BRYAN'S BODY SPEEDING EAST TO ARLINGTON

Remains Will be Buried In Arlington Cemetery Friday

ON BOARD BRYAN FUNERAL TRAIN THROUGH TENNESSEE, July 29.—(AP)—City, town and tree clad country side stood by to honor William Jennings Bryan today as the train bearing his mortal form passed north and eastward through hilly Tennessee.

Along the line of the Southern Railway, between Chattanooga and Knoxville the followers of the commoner trooped to the right of way at station and cross roads to gaze in sorrow and deep respect at the funeral carriage of the former secretary of state.

Just a Glimpse

In the villages through which the train, maintaining a rapid schedule, hurried without stopping, men and women gathered in groups. They stood on high embankments of warehouse sheds to peer intently into the speeding cars, anxious to mark in which one lay the man they had loved as champion of their religious faith. They lined the railing of overhead bridges where many keen of vision glimpsed the flower encircled heap where Mr. Bryan lay under the cover of glass.

Where stops were made in larger towns, scores of eager watchers hastened to the rear Pullman compartment where the flag draped casket might be seen. At these times by request of the invalid widow the rear door of the funeral car was opened so that all might look within it. Many towns had closed their business houses in honor of the fallen fundamentalist leader.

In Chattanooga an immense throng packed the station. Here for one hour the people passed in single file through the car and looked down into the peaceful face of the dead man. When the train with its burden of sorrow passed from the station yards, many hundreds of the throng yet had been unable to gain admittance to the presence of the dead.

Council Extends Sympathy

Mayor Richard Hard of Chattanooga and the city commissioners in a group called upon Mrs. Bryan and expressed the grief of their community at the death of her much-loved husband.

In her stateroom near the casket, Mrs. Bryan sat throughout the long hours, talking in a restrained voice to members of her household who finistered to her bodily comfort and sought to assuage her grief.

At Knoxville where the train halted a few minutes beyond the scheduled pause the car was again opened to the public at the request of the widow. She had learned that the throng was waiting for the passage of the funeral train and asked the friends of the commoner should be permitted to review the remains while the train rested in the city.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR BRYAN BURIAL.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP)—Tentative arrangements for the funeral of William Jennings Bryan here Friday all subject to the approval of his widow, were made today as the body of the Commoner was being brought to Washington from Dayton, Tenn.

There will be services at both New York Avenue Presbyterian church, where Mr. Bryan worshiped when secretary of state and at the grave in Arlington national cemetery but the whole ceremony will be as simple as might be that of the humblest citizen.

Save possibly for the artillery caisson on which the body will be conveyed from the church to the Potomac hills and the sounding of taps, the soldier's requiem at the grave, there will be no hint of military honors.

Funeral services at the church will begin at 3 p. m., Friday, and will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, the pastor, who is returning here from his vacation in New York state.

A MEMORIAL FOR BRYAN.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 29.—With their honored fellow citizen destined to rest in Arlington cemetery, Lincoln friends of William Jennings Bryan today started plans for a suitable memorial to be situated here, where he kept his residence for more than a quarter of a century.

MAY CALL OFF ELECTION FOR PRISON CHANGE

Error of Legislature Is Discovered at Austin Wednesday

AUSTIN, July 29.—(AP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson may find it necessary to call off the election November 3, 1926, on the proposed amendment to the constitution abolishing the board of prison commissioners, as a result of an apparent error by the 39th legislature in setting it one day after the general election, November 2, when three other constitutional amendments are to be voted on.

This was disclosed when the printed laws of the regular session was delivered to the secretary of state. The sum of $5,000 was appropriated for holding of the election.

If Governor Ferguson calls off the election by a proclamation she will follow a precedent set by Gov. Pat M. Neff. While she could cancel the election she cannot reset the date. The 40th legislature would meet two months later and the questions can be re-submitted.

Murder Cases To Be Transferred

A large number of criminal cases now pending on the dockets of the 30th district court will probably be transferred to the 89th district court late this week.

The July terms of the 30th district ends Friday night, after which Judge H. R. Wilson and District Attorney Ben P. Allred will go to Archer City to convene a term of court there. Judge Vincent Stine of the 92nd judicial district, Henrietta, will return to his bench after having sat on an exchange with Judge Wilson for the past two weeks. With Judge Wilson engaged in holding court at various other points in his district, more speedy trial can be had by transferring the actions to one of the two other district courts here. The dockets of Judge Guy Rogers of the 78th district are well filled, so it is probable the cases will be placed on the 89th district dockets for trial by Judge P. A. Martin.

Five murder cases are included in those scheduled for the change.

Bandit Raid On Hotel Nets $10,000

2 ROBBERS DIE, THIRD CAUGHT, LAST ESCAPES

Drake, Exclusive Chicago Hostelry, Scene of Daring Attempt

CASHIER IS KILLED

He Is Fatally Wounded During Pitched Gun Battle With Cops

CHICAGO, July 29.—(AP)—Four masked robbers who attempted to hold up the Drake hotel, exclusive Lake Shore Drive hostelry, during the afternoon tea hour, precipitated a battle between the robbers, hotel detectives and policemen that resulted in the death of two of the robbers and the fatal wounding of the hotel cashier.

Another of the robbers was captured after a terrific battle in the hotel kitchen and a fourth escaped in an automobile left purring at the curb with $10,000 of the hotel's money snatched from the safe and till while bullets whizzed about his head.

Daring Robbery.

The robbery, one of the most daring in many years(was perpetrated by men under the influence of narcotics, the police said after examining the captured robber and questioning hotel employes who described the holdup men as "either drunk or dopey."

One of the holdup men was shot several miles from the hotel after he had commandeered a taxicab, forced a woman from the car and comnanded the driver at the point of a pistol to speed away with him. The taxi-driver wrecked his machine deliberately in order to allow pursuing policemen to overtake the robber.

Came from Texas.

The man who was captured gave his name as Jack Holmes and said he recently came here from New York. The robber killed in the taxicab chase is said to be Eric Nelson, a former employe of the hotel, and the man shot in front of the hostelry was identified as "Tex" Corts, who came here a few days ago from Sweetwater, Texas.

The hotel cashier, Frank Rodke, was shot in the abdomen and died later.

Shortly After 3 p. m.

The holdup came shortly after 3 o'clock at the height of the exclusive hotel's afternoon tea rush and while hundreds of guests and patrons thronged the building, while half a dozen Lincoln Park policemen were directly in front of the hostelry or within half block of it.

The four robbers entered the hotel, ascendd to the mezzaine floor where the cashier's cage is located, and after stationing themselves at strategic points suddenly donned masks and drew pistols, confronting about 25 employes, mostly women, with orders of "hands up." Two robbers guarded the employes, herded together while two others ransacked the cashier's cage.

The shooting did not start in the hotel until the robbers were about to leave the scene, when James McCurdy house detective opened the door of his office, also on the second floor and was confronted by the masked men. The robbers immediately opened fire and McCurdy, with a pistol in each hand, returned the fire, wounding one

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.
The Wife Man Wants.

I know the wife a husband wants,
So listen, ladies, learn of me:
When weary of his usual haunts,
Cigar store, bench, or what it be,
When he comes home at nine or ten,
Or half past six, no matter when,
Whenever homeward he may fare,
He wants a wife who's always there.

When he comes home (men sometimes do
When things are quite in the town)
It may be half past ten or two.
He always wants to sit right down
And have his dinner good and hot,
If it is dinertime or not—
A wife he wants, he soon reveals,
Who serves these instantaneous meals.

He wants a wife who looks as well
As other women on the streets,
The kind who frequently marcel
Their hair, the kind a fellow meets
Each day along the avenue:
He wants his wife good-looking, too.
And yet, of course (for that's a crime)
Not wanting money all the time.

I know the wife he wants, because
I know mankind to some extent,
He married her because she was
From all the rest so different.
But now the wife he wants must be
Like other woman that you see—
Ah yes, with one he would be blessed
Who's just exactly like the rest.

Consideration of the proposal was continued with the appointment of C. C. Belcher, of Del Rio and George T. Willingmyer, of the department of agriculture, to work with the resolutions committee on the plan.

Favor His Idea.

Both Mr. Belcher and Mr. Willingmyer expressed themselves as favorable to Mr. Black's proposal, declaring the establishmet of an exchange would ald the growers in marketing wool.

Mr. Willingmyer spoke on marketing standards. William McIntosh, publisher of the San Antonio Light, addressed the association on "Commerce and the ploy." S. , Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers association, in a telegram to the assembly urged support of the national body's tariff program.

Bailiffs prevented her from gaining an entrance to the room by way of the window. The star graciously acknowledged the greeting.

PHANTOMS IN FORM OF COURT ORDERS LEER

Now You See 'Em, Now You Don't Features Wednesday's Activities

NOTHING FOR CERTAIN

Hodgins Says Bradford Said He Understood Smith Was Going To

The bootleg cross-word puzzle was still defying solution last night.

Its checkerboarded mysticism has been in process of formation for three or four days, it seems. It was in a fair way of developing into something tangible for a while last night; but an early hour Thursday morning found three different units of the local law enforcement organizations mixed up in what seems to be the most complicated anti-vice crusade, if any, Wichita Falls has seen in a long time.

The Injunctions Appear.

It all started when apparently authentic reports came in that four injunctions had been obtained "several days ago" against as many down town establishments alleged to be selling whiskey. The number later dwindled to three. But attempts of the Record News to arrive at the truth of the matter led into a maze of assertions, denials, reports, rumors and what have you?

Right here it should be explained that the story held a sheen of authenticity from the start because of the activity of the police department and the constable's department against bootlegging operations in the city. These two bodies of officers have, for a week or more, been engaged in a more or less merry battle against an embattled booze ring; and the injunction tale was directly in line with work that has heretofore been accomplished.

Frank Quiesser, police commissioner started it when it was learned from him for the first time that the injunctions had been obtained. Queisser was misinformed on one point, though for his information was that they had been given by Federal Judge William H. Atwell at Dallas. This was not the case.

Commmissioner Queisser said Chief of Police George H. Hodgins was instrumental in obtaining the injunction orders and that he was planning a much more elaborate campaign against the liquor interests.

So the chief was appealed to.

Got 'Em From Stine.

"No," he said, "they were no federal injunctions but were issued in district court here by Judge Vincent Stine of the 30th district. They were issued several days ago and were turned over to Sheriff Fred Smith for service."

It here developed that there were only three of them the chief was sure of.

With that tip, the Record News sought the sheriff but was unable to locate him for several hours.

In the meantime District Clerk A. F. Kerr was called relative to the matter. He was asked whether or not any return had been made to his office concerning the injunctions.

He said there had not up until the time he left the court house Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Kerr did not say he knew whether or not any such court orders had been applied for at all.

So far so good. Sheriff Smith was the missing link at that point.

Then the Denial.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the sheriff called the Record News office in response to a phone number left with one of his deputies and he was asked if he had served the injunctions on the bootleggers.

"What injunctions?" he wanted to know.

"Why," the reporter explained, "we understand some injunctions were issued out of Judge Stine's court several days ago ordering the closing of some bootlegging joints here and

TALLULAH, La., July 29.—(AP)—An outbreak of the cotton leaf caterpillar, or army worm, throughout Louisiana and the probability that it has spread into Mississippi and Arkansas, was announced today at the government Delta Laboratory here.

News of the Fields

Tidal-Kemp & Kempner

On the Kemp & Kempner land in section 52, W. V. F. Lands the Tidal Oil company have failed to make a well in sand topped at 1,782 feet and are drilling deeper.

Empire-Anderson

Offsetting Murchison & Fain to the north the Empire are spudded and drilling in their No. 5 Anderson in section 21, S. A. R. and to the south of their producers in the Norday pool.

Texhoma-Reynolds

In south Throckmorton county and on the Reynolds land in the Comanche Indian reservation block 57, Texhoma has a sand showing lots of gas drilled from 1,315-17 feet. Casing is being set at 1,292 feet to test.

Texhoma-Burnett

Texhoma is testing a good looking sand on its Burnett 3-4, which is showing lots of oil and was drilled 1,902-5 feet with casing set at 1,894 feet. The test is located in T. & N. O. survey, section 2 and is on one of Texhoma's latest of wildcat leases.

Consolidated-Netherton

On the Netherton land to the west of Geraldine townsite the Consolidated Oil company are setting casing to test a good looking sand topped at 1,663 feet on their wildcat test. The well which is some distance from production is being watched with more than usual interest.

New Domain-Anderson

To the west of the Norday production and in section 20 of the South Anderson ranch sub-division, the New Domain Oil Corporation are looking for sand below 1,400 feet. The well is being watched closely as its favorable completion will extend production several locations.

Moores-Graves

In the west half of section 10, Crawford Pasture, south Archer county, Cliff Mooers has spudded and is drilling at 175 feet on his No. 1 wildcat on the Graves land. The test which lies about a mile to the east of the Ichert pool is approximately one-half mile north and east from his recent completion on the Jackson land which made a nice extension to the pool.

Dr. Wright-Wilson

Two miles to the east of Archer City on the Sanford Wilson land in the J. Scott survey, abstract 859, Dr. Wright and associates have a sand showing lots of oil topped at 1,084 feet. The well which is a twin to No. 1 which had such a favorable show at 1,080 feet and was drillled without a break for 47 feet, but unable to be tested will be watched with a great deal of interest. The sand is showing plenty of oil and will be bailing today. To the south but one location Hoosier and associates missed this pay entirely and are now drilling close to the pay as topped by Dr. Wright at 1,320 but which tested salt water.

Tidal-Waggoner

Three miles to the southeast of the Gulf and Humble's recent finds in the Waggoner pasture in section 50, block 14, the Tidal Oil company's No. 1 Waggoner is standing with 1,800 feet of oil in the hole from sand drilled 1,885-95 feet. The well which has been threatening to flow, will be swabbed today, providing sufficient storage facilities are available. Coming as it does in an absolute wildcat territory the new find uncovers a good deal of additional territory and will be the object of a goodly number of tests within the next few weeks.

Ferguson-Myers

Jim Ferguson is shut down at 1,585 feet in lime on his No. 2 test on the Myers land in lot 523 Geraldine townsite. The well which lies to the east of the Gose district should be on sand within the next 20 feet. This is the second test drilled to the east of the pool within the month past, the first that of Riner Bailey being completed as a hundred barreler and effecting a nice extension. The Ferguson well which is reported to be checking high is therefore of unusual promise and will be watched accordingly.

Texas Crude Runs Show Slight Rise

TULSA, Okla., July 29.—(AP)—Mid-Continent oil production averaged 1,108,575 barrels daily for the week ended July 25, a decrease of 1,082 barrels under the daily average of the previous week, the Oil and Gas Journal of Tulsa says today. COULDN'T KEEP HER, SO YOUTH SHOOTS THREE

Girl Shakes Head And Then Dies a Second Later From Wounds

RICHMOND, Va., July 29.—(AP) "Because I could not keep her and I wasn't going to let any one else get her," was the reason given by Rudolph Disse today for shooting to death Mrs. Vivian Tomlin Peers, Henry G. Carter, his rival, and Detective Sergeant J. Harvey Burke, who stood in the way of his reaching Carter yesterday.

Willis Britt, automobile salesman, who also attempted to stop Disse, was shot in the hip.

The triple killing followed a police court case in which was the end of an affair between the girl and Disse which had extended over a year. She wanted clothing she had left in the youth's room and Burke was assigned to accompany her there.

Britt, who did not know any of the principals, agreed to lend the detective his car and to drive the girl to Disse's home in her own machine.

The girl obtained her belongings and was ready to be driven off by Britt when Disse asked:

"Will I ever see you again, Vivian?"

The negative reply was the signal for the shooting.

TAUGHT HEATHEN, SHOCKED

12 Years Absent From U. S. Missionaries Are Mortified.

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—For 12 years Dr. and Mrs. Arthur U. Piper, missionaries, spent their time in the barbaric Masumba district of the Belgian Congo, teaching natives how to dress and live morally. Yesterday they returned to civilized New York on the Cunard liner Samaria and were "shocked and mortified" at the immodesty of the girls and women here.

Conductor Carried W. J. Bryan On First Presidential Tour, and Now Takes Him on His Last Journey

"He Was Popular" Says Old Trainman, Referring To Trip 29 Years Ago in Campaign

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 29 (AP)—Twenty-nine years ago, Conductor Pete Gorman on the Southern railway carried William Jennings Bryan from Somerset, Kentucky, to Oakdale, Tenn., in the Commoner's first presidential campaign. Today "Old Pete," as his friends call the veteran trainman, had charge of the train which started the dead statesman on his last earthly journey.

Engineer H. L. Miller, who held the throttle today ahead of the funeral car between Dayton and Chattanooga, was Gorman's fireman on the ride in 1896, when the silver tongued young campaigner was stirring the hearts of voters with his earnest eloquence.

"Ah, but he was a popular man," the conductor exclaimed today. "Crowds greeted him at every station."

Mr. Gorman, who began his conductor "run" from Somerset to Chattanooga in 1883, has never seen Mr. Bryan since the day he carried him on his train 29 years ago.

Four Alleged Members Are Held by Dallas Police.

DALLAS, July 29.—Four members of an automobile accessory theft ring which has been operating in Dallas for the past two years have been arrested and five others, are being sought, police announced today. A dump ground for automobile chasses was found near Love field today, where a score of automobile frames had been stripped of the bodies and parts and then abandoned. Some were identified as cars stolen here recently.

GRAYSON REJECTS BONDS

Sherman for Road Bonds but Denison Turns Issue Down.

SHERMAN, July 29.—Grayson county voters yesterday rejected a $3,800,000 bond issue for a county road system by one of the largest votes ever polled in this county. The vote was nearly three to one against it. A two-thirds majority was required for passage.

The vote was 2,221 for and 5,908 against.

Sherman went three to one for the bond issue but Denison polled an almost solid vote against it.

A RECORD OIL YEAR.

This is to be a record oil year in production. James A. Phelan, petroleum expert for the United Shipping board, predicts an output of more than 730,000,000 barrels. He is confident that the 1923 peak production may be passed. A drop in reserves is expected as consumption and imports exceed production and exports. This is the record: gross production 369,000,000 barrels, the greatest in history for the first six months of any year and but 27,500,000 barrels less than the last six months of 1923 when the Los Angeles field in California and the Corsicana-Powell field in Texas were large producers.

Expert Phelan says the record for the first six months of 1925 shows an alarming increase in the consumption of the by-products of petroleum, the average increase for the six months of this year being in excess of 12 per cent over 1924, while consumption of gasoline will run at least twenty per cent more than the corresponding months of the previous year. There was a gradual and steady decline in the production of the high grade oil fields of the United States and a consistent increase in low grade production due to the bringing in of the Smackover field in Arkansas which up to this time has produced in excess of fifty million barrels, but which reached its peak the last week in May and is no longer considered detrimental to the crude petroleum business.

A slowly and constantly diminishing production in the Mexican oil fields is noted while there is a tremendous increase in consumption of all the by-products of petroleum. In production Arkansas showed an increase of fourteen million barrels as compared with 1924. Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas increased their production over 1924 while California showed a loss of eighteen million barrels exclusive of the refined products it is figured that on July 1st there was about 155-day supply of oil on hand. This, Expert Phelan says, the large producers and refiners of oil consider more than a sufficient amount and they are anxious to reduce the amount of stored oil by at least 100 million barrels.

As to storage 400 million barrels, or a 200-day supply is the best figure on which to base estimates. This statement, says the oil expert of the shipping board, should not be viewed from a pessimistic standpoint by the consumers of by-products of crude petroleum, for it is safe to say that there is sufficient crude territory in the United States to warrant a drilling campaign of at least two years and this will result in increased production sufficient to forestall any oil panic. This will be the situation if no new large fields are discovered which he says is a possibility at any time. This is the conclusion of the noted oil expert:

"From a world standpoint the United States still is the great producing oil country and were it not for the fact that our consumption is increasing rapidly and new uses are being found for crude oil and its by-products, there should be no serious cause for alarm; but it is the consumption feature which is causing the great uneasiness at present."

It should be borne in mind that the consumption of gasoline and other by-products in the United States is greater than the consumption of all the rest of the world combined. Is there money in petroleum? Examine the record. Petroleum is getting to be an uncrowned king of commerce and comfort. It is only in its infancy. There will be new fields brought in for a hundred years to come. Texas hasn't been scratched.

EXCEEDING ITS PRESENT DUTIES.

In recommending that an absolute ban be put upon the importation into this country of Spanish revolvers, the tariff commission appears to be exceeding its present duties. The commission's functions have been associated in the public mind with the operation of the "flexible provision" of the tariff law. Any other function it may have is lost sight of on account of the prominence given to the new duties with which it has been entrusted. Accordingly, the public looks to the commission for investigations into production costs of competitive articles and for recommendations as to how much the tariff should be raised or lowered to effect price adjustments.

A ban of the kind which the commission would impose comes as a distinct surprise. It seems to be entirely out of line with the existing tariff. A conflict of letter as well as of spirit is brought about. Congress, in framing the tariff law, not only revealed its intent to enact a non-prohibitive measure, but refused to accept, as a very particular exception, an absolute embargo on chemicals. Yet the tariff commission recommends an unqualified prohibition of the importation of Spanish revolvers.

The commission bases its action on the plea of Smith & Wesson, Inc., that six manufacturers of Zibar, Spain are simulating its product. It is doubtful if such a claim is correct or that the tariff commission founded its opinion wholly upon it. There has been general complaint of late against the manufacturers of Spanish revolvers sold in this country. But objections have not been entered on economic grounds. They have been made upon moral considerations. The product of the Spanish manufacturers is so ridiculously cheap that anyone can afford to buy it. Hence it has been attacked as an accessory to our "crime waves."

FINANCIAL CITY OF THE WORLD.

Australia invaded Wall street the other day and seventy-five million dollars worth of bonds floated by that country were snapped up in a jiffy. Wealth accumulates so rapidly in America that the world borrowers hasten here to float their offerings. Uncle Sam is the uncrowned kind of the golden republic of all time.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Here and Now.

Perhaps mid-Victorian days appeal to some of us as better and happier than those we are living in.

Perhaps other places seem fairer and more promising than those in which we dwell.

But we are living here and now.

It is with the people that also live here and now that we must associate.

From some of them must come the money that supports us.

From others must come the friendship that makes our life enjoyable.

So thinking about better days that have gone or better days that are to come may be interesting, but it will not be profitable.

It is possible to imagine an ideal world in the future where absolute justice is to be had, where there is no crime and no suffering.

It was possible to picture a Utopia, where all lived in perfect concord.

But we cannot live by pictures, mental or otherwise.

We find the world what it is, and we must make the best of it.

We find the times what they are. We must make the best of them, too.

Our associates are far from perfect.

Some of them have plenty of petty meannesses.

Some are downright dishonest.

Comparatively few are sufficiently congenial to make good durable friends, even though they may be fine men and women.

But with these people we must get along as best we can, seeking diligently among them for the one or two or three or four that will be our intimates.

The condition of the times we cannot amend.

Some of us lament that we are living in an age when school girls paint their lips and wear scant raiment.

But many people in many ages have endured such a trial as this, and managed to be fairly happy withal.

There are others who are shocked to think that in their day and generation there are people who would unite to prosecute and deprive of his position a young man who did not believe in the literal inspiration of a book few people ever took literally, and whose teachings fewer ever followed conscientiously.

Yet there have been persecutions for religion in other days, and much more terrible ones than those we witness now.

In fact the Christian religion was founded by One who was pitilessly prosecuted because He dared to criticize the religion of His time.

Here and now we are. Here and now we must remain for our appointed life time.

There is much good to be done, much happiness to be attained if we adapt ourselves as well as we may to our time and place, not accepting them as perfect and not to be improved, but admitting that they are at least tolerable, and perhaps in advance of any other time and place in which we might possibly have lived.

DOES PROTECTION PROTECT?

Massachusetts mill workers voted the republican ticket in the presidential election of 1924. They were told that protection protects and they believed it. Now in the great milling centers of the state a reduction of ten per cent in the wages of mill workers has been posted. The American Woolen company led off with the announcement and this company has 14,000 employes. Its president, William A. Wood, is one of the men who made the president tariff law. He is not a senator; he is not a congressman. He is one of the great manufacturers of New England. Another reduction is promised the coming fall. If the wage workers do not like it it is their American privilege to go on strike, exhaust their savings, starve a while and then accept the wage schedule offered by their employers.

Gone are the good old days. The ports of America are prctically closed to European laborers. In the good old days they were brought to this country by the shiploads and became cheap workers in the mills and the mines. New England factory lords did not take kindly to the drastic immigration law. But they bowed to the inevitable. They were wise however, and made a little loop hole in the law for their own benefit. All Canadians were permitted to come to the states without hindrance just as all Mexicans are permitted to come into the southwestern border states by the payment of a head tax.

Everywhere in the milling districts of New England colonies of French Canadians are to be found. They are wage workers. They flock together. They are thrifty. They save their earnings. They are not controlled by labor unions. They are not politicians. They do not invade the primaries. They give the republican leaders of New England no trouble. This is where the New England tariff barons have a shade the best of it.

Protection will never protect the wage workers of New England while the immigration law permits the coming to the states of hordes of French Canadians who are anxious to better their economic condition. This is one of the reasons why the labor leaders of the United States, backed by the influence of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, are clamoring for the exclusion of Canadians as well as Mexicans according to the provisions of the "quota clause" of the immigration act.

New England is up against it. All the European countries are manufacturing cotton goods. In Europe there are long hours and low wages. In Japan and China and India there are long hours and pauper wages. And then there is the ever growing competition of the southern mills. There is the ever increasing demand that the mills shall be established where the cotton grows. Cost of living increased eight per cent in the last twelve months. Now if the cost of living continues to climb how will it be possible to decrease the wage of the factory worker?

MURPHY AND HIS MILLIONS.

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, left behind him a fortune of two million dollars. He began life a gas worker. He must have been most considerate and unselfish. Any man in his position should have been able to add a million dollars a year to his private fortune. He was the principal stockholder in a big trucking company. He bought real estate and improved it. Real estate is a safe bet in the growing cities of America.

City Sights—The Store Elevators. By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects are very favorable, and continues so until late at night when they become quite adverse. During the day, you will undoubtedly be brimful of enthusiasm, self-confidence, and optimism, and difficulties, which assumed disproportionate size under more contrary influences, will be easily swept aside. Today is a valuable opportunity for the closing o [illegible] that, owing to hesitancy and doubt, have been hanging fire, as well as for the initiation of new plans and original projects, as, with the application of aggressiveness and concentration of effort, they will yield successful results. Towards the latter part of the evening, there will arise feelings of doubt and mistrust as to the adequacy of your work, and self-control must be exercised in order to avoid wallowing in a mental slough of despond.

A boy born today will have a childhood of good, robust health, and the few minor ailments from which he will suffer, will readily yield to simple treatment. On the other hand, a girl will, in a physical sense, be erratic and subject to violent "ups and downs." When womanhood is attained, however, she will have outgrown her weaknesses, and be well equipped to bear the obligations of her sex. In character and disposition, both girl and boy will be very similar. They will be reserved and shy; better listeners than talkers. They will both take life seriously, and be thoughtful rather than flippant, meditative rather than impulsive.

If today is your birthday, you are very extreme in your likes and dislikes, and rather disposed to trust more to first impressions than to mature judgment. If you are a woman, these impressions will be called intuition. If a man, it will be characterized as hastiness. You have great ambition, and, as you possess both illimitable energy and untiring perseverance, you are more than likely to attain that which you have set before you as your goal. The one feature that militates against your success is your habit of forming snap judgments.

Your friends are few, as not many can stand up under your test. Those you have, however, are staunch and loyal. Love of family is very strongly developed in you, and you are very demonstrative. You never allow any outside interests, no matter how alluring they may be, to sweevere you from your exception affection for your home.

Sucessful people born on this date are:

Robert J. ("Bob") Burdette, journalist and humorist.

Elmer R. Reynolds, ethnologist.

Lettie S. Bigelow, poet and author.

James E. Kelly, engraver and sculptor.

Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer.

SAY GUARDS GASSED PEOPLE

Mine Trouble Is Referred to Governor.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP).—Charges that 35 persons had been gassed by mine guards at Mine No. 9 of the Jamison Coal and Coke company, near Farmington, W. Va., were received today by the conciliation bureau of the labor department from J. L. Studdard, international representative of the United Mine Workers of America.

The question was referred by Acting Secretary White to Governor Gore of West Virginia.

HOW IT STARTED

"Divulge."

On the offensiveness of gossip we are all agreed. But that the word "divulge," which means merely "to make kpown," should have close relationship with "vulgar," will come as a surprise to those who learn for the first time how it started! Yet both words hark back to the same derivation.

"Divulge" comes to us from the Latin "divulgare," which consists of the prefix "di" plus "vulgus," the name which the Latins gave to the populus or common people. Hence the word means literally to spread among the people, and so to make common or "vulgar."

If your ears burn the next time you are about to divulge some information it will be because of this little column which delves and tells, let the chips fall where they may!

BURGLAR NOT PARTICULAR.

He Passes Over Jewelry for Blue Serge Suit.

SAN ANTONIO, July 29.—A burglar, who, detectives believe, thoroughly believes that the "sunshine spends the winter in San Antonio," entered the home of D. R. Weakley Monday night.

IRRIGATION

The Power Line to the Big Dam.

Not many people know that the big dam which forms Lake Kemp was built by electricity, or that this electricity was generated right here in Wichita Falls.

The Wichita Falls Electric company supplied the power but they did not build the transmission line. However, when the work at the dam was completed and the big dredge dismantled, the electric company bought this transmission line and used it to supply Seymour with power.

The power line was over 40 miles long and consisted of three aluminum cables instead of the more common copper wire.

Of course this power line had to pass over Mr. Waggoner's land to reach the dam and the contract with the irrigation district had to provide a right-of-way.

Here is what the contract says about the line and its right-of-way:

"The right to construct over the lands of the party of the first part (Mr. Waggoner) a line for the transmission of electric power and which may carry a telephone line, said line may be constructed from a point on the east line of the pasture of the party of the first part, and by the most practicable and direct route to the storage dam, the said line to be placed on poles at least 20 feet above the surface of the ground, and the telephone wires shall be at least 14 feet, but it is expressly understood that the electric power and telephone line shall not be in any manner so constructed as to interfere in any way with any of the improvement now situated on the land of the party of the firts part."

Mr. Waggoner is engaged in the business of raising cattle. Mr. Waggoner was taking no chances on having a steer killed by any stray electric currents.

A total of 287,466.40 bushels make up the cargo which is destined to Patras, Salankika and one other port in Greece.

CONSIDER TARIFF REDUCTION

New Move Will Place Galveston Equal to New Orleans.

DALLAS, July 29.—Changes on freight tariffs recently ordered by the interstate commerce commission, placing Galveston on a parity with New Orleans and in some instances giving Galveston a lower differential on freight from the entire southwest, were tentatively considered today at a meeting here in the Texas-Louisiana tariff bureau.

CHAPTER LII.
Enid Decides.

If possible, Ronald's letter seemed to make Enid feel more isolated than ever. Of course, she had known that he would return to Coralie, and she realized, too, why Coralie understood the thing better than Ronald did.

Coralie was a woman and, therefore, knew that men always want the thing that isn't theirs. Men worship the mysterious, the unknown; they fall in love with the women they cannot understand, but there is a vast difference between loving a woman and being in love with her. Ronald loved Coralie, he had been in love with Enid.

All day long, Enid's thoughts were with Ronald and Coralie. She pictured them together, happy. Coralie with her pink cheeks and wide child's eyes, would always be a little bit untidy, she would never be mysterious to Ronald, but she was radiantly healthy, and she loved Ronald deeply.

"She really deserved him and I didn't," Enid thought to herself. "I really never knew what love was until now."

As she was dressing for dinner that night she reached a conclusion that had been simmering in her mind all day. Even if she had to leave Zell, she must go away for a time. She could no longer stand this life that was no life, she must get back her sense of values, and some of her pride, and to do that she must be alone to think things out and make up her mind what she ought to do. She decided to speak to Lucien about it, and during dinner that evening she was unusually thoughtful.

Looking at her when she was not aware of it, Lucien leaped to the conclusion that she was dreaming about Ronald. She missed him, his letter had disturbed her, made her want to see him. His jaw hardened and his eyes narrowed slightly as these thoughts went crashing through his consciousness. He could hardly keep himself from bursting into speech, the control which he had enforced upon himself all day was threatening to break down; he wanted the relief of expression.

After dinner, when Norah had retired to the kitchen, Enid wandered restlessly around the living room. Usually she sat motionless beside the fire, pretending to read, but finding it difficult to concentrate because of Luciens presence. Tonight she could not seem to sit still, she wanted to tell Lucien her wish to go away, and yet it was difficult to find words with which to express herself. She shivered with aprehenpsion at the thought of his level, dark eyes directed uopn her, those eyes that seemed to look through her, those eyes that would never again look at her with love in their depths.

Lucien was looking at her as she wandered first to the door, where she stood for a moment looking out into the gloom beyond and then to the rough, built-in book shelves, where she fingered the books nervously. At last she turned to him suddenly and their eyes met.

She opened her lips to speak, faltered and then plunged ahead desperately. "Lucien, I have something to tell you."

Lucien's heart leaped furiously, the blood hammered in his temples. It was coming, she was going to tell him about Ronald. At last he was about to hear a confession of love from her own lips, and he hadn't the remotest idea what he would say or do.

"What is it?" he said evenly.

"Lucien, I want to go away for a time. I'd like to go tomorrow."

It was said, it was out, and she drew a shivering little breath of relief. Her violet eyes dilated as she waited for him to speak, and it seemed as if he were never going to say anything, he waited so long. Then at last the words came tumbling forth.

"Naturally I expected this. I suppose Corley has sent for you."

CHAPTER LIII
Angry Words.

Across the space of room that separated them, Enid stared fascinatedly at Lucien. She was startled at his words. She could not understand what had prompted them. Surely he couldn't be jealous of Ronald, he didn't care enough about her for that.

"I don't know what you mean," she said slowly.

Lucien shrugged his shoulders.

"You say that Ronald has sent for me, Lucien. How can you believe that any man would have the right to do that?"

Enid spoke simply, she did not arch her throat, or throw her head back proudly as she had always done in the past when confronted with anything that displeased her. There was something very like wistfulness in her attitude and it puzzled Lucien. He was aware of a certain bewilderment in spite of the jealous rage that possessed him. Nevertheless, he went on speaking.

"Perhaps I was careless in choosing my words. I was here when the mail arrived and I could not help seeing his letter. Of course, I have known for a long time how things were between you. I knew that you cared for him, I know that you have always cared. Tonight you come to me and talk about going away. From your words there is but one conclusion to be drawn. You want to see Ronald."

Enid's forehead wrinkled in a puzzled frown, involuntarily she took a step toward Lucien, who had risen from his chair and was standing with his back to the fire.

"If you have known for some time that I care for Ronald," she said after a moment, "why did you return to the apartment?"

For a time Lucien was silent, then he said evenly: "For that very reason. While I was under the impression that you had nothing to give any man, I was willing to let you have your freedom, but when I realized that you had always cared for Ronald and had married me and given me a child, I saw no reason for handing you and my daughter over to another man."

"Oh," said Enid, a little breathlessly. "It was because of Zell; naturally you didn't want Ronald to have Zell."

For a moment his repressed longing threatened to undermine his self-control. In another moment he would have forgotten his pride to the extent of telling Enid that he didn't want Ronald to have her, but he stopped just in time. What was the use of telling her when she was in love with another man? Let her believe what she liked. And so he did not answer, and because of his silence Enid gathered up her remnants of pride and burst out furiously.

"You might at least have given me a chance to defend myself against your ugly suspicions. You might have known that I would never stoop to a love affair with another man while I was bearing your name. But, like most men, you preferred to believe the worst. Because I saw Ronald occasionally, you thought I was in love with him."

Lucien was staring at her fixedly, and there was something about her attitude that made him know that she was speaking the truth. He felt suddenly ashamed of his suspicions, her outraged pride made him realize that she could never stoop to anything cheap or sordid, no matter how grevious her other faults.

"I did see a great deal of Ronald," Enid went on quickly, "and I knew that he was beginning to fancy himself in love with me. At first I was amused, and then it occurred to me that by seeing him occasionally I could hurt him as he had once hurt me. Looking back over it now, I can see how wrong I was, and what a cheap revenge it was at best. But at the time I thought of only one thing, avenging my pride, and I am telling you all this now only because you chose to believe the worst of me. That letter from Ronald was to tell me of his reconciliation with Coralie; nothing more."

CHAPTER LIV
The Walls of Pride.

The suspicion that Enid was in love with Ronald had been with Lucien for so long that as she hurled her angry words at him something strangely like hope sprang up in his heart.

So she had encouraged Ronald to get even with him. What a truely faminine idea of revenge, and how like Enid to think of such a thing. Her entire personality was built around her pride. She had always guarded her pride as something sacred. Was it so strange, then, that she had been tempted to sacrifice everything else to it? As usual, he was beginning to invent excuses for her, and the knowledge that she cared nothing for Ronald, that she had merely wanted to be revenged on him, struck Lucien in his love for Enid as something adorably feminine and entirely within her rights.

Then he remembered something else—her desire to go away. She had mentioned going at once—tomorrow—what did that signify?

"Why do you want to go away?" he asked suddenly.

Instantly the color flamed into her face, her eyes that a moment before had been widely dilated now softened as though a mist had been drawn before them. But she did not speak.

He waited a moment and then pressed his point.

"You must have had some reason. Tell me the truth."

For a moment Enid hesitated, and then, suddenly her pride went down before the emotion that rushed up in her. Very well, she would tell him the truth. She would prove how much she cared for him by sacrificing her pride. After the way she had treated him, he deserved to triumph over her, to see her humiliated. It was one way she could atone, and she would do it.

"You want me to tell you the truth?" she asked. "You want to know why I must leave here? It's quite simple. I want to go because I realize how little I mean to you. It hurts me to know that I am tolerated because of Zell and for no other reason. Understand, I am not blaming you. I could hardly do that after the way I have acted. I haven't deserved even your tolerance of me, but I want you to believe me when I tell you that I didn't realize how horribly I had treated you until, until—" she stopped and quietly, relentlessly he pressed her.

"Yes, until—"

She drew a long breath and then went on bravely:

"Until I realized what love could mean. That made me understand many things; it made me humble for the first time in my life. It seemed to me that pride meant very little where love was concerned, and I would have told you the truth if I hadn't thought you would pity me. I felt as if I couldn't bear that."

The soft voice stopped and it seemed to Lucien as he stood there gazing at her that he must be dreaming. This couldn't be Enid, Enid of the bright, hard smile. This surely wasn't Enid, actually surrendering to him, telling him that she loved him.

Somehow he crossed the room to her his hands rough, almost savage with their loging to touch her, were on her shoulders. Memory swept over him, and he almost expected her to shrink from him; he was afraid to look at her lest he glimpse the expression of distaste in her eyes.

He bent his face to hers and caught his breath. Those violet eyes were looking straight into his and it seemed to him that they were so wide and deep that he could look down into her heart.

"Say it, Enid," he said passionately, "you shall say it now, at last."

He saw the color sweep up into her face, but her glance did not waver from his.

"I love you, Lucien," she breathed softly, "more than anything or any one in the world."

Her last words were stifled against his lips, and she clung to him shamelessly sweet in her surrender. Was there anything so magical as the fierce clasp of his arms around her, the pressure of his lips on hers

PROTEST TEXTILE PAY CUT

Labor Head Writes Cotton Manufacturer Against Step.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP).—Protest against reduction of wages in the textile industry was made today by President Green of the American Federation of Labor, who declared such action not to be based on "reason, fairness or justice."

Mr. Green wrote Robert Armory, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, and to Andrew W. Pierce, president of the American Woolen company, declaring action taken by them represented the "power of force and might."

ARRIVE FOR GALVESTON CAMP

"God's in His Heaven, All's Right With the World" a Refrain for A Medley of Smiles Here Wednesday

Five Years of Separation—With Many Miles Between, End for Girls Whose Plucky Fight Earns Welcome Assistance

More than five years ago a domestic upheaval scattered a Texas family to the four ends of the state. The parents separated and the children—many of them, too—were left to their own resources.

Included in the number left thus to their devices were two girls—sisters, who had evidently formed an attachment for each other such as is sometimes found in large families—an attachment that adversity strengthened and privation bolstered.

The other brothers and sisters drifted away but these two—one was 9 and the other 12—clung together for a time.

Finally a Parting.

How they struggled along has no particular part to play in this story. It is of point, though, that they eventually divided; not because they wanted to but because necessity demanded.

The elder of the two came to Wichita Falls and the younger went to El Paso.

As the years wore on they corresponded regularly—and by dint of honest labor, unwavering courage and unfaltering devotion to true and high minded ideals—they prospered. The girl here, obtaining work and holding it, managed to eke out at least a comfortable living. Through similar efforts and a little help from friends in El Paso, the younger girl did the same.

While they worked they saved. A part of their scant earnings each week went into a fund that some day, they hoped, would bring about a reunion. They wanted to be together—but railroad tickets and traveling expenses clear across the state of Texas comprises no small item. Then, too there were always the bills to pay.

Assistance Comes.

Such was the situation a few weeks ago when the case accidentally came under the attention of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society. Miss Katherine Henricle, local representative of the organization, became interested and enlisted the aid of the society's superintendent in El Paso. An investigation that dipped into all circumstances of the case convinced the officials that here were two girls worthy of help; two who, by a plucky and persistent battle against great odds, had earned a little legitimate assistance.

Accordingly railroad transportation was secured for the little miss in El Paso—now a girl of 14 years.

She arrived Wednesday afternoon, a pretty and budding young woman, neatly dressed, quiet, courteous and refined.

And Then a Reunion.

Her sister was waiting for her in the office of the welfare council's secretary at the city hall.

No explanation is needed of the meeting. It was a medley of tears, of smiles and of hugs. Five years and more of separation had ended; arrangements had already been made for a home here; additional work had been found for the newcomer—that is, until school starts and then she will take up her studies again. Five years of hard work, heartaches sometimes; even a little privation now and then—and now it is ended.

They went away smiling their happiness.

Thus, it might be remarked with Pippa, "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world."

Optimists to Be Hosts to 3 Boys

Further discussion of the boys' work program undertaken by the organization featured the regular weekly meeting of the Optimist club Wednesday noon. The boys home which is being established by the club and which will be opened in a short time, came in for considerable comment by J. D. Bright, Jimmy Allred, Jack Story, V. N. Armstrong, Lou Stogner and L. E. Stone.

STOGNER

At the suggestion of Mr. Allred the club voted to have as its guests next week the three small sons of Bob Whitfield, self-confessed wife-slayer, who is under indictment for the murder of his wife, Bess, on July 12. The three youngsters, ranging in age from 3 to 13, have been cared for by a local charity organization since the death of their mother and arrest of their father.

ROBBERS

of the robbers, who staggered across the lobby, leaving a trail of blood.

Meanwhile traffice policemen from two sides of the hotel were racing for the entrance and met the robbers as they emerged and a second pistol battle followed. The robber, already wounded by the house detective was killed outright by policemen's bullets as he tried to escape. A second robber, his avenue of escape cut off in the lobby fled to the hotel kitchen where he was beaten into insensibility after snapping an empty pistol twice in the faces of pursuing officers. The third robber, carrying a satchel containing the loot made his escape in an automobile that had been left running at the curb. He was followed by a motorcycle policeman from whom no word was received and who evidently lost the trail.

The fourth rouner leaped into another automobile and headed north through Lincoln park, but crashed into a light post. He jumped out, pistol in hand, stopped a taxicab with a woman passengr, forced her out and ordered the driver, at the point of the pistol, to continue north through Lincoln park.

Policemen who had taken up the chase in commandeered passing automoblies picked up other policemen in the mad race through Lincoln park and north in Sheridan road road until half a dozen officers were in hot pursuit of the flying cab. After a five mile chase, the cab driver steered his car into a street car deliberately and the robber leaped out and raced down a side street, with the officers only a block away. Firing over his shoulder at his pursuers, the robber took refuge in a basement where he was killed by one bullet from the pistol of Charles Keefer, champion pistol shot of the Lincoln park force.

In the race through Lincoln park and up Sheridan road, a fashionable thoroughfare, hundreds of pedestrians sped into doorways for shelter warned by the exchange of shots as the careening taxicab shot by, followed by an automobile containing policemen. Auto traffic likewise was endangered and automobiles hurried off the boulevard and into side streets to give the combatants the right of way.

Hundreds of policemen tonight scoured the city for the only robber to escape—the man who carried the black satchel with the $10,000 in cash representing the hotel's payroll.

The Drake, one of the largest and most finely operated hosteleries in the country and the temporary home of many persons of prominence visiting Chicago, was thronged with patrons at the time, although few were on the mezzinine floor and in the lobby.

Noise of the shooting aroused guests, however, and tea parties were broken up and men and women rushed from dining rooms to be confronted by policemen racing through corridors trying to verify reports that the robbers had concealed themselves somewhere in the building.

City Wins Fight On Proposed Dam

No attempts will be made by private interests to build a series of dams across Holliday creek as an impounding program for the benefit of Archer county oil drillers.

This was the report brought back from Austin by Public Utilities Commissioner P. B. Curd, who attended a hearing Monday before the state board of water engineers relative to the application for permission to construct the dams. Mr. Curd presented this city's protests against the plan.

The application was withdrawn, Mr. Curd said, when the vigorous kicks of Wichita Falls were laid before the board.

The dams were to have been built near Holliday and Mankins and would have been thrown across the stream which is an important feeder to Lake Wichita, the city's source of water.

M'Junkins Trial Delayed Wednesday

The trial of Farella McJunkins, negress under indictment for the murder of L. N. Carroll, a Fort Worth and Denver brakeman, was continued indefinitely Wednesday morning when defense attorneys asked for a delay on the grounds of a material witness. The case was scheduled to start before Special Judge Vincent Stone of the 30th district court.

It was alleged in the defense motion that a negro boy, a witness to the fatal shooting of Carroll in a cold drink stand in the railroad yards a month ago, was out of the city and could not be found.

After considering the application, Judge Stine granted it.

DIVORCE SUITS GALORE.

Six Tuesday and Five Wednesday Set Record for Year.

Marital vows have gone a-crashing the last two days and the domestic discord has been reflected in the records of the district clerk's office where 11 suits for disvorce were filed Tuesday and Wednesday. This is believed to set a new two-day record for the year. Six suits were filed Tuesday and five more were docketed Wednesday.

Watermelon Stand Ordered Removed

Instructions to remove a watermelon stand operated at Eighth and Holliday streets near the general hospital were given by the city council Wednesday to T. C. Brownell and others.

The order was drawn on request of Commissioner J. H. Patton, health and park commissioner, who said an operator at the stand had refused to heed orders from a health department inspector to screen in the food products as a protection against flies.

It was also decided by the commissioners that the stand, which is located on the curb and hence is on the city street, should not be allowed to operate at that point.

FOUR BUILDING PERMITS.

Combined Valuation of $14,000 Hung Up by Wednesday's Record.

Four building permits were issued Wednesday by the city clerk, their combined valuation reaching $14,100. One permit was for a new $9,000 residence, while the others were for projects of lesser cost.

The record for the present week will not be large, present indications are.

RUBBER PRICE GOES TUMBLING FROM PINNACLE

Trans-Atlantic Race Against Time Also Seems Won

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—Prices of rubber continue to decline from recent record-breaking levels as American protests against limitation of output are causing a stir in Great Britain. Meanwhile a transatlantic race against time for delivery of July rubber appears to have been won.

First Ship Here.

The first of three ships racing to New York from Singapore to land 6,500 tons of crude rubber valued at $14,000,000 for July delivery has touched American shores.

The British steamer Menelaus arrived at Boston yesterday and is expected to dock here with her rubber cargo 24 hours ahead of the time limit, midnight Friday. The Siberian Prince and the Kansas are also regarded as certain to make port in time.

The Menelaus risked losing one whole day for an errand of mercy. She put in at Halifax so that one of her engineers, stricken with appendicitis, could be sent to a hospital.

Prices Tumbling.

Crude rubber prices on the London and New York markets tumbled some more yesterday. The price for spot smoked sheets here dropped 16 cents a pound to 96 cents. In London spot dropped 3 1-2 pence to 3 shillings 10 pence a pound. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has formed a $3,000,000 special raw material reserve to guard against a possible decline in rubber values because it regards the current prices as much in excess of the cost of production.

Members of the Federation of British Industries in a special meeting in London yesterday urged the government to reject the request of manufacturers of the United States for modification of the Stevenson restriction act which limits the exportation of rubber from Malaya and Ceylon, according to the price. They held that a price of 4 shillings a pound for two years was necessary to put rubber producers in the colonies on their feet.

L. S. Amery, the colonial secretary, has indicated to the house of commons that the restrictions will not be modified, at least until after careful inquiry.

To Save the Other Woman She Will Divorce Husband

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—(AP) In the belief that she may be able to save the "other woman" from federal prosecution, Mrs. R. Carl Ziegler, whose husband is charged with taking $1,000 in funds of the ku klux klan and who fled to El Paso, Texas, with Miss Margaret Roberts, a neighbor here, will start divorce proceedings at once, she said today.

"It had been my intention from the time he fled with the Roberts girl to divorce him," said Mrs. Ziegler today. "When I heard last night that the federal authorities contemplating arresting Miss Roberts for conspiracy to violate the Mann act, I decided to file suit for divorce at once as I believe Mr. Ziegler will marry Miss Roberts as soon as he is free, and then the government will not press any charge against the girl."

TURNS IN DUAL ROLE

Omaha Youngsters to Alternate in Their Class Play.

OMAHA, Neb., July 29.—(AP)—Because they look so much alike and are of the same ability, both in the class room and on the school stage, Cora and Jean Laventy, 16-year-old Omaha twins, will alternate in the lead of the class play to be given by South high school August 5.

It was decided to give the leading part to the girl having the best scholastic average and the best talent, but the teachers' coach found the twins evenly matched, therefore, Cora will play two acts and Jean will lead in the other two of the four-act play.

The leading man, who is to fall in love with the leading lady, is in a quandary.

BOASTS GOOD TOURIST PARK.

Frederick Offers Excellent Grounds to Visitors.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 29.—Frederick boasts of one of the most modern and best equipped tourist parks in southwest Oklahoma.

Although the park has been built but one year, two buildings, a bath house with good shower facilities provided and ample room for laundry work, and a house for kitchen work and cooking is supplied. The two homes are electrically equipped. Shade trees have been planted and the lawn is well kept by a full-time keeper. A swimming hole is provided for tourists at the old park located only a block from the new site.

SCOPES VIEWS BRYAN.

Man Commoner Prosecuted Gazes at His Dead Form.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 29.—(AP)—John Thomas Scopes, in whose prosecution for violation of the Tennessee evolution statute Mr. Bryan took part and in which the former secretary of state gained wide renown as the champion of fundamentalist religious ideas, visited the home where the Commoner lay in state late yesterday. The young biology instructor entered the room where the body lay in its casket, stood a moment in respectful silence and walked quietly away.

RANSOM MONEY DEMANDED.

Burglars Holding Dr. Harvey Howard Name Their Price.

PEKING, July 29.—(AP)—Consular advices say that a ransom in money and cartridges has been demanded by the bridands who captured Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller hospital in Peking more than a week ago while he was visiting at the Manchurian ranch of Morgan Palmer, a native of New York state.

The amount of the ransom is not specified and the whereabouts of Dr. Howard is not revealed.

Once a Chorus Girl, Then Wife Of An American Millionaire, Banned By Society, She Becomes a Peeress

Former Wife of George J. Gould Weds English Viscount, But Reception in England Is Problematical

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—A former chorus girl, a beautiful blonde, who married an American millionaire, thus legitimizing their three children, but who never had a place in American social socials, has become a British peeress.

Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, widow of George J. Gould, was married yesterday in Montreal to George St. John Broderick, viscount Bunsford, son and heir of the Earl of Middleton. The family title dates back to 1715. He is 37 years old. The viscountess is several years younger. It is also the viscount's second marriage.

No Announcement.

No announcement had been made of the engagement. They slipped off from New York to Montreal to be married they said because it was a quiet place. The Rev. George Hanson performed the ceremony in the American Presbyterian church.

Lady Dunsford's wedding gown was a Parisian creation of green crepe de chene with a lace back and lace collar fastened in front by a diamond arrow pin. Driving from the church to the Ritz Carlton hotel in a taxicab she wore a green coat trimmed with red fox fur. A Panama hat partly obscured her blonde bobbed hair.

She called her husband "George." He addressed her as "dear."

"We want to keep our marriage as quiet as possible," Lord Dunsford said. "We shall be here a few days and after that we shall go to Urgania, Canada, and possibly on the continent. We shall, of course, end up in England where we will live."

New York society is speculating whether Lady Dunsford's reception in London society will be more cordial than was that in New York three years ago.

In Musical Comedy.

Lady Dunsford is the daughter of Alexander Sinclair, a British officer. Her grandfather was provost of Trinity college, Dublin. She was appearing in the English musical comedy "The Girl on the Film" in 1914 when she caught the attention of Howard Gould, brother of George J. Gould. When the company came to New York the same year Miss Sinclair carried a letter of introduction from Howard to George, husband of the late Edith Kingdon Gould.

When the company returned to England she remained behind and as Mrs. Sinclair lived in a mansion just off Riverside Drive. Later she moved to Rye, N. Y. Children were born to her in 1915, 1916 and 1922. She married George Gould in 1922, a year after the death of Edith Kingdon Gould.

After a legal battle that followed Gould's death in 1923 the present Lady Dunsford obtained last June an annual income of $10,000 for each of the children. Her claim for $4,000,000 which she said was bequeathed her and the children is still in litigation. She has already received $1,000,000.

Lord Dunsford served in the World war. While on a furlough in 1916 he married Peggy Rush, an American dancer, and was divorced last January. He is a partner in a public works contracting firm.

SEIZURE LAW CASE THROWN OUT OF COURT

First Liquor Suit of Its Kind at Houston Dismissed

HOUSTON, July 29.—The first liquor case to be thrown out of criminal district court here for failure to comply wth the new search and seizure law, occurred today when Judge C. W. Robinson quashed the charge.

Following the suppression of evidence in the case, the district attorney's office recommended the dismissal of two other cases.

Assistant District Attorney L. G. King said several liquor cases pending would reach the same fate.

In the first case, defense counsel offered the court both the affidavit for a search warrant and the actual search warrant executed. The affivadit named "parties to be pointed out" without giving an address, while the search warrant named "parties to be pointed out" at a certain address.

Defense attorneys asked suppression of evidence undr the fact that the affidavit of sworn application for the search warrant and th ewarrant itslf did not agree.

Judge Robinson said that perhaps the new law was too strong but that the legislature probably was sure of its ground befor passing the act.

"We might as well comply with the law right now," he said.

Services Conducted At Walnut Church

Pursuant to an announcement that he would speak at the Walnut Street Baptist church Wednesday evening "In defense of an old-fashioned gospel (Gal. 1:18) and old-time spiritual power (1 Cor. 2:4, 5)" Rev. I. M. Yearkley of this city preached to a small but responsive audience from the text, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

By a vote of those present the minister was requested to continue the services for at least the remaining part of the week. Services will begin promptly at 8:15 each evening. A cottage prayer service is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conner Smith, 202 Walnut street Wednesday evening.

DETROIT—(AP)—Secret service operatives believe counterfeit treasury certificates totalling $200,000, largely in $20 bills, have been circulated here and in other middle western cities during the past year by five men and two women arrested here today in a raid by federal agents

URBANA, Ill. — (AP) — One woman was fatally injured and several persons sustained broken limbs and minor hurts this afternoon when a west bound Wabash passenger train was derailed near Tolono.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Loren H. Witner, plaintiff in Washington's evolution case became defendant today in another court in the District of Columbia. A Washington tailoring firm brought suit against him for debt. Justice Mattling rendered a default judgment for $166.

PARIS—(AF)—In diplomatic circles in Paris the report is in circulation that Premier Mussolini of Italy may soon undergo a surgical operation for the removal of an ulcer of the duodenum that portion of the small intestine which is coinjoined to the stomach.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—While the navy department has afforded facilities to Dr. Edwin B. Scott of San Francisco, for carrying out experiments with an arrangement reported as promising a new method of warfare, akin if not similar to the so-called European death ray, it was said today that no definite plans had been made permitting Dr. Scott the use of a battleship in his work. A statement by the department which gave a summary of the views of Dr. Scott previously made public indicated that the experimenting involved the use of ultra-violet rays. Dr. Scott was quoted as saying that "the death ray or beam is a misnomer—it is what Dr. Steinmetz declared about the lightning stroke—there is no ray or beam about it."— This stroke," it added, "can be projected and directed with five times the power of anything science has been able to yet generate. It will set fire to dead trees burn holes through two inches of steel a mile distant and there is no doubt at all but that this stroke could be sent in any desired direction for twenty miles."

30 DAYS ON THEFT CHARGE

E. C. Johns Pleads Guilty And Is Sentenced In County Court.

A sentence of 30 days in the county jail was imposed Wednesday by Judge C. M. McFarland of the county court at law on E. C. Johns when the latter entered a plea of guilty to charges of theft.

He was arrested Monday night by the constable's department on charges of having broken into a grocery store half way between this city and Iowa Park on the Electra road and made away with a quantity of canned goods and groceries in bulk.

FAMILY NIGHT AT CLUB

Many Turn Out For Dinner And Dance at Muny House.

Municipal golf club members and families staged the first family night session of the season Wednesday evening at the new club house. There was a delicious banquet, and a pleasing musical program rendered by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Pitman. After the program dancing and bridge playing was enjoyed.

There were seven present, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Yeargin were hosts.

PHANTOM

that they were turned over to you for service."

"Well, it's all news to me," was his answer.

"You mean you haven't been given any papers of that sort?"

"Nothing at all. I haven't heard a word about them."

Blooie!

Scenes shifted rapidly to the city hall again where Chief Hodgins was up far into the night directing a series of raids on liquor dives. Incidentally, up to pres stime 20 gallons of choc had been seized and six persons arrested.

"Well I'll be," the chief gasped when told the sheriff flatly denied any knowledge of the injunction.

"Said He Had Them."

"I asked Fred Smith about those in a barber shop this morning and he said his boys had them and were going to serve them this afternoon. Search me; it's the funniest thing I ever heard of."

But still more complications came. When the cloud of doubt first gathered on the horizon of what was otherwise a perfectly glorious news night, the Record News went to headquarters. It put in a long distance call for Judge Stine, who was in Henrietta and finally got him on the phone.

"No," the judge said in response to a query about the injunctions, "I haven't issued any and no application has been made to my court for such an order."

Blooie again!

Chief Hodgins was appealed to once more and it was here the third law unit came in—the constable's department.

"It beats me," the chief said. "Brad (Constable C. L. Bradford) told me about it. He said he understood the orders had been issued and were going to be served. I'm telling you all I know about it."

"And didn't Fred Smith tell you in a barber shop this morning he had them and was going to serve them this afternoon?" he was asked again.

"He sure did."

"Just where are those places?"

The chief named over three houses that have figured more or less prominently in the liquor war. All three were included in those visited by the police and constable early last week.

Constable Missing.

A hunt was started for Constable Bradford next, but he was out in the county somewhere going after road houses hammer and tongs and up until an early hour efforts to find him were unavailing. What he has to say about the situation, therefore cannot be given the public at this time.

Still another angle of the whole thing popped up when it was learned that at least one of the three places scheduled for the official plaster was not in operation yesterday. This has been running full blast up until Wednesday. It was raided last week and the owner arrested, but the next day the place was wide open again. It was learned positively, however, that its doors were closed and locked Wednesday.

With all this, the chief of police was asked another question, namely, what he proposed to do about the injunctions providing none had been issued yet.

Wants Federal Padlocks.

"I'm working on another plan," he said, "and that is for some federal padlocks for these places. A federal order is more strict than a district court one and if we get the United States judge to issue an injunction we can put a padlock on all these places and they'll stay there for a year."

So much for that.

One thing is certain. Twenty gallons, more or less, of choc beer was seized during the night. A house in the 1500 block on Seventeenth street was visited and 10 gallons confiscated while two men and two women were arrested. Later, a negro servants' house in the 1400 block Tenth street was entered by the police, 10 gallons more found and a negro man and woman taken in custody.

The cops were still busy early this morning.

RUBBER PRICE GOES TUMBLING FROM PINNACLE

Trans-Atlantic Race Against Time Also Seems Won

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—Prices of rubber continue to decline from recent record-breaking levels as American protests against limitation of output are causing a stir in Great Britain. Meanwhile a transatlantic race against time for delivery of July rubber appears to have been won.

First Ship Here.

The first of three ships racing to New York from Singapore to land 6,500 tons of crude rubber valued at $14,000,000 for July delivery has touched American shores.

The British steamer Menelaus arrived at Boston yesterday and is expected to dock here with her rubber cargo 24 hours ahead of the time limit, midnight Friday. The Siberian Prince and the Kansas are also regarded as certain to make port in time.

The Menelaus risked losing one whole day for an errand of mercy. She put in at Halifax so that one of her engineers, stricken with appendicitis, could be sent to a hospital.

Prices Tumbling.

Crude rubber prices on the London and New York markets tumbled some more yesterday. The price for spot smoked sheets here dropped 16 cents a pound to 96 cents. In London spot dropped 3 1-2 pence to 3 shillings 10 pence a pound. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has formed a $3,000,000 special raw material reserve to guard against a possible decline in rubber values because it regards the current prices as much in excess of the cost of production.

Members of the Federation of British Industries in a special meeting in London yesterday urged the government to reject the request of manufacturers of the United States for modification of the Stevenson restriction act which limits the exportation of rubber from Malaya and Ceylon, according to the price. They held that a price of 4 shillings a pound for two years was necessary to put rubber producers in the colonies on their feet.

L. S. Amery, the colonial secretary, has indicated to the house of commons that the restrictions will not be modified, at least until after careful inquiry.

To Save the Other Woman She Will Divorce Husband

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—(AP) In the belief that she may be able to save the "other woman" from federal prosecution, Mrs. R. Carl Ziegler, whose husband is charged with taking $1,000 in funds of the ku klux klan and who fled to El Paso, Texas, with Miss Margaret Roberts, a neighbor here, will start divorce proceedings at once, she said today.

"It had been my intention from the time he fled with the Roberts girl to divorce him," said Mrs. Ziegler today. "When I heard last night that the federal authorities contemplating arresting Miss Roberts for conspiracy to violate the Mann act, I decided to file suit for divorce at once, as I believe Mr. Ziegler will marry Miss Roberts as soon as he is free, and then the government will not press any charge against the girl."

TURNS IN DUAL ROLE

Omaha Youngsters to Alternate in Their Class Play.

OMAHA, Neb., July 29.—(AP)—Because they look so much alike and are of the same ability, both in the class room and on the school stage, Cora and Jean Laventy, 16-year-old Omaha twins, will alternate in the lead of the class play to be given by South high school August 5.

It was decided to give the leading part to the girl having the best scholastic average and the best talent, but the teachers' coach found the twins evenly matched, therefore, Cora will play two acts and Jean will lead in the other two of the four-act play.

The leading man, who is to fall in love with the leading lady, is in a quandary.

Once a Chorus Girl, Then Wife Of An American Millionaire, Banned By Society, She Becomes a Peeress

Former Wife of George J. Gould Weds English Viscount, But Reception in England Is Problematical

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—A former chorus girl, a beautiful blonde, who married an American millionaire, thus legitimizing their three children, but who never had a place in American social socials, has become a British peeress.

Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, widow of George J. Gould, was married yesterday in Montreal to George St. John Broderick, viscount Bunsford, son and heir of the Earl of Middleton. The family title dates back to 1715. He is 37 years old. The viscountess is several years younger. It is also the viscount's second marriage.

No Announcement.

No announcement had been made of the engagement. They slipped off from New York to Montreal to be married they said because it was a quiet place. The Rev. George Hanson performed the ceremony in the American Presbyterian church.

Lady Dunsford's wedding gown was a Parisian creation of green crepe de chene with a lace back and lace collar fastened in front by a diamond arrow pin. Driving from the church to the Ritz Carlton hotel in a taxicab she wore a green coat trimmed with red fox fur. A Panama hat partly obscured her blonde bobbed hair.

She called her husband "George." He addressed her as "dear."

"We want to keep our marriage as quiet as possible," Lord Dunsford said. "We shall be here a few days and after that we shall go to Urgania, Canada, and possibly on the continent. We shall, of course, end up in England where we will live."

New York society is speculating whether Lady Dunsford's reception in London society will be more cordial than was that in New York three years ago.

In Musical Comedy.

Lady Dunsford is the daughter of Alexander Sinclair, a British officer. Her grandfather was provost of Trinity college, Dublin. She was appearing in the English musical comedy "The Girl on the Film" in 1914 when she caught the attention of Howard Gould, brother of George J. Gould. When the company came to New York the same year Miss Sinclair carried a letter of introduction from Howard to George, husband of the late Edith Kingdon Gould.

When the company returned to England she remained behind and as Mrs. Sinclair lived in a mansion just off Riverside Drive. Later she moved to Rye, N. Y. Children were born to her in 1915, 1916 and 1922. She married George Gould in 1922, a year after the death of Edith Kingdon Gould.

After a legal battle that followed Gould's death in 1923 the present Lady Dunsford obtained last June an annual income of $10,000 for each of the children. Her claim for $4,000,000 which she said was bequeathed her and the children is still in litigation. She has already received $1,000,000.

Lord Dunsford served in the World war. While on a furlough in 1916 he married Peggy Rush, an American dancer, and was divorced last January. He is a partner in a public works contracting firm.

SEIZURE LAW CASE THROWN OUT OF COURT

First Liquor Suit of Its Kind at Houston Dismissed

HOUSTON, July 29.—The first liquor case to be thrown out of criminal district court here for failure to comply wth the new search and seizure law, occurred today when Judge C. W. Robinson quashed the charge.

Following the suppression of evidence in the case, the district attorney's office recommended the dismissal of two other cases.

Assistant District Attorney L. G. King said several liquor cases pending would reach the same fate.

In the first case, defense counsel offered the court both the affidavit for a search warrant and the actual search warrant executed. The affivadit named "parties to be pointed out" without giving an address, while the search warrant named "parties to be pointed out" at a certain address.

Defense attorneys asked suppression of evidence undr the fact that the affidavit of sworn application for the search warrant and th ewarrant itslf did not agree.

Judge Robinson said that perhaps the new law was too strong but that the legislature probably was sure of its ground befor passing the act.

"We might as well comply with the law right now," he said.

Services Conducted At Walnut Church

Pursuant to an announcement that he would speak at the Walnut Street Baptist church Wednesday evening "In defense of an old-fashioned gospel (Gal. 1:18) and old-time spiritual power (1 Cor. 2:4, 5)" Rev. I. M. Yearkley of this city preached to a small but responsive audience from the text, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

By a vote of those present the minister was requested to continue the services for at least the remaining part of the week. Services will begin promptly at 8:15 each evening. A cottage prayer service is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conner Smith, 202 Walnut street Wednesday evening.

DETROIT—(AP)—Secret service operatives believe counterfeit treasury certificates totalling $200,000, largely in $20 bills, have been circulated here and in other middle western cities during the past year by five men and two women arrested here today in a raid by federal agents

URBANA, Ill. — (AP) — One woman was fatally injured and several persons sustained broken limbs and minor hurts this afternoon when a west bound Wabash passenger train was derailed near Tolono.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Loren H. Witner, plaintiff in Washington's evolution case became defendant today in another court in the District of Columbia. A Washington tailoring firm brought suit against him for debt. Justice Mattling rendered a default judgment for $166.

PARIS—(AP)—In diplomatic circles in Paris the report is in circulation that Premier Musolini of Italy may soon undergo a surgical operation for the removal of an ulcer of the duodenum that portion of the small intestine which is coinjoined to the stomach.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—While the navy department has afforded facilities to Dr. Edwin B. Scott of San Francisco, for carrying out experiments with an arrangement reported as promising a new method of warfare, akin if not similar to the so-called European death ray, it was said today that no definite plans had been made permitting Dr. Scott the use of a battleship in his work. A statement by the department which gave a summary of the views of Dr. Scott previously made public indicated that the experimenting involved the use of ultra-violet rays. Dr. Scott was quoted as saying that "the death ray or beam is a misnomer—it is what Dr. Steinmetz declared about the lightning stroke—there is no ray or beam about it."— This stroke," it added, "can be projected and directed with five times the power of anything science has been able to yet generate. It will set fire to dead trees burn holes through two inches of steel a mile distant and there is no doubt at all but that this stroke could be sent in any desired direction for twenty miles."

30 DAYS ON THEFT CHARGE

E. C. Johns Pleads Guilty And Is Sentenced In County Court.

A sentence of 30 days in the county jail was imposed Wednesday by Judge C. M. McFarland of the county court at law on E. C. Johns when the latter entered a plea of guilty to charges of theft.

He was arrested Monday night by the constable's department on charges of having broken into a grocery store half way between this city and Iowa Park on the Electra road and made away with a quantity of canned goods and groceries in bulk.

FAMILY NIGHT AT CLUB

Many Turn Out For Dinner And Dance at Muny House.

Municipal golf club members and families staged the first family night session of the season Wednesday evening at the new club house. There was a delicious banquet, and a pleasing musical program rendered by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Pitman. After the program dancing and bridge playing was enjoyed.

There were seven present. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Yeargin were hosts.

PHANTOM

that they were turned over to you for service."

"Well, it's all news to me," was his answer.

"You mean you haven't been given any papers of that sort?"

"Nothing at all. I haven't heard a word about them."

Blooie!

Scenes shifted rapidly to the city hall again where Chief Hodgins was up far into the night directing a series of raids on liquor dives. Incidentally, up to pres stime 20 gallons of choc had been seized and six persons arrested.

"Well I'll be," the chief gasped when told the sheriff flatly denied any knowledge of the injunction.

"Said He Had Them."

"I asked Fred Smith about those in a barber shop this morning and he said his boys had them and were going to serve them this afternoon. Search me; it's the funniest thing I ever heard of."

But still more complications came. When the cloud of doubt first gathered on the horizon of what was otherwise a perfectly glorious news night, the Record News went to headquarters. It put in a long distance call for Judge Stine, who was in Henrietta and finally got him on the phone.

"No," the judge said in response to a query about the injunctions, "I haven't issued any and no application has been made to my court for such an order."

Blooie again!

Chief Hodgins was appealed to once more and it was here the third law unit came in—the constable's department.

"It beats me," the chief said. "Brad (Constable C. L. Bradford) told me about it. He said he understood the orders had been issued and were going to be served. I'm telling you all I know about it."

"And didn't Fred Smith tell you in a barber shop this morning he had them and was going to serve them this afternoon?" he was asked again.

"He sure did."

"Just where are those places?"

The chief named over three houses that have figured more or less prominently in the liquor war. All three were included in those visited by the police and constable early last week.

Constable Missing.

A hunt was started for Constable Bradford next, but he was out in the county somewhere going after road houses hammer and tongs and up until an early hour efforts to find him were unavailing. What he has to say about the situation, therefore cannot be given the public at this time.

Still another angle of the whole thing popped up when it was learned that at least one of the three places scheduled for the official plaster was not in operation yesterday. This has been running full blast up until Wednesday. It was raided last week and the owner arrested, but the next day the place was wide open again. It was learned positively, however, that its doors were closed and locked Wednesday.

With all this, the chief of police was asked another question, namely, what he proposed to do about the injunctions providing none had been issued yet.

Wants Federal Padlocks.

"I'm working on another plan," he said, "and that is for some federal padlocks for these places. A federal order is more strict than a district court one and if we get the United States judge to issue an injunction we can put a padlock on all these places and they'll stay there for a year."

So much for that.

One thing is certain. Twenty gallons, more or less, of choc beer was seized during the night. A house in the 1500 block on Seventeenth street was visited and 10 gallons confiscated while two men and two women were arrested. Later, a negro servants' house in the 1400 block Tenth street was entered by the police, 10 gallons more found and a negro man and woman taken in custody.

The cops were still busy early this morning.

Spudders Knock Bruins Groggy In Series Opener, 11-5

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

HAVING GAINED A BIG TOE-HOLD IN THE BRUIN LAIR WEDNESDAY, SPUDDERS HOPE TO TAKE THE FORTRESS THIS AFTERNOON BY SENDING EITHER WILLIAMS OR SUTHERLAND TO THE HILL.

The way the gang got around the bases in far away San Antonio yesterday it looks like they're pretty earnest in the declarations made here Monday night before departing on the road trip that they will grab off a big enough margin of wins while away to give them a powerful title bid to work on when they get back home again.

WHAT AND WHY!

"Ripper's jumped the club!" Those were the words uttered the second we stuck a head inside Spudder baseball offices yesterday morning.

Ripper declared Tanner gave him the air. Contradictory statements.

Buddy Gardner, acting Spudder president, said that Tuesday in Dallas when Tanner took Wheeler from the mound in the first inning after the Steers had pounded out a substantial lead unkind words between the manager and hurler ensued.

* * *

"Rip," avers Gardner, "told Tanner Tuesday night he would like to go home for a period. Buddy then up and told him he could go and stay there as far as he was concerned."

* * *

If there was any personal animosity on the part of Tanner in regard to Wheeler prior to Tuesday the writer failed to notice it, and he's been in close touch with all concerned. Tanner, we know to be a hard working and conscientious manager, one who is struggling against odds to win the pennant.

TEMPERAMENT.

The whole situation is this, according to Gardner: Wheeler is a good scout, a fine fellow, and all that, but he's temperamental. Temperament has been a great part of his trouble all along this season. And Ripper hasn't come through very heavily, either.

* * *

"Wheeler," said Gardner, "wanted to quit; just wanted to stop playing baseball for awhile and get nearer home. Tanner didn't tell him to. He did, however, tell Wheeler that this club, the Spudders, is out fighting for a pennant, and that he doesn't want any man on the team who doesn't get in there and fight and pull with them."

* * *

Meantime, efforts are being taken to acquire at least one more creditable hurler. The staff at present consists of Osborn, Williams, Sutherland, Roberts and Morgan.

"Some fight time-keepers," says Adolph, "some of 'em are good and some are not quite the same."

He was speaking of the Vernon time keeper who the other night every time Tommy White knocked Kid Rich down rang the gong, thereby, of course, finishing the round.

Adolph cautioned time keeper to slap the bell only when the alloted two-minutes per round had run. The Kid was kayoed and counted out in the fifth canto, but the full two minutes had not elapsed, so 30 seconds later timer arises and busts gong signifying the round was over, also the fight.

As usual tonight's fights are grudge affairs.

So Expressive.

E. G. Hill, the well known sporting man, has a way all of his own of expressing himself. He is also president of the Sunday school league, and when asked about yesterday's titular series he ups and opines "This death grapple between the Methodists will not be held up this afternoon just because there was a sprinkle of rain this morning. The Methodists don't mind a little sprinkling."

First Methodists Win Sunday School Loop Title

PARKER SETS GRACE DOWN WITH 6 HITS

Victors Pound Over For Seven Tallies In Third

By MACK TURNER

Gerard Boone's First Methodist team is the 1925 Sunday School league pennant winner. Jimmy Parker, Boone's young speed ball artist, held Grace Methodists to six safeties in seven stanzas Wednesday afternoon, enabling the Firsts to down their brother Methodists in the second straight game of the playoff series, 7 to 3, thereby grabbing the title.

Both clubs fielded in great form, and a number of remarkable plays were turned in. The outstanding stunt of the day came in the sixth inning. Skeen was on second and Glidewell on first. Windham slammed a single to center. Skeen apparently was sure to score, but Rawls tore in, took the pill on the run, and pegged perfectly to the plate, to cut the runner away on the slide. This made the third out for the inning and a potent Grace Methodist threat had been killed.

One Big Inning

Again as in the first contest it was one big inning in which the First Methodists stowed the game. In the third the Boone clan put the game in their bat bag with seven runs. Ward led off with a single to right, and took second on a passed ball. Parker walked, Johnnie McMahon bunted and beat it out, filling the bases. Taylor singled back of first, scoring Ward. Cannon bunted to Glidewell who juggled the ball. All hands were safe, and Parker scored. On a perfect squeeze play McMahon scored, and Gordon reached first when Ronie Glidewell tried for Cannon at second. The runner was trapped off, but Whatley let Glidewell's peg get by him and the runner was safe. Rawls dropped a Texas leaguer back of first, scoring Taylor. Kizziar smashed a double to left scoring Cannon and Gordon. F Boone hit to Andree who heaved Rawls out at the plate. Kizziar scored and Boone took second when Glidewell threw wide to second after Boone. Ward hit to Andree who chunked Boone out at the plate. Parker went out second to first.

Gordon Doubles

Dick Gordon's double with a man on first scored the first Grace tally in the fifth. A single by Blue, and walks to Haney and Skeen filled the bases with two down in the sixth for the Grace Methodists. Ronie Glidewell smashed a single over second, scoring Blue and Haney. Windham singled to center and Rawls heaved Skeen out at the plate with a lone peg to Ward.

Fisher to Grapple Jack Gorman Here

Sam Beattie and Alec B. Ross have combined promotorial brains and other resources for the purpose of staging a series of wrestling matches in Wichita Falls the first of which is to be held next Tuesday evening in an arena now under construction at Eleventh and Indiana.

Ross announces that the programs are to be staged weekly and that Jack Fisher of St. Louis, claimant of America's lightweight crown, the grappler pictured above, will square off with Jack Gorman in the opener.

Gorman is well known to Wichita Falls fandom and has always proved a pleaser. Fisher comes with a great reputation behind him. They are to wrestle catch-as-catch-can, Police Gazette rules, best two out of three falls.

Duke Expects to Stop White Tonight

FORT WORTH WALLOPER ON EDGE FOR GO

Lots of Grudges And All That Kind of Stuff Worked Up

THE CARD.

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, versus Tommy White, Texas City. Welterweights, ten rounds.

Jack Denton, Tahoka, versus Freddy Wilder, Los Angeles. Lightweights, eight rounds.

Battling Bullger, Wichita Falls versus Paddy Ryan, Wichita Falls. Welterweights, four rounds.

Kid Norford, Wichita Falls, versus Red Pepper, Wichita Falls. Negro welterweights, six rounds.

By BLONDY CROSS.

One couldn't exactly call it a grudge fight, this Trammel-White tilt billed for the legion arena tonight, but it carries all the earmarks more or less, of such a battle. They've told White that in outpointing Duke in their other battle fought here several weeks back he was more than fortunate that he didn't get slammed completely through the ropes. Fight followers have informed the Texas City miller that when Trammel lands it the birdies for the "landee" no matter who he may be. Trammel, they aver, was stale, not in the best of condition, or something or other when he lost the decision to Tommy. And he did not hit White but once. This talk, of course, has irritated Tommy. He'll show 'em, he will, says he, or words to that effect, that his victory was not a hollow one, after all.

Duke Confident.

Duke probably is the more peeved of the two. For it is true that Tramml connected with White but one time in their recent ten-rounder, whereas Tommy swarmed all around him, making him look foolish in every respect. Trammel feels that if h can ever get over with a few well directed socks he'll annihilate Tommy, not that a fighter ever thought of using such a word. But Duke is assuring himself mel connected with White but one time and in so doing put White to the canvass for the count.

Can Duke really do it, do you ask. Oh yes, if he slams that right to the button, sure! But there's the rub. He may not put a glove on the slippery Texas City scrapper, and there're a number of the wagering lads who are willing to lay you just that.

White Quite Frisky.

White is feeling quite frisky after his fifth round kayo of Kid Rich in Vernon Tuesday. Duke feels the same after driving Cowboy Padgett to his shell down in San Antonio in his, Duke's latest ring venture. So the psychology background for a real mill is spread out perfectly, and they're tighting three-minute rounds, too, which is something unusual for Wichita Falls.

Freddy Wilder wants White. He wants him bad enough that he's willing to attempt to lay Jack Denton away tonight as conclusive proof that he rates a fight with Tommy. Freddy may find the Denton proposition a tough one, and if he doesn't get rid of Jack in a hurry he need not enter any more calls for White.

Paddy Ryan, they say, has a grudge to settle with Bullger. That's the same old story, but it may be true. Fighters you know, are always having grudges to work off.

The same is said about the black boys' battle, too.

TANNER CREW HITS WINTERS, COLLARD HARD

Victory Is Number 15 For Dick—Gets Jump In First Round

SAN ANTONIO, July 29. Taking a four-run lead in the first inning and increasing it four more in the third when Winters was relieved by Collard, the Spudders had no trouble winning the opening game of the series Wednesday 11 to 5. In the sixth inning while at bat, Distel, with one ball called, was ordered to take his base by Umpire Daly, who claimed that Catcher Warwick had interfered.

A walk to Distel, Callaghan's safe bunt, and Turgeon's single scored the first Spud tally. Golvin tripled to center, scoring Callaghan and Turgeon. Dorman drove the fourth one over with a single to center.

Awalk, and singles by Bodie and Fitzgerald sent Winters to the showers and brought on Collard. A sacrifice fly and singles by Golvin and Dorman scored the four runs in the third inning.

Distel was given first on Warwick's interference. A walk, and Fitzgerald's single scored the run in the sixth. Walks to Callaghan and Bodie, Fitzgerald's single, and an infield out scored the two Spud markers in the eighth.

Dick Morgan in winning this, his fifteenth victory of the season, scattered ten hits with exception of the third when San Antonio scored one run and the fifth when the Bears counted four.

The Passing Hour

By William B. Ruggles

THE DUFFER'S BALLAD

Problems of state will not keep me from sleeping—
The dope on the crops may be brain-food for some—
On the death rate in China, some folks may be weeping—
The row in the Ruhr make some learned gents hum;
The world's full of trouble wherever its winking—
The watch dogs of gloom lift their bay to the moon—
I've woes of my own for I'm standing here thinking
Whether to play with a mashie or spoon.

Contracts.

There are those who think that the purported breach between Messrs. Dempsey and Kearns is merely one, so to speak, of comouflage, designed to permit the champion to arrange a bout or at least get in the good graces of the New York state boxing commission, where his alter ego has been shown the gate.

Through all of which peers the legal status of Kearns' contract, admitted to exist until September 1926.

Let us suppose that Dempsey either actually or otherwise maintains his break with Kearns. Suppose too that under the agreement with Rickard, he fights in July of next year and that the champion's rake-off on the gate approximates the expected half million.

The New York commission can keep Kearns from taking an active part in the promotion, which only hurts the bout as Rickard himself says that Kearns draws dollars at the gate by selling the fight. But how on earth can it prevent him from collecting his share of the champion's purse under his contract.

Certainly no edict of the commission can supersede a legal and binding agreement drawn up under process of the statutes.

It looks as if J. Kearns, esq., will not have to worry about his cakes this year or next that he will collect them the easiest way—sitting back and waiting.

Bill Holloway the plumber remembers when "It ain't gonna rain no mo'" was funny.

The medal for heroism presented to Pitcher George Connally we understand was for saving a gent's life, not for playing in Galveston.

Better Part of Wisdom.

Critics are beginning to cast around the Texas league byways in search of available talent for promotion. Scouts have been beating around the Lone Star boys since early in the year and in spite of their allegations that this is a bad season for talent have probably made one or two offers. So far, however, no sale hac been announced.

Class A clubs can lose only one player by draft and whatever other promoters are made must be by the sale route, except in the case of players sent out under option. With the possible exceptions of Wicbita Falls and San Antonio, the league is not overburdened with playing talent that belongs to the majors now.

The one man draft rule has enabled a club like Fort Worth to hold its personnel together for a number of years, and if other clubs ever attain similar success it will probably work as well for them.

The one man draft law some times works out peculiarly. Both Vache and Donohue at Dallas were drawn for last fall and the Steers owners were hopeful that Donohue would be called and Vache left. But the luck of the lottery fell on Vache and while no one seriously expected this hard hitting but not extremely good fielding righthander to make a major berth, he has stuck it out with Boston. Dallas expected to dispose of the troublesome Donohue and did when he was not hooked-in the draft, but they had figured on Vache as an element in their outfield.

Most Class A clubs are wrecked over winter because of non-success on the field. An exception was the San Antonio club of two years back which with weak pitching had Boone, Todt, Simon and other hard hitting stars. They did not own title to them and could not hold them, or the nucleus would probably have been formed for a big winner.

It is wisdom of a sort to keep a combination together. But it fails if a player has a chance to go up that is denied him and he learns about it. Thereafter, his usefulness is finished.

Magnolias Nose Out Lions, 3 to 1

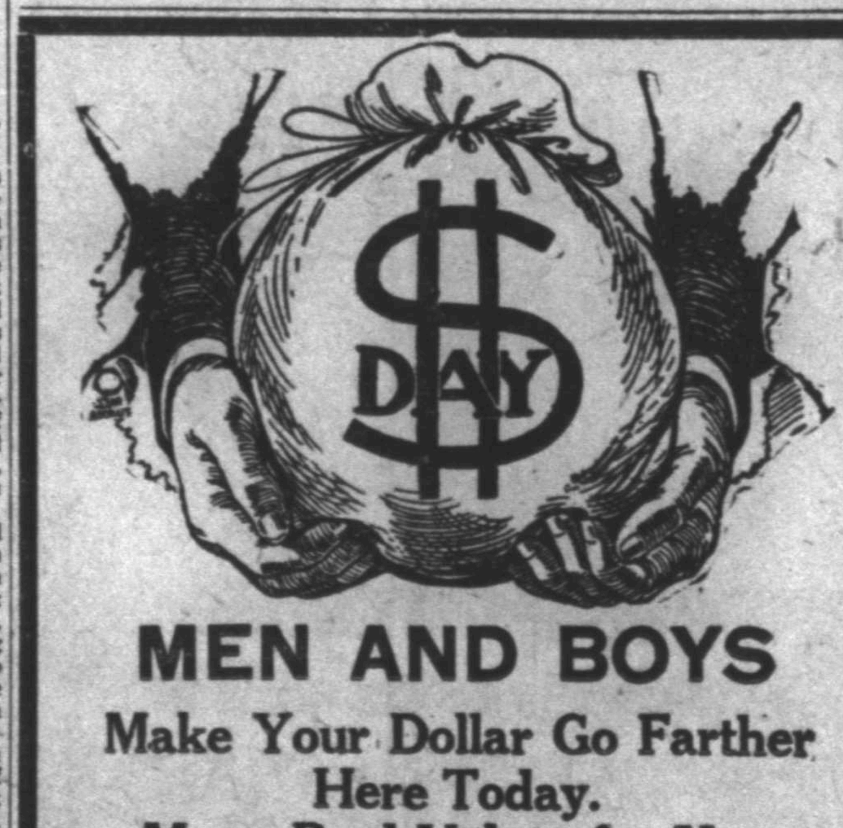

ELECTRA, July 29.—The Magnolia club went into first place here today in the Twilight league by defeating the Lions club, 3 to 1. Fhanafelt held the Magnolia club to but two hits, an infield hit by Croy, and a single by Farmer Ray, but five errors behind him cost him the game.

Humbt, made a nice catch for the Lions club in the third inning, when he raced far back to spear Hipps long fly to left field. Feott hit the only extra base hit in the game when he doubled in the fourth inning for the Lions club.

More Truth Than Poetry

PERPETUAL MOTION

There was a man drove up and down
And to and fro throughout the town.

His eager optics without rest
Gazed north and south and east and west,

Sometimes anear, sometimes afar,
To seek a place to park his car.

When he would stop and start to back,
Policemen shouted, "Move on, Jack."

Commissionaires in front of stores
Would wave him sternly from their doors.

If he espied an open space
A taxi beat him to the place.

On vacant lots he sought to pause
But always futilely, because

Tall watchmen waved long clubs n the air
And said to him, "Get out of there!"

So with a weight of uncontent—
On on, and on, and on he went,

Confronted with a traffic cop
Whenever he essayed to stop.

You'll find this fellow every day
Continuing on his sad way,

From early dawn till deepest dark,
For still he's found no place to park!

NINTH EPISODE "APPRECIATION"

Twilight Play-Off May Prove Series Of Mound Battles

The play-off series between Texhomas and Security Nationals for the Twilight league championship next week should prove a battle of pitchers, close followers of the league aver.

O'Dell McDuffy, who defeated American Refiners in the play-off game for the first half title probably will draw the opening assignment for Texhoma.

Opinion is that Oklahoma Lee Courtney, veteran Security hurler, will face McDuffy. If both pitchers are in form the game should be close and the score low.

Choc Thompson, in case these selections for the first game are correct, will oppose Gabe Harris of the Bankers in the second tilt. Harris is one o fthe toughest pitchers in North Texas semi-pro and amateur ranks to beat.

There were rumors for a period a week or so back that Texhoma is planning on sending a dark horse to the mound in one of the games.

BUFFS 9; STEERS 7.

HOUSTON, July 29.—After submitting to a sereve beating by the Buff batters in the first three innings here today, Curley Brown pitched great baseball, but the nine run lead which the Buffs had acquired was enough to give the Houston club a 9 to 7 victory. Carlisle Littlejohn pitched well in a relief role after the Steers had driven Benge and Barnes off the mound in the sixth. Miller and Goff hit home runs.

Wheeler Quits Spudder Club

Rip Wheeler, Spudder right handed pitcher, quit the club Wednesday, returned to Wichcita Falls, packed up his duffel bag and departed for his Kentucky home.

Temperament—that was the reason given by Spudder officials for Wheeler's departure. Couldn't get along with Manager Tanner, was Wheeler's version.

Wheeler is retained by the Spudders on the suspended list.

Richards, Williams, Holman, Anderson Win at Seabright

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., R. Norris Williams, II, of Philadelphia, Cranston Holman of Leland Stanford university and James O. Anderson of Australia, are the semi-finalists in the Seabright bowl invitation tennis tournament by virtue of their third-round victories on the grass courts of the Seabright lawn tennis and cricket club today.

Richards eliminated Gerald Patterson, runner-up for the Australian singles title, 6-3, 6-2. Williams defeated J. B. Hawkes, Australian left hander and number three man on the antipodes Davis cup team, 7-5, 6-3. Holman, only 18 years old, eliminated Dr. George King of New York, 6-4, 6-2. Dr. King is the man who yesterday scored the most sensational upset in the tournament by defeating William M. Johnston, number three man on the national ranking list. Anderson the lone Australian threat left in the competition and the singles champion of the island continent, defeated Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., 6-3, 6-3.

Helen Wills, national champion, won her way into the semi-finals for women by defeating Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Mrs. Molla B. Mallory won her third round match, defeating Miss Molly D. Thayer of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-1. The semi-finalists in the other half of the bracket are Miss Mary K. BOSTON, July 29.—(AP)—Cleveland hit Ehmke freely in the third and fifth innings today and took the second game of their series with Boston 10 to 5. Miller was effective with a sharp southpaw curve and his hitting was a material help in the visitors scoring game. Catches by Jamieson, Speaker and Flagstead featured an otherwise tame game. Score:

Danger Signals Of Indigestion

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "let-down" in tone and vigor on account of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tells us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, un-refreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Ferraline, Nature's great stomach treatment that has given relief to thousands. Ferraline immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including your stomach, liver and bowels. Ferraline makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Ferraline today at any drug store. Ferraline is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the owners have instructed every druggist to refund the purchase price, One Dollar, if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous. Get Ferraline today from your druggist. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga., —(Adv.)
