder house the temperature under the brooder hover 2 inches above the floor should be about 100 degrees Fahrenheit, gradually dropping to 95 at the end of the first week. At the end of the second week it should be about 90 degrees. The heat should be gradually lowered as the chicks get older and finally discontinued.

The floor may be covered with one inch of sand and on top of this, two inches of chopped straw or peat. This is a sanitary measure. The litter absorbs moisture, thereby keeping the floor dry, allows droppings to work down to the sand, and doing so aids in making a sanitary condition on the floor which is so essential with baby chicks.

To confine baby chicks to the brooder, a fence about one foot high and one foot away from the chicks are given freedom of the brooder house, it is suggested that the corners of the house be rounded by a fence to prevent the chicks from crowding up and smothering in the corners.

As to feeding the baby chicks, it is a good practice to withhold feed until they are fifty hours old, then feed lightly. This gives plenty of time for the yolk sack to be absorbed and assimilated.

The first feed should be a liquid—water, sweet skim milk, or buttermilk. They should have some grit before any solid feed. The first solid feed must be fine, palatable, and easily digested. It may be boiled eggs, corn bread, rolled oats, or a starter. Authorities differ as to the method of feeding. Some recommend keeping starter before the chicks at all times. Others recommend placing finely cracked grain in hoppers before the chicks for a length of one hour in mornings, noon, and night, and the mash for one hour in mid-morning and mid-afternoon. If feed is not kept before them at all times, they should be fed 5 times a day. If buttermilk is available, a mixture of finely cracked grain and grit is sufficient for a complete ration.

Strange Things Happen

Strange things happen 'neath the clear skies of the Plains.

Believe it or not, folks have been known to take the fire to the fire station in place of the firemen going to the fire.

But the double unusual occurred Monday afternoon when an out-of-town resident took his fire to the fire station while the firemen were responding to his alarm for help.

It all happened this way: A transient from Salt Lake City, Utah, picked up a hitch-hiker and allowed him to ride with his load of furniture.

Somewhere between Amherst and Littlefield a fire was discovered in the furniture. The hitch-hiker and the owner threw off most of the household goods and with his truck blazing the owner rushed to Littlefield. He stopped at the Yearly Service Station on Highway 84. The fire department was called, but the truck owner did not wait for the fire department; he took off in a blazing truck to the fire station, travelling at high speed through Phelps Avenue and the traffic lights. In a matter of minutes the fire truck trailed him to the station and used chemicals to extinguish the blaze.

Jim Roles and Lindsey Williams who responded to the alarm, agree that strange things truly can happen 'neath the clear skies of the Plains.

Agricultural Boys To Set Up Display Booth

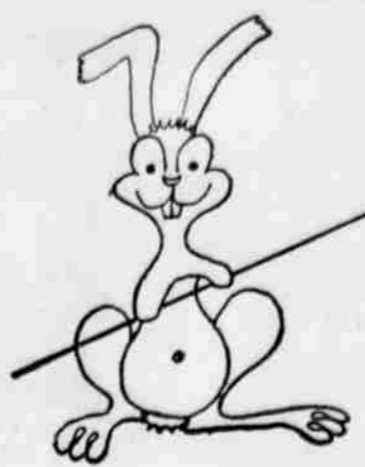

The Vocational Agricultural Department of the Littlefield High School will set up a booth in Cal Harvey's Appliance Store next week in observance of Educational Week.

The booth will feature farm engineering.

McLennan County high school students have taken to the air to prove they are "learning to live" in the complicated 20th century.

The Baylor University radio department is sponsoring the quiz-type "Learning to Live" program on a local radio station, and a different high school is represented each week. Weekly winners will be pitted against each other in series eliminations, with the final winner receiving a one-year's scholarship to Baylor.

Texas farmers should produce at the highest possible levels in 1951 in order to combat the high costs of living and production and to reduce the chances of financial loss. High and efficient farm production will also aid in the fight against inflation.

Margaret Durham Crowned Queen of Wayland Pioneer Basketball Team

Miss Margaret Durham was crowned queen of the Wayland Pioneer basketball team for the 1950-51 season Thursday night at the half-time in Nunn Gym, as the Pioneers played the Aggies from Panhandle A & M.

The announcement of the Pioneer queen had been kept a secret until this time, by the members of the cage club, who elected her.

This choice came for a two-fold reason. One was because of her popularity and the other because of the attractiveness of Miss Durham.

Margaret is 18 years old, born May 21, 1932, in Tahoka, Tex., which is still her home. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Durham. Dr. Durham is dentist in that city.

Miss Durham is working for a B. A. degree with a major in Journalism and English. In the field of journalism, Margaret has already won honor by winning first place in a state journalism contest, third place in copy-reading and fifth in headline writing. While in high school Margaret graduated as honor student of her class. While she has been in Wayland, she has been one of the students whose name has consistently appeared on the college honor roll.

Margaret is of medium height, slender, with long brown hair, and a pleasing smile.

Texas Solon Seeks Cotton Crop Law Change to Aid Little Man

BY TEX EASLEY

(AP Special Washington Staff) Washington—Rep. Lindley B. Beckworth of Texas is keeping up his campaign for an overhaul of the cotton crop control law for the purpose, as he puts it, of giving the little farmers a better break. Since he's not on the House Agriculture Committee, Beckworth airs his views largely in the Congressional Record and in conversations with colleagues. As a top-ranking member of another committee—that on commerce—he knows it's generally a futile gesture to sponsor an important bill not handled by the committee on which you serve.

So Beckworth is trying to sell his idea to someone on the committee involved. Therefore, he lets members of the agriculture committee and others know of such problems as that cited in a letter he received from H. R. Spivey of Bullard, about 15 miles south of Tyler.

Selling Costs Too High

"I produced one bale of cotton on about four acres in 1950," wrote Spivey, "and had to pay $18.84 to sell it. Why?"

"Because I didn't have and couldn't get a little white selling card! This was a hard financial blow, a gross injustice at the hands of the production and marketing administration.

"I realize that it wasn't the intention of anyone in that department to work hardship of disaster proportions to a farmer anywhere. Still, because of red-tape regulations, I was compelled to suffer a serious financial loss.

"I operate a small farm on the cash-rent basis, and grew four acres of cotton to help pay the rent. I planted without an allotment because I understood you intended to help us get at least a minimum of five acres anyhow. But I guess the bigger growers got the extra allotments, because I never could get a permit to plant a single seed. Still, after I learned all this, it was too late, as I had planted four acres and I let it go on through and make. I didn't think it right at all for any farm regulation to say to a man that he couldn't plant any cotton, and to a neighbor just across the fence to go ahead and plant a sizeable crop."

No Restrictions This Year

There are to be no restrictions on the 1951 cotton crop. But Beckworth says a farmer is reluctant to buy new machinery to step up his production unless he has assurance that the next year he will get an adequate allotment if controls are established.

He wrote the Agriculture Department the situation and received a reply which contained this paragraph:

"Therefore, if all farmers in a county should double their cotton acreage in 1951 over 1950, the 1952 farm allotments may be changed considerably or none at all or somewhere between depending on how farmers in the particular county vary their cotton acreage in proportion to cropland."

Beckworth read this over a couple of times and exclaimed: "If that's not gobbledegoon language, I don't know what is."

AROUND THE CAPITAL

Speaking of "gobbledegoon," the man who introduced the term to Washington to describe bureaucratic phrasing has been back in town. Maury Maverick, one-time Congressman and former San Antonio Mayor, said his trip here gaue, I don't know what is."

Other Visitors From Texas

President Law Some of Texas Wesleyan College, Fort Worth, en route to New York on business for the Methodist school; former Under Secretary of Agriculture Grover Hill, who still calls Amarillo home though he is with the Farm Loan Bank in Wichita, Kan.; Dr. Paul Sims, Raymond Hava, E. Harvey Steinhagen, Fred Parsons, L. G. Chambers and O. E. Crozier, all of Beaumont; Lloyd Croslin and Carl Hensley, Lubbock; O. T. Freeman, Wichita Falls; Frank W. Wilson and R. G. Hughes, Pampa, and former Austin Mayor Tom Miller.

The Defense Fisheries Administration is sending a man to the Gulf Coast area to help clear away the red tape commercial fishermen may encounter in stepping up production.

Assigned to the task is Donald

Y. Aska, a World War two veteran and a graduate of the University of Washington, who has been with the Fish and Wildlife Service since 1938 except for time in the Army.

Although his headquarters will be in New Orleans, he expects to spend considerable time along the Texas coast talking with shrimpers and others regarding their manpower and materials problems.

The Bureau of Mines reports that the El Paso area in 1950 produced 50 ounces of gold valued at $1,750; 2,597 ounces of silver valued at $2,250, 5 short tons of copper valued at $2,080, and 131 short tons of lead valued at $32,750.

Graduate of Baylor To Receive Rotary Foundation Award

Miss Polly Brown, a 1949 drama graduate of Baylor University, is one of 89 graduate students from 23 nations to receive Rotary Foundation Fellowships for advanced study abroad during 1951-52. She will study drama at Schauspielhaus, the University of Zurich in Switzerland.

The award was made by a committee of Rotarians from Iceland, New Zealand, Switzerland and the United States at the Rotary International headquarters in Chicago. As ambassadors of good will, the students will be part of Rotary's contribution to the goal of promoting international understanding, good will and peace.

Miss Brown, who hails from Kosciusko, Miss., was active in Little Theater work at Baylor, and took part in many dramatic productions. She was a member of the 1950 Southwest Summer stock group. She has also been director of a Little Theater group in Oakland, Calif.

There are some 900 farmer cooperatives in Texas. About one-third of these are cooperative cotton gins. Local cooperatives with an average of about 200 members each make up 95 per cent of the total number.

Many Missionaries To Foreign Lands Make Home in Waco

At least 21 Baptist missionaries to foreign lands are now making their homes in Waco due to furloughs, retirement, or war-forced evacuation from their mission posts. Almost without exception they have located there because of some connection with Baylor University.

Dean of the missionary settlement is Mrs. Annie Jenkins Salee, an 1897 graduate of Baylor, who was appointed principal of the Double Dragon school in Kai-feng, China, in 1907.

Dr. W. Jackson Kilgore, formerly a professor in the Buenos Aires Baptist Seminary, is now on the philosophy faculty at Baylor. Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell Sears, war refugees from a mission post at Tsingtao, China, and Rev. John E. Mills, teacher at Lagos, Nigeria, are studying at Baylor during their furloughs.

More than 20 children of missionaries also are enrolled in Baylor classes.

McMurray College To Dedicate Its New Cinder Track

ABILENE, Feb. 23 (Special to Leader) — McMurray College will dedicate its new cinder track by a dual meet with Texas Christian University at 2:30 P.M., March 6. Athletic Director Vernon Hilliard announced today.

One of the few cinder tracks in West Texas, the McMurray oval was completed late last fall. Already, several high schools in the area have used it for workouts.

The meet will afford the Southwest Conference school a chance for revenge. Last spring McMurray outscored TCU and Hardin-Simmons in a triangular meet here.

McMurray launches its ambitious, nine-meet schedule with the dual contest. The Indians later the same week, March 10, participate in the Border Olympics at Laredo. The Drake Relays and the Kansas Relays are also on the McMurray card.

Texas cooperatives last year borrowed more than 22.8 million dollars from the Houston Bank of Cooperatives and much of it was invested in modern equipment and facilities for handling farmers' crops.

Famed Choir to Sing in Auditorium March 6

(Special to The Leader)
LITTLEFIELD, TEXAS.—The annual tour of the North Texas State College A Cappella Choir for the 1950-51 season will include 12 concerts in six states, including an appearance in the Littlefield high school auditorium.

Highlight of the tour will be a performance of Walton's "Bessie's Feast" with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at Minneapolis, Minn., on Easter Sunday, March 25. Also included on the program will be Petrus's "Psalm IX," the first performance in the United States of this work. Antal Dorati, former conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, will conduct.

Concerts now scheduled for the tour include performances in Texas at Littlefield, March 21, at Amarillo, Grand Prairie, Gainesville, Eastland and Greenville, and in Arkansas at Searcy, El Dorado, and Magnolia. The choir will also sing at Maryville, Tenn.; Winchester, Ky.; Greenville, Ill., and at Minneapolis.

In 1948 the NTSC choir became one of the few a cappella choirs to record with a major recording company when it joined with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra to cut an album for RCA Victor. The major work involved was Zoltan with the Dallas Symphony, the NTSC choir, the Dallas Children's Chorus, Gabor Carelli, tenor soloist, and Antal Dorati, conductor.

This work filled five sides of the album, and the sixth side was cut separately by the NTSC choir, singing Kodaly's "Jesus and the Traders," a number annually programmed by the choir.

The choir has an unexcelled record of performances with symphony orchestras under leading conductors. In the past 10 years it has made 27 concert appearances with symphonies, 19 of which have been with the Dallas orchestra, the choir has given five performances of "Psalms Hungaricus," four performances of Verdi's "Requiem," three performances of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony," and one performance each of Bach's "St. Matthew Passion," Walton's "Bessie's Feast,"

Brahms' "Song of Destiny," Prokofiev's "Alexander Nevsky," and excerpts from "Boris Godounov" with Alexander Kipnis.

SANG WITH SYMPHONY
Presentations with the Houston Symphony have included two performances of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony," two performances of Rachmaninoff's "The Bells," and one performance each of Verdi's "Requiem," Bach's "Mass in B Minor," and excerpts from Gluck's "The Witches of Endor." The Wichita Falls Symphony included excerpts from Verdi's "Requiem."

Working with famous conductors is nothing new to the choir, which has sung under Walter Hendl, Antal Dorati, Jacques Singer, Earnest Hoffman, Frederick Fennell, and Frederick Balazs.

In addition to concert with symphony orchestras, the choir has appeared at numerous conventions throughout the Southwest, including the southwest division meeting of the Music Educators National Convention, the National Federation of Music Clubs Convention, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs State Convention, Texas State Legislature, Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Music Educators Conference, Oklahoma Teachers Association, National Federation of women's Clubs, and the New Mexico Fine Arts Series.

Seven Lamb County Men Enlist in Service Recently

Six Littlefield men and one Olton man have enlisted in the Army and Air Force here recently, T/Sgt. Gerald F. Cutshall, recruiter, reports.

National Authority Declares Newspaper Advertising is the "Master Key to Any Successful Campaign"

CAMPBELL-EWALD, AUTHORITY ON ADVERTISING, CELEBRATES FORTY YEARS IN BUSINESS

The Lamb County Leader is happy to extend their congratulations to Campbell-Ewald Company Advertising Specialists whose headquarters are at Detroit, Mich., who are celebrating their 40th anniversary of service to newspapers and large business organizations throughout the country.

It has been the pleasure of the Leader to do business with this large firm of advertising experts over a period of 20 years. Prominent in their activities is the preparation and placing of advertising in behalf of the Chevrolet automobile. Through their extensive facilities and through effective advertising the products and growth of Chevrolet have become prominent.

Campbell-Ewald has grown with the automobile industry, from a small agency with six employees to its present stature as one of the biggest in the country, with more than 350 employees, billings in eight figures annually, and offices in six cities. It is one of the few agencies to have retained its corporate identity under the same directing head throughout its life.

"We are going to keep right on growing," said Henry T. Ewald, co-founder and president. "Instead of settling down to middle age at 40, we are seeking new horizons."

As an example of these new horizons, Campbell-Ewald has been handling the advertising of the Du Mont Laboratories, one of the pioneers in television. Campbell-Ewald's 40 years of accumulated skills are at work carving out a future in this exciting new industry just as the agency did in the automotive industry.

"Throughout its experience in automobile advertising, Campbell-Ewald has believed firmly that newspaper advertising is the master key of any successful campaign," said Ewald. It opens the locked-up purchasing power in local markets, and is a great force for selling goods. Recent surveys show that newspaper advertising, especially in the smaller cities and towns, is still predominant, regardless of other new media. I believe this will continue. Advertising—and the newspapers themselves—constitute today a terrific force in our national defense program."

The Campbell-Ewald firm was

Maxey To Head Olton Farm Bureau

David Maxey, acting president of the newly organized Olton Farm Bureau, was named permanent head of the group at a Wednesday evening meeting in the high school agricultural building.

Some 20 members of the 33-member Olton organization were present for the session.

Other officers selected include Mitchell Haddad, secretary and treasurer; Frank Struve, vice president; and Duane Elby, 2nd vice president.

Jim Maynard was appointed chairman of the refreshment committee for the coming year.

Present for the meeting were Jarvis Angley, county Farm Bureau Federation president and David Eaton, county agricultural agent. Mrs. Eaton, who accompanied the county agent, presented a chalk talk as part of the Bureau program.

Founded in 1911 by Ewald and Frank J. Campbell who retired six years later. The first account was that of the Hyatt Roller Bearing Co., and that company, now a division of the General Motors Corporation, is still a client.

Campbell-Ewald was the first advertising agency for the lusty Chevrolet division of General Motors in 1922 and is has been Chevrolet's only agency for 28 years. Ever since Chevrolet first started advertising on a national scale, all Chevrolet advertising in every medium has been created and placed through this agency. Today it is considered the largest single advertising account in all industry.

Although Campbell-Ewald has been closely associated with the growth of the automobile industry, and played a vital role in making American automobile-conscious, its business is widely diversified. It's staff prepares advertisements for adding machines (Burroughs), printing paper (Champion), car rentals (Hertz), utilities (Detroit Edison), steel (National Steel and Great Lakes Steel), banks, foods and commercial motion pictures.

Improvement in Chevrolet brakes is illustrated by this picture showing the difference in stopping distances between a 1950 and a 1951 car using exactly the same brake pressure. To eliminate the human element, engineers used a mechanical pedal pressure applicator (inset) on both cars. When the foot lever (1) is tripped the piston exerts a constant pressure on the brake (2).

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson planned to visit relatives at Lubbock.

Mr. Wright also reported that funeral services for Miss Brock were being held Monday afternoon. Details were not available.

Vernon Hofacket, manager of the Hawk & Hofacket Firestone store here, reported Monday that Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henderson of Grand Prairie, Texas, en route to Plainview Friday evening, were delayed sometime on the Fort Worth highway at the scene of the above accident, and until an ambulance arrived to lift the injured from the highway. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, who were visiting Mrs. Henderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hobson at Plainview, on learning that a Littlefield girl was involved, phoned Mr. and Mrs. Hofacket to find out details. They stated it was a very bad accident, and that the occupants of the cars were thrown from the automobiles.

Mrs. Henderson is a niece of Mrs. Hofacket of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson reported that the fog was very bad; that they were 2 1/2 hours driving from Benjamin to Guthrie, a distance of 35 miles, and 12 hours coming to Plainview from Grand Prairie, even though their car was equipped with fog lights.

In a telephone conversation Mrs. Wright had with her husband Wednesday he stated that their daughter was still unconscious, but that they had given her blood transfusions, and were feeding her through tube to her stomach, and that she appeared stronger.
