WITH THE FOOTBALL season fast approaching on the high school and college level, already here for the World Football League and getting started in the National Football League, some people think there is plenty of football, maybe too much. The wife of a football enthusiast dropped in the other day with a clipping she had taken from some magazine which gave the background of the game. This article says that football might never have been invented had not the British hated the Danes so much.

For a long time, the Danes ruled over the English, until expelled in 1042. Later, some English laborers dug up a skull of one of the Danish soldiers. Still bitterly resentful of their recent conquerors, the workmen began kicking the skull here and there. Some nearby boys joined in and made a game of it. But the skull hurt their bare feet, so they sewed up the bladder taken from a cow, blew air into it, and kicked that, still calling it "kicking the Dane's head." The aim, eventually, was for the inhabitants of one village to kick the ball into the middle of a rival town. The game finally became so popular that it replaced archery, considered necessary for national defense, and King Henry II finally banned "kicking the bladder" or "futballe," and the ban lasted almost four full centuries.

TWO 15-YEAR-OLD kids went down to the courthouse and asked for a marriage license. They were refused because they were too young.

"OK," the teen-age boy said, "then, how about a learner's permit?"

ONCE JOHN F. KENNEDY was entertaining a group of Nobel Prize winners at a White House dinner and quipped, "I think this is the most extraordinary collection of human knowledge that has been gathered at the White House — with the possible exception of when Thomas Jefferson dined alone."

"WHY," demanded an insurance agent of a lady claimant, "did you not report the robbery at once? Surely you suspected something when you came home and found every drawer opened, with the contents scattered all over the room."

"Of course I suspected something," she replied. "I suspected my husband, as usual, had been looking for a clean shirt."

High Market Rating For Floyd County

NEW YORK, August 10 — Based upon its showing during the past year, Floyd County is given a high rating as a market in a nationwide survey of business activity, just released.

The figures show that local residents, armed with better incomes, spent more freely for goods and services than did people in most other communities.

The findings are presented in a copyrighted report, called "Survey of Buying Power," issued by Sales Management, the marketing publication. It details how much was earned and how much was spent in each section of the country.

Stronger consumer buying was the mainstay of the local area's economic strength. It enabled most retail merchants to top their 1972 records. Their sales total for the year came to more than $31,947,000, bettering the previous figure of $25,999,000.

Solely from the standpoint of population, this was more than should have been looked for. On that basis, local retail stores should have accounted for no more than .0055 percent of the national total, since that is the proportion of the country's population living in the area.

Actually, however, it went above that proportion and produced .0062 percent of the national volume.

Although individual incomes in the local area and elsewhere did not rise as fast as prices did, in many instances, overall income of the average family did outclimb the price rises, government figures show.

The answer lies in the great increase in the number of families receiving more than one paycheck, as more and more women take jobs outside the home.

The SM survey shows that Floyd County residents had net earnings, after payment of personal taxes, of $37,853,000, compared with the prior year's $33,878,000.

This was equivalent to a median income of $5,512 per household, with half of the families getting more than this and half getting less.

Just how one community compares with another, in terms of buying power and business vitality, is revealed through an "index of sales activity."

Floyd County's index is given as 113, placing it 13 percent above the average nationally.

Floydada Fire

Dept. Meets

The Floydada Fire Department met Monday night for a regular business and training session.

During the business meeting, a new constitution and by-laws were adopted. It will replace the old one adopted in 1953. In other business, the department voted to adopt a program of fireman certification. The purpose of this program is to reduce fire insurance rates for the people of the community.

The training session covered the use of two trucks, one being used as a booster for the main truck. The booster truck provides pressure to move a greater volume of water to the main truck when it is necessary to set up away from a fire plug.

FARM REVIEW

Sunflowers Profitable

An old foe may turn into a new friend for High Plains farmers according to Dr. Doug Owen, High Plains Research Foundation Agronomist for oilseed research. For years considered only an undesirable weed, the sunflower has been domesticated and developed into a highly desirable oil producing crop. Plant breeders now have developed hybrids with high seed yielding potential and high oil content. The oil is especially valuable for its excellent nutrition qualities as well as its fine flavor and good cooking characteristics. The hulls and residue left after the oil is extracted is used as cattle feed in the same manner as cottonseed hulls and meal.

The High Plains Research Foundation is in its second year of cultural studies with sunflowers sponsored by a grant-in-aid from the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill. These studies include a variety test containing twenty experimental hybrids; a fertilizer test containing seven treatments of nitrogen and phosphorus in various rates and ratios; and a date-of-planting test having four planting dates beginning in April and ending the last week of July. Each date consists of five hybrids planted under dryland and irrigated conditions.

Tests conducted last year showed that both early (April) and late (July) plantings matured before frost and made satisfactory yields even after sustaining severe hail injury. Some of the earlier plantings in 1974 received severe hail in June and recovered to produce large well-filled seed heads.

A special attachment to the combine header is necessary to minimize harvesting losses but these are available and may be purchased at reasonable costs. Losses estimated as high as 25% occurred in 1973 using a combine without the special attachment.

Two insects are economically important. The sunflower head moth is fairly easily controlled by timely application of the recommended insecticide. There is no insecticide known to be effective in controlling the carrot beetle, but damage from this insect may be limited to certain zones or areas. Large infestations of this insect can cause severe damage and loss, however, few insects have been detected in 1973-74.

Research indicates that sunflowers are drought tolerant requiring less moisture than soybeans, sorghum, and corn; and apparently requiring less fertilizer than sorghum or corn thus costing less to produce.

Yields ranging from two to three thousand pounds per acre have been obtained. "With prices at fifteen cents per pound these yield potentials make sunflowers a competitive crop for the High Plains, and the possibility of planting after wheat or hauled-out cotton may provide a valuable alternate crop for area farmers," stated Dr. Owen.

The sunflower research as well as many other research projects of interest to High Plains farmers and businessmen can be observed on the field tours from 1:30 to 5:00 on Thursday, September 12, 1974 during the 18th Annual Field Day and Open House.

SHORT GRAIN SORGHUM CROP

If conditions continue to deteriorate throughout the grain sorghum production area, the total overall production level will be near disaster, according to A.W. Anthony Jr., of Friona, Texas, president of the Grain Sorghum Producers Assn.

Anthony made the remarks during an address at the annual meeting of the U.S. Feed Grains Council this week (Aug. 7-9) in Stratton Mountain, Vermont.

Just a rough estimate at this time is that our total production will be at least 20 percent below last year's crop," Anthony said.

Bug Resistant Coming

chemicals failed to stop the epidemic.

Researchers at the TAES began intensive efforts toward developing a greenbug resistant hybrid during an infestation of greenbugs in 1968. The result of their research efforts is a yellow endosperm pollinator which is fairly resistant, while maintaining a greenbug population.

"The reason for developing a resistant hybrid, rather than an immune hybrid, is two-fold", Dr. McBee explained.

"First, if we develop a hybrid on which a greenbug cannot live, then a bio-type may result which can live on the plant. Then we would have to develop another hybrid which is resistant to the bio-type."

Miss Fortenberry, Sanders Wed Friday In Hereford

Mrs. Frank Watson

Miss Stephanie Darlene Fortenberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Fortenberry of Hereford, former Floyd County residents, became the bride of Roger Neal Sanders of Hereford in a double ring ceremony read in the Hereford Assembly of God Church Friday, August 16. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sanders of Hereford.

Rev. Homer T. Goodwin, pastor of the church, read the vows at 7:30 o'clock p.m. The wedding scene was formed with an arch entwined with greenery, flanked by a seven branched candelabra. At each side were pedestal bouquets of white gladiolas and mums. Hurricane candles marked pews for the bridal couple's mothers.

Candlelighters were David Fortenberry, Hereford, brother of the bride, and Eddie Moeller, Amarillo, nephew of the groom.

Miss Vickie Kendall of Hereford accompanied her sister, Miss Donna Kendall on the piano as she sang, "More" and "Follow Me." Mrs. Orval Galley of Hereford was accompanied on the organ by Rev. Ricky Pfeil of Amarillo as she sang, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us", as the couple knelt at the altar. Prayer was given by Rev. James D. Jones of Plainview.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white silk organza gown over bridal taffeta. A fitted bodice designed with a Victorian yoke was outlined with Alencon lace and organza ruffle. The long sheer sleeves of shepherdess styling fell to flounces at the wrists, caught with satin buttons on the wide cuffs. The A-line skirt fell to a banded lace hemline which swept into back fullness cascading into a full chapel train.

She wore a veil of bridal illusion that fell from a re-embroidered lace tiara with seed pearl trim. Her bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath with tendrils of English ivy was placed atop a white Bible borrowed from her bridesmaid, Miss Debbie Hoover. For something old the bride wore the wedding band of her great grandmother, Mrs. T. J. Gill of Lockney. Something blue was her mother's wedding garter and she wore a pearl and diamond pendant given her by the groom.

Miss Connie Brown, Amarillo, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Hoover, Miss Rhonda Fanning and Miss Valerie Bridges, all of Hereford. Terri Barton, Weatherford, niece of the groom, was flower girl.

The maid of honor wore a long princess style sleeveless dress of royal blue double knit with matching short sleeve bolero jacket. She wore a white picture hat trimmed in royal and powder blue madallion trim and a white satin bow, and carried a single red rose with blue satin streamers. She completed her ensemble by wearing short white gloves and a strand of pearls.

Bridesmaids were dressed in the same fashion but of white double knit with matching jacket. The flower girl wore a long dress of royal blue overlaid with a light blue dotted swiss pinafore with embroidered royal blue hearts. She wore a red rose and white carnation in her hair and carried a white lace basket with loose flower petals which were strewn as she came down the aisle.

Rodney Douglas, Hereford, was best man and groomsmen were David Fanning, Mike Bridges and Randy Thompson, all of Hereford. Lance Barton, Weatherford, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. Serving as ushers were Steve Fortenberry, Hereford, brother of the bride, and Kevin Sanders, Hereford, brother of the groom.

After the wedding, a

Mrs. Roger Neal Sanders
(nee Stephanie Fortenberry)

reception was held in the Fortenberry home. The serving table was covered with a blue cloth overlaid with white lace. A three tiered cake was decorated with white roses and blue forget-me-nots, topped with a bride and groom and sugar bells. A gold and crystal candelabra with royal blue tapers with the bride's bouquet at the base formed the centerpiece. Miss Teresa Love of Bridgeport and Miss Connie Welch of Cedar Hill served guests from gold and crystal appointments.

Deborah Phillips of Lubbock registered guests and Kelvin Moeller, nephew of the groom, presented scholls.

For a wedding trip to Kentucky and other points east, the bride changed to a Carl Lewallen of Floydada.

Presented by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of ivory French Lagoda crepe, fashioned Victorian style and featuring ivory Venice lace overlaying the bodice and high neckline. The lace accented the wide cuffs of the long full sleeves and was repeated at the hemline of the A-line skirt which fell to a side Chapel length train. She wore a Camelot hatlet overlaid with ivory organza and Venice lace touched with pearls, which held a tiered veil of imported ivory illusion. Her bridal bouquet was accented with her colors of white and mint green.

Miss Terri Shipman of Abernathy was maid of honor and Bill Pearson of Happy served the groom as best man. Miss Shipman wore a formal gown of mint green crepe knit, styled with an above normal waistline, V-neckline and short puff sleeves. The A-line skirt was gathered softly at the waist. She carried an old fashioned hand bouquet of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The groom was in an all black tuxedo with an ivory ruffled shirt. His best man was also in black wearing a ming green ruffled shirt.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church. Assisting with the houseparty were Mrs. R. E. More People Wanting To Live In The Country

WASHINGTON — Increasingly, people want to live and work in rural America, and rural people and communities are using credit from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to improve living conditions and enhance employment opportunities, Will Erwin, assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development, said today.

He pointed out that USDA's Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) channeled nearly $3.6 billion in loans into rural development in fiscal year 1974 to help achieve these national goals:

1. More food and fiber for the nation: In 88,830 loans to help family farmers buy and operate farms, FmHA made more than $1 billion available to supplement regular commercial credit.

2. Improve rural housing: FmHA made loans of nearly $1.8 billion to construct, purchase or improve more than 100,000 homes and apartments for rural residents of low or moderate income.

3. Modernize small towns and rural communities: FmHA made 1,326 loans totaling nearly $470 million to help build water and waste disposal systems. Another 102 loans amounting to $49.8 million were made for other essential community facilities.

4. Provide more and better rural employment opportunities: Under new authorities of the Rural Development Act, FmHA made 399 loans totaling nearly $200 million for business and industrial development, providing an estimated 19,300 jobs in rural areas. This program was the leader as FmHA began to change from lending agent to guarantor of loans made and serviced by private, commercial lenders.

Varied employment opportunities have been provided through the business and industrial loan program — a building supply and lumber yard, 37 jobs; a plant manufacturing steel wire for tires, 147 jobs; a maker of wooden boxes and other wood products, 50 employees; pottery making and sales, five workers; and many others — processing plants, retail stores, a laundry, a grain elevator, and a farm supply and equipment store. The diversity of projects shows how readily the program adapts to community needs, Mr. Erwin said.

For the second straight year, FmHA made loans of more than $1 billion to family-size farmers. Operating loans were at a record high with $525 million being loaned to 53,865 family farmers. This included $15 million in loans made to about 5,000 boys and girls younger than 21 under a new program of Youth Loans authorized by the Rural Development Act.

Under the long-term program for farm ownership, FmHA advanced $352.2 million to 11,997 families. In these two programs, private lenders cooperated to provide FmHA farmer borrowers with an additional $496 million, making it possible to serve about 6,000 more low income farmers.

Farmers whose production was disrupted by natural disaster received 22,434 loans amounting to $128.3 million. The agency also made over $17 million in farmer-program loans for purposes such as grazing associations, soil and water improvements, irrigation, drainage, and soil conservation, and Indian Land Acquisition.

Through all FmHA housing programs, the agency provided financing for homes for approximately 390,000 rural residents. More than 94,000 individual home loans were made for $1.589 billion, and over 6,000 apartment units were financed at $173.3 million.

Under the expanded community facilities program, a wide range of municipal and civic needs of communities are being met — an 80-bed hospital in Maine at a cost of $4.5 million; construction of a county home for 120, $1.0 million; expansion of city gas lines in an Oklahoma town, $100,000; a nursing home in Pennsylvania, $1.9 million; an expanded library serving five counties in Wisconsin, $200,000; and construction of many community buildings, fire stations and other needed facilities.

FmHA's $470 million of loans for construction of water and waste disposal systems exceeded the previous high under the program, attained in FY 1973, by $70 million. About 330,000 families will be served by the new system approved the past year. The agency also provided over $20 million through 58 loans for watershed development and Resource Conservation and Development area projects.

The high level of loan and grant activity during FY 1974 brings to $12.974 billion the total of loans outstanding with Farmers Home Administration. In its current programs, the agency has now advanced some $25.8 billion in loans, with less than one percent of principal advances written off.

FmHA conducts its lending operations through more than 1,750 county offices. Most loan funds come from two sources: Sale of certificates of beneficial ownership to investors, or from regular, private lenders with FmHA guaranteeing a portion of the loan against loss.

PUPPIES DON'T SIT ON FENCES

But people sit on fences. And faithful puppies never question.
 Our children, trusting the love and wisdom of their parents, respect even our indecision.
 But the moral and religious growth of every child is deeply influenced by his parents' commitment of their own lives to God.
 We have outlived the day when fathers and mothers sent their children to Sunday School without accepting their own rightful responsibilities and opportunities in the religious community.
 Juvenile delinquency is the aftermath of fence-sitting!
 The Church is for the family. Religious instruction and inspiration are foundations of the home. Lives—growing or mature—gain direction only with commitment.

By Abigail Van Dyke

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town and belonged to the Presbyterian church. Our daughter is going to be married, so we went to our minister to plan with him.

When our daughter told the minister special love songs sung at her wedding allow love songs to be sung in MY Abby: "HIS" church.)

Does he have the right to dictate what be sung at our daughter's wedding please.

DEAR UPSET: To quote from the Presbyterian Churches in the U.S.A. marriage ceremony is a service of the normally conducted within the house shall be expected on the part of all present shall be under the sole direction of the as accompanies the ceremony should God, Who sanctifies marriage, and taken to assure that it is suitable and Even though some ministers will be order to accommodate some parishioners your minister chooses to go strictly by his rights.

DEAR ABBY: The incident was attended a lounge show. (The entertainer mine.) Since I had seen the show before book and listen to the performance at extraordinary powers of concentration doing many things at once. Frequently listen to the radio, and read.) My friends who were performing during their show as an act of rudeness but I have been severely criticized for What are your thoughts?

DEAR VEGAS: I agree with you. you may be able to read and listen and had already seen the show), the performers, might get the impression bored. In the future, demonstrate your "concentration" at home, and give courtesy of your undivided attention.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man while on hit it off beautifully together. (I'm glad and we have a lot in common.) The last time we were together, he women who wear wigs. (He didn't know Abby, I was wearing a wig (and had we were together), but he didn't know He is coming to visit me, and I should let him see me without my wig lot for me so I very seldom go without. I don't want to spoil my chances can't fool him forever.

DEAR MY: Maybe he's subtly trying he's flipped his wig for you, and he's back into the wig box. You'd be wise without it. That way, if your relationship something more serious, he can't say

Memorial Program Helps

Cancer strikes one of two families. When loved ones fall victim to cancer, all of us feel the need to do something about it. We want to strike back and put an end to this disease which took a life, precious to us. The Memorial program of the American Cancer Society helps to do just that, according to a cancer volunteer worker in Floydada.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Memorial chairman, will accept checks made payable to the American Cancer Society. A beautiful memorial card will be sent, by her, to the family of the deceased, giving the donor's name. The amount of the gift is not stated. Mrs. Wilson has been on the ACS board for over ten years, serving as president, vice president, crusade chairman and various other duties. Her address is 130 West Ollie Ave., Floydada, Texas 79235.

In the past year, memorials have been received in memory of Norville Willis, Mrs. Ollie Jordan, Joe L. Fulton, Arthur Norman Bratton, Mrs. Minnie E. Patterson, Elmer Warren, James E. Holloway, Mrs. Floyd Trowbridge, Mrs. James W. Hammonds, Albert King, Floy Stanley, P. D. Helms, Virgie Moore, Mrs. Elsie Payne, L. L. Clark, Dorothy Bigony, Lowry Aldine Williams, F. M. Covington, Willis Hall, Jennie Rushing Henry, Mrs. Deane Wilson, James A. Biggerstaff, Lola Fay Reidhimer, Mamie Wasson, Sibyl Esther Wester and Mrs. Lula Stovall.

People donating to the Memorial fund within the past year are Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Emert, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Blum, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Owen, Ethel Florence, Jessie Stewart, Ethel Cross, Edna Phillips, Estell Gilbreath, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tye, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Pruitt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Yard Of The Week

This week's selection is the unusual yard of Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Craig at 901 W. Mississippi. The red brick home, in this pretty setting, was built by the Craigs about seven years ago. The yard's design and selection of plants is in a Spanish effect.

White gravel is used next to the street curb on two sides of this corner lot. An attractive red brick wall bounds their property on the west. Large pines, spreading junipers, several varieties of cactus, some of which have been given to them by friends, are attractively arranged. Several large pieces of driftwood are amid the gravel. One large driftwood piece was brought back from the Pecos wilderness by Dr. Craig.

Large yuccas, thornless prickly pear and several red blooming barrel cactus are now in bloom. Many of the larger and some smaller, rocks have been collected by the Craigs on various trips and some are from Mrs. Craig's parents' ranch in Mason County.

The lawns in the center of the planting on the east and north are separated by a curved sidewalk that breaks the straight lines and blends so well with the round flower beds that are around the evergreens and other trees. Apricot, crabapple, plum, live oak, pecans and a glossy gray green shrub make a pleasing appearance. Shasta daisies, pinks and mums are colorful. Moss rose and English ivy are used as ground covers in an attractive way and Red bud and Pussy willow are early color shrubs. The pines are Utah pine, collected by Mrs. Craig on a trip. All add their deep green color for a yard that is pretty from any angle as well as being pretty in the winter too.

Mrs. Craig does most of the yard work for this interesting yard.
