CLOUDBURST GIVES HAMLIN 5 INCH RAIN

Southwestern Oklahoma Wheat Fields a Stage For Chant Of Reapers

Harvest of Bumper Crop of Grain Is Started With Promise of One of Section's Largest Yields

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, June 17.—The chant of reapers' tunes heard throughout southwest Oklahoma's wheat fields during the past two weeks as harvesters laid low the billowing crop, was giving way during the week to the drone of separators as the first crews of threshing outfits swung into fields dotted with wheat stacks and began the final process in harvesting one of the best grain yields this section of the country has ever known.

At least five crews began threshing in Tillman county Tuesday and as many more will start work before the end of the week. The peak will be reached next week when at least fifteen machines and crews will be operating in the county, making their swings from one field to another. Threshing will continue four or five weeks.

Laying down a screen of chaff and stalks, from whence grows huge straw stacks, the separators work from early morning until late at night, pouring forth grain which promises to produce heavily for Tillman county this year.

Transient labor that has used the curbs as a resting place by day and the alleys for their nightly domicile are no longer seen as they are assimilated by threshing crews gathering over the county. Plenty of hands are here, it is believed, although there is a shortage being felt of teams and bundle wagons.

Wheat acreage in Tillman county is larger this year than it has been for the past five years, it has been said by those connected with the agricultural trend here. This is due to the combined efforts of farmer organizations to bring about less planting of cotton acreage and a wider diversification of crops. A great deal of this work has been carried on through the extension division of the Oklahoma A. & M. college.

The condition of cotton is good throughout the county. Portions that have been damaged from hail storms during the past few days will be replanted. Plenty of sub-soil moisture is stored, it is believed, to insure a good stand, although summer rains will be necessary to bring a good yield.

Roasting ears will be on the market within a few weeks. The condition of corn is good, reports from over the county indicate. Oats are producing heavily in the portions of the county where this variety of grain was grown this year and barley is making a fair yield.

Highway Board Asks U. S. Help in Clearing Up Bridge Payment

AUSTIN, June 17.—(AP)—To avoid litigation in expenditure of federal aid funds on a free birdge across the Red river at Burkburnett, the state highway commission today asked the U. S. secretary of agriculture to amend the project agreement so that all but $200 of Texas' share of $61,070.24 shall be paid on vouchers submitted by the Oklahoma highway department.

Some time ago Judge George Calhoun of the 53rd district court here granted a permanent injunction restraining the commission from expending any state funds outside the boundary of Texas. He ruled unconstitutional the special road act of the 39th legislature empowering the Wichita county commissioners' court to negotiate with Oklahoma for building the bridge.

It is now the intention of the commission to expend the state allotment only on that portion of the bridge in Texas. Part of the state allotment of $61,070.24 will be used to build a concrete approach on the Texas side. The commissioners are asking that $200 of the federal aid shall be paid on vouchers submitted by the Texas highway department in order that the project may retain its interstate status.

Text of the resolution sent to the secretary of agriculture who has supervision of the bureau of public roads, follows:

"Whereas, it is proposed to construct an interstate bridge free of all tolls across the Red river on highway 30, connecting Wichita county, Texas, and Cotton county, Oklahoma, same being federal aid project number 491 and,

"Whereas, it is proposed to finance this project with $61,070.24 federal aid from the apportionment of federal aid to Texas, $61,070.24 federal aid from the apportionment of federal aid to Oklahoma, $61,070.24 from Texas state aid funds, and $61,070.24 from funds furnished by Wichita county and

"Whereas, it has been declared illegal for the state of Texas to disburse any state funds for construction outside the boundary of Texas, and as there is some question as to the legality of receiving federal aid and disbursing said federal aid out of the state highway fund, and

"Whereas, the county of Wichita is limited by special legislature enactment as to its share of funds, same not to exceed 25 per cent of the cost of the project, and

"Whereas approximately only 311.74 feet of this bridge estimated to cost $33,000 is in Texas and approximately 2,710 feet estimated to cost $231,280.06 is in Oklahoma, therefore,

"Be it resolved that in order that this be financed as contemplated that the secretary of agriculture be requested to insert a section under article 'III' of the proposed project agreement to read:

"Of the $122,140.48 federal funds approved and set aside to the credit of the project, $200 shall be paid on vouchers submitted by the Texas highway department, and shall be charged against the federal funds apportioned to Texas, and $121,940.48 shall be paid on vouchers submitted by the Oklahoma highway department, of which amount $61,070.24 shall be charged against federal funds apportioned to Texas, and $61,070.24 shall be charged against federal funds apportioned to Oklahoma."

BUTTE VOTERS TO HAVE FREE COUNTY REIGN

County Demos Not to Abide State's Veiled Hints

MAY MEAN A FIGHT

Bruce, Chairman, Asserts Order of Committee Is Illegal.

There will be no attempt at exclusion of Wichita county voters who bolted the democratic ticket in 1924 and voted for George Butte for governor of the state in opposition to Mrs. Ferguson, according to H. J. Bruce, Wichita county democratic chairman. An actual decision on exclusion of the Butte bolters will, of course, be left to the county democratic committee which will meet some time next week. Or, in the long run, it may evolve into a matter requiring the decision of the election judge himself. But from the chairman of the democratic committee there will be no recognition of the state executive committee's resolution "That those charged with the duty of providing for the holding of the democratic primary elections in Texas should as far as possible see that none but democrats participate in such elections, and we now declare that the best test of a voter's democracy is his support of the regular nominees of the party."

Mr. Bruce's attitude toward the resolution of the executive committee was made public Thursday afternoon

Leaders of Both Parties Have Love Feast in Abilene

ABILENE, June 17.—(AP)—The theory of "one party domination was attacked here Thursday after a conference of R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman from Texas, and local leaders of that party.

Mr. Creager, accompanied here by Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, Leonard Withington, state organization manager, and others also declared that the republican party in Texas is headed by southerners "who believe in state's rights."

A luncheon, was arranged, attended by republicans and democrats. Thomas L. Blanton, democrat, representative from this district, was one of those introduced. After the presentation Blanton extended his arm across the table to shake the hand of Dr. Tanner of Eastland, republican candidate for the office Blanton holds.

Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president of Simmons university and Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry college, both of Abilene, declared they were indebted to the republican party for providing the opportunity to vote "two years ago for a candidate for governor whom we felt to be efficient and honest."

HEROISM RIDES IN DEATH CARS

Personal Sacrifices Made as Limited Trains Crash in Darkness.

PITTSBURGH, June 17.—(AP) The broken forms of 15 men, women and children, 11 of them passengers, lay in morgues of this farming region tonight, mute testimony of the wreck of two fast Pennsylvania railroad passenger trains, the Cincinnati Limited and the Washington Express, near Blairsville intersection last midnight.

Fourteen others, a majority of them passengers, were in Johnstown and Latrob hospitals, bearing the marks of the appalling disaster. Five were in a critical condition. Many others, less seriously hurt when the limited ploughed into the rear end of the halted express, were able to continue their journey on special and regular trains.

Wreck Crews Busy

At the scene of the crash, wrecking crews continued throughout the day the work of clearing the main lines and replacing more than 100 feet of rails, ripped out when the limited, hauled by two giant locomotives, cut its death dealing path into the express sleepers. The two engines were reduced to scrap and three sleepers and a club car became a mass of twisted steel, ripped asunder as if made of paper.

Among the dead was Gordon, engineer on the first limited locomotive and his fireman, N. L. Hollingsworth, who, according to Pennsylvania railroad officials, ran by flare signals and torpedoes set by the flagman of the express to guard his train while a broken hose connection was repaired. By tomorrow it was expected that four investigations of the disaster, county, state, interstate commerce commission and railroad, would be under way.

Survivors of the wreck, in relating their experiences, all agreed that the trainmen and many uninjured passengers worked ehroically before the arrival of relief trains to render aid to the stricken.

The scene was described as one of utter confusion a few minutes after the crash. Women and children, trapped in the dark depths of the wrecked cars screamed for help. The Cleveland sleeper in which a majority of the fatalities occurred, was bespattered with blood. In one berth was found a mother and her two small daughters, their lives crushed out.

SEVERAL HURT, HEAVY DAMAGE IN BIG STORM

Nearly Half-a-Foot of Water Falls in 40 Minutes Time.

LIGHTNING HITS BOY

Youngster Badly Injured When Bolt Strikes Storm Cellar

Special to the Record News.

HAMLIN, June 17.—Several persons were injured, one seriously, and considerable property damage was done late Thursday afternoon when a miniature cloudburst drenched Hamlin with five inches of rain in 40 minutes. A high wind, some hail and a violent electrical disturbance accompanied the rain.

The small son of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Brooks was seriously injured when lightning struck a storm cellar in which the family had taken refuge. Other members of the family were shaken up and the cellar demolished. Several wormen in an M. K. T. workmen's car near the Katy depot were bruised and cut when a falling telephone pole, beaten down by the wind, crashed through the roof. B. O. Miller was the most seriously hurt.

Wires Down

Telephone and telegraph wires were blown down at many points and wire service was badly disrupted Thursday night.

With streets flooded a foot deep in water, many Hamlin residents waded home Thursday evening. An automobile stage carrying a number of passengers destined for a night train was marooned on the edge of the city early tonight, and while a relief crew had gone to their assistance, they were still caught at a late hour.

The rain broke a long and severe period of heat which was beginning to do much damage to crops.

Heavy Storm In Wichita Territory

A rain and electrical storm of unusual severity swept northwest Texas and parts of southwestern Oklahoma early Thursday night, spreading approximately an inch of water over the territory, turning unimproved roads into bottomless mud pits and doing considerable damage to grain in some sections.

The storm, so far as could be learned last night, extended northwest as far as Childress; it reached eastward to Gainsville; southeast nearly to Fort Worth and south and west to Seymour. A violent electrical disturbance accompanied the rain.

Starts at 7 p. m.

The full fury of the downpour started locally about 7 o'clock and continued with varying intensity until 10 o'clock and after. In less than 15 minutes, down town streets here were streaming rivers with water in some instances climbing above the curbing in the lower sections. The streets were swept clear of pedestrians most of the night.

With the rain a high wind roared in. A few sign boards were blown down and small outer buildings moved, but so far as was known late Thursday evening, no material damage was occasioned. Basement excavation work on new construction projects here were transformed to yellow pools and work on these must be suspended until the water can be pumped out and the earth allowed to dry.

An ominous looking blanket of black clouds hovered over the city during the entire course of the storm. This was shot through by frequent bursts of lightning that set the city's electrical systems off on flickering sprees.

Relief From Heat

Relief came with the storm from another day of heat in which the thermometer climed to 102 for a maximum. The day was partly cloudy with a brisk wind from the southwest prevailing most of the time.

Friday, the weather bureau indicated, may be cooler and partly cloudy, although it was predicted that the showers were over for a time.

The rain evidently wrecked a number of summer vacation schedules, for a dozen or more persons called the Record News offices Thursday night to inquire about roads leading out of town toward vacation playgrounds.

HIGHWAY OIL CONTRACT UP

Conference for Awarding of $500,000 State Money Held Thursday

AUSTIN, June 17.—(AP)—Tentative arrangements for a conference on the awarding of a $500,000 lubricating oil contract were made today with the state board of control by Hal Moseley, chairman of the highway commission. It is expected the conference will be held this afternoon.

Contract for furnishing the highway department with oil for 16 months was scheduled to be let six weeks ago, but had been held up pending action of the highway commission on the best bid. A number of Texas members of asphalt base oils have protested the specification requiring the oil to be of paraffin base.

The commision discussed the oil contract but not in detail, Commissioner John Cage said.

The commission allotted $190,000 for construction of a gravel highway beginning near Kerrville, and running west across Kerr and Real county. Captain Charles Shreiner, Kerrville pioneer, will contribute $100,000 for the project. No state aid will be available until January 1, 1927.

Comanche county was granted additional aid on 26 miles of grading and drainage structures on highway ten, and Brewster county $32,766 for completion of federal aid project 378-E.

Designation of the road from Crowell in Foard county to the Red river via Quanah in Hardeman was granted. This is an extension of highway 31. An allottment of $6,000 for this highway was granted.

ROGERS HEADS WORLD ROTARY

Texan Unanimous Choice for International President

DENVER, June 17.—(AP)—Harry H. Rogers of San Antonio, Texas, today was elected unanimously to the presidency of Rotary International at the 17th annual convention of the organization here. Rogers' election came after Thomas Davis of Butte, Mont., had been eliminated on the first ballot and Arthur H. Sapp, of Huntington, Ind., the remaining candidate had withdrawn and moved that Rogers receive the unanimous ballot. The motion was seconded by Davis.

The new president of Rotary was born near Wheatland, Mo., and was admitted to the bar at 25. He built the Uvalde and Northern railroad and was instrumental in building the San Antonio cotton mills of which firm he is vice president. He is a director of several banks and a member of the board of trustees of several universities. He was elected director of Rotary's 15th district in 1924 and was named director of Rotary International at Cleveland.

With the election of a president out of the way visiting delegates were preparing to conclude their business sessions. The resolutions committee will report tomorrow and the date of the next convention will be set.

Milk And Ice Fund Gets In Its Work As Summer Heat Climbs

Milk and Ice Fund.

Already Subscribed	$161
James P. Robinson	5
Total	$166

That the milk and ice fund sponsored by the Record News is helping those who are in need of aid was evidenced in a case investigated Thursday by Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, secretary of the Municipal Welfare Board, who handles the funds. A timid knock came at her door yesterday morning and a woman who showed the effects of toil asked for admittance. She was seeking employment for herself.

She told her story. She is a widow with her mother, a younger brother and her three children to support. She had been sick and it was all she could do to make the distance from her home to the secretary's office; but she did not want charity, she wanted a place to earn the necessities for her family.

She asked milk and ice, not for herself, but for her children.

The Producer's Creamery is delivering the milk for the Milk and Ice Fund, and Mrs. Gorsline has been furnished a car by the Dixon Motor company to make the investigations.

Those who know of cases where milk and ice are needed are asked to call the secretary, 7645, and she will make the investigation of the cases.

This exhibit will be open at 7:30 and the parents and friends of the children are invited to view it before and after the evening's program.

Enrollment has reached 225 with an average attendance of 140 during the entire period.

A picnic was given Thursday morning at which time sandwiches, cakes, milk-chocolate and ice cream were served.

HOMESICK, HE SAYS

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 17.—(AP)—Bennet J. Doty, American member of the French foreign legion, today asserted that it was not cowardice, but acute homesickness that caused his "momentary desertion" from his company in Syria recently.

Doty is awaiting trial on a desertion charge.

"I suppose that similar discouragement sometimes overcomes even the best of soldiers," said Doty, speaking of his homesickness, "but I realized my error and surrendered to the first post of gendarmes on the Transjordan frontier. I did not fire on the gendarmes; on the contrary I surrendered voluntarily."

SECOND LOVE

MALCOLM DUABY

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY ELSING MACLEAN

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

John Parrish and his rich young wife, Audrey, have separated, because of his wrath at her frequent references to his own dependence upon her wealth. He is living at a hotel; she has gone to Bitter Springs; a mountain resort, to wait for her father who is hurrying home from London. She has left Marcie Allen in charge of her house. Marcie, young, beautiful, believing in the right of women to do as they please, has been put out of her own home because of her advanced views. She makes love to Parrish. She invites him to dinner at his wife's house. He accuses her of being a flirt. Two of her boy friends appear, and Parrish leaves. Marcie takes three quarts of liquor from Audrey's father's cellar, and goes to a dance with the boys. She returns at 3 a. m., and goes to bed with her hat on.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(Names and situation in this story are fictitious)

CHAPTER XXI.

The morning came, and went.

At noontime, the downstairs maid ascended to the upper floor, and listened at Marcie's door.

"She's moving around," the girl reported to the cook, as she returned to her own domain. "Better get breakfast ready."

Marcie appeared half an hour later. She was neat and carefully coiffeured, but her eyes were heavy, and her cheeks had lost a trible of their warm color.

"Just some coffee and toast," she said, as she took her seat in the breakfast room.

The maid rolled her eyes significantly at the cook as she conveyed the order. Almost at once she returned with the coffee percolator, which she set on a pad beside Marcie, connecting the cord with an electric socket. The big silver vessel was steaming—it had been in operation since eight o'clock.

Marcie drew a cupful of the fragrant fluid, and drank it, without cream or sugar. After a nibble of toast, she drew another cup.

"Are there any orders for dinner, miss?" asked the maid.

Marcie drew her hand over her forehead.

"My goodness, I can't think," she said. "I'll tell you—just have something cold ready. Then if I eat at home, I can have it. See?"

She returned to her toast, and tried another bite. Then she laid aside the remainder with disgust. Taking a final gulp of coffee, she rose and returned to her own room. Slipping off her dress, and pulling a robe around her shoulders, she laid down and slept again.

It was a different Marcie who came down stairs at five o'clock. Refreshed and invigorated, she moved through the hall with dancing steps, and she sang a little. Her eyes were bright, the deep color had been restored to her cheeks, and her movements were alert.

"I'm hungry," she said, putting her head in the kitchen door. "Is there enough here for a great big dinner?"

An indignant retort arose from the cook, and Marcie pulled the door wider.

"Don't be mad at me," she urged. "I know I said I wanted a cold dinner—but you can fix something nice and juicy and warm, can't you?"

The cook responded less heatedly.

"All right—chops will be nice, and gravy," Marcie said. "You're a dear.

Leaving peace behind her, she went to the front lawn, and settled herself in Audrey's wicker chair. A soft June breeze was moving the leaves of the tree overhead, and Marcie sighed with content. She was dressed in a gold-colored slip, with a rose-tinted, transparent dress over it. Her stockings were sheer and golden, and her slippers were of yellow kid.

Stretching her foot before her, she surveyed her leg from the knee down.

"I'm cute," she said to herself, aloud, and leaned back, her hands locked behind her head.

She was there when Bill and his friend found her, half an hour later.

"We've come after some more of that hooch," said Bill, tramping upon the flowerbed that lay between the girl and the walk.

"Get off Audreys' flowers," said Marcie, without moving any of her person except her eyes. "And you can't have any hooch."

The youths sank upon the grass.

"What do you suppose we came for?" asked Bill's companion.

"Not interested in your motives," she said, lavilv, her gaze mounting to the tree above her.

"Did you have a hangover?" inquired Bill, his mind turning to last night's outing.

The girl yawned. "Haven't the faintest idea what you mean," she said. "Run away now, like two nice children."

"Aren't you even going to invite us to dinner?"

Marcie laughed, and rose upright in the chair. Bringing out her small mirror, she patted her hair and smoothed her eyebrows.

"No." She turned in the chair so her back was toward them. "I feel good, and peaceful, and serene. Go on away."

The boys arose. "Fat chance you'll have to get invited to any more roadhouses—by us," said Bill, with rutcor.

Marcie closed her eyes, and breathed gently as if in sleep.

"We won't take you," he continued.

Her bosom rose and fell with deep regularity. Her hand, where it lay upon the arm of the chair, was relaxed.

"Go on and snooze," directed Bill's friend. "You need it."

Marcies' eyes opened and turned toward him.

"I won't bring any more gin next time we go out, if you make me mad," she said. "Toddle along now."

They turned away, and went through the gate. Marcie moved her head so she could watch them, amusement in her glance. "Toddle-oo," she called.

"Go ahead and sleep it off," shouted Bill, as they walked down the street.

Marcie laughed, and rose upright in the chair. Bringing out her small mirror, she patted her hair into place, and smoothed her eyebrows. Then she stood up, and dragged the light piece of wicker furniture to a point where she could see down the street through a thin spot in the vines.

There she sat until the maid came out to announce dinner.

Marcie's brow was clouded as she slowly walked across the grass to the steps. Halting beside the telephone, she surveyed that instrument a moment. Then she picked up the receiver, and called Parrish's office. There was no response.

She bit her lip. After a season of thought, she called the hotel where Parish was living.

"He has gone out of town," reported the clerk, at the end of a long wait. "Shall I make a note of your number?"

The girl hung up the receiver without replying.

Sulkily she ate her dinner, making a good meal of it nevertheless, and later, she went out to the lawn. Night was falling, and the street lamps winked on as she stood, looking between the standards of the high iron fence. With an impatient gesture, she went back to the garage.

"I'd like to ride an hour or so," she told the chauffeur, "better run out the big car."

When the machine backed from the low, concrete building, she entered it in the driveway, and sat in the deep corner of the soft cushions.

"Just go anywhere," she directed. "I want some fresh air."

The car turned up Tenth. Marcie picked up the speaking tube.

"Take me down town," she ordered.

The driver obeyed, and soon they were moving through the evening traffic on Indiana. Marcie's eye caught the sign of a moving picture theater.

"Let me out here," she said, through the tube. "Come and pick me up in an hour."

She alighted, under the theater canopy, and paying her admission, sought a place far back in the auditorium. Through most of the film she sat with her eyes closed, thinking. It was at a crisis in the picture play that she abruptly started to her feet, and went out.

The driver, at the end of his hour, found her waiting.

"Have you ever been to my house—where my father lives?" she asked.

"I don't remember, miss," he said.

She gave him rapid directions. Then, entering the car, she sat upright while he threaded his way through the streets, to the distant thoroughfare where Marcie's home stood. The car drew up under the porte cochere of the dark house.

"I'll stay here tonight," she told him. After an instant's thought, she rummaged in her wristbag, and drew forth a crumpled bill. "And this is to remind you that you don't know where you took me," she added.

He touched his cap and grinned.

She watched him drive away, before she turned to the house. Ignoring the door, she passed along a path that led to the rear of the building. A short flight of steps led to a screened porch, and along the level of the floor of this porch was a protruding ledge. Mounting the steps, Marcie got a footbold on the ledge, and balancing herself with fingers that clutched the supports of the screens, she edged along to a point where one screen was loose. Carefully she shoved it inward, until it clattered down to the floor within.

Thereupon Marcie climbed indoors, with quick agility. Entrance to the main part of the house was barred by locked doors and windows. Marcie, as if accustomed to the feat, opened a window lock with a clasp pin that she drew from inside her waist.

Two minutes later she was in her own old room upstairs, the curtains drawn, and the electric light illuminating the apartment. With satisfaction, she patted the pillows on her couch, and took a brief glance into the empty closets.

Then she felt her way downstairs again, without touching on the lights. Her groping hands found the telephone, in the hall, and she gave a sigh of relief as the operator's answer showed that the line had not been disconnected. She called Parrish's hotel.

"Please leave word for Mr. Parrish," she told the clerk, "that Miss Allen had left the house on Tenth street. That's all."

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY
June 18, 1925

Funeral services for Mrs Nora Bashara, mother of M. J. Bashara, are held here.

BARRY MILLER A LUCKY MAN

LIEUT. GOV. BARRY MILLER is a lucky man. He is a candidate for re-election and is unopposed for the renomination. Col. Edwin R. York of Austin filed his nomination but recanted at the eleventh hour and gave the lieutenant governor a clear field. And thus it is that the life-long friend of Charles A. Culberson is not worrying over political conditions.

He has a long record to his credit. He served as a state senator in his youth. He served in the lower house. A new criminal district court was created in Dallas county. Murderer's Row in the Dallas county jail was crowded with red-handed slayers. Miller accepted the appointment as judge. He said he would make Murderer's Row as clean as a whistle and when the work was done he would recommend the abolition of the court.

He cleaned Murderer's Row. He did it by rushing the docket. Then he made good his promise and returned to the practice of his profession. He was drafted again for the legislature by his people. He served a couple of terms. He was drafted for a third term and the voters of the invisible empire put him away.

Two years ago he became a candidate for lieutenant governor and defeated Will C. Edwards of Denton, one of the most popular editors and publishers in the entire state. It was a merry contest as well as a memorable finish. There were signs of opposition to Miller this year when he said he was a candidate for re-election but would make no speeches or carry himself away from his private practice of the office of the honor.

Now he has a clear field and can go a fishing whenever the spirit moves him. He may be governor later along. If the Fergusons run behind Dan Moody in the July runoff, they have promised to step down and out. If Dan runs behind he has promised to step down and out of office. Then the race for the nomination will be resumed by the leader in the July primary and the runner-up.

But this has to do with Miller. He is very much interested in the July primary and its outcome and the city and county of Dallas where there are 60,000 or more qualified voters are greatly interested. First and last, the Dallas man has been for a special session of the legislature to validate by legislation action the $80,000,000 volume of bonds which may be in jeopardy by reason of the Archer decision as well as to quiet the fears of all foreign buyers of Texas securities.

Judge Miller is a South Carolinian by birth. He has been in Texas since early boyhood, and he served as a page in the senate of the United States when he was about as tall as a senatorial desk. In 1920 he was a delegate at large to the San Francisco convention and voted for McAdoo on every ballot until the flag went down.

He did not rally to the standard of McAdoo in 1924. There were a number of reasons why. It is unnecessary to mention them. He was for an uninstructed delegation to the Madison Square Garden convention and incidentally he has scant resepect for the two-thirds rule an dthe unit rule.

JACK REPUBLICAN FIRST AID

JACK WALTON has returned to Oklahoma and filed his nomination as a candidate for the democratic nomination of United States senator. Jack demanded vindication two years ago and ran for senator. His republican opponent, W. B. Pine, was elected by a majority of 120,000 in a democratic state.

Now Jack is officiating as republican first aid again this year. He must have vindication knowing all the time he is paving the way for the election of a republican. Some day the meek and lowly followers of Thomas Jefferson in Oklahoma and elsewhere will permit a ray of intelligence to break through their thinking caps.

Thomas Jefferson did not organize the democratic party in order to provide a vehicle for persons filled with blowholes to grab vindications by vicious appeal to the prejudices and passions of those who seldom read and never think or often read and never digest that which they have read.

Jack Walton and Len Small of Illinois are fair types of demagogues who play havoc with economic issues which so vitally concerns the happiness and prosperity of the American people.

VARE TO BE THE SCAPEGOAT

MARK SULLIVAN predicts that Congressman W. S. Vare of Pennsylvania will not be permitted to hold his seat if elected to the United States senate and Mark forecast the election of Vare. Newberryism cost the republicans six or eight seats in the American senate. They lost those seats to the democrats. And yet, the friends of Newberry only expended $187,000 to win for him a seat in the senate from Michigan.

Congressman Vare admits an expenditure of $87,000 in his successful race for a sanatorial nomination. Governor Pinchot, who lost, admits an expenditure of $190,000. George Wharton Pepper, the friend of Coolidge, had the backing of the Mellons and the Grundys. They admit an expenditure of upwards of $1,000,000.

They lost Pepper but they won the governorship and control of the state machine. Mark Sullivan is a consistent republican. He is a consistent dry. He is an American Celt. That is, he is of Irish origin. Now he surmises that Vare will be the goat, because Vare is a wet and refused to continue to act as a political valet or messenger boy for the Mellons and the Grundys.

If Vare is to be punished for the expenditure of $87,000, why should Gifford Pinchot escape condemnation. He is a reformer and a gentleman, and yet he invested a fortune in the political shell game and lost. All the Mellons are gentlemen. They invested a million dollars. They lost the senatorship, but they won the governorship and the machinery of the organization.

Are they to be honored or exalted when the time comes to make a goat of Vare and throw him on the scrap pile? W. L. Mellon, the nephew of his famous uncle, was elected state chairman of the republican committee and Harry S. Baker, a Vareite, was thrown in the scrap pile. This gives the Mellons and the Grundys absolute control of the republican machinery in their state.

They hold the whiphand as far as Vare is concerned. If he is elected, all the Mellon organization has to do will be to pass the word along the line to throw Vare out because he is a wet, and spent $87,000 to win his nomination. He will be compelled to take orders from the Mellons or the Grundys. He will be forced to return to his old position which was that of political stable boy.

Now the Grundys had no great interest in the senatorship. They wanted a business man for governor. They joined hands with the Mellons, and John S. Fisher won the nomination over the Vare candidate. The Grundys do not play national politics. They do play state politics. They see to it that their governor bears the proper brand and that the legislators are carefully herded and carefully branded at the branding season of the year. If it cost a million dollars to lose a senatorship and win a governorship in Pennsylvania, and gentlemen, and not political stable boys furnish the money for the debauching of the voting electorate, now who should be condemned—the gentlemen or the political stable boys?

AND ON THE LORD'S DAY

IT was 101 at Wichita Falls on Sunday, and the mercury continued to climb. This was one extreme. On the shores of Lake Michigan, in the windy city of Chicago, an inch of rain fell in 15 minutes. They are picking strawberries in Alaska and the flowers are blooming on the mountain side. There is no land like the land covered by Old Glory.

BROOKHART IS THE BOSS

BROOKHART having whipped the regular republicans of Iowa in three campaigns since 1920, the republican machine of that state has decided to eat out of the hands of the best rifle shot in America. Not that they love him more than they did before, but the republican farmers of Iowa have adopted Smith Wildman as their own and now the practical politicians of the party are for placating the colonel and doing the best they can. Nothing succeeds like success. Iowa is not likely to send another democrat to the senate this year.

WHERE IS MENCKEN?

TWELVE THOUSAND Rotarians assembled in the city of Denver on a single day. Where was H. L. Mencken? Where was Chester P. Crowell? Where the other imitators of the Baltimore iconoclast? Where the little gadflies of the Mencken School of Journalism? Where the gnats and the fleas of the tribe?

The Powerful Katrinka's Little Brother

FIRE —by— Arthur B. Reeve

He was looking about the room curiously. Marie saw his glance resting on a big old-fashioned maple chest of drawers. On the top, with the lid still loose, was her jewel box.

"That's where she put the jewels she used for the time being—took them off at night, stuck them up there."

Kennedy took a step over, and examined them on the dresser. As we surrounded the little table we shut off the direct rays of the softly shaded light. No lights glared in Mrs. Asche's house. I saw Craig lean over with interest.

"Mon dieu! Just fancy! I never noticed that before!" I heard Marie exclaim.

In the darkness the diamond necklace, the rings, the brooch, all these jewels of Mrs. Asche's glowed!

"Marie, the police must hold these," decided Kennedy promptly. "I will give you a receipt, be personally responsible. Don't mention it until someone else does.

The doorbell downstairs rang.

"Marie, get us out of here quickly," nodded Craig. "I'd rather not be seen in Mrs. Asche's rooms—yet."

"I doubt it." There was a fine edge to the towering scorn that Davids, on his part, worked himself into. "I doubt if you were with her long enough for her to take you into her confidence. You're too busy with that physique trying to fascinate Broadway flappers, organizing beauty contests—Advertising pays!"

"Davids!" Asche seemed to hold himself in leash only he realising that the rest of us were there. "I know what you insinuate. It's your own jealousy, jealous of your aunt's fortune, jealous of me of my success, everything. Say, Davids, you were a pretty constant visitor to Irrita Millard, were you not?" he retorted.

"Well, there's nothing criminal in that, is there?"

"No, and there's nothing criminal in my meeting her occasionally in the same building where we are both rather good tenants. I suppose to suit you, I ought to move out of the building where I've been for over five years?

Well, you can get out of here and be quick about it. My attorney will talk to you, Littlefield, see? I thought you'd retain Mr. Welburn. Gentlemen, good night! By the way, Mr. Kennedy—may I ask you to remain a few moments?"

Davids and Welburn withdrew. I felt second best in this first encounter.

Asche calmed down now as quickly as he flared. We talked several minutes as Kennedy explained his position in the case.

"I told Doctor Leslie I welcomed him in the case," remarked Asche, pacing the library. "And I tell you, Kennedy, I welcome you. Of course, my theory has been that it was an accident. By that I mean something in the course of nature. No one, not even a remarkable woman, in search of the fountain of eternal youth, will ever find it."

He paused in his pacing.

"But, sometimes, now, especially after that visit, I am forced to wonder? Could my wife's nephew and physician, in some way, perhaps under cover of some one close to her—you understand, some one close to her because of this hobby of beautification—could he have hastened her death, hoping perhaps in some way to throw it all on me, at least force me to a settlement? Mind you, I make no accusation that anyone close to her may have been more than an innocent tool."

I saw there was no concealment now in the bitter implication thrown by Asche. He had come out into the open.

"Another thing, Mr. Kennedy, you know this man—an X-ray specialist—eh?"

"And you mean by that?"

"I don't know what I mean, sir. Only I seem to have heard that X-rays are not the safest things in the world unless they are in the hands of one mighty well skilled. He seems to have been at the top of his profession—in that respect."

Kennedy talked for several moments, made an appointment for the following day, then excused himself. I knew he was anxious to get to Leslie and the autopsy and to his own laboratory, where he might study this beauty clay and the glowing diamonds.

The entire next day was spent by Kennedy and Leslie over the autopsy. Not until evening did I see Craig at his own laboratory at the university. Even then he was silent as to his findings with Leslie, his own study of the beauty clay and what had made the diamonds shine with a fire in the dark.

"Does she expect you?"

"No, I'd rather she didn't. I thought something might happen while we were there that might suggest a clue."

Irrita received us amiably enough in her tiny apartment but there was a restraint about her that boded no ease in getting information from her.

"You see, it's this way, Irrita," and Craig fell so easily into the slight familiarity that it seemed rather to flatter her. "I feel that Mrs. Asche made a friend of you, even more, a confidante."

"But that doesn't signify that I'll make a confidante of you." She tossed her head and watched him, lips just a little bit curled in a knowing smile.

"No, I only feel sorry for that poor little woman and thought you might be a little sorry to—that you might want to help me."

Has it come to your knowledge that Mrs. Asche was on bad terms with any one related to her?"

Irrita seemed to have to think before she answered. "As to relatives, she didn't have many. Her doctor and her husband are the only ones I ever met. She never discussed either with me."

The door bell burred.

"Dr. Oakley Davids," announced the maid.

"All right," Irrita turned to us tantalisingly. "It's a good thing I didn't say I hadn't met him!"

"I've a surprise for you, Rit!" he called from outside.

"Splendid, Doctor. I have some guests here—Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Jameson."

Davids seemed annoyed as he entered. He looked at Irrita inquiringly, as if wondering how much she had been forced to tell.

"Well, Irrita, we'll be going now, if you had an engagement." Craig held her hand a moment longer than was necessary, I thought, and with a trifle more interest than I liked. In an undertone he added, "At least I have found out enough to make me jealous."

With a quick little nervous motion she brushed her forehead, then suddenly faced Craig. "And I have found out enough to make me mad!"

Davids took a step toward the door with an air as of one who would make a farewell brief.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Don't Tie Yourself to a Girl's Apron Strings, Young Man, Until You're Sure You Want it to Be Permanent—Don't Throw Yourself Down to One Read, Girls, Until He Pops the Question, for Competition Is the Life of the Love Trade.

One of the things that appears to trouble greatly the youths and maidens of today is the difficulty of establishing just what jurisdiction each has over the other while they wander through the no-man's land prior to the time when the young man pops the question and there is a definite betrothal.

This halcyon period is vulgarly known as "keeping company." Theoretically it should be ideal, a time of the fluttering wings and the golden glory of awakening love; of vague anticipation and nebulous dreams, when every day the potential lovers would discover fresh charms and beauties in each other and everything would be untouched, unmarried, by any odious sense of duty and obligation.

For, one would think, that love would be free then as it never can be when across its pathway swings the noose of the marriage tie, in which one must run one's neck at the end of an engagement.

That is the theory of "keeping company," but the practice of it seems to work out very differently, and to be filled with heartburnings and bitter jealousies and important reproaches.

There is not a day that I do not get a dozen letters calling upon me to arbitrate the difficulties that have grown out of this situation, where the man and the girl are neither fish nor flesh nor good red herring—where they are neither engaged nor disengaged, neither bond nor free.

A girl will write she has been "keeping company" for two or three or four years with a boy that he has suddenly quit her cold and begun paying ardent attention to some beauteous young creature who works in the same office that he does. Wherefore the girl weeps bitter tears when she finds herself neglected and forsaken.

Or a youth writes that he has been "keeping company" with a girl for a year and a half, but that when he took her to a ball she danced four times with another sheik. Also that he has discovered that she occasionally goes out with some other man. In consequence of which he feels himself a much abused individual and berates the girl for being flirty and frivolous.

Now "keeping company" is merely a sort of sentimental option that a man and woman have on each other, and they can foreclose or let lapse as they like. It commits a man to nothing. It binds a girl to nothing, and the most elementary sense of justice should show both parties that they have no cause for complaint, no matter what the other one does.

You can't break a bargain until you have made one. You can't lose a thing you have never had. You can't impose the ethics of a betrothal or of matrimony upon those who are, mere acquaintances. You can't regulate the conduct of a man or woman unless you give that individual a legal right to do so.

The world's greatest exhibition of nerve is given by the man who arrogates to himself the privilege of dictating to a girl what other men she shall associate with when he hasn't even asked her to be his wife, and may possibly never ask her.

It takes monumental self-conceit and selfishness to make a man willing to monopolize a girl and keep all other men away from her on the off chance that he may pop the question to her if he doesn't happen to run across some other girl that he likes better.

HORSE DIES; KILLS SELF

KANSAS CITY, June 17.—(AP)—Misaji Kawahara, a Japanese truck farmer living near here, committed suicide by hanging himself early today when he learned that his horse, to which he was much attached, was dead. Kawahara's horse became excited during a thunderstorm last night and choked itself to death in its effort to break away from a tree to which it was tied.

Kawahara removed the rope from the halter, fastened one end of it to the tree and dropped to his death.

KILLS PLAYMATE

BALTIMORE, June 17.—(AP)—Six-year-old Frederick Parker shot and killed Virgil Beeler, Jr., a three-year-old playmate, because "Virgie would not go home."

The shooting occurred in the Parker residence, the youngster managing to fire his father's .32 caliber revolver, obtained from his sister, Edith, five. The children are the youngest homicide principals on record here, police said.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

SINCERE

My friends, my method may be wrong,
It may not even work.
I may not really get along
As well as those who smirk
And smile and grin at all they meet,
Their tempers permanently sweet.

I like to grin at those I like,
Yet other folks I find,
Yes, now and then a kind I strike
Of quite another kind:
And, when I think a man a fool,
I guess I show it, as a rule.

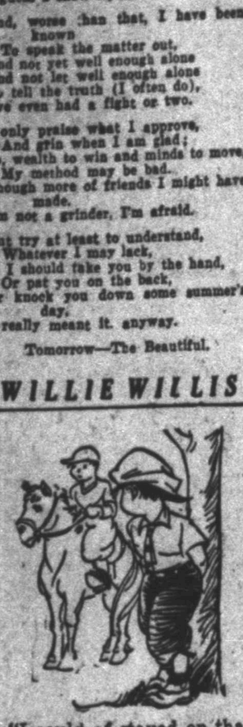

And, worse than that, I have been known
To speak the matter out,
And not yet well enough alone
And not let well enough alone
To tell the truth (I often do),
I've even had a fight or two.

I only praise what I approve,
And grin when I am glad;
So, wealth to win and minds to move,
My method may be bad.
Though more of friends I might have made.
I'm not a grinder, I'm afraid.

But try at least to understand,
Whatever I may lack,
If I should take you by the hand,
Or pat you on the back,
Or knock you down some summer's day,
I really meant it, anyway.

Tomorrow—The Beautiful.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What is drumlin?
2. What is a cirque?
3. What is an esker?
4. What is an estuary?
5. What is a delta?
6. What is a morain?

A GEOLOGICAL HOAX

For a long time after the theory of a continental glacier had first been proposed, people laughed at it and tried to prove that the drumlins and cirkers and cirques were due to the work of the sea or of volcanic action. In the end, however, it was found that only a glacier could explain the peculiar formations with which North America and northern Europe are dotted. However, the glacial theory can sometimes go too far. In New England geologists spent years trying to figure out how a very long regular hill could have been formed by a glacier. Finally somebody cut into the hill and found it a mass of cinders. It was nothing but an old railroad embankment which had been grown over with weeds and trees after its abandonment.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Uranium is a rare mineral and chemical element found in pitchblende which has radio-active properties.
2. A halogen is a chemical element that forms a salt when combined with a metal; the four halogens are chlorine, Fluorine, iodine and bromine.
3. Chemical and sublimation is passing of any substance from a solid to a gaseous state without first becoming a liquid. Camphor and mothballs sublime in this way.
4. A molecule is the smallest particle into which a substance may be separated without destroying its chemical identity.
5. An atom is the smallest particle of a pure chemical element; atoms combine to form the molecules of a mixed chemical.
6. Barium is a yellowish-white very soft metal and forms one of the rarer alkaline earths.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE
GEMINI

Today's planetary aspects are favorable until late in the afternoon. Then they become overcast, and denote adverse influences that will more affect the emotions than activities. During the day the task that you have had in mind for some long time past, but have not, for one reason or another, put into execution, can be essayed with every probability of ultimate success, provided always that it does not imply speculation or risk. Even ordinary routine work will be benefitted by the conditions that prevail at this time. In the evening, resort should be had to recreation and relaxation, as there will otherwise be sensed an urge to cavil or to find fault.

Children born today will enjoy during infancy, ordinary physical conditions. Just prior to reaching their 'teens, they are liable to suffer from at least one serious illness that will take time in yielding to the prescribed remedies; they promise, however, to attain a normal adulthood. According to the signs they will possess temperamental dispositions and their environment will exercise an exceptionally strong influence on their characters. They will be very assiduous in the study of those subjects of learning that appeal to them, and success can safely be predicted for them, if they are allowed, without restraint, to choose their own career.

If today is your birthday, you lack aggressiveness and self-assurance and stand sadly in need of more self-confidence. You possess rather an unusual degree of ability, but your inherent diffidence often causes you to step aside for those with inferior qualifications. Your pleasing manner, at all times suave and never dictatorial, wins many friends for you, and all who know you hold you in the highest regard and esteem. You, although having very decided and usually reasonable convictions, never air them in public, and you are generally content to tacitly agree with others—even with those who express themselves contrarily with your own ideas.

The lack of aggressiveness displayed in your love. You pertain to be the clinging type, and are never compelling. It is fair to assume, and it is also to be hoped, that your mate will be of the masterful type. If this be so, such a combination should result successfully, as a happy medium will thereby be established.

LITTLE KNIGHTMARES WE ALL GO THROUGH

(Asking HER to Be Your Wife)
By R. S. T.

Russell—For hours dear, I've been trying to get up enough courage to ask you something—

The Girl—I'm sorry, but I simply CAN'T go to the dance with you tonight.

Russell (desperately)—It isn't that dear. It's far more important—something my future happiness depends on! Will you—(sudden gulp)—hold my hat a minute?

The Girl—Hold your what? Hat! Why simply put it on the davenport table, silly! What ails you? There's a queer light in your eyes—are you ill?

Russell—That light in my eyes is caused by my wild and passionate—(horrible fear)—glasses. My glasses you know, hurt my eyes.

The Girl—You don't wear glasses! Now stop this beating around the bush and SAY it!

Russell—Will you marry—er—I mean will you be merry if I tell you a joke? Er—what I meant to say was—will you be my—partner at the dance tomorrow night?

The Girl—So sorry, but I have a date to go with my fiancee—Herbert—the man I'm going to marry. You'll just love Herbert, I know, when you meet him. He's so direct, and outspoken.

HEARST FILES SUIT

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—(AP)—William Randolp Hearst, the publisher, acting for his son, William R. Hearst, Jr., filed a libel suit in superior court here yesterday demanding $125,000 damages from the Record Publishing company, Henry R. Briggs, managing editor of the Los Angeles Record, and Rodney L. Brink, city editor.

The complaint alleges that young Hearst was libeled June 10 in a news story which conveyed the idea that he had been "named on police books in connection with a criminal offense," that he had been on a "wild party" and that he had failed to return a rented automobile.

The suit was the outgrowth of a story about A. Herbert Joyce being injured in a wrecked car which he said had been rented by Hearst.

SOCIETY

Impressive Memorial Ceremonies Held Here For IOOF Lodge Members

One of the most elaborate and impressive memorial ceremonies ever held by members of the local I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges was the first of the week at the I. O. O. F. hall when the Electra and Iowa Park chapters joined in the program given for the deceased members of the past year.

Judge R. D. Sartin delivered the principal address, speaking in an impressive and eloquent manner of the departed members. His talk was preceded by a lovely ceremony put on by the drill team and taken part in by the Electra and Iowa Park visitors. The hall was decorated in the lodge colors of pink and white, and those taking part in the drill wore white dresses and head pieces.

At the appointed time, with Mrs. D. Dellis, retired state musician of the order at the piano, the doxology was sung after which the procession filed in as follows: Mrs. McNeely and Mrs. Autrey and escorts formed an arch for Mrs. Ada Ramsey, vice-president of the Rebekah Assembly of Texas, toastmistress of ceremonies, who passed to her office.

Next came Mrs. Hemby, chaplain, and then Mrs. Kate Russell and the three links, Mesdames Zona Owens, Dessie James, Ada McAda and Mattie Vaughn, banner bearers. Miss Maude Soule, national flag bearer, with Miss Fannie Colboth, carrying the altar scarf with Mrs. W. J. Holder, escort. Mrs. Ella Ramsey, basket bearer and Mrs. Brown deposited flowers for the Iowa Park departed members, while Mrs. McMullen deposited them for the Electra members and Miss Katherine Smith for the Wichita Falls.

They were placed for Bro. E. A. Dale of Iowa Park; sister Lee Hudson of Electra, and W. E. Rowe, John Kierns, C. C. Mathew and J. W. Stevens of Wichita Falls.

Songs Are Sung.

The program included a song "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," sung by a trio composed of Miss Irene Keller, Morgan Hall and George Taylor; a paper on "Love," Mrs. Ada Ramsey; another song by the same trio, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus;" a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. Hemby; a song and taps given by the bugler, and a solo, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," George Taylor.

The program was concluded with a song by the audience and prayer. An unusually large crowd was present.

Girl Reserve Delegates Return From Encampment

Delegates from the Girl Reserve clubs of the Y. W. C. A. have returned from the encampment held at Palacious. The girls reported a good time and an instructive conference where they heard national workers. Wichita Falls won distinction through the efforts of the six representatives who were active in the convention work.

Wilton Wawe and Marjorie Bright were members of the executive council; Miss Bright was also one of the life savers and helped in swimming; Rita Bob Turner and Jane Moore were reporters on the paper issued daily by the 165 delegates from five southern states; Evelyn Hardeman was circulation manager of the "Palomar Palm Leaf," and secretary of one of the eleven discussion groups. Edna Bobo was one of the authors of the message left by the girls for the encampment of 1927.

Thought Malaria Still in System

Until Dodson's Liver Tone Drove Out Quarts of Sour Bile and Other Poisons

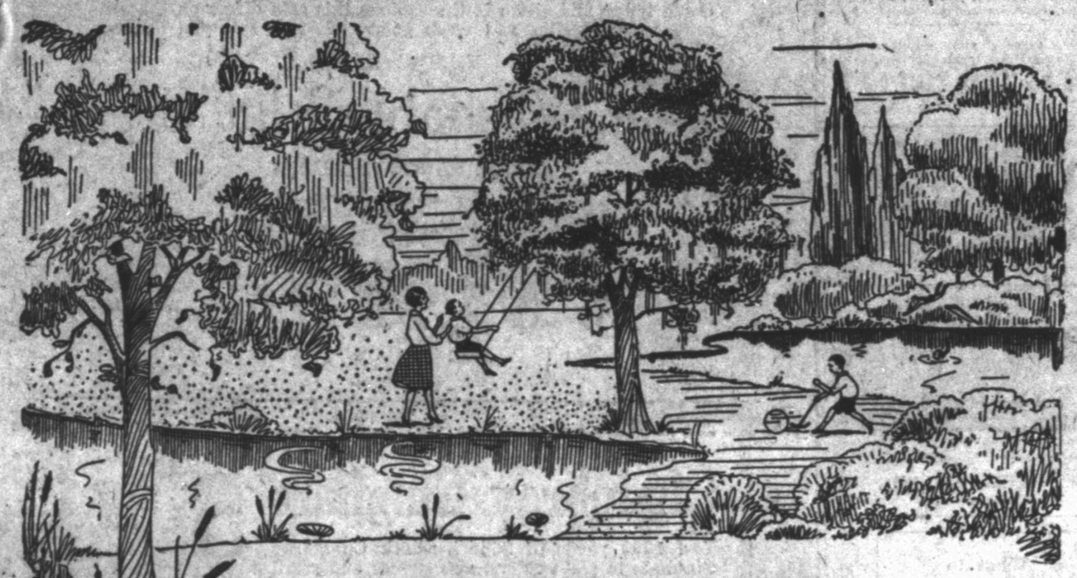

There are entire sections where everyone seems to think they have malaria. Others believe that they never fully got the marrarial poison out of their systems.

Arnold Whiteson says: "For years I took calomel for the aches, biliousness, headache, constipation and the deathly feeling associated with what we believed to be malaria.

Last year I heard about Dodson's Liver Tone and bought a bottle for a few cents. Man, man, what a God-send. In the morning it drove out quarts of black sour bile. I got back my appetite for food, braced right up and haven't had a sick spell since. Whenever I feel a little bilious or the stomach gets sour, one dose of Dodson's Liver Tone is all I need. It is surely a blessing."

Hundreds of others tell the same experience.

Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP) The department of justice was assailed in the house today by Representative Connally, democrat, Texas, for sanctioning the recent merger of the Associated Oil company with the Tidewater Oil company and the Standard Oil company of New York with the General Petroleum corporation.

"It is notorious," he said, "that gasoline prices have materially increased within a very recent time. If the increase is such as to justify the president in asking for an investigation by the federal trade commission, it seems that the truth could at least in part be arrived at by turning over to the house the secret information in the files of the department of justice upon which was based approval of two significant mergers of large oil properties."

BIG RALLY

pected. The meeting will mark the sixth chapter in a week that has been more full politically, perhaps than any preceding year in the city's history.

"There is a well defined and growing sentiment for Davidson in north Texas, Judge J. S. Dickey, manager of the Davidson campaign in this section, stated Thursday. The sentiment, I believe, is confined to an element whose pre-election noise will never exceed the racket of the Ferguson-Moody embroglio.

"Mr. Davidson's speeches are entirely free from the 'mudslinging' which has characterized other campaigners. It is always his attempt to present the issues as he sees them, in the orderly dignified manner that has always characterized his tenure of office and conduct at home and abroad. This aspect, alone of his campaign is drawing innumerable votes from other forces. I believe. I do not believe that a single vote ever leaves Mr. Moody for Mrs. Ferguson or vice-versa, disappointment or repudiation of either of those candidates meaning merely another vote for Davidson."

The Committee.

A complete reception committee for Mr. Davideon was announced Thursday afternoon. It follows:

GOREE, June 17.—Lynch Davidson flivvered through miles of water today to keep his speaking engagement at Goree and on arrival here, found a thousand friends, many of whom had struggled like the candidate through long stretches of flooded roads to reach the rendezvous. Over a dozen towns sent delegations, two bringing bands. The unprecedented rains of the past few days have covered the highways for mile after miles in the level stretches around Munday, Goree and neighboring points. Davidson's car stuck three times because of water on the highway reaching the engine. However, he covered 200 miles for the day and made three speeches, reaching each place on time, Goree at 11 o'clock, Stamford at 2:30 in the afternoon and Haskell at 8 o'clock at night. Wednesday night he spoke at Albany. Friday he goes to Seymour for an afternoon speaking.

Delegations Appear.

Among the towns sending delegations to the gathering at Goree were Knox City, Benjamin, Haskell, Rule, Stamford, Munday, Somerton, Throckmorton, Albany and Seymour.

Rule and Munday delegations were accompanied by their bands. Speaking at Stamford this afternoon Davidson replied to Ferguson's recent statement that 'Davidson is a good man," by advising his hearers, "Vote for anybody before you vote for Moody." His statement that "If I am elected governor, I will be governor for all the people, not for any political or business interest," drew prolonged applause as did his added statement that, "Nobody has contributed a cent toward my campaign expenses and nobody will if I can help it."

He declared the practice of spending huge sums of money to elect a candidate to the state welfare and asserted date is disastrous to the state welfare and asserted that he will urge reform of the election laws to do away with the present complicated system and make it possible for a poor man to run for a state office without obligating himself to anyone for financial support.

Busy Day Friday.

Tomorrow will be one of the busiest days Davidson has spent in his campaign. His big meeting of the week is at Wichita Falls tomorrow night, but he will make several side excursions during the day. He will stop at Seymour at 2 p. m. for a short talk. At 3 p. m. Lawrence Shields will take him by automobile to Electra where he will speak about 20 minutes. He will then be taken into Wichita Falls for dinner at the Wichita club and at 8:15 p. m. will speak in Bellvue park.

It was announced that delegations from the following towns would go to Wichita Falls for the meeting: Henrietta, Bellevue, Archer City, Electra, Newcastle, Burkburnett, Childress, Vernon, Quanah, Chillicothe, Oklaunion, Seymour and Clarendon.

SCOTT AT NINTH

VARIETY READY FOR OLYMPIC

Stunts, Music and All Other Elements Are Mixed In.

A variety of stunts, novelty acts and humor is offered in the Olympic vaudeville together with the picture "Seven Sinners," with Marie Prevost, beginning tonight, and lasting through Saturday.

La Rose and La Rose present a routine of trapeze and ladder balancing. They perform some remarkable feats with ease and grace. A comely maid and clever comedy chap are a riot, different from the ordinary kind of fun. La Rose and La Rose are aerial acrobats and feel just as much at home in midair as they do on the ground.

Toney Deosto is one of the most clever trick harpists in vaudeville. He does all manner of tricks with his harp and is a real musician on his chosen instrument. Plenty of comedy is introduced.

A charming miss with an abundance of personality is Arlene Francis. Her impressions of famous stars is most entertaining. Her witty chatter is bound to create roars of laughter and will please the most fastidious.

Jimmie and Bessie Swor of the famous minstrel family of Swors will be one of the feature attractions on the current vaudeville bill. They are offering their famous and popular black and tan skit "From Down Yonder."

The Dobas Duo are from Europe and are recognized as among the foremost in their line. They do many remarkable feats and the lady supports a heavy pole while the man does his work, balanced in the air. They also do head to head balancing. It is an act while it only runs eight minutes that contains a world of novelties that are bound to appeal to the enthusiasm and entertainment of the audience.

Marie Prevost At Her Best In 'Seven Sinners'

Marie Prevost has run the gamut of motion pictures, all the way from the days when she was a Mack Sennett bathing beauty to the time she won recognition as one of the deftest comediennes the screen has ever produced in the Lubitsch production of "The Marriage Circle" and "Kiss Me Again," and as an emotional actress of the first rank in "Recompense."

It is as a comedienne that she stars in her latest picture, "Seven Sinners," the Warner Brothers classic of the screen, which is at the Olympic Friday and Saturday. And the gay, brisk pace of her acting carries with it a zest that sweeps along the production into a mad whirl of hilarity.

Finland's new ice breaker proved so effective that the many ships that were frozen in the harbor all winter, which was the most severe in years, have been able to leave.

When Bill had first recovered his greatest loss, his first Pinto Pony, he found a pair of spurs.

These spurs have never been off Patton's boots when before the camera or on his ranch.

When L. V. Evarts submitted a story to Patton entitled, "The Lucky Spurs" he had no idea that the title would attract Mr. Patton. After reading "The Lucky Spurs" Patton immediately arranged for its production.

The result is a thrilling western adventure which will be shown at the Palace theatre on Saturday.

Roaring Comedy Shown in Film At the Mission

Sparkling with comedy, throbbing thrills and agog with action, "Hands Across the Border," Fred Thomson's most recent starring vehicle, swings into the Mission theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The picture is heralded by critics as the best thing the popular western star has done, wherefore F. B. O. expects that it will leave the public limp with laughter; which it probably will! No western luminary has ever flashed into prominence whose pictures were so redolent of mirth as Mr. Thomson's. Coupled in the betting both for chuckles and thrills is Silver King, Fred's famous horse, who has an even more important role in the production than usual. Much of the action revolves around a smuggling ring which is operating near the Mexican border, but while it scintillates with speed, the picture is more outstanding as a mirth producer than in any other respect, David Kirkland directed. The strong supporting cast includes such eminent thespians as Tyrone Power, Bess Flowers, William Courtwright, Clarence Geldert and Tom Santschi.

Human Note Is Dominant in Film 'For Heaven's Sake'

The humanization of screen comedy can be directly attributed to Harold Lloyd. He, more than any other individual in filmdom, has been responsible for lifting the movie fun-makers out of the rut of "slapstick" and elevating them to the high plane they enjoy today.

The process of evolution, which has been steadily advanced through "Grandma's Boy," "Safety Last," "Hot Water" and "The Freshman," is continued with his initial Paramount release appropriately entitled "For Heaven's Sake!" This picture starts at the Strand today.

Advance reports indicate that the human note so dominant in all of Lloyd's previous productions is again a fundamental factor in his latest comedy. Underlaying the uproarious fun and comic foolery is a wholesome thought that gives the photoplay an appealing flavor.

Briefly, the story is that of a rich boy who discovers after a life of idle ease and luxury that real happiness is to be found in helping others. His experiences in the slums of a big city, where he goes to assist a hard-working though none too successful missionary, are hysterically humorous, yet get over the thought Lloyd sought to impress when he started to make the picture.

Jobyna Ralston, who added feminine distinction to several of Lloyd's former successes, again lends her charm and beauty to the role of leading lady. It is for love of her that Harold goes through many laughable trials and tribulations in his effort to reform a group of hardboiled gangsters.

The story was written especially for Lloyd by Ted Wilde, John Grey and Clyde Bruckman. Sam Taylor wielded the megaphone.

BUTTE VOTERS

in an interview in which he declared, "as chairman of the party in this county I absolutely refuse to recognize or abide by that part of the resolutions passed by the executive committee which seeks to disfranchise any democrat who did not vote for Mrs. Ferguson in the last general election.

"That part of the resolution is wholly illegal, unfair, and unjust. There is no provision for it in the Terrell election laws, and as far as I am able there will be no observance of its sentiment in any Wichita county election precinct."

Since the fight last Monday in the executive committee meeting on the third part of the resolution committee's report with its inference that the Butte bolters of 1924 might not be allowed to vote in the democratic primaries there has been considerable discussion in political circles as to just whether the resolution will serve its evidently intended purpose of exclusion or not.

Others Join In.

A number of county chairmen over the state have declared there will be no enforcement of the exclusion favored by the resolution. Among these is the county chairmen of Harris county, a county in which the Butte vote in 1924 was notably large. Butte, it will be remembered also carried Wichita county by a small majority in the general election of that year.

The resolution of the executive committee is described by some as "toothless" in that there apparently is no provision for enforcement of the exclusion—the election officials are merely informed that it is the belief of the committee they should apply as a test of a man's democracy and his qualification to vote in a democratic primary his former support of the party's nominees.

Election judges and their assistants are just this week being notified of their appointments, members of the sheriff's department being engaged now in the service of commissions authorized by the county commissioners upon application of the county democratic and republican committees last February. Applications for places on either the republican or democratic tickets must be in before Saturday night at mid-night for county and precinct offices, district candidates having already filed some time ago.

The county democratic committee will meet some time during the coming week for final adjudication of places on the ballot and for decision on other pre-election matters. That the third part of the report of the resolutions committee of the state executive committee will come up for discussion is not only admitted possible, but very probable.

DEATH STALKS IN FT. WORTH

Scissors Case Latest to Occupy Attention of Police.

FORT WORTH, June 17.—(AP)—After six months of unprecedented quiet, Fort Worth's record of violent deaths reached four in two days Thursday night with the fatal stabbing of Mrs. S. J. Cummings, 45, wife of a tailor, against whom a murder charge was filed shortly afterwards. Cummings, 47, was held without bond. The couple had been married nearly a quarter of a century. A daughter graduated from high school earlier in the month.

Police are holding a pair of bloody scissors as evidence in the case they are making against Cummings. He exhibited a large knot on his forehead which he said was caused by being struck with a sewing machine drawer. Reports of eyewitnesses varied, some declaring that Mrs. Cummings was stabbed, others that the scissors were thrown at her. The fatal wound entered the back and is believed to have reached the heart.

Three persons died of pistol wounds here Wednesday, Mrs. J. W. Thomason, 28, and J. F. Wood, 55, shot with the same weapon, and E. G. Storms, Houston, found dying in a small hotel.

Standard Oil Heads in Amarillo Steering Clear, They Say

Special to the Record News.

AMARILLO, June 17.—Oil and politics failed to mix here Thursday when Walter C. Teagle, of New York, president of Sandard Oil company, told the fraternity the Panhandle field holds unlimited possibilities, and S. B. Hunt, vice president and treasurer of the Standard company immediately afterward declared, "The Standard Oil company is not in politics. It doesn't pay."

He Flays Lynch

Mr. Hunt termed "ridiculous" the charges of Lynch Davidson, candidate for governor, affecting Standard Oil domination under senate bill 180.

Both President Hunt and Mr. Teagle expressed the belief the vast Panhandle field is linked in unbroken line with the field on University of Texas lands in Reagan, Crane and Upton counties.

President Teagle and Dan Moody were in the same hotel for dinner but did not meet.

Speaks to Rotary

Burdis Anderson of the Sheldon school, representative from the National Laundry Owners' Association, was the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club Thursday at the Kemp hotel when he discussed the "Golden Rule of Religion." He was introduced by Rotarian Harry Gray.

A group of piano numbers were played by Misses Evelyn and Dorothy McCloud. They were nitroduced to the club by Leonard Grayson, program chairman for the day.

Announcement was made by R. E. Penick that work for boys between the ages of 14 and 16 is wanted, and asked the club to notify him, John Gould or J. H. Allison of any available work.

One hundred and eleven reservations have been made on the Wichita Falls train to Amarillo for the West Texas chamber of commerce convention, according to Hubert M. Harrison of the chamber of commerce. More than 50 others are expected to go by automobile to the meeting.

Eight Golfers Left In S.G.A. Tourney

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 17.—(AP)—Eight southern amateur golfers tonight stood on the threshold of the third round of match play in the championship flight of the annual tournament of the southern golf association after a day which carried six of the eight matches to the 17th green or beyond.

Two of the matches went to the 19th where Emmett Spicer, Memphis laid his second shot close to the hole and won a concession from W. C. Harre, also of Memphis, after he had missed his putt for a four. There also Moreland Smith of Atlanta, won from George Strickfadden, Memphis, one up.

L. B. Jones, Memphis, in one of his upsets of the day, beat R. G. Bush, Jr., New Orleans, on the 18th, while three other matches ended at the 17th hole.

Glenn Criesman, Selma, Ala., title holder, beat F. J. Heath, Charlotte. Bill Tyne, Nashville, downed Gordon Gibbons, Tampa and Nelson Giddens, Memphis, won from Frank Nelson, Birmingham, two up and one to play. Another Memphis player, Frank Dyer, eliminated a fellow townsman, Vance Norfleet four and three and F. L. Connor, Dallas, triumphed over J. T. Bybee, Knoxville six and five.

CHICAGO BOWS FOR BONZANO

Pope's Legate to Great Eucharist Congress Reaches City

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Carrying a message from the Pope of Rome, John Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate to the 28th international eucharistic congress arrived here today and was greeted by a multitude of more than 200,000 persons who jammed and crowded along a three-mile stretch of Michigan boulevard in their enthusiastic reception.

A din of locomotive whistles, automobile horns, military bands, church bells and other noise making devices augmented the cheering thousands who gazed upon the smiling face of Cardinal Bonzano and Cardinal Mundelein, who greeted his guest. They rode side by side in their robes of office to the home of the latter and to the cathedral of the holy name through milling throngs were the vicar of the pope made it evident that all the glories and splendor which has met since his arrival in this country last week was no more than trifling. For, entering the cathedral he knelt in prayer of thanksgiving for his safe arrival.

Great Reception.

The red special which brought Cardinal Bonzano and eight fellow cardinals from New York was accorded perhaps the greatest ovation in the history of the city.

In a magnificent setting at the cathedral of the holy name, the formal welcome of Cardinal Mundelein constituted the first rites incident to the eucharistic ceremonies.

Throngs six to ten deep which lined the route of the procession from the station swept through the police lines at several points, halting the column until pathfinding machines could nose through the surging mass of humanity.

Squads of motorcycle police surrounding the legate's car were unequal to the insistence of the enthusiastic crowds who pressed forward to touch the scarlet robes.

FREDERICK, June 17.—Persons in charge of the chrysanthemum show that is to be given this fall under the auspices of the parent-teacher's organizations of this city, are preparing a prize list which will be announced soon.

Much interest is being manifested in the event.

DOTY NOT TO FACE DEATH

American, Deserter in Syria, Holds All Confidence

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 17.—(AP) Bennett J. Doty, the American who fought with the French foreign legion in Syria, but deserted, "not through cowardice, but homesickness," as he puts it, is awaiting trial by court martial. Assurances have been given, however, that he stands in no danger of suffering the extreme penalty, which the military law provides for desertion as extenuating circumstances have arisen, and officials of the United States have used every effort for clemency in his behalf.

Doty is confined in the citadel built in the thirteenth century, the wall of which averages eight or ten feet in thickness. He seems well off in one respect as the citadel is much cooler than the city of Damascus where the temperature is between 100 and 105 Fahrenheit in the shade.

"There is no dampness here," Doty told a correspondent of the Associated Press today. Doty is a native of Biloxi, Miss., but enlisted under the name of Gilbert Claire of Memphis, Tenn., in the foreign legion where he had a record for bravery.

According to his tale today he became discouraged and, overcome by acute homesickness he quit his post. "But," he explained, "I realized my error and surrendered to the first post of gendarmes on the trans-Jordanian frontier."

THE VOICE OF THE PURIST

In the National league formerly was an umpire who was a stickler for correct deportment on the diamond. In a game in which he officiated at the polo grounds, Chief Meyers, the Indian catcher for New York, came to bat. Certain of the Boston players sitting on their bench began to guy the brawny red man.

In an instant the umpire had left his place behind the catcher and was running toward the visitors' bombproof.

"Cut out them personalities!" he ordered. "Cut out them personalities!"

As he turned away a high pitched voice filtered out from the grand stand behind him, saying:

"Cut out them grammar!"

SAN ANTONIO, June 17.—(AP) An undertaker whose ambulance collided with a wagon, demolishing it, promised the owner of the latter a free burial when the victim of his negligence died, the wagon owner testified Thursday in corporation court. Therefore, he asked Judge J. F. Onion that the undertaker not be fined.

"I can always live happily in the knowledge that I shall have a decent burial with flowers and music and all," he said.

Although the judge conceded this was a consoling thought, he ruled the undertaker was guilty of negligent collision, and fined him $10 for this infraction and $15 more for operating a vehicle under influence of liquor.

BOBBY JONES AMAZES WITH SCORE OF 134

American Amateur Links Champ Balks British Talent

SUNNINGDALE, Eng., June 17.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, the American amateur champion, emblazoned his name on the pages of British golf history today with the amazing aggregate of 134 for the 36 holes of the qualifying rounds for the open championship.

These were completed at the Sunningdale and St. Anne's courses, and Jones, playing at Sunningdale, led his 14 fellow American amateurs and professionals through a baptismal fire in the preliminary tests with only two casualties, Silas Newton and Joe Steen fell by the wayside, the former losing out by only two strokes, and the latter by seven.

Walter Hagen, the American professional, headed the qualifiers over the St. Anne's course with 143. The Americans generally were well up among the leaders, but Bobby Jones was so far ahead of al lof them that there is much speculation about the situation which may develop during the open championship if the ace of the American amateurs repeats something of the brilliance he displayed in the qualifying round during the actual championship play where it is intended to have all competitors drop out if they are 15 strokes behind the leader at the end of 36 holes. Qualifying scores do not count in the 72-hole play for the title.

The remarkable record set by Jones was made up of his amazing card of 66 turned in on the first 18 holes yesterday when he bettered the record for the course by four strokes, and 68 today. This is a low score for two rounds, which, it is declared, stands alone in the annals of British golf.

ALL-TIME GOLF MARK

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, American amateur champion, created an all-time golf record for title play when he finished his qualifying round for the British open title today at Sunningdale, with a total of 134, a 6 that broke the record for the difficult course yesterday and a 68 today.

The late Douglas Edgar put together 69 and 66 in the Canadian championship of 1919 and Emmet French now playing for the British title, registered the same aggregate in 1922 in the Ohio state championship.

Cards Win Pair

BOSTON, June 17.—(AP)—St. Louis took both games of a holiday twin bill from the Braves today by scores of 4 to 2 and 6 to 2. Rhem allowed the warriors only six hits in the first game and Keen duplicated his performance in the twilight encounter. Bottomley's batting accounted for three of the visitors' runs in the first game, and his sensational fielding was a feature of the second. Score:

Kitties Riled At Cub Affront, Get Revenge 14 to 2

Panther Bats Hit Hard and Often as North Limits Waco.

FORT WORTH, June 17.—The Cats took sweet revenge upon the Waco Cubs Thursday for daring to take the first of the three-game series Tuesday, trouncing the Wacoans 14 to 2. The Felines, however, did not seem to be thoroughly raised until Lou North was knocked cold by a hot liner in the eighth, whereupon the Panthers fell to and ran in eight runs to avenge their hurler.

North allowed eight hits but only two runs during the seven innings he pitched, while Dennie Burns, who relieved him, allowed only two hits and no runs in the final frames. Elliott was allowed to take his medicine to the last bitter drop yielding 17 hits.

The win put the Cats above the .500 mark for the second time since the beginning of the series. Eddie Moore, Ezzell, Lindemore and Windle got three safeties each during the slaughter. Score:

ONE RAY OF HOPE.

Irish George Hodgins, commander-in-chief of the city's constabulary, has his own ideas about the wrassels. This evening's melees will be run off under the "Marquis of Packing House" rules, and police protection—to an extent—should be and will be furnished the referee, he says.

TO THE AMATEURS.

Wichita Falls and county amateur baseball teams are invited to participate in the Panhandle championship tournament scheduled for Amarillo August 14 under direction of the Globe-News Publishing company, writes John L. McCarty, Amarillo sports editor.

McCarty's letter speaks for itself. Twilight team managers who may be interested in the tournament should read it. The missive follows:

"Blondy Cross,
"The Record News.
"Dear Blondy:

"I am glad to advise you that the bugs here are solidly behind you in your little body and jaw attack against Mr. Roberts. It was an excellent piece of repartee.

"I am inclosing a copy of our tournament rules and want your help.

"The tournament will be held August 14-22 inclusive and it will pay the first team between $1,500 and $2,000 and the next four in proportion. I want an entry from Wichita Falls, preferably your leading city league team, if that team is available.

"Excursions to the oil fields, the gas fields, the oil field resort towns, the Palo Duro canyons and other places of interest will be made while the teams are not playing and there will be abundant places for outdoor camping, fishing etc.

"Dallas will have a team in the tourney and in view of the friendly relations between Amarillo and Wichita Falls and the fact that about one-half of your oil men and real estate operators are moving here I would like to have a Wichita Falls entry. It would be of great help to both cities and the tournament.

"Will you help me out in this matter and give me the names of the managers of the Wichita Falls teams so that I may extend them a personal invitation. Assuring you that anything you can do will be greatly appreciated, and the favor returned if possible, I am,

"Yours truly,
"JOHN L. McCARTY."

Mac's reference to the so-called body and jaw attack on Mr. Roberts is a follow-up of an answer carried in these columns recently to a letter from Doak Roberts, Texas league president, informing me that if I made any more remarks about the lack of efficiency on the part of seven out of nine Texas league umpires my resignation as one of the league's official scorers would be asked for immediately. Doak also threatened to fine the Wichita Falls team "for any more trouble made by me."

DATES MAY CONFLICT.

Since Wichita Falls amateurs are affiliated with the Texas amateur athletic federation it may not be possible for the city champs to enter the Amarillo tournament. The Wichita Falls winners probably will have their hands full combatting pennant winners in other federation cities. It is possible other teams in Wichita Falls will avail themselves of the opportunity to join in the Amarillo meet. Should any team managers wish to do so they should write McCarty in care of the Globe Publishing company.

HEH, HEH, HEH.

One of the woof-woof boys the other night at the White-Sparks fight caused the ringsiders quite a bit of amusement. Apparently, old woofem had a few nickels down on Speedy to win. As the mill wore along and White got better and better, agonized wails emanated from this lad. Along about the seventh or eighth, Tommy opened a short-arm attack, the feature of which was a series of left upper cuts to Sparks' chin at close quarters. Woofem got excited, decided Thomas wasn't fighting right, so everytime White rocked Speedy's dome back with the upward button poke, he yelped, "Dirty! Dirty! That's right, White, foul him!" From there, on each sock to the jaw if delivered by Whitey was labelled a loud "foul."

Fandom laughed. It should have sympathized with the spineless referee who apologized before giving a decision at the close of the Monte-Humphries scrap, and then rendered one he didn't want to.

Lindy's Smash With Two on Board Gives Win to Giants 6-5

NEW YORK, June 17.—The Pirates were knocked out of the league leadership here today when Lindstrom banged a homer with two on bases in the thirteenth inning giving the Giants a 6 to 5 verdict in the series opener. In the first half of the thirteenth Pittsburgh had broken a 3 to 3 tie when Rhyne hit a homer with one on. After hitting safely through 32 straight games for the longest hitting streak in the majors this season Kiki Cuyler was stopped by Fitzsimmons who went the entire distance in the box for the New Yorkers, accounting for their fourth consecutive victory. The Reds were idle today but resumed the National league peak on a two-point margin over Pittsburgh. Brooklyn's triumph over the Cubs placed the Robbins Giants and Cubs in a tie for fourth place. CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Ted Blankenship let the Yankees down with three hits today while Chicago hit Hoyt and Jones opportunely and defeated the league leaders 6 to 2, in the first game of the series. hippers Come Back In Late Stanzas To Snatch Series Final By 7 to 6

Spudders Hold 6-2 Advantage Going Into Eighth, But Hits Combine With Errors to Win

BY BLONDY CROSS.

One of our left-handers weakened. So did our outfield.

The unusual situation of a hardened set of ball bugs looking under a cloud-flecked sky along about supper time praying for rain or even snow, was developed.

For a sad, sad spectacle was unrolled and laid out before their earnestly beseeching eyes, the spectacle of a foreign aggregation of ball men, four runs in arrears, trying to snatch in the last two innings a game that all had thought was in the bag.

Copping a couple of markers in the eighth and pushing over three more in the ninth, while Spudder bats were dormant, Jeems Galloway's bopping Beaumonters clinched the final fracas. Our nine was shunted under a 7 to 6 score.

The Spudders popped the lank, long-pointed Hal Diviney, Beaumont's bean-pole pitcher, right along until the eighth, then died painlessly. Reagan walks to Turgeon and Washburn followed by Metzler's single scored the last Spudder run in the seventh and made the tabulation 6 to 2, for the domestics, the boys and girls in the upper tiers became nervous and began making gestures toward the gate, figuring the tilt was sacked and fearing they might be late in the dining room. But Galloway beat a bingle past second to start the eighth. He was forced at keystone and Deviveros grounded out but Dunning dashed a heroic one up to this point, must have felt himself slipping. For Robertson, pressed like a pinch hitter, strode to the platter and disproved the adage that looks belie, by sid-swiping a single to center. Diviney struck out, but two runners had checked at the paying counter. Reagan and Connolly biffed Bus at the start of the ninth for base bingles, so Skip Brainard called in Shovel Hodge. Everything went to the bow-wows and the world was wrong. Under the rules of base ball, Shovel is charged with a loss. Bus left the tying runs on base but the Beaumonters got one extra, got 'em all without the skeleton of a solid smack. Now that's a break for you. A sweet run of fortune for a pitcher who goes in solely to save a game for one of his brethren. Oliver, the first batter to face Hodge, bunted to the box and the throw was made to third for a forceout, but the play was safe, so ruled Umps Donohue. Galloway popped out to Jenkins and the latter with a sharp peg to the plate held the runners on. Then Davis sent a flopping roller to Turgeon who played the ball with his feet. All hands were safe and Reagan scored. Deviveros hoisted to Lamb in short center, Lambis threw home and the ball trickled through Query, but Hodge came up from somewhere behind Wray in time to scare Connolly back to third. Then Dunning refused to budge when one of Hodge's chunks got away from him. The ball caught the Skipper on the leg and it hurt, but forced in a run. Robertson followed with a slap to Brainard, a fairly well hit bounder. The boss muffed and then in frantic effort to save the day, chunked to second, but Dunning was already there. Oliver flashed across with the winning run. Then Diviney struck out again.

The Skippers started on Buster with gusto in the first frame, but subsided suddenly at behest of the Spudder infield, via the double play route. Reagan and Connolly punched bingles. Then DeFate took Connolly's bounding roller and launched the twin erasure with a toss to Turgeon at second. Galloway clattered across the plate. Diviney hit Lamb and Deviveros jungle heaved into the first base loam in attempted completion of a double play that should have functioned on Turgeon's nipper to the box. Pete cantered on to second. Jenkins singled off Diviney's dogs, sending Turgeon to third. An arching sacrifice aviation to deep right center lofted by Washburn scored Peter Eugene. Brainard followed with a full bloom double against the left center boards that sent Jenkins scurrying home. The boss checked in on Metzler's whistling one-baser to center.

Yank Davis shocked the inhabitants by opening the second with an explosive belt over the left field fence on Ross' first offering. Galloway's bruising bunch galloped around in the form of Tom Connolly during the third for another run while the Spudder battalion stared torpid. The boisterous Connolly rifted a single between Bus' legs after there was one away, went to third on Oliver's double to left that caromed off Tut's toes as he strove quite nobly to trap the ball, and scored on Galloway's unassisted out at first. Davis popped to Brainard.

Query of the home guard menaced with a wild bingle in the second and Washburn uncorked a murderous two-bagger in the third. There was nothing but deadwood contained in the rest of the Spudder bludgeons.

Frame number four proved more productive from a local angle. The Beaumonters were retired in order, whereas Lanky Hal lost his stance on the dome long enough to pass DeFate and Query with eight straight truent tosses. Ross advanced the runners with a sacrifice bunt on his third strike and Lamb coined two tallies with a blast down the left field foul line. Turgeon grounded to Reagan and Connolly pivoted at second for another double play.

HEROISM

of the welfare of others. His story, the outstanding recital of the wreck, was told by Dr. William Bents of Blairsville, one of the first to reach the scene.

Making his way through a telescoped car, Dr. Bents said he heard a man groaning in a lower berth. Nearby a woman was shrieking for help, her foot caught under a piece of steel. Several others less seriously hurt were making a loud outcry.

"From experience," continued the physician I knew that the person making the deep groans was probably worse off than those who were shrieking and I hastened to draw aside the curtains. A man, his face ghastly white, was bleeding from several wounds and was suffering from internal injuries. He looked at me and shook his head while I hastily examined his maimed body. I asked him his name. He told me he was Farrell of East Orange, N. J., and I shall never forget the name nor the voice in which he said:

"'It's no use doctor, it's no use. I'm about through and you can't do me any good, go and help those other people—these women—help them. You can do them some good but no man can help me now.'"

Meantime Alexander Ditmar of Blairsville rescued one of the women and uninjured passengers were assisting the less fortunate.

"Again Farrell waved me away," Dr. Bents said. I never saw such heroism in the face of death. During all this time and all was confusion and we were struggling in the dark, first to get the victims to the light and the air and then to place them where we could give them professional aid with the few facilities we had at hand.

"Blankets were dragged out and placed upon the ground and we lifted down the wounded as rapidly as we could. We carried the dying man out after the women had been rescued, but when we laid him down there in the open meadow beside the track and placed a blanket at his head, he passed away."

Champion P. Berlenback One Scrapper Who Gives Challengers Satisfaction of Boxing Him

BY ED HUGHES

Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, is one of the most popular of ring kings because he is not afraid to work at his grim trade. The Big Gun of Astoria has his ring faults, and this writer would not tab him a genuinely great champion because of some of them. But he is a corking good one just the same, and he possesses one quality which lifts him above even some of our truly great ring kings of the past. This is his true love of the game, which prompts him to engage any and all opponents regardless of their fighting prowess. Berlenbach is a fighting champion. That is more than you can say of many scrappers whose sheer ring talents transcended those of the present-day light-heavyweight champion.

Since winning the title the Astoria German has sidestepped no one, a rather commendable spirit in these days of non-fighting champions hypnotized by the lure of soft money in the movies and on the stage. Berlenbach has risked his title against three particularly doughty challengers since fastening the light-heavyweight bauble on his broad head, Jack Delaney, Jimmy Slattery and Young Stribling rank as opponents worthy of any champion's fighting steel, Paul might have been pardoned for attempting to dodge any or all of these dangerous ring warriers, considering the fact that the title, translated into cash, runs into many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Berly is Willing

Berlenbach, however, cheerfully accepted the gauntlet thrown down to him by these formidable contenders. Moreover, he whipped, by referee's decisions, each and all of them. Paul, in particular, was applauded for giving Jack Delaney, his erstwhile conqueror by a knockout, another chance to assert his superiority. Berlenbach was awarded a questionable decision, in this writer's eyes, over Delaney, but the fact remains that he gave Delaney another chance. There are those who believe that the Bridgeport sharpshooter could have scored another knockout had he so elected, that crafty Jack was playing for another big gate in still a third bout. But this does not alter the truth that Berly might easily have been whipped and that he was prepared to take a chance against the boxer who had once so completely humiliated him in the old Garden.

Slattery, clever and fast as sin, with a snappy punch to boot, furnished another sample of Berlenbach's willingness to cope with the best that could be sent against him. That the heavy-hitting champion really placed his title in jeopardy was indicated by the sensational mill which the two engaged in. Slattery was in the lead when he struck trouble, and was halted with the regal goal almost within reach of his gloves.

Stribling, young, powerful, and generally accounted faster and more skillful, was surely another example of Berlenbach's faith in his ability, to wear down and whip what appeared to be a real menace to his championship honors.

Berlenbach is no marvel as a boxer, and he has a chin which is none too firm against heavy wallops. But he has a devastating punch himself, and he loves to fight. His unflagging aggressiveness provides the real action of every bout in which he engages. He richly deserves the popularity which is his.

Other Fellows Gets a Chance

Berlenbach, as noted above, rates high among great ring champions, if willingness to take a chance is a powerful element of greatness. Take, for instance, the cases of some of the immortal ring kings and their attitude toward enthusiasm for giving the other fellow a shot at their fame.

Most of the mighty heavyweight champions displayed none of Berly's fighting spirit after they had ascended to the pugilistic pinnacle. Jim Jeffries was an exception. The Big Fellow was ever ready to accomodate anyone the promoters could figure had a real chance against him. He outclassed the contenders of his day owing to his extraordinary make-up and his ability to harness certain of the pure mechanics of ring fighting to his brute strength.

Fitzsimmons, Corbett and Sharkey were all thrashed twice, the first two receiving cracks at him when big Jeff was in possession of his heavyweight crown. Gus Ruhlin didn't hanker for another chance after Jeff had laid him low in five rounds with soul-searing body slams. Yet the Akron Giant could have had another fling at the giant Californian had he so desired. Jeff retired because there was nobody at hand to give him a real argument.

Fitz was Indifferent

Fitzsimmons, appraised by many critics as the greatest fighter that ever lived, was no Berlenbach in the matter of defending his title. Fitz, after whipping Corbett, laid off for two years. He was whipped by Jeffries, whom he regarded rather lightly, in his first ring engagement after his title-winning tilt with Corbett at Carson. Corbett was dead anxious for another try at Fitz, and he rated same. Yet Ruby Robert declined to acknowledge Corbett's claims, and the young Jeffries, Corbett's former sparring partner, "got him."

Corbett was very like Fitzsimmons and he had whipped John L. ——— for the premier honors of pugilism. Gentleman Jim also went into the hammock for some two years before engaging the smaller and considerably ring-worn Charlie Mitchell. After that Corbett elected to joust but three times in three years before the march of events brought him to the disastrous fray with Fitzsimmons.

Jack Johnson was fairly tolerant of the demands of his challengers. After defeating Tommy Burns, Johnson, in six years of titleholding, took on Jack O'Brien—in a six-round no-decision affair, Al Kaufman, Stanley Ketchel, Jeffries, Jim Flynn, Frank Moran and Jim Johnson.

Jess Willard was the worst of them all. Lazy Jess battled once in four years after winning the crown. That was his ten-round no-decision battle with Frank Moran in the Garden. A 20-mile team cannot drag Dempsey into the ring with Harry Wills, the one man who has ever been granted a real chance by most every one of defeating the Toledo Terror.

Were mere willingness to fight the dominating characteristic of greatness, Paul Berlenbach would be listed very close to the top with the ring champions of all classes.

Stribling's Safe and Sound Tactics In Berlenback Fight Made Little Hit With Crowd

BY ED HUGHES

Only thea brave deserve the fair, the barda tell us, and by the same token only those willing to take desperate chances ever attain the coveted titles offered by the prize ring. The timid never taste of the real dainties that Fiatiana provides in the matter of championships with all the fame, fortune and back-slapping that go wth them. At best they become boresome challengers, paying the penalty, usually, for ther shortcomings in merciless punishment administered by their more daring antagonists. Albeit ruining the evening's entertainment of thousands who pay exorbitant prices to witness a struggle in which both knights are supposed to be throbbing with the daring spirit and battle lust of a Robin Hood.

It is surprising that Young Billy Stribbling's name should fall under such an indictment. Yet to the writer's mind it does, for the usually tigerish young Georgian was anything but a Robin Hood or a Iochinvar in the Yankee stadium ring last Thursday night. After the first three rounds, as this writer saw it, Strib's chief aim seemed to be centering in effecting viselike clinches in a vain endeavor to avoid Berlenbach's crushing blows. He evinced no desire to break lances at punching range in the hearty atmosphere of knighthood daring and chance-taking.

A magnificent prize—the world's light heavyweight championship—dangled before him, inviting the true boldness of a Robin Hood in quest of romantic fortune and adventure. The invitation, however, was squandered on the timorous mood which seized and subdued the generally combative young Southerner.

No fighter ever won a title without taking chances, entering into the conflict with the gay "come-one-come-all" attitude which characterizes the demeanor of a genuine, first-class fighting man. That, in a nutshell, appeared to be the matter with Billy Stribling's dismal efforts against Champion Paul Berlenbach. There was none of the confident, cocky air hitherto familiar to Stribling's movements within ropes. The buoyant spirit which produced his clownlike jumping and enthusiasm for outroughing and outpunching the other fellow was sadly lacking. Berlenbach "had his number" from the start.

Stribling fought not only faintheartedly but stupidly as well. Fear robs the brain of its cunning as well as the muscles of their driving power. He started well, with a flash of power that should have nerved him to defeat his man. Toward the end of the first round Stribling punctured the champion's weak spot—Berlenbach's fragile chin. The same spot successfully reached by Jack Delaney and Johnny Risko, and with some lesser glory by Mike McTigue and Jimmy Slattery. A swishing right-hander from the Georgian found im pact on the Astoria Ox. Nevertheless the Berley's "button," though the pressure was not quite sufficient to down wallop bewildered and dazed the champion for some fifteen seconds, and Stribling's chances of winning right then and there seemed rosy.

Passing Up the Golden Target.

However, Stribling was not alive to his opportunity, and the golden opening soon vanished as Strib blinked, impotntly, at it. As it so developed, Stribling never again landed with such effectiveness; in fact, it was the only serious hurt, really decent blow that should have emphasized what Stribling doubtless has known—that the lower maxillary of Herr Paulie was his best target, his golden avenue to the championship citadel.

But it did nothing of the sort. Practically all of the few vigorous lunges that the challenger released after that were aimed at Berlenbach's body. The champion is not easily subdued by pounding in that direction. He was once a wrestler, and his body has developed a stamina and endurance in direct antithesis to that of his paw. Hence Stribling never took a healthy, well-schemed chance at the title after his one solid hig in the opening round.

It may be there is some other explanation for Stribling's melancholy display than the one hinted at above. He appeared to be trained down too fine, but even such a misfortune could hardly have induced such opposition as Billy offered, it would seem.

Stribling put up a real fight against Berlenbach in their first meeting, when he was supposed to be suffering from a high fever. In comparison his condition of last Thursday night was well nigh perfect, allowing for the truthfulness of the high-fever excuse. That battle resulted in an even thing after some desperate battling on both sides.

Perhaps Stribling, against Berlenbach, fisticuffs better when he is suffering from measles, high blood pressure or something. On that basis, with a well-nourished case of diphtheria Stribling might have been able to take the title from Berly at the Yankee stadium Thursday nigh.

The Labels of Doom.

More to the point, perhaps, Stribling discovered something in that first engagement that dulled the edge of his confidence and prompted his miserable showing in their return match. Berlenbach's punches, properly connected, have a "Then you'll remember me" label on them. Stribling received a few such punches in their first encounter and evidently never did get rid of the labels. It was the worst fight he ever put up, and his ring prestige suffered a heavy dent during the course of the one-sided scuffling.

LOUGHRAN PUTS IT ON GEORGES

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light-heavyweight, outpointed Georges Carpentier, French soldier-boxer, in a gruelling ten-round contest at the Municipal stadium on the sesqui-centennial exposition grounds tonight. The judges were unanimous in their verdict. About 30,000 persons witnessed the fight.

A stirring rally in the final round gave Loughran the verdict. Loughran floored the colorful Frenchman with a driving right to the jaw in the seventh round and continued his aggressiveness throughout the remainder of the contest.

In the tenth round Loughran brought blood to the Frenchman's nose with a lightning right uppercut which almost floored Carpentier and forced him to cover up to save himself from further punishment as Loughran strove to follow up his advantage.

So great was Japan's purchase of wheat in Melbourne this year that at one time fifteen Japanese vessels were loading the grain at the Melbourne docks.

Stops Chatter and Keeps The Motor Cool

When your clutch, reverse and brake bands slip and chatter, and your motor overheats, you are using the wrong oil.

The transmission bands are lubricated from the crank case by the same oil that is used in the motor. If the wrong oil is used, or if your oil is seriously diluted, these bands become oil-soaked, gummy and slick—and chattering and slipping result.

Use Flivolene—change the oil in your crank case every 500 miles—keep your transmission bands properly adjusted, and you will get the best service from your Ford at the least cost.

Flivolene is manufactured and guaranteed by the Humble Oil & Refining Company, refiners and marketers of the high-grade line of Humble Motor Oils. You can buy it wherever you see the Humble Signs.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Favorable weather and crop advices failed to stimulate general selling in the cotton market today. After easing off early to 16.27, October contracts rallied to 16.37 in the late trading closing at 16.45 compared with 16.53 at the close yesterday. While the final tone of the market was barely steady last prices showed net gains of 10 to 17 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of three to seven points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and covering. Offerings increased on the bulge however, owing to a very favorable interpretation of early weather and crop news. It was thought the prospect for showers in the south was more desirable than otherwise, as being beneficial in some parts of the eastern belt although hardly needed in other sections. The detailed reports showed a continuance of seasonable temperatures over the greater part of the belt and private advices reaching here indicated the crop was still improving. Failure of the said advices to bring in more general or aggressive selling perhaps helped to inspire covering by shorts after the early selling had been absorbed. The afternoon market was influenced by the strength of the near month position. It was pointed out that neither the improvement in crop advices nor the recent break in futures had been accompanied by any indication of increased pressure to sell tenderable grades in the south, or of shipments here for delivery on contract next month.

Friday next week will be the first July notice day here and when shorts turned for cover this afternoon they found comparatively few sellers, until the premium over October had widened to about 140 points. July sold up to 17.03, or 94 points net higher and the strength of the near month pulled December up to 16.58, or 23 points net higher. Last prices were several points off from the best under realizing.

Exports today 21,081, making 7,730,380 so far this season. Port receipts 5,814; U. S. port stocks 746,606 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today with spurts of more than ordinary animation. The general trend of prices was upward although there were several good reactions. The market opened slightly higher, gaining six points over the close of yesterday but soon eased off on continued good crop advices from the interior until values were 9 to 11 points under the early highs and three to five points under the previous close. The market then became active and advanced quite sharply on good buying by trade interests until prices were 27 to 36 points above the lows of the day and 22 to 33 points above the previous close. The market reacted eight to 13 points in the final trading and the close showed net gains for the day of 14 to 20 points.

The start was steady in sympathy with fairly good cables and in the early trading July advanced to 16.88, October to 16.00 and December to 16.05, or six points above the previous close. The market then turned easier and before mid-session July dropped to 16.80, October to 15.88 and December to 15.95, or nine to 11 points down from the early highs. These prices proved to be the lows of the day.

The market advanced in active trading after mid-session until July reached 17.25, October 16.25 and December 16.22, or 27 to 30 points above the lows. Toward the end prices reacted eight to 13 points from the highs.

Exports for the day totalled 21,081 bales.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 17.— (AP)—Wheat showed stubborn resistance to downward pressure throughout most of today's trading on the Chicago board of trade. Although prices averaged higher most of the day, the advances were hard to hold because of a lack of outside demand and the market finished weak to a loss of ¼ to ⅝c. Corn and oats held comparatively steady, but were without feature, corn finishing unchanged to ¼c off, and oats ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Provisions suffered a setback of two to 22c with the greatest loss in lard.

Corn and oats were relatively steady and moved within narrow limits. What little trading existed, was of a local character. General sentiment in corn was bearish. There was some buying of oats on the firm trend, but profit taking was encountered on the bulge.

Provisions averaged lower in price, despite a firm start. The market ran into free selling orders which caused prices to sag as buying power slackened.
