In contempt

MONAHANS — A state district judge found Ward County District Attorney David Zavoda in contempt of court for refusing to reveal to a grand jury names of confidential informants used in drug stings. The Ward County grand jury has been investigating whether Zavoda's predecessor, Hal Upchurch, misused forfeited money from drug stings. Some funds were paid to confidential informants, officials said. Zavoda remained free while Judge George Hansard of Lamesa considered an appeal for writ of habeas corpus to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals that Zavoda filed.

27 feared dead

SAN DIEGO — Two Navy submarine-hunting planes collided Thursday, and all 27 people aboard were feared dead in cold, choppy waters 60 miles off Southern California, authorities said. The Navy listed the crews as missing but there was little hope any of the crew members from the downed P-3 Orions survived. The planes were engaged in an anti-submarine warfare training exercise when they collided in bad weather, authorities said.

TRC chief sees need for state energy policy

Guerrero

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

The nation may soon have its own strategic energy policy, but Texas needs one to call its own, Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero told a gathering of Permian Basin Petroleum Association members and guests Thursday.

Guerrero, who was in Midland to visit with TRC staff and with local oil industry officials, said Texans need to understand the future of the oil industry in the state and how to drive it to that future.

"Texas needs to say: 'We know where we are going.' When we have our own energy policy it will be easier to approach Congress," she said.

A state energy policy should be broad in scope, one that covers alternative forms of energy, as well as one that promotes Texas'

Joint committee OKs school-finance plan

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

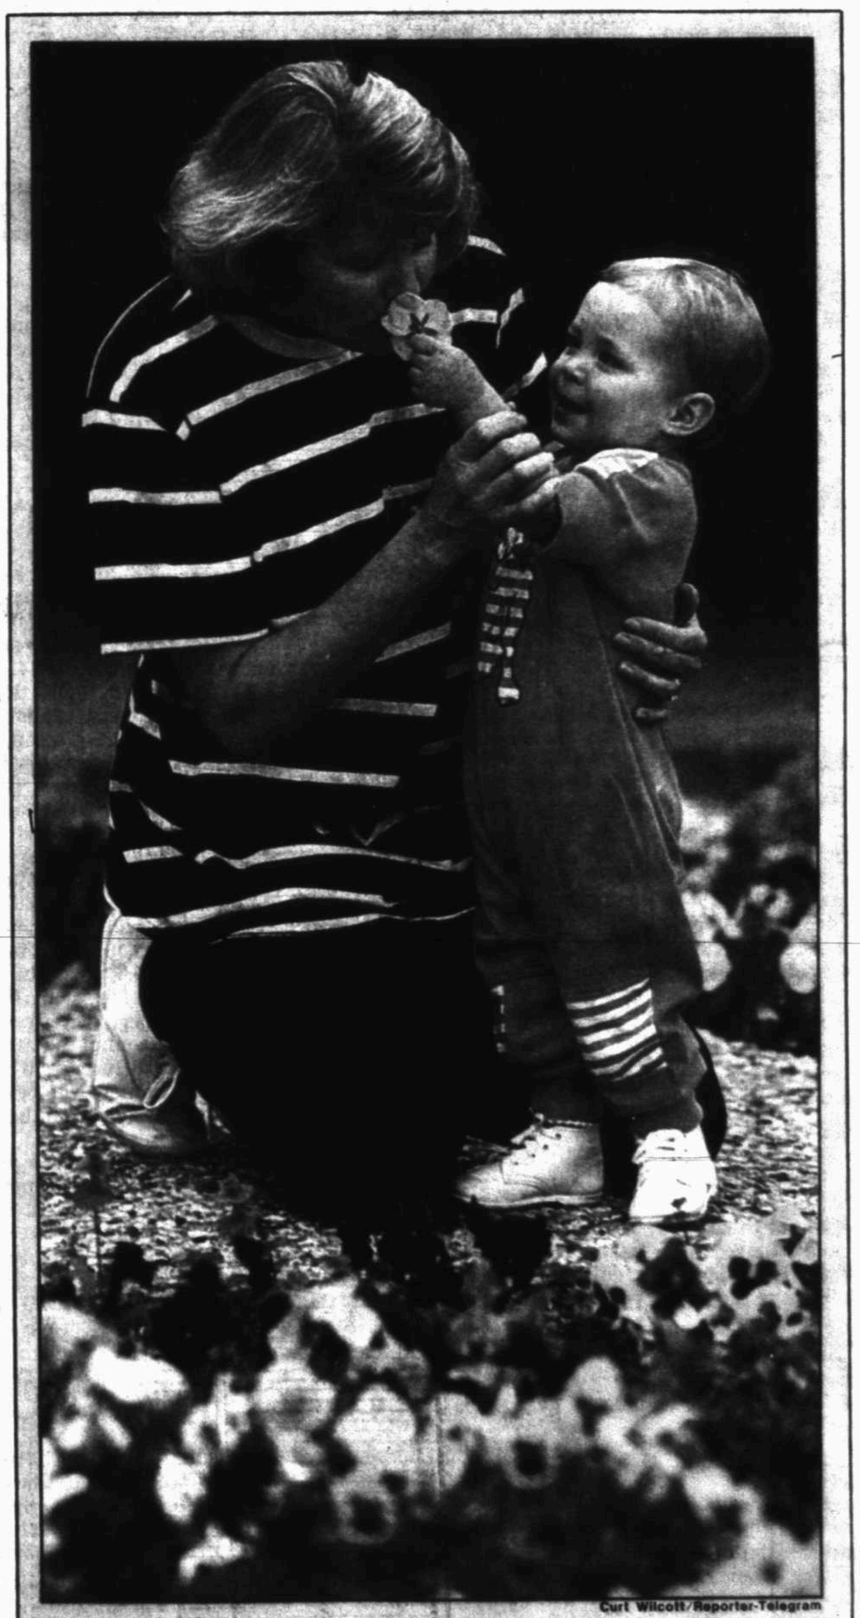

AUSTIN — A Senate-House conference committee approved a school finance equalization bill Thursday that could pour extra money into schools in Midland and Ector counties.

The bill now goes back to the Legislature, where it faces an uncertain future.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur and co-chairman of the conference committee, said it is time for school officials and administrators to stop criticizing the Legislature's efforts to come up with a constitutional plan for financing schools, unless they have a better solution of their own.

He said it is time for members of school boards and administration organizations to "put up or shut

Iraq's time runs short, U.N. says

■ Report recommends immediate lifting of embargo to prevent 'imminent catastrophe.'

N.Y. Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS — A United Nations survey of civilian damage caused by the allied bombardment of Iraq calls the results "near apocalyptic." The survey, which was made public on Thursday, recommends an immediate end to the U.N. embargo on imports of food and other essential supplies to prevent "imminent catastrophe."

The report, prepared by a U.N. team that visited the country between March 10 and March 17, says that the bombing has relegated Iraq "to a pre-industrial age" and warns that the nation could face "epidemic and famine if massive life-supporting needs are not rapidly met."

It calls for "a major mobilization and movement of resources to deal with aspects of this deep crisis in the fields of agriculture and food, water, sanitation and health." In particular, it says that Iraq needs immediate substantial supplies of food, agricultural equipment, fuel, electrical generators, and machinery for water purification, garbage disposal, and sewage treatment.

Diplomats say that the report's findings are likely to bring pressure for a substantial relaxation in the Security Council's trade sanctions against Iraq

Administration tries to alter Glaspie image

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration moved on Thursday to counter the impression that it callously left April C. Glaspie, the American ambassador to Iraq, as a scapegoat for failing to prevent President Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait.

The public explanation provided by the State Department on Thursday was that it had known for the last seven months that an Iraqi transcript of a meeting between Ambassador Glaspie and Saddam was inaccurate in parts, but did not correct the record because officials did not want to divert attention from the effort to organize the anti-Iraqi coalition.

But some administration officials said privately that the real reason that the record was never corrected was that the State Department was uncertain on the basis of Ms. Glaspie's own cable from Baghdad about the meeting that she delivered to Saddam as forceful a message to keep his hands off Kuwait as she says she did.

The Iraqi transcript seemed to sug-

Taped beating sickens Bush, appalls Wilson

N.Y. Times News Service

President Bush has said that the videotaped beating of Rodney Glen King by Los Angeles police "made me sick," but has refused to say whether Police Chief Daryl F. Gates should resign over the March 3 incident.

Gates has in many ways been "an exemplary police chief ... entitled to a credible hearing," Bush told reporters Thursday in Washington, D.C., before a meeting with Attorney General Richard Thornburgh over the Justice Department's investigation into police brutality.

"It was sickening to see the beating that was rendered and there's no way in my view to explain that away," Bush said, in his first comment on the incident. "It was outrageous."

In Los Angeles, California Gov. Pete Wilson expressed similar views, saying he was appalled at the videotape showing Los Angeles police officers kicking and beating King with nightsticks following a traffic stop in suburban Lake View Terrace.

"There is no excuse for what we saw on the videotape," said Wilson. "What

Marfa looks to maquiladoras to keep economy afloat

By Suzanne Gamboa
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO — What was the West Texas city of Marfa, better known for mysterious celestial phenomena and roaming cattle, doing at a trade show for maquiladora suppliers and operators?

Looking for maquiladoras, of course.

Amid the slick display booths erected by tool companies, packaging businesses and computer services vying for maquila business was the meager cork bulletin board of the Marfa Chamber of Commerce.

The city had reached deep in its pockets to spring the $800 required to reserve a space at Borderland Tradeshow '91. But town leaders considered the expenditure a matter of life and death.

"We're a little town in the middle of nowhere trying to survive," Jake Brisbin, Marfa Chamber of Commerce director, said Wednesday, the last day of the two-day tradeshow.

"If we don't find some jobs or something for our children we're going to eventually die."

Maquiladoras are manufacturing plants owned mostly by U.S. companies, although many European and Japanese companies have invested in the concept. Companies ship raw materials to the plants for assembly or processing in Mexico where labor is much cheaper.

More than 300 maquiladoras are in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, across the border from El Paso.

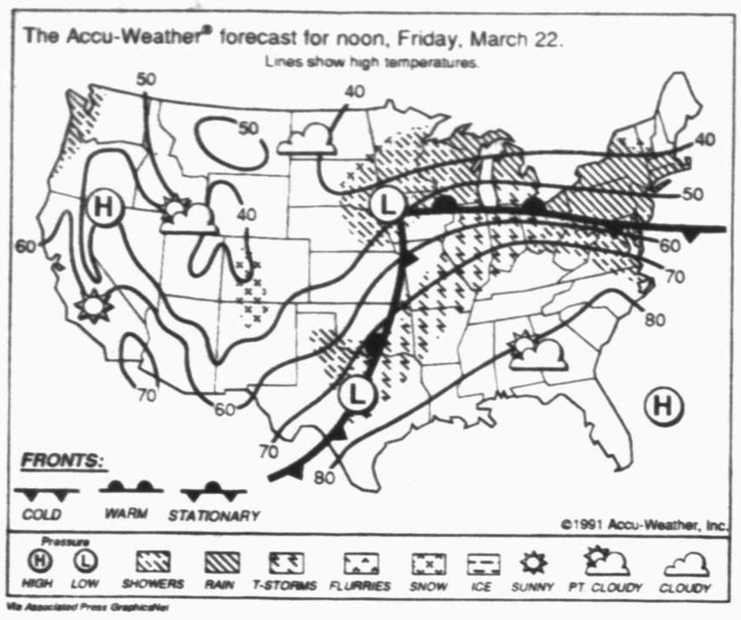

Marfa, about 55 miles from the U.S. Mexico border at Ojinaga, sits in the Davis Mountains in one of the most sparsely populated and pristine areas of Texas.

A windy, mild day on tap

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the upper 60s and winds from the west at 25 to 35 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the upper 30s.

Saturday will be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 70s.

After an ovenight low of 41, Thursday's high was 81 compared with the record high for that date of 87 set in 1934. The record low for today's date was 22 set in 1989.

STATE

The first day of spring brought thunderstorms and a tornado watch to parts of North and West Texas Thursday while South Texas beamed under sunnier skies.

Thunderstorms developed over the low rolling plains Thursday afternoon and moved into North Central Texas, prompting a tornado watch that lasted into the evening in West Texas.

In North Texas, thunderstorms produced strong wind gusts and large hail. The storms were moving to the northeast at 40 mph.

Strong gusts of up to 50 mph were reported in the Panhandle and exceeded over 50 mph in the South Plains but no tornados were spotted.

Temperatures ranged from the 80s in the southeast Panhandle southward through the Big Country and Edwards Plateau. Readings were in the 60s and 70s elsewhere.

NATION

The first day of spring looked a lot like another day of winter Thursday in the mountains of the West as gelid, snowy conditions lingered there, but Detroit got a preview of summer with a record-setting high temperature.

Some 10 inches of snow fell at Flagstaff, Ariz., and 8 inches at Prescott and the southern rim of the Grand Canyon.

Colorado's snowfall included 5 inches at Wolf Creek Pass, and another 4 to 8 inches was expected to accumulate.

Detroit warmed to 73 degrees by early afternoon and set a high temperature record for the date. The previous record had been 72, set in 1918. Flint, Mich., reached 72 degrees, breaking its 68-degree record set in 1949.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

BOMBING: Iraq left in 'pre-industrial age'

when the special committee monitoring compliance with the trade restrictions meets on Friday.

The United States has said that sanctions should be lifted only when Baghdad fulfills all the allied coalition's conditions for a permanent cease-fire.

Assessing the effects of allied bombing and the trade embargo on Iraq's economy, the new U.N. report says that "the recent conflict has wrought near-apocalyptic results upon the infrastructure of what had been until January 1991 a rather highly urbanized and mechanized society."

The report contrasted with the American position on the issue of who would pay for any imports of supplies into Iraq. Under the American plan, Iraq would be allowed to start earning money by selling oil only after it had agreed to a complicated mechanism for paying compensation claims. The U.N. report does not make clear whether it expects Iraq to pay for its own imports or, alternatively, whether humanitarian organizations would do so instead.

The report was prepared by Undersecretary General Martti Ahtisaari, who was on the mission to Iraq, accompanied by representatives of UNICEF, the U.N. Development Program, the High Commissioner for Refugees, the World Health Organization, and the Food and Agricultural Organization.

The report was presented to the representatives of the 15 nations on the Security Council on Thursday afternoon. Afterwards, the U.S. representative, Thomas R. Pickering, refused to comment.

Although allied military men said their warplanes sought to attack only military targets, the report says about 9,000 Iraqi homes were destroyed or damaged beyond repair during the war, including 2,500 in Baghdad and another 1,900 in Basra. About 72,000 people have been left homeless.

It says "most means of modern life support have been destroyed or rendered tenuous" and warns that "for some time to come" the country has been "relegated to a pre-industrial age but with all the disabilities of post-industrial dependency on an intensive use of energy and technology."

After surveying the food shortage and warning that this year's harvest may fail, the report recommends that "sanctions in respect of food supplies should be immediately removed, as should those relating to the import of agricultural equipment and supplies."

gest that Ms. Glaspie was trying to appease Saddam. Administration officials said that because Ms. Glaspie's cable was not starkly in contrast with that transcript they were unsure how firm she had been.

This account seemed intended to explain the less than enthusiastic support given Ms. Glaspie by the State Department and Secretary of State James A. Baker III in the last seven months, but it also continued the uncertainty about how forceful the United States was in warning Saddam to stay out of Kuwait.

Administration officials to some degree seemed to want it both ways.

Publicly they want to appear to be supporting Ms. Glaspie fully so that no one will accuse them of making her into a scapegoat and no one will say that anyone gave Saddam a green light.

But when challenged on why they have waited so long to defend her, they leave the impression that they are uncertain about just how tough she was with the Iraqi leader.

At the same time, officials acknowledge that even after receiving her cable about the July 25 meeting they never ordered her to go back and deliver a tougher message, if indeed they felt she had been too soft.

In congressional testimony on Wednesday and again on Thursday, Ms. Glaspie said that she repeatedly warned Saddam last summer against using violence to settle his border dispute with Kuwait.

Her account of the meeting is contained in a classified cable, which the State Department refuses to make public on the ground of diplomatic confidentiality. The State Department says there is no American transcript of the meeting because Ms. Glaspie was not accompanied by a notetaker.

Nevertheless, the fact that the administration has seemed less than forthright in presenting Ms. Glaspie's version of events up to now continues to raise the ire of some lawmakers.

The House Committee in general was more tough on Thursday in questioning Ms. Glaspie than the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was on Wednesday about her contention that the Bush administration in general, and she in particular, had signaled Saddam before Aug. 2 that it would not tolerate an Iraqi invasion of Kuwait because, as she put it, the United States would "defend our vital interests."

But Wilson said he would stand by Gates because he didn't think "it was leadership to join a lynch mob."

The governor said Gates, who campaigned actively for Bush and Wilson in their elections, has built a police department that has a reputation as one of the finest in the nation.

"There are some people trying to make him a scapegoat," Wilson said.

But Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley — who has said that Gates' retirement would aid the "healing process" — said that he didn't believe the governor was aware of the strong feelings in Los Angeles about the issue.

"He's not privy to the same information we are (privy to) in Los Angeles," Bradley said. "He's not hearing the kind of demands I'm hearing."

Bradley has called for an investigation of racism in the department following disclosures that some of the officers involved in the beating made racist comments on the police communications system before the beating. King is black, and a police sergeant and three officers indicted on felony charges in the beating are white.

"We share the public outrage with the officers who participated and of those who stood by and watched," Estrada said. "While CISCOP is shocked by the violence we witnessed during the videotape, we strongly reject the call for Chief Gates to step down. In our rush for quick justice in this case, we must not make Daryl Gates the scapegoat."

FINANCE: House plans vote by Wednesday

up."

Some school officials favor eliminating local property taxes and having the state provide all the money for education by approving a state personal income tax. Currently, about half the $14 billion for schools each year comes from the state and half from local property taxes.

The state Supreme Court has given the Legislature until April 1 to enact a constitutional plan for financing Texas schools. Despite the deadline, the bill may receive a stony reaction in the House.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the House may vote on the bill Tuesday, or no later than Wednesday, but he could not predict if it would pass.

Lewis repeated a statement made by Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, saying that the bill "is still an ugly baby, but it's the only baby we've got to rock." Lewis said he would vote for the bill and would urge House members to do so just to move the process forward.

Glossbrenner, co-cnairman of the conference committee and sponsor of the House version of the bill, said that, "in my heart of hearts, I think it will pass."

She also said approving the bill would buy the Legislature time, and that lawmakers could come back with improvements later in this session, in a special session this summer or in the next regular session in 1993.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1989 that the state's method of financing its schools is unconstitutional because it relies so heavily on local property taxes, which discriminates against property-poor districts.

Some districts haye tax rates as low as 25 to 50 cents per $100 valuations but can raise more money at those rates than property-poor districts with rates of $1.50 to $1.70.

The hot issue is how much additional money the state will allow local districts to raise beyond the basic program. Property-rich districts favor as much "local enrichment" as possible, while property-poor districts contend that the more money rich districts raise, the more out of balance the financing system will become again in the future. Then, once again, the finance system would be unconstitutional.

The proposed legislation will create taxing districts along county lines, combining some of the state's 254 counties to form about 180 taxing districts.

The bill will require a minimum property tax of 60 cents for all school districts for the 1991-92 school year, rising to 90 cents by 1994-95.

The state will guarantee that each penny of property tax rates will yield $19.50 per student in 1992, increasing to $26 by 1995. If a district's property taxes raises less than that amount, the state will make up the difference. If it raises more, the money will be pooled for use by all schools in the taxing district.

School districts could approve additional taxes of as much as 25 cents by 1995 for local enrichment. That money would be shared equally by schools within the taxing district, resulting in a possible a tax rate of $1.15 by 1995.

Districts could approve another 35 cents in taxes, with as much as 20 cents going for bonded indebtedness and the remaining 15 cents for additional local enrichment, bringing the total maximum property tax to $1.50.

Half of the revenues produced from the final tier of taxes would be shared by the other school districts within the county, but the school district that approved the tax could keep the other half. If a school district needed less than 20 cents to pay its bonded debt, it could use more of the 35 cents for local enrichment. For example, if it had no debt, it could use the full 35 cents, but with half of it going to the other schools.

Midland	$3,645	$3,968	$ 323
Greenwood	4,631	5,826	1,195
Ector County	3,770	3,791	21

drug-carrying aircraft.

The city of about 2,500 swells every Labor Day weekend when visitors venture in to see the Marfa Ghost Lights, mysterious celestial lights that have been explained as anything from Apache fires to Adolf Hitler's ghost.

"The average person that stops (by the booth) will go: 'Marfa. Oh yeah. That's the lights,'" said Curtis Schrader, Chamber of Commerce president.

But the lights' visitors and area ranches aren't enough to provide jobs and opportunity for Marfa's youth, Brisbin said. So the town set up a booth at the trade show, hoping to attract a small manufacturing plant.

"We're doing this because we care about the town," Brisbin said. "There are a lot of young professional people who have gone off to school and have had successful careers and come back because of the quality of life here."

The city's most immediate hope lies in the upgrade of U.S. Highway 67, which links Marfa with Presidio and a new international bridge across the Rio Grande that links Presidio and Ojinaga, Mexico.

"The (maquiladora) people in Chihuahaua City tell us that 60 percent of products produced there are destined for San Antonio and points east," Brisbin said. "Almost all of that traffic goes from Chihuahua (City) to El Paso and then to San Antonio. They could save some 100 miles by going through Presidio and if they go through Presidio they have to go through Marfa."

The Marfa group also was trying to spread the word about a maquiladora complex that has been built in Ojinaga and is awaiting tenants.

But if maquila executives weren't interested in opening a plant in Marfa, Brisbin and Schrader pitched it as a vacation spot with stories about the city's clean air, pristine land, water from the tap that tastes better than bottled and friendly West Texans.

"Even if we don't get anybody to move down there to build a facility, even if they just decide to spend a vacation down there, we've at least generated something," Schrader said.

"If we can't get them down there as a business maybe we can build on tourism."

guns away from felons," said Paul J. McNulty, acting director of the Justice Department's Office of Policy Development.

"We think it's ineffective. To use a harsher word, it's useless," McNulty said. The administration "must unfortunately conclude that H.R. 7 (the Brady Bill) will not achieve this goal ... The majority of dangerous felons do not obtain their firearms from licensed dealers," he said.

President Bush, in his 1991 crime bill, has proposed stiffer penalties for felons who commit crimes using guns.

The NRA supports legislation that calls for instant criminal background checks of prospective gun buyers.

"Simply put, no detection system ever proposed or ever devised has mindreading capabilities," said James Jay Baker, the NRA's chief lobbyist.

Baker said the Brady bill "mistakenly targets not the criminal elements in our society, but rather those who already obey the law."

But supporters of the Brady bill said the NRA proposal would take several years and millions of dollars to enact.

The Justice Department is working on a national network of state and federal criminal records that could be immediately accessed by a toll-free telephone number, McNulty said. But the system is several years off, he said.

In the meantime, thousands of lives can be saved by enacting a waiting period, said Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., chairman of the crime subcommittee.

Schumer predicted a House vote on the Brady bill in May.

"The Brady bill's time has come," said Sarah Brady, wife of James Brady and chairman of Handgun Control, Inc. "The American public overwhelmingly supports it. The law enforcement community universally applauds it."

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., delayed a vote last year on the Brady bill, but has vowed to allow it to come to the floor for a vote earlier in Congress' current session.

energy industry, Guerrero said. "Everybody will be invited to provide input for a Texas energy policy," she said.

The first woman to serve on the railroad commission in its 100-year history, Guerrero said she may be short on energy experience, but is long on government experience. After receiving a degree in broadcasting from the University of Texas, Guerrero became a political consultant for a number of local and state campaigns, serving most recently as as political director of Ann Richards' campaign for Texas governor.

Guerrero said she is an environmentalist: "We're all environmentalists. We all like to breathe clean air, drink clean water and live in a nice place." She said she is not a proponent of nuclear energy, but is sold on natural gas.

"I hope to get to do many good things for natural gas, because what is good for natural gas is good for the environment and for Texas. I hope to find new markets in cogeneration and natural gas vehicles."

She said getting fleets to convert to natural gas-powered vehicles was not the problem some made it out to be. "Boone Pickens noted recently that if we can send an army of 400,000 men to Saudi Arabia within a few months, surely we can convert 500,000 vehicles to natural gas," she said, noting that municipal gas companies have funds in reserve that could be used to convert vehicles.

Denouncing an "ivory tower" syndrome that has prevailed at the Texas Railroad Commission, Guerrero said it was her intention to meet every single employee that works for the commission, including field offices, to solicit information and to understand how regulation works and affects the oil industry.

Jury retires without reaching verdict in teacher's case

EXETER, N.H. (AP) — Their daily ration of sex and gore cut off with the case gone to the jury, reporters at Pamela Smart's murder-accomplice trial were on the lookout for the slightest sign of activity in the courthouse Thursday.

The main event turned out to be media-bashing by the defendant's lawyers.

"I think it's been scandalous," said one defense lawyer, Mark Sisti. "The media has drawn people to this case with headlines and color photographs; the snowball has turned into an avalanche — it's feeding off itself."

Mrs. Smart, 23, is accused of seducing a 15-year-old high school student and using the threat of breaking off the affair to get him to murder her husband. She faces life in prison with no chance of parole if found guilty of accomplice-to-murder and murder-conspiracy charges.

More than two weeks of testimony was broadcast daily on WMUR-TV in Manchester, hooking viewers in stores, beauty parlors and thousands of homes at least as far away as Boston.

The Boston Herald this week invited readers to "be the judge" by calling in their verdicts on a 900-number. They voted guilty, 543 to 101.

Defense lawyer Paul Twomey blasted the newspaper's coverage as "barely above contemptible."

The jury concluded its first full day of deliberations Thursday without reaching a verdict. It has met for nine hours over two days.

Gawkers had jammed the Rockingham County Superior Court, some showing up as early as 1 a.m. and traveling as far as 100 miles round-trip to wait for one of the gallery's 30 seats.

"I only meant to come one day, but I became so interested I had to come back," said Esther Glennon, 70, of Concord. "It's like a real-life soap opera."

High school senior Mike Tilas saw it as something more. He called the courtroom spectacle "the most intriguing thing I have ever seen."

The victim's parents, William and Judith Smart, said their son's death has become secondary to interest in the teacher's love affair with a teen-ager.

"No one's cried but our family for months and months," Judith Smart said.

"Katie saved $124 on her car warranty service."

Katie's friend, John, bought a new car a few months back. When it came time for the 5,000-mile warranty maintenance service John took his car back to the dealer. He got a bill for $194. He got a lubrication, oil and filter change and tune-up.

John's good friend, Tom, who works for TuneUp Masters®, told John that TuneUp Masters would have done the very same work for about $70. "But, Tom," John said, "my warranty wouldn't be valid if I didn't take it back to the dealer."

"Yes, it would," Tom said, "because at TuneUp Masters we will validate your warranty book just like the dealer. It's not who does the work that makes the warranty maintenance valid. Just that the work is done."

So John told Katie, and Katie went to TuneUp Masters for her warranty work. It was, indeed, about $70, and she saved $124. And her warranty is still valid. And if you bring this article with you you'll receive $5 off on a tune-up or $5 off on an oil change and lube, or $5 off on each. At TuneUp Masters.

27 missing in collision of 2 Navy planes near San Diego

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (NYT) — Two Navy anti-submarine planes on a routine training mission collided early Thursday morning over the Pacific Ocean near San Diego, and the Navy said 27 crew members were missing.

Rescue teams found no bodies or survivors, only debris. Navy spokesmen said the chances that anyone survived the crash were not good.

The planes collided in rough weather 60 miles southwest of San Diego around 2:30 a.m.

Both missing planes belonged to Patrol Squadron 50, based at Moffett Naval Air Station in Mountain View, about 30 miles south of San Francisco.

A Navy spokeswoman said the families of the crew members were being notified.

Both planes were large P-3 Orions, used to track and destroy submarines.

There were apparently 13 crew members aboard one of the planes and 14 on the other, Bob Howard, a Navy senior chief journalist, said in San Diego.

The crash occurred as one plane was arriving to relieve the other in an exercise involving other planes and ships.

Foul weather may have played a role in the collision. Strong wind and rain struck San Diego on Wednesday night, and a funnel cloud was spotted near the city's coastline about three hours after the planes collided, the National Weather Service said.

Pilots in the area also reported severe turbulence at the time of the crash.

Storms from the Gulf of Alaska have been flooding streams and causing mud slides around the state in the past few days.

"A Navy SH-60 helicopter operating in the area reported seeing a mid-air explosion at the same time radio contact was lost with the two aircraft," said a brief statement released by the Naval Air Station, North Island, in San Diego.

Helicopters, planes, the destroyer Merrill and the aircraft carrier Abraham Lincoln searched the crash site throughout the day.

Military air controllers on land and at sea were directing the planes during the exercise, but it is not known exactly which controller was in contact with the pilots when the collision occurred, Howard said.

In 1989, a series of accidents that killed 11 people led the Navy to order a 48-hour halt to routine operations for a safety review. Last year was the safest year ever for Naval aviation, said a spokesman, Lt. Dave Wray.

But statistics were a distant concern here at the Moffett Naval Air Station, where yellow ribbons in support of the troops in the Persian Gulf War still ring light poles.

After news of the collision reached the base the flag was lowered to half-mast and hung in drizzling rain here.

"The mood is somber," said Frank Pearson, assistant chief of staff for Command and Patrol Wing of the Pacific Fleet, who read a brief statement to reporters.

"When this happens, it affects us all."

Although the Navy used P-3 Orions during the Persian Gulf War, Squadron 50 was not deployed, said a Moffett spokeswoman.

In terms of U.S. soldiers and sailors, the collision this morning may have killed almost as many people as the costliest moments of Operation Desert Storm, when a Scud missile ripped through a military barracks in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, on Feb. 25, killing 28 people.

The parallel did not escape some of the neighbors of Moffett Naval Air Station.

"In a war you kind of expect that kind of thing," said Gary Robertson, 47, of nearby Los Altos. "It's not a war situation, yet it's a lot of lives."

The Orions, originally built in 1959 by Lockheed, are often used by weather forecasters to fly into hurricanes and are considered among the safest planes the Navy uses, said Howard.

House Republicans unveil their own energy blueprint

By James R. Owen
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — House Republicans unveiled a blueprint for a national energy strategy Thursday, saying they're frustrated by the Democrats' tendency "to drag their feet" on enacting legislation to reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil.

Much like the comprehensive energy plan outlined last month by the Bush administration, the omnibus bill announced Thursday by House GOP leaders calls for "environmentally sound" oil exploration in Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refugee. And both GOP plans reject calls for mandatory fuel efficiency standards for cars.

Those two issues have emerged as the most controversial planks of the administration's energy outline.

But the congressional Republicans say their bill goes further to promote domestic fuel production through a combination of regulatory reform and modest tax benefits while spurring more fuel conservation and development of alternative fuels such as ethanol. It was the administration's lack of stringent conservation measures that drew the most criticism last month from Democrats and environmentalists.

The United States now imports about half of the 17 million barrels of oil it consumes daily.

"We don't say our plan is better," said House Minority Leader Bob Michel at a Capitol Hill news conference. "It builds on the president's plan."

The GOP strategy was drawn up by an 18-member energy task force appointed by Michel and led by Republicans on energy-related committees.

Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., acknowledged that passage of the Republican bill would be an uphill battle. But, he said, by offering the omnibus bill, GOP leaders hoped to stimulate a lively debate that Democrats seem to want to avoid.

"We certainly wanted to avoid the problem of Democrats tending to drag their feet on Republican proposals," Lewis said, "while they plod over their tendency to want to solve energy problems as all their solutions seem to dictate — centralizing regulations, controlling the process of resource development."

Added Rep. Norman Lent, the ranking minority member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee: "We have our comprehensive energy plan. So I say to the Democrats, 'where's yours?'"

House Democratic sources, however, dismissed the GOP draft as a political ploy designed to weaken energy initiatives by the majority party.

"This is clearly a desperate gambit by the Republicans," said a Democratic energy staffer. "This is not likely to be taken seriously as a legislative initiative."

But Michel warned that Congress was in danger of squandering an opportunity to enact significant energy reform at a moment when the Persian Gulf war — fought in part over access to oil — was still fresh in Americans' minds.

"We have dodged the bullet this time around," Michel said. "But next time, I don't know that we can be as fortunate."

Hinting at GOP opposition to fuel efficiency requirements, Michel said Republicans oppose measures that would make a dent in the public's standard of living.

"If you get what you're looking for by way of new ingenuity, you need not go through that trauma of all that kind of personal sacrifice," Michel said.

NORAD failed to intercept Cuban MiG

MIAMI (AP) — Defense officials were trying to determine Thursday if a Soviet-built warplane flew undetected through U.S. air space when its defecting pilot flew from Cuba to a Navy base near here.

No U.S. aircraft was scrambled to escort the MiG fighter Wednesday, and the tower at the Key West Naval Air Station attempted radio contact with the pilot, Maj. Orestes Lorenzo Perez, only after the plane was spotted circling the base.

"We didn't launch any interceptors — why we didn't is a question people are reviewing throughout the NORAD system right now," said Maj. Thomas Niemann, a spokesman for NORAD, the nation's air defense agency in Colorado.

Launching interceptors for escort is normal procedure when an unknown plane is spotted, he added.

The Defense Department referred questions to NORAD.

NORAD has not determined if radar picked up the MiG at any point during its flight, Niemann said, but he said it might have taken as little as eight to 10 minutes to fly the 90 miles from Cuba to Key West.

If the plane came in at only a few feet above the sea level, Navy aerostat balloons and other radar equipment could have been confused by choppy waves, according to military experts.

Brig. Gen. Rafael del Pino Diaz, who defected from Cuba in 1987 in a small plane, told Spanish-language station WAQI-AM in Miami that 38-year-old Perez was "one of the best pilots of the Cuban Air Force."

Lt. Karl Johnson of the Navy's air command headquarters in Norfolk, Va., said the plane, which the Navy initially identified as a MiG-27, was now believed be an older modified MiG-23. The difference between the two models is very slight, he said.

Johnson said the tower only attempted to contact the plane when it was spotted circling the airfield.

Key West Navy personnel had indicated Wednesday that Perez radioed the tower, but a Naval source who spoke on condition of anonymity said the effort was unsuccessful.

"The pilot tried to radio the tower using an international frequency, but he could not come up with it," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "When the tower spotted the plane, they tried to contact him on the same frequency, but they couldn't come up with him either."

The plane remains in a hangar at the Naval Air Station on Boca Chica, and will probably be returned to Cuba after negotiations, said Douglas Gray, a State Department spokesman.

Perez was flown to an undisclosed location by immigration officials after U.S. pilots gave him a welcome bag complete with candy bars, potato chips and a six-pack of beer, personnel at the base said.

California court upholds phone sex access limit

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — A three-judge federal appeals panel on Thursday upheld federal regulations aimed at denying minors access to "dial-a-porn" telephone services.

The regulations require telephone companies to block pornographic services to all households except those that specifically request access.

The decision, by the 9th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, contradicts a decision last year by a judge in New York who blocked enforcement of the law that led to the regulations on the ground that it restricted freedom of speech. Because Thursday's decision was made by a court in a different federal circuit it does not overrule the New York decision, leaving the status of the law in doubt.

Earl Nicholas Selby of Palo Alto, the lawyer for the organization that challenged the law in the case decided Thursday, said its enforcement would "turn out the lights" on the dial-a-porn business by requiring people to specifically request such service.

Parade, 'salute' to show support

Midlanders will say "welcome home" in grand fashion Saturday to U.S. troops from here who fought in the war against Iraq and to other servicemen and women who have taken up arms in earlier years to fight for American ideals of justice and democracy.

A "Salute the Troops Victory Parade," barbecue and street dance will help to set the appropriate festive tone for the event.

The event is being staged as the first of Midland's troops who served or are serving in the Persian Gulf area begin to return home.

Patriotism took a giant leap during the weeks that U.S. troops joined the troops from other nations around the world to stop the aggression of Saddam Hussein. Although patriotic fervor has remained strong in Midland while diminishing in other parts of the country in recent years, this war victory celebration will give Midlanders the opportunity to proudly wave Old Glory and to show their heartfelt gratitude to the men and women who have defended this nation and the principles for which it stands.

The celebration will also give Midlanders the opportunity to meet George O'Brien, Midland's only Congressional Medal of Honor recipient. Monday has been designated as National Medal of Honor Day in a resolution passed by the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives to focus the efforts of national, state and local organizations striving to foster public appreciation and recognition of Medal of Honor recipients.

Saturday's events will present an appropriate occasion to say thanks to O'Brien, who is serving as marshal of the "Salute the Troops Victory Parade," and all the others from the Midland community who have risked or given their lives in support of this nation.

Their devotion to the United States and their selfless sacrifice in defense and support of this nation deserves our most sincere appreciation. The activities Saturday will allow Midlanders to recognize the service of the veterans and to wave the red, white and blue!

America is back, America is strong, and we should show our support of the people who have kept her that way through the years.

LETTER

Letter writer has a passe attitude

After all the rhetoric around the country concerning the respect rightfully due to the Vietnam veteran, along comes Marilynn Weaver's letter (Letters, March 10) bashing the Vietnam veteran one more time. They, after all, did what was expected of them by their country and their government, and did not run off to Canada or hide somewhere and neglect their duty.

Apparently Ms. Weaver did not hear the story that was on the national media that some of the Persian Gulf War soldiers were making their own intoxicants. As the mother of a Vietnam veteran, I resent the misconception that all of our soldiers were on drugs. The reason for the outcome of the Vietnam War and Persian Gulf War is a great deal more complicated than whether or not our soldiers were sober, so don't try to simplify it by such an unfair and inaccurate comparison.

Ms. Weaver's attitude is passe, so she should get off the back of the Vietnam veteran. Enough is enough.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, March 22, the 81st day of 1991. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 22, 1765, Britain enacted the Stamp Act to raise money from the American colonies. The Act set off such a strong protest that it was repealed the following year.

On this date:

In 1638, religious dissident Anne Hutchinson was expelled from the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

In 1794, Congress passed a law prohibiting American vessels from supplying slaves to other countries.

In 1820, U.S. naval hero Stephen Decatur was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington D.C.

In 1882, Congress outlawed polygamy.

In 1894, hockey's first Stanley Cup game was played. Montreal, the home team, defeated Ottawa, 3-1.

In 1929, a U.S. Coast Guard vessel sank a Canadian-registered schooner, the "I'm Alone," in the Gulf of Mexico. (The schooner was suspected of carrying bootleg liquor.)

In 1933, during Prohibition, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a measure to make wine and beer containing up to 3.2 percent alcohol legal.

In 1941, 50 years ago, the Grand Coulee Dam in Washington state went into operation.

In 1972, Congress sent the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution to the states for ratification. (It fell short of the two-thirds approval needed.)

In 1978, Karl Wallenda, the 73-year-old patriarch of "The Flying Wallendas" high-wire act, fell to his death while attempting to walk a cable strung between two hotels in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In 1984, a jury in Fall River, Mass., convicted two men of aggravated rape and acquitted two others in the case of a woman gang-raped on a barroom pool table while spectators cheered. (Two other men were convicted in a separate trial.)

In 1987, a garbage barge, carrying 3,200 tons of refuse, left Islip, N.Y., on a six-month journey in search of a place to unload. (The barge was turned away by several states and three other countries until space was found back in Islip.)

Ten years ago: The Warsaw branch of the Solidarity labor movement in Poland announced it had canceled a two-hour warning strike threatened for the next day.

One year ago: A jury in Anchorage, Alaska, found former tanker captain Joseph Hazelwood innocent of three major charges in connection with the massive "Exxon Valdez" oil spill, and convicted him of a minor charge of negligent discharge of oil. Secretary of State James Baker met with South African President F.W. de Klerk in Cape Town.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Karl Malden is 78. Actor Werner Klemperer is 71. Pantomimist Marcel Marceau is 68. USA Today founder Allen H. Neuharth is 67. Composer-lyricist Stephen Sondheim is 61.

Ethics committee missed key points

WASHINGTON — The Senate Ethics Committee curiously found only one villain in the Senate's role in the savings and loan scandal — Alan Cranston, D-Calif. The committee decided to pursue disciplinary action against him alone among the "Keating Five" senators who got mixed up with S&L high-flier Charles Keating.

Anderson

Keating's Lincoln Savings and Loan collapsed in April 1989 and left American taxpayers with the bill of nearly $3 billion, the largest in the thrift debacle. Keating also sold more than $200 million in now-worthless junk bonds to some 20,000 unsuspecting customers in Southern California.

Keating was able to run amuck for so long because he applied pressure in high places. The Ethics Committee failed to zero in on those pressure points. One of Keating's minions, attorney-lobbyist Margery Waxman, was handled by the Ethics Committee with kid gloves despite the fact that she was Keating's representative in Washington.

Waxman, once a high level official of the Treasury Department, left public service and ended up at the Washington office of the Chicago law firm of Sidley and Austin, part of Keating's stable. (Some of the buyers of Keating's junk bonds were convinced that Sidley and Austin shared the blame for their losses, and named the law firm as a defendant in a suit brought over the junk bonds.)

Much of Keating's lobbying money was spent trying to keep federal regulators out of his hair and stop them from imposing new regulations that would curb his speculative operations. He bought Lincoln in 1984 and converted it from a traditional home-mortgage company to what many federal regulators consider to be a federally insured casino. Within a few months, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board proposed regulations that would have rolled back many of the investment options that tempted Keating into the S&L business in the first place.

Keating would later say that he spent more than $55 million in his war against federal regulators. A chunk of that went to lawyers like Margery Waxman. What did those lawyers do for Keating?

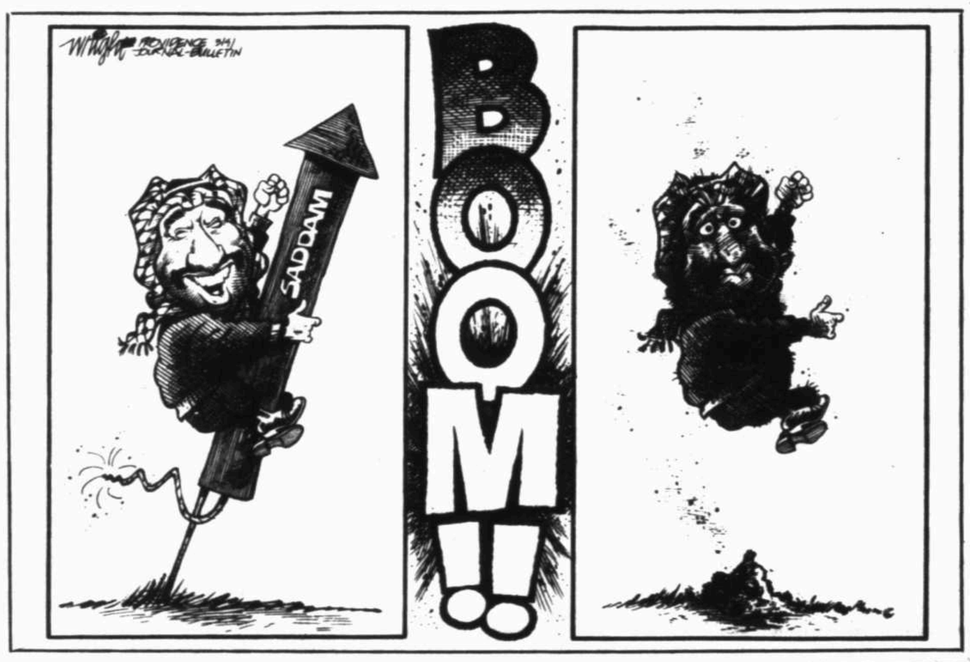

We have already reported on some of Waxman's tactics. In 1988 when Keating was trying to get the Bank Board to transfer the oversight of Lincoln away from the San Francisco regional office of the Bank Board, Waxman wrote in a memo to Keating: "You have the Board right where you want them. I have put the pressure on (Bank Board Chairman Danny) Wall to work toward meeting your demands and he has instructed his staff: 'If they mess up this time ... it's all over.'"

Now our associates Michael Binstein and Tim Warner have found another letter from Waxman to Keating laying out a battle plan. The letter, dated Jan. 22, 1988, advises Keating against suing federal regulators before he gives the lobbying process time to work.

At the time, both the Justice Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission were investigating possible wrongdoing in the Lincoln operation and the junk bond sales. An examination by the Bank Board's San Francisco office had left plenty of questions unanswered about Lincoln's operations. The examiners had recommended that Lincoln be shut down, and Keating was demanding a new examination from another regional office.

Questions concerning that and other Keating activities could have been put to Waxman when she testified to the Ethics Committee, but they were soft pedaled.

CHARLEY REESE

Third War of Empires so far a cold war

Years ago I interviewed a lady, 91 years old, whose father had ridden with the Confederate general, Nathan Bedford Forest.

She had been educated in the finest schools in Europe, fallen in love with an Italian nobleman, and carried on a lifelong correspondence with the British novelist, Somerset Maugham. As I was about to leave, I asked her what she thought of how the country had evolved during her lifetime.

Reese

Quick as a rifle bolt slamming home, she snapped, "What country? We lost that at Gettysburg."

For years this was to me nothing more than a mildly amusing anecdote of perhaps the last unreconstructed daughter of the Confederacy. Of late, however, I decided she was probably right.

The American Revolution created a republic which was born in the 18th Century and flourished in the early years of the 19th. It had begun to decline slightly under the pressure of Manifest Destiny, but it collapsed entirely in the rubble of the war that ended in 1865.

After that, America transitioned from a republic to a nation state, and we saw the rise of the great corporations and the Age of the Robber Barons. It's an accurate description, too, despite the protests of libertarians who tend to romanticize everything in the private sector and demonize everything in the public sector. But those robber barons had about as much use for the free market as Lenin.

As the 20th Century dawned, American went from nation state to empire, picking up the Philippines and Puerto Rico in the surely manufactured Spanish-America war. As an empire, we were still small potatoes but competition would change that.

What most people call World War I is really the First War of Empires. The British and French empires clashed with the ambitions of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and Germany. It killed 15 million people, but was really inconclusive.

The British and French picked up a lot — the Middle East, for example — but they had failed to follow the advice of that most honest of all political advisors, Machiavelli. They neither killed nor converted their enemy, and Germany merely smouldered with resentment.

America was a winner. That's when the American Empire for the first time transitioned from debtor to creditor.

The Second War of Empires destroyed Germany and Japan directly and indirectly destroyed the empires of Great Britain, France, and the Netherlands. They were depleted so severely of blood and treasure that within a few short years, their overseas possessions slipped from their grasp.

The immediate victors were the American Empire and the Leninist Empire, both now colossal superpowers, and ready for the Third War of Empires.

The invention of the nuclear explosive, however, had changed the rules. No one could figure out how to have a nuclear war and make a profit on it, much less survive it.

So the Third War of Empires would be and has been so far a Cold War, fought by clandestine means and by surrogates. It has gone on from 1945 until the present day and it remains to be seen which empire, if either, will emerge the winner or if they will form an alliance and jointly exploit the rest of the world — or jointly collapse.

Right now the economies of both empires are showing the strains of imperial arms races — the Leninists' only slightly more than ours, or so it appears. In the meantime, the smaller nations in the Third World are fighting their war in the bedroom. Perhaps they intuitively know, or someone upstairs knows, that no empire ever won a war with a mass migration of people.

Perhaps in the very long run, the meek will indeed inherit the earth by outnumbering the gruff.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

New puritans creep into our private lives

This is for the perpetrators of the Great American Meatout. Do you know what these advanced social thinkers, led by Doris Day and Caesar Chavez, wanted us to do on March 20? Abstain from eating beef, in favor of "a less violent, more wholesome diet": bean curd, I suppose, topped off with alfalfa sprouts.

Murchison

What splendid thoughts Doris and Caesar put into my mind — a juicy hamburger with onions! I reached for the charcoal, the fire starter and the mustard.

If I smoked — which I never have and never will — I would have topped off the experience by inhaling two or three of the most odoriferous cigars procurable on the open market. If I owned an Uzi submachine gun — which, again, I never have and never will — I would have propped it by my plate, maybe taking the opportunity to perforate the walls, Sherlock Holmes-like, with patriotic motifs.

Anything to aggravate the new Puritans, I always say.

Politics, which formerly was confined to matters governmental, is creeping incrementally into the shrinking sphere of private life and action. People are trying to change those who, in their own refined view, need changing.

The new Puritanism — anti-meat, anti-fur, anti-tobacco, anti-gun and all the rest — marches in the same joyless parade as the Political Correctness movement on college campuses (anti-racism, anti-sexism, anti-lookism, anti-ableism). We, the unenlightened, are invited to salute as their fashionable concerns pass in review.

Granted, it is common sense that certain things visibly hurt us and should therefore be shunned. Drugs kill. Child pornography degrades subject and viewer alike. But a Big Mac, for the love of Allah! A Whopper-cut-the-onions-heavy-on-the-mayo!

Homer, Dante, Bach, Babe Ruth and John Wayne ate meat. Who are the Meatout people, in the face of this definitive experience, to interpose their peculiar insights? (Sample: "The holocaust of animal agriculture goes on every minute of every day of every year. The four 'horsemen' of this latter-day apocalypse are: animal suffering, diet-induced chronic disease, world hunger and devastation of natural resources.")

The new Puritanism is pushy and bumptious. We are going to reform smokers and gun owners by legislation, fur-coat wearers by ridicule, beer drinkers by "sin taxes," drivers of large automobiles by increased levies on gasoline. We are going to make them pure and righteous. In other words, we are going to make them like us.

Who thinks these things up? The upper middle classes primarily: the people with college-derived verbal skills and fax machines. Many of them work in my own profession, the mass media.

The new Puritanism amounts to class warfare levied against the uncultivated, the insensitive, the boorish — people who look like Roseanne Barr and think like Jesse Helms.

The most fascinating datum about the new Puritanism is its secularity. It concerns itself not with souls — that was the old Puritans' obsession — but with bodies. The only sins today are sins against the body.

Don't talk about damnation and redemption — which fashionable people don't believe in anyway — talk instead about cruelty to rattlesnakes. What use harps and golden streets, when the wetlands are perishing?

The timing of Miss Day's Meatout — the fifth week of Lent — was particularly poignant. In Christian tradition, Lent, the period of preparation for Easter, is adorned by acts of voluntary self-denial: acts that may include abstention from meat. However, this is for purely spiritual reasons. What's the life of the spirit got to do with sticking it to the cattle raisers, the sheep herders and the Golden Arches crowd?

Not much, to tell you the truth — which is one of the nicer things we may have heard lately about the life of the spirit.

British prime minister scraps unpopular tax

LONDON (NYT) — The British government announced Thursday it will scrap an unpopular local tax that sparked violent riots and helped lead to the downfall of former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The abandonment of one of the cornerstones of Mrs. Thatcher's third term marked a clear distancing by Prime Minister John Major from the policies of his predecessor as he looks ahead to national elections.

The Major government hopes the change will reverse the Conservative Party's political fortunes, which have suffered from widespread public displeasure with the controversial tax scheme since it began last April.

"The public has not been persuaded that the charge is fair," Environment Secretary Michael Heseltine told the House of Commons.

The poll tax ushered in by Mrs. Thatcher's government, of which Major was a key cabinet minister, is levied against every adult in each household without distinctions made for the taxpayer's income or property holdings.

It was designed to make local governments, many of them dominated by the opposition Labor Party, more accountable for their spending.

Instead, it became a huge political liability for the Conservatives because it ended up adding to the tax burdens of thousands of low-income citizens while easing the tax burden for the wealthy.

Millions of Britons refused to pay the fee. A year ago, hundreds of people rioted in central London during an anti-tax demonstration.

The Conservatives' plunging political fortunes, due in large part to the anti-tax sentiment, led to a challenge to Mrs. Thatcher's leadership of the party in November that culminated with her resignation.

Heseltine said a new system of local taxation would be introduced in 1993 and would combine elements of the old property tax system with a smaller per-head charge for adults living in each household.

He promised to release the details of the new system by early next month.

Bryan Gould, a Labor Party spokesman, said the decision to drop the poll tax was "the most startling U-turn and the most shameless abandonment of consistency and principle in modern political history."

Local elections are scheduled for May, and the fate of Conservative candidates will influence whether Major calls for an early national election the following month or waits until the fall or next spring.

Saddam's forces using acid, napalm and chemicals, rebels say

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraqi opposition groups claimed Thursday that Saddam Hussein's loyalist forces were using acid, napalm and chemical weapons to crush Kurds in the north and Shiite Muslims in the south rebelling against his rule.

Iraqi troops have tried to cut off supplies of food and medicine to areas held by the insurgents, and Iraqi warplanes and helicopters also have attacked rebel-held northern oil fields, setting wells ablaze, the opposition said.

Meanwhile, tension grew between Iran and Iraq. Iran's official news agency said the Tehran government had strongly protested Iraq's reported abduction of the world's highest Shiite authority.

Also Thursday, an Iraqi delegation began talks with allied officials in the Saudi capital of Riyadh on speeding up the repatriation of Iraqi prisoners of war. Iraq freed 1,150 Kuwaitis in compliance with cease-fire terms.

At the United Nations, the Security Council's sanctions committee was set to partially lift an embargo on Iraq after the council heard a report that Iraq had been "relegated to a pre-industrial age" by the allied military assault.

Diplomats said the sanctions committee would allow food and other essentials into Iraq starting Friday if the United Nations can see that the goods reach the entire country, including partscontrolled by rebels.

In a separate U.N. development, the United States circulated a proposal requiring Iraq to accept the destruction of its nuclear weapons-grade materials, ballistic missiles, and chemical and biological weapons before the overall embargo is lifted and the allied cease-fire made permanent.

Iraqi insurgents have claimed persistently that Saddam's troops were attacking them with poison gas and chemicals.

The opposition Iraqi Kurdistan Front, in a statement released Thursday to Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, said the leader of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan had sent a message to the U.N. secretary-general seeking an urgent Security Council meeting on the Iraqi uprising.

IRNA said the letter from the Kurdish leader, Jalal Talabani, cited the torching of the oil wells and the use of napalm.

Iraq frees 1,150 Kuwaitis; truce talks begin

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Iraq freed 1,150 Kuwaitis on Thursday in compliance with the terms set down by the allies during cease-fire talks, busing them to a remote Saudi border town.

The Red Cross announced the release as a four-man Iraqi delegation began talks with allied officials in Riyadh on speeding up the repatriation of Iraqi prisoners of war.

It was the first time that Iraqi and allied officials have met outside Iraq since the war ended three weeks ago with a provisional cease-fire.

The Kuwaitis were brought in buses across the Iraqi-Saudi border near the Saudi town of Arar, 550 miles northwest of Riyadh, said Roland Huguenin, spokesman for the International Committee of the Red Cross.

They were to be flown to Kuwait aboard chartered planes, Huguenin said. He said he had no information on the freed Kuwaitis, and did not know how many were civilians and how many were soldiers.

Huguenin stressed that the 1,150 Kuwaitis were not freed as a result of the talks in Riyadh, which did not begin until after their release.

Iraq earlier freed about 1,200 detained Kuwaitis, but still held an additional 5,000 before Thursday's release, according to Elizabeth Dole, president of the American Red Cross.

The Kuwaitis were rounded up during Iraq's seven-month occupation of the emirate, including some who were seized in the final days before allied forces drove Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

Their return was among the conditions set by Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the commander of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf, during talks on March 3 that established the provisional cease-fire.

The four Iraqi officials were brought to Riyadh on Thursday aboard a chartered Red Cross plane and driven to an undisclosed location for the meeting with allied officials, Huguenin said.

Kelview Heights' Johnson notes 30th year as pastor

Rev. Frank Johnson

The adult choir of Kelview Heights Baptist Church will present the musical drama, "Then Came Sunday," on Easter Sunday, March 31. This exciting presentation expresses the hope that the Resurrection gives to all men. The public is invited to enjoy this production at 9:00 or 10:45 a.m.

Pastor Frank Johnson will celebrate his 30th anniversary with the church on April 28.

Year round, Kelview Heights offers two morning church services at 9:00 and 11:00 a.m., with Sunday Schools meeting at both hours. Evening services are Sundays at 6:30 p.m. and Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m.

Throughout the week Kelview has opportunities for involvement in children's choirs, AWANA Clubs for children, volleyball and softball leagues, men's prayer breakfast and many other activities.

Kelview Heights offers a Sunday School ministry for every age, including a special-needs class and a "Keen-Agers" class. There are couples classes, large and small; ladies classes and a singles ministry. The Teen Department offers large classes with an exciting program of involvement.

In June, 1961, the Frank Johnson family moved to Midland in response to a call to pastor. God's providence united a few families with a young preacher who wanted to start a church but had never yet pastored. Since then Midland has never been the same.

The first Sunday in the one-room building (with no plumbing) produced a $9 offering from the two men, nine women and the few children who were present. January 1, 1962 found Johnson pastoring full time with a $50 weekly salary. Since that beginning there have been thousands of people saved and multitudes that have turned toward the Lord.

In the spring of 1986 the newest addition was completed. It encompasses approximately 40,000 sq. ft. of educational and office space, including the teen department that doubles as an activities room housing volleyball and basketball facilities. It also houses a beautiful 5000 sq. ft. nursery with round, canopied cribs, and a drive-through entrance.

Kelview Heights Baptist Church is located off North Big Spring Street at Scharbauer Drive. Child care is provided.

W.R. Simpson, pastor of Tall City Missionary Baptist, graduated from Missionary Baptist Seminary in Little Rock, Ark., with a Bachelor in Bible Languages. He is now working on his Master's degree.

Originally a rice and soybean and livestock farmer, Simpson has been pastor of Tall City Missionary Baptist since its inception in 1969.

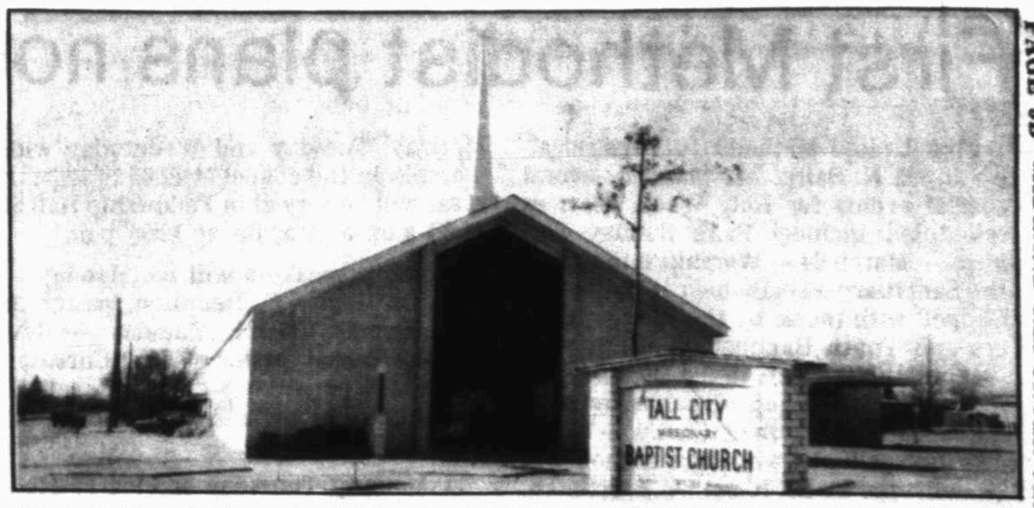

Tall City Missionary Baptist began as a mission on Easter Sunday, 1969, in the Carpenters Union Hall on Florida Street. A little over a year later, the church moved into its first building at the present location.

A new auditorium was built nine years ago. The church continues to grow as the Lord provides the congregation with the help of volunteer musicians, a music director, youth workers and a ladies auxilliary.

Tall City Missionary Baptist sponsors three missions: Liberty Baptist Mission in Big Spring, Fellowship Baptist Mission, Abilene, and Comox Valley Baptist Mission, Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Canada.

The congregation will continue to support these missions until they become churches.

West Texas Baptist Institute and Seminary is an extension of Tall City Missionary Baptist. It is completing its fourth year of work and graduating graduating exercises are set for May 3. Classes meet each Tuesday from 7:30-9:30 p.m. for a 16-week semester. The school is affiliated with the American Baptist Association Theological Schools.

All former members and friends are invited to Tall City Missionary Baptist 22nd anniversary services Sunday. The church is located at 3500 Anetta Drive.

Morales attacks insurance industry

■ Addressing a meeting of county judges and commissioners, attorney general says insurance reform among his top priorities.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

'We believe there is no reason that the insurance industry should not be expected to do business in our state under the same (anti-trust) rules that apply to all other industries.'

— Dan Morales

The insurance industry is "ruthless" and needs major reforms, Attorney General Dan Morales told a gathering of West Texas county judges and commissioners Thursday.

Accusing the industry of "unconscionable" acts, he called on the county officials to help him convince Texans of the need for drastic changes in the insurance field.

Morales, who spoke at the 62nd annual convention of West Texas County Judges and Commissioners at Midland Center, said insurance reform is among his top priorities.

"The leaders of the insurance industry have been permitted to do what no other industry leaders may do: meet regularly to discuss profits, discuss loses and discuss objectives for the future," he said. "We believe there is no reason that the insurance industry should not be expected to do business in our state under the same (anti-trust) rules that apply to all other industries."

Morales vowed to make the industry more accountable by reducing "restrictions in state law that interfere with the attorney general's ability to file suit against licensed insurers or agents."

He said he also will pursue an anti-trust lawsuit filed against the insurance industry by the state in 1988.

"This piece of litigation is a top priority for my office," he said.

He said that between 1975 and 1984, the insurance industry did not pay "a single penny in federal income taxes — even though they had net gains of $75 billion during that decade."

Furthermore, he said, the industry nationwide showed a 600 percent increase in profits from 1985 to 1986.

"At the same time, the industry's leaders and lobbyists came to us and told us that they were in dire financial straits — such dire straits, in fact, that they weren't sure if they could stay in business."

But Richard Geiger, a Dallas lawyer who represents the Texas Association of Fire and Casualty Companies, said Morales was manipulating the figures.

He said the profit increase seemed large because the industry in 1986 was coming off a year of net losses.

"When you return to profitability, it's going to be a huge increase," he said.

Group wants to provide protection for officers

■ Local residents hope to raise the funds needed to purchase bullet-proof vests for law enforcement officers.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

A group of local citizens want to make an investment in the safety of local law enforcement officers.

They are hoping to raise enough money to provide bullet-proof vests to Midland Police Department officers and Midland County Sheriff's Office deputies.

"At the Midland Police Department, the only people who have vests are SWAT or officers that wish to buy their own and the Sheriff's Office is in much the same shape," said Tom Sloan, a former city councilman, who spearheaded the project.

About $90,000 is needed to purchase approximately 400 vests.

Sloan and Midlander Ed Vogler hope to raise one-fourth of the money needed through donations from individuals, corporations and foundations. So far about $12,000 in commitments have been made, Sloan said.

Another 25 percent is the goal of the Midland Jaycees.

Jani Davis, Jaycees project chairman for the endeavor, said the board of directors gave the approval for the fund raising in January.

"At this time we are trying to work on something for law enforcement week in May," Ms. Davis said.

The city has agreed to match about half the remaining cost, Sloan said.

Agency trying to find jobs for ex-HSA workers

■ Private Industry Council campaigning to find new jobs for employees laid off by mortgage company.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

The Permian Basin Private Industry Council's efforts to find new jobs for HSA Mortgage Co. employees is paying off, a PIC official said Thursday.

HSA is in the process of laying off its 140-employee work force. PIC, with financing from the federal Job Training Partnership Act, began last month to try to find new jobs for the displaced workers.

So far, more than 40 HSA employees have found new jobs with PIC help, PIC Chairman Wayne Scott said during a news conference Thursday at Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission headquarters in Midland.

"The Permian Basin Private Industry Council would like to thank the employers of the Permian Basin in PIC's campaign to find jobs for the dislocated workers in this area," Scott said.

The HSA program began Feb. 12, with a media campaign designed to let area employers know that employees of the mortgage company — which plans to shut down by June — were available to be hired.

Barry Marks, HSA president, said the first wave of layoffs at his company came March 15, when 17 employees were let go. A "similar number" will be fired every 15 days until April 30, he said.

"The final layoff of nearly 30 people will occur at the end of May and the end of June," Marks said.

Some 80 employees remain at HSA, he said. They include accountants, programmers, managers, secretaries and clerks.

The HSA employees qualify for PIC counseling and training to help them find other employment, Scott said.

Meanwhile, Texas Employment Commission offices in Midland and Odessa are offering expedited service to former HSA employees, TEC area manager Odel Crawford said.

Former HSA workers can avoid long lines by reporting to TEC offices at 2 p.m. for special processing for unemployment benefits, he said.

"It's basically a service that we provide and we've done it in other cases where there have been layoffs," Crawford said.

PIC's effort on behalf of HSA is not unique either, Scott said. Oth-

MC, OC to get automotive refrigerant recycling machines

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland and Odessa colleges will be doing their part to protect the Earth's ozone layer when the colleges' automotive refrigeration departments switch on their recycling machines.

The colleges were each awarded an IG-LO 1400 reclamation and recycling machine which captures and recycles automotive refrigerants containing chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs).

CFCs have been linked to depletion of the earth's protective ozone layer.

The $3,500 machines will serve double duty on each campus by protecting the environment and functioning as a learning tool for automotive students.

MC was one of 100 tax-exempt educational institutions receiving the machines nationwide, according to Scott Reames of the Kentucky-based Project TERRA (Training and Education for Responsible Refrigerant Application).

Reames said high schools and colleges with vocational technical

Among other things they claim are authentic, Mae and Arthur Murdock of Midland say they have a piece of cable of the Santa Maria. The boat was the flagship of Christopher Columbus' fleet that traveled to America in 1492.

Local couple believes artifact part of fiber cable from Columbus' ship

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Arthur and Mae Murdock have kept relatively quiet about an alleged antiquity that has come to rest in their humble Midland home.

Wrapped in foil and stored in a box for most of its 37 years in their possession, the dark brown, cylindrical object at least appears ancient.

They believe the artifact — a 9-inch-long, 3-inch-wide bundle of fiber tightly bound by cord — is a piece of cable off the ship Santa Maria, sailed by Christopher Columbus.

The Santa Maria was the explorer's flagship during his first voyage to America in 1492. The boat wrecked Dec. 25, 1492, on a reef off the north shore of what is now Haiti.

Arthur Murdock said the cable drifted into his hands in 1954, when he was head ranger of the Los Angeles Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The organization, with the help of a group of Los Angeles investors, had planned to open a museum. Museums nationwide already had donated items, including the cable section, when the investors backed out.

"They just told us to get rid of all the stuff we had collected," Murdock said.

The Boy Scouts buried some items on the proposed museum site, the Firestone Scout Reservation near Pomona, Calif., but Murdock kept a few for himself.

The couple brought the artifacts with them when they moved to their Midland home at 3609 Anetta Drive about 21 years ago.

Other salvaged objects include a bone spoon purportedly used during one of Robert Edwin Peary's assaults on the North Pole in the late 1800s. A wooden spoon and knife are believed to come from an ancient ship.

Each item came with a yellowed parchment indicating they were displayed during the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago. The papers claim the items' authenticity.

Mrs. Murdock said she and her husband decided to publicly unveil the artifacts in advance of the 500th anniversary next year of Columbus' discovery of America.

The couple said the cable, of course, is the most prized possession.

"There's no reason for it not to be authentic," said Mrs. Murdock, now 68. "I'm sure it will prove out."

But few will to listen to the couple's story, much less believe it, she said. Archaeologists scoffed at their claims, she said.

"You tell somebody you've got something like this and they look at you like you're crazy," Mrs. Murdock said.

Her husband acknowledged that 401 years of missing history between boat wreck and World's Fair would make anyone skeptical. Then there's the 61-year time gap between 1893 and 1954.

But Murdock, 72, a retired drilling company manager, said he hopes someone will research the cable piece.

An Austin-based archaeological expert, however, doubted the cable is from the Santa Maria because the ship's remnants never have been found.

"I can't think of any way to authenticate it (cable) unless there's documentation back before 1863," said researcher Barto Arnold of the Texas Archaeological Research Lab. "If it was real, it would have tremendous archaeological value."

Texas marine archaeologists, Arnold said, currently are searching the floor beneath the Caribbean Sea for remnants of the Santa Maria.

Gardening can reduce stress, expert says

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Spring is under way, the growing season is accelerating and for many Texans, it's time to delve into the dirt for growing vegetables.

It's more than just for the taste of fresh produce.

Growing vegetables can help cut down on stress.

"People are not only more health-conscious, they're more exercise-conscious," said Dr. Roland Roberts, Northwest Texas vegetable specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) in Lubbock.

Many people get into vegetable growing in "looking for ways to lower the stress level in their lives," Roberts said.

"And gardening does do that."

Other than that, many people who raise fruits and vegetables are "concerned about the safety of their food — their fresh fruits and vegetables," he said.

"And I think that's healthy."

Retiree files for MISD board

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland school board candidate Leon Keller, a retired businessman, said he hopes to have a chance to put something back into the community if elected.

Keller

"And I have the time necessary to do the job since I am retired," Keller said.

Keller will vie with Jack Hightower for Ken Morrison's seat in District 3 at the May 4 election.

A Midlander for 28 years, Keller is a Midland High School and Midland College graduate.

Keller said he thinks a key responsibility of school board trustees is to make themselves available to the public. "I want to get out and meet with people and see what they think," he said.

Although his children have already gone through the Midland public school system, Keller said he still has a stake in education issues because he has "plenty of nieces and nephews in school now."

Concerning the cluster system, an issue which may be focused on in the future, Keller said, "We have to be very careful about changing a system if it changes the quality of education from one school to the next."

"I'm all for making positive changes," he said. "But I want to make a change for the best, not just to make a change."

Keller said some changes need to made in order to keep Midland students' test scores topping state and national averages and he is prepared to make those changes.

"I am ready to meet with people and work with people to see what needs to be done," he said.

Some of the vehicles were entered with no signs of forced entry, police said. Most of the items were taken from glove compartments.

Light pole fractures, killing two people

FORT WORTH (AP) — An 80-foot light pole fractured and toppled at a downtown park Thursday, killing two men and injuring two other people.

The pole snapped at its base in the Fort Worth Water Garden.

Police said a 44-year-old North Carolina man was killed and a 44-year-old South Carolina man was fatally injured. A 53-year-old man from Mississippi was hospitalized in fair condition, and a 54-year-old California woman who was slightly injured refused treatment, officials said.

Candidate wants to put lid on property taxes

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Hugh White III, as a candidate for an at-large Midland City Council seat, already has made keeping a lid on property taxes one of his campaign goals.

White

White on Wednesday threw his hat into the May 4 election. White will square off against incumbents John Castro and J.D. Faircloth in the race for two at-large positions.

If elected, White said he will push hard to keep the city's property taxes from going higher.

"We need to quit spending so much and hold the line on taxes," he said. "It's just ridiculous and getting out of hand. They spend money on programs that are unwarranted."

White, 62, is a 33-year Midland resident who works as an independent computer and accounting consultant.

A Texas native, he moved here in 1958 after serving in the U.S. Air Force.

He worked as an assistant engineer for TU Electric for 1½ years before joining Superior Oil Co. as a geotechnician and draftsman, jobs he held until 1963.

From 1963 to 1966, he worked for Pure Oil Co. He was then a Champlin Petroleum Co. employee until 1978.

He worked as a district geologist for Terra Resources from 1978 to 1980 and then spent three years as an area manager for P&O Falco. White was an independent geology consultant from 1983 to 1990.

He has two geology degrees from the University of Texas. He earned a bachelor's of science in 1952 and a bachelor's of arts in 1954. He earned a master's of geology degree in 1973 from Sul Ross State University.

He also has associate degree in computer science from Midland College and is close to finishing work on an associate degree in accounting from the school.

Although he never has held a public office, White is not a newcomer to politics. He was defeated in two bids for the City Council and twice as a candidate for the Midland College board.

He and his wife, Barbara, have nine children and one grandchild.

White said he is seeking a council seat in order to bring new political blood to the entity.

"I think there should be more turnover on the City Council," he said.

White said the council has spent too much time pondering ordinances, such as the recent proposal to regulate outdoor lights in Midland.

"My attitude is that they've got too many ordinances now that they don't enforce," he said. "They ought to enforce them or get them off the books."

HSA: Workers getting new jobs

(From 1C)

er displaced workers are benefiting from PIC programs, he said.

"HSA was not singled out," he said. "What we did, we used the opportunity of HSA's (layoff) announcement to get the JTPA and PIC program name in front of the people."

Efforts to find employers for HSA workers are still under way, he said. An ongoing media campaign to advertise the workers' availability will continue for another month and possibly longer, officials said.

programs were eligible to receive the machines. "They won't actually receive a grant, Reames said. "They were awarded a grant which will cover the cost of the machines and shipping them."

Reames said Midland and Odessa Colleges were ranked in the top 50 of 500 learning institutions which applied for the machines. He said an additional 50 schools will be selected at random to receive machines.

Reames said award recipients were selected based on the quality of their automotive refrigerant curriculum and recommendations from state and federal representatives.

"A letter of recommendation for Midland College from State Rep. Tom Craddick contributed in the decision-making process," Reames said.

He said U.S. Rep. Larry Combest and State Rep. Gary Watkins both recommended OC.

Reames said that the machines will boost curriculum due to recently approved Clean Air Act amendments which require all professional service centers to recycle automotive refrigerants within the next one to two years.

"Students need to know how to use these machines because of industry standards," said Bernhard Sedate, OC vice president for instruction.

Sedate said OC's automotive and diesel mechanics program would benefit from studying the machine.

"We appreciate industry contributions, especially since money is scarce at both the state and federal level," Sedate said. "But we also appreciate the opportunity to keep CFCs out of the atmosphere."

MC spokesperson H.A. Tuck said, "We have automotive technology, diesel, air conditioning and heating programs, some which are directly involved with toxic materials. We are delighted to have this type of equipment become available for us and are excited about being able to put it into operation."

"Until CFC-based refrigerants are phased out completely, education and recycling are our best weapons against further damage to our environment," said Hoyt B. Wilder, president of IG-LO.

Reames said that technology in the refrigeration field is changing so quickly that the recycling machines are being upgraded before they are sent to grant recipients. "We are looking at an early April delivery date," he said.

industry as "the most tightly regulated part of our economy."

"I think that he (Morales) has perhaps condemned an entire industry with his generalizations concerning the conduct of a few," Geiger said.

Besides insurance, Morales also addressed the issues of criminal justice reform and education reform.

"Even a cursory analysis of our existing educational system shows clear cause for alarm," he said. "Texas today ranks 38th among the 50 states in median years of education," he said.

"With a graduation rate of just 65 percent, we rank 43rd in the nation. One-half of all hispanics, one-third of all blacks and one-quarter of all Anglos never make it out of high school. And each of those new drop-out classes costs taxpayers in Texas another $17 billion in lost productivity and additional social and criminal justice costs."

Settlement of a lawsuit against the state criminal justice system, which has been ordered by the courts to reduce prison overcrowding, is another of his priorities, Morales said.

EARNEST KIKER
'Don't Bag It' can end bagging forever

Kiker

You don't ever have to bag it again. Grass clippings, that is. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Keep Midland Beautiful, City of Midland, Midland College and Nationwide Papers are joining forces to bring you the Don't Bag It lawn care program.

Just think! Never having to stop the mower, bend over, remove bag, empty bag, bag clippings and carry clippings out to the dumpster ever again. That's what you can do, if you follow the guidelines of the Don't Bag It lawn care program.

It may sound like a train wreck, but golf courses, parks and other large turfed areas have never caught clippings, and they have beautiful grass areas — and you can do the same. Where it got started, I don't know, but it is such a tradition that we think we have to catch grass clippings to have a healthy lawn — not so. By following the mowing, watering and fertilizing practices developed for the lawn care program in West Texas you can have a healthy lawn and make great strides in helping our environment.

This is how you can have a great looking lawn without stooping over so much.

■ Mowing: If you mow your lawn on a five to six day frequency, clippings are small, drop to the ground and are quickly decomposed. It is a fallacy that grass clippings contribute to the thatch layer. Grass clippings are primarily protein and microbes attack and consume them quickly.

■ Watering: During the driest period of summer, lawns usually require one inch of water every five to six days. You may want to try to water once or twice a week, rather than three or more. Frequent shallow irrigations, cause grass to develop a shallow root system, resulting in a less hardy turf grass, with no drought hardiness.

■ Fertilizing: If you will use slowly available nitrogen fertilizers instead of quickly available forms of nitrogen, you can have good, even growth throughout the growing season. The traditional forms of nitrogen in our fertilizers caused us to have rapid peaks of growth, instead of steady, healthy growth.

These are the basics for the Don't Bag It lawn care program. To get the inside story on solid waste issues facing Midland and the up-to-date details on how to do Don't Bag It, join us Tuesday, March 26, 7 p.m. at Midland College in the Student Union building.

City of Midland officials, Extension turf grass specialists, involved citizens groups and Don't Bag It lawn care demonstrators of 1990 will be on hand to get you off to the right start.

Also available to get you off to the right start will be Toro representatives. You could be taking home a brand new Toro Mulching Mower as a door prize.

VESTS: Officers welcome efforts

(From 1C)

If the project is successful, the law enforcement agencies would be responsible for maintaining vests for officers in the future.

Lt. Damon Shupp of the support services division of the Police Department, said the effort to outfit the department with vests is welcomed.

"A lot of officers can't afford to buy one," he said.

"You don't know, in the street, when you might come in contact with a weapon ... I personally feel it should be required (wear) as far as patrol officers working the street," Shupp said.

The Midland Police Department hasn't purchased vests because of the high cost, Shupp said.

In addition to safety, making vests available to officers would fulfill a requirement necessary for the Midland Police Department in becoming an accredited police department in the state of Texas, said Lt. Lannie Lee.

Sloan said he and associates have considered raising money to purchase vests to donate to the department for some time.

"After the officer got shot in Fort Stockton (in December 1990), that was the spark that ignited the fire," Sloan said.

Sloan said the fundraising project shouldn't be just a small group of citizens but a community-wide effort.

Ms. Davis agreed. "This is not just a Jaycees project but a city-wide project," she said.

Individuals or groups interested in helping raise money can call Ms. Davis at 685-1234.

Most areas of Texas need rain

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Light and isolated showers drifted through the Panhandle and plains region during the past week and early this week but failed to do much for increasing soil moisture problems.

Dryland wheat in the Panhandle is growing but is hampered by windy, dry conditions, and range grass fires are still a problem, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, Extension Service director, said South Plains soil moisture is short to very dry and aggravated by continuing windy conditions. All ranges, pastures and dryland wheat need rain.

He said similar conditions can be found in the Rolling Plains, where soil moisture also is short to very dry. Range and pasture fires have broken out in several counties and stock water tanks are low throughout the district. Livestock condition, however, is good.

More fortunate were some Rio Grande Valley counties, Carpenter said. Hidalgo and Cameron counties received several inches of rain late last week but other South Texas areas reported only drizzle that gauged less than half an inch.

Doyle Warren of Weslaco, district Extension Service director, said most ranges and pastures remain in just fair condition, a holdover from two to three years of drought. On the other hand, commercial crop planting and vegetable harvesting is active.

"Corn is 95 percent planted, cotton 70 percent and sorghum 85 percent," Warren said. "Harvesting continues on carrots, cabbage and greens, and is starting on onions. Citrus regrowth is looking good on young trees."

The Hill Country west and northwest of San Antonio received substantial rains during the weekend but counties to the south and southwest had scattered drizzle.

"The rain, however, helped settle the dust and reduced wind erosion in prepared fields," said Joe Pena of Uvalde, Extension Service economist. "Strong, dry winds throughout last week depleted moisture and created dust storms."

Pena said corn is up to good stands and sorghum is about 70 percent planted. Some pima cotton is being planted but upland cotton seeding probably will not start for another week. Onion fields are growing well and markets are promising.

Richard Wynne, meteorologist with the National Agricultural Weather Service at Texas A&M, said this week's soil temperatures from South Central Texas northward are averaging 1 to 2 degrees colder than those of last week.

Soil temperatures are important for proper seed germination in agricultural crops. Wynne said the cooler soil conditions are because of persistent cloudiness and chilly nights.

The following specific crop, livestock and weather conditions for the past week were reported by district Extension Service directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture remains short following warm, windy weather and scattered showers. Dryland wheat growth is impeded by dry soil and wind. Cattle are gaining well on the better wheat fields. Range grass fires are a problem. Land preparation for spring crop planting is almost complete. Fruit trees are blooming.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture is short to very dry. Land preparation for spring crops is active. Wheat, ranges and pastures need rain. Onion and potato planting are underway, and fruit trees are blooming.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture is short to very dry, the result of winds and lack of rain. Wheat growth is slow, and greenbugs and armyworms are active. Several counties report range and pasture fires. Cattle have been removed from wheat destined for grain production. Greening of ranges and pastures is slow, and stock tanks are low everywhere. Livestock condition is good but maintenance feeding is still necessary. Fruit trees are blooming.

NORTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is adequate to short. Wheat is good to fair, ranges and pastures good to poor and oats fair to good. Corn and sorghum are mostly planted. High winds have increased frequency of grass fires. Beef cattle are in good condition. Commercial vegetable planting and production are increasing, and peach trees continue to bloom.

NORTHEAST: Adequate to surplus soil moisture is boosting pasture growth but grazing is still limited. Wheat growth is improving. Corn is 50 percent planted, field work continues on vegetables and peach trees are blooming and looking good.

FAR WEST: Soil moisture is short to adequate following scattered rains. Ranges and pastures are in good condition but some livestock maintenance feeding is required. Toxic plant problems are minimal. Sheep and goat shearing is active. Melons are being planted and fruit trees are blooming.

WEST CENTRAL: Soil moisture is short to adequate. Wheat is responding to warm days but rain would be welcome. Cutworms are infesting wheat fields. Ranges are fair to good but need rain. Livestock are in good to excellent condition and maintenance feeding continues. Peach trees are blooming. A few farmers are still stripping the last of the 1990 cotton crop.

CENTRAL: Wheat stands are generally thin because of unfavorable weather early in the growing season, and growth is about two weeks later than usual. Rain is needed to increase spring growth in ranges and pastures. Lice and tick infestations are high in many cattle herds. Most vegetables are up and growing normally.

EAST: Adequate soil moisture is pushing growth of winter and permanent pastures but maintenance feeding of livestock is still under way. Cattle condition is good and markets are favorable. Peach orchards are blooming.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is adequate overall but recent winds have dried top soils. Rust is showing in some wheat fields. Grain farmers are busy planting corn and sorghum. Cattle markets are strong and maintenance feeding is slowing. Peach, plum and apple trees are blooming.

SOUTH: Soil moisture is short to adequate after rains that measured several inches in Hidalgo and Cameron counties to mere drizzles in other areas. Ranges and pastures are fair but showing some improvement. Livestock are in fair condition. Corn is 95 percent planted, sorghum 85 percent and cotton 70 percent. Harvest continues on carrots, cabbage and greens, and is beginning on on ions. Disease problems are heavy in cabbage and moderate in carrots and onions. Young citrus tree regrowth looks good.

GARDEN: Growing quality vegetables a challenge

(From 1C)

said Roberts, who was in Midland on Thursday to talk about gardening to the Permian Basin Farmers Market board of directors. "The first thing they learn, in many cases, is that it's 'no picnic' to try to produce quality" fruits and vegetables.

"It is a challenge to grow without any of these insecticides. They soon find out they've got a major battle on their hands with insects and with diseases."

That battle may result in blemished fruits and vegetables or, in some cases, a poor yield.

Even so, said Roberts, "there are people who are interested in doing something for themselves."

Evidence of that is in the increasing number of vegetable plants being sold every year. "It's growing faster than the population," Roberts said.

Dr. Frank Dainello, statewide TAEX vegetable specialist who is based in College Station, cited the popularity of home gardening.

"It's recreational as much as anything," he said following the session with the Permian Basin Farmers Market board of directors. "It's the personal satisfaction of producing the crop and the enjoyment of being able to eat fresh, quality produce."

The most popular garden plant grown by home gardeners is the tomato, which is a fruit.

Though up to one in five Texans each year plant some sort of garden, often small backyard gardens, home-canning is down in an age when many people want their desires in microwave-oven speed.

"If it doesn't happen fast, they are not going to do it," Dainello said

Dennis Schraeder, a St. Lawrence cotton farmer who is president of the Permian Basin Farmers Market, noted that home gardeners often buy fresh produce at the Farmers Market, which opens in May in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring, when they run short or their crops fail.

Either way, fruits and vegetables grown at home or by West Texas farmers are picked ripe and are "a whole lot fresher ... and prettier" than store-bought vegetables, Schraeder said. "Tomatoes taste a whole lot better that away."

Among the more popular produce items, said Schraeder, are tomatoes, watermelons, cantaloupes, okra and black-eyed peas.

Jerome H. and Betty Hoelscher, who garden at Midkiff, are heavy into garlic and sweet onions and are planting tomatoes. Their customers prefer vine-ripened tomatoes because, unlike store-bought tomatoes, said Hoelscher, "they don't taste like cardboard."

NFL learns lesson

KOHALA, Hawaii (AP) — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue said Thursday that he expects that the league will be more aware in the future of "political clouds" in selecting Super Bowl sites.

"One lesson we've learned is to be more conservative," Tagliabue said in a news conference wrapping up this week's league meetings. "If you see a political cloud on the horizon with a potential Super Bowl city, maybe you table the presentation of that city."

It was the closest Tagliabue has come to saying that the league made a mistake when it awarded the 1993 game to Tempe Ariz., despite Arizona's lack of a holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

After Arizona voters turned down a paid King holiday last November, owners moved the game to Pasadena. They also awarded the 1996 game to Phoenix on a contingency basis — presumably the results of a 1992 referendum on the King holiday will be key.

Throughout the controversy, Tagliabue has declined to say the league made a mistake.

"I don't think the policy I'm talking about would have changed what we did last March toward Phoenix," he said.

Diablos featured

EL PASO (AP) — The El Paso Diablos minor league baseball team and their new stadium will be featured on the cover of next month's National Geographic magazine.

The April issue of the international magazine has a 33-page story on minor league baseball, with the Diablos prominently mentioned. The cover photo is of Cohen Center, built last year, and infielder Greg Edge facing the outfield fence.

The feature will include some of the history of the Diablos including Dudley Field where they played for many years. The field is known for its easy home runs and double-digit scores.

The Diablos are part of the Texas League and are a Class AA farm team for the Milwaukee Brewers.

Rebs settle score, 3-1

Lee advances to soccer playoffs with runner-up win over Bulldogs

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

This time it will stick. Midland Lee's soccer team is going to the playoffs.

Second-half goals by Tim Tucker and Julio Silva lifted Lee to a 3-1 triumph over Midland High in an intra-league playoff that decided the District 3 runner-up — and the second playoff representative — Thursday at the Lee field.

Lee now gets a crack at District 4 champion Wichita Falls Rider Tuesday in Abilene, where District 3 titlist San Angelo will take on Fort Worth Richland, the District 4 runner-up. The exact location and times of those bi-district encounters will probably be decided today.

MHS, a team that beat and tied Lee in two previous meetings, fell from the playoff hunt during the hard-played match between crosstown rivals.

"It was a good ball game, and we came up on the winning end," Lee head coach Eddie Bull said. "They (Bulldogs) played hard, but I think we executed better than they did, and that was the whole key."

For MHS, which finished the regular season with a 6-2-4 record, just getting into Thursday's playoff with Lee was a form of justice. Lee finished the regular season 7-3-2 and had begun playoff preparations.

Only the discovery on Monday of a rule in the district policy book that breaks ties down into ½ a win and ½ a loss thrust the Bulldogs into Thursday's playoff with Lee, because the two teams were officially deemed to have 8-4 win-loss records under the nearly overlooked formula.

"We appreciate the chance to play," said Dustin Arras, who scored the only goal for the Bulldogs. "At least we had a chance."

That "chance" dimmed somewhat when Lee's Chris Murray punched in the game's first goal 20 minutes into the opening half. Murray, a sweeper, set up in front of the MHS goal as Matt Perkins launched a direct kick from 30 yards.

MHS goalie Bryant Mueller made a diving save on Perkins' effort, but Murray was there to pound the rebound home and take the team scoring lead with his eighth goal of the campaign.

"Anytime you get the initial score you feel the momentum and can build on it," Bull said. "Chris (Murray) is a bona fide goal scorer, and we pull him up in situations like that.

"When their keeper didn't clear the ball out well enough, Chris just followed through on the play."

Lee padded its lead with what turned out to be the deciding goal when Tim Tucker blasted a 20-yarder past Mueller from high in the air just three minutes into the second half.

"I was standing back by the sideline when I saw the ball bounce, and I just jumped in there and kicked it," Tucker said. "I basically just jumped as high as I could so I'd get enough power into it so it would go to the goal."

But the Bulldogs bounced right back. Arras caught the Lee defense napping just 16 seconds after Tucker's tally, scoring his second goal of the season from about 20 yards out.

"We had a throw-in from the side, and the keeper (Lee's Freddie Silva) punched it out of there," Arras said. "I just volleyed it in from out of the air."

MHS experienced a couple of near misses that might have tied the game, but Silva made the saves that kept Lee out in front. Then, in the 69th minute of action, Julio Silva put the game on ice. Mark Ferguson stole the ball deep inside Bulldog territory, pushed it ahead to Tucker, and Tucker set up Silva at 10-foot range.

"Both teams played very well," MHS head coach Tom Esikhati said. "I think we need to congratulate the effort.

"Both teams are good teams and can

Hogs advance in Southeast

■ Arkansas, led by guards Todd Day and Lee Mayberry, soundly thrash Alabama 93-70 and will meet Kansas the Southeast Regional championship.

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Todd Day scored 31 points and Lee Mayberry found his shooting touch in the second half as top-seeded Arkansas broke open a close game and routed Alabama 93-70 Thursday night in the semifinals of the NCAA Southeast Regional.

Arkansas (34-3) will play Kansas Saturday, with the winner going to the Final Four at Indianapolis.

The loss continued Alabama's frustration in the regional semifinals. Although the Crimson Tide (23-10) has reached the final 16 five of the last six years, they've lost all five times.

The 23-point loss was Alabama's worst of the season and matched the Tide's worst defeat ever in the NCAA tournament, a 73-50 opening-round loss to Lamar in 1983.

Mayberry, 0-for-4 from the field in the first half with one point, scored 15 in the second half as the Razorbacks pulled away. He scored seven of Arkansas' first nine points after intermission as the Razorbacks increased their three-point halftime lead to 49-43.

Alabama closed to 49-47 on two free throws by Robert Horry after the Arkansas bench was hit with a technical foul, but that was as close as the Tide would get.

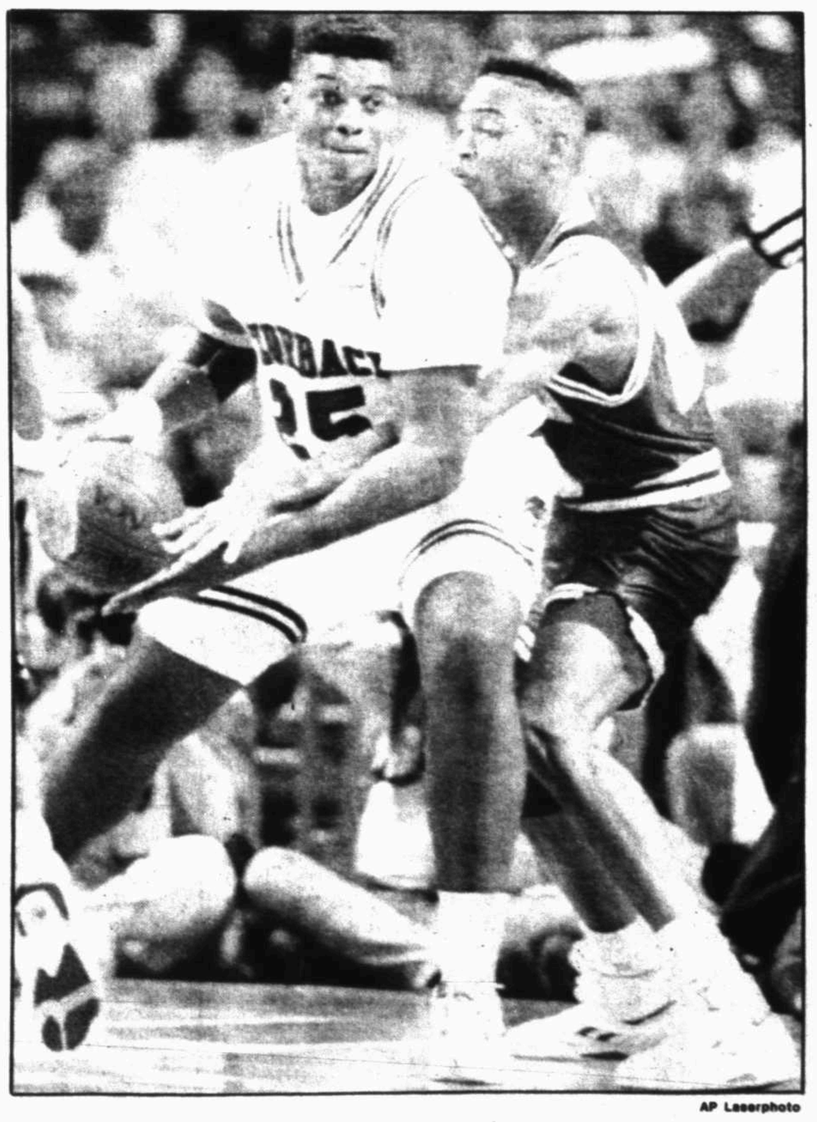

A 7-1 Arkansas run that took only 43 seconds opened up a 56-48 lead. A basket by Horry made it 57-52, but Arkansas then scored nine straight points, including a 3-pointer by Mayberry and a steal and dunk by Ron Huery. Arkansas led 66-52 with 11:09 remaining, and the Tide was finished.

Oliver Miller, plagued by foul trouble in the first half, finished with 15 points for Arkansas.

Arkansas' pressure defense forced the Crimson Tide into mistakes that opened the way for the Razorbacks' decisive run. Things got so bad that Horry, trying to play despite a pulled groin, missed a follow-up dunk late in the second half.

James Robinson, whose practice time was limited by a bad left knee, scored 21 points for Alabama. Horry had 18 and Melvin Cheatum 13 for the Tide.

Arkansas, a long-time member of the Southwest Conference, will join the Southeastern Conference next season, where the Razorbacks will compete regularly against Alabama.

Seton Hall 81, Arizona 77

SEATTLE — Arizona was bigger, but Seton Hall and Terry Dehere were better.

Dehere, continuing his hot postseason play, scored 28 points and Seton Hall contained Arizona's big front line for a 81-77 victory Thursday night in the semifinals of the NCAA West Regional.

The Pirates (25-8) will play Nevada-Las Vegas in the regional final on Saturday.

Seton Hall used a collapsing, double-teaming defense to overcome Arizona's "Tucson Skyline" of 6-foot-11 Brian Williams, 6-11 Sean Rooks and 7-foot reserve Ed Stokes.

Williams scored 21 points, but Rooks got only 12 and Stokes was held to two. Chris Mills had 20 points for the Wildcats (28-7).

Trailing 80-77, Arizona got the ball in the closing seconds. But Matt Othick missed a 3-point shot with 4.5 seconds left, Seton Hall grabbed the re-

Bo angered at 'quacks'

Bo Jackson's future should not be judged by doctors who haven't seen his medical reports, his agent says.

Jackson

"All of these quacks around the country have not examined Bo's records and have no idea what they're talking about," Richard Woods, Jackson's agent, said Thursday from Mobile, Ala. "When I see doctors in San Diego, San Francisco, or New York or Washington, commenting, it makes you wonder what sort of ethical medical standards they have."

An Alabama medical center where Jackson was examined this week said the two-sport star would be tested again in 30 days. It said it would not comment on Jackson's condition until then.

Meanwhile, Woods said the New York Yankees are serious about claiming Jackson by Friday's 2 p.m. EST deadline.

"Bo and the Yankees could be a match made in heaven," Woods said. "New York is New York, the Yankees are the Yankees and Bo is Bo. The Yankees are the greatest franchise in history and Bo could breath new life into a great

A Tale of Two Streaks ...

While the Houston Rockets keep on winning, Sacramento's still the King of the Road losers

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets and Sacramento Kings continued streaking — in opposite directions.

Kenny Smith scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter and Otis Thorpe added 11 fourth-quarter points as the Rockets won a franchise record 10th consecutive game, defeating the Kings 98-87 Thursday night.

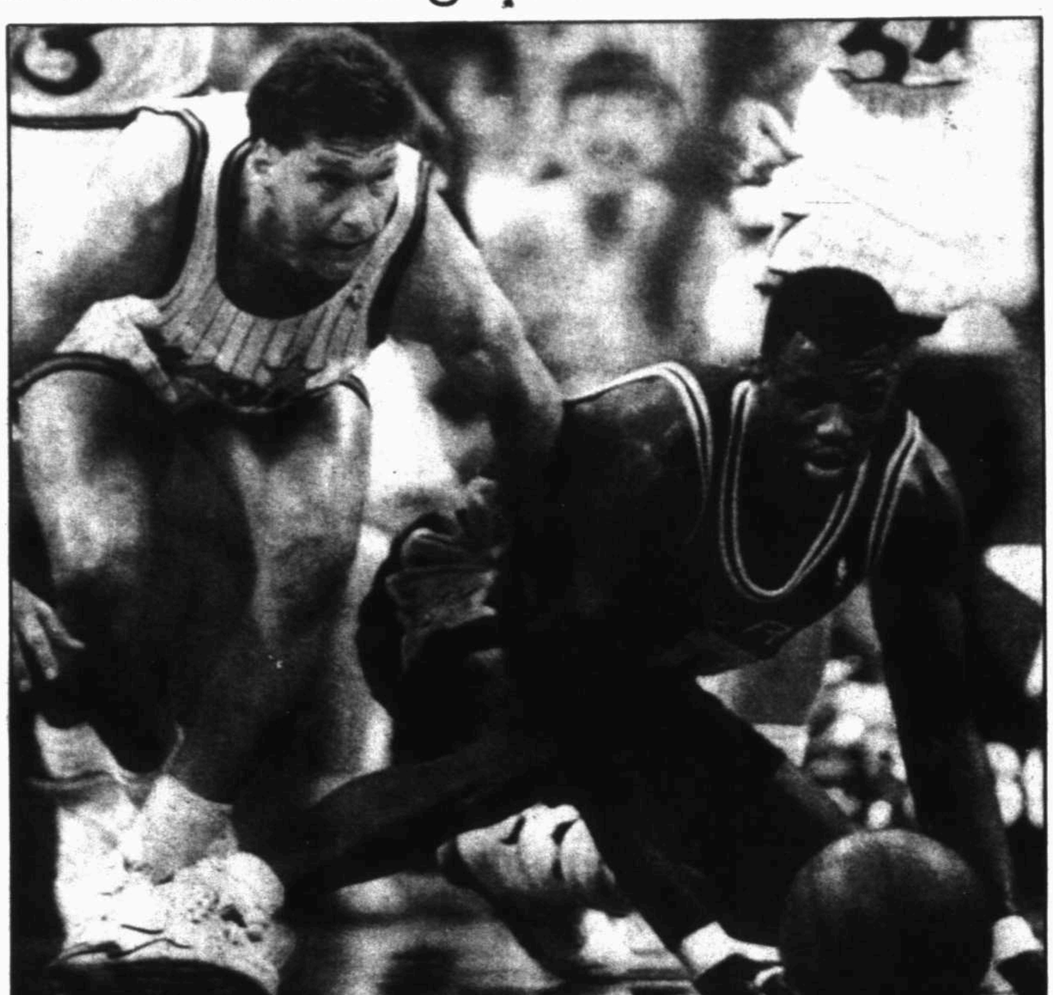

The Kings lost their 30th straight road game, an NBA single-season record. It also was Sacramento's 18th straight loss at The Summit.

The victory enabled the Rockets to clinch their seventh straight playoff berth and their 42-24 record is their best-ever after 66 games. The win broke the franchise record of nine straight victories, set in 1977, and put the Rockets 18 games over .500 for the first time since 1985-86.

Houston led 52-50 with 8:09 left in the third quarter before a basket by Smith started a 15-5 run that made it 67-55 with 4:04 left.

Sacramento then scored seven straight points to cut its deficit to 67-62, but got no closer. Smith scored two more baskets to give Houston a 73-66 lead going into the fourth quarter. Thorpe then took over the scoring, adding nine points in the first six minutes of the final period to give Houston an 89-72 lead.

Thorpe led the Rockets with 28 points and 12 rebounds, followed by Hakeem Olajuwon with 11 points and 16 rebounds and Vernon Maxwell with 11 points.

Magic 105, Spurs 102

ORLANDO, Fla. — Jeff Turner's layup put Orlando ahead for good and Jerry Reynolds added two free throws and blocked Sean Elliott's 3-point shot in the final 10 seconds to help the Magic hold off the San Antonio Spurs.

The win stopped a four-game losing streak for Orlando, which led by 11 points before San Antonio made up the deficit with a 19-8 spurt in the last five minutes of the third quarter. The loss was the third in four games for the Spurs, who are challenging Utah for first place in the Midwest Division despite losing nine of their last 12 road games.

Jazz 100, Hornets 94

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 31 points and John Stockton dished out 16 assists as the Utah Jazz beat the Charlotte Hornets.

Charlotte held a 79-77 lead early in the fourth quarter before the Jazz took control on a 12-6 run.

Stockton, who finished with 20 points, had two baskets and Mike Brown had four of his six points during the pivotal spurt.

Jeff Malone scored 16 points for Utah and Thurl Bailey scored 15. Johnny Newman scored 21 points for Charlotte, including 13 in the first quarter.

Warriors 136, Nuggets 118

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Golden State Warriors got 95 points from their big three of Mitch Richmond, Chris Mullin and Tim Hardaway to beat the Denver Nuggets.

Richmond had 30 points, Mullin had 29 and Hardaway scored 26 as Golden State overcame a 15-point first-half deficit to win for the sixth time in eight games.

can represent the community well," he said.

Bull said getting his charges to settle down after both teams set out on a torrid game pace helped the Rebels overcome the pressure of the game.

"They (Rebels) knew the pressure that was here. I knew it. You'd have to live someplace besides Midland not to know it," Bull said.

"I told the kids that the first team that settled down, played and executed, would win. We settled down quickly."

Bull added that despite the uncertainty leading up to the playoff with Bulldogs — who had begun turning in soccer gear before hearing of the ruling that launched it — the Rebels maintained a positive approach.

"If we drop the ball ... and we did, we have to pick it up and run with it," Bull said. "We had to play Midland High, and that's fine. We just started the playoffs one game early," he said.

organization."

Yankees general manager Gene Michael said the team was still deciding what to do.

"We haven't put in a claim yet," he said in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "We haven't done anything yet. We're still discussing it. We have a lot more things to talk about. We're going to know more tomorrow."

Woods said the only person with all of Jackson's medical records regarding his hip injury is Dr. Jim Andrews, the two-sport star's personal physician from Birmingham, Ala.

"He's a world renowned sports medicine guy and he's very optimistic about Bo's future," Woods said. "Right now, he's being cautious and conservative and he still feels strongly that Bo will be back, and will possibly play this year."

Andrews, who has Roger Clemens, Jack Nicklaus and Charles Barkley among his patients, was not immediately available for comment, but said Wednesday: "I really think he's going to make it. Maybe it's 20 years dealing with this type of athlete, but I have that intuition."

Lanier Johnson, a spokesman for Alabama Sports Medicine in Birmingham, said Andrews "is not willing to make a statement as to his exact condition until Bo has a chance to see what happens with that hip joint. Bo will be back in 30 days for another exam."

The diagnosis said Jackson was suffering from the destruction of cartilage in his hip joint, a condition known as chondrolysis.

after Tech athletic director T. Jones asked him to step down March 13.

Myers admitted Thursday that he has been coming to the office for the past week not knowing what to do.

"T hasn't had enough time to sit down with me and tell me what I will be doing in this new position," said Myers, who joked that his only administrative experience is a master's degree in secondary education.

Jones has been out interviewing prospective coaches to take over for Myers, the third winningest coach in Southwest Conference history.

As of Thursday, Jones said he had a list of about 20 candidates for the job and would likely announce his decision within two weeks.

Myers, who led the Raiders to two SWC regular season titles and three SWC Tournament crowns, said he holds no ill feelings towards Jones or the school.

"I am not bitter. No one wants to give up," said Myers, who was a guard for the Red Raiders and graduated from Tech in 1959. "But realistically coaches don't get more than four years without winning. Texas Tech has been more than fair."

No. 12 Kansas 83, No. 3 Indiana 65

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kansas' near-perfect start ended Indiana's hopes of a local Final Four.

The third-seeded Jayhawks opened a 20-point lead within the first 7½ minutes and went on to an 83-65 victory over second-seeded Indiana in the Southeast Regional semifinals, the Hoosiers' worst loss of the season and worst ever in the NCAA tournament.

Kansas (25-7) will meet top-seeded Arkansas (34-3), which beat Alabama 93-70 on Thursday night, in the regional championship game on Saturday for a spot in the Final Four.

The Final Four will be held at Indianapolis, just an hour from Indiana's Bloomington campus and Hoosier fans had hoped for a quick drive to see Bob Knight go after his fourth national championship.

There was little hope for Indiana (29-5) from the start against Kansas as the Jayhawks had six 3-point field goals when the Hoosiers had that many points as their first 20-point lead came at 26-6 with 12:34 to play in the first half.

Third-ranked Indiana, which trailed by 11 in the first half to Florida State before rallying for the second-round victory, never got closer than 11 points the rest of the game as Kansas, which was knocked for its lack of rebounding, dominated the boards.

Kansas had 15 offensive rebounds in the first half, two less than Indiana's total for the opening 20 minutes.

The 12th-ranked Jayhawks, who had 28 rebounds in the first half, led 49-27 at halftime and the closest Indiana got in the second half was 74-61 with 2:18 to play.

Terry Brown led Kansas with 23 points, while Sean Tunstall had 15 and Alonzo Jamison 14.

Calbert Cheaney led Indiana with 23 points and Damon Bailey added 20.

The start was nearly perfect. Kansas went up 7-0, 13-2 and 23-4 as the outside shooting lived up to its regular-season form. The Jayhawks made six of their first seven attempts from 3-point range.

When Tunstall made his second 3 of the game and Kansas' sixth, the Jayhawks led 26-6.

Everyone was waiting for Indiana to establish defensive dominance and get off the run that would get the Hoosiers back in the game. Something along the lines of the 21-2 burst to start the second half against Florida State.

Kansas missed 10 straight shots and didn't score for 3:30, but Indiana could manage only six points in that span to pull to 28-17.

Kansas had never beaten Indiana in NCAA tournament play, losing the 1940 and 1953 championship games to the Hoosiers.

UNLV 83, Utah 66

SEATTLE — UNLV's basketball machine switched tactics from a bombs-away offense to an inside muscle game and beat Utah both ways to surge to a third straight NCAA West Regional final.

The defending national champions, still perfect at 33-0 and riding a 44-game winning streak, methodically, sometimes savagely, took apart Utah 83-66 Thursday night to set up a revenge match Saturday against Seton Hall.

Several of the Rebels were on the team Seton Hall humiliated 84-61 in the West Regional at Denver in 1989.

"It doesn't help us that we beat them two years ago," said Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo. "They'll want to get back at us more."

Brawny Larry Johnson wasn't on that UNLV team, but he is dominating it now. Johnson scored 23 points, most of them from the inside, before leaving with UNLV up 83-62 with 2:18 left.

UNLV showed again that it can win any way it chooses.

Anderson Hunt, who finished with 12 points, sank three 3-pointers and Stacey Augmon, who wound up with 15 points, hit two bombs in the first half as UNLV took a 41-35 halftime lead.

Utah (30-4) held a 10-7 advantage before the Rebels went on their only tear of the first half, a 9-0 surge that gave them a 16-10 lead. The teams played even the rest of the half, with Utah trying to slow the tempo and work for one good shot, and UNLV looking to pick up the pace and open up the middle with bombs from the outside.

In the second half, the Rebels eschewed the bombs and went more for a direct hit, driving up the middle virtually unchallenged and dominating the backboards on both ends.

Through it all, the Rebels played so tightly on defense they seemed to be stuck on Utah's uniforms. Augmon did a superb job holding Utah's Josh Grant to eight points in the first half and 17 in the game.

Guard Greg Anthony, who dished off 10 assists, kept his hands in the face of Utah guards and virtually took them out of the game.

NJCAA's reach semifinal round

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Derrick Grey scored 26 points Thursday night as Arizona Western defeated Mott, Mich., 80-73 to earn a spot in the semifinals of the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

In other games on Thursday, Kaskaskia, Ill., defeated Eastern Wyoming, 102-82; Westchester, N.Y., beat Southeastern of Burlington, Iowa, 79-67; and North Greenville beat Allegany 88-79.

Mott can still finish as high as fifth in the tournament, while Arizona Western (27-7) advances to the semifinal bracket.

Western didn't let Mott get closer than six points down the stretch. Grey made 11 of his 14 field goal attempts. Brian Walker added 21 points, Mark Morse 12 and Mitchell Foster 11.

Demetrius Hughes scored 15 points for Mott (28-6).

Darren Hill scored 24 points and Vernell Brent 21 as Kaskaskia ousted Eastern Wyoming 102-82.

Kaskaskia moves into the semifinals of the loser's bracket against Westchester, N.Y., on Friday. The winner of that game moves into the game for seventh place on Saturday.

Eastern Wyoming was the fourth team to be eliminated from the five-day tournament that concludes Saturday.

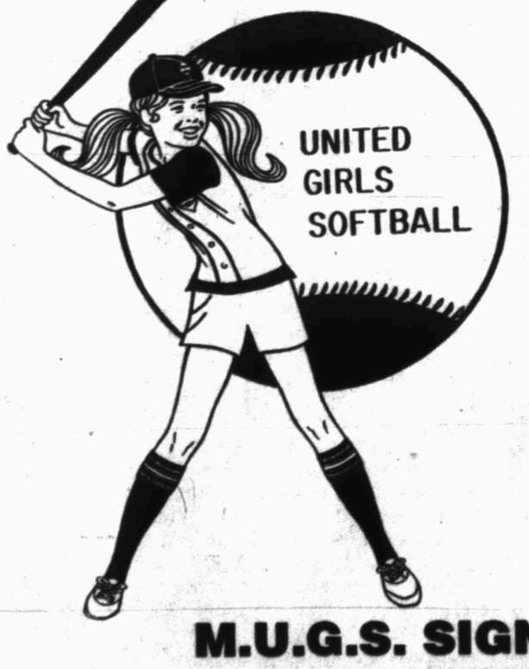

Kaskaskia (26-10) hit 66 percent from the field as Hill connected on 12 of 18.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Major financial deals will keep you busy this spring and summer. You will feel lucky in love in September. Money comes from adopting innovative business methods next October. A life-altering relationship will take you by surprise in December. Turn to a brother or sister for help if a family crisis arises. Additional schooling in early 1992 will boost your earning potential.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Karl Malden, composer Andrew Lloyd Webber, evangelist Rev. Pat Robertson, sportscaster Bob Costas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confidential financial negotiations have strong potential for success today. You radiate self-assurance. Make use of it. A snap decision will be correct. Dress to impress a date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A charitable act or donation will pay big benefits. A hunch helps you get a real bargain. Confidential arrangements pan out well. A social event may have to be postponed. Issue a raincheck.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A close friend's generous suggestion could benefit you financially. Give straightforward answers to this person. Your desire for more independence could upset a loved one. Play a waiting game.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An older individual could be the key to greater success. Your efforts to compromise with a difficult person will be rewarded. Your career picks up speed. Repay favors promptly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A request for support, a favor or funds should be handled confidentially. You know who to align yourself with now. Do nothing in haste. A period of solitude lets you think things through.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A debt may have to be paid now. This could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Other people begin to value your efforts more. Travel holds fresh appeal. Socialize tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Have faith in your financial ideas. Opportunities for romance are more plentiful than in the recent past. You enjoy being on the go. Accept a last-minute social invitation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An unexpected financial twist will demand quick attention. Consult experts only. Errands should go smoothly. You will probably be happiest if you take your romantic partner along on a trip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You feel like baring your soul. Be careful. Too much candor could cool romance. Be tactful when making well-intentioned suggestions. Mate feels that "love is blind."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sitting at home does not suit you now. Reflect on what you would like to do, then do it! Acts of charity will be royally rewarded. Comparison shoppers can find some wonderful bargains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A lucky break comes your way today. Be alert for bargain prices and golden investment opportunities. Happily, the social plans you have made for the weekend will be a smashing success.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Communication is your forte today. Your words have considerable power, penetrating to the heart of matters. Unexpected financial news will delight you. Consult experts. Build savings.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are kind-hearted, energetic and inclined to worry. Participation in active sports will help them deal with their restless energy. These youngsters often have short-lived enthusiasms. Honest and outspoken, these Aries will let you know if you upset them. Wise parents will respect their feelings and welcome their confidences. A late marriage has the best chance of success. These Aries need to be on their own a while before settling down.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

There are many hands that, supposedly, occurred at the table and featured brilliant play or defense by a star player. Thorough investigation often turns up the fact that they really were problem compositions. We have seen today's hand in many guises. To the best of our knowledge, this is the form in which it was originally conceived by one of the greatest problem composers of any era, the late Robert Darvas.

At the table, let's suppose that South mixes up a diamond with the clubs and opens two no trump. (Many of today's players would opt for that opening bid anyway, for a variety of reasons.) North would raise to three no trump, and all that remains is for South to land the contract after a spade lead.

It is distinctly unlucky that North's queen of spades is a wasted card. However, the secret of the problem is to resuscitate the lady.

To start with, declarer should cash the king and ace of clubs. When both defenders follow, declarer should continue with a third round of clubs, to set up three long cards in the suit. What should South discard from hand?

If you selected the remaining high spade, move to the head of the class. With one stroke you have succeeded in bringing North's queen to life and neutralizing the enemy long suit. After winning the queen of clubs, East cannot play a spade, since that will provide an entry to dummy and the good clubs will be enough to make the contract

Suppose East returns a diamond. (The play would be only slightly different after a heart return.) Declarer follows low, and the best West can do is win and return the suit, picking up partner's king. Declarer simply wins and exits with a low heart. By conceding two tricks in hearts, declarer comes to one spade trick, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. The defenders get only two hearts, one diamond and one club.

Students send heart-felt greetings to Schwarzkopf

CHIEFLAND, Fla. (AP) — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf had enough free time just before the ground war started to write students in Pauline Brown's class thanking them for a huge Valentine's card.

Schwarzkopf

The entire Chiefland Elementary School was involved in "Operation Desert Valentine" to send cards to soldiers on Valentine's Day, but Mrs. Brown's first-graders decided to go to the top.

"My husband mentioned that the head guy usually never gets things like other soldiers, so we decided to send him a Valentine's card," she said.

Brown's husband, Michael, is a disabled Vietnam veteran and former combat air controller. He's working on his elementary education degree at the University of Florida.

The card, addressed to Schwarzkopf read: "To our soldiers, Happy Valentine. We love you because ..." Each student dictated something to add and signed the card.

Samples include: "You might be a daddy," "You're in a war and you have to fight" and "You fight in the war so all bad people go away and there will be peace."

Schwarzkopf's letter dated Feb. 23 said: "I particularly want to thank you young people for taking the time to tell us why you love us. After reading each of your comments, I could tell they were spoken from the heart. Just knowing we have your support and love helps us face the challenges that lie ahead."

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — A woman and her 5-year-old daughter at the center of a paternity claim involving Britain's Capt. Mark Phillips went into hiding Thursday.

Heather Tonkin, a 37-year-old art school teacher, and her daughter, Felicity, left their home hours after news of the case involving Phillips, estranged husband of Princess Anne, was revealed in several British tabloids.

Phillips, 42, and Princess Anne, 40-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, separated in August 1989 after 15 years of marriage and two children.

A Buckingham palace spokesman, who in accordance with British practice declined to be named, said of Thursday's report: "If anything is to be said, it can be said by Capt. Phillips himself, not us."

Kevin Ryan, an Auckland lawyer acting for Tonkin, said Phillips faces a paternity suit in a New Zealand court, but did not know when the case would proceed.

London's Daily Express, in what it called an exclusive report, said Miss Tonkin "says she spent a night in his (Auckland) hotel room and he is the father of her daughter." However, it added that Phillips "has never accepted that he is the father."

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston auction house violated seven regulations when it sold former Beatle Paul McCartney's birth certificate last fall, a preliminary licensing investigation reveals.

McCartney

The Texas Department of Licensing and Regulation, which licenses auctioneers, made its preliminary findings after an investigation of Simpson's Galleries' $18,000 sale of the certificate Nov. 18 to Brian Taylor, a Virginia Commonwealth University student.

Larry Kosta, executive director of the agency, said gallery owner Ray Simpson has been given until March 27 to pay some $10,000 in penalties and agency attorney fees before a formal hearing is conducted.

Through his attorney, Lew W. Harpold, Simpson declined to comment on the allegations Wednesday. Harpold denied the charges in a written response to the agency.

In its March 7 report, the licensing agency found Simpson had violated several regulations.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An Australian woman was awarded $100,000 Thursday by a jury that decided she had been defamed by a newspaper article saying she was the sex slave of singer Bob Dylan.

Actress-dancer Emilia Caruana, who goes by the name Gypsy Fire, admitted during the state Supreme Court trial that she had an affair with the musician during his 1986 tour of Australia.

But the 44-year-old Ms. Caruana argued that the Weekend Truth newspaper portrayed her as "a disgusting publicity-seeking trollop" who engaged in "bizarre and erotic behavior by herself and with a well-known pop star and told the story thereof to a news publisher."

The article purported to relate Ms. Caruana's description of her love affair with Dylan in a Melbourne hotel. The newspaper contended the story accurately reported what Ms. Caruana told its reporter and that she consented to publication of the story.

In December 1987, a magistrate dismissed charges of criminal defamation brought by Ms. Caruana against Truth Newspapers, the paper's parent company, over the same article.

"It's good to know there's still justice in Australia," Dylan said through a spokesman, Elliot Mintz.

Prices rise

Oil prices advanced on the New York Mercantile Exchange, bouncing back from an early sell-off in gasoline futures.

Contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate rose 44 cents to close at $20.49.

The move prompted oil producers such as Permian, which had lowered its posted price 50 cents to $18.50 Wednesday, to increase its posted price 75 cents to $19.25. Texaco also raised its posted price to $19.25.

Natural gas was 0.9 cent lower to 2.2 cents higher with May at $1.397 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Stocks mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices managed only a mixed showing Thursday as the market continued to feel the effects of chastened earnings expectations.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had posted a net loss of 76.24 points over the week's first three sessions, dropped 16.58 points to 2,855.45.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK (AP) — Joint action by major central banks sapped the dollar's strength Thursday, generating a steady decline that was interrupted briefly by a rumor that Germany's embattled monetary chief was prepared to resign.

Gold mostly slipped. The precious metal's price for current delivery was unchanged from late Wednesday on the New York Commodity Exchange at $363.00.

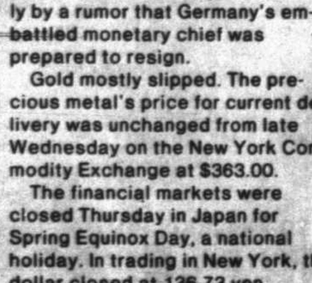

The financial markets were closed Thursday in Japan for Spring Equinox Day, a national holiday. In trading in New York, the dollar closed at 136.73 yen, down from late Wednesday's 138.30 yen.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.7930 from $1.7770 late Wednesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Wednesday, included: 1.6315 German marks, down from 1.6425; 1.4055 Swiss francs, down from 1.4150; 5.5555 French francs, down from 5.5950; 1,215.50 Italian lire, down from 1,223.00; and 1.1555 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1574.

Gold fell in London to a late bid of $362.75 a troy ounce, down from $363.25 late Wednesday. In Zurich, the metal fell to a closing bid of $362.50 an ounce from $364.00 late Wednesday. Earlier in Hong Kong, gold fell $1.62 an ounce to close at $362.76.

Silver was higher in New York, rising 5.8 cents a troy ounce to $3.994 on the Commodity Exchange.

FDIC borrowing authority bolstered

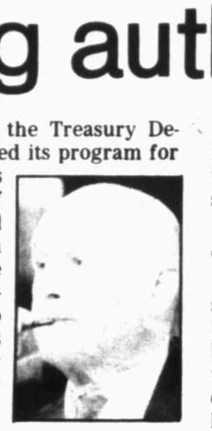

■ To shore up the deposit insurance fund, the FDIC has gotten increased borrowing authority equal to $70 billion.

By Dave Skidmore

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration's $25 billion borrowing plan to shore up the dwindling government insurance fund protecting bank deposits became a $70 billion plan Thursday.

L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., told the Senate Banking Committee that the plan would provide $70 billion in new standby borrowing authority.

Just a day earlier, the Treasury Department had described its program for bolstering the FDIC as a $25 billion line of credit at the Federal Reserve. But Seidman told the panel a rule change in the administration's plan also would increase its ability to borrow "working capital" by $45 billion.

Seidman

The $25 billion from the Federal Reserve would cover losses in failed banks and the FDIC would charge banks higher insurance premiums to repay the loan. The $45 billion theoretically would be recovered by selling loans and other assets inherited from failed banks.

Seidman said he envisioned needing no more than half of the $70 billion through 1993 under a worst-case scenario.

"Frankly, it would be a disaster if we ever had to borrow" $70 billion, he said.

The agency's "base line" scenario, he said, is that bank failures will have eased by 1993 and insurance premiums paid by banks will start to rebuild the fund, which has fallen from $18.3 billion at the end of 1987 to $8.5 billion at the end of last year.

Seidman's testimony sounded an alarm within banking trade groups that have been warning that borrowing too heavily could overburden the remaining banks and cause even more failures.

"Clearly what they (FDIC officials) are saying is the extent of the problem appears to be greater than was previously the case. We're just concerned that this appears to be a never-ending drain on the capital of the banking industry," said Lee Peckarsky, executive vice president of the National Council of Savings Institutions, which represents FDIC-insured savings banks.

Seidman, however, said there were only two ultimate sources of money to pay for bank failures: the banking industry or the taxpayer.

"The insurance is given by the federal government," he said. "If the industry is judged incapable, then the taxpayer would have to pay."

It is "highly unlikely, but not impossible" that the banks would not be able to pay off the proposed borrowing over time, Seidman said.

Continental suffers record loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines Holdings Inc., parent company of Continental Airlines, Thursday blamed its Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing, the liquidation of Eastern Airlines and the overall troubles of the travel industry for a $2.2 billion loss in the fourth quarter of 1990.

The loss, which amounted to $52.37 per share, came on revenues of $1.4 billion. In the same 1989 period, the company lost $362.8 million, amounting to $9.17 per share on revenues of $1.7 billion.

For all of 1990, Continental Airlines Holdings reported a $2.3 billion loss, which included $1.8 billion in non-recurring charges. Revenues for the year were $6.23 billion, down from $6.68 billion the previous year.

For the October through December 1990 quarter, Continental Airlines, the Houston-based holding company's major subsidiary, lost $1.3 billion on equal revenues of $1.3 billion.

Harris

"The operating results of the airline were certainly in line with our expectations and consistent with the results reported by other airlines," Continental Chairman Hollis L. Harris said.

On Dec. 3, Continental filed for protection in federal bankruptcy court, saying it was overwhelmed by its debts and fuel prices that surged in the wake of the Persian Gulf problems.

"The overall results were adversely affected by the Chapter 11 filing, and the decision of Eastern Air Lines to liquidate," Harris said. "Though control of Eastern had been vested in the trustee by the court overseeing Eastern's bankruptcy, certain charges connected with Eastern must be included in the holding company's consolidated results.

"The principal items not related to Eastern are one-time write-offs of intangible assets related to prior acquisitions and impairment in the valuation of certain assets, principally due to regulatory changes," Harris said.

The holding company said the non-recurring charges included $1.1 billion related to the Eastern Air Lines liquidation and another $439.6 million related to the Continental bankruptcy filing.

First-time unemployment claims soar

■ First-time unemployment benefit claims soared to an eight-year high, the government report, dousing hopes the recession would end quickly.

By Martin Crutsinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people filing new claims for unemployment benefits shot up to an eight-year high of 519,000 in the week ending March 9, the government said Thursday in a report viewed as a blow to hopes for a quick end to the recession.

The Labor Department said initial claims rose by 45,000 from the previous week, hitting the highest level since the 546,000 filed during the first week of January in 1983. That was at the tail end of the last recession, the steep 1981-82 downturn.

Bush administration officials and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan have expressed the hope that a quick end to the Persian Gulf War, by providing a boost to consumer confidence, will help to ensure that the current recession will be short and mild.

However, private economists said Thursday's report on jobless claims was not an encouraging sign.

"This suggests that more people are being laid off and it signifies a continuing weakening of the economy," said Samuel Kahan, chief economist at Fuji Securities Inc. in Chicago.

Kahan cautioned that the initial jobless claims report can be volatile from week to week. But he noted that the four-week average for claims has been moving higher since December.

Paul Getman, senior economist at Regional Financial Associates, said a number of U.S. industries — from airlines to banks to department stores — are still under stress with thousands of layoffs occurring.

He said that some analysts, lured by gains in the stock market, "have declared this recession dead too early. Every month, economists think the job loss picture will turn around and every month it hasn't."

The new jobless claims report was viewed as especially worrisome because it provided one of the first looks at how the economy was performing in March. Some economists said they expected the broader jobless report for the month to take another turn for the worse.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Couple should keep money in credit unions

By Bill Doyle

Q. I recently inherited 17,000 shares of a money market mutual fund valued at $1 each. The monthly dividend amounts to about $93. My wife and I are both retired and getting by on Social Security benefits and individual pensions. Our savings are in one bank and two credit unions. One CU pays 7 percent interest, the other 8 percent.

Doyle

Should we reinvest the money fund dividends in more money fund shares or should we put those dividends into our CU accounts?

A. As long as the CUs continue to pay 7 and 8 percent interest and if they are members of the National Credit Union Administration, which provides federally backed deposit insurance up to $100,000 per depositor per CU, the logical move is to sock your money away there.

Based on your numbers, the money fund's dividend yield is 6.56 percent. As I write this, statistics show the yield on the fund you named in your letter to be 5.78 percent.

Money market mutual funds use accounting methods that keep their share values constant — at $1 in most cases. But the dividend payments can rise or fall, depending on the income the funds collect on their portfolio investments. The trend has been downward lately.

Your CUs might have to reduce the interest they pay in the not-too-distant future. It's surprising they have been able to maintain 7 and 8 percent rates in these times of generally declining interest. But, unless the CU rates are cut below the yield on the money fund, stay with the CUs.

Q. My money market mutual fund shares are held by the agent — a big bank in Boston. Are the shares safe there?

A. Very safe. That bank is transfer agent and custodian bank for your mutual fund. Your shares and all the other securities the bank is holding for the fund are not part of the bank's assets. If the bank goes bust, its creditors could not touch your shares. In that event, a new transfer agent and custodian bank would be named and your shares would be held there.

All mutual funds and other corporations have transfer agents to handle transfer of stock ownership. The Investment Company Act of 1940 mandates that every mutual fund have an outside custodian, usually a bank. The custodian has possession of all the fund's investments and cash. That's an extra bit of protection for fund shareholders.

Q. I understand there is one mutual fund that sets no minimum amount at which accounts can be opened. Can you give me the name and address of that fund?

A. Although most mutual funds require a $1,000 minimum for new accounts, a number of funds set no minimum. Naming one or just a few here could be taken as recommending specific securities. That's something I just can't do.

You can obtain the information you're looking for from the "Wiesenberger Investment Company Service" manual, which you find in the reference section of most large public libraries. Minimum investment requirements and addresses of all funds are listed in the "Panorama" section of the book.

Q. Do you think it is smart to open three $100 accounts for children who are six months, one year and three years old?

A. Yes. It's smarter yet to sign up to have the dividends and capital gains distributions automatically reinvested to buy additional full and fractional shares. That way, each account could reach a reasonable size by the time the kids become teenagers.

Have the accounts registered under the gift to minors act or the newer transfer to minors act. It's usually wise to name a parent custodian of each account.

Steady readers of this column know my choice for those gift accounts would be true no-load growth mutual funds. Shares of such funds hopefully will grow in value and will not be subject to high charges.

Valdez settlement may cost Exxon half reported amount

By Michael J. Sniffen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exxon's agreement to pay $1 billion to settle government claims and charges for the nation's largest oil spill could actually cost the company less than half that amount, an Associated Press analysis shows.

The company's cost would be reduced if it chose to purchase an annuity that would guarantee the 10 future annual payments called for under the settlement in the Exxon Valdez case — a growing business practice. Exxon's cost would be further cut because most of the payments are tax deductible.

The AP calculations, based on an actual market quotation for an annuity, show it could cost Exxon as little as $486.3 million to meet its obligations to repair the damage caused when the supertanker ran aground and spilled 11 million gallons of crude oil in Alaska's Prince William Sound in March 1989.

In Houston, Exxon spokesman Bill Smith had no comment on the calculations or the current value of the settlement.

Last week, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh proudly announced a $1 billion settlement by Exxon that included record criminal fines and civil damages.

But the settlement drew skepticism at a congressional hearing Wednesday. "In essence, a lot of taxpayers' money is going back into this to pay Exxon's share," Rep. George J. Hochbrueckner, D-N.Y., said at a House merchant marine committee session.

The Congressional Research Service, using three different estimates of how much investments might earn over the next 10 years, calculated Exxon's costs at between $421 million and $524 million in material prepared for the hearing.

At the request of The Associated Press, JMW Settlements Inc., of Washington, a national company that specializes in writing deferred payment settlements of law suits, calculated that it would charge Exxon $527.3 million for an annuity that would make $785 million in deferred payments. These payments begin next year and continue through 2001.

"I would be authorized to place that contract today," said James P. Klapps, vice president of JMW. Klapps said the figure includes a profit for his company and two large insurance company underwriters.

An annuity, most often sold by insurance companies, is used to set deferred payments. It costs less to buy than the payments it provides, because the underwriter invests the original amount and uses the interest to meet the payments and make a profit.

In fact, Exxon could essentially save the amount of that profit by financing its own annuity internally.

Klapps said his industry has seen growing use of annuities in environmental cases to protect plaintiffs against the bankruptcy of a polluting company, but those cases have involved much smaller companies than Exxon.

In addition to the $527.3 million for the annuity, Exxon this year would have to spend $50 million to pay a federal criminal fine, $50 million in restitution to Alaska, and an estimated $115 million on the first installment in the damages.

The $115 million figure includes $90 million due as soon as a federal court approves the settlement, plus $25 million which a high-ranking Justice Department source estimated Exxon will spend this year and next on cleaning the area.

The settlement provides that next year's $150 million payment will be reduced by whatever Exxon spends this year and next. For the calculation, the AP assumed the $25 million estimated by the government source would all be spent this year. This assumption might overstate Exxon's actual outlay by about $2 million if the company spread $25 million in cleanup over the full two years.

The payments would bring Exxon's outlay to $742.3 million, but that figure could be reduced by tax deductions of up to $256 million, for a net outlay of $486.3 million, the AP calculated. The AP calculated that by applying Exxon's federal and state deduction rate of 37 percent to all but $50 million of $742.3 million payment.

Internal Revenue Service spokesman Don Roberts said the $50 million criminal fine is not tax deductible but damages generally are. Roberts said there is a chance the $50 million restitution to Alaska may be tax deductible as well, because language in the settlement distinguishes it from any criminal, civil or administrative penalty.

Exxon chairman Lawrence G. Rawl has said the damage payments are tax deductible.

The nation's third largest corporation with annual sales of $86 billion, Exxon pays federal tax of 34 percent. Thus, Exxon's federal tax bill would be reduced by 34 percent of any deductible amount.

REPORT: Draws complacency charges from Democrats

(From 6D)

In a further gloomy assessment of the economy, the Chamber of Commerce said Thursday that its latest survey of 8,390 businesses nationwide found that more businesses were planning to fire workers than to hire them through August of this year.

The number of businesses forecasting that they would have to fire employees rose to 21.7 percent versus 17.8 percent expecting to be hiring workers.

The survey also found that 33.9 percent of the businesses expected their sales would decline in coming months versus 35.3 percent forecasting an increase in sales.

This marked a deterioration since the chamber's last survey in September. At that time, 18 percent of businesses expected to lay off employees and 28 percent were expecting a sales decline.

"Clearly, business confidence about the future has deteriorated," said Richard Rahn, chief economist for the chamber.

The national jobless rate hit a four-year high of 6.5 percent in February as another half million Americans joined the ranks of the unemployed.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, said the big jump in jobless claims for the first week in March was a warning signal that the recession could be a lot deeper than the Bush administration is forecasting.

The committee issued its annual report on the economy Thursday and in it the Democrats took the administration to task for being too complacent about the downturn.

The panel's report, citing substantial uncertainty about when the recession will end, recommended several steps the government should take as an "insurance policy" to prevent the recession from worsening.

These included further interest rate cuts on the part of the Federal Reserve, a strengthening of the unemployment compensation program to end long delays in getting benefits and accelerated federal spending for public works projects.

The Labor Department said part of the jump in jobless claims came from continued layoffs in the auto industry. The department said that California had the largest increase, a rise in initial claims of more than 14,000 for the week ending March 9.

SBA investigated Neil Bush company

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has examined one of Neil Bush's oil companies and its relationship with two venture capital businesses that financed it, an agency spokesman said Thursday.

"The agency did send somebody out to look close up at Apex," SBA spokesman Mike Stamler said about Bush's oil company. "We wanted to find out what the deal was, too."

Stamler said the SBA's examination of Apex has been completed, but he declined to disclose any conclusions on grounds of business privacy.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., asked the SBA in mid-December to investigate the investment in Bush's company by Wood River Capital Corp. and a subsidiary, Bridger Capital Corp.

Schroeder, who described the investment as "a sort of personal enterprise zone," has not received the SBA report, her aide Dan Buck said Thursday.

Wood River and Bridger are private, for-profit companies known as Small Business Investment Corporations that provide venture capital to small start-up businesses.

Neil Bush's second oil business, Apex Energy Co. of Denver, was started with a $2.3 million investment by Wood River and Bridger in May 1989.

The venture companies were controlled by Louis Marx Jr., a prominent investor and longtime friend of President Bush who contributed $10,000 to the Republican National Committee during the 1988 campaign.

Wood River later had financial trouble and was asked by the government to sell all its assets.

Lawmakers also are looking into Wood River and Bridger as part of an inquiry into businesses that use federally guaranteed money to make loans and investments, congressional sources say.

Seventy-three of some 400 SBICs have failed since October 1987 as the economy has weakened, according to the SBA.

"We're looking at at least a dozen SBICs, of which Wood River is one of them," said a House Small Business Committee aide who spoke on condition of anonymity.

John Lyford, a spokesman for the Senate Small Business Committee, said questions about financial backers of the president's son "are likely to be brought up" at a future hearing on SBICs.

Marx said in a telephone interview this week that he backed Neil Bush's company for sound business reasons, notably the quality of its oil and gas acreage. He also said he was impressed by the "track record" of Bush's partner, oilman Brent Morse.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) Thursday national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues.

LOCAL-INTEREST STOCKS

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market wavered uncertainly today, still struggling to right itself after a selloff earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 15 points in the early going, was down 7.92 at 2,864.11 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

But gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 866 up, 626 down and 498 unchanged.

If profits point to continued weakness in the economy, many analysts reason, the Federal Reserve may well find room to relax its credit policy further.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market wavered uncertainly today, still struggling to right itself after a selloff earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 15 points in the early going, was down 7.92 at 2,864.11 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

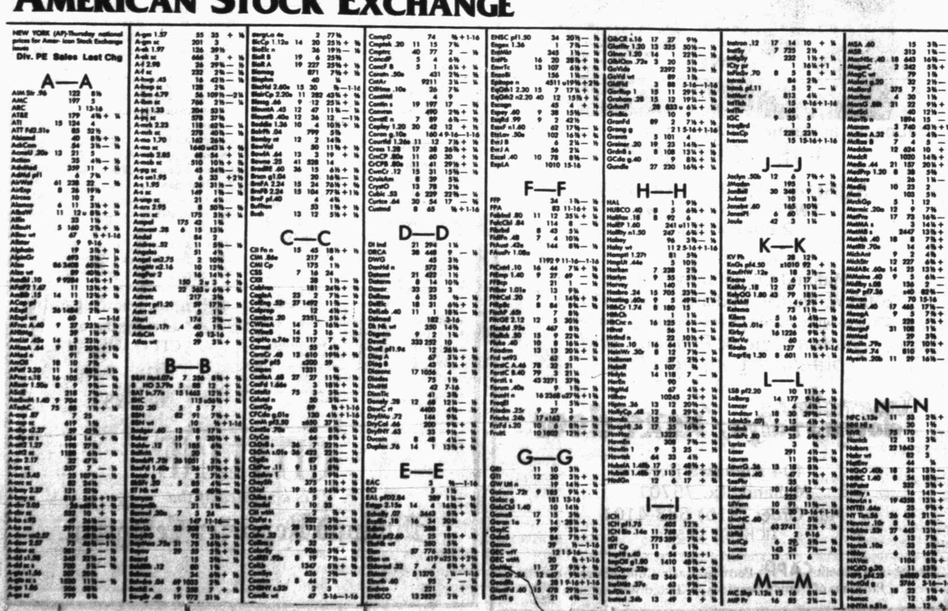

But gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 866 up, 626 down and 498 unchanged.

If profits point to continued weakness in the economy, many analysts reason, the Federal Reserve may well find room to relax its credit policy further.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?
Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:
1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 880-3400; enter the category number which is 9898.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

FAMILY MATTERS

Nephew returning from serving in Desert Storm

By Jim May, Ph.D.

May

DEAR FAMILY: I have a nephew who is returning from Operation Desert Storm. I have been writing him the whole time that he has been over there. I am very thankful that he is safe and will be coming home soon. My problem is that I'm worried that he might come home like my brother did from Vietnam. My brother has never been the same. He lost his wife, his family, everything. He has been in and out of hospitals ever since.

Will my nephew come home like that? Is there anything that I can do to help so that doesn't happen? We are all worried sick that something like that might happen to him. AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID: The Vietnam War was a situation that we hope will never happen again, because those who disagreed with the war turned their anger on the soldiers. That was a very great wrong. People have the right to disagree with the government, but no one has the right to attack the men and women who did their duty.

In Desert Storm, the American people have provided significant support for those who have served. The returning soldiers are receiving the welcome of a grateful nation. The psychological difference is major.

However, those who participated in the operation will probably experience some changes. The veterans I have worked with have convinced me that those in combat are forever changed by the experience. We need to remember that they have seen things with their own eyes, not on television, and experienced things that we have only heard about. We need to be aware of potential problems (such as post traumatic stress response which can involve re-experiencing a traumatic event). Talking and listening are very important. Give him ample opportunity to tell his story.

I am also convinced of the benefit of veterans' groups where the veterans can share openly with those who have been there. You may want to encourage your nephew to look up his local Vietnam Veterans Center for group information.

DEAR FAMILY: My mother does nothing but feel sorry for herself. Every time I talk to her, she is negative and down on everything. I find myself avoiding calling her because there is always something wrong with something. I'm just sick and tired of having to hear her complain all the time. What can I do to get her to stop? I have to warn you that she is 70-plus years old and has always been this way. AGGRAVATED

DEAR AGGRAVATED: If she has always been negative, you can probably do little to change her reality. If she "sees" the world through negative glasses, then it is negative for her.

Perhaps you can do something about the way you experience her negativity. Possibly you can learn to accept her the way she is and minister to the person, not the attitude. I know that sounds hard, but sometimes it is necessary to just accept something you cannot change. I agree that after 70-plus years, the chances for her changing are small.

However, there are times when a positive attitude can influence others. Since we can only change our attitude, not anyone else's, try that. We don't have to react to everything someone says. I'm sure that it will be hard, but as someone once told me, "Find the little bit of positive in the other person and try to grow that."

DEAR CONFIDENTIAL: I believe that sometimes ultimatiums are appropriate. I agree that marriage vows are a sacred commitment, but when your husband is physically and verbally abusing your children, there is a higher commitment that must be addressed. We are charged by God with the sacred responsibility of caring for the children He has blessed us with.

Our children have no way to protect themselves. They may tell you that it doesn't hurt them when he abuses them, but they do not now how deeply it really does damage them. They are not capable at their ages of processing and expressing themselves.

I encourage you to call Parents' Anonymous (685-1282) for information about the effects of abuse. You can remain completely anonymous. His abuse is not going to stop by itself; in fact, it usually just gets worse. Please contact Parents' Anonymous soon. Your childrens' emotional lives may depend upon it.

Easter bunnies can be excellent year-round pets

NEW YORK (AP) — Rabbits make great pets, but like other household animals they require care and attention. They need their roughage, a clean place to live and regular visits to the veterinarian. Dr. Heidi Hoefer, a veterinarian at the Animal Medical Center's exotic pet clinic in New York, offers these tips on how to buy, house and care for a rabbit:

- When buying a rabbit, make sure its eyes and nose are clear. Beware if any rabbit in the group is sneezing or has nasal discharge or diarrhea. Young rabbits are especially susceptible to communicable diseases, and many a healthy-looking bunny gets sick one or two weeks after leaving its ailing fellows in the pet store.
- Rabbits need a good source of roughage along with their normal diet of rabbit pellets. Choose pellet brands with at least a 20 percent fiber content. To supplement this, serve alfalfa or timothy hay daily to help him maintain a healthy digestive system. As daily treats, offer vegetables and fruits, such as carrots, leafy greens or apples. Make fresh water available at all times.
- Rabbits are content to stay in cages and can be allowed free roam of the apartment or house when supervised. Be careful of their chewing woodwork, rugs and electric cords. Easily litter trained, most rabbits are very clean. If the cage has wire flooring, provide an area where the rabbit can move off the wire, or sores may develop on its paws.
- Since rabbits are very susceptible to heat exhaustion, make sure the cage is shaded if kept outdoors in the summer.
- Take your rabbit to the veterinarian each year. Routine examination and early treatment can prevent many common health problems such as overgrown teeth or hairballs. Any decrease in appetite, excessive salivation or diarrhea indicate disease; a veterinarian should see your pet immediately.

DEAR ABBY

Ex-husband must pay half of college costs

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter in your column from a minister who is "flat broke" and doesn't think it's fair that he has to pay college tuition for his two children who live with his ex-wife.

Van Buren

Abby, you should have checked with the Missouri Bar Association before you told him that "nowhere is it written that a parent who is flat broke must pay to put his children through college." No doubt my ex-husband, on reading your reply, will be on the phone with his attorney, quoting you.

Please be assured that it IS written somewhere. My ex would do anything he thought he could get away with to avoid supporting his children. He presently works in a job paying one-third of his former annual income so that he could "poor-mouth" to the judge when it came time for the court to order him to pay support. The judge can't force him to get a job at the salary he is capable of earning as long as he's employed somewhere full time. Guess who loses in this situation?

In Missouri, the non-custodial parent who pays child support must pay the equivalent of half the total cost of state university for four years — tuition, room and board, books — no matter where the student matriculates. — ST. LOUIS WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: I'll take your word for it. Who said it's a man's world? It's not — if he's the non-custodial parent and lives in Missouri.

DEAR ABBY: One of my best friends, "Julia," has moved far away, and we keep in touch by telephone. My problem: Julia has a 3-year-old son, and every time we talk, she puts "Kenny" on the phone to say hello and chat a while. She does this so the rest of the time he will be quiet and hopefully we can talk without his whining.

Kenny is a very bright boy, but once he's on the phone he doesn't want to get off, and I find this very irritating. This has annoyed me for over a year now, so I finally wrote to Julia asking her not to put Kenny on the phone every time we talk. She was highly offended and said I didn't understand her life or I wouldn't have made such an insensitive request.

Abby, my children are grown now, but when they were young, I never put them on the phone to talk to any of my friends unless they requested it.

I'd like to add that all during Julia's conversations with me, Kenny keeps interrupting to get his mother's attention — and when she sends him away and asks him to please be quiet, he makes all kinds of disruptive noises just to bug her.

Abby, was I out of line to request this courtesy? — JULIA'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: No, but some proud parents have tunnel vision where their children are concerned. A quick "hi" and then "goodbye" would not be considered an imposition by any responsible adult, but in your case, I think I smell a very spoiled child. And his name is Kenny.

DEAR ABBY: With the increasing concern about the problems of the aging — confusion, loss of memory, a tendency to fall, incontinence, etc. — it is encouraging to learn that research is now offering a small ray of hope. Geriatric experts are finding substantial evidence that the elderly are taking so many prescription drugs that their bodies are becoming vulnerable to the side effects.

Peter Lamy, assistant dean of geriatrics at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy, states that drug-induced illness is sometimes written off and attributed to the "aging process," which not only reduces the quality of lives, but can lead to senior citizens being prematurely sent to nursing homes.

According to Dr. Jerry Avon, professor of social medicine at Harvard Medical School, "The efficiency of the kidney and liver can decline with age, hampering their ability to excrete drugs, which in turn can lead to a drug buildup in the body." He also said that a drug dosage which was safe at age 50 can be dangerous at age 70. Also, many organs of the body (from the heart to the bladder to the brain) can undergo change in their sensitivity to medication.

Abby, please suggest that older persons (or their caregivers) "brown-bag" all their prescription and over-the-counter medications and take them to their physician or pharmacist for analysis of their CUMULATIVE EFFECT. This should include painkillers, sedatives, laxatives and vitamins. You would be doing your readers a great service. — MILLIE HAWTHORN, CONSUMER CONSULTANT, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, HARRISBURG, PA.

DEAR MS. HAWTHORN: Thank you for some valuable suggestions that could improve the quality of life — and possibly extend it. Dr. Robert N. Butler, renowned gerontologist and chairman of the Department of Geriatrics at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York, suggests that the older persons purchase all their medications from one pharmacy, so there will be a complete list of all their medications.

By popular request, Abby shares more of her favorite prize-winning, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: More Favorite Recipes by Dear Abby, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Bob Watts, 73, owner of Bismark's Capital Aviation Corp., poses with his wife Lois, their cat Nuisance and dog Klondike in front of an airplane he owns. Mrs. Watts helps her husband run his company of 10 small airplanes.

Feisty Bob Watts still up in air

By Phyllis Mensing
Associated Press

BISMARCK, N.D. — Bob Watts has flown military cargo planes to China and an orchestra to Canada. He's survived an emergency landing in Bismarck and an unexpected plunge into the Missouri River.

He's ornery or kind, depending on whom you talk to.

Watts, 73, owns Capital Aviation, with 10 small airplanes and runs it with his wife, Lois.

When he's not in the air, you can find Watts in his shop, rebuilding a 1946 Cessna, along with his family — Lois, their 15-year-old dog Klondike and two cats.

Klondike has logged more than 3,000 miles in the air. The cats, Midway and Nuisance, have made a few flights by sneaking on board.

Watts has flown supplies to the Garrison Dam and to an earthquake scene in West Yellowstone. When conductor Guy Lombardo and his orchestra found their plane had engine trouble, Watts got them to Canada.

"I'll bet I've got shirts and socks in at least a dozen laundromats all over the country from living out of a briefcase," he says. But he's had fun.

"I wouldn't want an airline job where I have to fly to Minneapolis to Bismarck and back to Minneapolis and back to Bismarck. I wouldn't do that for all the tea in China," he says.

WATTS WAS IN CHINA during World War II, airlifting military supplies over "The Hump," in the Himalaya Mountains to the Flying Tigers, a group of mercenaries under the command of the United States and its allies.

"On occasion, we had red-ball alerts and we had to go on radio silence," he says. "But the only thing we could really do was head for the clouds, and there were plenty of those. You just keep flying.

"We hauled tent stakes, ketchup, light bulbs, munitions. We moved two cut-up locomotives over the Hump. Later, they were welded back together."

After the war, he and his brother Jack started Capital Aviation Corp. Jack Watts retired eight years ago. Lois Watts, a home economics teacher for 29 years, became office manager and bookkeeper in 1976.

In 1982, Watts was piloting a plane carrying eight people when the landing gear failed and he was forced to bring the plane down in Bismarck on its belly. The landing was smooth; no one was hurt.

His biggest obstacle, he says, is the Federal Aviation Administration, which is threatening to take away his license for flying without the proper fuel adjustment valve. Watts and his attorney are fighting the agency.

"If you don't dot all your i's and cross your t's you are subject to severe penalties and fines," Watt says. "People in Washington seem to think a light plane is a rich man's fancy."

But people like Erwin Kobs of Bismarck, who did maintenance for Watts in the 1950s, think he'll outlast the bureaucrats.

"He's a tough master," Kobs said. "but he's a good pilot. "Aviation is his life, there's no doubt about that. He's a survivor."

Main 'squeeze' is really main suspect

N.Y. Times News Service

GRAPEVINE — That they met on Halloween seems appropriate.

The man who called himself Hank Queen was definitely mysterious. And not until Wednesday, after he was profiled on national television as the prime suspect in a Michigan killing, did Linda Blizzard discover her boyfriend's true identity.

"Queen," whose real name was Dennis DePue, had been wanted for the past year by Michigan authorities and the FBI in the grisly Easter Day slaying of his estranged wife, Marilynn.

Pictures of Dennis DePue accompanied a segment on NBC-TV's "Unsolved Mysteries" that aired Wednesday evening about the Michigan slaying, attracting the attention of Blizzard's best friend.

"I was watching TV and I thought, "Oh — Michigan,' and things kind of clicked. Next thing I knew they flashed his picture on the screen and I had no doubt in my mind it was him," said Barbara Harris of Garland, a Dallas suburb.

"It was so obvious it was him, I just jumped up. It frightened me."

His girlfriend said, DePue, 47, had also been watching, Harris said.

The events that followed included a cross-country chase and a shootout between the suspect and Mississippi police.

And the saga ended when DePue apparently took his life Thursday morning, investigators said. He died with a pocketful of money and his thumb on the trigger of a .357-caliber Magnum.

The TV show, which features unsolved police cases from across the country, drew 50 tips from viewers about the Michigan slaying via a toll-free 800 telephone number, Undersheriff John Abbott said in Branch County, Mich.

But it was Harris' telephone call that gave police the break they had sought for 12 months.

A year ago, the body of Marilynn DePue, 48, was found just outside Coldwater, Mich.; she had been shot in the head. Branch County authorities issued a murder warrant for Dennis DePue that day.

Blizzard and DePue met last year at a Halloween party at a popular Dallas nightspot, Harris said. The two dated and the relationship blossomed.

By Christmas, DePue, who had been living in Mesquite, near Dallas, had moved into Blizzard's Grapevine home.

DePue, an avid sports fan, told Blizzard that he had graduated from Michigan State University and that he worked for a publishing company doing illustrations. He always carried cash but didn't leave the house much during the day, Harris recalled.

"We had become a little bit suspicious of him," Harris said. "Linda didn't know his middle name. She knew he grew up in Michigan, but he wouldn't directly say where. He didn't have a driver's license and she never saw any mail come to the house.

"He was really evasive about a lot of things."

Blizzard made repeated unsuccessful attempts to find out more about DePue, including enrolling in a mini-course in detective work and hiring a private investigator.

But it was Harris, a close friend who said she had long suspected foul play in DePue's past, who made the grim discovery.

Blizzard was on her way home from work Wednesday night when the segment aired on "Unsolved Mysteries." When she reached home, DePue was loading up his van with food and personal items.

Harris said: "He said his family had called him and that his mother was very ill, and that he had to go home. He said he would call in a week."

Shortly afterward, Blizzard received a telephone call from Harris.

A teletype from the FBI was sent to police departments in the Fort Worth-Dallas area, alerting authorities that DePue had fled Grapevine.

Senate committee backs Meno as commissioner

AUSTIN (AP) — Lionel "Skip" Meno moved one step closer to becoming Texas education commissioner Thursday as the Senate Nominations Committee recommended he get the job.

On a 4-0 vote, the committee urged that Meno's appointment be confirmed by the full Senate.

Meno, 44, was nominated by Gov. Ann Richards at the recommendation of the State Board of Education.

He currently is deputy commissioner for elementary and secondary education in New York.

If confirmed by the Senate, Meno will replace former education commissioner W.N. Kirby, who retired Jan. 31.

Meno would head the agency that oversees the state's $14 billion a year public school system.

During testimony Tuesday, Meno revealed that the Education Board has offered to pay him $130,000 per year, which is nearly $14,000 more than Kirby's former salary.

Meno said that if he gets the Texas post, he will start work around July 1.

Berlanga to surrender documents

AUSTIN (AP) — State Rep. Hugo Berlanga said Thursday he will surrender records to a grand jury after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals issued an order that could have put the lawmaker back in jail if he didn't.

"As I have said throughout, I respect the judicial process and I am a law abiding citizen," said Berlanga, one of the most powerful members of the House.

Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said he was disappointed in the court's 5-3 decision. But he added, "That three judges dissented vindicates my belief that the principle is important and needed to be raised."

Berlanga had contended the special Travis County grand jury, investigating ties between legislators and lobbyistys, had no right to order him to produce what he said are personal records.

He was jailed for about six hours Tuesday for refusing to pay a $500 fine after State District Judge Bob Perkins found him in contempt of court.

Perkins' ruling stemmed from Berlanga's refusal to turn over subpoenaed business documents for Berlanga Business Consultants, Federal Civil Process Inc. and Title USA to the grand jury.

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals. Now is one of the best times ever to obtain a route in your area!

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current distributor force is already 75% adult and 25% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s) from $300 to $700 monthly! Some motor routes make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributor's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
