Education board to sell Disney stock

State board votes 8-4 in favor of divestiture

By Kathy Walt
Hearst News Service

AUSTIN — The State Board of Education voted 8-4 Friday to stake out a moral high ground and sell off $43 million of Walt Disney Co. stock in protest over violent and sexually explicit movies and recordings made by Disney subsidiaries.

The vote followed more than a year of pressure from the conservative American Family Association to get the board to divest its Disney stock, initially on the basis of obscene lyrics on record albums produced by Disney subsidiaries. Later, complaints were raised over the violence, sex and drug use depicted in some films produced by Disney-owned Miramax Films.

But the AFA also has been involved in a national boycott of Disney over its internal policies to grant health benefits to domestic partners of gay and lesbian employees.

"I personally believe that a vote to divest is political hypocrisy," said board member Alma Allen of Houston, a public schools administrator and one of four Democrats voting against the measure. "We have other (morally questionable) stocks that we've invested in.

"So if we're going to be pure and clean and devoid of sin," she added, "then let's totally divest and get out of the investment business all together and just go with (certificates of deposit)."

Other holdings by the $17.6 billion Permanent School Fund are Harrah's Entertainment Inc., a casino operator, Anheuser-Busch Companies Inc. and Asahi Breweries Ltd.

Fliers to be tried

RALEIGH, N.C. — A general ordered two Marine jet crewmen tried for manslaughter Friday for slicing through a ski gondola cable in the Italian Alps and sending 20 people to their death. Accepting the recommendation of a military judge, Lt. Gen. Peter Pace, commander of Marine Corps Forces Atlantic, said there is enough evidence for a court-martial for Capt. Richard J. Ashby, the pilot, and Capt. Joseph P. Schweitzer, the navigator.

Simpson appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's lawyers are appealing his $33.5 million wrongful-death judgment, arguing the five-month civil trial was "fundamentally tainted" by erroneous rulings on evidence. Notably, the appeal said, the jury was swayed by evidence designed to show Simpson was "a bad person" who had the propensity to commit murder.

Attorneys Dan Leonard and Robert Baker contend the award stemming from the slayings of Simpson's ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman was "excessive and the clear result of passion and prejudice on the part of the jury."

The appeal said the civil court erred in refusing to allow jurors to hear the criminal trial testimony of police detective Mark Fuhrman, who claimed he found a bloody glove at Simpson's estate hours after the killings.

Dallas diocese to pay $23.4 million to settle priest pedophile case

DALLAS (AP) — Bringing to a close one of the biggest sex scandals ever to hit the Roman Catholic Church, the Diocese of Dallas agreed to pay $23.4 million Friday to nine former altar boys who said they were molested by a priest.

The church had been accused of trying to cover up the allegations against the priest, 53-year-old Rudolph "Rudy" Kos, who is now serving a life sentence in prison. Earlier this week, the Vatican stripped him of his priesthood.

It is one of the largest settlements ever paid by the church in a sexual abuse case.

"For the moment, it brings an end to the very active phase of what took place — the trial, the aftermath and the settlement," Bishop Charles V. Grahmann said. "But a lot of healing has to take place, a lot of reconciliation."

The bishop also apologized for Kos' behavior and for the way the diocese handled the allegations.

Eight of the former altar boys were among 11 victims who won $119.6 million in a lawsuit a year ago in the biggest verdict ever against a diocese. A ninth former altar boy also shared in Friday's settlement.

The eight settled for less than the full judgment for fear the diocese would file for bankruptcy before paying out any money, their lawyers said. The diocese previously settled

Farmers in 7 counties eligible for federal aid

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

West Texas family farms smitten by the drought are eligible for federal low-interest emergency loans, U.S. Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock announced this week.

That came about after Dan Glickman, secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, designated Glasscock County "a primary disaster" area.

And because the drought knows no boundaries, six adjoining counties were deemed contiguous disaster counties: Howard, Martin, Midland, Reagan, Sterling, and Upton.

"It's the driest I've seen it for a time," said Glasscock County Judge Wilburn Bednar, who was instrumental in getting drought-disaster status. "The drought of the '50s was such an extended drought. This is the driest one we've had in the '90s."

Bednar, who also farms, and John Kinnibrugh, USDA's Farm Service Agency director for Glasscock County, applied for the USDA drought-disaster designation, which

Lubbock irks officials by leaving area out of transportation summit

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Those who are active in upgrading the transportation infrastructure through Midland and Odessa are bristling at a snub by Lubbock officials, who did not send an invitation to a recent transportation summit.

The Lubbock Metropolitan Planning Organization called a "Port to Plains Summit" meeting to discuss methods to seek newly available federal dollars for transportation planning, officials with Motran Alliance said.

The Lubbock group is pushing its preferred route, expanding U.S. 87 south from the Interstate 27 termination in Lubbock — taking this route through Big Spring and San Angelo and down to Interstate 10 and to the border at Del Rio, Eagle Pass or Laredo.

Motran's proposed route would link I-27 by an expanded highway system to the La Entrada al Pacifico trade corridor, joining West Texas and all points north to Mexico and to the Pacific Ocean port of Topolobampo.

Firefighters combat blaze by Fort Davis

By Rick López
Staff Writer

FORT DAVIS — An army of Texas Forest Service personnel and other authorities continued its battle against a fire that threatened 1,300 acres of West Texas rangeland Friday.

Since Wednesday, a brigade of firefighters executed plans to extinguish fires in the Arabella Ranch and atop Black Mountain in Jeff Davis County. Tactics included manual fire breaks and aerial water drops.

Up to 100 people were involved in Friday's operation.

The Arabella fire consumed more than 1,100 acres of land, while the Black Mountain fire consumed about 200, said Jo Moss with the Texas Department of Public Safety's Division of Emergency Management.

Both fires were sparked Wednesday afternoon and are about seven miles away from each other, Ms. Moss said. The fires are located about five miles northeast of Fort Davis and can be seen from Texas Highway 118.

On Thursday, DPS officials formed the Multi-Agency Task Force that included area firefighters, the National Guard and per-

Police try to stem violence in Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Trying to quell ethnic violence that left nine bodies in the streets, riot police took up positions around mosques Friday while gangs of youths set fires, smashed windows and blocked roads.

Three days after the death of the country's most prominent political prisoner, Moshood Abiola — a southern ethnic Yoruba — waves of rioting and violence appear to be pitting Yoruba against Nigeria's northern Hausa Muslims.

For the third straight day Friday, youths rioted in the streets in parts of Nigeria's commercial capital, Lagos. That violence had ended by late afternoon, but streets in some neighborhoods remained tense and watched over by scores of police and soldiers. Officers in helmets and flak jackets milled around mosques.

Violence between Hausas and the predominately Christian Yorubas also was tearing at the southwestern city of Ibadan, long an enclave of anti-government sentiment.

Nigerian authorities fear the political violence is being inflamed by Hausa-Yoruba enmity. That antagonism was born after Nigeria's 1960 independence from Britain, when northerners quickly took control of the country. They have held power ever since, except for a period of about four years when southerners were in control.

These days, Nigeria's pro-democracy movement is largely led by southerners, particularly Yorubas.

While Nigeria is a confused grid of more than 250 ethnic groups, it is dominated by Hausas and Fulanis in the north, Yorubas in the southwest, and Ibos in the southeast.

Religious differences overlay the ethnic divisions, with Muslims making up the majority in the north and Christians — along with a strong current of traditional Nigerian religions — dominating the south.

But the divisions are not always aligned neatly. Abiola, for example, was a Muslim as well as a Yoruba. He died Tuesday, still in custody four years after his arrest.

His freedom, though, had been widely hinted at in the four weeks since the sudden death of Gen. Sani Abacha, who had brutally ruled Nigeria for the past five years.

Life in Nigeria became increasingly difficult during Abacha's dictatorship; the economy and infrastructure crumbled under the weight of neglect and corruption.

The death of Abiola — the apparent winner of annulled presidential elections in 1993 — has infuriated his supporters, who say the military, dominated by Hausa and Fulani northerners, is to blame.

The junta says he died of a heart attack, but some of Abiola's relatives say he was killed by the military even as they prepared to set him free.

The government has completed an autopsy, but hasn't released the results. A second, independent autopsy to be conducted by a team of foreign pathologists, was scheduled for Saturday at the earliest, according to Abiola family members who spoke on condition of anonymity.

An unidentified man in a crowd shouts near the home of former Nigerian leader and political prisoner Moshood Abiola in Lagos, Nigeria, Friday. For the third straight day, outraged people stormed through the streets in parts of Lagos, setting fires, smashing windows and blocking roads.

Trying to stave off further ethnic attacks, riot police and paramilitary troops were protecting Muslim mosques in Lagos, some of which have been targeted by the predominantly Christian Yorubas.

While a feared wave of attacks during Friday afternoon Muslim prayers did not occur, authorities believed violence was still possible.

Abac·· 's successor, Gen. Abdulsalam Abubakar, has released a group of political prisoners and promised to free the rest. He also has vowed — albeit va uely — to return the country to civilian rule.

.biola's death has touched off three days of violence. More than 400 people have been arrested since Tu day night, when violence first broke out in Lagos. Police say at least 55 people have been killed.

Many of the victims were Hausas and Fulanis, said junta commander Col. Hamed Ali.

Unemployment is rampant, roads are a mess and buying gasoline means waiting in line for up to 12 hours.

Scotland Yard: Police foil bombing attack in London

LONDON (AP) — Police tracking IRA splinter groups arrested three men with explosives they were "within minutes" of setting off in London, and rounded up seven other suspects in the city and in Ireland, Scotland Yard said.

While Scotland Yard did not reveal an intended target, it said at least one of the men apparently had been posing as a student and was arrested in central London near University College, part of London University.

A woman was arrested later near Oxford Street, one of the capital's busiest shopping districts, and police picked up a fourth man and a woman about a mile from there, near London's new British Library. Four other arrests were made in Ireland.

The head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch, John Grieve, said the arrests came during an investigation of "dissident criminal Irish republican terrorist groups."

Police have warned that a real threat remains to the Northern Ireland peace agreement from splinter groups that do not recognize the cease-fires agreed to by the province's major paramilitary groups.

A peace accord was signed in April, but tensions have soared in the past week as hard-line Protestants have pushed for the right to parade through a Catholic neighborhood in Portdown, Northern Ireland. Authorities have barred the marchers, and the standoff has exploded into five nights of street violence.

The arrests were part of a British-Irish operation against militants opposed to the peace deal, according to Scotland Yard.

The three men were carrying "a number of ready-made explosive devices," according to a police spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity. The type of explosive wasn't disclosed.

"We believe these terrorist devices were intended to be used in London within minutes," Grieve said.

At least one of three men was said to be posing as a student. The other two were arrested elsewhere, reportedly near other university buildings south of the Thames river.

While the arrests were being made, areas around university buildings were sealed off and nearby underground rail stations were cleared.

All six people detained in London by the Anti-terrorist Squad were taken to a London police station for questioning.

The London arrests followed raids Friday by police in Dublin, Wexford, and Dundalk, Ireland.

In Dundalk, 5 miles south of the Northern Ireland border, police uncovered two shotguns, bomb components and false documents in an apartment and arrested a man.

A woman and another man were picked up in Dublin. A fourth arrest was made in Wexford.

The Irish police operation has been under way for months. Information uncovered in the Dundalk and Dublin raids prompted Irish police to contact their London counterparts.

Irish Republican Army members opposed to the outlawed group's July 1997 truce have broken away to form a rival command nicknamed "RIRA," or Real IRA. Most of the dissidents come from the Irish Republic.

POLICE REPORTS

Aggravated robbery

Midland police are looking for a man wanted in connection with a Friday morning robbery at Town and Country Convenience Store, 4508 N. Big Spring St.

The hold-up occurred at 1 a.m. when a man walked into the store and pointed at the clerk what appeared to be a chrome-plated revolver, police said.

He took money from the register and ran away. The clerk was not injured.

The clerk described him as a young black man, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall and 120 pounds. The clerk told police he had a speech problem.

Police said store employees did not know how much was taken.

Anyone with information on this robbery is asked to call the Midland Police Department at 685-7108.

PRIEST: Complaints surfaced in '92

(From 1A)

with the three other plaintiffs for a total of $7.5 million.

Nineteen-year-old Nathan Nichols, one of the alleged victims, said he was happier than he has been in more than six years.

"I believe it's a day of relief for everybody," he said. "Finding out that the bishop has apologized for the wrongdoing helps us get on with our lives."

He added: "The pain will never go away. The dollar amount can't help that. The only thing that can is seeing that the diocese is changing."

As part of the settlement in Dallas, the diocese agreed to take steps to reduce the risk of sex abuse in the church, including the establishment of review boards to handle assignment of clergy and complaints, and background checks of employees and volunteers.

Complaints about Kos' behavior first surfaced in 1992. Four victims told police they were molested about 1,350 times over five years. The parents of the victims claimed the church ignored the allegations and tried to sweep them under the rug.

Kos had denied the allegations but was convicted of aggravated sexual assault last year during a criminal trial and sentenced to prison.

After the civil verdict, the diocese said it could not pay the judgment, claiming it had only about $6 million in total assets.

Under the settlement, the diocese will pay $7.25 million, and insurance companies will pay the rest, the bishop said.

FIRE: Families not evacuated

(From 1A)

sonnel with the Texas Forest Service, Ms. Moss said.

The Northern Rockies Incident Management Team of Montana carried out expert tactics that spared 47 homes from the blazes' wrath this week, she said. Air tankers, helicopters and engine strike teams battled flames that were 10 feet tall and higher.

"It's growing incredibly fast, like the fires you see in Florida," Ms. Moss said Friday. She said that the scorched, tall weeds served as a tinderbox for the growing blaze. Neither of the two fires were contained as of Friday afternoon, she said.

"They could be doing this all weekend long before they can even contain it. Each time they're done putting out a small area, another fire starts somewhere else," she said.

Forest Service officials still aren't sure how the fires started, but they suspect they were caused by lightning.

"Right now, we're just trying to put it out. That's our main concern," Ms. Moss said.

The emergency crew faces several serious obstacles that delay their extinguishing efforts.

For one, the water supply in West Texas is extremely limited, she said. During the day, the tankers and helicopters drain water from ponds and stock pools. DPS trucks spend the entire night hauling thousands of gallons of water from whatever nearby sources exist, Ms. Moss said.

Also, the flames are in the mountains' rugged terrain.

That leaves firefighters with only one method of operation that they can rely on: aerial water drops. These maneuvers are effective, but time-consuming, Ms. Moss said.

However, there was an advantage to the fires' locations. The smoke won't reach the bottom of the mountain, where many of the ranch houses are located. As a result, authorities did not have to evacuate families from their homes, Ms. Moss said.

> 'They could be doing this all weekend long before they can even contain it. Each time they're done putting out a small area, another fire starts somewhere else.'
> — Jo Moss, with the Texas Department of Public Safety's Division of Emergency Management

Since early May, West Texas has lost more than 77,000 acres of arid ranch land to range fires, DPS officials said.

On May 5, an out-of-control trash burn sparked a blaze atop the Chinati Mountains in Presidio County. Over a two-week period, the blaze consumed 70,000 acres of property.

Between June 18 and 22, firefighters extinguished a 600-acre blaze that threatened 221 structures on Paradise Ranch in Jeff Davis County.

This week, a fire in Mitchell County charred 550 acres of land and threatened three houses and a dozen other structures. Three helicopters and engines from three volunteer fire departments extinguished the blaze by Wednesday evening.

Colorado City, the county seat of Mitchell County, is about 100 miles northeast of Midland.

DIVEST: Others said morality not good basis for investments on vacation, directed investment managers for the school fund to sell the Disney stock "as expeditiously as possible," said Debbie Graves Ratcliffe, spokeswoman for the Texas Education Agency.

(From 1A)

Disney spokeswoman Claudia Peters noted that Texas is the first state fund to divest its stock.

"Our company has been achieving 20 percent compound annual growth in earnings per share over the past several years," she said. "The Walt Disney Company produces more family entertainment than any other company in the world."

She added that movies for mature audiences are produced by subsidiaries that do not carry the Disney name and adhere to the Motion Picture Association of America rating system.

Grace Shore of Longview, who was appointed to the board last November by Bush, was one of eight Republicans to vote for dumping Disney. She said it makes financial sense to sell the stock.

"I've always been taught to buy low and sell high," she said.

"It's not like we're going to take the money we make from selling Disney and throw it in a hole. Maybe it's time to take the profit and run."

Voting against the measure were Allen and fellow Democrats Joe Bernal of San Antonio, Will Davis of Austin and Rosie Sorrells of Dallas. Two other Democrats abstained; Rene Nunez of El Paso and Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi both are locked in tough re-election battles with social conservatives. Republican member Monte Hasie of Lubbock was absent.

"There are a lot of issues that people could get uptight about, but when you start trying to draw parameters ... then you start making moral judgments, social judgments, other judgments that some of us will support and some of us will criticize," said Davis, who had tried to stall the issue in committee earlier in the week.

Sorrells said she was "totally against singling out Disney" and that if the board did not want to invest in companies doing "inappropriate things," the board needed to re-examine all its investments.

Berlanga said that while she thinks parents need to take a stand against allowing children to view "movies like those where Arnold Schwarzenegger appears, where there's so much violence," it would be inappropriate to make investment decisions based on moral viewpoints. She added that her decision to abstain from voting would give managers the flexibility to make such decisions at the appropriate time.

Even some of the Republicans who voted in favor of divestiture had concerns about the impact of their decision.

"In the future will there be any policies or something written as a guide over issues like this?" asked GOP member Geraldine "Tincy" Miller of Dallas. "Or are we just going to react as we go down the road?

"I understand the concern and I'm very sympathetic, but I'm also listening and hearing a lot of other people say we have a lot of other companies that are in the entertainment business that do things that maybe we don't approve of."

She added that "in the future I'm concerned this could be a domino effect on our investments and what impact that would have on the return on our investments for the children."

Board Chairman Jack Christie of Houston said he expects the Texas Legislature next session to provide guidelines on appropriate investments of tax dollars.

Others voting in favor of divesting included David Bradley of Beaumont, Richard Neill of Fort Worth, Robert Offutt of San Antonio, Randy Stevenson of Bullard and Richard Watson of Gorman.

Family remembers man killed in standoff with Odessa police

By Rick López
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A long road trip from Houston to Odessa brought painful memories for Janet Redd and her best friend, Doris Webster.

Ms. Webster's emotions were already stirred up after enduring a long flight from Kenai, Alaska, to Texas. Meantime, Ms. Redd had to wake up early to drive from Cedar Park to pick up her friend at the Houston International Airport.

And the worst was yet to come.

On Wednesday, the two women visited the Odessa grave where Randy Lynn Redd, Ms. Redd's brother, was buried exactly one year ago.

Redd was 37 years old when he was shot and killed after a 12-hour standoff with Odessa police.

"I still can't believe it happened. It's like my brother's on a long vacation somewhere and he'll be knocking at the door at anytime," Ms. Redd said. "We miss laughing and talking to him."

The standoff began at about 10:30 a.m. July 8, 1997. Earlier that day Redd refused to take his anti-depressants and his mother called a caseworker with Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR.

Two unfamiliar caseworkers and two police officers finally arrived, but Redd refused to let them in the house. Redd hid from police and avoided making contact with a SWAT negotiator.

Redd left his house at 11 p.m.

Redd, who was 6 feet, 2 inches tall and 230 pounds, was unfazed by a cloud of pepper spray and swung at officers with a threaded pipe. They shot and killed him in self-defense, police said.

The outcome was that the Redd family lost a loved one and the two officers who killed Redd were under scrutiny.

Ms. Redd said her older brother stopped taking his medication because it hurt his liver. He'd been taking anti-depressants since he was a teen-ager, she said.

"Randy had a lot of reasons to be sad. He became the man of the house at the age of 7 ... because our father left us," Ms. Redd said. "So he didn't have a father to look up to, but he still had to take care of me and my brother, Joe. He felt like he never did a good job."

Though her brother managed to work several jobs in the oil field and attend Odessa High School, his depression became the biggest obstacle in his daily life. Eventually, his home at 411 E. 11th St. was the only place where he felt at ease.

"I think he was trapped in his own sad world, like people who are uncomfortable with their own skin," Ms. Redd said. "I think God puts people like Randy in this world because there is something to learn from them."

Two months later, a special grand jury met to investigate the shooting. They heard testimony from 13 witnesses — including experts in pathology, deadly force and weapons — and did not indict the officers.

Ms. Redd said that she and her family are hopeful for some closure. They filed a lawsuit against the Police Department and city of Odessa. The civil trial is scheduled for Sept. 11 at the Midland County Courthouse.

OPD spokesman Sgt. Chuck Moad said the department's attorney was instructed not to comment on the shooting because litigation is still pending.

DROUGHT: In Glasscock County, even irrigated cotton struggling

(From 1A)

Gov. George Bush requested. The designation permits farmers to apply for USDA loans through USDA Farm Services Agency offices in each of those counties.

The drought goes well beyond the Midland area into the High Plains of Texas.

"It's doom and gloom everywhere except (where irrigation is used)," said Myrl Mitchell, a Martin County cotton farmer and Lenorah ginner who this week returned from a Plains Cotton Growers meeting in Lubbock.

Except for isolated areas, dryland cotton is bare in much of West Texas.

"A third of July is gone, and we haven't had any rain," Mitchell said.

And there is a chance that a record dry spell may be in progress.

"The price of cattle is down," Mitchell said. "The price of oil is down. The price of cotton is coming up a little bit. But it doesn't matter if it is a dollar a pound if you don't have any. It's serious. On the plains of Texas with cattle, oil and row crops being what it is, I think it is way more serious, with our (economic) input being what it is today, than it was in the 1950s."

It was during the seven-year drought of the 1950s when Midland officially recorded its record-low rainfall: 4.24 inches in 1951.

The normal rainfall, based on a 30-year average at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport, is almost 15 inches.

The rainfall so far this year is 1.48 inches, which is second only to the 1.31 inches recorded from January-through-June in 1933 during the Dust Bowl years of the Great Depression.

In 1951, the January-through-June rainfall was 1.97 inches.

Economically, the current drought is "potentially a lot worse because people's production costs are so much higher in relation to the price," according to San Angelo author Elmer Kelton. "A lot of farm prices today aren't much better than they were in the '50s. Most of those things (tractors and pickups) are 10 times higher."

Kelton, who extensively reported on agriculture's good and hard times over the decades following World War II, said that West Texas is in a three-year drought, "punctuated in the center with a little, unusual amount of rainfall" — 17.10 inches in 1997 in Midland.

Below-average rainfall was recorded in previous years: 8.84 inches in 1996, 10.70 inches in 1995, and 10.69 inches in 1994.

"This year has all the earmarks of being real bad," Kelton said. "People economically have not recovered from 1996. And now this '98 thing is hitting them in the head — farmers and ranchers. The cattle business hasn't been very good. A lot of money is being lost on cattle.

"The economic fallout from this drought is probably far worse than it would have been for the same amount of time in the '50s, mainly because the costs are so high and the income is so sparse."

That fallout placed farmers in Glasscock County in desperate situations.

"We are terribly dry here. We're just not making a crop," said Joyce Hoelscher, who farms with her husband, Clifford, in St. Lawrence, south of Garden City. "We've got cottonseed in the ground that never germinated (on dryland acreage). And it's getting too late for (milo) even if it would rain now."

Even irrigated cotton is Glasscock County is not faring well because of the declining water table.

To survive the drought, Mrs. Hoelscher said that her husband and neighboring farmers have hauled their cotton strippers to South Texas to harvest the fields there.

"You've got to make money to make a stripper payment some kind of way," Mrs. Hoelscher said. She said that farmers are searching for farm-keeping jobs to help make up for their crop losses.

Charlie Green, a retired Texas Agricultural Extension Service agent, has lived in Midland since 1949. He said that the main difference between the drought of the 1950s and the current drought is that "we haven't had the soil blowing as bad as we did in (the '50s).

"As far as the economic effect, I think this thing could get serious a lot quicker than the '50s (during) the seven bad years," Green said. "Some people lost nearly everything they had then.

The drought's negative impact on agriculture may "affect every person living in this country," Green said. "Food prices will go up. Jobs maybe will be lost (because of) zero crops in much of the land. Nobody is immune to the final effect, just like the oil business when it's having hard times ... We're getting a double whammy now ... on account of the drought."

Two Big Spring residents arrested for allegedly using counterfeit money

By Rick López
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Police arrested two people Friday who allegedly used counterfeit money in the Big Spring area over the last few weeks, authorities said.

Efrain Mier, 27, and Geneva Oliveras, 23, were arrested at the house they share in the 900 block of Scurry Road, said Sgt. Roger Sweatt, spokesman for the Big Spring Police Department.

They were taken to the Howard County jail on felony forgery charges. They are each being held on a $30,000 bond set by Municipal Judge Gary Tabor.

In late June, the Police Department received calls from local banks that found fake $10 bills in overnight bank deposits made by local merchants, Sweatt said.

Throughout their investigation, which included assistance from the U.S. Treasury Department, police recovered more than 20 counterfeit bills from local convenience stores and examined 15 other bills at several bank locations, Sweatt said.

The counterfeit bills' discrepancies include having a smoother texture, as if typing paper was used in their duplication, Sweatt said.

"They were smeared with dirt and stomped on ... so they can look like normal bills," Sweatt said. "They looked good, but once you feel them you notice that they're not real. The bank tellers who helped us were able to pick them out quickly."

The counterfeit bills also had another obvious mistake: the letter inside the Federal Reserve Bank seal (located left of Alexander Hamilton's face) and the letter before the serial number did not match, Sweatt said.

Most of the fake bills' smaller printing details were also damaged during the duplication, he said.

Counterfeiters were able to use fake bills because they would walk into a crowded store that had one clerk at the register. As a result, the clerk would not have time to closely inspect the money, Sweatt said.

They would usually buy something worth $1 or $2 so they could get change in return and make a total profit, he said.

Authorities said that the fake bills were also used in Colorado City and Mitchell County, which is about 40 miles northeast of Big Spring.

As of Friday morning, police were still recovering more fake bills, Sweatt said.

"Some ladies went to pay for gas and tried using these bills," he said. "They were innocent, but they probably got it from someone else as change."

Though Big Spring loses approximately $20,000 to check and other forgeries, counterfeit currency scams are far less usual, he said.

"Once in a while, we'll see these kind of cases, but they usually involve just a few bills," Sweatt said. "But there's no telling how many of these are out there."

The case is still under investigation, he said. It could also be connected to other forgeries reported in Dallas and Lubbock.

SUMMIT: Officials urging citizens to ask their representatives to support Motran route

(From 1A)

"Lubbock is still trying to resurrect that (I-27 expansion)," said Charles R. Perry, Motran chairman.

Lubbock officials originally declined to participate in the now-defunct effort to extend I-27, which ended several years ago when the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) determined that no one route south of Lubbock supported the traffic necessary to warrant the expansion of an interstate highway, Perry said.

TxDOT instead decided to upgrade all three proposed routes south of that city, he said.

Lubbock attempted to resurrect this discussion and did not invite the Permian Basin's two largest cities to the transportation summit.

"We were pretty conspicuous by our absence," Perry said.

Texas Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Lubbock) took the leaders of the conference to task for failing to include the other metropolitan statistical area (MSA) in the summit.

The Amarillo Globe News quoted Bivins as saying "I am disturbed that Midland and Odessa are not on the map. The three principle backbone areas of West Texas are Midland-Odessa, Lubbock and Amarillo. And I think for any West Texas coalition, for whatever purpose, to get traction — to have a solid footing — you've got to have all three of those metropolitan areas involved."

Motran officials are urging area citizens to contact their elected representatives and request support for the Motran route.

"We are extremely disappointed in Lubbock taking unilateral action," Perry said.

Perry recently was awarded the TxDOT Road Hand award for his efforts in forging the Midland/Odessa alliance and his work in promoting the La Entrada route.

"We have had numerous meetings with the leadership of Lubbock in which we urged all of the cities in West Texas to work together in developing our highway systems," Perry said.

"To date, Lubbock has shown little interest in working with Midland/Odessa and if I read this meeting right, Lubbock's intent is to exclude us in whatever they might do," he said.

Motran has accepted the current TxDOT plan of improving all three routes south from Lubbock, because it dovetails with Motran efforts to extend this highway system south to Mexico through Presidio.

British prime minister offers to arrange meeting in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — With a tense and violent week sliding into a potentially explosive weekend, Prime Minister Tony Blair offered Friday to arrange meetings between Protestants who want to march through a Catholic neighborhood and Catholic residents who oppose it.

Blair's chief of staff, Jonathan Powell, offered to hold "indirect contact talks" beginning this morning between members of the Orange Order, who are attempting to defy a government ban on a Protestant march on Garvaghy Road in Portadown, and representatives of Catholic residents who want the ban upheld.

Both the Orange Order, Northern Ireland's largest Protestant brotherhood, and Catholic residents accepted Blair's offer.

The Protestant group previously had refused to have any direct contact with the Catholics, insisting it has a historic right to march on any public highway.

"It is our objective to deliver the Portadown brethren safely on their return down the Garvaghy Road," the Orange Order said in a statement. "We intend to establish our inalienable rights and freedom to express our culture."

Breandan MacCionnaith, leader of the residents group, said, "We have been down this road before with proximity talks, last year and the year before. For our part we would view this as a small first step toward what we would hope would be face-to-face dialogue with the Orange Order."

In London, meanwhile, the head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch, John Grieve said officials arrested three men Friday evening, minutes before they intended to use explosive devices.

A fourth person, a woman, was arrested later near Oxford Street, one of the capital's busiest shopping districts, police said.

Another man and woman were arrested about a mile away, near London's new British Library, Scotland Yard said.

In Dundalk, Ireland, five miles south of the Northern Ireland border, police uncovered two shotguns, bomb components and false documents in an apartment and arrested a man.

A woman and another man were picked up in Dublin. A fourth arrest was made in Wexford.

In Washington, White House press secretary Mike McCurry said President Clinton is concerned about the violence in Northern Ireland and applauds Blair's action. "We hope that kind of dialogue, if it happens tomorrow, diminishes the violence and encourages people to see that, through talking, they can resolve some of the differences they do have," McCurry said. "That would be an expression of faith in the peace process."

Blair's office said the goal of setting up meetings between the two sides was not only to resolve the current standoff, but to reach an accommodation for future years. The talks were to be held at a secret location, with no media coverage.

Indirect talks were attempted in 1996 and 1997, but both times failed to resolve the conflict over the Garvaghy Road march. In 1996, police and soldiers stopped the march but backed down after four nights of Protestant violence across Northern Ireland. Last year, police clubbed protesters off the road to let the Orangemen through.

Before Blair's initiative was announced Friday, one of the Garvaghy Road residents won a judge's permission to begin legal action intended to force the Portadown Orange Order to comply with the parade ban. A hearing was set for Saturday morning.

Violence spread across Northern Ireland after authorities enforced an order Sunday preventing the Orangemen from following their traditional route through Portadown, 25 miles southwest of Belfast.

Blair insisted Friday the order will continue to be enforced — a determination underscored by army helicopters that swooped into fields and discharged soldiers in riot armor near Drumcree Anglican church, where Protestant marchers have been camped out since Sunday.

Orange leaders said they regretted attacks by their supporters that sent five police officers to hospitals Friday, including four injured by bomb shrapnel. But they also said worse violence may develop.

"People see that peaceful protest isn't getting them anywhere," said Orange Order spokesman David Jones. The 12th of July, this Sunday, is the biggest Protestant holiday, celebrating the defeat of Catholic King James II by King William of Orange at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Hundreds of Orange marches are scheduled Monday, with the vast majority expected to cause no trouble.

From Sunday to early Friday, police had tallied 550 attacks on officers and soldiers, including 15 shooting incidents, as well as 151 arrests, 548 gasoline bomb attacks, 103 attacks on homes and 367 attacks on vehicles.

'We hope that kind of dialogue, if it happens tomorrow, diminishes the violence and encourages people to see that, through talking, they can resolve some of the differences they do have.'

— Mike McCurry, White House press secretary

Authorities charge widow in death of Russian legislator

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian prosecutors have brought murder charges against the widow of a prominent legislator shot dead last week, officials said Friday.

Lev Rokhlin, 51, a former general and an outspoken critic of President Boris Yeltsin, was killed at his country home. His widow, Tamara, 49, confessed to the killing and her fingerprints were on the weapon, police said.

Rokhlin's relatives, opposition leaders and the media have speculated, however, that unidentified assailants threatened Mrs. Rokhlin to make a false confession or they would attack other family members.

Vladimir Solovyov, a senior official with the Prosecutor-General's office in charge of the investigation, said his men were "checking all versions put forward by the media and relatives, including a political killing," the ITAR-Tass news agency reported.

Rokhlin, a career soldier who won nationwide acclaim during the 1994-96 war in Chechnya, was elected to parliament as a member of a pro-government faction, but later broke away and became a fierce opponent of Yeltsin.

Last year, he founded the Movement in Support for the Armed Forces, with the aim of ousting Yeltsin.

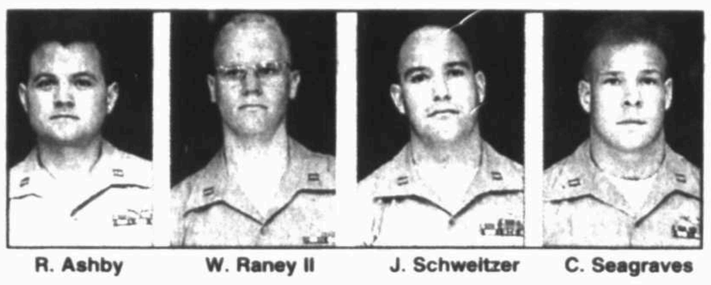
2 Marines to be tried in tragedy that killed 20



R. Ashby — W. Raney II — J. Schweitzer — C. Seagraves

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A general ordered two Marine jet crewmen tried for manslaughter Friday for slicing through a ski gondola cable in the Italian Alps and sending 20 people to their death.

Accepting the recommendation of a military judge, Lt. Gen. Peter Pace, commander of Marine Corps Forces Atlantic, said there is enough evidence for a court-martial for Capt. Richard J. Ashby, the pilot, and Capt. Joseph P. Schweitzer, the navigator.

Ashby and Schweitzer, both 30, are accused of hotdogging through a mountain pass in their EA-6B Prowler in the Feb. 3 accident. They could get up to life in prison.

The accident caused an uproar in Europe and strained relations between Italy and the United States. Italians demanded that the crew be tried in that country and that U.S. landing rights at Italian bases be revoked. The officers' lawyers had argued that the aviators were charged because of political pressure that went as high as the White House.

Pace dismissed charges against the two back-seat officers in the jet, Capts. Chandler P. Seagraves and William L. Raney II. Evidence during a hearing showed they had very limited visibility and no control over the radar-jamming plane.

Under military law, all members of a unit can be held responsible for an accident, and the back seat crewmen are dutybound to speak up if they see the aircraft violating speed, altitude and other mission guidelines.

However, Pace said he will conduct administrative hearings on a charge of dereliction of duty against the commander, executive officer, safety officer and operations officer of the Prowler squadron, which is based at the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point, N.C. If found guilty, the officers could receive a letter of reprimand, forfeiture of pay and restriction to the base.

It wasn't known whether Ashby, of Mission Viejo, Calif., and Schweitzer, of Westbury, N.Y., would be tried together or separately. The proceedings will be at Camp Lejeune, but no date was set.

"The truth is that Capt. Schweitzer and Capt. Ashby are innocent of any criminal misconduct," said Schweitzer's lawyer, David Beck. "We are pleased that at least now the issue of supervisory error and responsibility are being looked at."

Prosecutors have said the crew was "flat hatting" — flying too low and too fast.

At a hearing in June, Beck argued the accident occurred, in part, because supervisors failed to provide adequate charts and route information and Congress didn't appropriate sufficient training funds.

A preliminary Marine investigation recommended that all four crewmen be charged. But military judge Lt. Col. Ronald Rodgers, after hearings at Camp Lejeune, recommended last week that only the front-seat crew be tried, and even then he expressed doubts about the government's case.

Defense attorneys argued before Rodgers that the cable wasn't marked on charts of the area around the Aviano, Italy, air base, where the Prowler was based for missions over Bosnia.

The defense also argued that it wasn't clear what the altitude restrictions for the area even were, because the U.S. minimum altitude was 1,000 feet and the Italian minimum was 2,000 feet.

Evidence showed the plane struck the cable at 370 feet and had been flying below 400 feet for several miles at speeds between about 530 and 630 mph.

The Trento, Italy, prosecutor's office, which plans an indictment hearing on Monday, and the Italian premier's office in Rome had no comment.

Cavalese Mayor Mauro Gilmozzi told Italian state television: "It's good that the United States goes all the way to the bottom of this."

"We're not thirsting after phony justice," he said. "We only want justice."

Senate votes to reiterate U.S. policy on Taiwan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate underscored the U.S. commitment to Taiwan in a 92-0 vote Friday that Republicans called a "powerful signal" repudiating President Clinton's comments during his China trip.

Democrats said the resolution, repeating a U.S. pledge to help Taiwan "maintain a sufficient self-defense capability," merely reaffirms existing law.

"Our position has been the same before and after the president's trip to China," Senate Democratic leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota said in explaining why Democrats stampeded to support what had originated as a largely GOP slap at Clinton.

During his recent China tour, Clinton publicly stated Washington's opposition to Taiwanese independence, a separate Taiwan government and the island nation's bid to join the United Nations. That brought sharp criticism from Taiwanese leaders, who fear such a public pledge could diminish Taiwan's efforts for more world recognition, and from congressional conservatives.

Clinton also talked about the peaceful "unification" of Taiwan with the Chinese mainland, using a word that does not appear in any U.S. doctrine nor is it part of the U.S. "one China" policy.

Conservatives have argued that Clinton altered the U.S. position on the relationship between the mainland and Taiwan by moving closer to China's position on unification.

The resolution, by Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and Sen. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., was approved without debate. Lott billed it as needed to "repair the damage that has been done" by Clinton's remarks.

"Passage of this resolution sends a powerful signal that the Senate is not accepting President Clinton's new policy," Lott said. "It's a strong statement coming so soon after his return to the United States."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Mike McCurry disputed Lott's characterization.

"First and foremost, understand that the majority leader is wrong when he discusses a new policy," McCurry said. "There is not any new policy. There was simply a reiteration of a policy that presumably Senator Lott abides by."

Asked what the United States would do if China attacked Taiwan, McCurry said nothing has changed since the 1979 Taiwan Relations Act, which commits the United States to provide "defense articles and ... services" to help Taiwan provide for its own self-defense — but without spelling out the nature of such assistance.

The resolution reiterates terms of that 1979 measure.

It expresses an expectation that "the future of Taiwan will be determined by peaceful means, with the consent of the people of Taiwan" and repeats a U.S. pledge to help Taiwan "maintain a sufficient self-defense capability."

The measure also calls on China to renounce the use of force against Taiwan.

Its supporters said the nonbinding measure does nothing to increase the U.S. commitment to the island's self-defense, leaving any such future decisions up to the president and Congress, as does the 1979 act.

House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, said he would introduce the resolution in the House, saying it was needed to clarify Clinton's "ambiguous comments."

The "one China" policy was coined in 1972 by President Nixon as a way of recognizing the Chinese position that there is only one China, inclusive of Taiwan, while stopping short of official U.S. recognition that Taiwan is part of the People's Republic of China.

Drug costs surge again; wholesale prices continue decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prescription drug costs surged at the wholesale level for a second straight month in June as tranquilizers and other generic drugs continued their rapid rise after five years of moderation.

Most other inflation at the wholesale level was a no-show as falling energy prices offset increases elsewhere.

The Labor Department reported Friday that its Producer Price Index, which measures price pressures before they reach the consumer, declined 0.1 percent.

It was the fourth decline this year and left wholesale prices declining through June at an annual rate of 1.5 percent. Consumer prices have also been well-behaved, rising at an annual rate so far of just 1.5 percent, even better than last year's modest 1.7 percent increase.

"Inflation is low, slow and anemic and is likely to stay that way," said Jerry Jasinowski, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

While some economists worry that the best news on inflation is over, others insist that the Asian economic crisis will mean downward pressure on prices for some time, allowing the Federal Reserve to refrain from boosting interest rates.

The view of Jasinowski and others is that the Asian economic crisis will do the Fed's work of slowing the economy to offset pressures that could arise with unemployment at the lowest levels in nearly three decades.

U.S. manufacturers are seeing export demand fall with many Asian countries in recession. Producers are also facing increased competition from Asian imports which are now cheaper for American consumers because of the currency devaluations.

The biggest wholesale price increase in June occurred in prescription drugs, up 3.2 percent, the second highest monthly gain on record, following a record 10.7 percent May increase.

Critics question FDA safety net after prescription drugs pulled from shelves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost as many prescription drugs were yanked off the U.S. market in the past 10 months as were banned in the entire previous decade, a spate that has critics questioning if the Food and Drug Administration's safety nets are breaking down.

A senator has persuaded Congress' General Accounting Office to investigate whether the FDA — under political pressure to speed approvals — is doing enough to safeguard against risky medicines, or is passing drugs that once would have been held up for further study. One longtime FDA pharmacologist told The Associated Press that she just left the agency in frustration with pressure to skim over safety concerns.

The message was that "one should be approving things, not questioning problems that arise, and ... give the drug company the benefit of the doubt," said Elizabeth Barbehenn, who spent 13 years at FDA monitoring the safety of certain experimental drugs.

"The red flag is up," said consumer advocate Dr. Sidney Wolfe of Public Citizen, who noted experts had questioned some of the five recently banned medicines before they were ever sold. "Whoever is responsible for creating the attitude at the FDA that they have to approve drugs even with serious safety concerns is starting to see the bloody results."

Dr. Michael Friedman, FDA's acting commissioner, vehemently denies that outside pressure influences drug-safety decisions.

"What drives the agency is not political or commercial or any other interest short of scientific," said Friedman. "It is not a responsible position ... to suggest the agency would ... do anything less than our very best to make public health decisions."

The FDA appropriately approved the later-banned drugs because the full scope of side effects did not show up at first — and the system worked by catching them as soon as they did appear, Friedman said.

Five drugs have been pulled off the market since September: The painkiller Duract for causing liver failure, including four deaths and eight liver transplants; the blood pressure drug Posicor, after 400 injuries and 24 deaths when it interacted dangerously with other medications; the diet drugs fenfluramine and Redux for damaging hearts; and the antihistamine Seldane, which interacted lethally with a long list of other drugs.

In the previous 10 years, the FDA had banned just six other drugs.

The FDA performs a complex balancing act: Getting the promising new drugs to desperately ill patients quickly, at the same time hunting the often subtle clues that signal which drugs will cause dangerous side effects.

Drugs are approved based on studies in a few hundred to a few thousand carefully chosen patients. That means rare problems may not emerge until tens of thousands of patients, or sicker ones, take them.

Over the past three years, Congress intensely pressured the once-backlogged FDA to speed approvals. Critics even accused FDA of killing patients by delaying potentially lifesaving therapies.

Attempts to force a drastic speedup ultimately failed. Still, by charging new fees to drug makers, FDA hired hundreds more reviewers and approved a record 92 unique new drugs in 1996 and 1997, up from 50 the previous two years.

Faster approval of lifesaving therapies is good, Wolfe said — but just 20 percent of FDA-approved products are medical breakthroughs.

Most instead are "me-too" drugs like the just-banned Duract and Posicor. Wolfe lists at least 18 similar painkillers and 30 blood-pressure alternatives, questioning why the two were approved last year. The FDA knew that Duract, for example, caused serious liver damage if taken for longer than 10 days.

And there's a separate problem: How to inform doctors of the side effects that come with every drug.

Some 2 million Americans are hospitalized annually for side effects, and 100,000 die, Thomas J. Moore, a researcher at George Washington University, reported this spring.

The FDA has to upgrade safety warnings on more than 20 drugs every month.

But doctors aren't required to report side effects to FDA so it can warn the public, and many don't. The agency has only about 80 employees to monitor more than 3,000 prescription drugs, but is working to improve surveillance, Friedman said.

Nor can the FDA force doctors to heed warnings. Duract, the painkiller, had to be banned because doctors ignored FDA's warning not to prescribe it for longer than 10 days, Friedman said. "If these products were used as prescribed, many of them would still be on the market."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., asked the GAO to quickly investigate how well the FDA handles drug safety and side effects. Republicans, too, are making inquiries, but agree with Friedman that the drug bans actually may mean the system is working by detecting trouble.

There's no easy answer, because every drug approved is ultimately a judgment call, stressed Moore. He wants Congress to establish a scientific panel that judges how the FDA handles drug controversies, much as the National Transportation Safety Board investigates plane crashes.

Injuries caused before baby was tossed in trash, examiner says

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The multiple skull fractures that a newborn boy suffered were not solely caused by his father throwing him in a trash bin, contrary to a prosecutor's suggestion, a medical examiner said Friday.

The baby had a swollen, bleeding scalp and three separate skull fractures, including a depression that possibly was caused by the arm of a chair in the motel room where he was born, Dr. Adrienne Sekula-Perlman, who performed the autopsy, told WDEL-AM.

Amy Grossberg and her boyfriend, Brian Peterson, pleaded guilty this spring to manslaughter in their son's death. He was sentenced to two years in prison Thursday; she to 2 1/2 years.

The pair, both 20, from the wealthy New Jersey suburb of Wyckoff hid Ms. Grossberg's pregnancy and delivered their son secretly at a Newark, Del., Comfort Inn on Nov. 12, 1996.

Ms. Grossberg and Peterson, both 18 at the time, have said they believed the baby was stillborn when Peterson put the newborn in a garbage bag and threw it in a trash container behind the motel.

Prosecutor Peter Letang said Peterson told them he heard the bag smack the trash bin, possibly accounting for the skull fractures given as a cause of death. The baby also died of exposure and lack of oxygen and there was evidence he had been shaken.

Ms. Sekula-Perlman said it would have been impossible for all of the skull fractures to have been caused by being thrown in the trash bin.

She said she believed one depression in the skull was caused by the child either being beaten against an object — such as a chair arm — or one of the parents hitting the baby with something.

"We will never know what happened to the baby," he said Thursday after the parents were sentenced. He also said no forensics specialists were able to tell him with reasonable certainty what had caused the injuries.

Rifle used to kill border agents owned by police, official says

By James Pinkerton
Hearst News Service

HARLINGEN — The assault rifle used to kill two U.S. Border Patrol agents and wound a deputy sheriff Tuesday is owned by the Harlingen Police Department and was issued to the killer's police detective father, authorities confirmed Friday.

"It's just one of those tragic things," a source involved in the investigation said. "You can't get any worse than two Border Patrol agents killed by the son of a police officer."

The source also said Friday that Ernest L. Moore, a 25-year-old heavy equipment operator for a San Benito construction company, was under the influence of alcohol, cocaine and marijuana when he went on a rampage, killing four people and wounding two others. Moore, who was fatally wounded by law officers, was buried Thursday.

On the day of the killings, Cameron County Sheriff Omar Lucio insisted that the two assault rifles Moore used came from the Moore family's private collection and were not police department property. But on Friday he corrected himself, saying he had since learned that one of the weapons was owned by the Harlingen Police Department.

Authorities said Moore was carrying a semiautomatic MAK-90, a Chinese version of an AK-47 assault rifle, when he walked into a Rio Hondo home before dawn Tuesday to abduct his ex-girlfriend. She escaped unharmed, but he killed two other women who lived there and critically wounded a man.

The weapon used was the personal property of Moore's father, Harlingen Police Detective R.D. Moore. That type of gun has been banned from importation into this country since 1994, but weapons already in the United States can legally be bought and sold. Authorities said they believe Detective Moore bought his gun legally.

After killing Margarita Flores, 53, and her daughter, Delia Morin, 31, and wounding Flores' 22-year-old son, Dan Morin, in Rio Hondo, Ernest Moore sped to his father's home in San Benito. He took an AR-15 semiautomatic assault rifle — a civilian version of the military's fully automatic M-16 — from his father's gun safe and hid in a nearby cornfield.

That gun had been issued to Detective Moore by the Harlingen Police Department.

Moore sprang from the field and ambushed Border Patrol agents Susan Rodriguez and Ricardo Salinas, shooting before they could draw their side arms. He also wounded Cameron County sheriff's deputy Raul Rodriguez, before other deputies shot Moore four times.

A source involved in the investigation said Friday that Detective Moore was unaware that his son had taken the weapons from his home. He cooperated with police who came looking for his son, the source said.

The source, who asked not to be identified, also confirmed that preliminary autopsy reports indicate Ernest Moore had alcohol, cocaine and marijuana in his system.

1,667 concealed handgun carriers arrested, DPS says

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 1,600 of the nearly 200,000 Texans licensed to carry concealed handguns have been arrested for alleged crimes, the Texas Department of Safety said Friday.

The DPS, which had issued 184,262 concealed-carry licenses as of July 3, tracks arrests and criminal charges against, as well as other information about, concealed-carry licensees.

The arrests, 1,667 of them reported to the DPS as of Thursday, included 402 for alleged felonies. Of those, 14 were charges of murder or attempted murder, the agency said.

Three of the murder-related charges had been dismissed and the disposition of the others was not immediately available.

Not among the 14 murder-related arrests reported to the DPS was the first-degree felony murder charge against Austin concealed-carry licensee Paul Saustrup. The 33-year-old auto and motorcycle repair shop owner is accused of shooting to death Eric Demart Smith early Wednesday.

Police said Smith, 20, had broken into a vehicle owned by Saustrup's girlfriend. Smith was walking away from the vehicle after the couple walked up on him when Saustrup shot Smith twice in the back, police said.

An attorney for Saustrup has said his client shot only after Smith moved his hands toward his belt and made a sudden move.

Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, is author of the state's 1995 concealed-carry law. He said he believes Saustrup will be cleared of the charge against him. And Patterson said the number of arrests of concealed-carry licensees is no reason to attack the law.

"If you look at the arrest rates of men 21 and up, and the arrest rate of concealed carry licensees, the rate of arrest is lower among those that have licenses," Patterson said Friday.

Rep. Elliott Naishtat, D-Austin and a concealed-carry opponent, said he'd be interested to compare the arrest rates.

"This seems like an extremely high number of arrests since the concealed-carry permit law went into effect," Naishtat said. "With such a high number, I would hope the Legislature would at a minimum look closely at the way we screen applicants for these permits."

Under the law, Texans can apply for concealed-carry licenses when they are 21 or older. The vast majority of those licensed to carry concealed guns are men.

Patterson said he believes the arrest rate for concealed carry licensees is lower because "by definition, anybody who gets a license is concerned with obeying the law."

Patterson said there are two important lessons to learn from Saustrup's case.

"Lesson No. 1, don't try to steal cars. Lesson No. 2: If you're licensed to carry a concealed handgun and you shoot someone, stand by to do a lot of explaining to a grand jury," he said.

Pitts passes away

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Elijah Pitts, who spent 25 years in the NFL, playing for the Green Bay Packers and helping to coach the Buffalo Bills, died Friday in a Buffalo hospital. He was 60.

Pitts had been on medical leave from the Bills since being diagnosed with abdominal cancer last October. He was undergoing prolonged chemotherapy treatment.

Pitts spent 16 years as a Bills assistant. He became former coach Marv Levy's assistant head coach in 1992. Pitts took over as head coach for three games in 1995 season when Levy was diagnosed with prostate cancer.

Pitts coached in four Super Bowls with the Bills and was part of four AFC championship teams.

"Eli was an outstanding human being. He always carried a smile and was respected by all he came in contact with," said Bills president and owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr.

"The passing of Elijah Pitts is a great loss not only for the Buffalo Bills but the entire National Football League," said current coach Wade Phillips, who took over for Levy after the 1997 season. "The number of players and coaches that he has touched throughout the league are too many to name. His legacy will certainly carry on through them."

As a player, Pitts spent nine years with the Green Bay Packers during their championship years under coach Vince Lombardi. The Packers won four NFL championships and two Super Bowls during Pitts' career.

In 1967, he became the first player to rush for a touchdown in the Super Bowl when he scored against the Kansas City Chiefs. He also played for Chicago, Los Angeles Rams and New Orleans before retiring in 1971. He was elected to Green Bay's Hall of Fame in 1979.

Bart Starr, the quarterback on those Packers teams, likened Pitts to "a brother."

"He was one of the greatest gentleman I have ever known," said Starr, who was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1977. "He was a fierce competitor, but a loving caring man. I'm going to miss the man."

Ex-Baylor QB dies

McALLEN — Former Baylor University All-America quarterback Billy Patterson has died in South Texas. He was 79.

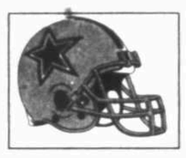
Patterson was named All-America at Baylor in 1938 and was the most valuable player of the 1939 East-West Shrine game. He played for the Bears from 1936 to 1938, during which time he was named to Baylor's All-Decade team and was named all-conference for the 1937-38 season.

After his college career, Patterson played professional football for the Chicago Bears in 1939 and then for the Pittsburgh Steelers the following year. In 1940, Patterson joined the Navy and served in World War II.

Cowboys begin Gailey era this week

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

WICHITA FALLS — The Chan Gailey era begins Wednesday and talk about pressure. He immediately becomes the only Dallas coach who hasn't won a Super Bowl.



Tom Landry and Jimmy Johnson each won two. Barry Switzer got one. That's five for the Cowboys' franchise. Can Gailey make it six? Or seven?

Questions abound as the Cowboys switch training camps from hot and humid Austin, where the players had the cooling nightlife to console them, to Wichita Falls, where it can get even hotter, and after-hours fun is uncharted territory.

Gailey is coach and offensive coordinator of a team that had no offensive coordination in a sad 6-10 season that cost Switzer his job, even though he had won a Super Bowl ring for his good buddy, owner Jerry Jones.

A players' revolt was at hand. Jones, who made his millions gambling on oil and gas drilling, wasn't about to take a chance on another year of Switzer.

After a search conducted mostly by himself, Jones gave the job to former UCLA coach Terry Donahue. But Donahue wouldn't take it.

NFL analysts say that's where Jones got lucky again when he turned to Gailey, then the Pittsburgh Steelers' offensive coordinator.

Gailey has proven he can find ways to beat defenses, whether it is with two or five wide receivers, two tight ends, screens to receivers lined up in the backfield, halfback passes, or shotgun formations.

He was hired Feb. 12, more than a month after Switzer was dumped, and immediately went to work reconstructing the predictable Dallas offense.

Through a series of no-nonsense minicamps, Gailey already has 75 percent of his offense drilled into his players.

How serious is Gailey? Out are locker room foosball and pingpong tables; in is a very thick playbook.

The Dallas offense plunged to the second worst in the NFL last year. If the Cowboys hadn't also had the second-best defense, they might not have won three games, let alone six.

Jones said the players have accepted Gailey and his handful of new assistant coaches with open arms.

"There's an aura about him," Jones said. "The players see it."

What they have seen is Troy Aikman in the shotgun. Word was that Aikman

MIDLAND (FILL IN THE BLANK)

Soon-to-be ex-Angels lose

Angels plan name switch for next year

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

After this 1998 Texas League baseball season, it is adios "Angels."

The city of Midland will not be losing its Double-A club, but its club will be losing the nickname.

The club announced Friday there will be a name change after the 1998 season, meaning next year's Midland team, for the first time since 1972, will not use the nickname of its major league affiliate.

"We have wanted it for a long time," Angels general manager Monty Hoppel said. "We think we need to pump fresh ideas into promotions. It will get people talking."

The Angels are one of only nine clubs in Double-A and Triple-A baseball which use the nickname of the parent club and the only team in the Texas League to do so.

"It is standard in baseball that you have to have your own nickname or you are behind the times," Hoppel said. "We owe it to the community for the team to have its own identity."

The responsibility of obtaining that identity (nickname, logo, etc.) starts Sunday with the Reporter-Telegram Name the Team Contest. For four weeks (through Aug. 9), ideas for the new name can be mailed in on entry forms located inside ads in the paper.

"We don't want any major league or high school names," Hoppel said. "We want a name that ties into the area. We need that help."

The same process was used for Odessa's hockey team, which is owned under the same sports umbrella as the Angels. Hoppel said that more than 3,000 entries were received in that contest, and from there, the Jackalopes were born.

Captains' closer shuts door on Halos

Shreveport reliever Mike McMullen struck out Midland pinch hitter Danny Buxbaum with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning to preserve an 11-8 Texas League victory over the Angels at Christensen Stadium Friday night.

McMullen, a submariner hurler, had given up a double and two walks in the ninth before getting Buxbaum on strikes to end the game, picking up his eighth save of the year.

That ended a 3 hour, 45-minute marathon that saw the teams combine for 30 hits, including three home runs, two by Midland.

The Captains never trailed in the game after taking a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but it was Shreveport's five-run fourth inning that turned the win. Midland starter Matt Wise (7-5) was touched for 10 earned runs in just 3 1/3 innings of work to take the loss. Shreveport's Robbie Crabtree (2-0) got the win with 3 2/3 innings of relief work, allowing only two Angel hits over that span, one a solo homer to Ben Molina, his eighth of the year, in the seventh.

The game was full of twists and turns, dripping with drama until the very end as the Angels still had a chance to win it all in the ninth.

Shreveport's Damon Minor hit a solo homer in the first, his second homer in consecutive at-bats since he hit a homer Thursday in the ninth in an 8-3 loss to the Angels.

Midland's Norm Hutchins slammed his seventh homer of the year, a mammoth three-run shot in the fourth to close the Shreveport gap to 5-4, but the Caps answered with five runs in the fifth to salt the game.

Hutchins just missed hitting for the cycle. He got the homer, triple and double, lacking just the single.

With the series now squared at 1-1, the Angels will send Lou Pote (6-6, 5.26 ERA) against the Caps' Jason Grote (0-2, 18.36) at 7:11 p.m. today. The Honky Tonk Man of World Wrestling Federation fame will make an appearance.

French soccer fans celebrate France's victory over Croatia in the World Cup semifinals Wednesday. Nearly a third of the planet's population will watch Sunday's final match between France and Brazil.

Entire countries get behind their teams for World Cup final match

By Mort Rosenblum
AP Special Correspondent

PARIS — With as much as a third of the planet watching, Brazil wants to show it's King of the World in soccer, the game closest to its heart and soul. France would like to be King of the World — period.

Soccer for decades has personified Brazil, where it is a way of life more than a sport. The French, suddenly within reach of the treasured World Cup, see it as a means to heal rifts and restore glory.

"That little ball has done a lot for humanity — and for France," said Philippe Debarge, a laid-back Parisian landscaper who scoffs at blind patriotism but suddenly finds himself very proud to be French.

"Reaching the finals has unified us," he said. "Arab and black slum kids share something with rich whites. I see now why this game is so important to so many people everywhere."

France's frenzy over reaching the final against Brazil on Sunday was heavily "cocorico," a term imitating a rooster that means celebrating Frenchness.

The victory energized a nation fraught with self-doubt over the growing dominance of European union and American accents in an old world the French did much to shape.

A grand beau geste, winning the golden trophy in their brand new stadium, with the whole world watching, would please the French no end. And if they fail, at least they had the last crack at Brazil.

"Of course, we'd love to win at this time in our history," Debarge said, typifying a general mood. "But to play such a beautiful team is already something. Win or lose, it's wonderful."

For Brazil, a loss is unthinkable. This is a century-ending chance to win

World Cup kicks Tour de France out of usual country, into Ireland

By Susan Bickelhaupt
The Boston Globe

The people of France are not fools; they realize they can handle only so much hoopla at one time.

So, to make way for the soccer frenzy that's going on as France gets ready to face Brazil in Sunday's World Cup final, the Tour de France is stepping aside. Way aside. In fact, all the way off the mainland and into Ireland.

The 189 riders — 21 teams of nine cyclists each — kick off the three-week race Saturday with a short time trial in downtown Dublin. Then it's a 112-mile circuit race in Dublin Sunday, and a 125-mile race from Enniscorthy to Cork Monday before the riders pack their bikes onto an airplane and head to France to continue the Tour there.

In Saturday's race, called a prologue, riders will set off individually at one-minute intervals on the 3.5-mile course to race against the clock. And even though it's not considered one of the race's 21 stages, it sets up the almost-2,400-mile race; the winning rider will wear the yellow jersey at the start of Sunday's stage.

The question, though, is whether he can hang on to it. That's doubtful, since there is no clear-cut heir apparent to the leader's jersey that German rider Jan Ullrich took last year.

So over the next three weeks, as the Tour winds its way on a counterclockwise circuit of France, traveling through the Pyrenees, Alps, and wine country, it's a safe bet that several riders will wear the yellow jersey before the race finishes in Paris Aug. 2.

One advantage Ullrich has is that he's just 24; another is that one of his teammates is Bjarne Riis, the Dane who won the Tour in 1996, when Ullrich fin-were recently recognized as the best in the nation among 40 minor league teams. A nickname change should also pay off in other areas.

"It should sell more. The Jackalopes did great," Hoppel said. "We didn't want to sit around for another four to five years. We wanted to get people involved and get a fresh attitude. It is something that you are proud to wear (a cap or shirt). You go out of town and you are a Midland fan. It will put the area on the map."

The new nickname is expected to be announced at the end of August.

A different name does not necessarily mean the end of Midland's relationship with Anaheim, although Hoppel said anything was possible.

"There is a window to fish around and see who is open," Hoppel said. "You never know what is out there.

"It seems like there has been bad timing when they call up players. I want to win for our fans, and there are teams combining developing players and winning. It seems like we have had a couple good teams, but the record is what it is."

The record is 548-635 (.463) in the 1990s. Going into the season, the Angels record in the decade was the worst in the Texas League.

Midland's relationship with Anaheim goes back to 1985. Before that, Midland was the affiliate of the Chicago Cubs for 13 years.

NOTES: Hoppel said that a change in the mascot will not mean the end of the Angels' current mascot, Juice the Moose. Hoppel said that Juice will remain with the team at least through next season... Hoppel also said it remains to be seen how the club will be affected if the group headed by current co-owner Miles Prentice is successful in its bid to buy the Kansas City Royals. Hoppel said, "He's making no plans on selling this one."

Cards get lift from Morris' return

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Matt Morris was in midseason form, which is pretty remarkable considering it was only his second start.

The St. Louis Cardinals got the first of their three injured starters back from the disabled list Friday night, with Morris throwing six shutout innings in a 6-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

After being sidelined since mid-April by a strained right shoulder, he struck out six, walked none, allowed only three singles and threw a first-pitch strike to the first 17 batters he faced.

"All last year, I don't think I did that well," Morris said. "If you can make a pitch one time, you can make it every time."

The only thing Morris didn't get was a victory after the Cardinals coughed up a 3-0 lead in the eighth. Brian Jordan's RBI single off Jay Powell snapped a 3-3 tie and made a winner of reliever Curtis King (2-0), who got the last two outs in the eighth after giving up a tying two-run single to Craig Biggio.

"It's tough, because right now we ought to be talking about Matt Morris' first win," manager Tony La Russa said. "The lift he gave us tonight was outstanding.

"That's as good as I've ever seen him."

Two other starters, Donovan Osborne and Alan Benes, are still on the disabled list. Osborne, who has shoulder tendinitis, could start a rehab assignment next week. Benes, who had offseason rotator cuff surgery, isn't expected back until September.

"They've lost some guys that are some really great pitchers," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "If they get these guys back, they could put on a run."

Ray Lankford had a three-run home run for the Cardinals, who have won only three of 14 and are 12 1/2 games behind Houston in the NL Central. The Astros lost for the third time in 10 games.

Lankford doubled off C.J. Nitkowski (3-3) to open the eighth for the Cardinals' first hit in five innings. Mark McGwire drew his major league-leading 17th intentional walk before Jordan, with two strikes, lined a single to right off Powell. Willie McGee, who had been 3-for-37, added a two-run single.

"Jordan is pretty good about taking a two-strike approach," Dierker said. "He'll take some pretty wild rips early in the count sometimes to try and hit one out, but he's pretty tough with two strikes."

La Russa batted his pitcher eighth in the starting order for the second straight game in an effort to create more run-producing opportunities for the heart of the order. The ploy worked in the third.

■ NL Roundup

Eli Marrero, who batted ninth behind Morris, singled to start the third and went to second on a single by Royce Clayton before Lankford homered off Mike Hampton on an 0-2 pitch. Lankford had been batting .197 against left-handed pitching with only one home run.

Jeff Brantley pitched the ninth for his 13th save.

The Astros scored three runs off reliever John Frascatore to tie it at 3 in the eighth. Pinch-hitter Dave Clark got his first RBI in 28 pinch at-bats when his bouncer deflected off Frascatore's glove and dribbled into shallow right field for a double. Biggio, hitless in his first eight at-bats in the series, followed with a two-run single off King to tie it.

The Cardinals won despite another quiet game from McGwire, who was 0-for-3. McGwire leads the majors with 37 homers, but has gone 18 at-bats without the long ball.

Marlins 3, Braves 1

MIAMI — Jesus Sanchez and the Florida Marlins snapped Atlanta's nine-game winning streak, as the rookie left-hander limited the Braves to five hits in eight innings.

Dave Berg broke a scoreless tie with an RBI single in the seventh inning off Denny Neagle (9-7). Sanchez (4-6) ended a five-game losing streak with his first victory since May 18. He struck out five.

The Marlins made it 3-0 in the eighth when Mark Kotsay hit an RBI single and Edgar Renteria scored on John Rocker's wild pitch.

Javy Lopez hit a sacrifice fly off Antonio Alfonseca in the ninth to make it 3-1. Felix Heredia got the final two outs for his second save.

Phillies 7, Pirates 6

PITTSBURGH — Curt Schilling withstood a five-run inning and an unusually low five strikeouts by helping himself with a key run-scoring single, leading Philadelphia past Pittsburgh.

Bobby Abreu hit a sacrifice fly during a three-run fifth inning finished off by Schilling's single as the Phillies improved to 4-0 against the Pirates this season.

Schilling (9-8), the major league strikeouts leader with 185, was averaging 9.47 strikeouts per start until fanning only five in his major league-leading eighth complete game. He gave up nine hits, including Manny Martinez's three-run homer in the fifth and Jason Kendall's solo shot in the eighth. Francisco Cordova (6-8) took the loss.

Expos 8, Mets 6

NEW YORK — Mark Grudzielanek beat out a two-out single to tie it and Shane Andrews followed with a two-run triple as the Montreal Expos rallied in the ninth inning and sent the New York Mets to their fifth straight loss.

The Expos, who lost their last seven road games before the All-Star break, won for the second straight night at Shea Stadium.

John Franco (0-4) took the loss for the second night in a row. The Mets reliever was handed a three-game suspension Thursday for bumping an umpire last weekend at Atlanta, but appealed the penalty and remained eligible to pitch.

Shayne Bennett (3-3) was the winner and Ugueth Urbina pitched the ninth for his 22nd save. Urbina, the losing pitcher in the All-Star game, earned a save for the second consecutive day.

Brewers 6, Cubs 5

MILWAUKEE — Chicago's Kerry Wood struck out nine, but hit three batters — including Mark Loretta with the bases loaded to break a seventh-inning tie — as Milwaukee beat the Cubs.

Sammy Sosa hit his 35th homer in the second inning, joining Ernie Banks as the only players in Cubs history to hit at least that many homers in four consecutive seasons. Jose Hernandez also homered for Chicago.

Wood (8-4) allowed four hits and three walks in seven innings. Rookie Bronswell Patrick (4-0) worked 1 2-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

Rockies 11, Giants 2

DENVER — Darryl Kile won at Coors Field for the first time this season, helping Colorado end a five-game losing streak.

Kile (6-11) pitched six strong innings, allowing two runs on five hits. Both of San Francisco's runs scored on double-play groundouts.

Ellis Burks had a two-run homer and Mike Lansing added a two-run double to highlight Colorado's six-run fourth inning. Vinny Castilla and Neifi Perez also homered for the Rockies, who had 19 hits.

Shawn Estes (7-8) took the loss.

Yanks rip Rays for eighth straight win

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Even when you've got baseball's best record, there's room for improvement.

The New York Yankees found it Friday night in the pitching of Hideki Irabu, who wasn't on top of his game yet still beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays 8-4 with help from three-run homers by Chuck Knoblauch and Scott Brosius.

The Yankees won their eighth straight and improved the top record in the majors to 63-20 while keeping pace with the 1902 Pittsburgh Pirates for the best start this century through 83 games.

"This is the first start of the second half, and it was definitely big for me to get a win," Irabu said through an interpreter after his first victory since June 10.

The former Japanese star (7-3) allowed three runs, seven hits, walked four and struck out five in 5 1-3 innings. His most impressive inning was the fifth when he worked out of a no-out, bases-loaded spot with the score tied at 3.

"He's not all the way back, but I thought his velocity was more consistent," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "He pitched out of a tough jam. I thought that was very important for him to do that."

The Devil Rays lost their season-high eighth in a row and trail the Yankees by 31 1/2 games in the AL East. Despite breaking out of an offensive funk with 12 hits, they hurt themselves by going 0-for-14 with runners in scoring position.

"Same old story. We played well, but not well enough. We just can't seem to get over the hump," Tampa Bay's Quinton McCracken said. "The Yankees are one of the best teams in baseball. It seems like every night somebody steps up and gets the big hit for them."

Wilson Alvarez (4-6), making his first start since May 28 after being sidelined by tendinitis in his left shoulder, did not allow a hit through four innings and had a 3-0 lead.

■ AL Roundup

But after Alvarez hit Brosius with a pitch and gave up a one-out single to Joe Girardi, Knoblauch tied it with his first home run since May 24, a stretch of 35 games.

The Yankees added a pair of unearned runs in the sixth, and Brosius hit a three-run homer off Esteban Yan in the eighth.

Fred McGriff hit a solo home run and Dave Martinez had an inside-the-park homer as the Devil Rays took an early lead against Irabu.

Ramiro Mendoza pitched 2 2-3 scoreless innings innings for his first save. He was moved to the bullpen in June when Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez was put into the rotation.

The Devil Rays took a 1-0 lead in the second without getting the ball out of the infield.

Martinez's grounder into the hole at short was the only hit of the inning, and the expansion team also benefited from two walks and a wild pitch before Miguel Cairo got an RBI on a grounder.

McGriff's first homer at home since April 28 made it 2-0 in the third. Martinez hit the first inside-the-park homer at Tropicana Field, circling the bases for a 3-0 lead in the fourth when center fielder Chad Curtis tried to catch a sinking liner at his ankles and the ball skipped through to the wall.

Indians 6, Twins 5

CLEVELAND — David Justice had an RBI single off Greg Swindell with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth for Cleveland.

Minnesota's Mike Trombley (3-3) walked David Bell on a 3-2 pitch leading off the ninth. Kenny Lofton singled to right off Swindell to send pinch-runner Shawon Dunston to third with nobody out.

Swindell walked Omar Vizquel intentionally to load the bases for Justice, who gave Cleveland its seventh last at-bat victory at home with a ground single to right past a drawn-in infield.

Mike Jackson (1-1) pitched a perfect ninth for the victory.

Travis Fryman hit his 15th for Cleveland. Minnesota's Ron Coomer was 4-for-5 for his fourth career four-hit game, including his 12th homer.

Orioles 3, Red Sox 2

BALTIMORE — Eric Davis homered off Pedro Martinez in the eighth inning to snap a tie and lift Baltimore past Boston.

Davis, who replaced an injured Harold Baines in the sixth, hit a 1-0 pitch over the center-field wall with two outs. It was his 12th homer of the season and first since June 20. Mike Bordick also homered for Baltimore.

Martinez (11-3), vying for his sixth straight victory, allowed three runs and five hits in eight innings. Jesse Orosco (3-1) pitched 1 1-3 innings and Armando Benitez retired John Valentin for his 11th save.

White Sox 10, Royals 3

CHICAGO — Albert Belle homered twice and matched a career high with six RBIs as Chicago beat Kansas City.

It was the 31st multihomer game of Belle's career, and fourth this season. Belle has 21 home runs, marking the eighth straight year he's hit 20 or more. Ray Durham also homered for Chicago.

Jaime Navarro (7-10) gave up eight hits and three runs over 7 2-3 innings. Jose Rosado (3-7) took the loss.

Tigers 3, Blue Jays 2, 10 innings

DETROIT — Deivi Cruz's 10th-inning RBI double pushed Detroit past Toronto.

Joe Randa hit a one-out, infield single off Paul Quantrill (1-4) and stole second. Paul Bako was intentionally walked before Cruz lined the next pitch into the right-field gap to score Randa with the winning run.

Todd Jones (1-3) pitched a perfect 10th for the victory.

Luis Gonzalez homered and Geronimo Berroa had an RBI single for the Tigers. Ed Sprague hit a home run for the Blue Jays.

Nearly-perfect Pak sets new LPGA mark with round of 61

By Rusty Miller
AP Sports Writer

SYLVANIA, Ohio — Se Ri Pak is still mastering English and speaks in a soft, barely audible voice. One word kept coming through loud and clear Friday: Perfect.

Her putting, she said, was perfect. A full night of rest was perfect. The whole day went perfect.

Four days after winning the U.S. Women's Open, the 20-year-old South Korean rookie posted the lowest LPGA tour score ever with a 10-under-par 61 in the second round of the Jamie Farr Kroger Classic.

"My putting feel really, really good," she said. "I feel like I could make anything."

She just about did. She birdied five holes on each side, wrapping up the historic round with birdies on her last three holes capped by a dramatic 20-foot birdie putt before a large and loud gallery circling the ninth green.

"Every putt was perfect, right to left and left to right," she said. "Everything was perfect."

Seven players have shot 62s in an LPGA event, including two this year — Meg Mallon in the City of Hope Myrtle Beach Classic and Kristi Albers in the Welch's-Circle K Championship.

The PGA Tour record is 59, set by Al Geiberger in 1977, and matched by Chip Beck in 1991.

The 61 vaulted Pak, who had an even-par 71 in the opening round at the 6,319-yard Highland Meadows Golf Club, into first place by two strokes over first-round co-leaders Vickie Odegard and Dana Dormann and Hall of Famer Betsy King.

Pak had said after the first round that she was battling fatigue since beating Jenny Chuasiriporn in a 20-hole playoff Monday. Pak won on the second sudden-death hole after the two were still tied after the original 18-hole playoff.

With her manager preventing calls from getting through, Pak got 9 1/2 hours' sleep Thursday night.

"Last week was a really, really long week," Pak said. "I played eight days, then two holes more. I came here on Tuesday afternoon and played six holes (in a celebrity match). The next day I played 18 holes in the pro-am. Then yesterday, my body felt heavy. Not comfortable."

The record round started quietly enough. Starting on No. 10, she pushed her tee shot into the right rough and hit the ball into the right greenside bunker before blasting out to a foot to salvage par.

On only one other hole did she have trouble. She again avoided trouble in the rough and a bunker at No. 1 before making a 6-foot par putt.

On Nos. 11, 13 and 15, she birdied after hitting 9-irons inside 10 feet. She finished her first nine with consecutive birdies, hitting wedges to eight feet and three feet and rolling in the putts.

Eagle helps Morgan take two-stroke lead

By Harry Atkins
AP Sports Writer

DEARBORN, Mich. — Hot putter. Memorable wedge. Gil Morgan used both to forge a two-stroke lead over his biggest rival in the Senior Players Championship on Friday.

Morgan, who eagled the 10th hole, shot an 8-under-par 64 in the second round for a 133. That earned him a third-round pairing with Hale Irwin, who shot 69 for 135 at the TPC of Michigan.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed the 6,876-yard layout in the shadow of sponsor Ford Motor Co.'s world headquarters, shot 70 to tie Jim Albus at 137. Albus shot 69.

"Yesterday, I played at a pretty high level, tee to green," Morgan said. "Today, I played a little better and putted better."

Morgan and Irwin are easily the hottest players on the senior circuit. Each has won three times and they rank 1-2 on the money list. Irwin, who finished second in the State Farm Senior Classic last week, has earned $1.3 million, about $300,000 more than Morgan.

"Usually, if you play with Gil on the weekend, you're playing pretty well," Irwin said. "So, I'm happy to be playing with Gil."

Morgan, who was three strokes off the lead after an opening 69, birdied five of the first eight holes. His only bogey was at No. 9 where he hit a tree with an approach, then two-putted from 45 feet.

He more than made up for that mistake when he holed his approach for an eagle at the next hole.

"I hit an intermediate wedge from 110 yards out," Morgan said. "The ball hit about six feet from the pin, bounced twice and dove in the hole."

Morgan, who has nine top-10 finishes in 13 starts this season, made successive birdies at Nos. 12 and 13 to go 11-under and made it hold up the rest of the way under almost perfect playing conditions.

"It was kind of funny, because I really didn't look at the scoreboard until I made a couple of birdies," Morgan said. "Starting about No. 6, I looked and saw that Jack was still one shot ahead of me. He was going pretty strong.

"So, I thought, 'Just keep plugging along here.'"

Irwin, who shared the first-round lead with John Jacobs at 66, was tied for the lead with Morgan at 9-under through 11 holes. Irwin, who made his first bogey at No. 12, rebounded with an eagle-3 at the 13th.

Nicklaus, whose streak of 154 majors will end when he skips the British Open next week, continued his strong play despite an ailing left hip. Nicklaus, at 58, was looking like the Golden Bear of old and shared the lead with Irwin at 8-under after nine holes.

Nicklaus got to 9-under with a birdie at No. 13, but bogeyed Nos. 14 and 16.

"I felt pretty good," Nicklaus said. "But with me, it's compared with what? With me, you never know. So far this week, the hip has been pretty good."

Lucky bounce keeps Jones in Quad City lead

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — Steve Jones got badly needed help from a drink cooler to rebuild a disintegrating round and grab a share of the 36-hole lead with Frank Lickliter in the Quad City Classic.

Jones shot a 5-under-par 65 and Lickliter a 64 as they tied at 129, 11 under for two rounds. Defending champion David Toms and Kenny Perry each shot their second 65s and were at 130.

P.H. Horgan III and Russ Cochran, each with 66s, were at 131. First-day leader Curt Byrum fell into an eight-way tie at 8-under after shooting a 69. Also at that figure were D.A. Weibring and Hal Sutton, who started the day a stroke off the lead following opening-round 64s.

Jones, the 1996 U.S. Open champion, started as if he was going to humble the 6,762-yard Oakwood Country Club course. He eagled No. 10, his first hole of the day, to get to 8-under, then added birdies on Nos. 14, 15 and 17.

His round began to fall apart, however, when he bogeyed Nos. 18 and 1, failing to get up and down after errant approaches.

"I was a little disgusted with myself," Jones said. "All of a sudden I'm 9 and I'm thinking, 'What am I doing?'"

More trouble appeared imminent as his tee shot on No. 2 veered toward the rough. But the ball smacked off a course marshal's cooler and rolled back into the fairway.

Jones took advantage, lofting a wedge to 18 feet and making the birdie putt, then tapping in after a great wedge to within a foot at No. 3.

Westwood leads Loch Lomond

GLASGOW, Scotland — Lee Westwood fired a 3-under-par 68 Friday to share the third-round lead with Sweden's Dennis Edlund in the $1.41 million Loch Lomond tournament.

Rain interrupted play for more than two hours, but the break worked for Westwood and Edlund, both of whom finished the round with 7-under 206 totals.

Edlund, last year's English Open runner-up, shot a 67 to share a three-stroke lead with Westwood going into the final round Saturday.

Westwood's playing partner, Ross Drummond, the tournament's halfway leader, carded a 72 and dropped into a third-place tie with David Howell (70) at 209.

Another stroke back were defending champion Tom Lehman (69), Derrick Cooper (67), Australian Stephen Allan (72) and Sweden's Klas Eriksson (65).

European No. 1 Colin Montgomerie was in a group of five at 211 after a third-round 68. Spain's Jose Maria Olazabal was at 212 and first-round leader Ian Woosnam slipped to 214, eight strokes back.

Dilfer takes first-round lead

STATELINE, Nev. — Taking to the blustery conditions, Tampa Bay quarterback Trent Dilfer shot a 1-under-par 71 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over six players in the $500,000 Isuzu Celebrity Golf Championship at Edgewood Tahoe.

John Elway, coming back for another season as Denver's quarterback after leading the Broncos to a Super Bowl victory over Green Bay, was among those shooting a 72.

Hall of Fame placekicker Jan Stenerud, Kansas City quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver, Tennessee kicker Al Del Greco, former Pittsburgh center Dan Quinn and retired quarterback Steve Bartkowski also were one shot off the lead in the 54-hole tournament.

Austin father-son duo lead 18th annual TGA championship

MARBLE FALLS — Austin's John and Jack Wagner shot a better-ball 61, 11-under par 72, to take the first-round lead in the Texas Golf Association's 18th Annual Father-Son Championship.

The contest opened Friday at the Slick Rock Course of the Horseshoe Bay Resort. The Mansfield team of Magnus Liljenberg and stepson Aaron Saint held second place with a 62 after the first day of competition.

Craven returns from injury to claim Jiffy Lube 300 pole

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

LOUDON, N.H. — Rick Craven wrote perhaps one of the most dramatic stories of the Winston Cup season when he returned from an injury before adoring fans at his home track Friday to win the pole for the Jiffy Lube 300.

Craven, who who had missed the last 12 races with post-concussion syndrome, waited until the end of a rain-delayed qualifying session to knock teammate Jeff Gordon off the pole for Sunday's race.

"This is some script," Craven said as his wife, Cathleen, clung to him and both fought back tears as the crowd at New Hampshire International Speedway cheered for the 32-year-old driver from nearby Newbergh, Maine. "Three and a half months ago, I didn't know when or if I'd ever be in a race car again."

He was the last of 44 drivers to get in one Friday, and toured the 1.058-mile track on which he has known much success at 128.394 mph. Among the first to greet Craven was Gordon, his Hendrick Motorsports teammate whose Chevrolet wound up second-fastest at 127.872.

Craven, who got out of the car in March because he felt an accumulation of injuries from previous crashes left him feeling inadequate, said he wasn't sure he had run a great lap because he got a little loose in the first turn. But he said running all day with a qualifying setup paid dividends.

The venue — at which he has 13 top-10 finishes in 20 career starts — didn't hurt, either.

"One element missing for me was confidence. I was miserable at Atlanta," he said. "I knew I'd have confidence coming back to New Hampshire."

Third-fastest in a session delayed an hour at the start then three more times briefly by rain, was the Ford of Dale Jarrett at 126.956.

The Fords of Roush Racing teammates Chad Little and Jeff Burton were next, Little at 126.401 and Burton at 126.374.

"It don't remember anything about the lap," said Craven, who began racing at NHIS in other NASCAR divisions in 1990. "The way things worked out with the rain, I knew we had a shot at it."

Gordon agreed, saying he saying he was fortunate to go out 34th.

"Sometimes, it's the luck of the draw," he said. "Today, it worked in our favor.

"As I saw Dale Jarrett run a pretty good lap, I just went out there and tried to be smooth and aggressive."

That couldn't be said for many, among them Ken Schrader, trying to win his third straight Loudon pole. Lead weights fell out of his car during his lap, and NASCAR nullified his sixth-place run. That will force him into qualifying Saturday, when positions 26-43 are to be filled.

Team owner and crew chief Andy Petree was fined $2,000 for the incident.

Heavy rain just as Sterling Marlin was to take the first time test washed the track clean of rubber, making it extremely slippery. Marlin slid badly, as did most of the early qualifiers.

Norwood defends his WBA belt

Associated Press

MIAMI — Freddie Norwood successfully defended his WBA featherweight title with a convincing unanimous decision over Colombia's Luis Mendoza Friday night.

Making his second title defense in less than a month, Norwood went at Mendoza with left and right combinations to the head and body throughout the 12-round bout at Miccosukee Indian Gaming.

Norwood, of St. Louis, nearly knocked out Mendoza in the final seconds of the fight when he caught the challenger with a flurry of head and body shots along the ropes and then sent him to the canvas with a straight left to the head.

Mendoza, a former WBA junior featherweight champion, beat the 10-count, but his fate was sealed.

Judge Mark Streisand scored the bout 117-108, Luis Rodriguez had Norwood winning 118-108, and Hubert Earle scored it 117-109.

Norwood (31-0-1) was disappointed the bout went the distance.

"This was my worst performance, I have to give myself a D," Norwood said. "When I had a chance to put him away, I didn't.

"But the key to being a champion is to win the fight even on an off night," he said.

Mendoza did counter some of Norwood's flurries. In the fifth, Mendoza (37-7-2) briefly staggered Norwood with a short right to the head.

But that was his best shot.

Leija, Nelson to meet again

SAN ANTONIO — Their re-, re-, rematch promises to be just as exciting as their first three fights.

And it could finally settle a 5-year-old score between Jesse James Leija and Azumah Nelson, who fight Saturday night in a 12-round lightweight bout at the Alamodome.

"We've had some classic battles," said Leija. "I don't expect the fourth to be any different."

The match will be Nelson's first since he lost the WBC super featherweight title on points to Genaro Hernandez in March 1997.

The America Presents promotion is billed as the Festival of Champions.

Among the six fights on the undercard, Gabriel Ruelas, a former WBC super featherweight champion, will fight Troy Dorsey, a former IBF featherweight champ, in a junior lightweight title bout.

Minnesota's Clem Haskins will coach the U.S. basketball team at the Goodwill Games starting July 19 in New York.

U.S. college players seek respect at Goodwill Games

By Ron Lesko
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — We're No. 3 — at best!

That's not much of a rallying cry, but that's how Clem Haskins sees the team of college players he will coach in this month's Goodwill Games, which several top international teams will use to prep for the upcoming world championships.

"We're not favored to win it," Haskins conceded. "We're no better than third."

That once-unthinkable possibility has become a fact of life for U.S. amateurs in the 22 years since their last Olympic gold medal in a non-boycott year. American collegians steadily have lost ground on the international hoop scene since then, and with NBA players forced out of the world championships because of their league's lockout, 1998 could turn into a very forgettable year for USA Basketball.

"We're going to have our work cut out for us," Penn State center Calvin Booth said.

The pool of college players available for the Goodwill Games has been depleted by early entries into the NBA, the biggest reason USA Basketball decided to replenish its world championship roster with mostly players from the CBA and overseas.

Some believe USA Basketball should have given collegians a chance to make up the bulk of the world championships team, but Minnesota's Haskins disagrees.

"There are not 12 good enough (college) players in America you can put together and go out and beat the people you have to beat," he said.

The 16-player team that came to Minneapolis for workouts this week will be pared to the final 12-man Goodwill roster Sunday or Monday.

Hockey fight results in charges

By Nedra Pickler
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT — In a rare case of a hockey fight leading to legal action, a Philadelphia Flyers prospect faces criminal charges for swinging his stick and leaving an opponent unconscious and in convulsions.

Jesse Boulerice, a 19-year-old Flyers draft choice, was charged on Wednesday with "assault to do great bodily harm less than murder" — a felony that carries a jail sentence of up to 10 years and up to a $5,000 fine, prosecutors said Friday.

The Ontario Hockey League has suspended Boulerice for one year. The American Hockey League, to recognize the OHL's suspension, has declared him ineligible to play until Nov. 15.

"I haven't seen anything quite as vicious as what happened on the ice," said AHL spokesman Will Wolper.

Flyers assistant general manager John Blackwell said the team hadn't been officially notified. He said the dispute was between the parties and had no further comment.

Andrew Long, 19, a Florida Panthers prospect, filed a complaint June 4 with Plymouth Township Police against Boulerice, who played for the Plymouth Whalers. Long, a center for the Guelph Storm in Ontario, was injured in an OHL championship series game April 17 in Plymouth Township, about 25 miles west of Detroit.

Long checked Boulerice into the boards behind the Storm net. Boulerice already was wearing a cast because of a broken hand. After a short shoving match, police said Boulerice hit Long across the face with a two-handed "baseball-type swing" of his stick.

Knocked unconscious, Long went into convulsions and was taken to an Ann Arbor hospital with a blood spot on his brain and a broken nose, nasal cavity and cheekbone. Twenty stitches were needed to close the cut from the tip of his nose to his lip.

James Howarth, Boulerice's lawyer, said he plans to meet with his client for the first time Monday. He expected Boulerice, who is at a Flyers camp in Philadelphia, to be arraigned Tuesday.

Police Sgt. Jim Jarvis said he recently visited Long in Ontario, and Long was looking forward to joining the Panthers when training begins in September.

"His spirits are good," Jarvis said Friday. "His rehabilitation is going along real well. I believe he's about ready to get back on the ice for a little practice."

It was not the first time that rough play during a hockey game produced criminal charges.

In 1975, Dave Forbes of the Boston Bruins became the first pro athlete to be indicted for a crime committed during play. His trial ended in a hung jury.

Forbes was indicted for excessive force used on an opponent. His victim was Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars. The prosecution did not seek a retrial.

The Long attack was the second assault charge stemming from a confrontation on the ice this year in Michigan. Last month, University of Michigan player Chris Fox pleaded guilty to an assault charge for high-sticking an opponent during a no-check hockey game in a recreational league.

CUP: Brazilian fans expect win

(From 1B)

a fifth World Cup in a sport that Brazilians live for.

The country stops dead during a match. After each of their early round wins, fans left the stadium looking troubled amid the jubilance. All else was preliminary to the final.

"We stank," muttered Luciana Alvez, a Sao Paulo lawyer, after Norway beat Brazil. Her team had already qualified for the next round, but she was scared. "If we play like this, we're dead."

Brazilians flew over by the tens of thousands, and their yellow shirts fill the stands. Their full-body cheers ripple like waves, perfectly timed and choreographed, punctuated by deafening drums.

A referee's call, or an opponent's foul, is instantly chastised by a stadiumwide chant. Each fan has strategic advice. Brazil is a nation of 120 million soccer coaches.

Before and after each game, joyful carnival music reminds everyone else that soccer may be serious, but it's also fun.

The French have always been ambivalent toward soccer, more intellectual than passionate about it. They have limited practice at winning and a scant tradition of displaying popular passions.

After the victory against Croatia in the semifinals, team captain Didier Deschamps criticized the dark-suited French VIPs in the stadium who, he said, acted as if they had just come from a funeral.

"That better not happen Sunday," he said. "We don't want to hear only 90 minutes of samba."

But, at this World Cup, Frenchmen outnumber the Brazilians considerably, and wild support is assured in bars and cafes and living rooms all over France.

If many people first looked with skepticism at a gigantic event that would fill their streets with sandwich-eating foreigners, most have now caught the fever. Grandeur is at stake.

Real French soccer lovers, from the beginning, dreamed of this final showdown. Brazilians master skills they most admire: dazzling footwork to control the ball, daring assaults and thoughtful teamwork.

Above all, French fans believe it is finally their turn.

"This Cup belongs to us," midfielder Youri Djorkaeff declared early on. "Our team was born for this competition."

Frenchmen remember that the World Cup scoring record — 13 goals — belongs to their own Just Fontaine. That was 1958, when Brazil beat France in the semifinals.

AP Photo

Brazilian goalkeeper Taffarel slides to kick the soccer ball as teammate Rivaldo looks on during a practice session Friday in Ozoir-la-Ferriere. Brazil will play France in the World Cup final Sunday.

France scored the first World Cup goal back in 1930. Frenchmen thought up the idea of organized world soccer, and they made it happen.

The last World Cup here was in 1938, when Mussolini's Italy eliminated France, won the tournament and then helped Germany take over the country.

"This day is magic," sociologist Michele Tribalat said after the semifinal, as she watched people pour into the streets. "It's the ideal incarnation of our melting pot."

Anti-immigrant whites screamed praise for Lilian Thuram, the black fullback who scored both goals against Croatia. Arabs and blacks howled in defense of Laurent Blanc, a white player ejected for a dubious foul.

And in every city and a lot of villages, Frenchmen got together and sang La Marseillaise like they meant it.

Scorned ref proven correct

By John Mossman
AP Sports Writer

GOLDEN, Colo. — In 36 hours, Esfandiar "Esse" Baharmast went from worldwide vilification to complete vindication, a ride that still leaves him breathless.

Baharmast, the only U.S. referee at the World Cup, was criticized when he awarded a penalty kick to Norway in the 89th minute of a deadlocked game against Brazil on June 23. Kjetil Rekdal scored and Norway won 2-1, advancing to the second round and knocking out Morocco.

Television replays initially failed to show the foul, and the media response was brutal. Only when Norwegian television turned up a different angle the next day was Baharmast absolved.

"The newspapers, television — all of the media — just went crazy, passing quick judgment," he said Thursday from his home in Golden.

In Morocco, there was a headline, "Norway saved by referee." USA Today published a column that asked: "How about sparing us from all inept referees?" And the International Herald-Tribune and the London Times suggested an American didn't have the experience for an important game.

"To stereotype a referee because of his nationality is unfair," Baharmast said.

A native of Iran who came to the United States in 1972 and became a citizen in 1991, Baharmast refereed the Spain-Nigeria game in the first round of the World Cup and was reserve official for two other games. He officiated three games in the 1996 Olympics, as well as World Cup qualifiers in South America and Asia.

Baharmast made the call when he spotted Brazil's Junior Baiano tugging the jersey of Norway's Tore Andre Floe in the box, pulling him to the ground.

"I was only about six yards away, looking straight at it," Baharmast said. "For me, there's no question. It can't be any more blatant than that. I would make the same call 10 times over.

"In the last minute of a game, if I'm going to call a penalty kick, it's not going to be an imaginary penalty."

Only the following morning, after TV replays from two angles failed to show the penalty, did the controversy overtake him.

"I open up the paper and read: 'Imaginary penalty,'" he said. "I'm just dumbfounded. I'm thinking, What are they talking about?"

That night the Norwegian network NRK posted a still frame of the play on its web page, clearly showing the tugged jersey.

"I looked at the picture, I looked up at the sky and said, 'Thank you, God,'" Baharmast said. "I knew I was right, and I thought the truth would come out sooner or later."

David Will, FIFA's head of referees, went out of his way to defend Baharmast.

"The referee, from his angle, took a decision and played it as he saw it, direct and straightforward," Will said. "You can look at television and photographs and pictures on the Internet. But at the end of the day, the referee has to make a decision on the field in a split second as he sees it."

Baharmast, a 44-year-old investment analyst who is a referee for Major League Soccer, said many news outlets acknowledged their mistaken criticism.

"One French paper said the referee deserves the highest matches because he sees something that 16 cameras can't pick up," he said. "The Iran Times from Washington had a headline reading, 'Once toast, now toast of the town.'"

COWBOYS: Camp opening

hated the deep snap, but he denies saying he wouldn't do it.

"I've never said I didn't like being in the shotgun," Aikman said. "It has its possibilities."

What they have seen is Michael Irvin lined up in the backfield taking screen passes.

"We're going to surprise some people with this offense," Irvin said.

Gailey also plans to help overloaded Emmitt Smith get some rest, which is why the Cowboys signed Chris Warren, formerly of Seattle, to back him up.

How that will work will be an interesting training camp vignette.

"I still think Emmitt has a lot left," Gailey said.

The Cowboys' offensive and defensive line problems are well-documented, but Nate Newton has shed weight and could report at around 300 pounds. If Newton is ready to regain form, it could help Aikman have a season where he doesn't have to pass and duck.

There's also a question of what to do with some veterans. Achy-kneed Tony Tolbert has been cut from the defensive line and creaky Mark Tuinei has been let go from the offensive line. Both could be back, but only if they prove to Gailey and Jones that their bodies can handle another year.

Bill Bates' body is still sound after 15 years in the NFL, but does the new coach want him around?

Will Deion Sanders try to play offense again after failing miserably in that department two years ago? Is his ankle healed?

And how will the rookies perform?

Gailey will try to answer these and other questions before training camp ends Aug. 14.

The regular season opens Sept. 6 in Texas Stadium against Arizona. Four months later, fans will be expecting Gailey to bring home his first Lombardi Trophy.

TOUR: Ullrich defending title

ished second. The year before that, five-time champ Miguel Indurain won the race, but no one since has been such a dominant force.

Ullrich's fitness is in question, though. He gained weight and was out of shape over the winter, and only recently seemed to be back in racing form. Team director Walter Goldfroot stood up for the defending champ, saying critics should compare Ullrich with former Tour champions Indurain or Greg LeMond, both of whom were said to battle weight problems.

Others to watch include France's Richard Virenque, who finished second last year; Italy's Marco Pantani, who won the Tour of Italy this spring and finished third in the Tour last year; France's Laurent Jalabert, who won the world title in the time trial last year; and Spaniard Abraham Olano, who is on Indurain's former team.

While no one on the American-based US Postal Service team is apt to break the top 10, it was one of only three teams to finish last year's race with its nine-man roster intact.

This year's team features four Americans, including George Hincapie, who won the national championship in Philadelphia last month. His teammates are Tyler Hamilton of Brookline, Mass.; Frankie Andreu of Deerborn, Mich., a new team member but a Tour veteran; Marty Jemison of Salt Lake City; Dariusz Baranowski of Poland; Viatcheslav Ekimov of Russia; Peter Meinert of Denmark; and Pascal Derame and Jean-Cyril Robin, both from France. Robin finished 15th overall in the Tour last year.

The Center for Dental Health

1. HE SHOULD LISTEN TO YOU - When you first meet the Doctor, it's a good sign if you get to do most of the talking. After all, who knows you better than...you!
2. GENTLE, COMFORTABLE CARE- Now days, your dental care can be surprisingly comfortable. With Nitrous Oxide (gas), Stereo Headphones (to block the sound), warmed anesthetic, tranquilizers, topical anesthetic and more, you will be amazed at how easy dental care can be!
3. REASONABLE AND FAIR COST- We know how valuable your time and money are to you; that's why our goal is "on-time" appointments, "no pressure" financing and quality dentistry at a fair fee.

"When you need a dentist, you want one who really does take the time to be gentle and careful."
"That's exactly the way I build my practice!"
"In this day and age of fast food and quickie marts, I've chosen instead to keep my practice just the opposite. Calm, Relaxed and Incredibly Comfortable."
"Give me a call; my number is 682-0786. You will be pleasantly surprised and very happy."

Finding God on the Internet

By Richard Enos
Staff Writer

God has never been easier to reach online.

Churches and religious organizations in Midland are making a show of faith with dynamic and insightful Internet sites to inform their membership and to educate people worldwide about Christianity.

First Baptist Church, Fannin Terrace Baptist Church and First United Methodist Church are just a few of the many local churches that maintain detailed web sites. Each of the sites provide information on bible study meetings, biographies on church staff and events like church camp or prayer breakfasts. The Internet makes them easier to access. The sites also make it easy to email the pastor with theological questions and to write other fellow church members.

Gospel Night speaks to all people

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

■ Summer in the City's 2nd annual Gospel Night is Thursday from 7-9:30 p.m., at Centennial Plaza in downtown Midland.

Long thought of as an art form that speaks primarily to African-Americans, gospel music continues making inroads into many segments of the local community. Acceptance of the music by members of other races and ethnic groups proves the musical format can appeal to all people.

For the second straight year, Summer in the City will celebrate Gospel Night, an evening of uplifting music featuring 15 gospel singers and groups. Thursday evening's time schedule has been expanded with the night's first performer, Jewell White, to take the Centennial Plaza stage at 7 p.m. The night will conclude at 9:30 with a performance by the St. James Male Chorus.

"Gospel music to me has always been a significant part of African-American heritage," said Vicky Hailey, who has organized Gospel Night for two years. "I think it signifies all the struggles and trials and tribulations we have gone through and have yet to go through. It gives us inspiration."

But gospel, Hailey said, should appeal not only to the African-American community, but to all communities.

Robert Dorn, himself a gospel performer, and a minister who heads up Midland's Church on Wheels, said the message is the main reason the music should breakthrough ethnic barriers and reach all people.

"It should speak to whites and Hispanics and other races for the simple reason that gospel has no respect to color," Dorn said. "When the scripture says that Jesus came and died for the world, it did not say he just died for whites or for blacks or for Hispanics. Whosoever will, let him come, the Bible says."

Gospel ministers to those who are hurting, Dorn said.

"Pain doesn't know color," Everyone struggles," he said.

The latter part of the 20th century has brought two forms of gospel music: traditional and contemporary. And it is the traditional form of the music that most people think of when the name gospel is mentioned.

"Contemporary gospel has kind of a smooth, easy listening feel," Hailey said. "The

Camp teaches teens pride, pain – and a lot of insight

BANNER ELK, N.C. — What are some stereotypes?" the Rev. Jimmy Harper asks 42 teenagers sitting around his feet in the dining hall of Hoston Presbyterian Camp.

"People tend to think all Mexicans ride around in the backs of trucks," a Hispanic boy said.

"Without knowing about your religion, people assume you worship the devil or are in a cult or something," said a Baha'i boy.

"I have a friend who has really short hair. A lot of people think she's a lesbian," said a white girl.

The discussion winds its way through hatred and prejudice, personal and communal hurt and anger, and ends with talk about spiritual values, love, tolerance and respect for other people.

"It's those things that make us good, decent human beings," Harper said.

The teens applaud.

Welcome to Anytown, a weeklong camp run each year by the Atlanta office of the National Conference for Community and Justice, formerly the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Its purpose is to bring together high school students of various religions, races and cultures to get to know one another as friends.

This mountain setting near North Carolina's ski slopes is one of about 40 locations across the country where Anytowns are held each summer. Harper,

VINCENT MULI WA KITUKU

When Jesus seems to sometimes take 'too long'

My parents had an unspoken policy of never spanking me in the presence of my grandparents. If I had done something that would get me into trouble, I sat next to my grandfather or grandmother and I knew I was safe as long as I remained by their side.

Kituku

I can't remember exactly what I had done. I had probably harvested and eaten one of my dad' s forbidden sugar canes. I deeply needed my grandfather to come before my dad arrived home because I knew I would be spanked. But my grandfather did not come.

When I was young, we didn't use watches. We used shadows or roosters or donkeys as our timers. This day, I used the shadows of trees. The shadows got longer and longer as the sun was setting, suggesting that my dad would arrive soon. I kept anxiously looking at the path which led to my grandfather's hut, but my grandfather didn't show up. He was taking forever. I became bitter about his delay. Why would he take so long in my hour of need? If he would come, I wouldn't have to worry. Soon it was too late. My dad came, and soon after, I was pleading for mercy as my spanking was administered. My grandfather had taken too long.

As Christians, there are times we feel that Jesus is taking too long before answering our prayers. We bring our needs to His throne of mercy, but nothing good seems to happen. Based on the magnitude of our problem, sometimes we feel He has rejected us. Our hope disappears, and we may turn to other sources for help.

Lazarus's sisters, Mary and Martha, had first-hand experience of what it means to have Jesus delay (John 11:1-45). They sent for Jesus when their brother was sick. Jesus took four days before showing up in their town. Mary and Martha met Him at separate times. But they both had the same perspective, that if Jesus had come earlier, Lazarus would not have died. John 11 :21. "Then said Martha unto Jesus, 'Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.' " Mary said the same thing in John 11:32.

Four days with a critically-sick loved one is a very long time. By the time Jesus finally arrived, Lazarus had already died and was buried. Jesus knew what was going on before Martha told Him. After a brief conversation, He told them to open the grave. They responded by telling Him that it was too late to do anything because their brother was stinking. But Jesus persisted that they open the grave. Even though Mary and Martha were convinced that Jesus could no longer help Lazarus, Jesus rescued them and brought His friend back to life.

Three years ago, I received a call from an intensive care unit in Laramie, Wyo., just before 7 p.m. I was told to come immediately to be with my young sister who was dying. She went to be with the Lord the following day. To wait all night praying, confused and crying, was like packing a whole century into 12 hours. It was the longest period of time I had ever experienced. I was aware of each minute. It was too long.

Jesus may seem to be taking too long to answer your prayers, also. Perhaps you have prayed for increased family harmony, the return of a wayward child, rekindled faith, less illness or the restoration of emotional balance after losing a loved one. Jesus takes what seems to be too long for a reason. We may not be ready for what God wants us to learn. God may be using the waiting period to develop patience within us or perhaps

Celebration of Praise and Community Wide Worship Service tonight

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

What began as a small appeal to furnish choir robes for the True Lite Christian Fellowship has become a citywide celebration.

A community choir made up of members from at least 12 different church choirs has been formed to lead the service. The Celebration of Praise and Community-wide Worship Service is scheduled for 6 p.m. today at the Iglesia Bautista Antioquia, in the old True Value Hardware store, 401 S. Main.

Choir members for the service represent the following churches:

True Lite Christian Fellowship

Celebration (A Worship Group From Various Churches)

Ideal Baptist Church

Iglesia Bautista Antioquia

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church

Antioch Baptist Church

Mount Rose Baptist Church

St. Paul United Methodist Church

First Baptist Church

Mount Calvary Baptist Church

Christian Life Center

Living Way Foursquare Gospel Church

Teen Challenge

Several home groups and fellowship groups will also be represented at the service tonight.

"At first we were going to put together a presentation and ask for a love offering during it so we could get us some new choir robes," said Carla Smith, who is helping coordinate the event.

"The excitement that came with getting all the different races and communities and churches together was wonderful, and it evolved into a night of praise to our Lord, because he's the only who joins us in unity."

Smith said the effort began in May. The original intention was to have just a couple of churches join together for the night of song.

The former True Value Hardware location, 401 S. Main, now houses Iglesia Bautista Antioquia, the site of tonight's Celebration of Praise and Community Wide Worship Service.

"Then we started sending invitations out to other churches. We didn't want to exclude anybody," Smith said. "And we wound up hearing from several different churches."

The event precedes by five days a similar event, Summer in the City's Gospel Night (see story, Pg. 1C). Smith explained, though, that the two nights differ, in that Gospel Night features 15 separate acts. The community wide celebration of song tonight features one choir comprised of 40-50 singers from different churches.

Iglesia Bautista Antioquia, the host church, will also perform two songs in Spanish.

Smith said even though the event grew beyond original expectations, she and other members of True Lite wouldn't turn down getting the necessary funds for the new choir robes they had originally planned for.

"If we do, we do," she said. The main theme, though, is the unity which has come out of the evening.

"Christ is what bonds us together in unity," she said. "Without him there would be no unity, no reconciliation. He is the basis for that."

GOSPEL: Traditional form of music has more soul, reaches out to all people traditional gospel is get up, clap your hands, stomp your feet if you want to. There's nothing like good, black gospel music. All gospel touches you, but traditional gospel goes a little deeper."

(From 1C)

Added Dorn: Every denomination will sing 'Amazing Grace' and 'How Great Thou Art.' But not many churches sing Amy Grant."

The contemporary genre of gospel, although sincere, has developed because of it's potential as a money maker, Dorn believes.

"The traditional songs — "It is Well With My Soul," "How Great Thou Art, " Amazing Grace" — those songs were written by men who were touched by the hand of God," he said. "The industry today is bringing in young people and talent just to make money. The music industry is so prolific today that it may be a No. 1 song today and No. 10 tomorrow because of the infusion of so much gospel music."

The good news message, Dorn said, is what draws him — and likely all gospel fans — to the music.

"The good news brought to me is that Jesus loves me in spite of myself, and who I was and what I did or how I felt of myself. Jesus died for my sins and and I didn't have to carry my sins, but I can nail them on the cross with Jesus," Dorn said.

Hailey said she hopes Gospel Night continues on an annual basis as part of Summer in the City because of the opportunity it presents to touch people in all segments of the community.

"Just because it's predominantly a black event," she said, "doesn't mean other cultures can't come out and partake of other cultural activities."

Dorn calls the potential to reach people with the music through Thursday's event "staggering."

"We'll reach from the highest to the lowest and from the richest to the poorest," he said. "And if one soul is reached, then the whole ordeal is not in vein."

Reconstructionist Jews tackle issues of gentile spouses

By Dinah Wisenberg Brin
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Margaret Clark and husband Ralph Silberman attend services, prepare Sabbath dinners and send their two children to Torah school at Adat Shalom, a Reconstructionist synagogue they helped found in Rockville, Md.

Clark is barred, however, from leading the congregation in prayer and from participating in other aspects of synagogue life.

Why? She's not Jewish.

With thousands of active interfaith families like Clark and Silberman's, the progressive Jewish Reconstructionist Federation has struggled with the role gentile members should play. The federation is considered American Judaism's smallest but fastest-growing branch.

Earlier this year, a Reconstructionist task force issued guidelines for congregations trying to embrace interfaith families while retaining their Jewish character.

Clark, who helped Adat Shalom develop policies more than a year ago, applauds the effort.

"It's important to me that people know and recognize and deal with the fact that there are non-Jewish members of the congregation and that it not be some dirty little secret," says Clark, a freelance writer from Arlington, Va. "It goes back to my core issue that there are non-Jews raising Jewish children."

The recommendations are not binding on the more than 90 Reconstructionist congregations. The movement, based in Wyncote, Pa., treats men and women equally in religious practice, welcoming homosexual couples and interfaith families.

"I believe that this is far and away the most sensitive issue in liberal congregations today," says Rabbi Brant Rosen of Denver's B'nai Havurah, where more than a third of the 250 households are interfaith.

"We've talked about being open and accepting congregations from the beginning," he says, "but we never really wrestled with what that would mean specifically in terms of the status and the role and the participation of non-Jews in a Jewish community."

The task force convened because rates of Jewish intermarriage have soared. Judaism's older and larger liberal Reform movement, which launched a campaign to reach out to interfaith families two decades ago, also grapples with the issue.

"Should there be any restrictions on their roles? Should they be full and equal members? Should they be able to participate in rituals?" JRF executive director Rabbi Mordechai Liebling says. "It became a point of contention in many congregations. The emotional heat was out of proportion in many ways to what was going on."

Interfaith families comprise an estimated 20 percent of the 20,000 member households in Reconstructionist synagogues. More than 30 percent under 40 married outside the faith.

A few years ago, Rosen invited B'nai Havurah members on a Sabbath retreat to explore the issue. Apparently feeling threatened, some of the non-Jews stayed home. "It was a very, very, very tricky and touchy discussion," he recalls.

Rosen welcomes the report as a template. "Every community needs boundaries," he says, "even a liberal community."

INTERNET: Online religion will never replace the traditional church

(From 1C)

tion for First United Methodist's web site, at www.power.net/fumc. He said churches will have to learn technology to reach more people and keep them updated on church events.

"Every organization is going to have to consider, can we connect differently?" he said. "Traditionally, other people we have at the church are well versed in religion but not necessarily well versed in the Internet."

Eric Siegmund designs First Baptist Church's web page at www.fbc-midland.org. He said the large church, with more than 3,000 members, has plenty of information to maintain a fresh web site daily. "We're trying to teach in as many different ways as possible to people, it's a resource for not only people who are new to our church, but also existing members," Siegmund said.

Andy Hope designs Fannin Terrace Baptist Church's page at www.fanninbaptist.org. He said the Internet is ideal for spreading faith.

"It's set up so people who are moving into the area can find out more about us," Hope said. "We're also trying to reach out to people on the Internet who don't know Christ."

It would be speculation to venture a guess on just how many churches are on the Internet worldwide, but Christianity Online (at www.christianity.net) lists more than 8,000 religious sites and 6,900 Christian church web sites nationwide. More are added everyday.

Hope said the Internet is a great way to spread the Gospel.

"You can reach so many people so easily," he said. "More and more religious organizations are using it to get their message out. It's just a tool just like people will go door to door and talk about Christ. It's a global network."

Siegmund said a key to any church web site is avoiding a site with never-changing information, or a "cobweb" in netspeak. Designers must also shy away from flashy graphics and detailed animation. That may be appropriate for commercial web sites, but doesn't work as well with a diverse church membership.

There are plenty of applications for a church site, Bash said. For example, members can keep track of a church hospital bulletin for news on ill people.

"That is what Christianity is all about, caring about other people," he said. "You can press a button to send them flowers, press a button to add them to a prayer list."

But a church web will never replace the wisdom of a church or the heartfelt sermon of a minister, Hope said.

"It will never be a replacement for the church," Hope said. "Being a Christian is not just getting the word out. It's about building a relationship with not only Christ and God but also other believers."

TEENS: Not even rain can dampen the spirits of campers, delegates

(From 1C)

57, an ordained Southern Baptist minister married to a Jewish woman, is the conference's regional director.

The 1998 session is the 10th sponsored by the Atlanta office. Students who came as "delegates," or campers, are back as counselors and advisers.

James Mills, 25, the camp's co-director, was there in 1989. "It rained every single day. It was a good three-quarters of a mile from the cabins to the meeting area," he said. "And we had a great time."

Mills has missed only one session of the camp, which has rented space at various locations over the years.

A math teacher at DeKalb County (Ga.)'s Indian Creek Elementary School, where more than half the student body is international, Mills said he uses his Anytown experience "every day."

Counselor Genevieve Colquitt, 18, was a delegate in 1996, when she was a student at Pebblebrook High School in Mableton, Georgia.

"What I realized about other people is that although we are different and go through different experiences and have different backgrounds, basically we are the same. We have the same pain, no matter where we're from," she said. "I got a lot of skeletons out of my closet."

Adviser Amy Ward, 22, a student at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, attended an Anytown in Memphis.

"When I was growing up, I was mostly surrounded by white people," said Ward, who is white.

"I didn't think of myself as prejudiced, but when I got into that group, I noticed stereotypes I had, whether they affected my direct actions or not," she said. "The opportunity to spend time with people of different backgrounds was so incredible to me. I learned so much."

At the university, she has gotten involved in political movements to promote civil rights and justice.

Through Anytown, she said, she realized "just how few people of color and women are in positions of power. I'm working to change that."

Last year, Barin Sultani, 15, came to Anytown as a camper. This year, she is Anytown's first counselor intern. Born in Afghanistan, she is a student at DeKalb County's Druid Hills High School.

As a Muslim, she said, she has had to clear up misconceptions about Muslim women. Meanwhile, she has learned about other religions and cultures.

"That's what Anytown is all about," she said. "Correcting wrongs."

KITUKU: Always hold to Christ's unchanging hand without giving up

(From 1C)

God wants to perform a greater miracle rather than a minor one.

Sometimes we may say, if He had intervened at the time we wanted Him to, then our situation would not have worsened. Jesus, on the other hand may be telling us to "take away the stone" that is hindering us from seeing the glory of God. We may be reasoning that it has taken too long for His intervention. God's timing is different from ours. He performs His will in His own time, which is always for our good irrespective of the outcome.

While waiting, there are pitfalls to avoid. We must avoid to be overly "helpful." Abram "helped" God in His plan by getting a child, Ishmael. This has led to generations of irreconcilable differences in the Middle East. Another pitfall is overstepping our boundaries. King Saul blessed his army instead of waiting for Samuel. For this, God rejected him as a king.

Hold to His unchanging hand without giving up. He will surely "show up" in His own time to fulfill His righteous purposes and to assist us in our growth as we try to understand and follow His will.

AUTOMOTIVE TODAY & Classified

Low, Wide, & Aggressive: '98 Mitsubishi 3000GT VR4 coupe

By Ken Chester, Jr.

If you are looking for the ultimate touring coupe, your search is over. Mitsubishi has built just the coupe you seek: the 3000GT VR4. Introduced to the motoring public for the 1991 model year, the 3000GT was also marketed as the Dodge Stealth from the 1991 through 1996. There is currently no other vehicle on the road that equals this Mitsubishi in value for the money. I spent a glorious week with this coupe and got very attached to it.

Extreme machine

Built in Japan and imported into the United States by Mitsubishi, the 3000 GT coupe is available in five models — from the sedate base coupe up to the warp speed VR4. Although each coupe is derived from the same basic powerplant and body structure, the automaker adds enough hardware and suspension pieces to give each a truly distinct personality.

While the 3000GT VR4 begins with the same basic 3.0L six cylinder engine as the other models, Mitsubishi adds double overhead cams, twenty-four valves, twin turbochargers, and twin intercoolers. The result of the additional hardware is to double the horsepower,— from 161 to 320 at 6,000 rpm and dramatically increase torque from 185 to 315 foot-pounds at the very low engine speed of 2,500 rpm. All this power is managed with more equipment upgrades. A six speed manual transmission is standard for the VR4, along with full time all wheel drive and a novel four wheel steering system.

At speeds above 31 mph, acceleration, braking or cornering forces on the vehicle causes a transverse, rear-mounted hydraulic cylinder to act upon the toe control links to cause toe-in, a stabilizing condition. Hydraulically linked to the front steering box, the rear cylinder responds to the various inputs from the amount of steering effort that is exerted. Although the visual impact is very small, these adjustments add to the pavement gripping force exhibited by the coupe at high speeds.

What is one to make of all this high tech wizardry? Let me just say that the 180 mph limit on the speedometer holds a certain amount of truth. The low vehicle height, wide stance and big 18 inch tires inspire extreme confidence when driving this car.

Inside the low slung coupe, the driver has a decent view of the road. Displays and controls are excellent. Creature comforts abound throughout the snug cabin. As you might suspect, rear seat room is little more than a suggestion, with a trunk that is limited to a briefcase, a piece of flat luggage and the compact spare tire. Underhood fluids in the tightly packed engine bay are hard to find and are not clearly marked.

By the numbers

Standard safety/security features include: dual front airbags, four wheel disc brakes with anti-lock, side impact door beams, limited slip differential, power assisted four wheel steering, fog lamps, anti-theft system and security system. EPA fuel economy for the 3000GT VR4 is 18 city/24 highway using premium unleaded gasoline. The retail sticker price for the Mitsubishi 3000GT VR4 starts at $46,230, with the destination charge adding $470. Supplies of this coupe are scarce so you may have to enlist your local dealer's help in locating the car of your dreams. There are no rebates.

A Way of Life

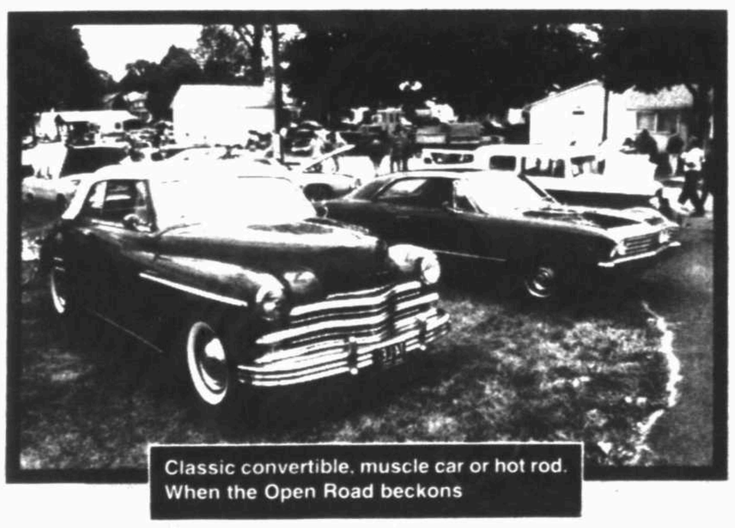
Anyone who has paid any notice to my monthly scribblings knows that I embrace automobile enthusiasm as A Way of Life. From "transportation appliance" minivan to "ego bomb" fantasy car, private vehicles are irrefutably a defining element of the American social fabric. Love 'em for the freedom they provide or hate 'em for the environmental toll they exact, it is impossible to deny the impact of the automobile on our American world. Let's take the next few moments to revel in our love of all things vehicular.

Open road

Is there a more intoxicating romance with the Open Road than riding in an open convertible - any convertible - on a warm summer evening? Fireflies flicker in the fields as the moon throws shadows. "Convertible Nights" can draw a driver 100 miles from home on a whim, making even familiar places seem exciting and full of possibilities. In cities and small towns across this wonderful and diverse nation, car lovers cruise.

Buzzing, ground - scraping Japanese imports capable of startling acceleration dart through Los Angeles traffic, new - age hot rods piloted by a new generation of young and innovative motorheads. Throughout the Southwest, "low riders" dance and jump on their polished wheels, proudly defying what a car is expected to be able to do. Candy metalflake apparitions flashing by under the street lights.

Exotic sports cars motor along beside vintage pastel VW Beetles on the "anything goes" boulevards of Miami. Customized pickup trucks and 4X4s blaze the night sky with rows of retina - searing spotlights, teetering on jacked - up suspensions . On Detroit's' Woodward Avenue and throughout the Midwest, Muscle cars are king, rumbling V-8s' fed by carburetors the size of flush toilets. In New York City, serious street racers haunt Brooklyn's Fountain Avenue, looking to score money and bragging rights by winning illegal, nocturnal contests of speed; contests that have existed since the first two "horseless carriages" met on a rutted dirt byway.



Classic convertible, muscle car or hot rod. When the Open Road beckons

Giving Thanks

And right now, in the town where you live, someone just started their car. Perhaps they are going to work, to a wedding, or to the corner to pick up a newspaper. We should all give thanks that we are able to take such mobility for granted. Rapid, unregulated, and unfettered movement of the masses drives social engineers nuts. Maybe for that reason alone we should all just go for a ride.

Compact Pickup: '98 Isuzu Hombre XS 4x4 Space Cab

Roadworthy

By Ken Chester, Jr.

If there is one part of the red hot truck market that has seen any sort of slow down in demand lately, its has been the Compact Truck segment. Although it has continued to improve down through the years with better features, more options, and improved performance — it has come at the cost of higher prices — placing high end models in competition with some full size pickups. I have had the opportunity to peek in on this segment in order to see if the magic is still there. Here is what I found out.

A Class Act

Isuzu is the smallest Japanese automaker to own and operate an automotive assembly plant in the United States. Its Indiana plant owned and operated jointly with Subaru in West Lafeyette, was the principal source of Isuzu pickups in recent years. Confronted with rising demand for other vehicles built at that facility, Isuzu decided to source the pickup truck from a company which owns a sizable share of its stock — General Motors.

Starting in the 1996 model year, the Isuzu Pup pickup was replaced by the Isuzu Hombre, a truck based on the Chevrolet S-10. The result was the new found ability to market a much improved product while being able to generate a decent supply. Available in S or XS trim, two or four wheel drive, and Regular or Space Cab configurations, Isuzu has attempted to cover most of the of the compact truck marketplace.

Buyers also have a choice of two GM built powertrains: a 2.2L four-cylinder or 4.3L V-6 joined to a five speed manual or four-speed automatic transmission. The four cylinder engine makes 120 horses at 5,000 rpm and 140 ft-lbs of torque at 3,600 rpm. The six cylinder engine generates 175 horses for the two wheel drive models and 180 horses for the four wheel drive models at 4,400 rpm and 240 ft-lbs of torque at 2,800 rpm. With the exception of the front grille and some exterior moldings, the Isuzu models are lifted whole from the Chevrolet lineup, built in GM's Shreveport, Louisiana plant. I test drove a top-of-the line Hombre Space Cab XS 4x4 V6.

The GM-built 4.3L V-6/four-speed automatic drivetrain was smooth, willing and flawless. The Hombre actually drove and handled more like a midsize sedan than a truck. Displays and controls were excellent, with nice fabrics used throughout the interior. This truck benefits from much of the forward technology found in the S-10 pickup: five year radiator coolant, 100,000 mile spark plugs, sealed for life transmission fluid. About the only gripes that I could muster are not about the truck directly, but about what GM chose to keep to itself. The Hombre does not offer GM's third door option. The Isuzu has a maximum payload of upto 1,538 pounds and can tow a trailer weighing upto 5,500 pounds when properly equipped.

By the numbers

Standard safety features include: dual front airbags, four wheel anti-lock brakes, daytime running lamps, and side-guard door beams. Traction control or a limited slip axle are not available. EPA fuel economy ranges from 22 city/28 highway for the two wheel drive, four cylinder, five speed manual to 16 city/21 highway for the four wheel drive, six cylinder, automatic. Retail sticker prices range from $11,449 for the basic S regular cab to $21,007 for the XS Space Cab 4x4 V6 automatic model. Destination charge adds $485. Although there are no customer rebates currently available, Isuzu has always been an aggressive truck retailer. Supplies of the Hombre are good.

310 General Help Wanted

Dear Mark & Dale:
I read in your column about a guy named Gary who worked in an auto dealership. One of the things Mark told him was that workers can become too valuable to promote. That's where I believe I fit in. I have a new boss who is not familiar with the business. I applied for a promotion, but was told I'm not qualified. I understand that it would benefit the company for me to remain in my current position, because it may not be able to find a proper successor. Any advice?—Bill

DALE: When Mark offered his "too good" theory, I was skeptical. Still am. If you're indispensable, then management would be foolish NOT to promote you—it couldn't risk alienating you & having you leave. Better to promote you & have you hire, train & support your replacement.

MARK: Who said that promotions were logical? But I think we can agree on this much: The Old Workplace had an implicit assumption that part of management's job was to give promotions. The New Workplace dictates that it's up to the employees to get the promotions.

DALE: Still, in the New Workplace, just as in the old, there are occasions when a job opens up & management has to choose. People in technical positions assume that the boss should be the best technician... not always true.

MARK: There's an expression in the computer world for the most knowledgeable technical person: the "Alpha Geek". That person is hard to promote because the company doesn't want to compromise its technical expertise.

DALE: You're assuming the problem is with the "Alpha"; I think it's with the "Geek." Being a great specialist doesn't necessarily prepare you to be a manager.

MARK: And there's the answer to Bill's problem. He has to prepare to be a manager, & do it in such a way as to let upper management know that he isn't content to stay in his current job. And since it already placed a new manager above him, all Bill can do at this point is to go to that new manager & say, "I would like to create a personal career management plan, and I would love your help. I was passed over for promotion, & now I'd like to develop the skills or attitudes I need to make me qualified to move up. I need a mentor to help monitor my progress, & I'm hoping that you will help."

DALE: That seems like a lot to ask of a new manager. But, if Bill is lucky, his new boss is one of the enlightened ones, the secure kind who are always training their replacements, always preparing to move up. And perhaps they'll help one another move up in unison.

MARK: Or, if Bill gets rebuffed, he can start his own self-advancement campaign, getting out, looking for mentors at other companies, making himself available for new & better situations. Remember, Bill: It's your career ... promote it.

Dear Mark & Dale:
If a job listing online asks for a resume, should a cover letter be inserted also? How long should one wait before giving a company a courtesy call after mailing out a resume'? —Rea

MARK: Yes.
DALE: Two weeks.
MARK: Next question.
DALE: We thought we'd demonstrate how "just the facts" can feel a bit abrupt & impersonal. The point being this: A resume sent off by itself can seem like a "product specifications" page. I know that cover letters may seem like a waste of time, like mere "packaging." But a smart marketer knows the importance of packaging—it's an opportunity to "position" yourself. And just because it's online doesn't change that opportunity. In fact, scrolling down your letter may provide a better chance to catch the eye of the reader than flipping over the traditional paper cover letter.
MARK: And here's a principle to remember: Less is more. The shorter the cover letter, the more likely it is to get read. Instead of a list of adjectives about how perfect you are, think of your cover letter as a kind of "home page". It greets readers & tells them what to look for. And it also tells them what to look forward to—a call from you in a week or two.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, July 11, 1998:
Money and partnerships mix this year. You become more skilled in finances and personal communications. Sometimes, and more often than before, a certain partner surprises you with his reactions. Share your opinions, but be prepared to tone them down somewhat. Awareness of new choices and different styles opens you up enormously. Your willingness to express yourself assures success. If you are single, you are very likely to meet someone enticing and exotic. If attached, romance grows because of your newfound vulnerability. AQUARIUS helps you root out problems.

BORN TODAY
Singer Debbie Harry (1945), guitarist Richie Sambora (1959), former boxer Leon Spinks (1953)

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ You wake up to surprises, then confusion sets in. You replan your day because of a special person. Letting your social whims dominate makes for greater closeness. Accept spontaneity and sudden invitations. Tonight: The hooting and howling could go on until the wee hours.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Be careful when answering the telephone. A request comes from someone whom you feel you can't refuse. The pros and cons are many, but be aware of what you are doing to your weekend. Establish how much of your time you want to be available for someone. Tonight: In the limelight.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Others surprise you with their news. Take off, and do exactly what you want. Ultimately, you only have to answer to yourself. Confusion surrounds plans, as someone backs out or wants to do something else. Go with the flow; you'll love the results. Tonight: Someone shows his love in a unique way.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ A close associate delights you. Do not count on funds yet to be received, or you could be disappointed. Recognize your liabilities, and stay out of the red. Discover less expensive ways to amuse yourself. Caring flows. Tonight: Be with that special person.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Understand more of what is going on with others. They could be in a tizzy, having a difficult time seeing situations for what they are. Laugh at the unexpected, and work with changes. Your easy nature wins you someone's confidence. Tonight: Dance the night away.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Stay level with others. Your natural inclination to worry manifests itself. Take a walk or a trip to the gym. When you reduce stress, you become much more nurturing. Efficiency is tested. Make time for a friend later in the day. Tonight: Indulge in the good life.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Others' chaotic behavior bewilders you. You might not be sure about which way you are going. Laugh, lighten up and let out the child in you. You have a good time, no matter what goes on. Someone expresses how much he cares. Tonight: Let a flirtation build.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Make time to visit with family. Someone you put on a pedestal has a different agenda. Don't get confused; just do what you want. In exchange, a close partner thanks you in a special way. Work with the unexpected. You are learning a lot about yourself. Tonight: Entertain at home.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Understand what is happening with a friend. If he is acting oddly, it is because he feels strange. Give him plenty of space. Confusion surrounds communication, but then you can scarcely say you are bored. Laughter and humor pay off. Tonight: Have a ball wherever you are!
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Expenses could be somewhat out of whack. Be willing to listen to feedback from someone who might have more insight than you do. Creativity and discussions come to your rescue. Realize limits. Opt to put in overtime or drum up money in a new, creative way. Tonight: Keep expenses down.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Playfulness marks the next few days. But someone might find your idea of fun offensive. Criticism could be the result. Prepare to make a decision here. A child or loved one shows his adoration in a way that means a lot to you. Tonight: Play the night away!
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Your nerves are fried from recent developments. Listen to a coworker who could be cranky. You discover there are many different ways to deal with a specific problem. For now, do for yourself. The picture changes, once you feel better. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep.

Guests gush over Streisand wedding

NEW YORK — Barbra Streisand's wedding is getting rave reviews.

Guests told People magazine that the ceremony uniting Ms. Streisand and actor James Brolin was the most romantic wedding they had ever seen.

Strolling violinists serenaded guests at Ms. Streisand's Malibu estate, composer Marvin Hamlisch conducted a 16-piece orchestra, and the air was filled with the fragrance of 200 lilies of the valley, 500 gardenias, 2,500 stephanotis blossoms and 4,000 roses. Guests were greeted with Irish pipe music upon arrival, and sampled lemonade, sushi and ricotta-filled blintzes.

"It was probably the most beautiful wedding I've been to," John Travolta said.

Donna Karan flew in from New York City to attend to the bride, whose wedding dress was a gift from the designer.

After a short ceremony, the bride and groom engaged in "just a really incredible kiss," said the groom's sister Sue Desper.

Many guests agreed that the highlight came when Ms. Steisand sang two love songs.

"It was something no movie could capture," Streisand friend Joanne Segel said.

NEW YORK — Ben Affleck is still worried that all fame is fleeting.

"I just so hate the idea of achieving something and losing it," he said in the August issue of Premiere magazine. "That's the definition of a has-been."

Affleck, currently starring in "Armageddon," shot to the top when he shared an Oscar for the "Good Will Hunting" screenplay.

"I also know that this success I'm having is nothing permanent," he said. "I have this huge fear that I'll end up 55 and broke and unable to support my wife and kids."

Ben Affleck is worried about becoming a 'has-been.'

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Now that apartheid is long gone in South Africa, the playwright whose works often reflected moral outrage at his nation's policies is turning to more personal subjects.

Athol Fugard's play "The Captain's Tiger" is based on his stint as a merchant seaman when he was a young man. It makes its West Coast debut Sunday at the La Jolla Playhouse.

"I've known that there was a story in that period of my life for a long time," Fugard said in Thursday's Orange County Register.

"But it was only (after) recent events in South Africa — the demise of apartheid and the huge change in the political situation — that I felt liberated enough to turn to personal stories."

Fugard's plays such as "Master Harold ... and the Boys," "Sizwe Banzi is Dead," "The Blood Knot" and "My Children! My Africa!" brought the brutality of apartheid to the world's attention.

"My whole relationship to my society has undergone quite a radical change," Fugard said. "I no longer feel a sort of moral obligation to examine the significance of whatever story I'm going to tell.

NEW YORK — Movie stars Uma Thurman and Ethan Hawke have new long-running roles: parents.

The newlyweds have a daughter, Maya, born Wednesday in New York. She weighed in at 7 pounds, 11 ounces.

Ms. Thurman and Hawke, both 28, were wed May 1 in New York.

She will be seen this summer in the movie "The Avengers." He stars in "Snow Falling on Cedars," set for release in the fall.

Uma Thurman and Ethan Hawke have a new daughter.

LOS ANGELES — Francis Ford Coppola hopes the $80 million he's been awarded in his lawsuit against Warner Bros. will change some things in the movie-making business.

Coppola, who already had been awarded $20 million in compensatory damages, was granted another $60 million in punitive damages Thursday in his 1995 lawsuit that accused Warner Bros. of stealing his screenplay for a feature-length "Pinocchio" film.

"Warner Bros. has traditionally not treated its creative people well," Coppola said. "Hopefully, this will teach them to treat creative people as an asset, not as serfs."

The studio said the latest award was "simply ludicrous." A Warner Bros. spokeswoman said the studio would appeal.

Coppola, director of the "Godfather" trilogy, said the studio thwarted his dream by threatening to sue any other studio that tried to produce the project, which it eventually dropped.
