CAFOs could benefit from bill designed to help chemical industry

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Opponents of permits approved by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission would lose one mechanism for reversing the agency's decisions, if a bill now in committee were to become law.

Senate Bill 402, authored by Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, targets the TNRCC's contested-case hearing process, which now allows citizens and municipalities to request public hearings before an administrative judge to challenge a permit granted by the agency.

Armbrister's bill was introduced Feb. 8 and referred to the Senate Natural Resources Committee. An identical bill, House Bill 801, was introduced by Rep. Tom Uher of Bay City. Although Uher's bill is pending in committee, some observers believe it will be the legislation most likely to gain approval of both houses.

The bill would benefit the chemical industry, which is heavily concentrated in Uher's district.

Although the legislation is seen as easing the permitting process for the chemical industry, it also could have significant impact in the Panhandle, which is home to the bulk of the state's confined animal feeding operations (CAFOs) such as feedyards, dairies and hog farms.

Under the provisions of the bill, which would add Subchapter M to Chapter 5 of the TNRCC Water Code, the commission would conduct a "non-adversarial" public hearing under the direction of the TNRCC executive director and three members of the board.

The bill's opponents, including the Sierra Club, contend the legislation would eliminate the "leverage" of the full public hearing. Although the bill would block the public from seeking the "contested case" hearings, the regulated industries would be allowed to make such requests.

According to statistics, less than 1 percent of the permit decisions went to the contested-case hearing procedure.

Ron Wilson, vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo, said the legislation will affect the industry, although "very few of our feedyards are challenged to the extent of moving into a contested-case hearing."

He said the cattle feeding operations have not drawn the "opposition that other species have. ... Very few feedyards reach the contested-case hearing because our industry tries to reach an agreement (with opponents)."

"This bill ... will bring certainty. It would ensure issues relevant to the case will be heard, not just frivolous comments," Wilson said.

"We want to make sure both sides focus on the real issues, not frivolous matters," he said.

The bill would empower the TNRCC to determine whether to grant a request for a public hearing. In making that determination, the commission will consider if the request was filed:

- Within the period speci-

Feedyards, dairies and other confined animal feeding operations could be beneficiaries if one of two bills, Senate Bill 402 and House Bill 801, make it through the Texas Legislature to become law. The bills seek to tighten the rules for contesting permit decisions by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

fied in the public notice;

- By an individual with a "reasonable basis for the request" or a member of the Texas Legislature in whose district the permit applicant is located.

Also, the commission would be the agency determining if a hearing request is reasonable.

The legislation also establishes a process for presenting supplemental information, but it has some restrictions.

For example, the bill would limit the supplemental information process to:

- Obtaining relevant documents from the TNRCC executive director, the applicant, or an "affected person"; taking depositions from the applicant, an affected person, a witness, or an individual the director, applicant or affected person designated as "knowledgeable regarding a document produced in connection with or an issue raised by the application."

A request for supplemental information must be filed on a "timely basis," with commission making that determination; was filed by the applicant or affected person; and seeks information raised during the comment period or is material to the issuance/denial of the permit.

Hospital director race has another hopeful

Former chairman of CHIP project seeks position on board

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

The chairman of the committee which spent a year evaluating the county health care system is seeking a position on the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

Ernest Flood, who served as chairman of the Community Health Improvement Partnership (CHIP), on Friday submitted his petition for a spot on the May 1 ballot.

He joins Pat Stone, a community educator for Planned Parenthood in Amarillo and coordinator of the CHIP project, and retired farmer-businessman Bobby Owen, in the race for at-large seats on the board.

Voters in the hospital district will choose three directors when they go to the polls. The incumbents are Mal Manchee, who also serves as president of the hospital board; Chip Guseman and Chris Leonard.

Deadline for submitting petitions for positions on the ballot is April 1.

Candidates may pick up petitions for a spot on the ballot at the administration office of Hereford Regional Medical Center, 801 E. 3rd.

The petitions, with the signatures of 25 registered voters, must be returned to the administration office by 5 p.m. April 1.

Early voting by person will be at the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office, Room 203 of the county courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

City

Incumbent Silvana Juarez faces two challengers -- Martha Rincon and Joe Garza -- for the Hereford City Commission Place 1 seat.

Mayor Bob Jossurance and Commissioner Tom Coneway (Place 2) drew no opposition in the election.

Early voting by personal appearance will be 8 a.m.-5 p.m. April 14-27 at county clerk's office.

Applications for mail-in ballots should sent to County

Telephone cooperative to pick directors

Special to The Brand

Members of the West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative will elect three directors Tuesday when they hold their annual meeting.

The event will feature a catered barbecue dinner at 6 p.m. The business session will begin at 7 p.m. and will be highlighted by the election of directors for the Frio, Summerfield and Oklahoma Lane exchanges.

Incumbent Pat Robbins and Tommy Sparkman are candidates for the Frio position.

Robbins has served as the Frio exchange director since 1987. A partner in R&P Feed Yard at Frio, he serves on the board of Baptist Community Services for 1999, and is a past president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. He also has served on the board of trustees of High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo. He and his wife, Susan, have three daughters and a son. Susan is principal at Stanton Learning Center in Hereford, working with eight programs for age groups ranging from 3-year-olds through 18 and 19-year-old high school students.

Sparkman has been a WTRT member since 1964 and operates Sparkman Cattle Co. at Frio. A long-time member of Hereford Young Farmers, he held numerous offices in that organization and worked extensively with the annual livestock show here. He also has worked with fund-raising events for the Easter Lions Club. He and his wife, Patsy, have two sons and a daughter and four grandchildren. Patsy is an insurance representative with AFLAC.

Incumbent J.B. Noland and David Euler are candidates for the Summerfield board position.

Noland has represented the Summerfield exchange on the board since 1975 and has held all board offices. A retired farmer, he and his wife, Bea, have two daughters and a son, and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Bea recently retired as activities director at King's Manor Methodist Home.

Euler grew up on a family farm at Summerfield and still resides at the family farm. A 1968 graduate of Hereford High School, he attended South Plains College at Levelland for two years and began work with Southwestern Public Service Co. in 1971. He's now a substation journeyman electrician with SPS. His wife, Jayne, is in charge of debts and accounts at the Hereford Independent School District. The Eulers have two grown daughters and a grandson.

Incumbent Charles Christian, and Wayne Pierson are candidates for the Oklahoma Lane seat.

Christian was raised at Oklahoma Lane and is a 1976 graduate of Farwell High School. He received a bachelor's degree in agriculture from Texas Tech University in 1981, and worked in the lending depart-

Humane Society schedules meeting

The Humane Society will meet at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Police Department, 212 N. Lee. The public is invited.

'More Popcorn in the Foyer' slated

A popcorn machine will be back in the foyer of Fellowship of Believers Church at 6:45 p.m. on Good Friday (April 2) for the "More Popcorn in the Foyer" movie presentation.

A large-screen television will be set up at the pulpit for the showing of "Cry, the Beloved Country," a 1995 film starring James Earl Jones and Richard Harris. The film is an adaptation of Alan Paton's novel by the same name. It chronicles racial divisiveness in South Africa in 1946 and depicts the relationship between a simple, back-country black minister and a wealthy, bigoted white landowner. "Cry, the Beloved Country" was chosen for the Good Friday showing because of its depiction of the struggle involved when reconciliation and redemption are at stake.

The film is rated PG-13. Fellowship of Believers is located at 245 N. Kingwood (at Moreman).

HHS band boosters to meet

Hereford High School band parents are encouraged to attend the Mighty Maroon Band Booster Club meeting, set for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the high school band hall.

The meeting will include a discussion of new bylaws, plans for the spring banquet, fund-raising projects and the band scholarship program.

All interested individuals are encouraged to attend. For more information, contact booster club president Kerrie Steiert at 364-1855.

Senior parents start work days

Parents of Hereford High School seniors are invited to participate in work days in preparation for the annual prom. The work days will be at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, March 23-May 21, at Stanton Learning Center, 711 E. Park Ave.

County commissioners set meeting

Members of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will discuss equipment purchases when they meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the commissioners courtroom at the county courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

In other business, the commissioners will:

- Discuss cargo insurance;
- Consider four requests to cross county roads; and
- Pay monthly bills.

Artist-in-residence schedules a recital

Special to The Brand

CANYON — Mary Jane Johnson, West Texas A&M University artist-in-residence and international opera star, will perform at 8 p.m. March 30 in the Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall.

The WTAMU performance will include selections from Johnson's "Diva Does Broadway."

Johnson's performance will give the students she has worked with here at WTAMU and area schools the opportunity to hear her. Dr. Joe Ella Cansler, WTAMU instructor of vocal music, said.

Johnson's work on campus has included providing vocal coaching, master classes, career instruction and advanced diction in foreign languages.

She has also spent countless hours working with public school students in Canyon, Bushland, Amarillo and other surrounding communities.

"Working with young people is some of the most rewarding work I do," Johnson said. "Anytime I can help a student learn to enjoy music, no matter what kind of music it is, I have been successful."

Johnson will follow her WTAMU artist in residence with the Vancouver Opera May 1-10 in Vancouver, British Columbia. Johnson will be the female lead in a 32-minute show, "Erwartung" by Schoenberg.

Johnson, who received her master's degree in music from WTAMU in 1978, was discovered during the finals of the Luciano Pavarotti International Voice Competition in 1981.

Highlights from Johnson's career on the concert stage include performances of "Fidelio" with Maestro Lorin Maazel and the Pittsburgh Symphony, both in Pittsburgh and at Carnegie Hall, and the role of Freia in "Das Rheingold" with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Sir George Solti.

Johnson, a native of Pampa, lives in Amarillo with her husband, David, and their two children.

The performance is free and open to the public. WTAMU received a grant from the Don and Sybil B. Harrington Foundation to fund Johnson's artist-in-residency.

Voucher opponents say public schools to lose $2.8 billion under plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Public schools in six urban counties could lose as much as $2.8 billion over five years under a legislative proposal to allow thousands of students to get taxpayer-funded vouchers for private school tuition, opponents of the idea said Friday.

"Public school budgets would have to be cut at every neighborhood school to make up for the money spent to send a select few children to private and religious schools," said Carolyn Boyle of the Coalition for Public Schools.

The coalition's members include teacher, parent, school board, school administrator and some religious groups.

Voucher supporters immediately disputed the projection, which assumes all 143,888 children eligible for vouchers in Bexar, El Paso, Dallas, Harris, Tarrant and Travis counties would take advantage of the program. It's estimated that vouchers would be worth about $4,000 per student.

"In no place in the United States have more than 10 percent of eligible students ever participated" in a voucher program, said Chuck McDonald, consultant to the pro-voucher group Putting Children First.

"There is a reality check here, and the reality is the financial impact is almost nothing on the public schools," he said, given the assumption that 10 percent will participate. "We have a $20 billion budget for education in the state."

Under a bill written by Senate Education Committee Chairman Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, the voucher program would be a five-year trial that he says would test whether the idea improves education.

The program would be restricted to students in the six counties who didn't perform satisfactorily on the most recent Texas Assessment of Academic Skills reading, writing or math sections.

The students would have to be participants in the free and reduced-price lunch program that targets low-income students, and they couldn't have been enrolled in a private school during the current or preceding school year.

The voucher would be 80 percent of the state and local public school funding for the student's education. The school district the student otherwise would attend would get the rest of the public education money.

Two incumbents will have opponents in the Hereford Independent School District board races.

Incumbent Tracy Staughan is being challenged by Lou Serrano, juvenile probation officer for Deaf Smith County, in the District 5 race. In District 2, incumbent Charlie Arrellano is being opposed by Raul Valdez.

The other candidates for the board include incumbents Dave Charest (District 1) and Jeri Bezner (District 7), and retired educator Carolyn Waters (District 4).

Although he is an incumbent, Charest is not the District 1 incumbent. He was elected to the District 6 seat in 1997. As a resident of District 1, Charest is seeking to complete the unexpired term of Karen Sherrod, who resigned earlier this year.

The other positions are for full terms.

Absentee voting will be April 14-27 in the Deaf Smith County Clerk's office at the courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

Candidates can file at the HISD Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

If there is a public hearing, the TNRC executive director will make the final decision on the permit. Either side will be allowed to appeal the decision, but it must be filed in "a district court in Travis County" within 30 days.

Prevention of crime set as focus of TV program

Special to The Brand

Becoming the victim of a crime is something everyone dreads, but what can you do to decrease the odds of it happening to you? Which crimes are on the increase, and which are becoming less of a problem locally?

These are just a few of the questions that will be addressed on "Perspective: Crime in the City," which will air at 9 p.m. Tuesday on KACV-TV (Hereford Cablevision Channel 2).

Host James Hunt, with the help of a panel of experts, will discuss crime prevention tips and self-protection techniques during the program. The recently released Amarillo Crime Report, which provides statistical information on a variety of crimes committed during the past year, will also be reviewed.

"There's always a surprise or two that can be found in this report," Hunt said, "and this year's edition is no exception."

Scheduled guests include Amarillo Police Chief Jerry Neal; Claudia Stuart, a criminal justice instructor at West Texas A&M University in Canyon; and Cpl. Jerry Neufeld, a public information officer with the Amarillo Police Department.

Viewers are encouraged to phone in their questions during the program, or e-mail them in advance to www.ernest@castx.edu.

A repeat broadcast will be 5 p.m. March 29. The program is funded by a grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation.

WTRT establishes deadline to apply for its scholarships

Special to The Brand

Applications for West Texas Rural Telephone scholarships will be accepted until April 12. The scholarships will be awarded in May.

Scholarships are open only to students whose parents or guardians are WTRT members, or to students who are WTRT members themselves. Applicants must also be either high school seniors who are candidates for graduation this spring, have completed high school, or have received their GED.

The 1999 scholarships are open only to eligible, qualified applicants from the Hereford, Friona, Bovina, Farwell, Lazbuddie, Dimmitt, Adrian, and Vega school districts. Scholarship monies will be disbursed in increments per semester.

An official application form, accompanied by two letters of recommendation, must be submitted. One of the letters of recommendation must be from a teacher, principal, or counselor from the high school that the applicant is currently attending or attended.

In Hereford, applications may be picked up only at the WTRT offices on U.S. Highway 385 South.

Applications and rules may be picked up at the high school counselor's offices in Friona, Bovina, Lazbuddie, Farwell, Dimmitt, Adrian and Vega.

To be considered, applications must be fully completed, have no attachments other than the two required letters of recommendation, and must be received at the offices of WTRT, Box 1737, Hereford 79045, no later than April 12.

Applicants may be asked to attend an interview at the discretion of the WTRT board.

Mechanics of the scholarships include the following:

- WTRT scholarships may be used at any state or church-sponsored college or university, or at any accredited vocational or technical school.

- Recipients must maintain a minimum of 12 credited hours throughout each semester, or have full-time student status at vocational or trade schools.

- It is important that as soon as enrollment or pre-enrollment for the fall semester is completed, that recipients send the Cooperative a confirmation from the registrar's office. Should a recipient drop out of school for any reason, the unused portion of the scholarship will be rescinded.

- At the end of each semester, recipients are requested to send a report of their grades to: West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative, Box 1737, Hereford 79045.

Finding 'bottle place' just luck ser.en.dip.l.ty n: the gift of finding valuable or agreeable things not sought for

It was a serendipitous occasion when Annette and I stumbled across what would become one of our favorite places — and launched an enjoyable hobby.

We were living in Gallup, a small city in northwestern New Mexico, nestled among the red rock hills just outside the sprawling Navajo Reservation.

Annette and I loved to go for walks outside the town, so on this day we drove west of the city and parked near the foot of a bluff. We saw a narrow trail, so we began the slow trek toward the top of the bluff. When we got to the top, we were on a ridge overlooking a valley that sparkled in the sunlight.

I don't think I've ever seen anything as beautiful as that valley, which looked like a river glistening in the sun.

Annette and I were curious, so we looked until we found a trail that led down from the bluffs. When we reached the bottom we saw what had been sparkling in the sunshine — bottles, thousands and thousands of bottles scattered about the valley. They were green, blue, purple and some were so old they had become deformed by the years of the hot sun beating down on them.

We walked around, looking at the bottles and finding some real treasures: Lydia Pinkham bottles, old coffee jars, sauce bottles, pre-Prohibition whiskey bottles.

We also found the rusting hulks of old automobiles, such as Model Ts, and some old tractors with the steel, spiked wheels.

After walking around and picking up a few bottles, we decided to go home and come back the next day when we would have more time to explore.

However, we made a stop at the public library and I think Annette checked out every available book on bottles.

The next morning at work, I mentioned where we had been and one of my co-workers said we were lucky to get home alive.

"There're rattlesnakes out there big enough to kill cows," he said. "There're millions of 'em out there."

"What are all the bottles doing out there?" I asked.

"Used to be an old mining town out there, and they used that valley as a dump," he said. "Town's been gone since the '20s and there's nothing there but rattlesnakes now."

Annette and I decided we'd risk the snakes and continue to explore the valley.

When I got home that afternoon, she was waiting with two backpacks.

"For the bottles," she said. "I've been reading these books, and there are some really old bottles out there."

That night when we got home, we had two backpacks filled with old bottles, and Annette spent a couple of hours cleaning them and examining them closely, much like an assessor looking at gold nuggets.

"Look at these bubbles," she said, pointing to bubbles in the glass.

As the days went by, Annette became a bottle expert. She could tell if a bottle were hand blown, made from a model or was machine-made.

She knew which whiskey bottles were pre-Prohibition and which were made after the repeal.

She also became more selective, leaving ones that didn't meet her standards.

Even with her strict guidelines for bottle collecting, I still resembled a pack mule after every expedition as I lugged big bags of bottles up and over the bluff to the car.

I don't know how many hours Annette spent walking around the valley, bending and picking up bottles until she found that special one.

She became determined to find a poison bottle. The bottles she was looking for were made near the turn of the century when there were many people who couldn't read the labels, so the bottle was embossed with the skull and crossbones so everyone, even those who couldn't read, would know the bottle contained poison.

One day while she was going through the bottles, I wandered around and suddenly came face to face with a herd of wild horses. I rushed back to where Annette was examining some bottles and asked her to come with me.

The horses were still grazing when we arrived.

We sat on the ground and watched them for several minutes as they grazed calmly, just a few feet away.

After a few minutes, they stopped grazing and moved slowly down the valley, around a curve and out of sight.

We never said a word while we watched them. It would have been intruding.

We would see the horses again, but except for that one time when they seemed to enjoy letting us be so close to them, they stayed well away from us.

We also saw burrowing owls, ground squirrels, rabbits, hawks, and a variety of colorful lizards and snakes. But we never saw one rattlesnake.

Not one.

We continued to explore the valley and collect bottles for the rest of the time we lived in Gallup.

When we packed to move, we found out just how many visits we had paid to the "bottle place."

Seventeen boxes of bottles were packed carefully into the back of the U-Haul truck for the trip back east.

A few years later, Annette culled the bottles, keeping just a few very special ones. Some she gave to people, but several boxes went as part of a trade in an antique store.

Young people do require discipline, accountability

Texas and the nation has a prison crisis.

The prisons are overcrowded; youth correctional facilities are bursting at the seams; counties continually search for ways to separate offenders from law-abiding residents.

There's probably very little to be done about the old-time convicts, who have been in and out of lockups for the better part of their adult lives, but surely there is something that can be done about a number of the young offenders now filling the correctional facilities.

Maybe that something has to do with a couple of old-fashioned ideas: discipline and accountability.

By itself, neither one will work to end the problems surrounding a juvenile crime mentality — a mentality that all too often leads to adult criminal activity.

Discipline alone will only teach kids their action was wrong this time. If they change their actions it may only be for fear of being punished. Without accountability, discipline means nothing. The children have to claim their actions and know they made the choice to behave in such a manner.

Discipline means firm consequences from the time little babies start reaching for things that will hurt them or others.

I don't mean get out a cat-o-nine tails, but teaching a child the meaning of "no" from early on has to be a basis for further discipline.

When all my kids were young they, like most babies and toddlers, enjoyed being held. They learned at a very early age, if they reached for my jewelry or my hair, I would tell them "no" once; if they persisted, I would put them down for a while. It didn't take them long to realize I would not let them pull my hair or grab my earrings.

In the same respect, they learned they got in much less trouble if they came to me and told me about a problem, before I discovered it.

They also knew they got in less trouble if they at least told the truth about something when it was discovered.

These ideas, which make so much common sense to me, seem to have escaped the notice of other adults in authority situations.

Probably not a week goes by when I don't get a notice of some sort that implies vast numbers of teachers are leaving the profession because of lack of discipline and control in the classroom.

Last week, the Bryan school district officially voted to end all forms of corporal punishment. Most schools have already done so, but for some reason this decision made the news.

Later that evening, a friend who happens to teach in Bryan, called and said she and two others, would tender their resignations because the discipline problems were already so bad that without that last vestige of discipline, there would be no teaching left to do.

Parents, teachers, social agencies and legal bureaucrats all say they want the best for all children, but who is to decide what is best?

There is no discipline when a teacher reprimands a student and is then informed "I don't have to do what you say, and you can't make me." The situation worsens when the kid knows the worst thing to happen will be a trip to the principal, who will in turn call the parents for a conference.

When a kid breaks something in anger or in an effort to intimidate another person and is not made to accept consequences, what reason do they have not to repeat the offense or do something even worse?

One of my kids told me about a kid who damaged a computer at one of the schools and now the kid's parents have to pay for the computer.

I know I signed the same agreement as all the other parents, but my kids know that if they damage a computer, they'll pay for it — out of their own pockets. They would be required to turn in all the money they collect from aluminum cans, mowing yards, and babysitting as well as working at the school until it was paid for.

How far will society allow children to go before the kids themselves are held accountable for their deeds? Would the powers that exist change their tune if it was their children and personal possessions being assaulted and threatened by the out of control hooligans?

If we're not careful, we may just find out as the young offenders are making ever broadening ripples in the pool of society.

Electric industry facing change

Teel Bivins
Texas Senate

You come home from work on a cold winter day, flip on the lights and adjust the thermostat. These actions, repeated by millions of Texans every day and night, are second nature to us. Electric power has become so central to our lives and so reliable that it is taken for granted rather like the air we breathe.

For the entire history of the electric utility industry, electric power has been a regulated monopoly. But, just as times have changed for the airline industry, the trucking industry, the banking industry and the telecommunications industry, changes are coming to the electric industry. The movement to deregulate the generation of electric power has taken hold on both east and west coasts with deregulation bills being passed this decade in a host of states; California and Massachusetts being the leaders among them. Now Texas is becoming part of this trend.

Proponents of deregulation argue that competition and market forces can do a better job of setting prices for electricity than a state-appointed board sitting in Austin, Texas. They propose that the generation of electric power be deregulated and open to competition while the transmission and distribution of electric power be maintained as a regulated monopoly.

The concept sounds relatively simple, however, as in many other public policy issues, implementation of such change is vastly complex. During the interim between the 1997 and 1999 sessions, I served on the committee that looked in depth into the issues related to electric utility restructuring. This session, Lt. Gov. Rick Perry appointed me to a

Gore's history

Vice president seems to embellish his past

By Calvin Woodward

The Associated Press

When Vice President Al Gore opened his Iowa campaign this week, his privileged upbringing as the son of a senator was nowhere in sight. Instead, he talked about how he slopped hogs, drove mules, built homes and cleared land — by hand and with a double-bladed ax, no less.

The man running for president was a boy who lived and was schooled in the rarefied air of Washington, spending summers and congressional breaks on the family farm in Tennessee. But as far as Iowans could tell, it was all sweat and no refinement.

Solid and savvy by reputation, Gore goes into his presidential campaign with a thus-far small but nagging question — is he also one to embellish his past?

To his defenders, a mis-

To his defenders, a misstep here and there is hardly queried in such a long run under the public eye. To critics, he has shown a will almost likely to become increasingly exposed in the rough and tumble of the emerging campaign.

step here and there is inconsequential in such a long run under the public eye. To critics, he has shown a will almost likely to become increasingly exposed in the rough and tumble of the emerging campaign.

If Gore has a tendency toward puffery, it has yet to register with the public. When pollster Andrew Kohut of the Pew Research Center asks people for quick characterizations of the vice president, he gets a mix like 'good,' 'boring,' 'OK,' 'unexciting,' and 'stable.'

Gore laid it on thick in Iowa, contending in a round of appearances and interviews that he was a small-business person and a homebuilder. "I lived on a farm," he went on, and learned how to plow a "steep hillside" with mules, hose out the hog waste and "take up hay all day long in the hot sun."

Gore's staff was asked to elaborate on his past but a spokesman was not immediately available.

His ruminations were meant to contrast himself with rival Bill Bradley, the former pro basketball player. The last time Gore tried to draw distinctions with Bradley, a week earlier, he overstepped.

Republicans threw gleeful barbs when Gore suggested then that he'd created the Internet, that huge, amorphous communications vehicle that got rolling long before he entered politics. More than a year ago, he claimed he and his wife were models for the romantic novel "Love Story," leaving the author of that book "be-fuddled."

The ribbing over the Internet claim was playful, but the GOP obviously senses future opportunity to hammer the early favorite for the Democratic nomination.

"Earnest boastfulness does not play well," said William Kristol, editor of the conservative Weekly Standard magazine. As former chief of staff for Vice President Dan Quayle, Kristol has painful personal knowledge of how a public figure's blunders can blow up in one's face.

"Certain gaffes hurt when they fit into a stereotype," he said. "I think Gore's comment taking credit for the Internet is an example of that. I think it's a damaging gaffe because it reinforces something out there."

Andrei Cherny, senior speechwriter for Gore in 1997 and 1998, disputes that view. He also contends Gore, whose stiffness is the stuff of self-parody, won't become even more so out of fear of saying something silly.

"He's been in public life for almost a quarter century now and has been under a great deal of scrutiny for at least the past seven years," said Cherny, now editing a magazine of Democratic ideas called BlueLine. "I think in many ways he is who he is, and that's not going to change because of a bit of a good-natured ribbing because of one stray remark."

Gore's claim to have coined the phrase "information superhighway" has not been seriously challenged, and he was an early and enthusiastic supporter in Congress of communications technology. But a father of the Internet? Histories of cyberspace barely mention him, if at all.

In December 1997, Gore told a reporter he and Tipper Gore were models for the characters in "Love Story," Erich Segal's 1970s bestseller. A surprised Segal said Gore, whom he knew at Harvard, inspired one side of his male hero's personality — the one controlled by a domineering father — but his book had nothing to do with Mrs. Gore.

Back in his 1988 campaign for the presidential nomination, Gore defended his use of a brochure with a picture of him carrying an M-16 rifle in Vietnam, denying he was trying to make people think he served in combat. He had also appeared in TV ads wearing an olive-green field jacket and saying: "I'm a Vietnam veteran — one of the lucky ones."

Gore spent five months in Vietnam as a military information officer, a noncombat role that he says included brushes with enemy fire.

In 1988, he said he helped develop a subdivision on his father's land over several years starting in 1969, a period when he was also attending university and working as a journalist. Gore "came by a time or two, but not too often," the contractor for the nine-house project told The Philadelphia Inquirer in 1988.

Gore responded then that he had helped lay out the subdivision, pick blueprints, negotiate with county officials and test soil, among other duties.

special senate committee whose only charge is to deal with the issue of electric restructuring.

Come to this job with somewhat conflicting emotions. On the one hand, as a conservative, I am philosophically disposed to get government out of our lives and off our backs whenever possible. As a general rule, I do believe that the marketplace is a better arbiter of prices than bureaucrats. On the other hand, I have witnessed the deregulation of the telephone industry in Texas and have been unable to discern significant economic benefits. It seems that the main thing telephone deregulation has given Texans are a host of irritating phone calls from telephone marketers during supertime. Therefore, the standards by which I will judge any electrical restructuring bill is whether all classes of customers will be able to achieve meaningful benefits. Most especially, any legislation must ensure that rural residential users benefit and not bear the burden of the cost of deregulation which only benefits their urban cousins.

Senator David Sibley (R-Waco) is the author of Senate Bill 7, the electric utility restructuring bill. I voted this bill out of committee because I believed it satisfied my two principle criteria. The bill would allow electric utility cooperatives and municipally-owned utilities to opt into competition when and if they decide. For all investor-owned utilities in Texas, the earliest date that competition can begin will be January 1, 2002. On that date, those utilities rates will be frozen and reduced by 5%. That rate will then become the "price to beat." At that time, anyone who wants to market electric power that meets the operating criteria of an independent system operator may market power to retail and small commercial users. Investor-owned utilities cannot compete for customers within their service area, but they would be allowed to compete for customers outside their service area on this date. The investor-owned utility can compete for customers within its service area after five years or after it has lost 40% of its retail and small commercial customers to competitors. This is how the transition would take place from a regulated to a competitive market.

In order to ensure robust competition in the electric utility generating business, the bill would prevent any one generator from owning more than 20% of the generating capacity within a power region. Also, each current investor-owned utility would have to auction off 15% of its generating capacity on the wholesale market to companies seeking to market to retail and small commercial users.

With the generation of electricity deregulated but transmission and distribution being maintained as regulated common carriers, the rural residential user will have an equal opportunity to compete for electrons at competitive prices. Another feature of the bill would allow customers who choose to aggregate into groups to increase their bargaining power with the companies that generate power. Whole cities could organize into a buying group, for example, or all members of an association such as the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) could organize or be aggregated into a buying group.

Electric utility restructuring is probably the most complete issue, with the possible exception of public school finance, that I have dealt with in my tenure in the legislature. I have only scratched the surface in the myriad of issues that must be addressed to make a successful transition from a regulated to a competitive market. After two years of study on this issue, I have come to the conclusion that competition in the electric utility generating market can ultimately benefit all classes of Texas consumers, including the rural residential user. Because of the safeguards for reliability built into the law, it is my belief that Texans will still be able to come home from work, flip on the lights and adjust the thermostat using electricity provided by the generator of their choice at a more competitive price.

INSIDE

THE HEREFORD BRAND
Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I'm writing because of a situation at a local school which involves my son. In November, he was suddenly attacked in the junior high locker room. The assault involved 14 boys against my son, and one other who tried to come to his aid. Our son was kicked repeatedly in the head, back, stomach, groin and legs.

He didn't want to pursue justice, thinking the situation would only worsen. I convinced him that the right decision isn't always the easy one. He has suffered great ridicule, but has held his head high. He even wanted to stay in athletics. So, we went through the chain of command and these boys got a range of In-School Suspension to Prime Time. The criminal charges we filed are still pending.

We were personally assured by the principal that steps would be taken to assure safety. Three separate fights occurred in the locker room that day, with two coaches oblivious to the majority of it. Since then, I understand more staff and mirrors have been placed in the locker room. We have since had eggs hurled at our house and vehicles. Through it all, our son has wanted to stay in athletics because he likes football and weight lifting.

My humble opinion is that the juveniles involved in this assault should have been expelled, or at the very least kicked out of athletics. However, they are all back in.

Another incident happened in February. A boy, who coincidentally happens to be an excellent athlete, hurled a rock toward a group of boys and hit my son a half inch from my son's eyeball. Again, there seemed to be an intent to harm. Imagine my surprise when my son gets home with his eye almost swollen shut — black and blue. I thought it quite negligent that the school did not find it necessary to send him to the school nurse or call me so I could get him a doctor. Why did I bother filling out the paper that has my home phone number on it? It is my understanding that this boy's punishment was to run laps in addition to not being allowed to go to the first track meet.

My husband felt his discussion with Coach Craig Yenser was fruitless, so he went to (Superintendent) Jack Patton.

In the end, Mr. Patton upheld the coach's decision despite telling my husband that this boy had been in lots of trouble before.

Coach Yenser also had a "talk" with the boys in my son's athletics. He implied he didn't want anyone going to the principal or a teacher if there was a problem. The athletics department was a family and would solve their own problems.

Well, my son was packed off to his next class with ice on his eye. I'm just glad that his math teacher showed more concern and outrage than the athletics department did. I don't pretend my kids are always angels and I'm far from a perfect parent. I commend Coach Yenser for wanting to give all these troublemakers 2nd, 3rd ... chances to redeem themselves, but not at the expense of another child's safety.

I also believe that this school district has got to set forth very high codes of conduct, not only for its athletes who represent this community in a very public way, but for all students. We do them a disservice when we don't teach them that there are consequences when they do something wrong. This letter will serve them throughout life.

As Coach Yenser also put it, he does not answer to anyone but Jack Patton. I find it very sorry that a principal does not have the authority over the kids in athletics as well as the rest of the school. HISD says they believe in "No Tolerance." Well, I believe that HISD doesn't embrace "No Tolerance" wholeheartedly. In fact, I believe someone dropped the ball!

Senior center receives $10,000 grant for repairs

Special to The Brand

The Hereford Senior Citizens Center has been awarded a $10,000 grant to help with repairs to the center. The grant was approved by the Amarillo Area Fund board.

The center has served seniors in Hereford and throughout Deaf Smith County for nearly 25 years. It provides a full range of services, including nutrition, health, transportation, socialization and recreation.

The center needs to repair flood damage. The flood, which occurred during the Halloween weekend, forced the center to curtail or, in some cases, eliminate social and physical activities.

"With our increasing senior population, it is imperative that we support activities to promote active and healthy lifestyles," said Jim Allison, president and executive director.

Reports show that 11.6 percent of Deaf Smith County's population is over the age of 64. The center serves as a congregational meal site, and provides nutrition education, home-delivered meals, senior fitness programs, transportation, and special social holiday events.

"Hereford has one of the strongest senior citizens associations in the Panhandle," foundation grants coordinator Ashley Allison said. "They offer a broad range of services and activities beyond what would be expected in a community the size of Hereford."

The Amarillo Area Foundation, a community foundation, is a public charity which accepts funds from individuals, families, businesses and other groups interested in helping Panhandle communities. Additionally, the Foundation provides funds through grants to charitable organizations for the enrichment of the quality of life of the people residing in the 26 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Scoliosis Scheduled at HJHS

This program is designed for students who have some degree of abnormal curvature of the spine. Students who are scheduled at the junior high school will be screened for scoliosis and kyphosis.

Scoliosis is a condition in which the spine is twisted, causing misalignment of the upper body or lower back. This condition can worsen and lead to much pain as well as complications of the heart and lungs.

Kyphosis is an exaggerated rounding of the spine. Progression of these two conditions can often be arrested.

'Teddy Bear' HRMC sets clinics to assist children overcoming fears

Special to The Brand

Remember when you were little and you were terrified of anyone in a white coat with a stethoscope?

Or you were scared when you were told you had to go see the doctor? How many of us were told that if we were not good that the nurse would give us a shot?

The fears of a small child can hamper a decision to seek necessary medical attention, or the fears may interfere with the delivery of service. No one, especially parents, wants a small child to suffer or fear treatment.

Hereford Regional Medical Center is offering "Teddy Bear Clinics" next month for the public to help ease fears that small children might have about coming to the hospital or its emergency room.

During these tours or "clinics," the children will be escorted through the hospital, emergency room and ambulance to become familiar with some of the workings of each.

When anyone becomes aware of the basic things that might take place during a visit at the hospital the fear of the unknown is then reduced or taken away. HRMC officials hope that by providing the facts, the fear of the unknown will be reduced.

To assist in alleviating the fears, the child's "teddy bear" will be the patient. The child will have the chance to see how the teddy bear is cared for, just like they will be if they were the patient.

"Teddy Bear Clinics" will be April 5-9 at the hospital.

Anyone interested in scheduling a tour for a child, class or day care group should contact Carolan Garza at 364-2141, extension 3317.

Reservations for tours should be made as soon as possible because space may be limited.

Cancer center receives recertification by HHS

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO - The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center announced recently the Harrington Cancer Center/Baptist St. Anthony's Healthcare System Outreach Mammography Vans and In-House Units passed the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services MQSA (Mammogram Quality Standards Act) Facility Inspection in full compliance for the third year.

The FDA (Food and Drug Administration), which conducts the inspection, reported a flawless review. Criteria for the review include the following: personnel, equipment, reporting and record-keeping, quality assurance, mammographic procedures and techniques for patients with breast implants, consumer complaint mechanism, clinical image quality and additional mammography review.

In addition to meeting these criteria, the mammography units are already in compliance with additional requirements for facilities, which must be in place effective April 28. These additional criteria include, direct communication of results to the patient by the mammography facility, standardized assessment categories of mammography results and retention of mammography records with a provision for the woman to have ability to obtain her original mammograms should she choose.

Taking Kansas by storm

By Mauri Montgomery
Hereford Brand Publisher

First-year wrestling coach Mike Dominguez probably didn't realize how close he and the Hereford wrestling program came to getting a made-to-order championship wrestler when he packed his bags in Dumas, and headed to Hereford.

Though in hindsight, many would say Dominguez managed well enough with the team he fielded this year — sending six to the state wrestling championships in its very first exposure to UIL wrestling.

But where would the team have wound up if Jeremiah Beltran had been thrown into the Hereford mix?

The Hereford native and 18-year-old son of former Hereford City Commissioner Nancy (Griego) Quintero, and grandson of Joe and Sara Griego of Hereford, moved to Kansas in December of 1998 and took more than a passing interest in wrestling with him.

He picked up the sport as a five-year-old, but developed a more serious interest only after watching former professional wrestler Rip Evers coach it at the local YMCA.

"I started participating in wrestling pretty young and I had several other coaches, but I didn't really start learning anything worthwhile about it until I met coach Evers," Beltran said. "I love him a lot. He's a very big part of my achievements in wrestling today."

"He always encouraged me, but he also taught me about leadership," Beltran said. He taught me how to turn a loss into a learning experience. He taught me how to hold my temper and keep my mind focused on the whole match rather than the smaller parts of it."

Through Evers constant encouragement, Beltran's love of the sport grew along with the early and continually mounting successes he achieved on the mat.

The two started working together when Beltran was already making

Former Hereford grappler proves to Kansas that Texans truly do think on a larger scale the scales groan as a 230-pound seventh-grader.

Evers says that Beltran was a quick study, a natural in the sport even back then — and he was huge. "Jeremiah started intimidating people a long time ago because of his size. That got him through some of his early matches, but he learned there's a whole lot more to it than that," Evers said earlier this year. "He only lost one match that I can remember, and I coached him for almost five years. We wrestled in 14 AAU matches a year and the only one he ever lost was at the Tulsa Nationals. Now that I think about it, all our boys lost there. Tulsa is a tough tournament," Evers chuckled.

The coach beams every time he talks about one of his wrestling students, but the bond forged between Evers and Beltran has as much to do with friendship as it does with the art of wrestling.

The mentor and the wrestler talk by phone almost weekly.

"Did you know that Jeremiah was listed on the national wrestling honor roll in 1997?" Evers asks. "He was the Wrestler of the Year, plus state champion and national champion that year."

And now the transplanted Texan is beating up some of the finest wrestling talent Kansas has to offer. Actually, he's beating them at a record-setting pace.

The wrestling prodigy marked his first full year in Kansas UIL wrestling with 26 straight wins — 24 coming on pins. And with the exception of one match, the longest it took Beltran to pin an opponent was 2:57. His quickest time was 14 seconds.

And he is still classified as a junior because he spent nearly a year in Germany after his mother was stationed there following her reactivation as a United States Army Reserves nurse during the Persian Gulf War.

Beltran finished this past season ranked second among 275-pounders in the Kansas Class 6A and third in the Kansas City area according to an article appearing in the Kansas City Star.

On the year, Beltran amassed a 35-1 record, missing his dream of a state title by one loss in the Kansas State Championship heavyweight title match.

"The move to Kansas has been good for me," Beltran says with a smile.

High aims — Jeremiah Beltran with wrestling coach Rip Evers after winning a Grand Nationals title.

Midland Lady Chaps fall to Trinity Valley

In NJCAA tournament semifinal

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Trinity Valley (Texas) just can't stop winning. The Cardinals beat Midland (Texas) 89-64 Friday to improve to 35-0 this season and advance to the NJCAA Tournament championship game for the sixth straight year.

The Chaparrals (33-3) started out well, jumping to an 8-3 lead. When the Cardinals woke up, though, they took over in devastating fashion.

Trinity Valley went on a 36-8 surge over the next 11/2 minutes to put the game away early.

"We were more physical in the second half, but it was too late," Midland coach Ron Jones said.

Kenya Larkin led Trinity Valley with 13 points, including 11 during the first-half run.

The Cardinals will play defending champion Central Arizona for the national title. The Vaqueras (30-4) beat Gulf Coast (Fla.) 89-76 behind 27 points from Monet Sykes.

Duke, Kentucky post victories

Move to within one game of Final Four

By The Associated Press
Duke and Kentucky, the two most successful NCAA tournament teams of the 1990s, are both one win away from another Final Four.

Top-ranked Duke beat Southwest Missouri State 78-61 Friday night to reach the East Regional final, while defending national champion Kentucky defeated Miami of Ohio 58-43 to advance to the Midwest title game.

Scott Padgett scored 14 of his 17 points in the second half and Kentucky dominated the boards 37-18 against Miami, which got 23 points from star Wally Szczerbiak but almost nothing from his teammates.

"You're not going to stop Wally Szczerbiak from scoring, he's too good a player," Kentucky coach Tubby Smith said. "What you want to do is make sure the other guys don't beat you. It's just an unbelievable performance by our team."

Trajan Langdon scored 24 points as Duke won its 30th straight game. The Blue Devils, who won their first two NCAA tournament games by an average of 41 points, weren't quite as dominant against 12th-seeded Southwest Missouri.

"Anything would have been a letdown," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We've been playing great basketball, actually unusually great basketball."

Duke's opponent in Sunday's East Regional final will be sixth-seeded Temple, which beat Purdue 77-55.

The Owls broke the game open after Purdue picked up two early technical fouls. Temple then scored eight straight points to start the decisive 30-7 run.

"It kind of gave us our momentum," said Mark Karcher, who led the Owls with 21 points, including eight in the big run. "Every time we got the ball back, we executed our offense. It got us in the flow of the game and everybody just ran the script."

Kentucky will play top-seeded Michigan State on Sunday for the Midwest Regional title. The Spartans held Oklahoma to 33 percent shooting in a physical 54-46 victory Friday night.

Midway through the second half, Michigan State All-American Mateen Cleaves collided with Oklahoma star Eduardo Najera, and both players crumbled to the court. Najera was unconscious for several minutes and came away with a concussion, bruised breast bone, chipped tooth and a cut on his chin that required six stitches. Cleaves also lay nearly motionless for several minutes but, like Najera, later returned to the game.

"It was an ugly game," Cleaves said. "But the guys are coming through."

Duke and Kentucky each have won two national championships and made four trips to the Final Four this decade.

If they make it to the Final Four this year, they would meet in the national semifinals in St. Petersburg on March 27. That would be a rematch of last year's memorable South Regional final in which Kentucky overcame an 18-point deficit to beat Duke 86-84.

In the 1992 East Regional final, St. John's plays Ohio State in the South and Connecticut meets Gonzaga in the West.

Women's teams set for Sweet 16 matches

When it comes to guard play, North Carolina believes it measures up with anyone. Even No. 1-ranked Purdue. Who says? A North Carolina guard, of course. The focus will be on the backcourts tonight when Purdue (30-1) plays North Carolina (28-7) in the women's NCAA Midwest Regional at Normal, Ill. — one of four double-headers in the round of 16.

Sykes hit 11-of-15 shots from the field and grabbed 10 rebounds. Carol Smith led Gulf Coast with 23 points.

Denise Cardenas hit five second-half 3-pointers to help Central Arizona come back from a 37-32 half-time deficit.

"There was nothing much we could do to stop them once she started hitting," Gulf Coast Ronnie Scovell said.

Vincennes (Ind.) was trailing Sheridan (Wyo.) by nine points early in the second half of Friday's consolation game.

But the Lady Blazers (27-5) outscored Sheridan by 18 points on the way to a 79-70 victory into Saturday's fifth-place game against Seward County (Kan.).

Vincennes took the lead for good at 61-60 on a layup by Li Stansberry with 8:32 left. It was the start of a 10-3 run by the Blazers that forged a 69-63 lead with 6:01 left.

During that time, Sheridan turned the ball over on four of six possessions.

"We just quit taking care of the ball," said Sheridan head coach Brian Marso, whose team ended its season 27-10.

Vincennes was led by Rainey Altling with 20 points. Sheridan got 16 points from Sara Miller and 15 from Susan Emmett.

In other consolation action, ShaRonda Henry got in a groove early for Connors State (Okla.) and carried the Cowgirls to a 79-53 win over Walters State (Tenn.).

Henry, who led Connors State (33-2) with 22 points, hit her first four shots, all from 3-point range, and the Cowgirls cruised.

"If I shoot a couple and miss, I get frustrated," Henry said. "But if I make them, I feel like I'm going to keep making them until I get tired. And my teammates know that."

Henry finished the first half with 19 points on 6-of-7 shooting from the field as Connors State led 42-30 at halftime.

Walters State (28-7) did a better job defending Henry after the break, but it was too late. The Cowgirls opened the second half with an 8-0 run, including 3-pointers from Siovhan Hill and Billie Joe Kiser, and the Generals were never closer than 18 points the rest of the way.

Connors State (33-2) hit 7-of-10 attempts behind the 3-point line in the first half, but was only 7-of-30 inside the arc.

"We missed 10 or 12 point blanks and that's just lack of concentration or maybe being a little bit tired," Connors State coach Monte Madewell said.

Later Friday, Jackie Winfield led Meridian (Miss.) back from a 19-point deficit to a 76-69 win over Southern Idaho.

Winfield, who finished with a tournament-high 45 points, scored seven during a key 11-1 run to finish the first half, then added 28 in the second period.

"My team plays off my energy. If I'm up and hyper and hitting my jump shot, they get up," Winfield said. "I can't say enough about my teammates. They picked it up and helped me out a lot."

The Eagles still had some anxious moments in the second half. After Meridian used a 9-0 run to tie it for the first time at 44, Southern Idaho reeled off nine straight points to seemingly regain control.

But Shonte Witherspoon hit a 3-pointer and Winfield ran off nine more unanswered points to give the Eagles their first lead. Southern Idaho tied it at 59 on Jessica Gibbs' basket with 5:53 left, only to see it slip away on consecutive Meridian buckets from Tammy Bullock and Winfield.

"It shows the heart and character of our kids," Meridian coach Sandy Pugh said. "They never gave up. Jackie leads that charge. She's our emotional leader. She's a warrior."

Gibbs had 23 points and Sarah Nelson had 15 points and 13 rebounds for Southern Idaho.

But the medals and trophies already in his grasp still don't placate this grappler who spent part of his spring break training in Hereford — some with former AAU wrestling buddy and high school state qualifier Kris Hammarbeck.

His one true goal stretches way beyond a budding high school career and wrestling talents which have wooed the interest of many major colleges around the nation.

"Right now, my biggest goal is to work and train for the 2000 Olympic wrestling trials," Beltran said. "If I get that far, and I get the experience the trials offer, then I'd like to try out for the 2004 Olympic wrestling team."

"Just about everything I do revolves around wrestling. It's definitely an important part of my life," Beltran said. "It's intense — I guess that's why I love it as much as I do. I like the demands it makes on me every day."

KidFish gets kids, families hooked on excitement of fishing

God does not deduct from man's allotted time those hours spent fishing. —Wise old fisherman's saying—displayed prominently on plaque over my grandfather's desk.

Kids pick up innumerable habits and character traits at an early age. Spending a little time baiting hooks for a youngster, unwrapping tangled lines, and shouting encouragement when that "monster" is being cranked in by small hands has a way of bearing fruit over the long haul. —Young folks are susceptible to the fishing bug. Getting hooked on fishing is among the more preferable habits kids can acquire, compared to some of the other options that are out there.

It's hard to explain the electrifying feeling that the tug of a fish on the end of your line conveys to head and heart. Catching a fish has a way of hooking a youngster on what can be a wholesome and family-oriented activity for life. Some of my most pleasant memories of times outdoors are tied to fishing—hanging out with brothers and sisters and snagging catfish in the playa at the family farm; watching my daughter, Jaime, reel in a trophy-class rainbow on an ultra-light rig when she wasn't much bigger than the fish; rigging home-made fly rods for Jaime and her friend, Charlotte, and watching them gamely ply a clear-running high country stream with dry flies, trying for brookies that had lockjaw that day; Jaime and her Mom wearing me out with baiting and unhooking duties as they hauled in every rainbow in the pond at Wolf Creek Pass.

Youngsters in Hereford will have a golden opportunity to sample the fine art of angling next weekend when the big spring KidFish event is staged Saturday, March 27 at the Aquatic Park Pond (APP) in Hereford from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

In a commendable move to boost recreation for kids of all ages, the City of Hereford serves as the local sponsor for KidFish for the third straight year, teaming with the Parks & Wildlife Foundation, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, Zebco, and Penzoi. Over 1,000 ten to twelve-inch rainbow trout furnished by TP&WD are being stocked at the APP, and kids up to 16 years of age get the first crack at them.

Hereford City Manager Chester Nolen, who got this town involved in KidFish, came to Hereford from Kermit. —Can you imagine a town that carries the same name as a big green frog not having any fishing? Chester swears it's true, and he has worked at not repeating that mistake here.

"We're tickled to be able to offer kids a chance to fish at our great Aquatic Park Pond. KidFish takes only a little effort. The first year we lined up sponsors and purchased the trout ourselves, from a hatchery in Colorado. Now, working with the Parks & Wildlife Foundation, we're able to get fish through TP&WD, and that cut the cost a lot.

"KidFish isn't expensive when you go by the number of kids involved and what it can do for them. The first year, we had about 300 youngsters take part, and last year we had 500. We expect 400 or 500 again this year. This gives youngsters a great recreational opportunity that's pretty cost-effective. There's not a lot of paperwork involved, and we can stage it pretty simply.

"KidFish is popular here. Word gets around when we're going to stock fish. Alco and Western Auto sell out on hooks and bait before a KidFish," says Nolen. Remember to use small hooks when after trout. Popular baits include salmon eggs and garlic corn.

Lance Benson, KidFish Coordinator in Abilene, says this spring's shipment of rainbow trout will be coming from the Dundee hatchery near Wichita Falls, and should be arriving on the afternoon of March 26. Arrival just before the event should mean the trout will have less time to fill-up on aquatic vegetation at the pond and should be hungry and more likely to bite on KidFish day.

Benson says KidFish could use more volunteers in Hereford. He needs help with registering kids, distributing fishing gear, and assorted duties such as unwrapping tangles. If you'd like to volunteer, contact him at (915)-672-3781.

Zebco, a KidFish sponsor and name well-familiar in angling circles, makes its timeless and virtually indestructible 202 and 33 reels available, and Benson will be bringing a couple hundred of these rigs to Hereford to be available to kids who don't have their own equipment.

Not only will kids have the first chance at the rainbow trout Saturday, but another KidFish event is tentatively scheduled for September 18, when catfish will be stocked at the APP.

"Our goal at Kidfish is to involve families in fishing. Lots of kids participate in sports, and that's good, but we also want to offer an opportunity to get into something that can last a lifetime, and span all age groups," says Benson.

Once KidFish concludes Saturday, fishing for remaining trout will be open to the general public, subject to licensing and trout stamp requirements of TP&WD.

So get out there, all you "kids." Let's go fishing! Don't forget to say your Fisherman's Prayer—"God, grant me the ability to catch a fish so big that even I, when speaking of it later, need never tell a lie."

IOC investigates jewelry claims

Ex-wife of prominent Australian member claims receipt of gold necklace, cufflinks

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — A day after a crisis meeting to clean up the Salt Lake bribery scandal, the IOC began investigating a prominent Australian member after his ex-wife said the couple received $6,300 in jewelry from a bid city.

The former wife of Phil Coles sent a fax to International Olympic Committee officials stating the couple received diamond cufflinks and a gold necklace during a trip to Athens in 1990.

The statement said the jewelry was presented to the couple by an unidentified man involved with Greece's failed bid for the 1996 games.

IOC rules prohibit members from accepting gifts worth more than $150.

Mrs. Coles said the cufflinks were turned into gold earrings, adding, "This is my final statement on the matter."

A photo in Friday's Sydney Morning Herald showed Mrs. Coles wearing what the paper said were those earrings.

The allegations previously had been reported in the Australian media, but the IOC said it wouldn't investigate unless it received documented evidence.

"As a result of the fact that a communication has been received from a third party, the executive board decided to investigate the matter further," the IOC said in a statement Friday.

Phil and Georgina Coles went through a bitter divorce in the early 1990s.

Phil Coles, 67, has repeatedly denied wrongdoing, and repeated Friday that he would not resign from the IOC.

"No, absolutely not," he said when asked if he planned to step down.

Coles said he would remain on leave from the board of the organizing committee for the 2000 Sydney Games "until the matter is resolved."

Coles had previously resigned from his paid position as international relations director of the Australian Olympic Committee.

In Sydney, Olympics boss Michael Knight called on Coles to quit the board of the Sydney Organizing Committee (SOCOG).

"I would be very surprised if he walked back into the next SOCOG board meeting," Knight said. "The best thing that Phil could do, in his best interest, to stop all this pain that he's getting publicly, is to stop bearing that pain and make a decision himself."

Under the Olympic Charter, IOC members from the host country must serve on the board of the organizing committee. As long as Coles remains on the IOC, he would keep his SOCOG position.

Coles was one of more than 20 members implicated in the bribery scandal involving Salt Lake City's winning bid for the 2002 Winter Games. In an unprecedented purge, six members were expelled Wednesday, while four others had previously resigned.

He was among 10 members who received warnings in the Salt Lake case from a special IOC inquiry commission. He received the most severe degree of censure for accepting excessive travel, gifts and hospitality from Salt Lake bidders.

The inquiry panel said Coles could face expulsion "should similar facts ever occur again."

In a statement Friday, the IOC said the inquiry commission was being dissolved and its responsibilities were being taken over by the executive board, pending the formation of a new ethics committee.

The move takes the Coles case out of the control of Dick Pound, the IOC vice president who headed the inquiry panel.

Pound had been accused of showing favoritism toward Coles, a longtime friend. The two dined together last month after Coles testified before Pound's commission.

The dissolution of the inquiry panel could also affect the other investigation that remains open — that of South Korean executive board member Kim Un-yong, the highest-ranking official implicated in the Salt Lake affair.

Kim had received the same severe warning as Coles. The inquiry panel said he would be expelled if new evidence proved Kim knew that the Salt Lake committee paid for his son's salary at a telecommunications company. Pound had said he believed such evidence existed.

Kim and Pound are bitter rivals. They were involved in a heated confrontation at IOC headquarters earlier this week.

Coles' case came up during a meeting of the executive board with Sydney organizers.

"It's their business, not mine," SOCOG chief executive Sandy Hollway said. "They showed us a copy of the letter and said they want to deliberate on it."

Cooking up a cure?

Special to The Brand

How do you find a cure for cancer?

Maybe you cook one up.

That's how Fran Kaluznick, LaNell Kendrick, Nancy Urbanczyk, and Peggy Hyer, all associated with West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative and its wholly-owned subsidiary, WT Services, Inc., approach the problem.

These women have spent the past several months compiling Co-Op Cooks (The Best of the Best) a 140-page collection of recipes supplied by cooperative members, employees, family and friends of WTRT and WT Services.

The cookbook will be available for purchase at WTRT's annual meeting of the membership March 23 at the Hereford Bull Barn, beginning at 6 p.m.

Copies may also be obtained at the WTRT or WT Services offices on South Highway 385.

Proceeds from the sale of the cookbook (priced at a minimum donation of $10 per copy) will be given to the American Cancer Society to help toward finding a cure for this dread disease. Cookbook proceeds will be presented during the third annual American Cancer Society Relay for Life scheduled here June 4 and 5.

Co-op Cooks is the title of the cookbook compiled by, from left, LaNell Kendrick, Nancy Urbanczyk, Peggy Hyer and Fran Kaluznick. Recipes were supplied by cooperative members, employees, family and friends of WTRT and WT Services. Proceeds from the sale of the cookbook will go to the American Cancer Society.

Co-Op Cooks is dedicated "to the memory of those who lost their lives in the battle against cancer, to those still fighting the battle, and to those who have fought and won the battle."

Why attempt to fight cancer with a cookbook?

"All of our lives have been affected in some way by cancer

-whether it has impacted family or friends. We need to find a cure. One way we felt we could help was with a fundraising cookbook," Kaluznick said.

"A cookbook has a wide general appeal, and it's a fun way to work toward this objective," she says.

Kaluznick spearheaded the cookbook effort, selling advertising and lining up an array of sponsors to defray printing expenses. She also formatted the book and did computer page layout.

Sponsors include KNNK Radio, The Tardy Company, The Ranch House, KPAN Radio, J&S Hydraulics, Hereford Bi-Products, BJM Sales & Service, Brooke Pipe, Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Goodin Fuels, Valley Farm Service, Inc., Newton Trucking, Inc., Big T Pump Co. Inc., Arrow Sales, Inc., and Hereford Cablevision.

Also among sponsors are Consumers Fuel Cooperative, Hereford Grain Corporation, Electrical Specialist, Plains Ford New Holland, Inc., K-Bob's Steak

House, American Dusting, Agripro Seed, Inc., Hereford Janitor Supply, Wall & Sons Drilling, Arrowhead Mills, Hicks Well Service, Plateau Cellular Network, Terry's Automotive, Whiteface Aviation, Edwards Pharmacy, McGinty & Associates, and Oglesby Equipment Co. Inc.

LaNell Kendrick, Nancy Urbanczyk, and Peggy Hyer shared proofreading and compiling duties, getting the book ready to go to press.

Breast cancer screenings offered by local provider

The Women's Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and Baptist/St. Anthony's Health System will conduct a breast cancer screening at South Plains Health Care Providers, Inc., 603 East Park, on April 9.

Participants will receive a low-cost screening that includes a mammogram and instruction in self-examination by a registered nurse.

A minimum of 15 women needs to register in order for the mobile mammography clinic to come to area towns. All exams are done by appointment only.

This clinic is available only to women who need financial assistance. Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for Texas residents who qualify for assistance.

Call 806-356-1905 or 1-800-377-4673 for more information.

Hotdogger

Former resident pilots Wienermobile

Traveling the country in a five-ton orange hot dog is not the job many students anticipate upon college graduation. For a few lucky dogs, like Jenny Parker, who can really cut the mustard, each June brings a unique adventure -- they are the Oscar Mayer Hotdoggers, pilots of the Oscar Mayer Wienermobiles.

"I am the first person from Hereford, and also from the Panhandle, to be hired as a Hotdogger," Parker, a 1994 Hereford High School graduate and daughter of Brent and Brenda Johnson, said.

Recent college graduates submit their resumes for the position of Hotdogger and Parker was chosen out of 1,000 applicants.

She graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in December 1998 with a degree in advertising.

The Hotdoggers spend three months or a year traveling across the country making promotional appearances.

The year begins with training at Hot Dog High, where the Hotdoggers learn all about Oscar Mayer's history and products, special events planning and how to maneuver their buns in traffic.

These wiener-shaped vehicles have been around since 1936 when the first Wienermobile rolled off the line in Janesville, Wis., at a cost of $5,000.

The Wienermobiles have undergone numerous design changes and configurations in the ensuing years. They were retired from service in 1977 but were brought back out for a 50th birthday celebration in 1986.

The response was so good, with huge crowds showing up at Wienermobile appearances, that a decision was made to build a new fleet and begin touring again in 1988.

A fleet of six Wienermobiles is currently touring the United States with the Hotdoggers as spokespersons.

If, in your travels, you happen to see a wiener-red vehicle with a splash of mustard yellow on a lightly toasted bun -- wave. The driver might be from your hometown.

Baker, Young are wed in Amarillo ceremony

Jerilyn Baker and Steven Young, both of Amarillo, exchanged marriage vows Saturday in Cornerstone Baptist Church in Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Jeryl and Judy Baker of Hereford. The bridegroom's parents are Curtis and Phyllis Young of Amarillo.

Coy Wylie of the church officiated.

Maid of honor was Holly Helzer of Austin. David Brittain of Claude was the best man.

Bridesmaids were Tracy Stewart of Hereford and Becky Sandlin of Denver City.

Serving as groomsmen were Jeff Young, brother of the groom, and Matt Newkirk, both of Amarillo.

The flower girl was Paige Milum and the ring bearer was Blake Milum, cousins of the groom and children of Dierk and Dusti Milum of Amarillo.

Ushers were Jarrett Baker and Jermyn Baker, brothers of the groom, and Gideon Keeling. Susan White of Amarillo was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown with the bodice adorned with beads and simulated pearls in a floral pattern. The beaded round neckline flowed down to short sleeves heavily beaded in a floral pattern.

Satin roses and beaded streamers decorated the back of the gown. The full A-line skirt flowed into a semi-cathedral train.

The shoulder-length, two-tiered veil of tulle was attached to rosettes adorned with clusters of simulated pearls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of ivory roses in various sizes, accented with greenery and ribbons.

Bridal attendants wore navy georgette tea length dresses with a back bow in matching navy chiffon. They carried long stemmed, bright spring flowers tied with lacy ivory ribbons.

The couple was honored with a reception at Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Guests were registered by Laura Baker, sister-in-law of the bride.

Staci Phipps, Connie Fritz, Christi Fritz, Christie Covell, all of Amarillo, and Mary Ann Garrett of New Braunfels assisted with the reception.

The three-tiered wedding cake was covered in cream-colored icing and spring flowers, and topped with a Precious Moments bride and groom.

The groom's cake was two-layered chocolate trimmed with roses and names of the bride and groom.

After a wedding trip to California, the couple will reside in Amarillo.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School, and obtained her B.S. from West Texas A&M University. She is currently an assistant manager at Bath & Body Works.

The groom attended Amarillo College and West Texas A&M University. He is currently employed as an air mail driver for Fox Fast Service.

School News

Education Roundup

By Carolyn Waters

"Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body." - Joseph Addison

On every campus in HISD, students are given the opportunity to improve their reading skills. This must be extended into the home, or better yet, the reading experiences of the home should be extended into the reading program of the school.

Parents, you can help by first expecting everyone to read. The very best start for any child is to be read to as a pre-schooler, at least 20 minutes a day. As your children learn to read, extend this by letting them read to you or to younger children. This practice will soon become a natural part of their daily routine.

Making sure that your children see you read is of utmost importance since you are their primary role model. If you have difficulty reading, tell the children stories. Tell them about grandparents and events during your growing up years.

Children at a very young age can become interested in maps, and this can be time-consuming for the child during a trip. Also, a child does not have to be very old to recognize the "McDonald's" sign, so encourage the reading of signs, from highway signs to advertisements. Of course, there will be some you had rather they not read, just as there are books you would not want in their backpack!

Too often, we as adults seem to think that if we know it, that the children will surely know it, too, perhaps by osmosis. Terms such as "over, under, beneath, beside, around, etc..." must be emphasized and demonstrated to children for them to really acknowledge what each term means.

Children should be introduced to the library at a very early age. Our own county library offers so many titles, reading programs and family activities and you are remiss if you do not take advantage of this excellent facility.

If you think that I am "hung up" on reading, perhaps I am. As I grew up, we were far from "well-to-do," but somehow my mother managed to have books, newspapers and magazines for our family of five children. I wonder how she provided for my membership in The Junior Literary Guild, but she did and we began checking out books from the county library at a very early age. I was also fortunate to have good teachers who read to us and challenged us to read, read, read. I would hope that every child would have the same opportunity.

"At school we first learn to read and then we read to learn."

YOUR EYES

TWITCHY EYELIDS

You're sitting at your computer and all of sudden, one eyelid starts fluttering like crazy. It lasts a few seconds but then comes back again a little while later and frequently over the couple of days. You can't help but imagine something is wrong with your eyes. Generally, this twitching or quivering is related to fatigue and stress. If it happens, take a look at what's going on in your life. Are you working too much? Are you sitting at your computer for hours and hours? You may need to give your eyes a break for a couple of days. Also, try gently massaging the affected eyelid. This can relieve the twitch significantly. Eye twitches are almost always harmless but can be very irritating and distracting. If it persists over time, see your doctor.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers
Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for three years, and it is obvious that my mother does not like my wife. I can deal with that, but I'm becoming increasingly upset by the way Mom behaves around "Amelia."

Two weeks ago, there was a milestone family affair, and we hired a professional photographer to take pictures. As we were preparing to pose for the photo shoot, my mother informed Amelia that she could not be in the pictures because she was not a blood relative and therefore not a family member. My wife stepped out, but I could see she was very hurt.

There have been other instances as well. One evening when several of us went to the theater together, Mom happened to end up sitting next to Amelia. She abruptly stood up, moved to the other side of the row and announced, "I want to sit next to my son."

I have asked my mother to please stop treating Amelia so shabbily, but she insists she has nothing against my wife and accuses me of being overly sensitive. I hope you can help me. — Not Mama's Boy in Missouri

Dear Missouri: Your signature does not match your letter. You certainly sound like a mama's boy to me and a gutless one at that.

Why did you not speak up on your wife's behalf when your mother decided Amelia couldn't be in the family pictures because she wasn't a blood relative? And when your mother demanded to sit next to you in the theater, why didn't you arrange the seating so your wife could be on the other side?

As long as you permit your mother to abuse Amelia, she is going to do it. It's high time you asserted yourself, sonny boy. Check out the Bible, where it says, "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother and shall cleave to his wife, and they shall be one flesh." Copy that directive on a piece of paper, and tape it to your bathroom mirror.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a

34-year-old single physician who has never been married or even come close. The truth is, I never found anyone I truly wanted to be with — until last year. Sound good? Well, wait. The woman I have fallen in love with is a very youthful 53-year-old — and she is married.

I do not want to jeopardize her marriage by having an affair, but I do want a friendship with her. We talk on the phone two or three times a week, but she must call me from work to avoid arousing suspicion at home. I cannot call her house and ask her to have lunch with me or go to a movie.

Is there any proper, non-threatening way I could have a close relationship with this woman without upsetting her family? Am I better off just leaving her alone? I'm afraid I will never meet anyone else whose company I enjoy so much. Please give me some guidance. — A Smitten M.D. in N.C.

Dear N.C. Doc: Stop playing with dynamite before you blow up the woman's marriage and your medical practice as well. Surely there is a single woman in North Carolina who would be an appropriate companion with romantic possibilities. Let your friends know you are interested, and put yourself out there. If you need an incentive, think about how your life would be enriched with a couple of children. That should do it.

Gem of the Day (Credit Mark Twain): We should be careful to get out of an experience only the wisdom that is in it — and stop there; lest we be like the cat that sits down on a hot stove lid. She will never sit down on a hot stove lid again — and that is well; but also she will never sit down on a cold one any more.

Have trouble sleeping at night and don't want to get involved in a novel? "A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect bedstand mate. On the waiting list

Nathan is a 10-year-old who is one of 18 children on the waiting list with Big Brothers Big Sisters. According to Nathan, he wants a Big Brother so he can have a man to do things with.

He is in the fourth grade and makes A's and B's. Sometimes he gets in trouble at school for talking too much and not listening. Nathan thinks that PE is the best thing about school.

He likes to fish, play video games and would like to learn how to hunt. He would like a Big Brother to take him to ride go-carts and teach him about computers.

If Nathan was given lots of money, he says that he would put it in savings after he bought a new fishing boat and fishing box. He thinks that when he grows up he would like to play the drums or trumpet in a band.

Big Brothers Big Sisters provide screened adults to serve as mentors in a one-to-one relationship with boys and girls from single parent homes. To become a Big Brother or Big Sister, an individual completes an application with referrals; criminal checks and personality tests are done on each applicant. Volunteers are asked to give a minimum of eight hours per month to their Little Brother or Sister.

There is a great need for Big Brothers Big Sisters. Anyone interested is asked to call 364-6171.

Editor's Note: The Hereford Brand will periodically run a profile of a child who has made application for a big brother or a big sister in order to keep the public informed about the needs of these children.

Museum tour focuses on changes in clothing

The Gold Star 4-H Club met March 8 at the Deaf Smith County Museum for a tour of the museum with a focus on clothing.

Museum director Paula Edwards displayed styles from the turn of the century. She compared these styles to the styles of today and talked about the many changes that have been made.

Several parents joined the group for the tour.

Gold Star members present were April Beasley, Chelsea Campbell, Madison Urbanczyk, Sydnee Mardell, Erika Culp, Sunny Vanlandingham, Amy Adams, Jaclyn Paschel and Stephanie Shaw.

The next meeting will be April 12 at Hereford Community Center.

Thank You

Once more, we would like to thank the many friends who remembered Emory with memorials, visits, flowers, food, cards, and telephone calls. Please know your kindness was a great comfort.

Sincerely, Dorothy Brownlow & family

Thank You

We would like to express our heartfelt gratitude to the fine people of the Hereford area for their many kind gestures since George's death. We are very fortunate to have so many caring friends.

An "Etch a Sketch" Approach to Life

When I was a boy-sometime between the great flood and the Vietnam conflict - one of my favorite pastimes was a bright red plastic toy called an Etch a Sketch. It was a magic toy for a boy with a creative mind.

You could draw cars, tractors and houses. You could create intricate and complex patterns, mazes and shapes. Or, you could write your name in cursive.

The beauty of the Etch a Sketch was that if you didn't like what you created, you could simply turn it upside down and shake it and all the lines and squiggles would disappear. In an instant you had a clean screen with which to begin the process anew.

Not long ago, I heard someone mention getting a fresh start on life. "I wish I could just start over and erase all my mistakes," the person said. I remember the Etch a Sketch.

The more I thought about the "if-only-life-were-like-an-Etch-a-Sketch" concept, the more I realized it can be just that way. You can turn your life upside down and shake it. We have the power to erase our past and create a new picture of our future.

Erase Your Past

• Erase past failures. Elbert Hubbard said, "There is no failure except in no longer trying." The very best way to eliminate past shortcomings and flops is to put all your energy and effort into a new quest for success. Draw a new picture of fullness and accomplishment. Draw that picture first in your mind, then in your actions.

• Erase past feelings. There is little you can do that will cause your own self-destruction any more surely than harboring hard feelings toward others. Hatred is self-punishment. You do little harm to those you hate. Draw a new picture of forgiveness. Forgiveness is not only Divine, it is also emotional freedom. When you erase negative feelings, you make room for happy and constructive thoughts.

• Erase past frustrations. One of life's bitterest moments is to reach middle age and realize that you have had little effect on the world around you. We may reach for happiness only to find hurt. However, we can shake our frustrations from our Etch a Sketch life. Replace your frustrations by helping others. Don't knock it, just try it.

• Erase past friendships. Please read this very carefully. There are two kinds of friends: those who pull you down and those who lift you up. Erase only those friends who would drag you down. Erase those friends whose habits and actions distract you from achieving your goals. Draw a new picture by nurturing those friendships where both of you promote goodness and happiness in the other.

• Erase past fears. The words of Franklin D. Roosevelt often come to mind when we consider our fear. Roosevelt said: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself - nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance." Draw a new picture by facing your fears and turning those retreat areas in your life into advance. Once you conquer a fear, you'll have to deal with it again.

• Erase all falsehoods. The biggest problem with liars is this: No one believes them even if they are telling the truth. Thomas Jefferson said, "Truth is the first chapter in the book of wisdom." If you would be wise, draw a new picture of our life with truth. While this concept is too simple for some to grasp, telling the truth brings great comfort and peace. Truth brings confidence. Truth is always at ease.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls

As I begin another week, I look at my list of things to do: staff computer training, prepare for TIFF Grant implementation, plan for the arrival of new shelving, sew for the wedding, plan the reception, plan for the Summer Reading Club, and plan a program for the State Library Conference in April.

As I review the list, I realize how much work I, and the library staff, have to do and how lucky we are to be located in the Panhandle.

I am sure you have heard Martha and I talk about the TIFF Grant. This grant is one that was made available through the Texas State Legislature in an effort to see all Texas Public Libraries ready for the 21st Century, by making the necessary technology available so that all public libraries can connect to the Internet.

The grant guidelines emphasized that the money was to be used to form library collaboratives. When the grant guidelines first arrived, some very key library people across the Panhandle got together to identify remote libraries that had little or no technology available, no Harrington Library Consortium link, and the cost of the telecommunication required to link those libraries to HLC.

Do you see the process here? They first identified the have nots. It is important to the Panhandle Libraries and people, that everyone be included, and that the most remote, rural library regardless of its size, have the opportunity to have what is available to the others.

For the purpose of the TIFF Grant, the Panhandle Library

Collaborative was formed, and each Public Library and their governing board signed a letter of intent. This letter demonstrated the commitment of each library to the grant project and their desire to see it to completion.

This is the way of Panhandle people. Once they commit themselves to a common goal they are determined to work toward its completion. Over the past month, I have seen that this attitude of cooperation, sharing and commitment does not exist in other areas of our state.

While the Panhandle libraries saw an opportunity to link all the public libraries together through the Internet, others across the state were trying to locate just one other library that would be willing to form a network or collaborative of two. I think how sad it is for the people in those communities. How terrible it must be to be so limited in one's vision. How sad it is not to be able to find one neighbor willing to join together so that everyone they serve can benefit. How sad it is to be so isolated and alone while surrounded by so many.

That same Panhandle spirit is found at the core of our community. It is this same spirit of support and commitment that is demonstrated by our Friends of the Library organization. Their goal is to make the library better for the total community.

Their latest project is to purchase additional shelving to accommodate the growing Talking Book collection. In case you have not noticed, we are out of shelf space.

The Friends have seen a need, and with the combined resources of the County Library

Budget, the Friends, and County Maintenance staff, new shelving is on its way. The ever growing and most popular area of our collection can continue to grow.

You are all a part of the Deaf Smith County Library through your tax dollars. Come in and see how that dollar is being spent. See how you can benefit from having a library in your community.

As for the other items on my to do list, I'll give you a progress report in my next column.

Now I am sure you want to know what new titles are coming out this week. The first title I'll tell you about is The Desert Crop by Catherine Cookson, who remains one of the world's best loved historical novelists even after her death. (Don't be too shocked. There are several authors writing after death.)

Widower Hector Stewart sees a solution to the money problems he has on the farm. He is to marry Moira Conelly, a wealthy distant relative who lives in a castle in Ireland.

Moira, who had not been totally honest about her financial situation, is convinced that by marrying Hector, she will become a land owner and thus capable of living in comfort with servants. Imagine their surprise when the truth is discovered and neither has the wealth the other is county one.

Irish Mist by Andrew M. Greeley tells of Dermot Michael Coyne chasing Nuala Anne McGrail so well that Nuala finally allows herself to be caught. Dermot is not sure what he is going to do with that spitfire, beautiful and vivacious "Celtic witch," but she has agreed to marry him.

Nuala, a successful singer, is also gifted with second sight. While touring Dublin and performing at the "Irish Aid" benefit, Nuala falls into one of her spells. The last time Nuala had a "spell" she became involved in solving murder mystery.

This time the murder of Kevin O'Higgins begins to surface and the link between past and present becomes almost visible.

The Gates of Fire by Steven Pressfield is an epic novel of the Battle of Thermopylae. This battle happened thousands of years ago. Herodotus and Poutarch immortalized Spartan society in their life stories.

Little is left of Sparta today but there is, at a narrow Greek mountain pass called Thermopylae, a few historical markings. In the battle three hundred Spartain warriors held back the millions of Persian invaders.

It is through the eyes of the sole survivor, a squire in the Spartain heavy infantry, that the story is told. According to Pat Conroy, Pressfield has done for Thermopylae what Charles Frazier did for the Civil War in Cold Mountain. This historical novel is one you will not want to miss.

WORKING WITH ABUSED CHILDREN

Long-term psychological and behavioral problems may result from unresolved issues surrounding child abuse. In most cases, professional counseling and therapy are needed to assist children and adults in handling this tragic trauma that occurs during and after the abuse. Some emotional symptoms may include anger, denial, repression, fear, self-blame, self-doubts, helplessness, low self-esteem, guilt, dejection and apathy.

Inappropriate behavioral symptoms may include acting out, withdrawal, physical somatic symptoms, nightmares and phobias. The child's belief system may be affected in such a manner as to make the world unpredictable and hostile. Some children may be aggressive and have behavioral problems. They may need to have professional counseling and therapy.

Many times the children will model the abusive behaviors done to them in the way they treat other children. Other children may be extremely withdrawn, isolated, or have academic or social problems. Abused children are usually never easy to get along with. They have learned not to trust others, themselves, or their environment. The world and the people in it are inconsistent and hurt them. It is safer to withdraw from this painful world and not chance relationships. Building friendship and trust may be a difficult step and take a long time.

The child will need to ventilate his or her feelings, ask questions, and replay abusive incidents in order to resolve issues. Children have been taught that care givers and other adults in their lives act in their best interest. It is difficult for them to understand that people who are supposed to love and care for them can also harm them. Their dependency on parents and other adults for care and security intensifies the conflict. Many children actually believe they deserve the punishment they receive.

In working with an abused child as parents, care givers, school personnel, church, or concerned persons, you must be prepared to become totally involved with the child and be prepared for the child's repeated testing of your caring. The child will need to overcome the feelings of worthlessness and guilt and needs to build self-esteem. Positive attitudes toward life and people will need to be developed. The child will need to successfully experience encounters and resolve uncomfortable or dangerous circumstances.

Emphasis should be placed on developing strengths and positive attributes. Pride in physical appearance is important for a good self-concept. Children should be encouraged to stand tall, make good eye contact, use a strong voice, and project an image of strength.

The program DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS has many helps for parents and families for all issues. The program is on Thursday evenings from 6-9 at San Jose Community Center.

Moisture needed

"We'll take all the moisture we can get. What people don't understand is many farmers are still reeling from the effects of several years of below average rainfall."
 Carmon McCain, HPUWCD information specialist

Appreciated moisture -- Farmers and producers in the area were glad to see the moisture that came in the form of snow this week but questions still remain if there will be enough to plant the crops and get them up and growing before the heat and wind of spring and summer take hold.

Experts stress need for moisture

Recent rains provide only partial relief

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer
 The moisture received this week helped many area producers, but agriculture experts say as much as 8 more inches are still needed.

An inch of moisture only wets the top 6-8 inches of soil. Wheat, which already is planted, needs at least 30 inches of moist soil to thrive. Also, many farms may still need more moisture before planting cotton in late April.

The pre-plant soil moisture survey for Deaf Smith County, recently released by the High Plains - Underground Water Conservation District in Lubbock, reported that as of late December the county farms needed between 2 and 8 inches of pre-plant moisture.

"The soil was still moist from recent small showers," said Carmon McCain, HPUWCD information specialist. "Which means the soil hadn't crusted over yet, so this week's rain and snow will have a chance to sink in."

"We're still advising producers to check their fields for moisture content," he said. "But if a farmer hasn't plowed his field, he can almost take an inch off the amount of moisture needed previously."

In effect this means fields which were in need of eight inches of moisture in late February still need seven inches of pre-plant moisture.

"We'll take all the moisture we can get," said McCain. "What a lot of people don't understand is that producers all across Texas are still reeling from the effects of several years of below average rainfall."

McCain said the rain and moisture was definitely appreciated, but their hasn't been anywhere near enough moisture to help recharge the Ogallala Aquifer.

"Producers still need to check their fields, use the best conservation methods possible, and choose crops which are drought and heat resistant," he said. "Anything they do to cut down on the amount of water taken from the Ogallala that still allows them to produce their crops must be taken into consideration."

Forecasters predict a warming trend for this weekend with the possibility of more showers through part of next week.

McCain advises producers to keep a close eye on fields during the next month watching for signs of drying caused by heat and wind.

Farmers in good financial shape, says Greenspan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite plummeting prices for corn, soybeans, wheat and hogs, American farmers remain in better financial shape than during the farm crisis of the early 1980s, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Tuesday.

Greenspan, in a speech in San Francisco, focused on what he called "one of the more notable soft spots" in an impressive and robust U.S. economy.

"Farmers, rather than sharing in the general prosperity, have been experiencing disappointing exports and sharply falling prices," he told the Independent Bankers Association of America.

Due largely to the world economic slump that began in Asia a year and a half ago, February prices received by farmers were down 5 percent from a year earlier, he said.

"All told, falling shipments to the Asian countries accounted for more than 80 percent of the drop in the value of farm exports over the past two years," he said.

"Clearly our farm sector stands to gain, perhaps appreciably, when more favorable economic conditions finally emerge" around the world, he said.

In the meantime, farmers have responded "by reducing the costs of production to the bare bone." And they've been assisted by falling prices for diesel fuel and fertilizer, which helped produce a 3 percent drop in their costs, by past technological innovations that have made them more efficient and by increased government support payments.

Several "favorable readings" suggest farmers are in better shape than during the early 1980s, he said. Their debt remains low relative to the worth of their land and equipment, net farm income is holding up fairly well—and most farmers are repaying their loans on time.

Malaysian pigs killed due to virus

BUKIT PELANDUK, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia ordered the extermination of 64,000 pigs Thursday to prevent more deaths from Japanese encephalitis, a virus that has killed 50 people since October, many in recent weeks.

The government sent 1,400 soldiers and police officers to carry out its orders in the area where the deaths have occurred, a cluster of hog-farming villages 60 miles southeast of the capital, Kuala Lumpur.

Hundreds of villagers have fled their homes, fearing infection from the virus, which is transmitted from pigs to humans by mosquitoes that thrive in swamps and open drains. The disease attacks the brain and causes high fever, muscle and back aches, vomiting and eventual coma.

"Our mandate is very clear. It is to save human lives,"

Health Minister Chua Jui Meng told a news conference.

Schools were closed and shops were shuttered in Bukit Pelanduk and Sungai Nipah, two prosperous villages where 30 people have died and 50 others have been hospitalized.

"At dusk the whole area is empty. That's when the mosquitoes come out," said Piam, a 35-year-old farmer who identified himself by just one name.

Aid includes multi-million dollar price supports

GOP urged to address farm problems, leaders suggest steps to benefit farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some farm-state Republicans are pushing GOP leaders to address the agricultural economy soon, arguing that delay could risk losing control of the issue to Democrats.

In a letter to House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., four GOP lawmakers proposed a series of steps to aid farmers, including an increase in price supports that could cost several billion dollars.

"Agriculture has historically led the U.S. economy into and out of recession," the lawmakers warned. "While the overall economy is generally good, inattention to the distress in the agricultural sector could prove disastrous."

Last fall, Republicans proposed $4 billion in emergency farm spending but had to add nearly $2 billion after President Clinton vetoed their package.

"We're better served to move now and put the groundwork there and establish ourselves as leaders on the issue," Rep. John Thune, R-S.D., said Tuesday. "If we do it now, we do it on our own terms."

He signed the letter along with Rick Hill of Montana, Wes Watkins of Oklahoma and Jo Ann Emerson of Missouri.

The letter, dated Monday, follows meetings the lawmakers recently had with Hastert and other members of the GOP leadership, including Majority Whip Tom Delay, R-Texas, and Rep. Tom Davis, R-Va., chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

A group of farm-state

Democrats in the Senate recently proposed $6 billion in emergency farm spending this year, about the same amount Congress approved last fall.

Commodity prices fell sharply last year because of a worldwide glut of grain, and economists expect farm income to fall about 6 percent this year. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan on Tuesday called the farm sector "one of the more notable soft spots" in the U.S. economy.

In addition to increasing price supports, an idea that many Republicans have opposed, the letter endorses two ideas opposed by the meatpacking industry: country-of-origin labels on meat, and mandatory reporting of the prices packers pay for livestock.

"These are things we've been out there advocating for quite some time, because we think they make common sense," said Tom Buis, director of governmental affairs for the National Farmers Union, traditionally aligned with Democrats.

"It's beyond Democrats and Republicans in the countryside," Buis said. "People want action."

House Agriculture Committee spokesman Chris Matthews said the panel is considering ways to help farmers, with a focus on improving federally subsidized crop insurance.

"Agriculture has historically led the U.S. economy into and out of recession. While the overall economy is generally good, inattention to the distress in the agricultural sector could prove disastrous,"

Beet sugarbeet growers unsure of processing plant's future

As packing years, farmers remain in limbo

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — With a planting deadline fast approaching, sugar beet farmers in the Columbia Basin are in limbo, unsure if they can put in crops until they have some idea whether a new processing plant here will stay in business.

"Right now, people are waiting to see if there's going to be a factory before planting," Basin City farmer Tim Taylor said.

The problems began in January, when beet farmers didn't get a grower payment for the 1998 crop. At the time, Pacific Northwest Sugar Co. had started shipping beets for processing to Tracy, Calif., because of equipment problems in Moses Lake.

The $100 million plant is supposed to be able to process 6,000 tons of sugar beets in a 24-hour period. Columbia Basin farmers from Burbank to Wilbur to Coulee City harvested an average 33 to 34 tons per acre on about 25,000 acres last year.

Pacific Northwest Sugar is a partnership between Holly Sugar Corp. of Sugarland, Texas, and farmers who own the Columbia River Sugar Co.

The farmer co-op grows and processes the beets, and Holly markets the sugar. The plant was viewed as a salvation for beet farmers, ending a two-decade drought of sugar beet processing capacity in the area.

The company's board of directors reassured farmers and bankers in January, and seemed to have struck a refinancing deal that would ensure payments for the 1998 crop, but farmers still are waiting to get paid — and to get word on the plant's status.

Company directors went to Texas last week for a series of meetings with Holly and its parent company, Imperial Sugar Co., but the outcome was not immediately known.

Meanwhile, "the farmers obviously can't wait too much longer," Taylor said.

Bankers won't refinance growers who still owe on loans from last year's crop.

And beets typically are planted in the last two weeks of March, although Taylor noted that in 1993, about 300 acres of beets were planted April 10 and turned out all right. However, planting late means less yield.

"The Moses Lake community is pretty much on pins and needles," he said.

"Everybody wants the factory to be a go," added Moses Lake farmer Reid Baker, who said he can't afford to plant unless a deal is struck.

"We're just in a 'hurry-up-and-wait mode.'"

At least, he said, "they're still talking, so that's good news."

High-tech project allows computerized beef tracking;

Cattlemen see end result of product

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — A high-tech project unveiled by the Montana Stockgrowers Association this week is intended to let ranchers track the quality of their beef from the pasture to the packing plant, giving them new tools to improve their product and target specific markets.

At the heart of the project, dubbed the Montana Beef Network, is a disk-shaped, electronic ear tag equipped with a computer chip.

The tag would stay with an animal throughout its life, for the first time allowing the ranch, feedlot, and packing plant to compare notes and breed cattle for niche markets. The tracking will go hand-in-hand with an aggressive quality-control program.

"Our system of cattle production is somewhat segmented," said Keith Bales, president of the Montana Stockgrowers Association. "The Montana Beef Network could dramatically change the way Montana ranchers do business."

how they are graded, it allows us to become better producers," said Harlem-area rancher and state Rep. Matt McCann.

Most cattle raised in Montana go to feedlots in the Midwest at 8 or 9 months of age. But the rancher now has no way of knowing whether an animal thrived at the feedlot or what its slaughter grades and yields were.

"With the little 500-pound steer calf, when they leave (the rancher knows) what they look like," McCann said. "But they don't have any idea what they finish out to be."

That makes it tough to market. Unlike the chicken industry, where companies build brand names on uniform quality standards, beef coming into slaughterhouses is inconsistent. Good cattle mingle with the bad.

If packing facilities could single out ranches for specific meat qualities, they could more easily target niche markets such as restaurant-quality beef, Asian markets and extra-lean meat. Ranchers would have more leverage in the market.

The project begins next month with seminars across the state. Producers who opt into the tracking system must meet quality assurance criteria and complete an educational program coordinated by Montana State University.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

It's Not YOUR Problem if One in Five People Can't Read This Newspaper ILLITERACY

It's not your problem. Just because it costs North American businesses over $225 billion a year in lost productivity doesn't mean you can do anything about it. Just because thousands of students can't read a textbook doesn't mean you can do anything about it. And just because your child can't read a bedtime story with you doesn't mean you can do anything about it. It's time we stopped letting other people solve the problem of illiteracy. Let's do something about it - now. Because illiteracy isn't your problem. It's all of ours. Before all else, parents themselves must know how to read. Literacy is a vicious cycle that almost always begins in the home. Children of functionally illiterate parents often fail to develop the basic reading, writing and computing skills necessary to be functioning members of their communities. Volunteer to become a tutor. Read to your children at an early age. Studies show that infants whose parents read to them learn how to read more quickly themselves. Take your children to the library. Get them their own library cards when they're old enough. The library features reading materials for all ages, not to mention special programs that promote reading in a fun way. Make children's books an essential part of charitable donations during the holidays. SINCE 1901 Hereford BRAND

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

HIDDEN DANGERS MAY BE

LURKING IN YOUR HOME'S WALLS

Have you ever thought of the dangers that might be hiding in your home's walls? Probably not, but you should.

Wiring, outlets and electrical systems are things we usually take for granted. They are supposed to offer convenience, but left unchecked they could also offer peril. It is important to check your home's electrical system regularly, especially when planning the addition of new electrical equipment.

Weatherproof. If you have outdoor outlets that are submerged in rainfall or snow, make sure they are extra-weatherproofed.

Upgrade to a circuit breaker box from the older fuse box. The circuit breaker box is safer and more convenient. Consider an upgrade of electrical service at the same time. If your home is like most peoples', the 100 amp service you have is insufficient for your microwave, computer, stereo and other appliances.

Add Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter (GFCI) circuit breakers. They automatically shut off power in case of a short, as regular circuit breakers do, and they also provide ground-fault protection for circuits with outlets, as well as for larger loads, like hot tubs and spas.

Test circuit breakers once-a-month. Press the "test" button located on the breaker to make sure it trips, or turns off the power. Remember to reset the breaker by moving the handle to "off" and then back to "on."

Install Ground Fault Interrupter (GFI) receptacles in the bath, kitchen and basement to prevent electrocution. They combine the function of the regular outlet with ground-fault protection.

ABC, Like, hopes two new series connect with audience

The new ABC sitcom It's Like, You Know ... stars Jennifer Grey (Dirty Dancing), complete with a new nose, as herself and A.J. Langer (right) as Lauren Woods, a masseuse and process server. It's Like, You Know ... and The Norm Show, a new series starring comic Norm Macdonald, premiere Wednesday.

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

ABC is subbing a couple of new players into its comedy lineup on Wednesday, March 24.

Joining the rotation after Dharma & Greg is It's Like, You Know ... and following Drew Carey is The Norm Show. To make room, Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place is sitting out the next six weeks, and Whose Line Is It Anyway? has been benched for the rest of the season.

Both newcomers represent risks for the network. But if you're ever going to score, you have to be willing to take a shot.

Viewers who have come to rely on the white-bread softness of Two Guys may get a jolt from It's Like. The series mines its laughs in Los Angeles, the world's most self-absorbed city. Where comedy is concerned, this is very fertile ground; an entire episode is based on how Angelenos will drop everything to watch a car chase on TV.

Steven Eckholdt (Message in a Bottle) stars as Robbie Graham, who struck it rich in pay-per-view cable TV. Evan Handler plays his slacker landlord, Shrug, who lives on a trust fund.

Next door is actress Jennifer Grey, played by ... Jennifer Grey (Dirty Dancing). The show gets much mileage out of Grey's change in appearance since her nose job.

Grey does look startlingly different. In real life, she says, her new looks have fooled everyone from salesclerks ("Is that weird for you, having her name?" they ask) to old boyfriends.

Chris Eigeman plays New Yorker Arthur Garment, a fish out of water who represents the point of view of Earth's other 5 billion people. A.J. Langer co-stars as Lauren Woods, Arthur's ideal woman, who works as a masseuse and process server.

It's Like, You Know ... has the whini-ness of thirtysomething, the purposelessness of Seinfeld and the conspicuous comforts of Dallas. The satire gets a boost from visual jokes (ubiquitous bottled water) and unbilled cameos (Kato Kaelin appears in one episode).

The pilot episode is not the series' best. A long scene on an airplane establishes Arthur's character but feels like lead. And a running gag involving comments made by two women is utterly pointless.

But, like wet cement in front of a certain Hollywood Chinese restaurant, It's Like gels quickly and leaves a distinct impression.

The Norm Show is a darker horse. Star Norm Macdonald is the former stand-up comic and Roseanne writer who took his snide, sarcastic wit to the "Weekend Update" desk at Saturday Night Live, only to be removed by NBC executive Don Ohlmeyer.

Buttressing Macdonald's marginal acting talent are executive producer Bruce Helford (Roseanne, The Drew Carey Show) and co-star Laurie Metcalf (Roseanne).

Macdonald plays Norm Henderson, a professional hockey player sentenced to do community service for tax evasion. In an instant, he's a social worker rubbed the wrong way by the rules and regulations that govern his work. His saving grace is co-worker and mentor Laurie (Metcalf).

Love Norm or leave it; Macdonald won't care. When pressed for his comic philosophy, he says, "I hope the audience is pleased, but I don't know how to write for an audience. I only know how to write what I think is funny. So if the audience doesn't laugh, that doesn't mean I'm wrong; it means they're wrong."

HOROSCOPES

March 21-27

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Think before you speak when it comes to a run-in with a family member late in the week, Aries. Letting your anger get the best of you only will make matters worse. Remain calm, and try to see your loved one's point of view. A friend needs someone to talk to. Be there for him or her.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Don't stress out when you realize how many things you have to do this week, Taurus. You can handle it all if you just stay calm. Turn to that special someone when you get too nervous; he or she always has been able to help you relax. A business associate asks for your advice. Be honest with him or her.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
While you generally like to be on the go, enjoy the peace and quiet you get this week, Gemini. It's been quite some time since you've been able to do nothing. Revel in it. That special someone takes you out for a night on the town this weekend. Enjoy yourself. Cancer plays a key role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
A business associate lets you in on a company secret. While it's enticing, don't share what you've been told with anyone. It's not your place to spread the news. A close friend makes a big announcement. While you are surprised, be happy for him or her. Libra is involved.

LEO - July 23/August 23
A loved one turns to you in a time of crisis. While you're upset with him or her for getting into such a sticky situation, offer your assistance. Once the matter is resolved, you can yell at this person all that you want. An acquaintance hopes to get to know you better. Think about how you really feel before answering him or her.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Don't make a rash decision when it comes to your finances early in the week, Virgo. While you're offered a potentially lucrative deal, isn't it too risky? Look at all of the pros and cons before giving your answer. The person whom you've been seeing doesn't call. Build up your courage to call him or her. It will be worthwhile.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
There have been so many things that you've wanted to do lately. Well, you have the chance to do them this week. Your schedule is clear, and you have the energy. Get moving! You'll be glad that you did. Aries plays a key role on Thursday.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Control your ego when meeting with business associates this week, Scorpio. They already respect your work. Talking about yourself only will make them think less of you. A loved one asks to borrow money. Do what you can, but don't get yourself into financial straits.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Don't let a disagreement with an acquaintance spoil your good mood early in the week. You have a lot going for you; this minor setback shouldn't ruin your attitude. The person whom you've been seeing wants to get more serious. Say yes — this is what you've been waiting for.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
A loved one asks you to make an important decision. Don't let him or her pressure you into doing something that you disagree with. Look at the situation, and think about what is best for everyone involved. A friend of a friend drops by unexpectedly. Listen to what he or she has to say.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on your own this week when it comes to your personal life, Aquarius. While you are upset at first, don't be. You finally have the time to do things for yourself instead of for everyone else. Pamper yourself — you deserve it. Leo plays an important role late in the week.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
You feel like a third wheel at a social outing this week. Don't stay at the event just because you think that you have to. Sometimes, you must do things for yourself — this is one of those times. Go out with some friends, and enjoy yourself. No one will fault you for this.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: How did the character of Edith Bunker die on All in the Family?
—Lisa in Wantage, N.J.

Q: I recently saw Patrick Swayze on a *M*A*S*H* episode. I didn't know he was that old. When was that episode made? And Dirty Dancing?
—Laurfa Rautio, Roseville, Mich.

A: Swayze was born Aug. 8, 1952, which makes him 46 now. That was a 1981 *M*A*S*H* episode. Dancing was released in 1987.

Q: Did Patrick Swayze play Reuben in the TV movie A Father for Charlie? Also, are Andrew and Elisabeth Shue related?
—Debra Coy, Winter Haven, Fla.

A: Don Swayze, Patrick's kid brother, played Reuben. The Shues are brother and sister.

Q: Whatever happened to Cleavon Little, whom you recently mentioned in connection with Temperatures Rising?
—Helen Nagy, Topock, Ariz.

A: Little had more than two dozen roles in movies and television after Temperatures was canceled in 1974, including Once Bitten with Jim Carrey and Fletch Lives, plus series roles in Bagdad Cafe and True Colors. He died of colon cancer in 1992.

Q: Who is the guy in the Zyban ads? We are pretty sure he starred with Desi Arnaz Jr. in a science-fiction series a while back, but what has he been doing lately?
—Loretta and family in Erie, Pa.

A: That's Chuck Wagner, who had the title role in 1983's short-lived Automan with Arnaz. A wonderful singer, Wagner has been spending most of his time in recent years on the Broadway stage and on tour. He played Rapunzel's Prince in the Stephen Sondheim musical Into the Woods and starred as the Beast in Disney's stage adaptation of Beauty and the Beast.

Q: Did Sydney Penny (Hyperion Bay) play in The Thorn Birds many years ago? —M.L., Avon Park, Fla.

A: Yes, Penny played the young Meggie in that 1983 miniseries with Richard Chamberlain and Rachel Ward.

Q: My boyfriend insists Robin Wright Penn (Message in a Bottle) was never in Santa Barbara. I say she played Kelly or Eden. Who is right?
—Trish via e-mail.

A: Before she met husband Sean Penn, the actress created and played the role of Kelly Capwell from 1984 to 1988 on that soap.

Q: I've been watching reruns of Emergency! and one of the doctors, Mike Morton, looks like Richard Biggs of Babylon 5. Is it the same guy? —S.R., Webb City (no state).

A: Biggs was all of 11 years old when Emergency! premiered in 1972. That was Ron Pinkard as Dr. Morton.

HIGHLIGHTS

The Irish girl group B*Witched (Edele and Keavy Lynch, Lindsay Armaou, and Sinead O'Carroll, from left) joins the British guy group Five for *B*Witched and Five In Concert* Saturday on the Disney Channel.

B*Witched and Five imported for In Concert

The Disney Channel reaches "across the pond" for the two featured acts in its latest concert special.

B*Witched, a group of four colleens from Dublin, Ireland, joins the British guy group Five for *B*Witched and Five in Concert*, debuting Saturday, March 27. Looking at the sum of their parts, four may prove to be more than five — at least when it comes to music.

The hourlong concert, taped at Disneyland, begins with the newcomers of B*Witched. At the group's core are 18-year-old twins Edele and Keavy Lynch. Keavy was responsible for recruiting the quartet's two other members, Lindsay Armaou and Sinead O'Carroll.

In "Rollercoaster," "C'est la Vie" and four other tunes, the Dubliners weave a traditional Irish flavor into their bright pop sound.

Songwriters as well as singers, they emphasize a take-charge zest for life in their lyrics.

"We totally believe in the power of pop music to raise people's spirits," Keavy says. "If our music can do that, then we're achieving our ambition."

The honesty of B*Witched is only underscored when Five takes the stage ... which, by the way, looks like a set piece out of the channel's preschool show Rolie Polie Olie.

Five (a k a Sive), whose members range in age from 17 to 22, was formed by Bob and Chris Herbert, originators of the Spice Girls. They selected Jason Paul "J" Brown, Richard Abidin "Abs" Breen, Richard Neville, Sean Kieran Conlon and Scott James Tim Robinson for the group after auditioning more than 3,000 hopefuls.

The Herberts have given Five a gang-banger look and blended hip-hop and funk elements into its pop repertoire, which emphasizes love songs. The group's six-song set includes "It's the Things You Do," "Slam Dunk (Da Funk)" and the hit "When the Lights Go Out."

All the attitude of Five's act (and there's plenty) doesn't hide the fact it's mostly veneer. B*Witched, though, looks like the real deal.

SOAP TALK

Jackson staying at GH; Michaels leaving AMC

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Jonathan Jackson's (Lucky, General Hospital) fans can breathe a sigh of relief. The actor was supposedly leaving the show this month, but that isn't going to happen.

ABC recently announced that Jackson "has extended his contract, and viewers can look forward to a strong upcoming story line with Lucky."

GH has given the actor more freedom to take on other projects. His latest role is in the feature film The Deep End of the Ocean.

All My Children fans must say goodbye to Tom Michaels (Tim), who was let go from the show. The young actor grew up on AMC, but his character has been on the back burner recently.

There are rumors Michaels was let go because the writers want to take the character in a different direction. Michaels will continue on the show through the end of March.

In other news: Some celebrities will be visiting daytime this spring.

On Sunset Beach, Jerry Springer will appear in one of Annie's (Sarah Buxton) fantasies. He'll play Jerry Feller, a talk show host.

Legal eagle Johnnie Cochran arrives in Springfield to help Ben (Hunt Block) with Annie's (Signy Coleman) case on Guiding Light. Cochran will play himself.

Phyllis Diller will reprise her role as Gladys on The Bold and the Beautiful.

Dear Candace: I was wondering what happened to the actress who played Cassie on One Life to Live. She looked like she was pregnant on the show, but they did not make it a part of her story line. Did she have a baby in real life? Will she be back?

Also, I heard Kyle and Jane on Melrose Place were married in real life. Is that true? —C.S., Norwich, N.Y.

Dear Reader: Laura Koffman (ex-Cassie, OLTL) had a baby boy, Isaac Merrill, on Jan. 30. Her character was written off the show, and Koffman was let go.

Josie Bissett and Rob Estes (Jane and Kyle, MP) are married. They are expecting their first child in July.

Send questions of general interest to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, TVData Features Syndicate, 333 Glen St., Glen Falls, NY 12801, or e-mail to soaptalk@tvdata.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.
