Services Grants Proposed

Governors Hear Ford

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford proposed to Congress today granting the states $2.5 billion for social services such as day care programs and warned lawmakers they will endanger economic recovery if they don't renew federal revenue sharing.

Ford made his proposal for an annual block grant for social services shortly after urging the nation's governors to support renewal of federal revenue sharing. He told the National Governor's Conference that economic recovery would be imperiled if Congress fails to act.

"The whole concept of federal-state relations is at stake," Ford said, adding that if movement toward more general revenue sharing fails this year "there will be a new escalation...of an increasingly centralized government."

In his proposal to Congress, Ford urged passage of a community services act which he said would eliminate many federal regulations and restrictions on providing such services as day care, foster care and homemaker aid to low-income families.

He said the $2.5 billion would be alloted to the states on a population basis. "It will eliminate the requirement for state matching funds, as well as most federal requirements and prohibitions on the use of federal funds," Ford said.

Presently, the federal government provides states with 75 per cent of the money for social services programs. The states must provide the other 25 per cent on a matching-funds basis. Ford's proposal would add $24 million to the federal funds now available.

Under the proposal, the $2.5 billion would be allocated roughly on the basis of funds received by each state under the Social Security Act of 1975 and would range from $4 million for Alaska to $245.5 million for California.

Ford said the federal government would continue to assess the over-all operation of the program, but "the basic responsiblity of how to best meet the needs of a state's low-income families will be returned to the state."

Higher Supports Indicated

WASHINGTON AP—Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has dropped hints several times lately that basic government price supports on major crops, including wheat and corn, will be raised this year.

But the National Farmers Union, which has been opposed philosophically to many of the Ford administration's farm policies, says any increase will be small, at least initially.

The issue involves the "price support loan" rates for commodities. These rates determine how much money the government will lend to commodity producers.

In recent years the cash market prices have been much higher than the official loan rates so that there has been relatively small use of the loan program. Many farm groups, including the NFU, want substantial boosts in the loan levels to help offset rising production costs.

Butz has indicated lately that some increase for 1976 is likely but has not officially announced any figures. The present loan for wheat is $1.38 a bushel and corn $1.10 a bushel. The NFU says that increases of 13 cents a bushel for wheat and 15 cents for corn are being rumored but fall far short of being meaningful to farmers.

"Well-informed guesses are that the Ford administration will go along with a very small increase now and, if there is a danger of low prices in late summer or fall, the White House may act in September or thereabouts to raise loan levels again—two months ahead of the presidential election," the NFU said in a newsletter to members.

Another level of support is the "target price" mechanism authorized in the 1973 farm act which covers current crops of wheat, feed grains and cotton. Under it, if the market price of a commodity falls below the specified target level for a certain period of time, government payments are due growers to bridge the gap.

During the first two years of the current law's operation—1974 and 1975—the target prices were pegged at $2.05 per bushel for wheat and $1.38 per bushel for corn. The law authorized increases in 1976 and 1977 on the basis of higher production costs.

Although not yet officially announced, the 1976 wheat target price is expected to go up to about $2.27 a bushel and corn to around $1.50 a bushel. Even so, USDA experts right now think that 1976 cash prices will exceed the target levels, meaning no direct payments will be due.

Court To Rule On Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether the government may require widowers, or husbands of retired women, to prove they were dependent upon their wives in order to collect Social Security benefits.

The justices will hear arguments on rulings by federal courts in Brooklyn, N.Y., Miami, Fla., Baltimore, Md., and Washington, D.C., that the requirement is unconstitutional sex discrimination.

The government, which appealed the decisions, argued that it is reasonable to impose such a requirement on men although it is not imposed on women.

"Despite the changing role of women in the work force, it is still more probable than not that a married woman will not be self-supporting," government lawyers told the high court.

"In less than one out of every eight families in which the wife worked does she earn more than half the family income."

The government also argued that striking down the requirement would cost approximately $400 million in widowers' benefits alone each year, placing "a severe burden on the Social Security trust fund's already strained resources."

In other action, the court:

—Refused to hear arguments that the formula for selecting delegates to the Republican National Convention discriminates against large municipalities.

—Declined to review a lower court order upholding a city plan restricting housing construction in the San Francisco suburb of Petaluma, Calif.

—Let stand a lower court ruling dismissing a fairness doctrine complaint against an NBC program on private pension plans.

—Refused to hear a challenge to state law granting landlords authority to search tenants' rooms and seize property without a warrant or hearing if the tenants are behind in their rent.

—Let stand a lower court ruling that Polish jokes broadcast on television do not require networks to offer Polish-Americans free air time to respond.

—Agreed to rule on whether a business in one state must collect sales tax on its sales to residents of a second state.

—Upheld a lower court ruling that a juvenile being questioned about a crime must be given a chance to consult with a parent or other adult who has been advised of the juvenile's rights.

Concorde Protest Jams Traffic

NEW YORK (AP) — Demonstrators who jammed traffic around Kennedy Airport say their protest against the supersonic Concorde was a foretaste of more to come if the French-British jetliner is allowed to land here.

"We'll close the airport if we have to," Bryan Levinson, president of the Spring Park Civic Association in Queens, declared before some 1,500 motor vehicles snarled the roads at Kennedy on Sunday.

Motorists from Queens, where the airport is situated, Brooklyn and Nassau County began clogging main arteries to, around and through Kennedy at 2 p.m. to dramatize their fears that proposed Concorde flights there this spring would bring noise and air pollution.

They drove slowly, bumper-to-bumper, sometimes stopping entirely to stretch their legs and take the air. They also flashed their headlights and leaned on their horns.

Police of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey laid on extra manpower and tow trucks for the demonstration, worked out an accomodation for continual movement within the airport and monitored the protest from control towers.

No one was arrested, but a number of traffic summonses were issued, a police spokesman said.

Seventh Body Is Found In Elevator Blast Rubble

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

GALENA PARK, Tex. (AP) — A seventh body was found today as searchers probed tons of debris at the waterfront site of an explosion that destroyed a grain elevator used as amajor loading point for grain shipments to Russia.

The search for other bodies continued but was hindered by fear huge damaged sections of the steel and concrete elevator might collapse.

Three other men were known to be missing.

Six bodies were recovered Sunday.

The roof of the eight-story, 8.5-million bushel Goodpasture Inc. elevator on the Houston Ship Channel was blown off and about half the exterior walls collapsed. Chunks of concrete flew in all directions.

Three ships were tied up at the Goodpasture dock but were towed away with only minor damage. A dozen or more longshoremen were on the dock but escaped injury.

Luther Hosch, 50, said he was loading bulldozer blades on a trailer about 400 feet from the elevator.

"I got under that trailer and the cement kept coming," Hosch said. "It was like rain water hitting you, only a lot heavier. When the dust cleared by face was full of blood."

Hosch was treated at a hospital and released. He was among about 25 persons injured. Only three of the injured were hospitalized.

"We are certain we will find others dead but we don't know how many," said Paul Carr, a Houston fire department spokesman. "It may be a couple of days before we can dig down and find the others. They may be buried under 60 feet of rubble." Officials said they were uncertain as to how many were in the area when the blast erupted.

Firemen blamed the jarring explosion—heard 10 miles away in industrial Pasadena—on grain dust possibly ignited by a welder's torch. The eruption hurled debris over a broad waterfront area as if blown from a shotgun.

FIFTEEN HELD HOSTAGE

Canadian Embassy Sieged

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Lebanese gunman claiming he was cheated out of a Canadian island by his wife took over the Canadian Embassy with six armed followers today and seized more than 20 hostages, police said.

But after about three hours of tense negotiations, eight women hostages were freed and driven off in a red patrol truck of the Palestinian Armed Struggle Command, a sort of Palestinian police force.

One of the women said 15 men remained captive inside the embassy.

"No one has been injured," an embassy spokesman, reached by telephone inside the building, said. "We're all okay."

Police said the raiders were led by Moahmmed Haimour, a former resident of Canada who said he was bilked out of an island by his estranged wife and a Jewish doctor.

Haimour at first demanded that a Canadian doctor who declared him mentally incompetent in Canada and a Canadian judge who ordered him expelled be brought to Beirut, police said.

He then demanded that a Bekaa Valley member of parliament, Michel Maalouly, negotiate with the Canadian Embassy staff. But when Maalouly arrived and began speaking to him, negotiations quickly centered on surrender terms, officers on the scene said.

There were also reports that Haimour had two children in Canada who he was concerned about, but this was not confirmed.

A team of Syrian, Lebanese and Palestinian Liberation Army officers talked with the raiders over the building's lobby interphone as hundreds of civilians watched cautiously from behind cars and around corners. There was no shooting, police said.

The embassy, in a large downtown office building, was surrounded by heavily armed Palestinian guerrilla police and Lebanese army troops. The building also houses a major Lebanese bank.

One Lebanese army officer in the lobby of the building said earlier that Canadian Ambassador Leopold H. Amyot was among as many as 50 hostages, but the embassy spokesman said Amyot left the country several months ago and the embassy was being run by a charge d'affaires.

Canada's Foreign Ministry in Ottawa said there were about a dozen Canadians stationed at its Beirut embassy, but that it did not know how many of them were in the building today.

The Associated Press in Washington phoned the Canadian Embassy in Beirut and talked with a man who said he was being held at gunpoint by the raiders but who refused to identify himself.

"Well for the time being, everything is fine, people are more relaxed than before and we still are holding talks in order to see, I mean, what we can do just to release the people or to get an answer from the External Affairs (Foreign Ministry) in Ottawa," he said.

Only Ford Forecasting New Hampshire Victory

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — To hear the candidates and their managers talk, never have so many politicians been so anxious to run second or third in an election as in New Hampshire's presidential primary Tuesday.

In the windup of the campaign for the year's first primary, all the candidates but one are trying to outdo each other in keeping their private hopes off the record and their publicly-pronounced expectations low.

They'd all like to win, of course, but if anyone says he will, people will expect it of him.

The object of the game is to take out insurance against defeat and magnify a possible victory. And the prize, to the loser who can bring it off, is a chance to claim that he did well, whatever the outcome.

There are no reliable published polls of New Hampshire voter opinion to serve as benchmarks, so all the candidates are into free-lance forecasting.

Alone in the New Hampshire field of two Republicans and five Democratic contenders, President Ford has posted an on-the-record forecast of victory, saying he will defeat Ronald Reagan in their GOP test.

"We're going to win, not only in New Hampshire but elsewhere," Ford said, Rogers C.B. Morton, his political counselor, said Ford will win handily.

That suits the Reagan camp fine.

"I don't think that when you run against an incumbent you come to New Hampshire in the first primary with the expectation of winning at all," Reagan said. "The people who have been campaigning for me have expressed their belief that a percentage someplace in the 40s would be an extremely fine showing on my part, and they know more about the state than I do."

Reagan said he would be pleased with that kind of showing.

Ford's victory forecast carries the footnote that defeat would not do major damage to his campaign, with 30 presidential primaries to go.

Ford is an incumbent with a difference. He got to the White House by virtue of appointment and has never before run in a statewide campaign, let alone a national one.

Reagan was twice elected governor of California, and when it suits his purpose, he reminds New Hampshire voters that he has electoral experience rivaling Ford's 13 congressional elections.

"I don't see how anyone could be a right-wing extremist and win two elections by landslide margins in California, where it is more than three to two Democratic in registration," he said in Manchester, seeking to counter Ford's argument that he is too far to the right.

The Democrats, with five national contenders and nine minor candidates on the ballot, are juggling numbers and forecasts like accountants worrying that the books may be short. Nobody wants to be called the front-runner.

Seven Arrested In FBI Raids

By LINDA KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI is sifting through piles of explosives and radical writings seized from a makeshift bomb plant in an effort to pinpoint the source of Northern California terrorist attacks.

From 130 to 150 pounds of explosives were discovered Saturday in a predawn raid by FBI and police SWAT teams on a Richmond, Calif., house. Three men and three women, surprised while sleeping, were arrested and face arraignment on explosives charges today.

A seventh person was arrested after a stakeout later Saturday in Oakland. Police identified him as David Miller, 21, wanted in Madison, Wis., for assaulting a policeman during a demonstration in 1973. He was held in lieu of $100,000 bail on an explosives charge.

The FBI said that in the Richmond house it also found literature from both the Emiliano Zapata Unit and the New World Liberation Front — NWLF. The NWLF recently issued communiques threatening Patricia Hearst and her family. Authorities have said that they know little about the NWLF, and it is believed that no estimate, official or otherwise, has been made of its size.

The San Francisco Chronicle quoted underground sources today as saying the seven persons arrested comprise almost the entire membership of the Emiliano Zapata Unit. The newspaper said the terrorist group used for its front an aboveground bookstore and communication center called the New Dawn Collective in Berkelev.

FBI Special Agent-in-Charge Charles Bates said it would "take a little time" to determine to which group those arrested belonged. He said the raid resulted from information gathered after the arrests Feb. 17 of two alleged terrorists in a Marin County shootout. New Dawn literature was found in their van.

Bates said there were about three dozen terrorist bombings in the San Francisco Bay area in 1975 and at least a half dozen so far this year. No one has yet been charged in those bombings, but the weekend arrests appeared to be the first major break in efforts to penetrate the tightly organized terrorist cadres.

"We've got an awful lot of information. There are lots of things to follow up on, dealing with material taken from the houses," Bates said Sunday. "We've had various things to go on for quite a while, but this is the arrest of more people and the recovery of more explosives than we've had."

Congress Racing FEC Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under pressure of the Supreme Court's deadline of next weekend, Congress is working to revamp the Federal Election Commission to meet the court's objections and to keep public funds flowing into presidential campaigns.

The House Administration Committee was to begin consideration of a proposed bill today and continue most of the week. The Senate stood by to act promptly.

The Supreme Court ruled that the commission may not continue beyond this month to exercise executive functions, including the funds handling, so long as it consisted mainly of congressional appointees.

The law setting up the commission gave Congress the power to name a majority of commissioners, a power that the court said was rested in the executive under the Constitution. The draft bill before the House panel would make the commissioners presidential appointees.

There was little hope of actually meeting the Feb. 29 deadline, but leaders planned action soon enough thereafter to avoid serious inconvenience to the presidential campaigns.

In other business, the Senate set debate today on a measure to extend the span of daylight saving time. Under present law, daylight saving runs for six months from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. The bill would, for this year and the next, have the clocks set forward the first Sunday of March and back the second Sunday of November, giving daylight savings for eight months and one week.

The House takes up Wednesday the periodic task of increasing the limit on the public debt to accommodate borrowing to cover continuing deficits. The bill would increase the limit, through June 30, to $627 billion, up $32 billion.

Key members of both chambers were set to explore the possibility of developing a substitute for the $6.1-billion jobs bill vetoed by President Ford.

Theft, Mishap Are Reported

The Snyder Police Dept. reported two incidents over the weekend.

At 4:30 p.m. Saturday, police investigated the theft of a car battery. The incident was reported by Mrs. Nick Timora of 1904 Coleman. She reported that a battery had been removed from her car, a 1967 Buick LeSabre, sometime between 8:30 p.m. Friday and 4 p.m. Saturday.

On Sunday at 8:20 p.m., the Snyder police investigated a minor collision on Thirty-seventh Street. A 1967 Ford Galaxie driven by Roy G. Boiles of Sweetwater, was involved in a collision with a reflector pole. Police reported that the mishap was not serious.

Replay Of China Trip Continues

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

PEKING (AP) — Continuing the replay of his historic visit to China four years ago, Richard M. Nixon met for an hour and 40 minutes today with Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

A Chinese government spokesman said the two men held a "friendly conversation on a wide range of subjects" at the Peking home of the 82-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party.

At the close of the conversation, Mao asked Nixon to convey his regards to President Ford, with whom Mao met for an hour and 50 minutes during Ford's visit to Peking last December.

No other information on the conversation was disclosed.

Nixon was accompanied by his wife, Pat, and an aide, John Brennan. Mao welcomed them briefly before sitting down to talk with Nixon. Also present were Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng, Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, Huang Chen, the head of the Chinese government's liaison office in Washington, and three other officials of the Chinese Foreign Ministry.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said on Feb. 6 that the Ford administration had no plans "to have any report or anything from the former President." But Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said on Saturday that the U.S. government "of course" wanted to hear about Nixon's discussions and impressions and that the former president would report these to Washington when he returned.

It was Mao who invited the Nixons to return to China and relive their 1972 visit that forged the first links between the United States and the 23-year-old Chinese Communist regime.

The private audience was the high point of a "private" visit with many of the trappings of a state visit: formal banquets, visits to schools and exhibits, limousines with flags and meetings with top officials.

At a nine-course banquet for the Nixons Sunday night at the Great Hall of the People, Hua praised Nixon for his "far-sightedness in taking the courageous action" to make the 1972 trip.

Hua's toast contained the usual attacks on Soviet and American rivalry for "world hegemony," or influence, with the Soviet Union once again coming in for the major share of the condemnation.

Hua also appeared to confirm reports of a power struggle within the Chinese Communist hierarchy following the death of Premier Chou En-lai last month, a struggle which elevated him from comparative obscurity.

"In China, a revolutionary mass debate is going on in such circles as education, science and technology," he said. "It is a continuation and deepening of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution...."

The Cultural Revolution was the nationwide campaign of left-wing demonstrations and purges launched by Mao in 1965 to rekindle the waning revolutionary spirit. It died out in 1969.

In his response, Nixon praised and defended the Shanghai Communique, the joint statement of principles he and Chou En-lai signed at the conclusion of his 1972 visit.

Mud Pies Not Just Kid Stuff

BOSTON (AP) — Mud pies used to be just kid stuff.

Now they are the stuff of scientific observation and a 29-page paper with the imposing title of "Mound Building: A Psychogeomorphology of Mud."

The 142nd annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which has brought together some of the top names in biology, sociology, medicine and physics, has produced perhaps the nation's foremost authority on mud pies.

Denis Wood, professor at the school of design of North Carolina State University, said Sunday he spent much of last summer in backyards and playgrounds of Raleigh, N.C., watching children aged 10 months to 13 years, including his own son, now 1½.

Lest the less scientific observer think it's all fun and games for a grown man to watch toddlers play in the sand and mud, Wood told what happened when the youngsters discovered that dirt makes things grow.

"At one point the loan of our baby was requested so that he could be buried and thus produce more like him," he said. "While they never buried our son, the big kids did bury leaves, peach pits, twigs, pickles and pennies."

Wood classified the youngsters as Big Kids, who could walk and talk, and Little Kids, who couldn't.

He found Big Kids and Little Kids seldom played together, with the exception of "whenever Big Kids needed Little Kids to play roles that the Big Kids would rather not have filled, such as playing 'baby' in a game of horse ... or 'dead person' in burial games."

And after 500 hours of observation, Wood verified what parents and pediatricians have long known: that "all Little Kids put sand and dirt and anything else they could lay their hands on into their mouths."

Firemen Called Eight Times

The Snyder Fire Department was alerted to eight small fires over the weekend. Six of the fires were grass fires.

The grass fires were reported at 2609 Thirty-sixth Street; six miles out of town on Highway 84 East; Twenty-first Street at Avenue T; two miles west of Fullerville; one mile north of town on the Clairemont Highway; and at Avenue K and Twenty-ninth Street.

A barn fire was reported at 3:44 p.m. Saturday at 1407 Thirty-first Street. A cotton burr fire was reported at 12:10 p.m. Sunday on Highway 180 West.

Patty Ordered To Tell About Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The judge in the Patricia Hearst bank robbery trial ruled today that the young heiress must testify about a year in the underground during which the prosecution said she may have been involved in other crimes.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter said the defendant had waived her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination when she took the stand in her own defense. The judge's remarks came as he ruled on evidence which Miss Hearst's lawyers had sought to keep the jury from hearing.

"Once the defendant takes the witness stand, she cannot raise the Fifth to relevant testimony," Carter said at the start of today's court session.

He said Miss Hearst could not "leave a blank period of time" in her account of her travels.

"It is relevant to examine her about that period of time," he said. "She has opened it up herself."

Carter also ruled a second piece of evidence disputed by the defense could be admitted. That evidence is a recorded jailhouse conversation between Miss Hearst and a childhood friend in which the heiress expressed dismay at her arrest and proclaimed a "revolutionary feminist viewpoint."

She is now on trial for a San Francisco bank robbery two months after she was kidnaped. Authorities say the notebooks and drawings could link her to planned bank heists in the Sacramento area, filling out part of the year on the run she has kept hidden from the jury.

The newspaper heiress, who has been on the witness stand since Feb. 13, has testified that her every move was in fear of her life, including her statements of allegiance to her Symbionese Liberation Army captors. She defended her admitted cooperation with her terrorist kidnapers as her only means of survival.

"I was told I would be killed," she has said repeatedly when asked to explain her failure to surrender during a 19-month odyssey with the SLA.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. seeks to ask Miss Hearst about the stack of documents recovered from her apartment the day of her capture, Sept. 18. Included is a floor plan of a Bank of America branch in Sacramento with observations on bank personnel in Miss Hearst's handwriting.

Other papers include a list of banks and a yellow spiral notebook containing notes on escape routes and methods of disguise.

Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey has fought vigorously to keep the contents of the papers away from the seven-woman, five-man jury. He also refused to open up for questioning a full year — September 1974 to September 1975 — of Miss Hearst's life on the run.

Oswald: "We get lots of letters about freak hands. Maybe we should discuss some of them."

Jim: "Here's a dilly. It occurred in a friendly team match. At table one South decided to be really brilliant and wound up playing two diamonds. He ruffed the heart lead and decided to play to make sure or nearly sure of success at two diamonds. So he led the ace and king of spades, discarding one heart from dummy. East ruffed the second spade and led a second heart. South ruffed, led another spade and discarded dummy's last heart. East ruffed and led a third heart. South discarded a spade, ruffed with dummy's ace of trumps, and led the six of diamonds to his king. Then he cashed the queen of trumps and led spades to wind up making four add.

Oswald: "Not much consolation when he had a cinch spade slam."

Jim: "No, but the play was a winner. At the other table, South used a complicated series of asking bids. He found out that his partner held the ace of diamonds, but seven spades and went down one. The diamond jack was a sure winner for the defense."

Dr. Lamb

Depression and heart attacks

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— My husband had a mild myocardial infarction last summer. It took him two months to recover physically, but more like three months mentally. He had never been ill, and this really hit him like a ton of bricks. All a heart patient can do is sit around and worry for fear he will drop dead with the next breath, about his ability to do his job when he's allowed back to work, about money if he can't and watching his neighbor mow his lawn.

Tranquilizers are not the answer. I guess I am presenting you with a problem for which there is no answer.

DEAR READER — You are touching on an area that is all too often ignored. You're right about what happens to a person when a heart attack occurs. Of course one can be thankful he survived because about half of the victims of heart attacks don't make it to the hospital in time for meaningful treatment.

I was on a program recently with Dr. Terrance Cavanaugh of the cardiac rehabilitation center in Toronto, Canada. He commented on this problem, noting that about half of the men in the exercise program did have a depression after a heart attack. Each man pretended that everything was great because he thought he was the only one who was having any worries.

That is typical of human beings. We tend to keep our mouths shut and suffer in silence because we think we are unique, when in fact most other people have similar difficulties and also think they are unique.

A lot can be done to dispell this feeling after a heart attack in many patients. It helps to get people back to normal living as soon as their condition permits. That means rehabilitation in many cases.

Many people after a heart attack can be trained to engage in vigorous physical activity. Dr. Cavanaugh's group runs in the Boston marathon. Many of these men do more physical activity than they were able to do before a heart attack.

I do not advise starting an exercise program on your own after a heart attack. We need a lot more public facilities though where people can be trained to exercise. We need people to train post heart attack patients to the level that they feel good and realize that they are just as capable or more so than they were before an attack.

This can't apply to everybody as some people do have severe limitations after immediate recovery because of the extent of heart damage, but all too often the person could be trained to have a full and physically active life with the right training and supervision.

The best I can do is to say that the opportunity is there for most people who really want to try. With the doctor's permission such people should start a regular walking program while eliminating any excess fat they might have. Then, if their condition permits as shown by evaluation by the doctor, many of these people can progress to slow, steady jogging or trotting and other activities that will build up their heart and lung capacity to surprising levels.

For more information on what to do after a heart attack send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-12, After the Heart Attack. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Rites Set Tuesday For Faith Healer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dozens of persons often spent the night on the stone steps of the First Presbyterian Chruch to get front row seats at the faith healing services of Kathyrn Kuhlman.

And an overflow crowd is expected to visit the Sixth Avenue church tonight for a service memorializing the late evangelist, self-described as "the hand-maiden of the Lord."

Miss Kuhlman, who lived in nearby Fox Chapel, died Friday in Tulsa, Okla., where she'd been hospitalized since Christmas with a heart ailment.

She'll be buried in private ceremonies Tuesday in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Los Angeles. Memorial services were set for today in Pittsburgh and Youngstown, Ohio.

Miss Kuhlman was born in Concordia, Mo., daughter of the town's mayor. She was raised in her mother's Methodist church but converted to her father's Baptist beliefs.

At 16, she said she was called by The Lord to the ministry. She began preaching at that age and developed a nondenominational following.

"I try to keep my place as a woman. That's the reason I have no church as such. I leave that to the men," she once said.

She came to western Pennsylvania in 1948 and conducted weekly services in Franklin. When followers claimed to be healed of illnesses at the touch of her hand, she was barred from using the Gospel Tabernacle there.

As a result, she built a 2,000-seat temple in nearby Oil City, presented it as a gift to the residents in the area and moved to Pittsburgh where she maintained her headquarters until her death.

She held services in Carnegie Hall and drew record crowds but claimed no responsibility for the healing followers said they experienced at her gatherings.

"God does the healing. I only show the people faith," she said after a 1948 demonstration by angry preachers.

After 1967, she confined her work to a weekly service in Pittsburgh with a monthly sermon in Los Angeles where she continued to draw crowds of 7,000 or more. She also taped a daily radio show and a weekly television program in Pittsburgh for more than 50 cities.

Miss Kuhlman wrote two books, "I Believe in Miracles" and "God Can Do It Again."

WTC Can Clinch Title Tie Tonight

This is championship week in the Western Junior College Conference basketball race, and eyes of the entire league will be focused on the Scurry County Coliseum tonight as the Western Texas College Westerners host the Howard College Hawks.

The Westerners can wrap up at least a tie for the loop crown by defeating the Hawks in tonight's game, which is scheduled for an 8 p.m. tipoff.

The women's teams of the two schools will play at 6 p.m. in the first part of the doubleheader, but the WTC Dusters have already sacked up the conference crown and will be merely tuning up for the Region V tournament which they will host here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

But it is a mighty important game tonight for the Westerners, defending conference and national champions.

Although it never has been able to reach the top rung in the standings this season, Howard College has not been mathematically eliminated from the race, and here it is the final week of the regular season and only two games to go. The Hawks stand at 10-6 in the won-lost column. A victory over WTC tonight and another over South Plains on Thursday would end their season with a 12-6 mark. If WTC should lose tonight and again Thursday at Odessa, it would also finish with a 12-6 mark. And if Amarillo and New Mexico Military should win one and lose one in their final two games this week, they also would finish with 12-6 league records. Or, of course one of them could win it outright by capturing two victories this week if WTC should lose two.

So, tonight's encounter in the Scurry County Coliseum has it all on the line. A WTC victory would eliminate Howard College and put WTC in a position to win it at Odessa on Thursday.

Howard brings a high-scoring brigade into town. Their latest outing produced a 116-115 victory in two over-times over the Frank Phillips Plainsmen. Phillips, WTC must recall, inflicted one of the conference loses on the Westerner record.

Also, Howard brings the league's top scorer here. He is Marvin Johnson, who is averaging 32.3 points per game. He got 36 against Frank Phillips last week.

WTC can counter with the No. 2 scorer in the conference, Lawrence Butler, who is averaging 24.8 per outing.

PRESSURE IS ON—Allen Corder (24) and Larry Orton (51) of WTC Westerners apply pressure to a New Mexico Military Institute player in their last conference game at Roswell. The Westerners, who won that one, 76-70, face another crucial test tonight in the Scurry County Coliseum when they meet the Howard College Hawks.

Aggies Take A Breather After Strenuous Week

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Texas Aggies, admittedly tired after a whirlwind round of crucial games, take a breather against last-place Rice Tuesday night while the rest of the Southwest Conference sets the pairings for a championship tournament which doesn't involve A&M for nearly two weeks.

Coach Shelby Metcalf's Aggies played four games in seven days, climaxed by Saturday's 70-69 triumph over Arkansas that clinched a berth in the finals of the tournament March 6 in Dallas. Three rounds of games Feb. 28 and March 4-5 will determine the Aggies' opponent.

A&M, however, showed signs of fatigure. It blew an eight-point halftime lead and Arkansas cut a seven-point bulge with two minutes remaining to one point in the final seconds.

The Aggies' "Mr. Clutch", Sonny Parker, finished with 26 points but he missed six free throws late in the game, including two with five seconds to go that allowed the Razorbacks to get off a final desperation shot that could have meant victory.

"I was pressing too hard at the free throw line," said Parker. "I'm usually better than that. I guess I'm just tired."

"We're dead," said A&M guard Ray Roberts. "After all the mental strain we've been under and playing a game every other day this week."

"We're fortunate that we're going to get the bye to the finals," said Metcalf. "I think we're ready for a break."

Although Rice gave the Aggies a good battle in their first meeting, the 3-23 Owls aren't A&M's biggest worry this week.

A hearing will be held in Houston by the SWC on Thursday to allow Aggie freshman players Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams to hear charges against them and face their accusers.

Godine and Williams were suspended last week by the SWC for the rest of the season but a bederal judge in Dallas issued an injunction saying they must be allowed to play because they were denied due process.

The Thursday hearing could reinstate the suspensions and keep Godine and Williams out of the SWC tournament. In addition, the Dallas Morning News reported that the Aggies could be facing a two-year probation for recruiting violations involving the players.

In other games Saturday, Texas Tech outscored Southern Methodist 107-101, Baylor edged Houston 79-72 and Texas whipped Rice 90-70. The games all had a bearing on pairings in the tournament.

Tech has a 12-3 record that gives it second place, so the Raiders will host last-place Rice (1-14) in the first round next Saturday.

Despite its loss, SMU is 10-5 and will hold third place. The Mustangs will meet Texas Christian or Texas in the first round in Dallas. The Longhorns and Horned Frogs meet Tuesday in Fort Worth, with seventh place on the line.

Baylor's triumph tied the Bears with Arkansas for fourth place at 8-7. The two teams meet Tuesday with that position on the line.

Fifth place is a key because the team in the fifth spot will get a first round berth at home against the sixth-place team.

The loser of the Baylor-Arkansas fracas will get the fifth-place nod unless Houston, now 6-8, wins its last two games against Texas Tech and SMU, whose game Saturday night was played before a record Moody Coliseum crowd of 9,912.

The free-scoring contest saw Tech's Rick Bullock break the all-time SWC career scoring record and three other players set personal scoring records.

76th Win Is Not Boring, Says Kathy

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "It's never boring to win," exclaimed Kathy Whitworth after capturing her 76th tournament title on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour by one shot over Hollis Stacy.

The 35-year-old Richardson, Tex., golfer, who has been on the tour for 18 years, collected an $8,500 first-place check Sunday in the $60,000 Bent Tree Classic.

Miss Whitworth, the tour's all-time leading money winner nearing the $600,000 plateau in career earnings, claimed the title when playing partner Miss Stacy, tied for the lead, bogeyed the final hole.

Miss Stacy drove her tee shot into the water on the 471-yard, par-5 18th hole. After taking a penalty shot, the 21-year-old Savannah, Ga., resident missed a 15-foot putt for par which would have forced a sudden death playoff. Miss Whitworth made her par putt.

Miss Stacy had gained a share of the lead when she birdied the par-3 17th hole and Miss Whitworth bogeyed.

Miss Stacy won only $20,000 the past two years but took home a runnerup check for $6,500 here.

Miss Whitworth closed with a one-under-par 71 on the 6,115-yard Bent Tree Golf and Country Club course for a 54-hole total of 209. Miss Stacy had a 69 for 210.

Amy Alcott, the leader after the first two rounds, faltered to a 75 as heavy wind whipped through the course. The Santa Monica, Calif., resident, celebrating her 20th birthday Sunday, finished with a 212 total fo third-place money of $5,000.

Tied for fourth at 213 to earn $3,300 each were Sandra Palmer of Dallas, Tex., and Sandra Post of Boynton Beach, Fla. Miss Palmer, top money winner on the tour last year, had a 74. Miss Post had a 73.

Decision Due On Baseball Camps

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball owners, who have threatened to delay spring training until there is a new labor contract, were expected to get a recommendation today from their player relations committee on whether to open the camps on time.

The owners' player relations committee was scheduled to meet today in the office of John J. Gaherin, their chief bargaining agent with the major league baseball players association.

Some things old and something new were to help the committee decide on a course of action.

On the old side was the possibility of the owners' liability if the camps do not open on time. Some players have contracts calling for them to receive 1976 payments before the regular season. They may be able to demand payment, even if the camps are closed.

All the players, however, are entitled to daily spring training meal money and expense allowances once the camps open. Whether keeping the camps closed constitutes a breach was uncertain.

Gaherin said there is no explicit right to holding spring training and the owners would not be liable if the camps are closed. "The allowances are structured to compensate the player only for expenses incurred," he said.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, said he hasn't made a legal judgment yet on whether keeping the camps closed, and thus not paying allowances, would make the owners liable. "But it does open a new can of worms," he said.

A baseball source acknowledged that there is no contractual right for the players to bask in the spring training sun but "there is an indirect provision in the contract that contemplates spring training and one can get an implication of spring training from past practices."

Irwin Makes A Believer Of Tom Watson At LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hale Irwin's latest golf victim doesn't think the former University of Colorado football star and 1974 U.S. Open champion gets the credit he deserves.

Tom Watson, current British Open champion, said: "Irwin is underrated. He's one of the three best golfers of today."

The 30-year-old Irwin fired a three-under-par 68 Sunday and won the $37,000 first prize in the $185,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open with a record 72-hole score of 272 — 12 under par over the Riviera Country Club course.

Legendary Ben Hogan set the record of 275 in 1948 and Pat Fitzsimons equalled it last year, before Irwin broke it. Watson, himself, shot 73—274, also beating the mark.

After his first victory of the year, Irwin said, "It would be nice to be recognized," but added, "It doesn't bother me."

Of the final round, Irwin said, "I like to win the way I did. I did shoot 68 on a difficult course and I was in the 60s four days.

"When I was five strokes behind Watson after three holes, I needed quick birdies and for him to make mistakes quick."

Irwin saw both things happen. He birdied the fifth and seventh holes with putts of 15 and 12 feet. Watson missed the green on the fourth hole for a bogey, hit under a tree on the fifth and took a double bogey and missed a short putt on No. 6 for another bogey.

The combination put Irwin and the 26-year-old Watson even after six holes.

"From then on it was really just match play," said Irwin, who kept a constant check on what his foe was doing. Watson played in a threesome directly behind Irwin.

The break came at the 11th hole when Watson missed a six-foot putt for a bogey.

Both golfers had eagled the 506-yard par-five first hole — Irwin with a 75-foot pitch that bounced into the cup and Watson with a 30-foot putt.

Then Irwin bogeyed the second and third holes, missing the green, then hitting into the sand. That's when he fell five strokes behind.

"But I knew there were 15 holes left, and I wasn't giving up," Irwin said. "Maybe my par on the sixth hole was the most important for me. I hit onto the face of a hill and then my chip shot almost went into the cup."

Watson collected $21,090 for his second place finish and Gary Player, the South African making his 1976 U.S. debut, had a 67—277 for third place money of $13,135. Player closed with a flourish, chipping in from 60 yards on the final hole.

Behind Player came Lanny Wadkins and Tom Shaw at 278. Wadkins had a final round 66 and Shaw a 69. Next at 281 were Gene Littler, first-round leader Tom Jenkins and Don January.

Arnold Palmer had 74-291, Johnny Miller 72-296 and Ben Crenshaw 74-289.

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Ray Butcher, chief assistant football coach at Utah State University, resigned Friday to take a head football coaching job at College of the Desert at Palm Desert, Calif.

Butcher has been an assistant coach at USU since 1973. The new post will be his second as head coach for a junior college. He was coach for Arizona Western before coming to Logan.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Traditionally, spring is the time when not only bugs but fraudulent "bug control" operators start swarming in Texas. And reports from our Attorney General's regional offices throughout the State indicate that this year the "bug controllers" are getting an earlier start than usual.

Spokesmen for the Texas Structural Pest Control Board and attorneys in our Environmental Protection Division, which represents the Board, remind all consumers that pest control servicemen must be licensed in order to operate in Texas.

Operating without a license could result in civil penalties of from $50 to $1,000 per day and in criminal misdemeanor charges.

Structural Pest Control Board officials point out that two licenses are needed: a "business license" which requires an initial fee of $50, with $50 annual renewal fees, and a "certified applicator license" which requires $5-$15 initial and annual renewal fees. Every business licensee must employ a certified applicator to apply pest control chemicals. In many cases, they are the same person.

Since 1972, every licensed applicator has been required to pass a written examination in the categories of pest control he wants to offer. There are five such categories: (1) control of termites and other wood-destroying organisms; (2) control of insects such as roaches and silverfish and of rodents, birds, and mammals; (3) pest control for lawns and ornamental plants; (4) fumigation; and (5) weed control.

Each business licensee must carry $30,000 worth of insurance for property or personal damage, an important protection for consumers and a very good reason for dealing only with licensed pest controllers.

Consumers should be extremely wary of unsolicited door-to-door "exterminators." Such persons could be unlicensed itinerants who operate out of a truck, and who may be impossible to reach if complaints arise later. Consumers should take the following steps to insure getting the best pest control job possible, say our attorneys and the pest control experts.

1. Deal only with a licensed pest controller who will have a state license number displayed prominently on his truck. Ask also to see the certified applicator's license of anyone who will be applying chemicals.

2. Have two or three licensed pest controllers check your home or business if you suspect pests and get free written estimates on any work that may be indicated.

3. Remember that a pest control license does not mean a person is also licensed to repair any structural damage that may have been caused by pests. A licensed pest control operator may or may not be capable of performing home repairs. It's a good idea to consider pest control and repair work as two separate operations and get estimates for each from several persons.

4. Always get any guarantees about pest control in writing. If your home is guaranteed to be pest-free for two years from date of extermination, make sure this is spelled out.

5. You may also want to ask that the pest controller write down the type of chemical used in spraying, its strength or percentage, and how much was applied, since that information may become important to you later.

If you have a complaint about a pest control operator—licensed or unlicensed—call the Texas Structural Pest Control Board in Austin or one of our six regional offices. Be able to give the person's name and, if possible, his license number.

Attorneys for our Environmental Protection Divisions point out that in addition to the licensing and insurance requirements for legitimate pest control operators, consumers are also protected by the Deceptive Trade Practices Act against false, misleading, or deceptive trade practices. They are also protected by the Home Solicitation Act if they are approached for pest control work by a door-to-door operator.

Skies Clear Across Texas

By The Associated Press

Sunshine sparkled throughout Texas today as temperatures again rose into the mild range.

A high pressure area centered in the Lower Rio Grande Valley caused a reversal of the state's usual temperature pattern with many of the normally warm Valley cities reporting cooler morning temperatures than North Texas points.

The high pressure also was the reason for the clear skies across the state.

AIFS Tour To Be Led By Snyderite

Mrs. Ena V. Flack of Snyder has been chosen by The America Institute for Foreign Studies to accompany a group of area student-girls and adults for a 14-day tour of Europe.

Timed to coincide with the American bicentennial, the tour will take advantage of the many celebrations and exhibitions which mark the occasion in Europe, said Mrs. Flack.

"The tour has been planned to discover, as much as possible, Europe's great cultural heritage. Countries to be visited include Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium, France and Italy. Highlights will include a visit to Plymouth Harbor, home port of the Mayflower in 1620, attendance of a performance at the Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford, and other historic cultural places."

Mrs. Flack said AIFS is one of the world's largest and more experienced educational travel organizations, Since it was founded in 1964, more than 75,000 persons (teachers, students and adults) have travelled abroad with AIFS. The tour will depart from Dallas-Fort Worth on June 28 and return July 12. Cost is $1,160 per person.

Mrs. Flack is the wife of Joseph W. Flack, an engineer for Sun Oil Co. and the mother of one child, Gloria, a first-grade student at West Elementary School. She said that traveling is one of her most enjoyable hobbies. More information concerning the tour may be obtained by calling her at 573-3330, or a brochure may be obtained by writing 3404 Irving.

Snyderite Is On Champion Judging Team

OMAHA, Neb.—Texas Tech University's plant identification team amassed 2,953 out of a possible 3,000 points to win first place in International Range Management competition. The team competed against 16 other university teams from the United States and Mexico.

Texas Tech seniors Steve Nelle and Elizabeth Maris led all individual scoring, placing first and second, respectively. Nelle scored 2,992 points, only eight points short of a perfect score. Maris tallied 2,987 points for her second. Another Texas Tech team member, John Wimberley, tied with a Utah State University student for third, with 2,981 points.

The team's first place marks the eighth time in 12 years that Texas Tech plant identification teams have placed first in the international competition. Texas Tech's victory was announced at a Wednesday night banquet, part of the week-long International Range Management Symposium.

Texas A&M University's team placed second with 2,901 points. New Mexico State was third.

All five of Texas Tech's team members finished winning the top 10 of 69 individual competitors. Nelle is from Lewisville. Maris is from Lubbock. Third place winner Wimberley is a Littlefield junior. Russ Lasater, a Lubbock senior, placed sixth with 2,974 points. Weldon Sears, a Snyder junior, was 10th with 2,067 points. All are wildlife management majors at Texas Tech.

Dr. Russ Pettit, sponsor and coach, said he tried a new system of coaching this year. "It apparently worked well with this team," he said.

"We apologize for not bringing home all the top five individual scores, but we're happy with the results," the coach said.

The timed competition requires the students to identify at least 100 forage plant species from a group of 200 important forages. Texas Tech's team began preparations for the competition last November.

Lots Of Yarn

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A popular art workshop for children here uses enough yarn in a year to link the Empire State Building to the Washington Monument.

The kids in the Crown Center workshop, which is called "Kaleidoscope," consume 500 miles of yarn in a year. They also use 56 miles of ribbon and 110,000 pompons.

'Prince' Returning To Houston, Kin

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After nearly a year on skid row, "The Prince" is going home to Houston and a daughter who read of his miseries in her local newspaper.

A retired head waiter for the Southern Pacific Railroad, the 75-year-old Prince Gallagher came to New Orleans, his old hometown, to visit about a year ago.

Although he planned to stay only two weeks, Gallagher was soon lost, befuddled and out of money when the pension checks from his 31 years of service with the railroad stopped coming.

Old and alone, he was confused — unable to think of how to reach his children, have his pension checks forwarded or get away from the vicious world of winos, hustlers and vagrants on Skid Row.

He was frequently kept in the House of Detention, often by his own choice and usually for his own protection. "They give me three meals a day," he said of the institution.

Then Municipal Court Judge Eddie Sapir took a special interest in the old man, nicknamed him "The Prince," and launched an effort to find his family.

Finding the old waiter's daughter was no easy task. Many persons called Sapir claiming to be related to "The Prince," but turned out to be cranks or hustlers, Sapir said.

Others called to offer him a home, but backed out when they learned he was black.

Friday, Gallagher's 25-year-old daughter called from Houston, Ann Lewis said she had read of her father's troubles and would drive to New Orleans over the weekend to pick him up.

"I haven't seen my father in almost six years," Mrs. Lewis said. "I used to get cards and letters from him, but then he disappeared."

"That's just fine," Gallagher said when told his daughter had been found and was coming to take him home. The Southern Pacific said his pension checks had been returned by the post office when he moved away from Houston and were waiting for him there.

Beef, Pork Supplies Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect a seasonal increase in the supply of pork next month and a continuing increase in beef at supermarket counters, says the Agriculture Department.

In another of its "food marketing alert" reports Friday, the department said March pork supplies will be larger than now but will still trail year-earlier levels by about 5 per cent and will be about 12 per cent below the March average the past three years.

US Medical Students Are Training In Italy

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — Growing numbers of America's future doctors are being trained in Italy.

With admission to U.S. medical schools confined to about 4,500 new students a year, or about a tenth of the applicants, more than 1,500 Americans are now studying at 27 medical schools in Italy. It is the largest contingent of American medical students in Europe.

A million-dollar organization, the Italo-American Medical Education Foundation, helps Italianize the American students and then re-Americanize them after their Italian education.

About 600 Americans are now immersed in the foundation's "total orientation program."

To work as interns in American hospitals, those trained abroad must pass the examinations of the Educational Council for Foreign Medical Graduates. The president of the foundation, Albert Sehrager, says because of his organization's work, the student exiles' chances of passing the exams have gone up from 33 per cent four years ago to 75 per cent.

U.S. and Italian physicians concluded a three-day symposium in Rome Sunday on the problems of the student exiles and ways of closing the differences between U.S. and Italian medical education.

Both students and doctors said that although American technology may give U.S. education a clinical edge over the Italian, the gap is due largely to deficiences in the Italian educational structure resulting from overcrowding. Italian medical schools are now turning out 12,000 graduates a year, four times the number Italy needs.

The tuition fee in Italian medical schools is only $150 a year; in the United States it is $4,000 or more.

Coming to Italy for his medical education is something of a homecoming for John Tesoriero, a Manhattan College graduate from Fort Lee, N.J. His mother and his paternal grandparents came from the volcanic island of Stromboli, and "at home I heard Italians, ate pasta and 'mamma' was our queen. But I miss our hustle-bustle-produce system.

"Given a choice, we all would like to study at home."

Tesoriero explained that even after passing the examinations required to practice in the United States, the exile may be considered a "second-class" doctor because of his foreign degree.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

"Tattletales'" M.C. Bert Convy is a multitallented entertainer—equally at home on Broadway as a song-and-dance man or on the screen as a game show host. An only child whose parents divorced when he was five, Bert became fiercely independent and claims he learned to rely upon himself alone through that experience. Today, the deeply-dimpled performer pursues his career along many lines. His credits include stage versions of "Cabaret" and "Fiddler on the Roof."

MAURICE: Do you love the attention you've been getting since you started hosting the show?

CONVY: I love the looks that women give me. You see, I love ladies. It doesn't matter if they're mature ladies, young ladies, funny ladies, all kinds. I relate to ladies very well and they seem to relate to me.

MAURICE: So you're a ladies' man? You know that one of the biggest pitfalls in becoming a sex symbol is that a marriage can flounder when the husband becomes the object of too many ladies' affections....

CONVY: Yeah, but my wife Annie is not worried. Heck no. She's too bright for that. She knows that I come home every night. She also travels with me and takes an active interest in my business. It's Anne's love that keeps me going.

MAURICE: Yes, but let's be honest. You could fool around if you wanted to.

CONVY: Even if I wanted to fool around, I simply don't have the time for it. I haven't had a day off for months. What with "Tattletales", the "Tonight" show and nightclub engagements, I'm a very busy guy. I have seen women that appeal to me, but I have to tell you I value my wife and her love much too much to do anything but think about them. Besides, the bigger you get, the harder it becomes to fool around. You can't hide, when everyone knows your face and knows that you're married.

MAURICE: You remind me of the type of guy who would be very possessive of his wife. Am I right?

CONVY: I don't mean to be, but I am. For example, I'll never forget the time she tried to throw a surprise birthday party for me. She was acting so secretive that my imagination simply ran away with me. I began to be absolutely sure that she was having an affair and that all these meetings and strange phone calls were with another man. You can imagine how dumb I felt when I found out that she was trying to make me happy.

MAURICE: Let's talk about your career.

CONVY: Ok, let's.

MAURICE: I'll be perfectly honest with you. I would really love to have my own variety show. I'm working on a number of projects now for a pilot for a new show.

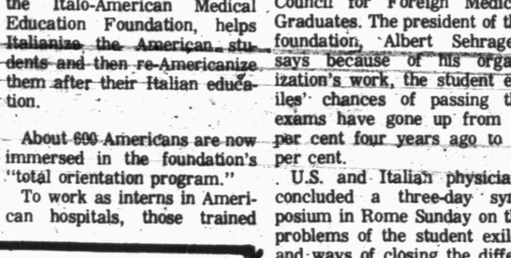
MAURICE: What would you call it?

CONVY: I hate to think to call it "The Bert Convy Show" because I hate the word show. It's been so over-used. That's one thing I like about your television show. It's simply called, "Dick Maurice & Company". Hey, that's it. Maybe I'll call it, "Bert Convy & Company." What do you think about that?

MAURICE: Why not! Sammy Davis calls his show, "Sammy & Company."

MAURICE: Is there a recipe for happiness?

CONVY: I don't know if there is any one recipe. I know it takes a lot of ingredients. For example, you need a happy home life. You have to enjoy your work and you need inner peace with yourself. Those are the ingredients that I think are necessary to make you happy.



Bosoms Take Lead In Male Mail Poll

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: I asked my readers to please send me a postcard telling me what they noticed first about the opposite sex. The response was almost equally divided between men and women, with slightly more men responding than women.

First, the responses from the men:

The bosoms were out in front by a wide margin! However, many men who said that the first thing they notice about a woman was her bosom added that the size of a woman's bust isn't important.

An Austin, Tex., man wrote, "I married 'Miss Knockers of 1941,' and our marriage was a disaster. Two children and four years later we were divorced. We just never communicated."

A Baltimore bosom-watcher wrote that he has become an expert on guessing whether a woman's breasts are "real," padded or enlarged by silicone implants. And anything phony turns him off.

From Seattle: "I'm only 28—not old enough to be considered a dirty old man—but I have to admit that my eyes go right to a girl's bosom first. If she's not wearing a bra, I figure she's probably liberated.

"But liberated women are not necessarily pushovers. In fact, I've found that most liberated women are just the opposite. They refuse to be used as sex objects, and unless they're sure that you really care for them as a 'person,' it's no go."

From Milwaukee: "Big breasts have always been No. 1 with me," signed, "Seventy-nine and still looking!"

After the bosom-watchers, the next highest percentage of men voted for a woman's "figure," which included not only the way she was built but also other parts of the anatomy.

Connecticut men are "leg men," my mail disclosed. But most "fanny fanciers" live in California. One Encino girl-watcher wrote, "I prefer to see the rear view of a woman walking away rather than to see her walking toward me. In fact, I hardly ever notice a woman's face. The way she walks tells me more about her than her face does!"

Of those men who stated that they notice a woman's figure first, more than 50 per cent wrote that they preferred their women to be a little on the "meaty" side. And of all the men who stated a preference for "pleasingly plump" girls, most were from Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Ohio!

The "eyes" came next. A government man in Washington, D.C., wrote, "Not only the eyes per se but also the 'expression' in her eyes. It tells me whether or not she's interested in me. If she's not, it's a challenge that I immediately take up. Sometimes I score. Sometimes I strike out."

"The eyes show kindness, cruelty, warmth, trust, friendliness and compassion—or a lack of it. They even show whether that person has had a happy life or not. They reveal suspicion, hostility, patience, tolerance and an invitation for flirtation," wrote a Syracuse philosopher.

Tomorrow: More on what men first notice about women.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Gov. Brown Is Mum About Dates

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Bachelor Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he has dates every weekend but that it "would be stupid" to talk about them.

The 37-year-old Democrat also touched upon some of the aspects of his thinking in an interview published Sunday in the Sacramento Bee.

Asked about his private life, the Jesuit-educated Brown said he goes heavily into intellectual pursuits.

For example, one recent Friday he went to a poetry reading by Pulitzer Prize-winner Gary Snyder and attended a party for a group of Indian dancers; he spent Saturday discussing space colonies with an astronaut, an author, an editor and a space designer; Sunday he walked a beach talking with Ivan Illich, author of "Deschooling Society" and "The Medical Nemesis."

On marriage, Brown said, "This job is a little taxing on personal relationships. I'd like to get married some day. I probably will some day."

BIG LIFT—Hoisting the Spur Ranch granary onto its new foundation at the Ranching Heritage Center at The Museum of Texas Tech University took place Friday (Feb. 20). The granary will be operated at the center in the same way it served on the famous Spur Ranch. Stones for the foundation were hauled from Soldier's Mound, east of the Spur, and were the closest to the original stone in texture and color, available for the restoration. It is one of 19 historic structures already in place in the authentic outdoor exhibit of America's ranching history. The formal opening of the center is scheduled for July 2-5. (TECH PHOTO)

New Fed Beef Grading Rules In Effect Today

By MIKE MOORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New federal definitions for the quality of beef Americans buy go into effect today, meaning the steak you buy as "prime" meat may have been graded only "choice" last week.

Under the new rules, standards for "prime" and "choice" beef will be widened to include meat with less marbling — or flecks of fat. The more marbling in the beef, the more tender and juicy it is.

The U.S. Agriculture Department, which had originally hoped to implement the new rating system almost a year ago, says consumers won't be able to tell the difference in appearance or taste but that the changes will cut costs for cattlemen, keep retail costs down and cut down the amount of grain used to feed the cattle Americans eat.

Historically, the tenderest and most expensive of the four grades of beef commonly seen in retail stores is "prime," which comes from cattle pampered and fed grain during much of their lives, particularly in the final few months before slaughter.

"Choice" beef contains less marbling than "prime," and "good" beef has less than "choice." "Standard" is the fourth category.

The rise in grain prices in recent years has caused many cattle farmers and feed-lot operators to claim they have lost money until recently. With a loosening of the standards for the top two classes of beef, producers will be able to feed less grain to animals and still have them qualify for the more expensive grades.

The new rules were initially planned for adoption last April 14, but they were delayed by court challenges from producers and others, including consumer groups which contended that shoppers would be charged higher prices for lower quality beef. The last legal hurdle was cleared Sunday.

U.S. District Court Judge Patrick Higginbotham of Dallas denied a temporary injunction that had been sought by the Texas baby beef industry, which claimed the new standards would dry up their industry and ultimately result in higher costs to consumers.

The baby beef raisers complained the new regulations would downgrade 20 to 50 per cent of their product from "good" to "standard" and argued that chain stores and consumers would not buy lower-graded baby beef.

Higginbotham said he denied the action because it was unlikely cattlemen could win their case in further proceedings. A hearing is still scheduled within 45 days on a motion for a permanent injunction.

Cattlemen Are Denied Injunction

DALLAS (AP) — New federal beef grading regulations went into effect today after a court bid for a temporary injunction which was denied Sunday.

Cattlemen had argued that imposition of the new regulations will mean consumers will be paying more for beef in the supermarket.

U.S. District Court Judge Patrick Higginbotham denied the temporary injunction in a 20-page opinion completed Sunday.

The injunction was sought by the Texas baby beef industry which said new beef grading standards will "cripple" their industry and mean higher beef costs.

Higginbotham denied the temporary injunction because, he said, it wasn't likely cattlemen could win their case in other court showings.

The opinion was to be filed today with the U.S. District Clerk's office.

Higginbotham's clerk, Bill Rhea, who prepared the opinion for filing, said, "It's a complex ruling but it boils down to this: One must show the probability of prevailing on the merits in trial and the plaintiffs didn't make that showing. The judge said they hadn't shown that the Secretary (U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz) had acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner. In short, the judge felt they couldn't win their case any farther down the road so he just went ahead and denied it at this preliminary stage."

Farm Exports Dip In '74

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today that the value of farm exports last year totaled $21.9 billion, a slight dip from 1974's record of $22 billion.

Despite the decline, 1974 exports provided a record U.S. trade surplus, the difference between the value of exports and imports.

Farm imports totaled $9.3 billion last year, down from nearly $10.3 billion in calendar 1974, the department's Foreign Agricultural Services said. That meant a U.S. farm export edge over imports of $12.6 billion, up from the previous high of $11.7 billion in 1974.

Meanwhile, in calendar 1975, exports of U.S. nonfarm products failed to keep pace with nonfarm imports, the fifth successive year there has been a deficit in that trade exchange, the agency said.

But the huge farm export surplus more than offset the other gap, leaving U.S. over-all trade in the black in 1975 by a margin of $10.3 billion. That was a record over-all trade surplus, eclipsing the previous margin of slightly less than $10.3 billion set in 1974, officials said.
