Santa Claus To Arrive Here Sat.

Area children are invited to visit with Santa Claus at the Hall County Courthouse beginning at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, Dec. 4.

Following the same procedure as last year, children are asked to line up and enter the courthouse by the south door to visit with the popular Christmas time visitor, according to Bill Whitten, manager of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce.

Santa will be inside the courthouse and will visit with each child for as long as there are children to see, or at least one hour.

Children will again receive candy canes passed out by the members of the Chamber of Commerce and Santa's Mail Box will be handy for those Santa letters the children would like to bring and mail to Santa. All Santa letters will be published in the annual Christmas Edition of The Memphis Democrat, which will be published on Thursday, Dec. 23.

Lighting Contest

Memphis residents are again reminded of the annual Christmas Lighting Contest for homes and businesses, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Judging for the contest will be done Monday night, Dec. 20 by out-of-town judges, according to Monty Alewine, chairman of the contest. Appropriate prizes will be awarded to the top three winners in each of the divisions in the contest.

Complaints have been voiced this year concerning the damage done to Christmas lights put out for decorations. Lights have been destroyed or stolen in past years.

Residents who do brighten the Christmas season with beautiful outside lights feel disappointed when they find them shot out with B-B guns or light strings

All youngsters who wish to write Santa are encouraged to mail or bring their letters to this newspaper at an early date. Work on the special Christmas Edition will start during the week of Dec. 13, and type will be set of Santa letters as they arrive.

Wet Weather Delays Cotton Harvest Again

The harvesting of the 1971 cotton crop got rolling last Saturday, Sunday and Monday, but snowflakes began falling Tuesday morning and have continued thrcugh noon Thursday.

The snow and sleet which fell Tuesday and Wednesday melted as soon as it hit the ground, as temperatures hovered near the freezing mark.

However, Thursday morning early, the temperature dropped below the freezing mark and heavy snow blanketed the Panhandle with five inches or more of new snow.

Weathermen report the snowfall should end sometime today, but the eastern portion of the Texas Panhandle will be the last to clear.

By noon today, the temperature was resting on 32 degrees and some signs of melting were appearing although the snowflakes continued to fall.

No wrecks had been reported to either the Hall County sheriff office and Highway Patrol or the City of Memphis Police Station by late in the morning, although streets and highways are slick but open to traffic.

Although strippers were in the field last weekend, and some fields have been harvested, the majority of the 1971 cotton crop is now under snow.

Adverse weather the past two weeks have caused the harvest

Memphis Cager Tourney To Begin Despite Snow

Despite heavy snowfall which caused the cancellation of all games scheduled for play Thursday in the Memphis Invitational Basketball Tournament, the tournament will continue Friday with games being played in the afternoon and evening.

Four teams listed forfeits for Thursday games due to inability to arrive at the tournament. These are Arnett. Okla., Groom, Silverton and Chillicothe.

The Chillicothe teams reported Thursday they would be unable to play in the tournament this weekend.

This advances Memphis, Hedley, Quail and Estelline into the semi-finals of the tournament in both boys and girls brackets, while Arnett, Okla., Groom and Silverton will compete in the consolation brackets.

Memphis and Estelline girls and boys will play at 7 and 8:30 p. m. tomorrow night, while Hedley and Quail girls and boys will play at 4 and 5:30 p. m. tomorrow. These games should all be exciting.

Arnett and Groom boys and girls will play at 1 p. m. and 2:30 p. m. in consolation, while Silverton has drawn a bye into the consolation finals.

Finals will all be played Saturday.

The Memphis tournament is one of the few in the Texas Panhandle which is still scheduled, as most have been cancelled.

The decision to continue with the tournament was made at 2 p. m. this afternoon after all schools involved agreed to continue.

Memphis Teams

Local coaches Joe Bain and Jimmy Pope are hoping the Memphis girls and boys teams can get on the winning road in the local tournament.

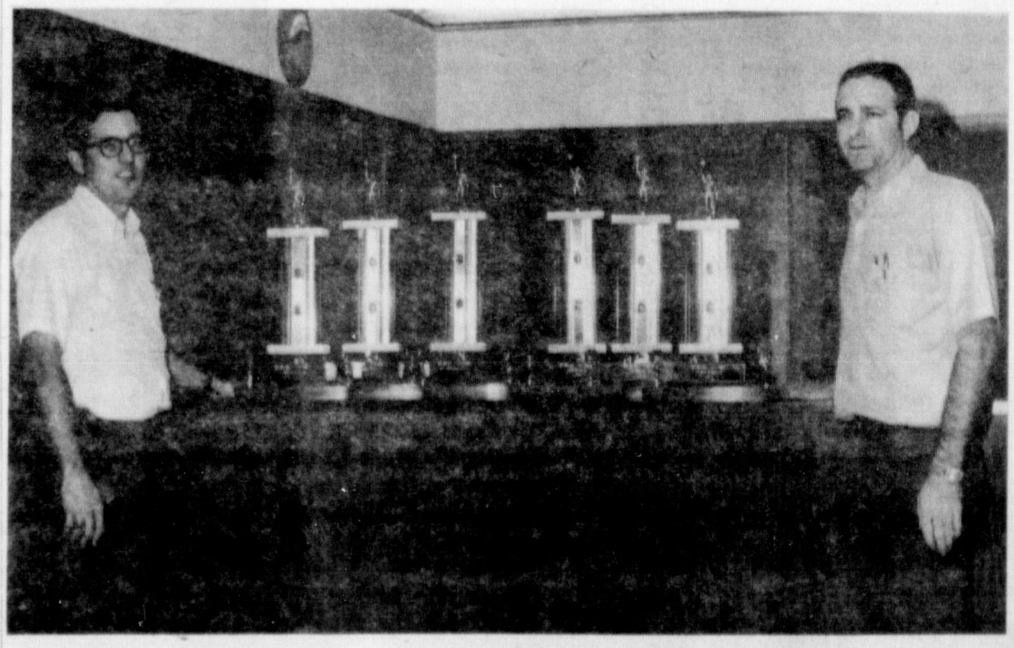

The Memphis girls lost to the strong Canyon girls 69 to 30 last Monday, and were downed by the Quail girls 55 to 46 Tuesday.

Wanda Walker scored 11 points against Canyon to lead the local girls team while Gloria Johnson had 18 against Quail.

The Cyclone lost an overtime game against Quanah Monday evening 53 to 52 in a real thriller. Coach Pope said he felt the local boys should have won the contest.

At Quail Tuesday night, the Cyclone lost a scoring contest 83 to 74. Larry Johnson had a total of 28 points for the Cyclone at Quail.

Both Memphis teams have very strong competition to overcome in the local tournament, coaches said, and fans can expect to see some exciting games, especially when Hedley and Quail teams meet tomorrow afternoon.

'Fine Men Have Done So Much For Us'—

Local Firemen Receive Praise For Aid To Victims Of Blaze

On Wednesday, Nov. 24, members of the Memphis Volunteer Fire Department answered a call to a burning automobile three miles north on Highway 287. Two vehicles were traveling together, one of which was blazing.

After extinguishing the fire, the men extended additional aid to the people in the cars, who were moving from Albuquerque, N. M., to Tyler, Tex.

The following was written by the two ladies while they were in a room at De Ville Motel, and explains their sentiments following the disaster. It was delivered to the local fire department headquarters in the Municipal Building, and a copy is printed below:

How do you say what's in your heart—thank you would never be enough. Surely God in His wisdom had a purpose when my car burned today, and He surely must have sent the wonderful people who came to help us. Mankind is still good; even in all the bad. Thank God there are still good decent people left in our great country, America.

From the depths of my heart I shall ever be thankful and grateful to all the fine men in Memphis, Texas, who have done so much for us today. I wish I knew all of your names as I could say to each one of you: thank you and God bless you.

Perhaps I can repay some of you some day. If not, then I'll try to help some one else, as you have for me, in the name of Memphis.

I'm sorry if I was upset in any way, if I said or did any wrong, please forgive me.

Again thank you . . . the man in the orange cap who called the minister of the Methodist Church, to all who fought to save my car and my things; to all of you that helped pick up the remainder; the ones who worked on the other car, for the trailer . . . oh, for so many things. Thank you wonderful people of Memphis: for the nice room you put us in out of the cold, for the food, for so much, so many things.

Yes, I'll help some one. That is what God intends for us to do—help our brother.

On this Thanksgiving, I have so much to be thankful for.

What's Behind These Beards?

Men in these United States are appearing in beards these days, or at least in moustaches. Why? Apparently, psychologists are somewhat stumped as their leader, Frued, wore a beautiful beard himself and did not say much about beard wearing.

Many men explain their decision to grow a beard as a reaction to boredom with the routine of shaving. Small wonder. In his lifetime the average male spends 139 days scraping away a total of 27 feet of whiskers, one millimeter at a time, according to a study.

Men who wear beards must endure some uncomfortable things.

The psychologists in studying beards, report that women seem to be exceptionally fond of beards and they frequently are the ones who prompt menfolk into growing them.

One of the leading fashion experts, none other than Stanley Marcus of Nieman-Marcus, has worn a beard for the past five years.

Beards, somehow, seem to go with authority, as many world leaders throughout history have worn beards.

Sideburns, an extension of the hairline in front of the ears, were named in honor of Ambrose Burnside, a Union army general whose bristled jowls helped popularize the style during the Civil War.

The moustache, or hair cultivated on the upper lip, has been popular from prehistoric times among men who could satisfy their egos with a miniature beard. The goatee, a form of chin beard often combined with a moustache, derives its name from the billy goat.

The most popular combination tiday is a Fu Manchu wrap-around moustache and a blunt-edged goatee.

Men, if you can stand the itching, there are the styles.

A New (?) Secretary of Agriculture!

Earl Butz has been selected by President Richard M. Nixon as the replacement for Clifford Hardin as Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Butz is reported to be a better speech maker than Mr. Hardin, more gifted at political maneuvers, but basically he is an advocate of the same ideas for American agriculture.

Actually, Mr. Butz was the architect of Ezra Taft Benson's farm policy, a policy which put the heart out of parity for American agriculture and drove millions of Americans off the farm the land by huge corporations.

Sec. Butz has been a director of four, huge, agribusiness congolomerates and he is on record as saying that we need to further reduce the number of farmers we have. He said it when he was working for Ezra Benson and he has said it in recent years.

Organizations like Ralston-Purina, Stokley Van-Camp, and other agricultural type conglomerates would like to eliminate the family farmer altogether. They are business, not agriculture. They would like to plow under the family farmer and farm het land by huge corporations.

National farm organizations are split over the appointment of Butz. NFO national president said Butz could "throw government support toward a policy of liquidating all but 600,000 farmers, hundreds of thousands of our small towns."

Farmers Union national president said, "Dr. Butz' economic views are archaic. The steep decline of farm parity began during the era of Ezra Benson for whom Dr. Butz served as Assistant Secretary. The departure of millions of families from rural America swelled into the greatest mass migration in history. No administration has been able to reverse the trend which was set in those years. Dr. Butz favored a phase-out of positive supply management long before the term 'set-aside' was coined by the Nixon Administration."

On the other hand, the National Farm Bureau Federation is enthusiastic about Butz' nomination. The AFBF president, speaking in Amarillo, said he is pleased with the appointment and hopes he will be confirmed by the Senate.

In the Senate, Senators Hubert Humphrey and Adali Stevenson both strong farm senators, are strongly opposing his appointment.

To us, in Hall County, the political implications of this appointment are all too clear. The lesson of the 1950's, when the county declined in population by 40 per cent due to declining agrarian populace, is one we should long remember.

Farm Vote: Withering Vine

The success story of American agriculture is also its tale of political woe.

Success can be read in the trend toward bigger, mechanized farms: In 1960, there were 350-000 farms selling $20,000 or more in products a year, now there are 600,000. In the process, a million smaller farms were gobbled up. Bigger farms mean fewer farmers: The U. S. farm population dropped from almost 9 per cent of the total population in 1960 to under 5 per cent last year. Fewer farmers mean fewer voters and more trouble for the Republicans: The farm vote, particularly in the Midwest, will be crucial for Mr. Nixon's party in next November's election. In a gesture to this declining but still critical bloc, the President has replaced Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin with Earl Butz.

Mr. Butz will bring little more than a change of face and voice to Washington as Secretary Hardin's replacement. Both men are closely connected with big business agriculture—and indeed are exchanging chairs at a major food company as one passes into and the other out of government. The major administration concession to agriculture—its decision not to absorb the agriculture post into another agency in a Cabinet reshuffle—has been made and announced. A while back the government met dairymen's demands for a higher price support level. More recently the administration gave the nod to grain sales to the Soviet Union, which will help release the current grain glut that has driven prices down in some cases below cost. But it is hard to see just what else the White House can deliver to the farmer when the larger need is to reverse inflation in the next 11 months.

Such a squeeze is nothing new to the American farmer. Yet in the 1970 elections, in which the Republicans suffered farm-state losses, farmers seemed anything but understanding. Many farmers feel the White House still hasn't got the message of November, 1970. They feel they have been dealt out of White House decisions (not one farm man was included among the 22 on the Pay Board and Price Commission, they point out). They fear that the economic unification of Europe and the White House foreign trade offensive could crimp the flow of American farm products abroad. And many small farmers are worried the administration favors the domestic big-farm faction.

Again, the paradox of American agriculture's "success" bringing on its troubles is to the point. Proponents of big-scale agriculture proudly recite statistics such as how today's farmers produce 29 per cent more than they did two decades ago, using less than half the manhours. And to be fair about it, Americans should be grateful that such productivity advances have prevented food prices generally from rising anywhere near as fast as the rest of the consumer index.

Still, gratitude runs as short in the American household as does political understanding on the American farm. Inflation in other parts of the family budget has left less for food. The price of most meat is disturbingly high. The quality of food is declining as strains of plants are selected for their freezing or handling properties and not their taste. As American agriculture has plowed itself into an adjunct of American industry, it has made itself a target of consumer ire on grounds other than prices. As an industry, agriculture may be able to generate more in campaign dollars, but it yields less in actual votes.

Politically, all this seems to argue for putting the best face on the status quo one can—which may be why the White House replaced Mr. Hardin with his apparent think-alike, Mr. Butz, for sake of the appearance of action and the latter's reputedly superior campaigning skills. But such a policy, for either national party, could hardly keep the farm vote from further withering on the political vine.

Mrs. Claud Johnson, Local Creative Artist, Retires After 35 Years

By VIRGINIA BROWDER

After 35 years of making decorative pastry confections, Mrs. Claud Johnson of 604 North 10th has sold her molds and tools to Beverly Whitten and retired. Begun as a hobby by decorating birthday cakes for the neighborhood children, Mrs. Johnson parleyed her handiwork into a full-time business.

Both natives of the Stephenville area, the Claud Johnsons came to Memphis in 1926. Mr. Johnson established a machine shop which he continued to operate until his death in December, 1969. Some time after moving to Memphis, Mrs. Johnson began delighting the neighbormothers with her "pastry pretties." It wasn't long until, by the grapevine, word got around, and hostesses began calling on her for party refreshments.

Since then, Mrs. Claud Johnson has become famous throughout the area for her birthday, anniversary, and wedding cakes and party confections. Even out-of-state folks have heard of her handiwork and she has sent wedding cakes into Oklahoma and New Mexico. She estimates her wedding cakes have numbered at least a thousand during the 35 years. Perhaps the largest cake she ever made and sent out of town was one for a wedding party of 500 in Pampa, but Susan Stevenson's wedding cake was almost that large.

Perhaps the most unique and the most attractive cake of her career in the pastry business has been "the groom's cake," a chocolate cake iced in chocolate frosting decorated with chocolate roses. Cookies by the dozens, canapes, finger sandwiches, mints in all shapes depending on the season were part and parcel of her artistry. Local demands on her time and talents have been unceasing and, from her kitchen, cakes have arrived as far away as Austin and San Antonio in perfect condition.

Since Mrs. Johnson's father came from Alabama and her mother from Illinois, her culinary art could well have been a combination of good Yankee and Southern cooking. Now that she is free of precision cookery and meeting party deadlines, Mrs. Johnson isn't sure how she will pass the time, but with three sisters still living, one in Lubbock, one in Bay City, and a third in Stephenville, she could go visiting her relatives for something to do besides "pastry pretties."

Mrs. Thompson Is Guest Speaker At Culture Club

The Woman's Culture Club met Wednesday, Dec. 1, at 4 o'clock in the home of Mrs. David May.

The hostess served orange glazed pecans, cinnamon spice tea cookies, pumpkin custard pie wedges with whipped cream, coffee and hot spiced tea.

President Mrs. R. E. Clark called the meeting to order and Mrs. Jeanette Irons led the invocation. A short business meeting followed with discussion of projects.

The program chairman, Mrs. Theodore Swift, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Billy Thompson. The program theme, "China Treasures," was illustrated beautifully with explaining the evolution of china making and the influence it received from England, France and America. Mrs. Thompson explained the reproduction of Presidential plates of eight different presidents of the United States by Havilland. She then showed plates of her own collection of Lincoln, Hayes and Washington.

Mrs. Thompson explained that a series of 12 collector plates painted by a French artist of the "Twelve Days of Christmas" is being produced. The first plate was in 1970 and the second in 1971.

The speaker emphasized, in choosing china, that one should select what suits one's likes and personality.

Members attending were Mmes. R. E. Clark, Ward Gurley, A. W. Howard, Jeanette Irons, Pat Lewis, L. G. Rasco, L. A. Stilwell, Theodore Swift, Miss Sybil Gurley, the guest speaker, Mrs. Thompson, and hostess, Mrs. David May.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Goodnight enjoyed having their children home for the Thanksgiving holidays. Here were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Jackson and Cal and Carol of Albquerque, N. M., Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cassidy and Susan, John and Jay of Panhandle, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Goodnight and Kevin of Levelland, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Terrell and Bryan of Plainview and Pat Goodnight of Memphis.

Veterans Should List Names With Employment Agency

Veterans seeking job training are missing a good bet in not listing themselves with the Texas Employment Commission, according to Jack Coker, director of the VA Regional Office at Waco.

"Our office has worked out procedures with the TEC and the Texas Education Agency to accelerate on-the-job training approval for veterans," Coker commented, adding "This procedure makes it very important that the veteran needing or wanting the training be carried on the TEC rolls.

The Veterans Administration has been authorized to approve VA training for veterans prior to the selection of a veteran trainee. In cooperation with the TEC and the Texas Education Agency job training specialists from the VA Regional Office have been combing the North Texas area seeking employers who wish to establish training programs for veterans.

In such job training positions the VA supplements the trainee salary paid by the employer which enables the veteran to receive a living wage even though a trainee.

Cattlemen Warned On Use Of DES In Feed Rations

The withdrawal time of diethylstilbestrol (DES) from livestock rations prior to slaughter has now been extended to seven days, says County Agent W. B. Hooser.

Withdrawal time for the hormone which promotes growth had previously been 48 hours.

The extension of the withdrawal time stems from recent findings of DES residues in beef liver samples, points out Hooser. However, no residues have been found in muscle tissue from these cattle.

The use of DES is regulated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration. DES residues are prohibited by law in meat for human consumption.

The hormone is used in many young animals to stimulate growth and is used as a feed additive in most feedlot operations, explains Hooser. Feedlots have come under close scrutiny recently regarding the use of DES. The feedlot managers shipping cattle to slaughter must now certify that the animals have been withdrawn from DES for the prescribed length of time.

Violations of this directive can result in legal action against beef cattle producers, adds Hooser.

A TEXAS KILLER

13,380 Texans will be injured in traffic crashes this year when drivers ignore stop and warning signs. Another 213 Texans will be killed.

Very few drivers intentionally run stop signs. Some drivers will be day dreaming when they speed by a stop sign. Others may be watching a pretty girl. These moments of inattention will cost a great deal cost a great deal of money . . .
and, 213 lives.

It's not easy to be a really good driver. You have to work at it. You have to pay attention to what you're doing. Watch out for warning signs and signals. Obey them. Prove to the world that you are a good driver. You'll be respected for it.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Insects Make Anti-freeze

Yes, some bugs make their own anti-freeze! That's why cold weather doesn't kill many bothersome pests. When temperatures rise, they're ready to start giving trouble again, says W. B. Hooser, county agent.

Although sub-freezing temperatures slow down insect activity, nature provides many pests with ways of beating cold. Some manufacture their own glycerol, an effective anti-freeze similar to the product made by man for the same purpose.

When temperatures drop below the freezing point, these insects —by some process not yet fully understood—gradually adjust to it. The glycerol they manufacture gives them the hardiness to withstand all but the most extreme cold weather. Among the insects that can make their own anti-freeze are certain species of ants, beetles, aphids, cutworms and flies.

According to Hooser, nature gives insects another protection from the cold, too. Most go through a metamorphosis which includes a dormant period when they are completely inactive. If insects stay dormant—in the pupal or larval stage—during the winter, they often survive the cold weather. Some insects have been found frozen in solid ice and then thawed to full activity as the weather turned warm.

Several kinds of aphids or plant lice become active in the fall when days are warm and nights are cool. These small, soft bodied, sucking insects rapidly multiply when most gardeners think their problems are over.

A sharp eye and persistence will find aphids before they can cause extensive damage. The insects often take on the color of the foliage or plant parts they are feeding on or they feed under the leaves or in developing leaf and flower buds.

Some of the aphids' favorite plants this time of year are pansies, stock, calendulas, chrysanthemums, wheat and all kinds of garden greens. Check these plants frequently during periods when daytime temperatures are mild and nighttime temperatures are cooler.

Since aphids are sucking insects, their injury is not too obvious. Be suspicious of plants that are not growing as actively as they should. If leaves, stems or flowers are curled or deformed, look closely for aphids.

Hooser says to prevent aphid damage, treat areas where bedding plants or bulbs are being set out with a granular systemic insecticide before or after planting. Follow the directions on the label carefully.

If aphids are already a problem, spray them with malathion, Cygon (dimethoate), diazinon or Neta-Systox-R (MSR). Choose a warm, still day for spraying and apply the spray as a very fine mist.

Feeder Pig Practices

"Good feeder pig production practices are just as important in periods of lower prices as they are during periods of higher prices," says County Agent W. B. Hooser.

"When feeder pig prices are lower, many swine producers have the tendency to neglect basic management practices and try to reduce production costs," Hooser explains.

Cutting corners on management and necessary feeds will reduce litter size at weaning, lower the thriftiness of the pigs, and lower the pig's weight at sale time. In addition, unthrifty pigs are far more likely to take scours and other diseases. All of these conditions lead to lower profits.

Recent feeder pig prices show a definite drop in dollars per head for pigs grading No. 4 and Utility, Hooser adds. The extra money received for higher grading pigs, accompanied by larger litters, will more than pay for extra production costs.

"Feeder pig producers should develop a high level of management that will keep them in the feeder pig business," he adds. "A producer who tries to be in business when prices are high and is forced out of business when prices are low will never make a satisfactory profit from feeder pig production."

Researcher Says Cottonseed May Be Food For Humans

AUSTIN (Spl.)—The day may not be very far off when people will be eating toasted cottonseed nuts and cottonseed brittle candy

According to The University of Texas Cotton Economic Research, glandless cottonseed is a promising food product.

The kernels can be toasted to be eaten like nuts, used in cooking or baking or made into spreads. Cottonseed nuts mixed with rice would provide a high protein and tasty meal, according to Kermit Voelkel with the UT Austin research agency.

"The kernel can also be used in the making of cottonseed brittle candy," he said.

The first commercial oil mill extraction of glandless cottonseed flour suitable for food applications took place in 1969 at the Producers Cooperative Oil Mill in Oklahoma City, he continued.

The test was conducted under the supervision of the National Cottonseed Products Association and engineers of the Crown Iron Works Company in collaboration with personnel of the Southern Utilization Research and Development Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Oilseed Products Research Center at Texas A&M University.

The product turned out was a light-colored, low-cost, high-quality protein source for human food.

According to Mr. Voelkel, the flour appears to meet the food industry's stringent requirement for functionality.

Mr. Voelkel said that the glandless cottonseed, besides providing flour, could be used as a substitute for casein (a milk derivative) in baking products, powdered coffee creamers and ice cream mixes.

A big plus factor for the glandless scottonseed is its adaptability to most of the countries that have fast population growth, but acute food and protein shortages.

"The time may come when our chief reason for growing cotton is not for its cotton lint but for

SPORTS CORNER

By BILL COMBS

The gridiron season for most colleges and universities is fast coming to a close. The Oklahoma State Cowboys go against the Oklahoma Sooners Saturday in a game to be played at Lewis Stadium. For Tony Pounds this will be his final gridiron appearance of the college career.

The West Texas State Buffaloes finished their season last Saturday, and Merle Kilpatrick, the team's punter, has turned in a fine performance for the team this season. As a sophomore, he has averaged about 40 yards per punt for the Buffaloes. Actually, Merle punted the ball for the team 60 times, averaging 39.5 yards per bick on a total of 2,371 yards. Merle, at one time this season was ranked about 19th nationally in punting average, but he fell off a little later in the season. Monday night, he was on hand to watch the Cyclonettes. His baby sister is a member, and he saw the girls play the strong Canyon team at Canyon. Merle enjoyed visiting with his sister and other Memphians.

Tony Pounds will be one of eight senior starters who will hand up the equipment for the last time after Saturday's game against No. 3 ranked Oklahoma. Senior starters finishing their careers at OSU are QB Pounds, Halfback Bobby Cole, Flanker Dick Graham, Linebackers Mark Hatley and Joe Crew, Safety Glenn Bonner, Cornerback Tom Carraway and Defensive End Don Geier.

Tony has had a goal this season he wanted to reach, and the Oklahoma game gives him his final opportunity to reach it. The goal is the break OSU's record for yards passing in a career. He has 2,516 yards passing compared to 2,591 yards for Ronnie Johnson in 1966-68.

Odds are good that Tony will be able to capture the OSU passing record for a career against Oklahoma. Tony is the leading passer with 48 completions of 118 attempts for 645 yards and three TDs.

He has been used this season as passing specialist, as OSU has been working all season to establish a running offensive. The Cowboys are 4-5-1 this season, and 2-4 in Big 8 competition. Their game with Oklahoma is the biggest game of the season for the Cowboys.

Plans are being made for the Father-Son Football Banquet, given annually by the mothers of varsity players. This is one of the highlights of the year for local athletes. The date being discussed is Dec. 20.

Basketball season is here, and Memphis is hosting an invitational tournament this weekend. Fans will have their first opportunity to see the local teams playing at home in the tournament openers for both local squads tonight. All are hoping for a winning season this year for both cager squads. Fans should plan to attend the games of the basketball tournament. Some exciting action is being planned.

Quail hunters had a wet, cold, snowy beginning Wednesday as the season opened locally. Birds are reported to be more scarce than in past years. There is a lot of cover this year, so quail may be hard to find.

In The World Of Science—

Scientists Report On Lung Damage From Cigarette Smoging By Teenagers

High school students who have smoked from 1 to 5 years cough excessively, produce more spitum than nonsmokers, and display abnormal shortness of breath.

Yayle University School of Medicine scientists Janet E. Seely, Eugenija Zauskin, and Arend Bouhuys report in "Science" on their study of 365 high school students. One hundred ninety-five boys and 170 girls were tested for expiratory air flow rate. Ages ranged from 15 to 19 years: 50 per cent of the boys and 37 percent of the girls were regular smokers.

Most of the girls (23 per cent) were "light" smokers, and only one per cent smoked more than a pack a day. Most of the boys (26-per cent) were moderate smokers (from half to a full pack a day), but eight per cent of them smoked more than a pack daily.

Since the supply of air from the alveoli of the lung determines the limits for maximum expiratory flow rates, and since the flow rates are markedly affected by very small changes in the caliber of the airways, it seemed reasonable to think that narrowing of these airways might be an early effect of smoking. This in turn led to use of tests to measure air flow rates as sensitive indicators of early narrowing within the lung when conventional lung function tests still give "normal" results.

Graphs of expired air flow rates and expired air volumes of smokers and onsmokers showed that smokers have lower flow rates and that these occur at lower lung volumes than in nonsmokers. These results probably mean that there is some airway obstruction in smokers' lungs.

Airways become obstructed when the smooth muscle in their walls contracts or when secretions (like mucus) accumulate within the airway. Accumulation of secretions may occur because of overproduction by mucous glands or because of failure of clearance mechanisms or both.

Since other studies indicate that damage to small airways early in life may cause an arrest of normal lung development, and that new alveoli are formed at least until the age of 20 years, it is possible that damage from cigarette smoke might lead to abnormal lung development, especially in children who begin to smoke before the age of 10.

This new objective evidence of functional changes in the lungs of teen-agers who smoke only a few years does not preclude the possibility that part of this lung damage may be reversed if smokers quit soon enough.

He served for a time ther countries, North Africa, land, Germany and Puerto Their four children are Vir- 10 Rachael, 12, Jackie 15, and Danny 17. This e family seemed to enjoy the um on their first visit to it over.

ob Young of Midland was ing in Heritage Hall. Bob is son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. g of Memphis. He was in the uating class here in 1950 and ded college at SMU and in-Simmons. He served three s with Uncle Sam and was in following foreign countries— n, Korea and China. He was a resident of Brownfield for 1½ years and moved from there to Midland where his is a chemical enginer for Calgon Corp. of Pittsburgh. Bob and his wofe have 2 sons, Robert, age 7, and Michael, 1 year.

We had sone more items added to Heritage Hall displays the past week. Vince Imbardino, grandson of the late Arthur Howard and Mrs. Howard of Memphis, brought us for display the cowboy saddle and leather chaps that Arthur used while operating the Howard Ranch. Arthur passed away in April of 1953. Mrs. Howard had a homecoming during the Thanksgiving holidays for this family. It was interesting to check up on this family tree. They have scattered out as quickly as time marches on. Chrystal (Howard) Calhoun is now living in Los Angeles. Calif., where she is a housing specialist for the city. She graduated from MHS in 1935. The daughter of Chrystal is now Mrs. Charlotte Slaney, now of Springfield, Va. The son of Chrystal is Lesley Howard Calhoun of Fullerton Calif. He and his wife were in Heritage Hall and in conversation with Howard I found out that he is now 32 years old and is in race car driving. He served four years in the Marines. In this career and with his father's military career, he had lived in 44 states of the U. S. and 10 foreign countries. He has been quite a traveler. Chrystal now has four grandchildren in her family.

Another daughter of the Howards, now Mrs. Phyllis (Howard) Imbarino is living in Corpus Christi. She was a graduate of MHS in 1936. She has a daughter, now Mrs. Montye Phyllis Morris of Glendare, Calif., and one son, Jimmy Neal Wyatt, an attorney in Montreal, Canada. Another son, Vince Howard Imbarlino, is a law student at Texas Tech. Phyllis now has three grandchildren in her family.

The other daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard is now Mrs. Gloria Virginia Whiteside of Dallas. She was a graduate of Town School for Girls in Chicago in 1943. Gloria has three children, Forest Howard, Phyllis Elaine and Julia Arlene who I am sure was named for her grandmother, Julia Howard. If you see the "Lamplighter" sign, stop by to see Gloria. You might buy or sell somthing in Dallas. It seems like this family has been going places and doing things trying to keep up with Grandma Julia.

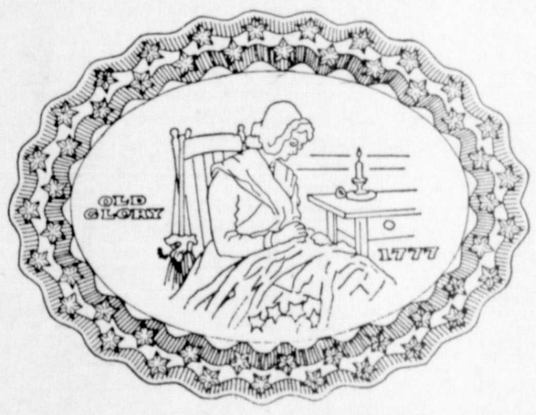

Others visiting in Heritage Hall were Mary Chappell of Baytown, Tony Baisden of Littlefield, Buffy Baisden and Laura Johnson of Dumas, Sam Guthrie of Amarillo Dempsey Baisden of Irving, Karan Goforth of Tulia, John Marrow of Clarendon, Rita Davis of Tulia, H. E. and Michael of Hedley, Bobby Baldwin, Dr. and Mrs. James Baldwin of Dallas, Debra Howard of Chicago, Ill., and Annette Whitefield of Plano.

Guest of Fannie Mae Tiner was her sister, the former Ouida Orr, daughter of Milton who is now Mrs. J. B. Books of Albuquerque, N. M. She attended school at Plaska and graduated here in 1942. She taught school at Lakeview two years. Since leaving here in 1946, she is teaching. She married J. B. Brooks in January of 1949. They have one daughter, Shari, now enrolled at the University of Houston.

H. B. Gilmore of Dallas who was a graduate of MHS in 1941, was visiting in Heritage Hall the past week. After attending sul Ross, he spent three years in military service and has been living in Dallas the past 21 years. He has one daughter, Brenda of Dallas, H. B. will be remembered as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Gilmore. He liked Heritage Hall very much.

Mrs. Danald Payne and Mylina, Russell John and Laura of Alamoogordo, N. M., spent the Thanksgiving holidays here with Mrs. Valmon Payne.

W. E. Cain, who is in charge of the USDA Cotton Classing Office, reports that as of last Friday his office had classed 3,450 samples as compared to 24,000 on the same date last year.

Ginners last Monday said the cotton received still contained some green bolls but for the most part, ginning was good.

Cotton farmers need dry weather for the remainder of the month and much of January if the crop is to be harvested without severe damage.

Strict low middling light spot was the predominant grade, and accounted for 50 per cent of cotton classed last week.

The predominant staple was 32 with 52 per cent followed by 31 with 29 per cent and 33 with 11 per cent.

Demand for the new crop of cotton is good. Strict low middling, 31 and 32 staples averaged 27.75 cents per pound. This is for cotton miking 3.5 to 4.9, Mr. Cain announced.

Expansion-minded farmers buy most of farm land in the U. S. In 1969, farmers increasing their acreage accounted for 81 per cent of land transactions in the Northern Plains; 62 per cent in Corn Belt; 60 per cent in the nation as a whole.

Unpaid American Cancer Society researchers, following 1,051,443 cancer patients for the six years from 1959 to 1965, kept track of 98.4 percent of them. 450 million pieces of information were accumulated. These data will help to pin-point the relationship of environment and cancer. Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, director of the Cancer Prevention Study, said," The work was done well and without cost. If professional researchers had been employed, their salaries would have amounted to approximately 20 million dollars."

The Cancer Prevention Study has demonstrated how health information has caused 21 per cent of former male smokers and 12 per cent of former women smokers to quit the habit. The Study has revealed that breast cancer kills one American woman every 17 minutes. An estimated 635,000 new cancer cases were diagnosed and treated across the United States during 1970, according to the Study," it was reported.

Memphis has, for the past decade, been beautifully lighted up during the Christmas season, and the loss of these displays would certainly take away from the season's enjoyment.

Youngsters are also reminded that Saturday afternoon is the second day of the four showings of the Free Kiddie Matinee at the Movie House.

The shows will be free to all children 12 years and under by making purchases from participating merchants. The show Saturday will be "Snow White and the 3 Stooges." Next Saturday will be "Batman," and on Dec. 18 the show will be all cartoon and comedy features.

COUNTY BIRD HUNTERS FIND QUAIL SCARCE

Yesterday was the first day of quail season in Hall County and several local hunters spent a wet cold day in the field after the popular birds.

But reports this morning are that quail coveys are few and the birds are leary of hunters.

One group saw only one covey of birds in an afternoon hunt and this covey came up out of shooting range.

Another group of local hunters saw three coveys, all of which took to the wing early. "It was just like the birds had been hunted before this year", a spokesman said.

One of man's most priceless possessions is his eyes, and help in conserving this treasure is on its way, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

This help is in the form of a federally-imposed requirement for impact-resistant lenses on eyeglasses. Thousands of Texans already wear them.

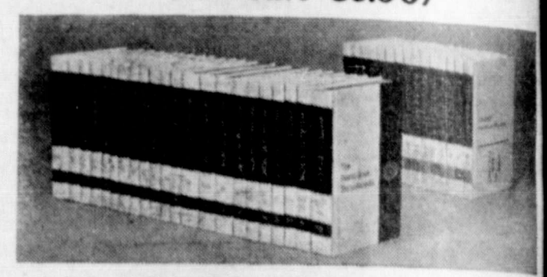

Effective Dec. 31, all glasses and sunglasses sold in the United States must have lenses of laminated glass, heat-tempered glass or plastic. This seems like a simple solution to some of the eye injury problems. But it took years of effort by accident prevention experts to attain this ruling by the Food and Drug Administration.

Last year, reports the National Safety Council, there were 110,000 eye injuries in this country. It is obvious that only a fraction of this number came from broken lenses. Almost 11 per cent of the injuries resulted in a perma partial-blindness, which one or both eyes were dam permanently. More than seve of 10 persons suffering ey jury went through a perio blindness—even if only te ary.

While the impact-re lenses won't provide total p tion from breaking, they a step in the right direction Federal Food and Drug Ad tration regulation will p greater protection in to lenses. But they cannot be sidered as providing an unb able shield against eye in The new regulation covers scription and non-prescri glasses. If there is some re why these impact-resistant won't fulfill the visual req ments of a particular pa regular lenses can be obtain
