Dulles Sees War Danger In Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Dulles said today there is "a very great likelihood" American boys may have to fight in the Middle East unless Congress approves President Eisenhower's program for that area.

The secretary of state made the statement in response to questioning by Sen. Langer (R-ND). Dulles said that if Eisenhower's proposal is adopted there is "very little likelihood" American boys will have to fight in the Middle East.

For the second day, members of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees were questioning Dulles about the Eisenhower program which calls for financial aid to nations of the Middle East, and standby authority to use U.S. troops to combat any direct Soviet aggression in that part of the world.

There were plans at one time to wind up the questioning of Dulles today. But after protests by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) against any "pressure to shorten questioning," Sen. Green (D-RI) who heads up the

SOUGHT MILITARY DATA

Russ Envoy Charged With Spying Attempt Ordered To Leave Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department charged today the Soviet Embassy's assistant military attache has been trying "to purchase" military secrets and "improperly purchasing" electronic equipment. It said he has been ordered to leave the country.

The department said it told the embassy late yesterday that Maj. Yuri P. Krylov must leave immediately.

The charges against Krylov, as set forth in an official statement, were:

1. He "engaged in activities incompatible with his diplomatic status" by buying electronic equipment "through American intermediaries." The State Department would not say whether action was being taken against the Americans described as intermediaries.
2. He "attempted to purchase classified military information." The State Department also refused to answer questions on this point.

Press officer Lincoln White did say that the electronics equipment which the Russian officer obtained "is not licensed for export."

He would not say whether the equipment had been recovered from Krylov and if so by what means. He not only declined information about the "intermediaries" but refused to say when or in what period of time the alleged purchases had occurred.

Late yesterday, the ranking Soviet diplomat here, Sergei R. Striganov — Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin being in New York — was called to the State Department by Deputy Asst. Secretary Jacob D. Beam. He was handed the following note:

"The Department of State informs the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics that the government of the United States has ascertained that Maj. Yuri P. Krylov, asst. military attache of the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, has engaged in highly improper activities incompatible with his diplomatic status."

"Maj. Krylov's continued presence in the United States is no longer considered acceptable and the embassy is requested to arrange for his immediate departure."

Such a declaration that a diplomat is unacceptable leaves his government no choice.

The order for his immediate departure means that he has time only to make the arrangements necessary for packing up his personal belongings and for traveling.

To all inquiries about the "intermediaries," White would say only that the State Department does not handle domestic matters. That put the question of any public disclosure up to the Justice Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Daniel Successor To Sit With Demos

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Allan Shivers appointed William A. Blakley of Dallas, wealthy Democrat, as temporary U. S. Senator from Texas, and Blakley indicated he will help the Democrats maintain their narrow margin in the Senate.

The Dallas Times Herald said it understood he would sit with the Democrats in the Senate.

However, Blakley said, "I haven't made up my mind on how I will vote in the Senate. I have got to get in the Senate first."

President Sees Parched Earth

Ike Told Arizona Ranges In Worst Condition In 30 Years

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — President Eisenhower was told today that Arizona's drought stricken ranges are in the worst condition in more than 30 years.

Before taking off for the final round of drought inspection, he heard that cattle, a backbone of the state's economy, were the poorest since the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service began making estimates in 1922.

Dr. Harold Myers, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Arizona, said:

"The drought effect will last far beyond the coming calf crop. Breeding cow numbers will have to be rebuilt. This repair job will take several years."

Some ranchers already have spent almost as much on feed as the value of their cows, Myers said.

The President may disclose today what the federal government proposes to do about easing the worsening plight of farmers and ranchers.

Aides said the President might talk about some of his plans at a conference scheduled late in the day at Wichita, Kan. He will meet at McConnell Air Force Base there with representatives of all states confronted with drought damage problems.

In advance of that session Eisenhower's program calls for on-the-spot study of the situation here in Arizona and in the regions around Pueblo, Colo., and Garden City, Kan.

The President arranged an early breakfast meeting at Tucson's Davis - Monahan Air Base, where he spent the night, for a report on what Arizona folks would like in the way of federal relief measures. Then he was going on to Colorado and Kansas.

Eisenhower arrived in Tucson by plane late yesterday after 10 hours of aerial and ground inspection of drought conditions in three other Southwestern states — Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. He saw mile after mile of sun-baked land, some badly damaged by wind erosion, and he got from several ranchers and farmers first-hand accounts of their difficulties.

Britain Okays Missile Idea

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain today supported the new U. S. proposal for international control of space missiles and called for urgent U. N. study of the problem. At the same time, it advocated similar controls on long range submarines and aircraft which might serve as launching platforms.

Murder Charges

Dr. John Bodkin Adams, respected 51-year-old bachelor physician, is shown at his desk in Eastbourne, England, before he was accused of murdering a rich and eccentric widow for a share of her will. He was arrested after an investigation by Scotland Yard Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannam, who looked into the wills of 400 women who died in Dr. Adams' care.

Life Restored, But Lad 'Very Critical'

Gary Layne Voyles' little heart pumped on today in a valiant effort to restore life to the five-year-old lad who accidentally hanged himself to a clothesline pole Monday afternoon.

The boy was "absolutely lifeless" when he was taken to Big Spring Hospital about 2:15 p.m. Monday. Doctors injected adrenalin directly to the heart and began massaging the chest to restore heart action.

Oxygen and artificial respiration were administered at the same time and in a few moments the tiny heart fluttered into action and the lad began gasping for breath.

He was kept in an iron lung until about 7:30 p.m., when he recovered sufficiently to breathe alone.

He has never regained consciousness, suffered a series of convulsions for a period of several hours and remained in a "very critical" condition at noon today.

His physician said the boy is "far from satisfactory."

Gary Layne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Voyles, 1102 Ridge-road.

He went into the backyard to

Commissioners Vote Small Pay Hikes For County's Employees

Sheriff Miller Harris, who petitioned the commissioners for an extra deputy in his office, will have to get along without the additional help. Howard County commissioners court Monday afternoon rejected, for the second time, the sheriff's plea.

At the same session, the commissioners voted pay increases for the deputies in the several offices. First and second deputies in the offices were raised $10 per month. All third deputies not pay increases of $15 per month.

The plan followed in the county courthouse is for an official to designate two of his employees, if he has that many or more, as first and second deputies. All other clerks in the offices are rated as third deputies.

Advertisement was ordered prepared by which the salary of Frances Glenn, treasurer, can be raised 10 per cent — in harmony with raises voted Monday morning for all other elective officials. This will bring Mrs. Glenn's pay to $5,280. Other elective officers are to be paid $6,600 per year.

Her pay increase cannot be put in effect Feb. 1 with her fellow officers. It will become effective after the official approval of the order at the first meeting of the commission in February.

Jimmy Taylor, county agent, was granted $500 additional yearly travel expense. This makes his current allowance for this purpose $1,000. His assistant's travel allowance was increased from $500 to $800 and that of the home demonstration agent from $500 to $800.

Miss Mary Cantrell, county public welfare officer, was given a 10 per cent monthly salary increase.

A. E. (Shorty) Long, county juvenile officer, was given $25 per month additional pay.

Bobby West, special investigator for the district attorney's office, drew a $25 per month pay boost plus a travel allowance of $35 per month.

Pay of Mrs. Opal McDaniel, county librarian, was increased to $300 — a raise of $25 per month.

Mrs. Ben Hawkins, her assistant, will also get a $25 a month increase bringing her present salary to $225 per month.

Salary of the county engineer was increased $1,200 per year. Walter Parks, engineer, has been

Daniel Puts States Rights First In Inaugural Address

AUSTIN (AP) — Price Daniel achieved his boyhood dream to be governor of Texas today with a fighting pledge to oppose "further federal encroachment" on state's rights.

The new governor criticized the Supreme Court, saying the 10th Amendment guaranteeing state's rights has "suffered from disuse and disregard" at its hands.

Daniel, onetime newsboy, country lawyer, state legislator, attorney general and U.S. senator, said his administration would "emphasize and fight for" that portion of the Constitution.

He made the promise in his inaugural address minutes after he swore to uphold both the state and federal constitutions. Daniel repeated the oath recited by Chief Justice J. E. Hickman of the state Supreme Court.

Daniel said there was no conflict between the state and federal constitutions except when there are "strained interpretations which cause one of the sovereigns to encroach upon the powers and rights of the other."

Daniel became governor as Texas and other Southern states were struggling for a solution to racial conflicts growing out of the U.S. Supreme Court's decisions over-ruling state segregation laws. It was a major issue for the Legislature before which Daniel was inaugurated.

Daniel promised to be a faithful governor "regardless of personal and partisan differences of the past," and called for "cooperation, unity and good will" in a state long torn by Democratic party conflicts. In his 14-minute inaugural address, the governor said Texas' first new one in more than seven years—predicted his administration and the Legislature "will mark the beginning of a greater era of progress, integrity and good government for Texas."

He said he would recommend a strict lobby control law, promised to expose and eliminate any blameworthy act of misconduct by state officials, pledged support of a statewide water conservation plan, and called for improved public education with salary increases for teachers.

Daniel promised he would work for a balanced budget, constitutional revision, attraction of new

Nurse Testifies Doctor Pumped Drugs Into Widow

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — The nurse who attended 11-year-old Mrs. Edith Morrell testified today that Dr. John Bodkin Adams used a giant-sized hypodermic syringe to pump the wealthy widow full of drugs just before she died.

Adams, pudgy 57-year-old society physician in this fashionable seaside resort, has been accused by the prosecutor of drugging three wealthy patients to death because of his "greed for money."

The court is now hearing preliminary evidence on a charge that Dr. Adams murdered Mrs. Morrell more than six years ago after enslaving her with drugs and getting her to change her will in his favor. She left him a Rolls Royce automobile and an oak chest full of antique silver.

After the hearing, expected to last through the week, the court of five magistrates will decide whether Adams should stand trial before a judge and jury.

Dr. Adams was arrested last month after a painstaking Scotland Yard investigation into about 400 wills, mostly of wealthy widows. The bodies of two wealthy widows, former patients of Dr. Adams, have been exhumed.

The nurse, first witness at today's session, was Miss Caroline Randall, who watched by the bedside as Mrs. Morrell died.

Garnet Symbolizes Constancy As This Month's Birthstone

January is the month of the garnet, glowing symbol of constancy. Treasured for centuries for its dark fire, the garnet caught the eye of prehistoric earth dwellers long before gems were mined. Glittering garnet pebbles probably were first picked up along river courses where rushing waters had loosed them from the mother-rock.

Ranging in size from tiny grains of sand to large gems, garnets have been found in every color except blue. To quality as gems worth setting, according to the Jewelry Industry Council, they must be of unblemished transparency and — the red ones, at least — should have the glow of a smoldering fire.

As are rubies and sapphires, garnets are sometimes starred. The star of the garnet, however, instead of being six-rayed as in the sapphire and ruby, usually has four rays. Today garnets are mined in Brazil, Madagascar, India, Africa and the United States.

A stone once reserved for royalty, the garnet now is widely used in rings for both men and women and is equally adaptable to other forms of jewelry.

Beauty From Denmark

The former Miss Denmark, Greta Thyssen, was determined to stay in America from the moment she arrived in Hollywood. After three years in this country Greta speaks with scarcely a trace of an accent, which is quite an accomplishment for one who knew little of the English language. Today she discusses how she maintains her weight by eating only two meals a day. Greta is one of CBS' outstanding young actresses.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Skip That Third Meal To Keep Weight Down

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Four years ago Greta Thyssen came to America to represent Denmark in the Miss Universe contest and she liked Hollywood so much she's been here ever since. It was not easy at first because of the language barrier but today she speaks English with only a trace of an accent.

"I dreamed of Hollywood for so many years I was determined to stay once I got here," Greta told me the other afternoon when she came to my house for tea.

I noticed she took cinnamon toast but didn't eat it. "I think it is polite to take something when it's offered to you," she explained, "but I never eat anything after four o'clock. For so many years I struggled with a weight problem. I tried all kinds of diets. I had the discipline to starve myself but I didn't feel well and I didn't think I looked well."

"Then I began reading books about food and studying nutrition and I found a method that works very well with me. I'm not hungry and I feel well."

I wanted to know more about this.

"I have only two meals a day. I do not deny myself fattening foods like baked potatoes, butter or an occasional avocado. My biggest meal is breakfast and this is very logical because you have energy to draw from during the day and you work off whatever you eat."

"Farmers know this," I commented. "They have meat, potatoes and vegetables as well as cereal and eggs."

"So do I," Greta exclaimed. "As soon as I get up in the morning I start preparing my breakfast. When I'm working on a picture, this means I must get up sometimes when it's still dark but I feel so much better for it."

"I have lunch depending on when I get up," she continued, "but never later than three. This way my worries about gaining are over. I satisfy my appetite with healthy meals and my weight stays the same. And I never eat dinner."

"What do you do when you have a date or go to a party?" I asked.

"I don't refuse food," Greta explained, "but I play at eating. I never worry about it. Life is so much easier when we work out our problems instead of fretting over them."

Baptist WMS Has Study On Missions

A program on "Missions in the Mississippi Basin" was presented Monday for the First Baptist WMS.

The Mary Willis Circle was in charge of the discussion led by Mrs. Wayne Nance.

Mrs. J. E. Hardesty discussed the beauty, culture, the people and their needs and how these needs are being met. "Foreign Neighbors" was the topic taken by Mrs. H. H. Squires with Mrs. R. D. Ulrey speaking on "Friends of the Fields."

"The Negro Advances" was discussed by Mrs. Theo Andrews. Mrs. Roy Odum had for her topic, "Sellers Home and Adoption Center." Mrs. G. J. Couch concluded the program by discussing "With the French in the Bayous."

Mrs. Couch brought the devotion from the 46th chapter of Psalms. Thirty-two were present for the study.

INDEPENDENT

Bogie Grewled But Liked People

Editor's Note — In nearly a dozen years of reporting the Hollywood scene, columnist Bob Thomas developed a close friendship with Humphrey Bogart and his wife Lauren Bacall. Thus he is able to write feelingly and knowledgeably of the lusty actor whose life made Hollywood a brighter place and whose death saddened many. Following is the first of three articles on the fabulous Bogie.

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Although he growled at them and needed them mercilessly, Humphrey Bogart liked people.

His widow, Lauren Bacall, once remarked: "Bogie is fanatically independent, yet he can't stand being alone."

He always liked to have his friends around him, and that was his only pleasure in his last days. Up until he fell into a coma Sunday morning, he observed a daily ritual — the Bogart cocktail hour.

Knowing how much he loved company, his wife allowed him to come downstairs from his sickroom and receive his friends from 5 to 7 p.m. She cautioned them to stay only 15 minutes, since too much conversation tired him.

"He just likes to sit there and be with his friends," she explained. "He wants to hear the latest gossip. Sometimes he doesn't even feel like entering into the conversation. But he likes to have the people there."

Five days before he died of cancer, I paid a call at the Bogart cocktail hour. David Niven, still in makeup from a TV Western, arrived at the same time. Mrs. Bogart was in front of the sedate Holmby Hills manse, showing her Mercedes Benz to prospective buyers.

We found Bogart seated in the den next to a roaring fire. He looked better than I expected. He was thin, but he had always been fairly gaunt. He seemed alert and interested, though he didn't speak a great deal. When he did talk, his voice was softer, but still had the old Bogart crackle.

Niven gave him a letter from Douglas Fairbanks Jr. which he read with interest. We engaged in small talk and greeted 4-year-old Leslie, a doll in long pants and an Audrey Hepburn haircut.

Only once did Bogart appear to be his oldtime irritable self. That was when I mentioned about a news story a week before that had pictured him near death.

"Once a blankety newspaperman, always a blankety newspaperman!" he snapped, and he bawled me out for attempting anything that appeared to be an interview.

On more pleasant subjects, he said he had been reading "Compulsion," the novel about the Leopold-Loeb murder case and found it "a very good job." I mentioned that it was the book Marie McDonald was reportedly reading before the alleged kidnapping.

This piqued his interest and he wanted to know all about the McDonald affair. He offered his own theory of the case, drawn from his long experience in crime pictures.

Otherwise, it was like many a conversation in the Bogart den, a large, comfortable place filled with photos and mementoes of the Bogarts and their friends. The only difference: he was drinking martinis instead of his usual scotch-and-water; a wheelchair nearby gave testimony to his illness.

Bogart was reluctant to let his visitors go, but his wife insisted. Outside, she explained his blow-up: "He just doesn't like to discuss his illness. It bores him. He never was ill before in his life, and he can't get used to being cooped up in this house. That's why seeing his friends is such a tonic."

She said he was getting better all the time, "but it's slow." Nothing she said indicated the fight was hopeless, nor did he indicate he expected anything but recovery. Friends have told me there existed between the pair an unspoken hope that Bogie would beat the rap. To Hollywood's loss, he couldn't.

Tomorrow: Bogart and Bacall, an unusual love story.

Cold Spell Holds Fast

By The Associated Press
A mid-January cold spell held fast over most of the eastern half of the nation today and no immediate relief was indicated.

Although icy air extended from east of the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast, the main push of arctic blasts during the night was from New England southwestward to Texas.

Temperatures in the area were generally 10 to 20 degrees lower than yesterday morning. But the coldest spots were in northern New England and New York state, with readings expected to range from 20 to 40 degrees below zero.

Temperatures remained below freezing all day yesterday over most of the northern two-thirds of the vast cold belt and were below zero from northern Michigan to northern New England.

Shivers, Longest In Office, Defied Political Traditions

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers retired to private life today after serving longer as governor and coldly defying more political traditions than any other chief executive in Texas history.

He has held a continuous term of seven years, six months and seven days. During that time he lost only one major political battle, never ducked a fight, and took calculated political risks never before dared by a Texas governor.

Shivers' appointees dominate virtually every one of the 140 active major and minor state administrative agencies. He leaves office under threat of a Senate revolt against last-minute appointees of officers who will serve under Price Daniel's administration.

Thus Shivers will continue for several years to wield a considerable portion of the vast political power that has crept into his hands since he succeeded Beauford Jester as governor in July, 1949. He was lieutenant governor when a heart attack killed Jester.

Two presidential election years in a row Shivers smashed Democratic party tradition by supporting Republican Dwight Eisenhower. In this he displayed a calm political astuteness that kept him on top of the heap in a 22-year public career.

His only major political setback was in May 1956. Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn defeated Shivers then in a bludgeoning battle for Democratic convention control. The two national leaders thereby dominated the Texas delegation to the Chicago convention.

But the politically-tough and resilient Shivers bounced back in November to whip the Johnson-Rayburn team, leading conservative Democrats who helped the GOP win Texas' electoral vote for Eisenhower.

It was the second successive time in Texas' political history that a Democratic governor was the main factor in such an upset. Both times Shivers flaunted the Solid South tradition — and both times he gave away with it over the protesting howls of his opponents.

Shivers, 49, tall, dark and handsome, has successfully acted motion picture bit parts while serving as governor. Virile and ener-

Marilyn Mum On Motherhood

OCHO RIOS, Jamaica (UP)—Marilyn Monroe is having "tummy upsets," but she won't say yes or no to rumors she is pregnant. The actress and her playboy husband Arthur Miller have been vacationing at Mootpoint, a seaside villa on Jamaica's north coast.

Over coffee, she refused to comment on speculation around the island that she is expecting a baby. But she did say, with a smile: "I don't plan any films for a while."

She has canceled several social engagements here because of "tummy upsets." The Millers are returning to New York Thursday after two weeks in Jamaica. Marilyn has said her only plans are "to be Mrs. Miller and to have a large family."

"This is really our honeymoon," Marilyn said. "When we were married last summer, we both went right to work in England — Arthur on his play and I on a movie."

Marilyn said she will start looking for a country house in Connecticut to buy when she returns to New York.

getic, his only sign of advancing years is a receding hair line. Shivers in private life is a devoted husband and the father of four. In 1937 he married Marialice Shary, heiress to a vast Rio Grande Valley fortune. The family operates the farflung Shary farm and commercial enterprises.

Shivers once declined to run for the U.S. Senate, saying he and Mrs. Shivers preferred to rear their children in Texas. Recently they bought the colonial mansion at Austin once occupied by Gov. E. M. Pease, as a family home.

They also have an elaborate country home at Woodville in the East Texas, piney woods, and spend some time at the palatial Shary Mansion near Mission.

Shivers' friends say the secret of his political power has been an intuitive insight to the thinking of a majority of the electorate—even though the margin be close. Coupled with this is a personal charm and magnetism, plus the ability to plan and organize and enlist the best available brains as his closest aides.

As governor and political chief, he has maintained a big staff of administrative assistants including experts in finance, public relations and the mechanics of government.

His enemies call Shivers cold-blooded and ruthless politically. They have accused him of using his charm chiefly to maintain his power, then discarding one-time friends with a shrug when they are no longer useful or when they have crossed him.

Shivers was born Oct. 5, 1907 at Lufkin. He worked his way through the University of Texas on a variety of jobs, including one stretch as a shoe salesman.

He won both the A.B. and L.L.B. degrees.

In November, 1934, he was elected to the state Senate from Port Arthur, and became the youngest man ever to hold the office. In 1943-45 he served with the Allied military government in England, North Africa, Italy, France and Germany.

Shivers was elected lieutenant governor in 1946 and won a second term. He advanced to the governorship when Jester died early in his second term.

Shivers was elected governor in 1950, 1952 and 1954. He was the first Texan to go after and win three elective terms.

In his belt from the national party in 1952 to support Eisenhower, Shivers insisted he remained a Democrat and that Eisenhower was a better Democrat than Adlai Stevenson. He made the same arguments in 1956, saying leftwing radicals dominated the national Democratic organization. Shivers called his unyielding fight against the national leadership a crusade for return of the party to basic state's rights principles.

His opponents called him a traitor to the party.

As governor, Shivers made a record of expanding state services in such fields as mental hospitals, education, prison reform and other humanitarian services.

His administration was blamed in its last three years by opponents for the veteran's land and insurance scandals that shocked the state and nation but Shivers contended it was the system and not his administration that was to blame. He pushed reform measures in both veteran's aid and insurance in his final term.

Uncle Ray: Vast Caribou Herds Move Across Plains

By RAMON COFFMAN

There are two main kinds of caribou in North America, but one kind — the Barren Ground caribou — outnumber the other at least 100 to one.

The numerous kind obtained their name because they spend most of their time on the Barren Grounds of Canada.

The Barren Grounds have little appeal to white people. To Eskimos, on the other hand, they are favored because of the caribou. These animals supply them with meat, and the hide (with fur left on) provides material for warm clothing.

The Barren Grounds extend (in a general way) from the northern half of the western side of Hudson Bay to Great Slave Lake and Great Bear Lake.

There are plains in much of the area, but here and there are woodlands with low trees. So-called "reindeer moss" is common.

Gathering in huge herds, caribou make their way southward in autumn and northward in spring. In their southward migration most of them stop when they reach the northern range of the woodland caribou.

Several accounts have been given about the vast herds of these caribou. Perhaps the most striking of them came from the pen of Warburton Pike, who wrote in part: "From the ridge we had a splendid view of the migration. All the south side of McKay Lake was alive with moving beasts . . . the ice seemed to be dotted all over with black islands, and still away on the north shore, with the aid of glasses, we could see them coming like regiments on the march."

The passage of those caribou took six days. Pike described it as the "most remarkable thing" he had ever seen while exploring regions containing big game.

Griffin Goes Into Seminary

DALLAS (UP)—Novelist John Howard Griffin, whose sight suddenly returned last week after he had been blind 10 years, has entered Mount Carmel Seminary here, he told friends yesterday.

Griffin, 38, said he decided to enter the seminary when his doctors told him to follow his amazing recovery of his vision with a period of quiet and total withdrawal from his usual activities.

He said his experience had plunged him into a state of deep shock. He is wearing "eyeglasses" corrective glasses to help his long unused eye muscles regain coordination.

Griffin's first novel, "The Devil Rides Outside," was based on his experiences in Franciscan and Dominican monasteries in France where he studied medieval music.

The young novelist, who lives on a farm at Mansfield, Tex., went totally blind in 1946 after a World War II injury.

Kidnap Case Has Chief In Rhetoric Spin

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Marie McDonald case has the chief of police asking rhetorical questions. Chief William H. Parker said yesterday that 10 days' investigation of Miss McDonald's story of being kidnaped from her Encino home has produced "absolutely negative results."

And, he added—rhetorically—"Where do we go from here?"

Like most such questions, it was unanswered. Ray Pinker, chief of the police crime laboratory, could not help, said Parker.

"No footprints were found near the bedroom window through which Marie said her kidnapers accosted her," Parker said. Although she told of scratching her abductors, scrapings from under her fingernails showed no trace of skin or blood, he said.

He said that an exhaustive examination of the McDonald home by Pinker disclosed no physical evidence at the scene. The chief added:

"We have checked out every bit of information in the case and have failed to find any evidence whatever which would substantiate or disprove Miss McDonald's story."

The blonde actress yesterday posted a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men she said abducted her from her home Jan. 3.

When Parker suggested that he might take Miss McDonald up on her previous offer of a lie detector test, her attorney Jerry Giesler replied that it was out of the question. Said Giesler:

"Anything the prosecution does that reflects upon its own witnesses makes it nearly impossible to get a conviction, and what we want is a conviction."

Urges Withdrawal Of Units In Reich

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) urged the Eisenhower administration today to expand its new disarmament proposals to include a negotiated withdrawal of both American and Soviet troops from Germany.

Humphrey, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations, voiced approval of a five-point disarmament program presented to the U.N. yesterday by the chief U.S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.

But the Minnesota senator said in an interview he regrets the proposals do not indicate some flexibility relating to Central Europe and Germany.

"I think we should restudy our position in Western Germany with the objective of withdrawing our troops if the Soviets will agree to pull back their troops from East Germany and Poland," Humphrey said.

"We are going to have to face up to the possibility that a German government—no necessary ally the present one headed by Chancellor Adenauer—may proceed on its own initiative to try to negotiate for unification with East Germany."

"In such a situation we could find ourselves in the position of being asked to get out of West Germany. It would be much better if we now could begin to weigh the assets and liabilities of a phased withdrawal of American and Soviet forces from the area."

In its five-point program, the administration proposed, among other things, that the armed forces of the United States and Soviet Russia be limited to 2½ million men each and those of Britain and France to 750,000 each, subject to a workable inspection system.

The administration also proposed a limitation, and later a ban, on nuclear test explosions if agreement could be reached that all fissionable materials to be produced in the future be used or stockpiled under international supervision for nonweapons purposes.

Pending such an agreement, the United States said it would be willing to negotiate a system for advance notice and limited international observation of such tests.

Sen. Anderson (D-NM), vice chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said in a separate interview that in his opinion "it is desirable to limit nuclear test explosions and later abandon them."

But he said he doesn't see how there could be any effective agreement for future production of fissionable materials to be stockpiled exclusively for nonweapons purposes.

"It's like saying that all airplanes shall be built for peaceful use when it wouldn't take long to arm them for use in war," he said.

Other proposals called for international control of the testing of space missiles, including earth satellites and space platforms, as well as for progressive installation of an international inspection and control system to guard against surprise attacks.

Ike Business-Labor Plea On Prices On Rough Road

WASHINGTON (AP)—If history repeats itself, President Eisenhower probably won't get very far with his appeal to labor and business for "self-discipline" in holding down wages and prices.

In his State of the Union speech to Congress last Thursday, Eisenhower said the nation's economic prosperity is at an "unprecedented peak." But he urged business and organized labor to "think well on their responsibility to the American people" and avoid price and wage boosts that could increase inflationary pressures.

A similar appeal was made in July 1950 during the Korean War by former President Truman in a message to Congress.

Truman's appeal failed to halt inflation. A few months later the government imposed wage and price controls.

The situation now is somewhat different. There is no shooting war involving this country. But there is a crisis in the Middle East. The Eisenhower administration is seeking standby authority to use troops to block any open Communist aggression there. And living costs are moving up again.

Shivers, Daniel Share Cool Feeling As Reins Pass Over

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Allan Shivers moved out and Price Daniel moved in today as governor of Texas, swearing to defend both the state and federal constitutions which both have said some times conflict.

Daniel takes the oath of office shortly after noon, ending Shivers' seven-year reign, longest in the history of the state.

Shivers, 49, is retiring from politics, for the time at least, to manage his far-flung business enterprises.

Daniel, 47, is an ardent state's righter. He has been in frequent conflict with the federal government on many issues which he considers in violation of state's rights. He went to the U.S. Senate to battle for a return to Texas of its oil-rich offshore lands. He leaves the office with two years to go on his original term.

The question of his successor has been a point of dispute between the two men and has national significance because of the shaky 49-47 Democratic majority in the Senate.

Both Shivers and Daniel bolted the Democratic party in 1952 to support Eisenhower when the "tidelands" was an issue. Daniel returned to the party fold in 1956 but Shivers actively campaigned for the GOP ticket.

Relations between Shivers and Daniel have been strained for some time over the Senate situation.

So cool was the feeling between them that they were scarcely on speaking terms. At a pre-inaugural reception yesterday given by the State Bar, they were in the same building but did not meet for a handshaking.

Daniel is a small town lawyer and publisher who came into public life for the first time as a member of the House in the Texas Legislature in 1939. He became speaker, served in the Army in World War II and came home to win election as attorney general.

In that office, he spearheaded Texas' battle for the oil-rich offshore lands in the Gulf of Mexico commonly known as the tidelands. They were held by the U.S. Supreme Court to be under federal control. Daniel lost in the courts but was on the winning side later in Congress when the Texas claims were upheld.

In 1952, Daniel bolted the Democratic party in sharp disagreement with Adlai Stevenson, who would not support Texas tidelands claims.

He campaigned for Dwight D. Eisenhower that year, but returned to the party to endorse Stevenson and his fellow-senator, Estes Kefauver, last year.

He won a slim victory over Ralph Yarborough of Austin in the Democratic primary party on the party loyalty and state's rights issues. Yesterday the Legislature completed the formality of confirming that he won in the general election.

The lawmakers also canvassed the general election returns putting Ben Ramsey into the powerful lieutenant governor's chair for an unprecedented fourth term.

Daniel is the 40th governor and the 38th individual to hold the post. He is the 13th native Texan to become governor.

Good Government Bills Introduced

AUSTIN (AP)—Two of the 16 good government bills proposed by the Texas Press Assn. were introduced in the Legislature yesterday.

One would assure reporters the right to attend and report precinct, county and state political conventions.

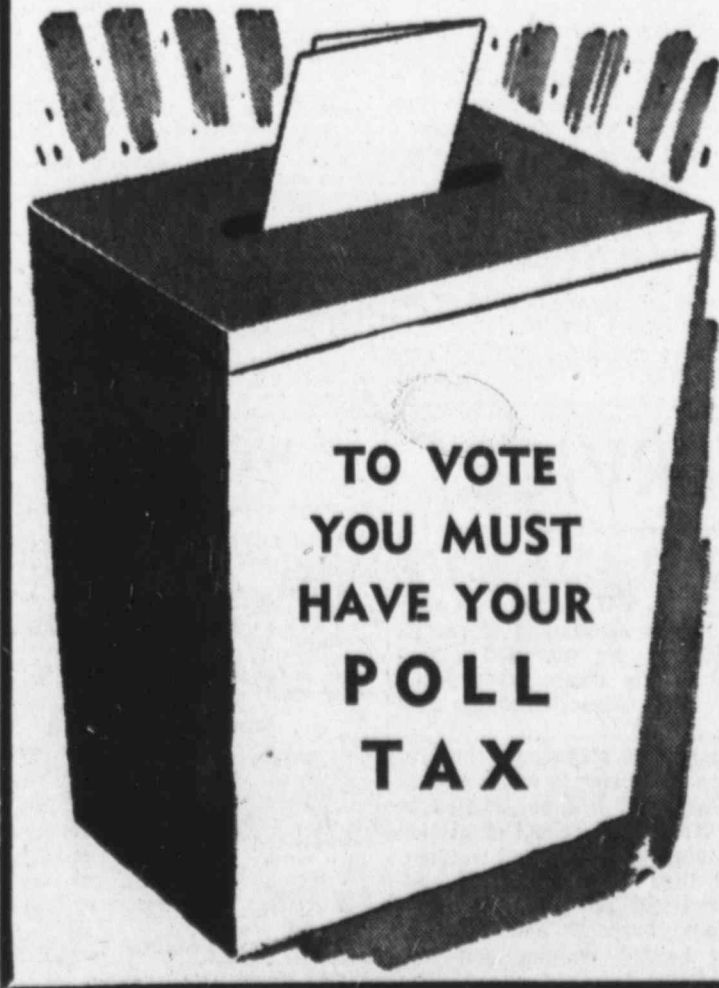

The sponsor of both bills, Rep. Howard Green of Fort Worth, said present law specifies only that qualified voters shall be permitted at the conventions.

The other bill provides for removal of any official who refuses to testify on grounds of self-incrimination before any court or authorized governmental agency.

Pride of the Neighborhood!

It is a happy occasion indeed when a new Cadillac first appears in the driveway of its happy owner.

As you would expect, it signals the most joyful of family celebrations—and occasions the heartfelt congratulations of friends and acquaintances.

But you might be surprised, we think, to learn of the widespread rejoicing which the arrival of a new Cadillac frequently inspires.

In fact, the car invariably becomes a source of genuine pride and satisfaction throughout the entire neighborhood in which it resides.

The neighborhood understandably delights in having a beautiful new Cadillac to grace its streets . . . and takes great pleasure in knowing that one of its own has been able to realize the dream that lives in the hearts of so many.

And we think you might also be surprised to learn that this happy event is currently taking place in a great many neighborhoods that have never before laid claim to a Cadillac car.

For there is an ever-growing awareness that Cadillac—with all its incomparable motoring virtues—is one of the soundest and wisest purchases a motorist can make.

From a standpoint of purchase price, maintenance, operation and resale value, the car represents a truly extraordinary investment.

Surely, in view of this, you should consider a Cadillac this year.

We will be happy to put you behind the wheel at any time for a personal demonstration.

Water Facilities Nearly Completed

Two city construction projects are less than a week from completion, Roy Hester, water production superintendent, said today.

The projects are the new water reservoir and the renovation of the filter plant. Contractor Clay Carey of Brownwood has the latter job, and Clyde Yarbrough of Odessa built the water tank.

Only minor items remain on both projects, Hester said. Two days of hard work would finish the million-gallon water reservoir in the Edwards Heights Addition and a slightly more is needed at the filter plant, he added.

Carey enlarged the processing capacity of the filter plant by a third. With the aid of a 60-day extension, Carey had until next Sunday to complete the work.

The city is working on the dam at Powell Lake, and H. W. Whitney, city manager, said today the work

Russians Re-Open Lenin-Stalin Tomb

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government today reopened its top sightseeing attraction—the Lenin-Stalin Tomb in Red Square.

No discernible change had been made in the interior of the red granite structure since it was closed at the end of November for "renovation."

The bodies of Lenin and Stalin still lay in glass coffins side by side, bathed by a soft red light. Closing of the tomb aroused speculation that the Soviet government planned to remove Stalin's body as another step in the de-Stalinization process. But when the temporary covering over the front of the building was removed late in December, the inscription Lenin-Stalin was again there in new, raised granite letters.

'Mad Bomber' Writes Again

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Journal-American said today it had received a new letter "positively identified as having been sent by the man commonly referred to as New York's 'mad bomber.'"

The Journal-American reproduced parts of the letter, signed "F. P." and hand printed in block letters.

In the letter the man said he is extending the "truth" on the planting of bombs announced in his first letter printed in the Journal-American Dec. 26. A number of persons have been injured by explosions of the home-made bombs planted in public places around town since 1940.

The letter said the man had been "totally permanently disabled" by an injury on a job at a Consolidated Edison Co. plant some 20 years ago. It also said he "did not get a single penny of compensation for a lifetime of misery and suffering."

DULLES

some information was guarded "for security reasons."

Most Republican members of the committees refrained from comment, although Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California called Dulles' testimony "helpful."

"He certainly clarified a number of questions which members of both committees have," Knowland said, adding that he expects further clarification as Dulles' testimony continues.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) told interviewers:

"I'm mainly interested in whether the program can be implemented with the military forces we now have. But, so far, we have not received any evidence of any new threat. In fact, I don't believe the threat is as great as it was a while back."

Through daylong questioning yesterday, Dulles stuck by his contention that Communist leaders "will take every risk that they dare to take in order to win the Middle East."

And he hammered away at what he said is a need for the utmost speed in granting the administration the special powers it asks to cope with the Red threat. He said, "Every day is getting that much deeper in the area."

If the Communists get control of the Middle East, he said, "they will have a hand on the throttle which will enable them to give or cut off the life-blood of Europe." He was referring to Middle East oil supplies.

Industrial Foundation Called Agency For Growth Of City

The Big Spring Industrial Foundation had its ideas for advancement before a group of civic leaders Monday and at the same time started its drive for $50,000.

Bob Hunt of Kilgore was speaker for the luncheon meeting at the Settles, attended by 76 persons, and urged the city to actively support the Foundation if the city wished to grow.

The speakers discussed their meeting for the occasion. After an introduction by Leroy Tidwell, chairman of the Foundation, Hunt spoke to the group, telling them what had happened in cities in East Texas, both those that grew, and those that dwindled.

Hunt said it would take "sales personality" to sell the city to manufacturers and prospective industry.

"Cities are like people in this respect," he told the group. "If you as a business man have an inviting product to sell to a person and have what he wants — now — he will buy from you. Otherwise, he will go to your competitor, who does."

"The same is true with cities. If you can have a package deal to lay before them, they will talk business with you. By a package deal, I mean adequate water, electricity, transportation connections, natural gas, and other facilities necessary to operate a business."

Hunt cited an example of a firm whose officials passed through Tyler on its way to study a business site at Corsicana. They asked a policeman for directions and asked to see the rose fields. As a result of the courtesy of the policeman, who showed them what they wanted, and the city of Tyler having an Industrial Foundation fund, the business settled in Tyler.

"This is just one example of what a city's sales personality can do when working through its citizens," he said.

The speaker used Jefferson as an example of a city that did not grow when having an opportunity. He said that Jefferson was the second largest city in the state in 1870, but now it has only 4,500 people.

He said the city had its chance to gain railway connections, but passed it up, and as a result, growth was stopped.

Conversely, however, he mentioned Tyler, a city of 22,000 population in 1948. Shortly before that, the city raised $200,000 for a foundation. Now the city is classed as the 50,000 population bracket, and it is expected to double that by 1968.

Ike Makes Public Exchange Of Notes With Macmillan

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—President Eisenhower today made public an exchange of messages with Great Britain's new Prime Minister—an exchange pledging continued personal friendship and obviously looking to the bolstering of Anglo-American unity.

The exchange with Harold Macmillan, who last week succeeded Anthony Eden as chief of Britain's government, was put out in Tucson shortly before the President left on a further tour of drought damaged areas of the Southwest.

In his message Eisenhower said: "I feel confident that you will bring to your new task the same vision, determination and sympathetic understanding you have shown in the past. For myself and the people of the United States, let me wish you every success in carrying out the great responsibilities which now devolve upon you as prime minister."

Eisenhower's note was addressed to "Dear Harold," Macmillan's salutation in reply was to "My Dear Friend."

The Prime Minister replied: "You know how much importance I attach to the friendship between the peoples of Britain and the United States, not least because of my own personal links

The department plans to check speeds with the instrument each day.

Custodians Not In On Pay Hike

Check of action taken by the Howard County Commissioners on Tuesday afternoon relative to pay schedules for employees adopted for 1957 indicates that the custodians at the courthouse were not included in any pay increases granted.

"Apparently, custodians pay remains as it was in 1956."

Superintendents in several offices, including those of the county attorney, county judge and county agent, are classified as deputies third class. Under this classification they will be paid $15 a month more this year than last.

Hungarian Violinist Spurns Invitation

LOS ANGELES (U-P) — Pained violinist Joseph Szigeti says that he is going to ignore an invitation to give concerts in Communist Hungary.

"It's incredible to think that they are giving concerts while they are killing people in the streets," said Szigeti, a native of Hungary but now a naturalized citizen. He left there in 1941.

He said his Italian manager had relayed an invitation to go to Budapest for concerts.

Public Confidence Sought By Daniel

AUSTIN (U-P) — The man who said he would rather be governor of Texas than President of the United States became the state's 38th chief executive today.

At 8:30 today is the search for Price Daniel. Further honors would be anticlimactic for the small town lawyer who won a seat in the Senate and gave it up for the governor's chair.

Behind the glitter of inaugural day, Daniel may have a moment to ponder his problems. He has them.

Control of the various state commissions and departments will rest in the hands of men appointed by Gov. Allan Shivers. If all Shivers appointments are approved, this domination will continue almost to the end of Daniel's second term, if re-elected.

Daniel, a handsome, soft-spoken, methodical worker, has gone about his tasks cautiously.

"No one has the complete confidence of the public when he takes office. The important thing is to earn it. I hope to do just that."

To get the views of the legislature and to pinpoint his program, Daniel tirelessly talked hours with the lawmakers last month.

Usually chewing an unlit cigar, Daniel makes his points carefully and bluntly. He isn't noted for a ready wit or sharp tongue but his methodical and conscientious manner grinds out the work.

As attorney general from 1947-52, Daniel's administration handled the largest number of suit-trust suits ever filed in Texas. He disposed of more than 3,000 suits and made more than 2,300 legal opinions. Earlier he had three terms in the Texas House of Representatives, including one term as speaker.

In 1952, when he was elected senator, Daniel gained stature as a debater fighter for the Texas sidebards. His tenacity paid off in victory.

This year he decided to run for governor while still holding his Senate seat. That probably cost him votes and his 3,000-plus margin in the runoff primary added

Ike Did Plenty Of Looking, Listening

SAN ANGELO (U-P) — President Eisenhower got a look at this withered and dusty West Texas drought country yesterday and expressed his admiration for the gallant fight its people are making against the worst drought in 100 years.

But still unanswered is the question: What to do?

The President offered no solutions here, but did plenty of listening and looking.

D. W. Williams, vice chancellor for agriculture of the Texas A&M system who accompanied the President on his drought tour, however, asserted his belief Eisenhower recognizes the need of both immediate and long term programs.

"He recognizes that something has to be done, but that everybody should be doing a lot of thinking about the long range plan," said Williams.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson, who also accompanied the President, was asked what he thought would relieve the dry pastures. "Time and moisture," he replied.

Secretary of Interior Seaton declined comment when asked for an opinion of the Three Rivers Dam project, proposed as a long range drought project in this area. The proposal is now before Congress.

Seaton did say, "There's no arguing you need something like it."

However, Seaton's Interior Department prepared a booklet for the President's tour detailing its long range water plans which can help solve drought problems. Both the Three Rivers Dam and the Gulf Basins project in Texas were included.

The Department of Interior booklet points out that most of the drought assistance its agencies can provide in Texas is of a long-range variety. Their plans involve utilization and storage of surplus waters from some areas of the state for movement to areas of shortages.

Called the Gulf Basins project, it is the master plan of which the proposed Three Rivers Dam project is a part.

The plan involves the Sabine, Neches, San Jacinto, Colorado, Trinity, Brazos, Guadalupe and Nueces rivers.

The Bureau of Reclamation launched an investigation on the water problem and came up with a report in 1952.

Highlights of the plan:

1. Control of Gulf Basin rivers to develop their full water yield. Preliminary studies indicate this will require some 16 new reservoirs.
2. An inter-basin canal along the Gulf coastal plain to transport surplus water from East Texas rivers to drought stricken areas in South Texas. It would be some 430 miles long.
3. Facilities to supply about 1,500,000 acres of irrigated land to partially offset acreage which eventually will be lost through depletion of ground water sources.

4. Provision of supplemental irrigation water now needed for irrigated areas.

5. Development of multiple-purpose irrigation, municipal water, and flood control projects on the upper reaches of the basin streams. The San Angelo project would be one of this nature.

The Three Rivers Dam project not only provide an important new water supply for urban and industrial expansion near San Angelo, it also would support irrigation of 10,000 acres in and near the region toured by car yesterday.

The dam also would make a major contribution to recreation, fish and wildlife, and flood control.

Serious flash floods at sporadic intervals have been a major concern to the city.

Before the turn of the century, San Angelo's predecessor, Ben Ficklin, Texas, was wiped out by such a summer flash flood on the South Concho River.

Present city reservoirs in recent years have lost months in water supplies because of their limited capacities.

The Three Rivers Dam would span the Middle and South Concho rivers southwest of the city. The structure would capture the flows of the two rivers and Spring Creek and would create a reservoir of 310,000 acre feet capacity.

The cost is figured at about $20,000,000 to be repaid by taxing the various municipal, irrigations and other users.

Doctor Denies Quints Report

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (U-P) — A Mississippi physician has denied he told a housewife that she would give birth to quintuplets.

Mrs. C. Lester Blaylock of Drew, Miss., was quoted by the Memphis Press-Scimitar in a copyrighted story yesterday as saying her doctor predicted she would have quintuplets, possibly this week.

But Dr. J. F. Lucas of Greenwood, Miss., said:

"I regret very much the unauthorized use of my name in sensational newspaper stories with reference to an alleged expected multiple birth."

"As a doctor, I do not feel free to discuss the matter except to say that I have not made any prediction about any multiple birth."

Mrs. Blaylock, 33, reportedly left her home yesterday for Baptist Hospital here, accompanied by her husband, a 46-year-old paper mill employee. She couldn't be reached for comment.

The hospital said it knew nothing of the case and said it would have to make advance and complicated arrangements if quintuplets were expected.

Senator Dropped From Suit Listing

LOS ANGELES (U-P) — Former U.S. Sen. Harry P. Cain has been eliminated from a complaint which had named him as one of 19 co-respondents in a divorce trial.

The court ruled yesterday that accusations charging Cain and two California men with misconduct with Mrs. Alice Eleanor Madden, 45, were too remote as to time or not specific enough for consideration in the trial.

Dr. Earl E. Madden, 58, a Redondo Beach, Calif., physician, had charged his wife with cruelty and misconduct with 19 men.

Red Skelton In Real Life Role In His Show Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (U-P) — Red Skelton, strengthened by 20,000 letters and telegrams, tonight plays a real-life version of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

His television program over CBS-TV will be his first live show since learning that his son Richard, 9, is critically ill with leukemia. Doctors have said the boy's life expectancy is five months to a year.

A previously filmed show was substituted last week, when the comedian was too overcome with grief to go on.

Red, visibly overwhelmed by the kindness of fans who had expressed sorrow, said he will personally answer every communication.

"People are wonderful," he said at his first rehearsal yesterday. "I can't thank them enough for all they have done to comfort Richard's mother and me."

"Faith in God is our only hope. At first we felt useless — just another mother and father asking for help and then came the kindness of friends."

The comedian, near collapse for a week after the disclosure of the blood cell malady, said he and his wife Georgia are past the initial shock.

The boy has returned home from UCLA Medical Center, and knows he is seriously ill with leukemia, Skelton said. When a television news commentator first broke the story, one of the listeners was young Richard.

"Perhaps it is better that he does know," said Red. "Now he will cooperate better with the doctors. We are not giving up hope. All of us, including Richard, are praying hard. He's a good boy."

Doctor Denies Quints Report

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (U-P) — A Mississippi physician has denied he told a housewife that she would give birth to quintuplets.

Mrs. C. Lester Blaylock of Drew, Miss., was quoted by the Memphis Press-Scimitar in a copyrighted story yesterday as saying her doctor predicted she would have quintuplets, possibly this week.

But Dr. J. F. Lucas of Greenwood, Miss., said:

"I regret very much the unauthorized use of my name in sensational newspaper stories with reference to an alleged expected multiple birth."

"As a doctor, I do not feel free to discuss the matter except to say that I have not made any prediction about any multiple birth."

Mrs. Blaylock, 33, reportedly left her home yesterday for Baptist Hospital here, accompanied by her husband, a 46-year-old paper mill employee. She couldn't be reached for comment.

The hospital said it knew nothing of the case and said it would have to make advance and complicated arrangements if quintuplets were expected.

Sports dialogue:
FRANK ALLEN, athletic director at Indiana University:
"We're out to win more games. The school—the administration — and the people are for it. We can afford to do what it takes to build up the team and we expect to do it. We'd like to be more of a competitor than we have been the past few years. We're on our way. This is a great opportunity for a man to step into our football job. We can only go up."

Chancellor ROBERT HOUSE, University of North Carolina:
"We stick in the matter of recruiting athletes. We are pro-stituting our youth. I'm not talking about one school, but the situation throughout the nation."

JOHN BRODIE, Stanford's star quarterback, answering to accusa-tions that he tipped off plays by his feet were placed—right foot forward meant a pass, feet parallel meant a run:
"I knew it, but I didn't figure any other team knew it until just before the half ended in the UCLA game in November. Every guy on the Bruin team was staring at my feet as if I'd left my shoes at home. Backs were pushing guards out of the way to crowd up for a better look. Then I could hear them talking among themselves, yelling, 'stagger!' or 'even!' after they'd had a look."

BOB BODENHAMER, applicant for the Big Spring High School head coaching job:

"I once heard the regard for athletics expressed this way: A man to whom I was talking pointed to the front page of a news-paper and said, 'You read here largely of man's failures. Now, turn to the sports pages and you read mainly of a boy's successes. It is as simple as that.'"

TONY HINKLE, Butler basketball coach:
"Whenever I hear some player is a 'year away,' I'm inclined to doubt if he'll ever make it. In most cases that year stretches into four years awfully fast."

BERT BELL, National Football League commissioner, on why TV viewers are not shown injured players or fights on the field during NFL games:

"Camera men are instructed to follow the ball and take a play to the finish. That's football. Most injuries are trivial but on TV any injury may look grave at first sight. And we are selling our game just as the sponsor is selling his product. That's the way we instruct the TV people. We are selling football—not fights."

RED GRANGE, the football great:
"I think college football may be getting too scientific. What I mean is, this blackboard business is being carried too far. It's getting so a coach can scare himself to death on the blackboard. He draws a play and says, 'Guess I'll try this.' Then he says, 'But if I do the other guy will do that. Then I'll have to do this. Then he'll do that.' Pretty soon a coach goes nuts drawing moves and counter-moves. Seems to me it's about time they settled down to the business of trying to outplay their opponents on the field instead of trying to outdraw them on the blackboard."

AN OLD-TIME BASEBALL FAN in Louisville, on the reason the game is having its troubles here:
"Baseball began to die here, when they called the cops on us for betting between ourselves above the bas." I never went back."

HORACE STONEHAM, owner of the New York Giants, when told that Jackie Robinson had decided against playing for his club:
"This cost us the pennant."

Big Jan Nears Scoring Mark

Jan Loudermilk has moved to within 51 points of Charles Clark's all-time Big Spring High School basketball scoring record and has seven games in which to try for the mark.

The big junior has a total of 388 points in 17 games for a game average of 22.8 points. He would have to average only 7.3 points a game from here on in to shatter Clark's record, which has stood for three years.

Three other Steers — Mike Musgrove, Jesse McCreath and Donald Lovelady — are over the 100 mark in scoring. Musgrove is second in the scoring derby with 216 points while McCreath has 191 and Lovelady 148.

The Steers don't return to ac-tion until Friday night, at which time they host Odessa.

Odessa Slates Cage Tourney

ODESSA (SC) — The Odessa Commercial Basketball League, sponsored by the City-County Park Recreation Department, will hold its second annual invitational basketball tournament Jan. 28 through Feb. 1. The tournament will be open to all commercial league teams throughout the Permian Basin who enter before the dead-line of Jan. 21.

Last year's tournament was won by Bill Hale Motor Company of Odessa with International Securities of San Angelo taking second place. This year's tournament play should be of exceptionally high caliber, as many teams from through-out the area report the presence of a great number of college stars on their rosters.

The tournament will be a double elimination type with all teams having a chance to take top hon-ors until they have lost two games. Entrance fee will be $20 per team. Complete information may be secured from the Ector County-City of Odessa Park and Recreation Dept., at 801 N. Vine St., in Odes-sa, or by calling FE 7-7307.

Rugged Rams Face Hawks

San Angelo College, a team fast becoming recognized as one of the truly great junior college quints in Texas, descends upon Big Spring tonight to do battle with the HCJC Jayhawks.

Game time is 8 o'clock. There'll be a B team contest, starting at 6 p.m.

Both teams have great records. San Angelo has 12 wins in 13 starts while HCJC has won 12 of 14.

San Angelo's only reversal has come at the hands of the powerful Texas Tech freshmen. Earlier in the season, the Rams walloped the Hawks, 94-75, in San Angelo.

Outside of the San Angelo defeat, the Hawks have lost only to Amarillo. Last week, the HCJC team wrapped up their third straight Temple Tournament championship, defeating Odessa's Wranglers in the final game.

Coach Harold Davis of the Big Spring club said he was very proud of his team in that one, adding it never looked better on de-fense. Bobby Wardell and Charles Clark of the Big Spring team in-terrupted the all-tournament team in Temple.

The Rams bring a smooth, talent-heavy ball club to town, featuring Jay Hawley of Austin, most valu-able player in the recent Howard College tournament here.

Frank Trevino, also named to the all-tournament team here, Larue Robinson, Milton Kerbel, Bill Jiles, Phil Addison and Lester North are other San Angelo stand-outs.

Trevino leads the Rams in scor-ing with 189 points, followed by Hawley, with 173.

Coach Davis is due to start a lineup composed of Clark and Stan Williams up front, Wardell at cen-ter and Al Kloven and Mike Powell in the back courts.

The Hawks experienced their coldest night of the year in the previous game with San Angelo, falling behind from the start. The Rams led all the way and coasted in.

In the game against the Tech freshmen, San Angelo led for a half but the Picadors won the game with some torrid second half shooting.

The Rams are overwhelming fa-vorites to win the Pioneer Con-ference championship.

Is Jim Krebs All-American?

DALLAS (AP) — An All-America boom for Jim Krebs gathers mo-mentum as the tall young man from Missouri leads Southern Methodist spurring toward a third straight South-west Conference basketball championship.

The Southwest hadn't had much to talk about in an All-America way until Krebs reached basket-ball maturity, solved all the prob-lems thrown his way by the op-position and did what Coach Doc Hayes figured he could do when he finally got a big man on his basketball team.

"We taught him to do what we have been trying to stop from the big boys for years," Hayes said. "That's why we have been win-ning."

Krebs, 6-8, does everything well. Hayes declares.

"He is as fine an all-around bas-ketball player at center as I have seen," the coach said. "I won't say he's as good as Bill Russell but I will say he could have played center on the San Fran-cisco University team last year and they'd have won just as they did with Russell."

For the record, Krebs met Rus-sell in the NCAA semifinals last winter and scored 24 points while Russell had 17. "Krebs is a bet-ter shooter than Russell but he isn't as good on those jump crank shots and guiding into the basket and he's not as good a defensive player," Hayes added. "But he still is a fine defensive player."

Krebs hasn't met Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain of Kansas or Charlie Tyra of Louisville, some-thing that may be fixed, however, in the NCAA playoffs this year, especially Chamberlain because Kansas appears a cinch to be in the regional playoffs scheduled for Southern Methodist's new 8,000-seat Coliseum.

And SMU probably will be there if it wins its conference title, which the nationally third-ranked Mustangs should do. Right now SMU has a season record of 13-1 and is the only undefeated team in the conference race.

SMU plays the second place team, Rice (3-1), here tonight in what could be the most decisive battle of the campaign.

Krebs, who has scored 344 points in 14 games for an average of 24.6, and has averaged 12.3 rebounds per contest, holds one Southwest Conference record. He made 50 points in one game last year.

Glen Rose, coach of Arkansas, calls the giant from Webster Groves, Mo., "the best center the Southwest Conference ever had."

Buster Brannon, coach of Texas Christian, says "you can't guard him; you have to give him five shots."

Principal In Fight Probe In Trouble

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Middleweight boxer Richard Goldstein, who ac-cused boxer Art Aragon of at-tempting to bribe him in con-nection with a bout in December, was fined $100 yesterday on charges growing out of a distur-bance at Harold's Club.

Goldstein lost a bout with a bouncer and was arrested on charges of drunkenness, resisting arrest, disorderliness and assault and battery. He pleaded guilty.

Goldstein accused Aragon last Dec. 19 of attempted bribery in a bout at San Antonio that never came off. The Texas Boxing Com-mission suspended Aragon indef-initely and Goldstein for 30 days.

Hill Billies Host Sterling Quint

KNOTT (SC) — The Knott Hill Billies host Sterling City in con-ference basketball play tonight.

The girls play at 7 o'clock, the boys at 8.

The Knott girls, boasting a 10-7 won-lost record for the season, are 1-0 in conference play. They beat Garden City in their only start, 56-39.

The Knott boys will be seeking to climb back to the .500 mark in 19-13 competition. They lost to Garden City in their opener, 52-46.

Knott teams meet Gall in three non-conference games here Friday night.

Interviewed For Job

Steer Coaching List Is Narrowed To Two Names

The list of contenders for the high school coaching post was nar-rowed to two last night after trust-ees interviewed two more ap-plicants for the job.

Left in the running were Bob Bodenhamer, Lawton, Okla., High School coach, and Al Milich, Sul Ross College mentor.

Scratched from the list of six prospects going into last night's school board meeting were Joe Kerbel, Amarillo High; Bull Du-Bose, Lubbock Monterey High; and Chuck York, Brady High School.

Gene Mayfield of Littlefield ap-parently removed himself from consideration for the local pos-it-ion. He didn't respond to an in-vitation to appear before the school board for an interview last night, but officials weren't sure whether he had lost interest in the job or was unable to come here for the conference.

Final decision on the election of a coach was put off until Wed-nesday, Jan. 23. In the meantime, Supt. Floyd Parsons will investi-gate backgrounds of the two ap-plicants still under consideration and will report his findings to trustees next week.

The regular school board meet-ing, scheduled for tonight, was postponed until Jan. 23.

Kerbel was dropped from the list of prospects over the ob-jections of Trustees Robert Strip-ling after board members and Parsons had discussed the Ama-rillo coach's record at other schools and the salary which trustees thought would be re-quired to attract him to Big Spring. The officials said Ker-bel probably couldn't be employ-ed for less than $9,000 per year. Trustees have said they planned to offer approximately $7,500.

Milich last night proposed a sal-ary of $8,000. Bodenhamer said Saturday he would be interested at "approximately $7,500."

Parsons pointed out last night that either of the two could be employed at approximately the same cost to the school district, however, since Milich can qualify for some $425 more in state salary funds than can Bodenhamer.

Milich and York were the only two who appeared for interviews last night. DuBose, who had been invited, sent word that he wasn't interested in the job. Mayfield, also invited, notified authorities indirect-ly that he could not attend the board meeting.

Bodenhamer, Kerbel and Tex-Kassen of Beville were interview-ed earlier by the board.

Milich, who grew up in San An-gelo played high school football there and at Shreiner Institute where he was rated all-state, was named second-team Little All-American at Hardin-Sim-mons University where he also won all-Border Conference honors dur-ing H-SU's three undefeated sea-sons in the early 1940's and in 1946.

He started his coaching career at Roscoe High School in 1947 and his team lost only one game — to Merkel. The next year he returned to Hardin-Simmons as line coach, a post he held for four years. Milich then became coach at Arlington State College for one year, compiling a record of six wins, three losses and one tie.

From Arlington, Milich moved to Sul Ross three years ago.

Bodenhamer's 1956 team won ten of 11 starts and was considered one of the greatest teams in the his-tory of Oklahoma schoolboy foot-ball. Four of the boys won athletic scholarships at the University of Oklahoma. One of them, halfback Ronnie Hartline, was named to an All-American team recently.

His first Lawton team finished with a 3-6-1 won-lost-tied mark. Two years ago, the contingent had a 6-3-1 mark.

Lakeview's failure to connect with free throws cost it dearly as Lamesa raced to a 35-45 District 1-A basketball victory over the Rockets here Monday night.

The game left each team with a 5-4 won-lost record for the year. Lakeview has beaten Odessa, Mid-land twice and Vernon.

Lamesa is the defending cham-pion of the conference. The two teams meet again in Lamesa Fri-day night.

Big Spring pulled to within one point of the visitors at 36-37 early in the fourth period but the visitors then rallied to again pull away. Lamesa led at the end of the opening period, 17-6; at half time, 38-26; and after three periods, 42-38.

B. F. Newton paced Lakeview in scoring with 18 points. Willie Miles had 14, Charles Evans seven and Robert Allen six.

For Lamesa, Leo Hunt led with 22. Dee Phillips had 12.

Lakeview missed 15 free throws.

Ponies Climb To 3rd Spot In Nat'l Cage Rankings

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Associated Press
North Carolina, although im-pressive winner of three games, lost ground during the past week in its effort to overtake power-ful Kansas as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press college basket-ball poll.

The Kansas racked up 923 points — 95 better than second-place North Carolina. However, after the votes were counted, Iowa State snapped Kansas' 12-game unbeaten streak 29-37.

With points awarded on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, etc., North Carolina re-ceived a total of 628 for games through Jan. 12. Last week the Tar Heels trailed Kansas by 43 points.

Of the 94 first-place votes cast by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters, Kansas collected 49, North Carolina 39.

The makeup of the first 10 teams in the poll was unchanged although shaken up a bit by post-holiday developments.

Southern Methodist, which scored over Texas A&M and TCU, moved into third place ahead of Kentucky, which also won two games (Loyola and LSU). Louis-ville remained in fifth place.

UCLA advanced from eighth to sixth, Seattle from ninth to seventh, Illinois from 10th to eighth. The skidders were Vander-

Iowa Staters Stop Kansas And The Stilt

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

Wilt the Stilt?
Why, shucks, he's just another big bloke who can be stopped with no particular trouble.

Yes, he's the same Wilt Chamber-lain who had been scoring at a 33-point-a-game clip. But ask Iowa State. The Cyclones will just point to their two tussles with The Stilt and Kansas. A month ago they held him to 12 points and lost a 58-57 chiller.

Last night, they held him to 17 points and won 39-37 when Don Medaker connected with a 20-foot-er just before the game ended. Chamberlain didn't get his first basket until the start of the second half.

So Kansas, the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll, went down to its first defeat of the season after winning 12.

The result left only one team in the top 20—North Carolina — undefeated. The Tar Heels meet an old nemesis, North Carolina State, tonight.

Kansas wasn't the only casualty among the blueblooms. Ken-tucky, No. 4, and Vanderbilt, No. 10, also met with disaster. Tulane set up a brilliant zone defense to outlast Kentucky 60-60, and Mis-sissippi State edged Vanderbilt 63-62.

Only Illinois was able to uphold the prestige of the top 10. The eighth-ranked Illini crushed Indi-ana 113-91.

Michigan, Purdue and Ohio State each scored their third Big Ten victories. The Wolverines overpowered winless Wisconsin 71-62, and Purdue conquered Northwestern 77-57. League-lead-ing Ohio State beat Minnesota, 65-73 with Frank Howard scoring 31 points.

West Virginia, the Southern Con-ference leader, won its fifth straight loop game, whipping Wil-liam and Mary 81-72, with Hot Rod Hundley dropping in six foul shots in the last four minutes.

Yale coasted to an 84-53 Ivy League triumph over Brown.

Loyola of Chicago won its 10th game of the season, a 69-50 deci-sion over Washington of St. Louis; Kansas State captured its first Big Seven game, dumping Mis-souri 59-55; Pitt dalted Syracuse 76-64; Maryland halted South Car-olina 66-59 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game; and Bradley maintained its hold on the Mis-souri Valley lead by vanquishing Detroit 62-76.

SWC's Top Scorers Meet In Mustangs-Owl Game

By The Associated Press
The league's two top scorers duel Tuesday night when the Rice Owls invade Dallas to contest Southern Methodist with a chance to take a tie for the lead in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

SMU, led by big Jim Krebs, heads the pack with a 3-0 conference record and a 13-1 over-all record. Rice follows with a 3-1 conference record and a 11-5 sea-son mark.

The Owls' big gun is Temple Tucker, who currently leads the conference in individual scoring with 79 points. Krebs is right be-hind with 70 and leads in season scoring with 344 points.

Texas A&M, the league's cellar team, meets Baylor in the other conference game Tuesday night. Baylor ranks third in the con-ference race with a 2-1 record. A&M has an 0-3 mark.

In the only Monday night game, Arkansas overcame a 9-point de-ficit to edge Texas 67-66 at Fay-eteville.

Trailing 61-52 with six minutes and five seconds to go, the Razor-backs staged a rally climaxed by a long set shot by Fred Grim and a free throw by Terry Day that put them in front 67-64.

Texas came back with a pair of free throws by Kermit Decker, but Arkansas managed to hold the ball to grab the win.

The victory gave the Razor-backs a 2-2 conference record. Texas has a 1-3 mark.

Zwicker Listed For Promotion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a key figure in the 1954 Army-McCarthy row, has been recommended by President Eisenhower for promotion to major general.

Zwicker's clash with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) was one of several incidents that led to the Army-McCarthy feud. As an outgrowth of this dispute, a Senate committee investigated McCarthy's activities, and the Senate voted to "condemn" his conduct on several counts late in 1954.

When Zwicker's name was sent to the Senate yesterday, along with those of other officers proposed for promotion, McCarthy indicated he might stir up a fight. Zwicker, now attached to the 8th Army in the Far East, was commander of Camp Kilmer, N. J., in 1954 when Maj. Irving Peress, who had refused to answer McCarthy's questions about possible Communist connections, was promoted and then discharged at the time McCarthy was urging he be court-martialed.

Editors Again Name Ike As Man Of Year

Egypt's Nasser Rated First In Foreign Affairs

By DAVID L. BOWEN
Associated Press Newfeatures Writer

Dwight D. Eisenhower has won another election.

Seconding the November vote of the American electorate, radio and TV editors have named the President as Man of the Year for 1956. As was the case in the November balloting, this also was a re-election. Eisenhower has now won Man of the Year honors four times out of the past five years. Since 1952, the only year he has missed the top spot in the annual Associated Press poll was 1954, when former French Premier Mendes-France got the nod.

Undoubtedly figuring high among reasons for Eisenhower's overwhelming margin in this year's poll was the cardinal part he has played—and still is playing—in shaping United States policy in the critical Middle East. Developments in this area produced news stories the editors judged the biggest of the year.

COURAGE RECOGNIZED
In addition to Eisenhower's record of accomplishment, the vote also may be interpreted as a measure of tribute to a man who despite a heart attack and major surgery for an abdominal disorder, agreed to make the race for the presidency and another four years in what is generally recognized as the toughest job in the world.

President Gamal Abdel-Nasser of Egypt was selected by a narrow margin as the outstanding personality of 1956 in the field of foreign affairs, edging out U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. There is no moral judgment involved in this selection; it simply reflects the editors' belief that Nasser created a bigger stir in world affairs than anyone else.

LOGICAL BASIS
The selection stems logically from the editors' choice of the Middle East crisis as the biggest news story of the year, for it was Nasser's emergence as the leader of Arab nationalism, his drift into partnership with the Soviet Union and his dramatic and sudden nationalization of the Suez Canal which set the stage for the autumn eruption of violence on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean.

In science, the editors again this year installed Dr. Jonas Salk as their favorite. The University of Pittsburgh researcher who developed the vaccine providing protection against polio won a similar honor in 1954 and 1955 and tied with the late Dr. Alfred Kinsey in 1953.

Behind Salk's re-election is visible evidence—available for the first time this year—of a deep cut in the nation's number of polio victims. As the year drew to a close, the national polio toll was around 16,000 cases, less than half the average number for the last five years.

BUSINESS STANDOUT
Henry Ford II won designation as top personality in industry for 1956, an honor he also captured in 1946, 1948, 1949, 1953 and 1955. His dominance in this field apparently stems from his record as a dynamic representative of a new breed of American executives and the bold and imaginative plan of expansion he has launched at the Ford Motor Co.

In the field of American labor, the editors' picked George Meany, who led the merged AFL-CIO through its first crucial year of operations. Meany displaced Walter Reuther as labor's biggest

2 People Die In Plane Crash

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Two people died when a pilotless plane smashed into two Long Beach plants. The pilot — attempting to parachute to safety — was killed when his chute fouled.

A fourth person is in critical condition.

The plane, a Douglas Skyraider, just missed the Eugene Field Elementary School and its 330 pupils.

Killed when it struck an ironworks and book bindery yesterday were A. W. (Pat) Rafferty Jr., 43, Long Beach, and Mrs. Ethel Foust, 40, Wilmington.

First Lt. Dale O. Fortine, 26, Costa Mesa, pilot of the Marine Corps plane, was killed when his parachute "streamed" — stringing out behind him without opening.

In critical condition is Mrs. Margaret Willock, 58, Long Beach — employee of the book bindery. Two other women suffered shock and bruises.

Georgia Governor Asks For Unity In Segregation Fight

ATLANTA (AP)—Gov. Martin Griffin today asked for "complete unity" in preserving racial segregation in Georgia "no matter what any court may rule."

In his annual State of the State message, prepared for delivery before a joint session of the General Assembly, Griffin noted that it had been 2½ years since the U. S. Supreme Court banned racial segregation in public schools, and declared:

"The effect of this unconstitutional and unlawful decree has not been felt in Georgia yet."

"That fact is no mere accident."

He pledged that as long as he occupied the governor's chair "there will be no breakdown in the pattern of segregation in this state."

"We are going to protect our white and colored citizens in Georgia from mob violence, abuse and unbridled intimidation... by maintaining Georgia's sacred heritages and traditions," he said.

In reviewing achievements of his administration, Griffin said that while Georgians are sharing in an "unprecedented prosperity... unfortunately, these advancements are being threatened ruthlessly through unwarranted and unauthorized interference by the federal judiciary in the purely internal affairs of the states."

He said that "in this crisis, Georgia stands firm... our precious institutions stand free and unswerving in this perilous hour."

He also recommended a change in school financing which he said would provide funds for an across-the-board teacher pay increase of $100 a year.

He said that under his administration public improvements for which construction has been completed, approved or let to contract represent the stupendous total of $718,439,864.76 or nearly three-fourths of a billion dollars.

He emphasized that his major recommendation to the General Assembly is to "hold the line."

"There should be no new taxes levied," he declared. "Nor can we permit any reduction in the present revenue structure."
