Five Killed When Train Hits Auto; Fire Fatal For Two

DEATH STRIKES SEVEN WHILE OTHERS HURT

Grade Crossing Accident Takes Heavy Toll Near Beaumont

WOMAN CRITICAL

Rooming House Blaze Traps Guests and Threatens Many Occupants

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 17. (AP)—Five persons were killed and four others were critically injured when their automobile was struck by a south bound Kansas City Southern passenger train on a grade crossing near Nederland, 10 miles south of here late today. The dead:

Clyde Woodward of Port Neches, engineer for an oil company.

Mrs. Pauline Woodward, wife of Clyde Woodward.

Mrs. Leon Brown of Kountze, also a sister of Mrs. Woodward.

Juanita, 3, and Clyde Jr., 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. Woodward.

Stalled on Track

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward and Mrs. Brown were instantly killed and their bodies were brought to a Beaumont undertaking establishment. Miss Mattie Lee Freeman, 25, of Woodville, sister of Mrs. Woodward, and three small children of Mrs. Brown, Elizabeth, 6, Effie Jewel, 10, and Addie May, 5, were removed to a Port Arthur hospital, where physicians said Miss Freeman probably would die.

Attendants at a filling station declared the automobile came to a stop on the railroad track, apparently stalled, when it was struck by the train.

The car was lifted up at the crossing, and was carried approximately 10 yards along the track. Guard rails on either side were smashed to bits. The car was thrown clear of the train at a gradually sloping embankment.

TWO DIE IN DALLAS ROOMING HOUSE FIRE

DALLAS, May 17. (UP)—Two men were burned to death and three other persons severely injured here today in an early morning fire that wrecked a two-story frame rooming house. The deaths brought the fatalities from fire in Dallas this year to 24.

The dead:

John Burge Middlebrook, 68, a butcher.

Oscar Phillips, 45, of Picher, Okla.

The injured:

Mrs. Lyde Taylor, 40; James Taylor, 50, and Henry Sprink, 30. They have cuts, bruises and sprains.

Middlebrook apparently died as he felt his way through a smoke-filled corridor on the second floor. His charred body was found near the door.

Phillips was severely burned on the body and died several hours after the fire. He escaped from the burning dwelling by climbing down a tree in the rear yard.

Three Airmen Die Following Crash

BURBANK, Calif., May 17. (INS)—Three men died today from injuries and burns suffered when their mail plane en route from San Diego to Oakland crashed 200 feet near the United airport here and burst into flames.

They were Harry Crandall, 30, pilot; John Johnson, 28, a pilot, and Harry Christenson, 25, airplane radio operator, who were riding as passengers. Jonnson and Shristenson were instantly killed. Crandall died later in a hospital.

Nearly all of the mail cargo was destroyed by the fire.

Patman Charges Congress Not Fair to Plain People

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—Plain people do not receive the consideration from congress they deserve, Rep. Wright Patman, Democrat of Texas, told the house rules committee today in asking for a special rule to permit a vote on cash payment of the soldiers' bonus in the house at this session.

The congressional "system" makes it easier for banks and railroads to obtain a hearing than the masses, he said.

The End of 'Easy Money' Road

A GLITTERING New York night club, filled with merry-makers. The tinkle of glasses. The seductive strains of a dance band . . . Then, into the room burst two bandits, guns in hand. "Stick 'em up—all of you!" Visions of pilfered jewelry, a rifled cash box, sudden wealth . . . Sounds glamorous, doesn't it? But, the picture below shows you how glamorous it was—!

Blood-spattered, his clothes torn, his face a picture of anguish, 19-year-old Charles Rezoagali is seen being dragged from the scene of his hold-up attempt. It was the grim aftermath of a fierce gun battle in which 50 shots were fired, a patron seriously wounded, two patrolmen injured—and Rezoagali and a companion captured. F. D. PICKS UP 14 DELEGATES

Montana and New Mexico Back Roosevelt

(By The Associated Press)

Two more western states—Montana and New Mexico—instructed their delegates to vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday and boosted to 396 the New York governor's delegate total for the Democratic nomination.

In state conventions Montana gave Roosevelt eight votes and New Mexico gave him six.

Alfred E. Smith, leader of the Roosevelt opposition, jumped from fourth to second place in the race for delegates by gaining 16 instructed votes from Connecticut and 32 claimed votes in the New Jersey primary. His instructed, pledged and claimed total was raised to 94.

President Hoover picked up 35 claimed votes in the New Jersey primary and 11 pledged in a Montana convention.

Roosevelt has five or six of Connecticut's delegates favorable to his candidacy, but under the instructions, they can not vote for him unless Smith releases them.

The New Yorker was expected by his managers to corral a score or more delegates today in South Carolina, Vermont and the District of Columbia, the latter selecting six in a primary and the two former choosing 18 and 8, respectively, in conventions.

'Mud Jack' Machine Starts Work Today To Level Highway Pavement

Wichitans will have the opportunity of seeing in action one of the newest mechanical aids for use in improving existing pavement Wednesday, when a "mud jack" is put to work on Holliday road at the Haven park entrance, it was announced Tuesday night by D. M. Puckett, division engineer of the state highway department.

The mud jack is a new device which levels out rough places in pavement, Mr. Puckett explained. The device has been in use in Dallas for the past year and at Abilene for six months. The machine brought to Wichita Falls is one of the newest bought by the state.

Several stretches of pavement on Holliday road are as much as four and a half inches below level and the machine will be demonstrated over a 70-foot section by Charles A. Clark of Dallas, representative of the distributing company. The mud jack is a hydraulic lift, forcing cement, water and earth under the pavement at low points, Mr. Puckett explained.

The machine is regarded as a success and will first be placed in operation, after the demonstration, on the highway to Seymour, and later on other roads in the district.

YOUNG COUNTY WELL PROMISES BIG PRODUCTION

King-Windfohr No. 1 Lowe Encounters Grey Lime At 3840 Feet

PREPARE FOR GUSHER

Test Is Located Five Miles Northeast of Famous McCloud Well

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

King Royalty company and Bob Windfohr No. 1 Lowe, located in block 15, section 3412, T. E. & L. survey in Young county, has encountered the grey lime formation at a depth of 3840 feet and is showing a heavy gas flow and spraying considerable oil.

The well, which is located seven miles northeast of the city of Graham, is about five miles northeast of the famous Nash & Windfohr No. 1 McCloud well which came in a little over two years ago as a record well in North Texas with a daily flow of 25,000 barrels. The formation in the King-Windfohr is of the grey porous lime from which the big gusher received its production, the lime being encountered about 20 feet higher than it was picked up in the McCloud well.

This test, which is also a south offset to the Dewey Knox producer in block 7, same location, was started to the 2753 foot pay from which the Knox well is producing, but after a slight show in this pay drilling continued to 3840 feet where the new formation was encountered. This formation was barely scratched as no preparations had been made for a surprise production. Wednesday a string of 5 3-16 inch pipe will be run and cemented, and later the lime will be drilled into. Tuesday considerable interest was being taken by the oil fraternity in the Graham area and the outcome of further operations will be watched with the keenest interest.

The Nash and Windfohr gusher, which has produced more than 1,000,000 barrels of oil, was the sensation of the industry for two weeks. Unexpectedly hitting the big production, the operators were not prepared to care for the oil and gas and the well ran wild several days.

Texas Farmer Needs But $5 Of R. F. C.

DALLAS, May 17. (AP)—A 77-year-old farmer has the distinction of being the most conservative of all the 30,000 agriculturists who obtained financial aid from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the Southwest region.

W. A. Wigley, tilling his acres of corn and sweet potatoes near Roganville in Jasper county, Texas, decided a $5 loan would be all he needed from the government agency. He got the money and will use it to fertilize his land.

Owen Sherrill, regional seed loan office manager, said Wigley's loan was the smallest issued in Texas, New Mexico or Arizona. It was 20 cents under the one granted earlier to an Indian farmer in Arizona.

Negro's Leg Amputated After Foundry Accident

Jefferson Tucker, negro employe of the Wichita Falls Foundry and Machine company at 307 Barwise, suffered the loss of his left leg Tuesday afternoon when a freight car loaded with sand ran over him at the company plant. The leg was amputated above the knee Tuesday night and physicians said amputation at the hip would be necessary later. He was taken to the Wichita General hospital in a Hines ambulance.

The negro and two companions were unloading the car of sand and moved it. When the car rolled too far, Tucker ran in front of it in an attempt to place a bar in front of the wheels to stop it, and fell across the track.

BURK SENIORS HEAR PAT NEFF

Diplomas Received by 41 At Commencement

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, May 17—Every individual is the creator of the world in which he lives, is the master of his future, Pat M. Neff, state railroad commissioner and former governor of Texas, told 41 graduates of the Burkburnett High school here tonight in making the commencement address.

Mr. Neff, who will assume the presidency of Baylor university next year, advised his youthful listeners to seek personality above worldly gain. He urged that they continue, for a time at least, the pursuit of knowledge, which he termed the nourishment of the soul.

Makes Own World

The statesman took as his commencement address theme "We Are What We Are; We Are What We Think."

"Personality can not be seen," he said. "Like love, it can not be defined. It is what we are stripped of the camouflage which all men wear. It is generated within and is radiated without.

"Man is the sum total of his thoughts. You make your world and you must live in that world.

"We are the representatives of our unfolding thoughts. You will be what you read, thought suffered, aspired.

"Possessions can not be substituted for personality. Possessions contribute nothing to character, and hence, nothing to personality.

"Our thoughts, through personality, become known to the world. The soul of man must be nourished as is the body. Education is that nourishment.

"Be Glad To Pay"

"Keep your spirit in tune with what you do. Personality requires a great price. Be glad to pay that price."

Five students were given scholarship awards during the program. C. J. Duncan, principal of the high school, officiated and presented the honor students with pins offered by the Burkburnett Rotary club.

Matthew Tucker received a bronze pin for having made a B average grade during the past year. A silver pin was presented to Susan Self for having made a similar grade for two years. Alma and Bertha Meyer, sisters, who were the graduating class' valedictorian and

SENATE BEGINS WRITING HUGE TAX MEASURE

Unusual Speed Marks Work On Preparations For Revenue Bill

OIL LEVY VOTED

LaFollette and Couzens To Propose Higher Rates On Incomes

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—In an unusual burst of speed, the senate actually began writing the new $1,030,000,000 tax bill late today.

Without record votes, the finance committee's income and corporation taxes were approved within the space of a few minutes.

Action was so fast at times that senators had difficulty in following the reading of various amendments by the clerk.

All amendments to the income, estate and gift taxes were rejected. The senate then began the battle on the excise taxes with a test on restoration of a general sales tax impending.

Tax on Oil

The senate approved the committee's amendments on capital net gains and added an amendment providing a five per cent depreciation for coal mines.

A tax of four cents per gallon on lubricating oil, estimated to bring $35,000,000 in revenue was also voted.

Senator Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, who voted against the general manufacturers tax in committee, urged the senate to dispose of the sales tax at once saying it would avoid confusion later on. He remarked that it would be futile for the senate to adopt a sales tax since "it was impossible to put it over in the house."

Senator Moses, Republican of New Hampshire, challenged Harrison's statement saying:

"That shouldn't stop us from supporting a tax which we know will be productive, equitable and easy to administer. I don't believe that the house in its present chastened mood would reject the sales tax."

In connection with the income taxes Senators LaFollette and Couzens served notice they would bring up the proposal for higher rates for reconsideration.

Income Tax Schedule

The new normal taxes are three per cent on the first $4,000 of net income, six per cent on the second $4,000, and nine per cent on the remainder. The rates are double present law, exemptions were lowered to $1,000 for single persons, and $2,500 for married couples. The house normal taxes were two, four and seven per cent.

Surtaxes start at one per cent on incomes between $6,000 and $10,000 and scale upward to 45 per cent in excess of $1,000,000. This is more than double the present maximum surtax and five per cent above the house schedule.

Before adopting the committee recommendations the senate rejected by substantial margins amendments by Senators Connally of Texas and Long of Louisiana, both Democrats, to levy surtaxes ranging from 55 to 65 per cent, while also boosting the lowest normal rates.

The corporation tax was fixed at 14 per cent, instead of 12 per cent at present.

Doumer's Assassin Blames Drunkenness

PARIS, May 17. (AP)—Dr. Paul Gorgulov, who assassinated President Paul Doumer, told an examining magistrate today he was in a "kind of hypnotic sleep" when he committed the crime.

"A mystic force armed my hand," he said. "I had no reason whatever to murder M. Doumer. I was in a kind of hypnotic sleep."

Gorgulov informed Magistrate Fougery that he drank a bottle of cognac before going to the war veterans' charity exhibition where he shot the president.

"When the president entered the room," he said, "I fired without hesitation, not knowing what I was doing."

He said he could tell nothing about the gun he used because he was too drunk to remember anything about it.

Searching Parties Prepare To Ascend Mt. McKinley To Rescue Explorer

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 17. (US)—Searching parties were being organized today for a perilous ascent of the treacherous Muldrow glacier on Mt. McKinley in the hope of rescuing another missing member of the ill-fated Beckwith "cosmic ray" expedition.

The searchers, directed by Harry J. Liek, superintendent of Mt. McKinley National park and a skilled mountain climber, will also attempt to recover and bring back for burial the bodies of the two members of the expedition who are known to have lost their lives—Theodore Koven of Jersey City and Allen Carpe of New York.

The fate of a third member of the expedition, Nicholas Spadavaccia, New York engineer, was cast in doubt after the dramatic rescue of the expedition's leader, E. P. Beckwith, by plane from the glacier.

Beckwith, in a critical condition after six days' acute suffering from a mysterious abdominal ailment contracted in the rare atmosphere of Mt. McKinley's twin peaks, told how Spadavaccia had been missing for five days.

Spadavaccia, he fears, has slipped to the bottom of a crevasse in the glacier—perhaps to death, perhaps merely to injury that leaves him helpless and suffering.

Norfolk 'Negotiator' Blames Mental Lapse For Great Deception

Virginia Boat Builder Admits Lucrative Offers of Newsreels and Papers Caused Him to Fabricate Whole Story of Search for Baby

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 17.—John Hughes Curtis, bankrupt Norfolk boat builder today confessed he conceived and executed a vicious hoax in which the return of the Lindbergh baby, alive, was promised the child's parents.

Spurred by the hope of heavy financial returns from news reels and newspapers, Curtis drew on a vivid imagination to enact the spectacular melodrama involving a mystery ship and a gang of brilliant desperadoes, with himself as the central figure—and hero.

His colossal web of lies broke today beneath the hard hammering of the New Jersey officials, and tonight he stood revealed as the most stupendous faker since Dr. Frederick Cook of unsavory north pole fame.

Story Entirely False

From beginning to end the creatures of whom he told so glibly, the gangsters with whom he conferred in "dangerous dives," the seagoing "criminals" who signalled him by radio, the phantom ship that was supposed to have the Lindbergh child aboard—all were figments of his brain.

Yet, so convincingly had he painted the atmosphere around these characters, that reputable citizens of Norfolk, a minister of the Episcopal church, a retired rear admiral, and scores of responsible business men had been convinced he was telling the truth.

PEACOCK CALLED

TRENTON, N. J., May 17. (AP)—It was learned from an authoritative source tonight that a request had been dispatched from the attorney general's office to Dean H. Dobson-Peacock at Norfolk, Va., asking if he could come here "voluntarily" for questioning on the Lindbergh case.

A state trooper was directed to follow John Hughes Curtis and not permit the Norfolk man to leave his sight at the Lindbergh home.

And towards the end of the "search" he staged deliberately over the coastal waters along the North Atlantic shores, even the once-skeptical Colonel Lindbergh and his advisers had come to accept his story as containing the elements of truth.

Gives Whole Truth

Today his pretenses collapsed. Tangled by discrepancies in his story, discrepancies hitherto brushed away as merely "a part of the puzzle," he sat down at a typewriter and himself gave the authorities the truth—the truth they had suspected but had been unable to prove.

Why did he perpetrate this hoax—the second one to subject the Lindberghs to hope and pain?

"A very lucrative offer was made for pictures concerning his activity."

When Curtis informed police, on March 9, eight days after the kidnaping, that he had had a conference with men he believed to be the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., he had not expected his connection would expand into its sensational importance.

"Fame" Too Much

Then, when a host of newspaper men, camera men, magazine writers, film company representatives and others of the world of publicity descended upon him, and when his fellow townspeople turned to him as a public hero, his ego, his vanity, and his hope for material gain persuaded him to build the monstrous tissue of untruths in which he finally was trapped.

The explosion of his pretenses came this afternoon. The denouement was as dramatic as anything the faking dramatist had conceived himself. Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, in the deliberate words that are characteristic of his official bulletins, told of the confession.

"At 4 a. m., this morning, Schwartzkopf said, "John H. Curtis sat down to a typewriter and himself wrote a complete confession concerning his activities in this case.

"He stated that the boat and all the people to whom he had been referring were creations of his own mind and did not exist in fact.

Lucrative Offers

"Shortly after the kidnaping Mr. Curtis told a story about having a conference with the kidnapers. A newspaper representative, according to Mr. Curtis' statement, made a very lucrative offer for his story to be given exclusively to that paper.

"Also, according to the Curtis statement, a very lucrative offer was made by another newspaper and film company for pictures concerning his activity.

"This stirred Mr. Curtis on to greater activities. Mr. Curtis also said that Dean Peacock (the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, of Christ church, Norfolk) could have prevented his unfortunate part in this enormous deception.

"Admiral Burrage merely presented to Colonel Lindbergh the story as he had heard it, making no recommendations but permitting it to stand on its merits.

Integrity Vouched

"Reputable citizens and officials frequently vouched to Colonel Lindberg for the integrity of Mr. Curtis, stating that his word could be relied upon. This made the deception so much easier. He has been a Norfolk shipbuilder, prominent in a community. Recently his business was reported not so profitable.

"The story of Mr. Curtis resulted in the very widespread activity of the coast guard and other federal

John Curtis' 'Tall Tales'

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 17. (AP)—The official text of the confession of John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk "intermediary" in the Lindbergh case follows:

"Made of my own hand and own free will. Referring to the two statements made previously by me in regard to Lindbergh case. At the present time I am sane but I honestly believe that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself due to financial troubles.

"I was apparently brought back to my senses by my telephone conversation with my wife this afternoon when she told me of the troubles she was having and how the children missed me, also of my conversation with Inspector Harry Walsh.

"I desire to state that my remarks about the newspapers are true and can be verified, this is in reference to my story about Mr. Haskell and Mr. Wilcox of The Herald Tribune.

"Mr. Lee of The News and Mr. Twin and Fox offered me money for my knowledge of the Lindbergh case or pictures of the baby.

"The matter was brought to my attention during a conversation and due to what I now believe was a distorted mind by brooding over it, I became insane on the subject for the time being, which caused me to create the story in its entirety which was untrue in every respect.

Didn't Know Persons

"I never knew such people that I named to Colonel Lindbergh, they were creatures of a distorted mind with the exception of Marie Truesdale who had no connection with the crime.

"I exceedingly regret that I caused Colonel Lindbergh and others any inconvenience, worry and injustice I did him in his time of grief.

"This statement has been brought about by the realization of the wrong I have done.

"Submitted:
"John Hughes Curtis.
"Witnesses:
"Lieut. A. T. Keaton and Inspector Harry Walsh, made at 4:35 a. m., May 17."

Additional Statements

Additional statements of Curtis concerning his part in the Lindbergh case:

To Capt. J. J. Lamb, state police, and Frank Wilson, federal agent:

"The following is the story as far as I can remember as to my connections in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

"It started on the night of March 9. A man who I called Sam came to see me down at the Norfolk Country club. There had been a storm recently and a meeting was called of all the yacht club to see about building a yacht. This man Sam had an old Hudson car and he came up on the running board of my car and I said 'What are you doing here?' and he said 'I came to see you.' And I said 'What is the matter? Are you in bad again?'

"And I pulled over to the side of the road and Paul Carr and James Walker mentioned later that they saw the man on the running board. Sam then said 'Don't get sore' and swore me to absolute secrecy.

"And I said, 'What is it? What is so important,' then he told me that there were two people who had approached him and he told me about the whole transaction as to the kidnaping saying that he was sent down by two men to see if he could get in touch with Colonel Lindbergh and I said it was impossible for me to get in touch with the colonel as he must have a million people bothering him at this time and I said 'I could wring your neck right now.' So he then went on back and I promised him I would think the matter over and he should get in touch with me the next morning.

Calls on Clergyman

"So he called me early the next morning and after I had talked the agencies in seeking the fictitious boat he has described.

"It has further resulted in many official airplane trips and auto trips as well as keeping Colonel Lindbergh away from his home and activities during the most important phases of this case, in pursuit of fictitious clues.

Police Check Story

"Four days ago, when Mr. Curtis came to police headquarters, the police authorities at this point started questioning him and checking his story. The result of this check on his story and the questioning of Mr. Curtis was terminated at 4 o'clock this morning with his complete confession that all the information he had given was the result of his imagination and deception as well as his desire to make a good newspaper story, that would bring lucrative returns, and that there was no fact or foundation on which the story was built."

Schwartzkopf announced, at the time he issued his bulletin, that Curtis had not been placed under arrest.

The beginning of Curtis' wild melodrama was simple. He told officials that he had made a contact with certain characters—believed at that time to be associated with the rum fleet that hovers off the Atlantic coast—and that these men had attempted to enter into negotiations with him. They wanted $50,000, he said.

Something about Curtis' story failed to ring true. But his record was that of a fairly substantial citizen of Norfolk, despite the fact that his financial affairs had not flourished in recent years. And then he enlisted, as a "front" for his hoax, the dean of Christ Episcopal church and a retired naval officer of unimpeachable integrity and character, to further his claims.

"Plots" Grew

Day by day the circumstances of his "plot" grew until they reached such proportions that imagination ran out of bounds, and the affair took on the appearance of a melodrama, so astounding as to be unbelievable.

Meanwhile the proceedings of "Jafsie," Dr. John F. Condon of the Bronx, which resulted in payment of $50,000 by Colonel Lindbergh for the return of his child—probably already lying dead on Mount Rose hill—were revealed.

Disclosure of this hoax did not deter John Hughes Curtis. He wove the circumstances into his own story, moulding them to conform to his own weird tale.

Made Story Fit Case

"They showed me part of the ransom money they had obtained from Jafsie," he told police. "They said they were afraid to use it because the serial numbers of the bills were known. That is why they want real money that can't be traced."

The Jafsie phase fitted into his purpose perfectly.

Then came the finding of the body. Again this did not result in a break in the threads of the tangled skein. Curtis insisted that the case must have become one of extortion—that there was a baby on board his mystery ship when he first "made a contact with it," and that on his second visit to the ship the baby was not there. So, for a few days, he remained untripped in his fantastic story.

Tremendous Drive

But his activities had resulted in federal authorities, in the hurried flight to mysterious spots. Of planes hastily procured from the navy department, of a scurrying over the north Atlantic waters by a host of naval and coast guard vessels.

Announcement of Curtis' confession was followed shortly afterward by news of a collateral tragedy—Rear Admiral Frederick G. Billard, a tremendous drive by state and commandant of the coast guard who, from a sick bed, had directed his great force's search for Curtis' mystery ship, died this afternoon in Washington. And during the delirium of his last hours he had muttered constantly of the kidnaping.

Yacht Offered

Meanwhile, his friend, Col. Charles Consolvo, millionaire hotel owner of Baltimore and Norfolk, had become so impressed with Curtis' straightforward appearance that he freely turned over to him the yacht Marcon and—at a cost of $1,100 a day—ordered it into the search that Curtis knew in advance would be futile.

By this time, willing to take any chance, however remote, that would result in the restoration of his child, Colonel Lindbergh had given Curtis authority to proceed with his "negotiations," and the sum of $50,000 was held in escrow to be used when the baby was returned.

Seven times the Marcon put to sea, under command of Capt. Frank H. Lackmann, its skipper, who was convinced as were all the rest that Curtis was on the track either of the kidnapers or of a band of criminals associated with the case.

But the phantom ship always was out of reach, always lost in the fog, or "frightened away by vessels of the United States navy." Disappointment and excuses, followed by still another voyage to nowhere.

Beset by storm and fog, the 86-foot pleasure yacht patrolled the Maryland, Virginia and Delaware coasts. Curtis had concocted a series of "signals" by which the kidnapers' ship was to be known. One of them was the exposure of two white towels on its deck house.

On one occasion the marine glasses of Captain Lackmann picked up such a "signal"—but it was merely a white shirt, hanging to the shrouds of an innocent schooner.

Back and forth the yacht Marcon wove a pattern of crosses on the water. It steamed for 15 minutes one way, and then 15 minutes back. It covered every point of the compass, so that its crew could have picked up any vessel within a 64-mile radius. But no schooner appeared.

Curtis "Explains"

More explanations from Curtis. "The kidnapers were frightened. The presence of airplanes overhead scared them away," he said.

Back in port, he pretended to hold new conferences with the gang. There were mysterious telephone calls up and down the coast, each night to a different station, he announced. He was being directed by short wave radio—500 meters, he said—operated from the mystery ship "which could send instructions but which was not equipped for receiving."

With the finding of the body of Lindbergh's son at Mount Rose the naval search of localities mentioned as a possible rendezvous by Curtis was intensified.

A fleet of 75 vessels, ranging from rum chasers to cruisers, cooperated to cover every square mile of sea from Cape May to Boston harbor. They were assigned by three amphibian planes, sweeping through the skies for thousands of miles.

Description Complete

"If that ship described by Curtis had existed, he would have found it in 48 hours," the coast guard commanders lamented today.

HOAX CLASSED AS MISDEMEANOR

TRENTON, N. J., May 17. (UP)—John Hughes Curtis, perpetrator of the second monstrous hoax on the Lindberghs, can be prosecuted for his deception, New Jersey authorities determined after a conference tonight.

Curtis could be tried on a misdemeanor charge, which carries with it, on conviction, a maximum sentence of three years imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

The order for his arrest was held up, pending the arrival of Atty. Gen. William A. Stevens, who was summoned to a hurried conference at the state capitol.

Until Curtis' confession is fully studied by federal authorities the question of penalty for the hoax will be doubtful, said a representative of the United States attorney's office in New York.

"If Curtis sent letters through the mails asking for money and offering to restore the baby, it would look like a clear case of attempted extortion," he said. "As such it would clearly come under the federal laws."

MAN "CONFESSES" PART IN KIDNAPING

NEW YORK, May 17. (UP)—A man who said he was afraid he would "go nuts" unless he confessed told police today that Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., was killed when he fell from the arms of one of the kidnapers who was abducting him from the Lindbergh home on the night or March 1.

The man, Frank Parzych, who was arrested on a charge of abandoning his wife and two children, said he had a part in the kidnaping but denied he was involved in the infant's death.

Police said they were uncertain as to whether Parzych was telling the truth, but he was questioned by authorities in Brooklyn, where he was arrested, and later brought to Manhattan.

Dist. Atty. William F. X. Geoghan declined to express an opinion on the value of the story, but said it would be thoroughly checked.

West Texas Volunteer Firemen Name Throckmorton Next Convention City

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, May 17.—Throckmorton was selected as the host city for the September convention of the West Texas Volunteer Firemen's association at the closing session here today.

One of the highlights of today's program was a recital by the Northward school cowboy rhythm band under the direction of Miss Frances Roberts. The large audience called for repeated encores and members of the band were forced to leave to return to the classroom while a storm of applause and cheers begged for more.

Caldwell Speaks

O. P. Caldwell of Seymour was the principal speaker in the morning session. He emphasized the possibility that the public was likely to take too much for granted relative to the value of a volunteer fire department. "People are prone to place too little value on the things that are not a direct expense," he said, "but the public is fast realizing the value of a well equipped department and only those who are not informed place a meagre value on the volunteer firemen's place in community life."

The afternoon session featured J. S. Law of Graham, a former member of the American Red Cross first aid and life saving service bureau. He stressed the fact that in first aid work there are no two situations exactly alike.

Those rendering aid must be able to originate hurried helps to meet those changing situations; the trained lifesavers know what not to do," he said.

Handling Injured

Numerous methods of handling the injured and drowning were demonstrated, with Richard Suite, a member of the Olney fire department, acting as patient.

Abie's String band of Olney brought some of the old tunes back to life before the visitors adjourned to the Palace theater as guests of Mrs. John Richardson.

The annual race events brought hundreds of people to town. Benjamin was winner in the hose connection contest. Winner's time was 18.9 second and the prize was a silver nozzle. Members of the team were Parks, Wright, Charles Bisbee, Bill Bisbee, W. T. Melton and Roy Goodrich. Seymour was runner-up in this contest with the time 19.5 seconds. Members of the Seymour team were Bledsoe, Cox, Conner, Orsak, and Westfall. Winner of the water polo contest was Throckmorton with its team composed of Ben Wilkerson, Arthur Wilkerson and Leslie Morris. The prize was $10 cash. Benjamin won second place and a $5 cash prize. Following a barbecue at the Olney Country club a dance at the American Legion hall was the closing event of the convention.

GRAIN DEALERS NAME OFFICERS

Abolishment of Farm Board Advocated

FORT WORTH, May 17. (AP)—J. S. Criswell of Graham was elected president of the Texas Grain Dealers' association at the closing session of the convention here today.

Other officers: First vice president, E. C. Downman, Houston; second vice president, R. E. Wendland, Temple; secretary treasurer, G. E. Blewett, Fort Worth.

Directors were named as follows: T. L. Hughston, Crowell; John Honaker, Farmersville, and C. L. Ludwig, Groom.

The place the convention will meet next will be decided later by directors.

Abolishment of the federal farm board was favored in a resolution adopted. The resolution requested that the board be required to transfer its holdings upon fair terms to established dealers and refrain from further participation in the market.

It stated that the federal government should not be in competition with dealers and that congress should not at this time pass any legislation designed to regulate marketing of agricultural products.

The resolution also opposes any restriction being placed by congress on the operation of grain futures markets.

Another resolution passed requests a sales tax on all but necessities and asks for a decrease in governmental expenses.

The Patman bill favoring payment of the full soldiers' bonus was opposed in a resolution.

It was decided not to adopt a resolution on truck competition in the grain business as the subject is so complicated further consideration is necessary.

JOHN F. CURTIS' 'ADVENTURES'

Norfolk Man Tells Weird Story of Search

matter over I said I would go to see Dean Peacock and the next morning I called the dean and he came to Jersey or Philadelphia and I went over to see the dean and told him what had happened.

"That I knew the man had saved him from the coast guard and as far as I knew he would tell the truth and I asked the dean what I should do, and he said he would see what he could do, but he did not seem particularly anxious to do anything.

"But after talking to the dean he thought the same as I about getting in touch with Colonel Lindbergh.

"We went to the telephone company and asked to talk to the colonel. Could not talk to him. Asked to talk to Mrs. Morrow and was informed that she was not there and then talked to a Mr. Rosner.

"Explained what we wanted, asked what we should do but they gave us very little satisfaction. We went on back. It was on Thursday morning and the dean came to see me several times that day. Until Friday, and at that time at my wife's suggestion I went to see Admiral Burrage, whom I know, and told him the details and asked what I must do, and he and the dean thought it over and checked it over and they decided they would call up and we called up at midnight, and talked about 21 minutes. We were told that we were talking to the colonel. But we did not believe it because he did not know Admiral Burrage. We got very little satisfaction and the dean said: 'He will write a letter and said he will come.' And I brought him up in my machine and we interviewed the colonel and at that time he stated that he and the others were skeptical about it and asked that we get some proofs and we told him we would try to do so and at that time I asked about the amount of money and he said he would not talk about money until he had some proof. So I got in touch with a man, he called me on the telephone and said he was at the North street station in Philadelphia and repeated my conversation up here and told him exactly what the colonel wanted. This was Sam.

How Contact Was Made

Question—How would you get in touch with him?

Answer—He said he would call me in a certain number of days and I told him the conversation I had, what they were willing to do, and he said he would see that the proof was furnished.

"With that information, Dean Peacock came up here and then he came on back and we got in touch with admiral and got in touch with Alex again about the same thing in which he agreed to meet us five days after that if I came to New York. I came to New York and met him and went into details with him. And I told him just what the colonel has said and he demanded this. I met him at the Manhattan cafeteria on Seventh avenue around Forty-first and I went there to speak to him and met him there on several different occasions.

"So it was agreed that I was to meet him in New York and he was going to carry me to Newark and from Newark he was going to get the whole works together and work on some sort of plan.

"We went over in his car and this was the first time I met John. There were two people there, John and his other two associates besides Sam. We were waiting for Dinn. He was supposed to come in his boat but he was held up on account of the fog. We went back again the next night and we drove all the way down to Cape May, went aboard his boat, the new one called Theresa Salvitora. They talked over the general description of the child and they said they would give me a complete description back in five days.

Confers With Colonel

"During that time I had a number of conferences with the colonel and the colonel was skeptical and he said he would have to be shown. On this particular time I called up here and got in touch with the colonel from the telephone building in Trenton, asking if I could come up here and he said he was going away and would be back that night and I said it was very important.

"He said he would be back and I think I was to call him at 8 p. m. I called at 8 p. m. and talked to Mr. Fogarty and told him what I wanted and he said the colonel was not there and I told him I told him this man was with me and that it was through his wife's influence that he came up here and he had a letter written containing the accurate characteristics of the child which is the truth the colonel talked about.

"I called Mr. Fogarty twice that night, once about 8 o'clock and again at 11 o'clock. I had the man in my car for practically 18 hours and he did not want to wait any longer. I could not prevail upon him to stay any longer and we went back to Cape May.

Police Question Him

Question—Where did you go in Cape May?

Answer—Went to Schellenger's fish docks and boarded the Seabright skiff, no name or number on it and powered by a shift Kermaf engine.

"I then went with Edwin and Dick to Philadelphia and I was very sore and they prevailed upon me that I should come down and call the colonel up. We came up and the colonel saw us in an upstairs room and told us then that he would like us to take his word for it.

Question—You say that this man that was with you had a letter?

Answer—Yes, the letter was addressed to Colonel Lindbergh and sealed in the envelope with wax and I did not see contents of the letter.

Question—How was it addressed?

Answer—The colonel showed me the writing and I thought it was the same as on the ransom note.

"Then I went back to Norfolk and later on we got in touch with him, the colonel. I called him and he called me on the telephone with the result that I came up here and explained a number of things to him, told him that they wanted him to come down to Cape May to see them again and he stated that it would be satisfactory for him to come down.

"That time I went to the second meeting in Newark at which time they showed me some of the marked money and they put out a list showing the serial numbers of the ransom money and I checked the bills against it. Each man had five hundred dollars, then I checked five bills against this list which was printed on a reddish colored newspaper.

"I don't know what the name of the paper was.

Needed Whole Crowd

"The list appeared on the right hand side in a block. Then I think I came to you, Colonel Lindbergh and told you about that and then I told you later on that people wanted me to get the whole crowd together on the boat and then he asked me if it would be satisfactory if the colonel went along. Any way I came here and the colonel asked me how about his going and I said it would be perfectly satisfactory.

"I then went down again and went to Schellinger dock again and got aboard the boat again and at that time the whole works were there. I mean the whole bunch of them. Dynamite, John, Sam and Neals. Dynamite's last name is Olaf Larson and Sam's last name is Torresdale, alias Thursdale, alias Sam Vernikoff, alias Sam Truesdale, alias Murry Terresdale, alias Morris Bernikoff, alias Murry Thursdale, alias A. B. Murray and Murray Green. So I went down and I went on board the boat and we had quite a session, in which John suggested that I was in their power and that they could do anything they wanted with me and I told them I was not afraid of them and from then on I sort of halfway controlled the situation. I told them I had in a lock box a whole record of this transaction and if they did anything to me they would be worse off than they were before. To that they agreed and I came back and asked you some questions when you were at Cape May courthouse and one thing they wanted to know was what the federal people were down there for and then they asked me a number of questions I can't recall.

Question—Where is the memorandum you spoke of?

Answer—In New York City at the Prince George hotel in the name of a friend of mine.

"So I went back to them and told them about the questions they asked about the federal men and they said they would go off Block island, get the child and if we would come up there we could get it from there.

Lindy Urged Boat

"Just the exact distance I don't remember. It was marked on the chart. I marked it on the chart and I still think I have it in my possession. When we went, the colonel, Mr. Bruce and a Mr. Shaw, we planned to take the amphibian plane and the colonel thought it best to take a boat and I phoned some friends of mine for a boat that we could take to Block island.

"Mr. Zeigler made arrangements with some captain to take us. Went with Mr. Zeigler to Stonington and proceeded from there at three o'clock in the morning. Went off Block island finished a whole circuit of the place approximately 20 miles off our beat.

"Saw the man the next night or the night after in Newark and I agreed to come down off the Virginia capes."

"When they were on this boat I checked off some of this money, I checked off approximately $1,000 He had spent $500 gave it to rum runners, mostly in $20 bills. I checked up five of these bills with pencil against the list he had."

"I asked him for information and for further identification as the colonel had asked me to. He told me to hell with the colonel. If he don't believe you he can go to hell.

"That night the manager of the hotel called me and said that Dean Peacock was downstairs and in calling my wife and making arrangements to get the boat ready she told me that the dean had called and registered in the Park Central hotel under the name of Hill and that he would immediately get in touch with me.

Dean Worried

"In the meantime the dean had heard nothing from me. He was afraid something had happened. The dean went to see Admiral Burrage and the admiral said it would be all right for the dean to come to New York and register in the Park Central under the name of Hill.

"When the dean came back I think what he stated was that he went to meet this man at the Cumberland hotel and the man threatened and tried to cheat him out of money and I told him that he was fully protected and he came back and spent the night at the Prince George.

"Then I said the only thing to do is to go back to Norfolk and Mr. Richard took us back the next morning. It later developed that Dick talked to the dean and the dean said he missed this man because at first he followed the wrong man and then again went back and saw this man and this man took him up on the eighth floor of the Cumberland hotel.

"The dean said he said he threatened him by keeping him there and the dean told him he was not going to keep him there. The dean said he appeared to try to get some information from him.

"We got to Norfolk and got on a boat and made trips back and forth in cooperation with the navy who sent planes out, and this is unusual in a fog.

"Captain Whiting gave us a sketch and said the boat was going on such and such a course, and that the boat was 50 miles out, and while out there and when we went by, they showed mattresses which were supposed to be some sort of a signal. Later on during that time I had met his wife and I had called her in the meantime.

Announcement Of Wedding Made At Pretty Shower

A pretty shower given by Miss Hattie Stinnett at the home of Mrs. R. A. Muse on Brown street Monday evening was the occasion for the announcement of the marriage of Miss Loneta Smith and Jerry Curtis, which was solemnized in Grandfield on Jan. 3, 1932. The announcements came as a surprise to the friends of the young people.

The home was prettily decorated in pink and white. A miniature bridal party centered the table on which Mrs. Curtis found numerous lovely gifts.

Mrs. Curtis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith of Wichita Falls and was a teacher in the past year at the County Line school. Mr. Curtis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Curtis and is connected with the Iten Biscuit company. Both Mr. and Mrs. Curtis attended the local schools and are prominent in church and social activities. It was announced they will be at home to their friends at 3112 Tenth street.

A dainty pink and white ice course, following the decorative motif of the evening, was served to Mrs. Curtis, the honoree, and to Misses Loraine Tucker, Clara Carter, Annabel McCord, Artie Davis, Pauline Anderson, Ruth Etta Martin, Virginia Crittenden, Mary Virginia Barron, Esther Frances Hager, La Verne Harr and Sally Lawis; Mesdames Seth T. Moore, F. E. Curtis, John D. Rieger, Frank Dixon, Harry Bailey, and R. W. Muse; Misses Pearl Smythe and Shirley Smythe of Iowa Park; Mrs. Seth Stevens of Temple, Texas; Messrs. F. E. Curtis, Frank Curtis, Gordon Thomas, Seth T. Moore, R. W. Muse and Jerry Curtis.

First Christian Circle Adjourns After Picnic

Mesdames J. M. Allen, Homer Karrenbrock, Grady Taylor, H. C. Huper, Southworth and W. F. Sims were hostesses at a picnic at Cedar park Tuesday, entertaining members division six of the First Christian Woman's council in the final meeting of the season. Mrs. George Gutzman is circle leader.

The hostess group served a delightful picnic lunch and Mrs. J. R. Hyatt, program chairman, was in charge of the unique program which followed an inspiring devotional given by Mrs. O. H. Karr. A short business meeting was held.

Members of the circle present were the hostesses and Mesdames T. M. Conrey, F. E. McConnell, George Gutzman, A. A. Young, J. R. Hyatt, W. L. Parker and O. H. Karr. Guests were Mesdames T. T. T. Reese, W. H. Weaver, Ruby Trout and Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Wood.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Yes, poor sap; "Beauty is its own excuse for being." In spite of those cynical wits who devastate me with their mockery at my constant return to the theme, I dare again speak of beauty as I have just seen it in Wichita Falls.

Last night on my way home, I went out of my way to see masses of bloom of which I had been told. There were single and double poppies in a long row beside a home on Beverly drive and at the far end, larkspurs in pink and purple and white, ravished my eyes. There was a plat of larkspurs on Harrison beside which I paused, adoring. There was a simple little pink climbing rose growing twisted round a white lattice on Beverly drive, enough to travel miles to see.

There was a home on Clarinda where loveliness was so rampant my heart swelled. Gorgeous poppies in every color; double larkspur as stately as the proud snapdragon; roses blooming in the background and a round shrub of Spanish broom that was as golden as the fabulous treasure for which the Spaniards once sought in the Southwest.

There were pink hardy lilies on Ninth street and gladioluses, gorgeous as any in a hothouse, before a cottage on Eighth street. There were hollyhocks, standing like soldiers in bright new uniforms at a home on Eleventh and there were silver leaf maples on Fillmore.

I called a friend when I reached home and began to tell of the glories I had seen. "I was just wishing you were here," she said, "to enjoy the moonlight on my summer house." "I am on my way," I told her, and heard her laugh as she put up the receiver, and say, "I'm putting on the coffee pot." (She knew one of my vices).

She has built a screen summer house in the privacy of her back lawn. There was a little peach tree outlined against the sky and a hedge of larkspur was veiled in moonmist. The same light shone like silver on the screen and made the world a pattern cut in gleaming sheen. There were low camp chairs inside and a table with fresh strawberries and powdered sugar; crisp wafers and savory cheese; coffee and then friendship as the completing charm.

We talked of scenes and sounds and people. I told her how I had almost wept over the luscious colors that had thrilled me; I even went back in memory to the yard of a negro woman in Mississippi where 50 feet of earth was covered one twilight evening with a carpet of old-fashioned phlox in every exquisite shade and made my eyes fill with tears and brought a lump into my throat.

"And yet," she said, "you did not get a tear out of 'The Miracle Man,' (from which picture, by the way, she had come out unashamedly wiping away her tears)." "No," I confessed, "not a tear; it was simply melodrama to me." Yet I wept over the little boy who was the innocent victim in "Disorderly Conduct" at the State, Sunday and Monday.

"I can see beautiful scenery," she said, "and have seen some of the most beautiful in the world and merely think, 'that is perfect.' It is the same with a wonderful musical program; maybe one number will touch me, but usually I consider the technique shown."

"And I get a mist in my eyes over beautiful songs and particularly over string numbers," I confess. There's something immortal in a violin's note. But the mist comes from no sense of sadness. It's a sort of glory that overcomes me.

Poor sap! But I am glad. I am rich in one way; anything perfectly attuned to nature has a touch of grandeur for me. As I went home, a mocking bird perched on a telephone wire was broadcasting his appreciation of spring and my mind said, "ditto, old boy."

Yet this charming being, who refuses to be touched to tears over scenery, notes every bird song and is alert to watch over each new nest. Friday evening we drove together into Morningside heights and she stopped the car so we might listen to the chorus of cicadas and tree frogs, with a deep bass of bullfrogs making minor chords beside a little lake on the drive. She loved it as well as I. That time, I had no tears springing; it was wonderful because it made me 16 years old once more, visiting my aunt in the country for my regular two-week summer vacation, just nine miles from home. That nine miles was as distant from the city then, as 99 miles is now.

E. Post Advises on Proper Form for Invitations

By EMILY POST

So many of our prospective brides ask me these questions: (First) "Does the wedding invitation include the reception or is there a separate invitation for that?"

Answer—An invitation to a house wedding necessarily includes breakfast or reception. Usually invitations to the reception following a church wedding are engraved on separate cards:

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown
request the pleasure of Miss Mary Green's company on Friday the fifth of June at 101 Park Avenue

Or else lines are added at the end of the church invitation this way:

Mr. and Mrs. John William Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Hester Maude
to
Mr. James Robinson
on Tuesday the first of June
At three o'clock
at Saint John's Church
and afterwards at Sunlawn
Ridgemont, New York
R. S. V. P.

(Second) Is a reply necessary and if so how should it be worded?

Answer—Whenever R. S. V. P. (or other request for a reply) is added to the invitation, you accept:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray Jr.
accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. John William Smith's
kind invitation for
Tuesday the first of June

Or regret—

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray Jr.
regret that they are unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. John William Smith's
kind invitation for
Tuesday the first of June

NEW SHREDDED BISCUIT EXTRA RICH IN VITAL FOOD ELEMENTS

Laboratory Certifies the Improved Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit

Before the new Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit was introduced, the Kellogg Company submitted it to the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia, which found it so rich in food value that every package could be certified.

This means that mothers can now know definitely that their children are getting a well-balanced food whenever they serve the new Kellogg biscuits and milk—rich in minerals, vitamins, proteins—nourishing and healthful.

And Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits offer many other features. The biscuits are "pressure-cooked" by a special process that bakes in the delicious flavor. At the same time, it retains all the valuable food elements of the whole wheat.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are much crisper and tastier because they are toasted a tempting brown on both top and bottom—not just one side. They are baked in a more convenient, economical size. Two biscuits just fit the cereal bowl—and you get 15 to the package.

Naturally, this tasty new biscuit is welcome for breakfast, lunch, children's suppers—any meal, in fact. Ready to serve with milk or cream. Sold by grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

This model interprets in a charming way the use of two colors and harmonizing prints, and at the same time effects the new high waist line. The bodice is gracefully draped at the front neckline, and held with clips; chic sleeve ruffles cover the upper arm in a feminine manner. The front and back skirt seaming is the last word in chic. Equally smart of print and plain color.

Pattern 2341 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 2⅜ yards of 39-inch fabric, ⅞ yard contrasting.

In the business meeting, it was announced that the Westmoreland club will give one of the prizes to be awarded in the dress demonstration at the meeting in Iowa Park, May 31. Several members entered the contest after the interesting report of the past council meeting given by Mrs. Johnson.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames S. D. Johnson, Fred Stephens, R. G. Moffatt, Arthur Rose, Stone, W. W. Cook and Morris.

Crockett P.-T. A. Installs Officers For Coming Year

New officers were installed in the closing meeting of Crockett School P.-T. A. Tuesday with Mrs. P. S. Richardson, retiring president, conducting the impressive ceremonies. Prior to the installation, Miss Ida Moore, principal of the school, paid a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Richardson for her work in the past year and to the executive board and unit members for their cooperation. Mrs. Austin Leach praised the work of the faculty and Mrs. J. Z. Steinkoenig said gracious words for the retiring officers. A rising vote of thanks concluded the talks.

Officers whom Mrs. Richardson inducted were Mrs. Grover C. Johnson, president; Mrs. W. P. Lowry, first vice president; Mrs. C. A. Winfrey, second vice president; Mrs. Shadie Hale, third vice president, Mrs. C. P. Warman, treasurer; Mrs. Grover Bullington, recording secretary; Mrs. D. J. White, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. A. Nelson, parliamentarian; Mrs. S. H. Fagadau, publicity chairman; Mrs. Charles Crowell, council representative; Mrs. Julian McFall, magazine chairman; Mrs. Earl Stuckey, welfare chairman; Mrs. Thomas Lynch, preschool chairman.

Mrs. Johnson, the new president, stated that she would make her speech next autumn, but expressed her desire to keep up the good record established by the retiring president; she said that encouragement for coming work lay for her in the thought that in unity there is strength, and affirmed that though this is election year, she did not run for office. "I hope to keep on going to school all my life," she said. "Every little school house is a magnet to me."

Mrs. Richardson, in installing the officers, read the national P.-T. A. president's message in which parents are warned to readjust themselves to new economic conditions; not to practice economy in a false way as the child's health must be guarded and his ideals preserved.

Music and Art Stressed

Mrs. Carlisle Norwood gave the opening devotional, using the 127th Psalm as her text and stressing the promises made in that Psalm.

A group of songs were sung by children of the fifth and sixth grades, directed by Miss Hortense Goen. Among these were "Glow Worm," and "Kentucky Babe."

One of the most beautiful portions of the program, numbers of which were announced by Mrs. Austin Leach, program chairman, was the picture shown in a handsome frame against the dark maroon curtains. Dorothy McGown was posed as "Whisler's Mother," and Marjorie Owen gave a sketch of the artist's life and told of the beautiful coloring in the original painting. This feature was directed by Miss Elaine Clark, director of art in the school.

Emil Hermann talked on the "Value of Art in the Child's Life," saying briefly that the child who sees beauty through life is so much more fortunate than one who has never known the appreciation of art. "Art," he says, "gives a child education and something worth while of which he may think."

Miss Hortense Goen, music director, talked on music, speaking of it as the universal language of the spirit, enjoyed by young and old alike. "It affects one both emotionally and intellectually," she said.

Teaching the children music, Mrs. Goen said, had enabled her to find that children had a fine idea of what is pretty in music and can always tell their reason for liking it. She especially complimented Walter Damrosch for his wonderful rendition of radio programs and closed her talk by stating that music makes a most powerful leader.

Interesting Reports

In the short business session, the treasurer's report, given by Mrs. C. A. Rogers, was of unusual interest as it showed a substantial balance in the treasury.

Mrs. D. M. Puckett, preschool chairman, reported on the preschool clinic held at the school; she stated that 30 children were examined; two were found 100 per cent in every way and four had only minor defects. In behalf of the health committee, she thanked the patrons for bringing the children on time and said that the doctors had commented on the systematic order of the children in the school.

Doctors who helped in the clinic were Austin F. Leach, Wallace Masters, J. B. Nail and W. W. Swarts.

An interesting talk was made on the national Parent Teacher magazine, "Child Welfare," by Mrs. J. A. McFall, chairman. The record showed that the subscription at Crockett school is outstanding.

In the room count, Miss Elaine Clark's room was first and that of Miss Lelia Crane, second.

A number of children and visitors attended the meeting and approximately 100 members of the unit were present.

Our Children

Such Noise

This is a noisy world. Noise costs us a lot in energy and that comes back to life itself. If we lose energy too rapidly we wear out too soon. Children make a great deal of noise, that is true. But most of it is made by grownup people who ought to know better. I would not speak about it if the children did not pay the biggest price of all. They need sleep, peace, quiet, for healthy mental and physical growth and they are not getting it.

The cars toot their horns. The trucks crash along the street, chains rattling, loose part clanging, plate of steel slapping plate of steel in horrible clangor as they roar past. The drills and the riveting machines, the engines, the whole world of machinery roars and bangs and groans and howls all day long, and on into the night. It is a husky child that can stand the din.

> Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

The school ought to be in a quiet place and the traffic that passes its doors ought to be quiet. But is it? The trucks roar by, the huckster yells under the windows, the rag man's bells, the scissor grinder's call, the old clothes man's shout, filter into the classroom and the children are checked to record the sounds.

In the evening when all work stops, it seems that quiet might come down to soothe the aching eardrums but quiet is not born yet. Not in the city, not in the town, not in the suburb. The cars still hoot and crash; the radios blare; the surface cars still crash and roar and rattle. It is well on toward midnight before quiet settles. On the homes of the city's children. Not complete quiet then.

The cars travel on rubber tires Why then the racket? If the owner gave ordinary care to the machinery, kept it tightened and oiled and shipshape, there would be little noise. Cars can be run so quietly that it is necessary to see the wheels moving to know they are traveling. The same thing can be done with the other machines that we use. A little thought and a great desire for quiet would soon give us enough quiet to endure our working days, and insure children of healthy growth.

Noise lowers the vitality of those who must endure it. The child who lives in turmoil has not the resistance to strain that other children under better conditions have. Children who live in a quiet community have stronger nervous system than those who live in the clamor of a city. Children who work in a quiet school have better powers of attention, do better thinking, more accurate work than those who are surrounded by noise.

We are putting noiseless flooring into our schools. We are ringing fewer bells. We are locating our schools in parks, in quiet places. But we are not doing half enough yet. Won't the women who have time for civic work take up this noise abatement question and see it through. It affects health, it affects conduct, it affects human happiness. Let us have peace.

GLOVER CLAIMS TALK TWISTED

Postal Official Denies He Threatened Jobs

WASHINGTON, May 17. (AP)—W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general, said today that portions of his speech before the Missouri postmasters in Springfield Saturday had been "distorted so as to create a grossly misleading impression."

Glover said he had made no demand or request of postmasters to support President Hoover for reelection nor had he made any reference to "partisan politics."

Glover said that what he did say was this:

"We are all Americans and our country is going through perilous times, and, whether we are Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or prohibitionists, all should stand four-square back of our president.

"It is time for all of us, including the postmasters, to be on the firing line to assist in every way and to support the president's program to bring this nation out of the serious times through which we are passing.

"If there are any postmasters who do not want to do this, it is up to them to resign and I will be glad to take their resignations back to Washington with me, where I will be on Monday."

Cooperative Marketing Urged for Dairymen

A recommendation that Wichita county dairymen adopt cooperative marketing and dairy market systems as used in various Oklahoma communities, including Oklahoma City, was presented before the Valley Development association board Tuesday afternoon by S. P. Otto of Perry, Okla.

Mr. Otto was one of the leaders in the original colonization program for the Windthorst community and is well known here. Mr. Otto has completed a tour of the irrigated valley with Field Manager J. F. Meurer and was introduced to the board members Tuesday.

SHRINE CLUB HEARS TALBOT

Use of Texas-Made Goods Urged at Luncheon

"The cotton in a man's shirt is worth only 6 cents, but the shirt sells for $2," declared Col. W. E. Talbot, noted exponent of cotton consumption in Texas, before members of the Shrine Luncheon club Tuesday noon, "but if made outside of Texas, 6 cents is all we get, while if it is made in our state the whole $2 stays here."

Colonel Talbot is managing director of the Southwest Industrial Development bureau, and is a constant campaigner for greater consumption in Texas of Texas-made goods. Members of the club obviously were impressed with the speaker's review of the industrial situation in this state, and pledged themselves to specify Texas products whenever possible in future purchases of goods.

Visitors introduced Tuesday included H. E. Lindsey of Moslah temple, Fort Worth, and S. P. Cunningham of Hella temple, Dallas.

Announcement of a dance to be given Thursday night by the Shrine patrol was made by C. L. Holloway. The dance will be given in Maskat temple auditorium, 13th floor of the City National bank building.

Guy Rogers urged Shriners present to join the motorcade to Grapevine on Thursday for the opening of the Rhome-Dallas cut-off highway, stating that 25,000 persons are expected to be present from Northwest Texas.

Colonel Talbot was introduced by Sydney A. Gaines.

Al Ellis, Shrine recorder, gave the following names as a partial list of the novices who will take the Shrine at the ceremonial on May 31: E. A. Denny, A. L. Holtzclaw, Otis Nelson, J. M. Isbell, H. N. Bennett, W. L. Dykes, Ed Klappenbach, Jessie Dixon, C. C. Chapman, W. A. Smith, F. J. Weiman, David B. May, W. E. Phillips, Homer Rippy, C. A. Morris, W. A. Greer, N. C. DeShazo, O. F. Temple, Ross Schleigh, D. R. Preston.

The program also will include an oration by Joe Witherspoon Jr., "My Home Town," the subject he won the West Texas Chamber of Commerce prize at the regional meeting last week at Sweetwater. Violin numbers will be presented by Lucile Crouch and Alton Bedinghaus, pupils of Mrs. J. H. Crouch.

Directors Of C-C Silent On Baseball

City Did Its Best In Drive, Say Leaders

Directors of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce did not take action on the baseball situation in this city Tuesday, taking it for granted that the Spudder team will be moved from the city temporarily. The board members, meeting at the offices in the Hamilton building, indicated that representatives of the chamber would attend a Spudder stockholders meeting Thursday.

Board members expressed the opinion that the chamber of commerce has done all in its power to aid the ball club in Wichita Falls and in view of the statement that plans call for moving the club only temporarily, it was deemed no further action necessary.

It was pointed out, however, that the chamber of commerce has had aggressive committees at work for the last five months in a "support the Spudders" campaign with expenditures of hundreds of dollars listed in creating enthusiasm both in Wichita Falls and throughout the adjoining area.

W. L. PEARSON CASE DROPPED

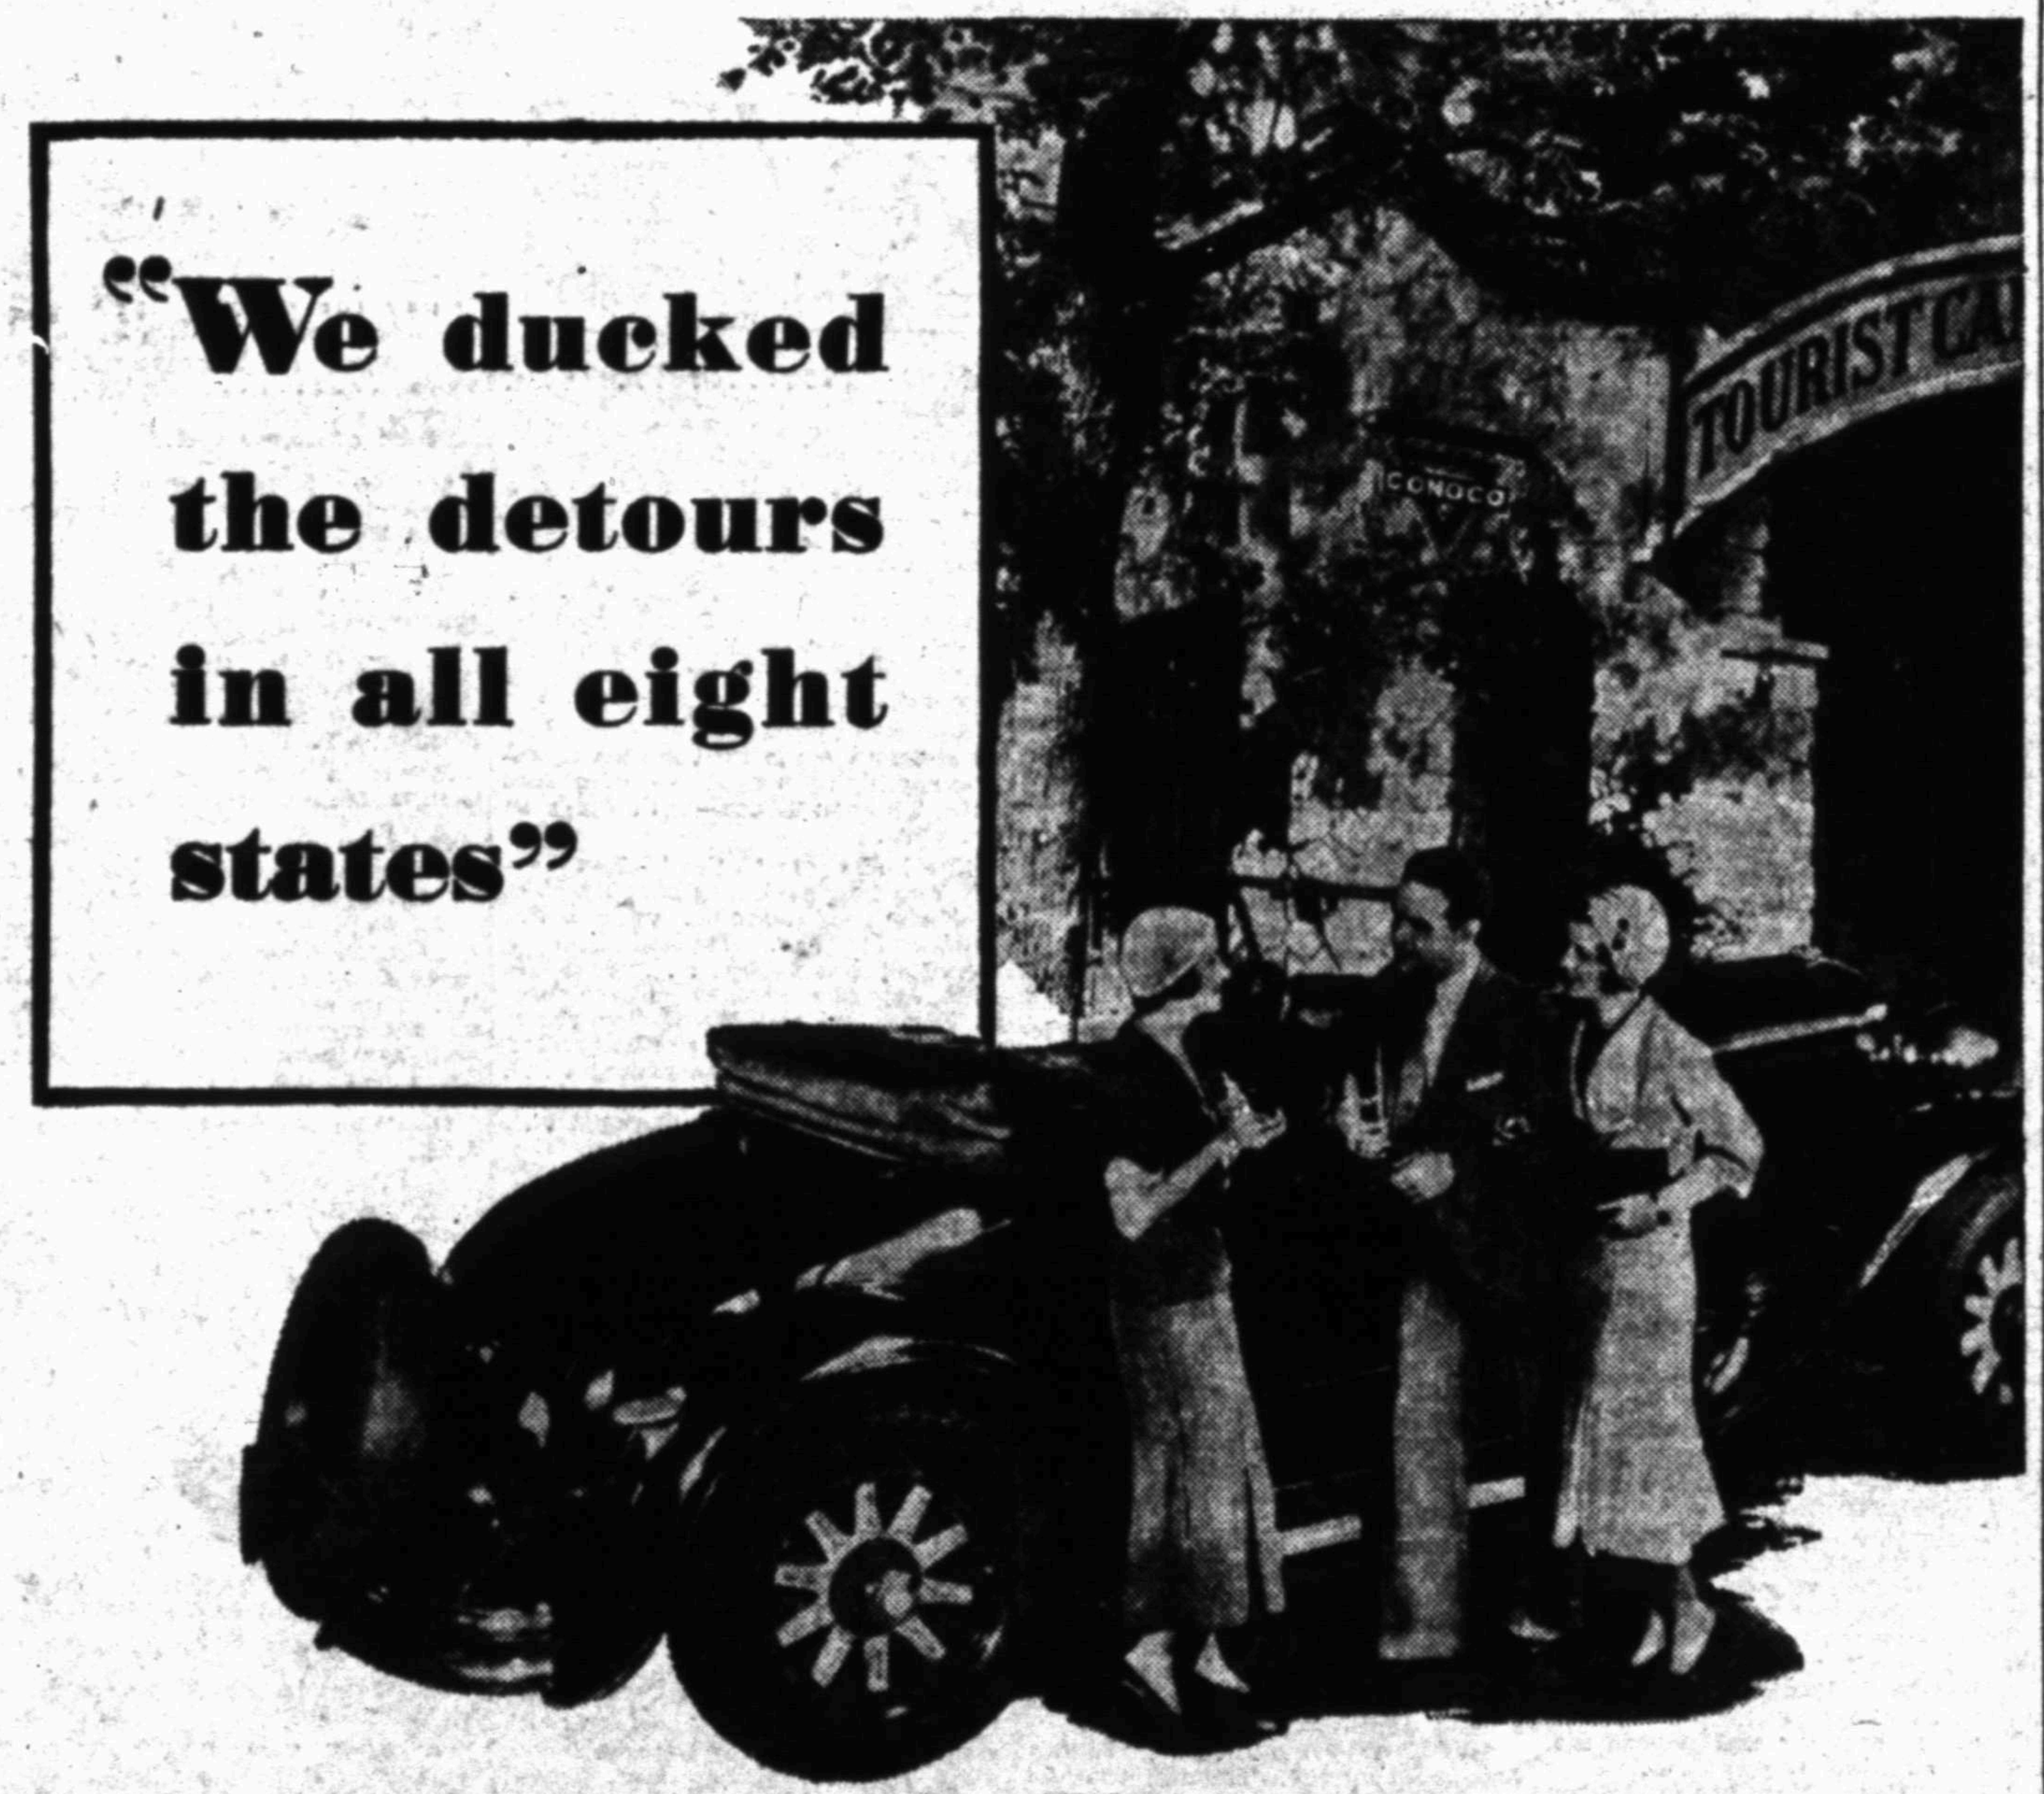
Indictments Against Houston Contractor Dismissed

VICTORIA, Texas, May 17. (AP)—District Judge J. P. Pool today granted a defense motion to quash all of the indictments which had been returned against W. L. Pearson, Houston contractor, in a Hidalgo county check case. The case had been transferred to Victoria county for trial.

This action of the court disposed of all of the indictments which were pending against Pearson in state courts.

Judge Pool held that the indictments charged no offense under the law. It had been alleged that Pearson received and concealed a check payable to himself, which had been misappropriated by others.

The defense claimed that similar defects existed in a number of indictments affecting former county officials.



"We ducked the detours in all eight states"
TOURIST CAMP
CONOCO

Mrs. Ernest Schumaker and her family, of Salina, Kansas, took a real vacation trip last summer—6,000 miles, through eight Western States.

Road construction was going on in every one of the eight states—but the Schumakers ducked the detours! They knew before they started where the torn-up roads were and how to miss them, thanks to a Conoco Travel Bureau routing map.

"We missed several awfully bad detours and lots of minor ones by following the trails you mapped out for us," Mrs. Schumaker wrote us. "We traveled 6,000 miles without any trouble whatsoever."

Last year, 68,000 motorists asked the Conoco Travel Bureau to help plan and route motor trips in all parts of the United States, in Canada and Mexico. Many thousands more, seeking road information, stopped at Conoco stations, each of which is a Travel Bureau branch. All found the Conoco men along the way their well-informed friends.

If you are planning a trip this year, write the Conoco Travel Bureau, Denver. Tell us where you want to go and when. Or, if more convenient for you, fill in one of our applications for this travel service at any Conoco station, and it will reach us without delay. We'll send you—free of charge and without obligation—an official Conoco Passport, excellent road maps with marked routes, illustrated travel literature and other information. Travel "the Conoco way" . . . duck the detours.

Episcopal Clergymen Hold Meeting Here

Episcopal clergymen of the Dallas diocese assembled here Tuesday from 48 counties for the annual clericus at the Church of the Good Shepherd devoted their study to the interpretation of modern Christianity with reference to modern social and industrial problems.

Three addresses were given during the business session which occupied the morning, and each was devoted to a discussion of relationships between the Christian church and the world of business and industry. Rev. W. D. Bratton, rector of the local Episcopal church, spoke on "The Church and Industrialism." Rev. Edward S. Barlow, rector of the All Saints parish at Weatherford, spoke on "The Church and Capitalism," while "The Church and Labor" was discussed by Rev. Charles J. Kinsolving, priest in charge of missions at Greenville, Sulphur Springs, Denton and Commerce.

Visiting clergymen, many of whom arrived Monday evening, participated in celebration of the holy communion at an 8 o'clock service Tuesday morning. Luncheon was served in the parish house at 1 p.m., after which the gathering dispersed.

Another man, pleading guilty to a charge of violating the state narcotic law, was fined $1 and costs.

EXPERT OPENS CHEST CLINICS

34 Examined at Iowa Park And Burkburnett

Thirty-four persons were examined at Iowa Park and Burkburnett Tuesday by Dr. J. D. Blevens of Beaumont, specialist here for a three-day period of chest clinics sponsored by the Wichita County Tuberculosis association, but no actual cases of tuberculosis were found, it was said.

Accompanied by Miss Mary Quinn, secretary of the Wichita county association, Dr. Blevens conducted a clinic at Iowa Park from 9 to 12 a. m., at the First Christian church. He was assisted by Dr. Gordon G. Clark and Dr. Woodall and Mrs. Tom Black.

At Burkburnett, the clinic was conducted at the First Baptist church, with Dr. I. D. Russell assisting, from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Eighteen persons were examined.

Dr. Blevens formerly was medical director for the Jefferson County Tubercular hospital, and is now county school physician in the same county. He and Miss Quinn were entertained Wednesday noon at luncheon by the Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce, and by the Burkburnett Lions club at dinner Tuesday night.

Two clinic periods will be held here Wednesday at the First Christian church, one beginning at 9 a. m., and one at 2 p. m. He will be entertained at luncheon at the Holt hotel by the county association. On Thursday also the local clinic will be continued at the First Christian church, beginning at 9 a. m. During the afternoon, from 2 to 5 o'clock, Dr. Blevens will conduct a clinic at the First Baptist church in Electra.

Congress Candidate Visits In Wichita

Judge W. Erskine Williams, Fort Worth lawyer, was a visitor in Wichita Falls in the interest of his candidacy for congressman at large, place No. 1. Judge Williams is on his way to the Panhandle, making a swing through Northwest Texas and extreme West Texas, and will not return to Fort Worth before the end of next week.

While in the city, he was with his friends, Dr. S. S. McKenney and Rev. Finis A. Crutchfield, who introduced him to a number of Wichitans and helped to organize and select a chairman for an "Erskine Williams for Congress" club. C. E. Deaton was chosen as this chairman and with the more than 50 other clubs already organized in Texas will aid Judge Williams in his campaign.

Judge Williams is a long-time resident of Fort Worth, having been a lawyer there for more than 30 years and is now for the second time vice president for Texas of the American Bar association. He has also just completed a year's term as president of the Fort Worth and Tarrant County Bar association, and last fall delivered a series of lectures at Southern Methodist university on the United States constitution.

Besides his work in the legal fraternity, Judge Williams has been an active leader in the Methodist church and for four years was president of its general board on laymen's work and wrote the first constitution for that organization. Also, he is a member of the state commission for celebration of the George Washington bicentennial and has delivered a number of lectures in that connection.

PETE M'KENZIE IS STATE WARD

Texas Must Pay Prisoner's Board Bill

SAN ANTONIO, May 17. (AP)—Pete McKenzie is finally a ward of the state of Texas, the state prison system having so decided after failing in its efforts to collect Pete's board bill from Bexar county.

On May 1 the prison system billed the county for $63.05 for McKenzie's board and room bill at the Huntsville penitentiary. County Judge Wurzbach wrote to T. L. Tennison, cashier of the system, that in a talk with the governor after Pete's last capture it was his understanding that the killer of Detective Chief Sam Street was a ward of the state.

Tennison today wrote the judge that the prison board had decided that McKenzie was a ward of the state and that the state would pay for his keep.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 17.—In the curious record of belated recognition of his services as war time secretary of war that is being written for Newton Baker there is no more striking tribute than that of the late General Crowder.

NEWTON D. BAKER

To one who saw both men during the war intimately enough to realize how divergent were their philosophical approaches to most problems, the picture of the soldier-lawyer, on his death, urging the lawyer-secretary for the presidency has special meaning.

It has, also, for Ralph Hayes, Mr. Baker's secretary during the war period, who knew the views and personalities of the army high command, of which Crowder was an important member as judge advocate general and provost marshal general.

Writing the Bystander in regard to the Crowder letters concerning Baker, which became public only after the general's death, Hayes said:

Touch of Drama

"That that tough-grained, hard-bitten, fortright fighting man should plead with his dying voice for the elevation of a political liberal and philosophical pacifist to the presidency seems to me an engaging and dramatic circumstance."

The Bystander quite agrees, and Mr. Hayes might have gone even further. For General Crowder was not even of Mr. Baker's political party. Like Pershing and many other army officers upon whom Secretary Baker depended, Crowder was a Republican—so far as army regulars mix in politics.

One phrase of the Crowder letters struck the Bystander particularly.

"From my knowledge of Mr. Baker I should assume that he is not eager for the job (the presidency)," the general wrote.

So far as the Bystander knows that is all that Mr. Baker's friends know or think about his views on the subject. His is perhaps the most curious case in American political history in some ways.

Hayes is about all there is of organization to the campaign for Baker and all he does is done without benefit of Mr. Baker's approval or knowledge.

Hayes sometimes wonders if Baker does not deliberately move to counteract efforts of his friends to bring about his nomination.

An Unprinted Book

But be all that as it may, it is to be hoped that some day somebody will collect what the men, soldiers and others closest to Newton Baker as war secretary since have had to say on how a "philosophical pacifist," as Hayes puts it, did his war-making job in the greatest of all wars.

One writer says the way to end the depression is to increase the number of consumers, while another says the remedy is to decrease the number of producers. Why not go all the way and have lots of consumers and no producers?

Get the Kidnapers—It Must Be Done

UNCLE SAM in the past has shown himself capable of performing some pretty tough jobs—all the way from digging the Panama canal to pitching in to help win the world war.

Today he faces a new job, one of the toughest and one of the most important that he has ever had to tackle.

He has got to catch the man or the men who killed the Lindbergh baby. It doesn't matter in the least what branch of the government system does the job—federal secret service, New Jersey state police, city officers or private investigators. But somehow the job has got to be done, and done thoroughly and swiftly.

It is not simply a matter of public grief and public indignation that makes this necessary.

It is a matter of proving that government in this country is capable of meeting one of the most insolent and shocking challenges it has ever received.

The pitiful tragedy of the Lindberghs is a thing that touches every home in the land.

If a family of wealth and high position, enjoying contacts with the most powerful people and institutions in the nation, cannot provide security for a child in the child's own home, cannot recover the child alive after the crime of kidnaping has been committed—then what child is safe?

The only way in which any of our lost feeling of safety can be regained is by finding the criminals swiftly and punishing them sternly.

This does not mean that we need give way to hysterical demands for more severe punishment. People are already talking about setting up more severe penalties for criminals; the old demand that the death penalty for kidnaping be incorporated in the federal law is being heard again. But all of that is beside the point.

We have plenty of laws now to deal with the kidnapers and murderers—if we can catch them. There is the job that must be concentrated on now, to the exclusion of everything else.

It does not matter how expensive the job may be, or how much work it may involve, or how difficult it may be. The murderers of Baby Lindbergh must be brought to book, if every policeman and detective in the land has to join in the hunt.

Until this has been done, all of our pride in American civilization is meaningless. For if a crime of this kind cannot be punished, then our criminals have an immunity greater than anything the most lawless frontier mining camp ever dreamed of.

An Old Idea in New Dress

DR. BOLIVAR J. LLOYD, medical director of the U. S. Public Health service, proposes that condemned criminals be used for experimentation with the new vaccine for yellow fever, and that—if they survive—they be given full pardons.

This idea, a new one as far as the United States is concerned, is really a throwback to the days of four or five centuries ago. European sovereigns often used it—not for vaccines, for such things were nonexistant, but for antidotes to poisons. Every court, in the old days, had a great fear of poison. When an alchemist announced that he had invented an antidote, some condemned criminal would be called into service and fed both poison and antidote. If he survived, he would be paid and set free.

What makes this modern affair really different is the fact that Dr. Lloyd is perfectly willing to undergo the experiments himself.

The Glaciers Again?

WITHIN 2,000 years there will be a return of the great glaciers, says Dr. O. Gunnar Erdtman of the University of Stockholm. The climate of northern Europe and America has been growing steadily colder for more than a thousand years; deciduous trees such as the beech and the oak have been steadily moving southward, as if to get away from the glacial advance that they clearly foresaw.

Of course, as far as any of us are concerned, a catastrophe 2,000 years away might as well be entirely non-existant; but the idea is enough, just the same, to give an imaginative man the creeps. The greater part of North America, for instance, down to about the latitude of the Ohio river, was once covered with hundreds of feet of ice. Is that to happen again? If so, what sort of tack is the human race to follow thereafter?

SO THEY SAY!

I am optimistic enough to believe that we have rounded the corner of the so-called depression, and it occurs to me that we should stop talking depression and bask in the sunshine of prosperity.—Harry W. Hanson, superintendent of insurance, Illinois.

The cost of government must and can be reduced. It is a grim necessity. The annual earnings of the people have been reduced 50 per cent during this period, yet taxes are at the highest peak in history. The economic structure cannot stand the strain for long.—Gov. Dan W. Turner of Iowa.

The day of evasion and lying to children is passing. We must be honest and frank and yet be so without the sheer openness which leaves its mark on the child.—Dr. William John Cooper, U. S. commissioner of education.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

(During illness of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz.)

Ode to the B'way Wiscrack!

To Grecian urns and waterfowls, to cabbages and kings
The poet's consonants and vowels have soared on praise's wings.

Each megaphoning crooner comes in for his mete of "Hails!"
And odes beat forth from printed drums of birds escaping jails.

They rhapsodize because a song has struck a nation's heart,
And bend down low (the short, the long) beside each hero's cart.

But Broadway's epic savior has been cast in limbo's cill,
And always rates the hasty razz of Writers with a Will.

And yet, the wiscrack offers guise for one dimension minds
Of which on Broadway (hark, the sigh!) there are a hundred kinds.

Careers

In the early days of his career, Jimmy (Cyranose) Durante used to haunt Chinatown in the hope that a Bowery fight manager might decide upon him as a future ring champion. With months of persuasion, Jimmy finally got a smalltime manager to take him in hand, and after two weeks of training he was scheduled to fight Charles Bertell, an up-and-coming light-weight of the day.

Thirty-five seconds after the opening bell the only thing separating Jimmy from the floor was his schnozzle. Bertell stood over him proudly and accepted the plaudits of the auditorium. It was Durante's last fight. And the defeat led him ultimately to the top rung among current screemie comics.

But what happened to One-Round Bertell? He's still in Chinatown. The most popular ice-man in the district.

A Concession

Al Boasberg, the screemie wit, best describes the pleasures of the aged by a recent meeting with his grandmother.

He had hopped the 20th Century in Chicago and was headed for Ballyhoo Blvd. On the train he suddenly realized that he hadn't seen his grandmother, who lived in Syracuse, for several years. So he wired her to meet him in the station during the train's brief stop.

When they pulled into the Syracuse sheds the old lady greeted him with open arms. "I'm so happy to see you, Al," she exclaimed. "I even missed a funeral this morning so I could come to the train."

For Safety's Sake

Paul De Vilbiss calls attention to the airy conductor on the Sixth Ave. "L" who cheers up his mornings by announcing as the train passes the Spring St. Station that "Spring is here," and who, during rush hours, shouts to passengers "Step in! Watch your step in!"

Foofing a fife may be pleasing to some,

Waffle I Do for Publicity?

As poor an example of business judgment as was displayed by the Broadway screemie house, which took pictures and inferred that it was part of the long queue waiting to get into the theater, is being offered by that waffle shop in its latest ad campaign.

During the recent riots on Broadway, thousands of curious bystanders gathered in the adjoining streets to watch the police swing their batons. The enterprising waffle mixer dug up a camera, stationed himself opposite his store, and as the cavalry of police swept the mob past he enthusiastically snapped his lens.

Today he filled the mails with wholesale quantities of postcards which carry the picture of the crowds in front of his shop and the legend that there is "no depression" with his business.

But what his enthusiasm blinded him to was the fact that a crutiny of the photograph shows the crowds dashing away from his door.

Hooeywood Merry-Go-Round

"Dear Mr. Yawitz," writes Berton Gans, "Your reminiscences reminds me of the time contemporary with the period you discuss when one of the execs. paid $5,000 for the film rights to the title of the old melodrama, 'No Mother to Guide Her.' The play was so old there wasn't even a manuscript to be found and naturally a story was constructed around the title. Then when the first print came in from the coast, the staff of NY yes-men was brought in to look at it. After its five lengthy reels had been unwound, the wearied group was made a bit groggier by one of the magnate's newly installed relatives, who said, "Vell boyiss, all we want now is for a good title suggestions."

The Machine Age

For those who complain that the speed of the present era is destroying the finer things in life, R. E. T. refers them to the clipping from the Los Angeles Herald & Express of April 14, 1882, which announced that "A telephone connection is soon to be made between this city and San Gabriel," and then to the fact that the job was actually completed May 4 of this year.

A similar reason probably also accounts for the delay on the New York to St. Louis call I tried to get three nights ago.

Near Closing Time

I know a lady marketing
Her heart—and for a wedding ring.
But wedding rings are diamond set
Or platinum, and hard to get,
And tho she nearly bargained twice
She yet may auction it away . . .
An auctioneer will sacrifice
To close a deal late in the day.
—CLARA PATSUIS.

Caught Unawares

John Hertz, the taxicab magnate, who recently took over the Paramount picture reins, was waiting for word of the critics' reaction the morning after the Broadway premiere of "Shanghai Express."

An official yeah-man rushed breathlessly into his office and shouted: "It's a terrific smash, Mr. Hertz."

The taxi-movie head swung around on his chair and ordered: "Bring me a list of the damages and fire the driver immediately."

Danger Ahead

Two pessimistic garment mfrs., Ide Grube would have us believe, were discussing current business conditions.

"How's with you?" the first one queried.

"Fine," the other snapped. "I'm already 20 per cent ahead of next year."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE HUMAN STATUE—The curious human statue of Omei Shan is in reality the mummy of the first Manchu emperor of China, Shu Chi. The emperor was balked in a love affair and so decided to renounce the throne and to spend the rest of his life in the solitude of the monastery of Omei Shan (Temple of the Golden Peak), the greatest sanctuary of China. The ex-ruler rose to be the abbot of this monastery, and after his death the body, arrayed in the imperial yellow silk robes, was preserved with a coating of lacquer and bronze, and placed on a pedestal to be venerated as the eternal human statue. The emperor died in 1661. But I was permitted to gaze at a smooth, full-fleshed face, which in death was very lifelike and bore a human peaceful expression.

UNWANTED BABIES—The birth of a baby boy is the happiest event in a Chinese father's life, but he will sorrow over the birth of a girl. Such unwanted children are usually placed within the "baby tower." Only one infant may be deposited within the tower at a time, and the person removing it is compelled by law to adopt the foundling and to care for it the rest of its life. Should any one attempt to add another occupant to the tower, he is compelled to adop the baby already in it.

TOMORROW—Working beyond life's span.

Wanted—Love! The Story of an Unemployed Girl

By ETHELDA BEDFORD Author of "BROADWAY BRIDE"

CHAPTER LVI

"Good morning, Barry dear." Mrs. Carlton accompanied her greeting with her pleasantest smile. "Breakfast with my great big boy! Imagine! Sit here where the sun doesn't shine in your face. There! How's that?"

Barry mumbled "Morning," taking the chair opposite his mother at the low, cane table in the sunny breakfast room.

"Why, dear, it has been years since you've been down so early. Simply years! Why, before you went away to military school, I believe. Wh—"

"Mother," Barry broke in, "is she going away? Are you sending her away?" His eyes were tired.

"Why, dear. What are you talking about?" Pushing a sharp pointed spoon into her half grapefruit.

"Mother. You and I have to talk this out. I love her. I don't care what you say about her . . . who she is . . . I . . . can't we do something about her?"

"Lillian Blane will be all right, Barry. Don't worry about her. I know you're sympathetic. I understand."

"You—we've made her feel terribly, mother. Stepped on her pride—"

Mrs. Carlton broke a piece of toast and bit it. She patted her son's arm.

"Barry, you forget I've been in social work for fifteen years. I know just how to handle this young person. There will be no hard feelings. She will be taken care of beautifully."

"I'd go right up to her now and tell her, mother. But she won't listen! She's too proud. After what we did to her last night—she won't let me come near her—" he looked out into the sunshine and thought aloud—"she'd think I was being sorry . . . she said she didn't want sympathy—and she would hate me. I guess she does anyway . . ."

"Why, dear. You aren't taking this so seriously. I'm really surprised."

"What have you done about her, mother?"

"What have I done? It's early, my dear. She's sleeping yet. The maid said her door was locked. Won't you eat your breakfast? Lillian Blane is only another case as far as I'm concerned."

"She's not as far as I'm concerned," gulping hot black coffee.

His mother thought: "In a few days he will have forgotten all about her."

"She might do something desperate, mother. Girls without jobs—you know. You read in the papers every day about them . . . jumping off of buildings . . . into rivers . . . taking gas . . ." He got up from the table and began pacing the floor.

"Yes, dear. One of the unemployed. Lillian is that. But I'll see that she is given a job. I'll promise you that, dear. I'll make her a waitress at the kitchen near St. Vincent's. The hours are good and the work is not hard. And she will be given her meals and a small salary, enough to get along on until times are better."

"No! No! No!" Barry glared at his mother, who dropped a bit of toast in her surprise.

"Barry!"

"Mother! I love her, I tell you I love her! I want her—but she won't even see me. I've knocked and knocked on her door. She won't open it. She won't even say a word! It's her pride—you hurt her last night, you've got to do something about that . . . can't you understand what I mean!"

Mrs. Carlton pushed back her chair and got up. Despite her erect shoulders and high head she seemed small and ineffectual beside her son.

Her anger, which she disguised as hurt feelings as the result of her son's tone and insistence, was lost on Barry. He had walked out of the room, past her. She could hear him dashing up the stairs leading to Lillian's room.

But after long, persistence knocking the door of Lillian's room remained closed.

"Beg pardon, sir," the old butler interrupted Barry as he banged his fist against the paneled door. "But the young lady left this morning. Quite early, sir. She left the key of her door with me."

He handed the key to Barry.

Mrs. Carlton followed her son into the room. It was left in order. Everything in its place.

The new dresses hung in the dressing room, and rows of shoes sat on the little rack. Even the blue gown, the one worn the night before, confronted them as they looked in the room, switching on the ceiling light.

"I meant for her to have these clothes, dear," Mrs. Carlton said, almost apologetically.

"Where—how—she must have gone out when I went to change clothes," Barry said. He had only been a few minutes under the shower and donning flannels.

"Well," said his mother, "Lillian had some money. Enough to take care of her for a few days, I'm sure. I paid her well."

"Please, mother. Don't ever mention anything about paying her again to me!"

"You're irritable, Barry. You haven't slept all night. Worrying about that girl. Why, there are thousands of girls like her in the world. Nothing extraordinary. Nothing at all," her eyes a little anxious.

"Because she isn't in the Social Register or her grandfather wasn't a pirate. We wouldn't be in the blue book, either, if old Thomas Carlton hadn't been a highjacker. Well, that's what they'd call him now. You know it, mother. Don't look shocked. You know it's true! Thousands of girls like Lillian! Not one in the world—like Lil—"

Mrs. Carlton wheeled around and walked proudly from the room, leaving Barry with Lillian's lovely blue dress hanging by his side, and Lillian's name on his lips.

Lillian had put on her old black crepe, the same coat and hat and even the run-over pumps she had worn the day Mrs. Carlton brought her home with her.

Sleep had been impossible. Barry had waited only long enough for his mother to get in bed before he started intervals of knocking at Lillian's door.

Finally Lillian gave up trying to sleep. She got out of bed and dressed, prepared to leave when morning came. With dawn the knocking ceased and she locked the door and stole down the stairs, grateful she did not confront Barry. The butler already was up and she gave him the key to her room.

By the time Barry had gone down to breakfast Lillian was in Grand Central station. And when he stood by her blue dress, wondering how he could find her, Lillian was boarding a train for Salem!

New York slithered past as she looked out of the train window, with wide, sad eyes, bright with unshed tears.

"An out and out failure," Lillian said to herself and the flying telegraph poles and bright-colored signs, so cheerless by day and so gay by night.

She was leaving New York, just as she had come into it that afternoon which seemed so long ago with Thomas Blane—with tears in her eyes.

She had come to the highway every one had said was so glittering, and she had found it would not glitter for her. It had been a round of heartaches . . . from the first day she arrived with Thomas Blane, who deceived her about a movie job . . . then she had failed as a hostess, failed as a model . . . failed as any kind of office assistant . . . failed as a manicurist . . . failed as a taxi dancer.

Her body ached with the memory of the hard cold beds she and Eve had paid for so dearly . . . her stomach ached, just thinking of those hours of hunger . . . when a five-cent package of peanut butter crackers made an entire meal.

"But now I'm going home . . . to face the music . . ." she covered her eyes with her hand and hot tears trickled across her fingers, down her hand and cooled her wrist.

Q.—Does Russia produce any cotton?—R. B.

A.—Cotton is produced in Asiatic Russia on a large scale, but very little is grown in European Russia proper. The last available figure for cotton production in Asiatic Russia is for the season of 1930-31 (year beginning in August), when the total production was 1,850,000 bales of 478 pounds net.

Q.—What became of the money which George Washington willed to endow a university in the District of Columbia?—L. E. G.

A.—In his will he left fifty shares of stock in the Potomac (Canal) company for the endowment of a university to be established in the District of Columbia "to which the youth of fortune and talents from all parts thereof might be sent for the completion of their education in all the branches of polite literature; in arts and sciences, in acquiring knowledge in the principles of politics and good government." In furtherance of that hope and project of the first president of the United States, Columbian college, now namd the George Washington university, was established. The stock which General Washington willed toward such an institution became valueless owing to the failure of the canal properties, and it was necessary for "the college," established in the District of Columbia, to obtain funds from other sources.

Q.—Does a boat have to have sails to be termed a yacht?—B. S. Y.

A.—Yacht is a word used of any light and comparatively small vessel propelled by other means than oars. Yachts may be sailing vessels of motor or steam. The term is now practically restricted to such vessels used for pleasure or racing.

Q.—How do a polo ball, a croquet ball and a billiard ball compare in size?—K. M.

A.—A polo ball is 3¼ inches in diameter. A regulation billard ball is 2⅜ inches in diameter. A croquet ball is 3⅝ inches.

Q.—In progressive five hundred should the winners at the head table move to the foot?—A. C.

A.—Any preferred style of progress may be used. It should be stated definitely before play begins, what style is to be followed.

Q.—What is the greatest altitude which army aviators attain without using oxygen?—R. J. L.

A.—Army fliers are required by army regulations to begin using oxygen as soon as they reach an altitude of 15,000 feet.

Q.—How is the name of former President Doumer of France pronounced?—H. W.

A.—It is a two syllable word with no accent, but with the final "r" sounded.

Q.—What is the band called which is worn diagonally across the chest as a mark of distinction or dignity?—T. F. T.

R.—It is variously known as a sash, a ribbon or a riband.

Q.—How much head tax does an immigrant pay? Has the amount always been the same?—O. K.

A.—Section 1 of the act of August 3, 1882, imposed a head tax of 50 cents on an immigrant to this country. This was increased to $1 by an act approved August 18, 1894, and has been raised at various times since until it is now $8.

Q.—Who invented safety pins?—J. K.

A.—The first safety pins were long, slender pins of bronze, characteristic of Italy. Evidently some one one day conceived the idea of bending the body of those pins after putting the pin through the garment so as to hold it more securely. The name of this individual is unknown. Later an improvement was made by having a disc formation in the bend of the pin, containing several twists of fine wire which acted as a spring and held the pin in place.

Q.—Is there a word which relates especially to the six days of creation as told in Genesis?—W. D.

A.—The word is hexaemeron.

Q.—How is glass tempered?—A. McK.

A.—Glass does not have to be tempered. It is annealed, that is, allowed to cool at a controllable rate.

Q.—How long before it was produced did Richard Wagner compose Die Walkure?—J. B. L.

A.—It was composed in 1856 but was not given until June 25, 1870, at Munich.

SPUDDER RALLY IN NINTH FALLS SHORT AS BUFFS WIN, 7-6

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Well, tomorrow is the day when we'll all get an official, and, we hope, positive and final announcement concerning what is to be done about the Spudders.

Everybody, of course, knows that it's all cut and dried that the club will depart for Longview. Or rather, that is what we have been led to believe. Longview is already constructing a grandstand.

President L. C. McEvoy is due here tomorrow for a meeting of local stockholders in the club. He is expected to square matters with them, and then hand out the sad news that "our Spudders" are no more.

We have passed through various mental states concerning the club's anticipated departure. Perhaps it is now time to wax sentimental over it, but this the old Rambler will not do.

I can get sentimental over a pitcher losing a game in the ninth after pitching two-hit ball, but these cold business deals leave me as frigid as they are.

The Browns are out after the lucre, even as you and I. The lucre, temporarily at least, seems to be awaiting them in East Texas.

So we say, go to it—grab the gold while you can.

I refused to be convinced, however, that the Browns are going to linger long in East Texas. After this season we may see them coming back to a good town.

Longview and Tyler are pretty hot rivals. That being the case, Longview ought to have the laugh on Tyler. The latter city at the start of the season set up a howl for the Shreveport club, which they wanted mightily.

Well, they got it.

But what did they get—a bunch of washouts who to date have won but nine games.

Longview will get a snappy club, able to at least hang on to a .500 per cent mark in games won and lost.

More From Pooey

The Rambler's suggestion that amateur baseball leagues in this section participate in a grand tournament here next September to pick the Northwest Texas champion met with immediate response in the camp of the Electra Oilers.

Also, a criticism of the Electra umpire, published in this place yesterday morning, met with immediate response.

The Electra missile reads:

"Dear Rambler:

"In answer to our unjustly accused ump, Mr. Henry, you should have wiped your glasses. It wasn't the bad decisions the ump gave that hurt the game. It was those the pitcher had to duck.

"Fred, that idea about the tournament was a humdinger. Only I thought the Oilers were the uncrowned champions of Northwest Texas. Of course if anybody wants to contest us it's okay.

"Boost the tournament, Mr. Thompson, it's a great idea.

"Pooey IV."

Speaking of umpires, when old Ziggy Sears, now paired with Tony Defate, first rolled into Wichita Falls to umpirate a game this season, some wisecracker in the press box said: "Boys, the umpires today will be Sears—and Defeat."

But let's talk of something more cheerful. The umpires, whether the best in the world or the poorest, are always being jumped on. It's almost as indecent as talking about the weather.

The topic that does fascinate me, however, is that of the baseball tournament, especially since it apparently has met with the approval of one good team in this section.

The idea has been turning over in my mental cavity since Monday. It's a pretty big idea, but then the aforesaid cavity is pretty big, too, as my enemies will gleefully testify.

Seriously, a tournament among all league winners in Northwest Texas, to our way of thinking, would be the biggest boost to amateur baseball this section has ever experienced.

Nothing can be done until we hear from some more teams and get their ideas. When and if enough teams and leagues give their sanction, the matter can be placed before local officials. The idea should receive support from Wichita Falls civic organizations, and it undoubtedly will if enough pressure is brought to bear.

Speaking of amateurs, if somebody doesn't stop this Noble-Little Hardware outfit of Wichita Falls, the hardwaremen will be taking on such fierce teams as the Tyler Trojans next. More than that, they might even get in the Texas league. Surely they have a better record than the Trojans, who had won nine out of 32 games up to yesterday.

The Noble-Little bunch has clicked off 11 straight wins. They haven't lost a game all season.

GREAT FIELDING HELPS WHITE

Badgro, Garms, Euller And Scharein Star

Special to The Record News.

HOUSTON, May 17.—Superb fielding by Badgro, Garms, Euller and Scharein saved Lester White for six rounds here tonight, but in the seventh the Buffs got to him for six hits and five runs to beat Wichita Falls, 7 to 6. The Spudders fought desperately for the game, scoring four tallies in the ninth.

Buffs Tally

Buff bats got busy in the second but White allowed only one run. Medwick slashed a single through third. The hit and run was put on, and Peel poked a single through first. The right fielder was playing in close, and Medwick stopped at second. Rye doubled to center, scoring Medwick, and sending Peel to third. Narlesky was walked intentionally, loading the cushions. Funk fanned, swinging at a curve that was about a foot outside. Moss bounded to White, who threw home to force Peel. Hock grounded out, pitcher to first.

The Spudders staged a rally in the fourth. Badgro doubled to center going to second by fast legwork. Green lined a single to left to tally Badgro. Owens singled down the third base line, Green going to second, Scharein sacrificed along both runners. Euller was walked on purpose, loading the bases. White sent a slow bounder to Hock, and was thrown out, but Green scored. Garms walked, loading the bases. Bejma popped to second.

Euller Makes Great Play

In the last of the sixth, Euller robbed Carey with a marvelous backhand stab of his grounder and a superb throw. It was a miraculous play. Medwick drove a terrific double against the left center field wall. Peel drove a grounder to Euller, and Medwick went to third and Peel to second. White was slightly injured when he covered third to take the right fielder's throw, Medwick sliding into him, but after a few moments was able to resume play. Rye was walked intentionally, loading the bases. Narlesky flied to center, Medwick scoring, and Peel going to third and Rye to second. Funk was walked intentionally loading the bases. Moss hit a high bounder over second, Scharein grabbed the ball and stretched at full length on the ground to touch second and force Funk—another great play.

Big Rally

Houston enjoyed a big seventh round. Hock led off with a double to right, and tallied when Stebbins singled through second. Carey forced Stebbins, short to second. Medwick singled to right, Carey going to third. Trying to catch Medwick off first, White threw wild, and Carey scored. Peel walked. Rye beat out a slow tap toward third, and the bases were loaded. Narlesky singled to left scoring Medwick and Peel. Funk flied to right, Rye going to third. Moss singled through short to score Rye. Hock flied to right to end the slaughter.

BUCS 4, CATS 3

GALVESTON, May 17. (AP)—A Fort Worth rally that scored two runs in the ninth inning, fell one short here tonight and the Galveston Buccaneers evened the series with a 4 to 3 victory. Spudders May Be Called 'Cannibals' After Transfer LONGVIEW, Texas, May 17. (AP)—Construction work on a 3,000 seat grandstand was begun here today as sportsmen went ahead with plans to relieve Wichita Falls of its Texas league baseball franchise.

Fans were confident a formal announcement of the club's transfer from Wichita Falls to Longview would be forthcoming Thursday night. The announcement was expected to be made by the board of directors of the St. Louis Browns organization, which owns the Wichita Falls franchise.

Plans call for completion of the baseball plant by May 25, when the present Wichita Falls club is scheduled to play a home series with the Fort Worth Cats.

It has been proposed to change the name of the club from Spudders to "Cannibals."

Local Ikes Receive 6,300 Fingerling Bass To Restock Lake Kemp Waters

Other Consignments for Remainder of Irrigation Lakes Expected in Near Future, Says Oneal

The first shipment of fingerling bass secured for local waters by the Wichita Falls chapter of the Izaak Walton league arrived here yesterday and immediately was taken to Lake Kemp for distribution, according to Ben G. Oneal, Walton league president.

Twenty-one cans containing 6,300 fish made up the consignment, which came from the federal fish hatchery at Fort Worth, Mr. Oneal said.

Additional young fish for other lakes in the irrigation system will be secured by the chapter early in the fall, he added.

"Sportsmen will be interested to know," said Mr. Oneal, "that the local chapter of the Izaak Walton league is meeting success in its efforts to improve fishing in nearby lake waters. The shipment received Tuesday is the first of the season, and represents a fine assortment of fish. Fish will be provided for the other lakes as soon as possible."

NEW WAY TO FISH

Wichitan Catches Huge Catfish With Hands At Diversion

A. J. Weeth, 1812 Rose street, doesn't need hooks and lines and bait and sinkers and the other doo-dads so dear to a fisherman. He just walks out in the water and scoops the fish up with his bare hands.

That's the story he told yesterday as he brought a 44-pound monster catfish to The Record News office for exhibition.

"I sighted the fish in an inlet near the D. B. Lewis camp on Diversion lake," said Mr. Weeth. "He headed for the bank and I followed him in my boat. When we reached shallow water I got out and scooped him up."

The fish didn't start fighting until landed in the boat, so Mr. Weeth didn't suffer from the fish's fins. It was about three feet long.

Pigg Pitches Wichita Hardware to 6-2 Victory

Dewey Pigg registered a victory in his first start on the mound Tuesday afternoon on Harrison field and Wichita Hardware bested Highway Garage, 6 to 2. A long home run by Leroy Lynch, of Highway Garage, was the feature of the game. Lynch's drive to left field was one of the longest ever hit on Harrison field.

Benny "Scrapiron" Withrow, led the batting attack for the Hardware nine, getting a triple and a single in four trips to the plate. He was the only man in the game able to register more than one hit. Pigg stopped Kelly Calahan in his tracks three times, dropping Calahan two hits behind Shorty Hicks in their spirited race for hit honors. Calahan's sensational one-handed catch of Thompson's drive over second was the fielding feature of the day.

Pigg was touched for five hits, but he kept them well scattered through the seven innings and was never in serious danger. Pigg last year was one of the outstanding pitchers of the Commercial league, but this year has done most of his work in other positions. Score:

GOLFERS START QUALIFYING

Bobby Burns' 77 Is Low Mark

While most local and out of town golfers continued their practice rounds yesterday, three Wichitans turned in qualifying scores in the Junior chamber of commerce invitation golf tournament.

The low scorer of the three was L. T. (Bobby) Burns, who toured the course in 77 strokes. Two strokes behind him was E. W. (Bud) Marriott, with a 78, and T. P. Duncan trailed farther behind with an 84.

After three days of "tuning up," quite a few entrants were expected to go the qualifying route today, according to Bill Strachan, club professional, who is starter and referee.

Out of town golfers Tuesday were joined by three more sharpshooters from Electra, Gene White, J. S. Creager, and L. B. Slaughter; and one entrant from Jermyn, Oliver Loving.

Deciding that it would be unfair to out of town golfers, the Junior chamber of commerce committee in charge of the tourney met yesterday and rescinded its decision to allow entrants to play both the 18-hole qualifying round and the other 36 holes any day this week. It was explained this plan would enable local golfers to profit by any "breaks" in the weather that might develop. The plan was put forward when it was feared all contestants would be unable to make the 54 holes Saturday and Sunday on the crowded course.

Entrants still have the privilege of turning in qualifying scores any day through Saturday, and all able to do so were urged to complete the first 18 holes as soon as possible. The last 36 holes will be played Sunday.

At the committee meeting it was reported 73 local golfers and 16 four-man teams from this territory had entered.

The banquet for entrants will be held at the Weeks park clubhouse Saturday night, and will be followed by a dance at the Wichita club. The banquet will start at 6:45 o'clock, and the dance at 9.

200 EXPECTED IN MOTORCADE

Panhandle Delegations To Arrive Here Today

A goal of 200 Wichitans to attend the formal opening of the Northwest highway at Grapevine Thursday afternoon and evening, was set by Chairman Guy Rogers' committee at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce offices.

The committee opened the drive for participation in the Northwest motorcade with a goal of 20 cars but raised the number to 50 Tuesday when additional interest was revealed. The highway extends from Rhome in Wise county to intersect with U. S. 80, east of Dallas, missing the metropolitan centers of Fort Worth and Dallas and the attendant traffic difficulties.

The motorcade will converge in Wichita Falls starting Wednesday afternoon with arrival of Amarillo automobiles and cars from other cities north of Clarendon. The parade of motors will leave the Hamilton building at 9 o'clock Thursday morning and the Wichita Falls delegation will carry special signs for automobiles and hat bands for individuals.

The local party will continue the program of issuing state-wide invitations for attendance at the city's golden jubilee celebration in September.

Eldorado, Okla., Man Is Wounded When Arrested

Special to The Record News.

ELDORADO, Okla., May 17.—Leslie Thompson, 32, who escaped from the Claude, Texas, jail recently, was shot twice today when arrested in connection with a local burglary. T. B. Leese, 60-year-old deputy sheriff who did the shooting, said Thompson threatened to take his gun from him.

Thompson was taken to a hospital at Altus with a wound in his right thigh and another in his right hand. His condition is not serious. The officer said that he shot low in order not to inflict fatal injuries.

Authorities said that Thompson two weeks ago escaped jail at Claude, where he was under sentence in connection with safe cracking.

Knowing of the escape, officers began a search for Thompson when they discovered that intruders had attempted to force the safe of Moore Bros. confectionery early this morning. Thompson's family lives here.

Burglars entered the confectionery while officers and citizens gave attention to a fire which destroyed a vacant home at 3 o'clock this morning. It was believed the house was set to divert attention from the burglary.

The knob of the confectionery safe had been knocked off, although the door did not yield to the attempt. However, $3.50 was obtained from the cash register.

Thompson was seen to leave a farm house six miles southwest of here during the morning. Sheriff Banks and Deputy G. J. Parnell of Altus, with Deputies Leese, A. C. Boaldin and Ernest Hathaway of Eldorado, immediately started a search in the vicinity.

While separated from the other officers Leese came upon Thompson in a clump of brush. The officer ordered the man to halt as Thompson advanced on him, Leese said.

"Go ahead and shoot," Thompson was quoted as saying. "I'm going to take that gun away from you."

The officer fired two shots.

Advice To Investors

By Charles W. Storm—Editor of the "News Service of Wall Street"

S. L., Wichita Falls, Texas.—Please let me know about earnings and dividend record of General Foods Corp.

Answer—General Foods has had a good record. The current $3 annual dividend rate has been in force since distribution of 100 per cent stock dividend July, 1928. Earnings of $3.44 a share in 1931 contrasted with $3.63 in 1930 and $3.68 in 1929. The balance sheet on Dec. 31 showed working capital of $30,382,187 compared with $27,677,875 at end of 1930. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 6.7 to 1, compared with 5.3 to 1 a year earlier. Stock is classed as a speculative investment.

A. M. F.—I own a few shares of Standard Oil of Indiana. Would like to know what effect the recent sale of its foreign interests to Standard Oil of New Jersey will have.

Answer—Both the trade status and current financial condition of Standard Oil of Indiana have been strengthened by sale of its 96 per cent interests in the foreign properties of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Co. to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The Indiana company will own some 1,920,000 shares of Jersey stock, and, thus, will be in a position to profit from growth of foreign as well as domestic business. Liquid asset position of the company is considerably improved. The $48,000,000 cash (to be paid over a period of four years by the Jersey company), together with the Jersey common at current market prices, is equal to over $5.60 a share of Indiana common. If the Jersey stock is included at its book value, the basis for the transaction, some $8.30 per share of Indiana common is indicated. Standard of Indiana earned the present $1 dividend rate with a small margin in 1931, and sustained no loss in the first quarter of 1932. If current prices are maintained a better earnings showing should be made this year. Strong financial position was maintained throughout 1931.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 17. (AP)—Cotton was easier today and after numerous small declines and rallies, developed a definitely downward trend and lost just about what had been gained on Monday.

Traders were evidently disappointed over the failure of some predicted constructive developments to materialize and this coupled with more favorable weather and crop advices brought out liquidation and a little more southern selling.

The July position at one time sold at 5.78 or within 2 points of the previous close, but later reacted to 5.60 closing at that level, with a net loss of 20 points, while the general market closed barely steady at 18 to 20 points net lower.

Clearing weather in the western belt and predictions of showers in the East, were looked upon as highly favorable for the new crop and there was little in the news relative to the dry goods situation to hold out much encouragement of any improvement in the consumptive demand for cotton.

Futures closed barely steady, 18-20 lower. Spot quiet; middling, 5.65.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 17. (AP)—Cotton was quiet most of today's session but became more active in late trading, losing ground on rains in the eastern belt and expectation of a bearish weekly weather report tomorrow. The close was barely steady.

Prices made new lows for the day right at the end with July at 5.62 and October at 5.82 and the market closed at the bottom and net 17 points net lower for day on the two most active months.

Liverpool is due tomorrow on New Orleans 4 to 5 penny points down.

Port cepeits 8,077, for week 14,742, for season 9,584,622, last season 8,788,066. Exports 11,096, for week 57,059, for season 7,602,466, last season 6,044,295. Port stock 3,967,497, last year 3,394,297. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 89,018, last year 45,622. Spot sales at southern markets 4,990, last year 3,526.

Futures closed barely steady at net declines of 16 to 18 points:

Stimulus Of Wheat Market Accounts For Slight Gains In Stock Prices

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 17. (US)—Stocks received their main stimulus today from a stronger tone in the wheat market. Bond quotations moved slightly lower.

Stocks on the average finished with such unimportant changes as to preclude any genuine significance to the session's results. Nevertheless, the relative stability achieved was highly satisfying to the element which demands first of all that the price structure be proven secure, rather than favoring any sudden upturn which might not be maintained.

Softness in the bond list, carrying the average to a new low, was not particularly gratifying, yet the net depreciation here, too, was decidedly limited.

To have the stock market reflect favorably the tone of the wheat market is a most promising sign. The situation in wheat is declared by competent authorities to be far more hopeful than generally appreciated.

There are some conservative people, with vast experience in the grain trade, who believe that dollar wheat would be a distinct possibility, if sentiment were not so gloomy. They believe it not at all impossible that the winter wheat crop may not exceed 400,000,000 bushels, an enormous shrinkage from last year's crop.

They point to the unlikelihood of large foreign crops, and emphasize that Russia has become a buyer of wheat, rather than maintaining its previous ability to dump its surplus of the grain onto the world markets.

Beyond doubt, a sustained upturn in wheat prices would work wonders with sentiment at this stage of the depression.

Continued wrangling at Washington undid most of the good resulting from the stronger wheat market. The possibility that congress may readjourn after the conventions was little pleasing to Wall street. Furthermore, the uncertainty surrounding the entire question of taxes, with the result uncertainty over the budget being balanced, has the effect of maintaining nervousness toward the markets.

Disclosure here, however, that a threatening English situation had been adjusted had a direct influence on the market, especially in banking circles. This situation was distinctly disheartening to bankers, and its adjustment occasioned considerable relief.

The market had been rallying up to the time Washington dispatches reported uncertainty over the adjournment of congress.

Some close observers thought that the market demonstrated some greater absorbing powers on the upside than it has heretofore displayed. This might indicate lessening of necessitious liquidation.

The immediate market factor will be the meeting of American Telephone and Telegraph's directors for dividend action tomorrow. This much is indisputable: the market is prepared for a lower dividend.

Car-loadings report for the latest week furnished little cheer; in fact, the decrease of 20,000 cars was contrary to expectations. However, a more favorable comparison with last year's figures is likely within the next month or two, according to competent analysts.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 17. (AP)—Piling up of evidence that domestic winter wheat crop prospects had deteriorated, not improved, since May 1, gave a vigorous hoist to grain values today.

Wheat rose to about 3 cents a bushel over last week's low, influenced especially by an official report that 60 per cent of winter wheat acreage in Nebraska would be abandoned, an amount 20 per cent more than the May 1 government forecast. Heavy selling to realize profits, however, led to setbacks from top prices.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@¼c above yesterday's finish, corn at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance, oats unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions, unchanged to 15c up.

Dry and windy weather conditions all over the West and Southwest gave stress to the fact that crop news from each was extremely bullish, and that apparently there were few sections now where hard winter wheat promised even an ordinary yield.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 55¾c, bids; July 56⅝@56¾c, 58⅝@58¾c; Sept. 58¾@58⅞c, 60½@60⅝c; Dec. 61⅝c, 63¼c. Corn—July 32¼c, 33@33¼c; Sept. 34⅝c, 35½c; Dec. 34¾c, bids.

CORNER STONE RITES TODAY

Public Invited to Federal Building Ceremony

recent flight, George Washington bicentennial celebration, the city's golden jubilee celebration plans, and accounts of progress in construction of the building.

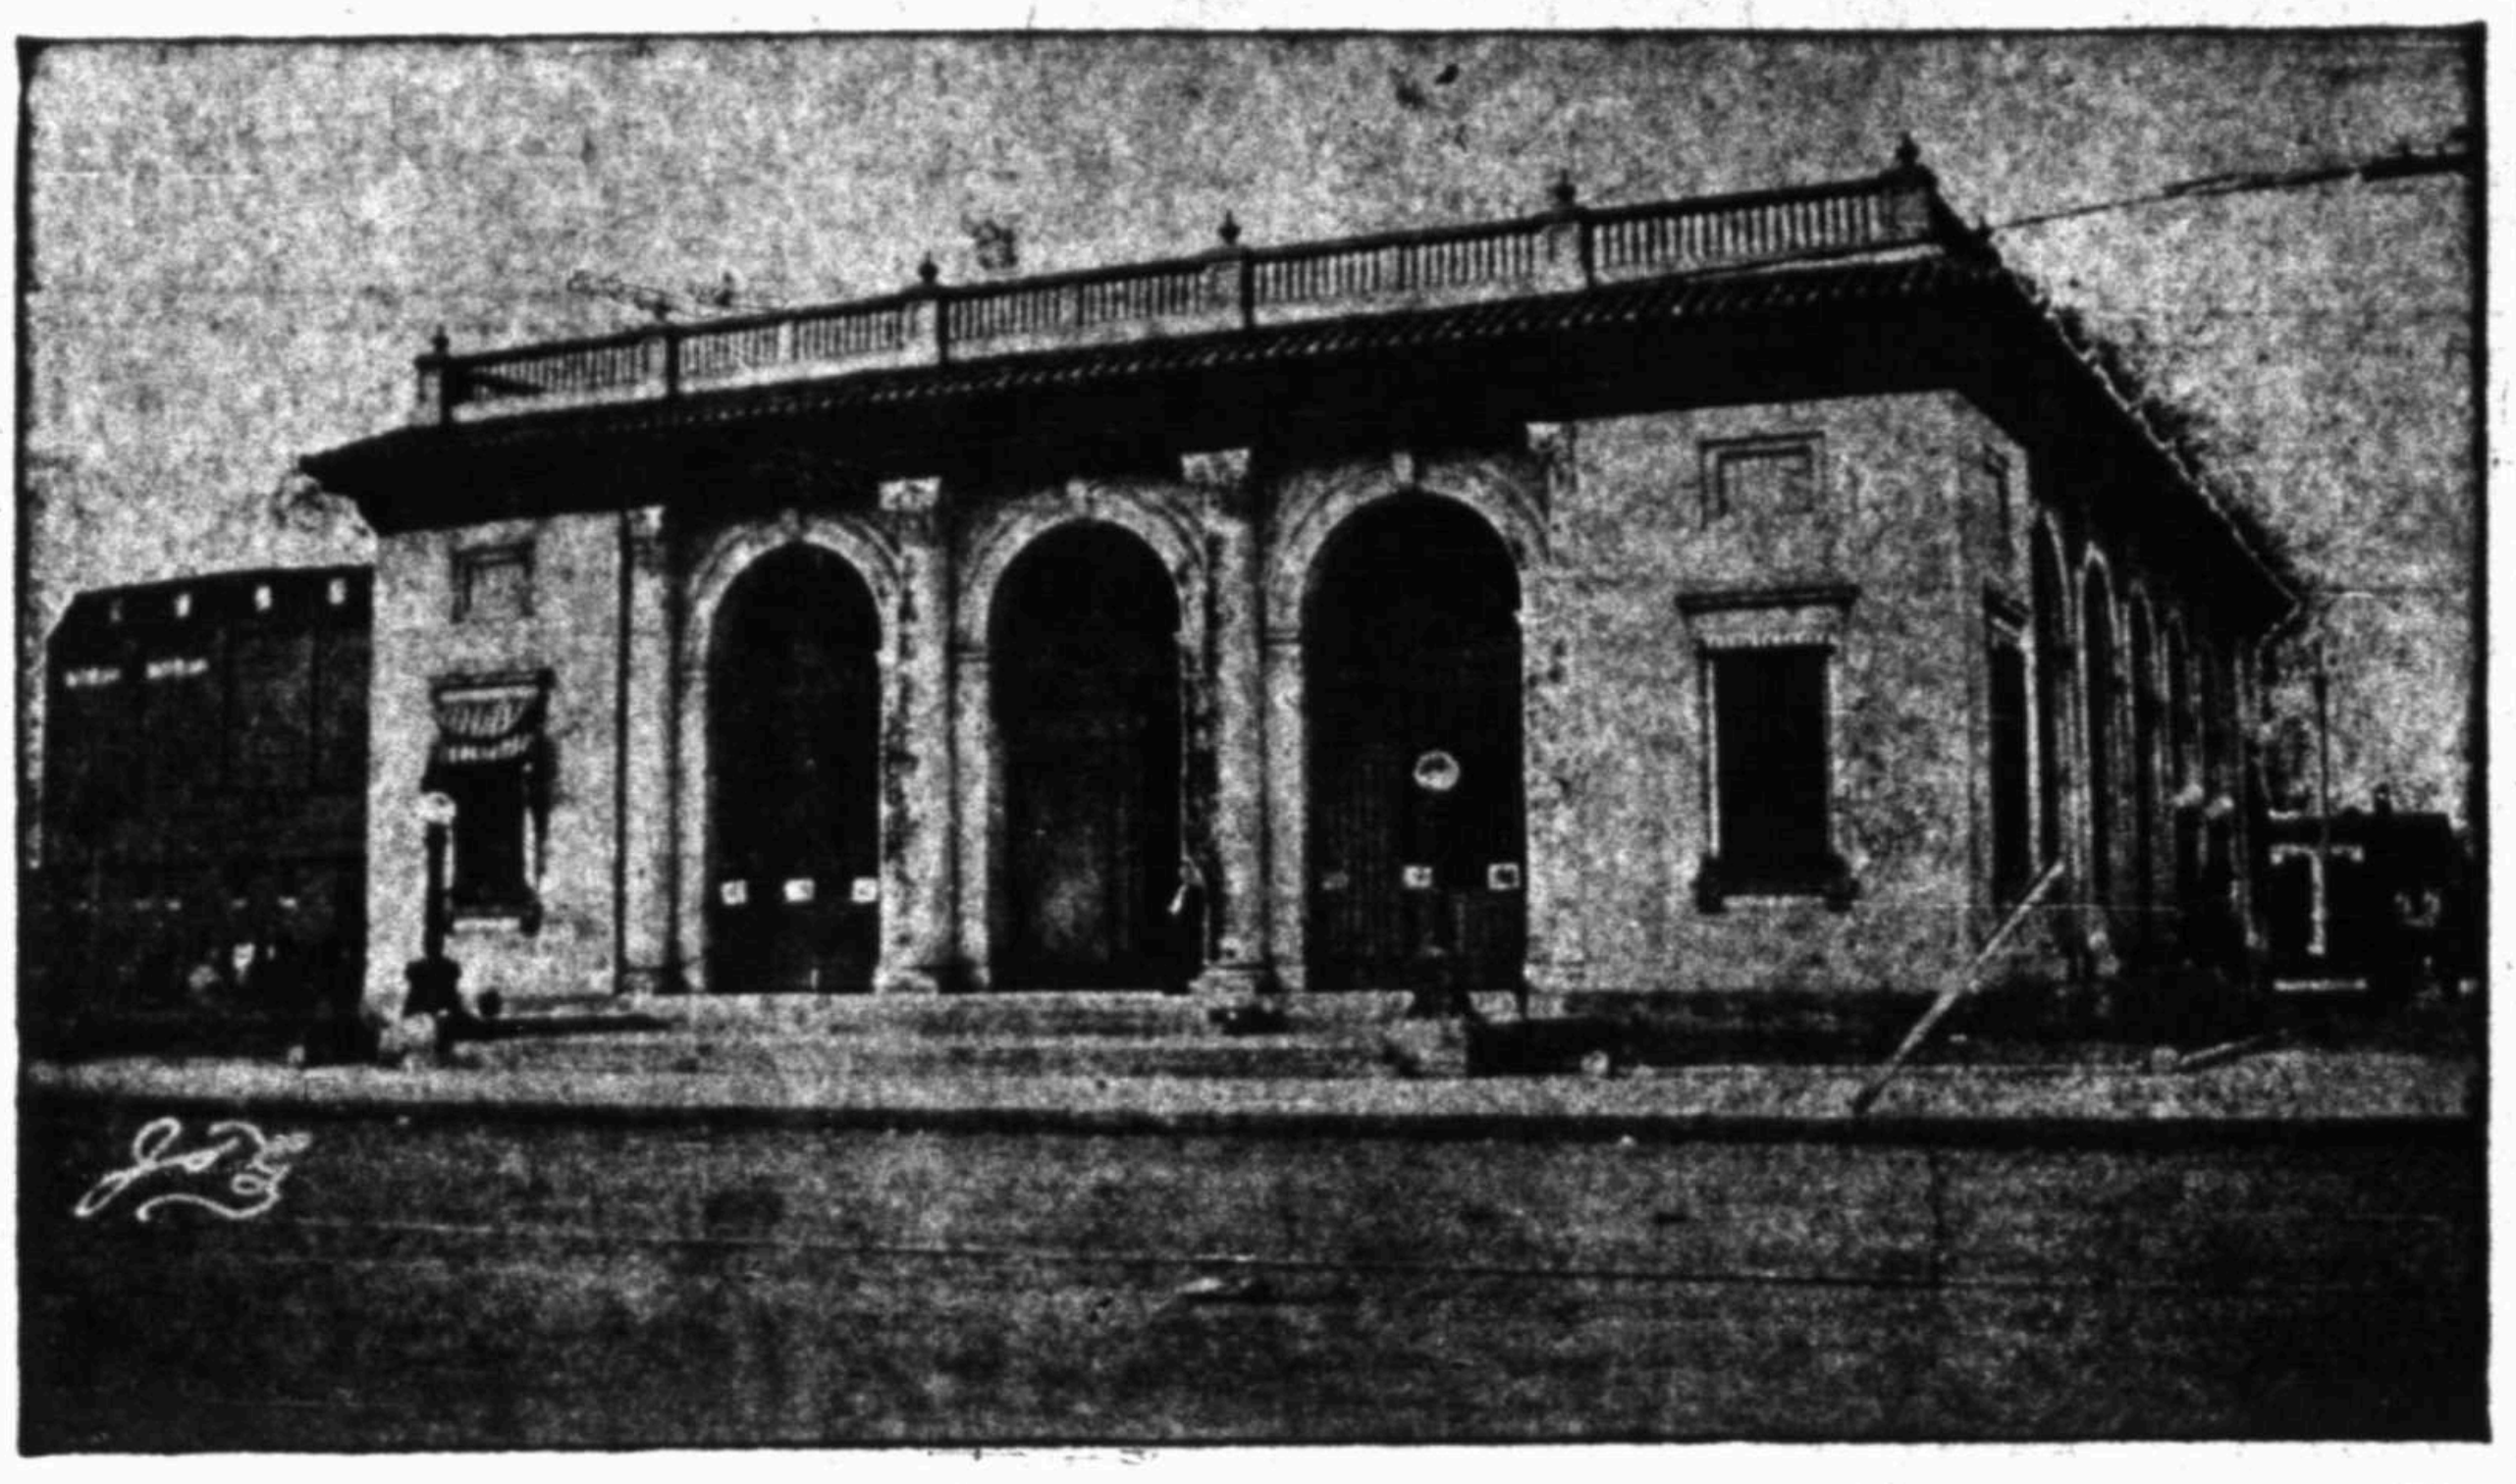
Copies of The Record News, announcing the corner stone event and showing a picture of the former postoffice, will be placed in the stone, as will copies of the issue of Tuesday, May 17, which carried pictures of chamber of commerce activities on the recent trip to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Sweetwater.

The corner stone will be placed at the Tenth street and Lamar avenue corner of the new building.

The new structure will be erected at a cost of approximately $450,000 out of the appropriation of $725,000. A total of $125,000 went for the purchase of the land and an additional $50,000 will be spent for equipment running the total cost to $625,000 or a saving of $100,000 due to lower prices at present than at the time the appropriation was made in addition to economical planning by architects.

The federal building is being constructed under the department of the treasury of which Ferry K. Heath is assistant secretary in the supervising architect's office.

Wichita Postoffice 19 Years



The corner stone ceremony at the site of the new federal building on Lamar between Tenth and Eleventh will mark another step in housing progress for the Wichita Falls postoffice. The building pictured above was occupied Jan. 1, 1913, when the late Otis T. Bacon was postmaster, after construction was started in 1911.

The first postoffice in Wichita Falls was located in the 600 block on Ohio street in the Williams & Blue general store offering groceries, hardware, dry goods and other merchandise. Several buildings were leased after that period where the U. S. mails were housed in 1882 when Judge R. E. Huff, Joe C. Ward and other Wichitans first came to this city.

The present structure at Ohio and Ninth served after the government had leased the biulding at 801 Ohio. Prior to that time the postoffice was located in the 700 block on Ohio, it is recalled by Wichitans.

C-C Endorses Kidnaping Bill

Members of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce were authorized to send letters and messages to senators and representatives in congress urging immediate passage of pending legislation on kidnaping at a meeting of the directors at the offices in the Hamilton building Tuesday.

The pending bills would make kidnaping an offense punishable by death, and a federal offense to cross state lines with victims or to use the U. S. mails.

President Albert E. Kelly was authorized to name two Wichita county chairmen, a man and woman, to work on plans for celebration of the Texas Centennial in 1936. A request was received by the board from the centennial committee executive vice president, Will H. Mayes of Austin, that the chairmen be named.

Herbert Voelcker reported plans for the corner stone ceremony Wednesday afternoon at the new federal building. Jack Barnard presented plans for the community's observance of the current national cotton week and J. S. Bridwell made a short report on highway matters.

DIME TAXIS RESUME RUNS

Hearing on Federal Court Plea Set Thursday

Taxis advertising upon their windows a fare of 10 cents were abroad in Wichita Falls again Tuesday as attorneys for the Hamp Taxi company and the city prepared to argue before Judge William H. Atwell in federal district court at Dallas Thursday afternoon on a petition filed there last Saturday seeking a restraining injunction against the city.

John Davenport, local attorney representing J. C. Hampton, owner of the Hamp Taxi company, returned from Dallas Monday night with an order from Judge Atwell ordering a hearing on the petition Thursday.

The petition filed before Judge Atwell last Saturday charges that the city's recently adopted ordinance fixing a minimum passenger fare for taxis at 25 cents is unconstitutional. The plaintiff pleads that the city's prohibition of taxi service at a 10-cent fare amounts to confiscation of property, since taxi operators allegedly can not sustain themselves at the 25-cent fare.

The petition asks for a permanent injunction, and that the taxifare ordinance be declared null and void.

A petition filed before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court last week on behalf of other dime taxi drivers here has been set for hearing on May 30.

The council adopted the minimum fare ordinance avowedly for the purpose of furthering the maintenance of permanent transportation facilities for the entire public here.

Former Wichita Youth Escapes Death on Train

Monroe Byerly, 23, who figured in an accident at Worcester, Mass., Monday which cost the life of his brother, was a former resident of Wichita Falls and a graduate of Wichita Falls High school. Currie Byerly, 21, was killed when a fast express train he boarded passed under a low bridge. Monroe, who had been unable to board the train, escaped the same fate because of his failure to run fast enough to catch the train.

While in Wichita Falls, Monroe Byerly made his home with C. O. Simmons for two years during his attendance at high school. Later he lived on Scott avenue. A father and sister in East Texas survive the Byerly boy who was killed, Mr. Simmons said.
